Community 'celebrates' outstanding citizens

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

It was more than an awards ceremony: it was a celebration of a community and its people.

"What has made Chelsea so special is the people," said Bob Daniels, whose description came during the 2007 Citizen of the Year celebration on Nov. 14, honoring three people who helped make the city such a special place.

The 14th annual event was co-sponsored by the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and The Chelsea Standard, and took place at the Comfort Inn's Village Conference Center.

The event began precisely at 7 p.m. with a sumptuous dinner of roast beef tenderloin, crab cakes, rice medley, steamed asparagus, a salad of tossed mixed greens and a berry mousse dessert.

First on the agenda was presentation of the Citizen of the Year award to Ronald Weiser, founder and former

Dexter girl faces 18 months of chemo in her courageous fight with a brain tumor

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The first thing you notice when you meet Belle Petit is the smile on her face and the catheter in the middle of her chest pushing out her shirt. But as you talk with Belle and get to know her, the smile grows wider and the catheter begins to shrink.

In no time at all, you don't even notice the bulge in the shirt. All you see is that smile. All that you hear is that laugh. And suddenly Belle goes from a 6-year-old little girl with a brain tumor, to just a little girl. One with a bundle of energy. One with a zest for life. And one with the strength to deal with a very serious disease.

Belle's mother, Sue Hollister Petit, takes a seat on the floor in the living room of their Dexter home. Soon, she becomes a seat herself as Belle jumps into her lap, wrapping her arms around her mother and flashing that smile. Just as quickly, Belle is back up.

Lima Twp. man, 53, arrested in shooting

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

A 53-year-old Lima Township man faces five felony counts in connection with a shooting early Nov. 11 at his home on Dexter-Chelsea Road that left a Dexter teen hospitalized.

Gershom L. Avery was arraigned Nov. 13 on charges of assault with intent to commit murder, assault with intent to commit great bodily harm less than murder, felonious assault, use of a firearm in commission of a felony and delivery and manufacture of a controlled substance (marijuana).

Avery is lodged at the Washtenaw County Jail and was in court for a preliminary examination on Tuesday.

Michigan State Police said they were called to Avery's home in the 9000 block of Dexter-Chelsea Road at about 1 a.m. Nov. 11, where they found an 18-year-old Dexter man who had been shot in the chest but managed to call 911 from his cell phone.

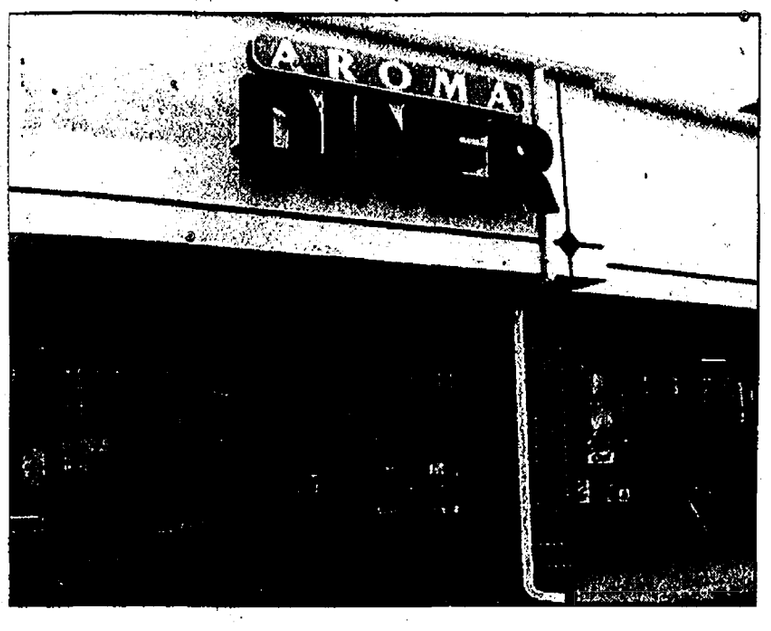
Home cooked meals at fast food prices.



If an economically priced, freshly cooked meal served by a smiling waitress sounds like a little slice of heaven, you might like to try visiting Aroma Diner at the corner of Michigan Ave. and Moon Road.

Open daily from 7:00 a.m. - 9:00 p.m. The friendly family restaurant has an extensive menu offering a variety of dishes, from the meat lover's breakfast skillets to baked amish chicken.

An accommodating children's menu, luscious dessert offerings and Mediterranean and Italian specialties keep loyal customers coming back for more...and more...and more.

And, since manager Fawaz Nimer returned to the front of the restaurant earlier this year, each and every customer is greeted with a sincere and warm welcome during their meal.

"We hold our customers near and dear to our hearts here and feel strongly about making each and every diner feel comfortable and very welcome," said Fawaz, who runs Aroma Diner.

"When I returned, I was so glad to see my old friends and have the opportunity to meet so many wonderful people from the area. I love the community here and we are proud to be here."

Fawaz and his staff are passionate about serving home-cooked food at a reasonable price.

"We want people to know that they have a healthier alternative to fast food and can sit down here at Aroma to be served a full meal at fast food prices," commented Fawaz.

Quality and price are of utmost importance to everyone at Aroma where diners will not be hurried. In fact, now that the restaurant is completely non-smoking and offers free wireless service, people are encouraged to hold meetings or interviews at their leisure. Mother and child playgroups as well as leisurely ladies coffee or lunch groups are welcomed. As always we welcome and appreciate the sporting teams coming in after practices and games.

Fawaz prides himself on the quality of coffee served at Aroma. "We can compete with the coffee shops, plus we cook breakfast all day long."

Fawaz and his staff believe in truly listening to their customers, changing and adding to the menu as diners make suggestions. When two senior citizens recently mentioned they were feeling the pinch of eating out, Fawaz came up with the Meal and Deal where each day special plates would be offered, for just $5.99 to include a nicely portioned hot, balanced meal for budget-minded diners.

Another customer requested the chef's chicken and wild rice soup and on the day that is was featured, came in twice to enjoy a hot bowl of home made soup.

"We also want to help keep your kitchen clean," joked Fawaz. "Let us do the cooking."

The cozy restaurant is an inviting place to relax, too. Diners will appreciate the attention to detail and the impeccable cleanliness throughout the dining room and rest rooms.

At Aroma, every kid is a winner, as children are invited (with mom and dad's approval, of course) to visit the prize table to chose something special to play with or take home.

The restaurant lives up to its name as the scent of freshly baked bread welcomes early-day diners. Bread is baked fresh every day, served with every order at Aroma.

For holiday office celebrations, neighborhood caroling parties, family gatherings and Christmas-time cocktail parties Aroma offers catering from its menu and beyond. They will prepare a gorgeous tray of roll-ups or prepare a full hot dinner for your group. "Just call us or come in to chat about your needs and your budget. We will accommodate you in every way," promised Fawaz.

Here's a taste of what dinners you will find on the regular menu:

Appetizers – 21 Shrimp, Spinach Pie, Cheese Sticks.
Soups – Vegetable Soup, Chili and Beans plus a homemade daily soup.
Salads – Salmon Caesar, Greek Salad with gyro meat, Chicken Fajita Salad
Sandwiches – Burgers, Reuben, Grilled Hawaiian Chicken on Ciabatta, Roll-ups, Pitas Galore.
Steaks – Surf n' Turf, Country Fried Steak, Twin Pork Chops.
Pasta – Chicken Florentine, Veal Parmesan
Specialities – Chicken Breast Dinner, Liver and Onions, Meatloaf, Hot Turkey Dinner.

When two senior citizens recently mentioned they were feeling the pinch of eating out, Fawaz came up with the Meal and Deal where each day special plates would be offered, for just $5.99 to include a nicely portioned hot, balanced meal for budget-mined diners.

Proclamations honoring Ronald Weiser as 2007 Citizen of the Year and Fred Mills and Donald O'Dell as Lifetime Achievement Award winners are lined up on Nov. 14. From left are framed documents from Washtenaw County, the city of Chelsea, the state of Michigan and Congressman Tim Walberg.

CITIZENS

CEO of McKinley Associates and former U.S. Ambassador to Slovakia.

Chamber President Steve Olsen, master of ceremonies, said the Citizen of the Year award is given "to honor a citizen for his or her contribution to the community over the past year."

Washtenaw County Commissioner Mark Ouimet, R-District 1, introduced Weiser by saying he has been proud to call Weiser a friend for more than 30 years.

The reason Weiser was chosen for the award was due to his work with McKinley to develop the Clocktower complex as a major tourism and shopping destination in the city.

Next came the Lifetime Achievement awards for Donald "Digger" O'Dell and Fred Mills.

Even though it was just the second year this particular award had been bestowed, it was shared by two men who had spent much of their lives serving this community, albeit in completely different fields of endeavor.

O'Dell, a retired Marine, was acknowledged for his tireless work on behalf of veterans; and Mills was honored for his decades in the Chelsea School District as a teacher, coach and administrator.

Fellow veteran Jeff Gunnis introduced O'Dell by telling some "war stories" about his friend's activities on behalf of veterans, including his membership in the local American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts, the Washtenaw County Veterans Council executive board, among others.

O'Dell thanked the chamber and the newspaper for selecting him for the award.

"I feel humbled and honored for receiving this award," he said.

Instead of giving a prepared speech, he chose to read two poems written by longtime friend Robert Joseph, who grew up with him on North Street.

The first, "My Roots," was about cherishing friends and neighbors while growing up amid tough times; and "My Winding Road" illustrated the many twists and turns a person takes during a lifetime.

Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney, who coincidentally was the Chamber's first Citizen of the Year winner, introduced the evening's second Lifetime Achievement winner, Fred Mills.

Feeney worked with Mills as a member of the school board during his tenure, and described his service to the Chelsea School District in an emotional tribute.

She pointed out his efforts to create a nonconfrontational "win-win" model of negotiating with teachers that is still used, and noted he was instrumental in securing the purchase of 50 acres at Freer and Trinkle roads to build the new high school.

Mills first thanked his wife and family for standing by him during the long hours of his school career.

"Neeta and my family sacrificed when I would have another meeting that night or that afternoon," Mills said.

"I always felt that if you had an opportunity to do something for the school or the church or the community, you had to give back.

"I've been fortunate to work with a number of people who made me look good."

Daniels wrapped up the evening with comments about the awards and the men who received them.

"This is a community tribute," Daniels said. "What has made Chelsea so special is the people."

Directing his gaze toward Weiser, he said: "It takes a special vision for someone to do what you've done.

"People will look at that Clocktower complex in the future and they won't talk about the Glazier property, they'll talk about what McKinley has done."

To O'Dell: "You were recognized because you're a quiet leader," he said.

"He and (wife) Margaret have been out there doing the things other people don't do, like placing thousands of flags on veterans' graves," Daniels told the audience.

"They are the type to quietly go about the business of doing what needs to be done."

About Mills, who has worked for him at Chelsea Lumber for several years, Daniels said: "He has an uncanny skill of figuring out what is the right thing to do, whatever he is involved in."

He concluded by repeating that Chelsea is a unique community.

"Other places look at us and ask, 'Why can't we be like Chelsea?'" he said.

Chamber director Bob Pierce was very pleased with the turnout of more than 100 people.

"This was our most successful Citizen of the Year event yet," Pierce said.

"We had incredible support from the community for our winners this year, and we hope to build on the success of this year's event."

Chamber offers chance to be in parade

The Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce will have a walking unit in the Hometown Holiday Light Parade on Dec. 1, and member businesses can participate. The chamber will wrap a gift with your business name displayed on the front and back.

The present will not only be wrapped but also adorned with lights.

The package will be "worn" by one of the Chamber "elves" who will be walking with the Chamber vehicle in the parade. The Chamber will wrap the box, light the box, and will march for you in the parade - unless you want to be present in your present.

All you have to do is sponsor the box for $25.

Please make check payable to: Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, 310 N. Main St., Suite 120, Chelsea, MI 48118; or call 475-1145 to reserve a box and the Chamber will send you an invoice.

Deadline for entry is 4 p.m. Monday. For more information, contact Susan Bauer at sbauer@chelseamichamber.org

Chelsea news in brief

Holiday recycling schedule

Due to the Thanksgiving holiday, the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority reminds residents that curbside recycling pick-up will take place in the city on Wednesday only this week.

Those on the east side of town who usually have a Thursday pickup should have their recyclables at the curb by Wednesday.

City takes control of street

City Engineer Christine Linfield informed the Chelsea City Council at its Nov. 13 meeting that all terms and conditions of construction of Creekside Court have been completed to her satisfaction, and the street is ready to be added to the city's local street system.

The council voted to accept a quit-claim deed for the cul-de-sac off Gene Drive, south of Old US-12.

Tax board reappointment

At its Nov. 13 meeting, the Chelsea City Council approved naming Robert Hodder to another term on the Board of Review.

Mayor Ann Feeney, who makes such appointments, told the council Hodder had expressed an interest in serving another three-year term on the city tax panel.

His new term expires Dec. 31, 2010.

Leaf pickup reminders

Chelsea city crews will pick up leaves during the remainder of the fall season as time permits.

Residents are asked not to rake leaves into the street because it clogs up storm drains and can cause flooding.

Instead, rake leaves onto the edge of the lawn, between the sidewalk and the curb. Sticks and brush should be piled separately from leaves.

City services survey

The November city newsletter included a survey of customer service for the administrative office.

The survey asks residents' opinions about services provided by city personnel, office hours, the Web site and the newsletter.

Residents should return the anonymous surveys to city offices no later than Dec. 31 in person or with utility or tax payments; or you can fill one out at www.city-chelsea.org

Holiday light parade

The Chelsea Hometown Holiday and Light Parade is seeking participants for its Light Parade, scheduled for Dec. 1 as part of Chelsea Hometown Holidays, Nov. 30 through Dec. 2.

Applications are available at the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce office, 310 N. Main St., Suite 120; or online at chelseafestivals.com.

HERITAGE REGIONAL PROFILE

It's back to basics for small business owners

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

It's hard enough to be a successful small-business owner in this sagging Michigan economy without sweating the basics.

Yet that's what a lot of small-business owners end up doing.

Jim Sell enjoyed doubling profits for the first four years of his business' life, but saw growth slow to just 15 to 20 percent over the last three years. Without good business practices and learning from mistakes, he isn't sure that it would have lasted this long.

Sell owns Saline-based Signature Catering LLC, which he started in a leased restaurant in Sterling Heights in 2000.

"The owner of the restaurant didn't know much about food and we did, so that's how we started — supplying food for the restaurant and literally running our catering business out the back door," Sell said.

Sell's wife is from Saline, so they decided to try their hand in her hometown.

"We started out by soliciting University of Michigan and we started doing business with them," Sell said.

It was a gradual process of dipping into a new market that Sell hasn't looked back from since.

"Based on the business that we were doing (with the University of Michigan), we felt that we could open up a small catering operation out here, so I rented a small space by a Mickey's Dairy Twist and started running a small kitchen for all purpose catering."

Sell left the Sterling Heights business on good terms, which he recommended when moving on from a partnership.

His business strategy is to remain focused and move at a careful pace, taking the time to consider what is around each corner. How his business has grown is reflective of that strategy.

"What we're doing is stepping stones," Sell said.

Signature moved into the former Jon-Dom's Night Cap Lounge building earlier this year to give his business room to grow into the open hall with a full service catering and restaurant operation that is his ultimate vision.

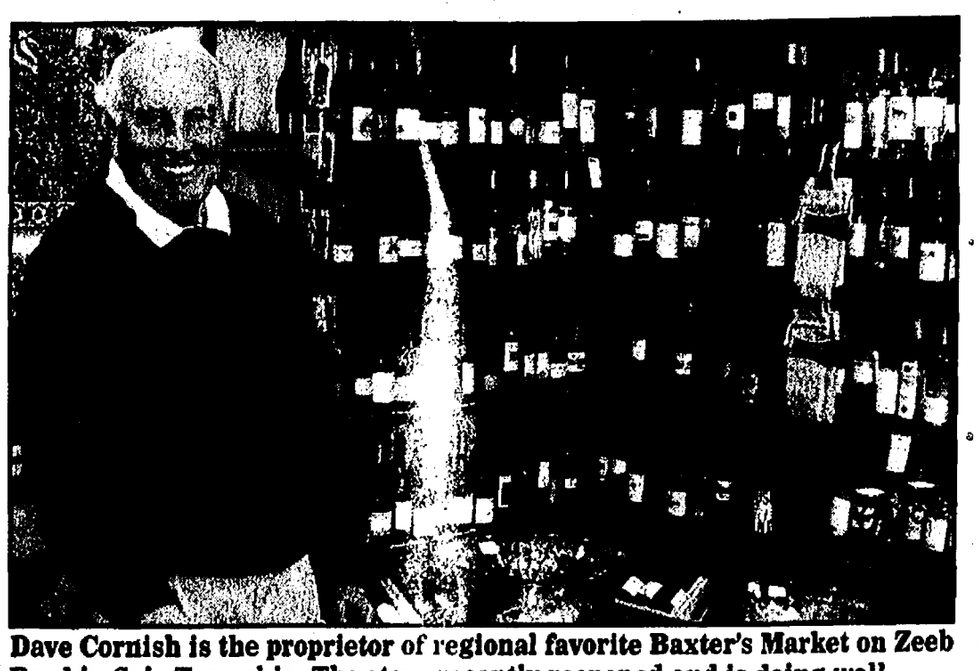
The move led to one of the first lessons that Sell learned the hard way.

"One month after opening, we were hit with construction on Michigan Avenue and our business took a big hit," Sell said, admitting that he wished he had known to check with the Washtenaw County Road Commission or the state.

Sell might have been able to better prepare for the restaurant side of his business taking a 50 percent hit, if he had some advanced warning.

"Our first month of opening, everything was going pretty good," he said. "We were doing 175 covers (tables) a day on average and then we went from that to 70 covers after the construction became full-blown."

The impact was so hard that Sell decided to postpone Signature's grand opening until just three weeks ago, when construction abated.



Dave Cornish is the proprietor of regional favorite Baxter's Market on Zeeb Road in Scio Township. The store recently reopened and is doing well.

"We put a lot of money into this place. We rent the building; we don't own it," he said. "That one thing put us in quite a bad position for awhile there."

Sell, like a lot of small-business owners in a tight-knit community, wants to make money, but also tries to fit into a local niche and integrate into the community, which is the backbone of any successful business venture.

Mary Pierce saw a similar opportunity in Dexter Village and seized it. She has done everything from underwriting and originating to processing loans over the last 20 years.

> "One month after opening, we were hit with construction on Michigan Avenue and our business took a big hit."
> Jim Sell, Saline-based Signature Catering

"I opened my business with the intention of bringing a mortgage broker to Dexter in 2001," Pierce said. "I am the only stand-alone mortgage broker in Dexter."

Pierce didn't perform any sort of market analysis or study. Like Sell and others, she saw the potential for growth and jumped on it.

Although the strained economy has been difficult on her business like all others in the state, she says that it's growing in the wake of the "refinance craze" that saw record low-interest rates during the past few years.

While she didn't conduct a market study before opening, marketing and educating people in the community is certainly a big part of Pierce's business. Her company goes up against competition from the Internet and national chains that have a marketing reach that dwarfs that of even regional corporate chains.

"The big lenders have the big bucks to advertise on TV and the radio, and the Web makes Internet lending very easy," Pierce said. "Luckily, in my case, there is accountability and I know the market because I live there. As a resident of the community, with children in Dexter schools, I wanted to offer my services to the community of Dexter.

"We are accountable to the people because they are my friends and neighbors, as well as my customers."

Pierce said getting that message across is her biggest challenge and probably the biggest challenge a small-business owner will face in general when even inadvertently competing with a national chain.

"My hurdle is educating everyone that you don't have to be the 'big-box' lender or the lender with all the TV and radio ads to get a good deal," she said. "Some questions people need to ask themselves are, 'Does the company educate (me) on the process and stand by their word?'

"My company doesn't have the money to place big ads, unless we wanted to charge the overhead, which is what larger companies do. Next thing you know, you're charging customers the same fee and give up your advantage."

In Pierce's business, the name of the game is referrals, which is why she tries to get as many people in the door as possible.

"I believe good business yields good referrals," she said. "My staff and I live for our referrals. That's why we try to connect with the community on many levels, including volunteer work and being active with local groups, and just showing each individual the process as we underwrite their loan. Making sure that people are comfortable with you is the key."

Not everyone takes a leap of faith into a local market. Just down Zeeb Road in Scio Township, Dave

Securing that loan requires preparation

When Paul Mahrle opened up Mahrle Automotive in Manchester, he put his house and everything he had on the line to finance his business.

After working as an automotive engineer for 17 years, he felt he had the experience and the plan to secure a Small Business Administration loan, but apparently he wasn't as prepared as he thought.

"We talked to a couple of bankers and they said 'no problem' and then they said 'doesn't meet our requirements,'" Mahrle said.

The reasons for rejection are myriad when it comes to applying for such loans and the background on the SBA is decades long.

SBA loans have been around since 1953, when Congress passed the Small Business Act July 30 of that year.

Since then, the level of support of the SBA has fluctuated quite a bit, depending upon the political climate in Washington, D.C., according to resources such as the U.S. Government Accountability Office.

The Congressional Budget Office, another legislative bureaucracy, has published analyses recommending the elimination of SBA loan and loan guarantee programs.

In recent years, the budget has been cut, but there are still ways to secure an SBA loan. United Bank & Trust's Dexter branch manager, Brian Falzon, has a number of tips.

"Know the area that you're trying to open your business in, for starters," he said.

Falzon is a community banker, so he knows his local market.

"We've had people come in trying to open businesses that just wouldn't fly around here," he said. In that case, he will advise them or ask that they go out into the business community and ask about the local market themselves.

Falzon also knows which business owners have a strong reputation. For someone who doesn't have that reputation, there are a number of things that need to be present for a bank to check off during the SBA loan evaluation process.

"We look at different businesses in different ways," Falzon said. "For example, an entrepreneur opening up a Little Caesars franchise already has a lot of positive indicators in place.

Chelsea City Council Roundup

Council says 'no' to pension benefit boost

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Keeping a keen eye on ever-tightening pursestrings, the Chelsea City Council on Nov. 13 rejected a plan to give retired employees a 2 percent raise in pension benefits.

The proposed increase in the Municipal Employee Retirement System (MERS) benefit program for city employees would have gone into effect Jan. 1.

The program is not part of any collective bargaining agreement, and even though they had the option not to, Chelsea's village and city councils have granted it to union and non-union workers each year since 1987.

The city is struggling with a drastically underfunded pension system, which was one of the primary reasons for a 1-mill tax rate increase in June.

New accounting standards require the city to have a plan to address the unfunded liability or face a possible downgrade in its bond rating, making it more expensive to borrow for future projects.

The liability continues to increase as more employees retire, and continued rises in benefit costs increase that liability.

As of Dec. 31, 2006, city records show, the general division of employees is 75.4 percent funded; non-union salaried division, 52.3 percent; and the police, with a "20-and-out" system, are only 46.3 percent funded.

Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney accepts a gift of flowers from newly sworn-in City Council member Bill Holmberg at the conclusion of the Nov. 13 meeting.

City Manager John Hanifan recommended against adopting the increase, at least for now.

"There's this big, looming number out there for a post-employment benefit, and increasing it would increase our liability," Hanifan said.

"Until the other divisions are up to 80 percent, I can't recommend this."

According to city records, the pension fund was actually overfunded — at 125 percent — in 1991, and the last time it was at 80 percent was 1995.

As of Dec. 31, 2005, the accrued unfunded liability for all retirees was 62 percent underfunded, or $3.09 million, and has grown ever since.

Mayor Ann Feeney reminded the council of the danger of increasing the pension liability.

"Things like this contributed to the situation we're facing now," she said.

Wellfield improvements

City Utilities Director Brad Roberts received approval for three variable frequency drive pump motors to complete improvements to the city's water wells.

"The amount necessary to hook up wells 6 and 7, their controls and fencing will be $42,165 plus $500 freight," Roberts told the council.

A Stantec consultant recommended that the city order the Danfoss units directly from the company to avoid a contactor markup and get timely delivery.

"It takes 12 weeks to deliver and our construction schedule for the wellfield is 16 weeks - there's the problem," Roberts said.

Council members questioned why no other bidders were consulted but Roberts defended the single-source quote.

"Danfoss is as good or better than their competitors, and they have a two-year warranty while others only have a year," he said.

The money is budgeted and is available for this year, he added.

Storm sewer repairs

The council also approved amending the current budget to expedite repairs to the storm sewer affecting two residences on the north side.

"It only recently came to our attention during Howard Road work there is great structural concern for two residents if the storm sewer isn't fixed; we did not foresee this," said Department of Public Works Superintendent Craig Meier.

He recommended that a flexible liner be installed in the pipes to alleviate the problem instead of digging them up.

Homes in that neighborhood were built about 50 years ago, Meier said, and part of a house is built under one line and it comes too close to the foundation of another.

"Normal excavation is impractical, but a liner in the pipes would remedy the situation," he said.

There is no room in this year's budget for the work, Meier added, but he was reluctant to wait until next year's budget took effect.

"With the condition of these lines, another freeze/thaw cycle would cause serious damage," Meier warned.

The quote from Insituform Technologies USA for 250 feet of 12-inch liner, 140 feet of 18-inch liner and related items was $30,120.

Like the wellfield request, this was another single-source quote but was allowable under city guidelines.

"There are other sources for this product but they are very remote," Meier said. "This place is in Romulus and their prices are very competitive."

He said the lining could arrive in two or three weeks, and can be installed in one or one and a half days.

The council first approved a budget amendment of $31,000 to cover the cost, then approved the actual purchase of the liner.

SHOOTING

Dexter man and two other Dexter male teens had attempted to break into Avery's house.

According to a state police report, Avery fired eight shots at the three intruders, one of which struck the victim in the back and exited his chest, as the teens fled.

State troopers, assisted by Chelsea police and Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputies, located the victim and took Avery into custody.

The victim was transported to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital for treatment, where his condition was upgraded from critical to stable.

The State Police Bomb Squad team, MSP aviation unit and MSP Emergency Services (SWAT) team were called to the scene and executed a search warrant.

A fragmentation-type improvised explosive device, later found to be inert, was located in the residence, as well as a second detonated IED, the report stated.

The residence also had several "booby traps" prepared for future IED devices. Also located were the materials for future devices.

LAWNET (Livingston and Washtenaw Narcotics Enforcement Team) officers served a second search warrant regarding a large amount of suspected marijuana being grown inside the residence.

Celebrate Us

The Chelsea Senior Center held its annual holiday kick off dinner on Saturday Night, Nov. 10. "Celebrate Us" was held at the Washington Street Education Center and was catered by the school districts excellent dietary program headed by Karen Carty. The generous contributions by the Cole Funeral Chapel and the Staffan Mitchell Funeral homes allowed the Senior Center to keep the price at just $15 per person. Entertainment was provided by Marsha Munn and Scott Riedel who delighted the 140 guests with a selection of songs that were familiar to everyone. The Chelsea High School National Honor Society donated their services as "waitstaff" for the evening. In the photo Lindsey Keys offers a selection of tempting deserts to Jean Dunn & Gina Ekis who were on the committee that put on this special night.

Dexter Township has board, commission positions open

The Dexter Township Board will make and/or confirm appointments to various township boards and commissions at their Dec. 18 regular board meeting at 7 p.m. at the Township Hall, 6880 Dexter-Pinckney Road.

Individuals interested in applying for any of the expiring or open appointments should send a letter of interest and resume via regular mail to Harley Rider, Township Clerk, 6880 Dexter-Pinckney Road, Dexter, MI 48130, by email to clerk-dexter@twp-dexter.org., or by fax to Harley Rider at (734) 426-3838 no later than Dec. 11, 2007.

Open Planning Commission positions include four full-time positions. Two of the full-time appointments are to fill the remainder of terms ending Dec. 31, 2008 and Dec. 31, 2009, respectively. The other two full-time appointments are for three-year terms ending 12-31-2010. The Planning Commission is responsible for making and adopting a basic plan to be used as a guide for the development of the township and for the evaluation and approval or denial of site plans for development in the township.

Available Zoning Board of Appeals positions include two full-time slots. The first available slot is to fill the remainder of a three-year term ending Dec. 31, 2009 and the second is for a three-year term ending Dec. 31, 2010. Zoning Board of Appeals members hear and decide a variety of questions that arise in the administration of the zoning ordinance.

Dexter Township will appoint four representatives and three alternate representatives to the Multi-Lakes Water and Sewer Authority Board for three-year terms ending Dec. 31, 2010.

The Dexter Township Farmland Preservation Board has two open appointments, both for three-year terms ending Dec. 31, 2010. The first position is a "citizen" representative and the other is to fill an "agricultural" representative.

REGIONAL

Cornish is the proprietor of regional favorite Baxter's Market — the latest in several business ventures.

"I had a business plan when I first started," he said of his first venture, the BP station on Zeeb and I-94.

When he opened it in 1969, it was an Amoco station. Cornish would later open a Gulf gas station in 1978, open Baxter's in 1994 and sell the Amoco station to The American Oil Co. in 1997, one year prior to BP buying out the oil conglomerate.

With such a rich history of business ownership in that one concentrated area, especially with Interstate freeway traffic flowing nearby, Cornish says that he isn't shutting down Baxter Plaza anytime soon.

"You know when you've been in business in a certain location for quite a few years, it makes it easier to put together a business plan because you pretty much know what your traffic is," he said. "The most important thing in any business plan, as far as retail goes, is location."

When Cornish first started, he would get traffic counts from the Washtenaw County Road Commission. The information is quite detailed, he said, including traffic flow numbers in both directions during different hours of the day.

"You can also hire firms to do the demographics of the area, which is quite costly," Cornish said, admitting that he has a much cheaper method. "I basically relied on McDonald's. Those national companies do not go to an area that is undesirable, so they basically did most of my demographic work for me.

"There's nothing wrong with being a follower, when you're in business. Basically, if it's good enough for them to build at an intersection, it would be good enough for me."

Cornish hasn't completely forgone looking at such studies, saying that he has been privy to information about his market in a three-mile radius in Scio Township, which is "darned impressive looking," he said of income level related to his customer base.

On top of local regulars, Cornish said that the freeway has literally carried word of his business far and wide enough to make Baxter's Market a regional attraction.

"We get people from Jackson and as far way as Kalamazoo who are going to or leaving from Ann Arbor," he said. "They kind of stop in to take a break, and some of my regulars are from far away. I have some regulars outside of the township or even the county that I have known since owning the Amoco station. You chit-chat and get to know people, and you get a pretty good idea of where the customer is coming from."

Like Sell's Signature Catering, Cornish was also hit with unfavorable market conditions when construction began on I-94 in 2002.

"My business took off like a rocket and exceeded everything greatly," Cornish said. "We were right on track to hit our goals, but they rebuilt the Zeeb Road bridge and that was devastating."

Cornish said there were nightmarish months in which business fell by almost 70 percent and tanked any potential for profits.

"No matter what you do, you cannot have a profitable business when you're only doing a third of what you were doing," he said. "It took a long time to get people back in the habits that they used to have, but eventually they were coming back."

To top it off, the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, had already hit high-end liquor and catering sales, but Cornish said that he was able to weather the storm until things returned to normal in 2005. Being prepared for the worst is the key, he said.

Whether you're moving into a new building or just revamping a new one, the advice that everyone gives is to be patient, work with local government and get architects, contractors and building inspectors together as often as possible.

"You've got to be, first and foremost, just straight-up honest with (government agencies) and tell them what you're doing," Sell said. "Ask all of the questions you can ask. Ask what you have to do and get the original blueprints from your landlord."

From there, Sell would include any additions onto the Signature Catering building blueprints and he could be advised if something was amiss, such as a bathroom not being handicap accessible.

"Also, get copies of the codes that you're in violation of," Sell said. "I would have the building inspector and the electrician there together and they would tell me what needed to happen. To me, that was the best way I could do it."

Sell has a warning for those thinking of starting a business — be careful with contractors.

"A lot of contractors would be like, 'Don't worry about the city,' or they'd show up late and estimates on plumbing and electrical would go up and up," Sell said. "I've done this in Clinton Township and Saline now and, in both cases, building inspectors are more than happy to get involved."

Cornish echoed the pitfalls that are present when dealing with contractors and architects, although in his case a lot of the issues were related to letting the scale of his business get out of focus.

"My biggest mistake was when we built the plaza in 2000," he said. "We made the store too big and then we spent much more than we ever should have with architects."

The additional space, which one might count as a plus for any business under any circumstances, had several negative effects on Baxter's, such as spreading the product too thin, putting additional demand for employees on the business and increasing manager responsibility.

"The architects had some wonderful ideas, but we followed their advice too often and spent too much money," Cornish said. "It's like building a house. Do you stop with the granite counter tops or wooden floors? It's the same thing with a business building. You want something you're going to be proud of and you get carried away a little bit."

He also recommended getting in touch with the council or board of whatever municipality the entrepreneur's business is operating in and start communication with the Planning Commission sooner rather than later.

"Make sure there aren't any surprises when you walk into the actual meetings where the decisions are discussed and made," Cornish said.

Dan O'Haver, the owner of Milan Ace Hardware, takes things a step further, by being directly involved in the Downtown Development Authority in Dexter Village, where he also has a business. He has an insider's view of how a municipality's council and Planning Commission operate.

In O'Haver's case, Milan is the second in his family of Ace Hardware stores. He

Stop playing politics with kid's health care

With health care for our families and children so important, it is very disappointing that many Washington and Lansing politicians are playing politics with the State Children's Health Insurance Program (SCHIP), a program that was started in 1997 by Republicans to provide health care to children in low-income families.

Walberg

These politicians and their special interest groups are claiming in television ads, radio ads, robocalls and press releases that I do not want children to have health care. This could not be further from the truth.

My wife and I know what it is like to struggle, as we could not afford health insurance in my early years as a pastor. I am fully committed to making quality health insurance more affordable and available to Michigan's working families and poor children.

My position is very clear: I believe money meant to help poor children should go to poor children and not be diverted to cover families already on private health insurance earning $60,000 a year, illegal immigrants or childless adults.

I have co-sponsored and voted for legislation to renew SCHIP, so poor children currently receiving health coverage will continue to receive care. The Democratic leadership has forced us to vote on three additional SCHIP bills this year.

In total, these bills would have moved two million children from private to government health insurance; covered families earning up to $83,000 a year; raised taxes on every private health insurance plan; reduced Medicare benefits for 14,183 seniors in the 7th District; given illegal immigrants the benefits; reduced access to prescribed oxygen equipment and wheelchairs for senior citizens; harmed home health care services, nursing facilities and inpatient rehabilitation services; and required 22 million new smokers over the next 10 years to pay for the program.

Clearly, these bills were about more than providing health care to poor children, and I refused to go along with the majority's misguided attempt to overextend the program.

I am trying to work with Democrats on this issue, and recently I introduced an alternative children's health insurance bill with my House and Senate colleagues. Our bill would renew coverage for all children currently receiving coverage, and provide health insurance tax credits so parents can buy private health insurance for their kids. Sadly, the response has been more attack ads against me and further spreading of false information. These folks seem far more interested in scoring political points than helping Michigan children.

State Sen. Mark Schauer recently joined the fray. He claimed "Illegal immigrants will not be allowed to receive this benefit." According to Social Security Commissioner Michael Astrue, this is false. Additionally, the nonpartisan Congressional Budget Office read the Democrats' bill and said $3.7 billion will go to illegal immigrants.

Sen. Schauer also claimed the most recent bill caps "coverage at 300 percent of poverty." The bill allows families earning above $62,000 to receive government health insurance by allowing states to disregard types of income, such as income paid for rent, transportation or food. Surprise, surprise, politicians playing numbers games to push more people into government health care.

I recognize that Sen. Schauer has been busy raising taxes on the people of Michigan, but he and his special interest allies should get their facts straight so we can have a fruitful public policy debate about how best ensure poor children and working families have access to health care.

U.S. Rep. Tim Walberg, R-Tipton, represents the 7th District in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor: After Chelsea School Assistant Superintendent Iva Corbett gave her talk on United Way to our staff and mentioned that Faith In Action was in need of food for their pantry, I purchased a couple of bags of groceries and dropped them off.

I was greeted with tears of appreciation, something that has never happened before to me when making donations of food or clothing.

The woman who accepted my purchases commented that the pantry was almost bare and the need was currently very great. FIA serves all of the Chelsea and Dexter school districts and they have had an increase in the number of people needing help. The number of "For Sale" signs in the area is a good indicator.

Just because we do not see the homeless sitting on the street corners as in larger communities does not mean that we are immune. The needy are walking among us and sitting in our classrooms.

So, besides giving to United Way, why not pick a few extra things while grocery shopping and drop them off after school?

FIA is open to accept donations from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Many of the items they need are not very expensive. For those who itemize charitable donations for tax purposes, a receipt can be obtained.

When shopping, simply put those items first on the checkout belt, circle the items on the store receipt and staple it to the FIA receipt. Right now, the only "animal protein" that they have is tuna. The woman who spoke with me said, "Even hungry people get tired of tuna."

The following is a partial list of the staples they have been short of:

Canned or frozen meat, canned fruit, spaghetti sauce, juice, chili beans, pancake mix and syrup, peanut butter and jelly, pasta, healthy snack foods, laundry and dish soap, shampoo, shaving items and deodorant.

To the Editor: Elections are exciting and can be the source of elation for the winners and disappointment for the losers. I am sure the recent council elections were no different for the participants. For us citizens the operation of an enterprise as expansive as Chelsea is certainly less exciting and more like sausage. You expect it to be good, but you don't want to watch it being made. Regardless of who you voted for, I think we as a community should feel grateful that we had such a group of qualified, and more importantly, willing candidates. The Citizens for Accountability did a great job raising awareness of issues that affect Chelsea and prompted me to think about citizen accountability in local government.

In the end, we get the quality of government that we demand and deserve because we are accountable. We are truly blessed as a town to have a heritage of citizens who work for the common good and demand no recognition for it. Joe Merkel and Jamie Bollinger have spent decades contributing to making Chelsea a better place without ever seeking notice for it. While on the City Council, they did our work attending endless meetings and reviewing contracts and briefings. They inherited a whole host of problems that adversely impacted Chelsea's relationships, finances and operations and they just went to work to make Chelsea a better place. Because of them, Chelsea's relationships with our neighboring townships, which were in grave shape, are much improved. Our financial house is on much firmer footing and the services we demand are being delivered in more efficient and effective ways than before their arrival on City Council.

So when you see either of them around town, thank them for doing our work for us. While you are at it do the same for Rod Anderson and Bill Holmberg. They, too, have committed to be accountable to do our work. They, like their predecessors, have committed a substantial portion of their spare time just for us. It won't be easy. So be sure to encourage them.

Better yet, be accountable. Enquire how your government operates and get involved. Many hands make for a light load.

Peter Feeney

To the Editor: In this time of Thanksgiving the Chelsea Senior Center would like to thank all the citizens of Chelsea who so generously support the Chelsea United Way. Because of your kindness, and concern for your neighbors, the Chelsea Senior Center and so many other organizations are able to meet the needs of the community. While other avenues of financial support are either drying up completely, or having to cut way back, it is comforting to know that the United Way is able to continue in its mission of helping us so we can help you. Thank you good people of Chelsea, and thank you United Way. May your Thanksgiving be especially blessed knowing you have provided assistance for so many.

Tina Patterson
Director of The Chelsea Senior Center

To the Editor: Before I moved out here to the country, everyone said I'd love it. "Dexter is such a nice little town," people would say but then add, "oh, except in the fall."

Despite family-focused community celebrations throughout the year like "Dexter Daze" and "Apple Daze," I was warned that in November many men give in to primitive urges and kill as many deer as possible. Worse yet, they told stories of a local business that actually stacks butchered deer corpses like a huge Christmas tree for everyone to see.

I didn't believe them, of course. Even if hunters wanted such a grotesque display, the community leaders would never allow it. But this weekend I saw for myself what they must have been talking about, and it was worse than I imagined.

In front of Mill Creek Sports were bloody deer hanging from nooses, with more stacked below, prominently displayed near the main road through town.

No matter how you feel about hunting, how can any decent community allow such a horrific display? They may claim that it doesn't violate any ordinances, but would they look the other way if it were a nude statue or photograph? Not a chance. They'd have it removed, and have the owners fined or jailed in no time. But a sickening, sadistic display in plain sight for our children to see? Apparently that's just fine.

After contacting Dexter's village leadership, I learned that in fact this business is in Scio Township, whose leaders have repeatedly ignored complaints and pleas to have the display removed.

Regardless of where it is, it's not too late to begin to repair the damage to the reputations of both of these quaint, friendly, and decent communities. Force this business to end this embarrassing and disgusting annual ritual immediately or be shut down. If you really don't have an ordinance that applies, do your job and pass one.

Let's make Scio Township and the Village of Dexter communities everyone can be proud of year round.

J Radcliff

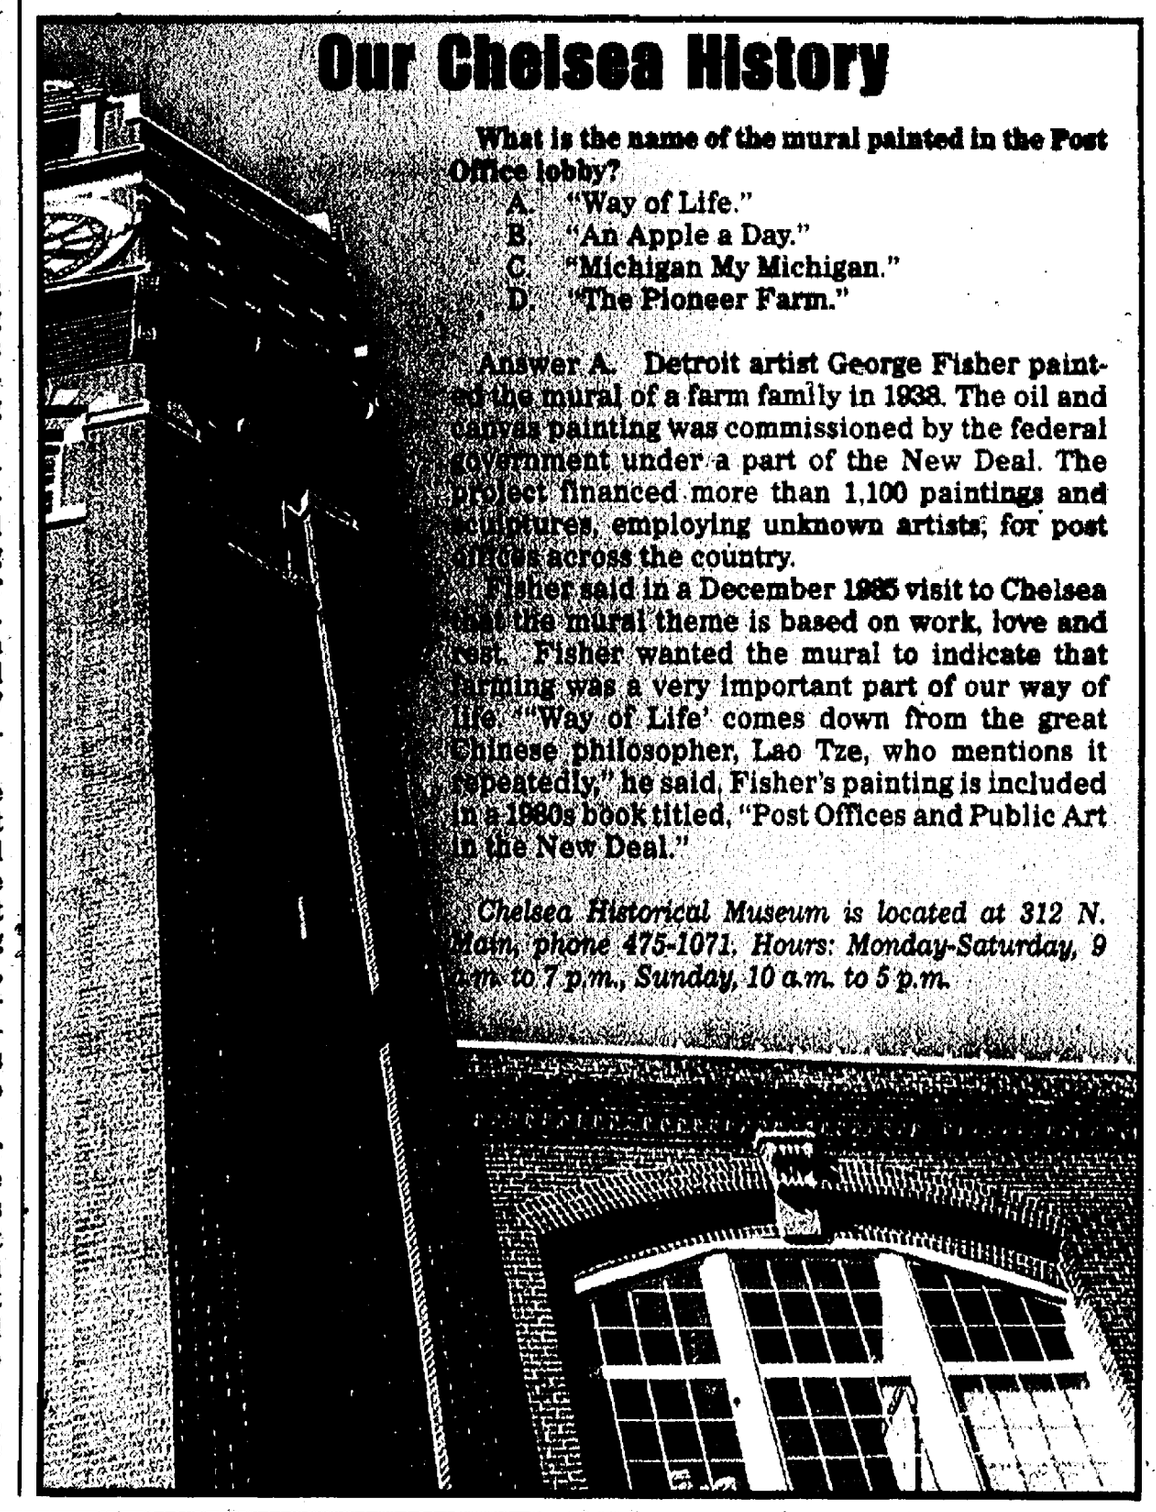
Our Chelsea History



What is the name of the mural painted in the Post Office lobby?

A. "Way of Life."
B. "An Apple a Day."
C. "Michigan My Michigan."
D. "The Pioneer Farm."

Answer A. Detroit artist George Fisher painted the mural of a farm family in 1938. The oil and canvas painting was commissioned by the federal government under a part of the New Deal. The project financed more than 1,100 paintings and sculptures, employing unknown artists, for post offices across the country.

Fisher said in a December 1985 visit to Chelsea that the mural theme is based on work, love and rest. Fisher wanted the mural to indicate that farming was a very important part of our way of life. "Way of Life' comes down from the great Chinese philosopher, Lao Tze, who mentions it repeatedly," he said. Fisher's painting is included in a 1960s book titled, "Post Offices and Public Art in the New Deal."

Chelsea Historical Museum is located at 312 N. Main, phone 475-1071. Hours: Monday-Saturday, 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., Sunday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

purchased the family's Dexter store, Hackney Ace Hardware, from his father. The chain was once four stores strong with locations in Stockbridge, Gregory, Dexter and Plymouth. He takes thriving in a competitive market dominated by big-box stores like Lowe's and Home Depot very seriously.

"You need to be honest about the potential of the business," O'Haver said. "You don't want to find yourself tweaking numbers to make your business plan look more optimistic for the bank."

Like others, O'Haver warns to be prepared for a few years of "difficulty" and said that a basic understanding of tax law, labor law, investing and budgeting is just the tip of the iceberg when it comes to what an entrepreneur needs to learn.

More than likely, a business owner will hire professionals to tap their knowledge and in doing so augment his own experience and know-how.

"It's nearly impossible to wear all the hats that are required to operate a small business," O'Haver said. "You have to depend on professionals to help guide you through some of the more specialized areas."

O'Haver's father, Tom, was also an asset that he said has been vital to running his hardware stores.

"My father has one of the best retail minds I know of and he always focused on the basics: the right product at the right time at right price," O'Haver said. "With that in mind, we try to stock as much merchandise as humanly possible, stay open as long as possible and offer competitive prices that are aligned with our competition."

Dan O'Haver owns hardware stores in Dexter and Milan.

Ace Hardware stores are also part of a larger cooperative organization that has a board of directors hired by store owners. Under the umbrella of Ace Hardware, all of the stores in the cooperative pool their buying power and market data to form a bank of information and purchasing power. A lot of O'Haver's knowledge and research that his stores are premised on come from that bank.

O'Haver's list of agencies that he has to deal with is an acronym lover's dream come true.

"There's FICA (Federal Insurance Contribution), SUTA (State Unemployment Tax Authority), FUTA (Federal Unemployment Tax Authority, MBT (Michigan Business Tax), sales tax, property tax, the IRS, federal withholding and those are just the taxes that we deal with," he said. "There's OSHA (Occupational Safety and Healthy Administration) and MIOSHA (Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration) and, of course, the myriad of labor laws that can pile up the regulation."

O'Haver said that it is not uncommon for him to be audited by one agency or another on a regular basis, to the point that "it feels like you can become buried in regulation."

There are also licenses that need to be attained, whether it's a license to write loans, collect taxes or serve alcohol.

David Curtis owns several establishments that rely on liquor sales for profitability. To receive a license, local law enforcement needs to run an extensive background check on the applicant, and the process takes many months. It's something that needs to be done well in advance of opening the doors up to the public.

(David Curtis portion and Manchester business will be added here when they've responded)

In the end, it's all about effort and putting as much of yourself into your business as you possibly can.

"My wife and I quit our part-time jobs and put everything we had into the business," Sell said. "You need to put 100 percent into it to get 100 percent return, especially in the food service business."

For the Sells, it has been about making personal sacrifices. The family spent a few months living with family for little to no rent and going without many things.

"It took three years for Signature to really pop, but it did and now we have a house, a 1-year-old daughter that is well taken care of and we can sustain ourselves," Sell said. "We didn't go without needs, but few wants were fulfilled in that time."

He advised that patience and consistency are the most important qualities that an entrepreneur can try to develop.

"You have got to give the same product that you gave when you first started or better, and there's a lot of pressure to that."

LOANS

"The franchises are going to be easier to get financing. The SBA has an approved list of franchises. It helps with the process because there is a proven track record there based on similar cases."

Carl Laesch, the owner of Alekos Carryout in Chelsea, opened up shop Aug. 22. He took on a partner, who he worked under for 14 years, before the boss asked him to help expand into Chelsea. In his case, it was about having a partner with, not just the experience, but enough money out of the gate to make the business happen.

"We took out a total of two loans with equal parts pocket money for kitchen equipment," Laesch said. "Both loans are in each of our names."

He plans on buying out his partner in five years.

Laesch said that despite his partner being of the silent variety, communication is key — sound advice, Falzon said.

"If I have any questions or anything comes up, we talk quite a bit," Laesch said. "I stop in at their restaurant and talk to them and they come out here. That way, they know what's going on and I know what's going on."

Despite the climate for entrepreneurs in Michigan, Laesch and Mahrle are doing well. Their progress is remarkable considering the statistics; for example, the Small Business Association of America ranks Michigan 46th in the nation for entrepreneurial growth.

"Word is slowly getting out and we're getting more customers every day," Laesch said. "I wasn't worried about starting this business in this economy because I've been doing this long enough that I know the quality of our product is high and our price is good."

Growth at Alekos Carryout in Chelsea is steady, as it is at Mahrle Automotive.

"We've had to learn about our customers' needs and requirements to be able to do business with them, and building personal relationships is important," Mahrle said.

Business at his auto parts store is so strong that he has hired a full-time salesman to keep in touch with his valuable wholesale clients.

BELLE

"I'm hungry," she whispers. In a flash, Belle is back with a box of Ritz crackers. "She doesn't always have this much energy," her mom says, "but it's good to see."

Chemotherapy is the reason for the lack of energy. A brain tumor is the reason for the chemotherapy.

Belle, a first-grader at Cornerstone Elementary School in Dexter, was diagnosed at an early age with Neurofibromatosis, better known as NF, an oftentimes hereditary disorder caused by abnormality in a gene.

There are two types of NF.

NF1, the more common and mostly less severe of the two, affects about 1 in 4,000 people throughout the world, including Sue and Belle. It is characterized by developmental changes in the nervous system, skin, bones and other tissues. Its most distinctive features are multiple benign, soft tumors called neurofibromas and patches of skin pigmentation called café-au-lait spots. Signs for NF1 usually appear in childhood or adolescence.

NF1 also can affect nerves throughout the body, including in the brain and spinal cord.

NF2 is a rarer disorder characterized by multiple tumors. Signs for NF2 generally appear in a person's 20s.

NF is not well known outside of the medical profession and, of course, for people who have been diagnosed with the disease. In fact, Sue, 39, has had NF1 for most of her life and didn't realize it until she was 21.

"Thousands of people are walking around and don't even know they have NF," Sue said. "I went to my doctor for a checkup and she happened to specialize in NF and said, 'do you know you have NF?' I had never even heard of NF. I had the spots for as long as I could remember so I never thought very much of it. Growing up I was always told they were birthmarks, and I never had any complications from them and still don't."

Sue, who doesn't even require yearly check-ups, has what is known as spontaneous NF, meaning no one in her family has had it before her. Once someone has NF there is a 50 percent chance that it will be passed on to their children.

"The whole time Susan was pregnant we were very aware that she could possibly get it," said Belle's father Mike Petit. "When she was born the doctors checked Belle for Café-au-lait spots. There has to be six or more of them bigger than an inch. They look a lot like birthmarks. She didn't have any when she was born."

But that didn't mean she couldn't develop them down the road. Café-au-lait spots are like chicken pox in that they can appear overnight. Unlike chicken pox, Café-au-lait spots never go away.

"At about 11 months we noticed her first spot," Sue said. "We took her in right away even though we knew the diagnosis right away. We knew she had NF1. But we thought that since I had such a mild case, hers would be mild as well. If I have NF1, she can only have NF1. She can't have NF2."

Belle heads over to the chalkboard and shows off her impressive writing skills. Close by is her guitar and enough stuffed animals to fill a zoo – or at least the closet they are all stuffed into. She says there are more in the basement, but "they are on vacation."

Just after her third birthday in late August, her mother said Belle put on an unusual amount of weight.

"She put on so much weight that I called the pediatrician," Sue said. "We went to see him and he checked her out and told us to come back in a week. During that one week she gained six pounds. And this is when we first took her in for an MRI."

In January 2005 doctors discovered tumors on her brain close to the hunger center, but not in direct contact. "They set us up with yearly MRIs and the tumors remained stable until July 2007," Mike said. "Just before her yearly MRI in July, she started complaining that she couldn't see the TV. You know, I just told her not to sit so close. But a week or so later she complained about it again. And she was constantly rubbing her left eye. We started getting a little worried, but the MRI was coming up."

That MRI showed that Belle's tumor in her brain had to be dealt with immediately.

"The tumor had been very aggressive and was now pushing on her optic nerve," Mike said. "The way these tumors grow is they just intermingle with the brain and start putting pressure on the brain. Because the tumor was so aggressive, there was a greater chance the chemotherapy would work because chemo kills fast growing cells. The problem with NF is there are slow growing tumors too and the chemo has no effect on them because of the slow growth."

Doctors wanted the chemo treatments started right away to deal with the aggressive tumors. The process began in August.

"She had her port put in her chest during the morning and just after she woke up after surgery, she was put in a wheelchair and sent over to the cancer center and got her first round of treatments that same day," Sue said.

Belle, who has not had to spend the night at the hospital, is now on a three-month MRI cycle. It was during the most recent one where the family received some good news.

"She had the first MRI in October since she started the treatments and it showed that the tumor was shrinking," said Sue, showing where Belle got her smile from. "Her vision is improving somewhat, too. She still rubs her eyes, but her vision is getting better."

After hearing the good news in October the family threw a party for their pride and joy.

"We found out on Oct. 22 and decided to have a party and invited friends and family over," Sue said. "It really was encouraging news and a bit surprising."

The doctors told Sue and Mike that Belle's tumors were more aggressive than they've seen in other patients. "They said their goal was to just keep it stable," Sue said. "So to find out it was actually shrinking was wonderful news."

Belle is greeted in the living room by her dog, whose happy to see her. Actually, the dog is happy to see anyone. Happy must be a family trait. Belle crawls over and gives her dog a hug. Then she asks mom if she can have some candy. Even when the answer comes back "no," Belle still smiles.

Only 5 percent of people with NF1 will get tumors on the brain. And even with the "wonderful news" Belle is just beginning her long battle.

"She has a port, which she calls her bubble, and she is on weekly chemo treatments at U-M," Sue says. "She goes every Tuesday and gets two types of chemo. She also gets

What is NF?

NF stands for Neurofibromatosis, a term that encompasses at least two distinct, hereditary disorders caused by abnormality in a gene.

Neurofibromatosis type 1 (NF1) is the more common disorder, affecting about 1 in 4,000 people throughout the world. NF1 is characterized by developmental changes in the nervous system, skin, bones, and other tissues. Its most distinctive features are multiple benign, soft tumors called neurofibromas and patches of skin pigmentation called café-au-lait spots. NF1 can also affect nerves throughout the body, including in the brain and spinal cord.

Neurofibromatosis type 2 (NF2) affects about 1 in 40,000 people and is characterized by the appearance of tumors of the hearing and balance nerve, called vestibular schwannomas, as well as other tumors of the nervous system.

Both NF1 and NF2 are genetically determined disorders, meaning all affected members of a family have the same form of NF.

Schwannomatosis is a rare form of NF that has only recently been recognized and appears to affect around 1 in 40,000 individuals. It is less well understood than NF1 and NF2, and features may vary greatly between patients.

How do I know I have it?

While NF1 has many features, the appearance of multiple flat, brown skin spots called café-au-lait spots is the most common sign. Café-au-lait spots are named from the French term "coffee with milk" because of their coloring, which is typically at least a shade darker than the general pigmentation of the skin. The spots commonly appear in the first few months of life and may continue to increase in number for several years. They are harmless and easily mistaken as mere "birthmarks." Indeed, anyone can have one or two café-au-lait spots without having NF1, their appearance only suggests the possibility of NF1.

Because people with NF1 often have multiple café-au-lait spots, the disorder should be suspected in someone with six or more spots, at least five millimeters in size before puberty and 15 millimeters in size after puberty. There is no relationship between the number of café-au-lait spots and the severity and prognosis of the disorder in a person.

What should I look for?

The presence of café-au-lait spots is one criterion for the diagnosis, but at least two features of the disorder need to be present to confirm the condition. Through an extensive physical examination and in some rare cases tests such as biopsies, X-rays, or additional medical tests, a doctor will look for two or more of the following features:

- Six or more café-au-lait spots measuring at least 5 mm in size before puberty and 15 mm in size after puberty
- Two or more neurofibromas or one plexiform neurofibroma.
- Freckles in the axilla (under the arms) or groins
- Lisch nodules on the iris of the eye
- Optic glioma
- Specific skeletal abnormalities such as tibial dysplasia (bowing of shin bone) and abnormality of the orbit

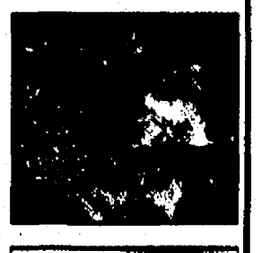
LOVING HOMES NEEDED

STORM: Storm is a whirlwind! He's a 6 month old Australian Cattle Dog/Australian Shepherd mix with one blue eye and one brown eye! Storm knows the command 'sit' and is a very frisky guy. He needs to be in a home were the children are aged 12 and up. He's here because he was not good with the younger kids in his previous household. Perhaps he tried to herd them!

ANTIGONE: She's a DIAMOND in the RUFF!!! Anitgone (pronounced Ann Tig a nee) wants to be gone from here! She's a very dear gal, 12 years old and came here as a stray. For being a senior, she's very energetic and loves to go for walks and to get attention. Antigone is a BUSY BEE I'm a naturally playful, curious, and trusting canine. Take me for a big walk every day; give me something to do. After my job's done, I'll curl up in front of the fire with you in the evenings. I'm a dog on a mission to please you and myself.



SARAH: Just look at this gorgeous gal! Sarah is a 2 year old dilute Torti with a cute little tan stripe on her nose. Sarah was brought in because her family had a new baby and she was feeling a bit jealous and displaced. She would do best in a household without small children. Sarah is a laid back girl, who was happy to get attention and pets. Come see this beauty - she is ready to find a new family today!

AN EAGLE EYE VIEW

Eagles come up with strong fall season finishes

Paid Advertisement

Eastern Michigan University athletics teams and student-athletes enjoyed an outstanding 2007 fall semester.

The EMU men's cross country team won the 2007 Mid-American Conference men's cross country title, its third consecutive and 13th in school history. EMU junior Josh Perrin became the 12th EMU individual and 16th in history to win the individual title. Teammate Josh Karanja was third in the race. Head cross country coach John Goodridge was named Coach of the Year. Perrin, Karanja and David Brent were all named first-team All-MAC and Curtis Vollmar and Kyle Mena were second-team All-MAC. In addition, Karanja, Brent and Wade Wines were selected Academic All-MAC.

Karanja went on to finish seventh in the NCAA Great Lakes Regional to earn a spot as an individual runner in the NCAA Championship.

Head coach Sandy Wagner's EMU women's golf team won two team titles during the 2007 fall season. The Eagles won the championship at the NIU Brickyard Invitational and also the Shootout at the Legends. In addition, golfer Stephany Fleet won medalist honors at the Wolverine Invitational.

EMU student-athletes came up with six NCAA CoSIDA ESPN the Magazine Academic All-District honors in the fall of 2007. Soccer player Sara Schiffbauer (4.00) was named first-team Academic All-District while volleyball player Jill Wolosiansky (4.00), football players Eric Young and Lyle Garrison were second-team choices and volleyball's Kate Sulewski and soccer's Lindsay Hill were third-team Academic All-District picks.

EMU had three athletes earn Mid-American Conference weekly scholar-athlete awards. The award is given to one male and one female from the entire conference, regardless of sport. EMU's 2007 fall winners were: football quarterback Andy Schmitt (Sept. 27), and women's volleyball players Becky Reenders (Sept. 20) and Kate Sulewski (Oct. 11).

Head coach Kim Berrington's EMU women's volleyball team won games in the first two rounds of the MAC Tournament, including an upset of No. 2 seed Western Michigan in the quarterfinal round, advancing to the semifinals where they lost to Miami.

Head coach Bruce Cunningham's EMU men's golf team also enjoyed some success of its own in the fall, recording a fourth and two fifth-place finishes in top tournaments. In addition, senior Graham Hill was named to the 2008 Canadian National Amateur Golf Team.

Head coach Scott Hall's women's soccer team qualified for the MAC Tournament before losing a heartbreaker in the first round.

The football team then added its own fireworks to the completion of the 2007 season.

Head coach Jeff Genyk's football Eagles traveled to Mount Pleasant Friday, Nov. 16, and came away with a stunning 48-45 win over MAC West Division champion Central Michigan. That victory gave the Eagles possession of the Michigan MAC Trophy, sponsored by the state of Michigan Sports Hall of Fame and awarded annually to the Michigan MAC school, Eastern, western or Central Michigan with the best record in head-to-head competition. EMU defeated both CMU and WMU this year for a 2-0 mark while Central defeated WMU for a 1-1 record and Western went winless at 0-2.

BELLE

blood draws to make sure her counts are OK in order to get the chemo. We are at the hospital around 9 a.m. and are there until around 4 p.m."

Belle faces a year and half of treatments and won't be finished until February 2009. She is on a four-week cycle where she is on for four weeks and off for two weeks. But during those "off" two weeks she has other doctor appointments and check-ups.

Sue, who works part-time as an office manager at Gretchen's House Child Care Center in Ann Arbor, is always with Belle on Tuesdays. Usually, Mike's parents are with her and provide much needed and much appreciated support.

The chemo, of course, does have it's side effects. It is affecting Belle's motor skills and her energy levels are down.

"It affects her toes and her hands," Sue says. "And you can't really tell, but she's lost about half of her hair. It used to be so thick and full. Now it's very thin and she looses more and more each week."

Amazingly, Belle goes to school the next day after treatments.

"The first 10 weeks she went through an induction cycle and that was the worst," Sue said. "She missed a lot of school then and had no energy. Since then she hasn't missed much of school outside of Tuesdays."

And Belle loves going to school and being with her friends.

"Belle is a beautiful little girl who spends a lot of time singing and dancing in the classroom," said Kimberly Gillow, Belle's first-grade teacher at Cornerstone. "She has a passion for music."

Gillow said the children in her class are aware of what Belle is going through and that the school nurse presented the information to them in a way that was developmentally appropriate.

"The children in our room are extra careful about hand washing to help prevent the spread of germs and they are happy to comfort Belle if she's not feeling well," Gillow said. "The children in our class accept their friend, Belle, for exactly who she is... a happy girl with a wonderful sense of humor who is always willing to share a song."

Belle also is happy to share how strong she is, especially with her mother.

"When we first started going for chemo there were times she said she didn't want to go," Sue says. "She would get upset about having to go. But now she is used to it. She really is a strong person, much stronger than I am. It's been very hard and stressful on me. There are days I think I am losing my mind. But I know I have to be strong for her."

Belle is getting "used to it" because it's become a part of her weekly routine. Little girls aren't supposed to be getting used to this kind of thing. But Belle is smart enough to understand that she has to get used to it.

"She knows she is getting better and I think that's helping her deal with it," says Mike, 38, who works full-time as a sheet-metal worker. "And she knows she needs to go to get better."

Keeping a close eye on Belle is now part of Mike and Sue's routine.

NF tumors aren't something you grow out of or go away with time. Belle will always have the tumors. There is a chance she will be fine for three years, or even forever, but there also is a chance she will have to go through this again. Since the tumors will always be there, she will always have to be closely monitored.

Tuesdays at the hospital are for patients with brain tumors and Mike and Sue have nothing but high praise for the "great people at the University of Michigan Medical Center."

"They really try and make it as happy as they can for the kids," Sue says. "They met with the teachers at her school and talked about what they should look for. They've been very supportive, very understanding and very caring. The treatment center tries to make it a fun experience. So she can be getting treatments while she is making a craft or singing a song."

Sue says she sees the same people on Tuesdays bringing their children in for treatment and has gotten to be friends with a lot of them. These friendships allow the parents to share experiences and gain knowledge because they are all going through similar things.

Over on a nearby table there are pictures of Belle. In front of the photos is "Isabelle" spelled out in blocks. In each picture, Isabelle is smiling. Maybe she's too young to realize that what she's going through really isn't fair. Little girls aren't supposed to be spending their Tuesdays getting chemo treatments.

But Belle is brave. She is happy. And someday she will learn just how special she is. That's the day she will learn why everyone else around her is also smiling.

From Belle's Journal

Today was the second week of my first four-week cycle. I did a wonderful job getting my port accessed! My regular nurse, Miss Shelia, down at the blood draw was not there, but I still did great! I am getting to be a pro at this. It was a VERY busy day upstairs in the infusion center. They usually have 18 patients and today they had 38. It was fun to see so many friends and do a Thanksgiving craft. My regular nurse upstairs, Marsha, was able to get my treatment going and finally I could relax in a comfortable chair. I also gained a pound back, I was eating like crazy last week. My doctor agreed to give me my Vincristine treatment back this week, but only half a dose. It was really making my hands and feet not being able to work very well. We may have to stop it all together this cycle if things still aren't better this week. The best news ever is that I didn't even cry, "not a single tear," when the butterfly flew away this week. I was so happy, I jumped up and down. After treatment we went to Red Robin for lunch with Nonnie and Poppie.

The Driving Force Behind Saint Joseph Mercy Saline Hospital

I am happy to support St. Joe's - Saline because...

"The convenience of having this facility so near is very valuable."
Robert and JoAnn Raham ~ Saline

"The Hospital has been such a great caregiver for us."
Edward and Diane Makielski ~ Ypsilanti

"We love the friendly faces at St. Joe's Saline."
Dr. & Mrs. James R. Bower ~ Saline

Thank you, Saline Flowerland, for joining the Driving Force!

For so many of us, the holiday season is a time to give thanks. We are grateful for the community's support and hope that you will help us celebrate by making a gift to our Renewal Campaign today. With a gift of $48 or more - a dollar for every year the hospital has made a difference in our community - you will help fund the construction of the new Community Health Pavilion.

A special thank you to our partners listed below for joining the Driving Force.
St. Joe's - Saline wishes everyone in our community a happy and healthy holiday.

REMARKABLE MEDICINE. REMARKABLE CARE.

Eclectic Eckland

Tileworkx specializes in stone, glass art

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Scott Eckland takes some sand, a few gallons of compressed air, a great idea and throws it all at a piece of tile. The result? An eclectic and unique piece of art.

Eckland – owner of Chelsea Tileworkx and Chelsea Signs.com – got into the tile art business almost by accident.

"We started working with tile a few years ago as kind of a joke," he says. "A friend had a tile with a cute little saying about wine. It had broken in half and she epoxied it together. I went back to the shop and made a new tile and gave it to her for Christmas – and the rest is history."

Eckland's Chelsea Tileworkx business specializes in etching stone, glass, and tile with artwork, phrases and sayings to create one-of-a-kind gifts or mementoes.

On file

Who: Scott Eckland

What: Tile artist, sign artist, graphic design, Web design.

Companies: Chelsea Tileworkx and Chelsea Signs.

Where: 107 S. Main Street, Suite B, Chelsea.

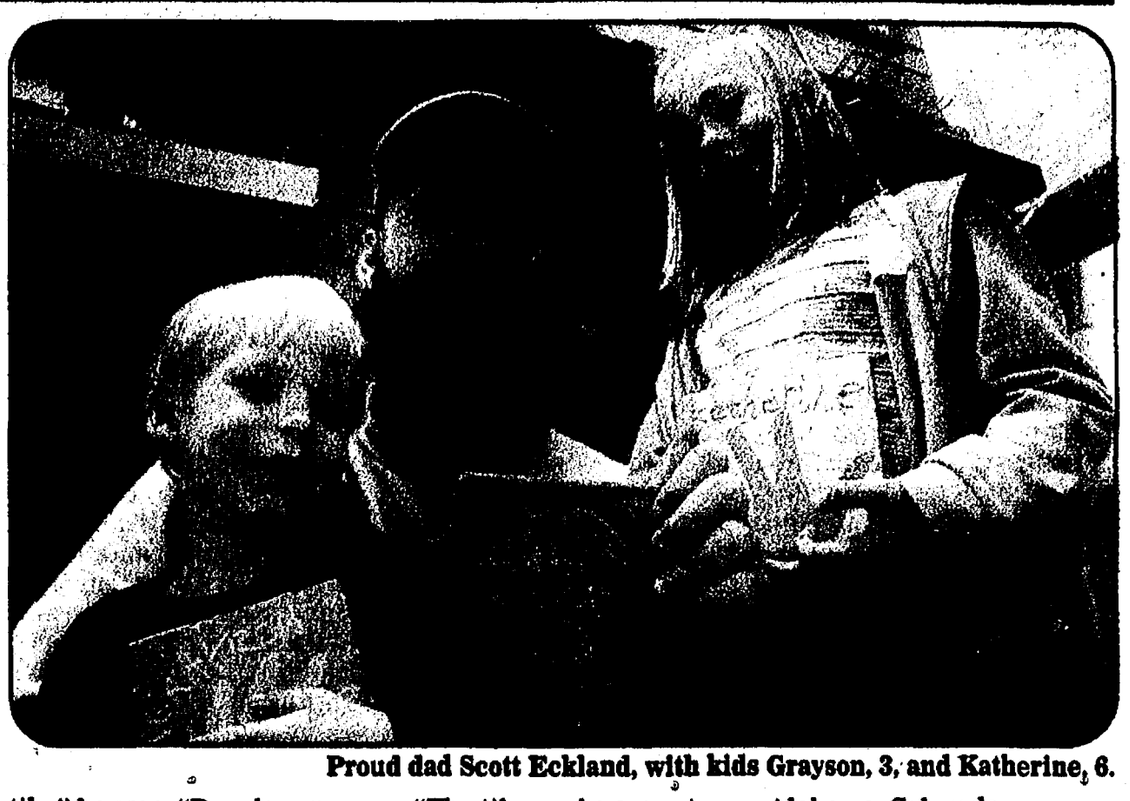
Exhibits: Tiles are on display and for sale at The Downstairs Gallery, 105-1/2 S. Main St. in Chelsea.

On the Web: www.chelseatileworkx.com and www.chelseasigns.com.

The tiles also make unique fund-raising ideas for schools and organizations, corporate gifts, and customized gifts for weddings, births, anniversaries, retirements, house-warming gifts, pet mementoes and more. Tiles can be used as kitchen trivets, hot plates and coasters, displayed on stands available through the online store, or Eckland will drill holes so they can be hung on the wall.

His tile creations are on exhibit in the new Downstairs Gallery at 105-1/2 S. Main Street in Chelsea. Several dozen more tile designs are available in an online gallery at chelseatileworkx.com where visitors can select from dozens of designs, quotes and sayings.

"We can also customize a tile," he says. "Popular ones have been the child handprint tiles. I can make an outline of the child's hand, take the child's handwritten name and etch this into a tile. We've created these for Christmas gifts as well as all the gift-giving holidays."



Proud dad Scott Eckland, with kids Grayson, 3, and Katherine, 6.

"The tiles make a great conversation piece. We've got some great quotes and artwork on our tiles. We can take almost any phrase or artwork and etch it into a tile."

The Web site has drawn visitors from as far away as Alabama, Colorado, Washington, Arizona, Texas, Illinois, Iowa, and California.

"We received a call from a government office in California wanting to etch a

Robert Allen Davis
Chelsea

"Bob" to most people, "B.D." to his adoring wife of 37 years Katy, died Nov. 10, 2007 at home peacefully surrounded by his loving family, after a long and exhausting battle with lymphoma. He was 61.

He was born in Ottawa, Ohio June 2, 1946, the son of Abraham and Rosemary Davis (Uffenorde). He and his sister, Judy Henn (Ken) grew up in Cincinnati, and he graduated from Oak Hill High School in 1964. He was awarded a bachelor of science in physics and math from Eastern Kentucky University in 1969. On Sept. 5, 1970 , he married Kathleen Mary (Williams) Davis. She survives along with three amazing children: Kimberly Christine Davis of Chelsea, Robert William Davis (Tressie) of Chelsea, and Sean William Davis (Janelle) of Dublin, Calif. And his six grandchildren who were the light of his life, especially in the last few months: Dominic (13), Grace (6), Riley (5), Dean (2), Alex (2), and the littlest angel – Robert Allen Davis -II (4 months).

He founded Pilot Industries, Inc. in 1977 and grew the company from one employee to 3,000 employees and 10 plants worldwide over 25 years. He served on the Board of Trustees of Chelsea Hospital, eventually rising to Chairman. He was a man of the utmost honor, and impeccable integrity. He worked 16 hours a day for many years, but never once missed any of his children's activities. He loved to fish, taking his children on many fondly remembered fishing adventures in Canada. And he had an absolute passion for basketball. He played in several leagues up until the time of his illness and received great satisfaction from the competition as well as the camaraderie of his fellow players. He was a 6'6" "phenom" at 60 years of age, with a sweet little hook shot that nobody could stop.

Bob was a gentle and tender man, loved by everyone who knew him, and so amazingly unique. In a book by Ayn Rand, someone asks, "Who is John Galt?" This was John Galt, Bob Davis a man who moved the motor of the world and celebrated excellence in all around him. To everyone he met, he was a mentor, a life coach, a friend and an inspiration. He will be so incredibly missed.

Wherever his new adventure takes him, he will be fishing, playing basketball, and hunting for stray golf balls with his pants rolled up. Somewhere he is smiling and caring for us all.

David Mathew Milliken
Dexter

David Mathew Milliken of Dexter died Nov. 12, 2007 in Chicago. He was 27.

Survivors include his children; David Jr. & Dominick, Fiancé; Jamie Williams, Tara Boggs the mother of his kids, parents; Earl (Paula Reed) Milliken & Linda Pustay, siblings; Danielle (Ron) Devine, Earl Milliken Jr. & Pat McKillen dear friends; Cooter, Justin, Pat, Danny, Jimmy, Steven and many more. He also survived by many aunts, uncle, nieces and nephews.

A Funeral Service was held last Saturday at Hosmer-Muehlig Funeral Chapel, Carl Welser Officiating. Burial followed at Chase Township Cemetery. GO BLUE!

William Robert Pantolin of Manchester

The infant son of Jan E. and Katherine L. (Heuser) Pantolin was stillborn on Nov. 13, 2007.

He is survived by his parents; sisters Grace L. and twin sister Elizabeth J. Pantolin; grandmother Evelyn "Beth" Heuser of Manchester, grandparents Erika Pantolin of Sterling Heights, and Robert F. Pantolin of Eustis, Fla.; along with many aunts, uncles and cousins.

William was preceded in death by his grandfather, William A. Heuser and great-grandfather Guenther Bahl. A Memorial service will be held Saturday, November 24, 2007 at 11 a.m. at the Historic Zion Lutheran Church with Pastor Doris Sparks officiating.

Expressions of sympathy may be made to Perinatal Hospice of Washtenaw County. Arrangements are by the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home.

John James Stinehelfer
Formerly of Chelsea

John James Stinehelfer died Nov. 12, 2007 at Gritman Medical Center in Moscow, Idaho, after a prolonged illness. He is preceded in death by his mother Betty Stinehelfer, father Ralph J. Stinehelfer and brother-in-law Don G. Passow. Surviving are his two children, son Ralph W. Stinehelfer of Atlanta and daughter Amy J. Stinehelfer of Dundee. Also surviving are his three siblings, Wes Stinehelfer of Brandenton, Fla.; Debra Jo Passow of Hauser, Idaho; and Dana R. (Mike) Budreau of Adams Run, SC. As well as many nieces and nephews he loved.

Born Oct. 22, 1954 in Jackson, he spent his childhood and teenage years growing up in Chelsea. After attending Faithway Baptist College, he moved to northern Idaho, where he found a job with Safeway Stores in Moscow, while making a home in smaller Troy. He quickly became an avid hunter and outdoorsman, falling in love with the lifestyle that the terrain and mountains of north Idaho had to offer. Favorite pastimes included camping with friends and family around the region, favoring the Elk River area. As well as visiting the area's National parks. John loved mostly the community small Troy had to offer. Known simply as "Safeway John," he is remembered by his friends for always being there to lend a helping hand wherever and whenever it was needed.

Burial services for John will take place in Chelsea, where he will be interred in a family cemetery. Memorials may be made to Troy Ambulance, 517 S. Main St., Troy, ID, 83871.

Special thanks

The Family of Alan Dalton wishes to thank everyone in the community and all of our friends and neighbors for the prayers, thoughts and kind acts during our time of loss.

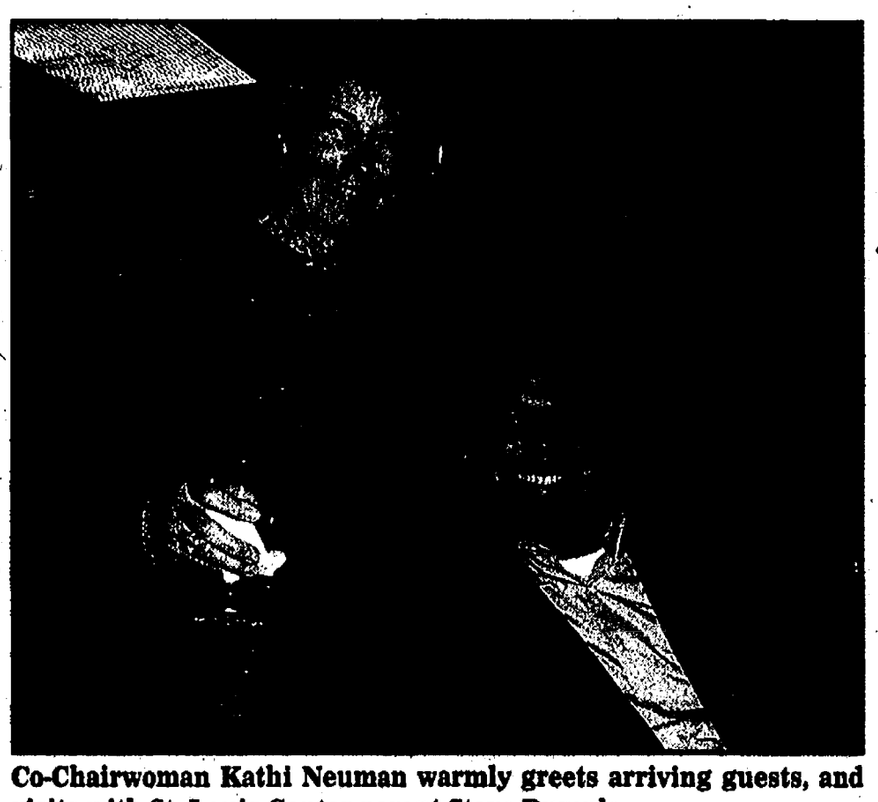
Community shows its support for St. Louis Center

By Joseph Yekulis
Guest Writer

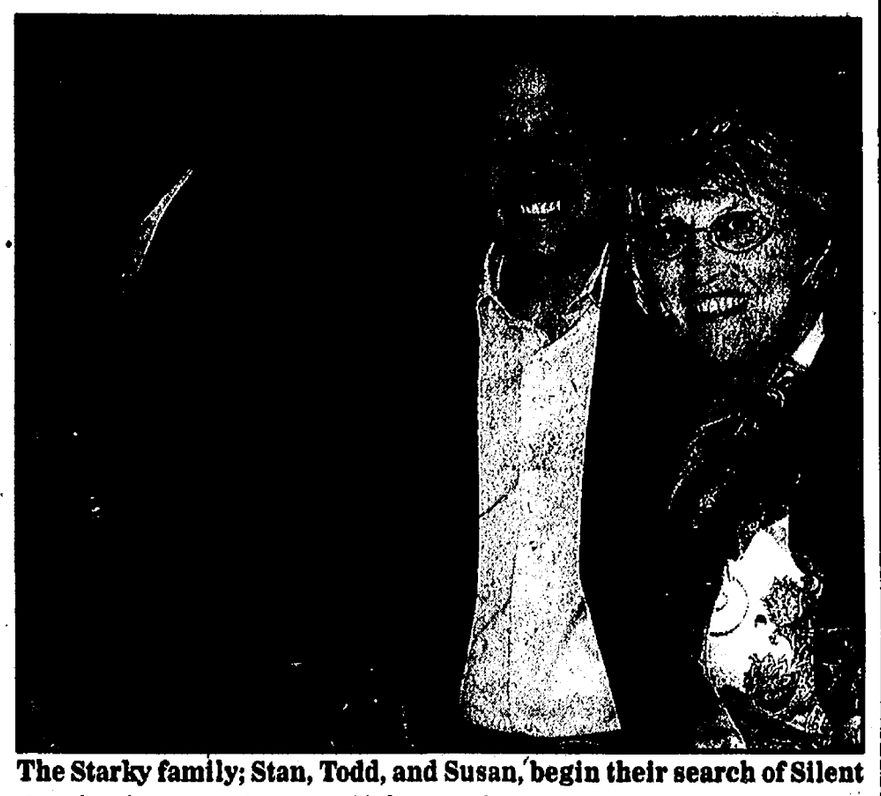
Once again, St. Louis Center's 20th annual Dinner Auction benefited from a tremendous amount of community support, not only from the local community, but also from throughout Southeastern Michigan. Supporters were present from as far away as Macomb Twp. and Grosse Pointe, and several Servants of Charity priests came from as far away as India and Italy to attend this special event as a wrap-up to their week long Provincial meetings in Chelsea.

The event was once again a sell-out, and Chelsea Community Hospital did a wonderful job of expanding their capacity to meet the demand for tickets for this exciting event. This is one of the most important fundraising events of the year for St. Louis Center, and Chelsea Community Hospital generously donates the food and staff to support St. Louis Center and its operations. An eleven-member committee works with St. Louis Center staff for six months to plan the event and gather donations, and this year's co-chairs were Kathi Neuman and Gloria Miller. According to administrator, Fr. Joseph Rinaldo, S.C., "This is a very special event that we look forward to all year long. We're grateful to everyone who contributes their time and talents to make this event a success, and the turnout shows that our community really cares about our special needs residents".

The Michigan Knights of Columbus were represented by State Deputy Thomas Wegener and George Mallison, Vice-Supreme Master of the 4th Degree, who presented Fr. Rinaldo with a check for $20,000. The event itself netted over $42,000 for the Center.

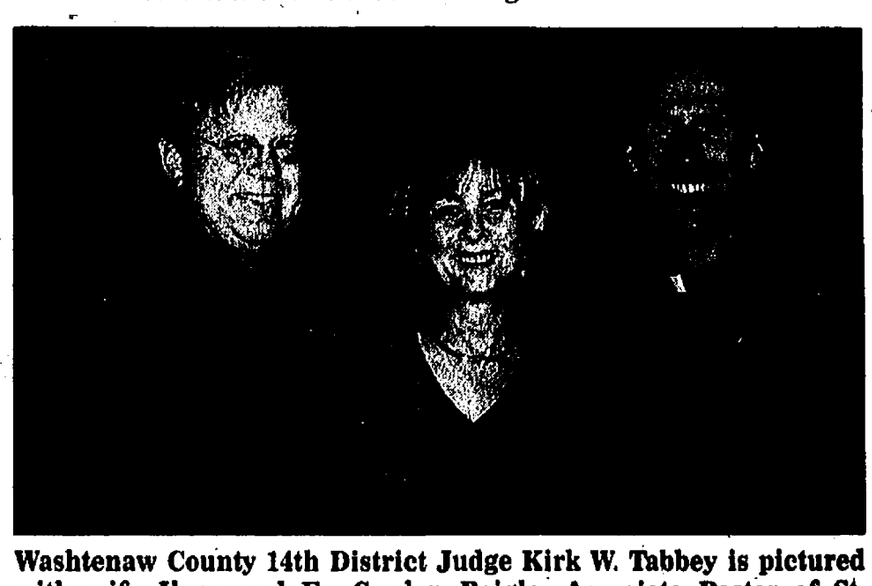


Co-Chairwoman Kathi Neuman warmly greets arriving guests, and visits with St. Louis Center parent Steve Rumple.



The Starky family; Stan, Todd, and Susan, begin their search of Silent Auction items at the start of the evening.

Congressman Tim Walberg (R-7th District) and wife Susan, greet Gene DeRossett, State Director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, to share thoughts on Federal issues.



Washtenaw County 14th District Judge Kirk W. Tabbey is pictured with wife Ilona and Fr. Gordon Reigle, Associate Pastor of St. Andrew's Catholic Church in Saline.

ECKLAND

tile for an employee that was retiring," Eckland says. "They found us on Google."

Eckland – who was recently selected as one of Heritage Newspaper's "One to Watch: 20 under 40" business owners in Southeast Michigan – first started selling the tiles online. Then he and a group of artists and artisans found a place on Main Street for the Downstairs Gallery. "It was a great location on Main and very nice space inside," he says.

The art gallery is a co-operative venture, where Eckland's tiles are joined by John Mitchell's paintings, Janet Alford's watercolors, Joan Kelly's pottery and Marsy Doan's beadwork.

Eckland designed the gallery's logo and brand, and its exterior sign. Working full time with chelseasigns.com makes him somewhat of a silent partner in the gallery, but he contributes by doing marketing ads and promotions, website design and signs for the gallery.

Art is in Eckland's genes. Both grandparents were painters and artists; his uncle is a master sign craftsman and his cousin has run neon sign shops, embroidery shops and sign shops.

As a boy, the Montana native spent summers with his grandparents in New Mexico, and would take scraps of wood from his grandfather's cabinetmaking shop "to build all kinds of stuff. I would also get those big dried gourds and carve artwork into them."

Eckland got his artistic feet wet right out of high school, bending neon tubes at his cousin's sign company in Hagerman, New Mexico.

Then he and his wife Amy – the pair met when they were both students at the University of Kentucky — moved to Chicago where Eckland worked in the production department of a sign shop and ended up running the custom sign department.

From there he had a few jobs in graphic design studios and was one of two designers in the late 90s at Shar Music Company, producing catalogues, advertisements as well as promotional campaigns for various sales and products.

"That was my last full time gig. I quit my job on a Friday, and my daughter was born on Saturday," he says. "We opened up shop in downtown Chelsea and we've been busy ever since. That was the beginning of chelseasigns.com.

"I had enough freelance clients to grow the business and that's just what we've done. I've done freelance work for several trade show companies and work exclusively with one doing all of the trade show design work they need. We've been able to work on some large projects for major automotive companies as well as smaller businesses."

Although Amy works as an environmental specialist in Ann Arbor, she also helps with the business. "She really enjoys helping with the tiles and helps out at the shop," Eckland says. As the parents of two small children — Katherine, 6, and Grayson, 3, the couple keeps their small shop kid-friendly, he says.

Eckland, whose company is a Washtenaw County Waste Knot Partner, believes in "being green" and donates extra paper and scraps of vinyl to area preschools and art programs, in addition to recycling cardboard and white papers.

Signs he designed and created are all over Chelsea – the Chelsea House Victorian Inn, Gourmet Chocolate Café, Cranesbill Books, Winans Jewelry, Chelsea Christian Fellowship Church, River Gallery, Vogel's and Foster's and more.

Vehicle and window lettering is another talent, and his work adorns the windows of The Common Grill, Chelsea Village Hair Studio, Chelsea Gallery, Chelsea River Gallery, The Potting Shed, and is seen on the awning for The Middle Bead. He designed and produced the walking map on the side of the Chelsea Market downtown as well as the brochure designs for the Steps Up program.

He created signage for SummerFest and the Chelsea Hometown Holiday weekend, as well as many of the street pole banners in the downtown area.

"For the past two years we've handled all of the marketing for SummerFest — radio, print ads and brochures as well as sign design and production," he says. "It's been a great gig and it's fun to be involved in a community event like this."

Eckland has donated his services to the Chelsea Center for the Arts, Chelsea United Way, Faith in Action and other local organizations.

He also donated the website design for the Chelsea Community Fair.

"Growing up in Montana we were always involved in the fair and 4-H," he says. "I wanted to help out the fair with a successful web presence to promote the fair and to give back a little to 4-H."

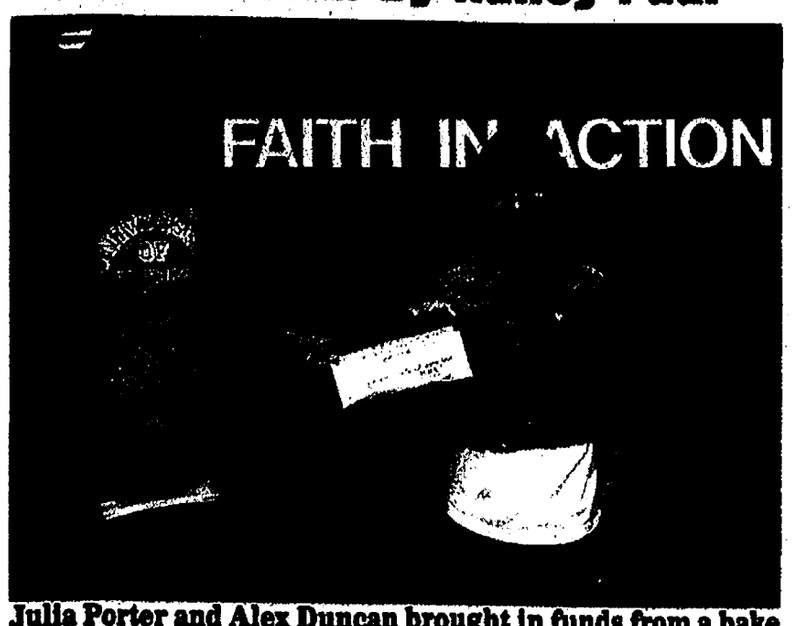
Guest Column: By Nancy Paul



Julia Porter and Alex Duncan brought in funds from a bake sale they held in their neighborhood to help Faith in Action.

United Way helps area through Faith in Action

So many groups have called to help us out here at Faith in Action for Thanksgiving and Christmas that we can hardly keep track.

Scout troops have given us funds for holiday food. Chelsea Hospital will give us their extra turkeys. KFC is now giving us chicken while the New Chelsea Market and Polly's give us their day old baked goods to pass along. A religious education class has had a bake sale and given us the proceeds.

Nancy Paul

Julia Porter and Alex Duncan raised funds in their own neighborhood. The high school honor society had a food drive. Reinhart Realtors has been collecting coats in their annual coat drive. TCF is collecting laundry soap.

Many church groups and individual families have called offering to "adopt" a family for Christmas presents. I'm almost afraid to begin the listing for fear of leaving someone out. The generosity of Chelsea and Dexter for their struggling neighbors is truly overwhelming and we'd like to thank you all as we head into our busiest time of the year.

United Way is also looking for your support, and it's important to note that your support of United Way goes a long way toward the support of Faith in Action throughout the year. As the primary recipient of funds that also go to many other community groups, Faith in Action will depend on these funds to help provide the infrastructure of the whole agency to help families year round with emergencies such as utility shut-off prevention, emergency food, eviction prevention, health care through HOPE Clinic, clothing, supplying durable medical equipment, counseling, preschool support, and many other examples of providing the safety net so needed in these times.

While we daily take care of immediate needs, we are also working to address deeper needs of the communities by forming an Affordable Housing Task Force that is trying to find ways to provide housing for lower income people. A survey we did this summer gave us clear evidence that on average, the families we have helped here at FIA spend 53 percent of their gross income on housing, while federal guidelines recommend that you should spend a maximum of 30 percent. By becoming a member of the Washtenaw Housing Alliance, Faith in Action is bringing attention to the housing needs of western Washtenaw County.

Another thing we are doing is opening the first "satellite food pantry/office" of FIA in Dexter, whose needy families we have always served but who have to come to our building in Chelsea for that help. We will now have an easier way for them to get to us and an easier way for food donors in Dexter to help us keep the pantry stocked. While we will be open a limited number of hours in Dexter, we hope to be better poised to help.

We will continue to accept 500 donations monthly to provide nearly 200 families monthly with clothes and household items. Our volunteers will clock an average of 650 hours each month, and sometimes we will even have workers whose court ordered community service will help them make amends when they have broken a law.

As one example of what we have seen, the number of food orders requested has more than doubled in the past three years, now averaging around 45-50 each month. People who have lost jobs, and sometimes their homes, have needed help for the first time in their lives. There are even people who have been donors in the past but whose circumstances have changed.

As Nadine used to say to people when it was hard for them to ask for help, "sometimes you're a passer and sometimes you're a receiver, and it can be much harder to be a receiver than a passer." We know that it is not easy to ask for help. Nearly 500 donations monthly provide nearly 200 families monthly with clothes and household items. Our volunteers clock an average of 650 hours each month, and sometimes we have workers whose court ordered community service helps make amends when they have broken a law.

It is a blessing to sit at the middle of this relationship of caring that happens here in Chelsea and Dexter. If you or a friend or neighbor needs help, please know that we can provide it. If you, however, can afford to extend a helping hand, please be generous in your support of United Way.

Investing in...
Washtenaw County's future.

Detroit Edison is planning more than $30 million in upgrades to Washtenaw County's electrical system. Work has already begun. Once completed, it will provide improved reliability for years to come. We'll be:

- Repairing or replacing hundreds of transformers, fuses, lightning arresters and other pieces of equipment.
- Trimming thousands of trees to reduce power outages.
- Replacing or reconductoring miles of overhead power lines.
- Inspecting thousands of utility poles to identify and correct potential problems.
- Rebalancing Washtenaw County's electrical system to prevent overloaded electrical circuits.

This is all a part of our ongoing commitment to deliver the energy our customers need, when they need it — today, tomorrow and into the future.

November is National Hospice Month.

The team at Hospice of Michigan. All year long, they are the quiet heroes. They care for the terminally ill, and ease the fear and loss that families are feeling. They also bring with them the resources, experience and knowledge of Michigan's largest hospice to help patients die peacefully and with dignity.

During National Hospice Month, we'd like to recognize the professionals at Hospice of Michigan who serve the Ann Arbor community. This month, and every month, they have our undying gratitude.

Pumpkin pie, Snickers and Mountain Dew

It's that time of year, again.

Yes, the time of year to inhale everything and anything food-wise during Thanksgiving.

Why do I do it?

I don't know.

I spend all year trying to watch what I eat and drink, along with working out at least three times a week. But, something comes over me during the Thanksgiving holiday. Coupled with the two-day high school football state finals, of which I've been attending for the past 20 years, the Thanksgiving holiday is a gorge-fest to top all gorge-fests, at least in my strange, little world.

While I complain about my lack of will power this time of year, I'm thankful that I have family and friends to enjoy the holiday season with. I'm also thankful said family and friends each provide enough pumpkin pie for me to stuff my face with for the rest of the year.

Anyhow, enough of my food-related issues. As a sports writer in these parts, I'm thankful for many things and for many people.

I'm thankful for my extended eyes. Jerry, Mary, Burrill and Alice, you guys are the best. I've always told anyone who'd listen that photos are the most important part of my sports section. I'm so appreciative that I have such talented and dedicated photographers to work with each week. Also, to the parents and community members out there who send in pictures each week, thanks to you, too. Take a bow Jean, Keith, Judy, Karen and all the others who provide photos. Your work is valued.

I'm thankful for the professionalism and accessibility of Chelsea and Dexter athletic directors Wayne Welton and John Robinson, respectively. Without their help, my job would be impossible. Also, thank you to AD secretaries Sue Myers and Linda Munson – who continue to amaze me with their split-second knowledge and lightning quick responses to my seemingly daily questions. How do they do it? I'm waiting for the day, and I know it's coming, when they call me with the answer, before I even know the question.

To all the coaches who take the time each week to help with results and stats, thank you. Without your assistance there would be no sports section.

Bulldogs earn All-SEC honors

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Both Chelsea and Dexter were well represented on this year's All-Southeastern Conference White Division football team.

For the Bulldogs (11-1), who finished the regular season unbeaten and ranked No. 1 in the state in Division 3, senior Jeff Adams (5-10, 165) was named All-SEC White Division first team quarterback.

At running back, sophomore Nick Hill (5-9, 175) was selected first team, as well for Chelsea, which lost in the state regional final to East Lansing 24-16.

Named to the first tam at receiver was Bulldog senior Chris Schmelz (5-10, 160).

On the offensive line, Chelsea seniors Matt Johnson (6-1, 210) and Sam Birgy (6-3, 285) were selected to the All-SEC White Division first team.

Making the first team for the Dreadnaughts (3-6) was senior Ryan Kantola (6-2, 200) at receiver.

Up front, senior Pat Farrell (6-1, 215) was selected to the All-SEC White Division first team offensive line.

Senior Adam Umstead (6-0, 180) was named the team's first team kicker.

Selected All-SEC honorable mention on offense were Chelsea senior back Donny Riedel (5-11, 165) and Chelsea senior center Kyle Raymond (5-11, 225), along with Dexter senior quarterback Peter Burgett (6-1, 190) and Dexter senior tight end/running back Chris

Beach Blue falls to Saline

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's Beach Middle School seventh-grade Blue boys' basketball team lost to visiting Saline Gold 21-18 last Thursday.

Logan Brown and Michael Steinhauer led the Bulldogs (0-2) with six points each.

Tony Vermiyle and Kevin Fournier each added two points, while Luke Hollandsworth had one point for Chelsea.

"As a team, we played extremely well versus a talented Saline team," said Chelsea coach Mike Bareis. "Logan Brown had a great game at both ends of the court. Tony Vermiyle and Adrian Schuh played outstanding perimeter defense."

To open the season, Beach lost to host Adrian Blue 17-14 Nov. 13.

Fournier paced the Bulldogs with 11 points.

Hollandsworth chipped in two points for Chelsea.

"The team played with outstanding effort on both ends of the court," Bareis said. "Kevin Fournier played a great floor game and Michael Steinhauer and Luke Hollandsworth led the team in rebounding."

Chelsea next travels to Saline Gold for a game Tuesday at 4 p.m.

On Nov. 29, the Bulldogs host rival Dexter Gold at 4 p.m.

Chelsea's seventh-grade Gold boys' basketball team lost to host Saline Blue 26-21 last Thursday.

Scoring for the Bulldogs (0-2) were Alex Maloney, Alex Bielecki, Zach Jones, Zach Rabbitt, Jacob Rhodes and Gibson Stoffer.

"We showed improvement from our first game and that is what matters at this point in the season," said Chelsea coach Corey

Swimming and Diving

Top 10

Chelsea is ninth at state meet

The Chelsea girls' swimming and diving team finished ninth at the Division III state meet last Friday and Saturday at the Holland aquatic Center. Forty-nine schools participated in this year's state championship.

The Bulldogs ended up with 91 points.

Winning the state title was Birmingham Marian with 274 points. East Grand Rapids was second with 258 points, while Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook-Kingswood was third with 197 points. Area teams that also performed well were Milan in sixth place with 147 points and Tecumseh who finished 14th with 54 points.

"It was an absolutely fantastic weekend," said Chelsea coach Dave Jolly. "We worked so hard all season to get to the championships and the hard work paid off. I couldn't be prouder."

The 200 medley relay of freshman Jaclyn Murphy, sophomore Michelle Kellogg, senior Anna Rowland and senior Meghan Bean placed 19th overall in the state.

"These girls worked extremely hard to get to state meet," Jolly said. "They made the qualifieation standard at the conference meet and held it together over two weeks. They fell just a second off the pace. I can't say enough about our seniors. Without their leadership (we) wouldn't have even made it to the state meet."

Jolly said Katlin Cottrell, who was competing in her second state final, had a fan-

To Dexter and Chelsea athletes, your efforts and performances each week are a joy to watch. Thanks for keeping me young.

To Lheesa and Doug, thanks for the smiles and for everything else you do. To Pam and Paul, here's a wave and thanks.

Kathy, Karen and Tonya – you guys rock. The dream is alive and well. Thanks.

Hey, Hayen. Thanks, I think, for providing the daily torture machines, er, I mean, the workout machines for me to grunt and groan on at Anytime Fitness. I'm sure you'll be seeing a lot more of me, literally and figuratively, after the Thanksgiving holiday season.

To the Rich Gas Station staff, thanks for putting up with my Snickers and Mountain Dew addictions. Aren't you lucky your business is right down Old U.S. 12 from our newspaper office? Think how boring your day would be without my witty observations and smiling face each day. And, yes, I still have all of my own teeth, but thanks for asking. Everyone's a comedian...

Thank you to the ladies at Divine Java. You're turkey wraps are the best in the area.

And finally, thanks to Aman at the Dexter Mobil. Since I was the second ever customer at your station (I curse the day I opened the door for that older gentleman) shouldn't I get some sort of discount each time I come in? I mean, I'm sort of like an historical figure, aren't I? I was there when it all began. I was witness to the first dollar exchanging hands and to the first drop of gas expelled from your pumps. Shouldn't that count for something? I didn't think so. Anyway, thanks for your upbeat personality and for your coffee – the best on the planet. Well, at least in my strange, little world.

Happy Thanksgiving, everyone.

tastic meet for Chelsea.

"She placed in both of her individual events," he said.

Cottrell finished 13th in the 200 freestyle with a time of 2:01.06 for the Bulldogs. She came back later in the meet to set her own personal best in the 500 freestyle stopping the clock in 5:23.55 and placing 10th overall.

"Claire Stephens had nothing short of a perfect meet," Jolly said.

Stephens, a junior, earned All-State honors in both of her individual events. She set her personal best time in the 50 freestyle, placing fourth overall in the state. In the 100 butterfly, she also posted an impressive time finishing fifth in the state with a clocking of 1:01.34.

Bulldog freshman diver Lauren Dark continued to impress. After winning the state diving regional meet last week, she set her sights on the state final.

"Never being at a meet of this caliber before was quite daunting, but she kept her composer and placed 15th overall with a score of 290.15 points," Jolly said.

At the regional meet, Dark had her best 11-dive meet of the year. She qualified for the state meet in first place with a score of 311.40 points.

"Our goal for Lauren was to make it in the top 12 and get some valuable experience at such a high competitive level," said Chelsea diving coach Eric Burris. "What a surprise to have an exceptional day and win the event."

Last Friday was preliminary day for the state finals. Dark knew that it was going to be tough but kept her composure.

"We wanted to make the first cut," Burris said. "Having this experience as a freshman will only help the mental aspect in coming years."

Dark finished the first day by making two cuts and sat 16th. The top 16 qualify for the second day and score points for the swim and dive team.

At last Saturday's finals, Dark was the only freshman diver to finish in the top 16 at the state meet.

"What a way to finish a freshman season," Burris said. "We were hoping for the experience of just making it to the state meet. What we received was an education in finishing the event at the highest level. Lauren has a great work ethic and saw what it will take to place at the top end of the state meet. What a great future for the Bulldog diver."

The Chelsea 200 freestyle relay earned All-State honors as freshman Hannah Olsen, Stephens, Bean, and Cottrell finished sixth, with a season best time of 1:43.12.

"Each one of the girls performed so well all weekend," Jolly said. "I was especially impressed with Hannah Olsen. This was by far the most intense competition that she has ever seen. She handled it extremely well."

In the 400 freestyle relay, senior Phoebe Conybeare, Katie McEachern, Stephens and Cottrell placed seventh in 3:47.99 earning All-State honors.

"The coaching staff is so proud of each and every one of the girls," Jolly said. "Our success started at camp in August with five outstanding seniors leading the way and culminated in a ninth-place finish overall at state meet. What more could a coach ask for?"

Knight. "I am proud of these kids and we are only going to get better."

On Nov. 13, host Beach lost to Tecumseh 23-20 in its season opener.

Playing strong, all around games for Chelsea were Craig Centafonti, Maloney, Bielecki, Jones and Rabbitt.

"We had our chances, but the ball just wouldn't drop through the net," Knight said. "Overall, I was pleased with the hard work and hustle they showed. They never gave up and we had a chance and missed a three at the end of the game."

Chelsea next hosts Saline Blue Tuesday at 4 p.m.

On Nov. 29, the Bulldogs visit Dexter Maroon for a contest at 4 p.m.

Chelsea's eighth-grade Gold boys' basketball team defeated host Saline Blue 25-12 last Thursday.

Jake Fischhaber led the Bulldogs (2-0) with 22 points.

Truman Hadley added six points, while Andy Cervany, Adam Burman and Cody Ellyson each scored two points for Beach. Jack McDougall led Chelsea in assists.

"The Bulldog defense smothered the Hornets creating many steals," said Chelsea coach Jason Morris.

To open the season, host Beach defeated Tecumseh 20-16 Nov. 13.

McDougall sparked the Bulldogs with 12 points.

Fischhaber finished with seven points, while Hadley had six points including a couple clutch free throws to seal the victory. David Gonzalez chipped in one point for Chelsea.

The Bulldogs next host Saline Blue Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

On Nov. 29, Chelsea travels to rival Dexter Maroon for a contest at 5:30 p.m.

Chelsea's eighth-grade Blue boys' basketball team lost to visiting Saline Gold 32-16 last Thursday.

Jake Steinhauer led the Bulldogs (1-1) with eight points.

Nick Young, Tanner Starkey and Dominic Davis each netted four points for Beach. James Alexander and Max Giller each had three points, while Noah Crowder and Jarred Scheese each had two points apiece.

"We did not have the energy we needed consistently throughout the game," Morris said. "We hope to play them much better the next time around."

To begin the year, visiting Chelsea beat Adrian Blue 19-12 Nov. 13.

Scheese led the Bulldogs with 11 points.

Steinhauer added seven points, while Ryan Koenn, Max Giller, Noah Crowder and Tanner Starkey each had two points for Beach.

Cody Barber was tops for Chelsea in assists.

"I thought we really picked up our game and controlled the tempo in the fourth quarter," Morris said.

The Bulldogs next travel to Saline Gold for a game Tuesday at 5:30 p.m.

On Nov. 29, Chelsea hosts Dexter Gold at 5:30 p.m.

On a mission to say thanks

Letters of thanks

The following letters are from volunteers who recently traveled on a mission trip to New Orleans.

One of the mission arms of The United Methodist Church is called UMCOR (United Methodist Committee On Relief). They respond when disaster strikes and they have been actively working these past two years in the Katrina and Rita Hurricane clean-up and revitalization efforts. UMCOR has made a commitment to continue sending Volunteers In Mission (VIM) teams through 2010 to the gulf coast states, where the teams are helping to rebuild communities and give families hope.

The week of Oct. 6-14, four members of the North Lake United Methodist Church joined a VIM team of 49 persons from all over Michigan. The destination was New Orleans.

I worked on a home in the ninth ward. Miss Williams had been a victim of a dishonest contractor who had done poor work. She was employed at the hospital, but each evening she would stop to see the progress of our work. Our team had to remove and reinstall kitchen cabinets, drywall and insulation, and build a roof on an enclosed porch. Another team would follow us to finish painting and put down all new flooring before the family could return home.

God blessed us with a safe trip and good weather. God provided all our needs, but not our desired comforts. God's hand was upon us, and we experienced miracles. We wish to publicly thank the Palmer Ford family for the use of a 12-passenger van that helped transport our team on this 2,400 mile journey.

May we all live our lives that others may simply live.

Alice Sheffield, Pastor
North Lake United Methodist Church, Chelsea

The North Lake United Methodist Church would like to thank Palmer Ford for the donation of a van for our volunteers to use for on the mission trip. The van provided transportation for seven team members from churches in Southeastern Michigan to travel to New Orleans. Forty-nine people joined to make eight work teams that assisted residents still trying to return to their homes after the devastating effects of hurricane Katrina. Some of the projects worked on were demolition, wood and tile flooring, insulation, drywall and cabinet installation. This was a very rewarding experience for everyone involved and we appreciate Palmer Ford's support.

Mary Jane Maze

I would like to thank Palmer Ford for the use of a 2006 Ford van for our recent mission outreach trip to New Orleans. I was one of 49 volunteers who traveled to New Orleans, slept on a church floor for a week, and worked to restore homes that had been destroyed by hurricane Katrina. Our group worked on six different homes, all in various stages of reconstruction. The VIM (Volunteers In Mission) team was organized by the New Hope United Methodist Church, Shelby Township. Four volunteers from the North Lake United Methodist Church were part of this effort.

The feelings of grief and destruction cannot be described in words. The residents of New Orleans, and the south coast will be years recovering from this storm.

By providing us transportation, the money saved was sued to purchase needed supplies, building materials and fuel.

David Jachalke

I publicly want to thank Palmer Ford for generously providing the VIM (Volunteers In Mission) Team known as "Get In the Car III" with a reliable and comfortable van for our recent round trip to New Orleans.

I personally worked on three houses in devastated New Orleans. I learned to install Pergo flooring, prepare walls for dry walling and dry wall installation, prepare walls for floor molding and floor molding installation. I learned to use an air compression hammer, but I did not master the electric drill.

I sat on porches with homeowners and listened to their stories of being "hit" again and again. They were hit first by Katrina and Rita and again by fly by night "construction companies" who took their money while making no repairs. When the plumbing finally was restored the copper was stolen.

I packed lunches for a homeless woman named Nelle. She is a woman who can't negotiate the red tape and find housing.

I was in a 300 square foot FEMA trailer. I was in it for minutes and cannot imagine living in one for two years and counting. The prices for everything including property taxes, food, gas, and utilities have risen since Katrina, and the poorest are unfairly burdened.

I cried when I toured the lower ninth ward and I prayed at the beautiful Katrina Memorial.

Still, I witnessed the spirit of hope, compassion, and gratitude.

Please remember the ongoing struggles to rebuild a broken and devastated place in our country. Street after street, house after house, family after family need our help and will for a long time.

Marilyn Jachalke

Happy hunting

DNR says '07 looks like a good one

Across the state, nearly 600,000 hunters took to the field Thursday in hopes of harvesting a white-tailed deer. Michigan's 16-day regular firearm deer season runs through Nov. 30.

Last year, more than 260,000 deer were harvested during the firearm season, providing over 4.3 million days of recreation and producing over 1 million pounds of venison.

According to estimates, the season also generates more than $200 million of economic activity in Michigan each year.

"All indicators point to a good 2007 firearm deer season," said Rod Clute, big-game specialist for the Department of Natural Resources. "The deer herd is up slightly from 2006, with a strong fawn crop this spring."

Clute said that deer survived last year's mild winter in excellent condition, and the male fawns of 2006 are sporting their first antlers as yearlings this fall.

Hunters who have selected their hunting locations well should see a fair number of deer this year.

Reports from DNR wildlife biologists around the state indicate the dryer-than-normal summer weather could impact agricultural crop production and harvest times of crops. Statewide, both corn and soybeans harvest is ahead of last year's removal.

Natural food availability also varies across the state, in many cases influenced by drought conditions this summer. Soft mast foods, like wild apples and choke cherries, appear to be very good.

The deer population in the Upper Peninsula overall is at a level the DNR would like to maintain; although deer are not evenly distributed across the U.P. with fewer deer along Lake Superior and more deer concentrated in the southern portions.

According to Bob Doepker, Western U.P. Management Unit supervisor, Menominee County still has the most deer in the region, along with the Stonington and Garden peninsulas.

"There are a limited number of both public and private land antlerless deer licenses still available in select deer management units in the U.P.," Doepker said. "We hope deer hunters will utilize those opportunities."

He also reminds hunters that private land antlerless deer licenses are not valid on Commercial Forest lands.

Deer also are not evenly distributed across the northern Lower Peninsula.

Typically, most deer are found on private land. In the northeast corner of the northern Lower Peninsula, the deer population is slightly above the DNR goal for the area.

In the northwestern portion of the lower, the deer herd is a little below desired levels. To boost deer numbers in this region, no public land antlerless licenses are available for some counties and fewer private land antlerless deer licenses are available in others.

The counties along the southern edge of this region have deer numbers similar to those in southern Michigan. Private land antlerless licenses are still available for many of these counties.

Bovine tuberculosis (TB) counties to be a high concern and management issue within the northeast northern Lower Peninsula.

"The DNR is still taking steps to reduce the prevalence rate of TB in deer," said Glen Matthews, Management Unit supervisor. "We request that hunters continue to harvest antlerless deer in the TB zone and have all harvested deer in these areas and the surrounding counties checked for TB."

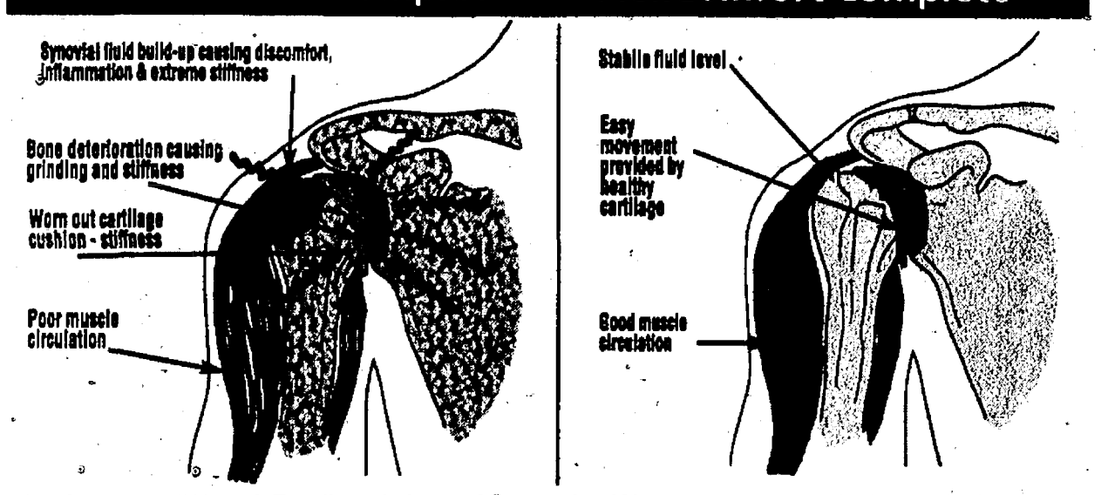
ALLEVIATE JOINT PROBLEMS IN DAYS

Scientific advancement gives general public the perfect and complete solution for sore, aching joints throughout the entire body

FIRST FORMULA OF ITS KIND TO GIVE FAST RELIEF TO THE WORST TYPE OF JOINT STIFFNESS WITHOUT DANGEROUS DRUGS

FlexComfort Complete works on all the joints in your body. Below, we are showing a close-up of the shoulder area so you can see just how beneficial FlexComfort Complete is for all your joints.



Doctors say "Good-Bye" to Joint aches and stiffness. A dramatic formula for joint stiffness that guarantees movement in days. Fastest, Most Powerful Natural Joint Supplement available. The remarkable health benefits are significant.

From just one of our thousands of satisfied users...

I played organized football for 16 years and sustained multiple joint injuries resulting in operations to both knees and suggested surgeries on my right shoulder. Arthritis had set into both knees. I had difficulty bending and even getting out of bed most mornings. I began using Glucosamine/CSA in 1998 in attempt to alleviate the daily pain I experienced. Glucosamine/CSA gave me more flexibility and a wider range of movement than before but did not reduce the pain at all.

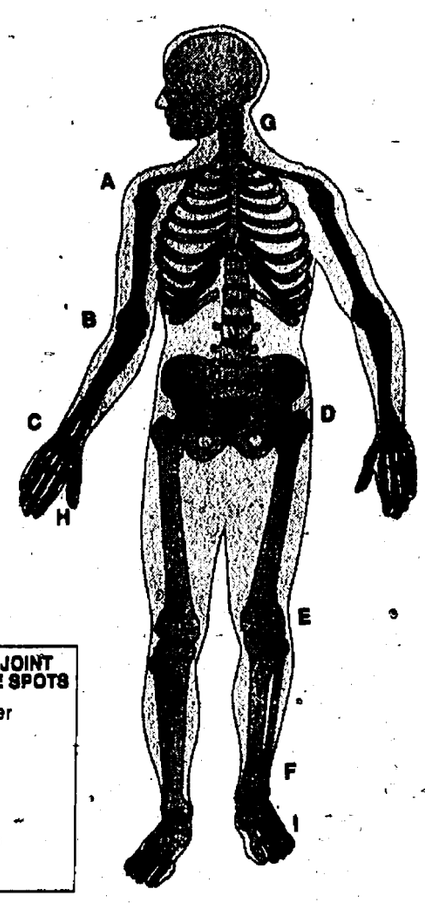
I began using HA (30 mg per day) in 2003 and after only 7 days all the pain I had was gone. This pain had been with me for over 25 years. I stopped taking all pain medications. I have better flexibility, no joint pain, and a positive side effect was less dry skin issues than before. I always got a dry skin condition every winter but have not since using HA. I now workout 4-6 times per week for 30 to 60 minutes without any pain. I can also type effectively now that all the pain and swelling has subsided from my hands and fingers. Several elderly family members are now knitting and sewing again after over 20 years of inactivity after using HA regularly.

The best testimonial I have is that I have given the product to over 300 people in the last 3 years and only 1 has returned to me saying they didn't think it worked. Most say it is the best product they have ever used including drugs such as Vioxx® and Celebrex®. Most use no other medication other than HA for joint pain. That is an effective rate of over 99%.

You have my permission to use my name and my testimonial as you like.

Regards, Michael Cielensky; VP of Sales and Marketing

FlexComfort Complete Joint Formula can support these areas and more.



By: S. Hufford, Media Services

A new formula is now approved for release to the general public that actually stops joint pain and stiffness right at the source.

Known as FlexComfort Complete, joint pain sufferers no longer need to endure unbearable sore, painful and stiff joints.

It has been proven that users of FlexComfort Complete are free of joint pain and stiffness, have improved mobility and most of all... get their life back regardless of your current age or joint health.

You can do this quickly and all-naturally with no dangerous drugs or surgery.

FlexComfort Complete brings such fast, incredible relief that even normally skeptical medical professionals marvel at how dramatically it can better your life.

This amazing new joint relief formula was developed by the same respected doctor that successfully helped design the world famous Centrum® and Stresstab® Vitamins.

FlexComfort Complete could not have come at a better time since Arthritis is now the leading cause of disability in the U.S. and nearly one of every six Americans will be affected by this disabling disease.

The United States Center for Disease Control estimates that by the year 2020, 60 million Americans will suffer from some form of arthritis, and more than 11 million of us will be disabled by the condition.

FlexComfort Complete really is proving to be the future of joint relief support.

A well-known professional golfer even stated that he used to take 16 ibuprofen a day for years before using the active ingredient in FlexComfort Complete. And, he hadn't won a golf tournament in 18 years until he started taking FlexComfort Complete's active ingredient.

Once he started taking the same ingredients as those in FlexComfort Complete, he even passed on an opportunity to be the spokesperson for a leading analgesic brand.

He said that he just couldn't be their spokesperson because he doesn't need ibuprofen anymore at all.

Plus, after taking the active ingredient in FlexComfort Complete he won his first championship in 18 years.

For even more information on this phenomenal new joint relief product, here is my interview with the Product Development and Specialist for BioTech Research.

Q. Is FlexComfort Complete completely safe for my readers to use?

A. Yes. In fact, the staff and colleagues of the doctor that created FlexComfort Complete use it to relieve their joint aches and stiffness.

FlexComfort Complete relieves sore and stiff joints and is composed of 100% natural substances that are completely safe. The only people that may not want to try FlexComfort Complete are those with severe allergies to shellfish.

Q. What makes FlexComfort Complete different from other joint formulas that claim to be just as good?

A. First, FlexComfort Complete is the most revolutionary joint compound ever developed. It is a perfect and complete formula that is fast acting.

FlexComfort Complete reduces your joint pain, aches, stiffness and discomfort quickly. Not 6-8 weeks like most products.

FlexComfort Complete contains the purest form of Glucosamine... the compound that increases formation of cartilage and ligaments in your joint areas.

The Glucosamine that is used in FlexComfort Complete provides 1.7 times the bioreactive glucosamine versus sulfate.

Most companies don't use this pure, premium grade of glucosamine because it is more expensive than sulfate. But trust me, the pure, premium grade of glucosamine that is in FlexComfort Complete is worth every penny.

FlexComfort Complete contains MSM, the heavily tested ingredient that supplies vital nourishment to your joints and helps you to maintain healthy joint tissue.

And the best part about the amazing new FlexComfort Complete is that Hyaluronic Acid, which is usually only used in prescription form as an injectable by your doctor has been turned into an oral form.

Hyaluronic Acid (HA) is actually found in every cell of your body. However, it depletes with age because over time oxy radicals, produced mostly through exposure to pollutants and sunlight, degrade and destroy HA. In fact, fifty year olds are estimated to have less than half the HA they had in their youth.

HA is considered in the medical field to be the body's natural lubricant for your joints.

And... what really puts FlexComfort Complete above and beyond all other joint relief products out there is that in the past, HA could only be extracted from chicken combs. So anyone allergic to chicken or eggs could not reap the benefits of HA.

NOT SO with FlexComfort Complete. The scientist that formulated FlexComfort Complete was able to use HA in a biofermented form so that chicken and eggs are not used.

Now everyone can reap the benefit of HA when taking FlexComfort Complete and not have to worry about allergic reactions to chicken or eggs.

Q. How does FlexComfort Complete end joint problems so fast?

A. Although it is the combination of all 3 of these powerful ingredients together, it is really the addition of the biofermented form of HA, nature's lubricant, that puts FlexComfort Complete over the top.

You see, HA has been used to treat degenerative arthritis, also known as osteoarthritis since the 60s. Two brands of hyaluronan were approved by the FDA as devices to treat osteoarthritis of the knee. When present in a joint, even a joint with minimal or no cartilage, it can provide a cushion effect.

HA is normally part of the cartilage and synovial fluid, thus helping the cartilage to handle the force of weight-bearing and movement in the joint. In synovial fluid, HA acts as a lubricant of the cartilage against lining of the joint and has been said to have "shock absorber" properties.

Studies show that:

- HA is an important part of all normal joint fluid.
- HA plays a role in joint protection and lubrication.
- Individuals suffering from osteoarthritis have less hyaluronic acid in the synovial fluid in their joints leading to poor joint lubrication and increased pain.

Nothing is as powerful as FlexComfort Complete has proven to be in helping end joint problems. And nothing is as safe and effective at ending joint problems while restoring easy movement and activity.

So, as you can see, with FlexComfort Complete you cannot lose.

Plus, if you tried to buy MSM, the premium form of Glucosamine and HA separately, you would pay well over a hundred dollars. But we have combined all of these powerful, natural ingredients into 1 perfect and complete formula.

If you suffer from any type of hurting, sore, stiff or painful joints anywhere in your body then you absolutely need FlexComfort Complete. It's just inevitable.

Q. How can my readers get FlexComfort Complete?

A. FlexComfort Complete will not be in stores for an extended period. In the mean time, readers can order directly from BioTech Research.

Read on to find out how you can get FlexComfort Complete for a great discount and be on your way toward a healthier, more productive life.

Respond now to make sure you get a bottle of FlexComfort Complete and to receive a $20.00 discount.

St. James offers great gifts during annual Holiday Bazaar

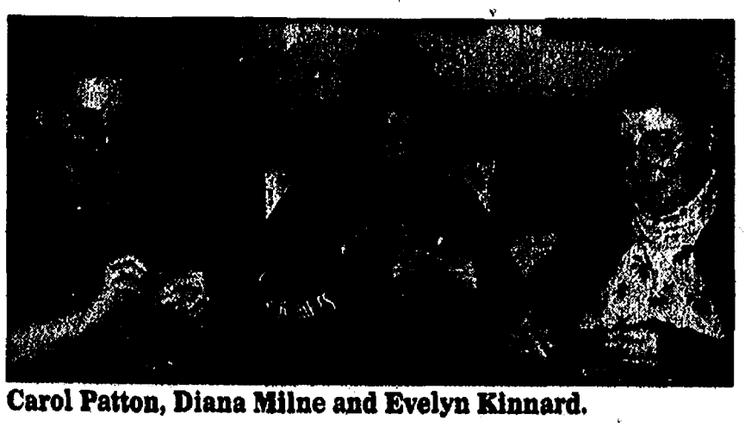
St. James' Episcopal Church will be hosting a Holiday Bazaar on Dec. 1 to raise money for our outreach programs. St. James is working in conjunction with three other Bazaars in Dexter on that same day, hoping to draw holiday shoppers from around the area with four bazaars.

The other three bazaars are being hosted by the Dexter Senior Center, Dexter Area Girl Scouts and the Dexter Historical Museum. The St. James' Bazaar will have approximately 15 vendors selling ornaments, jewelry, raggedy blankets, embroidery, knitted items, home products and more. There will be a basket of holiday gifts raffled off with the proceeds from the raffle tickets going to support the Angel Tree Christmas ministry. All four of the Bazaars will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

St. James' has active outreach programs in the community. The Church supports the Angle Tree Christmas and has "adopted" 13 local children for Christmas this year. We will be buying each child toys, winter clothing and food cards. These children all have a parent in prison. The Church sponsors back-to-school shopping every fall where we supply 8-10 children in Dexter with a fully stocked backpack with school supplies and other essentials.

The schools provide a list of appropriate supplies and the St. James parishioners go shopping.

One of the church's newest efforts is working with Faith In Action, a non-denominational emergency service provider in western Washtenaw county, to set up an presence in Dexter for Faith in Action (FIA). FIA currently serves many children and families in Dexter, but, receives few donations from the village. Members of the Outreach Committee are very excited at the prospect of having an Outpost for Faith in Action in Dexter, and working to provide the services within our community.



Carol Patton, Diana Milne and Evelyn Kinnard.

St. James Episcopal Church in Dexter is one of the oldest of the Episcopal churches in the state of Michigan.

In 1835, a missionary from Ann Arbor, Reverend Samuel Marx, came to Dexter every two weeks to preach in the village schoolhouse. He brought with him Reverend David J. Burger who was so well-liked by those attending services that they urged him to remain. St. James Parish was organized on March 13, 1837. On March 16, 1837 a contract was made for a lot and a large log building to be erected for the total sum of $450.

At that time pews were sold to parishioners by auction with the highest bidder getting the best spot. Early records show, that Judge Dexter purchased pew number 18 for $20. In 1853, the church members decided to build a new building. Land was donated by Judge Dexter and building began in 1854. The church building was completed in June 1855 and the first services were conducted by the Reverend Nathaniel F. Bruce.

In 1922, the church was completely remodeled because of a structural problem. The old building was partially torn down and almost entirely rebuilt. As a result, St. James Church is much shorter than the original neo-Gothic structure. Starting in March of 1973, St. James was again remodeled with stained-glass windows from the 1855 building put in behind the altar where they still can be seen today. In the 1980's, a historic pipe organ was purchased from a parish in New York State and installed in St. James. Today the church's sanctuary is affectionately known as "the Jewel box."

St. James has evolved over the years and is an inclusive Episcopal community housed in a historic building in downtown Dexter.

OLD BUSINESS - Consideration and Discussion of;

The following Resolution was offered by Member Cousins and supported by Member Keough.

WHEREAS, the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) has granted to WCRC Local Bridge Program Funding in the amount of five million, five hundred thousand dollars; and

WHEREAS, Village and WCRC have entered into a Road Improvement Agreement for Phase 1 Main Street Bridge project on May 5, 2006; and

WHEREAS, The Main Street Bridge Phase 1 is currently estimated at a cost of one million, six hundred thousand dollars; and

WHEREAS, The Village and WCRC desire to keep the remaining three million, nine hundred thousand dollars and apply the funding to the construction of a new railroad viaduct, road relocation and a roundabout intersection at the Dexter-Chelsea Road intersection with Dexter-Pinckney Road (Phase 2); and

WHEREAS, Phase 2 will require an Environmental Assessment in order for WCRC to utilize federal funding for Phase 2; and

WHEREAS, the Village has previously approved an expenditure of five hundred thousand dollars toward Phase 2, and

WHEREAS, Scheduling of Phase 2 necessitates the immediate mobilization of WCRC and consultant forces for the Environmental Assessment and Preliminary Engineering in order to achieve a bid letting for Phase 2 of September, 2009,

THEREFORE, BE IT AGREED that the Village approves of the expenditure of up to one hundred thousand dollars toward the Environmental Assessment and Preliminary Engineering for Phase 2.

BE IT FURTHER AGREED that WCRC will retain JJR, Inc. as the consultant for the Environmental Assessment at an approximate cost of forty thousand dollars.

BE IT FURTHER AGREED that WCRC will retain URS Corporation for Preliminary Engineering for the Phase 2 viaduct at an approximate cost of fifty thousand dollars.

BE IT FURTHER AGREED that WCRC will assist with the work performed by JJR and URS portions of the above described Phase 2 work and will be reimbursed by the Village at an approximate cost of ten thousand dollars.

BE IT FURTHER AGREED that WCRC will invoice the Village for costs associated with Phase 2, and the Village will remit payment to WCRC for said costs within 30 days of receipt of invoice.

BE IT FURTHER AGREED that WCRC and the Village will work cooperatively to enter into a separate agreement with SCIO TOWNSHIP in order to fund the remainder of the outstanding costs for Preliminary Engineering, Right of Way acquisition; Construction Match, and Construction Engineering for Phase 2.

DEXTER VILLAGE
VILLAGE COUNCIL NOTICE OF ORDINANCE AMENDMENT

Pursuant to Michigan Public Act 110 of 2006, as amended, notice is hereby given that the Village of Dexter Village Council has adopted amendments to Article 5, Parking and Loading, of the Village of Dexter Zoning Ordinance. The amendments will be effective on December 12, 2007. The Village Council approved the ordinance amendments at the November 12, 2007 meeting.

Section 5.07G - The Planning Commission may permit deviations from the requirements of Section 5.07 and may require more, allow for less, or waive off-street loading and unloading requirements whenever it finds that such changes are more likely to provide a sufficient number of off-street loading and unloading spaces, or that no loading space is required to accommodate the specific characteristics of the use in question. The Planning Commission may attach conditions to the approval of a deviation to the requirements of Section 5.07 that bind such approval of the specific use in question. Where a deviation results in a reduction or complete waiver of off-street loading and unloading spaces, the Planning Commission may further impose conditions, which ensure that adequate reserve area, is set aside for future off-street loading and unloading spaces, if needed in the future.

Section 5.09 – The contribution for parking in lieu of providing parking was changed from $2000 to $2500 to match the resolution passed by the Village Council in December 2004.

Information regarding the approved ordinance amendment is available for public inspection at the Village Offices, 8123 Main Street, Dexter, weekdays between 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. or by phone at (734) 426-8303 Ext. 15. Minutes of all meetings are available at Village Offices and on the Village website. All ordinances are available on the Village website.

LIMA TOWNSHIP
BOARD MEETING UNAPPROVED MINUTES NOVEMBER 12, 2007

Clerk Barels called the meeting to order at 8:00 p.m. and appointed Trustee McKenzie to Chair the meeting in the absence of Supervisor Unterbrink. Present were Clerk Barels, Treasurer Havens, Trustees McKenzie and Laier. Absent, Supervisor Unterbrink. Also present Penny Laier and Gary Adams.

The meeting was opened with the Pledge to The Flag.

Motion by Laier supported by Havens to approve the minutes of the regular meeting of October 8, 2007, the joint meeting with the City of Chelsea on October 29, 2007, the special meeting November 2, 2007 to review and negotiate the proposed assessor contract, and the special meeting of November 5, 2007 to approve the agreement for assessing and specifications and the agreement for reappraisal service, both documents dated November 5, 2007, as submitted. Motion carried.

The treasurer's report was received.

The zoning administrator's printed report showed permits were issued for two new homes, one home addition, three pole barns, one deck and one sign. One new address was issued.

Under old business, this is an information item: A new assessor has been hired by a contract dated November 5, 2007. Upon signature by the proposed assessor, the effective date of the contract will be November 15, 2007. Dick Steffens, Washtenaw County Equalization Director concurred with the appointment and the contract.

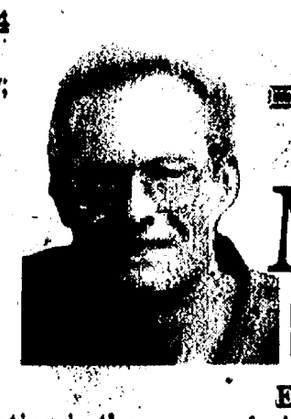
Faith

A good time to count your blessings



Ministerial Message

By Pastor Mark Porinsky
Faith Lutheran Church

About 10 years ago, when I still had five children at home, I was in the checkout line at the grocery store. The packer had packed up several bags of groceries for me, and the clerk informed me how much it would cost; apparently she thought it was a relatively high amount, so she apologized: "I'm really sorry – that's a lot of money, isn't it?" I answered, "That's all right – I just read that Americans spend the lowest percentage of their income on groceries of any nation in the world."

The lady next to me in line overheard this, and was shocked. She said, "You're kidding! I though we spent the highest percentage of anyone on groceries."

If only we Americans had a better appreciation of the blessings we have! Might gasoline prices hit $4 per gallon? Quite likely; but even if they do, I'm sure we'll still be paying a lower percentage of our income for gas than just about any other nation in the world. And then, what percentage of the people in the world even have automobiles? Have health care costs skyrocketed? Absolutely; but at least we have health care. I'm sure that even those in our nation who have no health insurance have access to better health care than 80% of the people in this world.

Even more appalling than being unaware of our daily blessings: So many people, instead of thinking of their blessings, dwell on the hurts and wrongs that have been done to them, whether real or imagined. How tragic.

This Thanksgiving can we put aside all those negative thoughts and simply thank God for everything He has given us? Let's just forget the past, stop dwelling on our problems and losses and the injustices we think we've suffered, and look at what the Lord has done for us. Instead of comparing ourselves with the few who might appear better off, let's think about the vast majority of people in this world who have fewer conveniences, less freedom, less food, poorer health, and a far more difficult life. And if it's hard to picture them, let's spend some time in nursing facilities and then go home and reflect on how good our circumstances really are.

But above all, each of us has access to one crowning blessing: The Bible, the very words of God. Each of us has access to the only Savior the world will ever have, Jesus Christ. Each of us can be sure of spending an eternity in Paradise through trust in that Savior. No riches, comfort, or lavish lifestyle can top that, and no poverty, loss of health or loved ones, family turmoil, or tragedy can take that away. If you want to be assured of that ultimate blessing, or any of God's other promises, I'd be happy to talk with you.

Our government recognizes tomorrow as a day of national thanksgiving, and most of us have the day off work. It would certainly be a shame to pass up this opportunity not only to count our blessings in private, but to publicly attend a Thanksgiving worship service where we can give thanks in the presence of others. My congregation worships this evening at 7:30 p.m. You're welcome to join us. Others conduct worship tomorrow. Please use part of the day to count your blessings.

Mark Porinsky is the pastor at Faith Lutheran Church, 9575 North Territorial Road, Dexter.

Kids pay a visit to seniors at CRC

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Putting a smile on people's faces is a mission Alyssa Zangara takes very seriously.

"I get to help out making people laugh — I like that," said the fifth-grader at South Meadows Elementary.

Alyssa and more than two dozen classmates in Jean Meconi's class were doing just that on Halloween afternoon for their "grandparents" at the Chelsea Retirement Community.

The kids came over from the school to spend time with the residents of Dancey House, parade down the halls in their Halloween costumes and play games as part of their "Adopt-A-Grandparent" program.

And it seemed like the residents got as big a kick out of it as the kids.

"This is a nice bunch of kids, you couldn't ask them to do any better; they just project themselves to you," said resident Dave Poppinger.

"Sitting here and enjoying this is wonderful — it's like we've been together all the time."

Meconi explained that the program, in which students are paired up with residents, is valuable for both groups.

"(It) is for the students to honor and make a connection with people who have given so much to the community," Meconi said. "We get as much from them as they get from us."

As the children made their way down the hallways, residents greeted them with candy donated by Huron Valley Ambulance.

"The kids will parade in costume through the assisted living, nursing and rehabilitation areas and return to the lobby," explained CRC Program Coordinator Patti Oakes.

The facility was decorated for the Halloween holiday, with scarecrows made by the staff scattered throughout the facility.

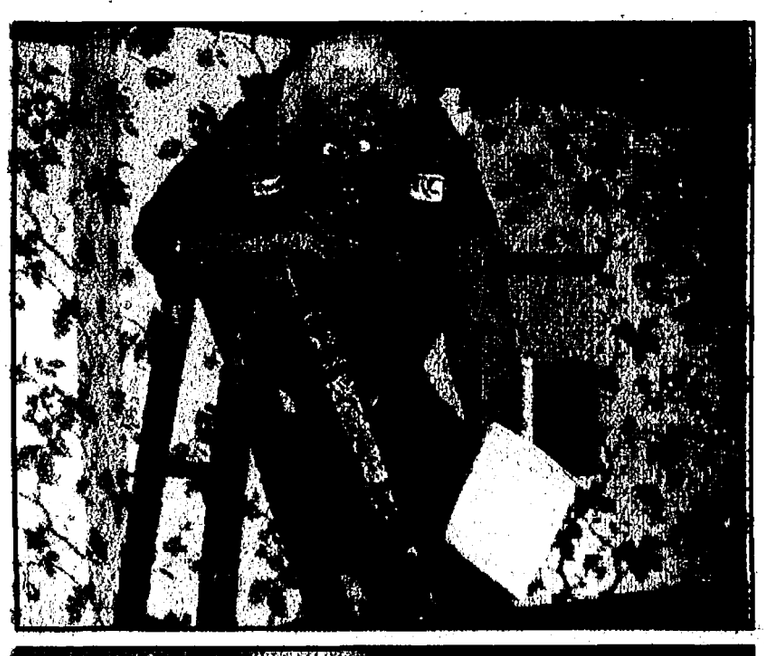
Residents also got in on the fun, with each floor of Dancey House competing in a scarecrow contest, with the winners treated to a pizza party.

Resident Sally Olive, dressed as a witch, said residents enjoy themselves when the children visit, especially for Halloween.

"It's a chance for us to meet people; it's fun," she said. "The kids really love it, they're so cute."

Student Rachel Hastings saw a poignant purpose to the visit.

"I like bringing Halloween to everybody because they don't have a chance to do it," she said.



To decorate for Halloween, the Dancey House staff put up scarecrows such as this maintenance man (top) throughout the CRC facility.

Jean Meconi's fifth-grade class at South Meadows School brought some Halloween cheer to residents of the Chelsea Retirement Community's Dancey House.

Greenview Data President Ted Green; his brother, Executive Vice President Philippe Green; and Vice President Joel Abramson are seen outside their office on Jackson Road in Scio. The small information technology company has developed antispam and database editing software, and supports a foundation that raises money for Hepatitis C research.

Fund-raiser

Software firm founder busy raising money for Hepatitis C research

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Ted Green and his company, Greenview Data, are well-known in the information technology sector, but the average person may soon recognize his name for a completely different reason.

Green and his wife Deborah set up a charitable foundation to raise money for medical research into Hepatitis C.

"In 1989 my then-7-year-old daughter had cancer, and my business tanked because I really didn't work anymore," Green said.

The company, which he founded in 1980 in Ann Arbor and grew to about 25 people, dwindled down to four employees and he began running it out of his house.

"My daughter survived it, but contracted Hepatitis C," Green added. "Because of that, my wife and I decided that in our retirement we wanted to create a charity."

Deborah Green is now retired and is chairwoman of the Greenview Foundation, incorporated in 2006 as a 501(c)(3) - tax-deductible chartable organization.

"There are estimates that 4 million Americans have Hepatitis C, and the majority of them don't know it," Ted Green said.

"It never really goes away; long term it causes serious complications."

Greenview Data's hepatitis connection reaches beyond the Green family.

Joel Abramson, vice president of business development, was affected by the disease within his own family.

"Hepatitis C is a disease that is not publicized that much in the press," Abramson said, noting that is usually associated with drug users but there are also many innocent victims who caught the disease from tainted blood transfusions in the 1970s.

Fund-raising cookbook sale

Greenview Data of Scio Township will be selling the cookbook, "Cooking Around the World," from Nov. 30 to Dec. 2 at Polly's Country Market on South Main Street in Chelsea.

The cookbook was compiled by Deborah Green, chairwoman of the Greenview Foundation, which is dedicated to raising money for research into Hepatitis C.

The cookbooks are $15, a discount from the cover price, and all the money goes to benefit Hepatitis C research at the University of Michigan.

Cookbooks also can be ordered online at www.hepcfund.org.

"My mother recently passed away from Hepatitis C, and she contracted in through a blood transfusion," Abramson said.

Because Green was working on an advanced degree in computing at the University of Michigan when he founded the company, the foundation's Hepatitis C fund raises money for research at the U of M Hospital.

"One of the ways we raise money is by selling cookbooks my wife Debbie put together," Green said. "We've sold about 1,000 of them. They are $18 each, and have about 450 recipes."

To order a cookbook, people can call the company at 734-426-7500 or order online at www.hepcfund.org; or pick one up for $15 Nov. 30 and Dec. 2 at Polly's County Market in Chelsea.

"We're a company with a conscience; we promote social responsibility," Abramson said. "It's corporate, but we have a feel for our customers."

About the company

Not only did Green's daughter survive her disease, so did his company.

Greenview's first product, VEdit, a database editing program, provided a ready market for its next offering, an e-mail spam filter called SpamStopsHere, and it proved to be phenomenally successful.

"By the end of 2002 we had a product ready to sell, and we already had 10,000 VEdit customers happy to try out any other products we had," Green said.

"It was sort of an easy way to get the business started."

That was also the year Ted's younger brother, Philippe, came to work with him.

"He showed a lot more interest in (the anti-spam product)," Ted said.

Today, SpamStopsHere accounts for 80 percent of the company's sales, which Green declined to specify, but he did note that sales have been growing at more than 50 percent per year since 2002.

Neither the anti-spam nor the editing package are available to the public; their end-users are businesses, governments and other large organizations. In fact, Greenview's biggest anti-spam client was signed last month: a global logistics company that has some 20,000 e-mail accounts.

While Greenview has seen many of its original competitors get gobbled up by IT giants like Google, Cisco and Symantec, Green has turned down similar offers of several million dollars.

In May the company moved into a facility on Jackson Road built to their own specifications, and hosted a grand opening on Sept. 27. "We don't have a strong desire to leave the area," Green said. "We would have had to move to California, and that was just unacceptable."

An abundance of pie can be found behind the sparkling glass counters at the Grand Traverse Pie Company of Ann Arbor.

Thirty-six different varieties, in fact, from the 23 types of fruit and nine kinds of cream pies, to the four specialty pies which include variations on a theme of pumpkin, chocolate and pecans.

"Everybody loves pie ... pies make people smile," said Dave Ziegler of Dexter, who owns the spacious restaurant at 291 N. Zeeb Road along with his wife Beth, who also helps operate the business.

With the coming of the holiday season, the restaurant's slogan, "Warm Your Heart With Pie," has been changed to "Warm Your Holidays With Pie."

Pies may be ordered for holiday feasting by calling the store for details at 734-997-9702 or going online to www.gtpie.com

Ziegler said his favorite kind of pie is the Mountain Berry, which combines blueberries, raspberries, strawberries and blackberries under a crumb crust.

He is also partial to carrot cake, which is served with cream cheese frosting.

Dave Ziegler with Mary Mackey (behind counter) at the Grand Traverse Pie Company. There are 36 varieties of pies behind the sparkling glass counter. Ziegler, and his wife, Beth, started up the restaurant a little more than a year ago.

The restaurant also provides catering services, fundraising opportunities, and a lunch and dinner menu.

Store hours are 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday.

New on the menu is the French Dip sandwich, and there are also plans for a special that will allow those who order a sandwich to add a slice of pie for $1.59.

A cinnamon roll is being considered company-wide, but Ziegler said the restaurant has to follow company policies on food.

"We can't free-lance recipes," he said.

The restaurant chain opened in Traverse City about 11 years ago, where there is now a corporate office that produces all of the pie shells. All of the fruit for the pies is grown in Michigan.

Ziegler, formerly a self-employed construction worker, said he and his wife started up the restaurant 13 months ago, remodeling an existing building in Baxter's Plaza at I-94 and Zeeb Road.

"I wanted to create a place that I like to eat in," said Ziegler.

He is considering opening another restaurant on the eastern side of Washtenaw County.

Home Builders Association elects new officers

The Home Builders Association of Washtenaw County has elected officers and board of directors for the new year.

"This will be an exciting year for the association as we continue to promote the advantages of home ownership and the latest trends and products in new homes and remodeling," Jack Campbell, HBA president-elect and co-owner of Marhofer/Campbell Building Co., said in a news release.

Joining Jack Campbell as officers in 2008 will be Alex DeParry of Ann Arbor Builders as first vice president, Earl Carver of Carver Construction Co. as second vice president, Diane Gilson of Info Plus Accounting as treasurer, Christy Perros of Absolute Title as secretary and Frank Patt of Frank Benson Patt Inc. as immediate past president

Serving as directors will be Drake Ambrosino of Arbor Building Co, Bob Burnside of Fireside Home Construction, Pat Durston of Reinhart Realtors, Janet Gilbert-Smith of Wineman and Komer Building Co., Todd Griffin of Guenther Building Co., Jeff Martin of Alpha Remodeling, John Nixon of Ann Arbor Commerce Bank, Geoff Perkins of Perkins Construction Co., Ralph Santarpia of Brown & Bigelow, Doug Selby of Meadowlark Builders, Ron Thierry of R.E.T. LLC., Steve Lucchesi of Steve Lucchesi Inc. and Tom Covert of Atwell-Hicks.

Newly elected members to the board are Traven Pelletier of Gardenscapes, Kevin Coe of Big George's Home Appliances and Joy Holley of Holley Development.

"The leadership team that we have assembled represents an excellent cross section of the home building industry," said Maureen Sloan, the association's chief executive officer.

HOLIDAY ENTERTAINING & GIFT GUIDE

Tips to keep in mind while shopping for a co-worker

Fewer things are harder at the holiday season than shopping for the perfect gift. Whether you're shopping for your spouse, child or distant cousin, chances are you want to get a thoughtful gift that expresses your love and appreciation.

While shopping for relatives is challenging, things may seem a bit tougher when shopping for co-workers or colleagues. If you happen to be friends with a co-worker or colleague, finding a gift may be easier. But if you want to do something thoughtful for those you simply work with, the following guidelines should help you keep things pleasant and professional.

• Consider religion: There's a good chance your office includes people from diverse backgrounds. Certain gifts are taboo in some cultures, but perfectly acceptable as gifts in others. If there's any doubt as to a co-worker's religion or other preferences, steer clear of gifts that might raise an eyebrow or possibly be seen as offensive.

In addition, if you're unsure whether a client or colleague drinks alcohol, avoid giving a bottle of wine or champagne as a gift.

• Give a gift that's office ready: If you're really stuck, give a gift that can help brighten a co-worker's office or cubicle. For example, give a plant, a small radio, or something to make them more comfortable, such as a seat cushion or padded mouse pad.

Avoid wall hangings, as there's no accounting for another person's taste, and you don't want to put a co-worker in the position of having to hang something on his or her wall that they don't like simply because they feel obligated.

• Go the gift certificate route: To some, gift certificates might seem to indicate little effort on your part. To others, they're the perfect gift and one they're sure to use. Don't worry about which group a co-worker falls into. If you really can't find a gift, a gift certificate is perfectly acceptable.

If you're unaware of a co-worker or colleague's interests, give a mall gift card that's accepted by many of the stores in the mall. Chances are, they'll find at least one store that matches an interest.

• Don't give items emblazoned with the company name: Nothing will make you look cheaper or more indifferent than giving a company sweatshirt or memo pad to a colleague for the holidays. Such items are probably available for free throughout the year anyway, so giving them during the holidays is inappropriate. These items are meant for marketing campaigns, not as holiday gifts for employees, colleagues or clients.

• Let common sense be your guide: If you're unsure about a certain gift, follow the rule of common sense. A general rule of thumb is to not give anything too personal to co-workers or colleagues.

Give a gift to a co-worker that can help brighten his or her day, such as a coffee warmer or hot-chocolate maker.

Safety tips for shopping

While the holidays can be a joyous time for adults and children alike, they may also bring a smile to the face of criminals. That's because amid the excitement and confusion of holiday shopping and travel, many people leave themselves susceptible to theft.

Willing thieves are waiting in the wings to lighten your holiday shopping load.

To ensure the holidays will be as happy as possible and not spoiled by criminals lurking in the shadows, consider these safety and comfort tips.

Be Alert and Confident

Distraction and the element of surprise are key tactics in any theft scheme. Pickpockets' favorite places for action are on crowded lines, in elevators, on escalators, and when going through revolving doors. Always be aware of your environment and those around you.

Do not shop while talking on a cell phone or while listening to your MP3 player. Keep your eyes and ears open and project a confident and alert posture.

ERTAINING

Pay close attention to credit card agreements

When it comes to holiday spending, consumers are known for going a little overboard — be it in the spirit of the season or just poorly managing funds.

Part of the reason people overspend is because of the often misunderstood language included with each credit card bill they receive. Important information is often printed particularly small in the hopes that people won't, in fact, read their agreements and will fail to notice any changes in policy.

With the credit card season upon us all, consider the following tips before putting it all on plastic over the next several weeks.

• Know your credit card limit and where you stand. In the past, people who charged a card that was over its limit would have to go through the embarrassing ordeal of being told their card was declined. These days, many credit companies have chosen to go a different route, allowing consumers to overcharge their cards and then face exorbitant fees and increased interest rates once the limit is exceeded.

Before you leave the house and swipe your card, know exactly what your card balance is, how much you can spend before reaching your limit, and avoid exceeding that limit at all costs.

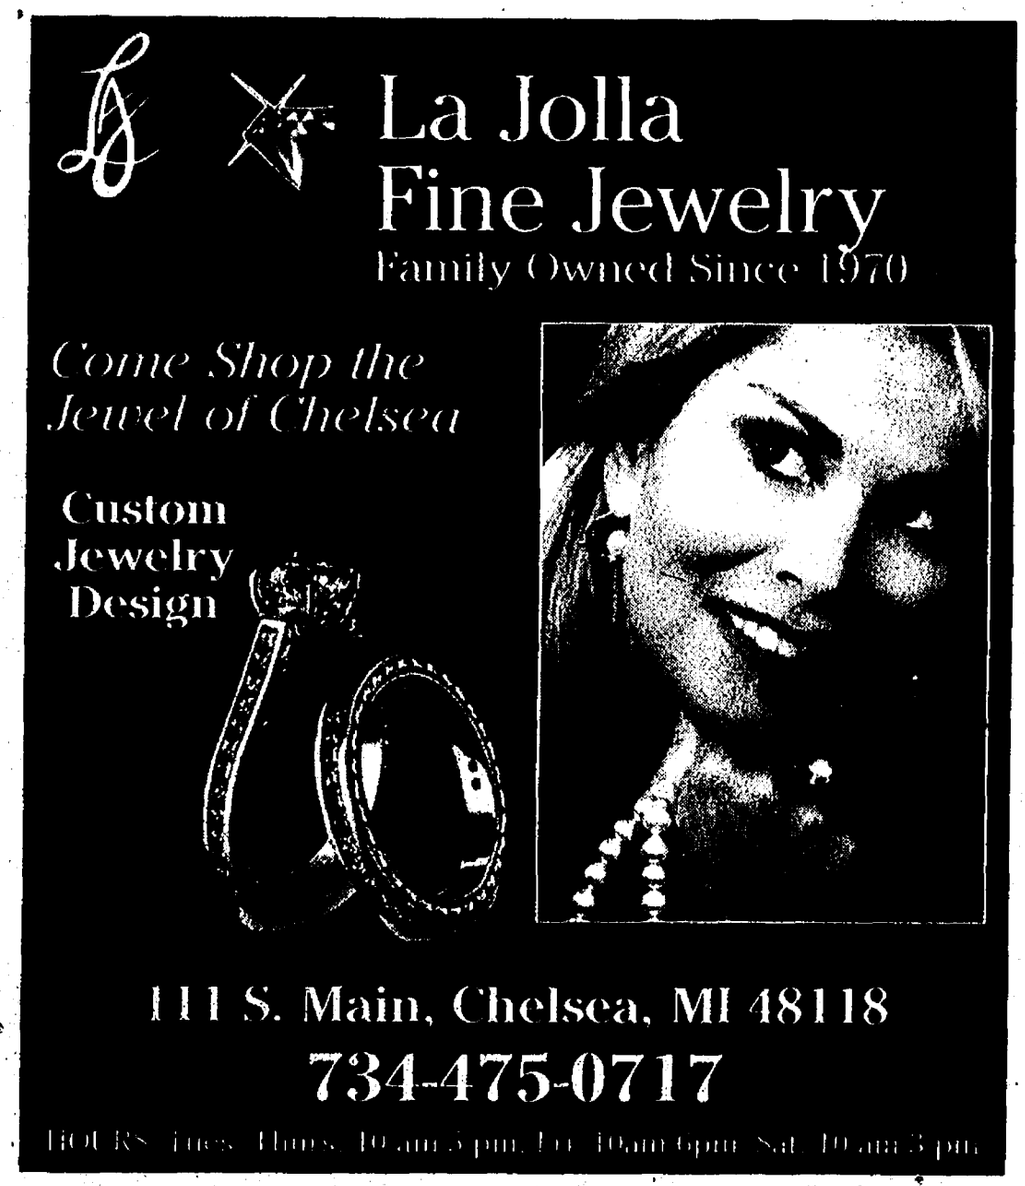
• Pay on time. Sometimes the day your bill is due each month changes. While it might be due on the 10th one month, the next due date might be the eighth day of the following month. This can, and often does, lead to late payments and late payment fees. A late fee is often in the neighborhood of $35. But a late payment also allows a company to invoke a penalty rate, which can be as high as 27 percent.

In your agreement, it will likely say this rate can be issued after as little as one late payment, so don't just assume that since this is the first time you're late there will not be any penalties. Avoid these penalties by paying on time and knowing when your due date is each month.

• Avoid cash advances. Particularly during the holiday season, a cash advance can be very enticing. But cash advances should be avoided. Most cash advances will include a fee for the advance and a higher interest rate than the actual credit card, making the cost of a cash advance far more than it actually appears.

• Verify your charges. Verify any and all charges on your card by keeping your receipts and checking them against what appears on your statement. This will accomplish two things. First of all, you'll catch any fraudulent charges if they exist. Secondly, you can examine your spending habits, which may or may not be healthy.

• Don't get tied down. You can shop for a credit card just like you can shop for holiday gifts. Not all cards are the same, as some carry higher interest rates than their counterparts. Research companies, their interest rates and policies, and politely ask friends if they would recommend companies.



HOLIDAY ENTERTAINING & GIFT GUIDE

Choose age-appropriate video games for children

Video games remain one of the most popular gift items for children and adults alike. A strong majority of families have indicated in various studies that video games are a big part of their family dynamic.

Parents often find that regular video game play with their children is a rewarding social activity.

With holiday shopping right around the corner, and video games topping your gift list, it's important to choose games that are age-appropriate for players. This means consulting the Entertainment Software Rating Board rating that appears on every game.

According to a national survey released by Activision Inc. conducted by The Harrison Group, as part of Activision's "Ratings are Not a Game" education initiative, the ESRB rating system is "a highly effective and influential tool for determining what video games are appropriate."

Most parents (84 percent) have indicated that they are very familiar with the ESRB system and nearly 80 percent revealed that they pay close attention to the ratings on games when selecting options for children ages 8 to 12.

In fact, according to the Activision study, 56 percent of parents cited a game's ESRB rating as their top purchase influencer.

The ESRB rating system has two parts — rating symbols, which are prominently displayed on the front of game packages, and content descriptors, which are found on the back next to the rating symbol.

Six main rating categories are used to recommend age appropriateness for a game. Plus, there are more than 30 content descriptors that refer to different types of content (violence, sex, humor, language, use of controlled substances) that may have either contributed to the rating, or may just be of interest or concern to consumers.

In assigning ratings, the ESRB also takes into consideration how frequently, intensely, and in what context elements are depicted in games. Other factors such as interactive elements, player control and reward systems are also taken into account.

When shopping for video games this season, Activision suggests the following:

• Check out the ESRB rating on the front of the box and don't forget to flip the package over to read the content descriptors on the back. Both parts are equally helpful in allowing you to decide if a game is right for your family.

• For more information on a particular game, visit www.esrb.org.

• Check online resources such as video game reviews, demonstrations and trailers for more insight about game content, as well as best and worst video game reports from watch guard sites. The ESRB has a list of helpful sites on its Parent Resources page.

• Be consistent on the ratings you'll allow so children don't try to push the boundaries.

• Make sure relatives and other gift purchasers are familiar with the ratings system, as well to avoid the possibility that they'll purchase games for your children that you might deem inappropriate. If they are not familiar with the ratings, inform them which ratings you consider appropriate for your children, such as "EC (Early Childhood 3+)," "E (Everyone 6+)," "E10+ (Everyone Ten and Older)," "T (Teen 13+)," or "M (Mature 17+)."

• If you see an advertisement for a game with an "RP" rating, which refers to "Rating Pending," check the ESRB Web site at www.esrb.org for updated rating information before you go shopping.

"Activision strongly supports the ESRB rating system, which we believe is one of the most effective tool parents can use to determine which games are appropriate for their children," Robin Kaminsky, EVP of Publishing for Activision, said in a written statement. "Looking ahead, these results will help strengthen our efforts to raise greater awareness among parents and young people."

ENTERTAINING & GIFT GUIDE

Suggestions for buying romantic gifts

It happens every year, the holidays sneak up and so many men struggle in the 11th hour to find the perfect gift for the special woman in their lives. And last-minute shopping amid endless gift suggestions can be overwhelming.

So, how can you choose that perfect romantic gift to steal a woman's heart? Here's how, and you don't have to break the budget to do it.

"There are multitudes of wow-worthy gifts that are reasonably priced," said Men's Fitness Editor in Chief Neal Boulton. "Romantic doesn't have to mean expensive. Think about the things she likes to do, what she likes to eat, how she likes to look, and then surprise her with a thoughtful gift — the one that really makes the most lasting impression."

Separated for the Holidays

If you are going to be away from your wife or girlfriend this year, choose a gift that will tell her that you are thinking of her, wherever you are.

If she has a sweet tooth, delicious cookies that can be delivered right to her front door are a super idea.

"My favorite gift is Fresh Milk & Cookies from Mrs. Fields (mrsfields.com). Imagine the look on her face when she finds the package on her doorstep," Boulton said. "It's tasty, it's unique, and it really says, 'I'm thinking of you.'"

Diamonds a Dozen

Women love diamonds, but if fine jewels aren't in your budget, buy her jewelry and accessories that can be worn for multiple occasions.

"Choose a piece that compliments her style and can be worn both day and night," Boulton said.

Carolee, which is carried at Macy's, offers beautiful collections ranging from classic chocolate pearls to unique beaded earrings, rings and bracelets. Carolee jewelry is the perfect gift because no matter where she is or what she is wearing, she'll be reminded of you when she wears it.

Sensual Scents

Women love cosmetics and fragrances — it makes them feel beautiful, confident and desirable.

"A sensuous fragrance such as the brand-new Danielle by Danielle Steel, which is available at Macy's, is timeless," Boulton said. "Classic fragrances are always a well-received romantic gift."

Remember, it's ultimately the thought that counts. The easiest way to wow your special someone this season is with a romantic gift that reflects her personality, likes, and style. A thoughtful gift is always the most cherished. Just ask your mom. she probably has all those homemade cards that you made as a kid still tucked away in a box in her bedroom.

TIPS

Play It Safe

There is safety in numbers, so heading to the shopping center with a group of friends or family and sticking together makes you less of a target. If shopping after dark, always park your car as close to the entry of the store as possible and find a spot that is under a light so the car will be visible and illuminated.

If you are bogged down by tons of packages you may not be able to react in the event of a theft. Therefore, space out shopping and deposit your purchases in your car periodically to keep your hands free as much as possible. Remember to keep gifts in the car out of view, so a trunk is the best place for storage.

Never flash your money conspicuously and keep your wallet or pocketbook close to your body at all times.

If you're paying with cash primarily (keep in mind credit and debit cards are safer), it's wise to spread out the money in different pockets or locations on your person. This way if you are robbed, you won't be lifted of all of your cash.

Always protect your credit and debit cards as well, and be aware of those around you when making withdrawals from ATM machines.

Dress Comfortably

Ensure your shopping excursion is as enjoyable as you can make it by dressing in comfortable clothing and shoes. Realize that it may be warm in crowded malls, so wear layers so that you can peel off an outer jacket or sweatshirt if you get warm.

Large winter coats can be bulky and cumbersome to carry, so consider leaving them in the car or checking them in if the store offers a coat check.

You'll be on your feet as you traverse the stores, so comfortable shoes are an absolute must. A shopping trip can be cut considerably short if the person doing the shopping is wearing the wrong shoes.

Safeguard Children

In busy stores it is easy for a child to become separated from a parent. Teach your children to go to a store clerk or security guard if they ever get separated from you in a store, and be sure they know their first and last name so they can tell someone who they are.

print more pay less.

introducing a radical idea in printing: affordable ink

Think about it: you buy ink a lot more often than you buy a printer. That's what makes printing expensive. So we did something about it. Now you pay just $9.99 msrp for a black ink cartridge and $14.99 msrp for a 5-ink color cartridge. So you can print documents and photos at home for up to 50% less than similar consumer inkjet printers*—without sacrificing the quality and ease you expect from Kodak.
