The Clocktower, 100 years old

The last of a 6-part series focusing on the history of the Clocktower complex, its previous owners and tenants and it's impact on Chelsea.

Time to celebrate

With industry now in the history books, buildings being restored for new uses

By Kathy Clark
Special Writer

Like the old adage for the month of March, "It comes in like a lion, and out like a lamb," the factories on North Main Street, now known as the Clocktower Complex, roared in with a stove factory, and quietly left in 2003 with robots welding car seat frames.

Beginning in 1890, machinery was invented or utilized to make oil stoves, ball bearings, screw machines, automobiles, airplane engines, ammunition, screw machine products, formed-wire products and springs.

Chelsea's industrial companies survived for more than 100 years through many changes and a few bankruptcies.

While riding the highs and lows of the automobile industry, they boosted local employment and generated wealth for the major occupants of the factory complex.

That list includes Glazier Stove Company, Flanders Manufacturing, Lewis Spring & Axle, Central Fibre Products, Chelsea Products (which became Dana), Federal Screw Works, Rockwell-Standard and Chelsea Industries.

Factories were operating at full capacity during and after World War II into the 1970s, until a slump in Michigan's economy and the automobile industry affected our industries and downtown businesses.

Worker uses a press to make a car roof bow during the industrial era of the Chelsea Clocktower.

Central Fibre Products, owned by Avis Industrial Corp. since 1964, was closed in 1980 in a downsizing of their business holdings.

Chelsea Industries Inc., and Rockwell-Standard Chelsea Industries primarily formed wire parts for seating for automotive and agricultural equipment.

From 1980 to 1997 Jack Dunn and Dr. James Botsford were the largest shareholders. They took over the Central Fibre buildings with 100 employees located in the Chelsea factory space.

Dunn, of Dunn & Associates Inc., now located in downtown Chelsea, was a central player in Chelsea's more recent industrial history.

He was plant manager at Central Fibre Products Co., which closed in 1980, and became president of Chelsea Industries.

In a recent interview, Dunn was asked what machinery was once inside the factories.

Come celebrate the Clocktower

The following is the schedule for Saturday's 100th anniversary celebration of the Chelsea Clocktower:

Noon: Event and activities begin. Two bouncy stations will be open and food will be served until 1 p.m. Guided walking tours of the site begin every half hour. Chelsea House Orchestra performs in the gazebo until 1 p.m. Chelsea Teddy Bear Company activities begin at the factory and continue until 6 p.m.

1 p.m. Colora The Clown performs until 3 p.m.

2:30 p.m. Presentations in gazebo by State Rep. Pam Byrnes, D-District 52; and Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney.

3 p.m. String Cheese performs (Celtic contemporary).

5 p.m. Fresh Air Sound (rock) performs in gazebo.

6 p.m. Event ends. Bull Harvey (blues) plays in the gazebo for a finale concert.

The event includes free factory tours, free face tattoos, free lemonade and popcorn and contests. Special bear benefit for C.S. Mott Children's Hospital in Ann Arbor. Buy and donate a "stuff your own" Chelsea Bear or Knuckles Bear for $5 and donate to Mott. Gourmet Chocolate Cafe and Treehouse Cafe will offer food throughout the day. Chelsea Teddy Bear Factory will have cider and donuts. The Chelsea Historical Museum will be open for tours all day in the Gourmet Chocolate Cafe. Call the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce at 475-1145 for more information or visit www.chelsea.sure1utions.com

Construction will begin Monday on Old US-12

Beginning on Monday, Oct. 1, the Washtenaw County Road Commission will establish lane restrictions on Old US-12 between M-52 (Main Street) and Gene Drive in the City of Chelsea, Sylvan Township, for the resurfacing of Old US-12 and related work.

One lane of traffic in each direction will be maintained during construction activities, with intermittent traffic delays occurring. The lane restrictions will remain in place throughout the project, scheduled for completion in November.

Access for residents and business owners within the construction zone will be maintained. Residents and business owners will be contacted regarding activities that may temporarily limit driveway access, such as concrete curb and gutter repairs. To maintain the safety of road crews, drive cautiously through the work zone. A temporary construction speed limit of 35 MPH will be established.

CEF fund drive

The Chelsea Education Foundation is beginning its 16th year supporting educational opportunities for Chelsea-area residents. Last year the foundation awarded 62 college scholarships and 24 grants for a total contribution of $68,000 to the Chelsea community.

The CEF is supported entirely through donations from endowments, businesses, local organizations and private individuals. This year the 15 volunteer board members are asking the community to help the CEF meet its goals of providing educational opportunities for all residents.

REGIONAL REPORT: INSIDE THE TRAINING ROOM

Sideline support: Trainers help keep high school athletes safe

Chelsea athletic trainer Tom LaFleur helps a player who ran into a wall during a game.

By Don Richter
Heritage Newspapers

With the life-threatening spinal injury suffered by Buffalo Bills tight end Kevin Everett during a game against the Denver Broncos earlier this month, the inherent danger of athletics, especially those as collision-conscious as football, has recently been thrust into the spotlight.

Turn on any football game, whether college or pro, and sooner or later, a player is going to hit the turf and not get up.

In football, injuries are a part of the game. Playing through injuries and the accompanying aches and pain is considered a must, at least at the highest levels of the sport. Miss a series or a game because of injury in the NFL and a player could lose his job.

With the heroic efforts of spinal specialists on site during the Bills-Broncos game in which Everett sustained his injury making a tackle with his helmet, instead of his shoulder pads, the fourth-year pro's chances of walking again and leading a normal life are much greater.

At the high school level, though the game is slower and the players smaller, the collisions can be just as vicious. And, just as dangerous.

While high school games rarely, if ever, have spinal specialists present on the sidelines, most prep grid contests have an athletic trainer on hand to diagnosis injuries and provide care.

Usually obscure individuals hidden among the helmets and shoulder pads on the football sidelines, or sitting on the bench or close by

McKune Memorial Library

New program focuses on war movie classics

The McKune Memorial Library will be screening films on selected Monday evenings this fall. The fall film season, called "Millennium Matters: Issues of the 21st Century," began on Monday and runs through Dec. 10. The program includes a retrospective of thought-provoking films including documentaries and features, which will consider the United States at war within the context of history.

Sumner

The series will be moderated by Dr. Gregory Sumner, Professor of American History, University of Detroit Mercy. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, and holds a doctorate in History from Indiana University.

He is the author of "Dwight Macdonald and the Politics Circle: the Challenge of Cosmopolitan Democracy" (Cornell University Press, 1996), and is currently writing a book on the life and writings of author Kurt Vonnegut. Dr. Sumner has won fellowships from the National Endowment for the Humanities, and was a William J. Fulbright Visiting Professor in Studi Americani at the Universita di Roma Tre in 2001. This year he made his debut as a contributor to the History Channel, appearing in "Motown," an episode in the popular series, "Our Generation."

Bill Harmer, the head of adult services at the McKune Memorial Library, is hoping to start a new trend at the library by nurturing an interest in cinema by staging quarterly film series based around timely themes.

"We presented a succession of films about food in June," he said. "We held the events outside in the library's amphitheater. The response was incredible and ever since then, I've received numerous request from library patrons to offer more movie nights."

On film

The films in the series all being at 6:30 p.m. to be followed immediately by discussion, including:

"Why We Fight"
Begins: Oct. 22, 2007
"Path to War"
Begins: Nov. 19, 2007
"Maya Lin: A Clear Strong Vision"
Begins: Dec. 10, 2007

For more information about these free events, please visit the library at www.chelsea.lib.mi.us.org or call 734-475-8732.

Police briefs

County police search for flasher

The Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department is investigating complaints by village residents of an unknown person allegedly exposing himself to two women Sunday.

According to Lt. Jim Anuszkiewicz, officers responded to a call shortly after 3:30 p.m. between Adrian and Duncan streets.

Anuszkiewicz said witnesses reported a white male with a pale skin complexion, approximately 50 years old, 6'3" tall, 250 pounds, wearing a baseball cap on backwards and wire rimmed glasses, jumping out of a vehicle and completely exposed himself. The vehicle was a dark green Buick-type car with no license plate.

One of the victims, who did not want to be identified, said she believes this was not an isolated incident.

"This happened to us three years ago," she said. "This guy totally catches you off guard."

She told police that her and another local resident attempted to chase the man before he sped away in the unmarked car.

"We were told nothing else has been reported so I'm not sure if this has just happened to us or if people are scared and haven't come forward," she said. "It's scary to think this guy is camping out and exposing himself in areas where children are."

Anuszkiewicz acknowledged that incidents similar in nature have occurred in and around the village in the past.

"They are more uncommon than common," he said. "We're looking into past incident reports to see if there are any similarities with this one."

Anuszkiewicz said past incidents have not evolved into a series of repeat offenses.

"It's not anything to where we've been able to put a pattern together," he said.

The victim said if similar instances have occurred with other residents, she encourages them to come forward and talk to sheriff's deputies.

"We need the peace of mind to know it's not just us," she said. "If it is just us, then we have a serious problem with this guy stalking us."

Anuszkiewicz said until officers have been able to identify a potential suspect, the alleged crime will remain under investigation.

"We're always open to any information that would assist us in this case or any investigation," he said.

Anyone with information on the alleged exposure is encouraged to contact the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department at 428-8829. For anonymous tips, contact the department's tip line at 1-734-973-7711.

Chelsea News In Brief

Autumn Jubilee

Oct. 20 is the date for this year's Autumn Jubilee celebration to benefit the Chelsea Center for the Arts. Proceeds from the event help to support quality arts and music programs for preschool to adult age students at the center which is located in one of the fastest growing arts communities in Michigan.

"Denim & Diamonds" is the theme for the 6:30 pm event being held at the Dale Fisher Gallery and Reception Center in Grass Lake. Attendees are encouraged to dress up their casual denim attire with anything that sparkles and enjoy a fun evening while supporting the arts. The facility affords barrier free access and ample parking.

Tickets for the Autumn Jubilee are $100 per person. Groups of 8 or more will receive a 10% discount. After October 10th, all tickets will be $120 per person. For more information or to reserve your space, please call the CCA at 734-433-2787.

Scouts in action

The Chelsea Area Girl Scouts will be holding a Food Drive for Faith in Action on Oct. 5 at the Chelsea Homecoming football game. Donations will be accepted at both admission gates until halftime. Any non-perishable food items or paper products will be accepted. Help our own while cheering on the Bulldogs.

Rotary celebration

The Chelsea Rotary Club is celebrating its 20th anniversary on Oct. 27 at the St. Louis Center. The event, open to all current and past members, begins with socializing at 6:30 p.m. followed by dinner and a cash bar at 7:30 p.m. Special speaker is the Rev. Fr. Joseph Rinaldo. RSVP by Oct. 15 to Scott McElrath at 1-734-475-3660 or at DangerousArch@worldnet.att.net

Wine tasting

An evening of wine tasting and education will be held on Saturday, Oct. 13 at St. Mary Church. Proceeds from this event will benefit The Leukemia & Lymphoma Society & The Hope Clinic. For more information, call 1-734-475-7561

Sarah Groesser Pastor, The Fire Mountain Worship Center

'It's right for me'

Chelsea's Sarah Groesser answers her calling to be a pastor

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

Sarah Groesser has heard her calling for as long as she can remember. She wasn't hearing this message from her parents or a teacher or an influential friend. Her calling was coming from a much higher power.

And she wasn't about to ignore the wishes of her lord savior.

"I've always taught Sunday school, and even as an adult I would do the youth groups, teaching and filling in when the pastor was gone," said Groesser, who has called Chelsea home for more than 30 years. "In 1987 when I really, really heard that I should become a pastor, I didn't know how that was going to work. My husband became installed as a pastor of the church before I did and I knew I was supposed to also, but the pastor who was there at the time didn't believe in women in the ministry.

"He told me not to tell the people that I believed I was supposed to be a pastor. He said they will kick both my husband and I out of the church."

Sarah and her husband John both played important roles at the Chelsea Full Gospel Church, but only John had the title of pastor. And Sarah knew in her heart that God wanted her to do more than be the pastor's wife.

"I held this (belief) in until a church meeting a few months after my husband had become the pastor," she said. "And I just let it all out. People were asking me what I saw my role as a pastor's wife as, and I said I don't see my role as a pastor's wife. I said I'm called to be a pastor, and I just broke down in tears because it was finally out."

The tears quickly turned from tears of trepidation and apprehension into tears of relief – then joy.

"Much to my surprise the former pastor was wrong," she said. "The people embraced me as a pastor. It was just an awesome thing once it was out. I was holding it in for so long because I was told it was wrong."

Sarah Groesser is the pastor of the Fire Mountain Worship Center.

That awesome evening was in 1988. She never doubted her calling to begin with and hasn't since.

Carrying my Bible to school

John and Sarah Groesser moved to Chelsea shortly after they were married in 1976. Both were born again as young children.

"My interest started when I was a little girl," Sarah said. "I was born again at age 6 and always had a passion for God and a desire to know more about him. As a little child I would walk through the woods with my bible and pray. I just wanted to know God."

For Sarah, that need to know God has always been "a burning passion in my heart." She started teaching youth groups and lay preaching when she was just 13 years old in a Methodist Church in her hometown of Traverse City.

"I preached youth Sundays and Easter sunrise services in high school and the ministry always fascinated me," she said. "We had a pastor whose family had been missionaries for 20 years and I was fascinated with all the things they had done and all the different things that went with being a missionary."

In junior high, Sarah considered being a missionary.

"I always thought I would be a missionary because I didn't really know any female pastors, but I knew women could be missionaries," she said. "So that's what I told everyone I was going to be."

Of course what you want to be in junior high often changes course.

Sarah attended Traverse City High school and her class included 670 students.

"And I was the only one who carried a Bible to school with me every day," she says. "I would always read it between classes and it was just always a passion for me. I can't remember a time in my life when the Bible wasn't important to me."

Sarah used to skip out of school during study hall, but it wasn't to meet boys or get an ice cream. It was to study the word of the lord.

"We had an open campus back then so during study hall you could leave school and I would go to a nearby Christian book store and just devour books," she said. "I would read and read and read

Four-slide wire-forming machines at Rockwell Standard.

TIME

He located a brochure about a machinery auction at Rockwell in 1983, labeled, "Major manufacturer of mechanical springs, the assets of Rockwell International, Mechanical Devices Division, Chelsea."

Twenty-four pages showed huge four-slide wire-forming machines, spring coilers, wire hookers, spring grinders, heat-treating equipment, punch presses and all other tools used in the Rockwell company.

If one could have had the opportunity to walk through the Rockwell factory to see this machinery in production, this brochure showed they may have felt awed and dwarfed among the more than 200 machines.

The auction cleared the factory complex of all industrial machinery.

With a vision for new use, Chelsea Industries stepped up to the plate in 1987 and bought the abandoned Rockwell-Standard spring plant buildings from Rockwell Associates of Ann Arbor. Dunn described the last uses of the factory buildings after the machinery sale.

His wife Nancy managed rental of the space and directed the refurbishing of the entire complex.

According to Dunn, it had complete electrical service and about 100,000 square feet of usable space was unoccupied. "Businesses such as Merkel's Carpet Warehouse and the Print Shop, which were destroyed by fire, found new homes there," Dunn said.

"Abrasive Finishing, which also lost a major facility to fire, temporarily moved part of its manufacturing there. Other tenants were Rotary Tool of Detroit; Northern Lights, an industrial and commercial painting business and DaJo Sign Co.

"BookCrafters graphic arts training center, Chelsea Community Hospital, Gambles and Federal Screw Works all rented storage space," Dunn added.

"At their peak, the buildings were filled with over 20 tenants."

'Gymnasium' and two foundries

Dunn cleared up the "Gymnasium" nickname for what was originally the Glazier Stove Co.'s Brass Foundry building constructed in 1902.

"The name came about when a fire burned out the entire second floor and roof," he said.

"The foundry was re-roofed, but the second-story floor was not replaced. Employees installed a basketball net on the high walls to shoot hoops during their breaks."

After its initial use as a foundry molding sheets of brass for stoves, then automobiles, the facility was used to store raw materials and other supplies.

Then, with a sigh of old age, the 100-year-old building accidentally collapsed during McKinley Properties' restoration attempt in 2006.

In that same year, the 1895 Iron Foundry, with the old sign "B&B," for "Brightest & Best Stoves," was removed during renovation of the Clocktower Complex.

In 1997 partners Dunn, John Mayne and Dr. James Botsford sold Chelsea Industries to Stonebridge Industries Inc. of Sylvania, Ohio.

The Rockwell buildings, along with the Clocktower, were purchased by McKinley Associates founder Ronald N. Weiser.

First a brewery, then robots

Two of the last tenants of the Clocktower were unique.

Real Ale Company, started by home-brewer Larry Bell, set up the first microbrewery to open in Michigan in 1982.

A pioneer in Michigan's microbrewery industry, Bell moved the business in 1985 to Kalamazoo and renamed it the Kalamazoo Brewing Co., (now known as Bell's Brewing Co.), one of the largest microbreweries in the Midwest and maker of Bell's Beer.

I asked Jack Dunn what the colorful machines were making on the first floor of the Clock tower which I had seen while working at the newspaper.

They worked well into the night, just as Walter and Helen Mae Leonard did next door while publishing The Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader out of the Welfare Building.

"Robots is the best name for them," Dunn said. "Chelsea Industries installed the hydraulic machinery to weld car seat frame assemblies," he said.

The robots were removed in 2003.

The future

The McKinley company continues to renovate the former industrial complex and its 200,000 square feet of space.

The development is filling up with a mix of retail stores, offices and restaurants, centered around a beautiful courtyard with fountain.

Some of the more notable tenants include The Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. and Sleeping Bear Press.

Still standing tall as the cornerstone of the development is one of the most famous landmarks in Michigan — the Clocktower.

It reminds us all of years gone by, and the many former and current tenants and employees that have called the complex home.

It is a symbol of our community's strong industrial roots, while its chorus of incremental chimes helps to keep us punctual.

The Clocktower was the crowning point of Frank Glazier's era of power and development. He left us with a truly magnificent monument, the centerpiece of his vision for Chelsea.

It began over a century ago, and is now being completed with the help of Ambassador Weiser and McKinley.

The legacy will live on, and in another century there will be more stories to tell – perhaps another celebration.

Just like the Clocktower, only time will tell.

Adopt-A-Farm: Huehl Acres

Chopping silage first step of corn harvest

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

As the calendar rolls into autumn, Jerry and Denny Huehl prepare to harvest the hundreds of acres of their own crops.

Generally speaking, one of the first things they do is chop some of the corn into silage that will be used as feed over the winter.

"We chopped probably 20-22 acres, and that filled one silo," Jerry Huehl said Sept. 19.

"We're going to wait to do the rest; it's still a little green yet."

Moisture content is the critical factor when the corn is ready to harvest.

"You want it to be less than 65 percent moisture," Huehl said.

"Otherwise the juice ferments and the acid goes down to the bottom of the silo and eats away at it."

Huehl explained that the summer's lack of rain had an adverse effect on the yield or number of bushes harvested per acre.

"The first field (of ours) we chopped was real 'short' (on expected number of bushels)," he said.

"The crop insurance adjuster will do a yield analysis, but we got about 90 bushels (per acre), where it's normally up around 150.

"For as dry a year as it's been, we're happy with whatever we're getting," he added.

The effects of that possible shortage of supply has not yet showed up on the wholesale level, when the farmer takes his grain into market.

"I took a load of corn to the Chelsea elevator the other day, and it's still about $3.40 a bushel," Huehl said.

However, it's a completely different story for this area's other common cash crops. In fact, near-record prices are being seen.

"Wheat is up to $8 and (soy)beans keep going up — you can get about $9 now," Huehl said.

"We're pretty thankful we're getting what we get. It was looking pretty scary back there in July (in the midst of drought conditions)."

Adopt-A-Farm: The Series

Heritage Newspapers is partnering with the Washtenaw County Farm Bureau in a program known as "Adopt-A-Farm," which focuses on operations at one local farm, Huehl Acres.

We will follow brothers Jerry and Denny Huehl throughout the year to bring you in-depth stories to raise public awareness about the challenges faced by farmers in an increasingly technological society.

The monthly series will focus on the challenges, goals and tasks the Huehls face throughout the year.

Taking the harvest on the road

Always looking for another way to increase farm revenue, the Huehls also contract to use their own equipment to harvest other local farmers' fields.

"More and more, people are hiring their chopping done," Jerry said.

"It takes the right equipment, but if you have a couple of big setups, you can have it done in a couple of days."

The "right equipment" consists of a combine to chop the corn, several wagons to load it into, and the machinery to transfer the load from the wagon on the ground to the top of the silo.

Investing in...
Southeast Michigan's future.

Detroit Edison is planning more than $600 million in upgrades to Southeast Michigan's electrical system. Work has already begun. Once completed, it will provide improved reliability for years to come. We'll be:

- Repairing or replacing hundreds of transformers, fuses, lightning arresters and other pieces of equipment.
- Trimming thousands of trees to reduce power outages.
- Replacing or reconductoring miles of overhead power lines.
- Inspecting thousands of utility poles to identify and correct potential problems.
- Rebalancing Southeast Michigan's electrical system to prevent overloaded electrical circuits.

This is all a part of our ongoing commitment to deliver the energy our customers need, when they need it — today, tomorrow and into the future.

FARM

"It's just another way for us to utilize all our equipment and get more income," Huehl said. "The dairy operation just isn't big enough."

After taking care of one of their own corn fields, Jerry and Denny Huehl and farmhand Nelson Bollinger took their show on the road to chop silage for an old friend, Bob Heller on Guenther Road.

"For Heller's silo, it depends on how short is corn is, but it should take about 20 wagonloads to fill," Jerry Huehl said.

Heller, a farmer since 1953, raises corn, soybeans, wheat and hay on 190 acres on Guenther Road and another 125 acres in Freedom Township.

"I milked cows for 43 years until I got Parkinson's disease, then the Huehl boys bought them from me," Heller said.

"You couldn't have found a better bunch of boys than the Huehls. Their dad was a good farmer and they're following in his footsteps."

The first wagon full of silage is brought to the silo, and a quick connection to the power take-off controls puts the machinery in motion.

The silage is unloaded from the wagon into a rotary device that carried it up a tube to the top of the silo.

Once n a while, though, things don't go as planned.

The deflector at the top of the silo got stuck in the wrong position, causing the silage to miss its mark and overshoot the opening and creating a temporary hailstorm of thumbnail-size bits of stalks, cobs and kernels.

A quick trip to the top of the 40-foot silo with some lubricating spray quickly remedied the problem.

The corn is chopped into thumbnail-size pieces (above) out in the field and loaded onto a wagon to take it back to the farm.

Huehl farmhand Nelson Bollinger (left) climbs a silo at Bob Heller's farm as Bollinger and the Huehl brothers prepare to chop several acres of corn for their old friend.

Crop projections reflect outlook

Threats of frost and freeze in coming days could spell trouble for Michigan's late-season crops and dramatically change the outlook of the most recent Michigan crop production report, released the first of the month.

Based on conditions as of Sept. 1, the Michigan Field Office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics reports the following:

- Michigan corn farmers expect a yield of 113 bushels per acre, down 34 bushels from last year. The Michigan corn crop was about one week ahead of the average stage of development as of Sept. 1. Rainfall in August was 1 to 4 inches above normal in major corn areas. However, this did not have a substantial positive influence on potential yields since most of the crop had silked by Aug.1. Only one-fourth of the acreage was rated good to excellent at the outset of September.
- Michigan soybean yield is forecast at 33 bushels per acre, down 12 bushels from 2006. Even though much of the state experienced a moderate drought in the summer, the crop showed signs of improvement with the cooler temperatures and light rain by mid-August.
- Sugar beet producers in Michigan estimate a yield of 21.5 tons per acre, down 1.7 tons from 2006.

- Sugar beet producers in Michigan estimate a yield of 21.5 tons per acre, down 1.7 tons from 2006.
- Nationally, corn production is forecast at 13.3 billion bushels, up 26 percent above 2006. Based on conditions as of Sept. 1, yields are expected to average 155.8 bushels per acre, 6.7 bushels above last year. If realized, this would be the second highest yield on record, behind the 160.4 bushel yield in 2004. Production would be the largest on record, as growers expect to harvest the most corn acres for grain since 1933.

Farm Bureau votes on legislative policy

The members of the Washtenaw County Farm Bureau got their chance to vote on dozens of legislative policy issues on the state and local level at their annual meeting Sept. 20.

The members were united in their opinions, casting unanimous votes on a total of 13 state and local legislative recommendations and reaffirmation of 48 national, state and local policy stances.

NATIONAL:

1. U.S. 23 from Toledo to Flint be re-designated an interstate highway in order to qualify for increased federal funding.
2. Commending the state Department of Natural Resources for issuing kill permits for animals causing crop damage.
3. Continued and accelerated effort by the Michigan Farm Bureau to coordinate the agricultural concept of animal welfare information to the schools, newspapers and any media that tells our side of agriculture.
4. Request that the state Legislature revisit the Natural Resource and Environmental Protection Act and direct the state Department of Environmental Quality to give equal recognition to farmland as a natural resource, as is given wetlands, particularly to the maintenance of drainage.
5. The state Legislature should fund the Michigan State Fair in Detroit and the Upper Peninsula, plus county fairs.
6. Change current regulations to allow a pharmacist the responsibility to decide whether an unopened prescription medication can be returned for refund or credit.

LOCAL:

1. Milk machines were placed in schools to sell milk, and if the schools are not using them for that purpose they must do so now.

The Washtenaw County Road Commission as singled out for the next five recommendations, with the Farm Bureau calling on the agency to:

Be more effective in communicating to employees and the public; be timelier in mowing intersections to improve visibility and safety; cut all dead trees along roads to prevent accidents and electrical outages; and opposes raising the number of commissioners from three to five, as well as ensuring equal representation across the county

7. Ask the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department to have people using "slow-moving vehicle" signs for any other purpose to remove them from public view.

Women pastor debate takes disturbing turn

I remember a time when I was taking a shower and yelled down to my wife that there was no soap. She came upstairs and handed me a new bar and said, "you've been in here 20 minutes and you just noticed there was no soap."

OK. I like to take long showers. It's where I get a chance to think. In fact, I come up with more ideas in the 20 minutes I am in the shower than I do all day. That's why sometimes I stretch a shower until 30 minutes – or until the hot water runs out.

Terry Jacoby

But I didn't get my shower time on Saturday after taking my usual run. Just minutes before I grabbed a towel, I sat down and read my email. There was a letter from a "representative" from a local church. I wasn't familiar enough with his title to call him a pastor, but he was certainly speaking on behalf of his church.

I spent my entire time in the shower rereading the letter in my head. And the shock of it never washed off the entire time. But what occurred to me during that shower and the realization of something that I still refuse to believe was beyond shock.

While his words stung, his message drew blood.

This representative of a church stated in not so many words that if I run another column from Pastor Dawson his church would no longer advertise in our newspaper. This is a common threat in the business I live in – and it's even gone from threat to reality. We lose advertisers and we gain advertisers and the reason people choose to advertise is because it's a great way to promote ones business or event or message. Our advertisers get results.

What SHOCKED me was that a threat of this kind would come from someone who preaches Christianity and the word of the Lord. I was so surprised by this that I think I forgot to shampoo my hair during my shower. I can't remember.

All I could recall was reading this message from a devoted Christian and thinking some things I wish I never thought of, including a very disturbing realization that maybe the radical nuts we are fighting on the other side of the world may just have a point.

The group that likes to chant "Death to America" often states the reason for their hatred is because we as Americans and Christians try to impose our religious beliefs on them. Not that we preach democracy, but that we impose Christianity.

I never believed it for one second...until I took my shower on Saturday.

Hearing a representative from a church say that if we don't suppress someone's viewpoint he will take action to hurt us was (hold on, I need a thesaurus to find another word for shocking) alarming, disturbing and worrisome. Raised a Catholic, I was taught to believe that all viewpoints should be welcome.

Pastor Dawson stated that based on scripture from the Bible, women should not be pastors. His belief is based on the words taken from the source of all Christian beliefs. He didn't make anything up or quote other sources. He found passages to support a belief – and in turn create a debate around the community.

He didn't threaten anyone or hurt anyone or personally attack anyone.

Now I will admit that his column got a little bit of a free pass from me based on my own personal Christian beliefs. And that belief is that anyone who is a pastor is a good, caring and kind person. Some of his words may have slipped past me because I would never in a second believe a pastor would want to hurt someone with their words or beliefs.

Call me ignorant, but if I see "pastor" before someone's name, I am thinking good thoughts about this person. I also admit that I was a bit surprised that someone would take this stance, but he did support it and I don't pretend to be an expert on the Bible. As far as I knew, maybe this was no big deal. How

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor: Well, Pastor Chris Dawson, your article entitled "Should Women preach the Gospel" was very enlightening about you and your church.

I'm happy that we live in a country where you are aloud to voice your opinion. It's a wonderful aspect of being American.

But - why mention it? This is a time when we should be coming together as a community - why not use the space to encourage participation in the Crop Walk - feeding the hungry, or other needs?

The Bible has been used by many peoples of faith, many religions. You're not going to change the fact that we have women preaching in Chelsea or anywhere else for that matter. So, why bring it up? For the sole purpose of being inflammatory and hurting your local brothers and sisters?

I am NOT knocking any religion or following, belief or practice - just questioning the use of this space in the paper and the need for the article.

If we are a people of peace, why not choose to write about important, impactful nation building concepts that could effect change?

Janice Ortbring
Chelsea

To the Editor: I find it sad that a person who claims to be a Christian (Chris Dawson) expresses and teaches such an intolerance for other teachers of and believers in Christianity.

Donald H Locker
Chelsea

To the Editor: I read recently in The Chelsea Standard that the number of women in the ministry has more than doubled in the last 30 years. What great news!

I'm so glad that women who have been blessed with the gifts of compassion, intelligence and leadership, and feel a call from God to use these gifts to minister to others, are becoming able to fully realize their potential, much to the benefit of the people whose lives they touch.

I'm privileged to be a member of Chelsea First United Methodist Church, where three wonderful women make up our pastoral staff. Their love of God and desire to share that love with others is clearly evident in the energy, commitment and leadership they give our church. As I move along my faith journey I have been inspired and challenged by their ministry many times.

I'm so grateful these women have chosen to use their God-given talents to serve others. I truly hope that doors will continue to open for other women to do the same, touching even more lives with God's message of grace, acceptance and love.

Deb Hubbard
Chelsea

To the Editor: Mr. Lindauer's article to the editor in last week's edition of The Chelsea Standard was 100 percent right about every resident having the right to vote.

I believe that if you are not involved in the choices of elected officials by voting, you have fallen down on a moral obligation and civic duty. If just a small percentage of registered voters come to the polls this November, then only a few people will have decided for all of us. Every citizen has a stake in who will be on the City Council that will lead our community into the future.

I am very proud, as a current city councilman, of the hard work and dedication that the current council has given. These are trying times, and there was a lot of unfinished business to clear up when we became the first City Council three years ago. Not every choice that we have had to make has a favorable view by every citizen.

But our views on the council show about the same differences as the different views in the community, and we have discussed options and come to cooperative solutions. It has taken a lot of give and take at many work sessions and countless committee meetings to bring things around, but we have all worked hard and found ways to work well together despite our differences.

We have come together as a group that is very dedicated to doing the best for Chelsea's future.

There have been a tremendous number of changes in our city over the years, but I do not think that this is the time for change in leadership. City

Dems play trump card

It was one of those picture perfect pure Michigan early autumn Sundays. If you were the chief executive officer of a major Michigan company, you were probably pleased that the Tigers were beating Minnesota on the ball diamond and the resurgent Lions were about to beat them on the gridiron.

Tim Skubick

And then the phone rang.

The call was from Gov. Jennifer Granholm. She was not enjoying the crisp and sun-filled afternoon. The ensuing conversation may have gone something like this.

"Hi. This is Jennifer Granholm. I hope I'm not interrupting anything, but I've got a problem and I need your urgent help.

"As you may know, we have been holed up here at the Capitol for the last three days trying to resolve this budget deficit. I've tried to make a deal with the Republicans to raise the income tax, but each time I get close, the two GOP leaders throw a monkey wrench in the works.

(The CEO at this point is wondering, what's this got to do with me?)

"So it has come down to this: I'm asking you to call Craig DeRoche and Mike Bishop and tell them to stop being obstructionists. But if you can't do that, I promise you I have the votes in the House to wipe out business tax loopholes and maybe some of the tax breaks we just adopted in the new state business tax.

"I don't want you to hate me for doing this. This is not a threat. We just need to get this state moving again, so I exhort you to help me. Please."

End of conversation.

Up to this point, the GOP had the governor over the barrel because she wanted a bipartisan vote on the income tax and they could squeeze her until they got everything they wanted.

With the ultimatum to business, the two sides switched places on the barrel.

Within hours, phone calls were made. Sen. Mike Bishop showed up and House

What was the "Paradome" made in Chelsea?

A. Parachute made for sports – water skiing and cliff jumping.

B. Folding, portable camping cabin made by Outdoor Fibre Products.

C. The clear plastic "bubble umbrella" marketed in 1968.

Answer B. The Paradome was manufactured in Chelsea by Outdoor Fibre Products, established in 1961. It was designed by C. William Moss, made of fiberglass cloth and aluminum framework. It weighed 98 pounds and folded for easy transport. The Paradome won Michigan's 1963 Product of the Year award. Paradomes were forerunners to other screened shelters and pop-up tents. Outdoor Fibre Products Co. was sold to Avis Industrial Corp. in 1964.

Republicans, who wanted to make a deal with the governor, renewed serious talks.

The phone calls were a near-brilliant strategy. House Democrats, the gang that could not shoot straight, actually hatched the concept months ago when the new business tax was being written.

According to one key Democrat, all the time the business tax credits were being fashioned, the beneficiaries were told, "We may need your help later on regarding other issues."

In other words, there is no such thing as a free tax credit. So the Democrats bided their time and took some hits for being inept and clumsy, but at the critical point when the GOP would not budge on a tax increase, the calls were made.

There was even talk in the governor's inner circle of actually voting on the cuts to demonstrate it was no idle threat.

The business leaders had to listen. They not only knew they might lose some badly needed state support, but they also knew a shutdown of state government would catapult Michigan into the national headlines and the fallout from closing down government would damage the state's business climate for years to come.

We'll really never know how effective the threat was, but in the budget game that was messy, this was a smooth move.

Please keep these ideas in mind, and get to the polls on Nov. 6 to help decide our city's leaders. It's up to you.

James Bollinger
Chelsea City Council member and candidate

To the Editor: I was delighted to see the front page coverage given to Deacon Richard Shaneyfelt and Nadine (Sept. 13th in the Chelsea Standard). I have had the privilege and pleasure of working with them and enjoying their friendship for more than 25 years both at Faith In Action and otherwise.

I attended Deacon Shaneyfelt's graduation from the training program for the diaconate, was it really that many years ago? Their contributions to Chelsea and the surrounding communities have always been given in the spirit of love and concern for other people.

It is my prayer that they have joy in their retirement and in their travels.

God bless them both.

How to help CEF help our kids

The Chelsea Education Foundation is beginning their 18th year supporting educational opportunities for Chelsea area residents. Last year the Foundation awarded 62 college scholarships and 24 grants for a total contribution of $68,000 into the Chelsea community. The 2007 scholarship winners (above) were honored last school year. The CEF is supported entirely through donations from endowments, businesses, local organizations, and private individuals. This year our 15 volunteer board members are asking you to help the CEF meet our goals of providing increased educational opportunities for all our residents. Your tax deductible contributions enable us in to continue this tradition. Visit CEF's Web site to learn more about how to partner with the CEF.

JACOBY

harmful can it be when it's written by a pastor using the Bible as his source.

So it went to print.

We received many opposing letters to his column and they were all very well written. I believe that Mr. Dawson's column backfired on him a bit based on the reaction from readers.

Then came Saturday and the latest letter.

While taking my shower I considered the other letters I had received. The good folks from St. Mary Catholic Church said they "support Preacher Chris Dawson's right to believe as he deems is faithful to the teaching of his denomination." They went on to say that the Catholic Church does not allow ordination for women. But they also stated, "while we honor our own traditions, and truly value the contribution of women, we do not condemn the practices of other churches."

That was very well said. Bravo. And if I still had my thesaurus up I would look up another word for bravo.

They didn't threaten me. They didn't blame the newspaper or challenge the editor. They didn't say, our way or the highway. They talked like Christians.

Another wonderful letter was from Edith Wiarda of Lyndon Township. This was one of the best letters I have ever read in a newspaper. She talked about Pastor Faith and Pastor Joy Barrett, two church leaders she has had the pleasure to be around. She concluded her letter saying, "such attitudes (like Pastor Dawson's) often make people unable to see Grace – or Joy, or Faith – even when it's standing right in front of them."

Beautiful.

She didn't threaten me. She didn't blame the newspaper or challenge the editor. She didn't say, our way or the highway. She talked like a Christian.

Does this warning of pulling advertising from a small newspaper support in any way fanatical terrorists claims that Christians try to push their beliefs on others and threaten them if they don't? As I reached to turn off the hot water I concluded it doesn't. But something tells me that when I hear that I will think of this letter and that frightens me.

Christians should be open to other and all viewpoints. And if they don't agree with them, explain why they don't. Just like Edith did. And if you put up a good enough argument – which so many did – maybe the original theory is dismissed.

I had the chance to talk with the author of the letter on Monday and he made some good points. I think I made some good ones too. One thing he really didn't like about the pastor's column was the approach. That the pastor was imposing his beliefs on others and if you didn't follow what he believed then you should be ashamed. It was an excellent point and actually made me think again of the "imposing our will" on others debate.

If Pastor Dawson wants to write a column on what he believes and why he believes it, that's fine. But to say that if you don't believe what I believe you should be ashamed, that's not fine. That's wrong. Christians can preach and debate and educate, but in the end we should let people make their own choices – not threaten them by pulling their advertising or calling them a disgrace.

Later in the day on Saturday I went for a second run – just so I had an excuse to shower again. This time, I got to think about other things. And I even remembered to shampoo my hair.

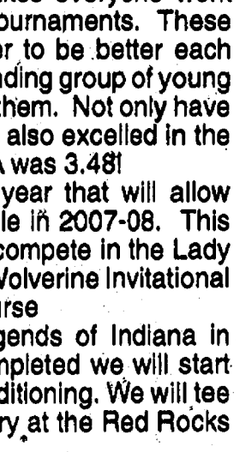
AN EAGLE EYE VIEW

Believe in your Team

By Sandy Wagner
EMU head women's golf coach

Paid Advertisement



Sandy Wagner

My name is Sandy Wagner and I am the Head Women's Golf Coach at Eastern Michigan University. I am entering my third season with the Eagles and I couldn't be having more fun!

The success that the program has seen over the last three years has been due in large part to a belief that they are truly a TEAM and that they can accomplish anything together as a TEAM!

We won our first event of 2007 at the Brickyard Crossings in Indianapolis, Ind. We came from five shots back to win by one shot over Ball State and the rest of the field! Winning our first event is amazing because we had just started school five days earlier and many of the teams competing in the tournament had been practicing for several weeks. This victory marks the 9th team victory in the 10-year history of the program and the fifth tournament title in my three years with the Eagles. During this time we have shattered many if not all of the team and individual school scoring records. Because of this success the bar has been raised for the EMU Women's Golf TEAM!

Looking at this season, I believe that this TEAM has the ability to make it to the post season! We are a deeper TEAM this season, meaning we have more players vying to break into the lineup and that makes everyone work much harder for a chance to play in tournaments. These players work hard pushing each other to be better each time they tee it up! They are an outstanding group of young ladies and I couldn't be more proud of them. Not only have they excelled on the course they have also excelled in the classroom. Last season our team GPA was 3.48!

We have a stronger schedule this year that will allow us to play a more competitive schedule in 2007-08. This fall we are traveling to Penn State to compete in the Lady Northern, and we also compete in the Wolverine Invitational at the University of Michigan Blue Course

We end our fall season at the Legends of Indiana in Franklin. Once the fall season is completed we will start hitting the weights and working on conditioning. We will tee it up again towards the end of February at the Red Rocks Invitational in Sedona, AZ.

Please continue to watch the Eagles as they continue to soar and remember that anything is possible if you stay positive and work hard together as a TEAM!

Sandy Wagner is in her third year as head coach of the EMU women's golf team and she was named Mid-American Conference Coach of the Year in 2007 after leading the team to a runner-up finish at the league championships.

TRAINERS

in the stands during other sporting events, the athletic trainer is an integral part of any successful high school sports program.

"When I started 30 years ago, we didn't have trainers," said Chelsea Athletic Director and Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association Hall-of-Famer Wayne Welton. "Coaches did all the taping and helping out with injuries.

"Today, I can't imagine life without them (trainers). They have that next level of expertise we don't have."

For Dexter athletic trainer Leah Gagnon, an anterior cruciate ligament injury suffered her junior year during a high school basketball game prompted the Wisconsin native's interest in the field.

"Until talking with my trainer, I wasn't even aware it (athletic training) was a profession," she said. "I had always loved sports and knew I wanted to be involved with sports in some capacity (after high school). I never really doubted it. I knew it (training) was the only option for me."

Gagnon, who's been athletic trainer at Dexter for five years, said she has many roles while working on the sidelines.

"The main thing is to prevent injury," she said. "I make sure the athletes are hydrated. There's also a lot of taping and making sure the athletes are conditioned well."

Gagnon, who's required to stay current with medical advances and new technologies by receiving 80 continuing education units every three years through seminars and conferences, said another important aspect of her job is evaluating an injury when it occurs.

"When an injury happens, you have to make the call," she said. "You have to decide if an athlete needs to be removed off the field or if an ambulance needs to be called. That's the biggest part of the job for me. I also have to manage the injury and help get the athlete back to health."

Manchester's Lon Pinhey was practically born to be an athletic trainer.

"I come from a family of health educators," he said. "Both of my parents were coaches and educators. All of my siblings are coaches and teachers, as well. I've always been around athletics."

An athletic trainer for 20 years, including the past seven at Manchester, Pinhey, prior to joining the Flying Dutchmen program, was a trainer with the Detroit Tigers and the Toledo Mud Hens.

"I'm the first responder," he said. "I'm the first line of defense if anybody gets a bump or bruise. Like a fireman, you have to be ready for everything and anything. You're always thinking about the worst-case scenario. An unconscious athlete or a neck and spine injury, that's always something you're thinking about. You always have to be ready."

Saline's Jaime Corl was inspired to become an athletic trainer during her high school years.

"I had been injured playing sports several times," she said. "My trainer in high school (Ypsilanti) inspired me. I always was interested in medicine and in sports, so it was natural."

Corl, who was athletic trainer at Ann Arbor Pioneer for six years before joining Saline's staff last year, said she tries to keep an even keel while on the job.

"Of course, I'm always hoping no one gets hurt, but I have to stay calm, do my job and assess any situation," she said. "I have to be always prepared for the extreme and hope to do the minimum."

For Chelsea athletic trainer Tom LaFleur, the basic care of athletes and the prevention of injuries is most important.

"I'm constantly thinking and watching," he said. "I always have my eye on the play."

LaFleur, who graduated from Northern Michigan University with a degree in athletic training, said over time he gets to know the Bulldog players and their mannerisms, which helps in his care.

"I notice body language," he said. "As time goes by, you learn little things. You watch for certain things. A lot of times, the kids won't tell you anything is wrong."

LaFleur, Chelsea's athletic trainer for the past five years, said he enjoys being a trainer at the high school level.

"I relate well with the kids," he said. "I think it's important that high schools have athletic trainers. I went to school in the Upper Peninsula and we didn't have a trainer."

Welton said LaFleur is paramount to the success of Chelsea's athletic program.

"He's done a great job for us," he said. "He's a huge part of our department."

As one might expect, LaFleur said Everett's injury against the Broncos was an eye-opener.

"That's your worst nightmare right there," he said. "Besides a death, having a kid have a cervical spine injury is one of the worst fears."

LaFleur said, so far in his career, he's never had to treat a cervical spine injury.

"I've had to backboard a lot of kids," he said. "Whenever an athlete complains of neck pain, that's when I call the ambulance. I'm confident I can handle any situation."

Every Friday night during football season, or during other athletic events throughout the year, you'll find the athletic trainer standing on the sidelines or sitting near the bench. While it might appear trainers are simply watching the action or biding their time, much more is going on than meets the eye.

"I'm constantly on the sidelines running scenarios through my head," said Gagnon, who earned a bachelor's degree in exercise science and athletic training from Winona State University in Minnesota and a master's degree from Western Michigan University.

"I'm always thinking of the worst-case scenario. That's how we're taught. While most people are watching the action, I'm watching what's going on behind the play, checking to see if anyone's on the ground or not getting up."

While twisted ankles and bumps and bruises are a daily part of Gagnon's life as a trainer, like Everett's case in Buffalo, there are those moments when the crowd goes deafly quiet and everybody knows a serious injury has occurred. It's at those moments when Gagnon's training and expertise steps to the forefront.

"Since I've been at Dexter, I've had to stabilize the spine and call an ambulance three times," she said. "Luckily, each time it has ended up as a severe concussion. But you always want to err on the side of caution."

LaFleur said he doesn't have time to be nervous when dealing with an injured athlete.

"At that point, I'm in go-mode," he said. "I'm well-trained and it's time to do my job. Afterward, you kind of sit back and think that was intense."

Pinhey, who graduated from East Stroudsburg University in Pennsylvania with a bachelor's degree in health and physical education and a master's in kinesiology from the University of Michigan, said he enjoys being a trainer at the high school level because of the kids.

"They keep me young," he said. "My biggest thrill is being able to get an athlete back on the field. To see them jumping around and celebrating at the end of a game, that gives me enjoyment."

Corl, who graduated from the University of Michigan with a degree in athletic training, said her biggest reward as a trainer is seeing her athletes progress in sports.

"I enjoy watching them grow up," she said. "My job is to educate, provide emergency care and rehabilitation. I make sure the athletes are healthy and functional for their sport. I enjoy helping them return to play."

While an athletic trainer's job is, at times, monotonous, and at other moments, pressure-filled, it's always rewarding said Gagnon.

"Every time I help an athlete is a proud moment for me," she said. "When you know you've made the right call, that's when I feel proudest."

LaFleur said he feels good when he sees an athlete he's treated healthy and back in uniform.

"I worked with an athlete who fractured his ankle during football season," he said. "I worked with him through all of his therapy, from beginning to end, and by spring, I was able to get him back playing baseball. Getting a kid back from being injured and back into competition makes me proud."

PASTOR

at the Christian book store until it was time to go back to school."

Starting another church

Embracing God and spreading his word was destined to be Sarah's life's work. And it was an easy transition for her and her husband to make as they moved to Chelsea.

"I didn't study to become a minister, I actually studied to become a nurse," she said. "I didn't go real far into that though. I was 19 when we got married and moved down here. John got a job as a teacher, which he is still doing."

John has been a respected English teacher at Chelsea High School for 32 years. Both were pastors for eight years when the Chelsea Full Gospel Church merged with the Chelsea Christian Fellowship.

"We did a lot of ministry within the church, but we were not the pastors of that church," Sarah said. "Years ago the church we were pastoring had split with this church, but God wanted us to unite the churches back together. We did a tremendous amount of ministry work even though we weren't the pastors."

Following some "difficult times," Sarah and John felt it was time to move on.

"We took a few months off and prayed and felt very strongly that we were supposed to start another church," she said. "I was supposed to do more of the leading of the church and that's the way this has gone. My husband is still a pastor, but because of the time he has to spend at school and at home on school work, I do most of the ministry for the church."

Fire Mountain Worship Center

The Fire Mountain Worship Center is a non-denominational church founded by the Groessers in May 2001. The church, which holds services at Pierce Lake Elementary in Chelsea, has no affiliation with any other church.

"We are a very small church and have only about 15 members at this time," said Sarah, who along with John, has three sons and one granddaughter. "We have been bigger in the past. But we actually are doing more ministry than we've ever done. The numbers of members are not what I'm really concerned about. What I am more concerned about is how many people's lives we can touch on the outside of the building than what's coming inside the building."

Fire Mountain Worship Center is a "prophetic Word church dedicated to bringing God's healing love to the lost, the bruised, the broken, the hurting and the scattered."

"God loves you, and He specializes in restoring damaged lives," Sarah says. "We're here to release His healing love into your life today. At Fire Mountain Worship Center, we are bold and open with what we believe. We will always preach the uncompromising Word of Faith."

Fire Mountain Worship Center also is Chelsea's host site for Angel Food Ministries, a non-profit, non-denominational organization dedicated to providing grocery relief and financial support to communities throughout the United States.

"This has just been an amazing thing," Sarah said. "We are up to 97 orders this past month. This is all about helping people outside the walls. That's what we are about and what matters to me."

Angel Food's groceries are sold in a quantity that can fit into a medium-sized box at $25 per unit. Each month's menu is different than the previous month and consists of both fresh and frozen items with an average retail value of approximately $50. Generally, one unif of food assists in feeding a family of four for about one week or a single senior citizen for almost a month.

'It's right for me'

Sarah, who along with John, has served in a variety of ministry positions over the years – including cleaning, organizing social events, nursery work, children's church, youth ministries, adult ministries, visitation, nursing home ministry and prison ministry – is too busy to concern herself with what some people think of females serving in the role of minister.

"I don't know that you can find passages in the Bible that says it's OK to have a female pastor," Sarah says. "There is always mention of Aquila and Priscilla were there and they both ministered. So there was a female who was ministering, probably in a house church at the time, but they were doing that together.

"But there is nothing that you can debate back and forth where it absolutely says this or absolutely says that."

Sarah just isn't interested in the debate. The God she knows and loves and has dedicated her life to has no problem with her spreading His word.

"It's right for me," she says. "Somebody can say you are not called to be a pastor because of this, this and this, but I can say in my heart that I know I am. And I know that I have to do what God has

A house divided against itself will not stand

By Pastor Sarah Groesser
Fire Mountain Worship Center, Chelsea

As believers, we are God's house and the mortar that holds us together is His love – unconditional love. Expressing our opinions can be cathartic, but with each blow, mortar is chipped away. The danger of division is clear – a house divided against itself will not stand.

Corinthians 13:4-8 gives us some of the attributes of love:

1. Patient.
2. Kind and thoughtful.
3. Never jealous or envious.
4. Never brags or acts proud and arrogant.
5. Is not selfish or self-seeking.
6. Does not take offense and is not easily provoked.
7. Forgives and forgets quickly (does not take into account a wrong suffered).
8. Is saddened and grieved by unrighteousness.
9. Rejoices in righteousness, truth, and justice.
10. Bears all things.
11. Believes and hopes for the best in others; believes for good outcomes.
12. Endures and never gives up.

Believers typically violate this walk of love through criticism, judgment, division, offense, bitterness, envy and betrayal. We don't really know the depths of our love until that love is tested. Tests usually come through people who hurt us or tempt us to be offended with them. Christians, let's choose to pass this test so the world will know that we belong to Jesus.

Government shutdown looms in Lansing

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

The deadline for state Legislature to pass a budget for the upcoming fiscal year is less than a week away. But, with no clear compromise in sight, the threat of a government shutdown could mean more bad news for the state's tumultuous economy.

Beyond the damage to its economy and reputation, a closure at the state Capitol could have significant impacts on the lives of residents throughout the state. It would temporarily curtail spending from the state's $9 billion general fund and $13 billion school aid fund, sending most of the state's 53,000 employees home without paychecks.

Public schools could close or be forced to file bankruptcy. Road construction would stop. Mid-year university tuition hikes might be inevitable and Medicaid payments for treatment of the poor would cease.

"The damage to a state struggling to rebound from severe economic setbacks would be immediate and long-lasting," said Sen. Randy Richardville, R-District 17.

Richardville, president pro-tempore of the Michigan Senate, represents Washtenaw, Jackson and Monroe counties. He met briefly with constituents in the area Friday as part of an information gathering tour before heading back to Lansing Sunday.

"In Michigan, we have an annual budget of $43 billion a year, roughly $900 million per week," he said. "But for any of the bills to be paid, the Constitution says legislators have to make appropriations. If the budget is not settled, there will be no appropriations and no money would be given to schools, universities and other governmental-funded entities across the state."

Richardville said threatening lawmakers with a government shutdown is nothing more than a fear tactic.

"I think that is terrible thing to threaten to close down the government when we don't have to," he said. "We passed a contingency budget that allows us to continue with this year's budget into next year for 30 days if we can't get anything done soon. It's like an overdraft protection on a credit card."

However, Richardville said members of the House have yet to vote on the plan.

"We're still waiting on them," he said. "No one wants to go into next year without a budget."

Richardville said he believes partisan politics has a lot to do with lawmakers' unwillingness to pass a budget.

"It's the most frustrating thing I have had to endure in my career," he said. "The amount of excuses and blaming that has gone on I have never heard before.

"You have to bring half plus one to draw everyone together on a compromise and when you think you are making progress, someone comes and pulls the rug right out from underneath you."

Richardville said the crux of the debate raging in Lansing is whether people should have to pay more for less government.

"It's a matter of the three Rs — revenues, reductions and reforms," he said. "Some people in Lansing believe our problems can be fixed solely by increasing taxes."

Others believe the problem can be solved with cuts in the state's budget while some believe reform is the answer, he said.

"A combination of these factors will lead to a compromise," Richardville said. "At this point, people are holding off just long enough so they can get everything they want on the table.

"I do not believe we will shut down government. We will get a compromise on the budget it won't get full support, but it will be enough to pass."

Richardville said the lack of action by House members has been frustrating.

"We're ready to go," he said. "We have several other issues we want to address that could help out the economy, but we know they won't get the attention warranted until we pass the budget.

"I am doing everything I can to bring these sides together so they don't shut down the government. That is the most critical thing we have to avoid."

Richardville said one referendum he is working on would bring as much as $250 million a year back into the state's public schools.

The plan calls for voluntary grouping of local school district and municipalities for health insurance purposes. School teachers and administrators would get the same type of health coverage and would not have to compromise the cost or benefits of their plans.

"By opening up the bidding process, we will save millions of dollars that can go back into the classrooms. Right now, Michigan schools put only a very small part of their per-pupil allocation funds into the classroom."

As the Legislature heads toward its new fiscal year, Richardville said he would like to see more participation from community members.

"Providing input for the people in Lansing is so important to us," he said.

PASTOR

called me to do and I have to stand before him someday, I don't have to stand before them.

"I have to do what I feel is right. And they have to do what they feel is right because you have to go by the truth that you know and what you feel in your heart is true. You can't try to violate that, that's not right. You have to go by where you're at in your life right now. I can't change them and they can't change me."

Sarah is very content, proud and satisfied with where she is at right now in her life – and that's leading a church "where healing waters flow."

Who were Aquila and Priscilla?

The first mention in the Bible of Aquila and Priscilla was when Paul came to Corinth on his second preaching trip, there he found the couple. "And he found a certain Jew named Aquila, a man of Pontus by race, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priscilla," we are told, "because Claudius had commanded all the Jews to depart from Rome" (Acts 18: 2).

In most references to the couple, Priscilla precedes Aquila and some believe this indicates that Priscilla was the more spiritually prominent of the two. Paul referred to them as "his helpers," who were willing to give their lives for the cause of Christ.

We read: "But when Priscilla and Aquila heard him, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more accurately" (vs. 26). Priscilla and Aquila provide insight into those who were simply Christians. Many were taught the gospel in the First Century by such Christians as Priscilla and Aquila."

An artist's touch

Funeral director has passion for painting

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

A funeral director with a passion for painting – and who owns an art gallery – is quite possibly unique.

And Chelsea lays claim to such an artist.

John Mitchell Sr., owner since 1981 of Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home in Chelsea and the Caskey-Mitchell Funeral Home in Stockbridge, recently opened The Downstairs Gallery at 105-1/2 S. Main Street in Chelsea. It is the culmination of many years of immersing himself in art.

"I've always looked at the world as a possible painting," he says. "My wife says I see more when I'm driving than she does.

"I take my artistic inspiration from everything around me."

Art has been in Mitchell's blood since boyhood, when he enjoyed drawing and using watercolors in combination with ink. As a schoolboy in Okemos, he entered several youth talent events and received first place ribbons for his age and grade.

He went on to study at the Cincinnati Art Institute and has a minor in design and stage design from Western Michigan University. In college, he had two one-man shows at the student union. "These works were impasto and worked with palette knives and were extremely abstract," he says.

After graduating from mortuary college, work, marriage and family were foremost in his life. But he would still find time to take paper and brushes on vacation, and find inspiration in the world around him.

"The weather and the sky have always piqued my interest, so most of my work in the gallery has that inspiration," he says.

"I say to myself often, why make up a scene when God has given you millions. Just get out your viewfinder, focus on an area and wow, there it is."

In the past several years, Mitchell has studied under several artists, including the late Alex Anderson, who worked in acrylic in Englewood, Fla.

"He was a master at landscape and told me, 'Remember clouds never have sharp edges,'" Mitchell says.

Last October, Mitchell was writing up his resume, and realized he had left Anderson's name out. On his way back to the computer to fix the mistake, he got a cellphone call from Anderson's son, to report Anderson's death – and passing along a message Mitchell treasures – "Dad loved your clouds."

In May, Mitchell was awarded the position of Exhibiting Member of the Boca Grande Art Alliance in Boca Grande, Fla.

"This is a group of artists who winter on the island and paint independently but come together to do three shows during the winter season," he says. "I'm looking forward to my first season as an exhibiting member."

He also has studied under internationally known portrait artist Gwen Barth, and Jane Carlson, nationally recognized landscape artist, and has taken inspiration from, and studied under, Bill Farnsworth, a professor of art at the Ringling College in Sarasota.

Mitchell also has enjoyed being a member of the Monday morning art group at the Chelsea Center for the Arts.

On a recent expedition with brushes and canvas, Mitchell set out to paint a group of local barns. "But only the roof lines," he says. "Very traditional in actuality. But on the canvas it will be interpretive abstract.

"I've transitioned from being very detailed to a more impressionistic style of oil painting. While I love the impasto – thick – style, I'm finding that smooth, thin style works as well.

"I'm also embarking on a style of small 6x6, 5x7 paintings. These paintings have been very well received at the gallery."

Even before his new gallery venture, Mitchell's work was well known around Chelsea – he created the artwork for the Timber Town playground fund-raising T-shirts, and his artwork was selected to grace this year's Chelsea SummerFest brochure. "I'm donating this work for auction at the CCA Autumn Jubilee," he says.

Mitchell is looking forward to creating Father Christmas figures for Chelsea's Festival of Lights in December. "We sculpt the heads, then dress the figures in antique fabrics and furs," he says. "I usually make just a few and give them away but I've had a lot of requests for people to buy them, so this year we'll be doing that and having them for sale at the gallery."

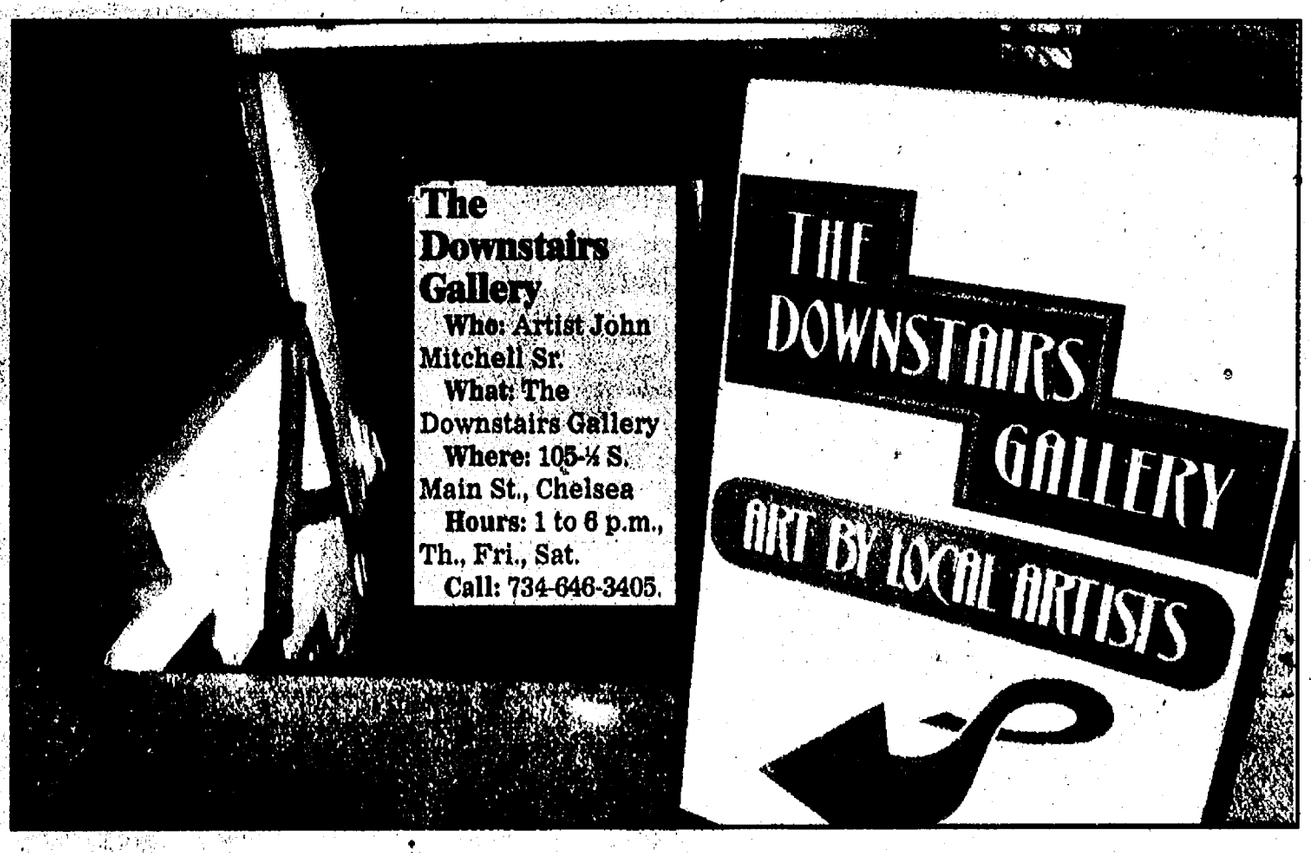
Mitchell's work is in various collections in Chelsea, Ann Arbor and the surrounding area, as well as in collections in Florida and Kentucky.

His new gallery also features watercolors by Janet Alford, pottery by Joan Kelly, beadwork by Marsy Doan, and tiles by graphic artist Scott Eckland of Eckland Imaging and Design.

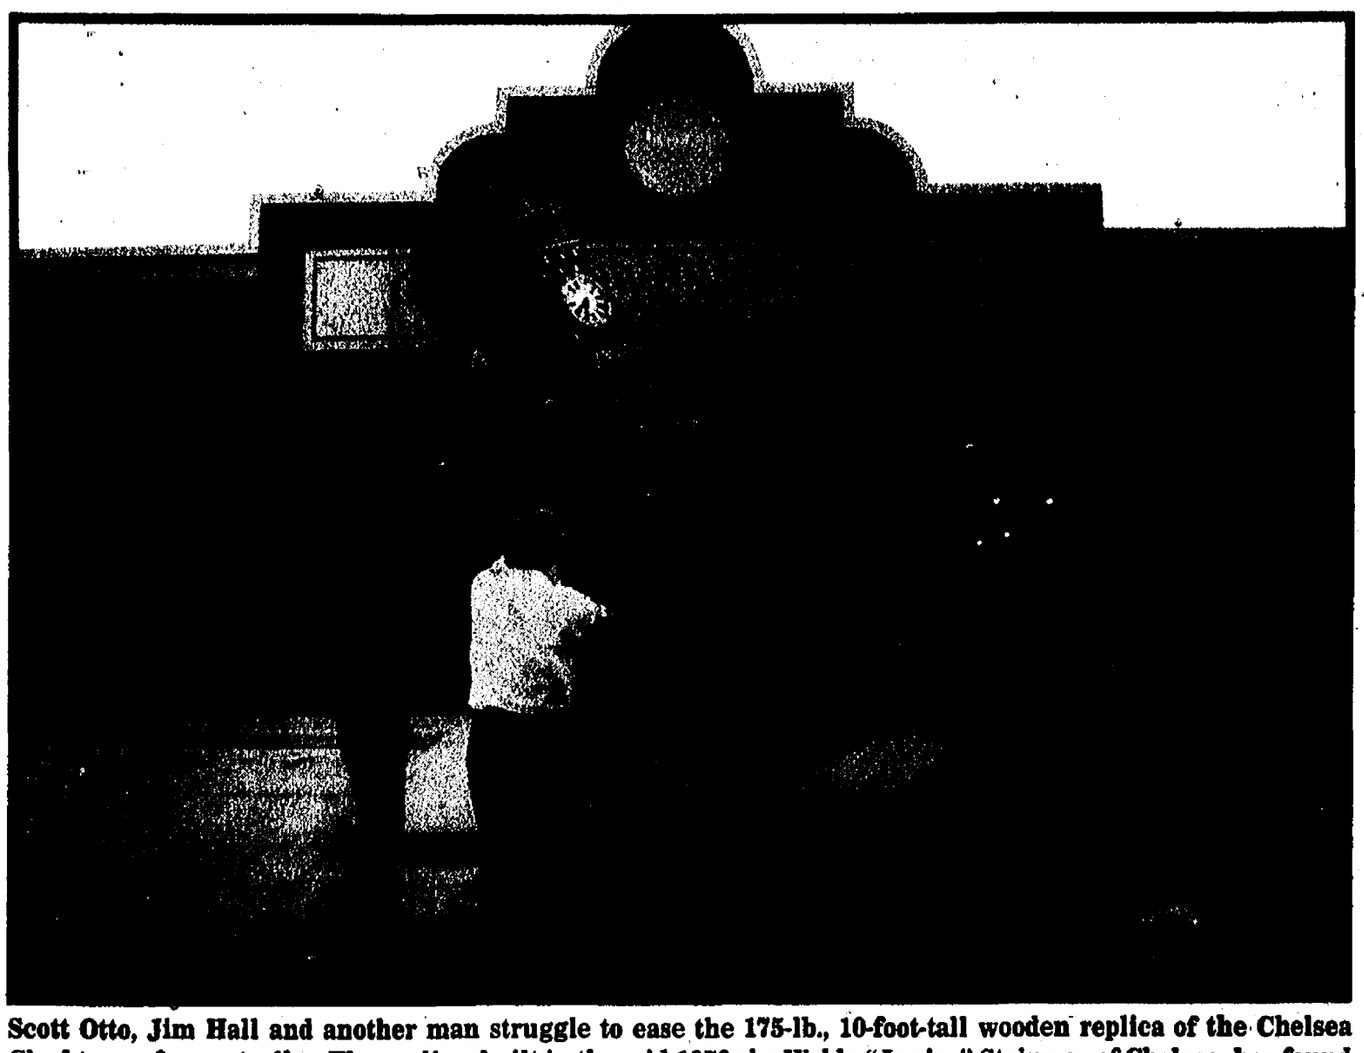
"The dream of my own gallery has come true," Mitchell says.

"My grandmother, Ruth Gilsdorf, was small in stature, and only had a sixth grade education, but her vision and perception has always guided my life. One brief note to me as a senior in high school stated, 'May your life be like a snow flake — leave a mark but not a spot.'

"Knowing that people across the country have my work in their homes and places of business gives me great satisfaction. That same sense of satisfaction I also experienced as a funeral director, helping other people make sense of life experiences and getting them back on the road to life."



Time piece



Scott Otto, Jim Hall and another man struggle to ease the 175-lb., 10-foot-tall wooden replica of the Chelsea Clocktower from a trailer. The replica, built in the mid-1970s by Waldo "Junior" Steinway of Chelsea, has found a new home with its big brother at Clocktower Commons after being stored in a barn for approximately 25 years.

Replica of Chelsea landmark brought out of 'retirement'

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

A small-scale version of Chelsea's most recognizable landmark has been brought out of storage and now sits literally in the shadow of its big brother.

Although records and memories are a little sketchy, the wooden model of the Clocktower was built in the mid-1970s by Waldo "Junior" Steinway, now deceased.

One of the several folks who lent a hand on the project was Steinway's neighbor, David Donovan.

"I never thought I'd hear about it again," Donovan said Monday, elated at the news that an artifact of Chelsea history he thought was long gone had been rediscovered.

Working from the 120-foot-tall original, the retired Ford Motor Co. draftsman drew up a set of plans for a replica approximately 10 feet in height and stunning in its detail.

Unveiled in 1976, the replica appeared in parades in and around the area celebrating the U.S. Bicentennial and other venues.

According to Donovan, ownership of and responsibility for the artifact seemed to become clouded.

However, by about 1980 or so, the miniature clocktower had found a home with Glen Wiseman.

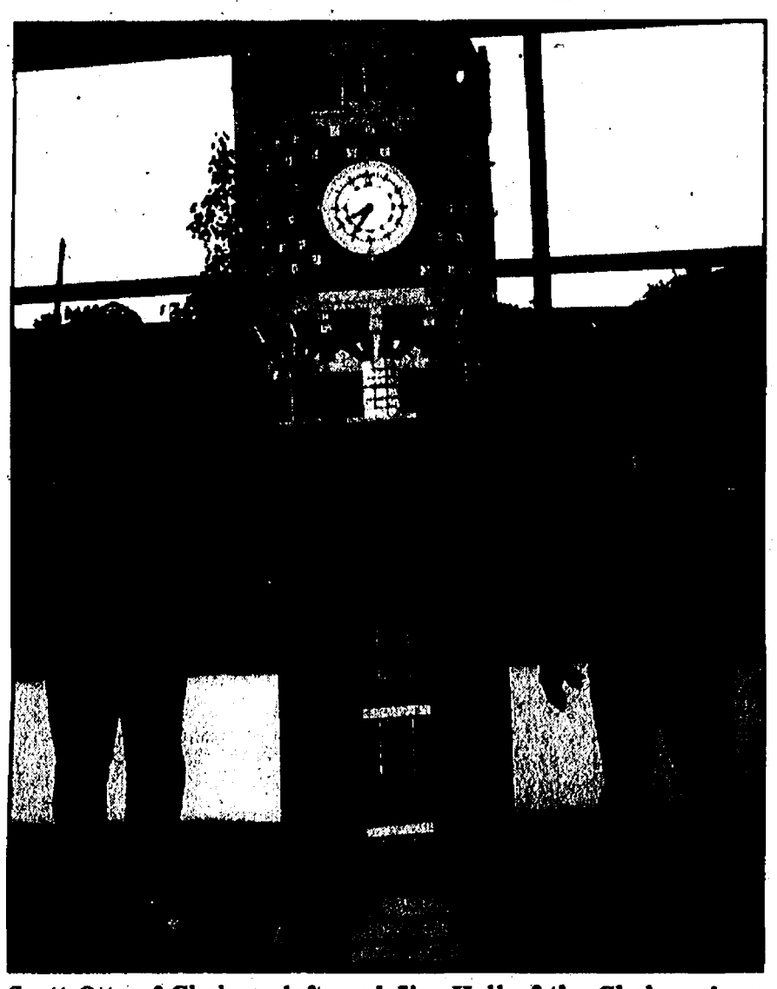
Unfortunately, as a result of Wiseman's recent death, the historical society had to move the tower and other items stored with it.

"Glen Wiseman was a historical society member who let us use his barn for storage," said fellow member Kathy Clark.

"When he passed away recently, we had to remove everything."

That brings us to Sept. 19, when passersbys on Main Street would have seen the tower rolling into the Clocktower Complex attached to a flatbed trailer.

Scott Otto and two other men removed the 175-lb. artifact from the trailer and move it inside one of the buildings in the complex.



Scott Otto of Chelsea, left, and Jim Hall of the Chelsea Area Historical Society stand with the clocktower replica they delivered recently to the Clocktower Complex. Otto was a teenager when his neighbor, the late Waldo "Junior" Steinway, built the replica in the mid-1970s.

Otto took charge of the moving project because he had watched the small tower being built more than 30 years ago.

"In 1976 during the Bicentennial celebration I was 16, and the neighbors down the street built a replica in the garage that they used in floats and parades," Otto said.

"It was in Glen Wiseman's barn for 25 years or so, I got it out of there and took it home."

Historical Society President Tom Diab heard about the tower, and quickly placed a call to someone whom he was fairly certain to have an interest.

"I called Ron Weiser and he said, 'Yes, I'll take it,'" Diab said, referring to the Clocktower Complex developer, restorer and CEO of McKinley Properties.

Otto said he is "hoping McKinley will use it for the centennial celebration" coming up on Saturday.

"This would be a great tribute to Junior," he said.

However, Diab said that might not be possible.

"It was too late to put it in the centennial celebration plans," he said.

Either way, the miniature landmark is still on public display inside one of the Commons buildings.

The artifact is in good shape, considering the length of time it was in storage, but still could use a little freshening up.

"Some pieces were falling off, and we have a woodworker replacing or restoring them," Diab said.

Donovan, a woodworking hobbyist, said he remembers doing some of the detail work on the tower, and Steinway would attach the small pieces.

"He was going to use 55-gallon trash barrels, but I said, 'Why not make it out of plywood?'" Donovan recalled, and they settled on a wood frame hung with wooden panels.

"He did 90 percent of the work," Donovan added. "I made the round roof members and he put them together."

For the brick exterior Steinway originally thought of using brick-pattern wallpaper, but couldn't find any with small enough bricks.

"He ended up painting them on there," Donovan said.

The entire process took nearly three months of almost-daily work in the garage before it was finished and Steinway presented it to village officials.

"He really worked hard on it," Donovan recalled. "Thelma, his wife, helped him and was very tolerant of the hours he spent on it out in the garage."

Donovan said that, after all this time, he thought he'd never see the small tower again.

"All of a sudden it disappeared, and I never knew what happened to it," Donovan said.

"I'm glad to know it's still around."

LOVING HOMES NEEDED

Reisling is enjoying life in the community cat room here at the shelter but she would much rather be at home with you! This little girl is just 1 year old and is here because her previous owner moved without her. Reisling is a friendly gentle cat who is a little bit frisky and sometimes gives out love bites. She wasn't at all shy about coming up to visit at photo time and was actually butting in when we were getting pictures of the other cats in the room!

Knute: Knute is a sweet guy. He's a 4 year old Lab, white with very unique black markings. We especially like the one black ear and one spotted ear! Knute came to the shelter as a stray and needs a new and loving home. He's housebroken, walks well on a lead, and knows to sit. Knute would get on well with kids over 5 and will make someone a wonderful friend!

Rose: Rose is a delightful dog that we all love very much! She is in FOSTER CARE/TRAINING right now where she has been learning basic commands and better manners. Whoever adopts Rose will receive a FREE training session with Pat Currey's Family Pet Training Center. Rose was not given enough attention in her young life, but we are determined to move her along in her development because is so SWEET and deserves a loving home.

Waterloo hosts annual Pioneer Day

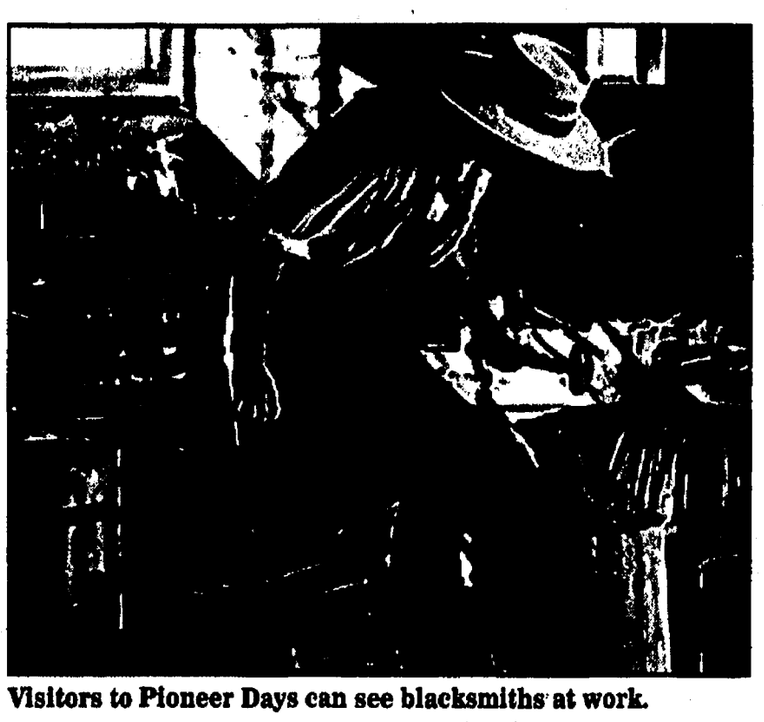
Brilliant blue skies, falling leaves and goldenrod are reminders that Pioneer Day at the Waterloo Farm Museum and Dewey School will soon be here. Step back to harvest time in the 1880's from noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 14, to renew your acquaintance with the way of life familiar to the pioneer Michigan farmer.

Now in its fifth decade, Pioneer Day is the premier event on the Waterloo Area Historical Society's calendar. The festivities include tours and activities at both of the Society's locations: the Farm Museum, at 9998 Waterloo-Munith Road, and the Dewey School Museum, at the intersection of Territorial and Parks Roads.

The roots of the event reach back to the very beginnings of the Historical Society, which held its first "Open House" on a fall day soon after acquiring the 10-room Realy Farmhouse. The event has since evolved from an opportunity to showcase the ongoing restoration of the 1855 home (and raise funds and recruit volunteers to that end) into a celebration of the crafts, trades and lifestyles of Michigan's pioneer families.

At the heart of a visit to the Farm Museum is a tour of the Farmhouse, where the delicious aroma of Sunday dinner being prepared in the kitchen greets guests. Costumed docents interpret each room of the home, which is furnished with 19th century utensils, furniture, clothing and other household items. Although the original owners would have limited guests to the dining and family rooms, our modern-day visitors will see the private rooms — the formal parlor, "Mary's Room," the attic, and even the bedrooms — that would have been strictly off-limits to earlier generations.

The Farm Museum grounds and outbuildings come alive with demonstrations of all manner of crafts, vocations and diversions of a bygone era. The pioneer farmer was "jack of all trades," and it takes dozens of volunteer demonstrators to show the many skills he brought to bear, from building and maintaining his own home and outbuildings, to planting and harvesting crops by hand, tending livestock, and making his own tools and furnishings at the blacksmith's forge.



Visitors to Pioneer Days can see blacksmiths at work.

His wife had her own skill set of home arts, exemplified by butter making in the Spring House, hearth cooking in the Log House, brick-oven baking in the Bake House, and dried flower arranging in the Realy Barn. Costumed volunteers elucidate traditional arts like spinning, dressmaking, weaving and quilting, while others exhibit farm chores like corn husking and shelling, cider pressing, and sauerkraut making.

But life wasn't all work for our pioneer forebears. Visitors to Pioneer Day will also have the opportunity to hear live music and try out stilt-walking or other outdoor games. Seven local musical groups will be on hand to entertain. Children will enjoy crafting bonnets and vests to wear and making candles to take home. Adults can have their heads examined by the itinerant Phrenologist, who will set up shop in the parlor. Horse-drawn wagon rides provide an opportunity to relax and enjoy the serenity of the Waterloo Recreation Area.

Visitors can watch the preparation of meals and if they get hungry, savor some Waterloo Bean Soup, then pick up a jar with the traditional recipe attached to try at home or give as a gift.

The Museum Gift Shop will be open and stocked with items reminiscent of bygone days—along with books to refresh memories of that time and souvenirs of the farm. Mother will enjoy visiting the big barn where she will find a wonderful selection of dried flowers and fall arrangements.

Representatives of several Civil War regiments will be on hand to reminisce about the "War Between the States," and the Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War will be on hand with records of local Union soldiers for the genealogical-minded.

Admission to this event ($3 for adults, $2 for seniors and $2 for children ages 5 to 17) includes access to the grounds as well as guided tours of the 10-room farmhouse and one-room Dewey School. Chalk Talk Chelsea Standard / Dexter Leader Sports Editor Don Richter goes beyond the final scores.

Youth sports strong in area

Chelsea and Dexter are well-known for their high school athletic programs. Last Saturday, during a walk around Dexter, I witnessed proof of why sports in these parts are so strong.

While strolling down Baker Street, I decided to head up to Mill Creek Middle School to huff and puff my way around the school's outdoor walking/running path. I figured I'd burn a few calories, aggravate my shin splints (just my luck) and give myself some peace of mind that, "I worked out today," before plopping myself down in front of the TV to watch college football the rest of the day.

While turning off Baker Street and heading up the Bates Elementary School driveway, I noticed a youth flag football practice being held on the field behind the school. There were at least six to eight different groups of kids, each gathered around a coach who was busy giving instructions and drawing up plays for his team to practice.

As I kept walking, I noticed the neighboring Dexter Community Pool parking lot was full. It turned out the Dexter Community Aquatics Club had its first fall season meet against Hartland.

I made my way around the back of the pool building toward the Mill Creek outdoor track. As I neared the track, I could hear the distinct crack of bat meeting ball as local youth baseball teams warmed up before a game.

Once reaching the narrow, asphalt track which circles the ball diamonds at Mill Creek, I began stretching and preparing for my weekly torture, er, I mean run, around the outdoor pathway. As I struggled around the track, I noticed off to my right, in a field just past the school's tennis courts, a whole host of youth soccer games being played.

As I continued around the track, to dull the throbbing pain in my side which was getting sharper with each passing step, I began thinking about what I'd just witnessed. In a matter of minutes last Saturday, I had passed Dexter kids participating in football, swimming, baseball and soccer all

Chelsea records season-best times

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's girls' cross country team finished eighth at last Saturday's Jackson Invitational at Ella Sharp Park.

The Bulldogs ended up with 209 points.

Winning the meet was Jackson Lumen Christi with 70 points. East Grand Rapids was runner-up with 89 points.

"We had a good meet," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke. "We had six season-best times and three career-best times.

"This race was a very strong field. Lumen Christi is the defending Division III state champions and East Grand Rapids is the defending Division II state runners-up."

Leading Chelsea was freshman Samantha Newbound who placed 35th overall with a career-best time of 21:22.

Right on her heels was teammate Julie Beaumont who finished 36th in 21:23.

Sophomore Courtney Maher crossed the line 42nd in 21:35, while Taylor Heydlauff was 46th in 21:47 and Nicole Hopp 50th in 21:56 for the Bulldogs.

"Nicole Hopp performed very well despite being ill with the flu," Clarke said. "Nicole ran a strong race and is improving every day."

Nikki Oberholtzer placed 55th in 22:00, while junior Jenny Squires was 88th in 23:29 for Chelsea.

Despite fielding a young squad, Clarke said his team is performing well.

"We still have a long way to go to be the team we want to be, but we are coming along nicely at this point in the season," he said. "Our gap from runner No. 1 to runner No. 6 is down to 38 seconds which is outstanding. I am very proud of the team's progress.

"We hope to get some of our injured and sick runners back this week. We continue to improve with every meet. We must continue this effort."

Last Thursday, the Bulldogs finished third at the Mason Invitational.

Chelsea recorded 111 points.

Winning the meet was Okemos with 31 points. Perry was second with 73 points.

"This was a good team effort for us," Clarke said. "Four of our varsity girls won medals. We are starting to come together as a team and

Bulldogs crush Lincoln

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

It took 11 seconds for Chelsea to take control of last Friday's Southeastern Conference White Division match-up with host Ypsilanti Lincoln.

With senior Chris Schmelz's 82-yard kickoff return for a touchdown to open the game against the Railsplitters (0-5), the Bulldogs were on their way to a 48-26 victory.

With the win, Division 3 No. 5-ranked Chelsea improved its overall record to 5-0.

"I thought we came out and took care of business," said Chelsea coach Brad Bush. "We were able to get off to a fast start."

Bush said the lopsided win over Lincoln afforded him the opportunity to empty his bench.

"It was a chance for everyone to get an opportunity to play in the game and develop," he said. "That's always good."

With an early 7-0 lead, Chelsea increased its advantage later in the first quarter, as Schmelz scored his second touchdown of the game on a 19-yard pass from senior quarterback Jeff Adams. With Michael Roberts' point after touchdown kick, the Bulldogs led 14-0 with 6:50 left in the first quarter.

Setting an example

Olson's intensity helps drive Dawgs

By Dan Ording
Special Writer

After losing 11 players off last year's team, Chelsea certainly has an excuse if its volleyball squad takes a step back in 2007. However, the Bulldogs are off to a 7-5-1 start on the season, thanks in no small part to junior Carolyn Olson.

Olson is one of four returning players from last year's conference and district title team. That experience has allowed Olson to become a leader to the current crop of newcomers.

"I've had to step up," Olson said. "I'm doing a lot more talking and communicating with my teammates, trying to be encouraging."

Olson has taken her new leadership role seriously, helping the younger players adjust in both practices and games.

"She comes with a level of intensity every day," Chelsea coach Laura Cleveland said. "She's always helping her teammates and she sets a great example in practices and games."

Seeing the many new faces on her squad should be familiar to Olson. She spent her freshman season on the varsity squad, herself learning from the veterans.

"She was only the second freshman ever on varsity here," Cleveland said. "It takes maturity to do that. But she saw the value in

ATHLETES OF THE WEEK

Chelsea: August Pappas

Chelsea's August Pappas placed 10th at last Saturday's Jackson Invitational with a freshman school record time of 16:51. Last Thursday, he led the Bulldogs finishing fourth at the Mason Invitational in 17:11.

Dexter: Peter Jebson

Dexter's Peter Jebson scored one goal in the Dreadnaughts' 3-2 loss to Ann Arbor Pioneer last Thursday. On Sept. 18, he scored a goal in Dexter's 2-0 win over Saline. The senior has led the Dreads to a 9-2-1 overall record and a No. 2 state ranking in Division II.

Chelsea senior Carly Szcodronski (front) finished with 25 kills and 18 digs leading the Bulldogs to a 2-1-1 record at last Saturday's Northwood University Invitational.

Spikers win two matches

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea volleyball participated in the Northwood University Invitational last Saturday finishing 2-1-1 overall on the day.

The Bulldogs defeated Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart Academy 21-7, 21-8 and Flint Kearsley 21-14, 21-16. Chelsea split with Saginaw Valley Lutheran 21-17, 18-21 and lost to Petoskey 14-21, 19-21.

Pacing Chelsea for the tournament was senior Carly Szcodronski with 25 kills and 18 digs and junior Carolyn Olson with 13 kills and 22 digs.

Sophomore Brittany Schmelz added 15 digs, while junior setter Megan Dunn finished with a team-high 50 assists.

Bulldog coach Laura Cleveland said she was pleased with her squad's performance.

"We are improving as a team and our goals are to improve the speed of our offense and to continue improving our blocking and floor defense," Cleveland said. "We have been passing the ball on serve receive very well and it has been a strength of ours the whole season."

On Sept. 18, Chelsea defeated host Ypsilanti Lincoln in three sets.

With the win, the Bulldogs improved to 2-1 in the Southeastern Conference White Division.

"The team played very efficiently throughout the match," Cleveland said. "All team members were able to contribute to the win."

Chelsea next travels to Ypsilanti to compete in its invitational Saturday.

On Tuesday, the Bulldogs host Adrian at 7 p.m.

On Oct. 9, Chelsea hosts Ann Arbor Pioneer at 7 p.m.

Bulldogs third at Lincoln quad

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's girls' golf team finished third overall at last week's Southeastern Conference White Division quad hosted by Ypsilanti Lincoln at Pine View Golf Course.

The Bulldogs ended up with a score of 193.

Dexter captured the match carding a 169. Tecumseh was second with a 191, while the host Railsplitters were fourth with a 216.

Leading Chelsea individually was Krystin Schwazre with a 39.

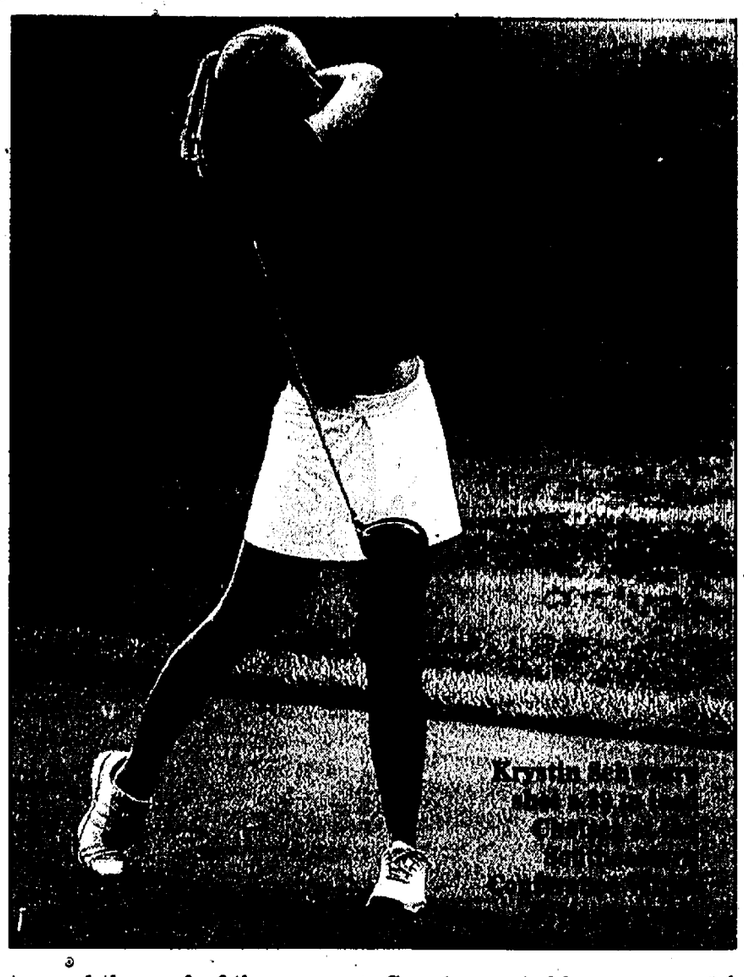
Stephanie Everard finished with a 50, while Hannah Harwood had a 51. Emily Shrosbree and Lizzy Bentley each shot a 53 for the Bulldogs, while Lindsey Keyes had a 56.

"We're continuing to struggle a little bit with our second, third and fourth scores, but hopefully that will turn around as we gear up for regionals in two weeks," said Chelsea coach Andrea Bareis.

"Harwood, Everard and Shrosbree are strong golfers and should pick their games up and be back down in the 40s. That's where they need to be in order for us to remain competitive in our league."

Bareis said Bentley had another solid outing last week.

"This was her lowest varsity round of the season," she said. "I have no doubt that she will be in the 40s before the end of the season. She is really coming on strong toward the end of the season which is great for our team."



In the JV match, Chelsea placed third with a score of 203.

Dexter was first with a 171, while Tecumseh was second with a 186 and Lincoln fourth with a 236.

Anna Foley and Ashley Beeman led the Bulldogs each shooting a personal best 48.

Kelly Schmidt had a personal best 51, while Kelsey Penar had a 56 and Courtenay Ackley a personal best 61 for Chelsea.

"Playing the Little Pine 9 is always one of the highlights of our JV season," Bareis said. "As a team, we always have our best cores here. It's a great confidence booster for our young golfers. This was our JV team's best score of the season. Even though we lost to Dexter and Tecumseh, the girls really had a great team showing. I'm proud of the way they played."

On Sept. 10, Chelsea finished second at the Dexter quad at the Ann Arbor Country Club.

The Bulldogs ended up with a season-low score of 184.

Dexter won the match with a total of 174. Tecumseh was third with a 202, while Lincoln was fourth with a 227.

Schwarze led the Bulldogs with a 41, while Everard had a 45 and Harwood a 47.

Keyes added a 51, while Shrosbree had a 53 and Penar a 73 for Chelsea.

"This was a great day of team golf for us," Bareis said. "It was exciting that we were only 10 strokes away from winning the entire quad. Each girl felt they could have easily taken a couple strokes off their scores, so we are getting closer. This is definitely the direction in which we need to be heading in order to place at regionals."

The Bulldogs next travel to Ann Arbor Huron Monday to participate in the Southeastern Conference match.

Chelsea competes in a Division II state regional match at El Dorado Golf Course in Mason Oct. 11. Only the top three teams in the regional advance to the state match.

The Division II state final is Oct. 19 through 20 at Forest Akers West Golf Course on the campus of Michigan State University.

Chelsea kickers fall to Bedford

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's boys' soccer team lost 2-1 to host Temperance Bedford last Saturday.

Despite the setback, Bulldog coach Dave Pieske remained upbeat.

"We played very good," he said. "We made a mistake early that cost us a goal."

The Mules scored the game-winner late in the first half off a rebound near Chelsea's goal.

In the second half, the Bulldogs (1-9-2) made a few adjustments to try and generate more offense.

"We actually put back-up goalie John Zink in to try and get (starter Nathan) Vlcek on the field," Pieske said. "We also switched to three defenders."

The moves worked as early in the second half, Tim Koch scored for Chelsea on a 25-yard rocket blast off a free kick.

"We had pressure on them the whole second half, but could not muster up another goal," Pieske said. "John Zink and defender Max McLaughlin played very well, giving us a chance by shutting them (Bedford) out in the second half."

The Bulldogs next host defending Division II state champion and county rival Dexter Thursday at 5:30 p.m.

On Saturday, Chelsea hosts Marshall at 12:30 p.m. The Bulldogs will also be conducting their Soccer Jamboree. The jamboree is for kids interested in soccer. For $20 youths can watch the Chelsea-Marshall game, get a T-shirt, be served lunch and have a chance to train with the Bulldog varsity squad.

On Tuesday, Chelsea travels to Tecumseh for a contest at 5:30 p.m.

On Oct. 4, the Bulldogs host Adrian at 5:30 p.m.

JV soccer

Chelsea's JV boys' soccer team tied host Temperance Bedford 2-2 last Saturday.

With 10 minutes left in the game, the Bulldogs rallied from a 2-0 deficit to tie the contest.

Chris Stewart scored with nine minutes remaining on the clock, trimming the Mules' lead to 2-1.

With 1:30 left in the game, Nate Branham scored on a header tying the contest at 2-2.

Chelsea continued fighting until the end, firing a shot just wide of the Bedford goal with four seconds remaining.

"This was definitely the most intense game of the season for us," said Chelsea coach Matt Pedlow. "We played our best soccer. We had the ball in their half of the field for three-quarters of the game, but were unable to connect on any goals until late in the game.

"The last 10 minutes of the game saw numerous scoring opportunities for us. We were able to get two goals in."

Also playing well for the Bulldogs were Tyler Salgat, Jacob Lotz and Luke Riley.

Chelsea next hosts rival Dexter Thursday at 4 p.m.

On Saturday, the Bulldogs host Marshall at 11 a.m.

On Tuesday, Chelsea travels to Tecumseh for a game at 4 p.m.

On Oct. 4, the Bulldogs host Adrian at 4 p.m.

Cross Country

Frosh Pappas paces Chelsea

By Don Richter

Chelsea's boys' cross country team placed sixth at last Saturday's Jackson Invitational at Ella Sharp Park.

The Bulldogs finished with 117 points.

Winning the 16-team meet was Kalamazoo Hackett with 67 points. Sturgis was runner-up with 104 points.

"We entered this meet a against several quality programs," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager. "We competed without our normal No. 1 runner Teddy Eyster. Still I thought we had a shot for a trophy (given to top two teams). We were 13 points from second place. It was definitely in reach if all of our runners performed well.

"As it was, three of our four guys turned in decent, yet unimpressive efforts. Again, in big meets we need all of the top seven to rise to the next level and excel. We will work on achieving this goal by the regional meet."

Leading Chelsea was August Pappas who finished 10th overall with a time of 16:51.

"August Pappas did step up," Swager said. "His 16:51 time makes him the fastest freshman ever at Chelsea and among the fastest freshmen in the state."

Peter Wilke crossed the line 18th in 17:24, while Nick Hewitt was 20th in a lifetime best 17:26.

"I am happy with his consistency," Swager said of Hewitt.

Geoff Smith-Woolams was 38th in 18:01, while Mark Smith was 40th in 18:07 for the Bulldogs.

Jared Gentz placed 46th in a personal best 18:24, while Dominic Conybeare was 48th in 18:32 for Chelsea.

Last Thursday, the Bulldogs finished first at the 10-team Mason Invitational. Chelsea bested the field with 59 points.

"The varsity guys ran well enough to win," Swager said. "They did as I asked strategically being a bit more aggressive in the first mile."

Holt was runner-up with 65 points.

Pacing the Bulldogs was Pappas who finished fourth overall in 17:11.

"August Pappas was the first freshman I have ever coached to finish as our No. 1 runner," Swager said.

Eyster ended up fifth in 17:15, while Hewitt was 11th in 17:28 for Chelsea.

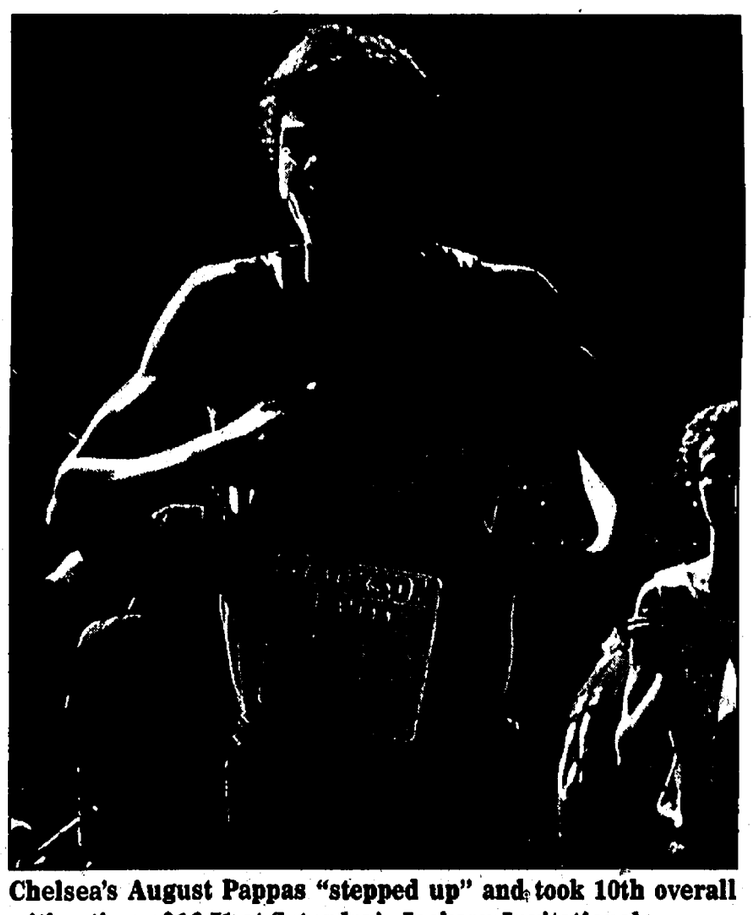
"Nick Hewitt really rose to the occasion running a lifetime best," Swager said.

Wilke placed 17th in 17:42, while Smith was 22nd in 17:57. Smith-Woolams was 26th in 18:05, while Gentz was 36th in 18:26 for the Bulldogs.

In the JV race, Conybeare placed first overall in 18:32 for Chelsea.

"Dominic Conybeare was impressive winning the race going away," Swager said. "He is right on the edge of our varsity squad. I am excited about his improvement."

Dan Case ended up 27th in 19:49, while Evan Carpenter was 32nd in 20:10, Justin McGrath 37th in 20:44, Aaron Deaton 40th in 20:47 and Josh Hovater 44th in 21:05 for the Bulldogs.



Chelsea's August Pappas "stepped up" and took 10th overall with a time of 16:51 at Saturday's Jackson Invitational.

Josh Golec finished 47th in 21:17, while Klaus Haegelstorpe was 52nd in 21:26, Jack Herman 53rd in 21:28, Noah Herman 61st in 22:02 and Sean Owsley 67th in 22:24 for Chelsea.

"We need to happy about the win, but use lessons from this race for further improvement," Swager said.

The Bulldogs next host their own invitational 8:30 a.m. Saturday at Hudson Mills Metropark.

On Tuesday, Chelsea visits Adrian to compete in the Southeastern Conference Jamboree No. 2 at 4:30 p.m.

On Oct. 6, the Bulldogs travel to Portage to participate in its invitational.

Swimming and Diving

Bulldogs runner-up at DeWitt

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's girls' swimming and diving team competed in the DeWitt Invitational last Saturday.

The Bulldog A team finished second overall with 350 points. Chelsea's B squad was fourth in the eight-team meet with 263 points.

Winning the meet was Plainwell with 423 points.

"Our numbers and final scoring of this invite show that we're going to have some successful teams for a couple of years," said Chelsea assistant coach Brian Thomas. "Our depth really shows."

In the 200 medley relay, the Bulldog group of Katlin Cottrell, Michelle Kellogg, Anna Rowland and Claire Stephens placed second in 2:00.65. Trish Hash, Kelly O'Keefe, Claudia Bravo and Amanda Johnson ended up sixth in 2:10.90 for Chelsea.

In the 200 freestyle, Cottrell touched second in 2:07.30 Aurora Knopper finished fifth in 2:25.99 for the Bulldogs.

Stephens placed first in the 200 individual medley with a state cut time of 2:21.26. Sarah Daniel was fifth in 2:46.02.

Hannah Olsen was third in the 50 freestyle with a clocking of 27.86. Johnson was fourth in 29.05.

In the one-meter diving competition, Chelsea's Lauren Dark placed second with 177.85 points. Alyssa Rodgers was 10th with 105.40 points.

Stephens picked up her second victory of the meet, placing first in the 100 butterfly in 1:02.56. Bravo was fourth in 1:12.77.

Cottrell ended up second in the 100 freestyle in a state cut 56.89, while Gwen Eder was fifth in 1:08.38 for the Bulldogs.

In the 500 freestyle, Katie McEachern finished fourth in 6:06.17, while Knopper was fifth in 6:18.88.

In the 200 freestyle, Chelsea's Meghan Bean, Phoebe Conybeare, Olsen and Stephens placed second in 1:48.45. Kaitlin Connin, Abby Ingall, Shelby Collins and Johnson finished sixth in 2:02.06.

Chelsea's Claire Stephens (top) and diver Alyssa Rodgers helped lead the Bulldogs to a runner-up position at last Saturday's DeWitt Invitational.

Hash touched fourth in the 100 backstroke in 1:13.38, while Kristen Angelocci was fifth in 1:13.72 for the Bulldogs.

Becca Breeze ended up fourth in the 100 breaststroke in 1:17.21, while O'Keefe was sixth in 1:24.16.

In the 400 freestyle relay, the Chelsea foursome of Kellogg, Cottrell, McEachern and Conybeare finished second in 3:58.77. Kate Lewis-Lakin, Grace Benton, Daniel and Ingall placed fifth in 4:34.30.

Last Thursday, the host Bulldogs lost to perennial state and national powerhouse Ann Arbor Pioneer 115-71 in a dual meet.

"We probably had the best relay meet in a long time," Thomas said. It was fun to lead Pioneer in scoring, if it only was after the first event. We continued our assault against the Division III state cuts with some more great swims."

In the 200 medley relay, Cottrell, Kellogg, Rowland and Stephens finished first in a state cut 1:59.83. Donna Prieskorn, Bean, Breeze and Conybeare ended up third in 2:09.69.

McEachern was second in the 200 freestyle in 2:13.00, while Angelocci was fourth in 2:20.89 and Knopper sixth in 2:26.56.

Cottrell finished second in the 200 individual medley in 2:27.57. Jaclyn Murphy was fourth in 2:37.29, while Daniel was sixth in 2:45.85.

Stephens touched first in the 50 freestyle in a state cut 25.62, while Olsen was fourth in 28.00 and Conybeare fifth in 28.26.

Dark placed fourth in the one-meter diving competition with 161.75 points. Rodgers was fifth with 86.80 points.

Rowland placed third in the 100 butterfly in 1:09.64, while Bravo was fourth in 1:10.87 and Katlin Jolly sixth in 1:38.55 for Chelsea.

Kellogg finished second in the 100 freestyle in 1:00.18, while Conybeare was fifth in 1:01.60, Johnson sixth in 1:06.09 and Prieskorn seventh in 1:02.75.

In the 500 freestyle, Knopper was fourth in 6:23.46, while O'Keefe was fifth in 6:47.20 and Collins sixth in 7:11.84.

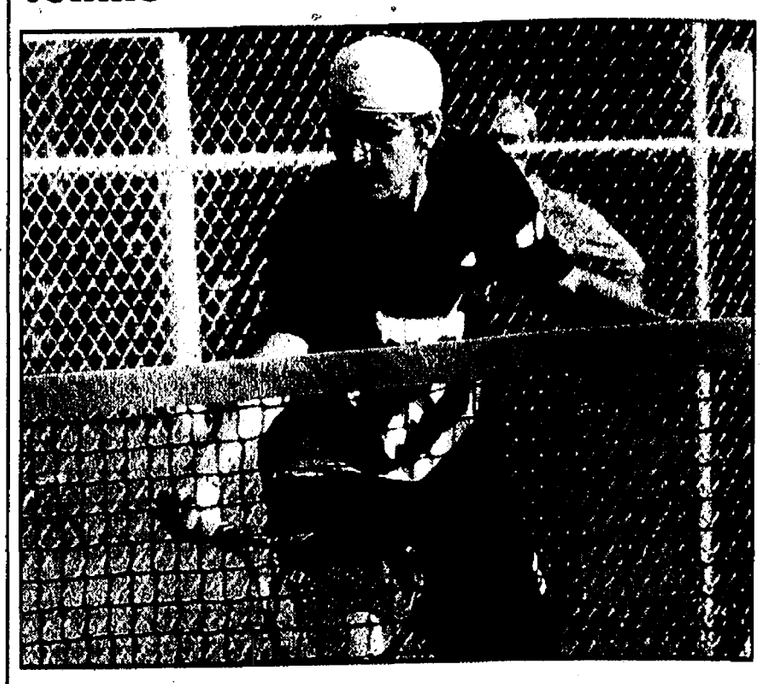
Olsen, Bean, Conybeare and Stephens placed first in the 200 freestyle relay in 1:48.60. Breeze, Rowland, Bravo and Prieskorn touched third in 1:53.41.

In the 100 backstroke, Hash was third in 1:13.13, while Benton was fourth in 1:15.07 and Ingall sixth in 1:21.15.

Breeze placed second in the 100 breaststroke in 1:17.56, while Connin was fifth in 1:26.58 and McEachern sixth in 1:26.61.

In the 400 freestyle relay, Prieskorn, Rowland, Olsen and Murphy finished second in 4:10.98. Daniel, Lewis-Lakin, Benton and Ingall placed fifth in 4:39.24, while Olivia Stucki, Collins, Jolly and Hash were sixth in 4:52.69.

Tennis



Chelsea's Wes Fritzemeier paired with No. 1 doubles partner Zach Gier to win their match 6-1, 6-1 helping the Bulldogs sweep Dexter 8-0 last Monday.

Chelsea netters blank Dexter

By Don Richter

Chelsea's boys' tennis team defeated county rival host Dexter 8-0 last Monday in a dual match.

"We played well as a team," said Chelsea coach Rahn Rosentreter. "The high points would be No. 4 doubles that played strong. Also, Chris LaDuke at two singles played very well.

"It was nice to get back in the league after last week. Also, Teddy Eyster and Mike Kozma got back on the winning track. Our success will now depend on the seniors and their leadership."

In singles play, Chelsea's Josh Stiles defeated Robert Partarrieu 6-0, 6-0 at the No. 1 flight.

At No. 2 singles, LaDuke bested Angelo Quail 6-4, 6-0.

At No. 3 singles, Eysterdefeated Kyle Debruycker 6-2, 6-4.

Kozma topped Mark Anderson in a three-set marathon 6-2, 4-6, 6-1 at No. 4 singles.

In doubles competition, the Bulldog No. 1 duo of Wes Fritzemeier and Zach Gier defeated Ryan Kuhn and Chad Bousley 6-1, 6-1.

At No. 2 doubles, Chelsea's Cory Vandervoort and Jacob Veenstra beat Andrew DeZeeuw and Alex Hiner 6-4, 6-2.

At No. 3 doubles, William Dark and Matt Bach defeated Dreadnaughts Scott Repine and Peter Washabaugh 6-3, 6-1.

Bulldogs Josh Moffat and T.J. DeRosia bested Brian Rose and Nick Brown 6-0, 6-1 at No. 4 doubles.

Chelsea next hosts its own quad Saturday.

On Tuesday, the Bulldogs travel to Ypsilanti Lincoln to participate in the Southeastern Conference White Division match at 9 a.m.

On Oct. 5, Chelsea visits Trenton to compete in its invitational.

Lewis leading the pack at MSU

By Dan Ording
Special Writer

Cross country running is a sport that demands mental awareness and concentration at all times. Competing against the clock, and one's self, instead of the other team can be much more difficult than facing a real opponent.

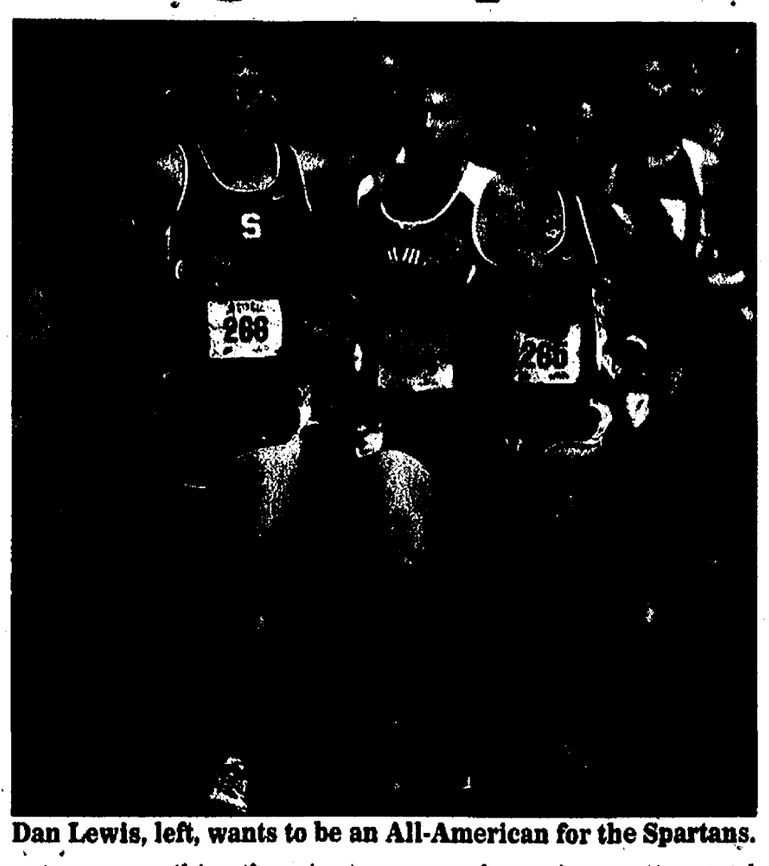
For Dan Lewis, a redshirt sophomore at Michigan State University, those incredible demands are the reasons he runs each and every day.

"I love the mental aspect of the sport," Lewis said. "I enjoy training every day. A lot of people tend to shy away from that part of the sport. But, I love keeping myself in shape."

While at Chelsea High, Lewis competed in both cross country and track. As a senior in 2005, Lewis was the Southeastern Conference champion in the 3,200-meter run and was a member of the Division II state champion and state record-holding 3,200-meter relay team.

After his Bulldog career ended, Lewis decided to run for the Spartans. Looking back, he says the decision was not very difficult. "I really liked the coach, Walt Drenth," Lewis said. "I heard plenty of good things said about him. As I met everyone, I got along with everybody and really enjoyed the atmosphere."

However, he soon realized his high school success would not mean anything the minute he stepped foot onto a collegiate track. "It's been completely different here," Lewis said. "It's a higher intensity, higher volume, just a higher lifestyle of running. It's more rigorous all around."



Dan Lewis, left, wants to be an All-American for the Spartans.

Adding to Lewis's freshman burden was a stress fracture in his left leg. The injury was serious enough that Lewis had to take a redshirt his first year and sit on the sidelines.

"It hurt because I thought I came here in pretty good shape," Lewis said. "It was especially difficult to watch the guys in my class competing. By the time, I got back I was six or seven months behind."

With Lewis's determination, that setback would prove to be just a bump in the road. He never stopped training, wanting desperately to get back onto the track.

Walt Drenth, Michigan State's Director of Cross Country and Track and Field, noticed Lewis's comeback.

"He made a lot of progress this spring and summer coming back," Drenth said. "It's because his biggest strength is his work ethic. He works extremely hard."

So far in the 2007 cross country season, Lewis has been the model of consistency. In the year's first two meets, the Jeff Drenth Memorial and the Spartan Invitational, Lewis has finished 13th and 14th. "He's still getting better," Drenth said. "He's got to keep his expectations in sight and remember where he's at. Just do things in steps and the success will come."

Running better than ever, Lewis still stays humble about his future goals as a Spartan.

"Obviously, I want to be an All-American and go to national meets," Lewis said. "But, I also would like to keep improving on a day-to-day basis with no major setbacks or injuries."

Lewis and the Spartans will compete next in the Roy Griak Invitational Saturday in Minneapolis. Lewis will continue his climb to the top, whether it is easy or not.

"This is the most challenging thing I've ever done," Lewis said. "But, it's great to have a challenge, something to chip away at. I'm not where I want to be yet, but it's an ongoing process that I've been at since eighth-grade."

learning from the other players even though she didn't play much. It helped her come prepared as a sophomore."

As a sophomore, Olson played a key role as the team's middle hitter.

"She played a huge role on defense for us last year," Cleveland said. "She was exceptional on her serve receptions."

This season, Olson had to move outside, but she has hardly missed a beat.

"I think I've improved a lot," Olson said. "It's a big difference on the outside. But, the adjustment hasn't been too tough. I just need to be more consistent on my hits."

Cleveland agreed, noting Olson has had to adjust to a new defensive position as well.

"She is just so focused and calm," Cleveland said. "She loves playing the game and is always competitive."

To help ease the transition to her new positions, Olson spent the off-season playing club volleyball.

"It gave me more reps," Olson said. "It helped me develop my hitting and my timing."

Though Olson also plays on the tennis squad, volleyball is No. 1 in her heart and she remains focused on keeping the Bulldogs on top.

"Our team has a lot of potential," Olson said. "We're getting better each day and becoming closer as a team."

YOUTH

within shouting distance of each other at the Mill Creek athletic field area.

In how many other communities would you see so many kids participating at one time in so many different youth sports? My guess is it's a short list.

Coupled with Chelsea's first class recreation department and youth leagues, it's no wonder both communities field competitive and more often than not, state ranked, teams in most high school sports.

I've always felt the strength of a high school athletic program begins with the quality of its youth sports activities. What I witnessed last Saturday in Dexter and with what Chelsea has to offer recreationally, is it any surprise both schools have top-quality prep athletic programs?

Now, if only my performance around the track could match Dexter's and Chelsea's in the athletic arena, I'd be a happy man.

CRUSH

quarter, Chelsea's Donny Reidel scored on a 64-yard halfback pass from Michael Lenneman. Roberts split the uprights giving the Bulldogs a 21-0 lead.

In the second quarter, Adams sprinted 71 yards for a touchdown. With Roberts' PAT, Chelsea increased its advantage to 28-0 with 8:12 remaining in the first half.

Riley Feeney powered in from three yards out for a touchdown for a 34-0 Bulldog lead with 2:36 left in the second quarter.

It's at this point Bush began emptying his bench.

With nine seconds left in the first half, Lincoln scored on an 18-yard pass. With the extra point kick, the Rails trimmed Chelsea's lead to 34-7 as the two teams headed for the locker room.

In the third quarter, Jason Kolokithas hauled in a 25-yard TD pass from Randy Cox for a Bulldog score. With Roberts' PAT, Chelsea led 41-7 with 9:50 left in the third frame.

Lincoln scored two unanswered touchdowns on a 31-yard run and a 21-yard pass cutting the Bulldog lead to 41-20.

In the fourth quarter, Cox scored on a one-yard run. With Tyler Ball's extra point kick, Chelsea held a 48-20 advantage with 11:57 remaining in the game.

The Rails ended the scoring with a 15-yard TD pass with 1:39 left on the clock for the night's final margin.

Adams finished with a team-high 68 yards rushing on three carries. Feeney had 50 yards on 12 tries, while Nick Hill had 26 yards on four attempts and Nick Avila 17 yards on two carries for the Bulldogs.

Cox was 7-of-9 for 104 yards passing. Adams ended up 6-of-8 for 65 yards.

Lincoln sophomore quarterback Andrew Dillon finished 20-of-35 for 277 yards.

Receiving-wise, Steven O'Keefe had three catches for 30 yards to lead Chelsea. Feeney also had three receptions for 19 yards.

Reidel added two catches for 77 yards, while Schmelz had two receptions for 28 yards. Jake Powell had one catch for 12 yards, while Lenneman had one reception for 33 yards and Kolokithas one catch for 25 yards.

The Bulldogs finished with 422 total yards of offense. The Rails ended up with 477 total yards.

Defensively, Jake Galarowic and Kyle Coburn led Chelsea each with six tackles.

Dakota Risner and Tyler Fischhaber each had five stops, while Taylor Hopkins, Colton Waterbury and Dean Roberts each had four tackles. Roberts also had two quarterback sacks.

Andrew Sensoli, Justin Hoffman, Justin Swarthout, Cody Adams and Cox each recorded three tackles.

Ian MacLeod added one sack for the Bulldogs.

Chelsea next hosts Saline Friday at 7 p.m. The Hornets (4-1) defeated the Bulldogs 37-28 last year.

"Last year was a great game," Bush said. "This season is a typical Saline team. They're well-coached and have a lot of good athletes. It's going to be a fun game."

JV football

Chelsea's JV football team defeated visiting Ypsilanti Lincoln 55-7 last Thursday.

The Bulldogs (4-1) scored on their first six possessions to seal the victory.

Zack Giller led Chelsea with 153 yards rushing on 13 carries with four touchdowns.

Also scoring for the Bulldogs was Jeff Minzey with two TDs, Brandon French and Evan Grau.

Chelsea next travels to Saline for a game Thursday at 7 p.m.

Freshman football

Chelsea's freshman football team defeated visiting Ypsilanti Lincoln 47-14 last Thursday.

Brian Paulsen tossed two touchdown passes, while Ben Avila had a 20-yard TD run and Chris Ballow a 50-yard touchdown gallop.

Joey Newland, James Rebudella and Matt Gillespie also scored touchdowns for the Bulldogs (2-2-1).

Charlie Hess finished 5-of-7 on extra point kicks.

Spencer Mykala, Andrew Koch and Ray Zielinski played well defensively for Chelsea.

"I was happy to see so many kids playing and contributing," said Chelsea coach Dennis Strzyzewski. "Some kids only played a few plays last week. It was nice to change that a bit."

The Bulldogs next visit Saline Thursday for a game at 4:30 p.m.

Great Outdoors

Fall Hunting Preview: Part II

Cottontail rabbits BIG with small-game hunters

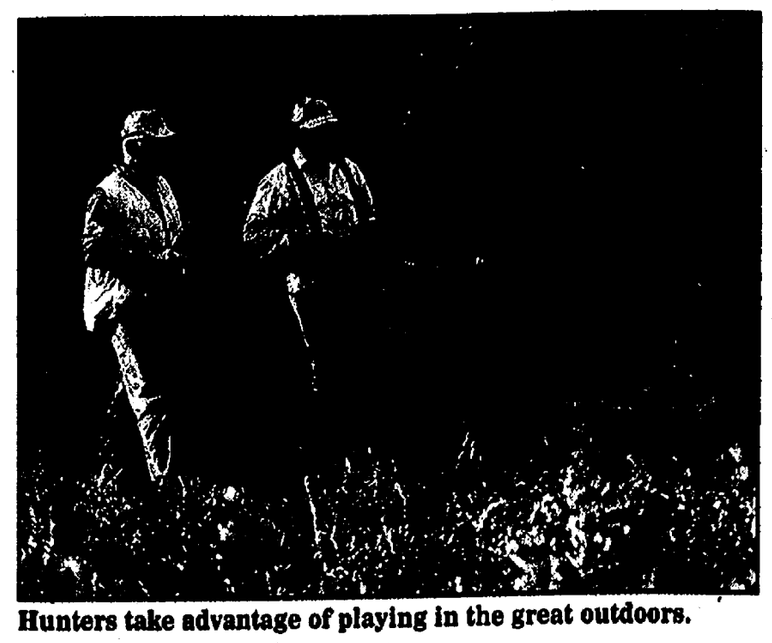
Part II of the exclusive small-game preview by the DNR Wildlife Division covers rabbits and squirrels, and ducks and geese.

For the 2007-08 hunting seasons, cottontail rabbits once again will be the bread and butter species of small-game hunters, especially in southern Michigan which accounts for more than 81 percent of the annual statewide harvest.

Field reports indicate that squirrels are at moderate to high levels throughout their range, so dyed-in-the-wool squirrel hunters should be pretty successful this year. Last year's squirrel harvest was up 38 percent over the year before.

Duck populations also have increased significantly over the past several years, except Michigan mallards which have increased only slightly. And reports from northern Ontario indicate goose production of migrants was better than average and regular goose seasons this fall should be improved. Local resident giant Canada geese, which supply most of the annual harvest, also have seen a population increase.

This fall take the time to enjoy the "Great Times and Great Outdoors" that Michigan has to offer. You will be glad you did.



Hunters take advantage of playing in the great outdoors.

Rabbits

Season: Cottontail rabbits and varying or snowshoe hare can be hunted from Sept. 15-March 31, statewide. Hunters may take a limit of five per day and 10 in combined possession.

Outlook: Cottontail populations are good throughout their range. Rabbits are the most popular small game animal; the annual harvest is about 500,000 rabbits each year. The abundance of cottontails and their skill at evading hunting beagles and shotgun pellets make hunting them very sporting. Hunters typically harvest about 17,000 to 19,000 snowshoe hare per year. Snowshoe hare populations are presently down somewhat due to cyclic population fluctuations. However, population levels appear to be slowly improving. Declining habitat continues to be a concern in some portions of their range.

Squirrels

Season: Sept.15-March 1. Hunters can bag up to five per day and have 10 in combined possession.

Outlook: Squirrels are at moderate to high levels throughout their range. Hunters generally can expect another good year for squirrel hunting throughout most of their range, but may find squirrel numbers down locally in marginal habitat.

Ducks

Season: Starting Dates: North (Upper Peninsula) and Middle (northern Lower Peninsula) zones — Sept. 29; South Zone (southern Lower Peninsula) — Oct.6. Consult

Fall Fishing

Don't put the rod and real in the basement

My Uncle George came from a family of 14 children. He was one of seven sons in a family of Polish immigrants that settled in Detroit during the 1920s.

Times were tough back then and if you didn't make it home in time for dinner, there probably wasn't going to be any left when you did get there, the other siblings having eaten everything in sight.

Mike Zielinski

I don't know if Uncle George's rugged childhood caused him to have a different attitude about food than us spoiled baby boomers, but after a big meal he would look at the leftovers and say, "those will be even better tomorrow."

Sound familiar?

I know hunting seasons are nearly upon us, but if you luck out and get your deer or ducks early, consider getting in some fall angling.

Like leftovers from that big dinner, the fishing can be even better in the second time around.

Don't be misled. Despite the change in color on the trees, the ads for apple cider and donuts, the resounding drum of marching bands or the shriek of a football referee's whistle, autumn in Michigan is the time to get out on the water.

Our little piece of angling heaven here in southeast Michigan offers fantastic fall fishing opportunities, especially on the local waters of Lake St. Clair, Lake Erie and the Huron River.

Why not take advantage of them?

Let's take a look at fall smallmouth bass fishing.

Consider this: If you watched the recent TV airing of the FLW Detroit River Chevy Open $200,000 Pro bass tourney out of local waters of the Elizabeth Park Marina in Trenton last July, there was a common thread throughout the show – anglers and announcers alike were just overwhelmed by the quality and quantity of the smallmouth bass fishery on Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie.

Adjectives like "world class, unbelievable and fantastic" were used non-stop when describing the fishery.

What I thought was interesting about the tourney was the fact Steve Clapper of Lima, the 2007 Michigan Waterfowl Hunting Guide for exact dates and daily limits.

HUNTING

Outlook: Duck populations in the mid-continent prairie and parkland regions increased about 14% from last year, and are 24% above the long-term average. However, mallard populations in the Great Lakes states (Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota) increased only slightly from last year. Water level conditions at some waterfowl management areas are a concern this year due to the late-summer drought.

Hunters should make a preseason check of hunting areas for water conditions and waterfowl concentrations. River bayous and isolated ponds will harbor wood ducks early in the season. Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie are great areas to hunt diving ducks. Look for these areas to be hot spots again in 2007, as well as Saginaw Bay and the St. Marys River System in the eastern Upper Peninsula. The best time to hunt scaup, redheads and canvasbacks is between Oct. 15 and Nov. 20. See the Michigan Waterfowl Hunting Guide for details and special restrictions.

Geese

Season: The regular goose season in the Upper Peninsula MVP (Mississippi Valley Population) Unit is Sept. 18-Nov. 1. In the Lower Peninsula MVP Zone, the regular season is Oct. 6-Nov. 12 and Nov. 22-Nov. 28. In the Lower Peninsula SJBP (Southern James Bay Population) Zone, the regular season is Oct. 6-14 and Nov. 22-Dec. 12. Consult the map of the 2007 Goose Management Units in the Michigan Waterfowl Hunting Guide. In the South Zone the late Canada goose season will be Jan. 5-Feb. 3, excluding local goose management units (GMUs). See the 2007 Michigan Waterfowl Hunting Guide for bag limits and GMU harvest quotas. The guide also has information on hunting opportunities in the managed waterfowl hunt areas.

Outlook: Michigan's Canada goose harvest is derived from primarily three flocks, including the Mississippi Valley Population, the Southern James Bay population and local giant Canada geese. All three populations are up from last year's estimates.

Spring population estimates and brood production of the migratory Canada geese were above average. Michigan's local population of giant Canada geese now supplies more than 70 percent of the state's total Canada goose harvest. The early September hunts (Sept. 1-10 in the North Zone and Sept. 1-15 in the Middle and South zones) and the 30-day late season help control these local flocks through recreational hunting.

FISHING

Ohio, a 59-year-old grandpa, took home all the marbles and the $200,000 bucks.

Age wasn't really much of a factor here despite the horrible wind and waves during the first three days of the tourney. The cagey vet hung with youngsters.

Many of the tourney people acted surprised that the bass fishing was so good here, but the "bass Islands" in these parts were not named for the great walleye fishing.

A good number of the pros caught more than 20 keeper bass (minimum 15 inches in length) each day, unheard of in a tourney format where most fishermen are thrilled just to get five keepers and pray they will weigh more than 14 pounds.

In the Chevy Open, your five-bass limit needed to weigh 20 pound a day just to keep in the running. Bass weighing four and five pounds were caught with regularity.

I watched the Chevy Open on TV and just like good old Uncle George and his leftovers I thought, "the leftovers will be even better." Just wait until fall to see some really big bass, that's when the six- and even seven-pound smallmouth begin to show up.

The fishing will get better, maybe even tomorrow.

While October is a great month to fish smallies on Erie and St. Clair, veteran anglers will tell you that November can be magical for these feisty fighters.

The July bite is usually in deep water over reefs far from shore and it requires fishing close to bottom with soft baits. But the late fall bite is mostly crankbaits and spinnerbaits much closer to shore.

The reason is the smallmouths are hungry and putting on the feed before winter hits.

Schooled up in shallower water they roam the area seeking shad, emerald shiners and just about any other young-of-the-year fish.

That's why shallower diving lures retrieved at medium depths can be deadly here.

While florescent yellows in fire-tiger patterns are a good bet most of the year, try and match the hatch with lures that more closely replicate shiners and shad or baby silver bass.

Obituaries

Jerry William Kitchen, Sr.
Chelsea

Jerry William Kitchen, Sr. of Chelsea, beloved husband, brother, father and grandfather died on Friday, Sept. 21, 2007. He was 74.

Mr. Kitchen died peacefully at home after losing a heroic battle with lung cancer. He was born on Feb. 19, 1933 and grew up in Ann Arbor, graduating from Ann Arbor High School in 1952. He worked for the University of Michigan Hospitals in plant operations from 1954 to 1989. After "retiring," he worked for James Bauer Construction for two years, then at Chelsea Hardware for 15 years. He also was an accomplished painter and locksmith, owning After Hours Lock Service in Ann Arbor for many years. He was one of the charter members of the Ann Arbor CB Emergency Group who helped supply on-site communications using Citizens' Band radios during searches for lost children or during civic events such as the Ann Arbor Art Fair or concerts. He also enjoyed spending time golfing, camping and hunting.

Mr. Kitchen is survived by his loving wife of 17 years, Barbara Kitchen; his brother, Charles (Linda) Kitchen of Ann Arbor; his daughter, Kathleen (Jim) Bauer of Chelsea; his son, Jerry (Jane) Kitchen of Brooklyn; his step-daughter, Debra (Kevin) Clickner of Michigan Center; his step-son, Paul (Melinda) Urbanek of Ypsilanti; and his adored grandchildren, Jamie (Lindsay) Bauer; Christopher (Shelley Koerber) Bauer; Amanda Roderick; Camden and Caleb Kitchen; and Jasmine, Leslie, and Emily Urbanek. He was preceded in death by his mother, Helen Kircher and father, William Kitchen.

In accordance with his wishes, after Mr. Kitchen is cremated, a family graveside service will be held at Mt. Hope Cemetery in Waterloo. The family requests that donations in Jerry's memory be sent to St. Paul United Church of Christ in Chelsea or the Arbor Hospice. Arrangements by Cole Funeral Chapel, Chelsea.

Donald C. Eder
Chelsea

Donald C. Eder of Chelsea passed away Saturday, Sept. 22, 2007 at his home. He was 79.

He was born on Nov. 20, 1927 in Chelsea, the son of John and Meta (Hinderer) Eder. He was a Chelsea resident his entire life and a graduate of Chelsea High School. He served in the army during the Korean War as an aviation engineer. He was a life long builder in the Chelsea area, where he was one of the founding owners of Chelsea Associated Builders, Inc., retiring after 36 years.

Mr. Eder enjoyed playing bridge, working in his garden and yard, and deer hunting. He was a member of St. Mary Catholic Church his entire life. On April 25, 1953 he married Loretta Lindauer, and she survives. Also surviving are his daughter Angeline Eder of Bardstown, Ky. and son Doug (Marleyn) Eder of Chelsea; one brother John (Sally) Eder of Ann Arbor, and two sisters Elaine Durham of Seattle, and Katherine (James) Schneider of Colorado; one grandson Adrian Eder, and several nieces, nephews and cousins. He was preceded in death by his parents, his step-mother Wilhelmina Eder, and sister Mary Jane Dettling.

Funeral Mass was held Tuesday, Sept. 25, 2007 at St. Mary Catholic Church with Rev. Dr. William J. Turner officiating. Memorial contributions may be made to Arbor Hospice or the Intensive Care Unit of Chelsea Community Hospital.

Don will be greatly missed by many.

Dorothy Mae Wier
Dexter

Dorothy Mae Wier of Dexter died peacefully at her home on Sunday, Sept. 16, 2007. She was 84.

She was born in Ecorse on Sept. 23, 1922, the daughter of Eddie and Priscilla Owens. On May 3, 1940 she married Elwin C. (Al) Wier who preceded her in death on Aug. 20, 2001. She has two sons, Elwin E. (Patricia) Wier and Ronald L. (Ruth) Wier; four grandchildren: Cindy (Jeff) Giacobbe, Sandy (Ken) Wilson, Jason, and Brian Wier. She also has three great grandchildren: Jacob Wilson, Jack and Alexa Giacobbe. She has one surviving sister: Thelma Poppenger. Whitewater scouts

From Sept. 7-9, the scouts of Troop 477 had their annual whitewater-rafting trip to Ohiopyle, Penn. Waking up early Saturday morning after the long drive from Michigan, 16 boys and four leaders set out to conquer the raging rapids of the Youghigheny River, known locally as the "Yough." The scouts donned their helmets and life jackets, had a quick instructional briefing, and put out into the water. Whitewater was soon surrounding the rubber rafts as the boys skillfully maneuvered their vessels through the rapids. Waiting further down to challenge the rafters were such locations as Double Hydraulic, Graveyard Rapids, and the infamous Dimple Rock, known for flipping dozens of boats. But the boys had yet to meet the toughest challenge on the Yough: Fellow scouts. During the river's doldrums, raiding parties and sneak attacks were planned to conquer the rafts of other scouts. A small scale war was often seen occurring between the members of troop. When the rafters finally reached the river's end, they emerged victorious. They had conquered the Yough. They all had an excellent time. And they had become very, very, wet.

Violin auction Saturday in Chelsea

The Chelsea Gallery is hosting the second annual fund-raiser for the Chelsea High School Symphony Orchestra called the "Painted Violin Auction & Wine Tasting."

The event begins at 7 p.m. on Saturday with a wine tasting and silent auction. The auction awards will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Gallery Artists have donated their time and materials to create unique specialized works of art. This year's artists are Chris Blank, Jean Lash, Annie Ignagni, Barbara Anderson, Jane Farrell, John and Marleen Dusbiber, Susan Pickering Rothamel, Bev Simmons, Lisa Poszywak, Rick DeTroyer, Susan Carr and Sandy Knapp.

Wine tasting will be provided by the "New Chelsea Market."

Last year's event raised $3,200 to help defray the costs of the students attending the National Orchestra Competition at Orchestra Hall in Detroit. This year's proceeds will offset the expense of attending the Michigan Music Conference in Grand Rapids in January, 2008.

Healthy Aging Month

The power of walking

Just 30 minutes per day will greatly improve your health

Contrary to popular belief, moderate exercise to improve overall health doesn't require a slew of expensive equipment. You likely already have just what you need at home: a pair of good shoes.

Many people underestimate the power of walking. According to Dr. James Rippe, a cardiologist and director of the Rippe Lifestyle Institute in Shrewsbury, Mass., almost all of the benefit you get from exercise comes from escaping the bottom 20 percent of people in terms of physical activity. To achieve this, all you need to do is walk for 30 minutes per day.

The Benefits of Walking

Walking just may be one of the most beneficial actions you can take. If the power of walking were compressed into pill form, it would be one of the most popular remedies ever. What's more, walking is something that is easy to do, requires no prescription and you've been doing it from as early as age 1.

Here are just some of the benefits of walking:

- Weight loss: Physical activity combined with well-balanced eating can keep the pounds off. This means advantages in lowering risk of heart disease, cancer, diabetes and more.
- Decreases your risk of heart attack: Exercising just half an hour a day is associated with a 30 percent to 40 percent lower risk of heart disease in women, according to a 20 year Nurses' Health Study of 72,000 female nurses.
- Moderates blood pressure: Getting the heart pumping regularly conditions it to work more effectively and with less effort.
- Reduces "bad" cholesterol: Physical activity boosts good cholesterol (HDL) and lowers bad cholesterol (LDL), which causes plaque to build up on the walls of the arteries.

Other pluses ...

- Protects against hip fracture
- Enhances mood
- Improves sleep
- Lengthens life span
- Strengthens muscles, joints and bones ... and much more.

Getting Started

Being sedentary is one of the worst things you can do for health, particularly if you have no medical reason to stay put. You don't have to run a marathon the first day. Build up to the recommended 30 minutes of walking by starting slowly and for whatever duration you can manage - even 5 minutes. As you gain confidence your momentum will approve.

Choose a safe place to walk that is also comfortable. Many seniors enjoy a stroll around an area mall because walking is not impeded by weather conditions. Still, you can walk on the boardwalk, around a scenic lake or wherever else you choose.

Overcoming Obstacles

If you feel unsteady walking, or have had a fall or broken bone that limits mobility, there are solutions. You can use walking poles, which will give you balance and a little extra body strength. If you use a walker or cane, still get out there and get moving as much as possible.

Water exercises can also be beneficial. The water serves to support your body, and walking through water provides subtle resistance that can build strength. Check out area health clubs or senior centers that have a pool.

If dizziness or balance is a concern, you may need a new hearing aid or glasses. Sight and ear function contribute to balance.

If you're concerned about safety or embarrassed to walk alone, start a walking club or go with a friend. Remember, having the support of others will make it more likely you'll continue in your fitness goals. You can also get a dog as a walking companion. Requiring two or more walks per day, a dog can be the incentive you need to get moving.

Remember to check with your doctor before beginning any exercise routine.

A family chat about wealth and inheritance money WISE

By Cyril White

Talking to your children about your finances is about more than telling them the location of your most important documents. It's also about imparting responsibility and respect for your values regarding money.

As parents grow older, they must eventually face the challenge of talking to their adult children about wealth, inheritance and the financial implications of their mortality. Unfortunately, many parents postpone "the conversation" because they think they have time.

That can be a mistake. Communicating openly with your kids won't solve every problem, but it can reduce family conflict and provide you with more options for empowering your children to act on your behalf, should it become necessary. Open communication can also help prepare your loved ones to become responsible inheritors.

A meeting of the minds

For many parents, the key question is how and when to begin that conversation. Many people assume that family meetings are important only for the very wealthy.

But experts say that regardless of your net worth, an annual family meeting can help you create a comfortable forum for discussing your values, priorities and goals related to managing money – and important details about your wishes for the disposition of your estate.

Family meetings also enable parents to clarify their intentions related to any possible misunderstandings that might arise from disproportionate splits of an estate. This is especially important when remarriages and second families are involved, or when parents want to name charities or unknown entities as beneficiaries.

"If there are no surprises, you may avert a legal battle later," says Steve Hartnett, associate director of education at the American Academy of Estate Planning Attorneys in San Diego.

Conversation points

Begin your family meeting with a discussion of the basics. You should identify your executor and specify where you keep your will and other important documents and account statements. Although it's not important that everyone know all the details of your financial situation, it is imperative to make at least one family member aware of the location of important records.

Some of the specific issues you may wish to discuss in this regard include the following:

Have you granted someone a durable power of attorney and a power of attorney for health care? Where are the documents located?

Do you have a safe deposit box? Where is it located, and where is the key and the list of contents?

Does your retirement program have a death benefit for survivors?

Have you established any trusts, and for what purpose?

How have you arranged to handle any applicable estate taxes?

Have you shared the names and contact information of your financial, tax and legal advisors with your children?

A trusted strategy

When talking to your adult children about wealth, "it is important to provide a very practical financial education on managing your assets," advises estate planning attorney Jon Gallo, who with Dr. Eileen Gallo, his wife, co-authored The Financially Intelligent Parent.

One approach is to introduce your children to a trusted advisor who can help them understand their financial options and encourage them to make choices that support their long-term interests, such as retirement planning or education planning for their own children.

Many parents use trusts to transfer assets to their children or grandchildren. A trust may be used temporarily to hold and manage assets until a young adult matures.

Other parents choose to set up a trust for life to protect their children's assets from creditors, divorce settlements and estate taxes. It's important to talk about the trust with one's beneficiaries and explain its purpose.

Wealth and values

One option for parents seeking influence is an incentive trust, which enables parents to establish terms governing the distribution of funds. An incentive trust can provide financial motivation for adult children to excel and to meet certain goals. Still, Gallo cautions that there can be "a fine line between adding too many constraints and providing positive incentives for the beneficiary to be a productive member of society."

Regardless of how you plan to transfer your wealth, raising children who can identify their own passions and interests in life is the best way to ensure responsible money habits. "Trusts and inheritance decisions should provide enough money to encourage productivity, but not so much money that your adult children do nothing," says Hartnett.

Work with your attorney and your financial advisor to determine what funding vehicles are appropriate for your goals.

New business helps trying to take the work out of your yard work

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Phil and Jennifer Tolliver don't want you to work any harder in your yard than you absolutely have to.

They would prefer that you buy one of their machines to take care of that instead.

Phil Tolliver is taking his knack for service and applying it to outdoor power equipment at Turf & Timber Power Equipment, the business he and Jennifer opened on Sept. 6 in the Oak Tree Plaza in Lima Township.

Turf & Timber sells pretty much every type of yard-maintenance gadget imaginable: lawn mowers, zero-turn riding mowers, chain saws, trimmers, edgers, blowers, log splitters, chipper-shredders, generators, power washers and accessories.

And these are not second-tier manufacturers, either. Turf & Timber carries a full line of Honda, Husqvarna and Troy-Bilt machines.

What's equally important to Tolliver, though, is the service after the sale.

"Anyone can sell you the first one, but what keeps you coming back is the service," he said.

And he should know, after spending more than 10 years as service manager at Naylor Motor Sales in Ann Arbor and an additional year and a half with Cabela's in Dundee as one of their opening managers.

But what would cause someone with a wife and three young children to give up a steady job and start a business in a less-than-forgiving economy?

"We saw a need in Chelsea," Tolliver said.

"It's stuff that I enjoy, it's stuff that I use myself, and there was only one show in town doing power equipment for the last 40 years."

Jennifer Tolliver will be right beside her husband as an integral part of the team.

"I'll be doing all the bookkeeping, and I'll also work with customers," she said.

"I'm pretty comfortable with (the equipment); I was a diesel mechanic in the Navy for four years, so I've been around it before."

Jennifer and Phil Tolliver show off just a couple of the Husqvarna riding lawn mowers they sell at their new business, Turf & Timber Power Equipment, located in the Oak Tree Plaza off I-94 on Jackson Road. Besides a full line of Husqvarna, the Tollivers also carry Honda and Troy-Bilt outdoor equipment lines.

Jennifer also hopes to sell some of her handmade pottery and candles in a corner of the showroom.

So what is her favorite piece of power gear?

"Definitely the zero-turn mower," she said.

Another service Turf & Timber offers is chain-saw sharpening while you wait.

"A lot of people come in for it, it only takes about 15 minutes," Jennifer said.

Another idea that is still being considered is whether to rent some of their equipment for short-term use.

"We're looking into renting log splitters, chipper-shredders and chain saws," Jennifer said.

Phil Tolliver said customer demand will be the deciding factor.

"The possibility is certainly there if there's enough interest in it," he said.

"We'll go by what people tell us they want, and if we see a trend, we'll jump at it."

While only open a short time, the Tollivers have had a fair amount of customer traffic already.

"Business has been steady, we've sold a few chain saws, blowers and trimmers," Jennifer said.

The Tollivers had been discussing the idea of opening a business since last fall before finally making the leap.

"He was wasting his talent for service on somebody else's business," she said. "We always knew he would do this for himself one day."

'Lead us not into temptation'

MINISTERIAL Message

By Pastor Mark Porinsky
Faith Lutheran Church

It is important to avoid falling into temptation, because once you start giving in, you get farther and farther away from God until you cut yourself off altogether.

So we pray, "Lead us not into temptation." Of course, our Father in heaven would never tempt us. What we really pray is that He would either prevent the devil, the world, and our sinful nature from tempting us, or else that He would give us the strength to resist temptation, and at least prevent it from causing us eternal damage.

What is the most dangerous temptation? It's different for different people. For some people it might be alcohol and drugs; others aren't tempted by those things at all. Some are tempted sexually. Some become addicted to pornography. Many of us are tempted by the love of money. Some are tempted to get even with someone who wrongs them. Others are tempted to laziness and to live a worthless life. Others are tempted by the company they keep.

But there are more dangerous, and more subtle, temptations yet. There are temptations to wonder whether human events are really ruled by God's will, or just by chance. There are temptations to doubt whether God really hears our prayers. There are temptations to envy the wicked and to be jealous of those who enjoy a better earthly life than we do. And here's one: There's the temptation to flee from afflictions which God wants us to bear, for example a marriage that's less than fulfilling or a job that God really wants us to be in, and to seek an easier lifestyle. Or there's the temptation, even for Christians, to believe that this life is all there is and to wonder whether there really is a heaven and a hell after this life. Or to wonder whether hearing God's Word and worshiping Him is really worthwhile. These temptations have to be some of the worst, because they cut to the heart of our faith.

Even our Savior Jesus was tempted. The Bible says about Him that He "has been tempted in every way, just as we are – yet was without sin" (Hebrews 4:15). What an incredible thought! Tempted in every way, yet without sin. Jesus could have had anything He wanted. But He turned His back on it. Why, He even refused to turn stones into bread (Matthew 4:1-4, Luke 4:1-4); what was so wrong with that? What was wrong is that this was a temptation for Jesus to take matters into His own hands – just like Adam and Eve, whose sin in the Garden of Eden might seem to be a small one, but it revealed that they were going over God's head.

Jesus resisted the ultimate temptation when He refused to take the easy way out and call on His heavenly Father to send 72,000 angels to rescue Him from His enemies (Matthew 26:53). He resisted the temptation to bypass a bloody death on the cross.

Because Jesus resisted temptation, we are saved and forgiven; His resistance counts for us. He went all the way and gave up everything for us, and now we belong to Him. And we want to continue to belong to Him; we don't want anything to tear us away from Him. So we come to Him again and again for strength, in His Word, and in the Sacrament of His body and blood. And we pray, each day, with all seriousness as if our eternal lives depended on it: "Lead us not into temptation."

The role of women in the church

Guest column: Jeff Crowder

By Jeff Crowder

A colleague of mine recently wrote, "When a person claims that God has called women to preach and that God approves of women preachers, that person is lying." Wow. Talk about a verbal bomb.

Now, any time someone quotes Scripture for an idea that seems questionable or strange, the first thing you should do is ask yourself, "Does the Bible really say that?"

Before you take someone else's word for it, grab a copy off the shelf, or go look it up on the internet (Bible.com is a great site) and see firsthand.

If the Bible really says what someone claims it says, then ask yourself the next question: "What does that mean?"

The Bible says MANY things, taken on one quick glance, (and often out of context with everything else the writer is saying), that seem to mean the opposite of what other parts of the Bible are teaching.

For instance, to those who would claim to be Christians, Jesus says, "If anyone comes to me and does not hate his father and mother, his wife and children, his brothers and sisters—yes, even his own life—he cannot be my disciple." (Luke 14:26)

Yet scripture also tells us we must honor father and mother (Ex. 20:12). Is it possible to both hate our parents and honor them? Is that what Jesus meant? Do we have to pick one and neglect the other? Or is something else going on here?

Look at the context of Jesus' statement in Luke 14 and you'll see he is telling us the cost of following him is severe, even painful. Something like, "Don't say you're going to be my follower unless you're willing to deny yourself, take up your own cross, and follow me."

A little context often helps to make difficult sayings understandable and consistent with the rest of scripture. ("Scripture interprets scripture" as the saying goes.)

Paul instructs women to cover their heads when they pray in church. (I wonder, does your church still require women to pray with their heads covered? Besides the Amish and Mennonites, I don't know of any.)

We know scripture says for women to pray with heads covered. But we're not doing it. Are we inconsistent with the teaching of Christ because we don't force them to do so?

We don't believe so and I'm guessing you don't either. We believe that Paul was trying to clear the way for the Gospel (or "Good News") to reach as many people as possible. And he didn't want anything (like a dispute over heads covered or uncovered) to get in the way of that. So people were supposed to keep the social norms of the day whenever possible: women keep your heads covered, men keep heads uncovered. Don't get caught up in side issues that will keep the main thing (transmission of the Gospel), from being the main thing.

Or how about slavery? The Bible instructs "slaves to be subject to their masters in everything..." (Titus 2:9). Does the Bible actually expect us to still be holding slaves? Would Paul say that

Crop walk steps off Oct. 7

On Sunday, Oct. 7 walkers will begin the 20th annual CROP walk in Chelsea.

Since 1988 the Chelsea/Dexter CROP Walk has raised a total of $265,000 for hungry and poor people around the world. The amount raised has increased steadily from $4,700 in 1988 to about $30,000 last year.

Fifteen percent of the money raised this year will go to Faith in Action to help people locally. The majority of the rest will be distributed to those in need by Church World Service, although any donor may specifically designate their gift to an alternative relief agency.

In 1999 Dexter United Methodist Church joined Chelsea religious groups in the Chelsea CROP Walk. This church immediately raised more money than any of the other, more experienced, groups.

It resulted in the name of the walk being extended to become the Chelsea/Dexter CROP Walk.

Preliminary inquiries for this year show that 15 organizations will participate, including three from Dexter, the Chelsea High School Interact Club, Faith in Action, Silver Maples of Chelsea, the Chelsea Retirement Center, and numerous Chelsea churches.

It is not too late to donate or walk. Checks may be made payable to CROP/CWS and mailed to Faith in Action.

Walkers may obtain an envelope for collecting pledges from one of the participating organizations, or just show up at St. Paul's United Church of Christ at 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 7 ready to walk.

CHURCH

abolitionists such as William Wilberforce, great British statesman, and Christ follower, were outside "the law of Christ" for abolishing what the Bible gives no basis to abolish? (Nowhere in scripture are we specifically commanded to overthrow the system of slavery.)

But there are plenty of texts that would suggest those of us who had the ability to bring about justice for those who were in chains must do so. How about "love your neighbor as yourself" (Mark 12:33) for starters?

What about the role of women in church? Yes, the Bible says several things that make us wonder about the role of women. Paul's first letter to the church in Corinth says,

"For God is not a God of disorder but of peace. As in all the congregations of the saints, women should remain silent in the churches. They are not allowed to speak, but must be in submission, as the Law says. If they want to inquire about something, they should ask their own husbands at home; for it is disgraceful for a woman to speak in the church." (14:33-35, NIV).

The thoughtful reader will ask, "What's going on in Corinth? Where's the 'disorder'? What would make Paul write that?" Great question!

Unfortunately, we have only half of the conversation before us.

But it is not hard to imagine that the assemblies of Christians in Corinth included a lot of "disorder." (Read the first part of this chapter and you'll see Paul is addressing other issues so that the meetings help to build up, and not confuse, the transmission of the Good News.)

Apparently women were speaking, in a way that was disrupting the meeting, and causing chaos in the public gathering. Paul wants everyone to have a chance to hear what is being said and those who are disrupting to cease and desist.

Is this the same as saying "women shouldn't be preachers"? No.

If he was giving a strict prohibition against women speaking at all, why does this same Paul write that women should train the younger women and tell them to pray with heads covered? 1 Corinthians 11:2-16 shows Paul making the assumption that women are praying and prophesying. They're certainly not "remain(ing) silent" as he instructs just three chapters later.

Another important question to ask, "Does the Bible say other things related to the subject at hand?"

Yes. The prophet Joel tells ahead of time that God promises to "pour out my Spirit on all people. Your sons and daughters will prophesy...Even on my servants, both men and women, I will pour out my Spirit." (Joel 2:28ff)

Some may say, "That was the Old Testament." (Careful with that argument. Do you know where the 10 Commandments are found? The 23rd Psalm? The Creation story, the flood...).

But in the New Testament, Peter says this very promise is being fulfilled right in front of the hearers. "This is what was spoken by the prophet Joel..." (Acts 2:16).

The idea of women preaching and teaching the gospel was not only something the New Testament could have envisioned, but would have welcomed and rejoiced over.

In 1 Timothy 2:12 Paul does write, "I do not permit a woman to teach or to have authority over a man; she must be silent."

There are several examples in Scripture of women who led or taught men. Judges 4 tells the story of Deborah, a woman, who was leading or judging Israel (Judges 4:4), presumably both men and women.

Priscilla and her husband Aquila apparently taught men such as Apollos (Acts 18). The idea of a woman teaching a man is not unheard of in Scripture.

So why didn't Paul permit a woman to have authority over a man?

Good question. While you're mulling this question over, here are a few others:

Should we stop allowing our sons to sit under women teachers in school? (Paul doesn't say he's speaking only of church or "spiritual" things.)

What about single parent homes where the mother is the only parent? Should she not be teaching her son?

"In the Lord, however, woman is not independent of man, nor is man independent of woman...If anyone wants to be contentious about this, we have no other practice – nor do the churches of God." (1 Corinthians 11:11,16)

A colleague of mine wrote "that our religion is not to be determined by what we think or feel, or by what our culture deems acceptable." I couldn't agree more. Grace & peace

Popular tenor performs on Sunday

Internationally known Tenor Paul Pitts, who has sung more than 5,000 performances worldwide on seven continents to over one billion people through television, radio, recordings and personal appearances, is set to perform in Chelsea on Sunday. Pitts was featured soloist for the Concert of Peace in Belfast, Ireland.

Paul Pitts

The community is encouraged to attend a concert of inspirational music on at 3 p.m. on Sunday at Washington Street Education Center. Pitts has performed at the Waterfront Arena, Belfast Ireland, Crystal Cathedral, Alamo Dome, T.D. Waterhouse Arena, Cypress Gardens and Opryland USA. He plans to fulfill a request to sing at the Vatican as well.

Admission to Sunday's concert in Chelsea is free and open to the public. Donations will be accepted.

Pitts has sung numerous operatic roles including: Otello (Otello), Riccardo (Un Ballo in Maschera), Don Jose (Carmen), Rodolfo (LaBoheme), Manrico (Il Trovatore), Lt. Pinkerton (Madama Butterfly), Florestan (Fidelio), Canio (Pagliacci), Cavardossi (Tosca), Calaf (Turandot), MacDuff (MacBeth). He has also performed the tenor roles in Beethoven's Ninth, Handel's Messiah and the Verdi Requiem.

Pitts is being compared to many of the great tenors of days gone by. His powerful and energetic voice and thrilling performances have spellbound thousands. He sings with a compassion for people and is described as the New World Class Tenor.

Nino Pantano, reviewing a performance of Pagliacci in New York, described Pitts' title role of Canio as the following: "Mr. Pitts has one of the most beautiful voices in existence today with impeccable diction and admirable declamatory skills. In short, he is the Canio of our time."

Larry Lyons, senior pastor of Chelsea Free Methodist Church attended a performance by Pitts earlier this year. "He has an amazing voice" said Pastor Lyons. "Paul is guaranteed to inspire you with his warmth and humorous style. You will not want to miss this performance."

Pitts' performance is among a lineup of events sponsored by Chelsea Free Methodist which encourages community participation.

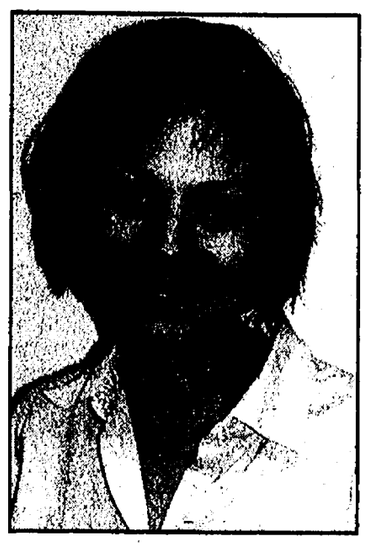
OUR SCHOOLS

Meet the teacher: Dawn Putnam



Name: Dawn Putnam
Age: 34
Family: Married to Chris Putnam, two kids, John (3) and Marah (1).
Education: B.S. in education from CMU and M.S. in written communication with emphasis in teaching writing from EMU.
Native of: Pigeon, Mich.
Teaching experience: Teaching at CHS since 1995
School you teach: Chelsea High School
Grade/subject you teach: 9th and 10th grade English
Favorite subject in school: Art
Least favorite subject in school: Math
Most influential person in your life: My husband Chris because he is the most thoughtful, grounded person I know. He always sees the big picture and takes care of all the details too.
Quote to live by: "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you."
What do you like most about teaching? Seeing the light bulb come on for a student. Watching the "Ah ha!" moments happen.
What do you like least about teaching? The billions of hours grading essays.
What is the most challenging part of teaching? Meeting the individual needs of every student.
What are some of the goals you set for students? I want my students to be competent, confident and independent life-long learners capable of successfully tackling any reading, writing, listening or speaking task they may meet.
How do you handle a disruptive student? This depends on the incident. I try to be fair and to understand what is happening with the student, but also to hold students accountable for their behavior.
How do you handle a student who doesn't focus well? This depends on the student and what his/her specific problem is. But in general, in classes where I have less "focused" students, I find I have students that typically learn better using less "academic" teaching methods. Basically, I don't lecture to students who "don't focus well." I use a variety of teaching methods during a class period. If I do have a lot of "talking" to do, I am pretty animated or as some students say, "hyper." I prefer to think of it as being "dramatic."
What do you tell parents about being involved in their children's education? Do you want your child to be successful and meet his or her full potential? They can't do it without you.
Are students feeling more pressure to succeed today? Definitely – high stakes testing and a competitive culture.
Walk us through a typical day for you? I get up and get myself ready, wake my two kids and get them ready, send the dog out, load up the kids and take them to day care. After I arrive at school, I review my plans, make copies, write assignments on the board, teach Basic Introduction to High School English, plan for following classes, teach Honors English Perspectives, teach Basic Introduction to High School English again, eat lunch, teach English Skills Workshop, teach Honors English Perspectives again, clean up my room, file, check e-mail, contact parents if necessary, type up any handouts or visuals I need for the next day, talk over the day with good teacher friends, discuss ideas and advice, pack up, pick my kids up from day care, make dinner, feed the kids, play with kids, give the kids their baths and get them into their jammies, read three books to each kid, put them in bed, clean up the massive mess created by kids, put 3-year old back to bed, start grading, put 3-year old back to bed, continue grading, put 3-year old back to bed, continue grading, say hi to husband, go to sleep, wake up to take 3-year old to the bathroom AGAIN, sleep, get up and repeat.
How has your job changed over the years? Two ways: Technology and more students in each class.
What do you like most about teaching in Chelsea? Tied – the supportive community, the awesome students and amazing staff and the supportive administration.
What makes the Chelsea school district unique or special? I don't think I can really speak to this since this is the only district I have been in.

College honors: Jennifer Adams

Local student receives scholarship

BIG RAPIDS – Jennifer Adams of Chelsea recently received a Ferris State University Legacy Scholarship. A 2004 graduate of Chelsea High School, Adams is now a graduate student at Ferris in the Michigan College of Optometry.

Sponsored by the Ferris State University Alumni Association, the Legacy Scholarship recognizes academic achievements and leadership potential in students whose parent(s), sibling(s) or grandparent(s) is a Ferris alumna(us). The scholarship is a one-time award that can total up to $2,000 and is presented in two equal increments for two consecutive semesters.

The scholarship was first awarded in 1996 to just three students. Over the past 10 years, the number of recipients has grown annually. Each award helps fund tuition, books, fees and housing expenses incurred by students.

To be eligible for the award, students must not only be the relative of alumna(us), but also have a 2.75 cumulative grade-point average and have successfully completed a minimum of two full-time semesters. Students must also submit an essay describing personal career goals and the role a Ferris degree will play in the achievement of these goals. In addition, they must submit a letter from the Ferris alumna(us) describing the effect their educational experiences at Ferris had on their life or professional career.

Finally, the student must submit a recommendation by a Ferris faculty or staff member.

Poetry contest

The Michigan Humanities Council is accepting letters of interest from all Michigan high schools for the third year of the Poetry Out Loud poetry recitation competition.

Each participating high school will receive poetry curriculum materials and audio CDs of poetry recitations. Awards will be presented to the best students reciting previously published poetry.

The winning student will also represent the state of Michigan in a national competition. Those high schools and teachers interested in participating must send a letter of interest to the Michigan Humanities Council by Oct. 1.

Poetry Out Loud seeks to foster the next generation of literary readers by capitalizing on the latest trends in poetry — recitation and performance. The program builds on the resurgence of poetry as an oral art form, as seen in the slam poetry movement and the popularity of rap music among youth.

Last year, 94 percent of student participants who evaluated the program stated they saw a connection between poetry and everyday culture; 84 percent understood that poetry could be a powerful tool for expression.

Poetry Out Loud is offered to language arts and English teachers from any Michigan high school. Teachers selected to participate will devote two or three weeks of class time between Sept. 24 and Feb. 25, 2008. During this period, a poet will offer a workshop and provide guidance as teachers prepare students for school and state competitions.

The state winner will receive $200 and an all-expenses-paid trip to the national competition. The winner's school will receive a $500 stipend for the purchase of poetry books. The runner-up in the Michigan competition will receive $100, along with $200 for their school library. Scholarships and school stipends totaling $50,000 will be awarded at the National Finals, with a $20,000 college scholarship for the Poetry Out Loud National champion.

Jr. Miss Scholarship

The Michigan Junior Miss Scholarship Program is accepting applications. The program is open to all high school seniors graduating in 2008 who have no local qualifying program available to them.

The program will be held March 29, 2008, in Ann Arbor. All participants will arrive in Ann Arbor March 24 and need a place to stay will be housed with host families in the area.

Michigan's Junior Miss will go on to compete in America's Junior Miss program, in Mobile, Ala., in June.

An orientation meeting will be held 1 p.m. Saturday at Jan's Dance Connection, 26032 Ford Road, in Dearborn Heights. The Southern Michigan At-Large Program will be held Oct. 27. Participants must reserve a seat if they plan to attend the orientation meeting by e-mailing jmsickle@comcast.com.

To apply for either program, visit the Web site www.ajm.org.

Used book sale at library

The Friends of the McKune Memorial Library will have a used book sale the second Saturday of the month through November. The sales will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 13 and Nov. 10 at the library, 221 S. Main St.

Thousands of items for all ages and interests, including a large selection of CDs, videos, DVDs, games, audio books and more, will be available. The library is accepting donations of used books, music, and movies in reasonable condition.

All proceeds from the book sale go to support the library. For more details call 734-475-5829.

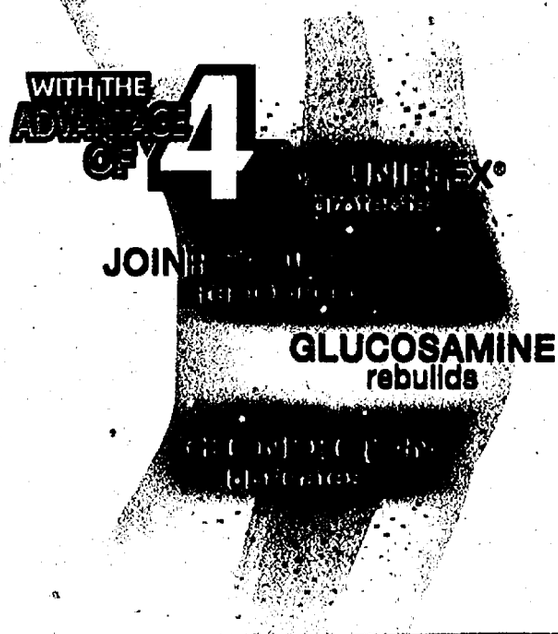
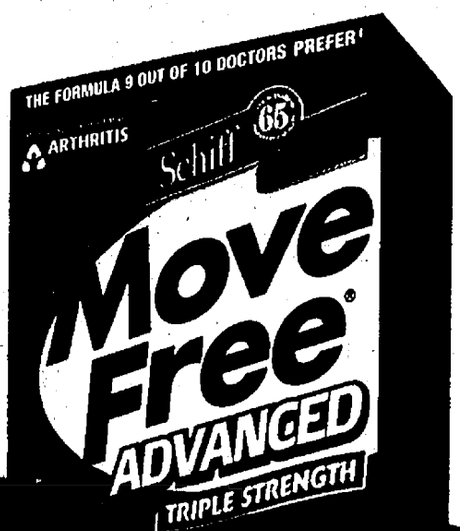
Why just mask joint discomfort when you can actually improve your joint health?





Move Free® Advanced has the formula with the Advantage of 4, so it actually helps improve your joint health. And it is the only formula clinically shown to be 2X more effective at comforting sore joints vs. Glucosamine and Chondroitin alone.†

Find out for yourself why...

- ✓ 9 out of 10 doctors prefer the Move Free® Advanced formula.†
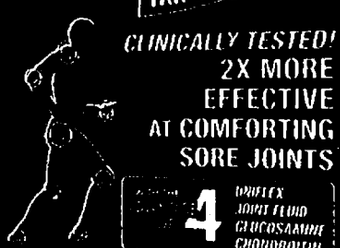
- ✓ 9 out of 10 consumers, after trying Move Free® Advanced, said they would recommend it to others.
- ✓ 7 out of 10 consumers said Move Free® Advanced was better than what they had been using in the past for joint discomfort.*



Try it today. IT WORKS!

† Independent, preliminary, prospective, randomized, double-blind, placebo-controlled study of glucosamine, Uniflex® and Joint Fluid (hyaluronic acid) vs. 1500 mg glucosamine with 1,200 mg chondroitin and vs. 1500 mg glucosamine alone conducted for two months. Additional chondroitin has been added to Move Free® Advanced (March 2004).

‡ In a 2006 independent Internet survey, doctors recommending glucosamine preferred the Move Free® Advanced formula over formulas containing only glucosamine or glucosamine and chondroitin.

ABOUT YOUR CHILD

The children you love will be thrilled to see their own names printed in these unique, personalized story books.

This Christmas, give a gift your child will keep for years... a story book from the adventure-packed titles you see displayed here. See how happy your children will be when they read these books and discover the story is all about them, their family and friends.

In each of these wonderful stories, your child's NAME will be printed throughout the book... along with their Brothers, Sisters and Friends all cleverly woven into the story. Even your child's Birthday and Address appear as a special added touch!

YOUR CHILD IS THE STAR!

Mark your calendar for September 29 for one of the most informative programs about the legal system you'll ever see.

Pre-Paid Legal Services, Inc. is currently in production with an educational series scheduled to air on September 29th.

COURT TV 11:00 A.M. EST

There is an incredible shortfall of justice in society today.

"A cause as critical as ours requires us to take immediate and decisive action to educate the public." said Harland Stonecipher, CEO and Founder of Pre-Paid Legal Services, Inc.

You will be able to view the program in the comfort of your own home, but it's important to know that this program is educational, and there will be no 800 number to call or website to visit promoted on the program. The only way to take the next step is to work through a Pre-Paid Legal Independent Associate.
