HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS REGIONAL REPORT

The buck stops where?

Lawmakers target townships in effort to save money and consolidate services

By Sean Dalton
 Heritage Newspapers

A bill at the state level is making plenty of noise, not because it might someday become law, but more because of the bigger ramifications it could have on government agencies, especially townships and counties.

A bill now being considered by state lawmakers would shift several essential services from township control to county responsibility, effecting some 55 percent of Washtenaw County's 351,232 residents currently living in townships.

One piece of legislation included in the bill would force drastic changes in the responsibilities of a township, including turning over local elections to the county.

House Bill No. 4780, or the Township Services Consolidation Act, would automatically effect 16 of Washtenaw County's 20 townships - with the other four (Pittsfield, Scio, Superior and Ypsilanti) needing evaluation of other criteria to determine whether they are subject as well.

State Rep. Paul Condino, D-35th District, is the architect of the bill. And while even he doesn't expect it to ever become law, it's the intent of the bill that is important and the reason he introduced it in the first place.

Condino said his sponsorship of the bill, along with co-sponsor state Rep. Virgil Smith, D-7th District, was a strategic move at the request of Speaker of the House Andy Dillon (D-17th District) to get the ball rolling on consolidation talks.

"There was no feeling to move these bills, but to start the debate," Condino said. "And boy did it work. This package of bills is just one part of a lengthy dialogue at the state level."

The package of nine pieces of legislation tied into the Township Services Consolidation Act (House Bills 4780 through 4788) was introduced during the May 17, 2007, House session and subsequently referred to the Committee on Intergovernmental, Urban and Regional Affairs, where it has remained untouched ever since. While no official action has taken place, the act has sparked plenty of discussion and debate, which was the intent all along.

On the ground

Saline Township Clerk Lois Baldus said having Washtenaw County run local elections would be one way to save cash.

"The waste of money and resources is just unheard of," Baldus said. "Our staff gets paid on an hourly basis, but I think with this election in particular, most of the ballots and all of the cost should have been covered by the state with help from the county clerk."

Baldus singled out the recent presidential primary because it was a statewide election with no local proposals or candidates on the ballot.

"We don't have a Qualified Voter System in place and have to rely on the county already for that, and they're very good at it," Baldus said. "It seems logical to me to just give them that responsibility. (Saline Township in particular) has all of the territories that people have to vote in for school elections, so we're kind of the odd duck."

She speculated that Bridgewater and Freedom townships would make the easiest transition to county administered elections, due to their small size. Baldus thinks that larger townships such as Lodi and Webster would be more difficult, and the affects would be more obvious with the larger population of registered voters

Mead, four other school staffers to retire in June

Chelsea High School principal retiring after 36-year career as an educator

By Edward Freundl
 Staff Writer

The end of this school year will mean the end of an era in the Chelsea School District.

Ron Mead, who has been principal of Chelsea High School since arriving here in November 1989, was one of five longtime educators to announce their retirement at Monday's Chelsea Board of Education meeting.

"I've been at it for 36 years; I thought it was time," Mead said Tuesday. He said he had no specific plans for his retirement, other than doing some part-time work either in or out of education.

The retirements were a surprise as a last-minute addition to the meeting agenda, according to Superintendent Dave Killips.

"I had to wait until they were all lined up before I could announce it," Killips said.

The retirement of Mead and four other faculty members, all effective at the end of the school year, represent 122 years of experience in education.

The others are:

- Jim Ticknor, sixth-grade math, global studies and reading teacher and JV baseball coach, South Meadows Elementary, 35 years;

- D'Ann Gietzen, second-grade teacher, North Creek Elementary, 26 years;

- Ruth Stielstra, fourth-grade teacher, Pierce Lake Elementary, 23 years; and

- Lu Kramer, media center paraprofessional, Beach Middle School, 19 years.

Dexter student suspended for creating 'kill list'

By Edward Freundl
 Staff Writer

A student at Creekside Intermediate School in Dexter has been suspended pending an investigation into a "threatening list" found at the school Friday, school officials said.

Dexter Community Schools Superintendent Evelyn Shirk said what one parent described as a "kill list" was discovered on school grounds by a substitute teacher.

The list allegedly contained names of students whom the suspended student may have wanted to harm, but Shirk declined to say how many.

The district is "taking this threat very seriously," according to a letter to parents that was sent home Monday.

"Appropriate disciplinary action will be taken as warranted pending the completion of the investigation," the letter states.

Creekside Principal Mollie Sharrar reiterated the points made in the letter.

"The student will remain suspended from the building for the duration of the investigation," Sharrar said.

"We're following school policies laid out in the handbook and working with

EMT dies after being struck

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

An emergency medical technician who stopped to assist a motorist at a crash scene Saturday morning was fatally injured when she was struck by another vehicle.

Cheryl Kiefer, 23, was part of a Jackson Community Ambulance crew that was westbound on I-94 returning to Jackson County when they observed an accident in the east-bound lanes at Kalmbach Road in Sylvan Township at approximately 6:07 a.m.

They turned around and were assisting the accident victim when, according to a Michigan State Police report, a 46-year-old Jackson man lost control of his vehicle in the east-bound lane and ran off the roadway, crashing into the first vehicle and pinning Kiefer between the two.

She was critically injured and trapped in the wreckage until extricated by Chelsea Area Fire Authority personnel.

CAFA Chief Jim Payeur said the terrain made rescue efforts difficult.

"She was trapped under an SUV, and the ground was very soft even though it was very cold," Payeur said.

"We ended up utilizing the rescue winch on the front of one of our trucks, and while one person provided care, we were able to lift the vehicle to free her."

JCA and Huron Valley Ambulance paramedics transported her to the University of Michigan Hospital Trauma Center, where she was pronounced dead at approximately 8:45 a.m.

Neither of the other drivers was transported from the accident scene.

State police said alcohol or drugs do not appear to be involved in the crash; however, road conditions due to inclement weather appears to be a primary factor in both crashes.

The road surface was icy and slippery, police said, and there are conflicting reports on whether there was sufficient salt or sand on the roadway for traction.

The State Police Traffic Crash Reconstruction Unit continues its investigation, and a report will be submitted to the Washtenaw County Prosecutor's Office for review.

Kiefer, a Brooklyn resident, had been with JCA for just over a year and was a former Columbia Township firefighter.

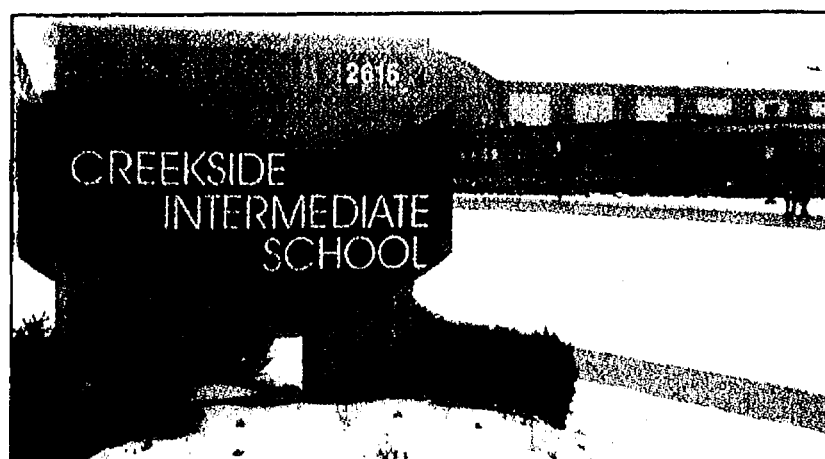

She is survived by her parents, Ronald and Kathy Kiefer, and her sister, Becky Verdier.

"Our thoughts and prayers go out to Cheryl and her family at this tragic time," said Joyce Williams, JCA/HVA public affairs manager.

Funeral services will be 11 a.m. today at the Somerset Beach Free Methodist Church, US-12 in Somerset Center, approximately four miles west of US-127.

Following the funeral, there will be a procession from the church to Highland Cemetery in Brooklyn for burial.

There will be a luncheon afterward at the Michigan International Speedway Entertainment Building.

with law enforcement to conclude the investigation."

Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department spokesman Cmdr. Dave Egeler confirmed the investigation.

"School officials notified us and one of our deputies investigated, but the school system is going to handle it internally," Egeler said Monday. "We have no other details to give out."

Creekside Intermediate serves students in grades 5 and 6.

"We have had kids make threats, but I have never had anything of this nature happen before," Shirk said.

"When the police were involved and the staff at the school was involved, we determined that there was no intent to act upon the list because the student doesn't have the means," she added.

Shirk would not disclose the gender or grade level of the student because federal privacy laws limit the information officials can share about certain incidents.

Police warn public about e-mail ticketing hoax

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

A widely distributed e-mail message about the Michigan State Police conducting a "30-day speeding ticket frenzy" is completely false, according to MSP officials.

"There is no such effort under way at this time, or any time in the future, to generate revenue through the issuance of traffic citations," reads an official statement from the state police.

Citizens should regard the warning as nothing more than an urban legend, according to the statement.

State Police Public Affairs spokeswoman Shanon Akans said versions of this e-mail have been circulating in cyberspace for a few years.

"This is the third year we've seen it circulated in January or February," Akans said. "They first started showing up in New Jersey in 2003."

Several other states including Hawaii, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and Oklahoma have also been targeted in this hoax.

"Any traffic enforcement that is done is not to raise revenue but to increase traffic safety and to change driver behavior," Akans said.

She added that the e-mails often contain "red flags" that reveal them as hoaxes.

"They talk about part-time troopers, and the State Police has no part-time troopers," Akans said. "It may say we're in unmarked Crown Victorias, and the State Police doesn't use them for enforcement."

Local law enforcement officials said they have seen no local variants of the fictitious e-mail.

"We've had no information on that," said Chelsea Police Chief Ed Toth Jr., and a Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department official concurred.

"No, not at all," said Public Information Officer Cmdr. Dave Egeler, who added that he has seen the same state police bogus e-mail before.

"It seems like it comes up every time the state is going through a budget crisis."

Akans appealed to people not to perpetuate the fiction by forwarding the bogus e-mails.

"When people see these things, we ask them not to pass them on; more times than not these things don't have a basis in fact," she said.

"There are a lot of scams and fictitious warnings going around on e-mail. People need to use common sense and not believe everything they see as truth."

Cops nab motorist carrying dead man's driver's license

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Chelsea police described the discovery of a deceased man's driver's license in the possession of a much younger motorist as "suspicious circumstances."

According to a report, at 9 p.m. Jan. 14 an officer observed a silver Honda Civic with an outdated license plate and expired license tags driving north on Main Street near Orchard Street.

The officer followed the vehicle as it turned east on Park Street, north on East Street, then east on East Middle Street, and initiated a traffic stop.

When the driver, a 23-year-old man, presented his license and other paperwork, the officer noticed he also had the driver's license of a much older man in his wallet.

When questioned, the driver said he found the license at a local grocery store a few weeks ago and had been meaning to turn it in to police, the report stated.

The officer wrote the driver a citation for expired license tags, then turned his attention to the second license.

A computer check showed no record for it, so the officer confiscated the license and returned to the police station to check it against another database.

He discovered it belonged to a 66-year-old Ypsilanti man who died in March 2006, the report stated.

The Chelsea officer contacted an Ypsilanti police detective, who confirmed the man died of natural causes and supplied contact information for the decedent's relatives.

On Jan. 17 the Chelsea officer contacted the man's sister, who said she does not shop where the license was supposedly found, the report stated.

The deceased man's former girlfriend told police she neither recognized the 23-year-old man's name nor know how the license ended up in Chelsea.

She also suggested it could have been due to an earlier home invasion/larceny incident.

Chelsea Area Police Briefs

Domestic assault arrest

At 9:35 p.m. Jan. 2, Chelsea police were dispatched to a home in the 100 block of Grant Street for a reported domestic assault.

According to a police report, the officer was met outside the home by the victim, a 60-year-old Chelsea woman, who was bleeding from several cuts on her face.

The woman said her male housemate had punched her "a couple of times" in the face during an argument.

The suspect, a 61-year-old Chelsea man, told the officer they were arguing because "it's his house and she thinks she's in charge," the report stated.

The man denied striking the woman but said she hit him, and the officer noticed a small cut on the bridge of the man's nose.

He told the officer he tried to throw the woman's antique chair out a window but it struck her in the face instead.

The officer, who knew the couple from previous domestic complaints, noted in the report that both appeared to be intoxicated.

The man admitted drinking "five or six beers," according to the report, and a preliminary breath test registered a .198 blood alcohol content. The woman said she had been drinking wine and beer, but was not given a PBT.

The man was arrested and jailed for domestic assault, and the Washtenaw County Prosecutor's Office authorized prosecution.

Exhaust part stolen

Police were dispatched to a restaurant in the 1600 block of South Main Street at approximately 8:30 p.m. Jan. 4 for a reported larceny from a vehicle.

According to a report, a female employee told police she arrived for work at 4 p.m., and when she went out to the parking lot to warm up her vehicle it made an unusually loud noise.

She had a co-worker look underneath the Pontiac minivan and he discovered the catalytic converter was missing.

The officer also looked, and confirmed that a two-foot section of exhaust pipe directly under the engine containing the converter had been removed with a saw.

No physical evidence was found and there was no surveillance video, so there are no suspects.

Bicycle turned in

A police officer was dispatched to South Meadows Elementary School at 10 a.m. Jan. 8 to retrieve abandoned property.

According to a police report, a school employee told the officer that a bicycle and helmet had been left at the school since October, and she has not been able to find the owner.

The officer brought the bicycle back to the Chelsea Police Department for storage.

Gas drive-off reported

An employee of a gas station in the 500 block of South Main Street reported to police that a motorist had driven away without paying for fuel at 2:49 p.m. Jan. 8.

According to a report, the attendant described the driver as a tall, white female with black hair and the vehicle as a white- or cream-colored Mini Cooper.

The attendant told police the woman drove away without paying for $37.75 in gasoline and headed south on M-52, but he was unable to get a license plate number.

Suspended license

While on patrol at 12:35 a.m. Jan. 9, an officer observed a car enter the parking lot of a gas station on M-52 just north of I-94.

According to a report, he radioed in a records check on the license plate and discovered the driver had a suspended license as of Jan. 4.

The officer watched the vehicle leave the station and turn south on M-52. After the vehicle stopped in the southbound lane and backed up to the westbound I-94 onramp, he initiated a traffic stop.

The driver, a 24-year-old woman, told the officer she thought her license was still valid because she was making payments on a previous traffic ticket, the report stated.

The officer collected the woman's license and vehicle registration and discovered she had no proof of insurance.

The woman was issued a citation for Driving While License Suspended, and called her brother to retrieve the vehicle.

iPod stolen from school

At approximately 4:40 p.m. Jan. 11, a 14-year-old boy reported that his iPod had been taken from a locker room at Chelsea High School.

According to a report, the youth told police he arrived for cross country practice at 3:10 p.m. and put his clothes and the iPod in a locker but did not lock it. When he returned he discovered the device missing.

There are no suspects.

Yard signs taken

A 57-year-old Chelsea man reported to police that a political sign had been taken from his yard in the 300 block of Washington Street on Jan. 11.

According to a report, the homeowner told police an unknown suspect got out of a dark-colored SUV with a chrome luggage rack and took the sign.

He added that this was the fifth time the sign had been taken, the report stated.

The officer suggested the man put the sign in a window inside his house to secure it, and said police would increase patrols in the neighborhood to look for the vehicle.

Chelsea students meet Huckabee at DEC speech

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

A group of Chelsea High School seniors recently had the chance to come face-to-face with the presidential campaign, courtesy of the Detroit Economic Club.

Nine young men and women in Dave Pedlow's economics class were among several school groups invited to meet Republican candidate Mike Huckabee during his Jan. 11 appearance at the Detroit Economic Club.

They were not only guests for the luncheon and Huckabee's speech, they were taken backstage to meet personally with the former Arkansas governor and ask questions of him.

"I told them, 'How many chances are you going to have to shake hands with a presidential candidate?'" Pedlow said. "It was a real neat thing for them to go down there and do that."

Pedlow noted that the DEC invited eight to 10 schools to the luncheon event, and member businesses paid for it all.

In recent weeks several candidates have been asked to speak to the influential group of corporate decision-makers and political opinion-setters.

"I had been in discussions with them for months on the date, and we finally settled on Jan. 11," Pedlow added.

The girls were Anna Schroen, Vanessa Young, Ashley Rock and Anna Rowland.

All were honored to be invited, and kept an open mind on what they heard.

"We had a chance for a personal Q&A with Huckabee before the speech, then lunch and his speech," Schroen said. "It was cool to go."

"Since we're all going to be voting in the November election, it was good to see a candidate," said Rowland.

"Mr. Pedlow has been talking about taxes; we can now make a more informed decision," said Rock.

"Now I really want to see other candidates," said Young. "He was really funny, and personable."

"A lot of people would find him tolerable," Schroen said. "A lot of what he said made sense."

Pedlow said the students had discussed Huckabee's tax plan in class, but didn't look at the event from a political point of view.

"We looked at it more from an economic standpoint," Pedlow said.

"We kind of talked about tax structure in class, so his talk made a lot of sense," said Case.

Tisdale added: "He talked about the Michigan economy a lot and his fair tax plan."

"It was neat to think he might possibly be president and we got to meet him," Johnson said.

Unfortunately for Huckabee, his personal charisma and persuasiveness weren't quite enough for this crowd.

"I'm just getting interested in politics; I didn't hear anything that really changed my mind," said Martin.

"I liked him more after he talked, but not enough to make me want to vote for him," Johnson said.

Chelsea News in Brief

Meeting for parents

An informational meeting will take place at 7 p.m. Monday in the Chelsea High School auditorium for parents of eighth-graders who will attend CHS in the fall.

The meeting will cover state-mandated graduation requirements, an overview of four years at CHS and a tour of the building and classrooms.

Parents also will be able to meet some teachers and ask questions about freshman year.

Legion Winter carnival

The American Legion Post 31 Winter Carnival is set for Friday, Saturday and Sunday at 1700 Ridge Road, Cavanaugh Lake in Chelsea.

Events will include a euchre tournament at 7 p.m. Friday; on Saturday, breakfast starting at 7 a.m., chili cook-off tasting at 2 p.m. and a blackjack fun night from 7 to 11 p.m.; and on Sunday, a breakfast at 7 a.m., D.J. and dancing at 2 p.m. and a raffle drawing at 5:30 p.m.

A fishing derby will take place Saturday and Sunday, if ice conditions permit.

The event is sponsored by the Sons of the American Legion.

Earth Day event OK'd

The Chelsea City Council gave its blessing to a group that is organizing Earth Day activities for April 26.

Kathy Muha and Kerry Church of the Chelsea Earth Day Committee asked the City Council on Jan. 22 for permission to close part of a downtown street to set up booths and displays at the Chelsea Train Depot.

"It's a good thing for Chelsea, it's the first one," Muha said.

They asked to have Jackson Street closed, but maintain access to the Chelsea Farmer's Supply store.

"We have the depot rented and we'll have a couple of tents in case it rains," Church said.

Church, a Chrysler employee, noted that the Proving Grounds would have a display of cars and fuel efficiency products.

"The purpose is to inform and educate people as much as possible," he said.

Mayor Ann Feeney gave the go-ahead for the event.

"It appears the consensus (of the council) is, this is a good thing; go for it," she said.

Electric chief OK'd

The Chelsea City Council approved Bob Shepherd to serve as interim superintendent of the Electric Department on Jan. 22.

The recent resignation of Superintendent Andy Johnston and December retirement of foreman Paul Newhouse left the department with a lack of experienced leadership.

Shepherd has nearly 20 years of experience in the field. He worked for the village from 1993 until his retirement in 2004.

He was hired for a 90-day term at $45 per hour, which is in line with the level of duties, salary and benefits of the former superintendent.

Petraeus nor Ambassador Crocker is satisfied with the present level of violence, but the counterinsurgency strategy implemented by Gen. Petraeus has allowed American and Iraqi forces to stabilize and secure much of Iraq.

Enemies of freedom in Iraq, such as al-Qaida, Sunni militias and Shia extremists, are in retreat and violent deaths are down throughout the country.

Both the general and ambassador acknowledge a carbon copy of America is not expected, nor is it necessary, but Iraq must continue to become more independent and accept greater responsibility. While meeting with the general, I was told the Iraqi army is stepping up and now suffers three times the casualties suffered by U.S. troops.

Overall, casualties have declined.

• Our troops are true heroes.

The men and women in uniform I met with moved me with their incredible courage and dedication. Our troops are resolute about completing their mission and creating an environment where Iraqi forces can step up and fight consistently on their own behalf.

The troops feel the American public is not getting a full perspective about positive developments in Iraq. Many have started their own blogs or Web sites to communicate their point of view.

We all should be extremely proud of our soldiers, and I encourage you to keep them in your prayers.

• Serious challenges remain.

In 2008, a force draw down will begin, and many troops will return home. However, many more will remain to train Iraqis, help them enforce recently passed de-Baathification laws and enable the Iraqi government to resolve legislative issues.

RV dealership reports theft, damage

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Chelsea police investigated a recent string of larcenies and vehicle damage at a recreational vehicle dealership in Chelsea.

According to police reports, sometime between 7 p.m. Dec. 29 and 7 a.m. Jan. 7 two 27-inch televisions were taken from separate vehicles parked on the lot.

The RVs apparently were not locked, dealership staff told police, but the locks were damaged on three other RVs without gaining entry.

Staff told police that the suspect or suspects climbed 16 feet onto the roof of the showroom to reposition video surveillance cameras.

The total value of the stolen value of the TVs was $1,080 and the cost to repair the damaged locks was $225, the report stated.

In a possibly related incident, officers returned to the dealership on Jan. 14 when employees discovered power cords had been cut off and stolen from five RVs parked in the lot.

According to a police report, unknown suspects gained entry to unlocked cabinets in the rear of the vehicles and cut off 25 feet of the 30-foot cords.

No usable fingerprints were recovered from the remaining cords.

Total value of the damaged cords was $700, plus $450 in repair costs.

This incident occurred sometime between 6 p.m. Jan. 11 and 7 a.m. Jan. 14, the report stated.

Reports from both incidents were forwarded to a Michigan State Police team that is investigating similar RV complaints.

Actuary lists options for city council to fund retiree benefits

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

The city has ample time to discuss and decide how to fully fund retiree benefits before new accounting standards take effect next year, according to a financial expert's report.

Mary Chandler, an actuary with CBIZ Benefits & Insurance Services of Ohio, presented an in-depth report on financing health-care costs for city retirees and offered several options to the Chelsea City Council on Jan. 22.

The actuarial report did not look at pensions; it was an "OPEB valuation," Chandler said, which refers to the cost to the city of "other post-employment benefits" such as medical, dental and vision coverage.

The federal government, through the Government Accounting Standards Board (GASB), will require municipalities to adopt stricter financial standards beginning next year.

"GASB decided more accurate financial statements of municipalities should reflect the value of retiree benefits," Chandler said. "There are penalties involved if the city does not fund them. It reflects badly on the city's creditworthiness if there is no plan of action."

Chandler said the city's liability for active workers and retirees, known as Actuarial Present Value of Benefits, was $4.35 million as of June 30, divided among non-union salaried personnel ($3.27 million), Teamsters ($909,395) and police ($172,204).

Other key figures she looked at in her report were Actuarial Accrued Liability (the amount allocated to past service) of $3.5 million; and the Annual Required Contribution of $345,362 needed to meet those liabilities.

Chandler gave the council four options to consider, noting that "there are a lot of unknowns when trying to project health-care costs over 20, 30 or 40 years."

"You're not required to report it until 2009, but it's good to start the conversation now," Chandler said.

The first option is to continue the "pay as you go" system the city has been using, which pays retiree costs from the general fund.

The second is to put the annual contribution in an irrevocable trust. "The city has no claim on it, it reflects favorable on the city's financial situation, and it guarantees the money will be there for the retirees," Chandler said. Third would be to issue a GASB bond. "You'd be trading a 'mortgage payment' for a bond, but it locks the city into a long-term financial deal."

The last and likely the most controversial option would be to restructure all or parts of the benefit program, including eligibility requirements.

"Look at all the parties, decide what's feasible and what's not," Chandler said. "Right now they can retire when age plus years of service equals 70, and that accounts for $2.5 million of the $3.5 million of Actuarial Accrued Liability."

She also suggested changing the age of retirement, the amount paid to retirees and their spouses, delaying the start of payments or amending the benefits that are offered. "There are a wide variety of practices out there," Chandler said.

"Pension benefits stop when Medicare kicks in, so the city could cover early retirees only; or increase co-pays, which is not popular; or reduce retiree contributions."

There was no need for extended council discussion or action other than to accept the actuarial report as presented.

City Manager John Hanifan said the council would consider all the options at an upcoming work session. "It will be discussed further at the council retreat in February before it comes back to the council for a vote," he said.

In other business, Director of Administrative Services Kim Garland made a presentation on proposed changes to the city's Web site and the possibility of accepting tax payments online.

"The current template offered through the county is outdated," Garland said. "It doesn't allow some things we can maintain on the site.

The new site is to be implemented in February, she noted. "The police department could manage its own linked page, council members can have their own pages, and permits and licensing could be processed online," she said.

Garland presented several page mock-ups with different features and in a variety of colors that appear to be a definite improvement from the current site at www.city-chelsea.org.

"We think it would increase Web site traffic," Garland said. "It has a new look and feel."

Program encourages people to extinguish smoking habit

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

An intensive 12-day program to help people stop smoking is coming to Chelsea next week.

The "Breathe Free Smoking Cessation Program" is a series of seminars designed by Dr. Arthur Weaver to help people become smoke-free and stay that way.

The free seminar is being sponsored by the Chelsea Seventh-Day Adventist Church and St. Barnabas Episcopal Church, and will take place at Chelsea Community Hospital's White Oak Center.

The interactive group seminars meet from 7:30 to 9 p.m., beginning Feb. 7 with an introductory session explaining the program and preparing participants for the nicotine withdrawal process.

The program continues each night from Feb. 10 to 14, and concludes Feb. 18 with a "graduation" program.

Participants are instructed in how to handle the smoking urges and what to expect for withdrawal symptoms.

They also learn how to handle the much longer-lasting psychological associations that can cause them to return to the smoking habit.

Each session consists of a video presentation explaining a particular aspect of the smoking problem.

This is followed by group interviews and interaction when participants discuss their success, failures and symptoms experienced.

There is then a lecture by the group coordinator on how best to be successful in becoming and remaining smoke-free, and the benefits of giving up the smoking habit.

One session is used to explain how to stop smoking without gaining excessive weight.

Participants are also given information on other lifestyle changes that increase the likelihood of remaining smoke-free.

Dr. Weaver is a general surgeon and professor of surgery emeritus at Wayne State, serving there for 38 years.

He is widely recognized as metropolitan Detroit's leading anti-smoking crusader. He has used the program in the Detroit area since 1966 and has helped an estimated 100,000 people stop smoking.

His clinics have been sponsored by several schools and major corporations, and he has shared his expertise in several states and with clinics in Russia, Pakistan and Taiwan.

To register for the program call 475-4103, or leave a message at 734-332-9121.

HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS REGIONAL REPORT

Local lawmakers weigh in on consolidation

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

Washtenaw County officials agree that the Township Services Consolidation Act most likely will never be anything more than an act. And while some might not agree with the method taken to create the discussion, the discussion is both important and necessary.

"I certainly don't support it in its present form," said state Rep. Pam Byrnes, D-52nd District. "I think it's generating discussion on regional efforts, which is good. It's encouraging townships to look at some new ideas."

Byrnes characterized Washtenaw County as being "on the cutting edge" of regional cooperation, pointing out the Chelsea Area Planning Team, Dexter Area Regional Team, the Southwest Washtenaw Council of Governments, Saline Sustainability Circle and the Washtenaw Metro Alliance as examples of regional cooperation.

She also singled out the Washtenaw Intermediate School District as another example of consolidation and cooperation.

"(This legislation) certainly brings our attention to some of the places where we have duplication of efforts and we need to 'de-duplicate' them," Byrnes said. "Maybe this could be used in other parts of the state to urge cooperation where it's needed, but the actual bills are bad, and I'm not alone.

"We're all just trying to make government more efficient and less costly, and that's the desire here. But we really need to look at energy standards, water withdrawal, mortgage lending issues and many other issues."

Washtenaw County Commissioner Jeff Irwin, D-11th District, sees regional efforts as a natural extension of the evolution of townships in Michigan.

"We have a local governance structure in place here putting as much power as local as possible," he said. "This was for the reality of 1827, when people felt that you should be able to get in your buggy and go to the township hall and be home by nightfall. But, in 2008, that is a bit of a different concept."

"It makes a lot of sense to consolidate many functions. I hope that people are going to be comfortable putting some of those functions up to a greater level and getting the job done at a lower expense."

Irwin envisions townships gradually letting go of the reins when it comes to services and responsibilities that are not core to the character of a community. "Functions that are more tightly connected to those issues of place and sense of community will remain there, such as land use and zoning" he said.

Irwin sees election administration as a good candidate for county administration.

"The stuff that is more administrative and ministerial makes sense for consolidation," he said. "Whatever happens is going to be the state's decision. We're all Michigan."

residing in those townships.

Saline Township has 1,300 registered voters to Lodi's almost 6,000. Baldus mentioned as an illustration.

"I think most townships have so much work to do that I don't think the elections would hurt anyone's feelings," she said.

Freedom Township's new supervisor, Dale Weidmayer, said that the consolidation act has been an ongoing topic of discussion at his board meetings, and the consensus is that townships are the most efficient form of government.

He also said that some things, such as building permits, are already handled regionally through the Western Washtenaw Construction Authority.

"Right now, we have a permit through Western Washtenaw ... Through the county it takes longer, so I think we would be losing a lot of efficiency if that came about in that case," he said.

Weidmayer said that the county does a good job with its assessment duties, but that there are disadvantages in a broad sense.

"What we've noticed is if you don't do it yourself, you have to give the money out, but to get the money back is a problem," Weidmayer said. "With Western Washtenaw permits, we can do it at a little bit cheaper rate than the county, and the one thing about it is if you do things locally, you have a tendency to have quicker service for the people. Sometimes they want a permit in the morning and they can call in and by the afternoon they have it."

Seio Township Board Trustee David Nacht, who is not seeking re-election

this year, took the discussion much further than other local officials and said that he sees consolidation and regional efforts, not primarily as a cost saving measure, but as a means to reduce inefficiencies in public policy.

"We have gone overboard in this state with local control," Nacht said. "We have terrible regional planning. It's terribly difficult for the Ann Arbor region to plan land-use issues, and why? Because every local zoning board or planning commission or township board can make decisions about developments in their community, and that means that a developer that can bring in a large development that will have a significant impact on a region has to persuade all of these bodies and the neighbors of the development's merit."

He said that townships being steered by neighborhoods is natural "by definition," and that resistance depends on the perspective of residents.

"If you want affordable housing, you would be OK with a block of housing being built," he said. "But if you live in a larger house or are an existing homeowner, you don't want the traffic or anything reducing your home's value."

Nacht said urban sprawl is becoming more of an issue in Washtenaw County. "The notion that we can't plan at a regional

Tax rebate idea divides leaders

The Michigan Senate and House GOP leaders may be on the same team, but when it comes to a tax rebate, they are not on the same page.

One popular indoor winter sport for the media is to push a wedge between members of the same party. For months, the sometimes "rocky" relationship between Gov. Jennifer Granholm and her sometime lieutenant in the House, Andy Dillon, has filled hundreds of column inches.

Now come Mike Bishop and Craig DeRoche. Both from Oakland County. Both conservative politicians. Both with higher aspirations — and both on different sides of the tax rebate issue.

When the story broke earlier this month that Michigan rather miraculously had a $350 million surplus, the anti-tax crowd, along with normal folks, witnessed some type of disconnect.

After all, the story line for the last year was the state's deficit. Then, out of nowhere, came a surplus.

Never mind that there was an explanation from the administration.

DeRoche conveniently ignored that and launched his bid to take back control of the Michigan House by warmly embracing a tax rebate for every resident. The rebate was chump change, but that was not the point. Politics was.

Ever since DeRoche and company frittered away GOP control of the House in 2006, he has been on a dogged mission to redeem himself. To hijack a phrase, he'll go anywhere and do anything to beat the Democrats next November.

I'll bet the governor was madder than a wet hen when DeRoche popped off about the rebate. Her administration dismissed his gambit as "silly and irresponsible."

DeRoche contends the rebate news conference was not 100 percent about regaining House control, but also had to do with avoiding a structural budget deficit. Under intense questioning, he finally conceded that, "It absolutely had to do with connecting with the voters and it's an issue for the campaign."

In strong contrast to DeRoche, Bishop issued a three-page media release concerning the $350 million that was more moderate in tone, without a peep about a tax give back.

Bishop remained silent on the DeRoche rebate until he showed up at a recent conference with his Democratic counterpart Dillon.

"The reality is ... there is not a surplus at all," Bishop conceded. If there was, he quickly added, he would give the money back, too.

Dillon saw the issue for what it was, an election year GOP ploy to win back control. Bishop, not wanting to offend his pal DeRoche, was somewhat evasive as he Fred Astaired around the uncomfortable questions that ensued.

"I don't think it was purely political to talk about giving money back that came from the taxpayers in the first place," he tapdanced.

Well, if it wasn't "purely" political, maybe it was partially political?

He didn't want to tackle that question either.

"I don't think it would help anything if I were to do that," he said. Translated: You can't goad me into bashing DeRoche, but nice try.

Finally he gave a little ground "I can't tell you that was a political statement or not, but I will tell you that this is an election year and you'll see a lot better stuff than that."

In case you can't read between the lines, he just conceded DeRoche was playing politics for political gain, but Bishop never said it.

To the Editor: The Republican strategists are loading their favorite trap to steal your vote in the coming election. The trap is simply to distract you from voting for your own self interests by filling you with fear over some social issue.

Recent elections have been dominated by fears that gays were out to destroy the institution of marriage. I don't think that will work again. Most people have always realized that the strength of their marriage has only to do with the love in that relationship. By now people understand that gays only want basic rights and respect.

Now "immigration" is the new source of election-altering fear. Immigration policies are in desperate need of revision. Fear, however, will make the situation worse, as fear always does. But, if we take the time to understand the problem from the immigrant's perspective, we can address the real issues.

With some tolerance and compassion, certainly two significant Christian virtues, we can understand that faced with deep poverty we might also choose to give up our homes and risk our lives to come to a country where we don't know the language — one where we will be in debt for years while working the most menial of jobs and risking deportation — just for the chance of a better life.

For most of us, only the lucky randomness of our birth has spared us from such a fate.

Please consider that fear is an unhealthy source of personal and political motivation. Tolerance and compassion offer enlightenment.

To the Editor: I was dismayed to see me "quoted" as saying that "the schools should teach more about the principles that Dr. King lived and died for" (in the Jan. 24 edition).

The Chelsea schools were doing a fine job of teaching our children about

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and the principles he worked for, long before there was a Holiday celebration in Chelsea. In fact, the selection of this year's Carrying the Dream Award recipients, the principals of the three elementary schools, is evidence that the schools continue to do so.

If I said anything, it would have been that our community needs to recognize that the purpose of the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. Holiday is to be a day "on" not a day "off." One World One Family encouraged the Chelsea School District to honor this holiday by not scheduling classes so that families could participate in activities related to that purpose — education, celebration, community service.

Diane Jonas Locker
Chelsea

(Editor's note: The sentence in the article Diane Jonas Locker refers to was not a direct quote. It said: OWOF Secretary Diane Jonas Locker said schools should teach the principles that Dr. King lived and died for. The sentence was not in quote marks. In the above letter to the editor, Jonas Locker also included the word "more" in her "quote," which the Chelsea Standard did not. We did not say or attribute to anyone that the schools should teach MORE about the principles of Dr. King. We stated that Jonas Locker believes schools should teach the principles of Dr. King. We, like many people, agree with that statement. We also stand by our original story.)

To the Editor: I just finished reading Angie Thiel's guest column about the man who came into the coffee shop the day after Christmas (Jan. 10).

What a heart warming story! Who knew that the kindness of one man would touch so many others in one day. To hear that so many people responded in kind confirms what many of us already knew. Dexter is a special place and much of that has to do with the kind of people who call it their home town.

Thank you "Medium Skim Mocha, No Whip" for making this a story that Angie could share with the rest of us.

Our take: Moving up primary well worth it

Michigan's early primary has to be called a success.

Yes, the Democratic party, for the most part, shunned the state and the Republicans still may not allow the full Michigan delegation to vote at the nominating convention this summer. But the controversial action of pushing up the primary date has had several positive results.

Michigan made not only statewide but national news. The primary, with all of its controversy, was called the "third major" primary of the election season by national media.

It has been credited with giving the Mitt Romney campaign a rejuvenating shot in the arm, even though he is a homegrown product and many could argue he should have easily taken the state.

Romney is again seen as a viable candidate in a three-way, rather than two-way race, with Sen. John McCain, R-Arizona, and Mike Huckabee, a former Arkansas governor.

But the primary has done even more.

With the national spotlight on the state, even just briefly for a day or so, Michigan's economic problems got some badly needed national attention. Americans heard about the loss of jobs overseas and dire straits many industries, particularly the auto, are now facing.

It should make many citizens in other states think twice about what's happening, not just in Michigan but possibly in their states, too, as Michigan's eight-year recession suddenly looks like it might be spreading to other parts of the nation.

Hopefully, Washington has also taken note as representatives there hear from their constituents, who may be concerned not only about Michigan's plight but their own pending economic woes.

It wasn't an easy decision to move up the primary date and it didn't sit well with the national parties. Two of the three leading Democratic candidates — Sen. Barack Obama of Illinois, and former North Carolina Sen. John Edwards — opted not to be on the ballot, leaving New York Sen. Hillary Clinton's name as the only Democratic front-runner before voters. And all three vowed not to campaign in Michigan after the primary date was moved forward.

Also, the Democratic party has threatened not to accept the Michigan election results and the Republicans say they may seat only half of Michigan delegates at their national convention this summer. There is some speculation these restrictions may be lifted by the time of the conventions.

However, all of the GOP candidates were on the ballot and the front-runners campaigned in the state.

So, with the national attention Michigan received, particularly the spotlight on our economic problems, you have to conclude the calculated risk of moving up the primary was worth it, no matter what happens in the months to come.

Condino said the feedback of his sponsorship of the act as been "active and ongoing," especially from township officials throughout the state.

"At a Michigan Township Association forum in September, there was a large response to the bill," Condino said. "The question was whose jobs were threatened, and what would this mean for township supervisors and other employees. But there were also some interesting ideas of consolidation that have come from these same discussions."

Under Michigan law, township clerks handle municipal and school district elections, while township supervisors, treasurers and assessing officers employed by a township handle tax collection and property assessment. If the act passes, these duties would shift to the county clerk, county treasurer and county equalization department, and would be conducted locally by the administering county officials.

The county also would conduct school elections and qualifying townships would have to reimburse the county for those services rendered.

The act would affect those townships with a population of fewer than 10,000 people or a township that has between 10,000 and 20,000 residents, but doesn't provide fire and police service on a 24-hour basis, either through contracting or by directly providing those services. Townships in that population range must also provide water and sewer to 50 percent or more of its residents.

Condino has denied claims that this consolidation talk is an attack on the township form of government and an attempt to eliminate it, saying that is "simply not the case."

He admits that the public

Consolidation Act: By the numbers

Michigan Township Association study findings and positions in response to House Bill 4780, the Township Services Consolidation Act:

- Approximately 95 percent of townships would be affected by the Township Services Consolidation Act.
- According to the study, 69 percent of townships surveyed reported administering their own property assessment, 10 percent use the county and 19 percent contract with a private provider.
- Counties with greater than 145,000 residents (large) had equalization department staffs four times as large as counties with 40,000 to 111,000 (medium) residents and five times as large as counties with fewer than 30,000 residents (small).
- Average salaries per equalization department employee were $68,776 for large counties, $59,724 for medium-sized counties and $47,104 for small counties, "increasing with the complexity inherent with larger populations."
- Of the 32 counties surveyed, 28 responded that they didn't have the physical capacity to perform township assessing functions, and all but two reported that they didn't have the labor capacity, with the majority of counties estimating the need to hire three to five new employees and three needing 20-plus new hires.
- Just 19 of the 32 surveyed counties would spend more than $2 million more to provide the same assessment services that all of the 508 provide. The township numbers are from the Michigan Department of Treasury and the county figures are estimates based on projected wage and capital expense increases.

has been quiet on the issue, but the few who have contacted him have been supportive of the idea.

Condino said the House drafted the Township Services Consolidation Act after Gov. Jennifer Granholm presented last year's State of the State Address, calling for a "transformation of government" into something more "lean and mean."

Granholm called for state government to root out inefficiencies and do more with less through reforms as quickly as possible because of the state's continuing budget issues.

"We've saved hundreds of millions of dollars through initiatives like bulk purchasing of prescription drugs, new protections against food stamp fraud and forcing state departments to share services," Granholm said in the address.

Since 2002, the state has 7,000 fewer employees, she said at the time. "In fact, the size of the state government workforce is smaller today than it was in 1973, yet these state employees are serving over a million more citizens today than they did in the '70s," she said.

"Michigan's counties, cities and villages, townships and school districts all must do more to share and consolidate resources."

Townships already have been taking measures to consolidate as a result of changing requirements attached to state revenue sharing.

To qualify for revenue sharing from the state, a municipality often must demonstrate movement toward shared services or consolidation with nearby units of government at the local or county level. Progress in those areas is measured by a dollar figure that represents taxpayer savings or, as the state calls them, efficiency milestones.

"It's simple," Granholm said. "When they show us they're consolidating or sharing, we'll show them the money."

Similar consolidation requirements are attached to school district funding, urging school districts to move services to the county or state level.

Leslie Fritz, budget spokeswoman for Granholm, said penalties mentioned in the address could be included in the budget, which will be presented on Feb. 7.

Penalties would reduce state revenue sharing if local governments don't demonstrate to the state that they are creating cost efficiencies. Incentives were the goal in the previous budget, Fritz said.

"Instead of penalties, one of the things that (Granholm) proposed last year were incentives for local government," Fritz said. "We originally tied that to revenue sharing, but our last budget did not include that piece."

The proposal was to reward municipalities that met a cost-savings benchmark.

Fritz said whole township services could be a means to that end, but said that "less drastic steps," such as fire services, trash pickup and group purchasing, also could be used to meet the benchmarks.

"This legislation is a dramatic example of the things we are talking about, but just getting the conversation started is an essential first step that I think it has accomplished," Fritz said.

"In this economy, local government looking to save money is just as important as the state looking to save money."

EMU Gymnastics Team Set to Defend Its MAC Title By Steve Wilce

EMU Women's Gymnastics Head Coach

Paid Advertisement

The Eastern Michigan University women's gymnastics team enters the 2008 season with a lot of optimism.

We are the defending Mid-American Conference champions and the preseason favorite to repeat!

We return the majority of last year's team and feel that we are much improved over the 2007 season.

This year's team is led by tri-captains Maureen Moss, Nicki Brostek and Jolene Worley. Jolene is a senior and the defending MAC All-Around Champion. She will be one of the top contenders again this season and is on track to have a great senior season. Other EMU gymnasts to watch are: junior Zu Young who will be a top all-arounder again this year. Zu is good enough to win it all and is very consistent and very exciting to watch.

Senior Tawna Bennett is the most powerful athlete on the team. She has led the team on vault all three of her years and is very good on every event.

Sophomore Erin Grigg will burst on the scene this year. Erin is very exciting and will be our best in floor and vault. She is one of the most dynamic athletes we have ever had.

Monica Lucas is a junior and one of the most consistent gymnasts on the team. Watch for her on vault, bars and beam.

Mickayla Balow was second on floor at last year's MAC Championship. She promises to be very good again this year.

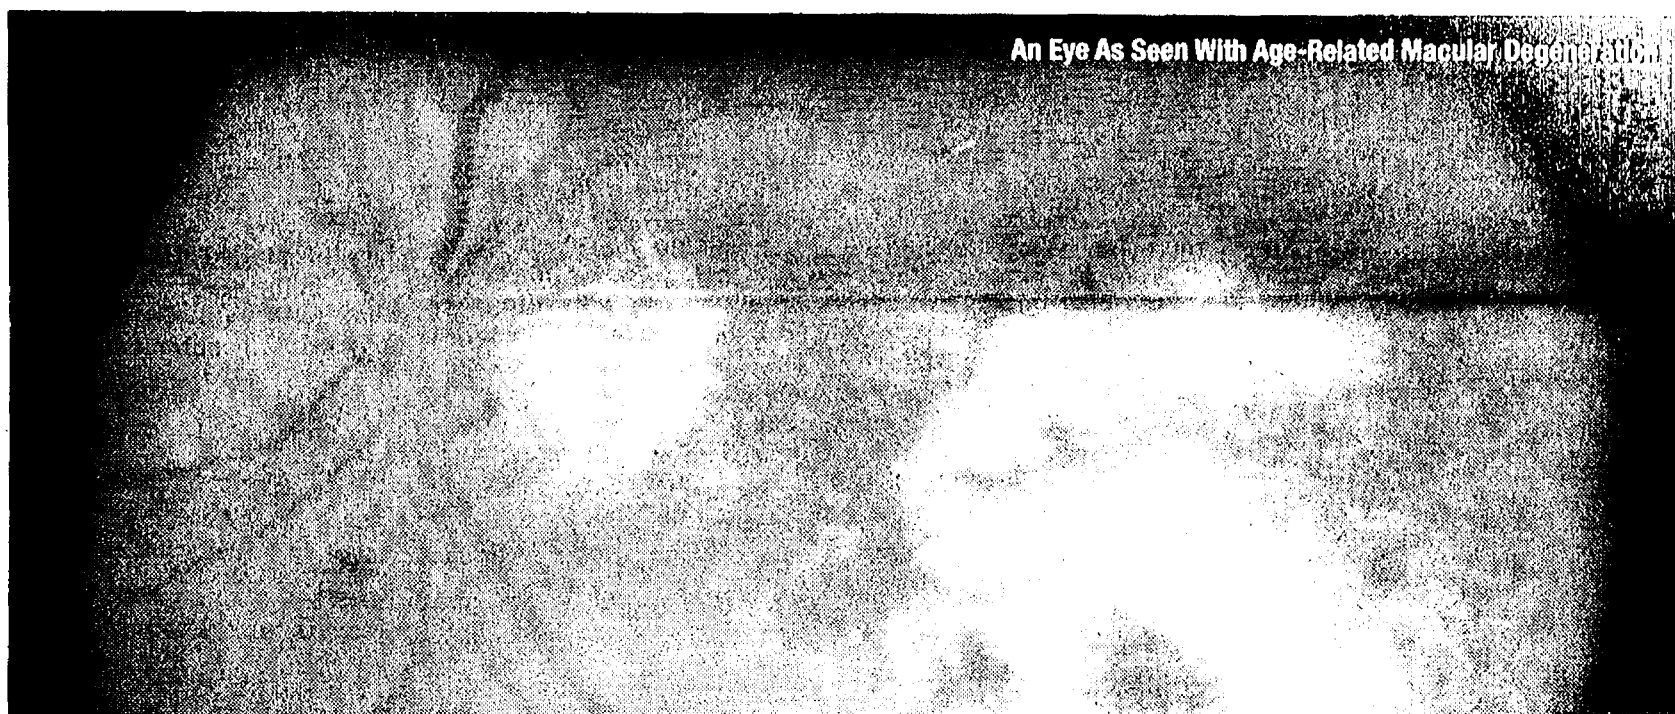

We opened our title defense with a close loss at Bowling Green and then came back in our first home meet with a big win over Central Michigan. That CMU competition was a combined beauty and the beast meet with the EMU wrestling team taking on Central Michigan in Bowen Field House while our gymnastics team competed against its CMU counterpart.

We have three home meets left starting with Saturday's, Feb. 2, Michigan Classic with EMU, WMU, CMU, Michigan and Michigan State all scheduled to compete in the 7 p.m. competition in Bowen Field House. After the Michigan Classic we host WMU, Feb. 16, at 4 p.m., and the Eagle invitational, March 8, at 1 p.m. We will be competing against Air Force, Northern Illinois, Illinois State and Brown in the Eagle Invitational.

We invite you to come out and watch our team!

An Eye As Seen With Age-Related Macular Degeneration

FAQ ABOUT AMD

Frequently Asked Questions About Age-Related Macular Degeneration

It is estimated that between 13 and 15 million Americans have evidence of AMD. If you or someone you know is at risk for AMD, schedule a comprehensive eye examination with your Vision Source doctor now.

What Is AMD? AMD stands for Age-Related Macular Degeneration, a disease that breaks down the macula – the light – sensitive portion of the eye that allows you to see fine detail. It blurs the straight-ahead vision required for activities such as reading or driving.

What Causes AMD? The causes of AMD are still unknown. One form of AMD (Dry) may be caused by aging and thinning of the macular tissues, pigment deposits in the macula, or a combination of the two. The other form of AMD (Wet), results when new blood vessels grow beneath the retina and leak blood and fluid. This leakage causes retinal cells to die and creates blind spots in central vision.

What Are The Symptoms? Early symptoms of AMD includes blurred vision or dark spots in the center of vision. The symptoms can appear painlessly and gradually, making early detection and treatment essential.

How Can AMD Be Detected? Early-stage AMD can be detected through a comprehensive eye exam that includes a visual acuity test and dilated eye exam. If AMD is detected, further tests may be required.

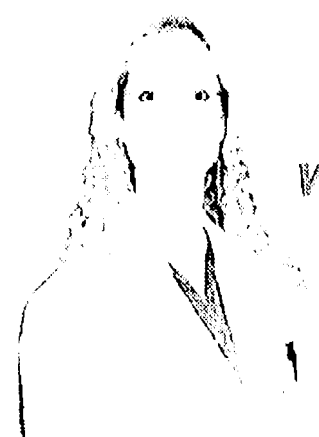

Who Is At Risk? Risk factors for AMD include smoking, high blood pressure, obesity, and family history of AMD. Also, whites and females are more prone to AMD.

Can AMD Be Cured? There is no cure for AMD at this time. There are, however, certain treatments that can slow or minimize vision loss, and, in some cases, even improve vision.

How Is AMD Treated? There are several treatment options that your eye doctor may consider, including:

- Vitamins. Research suggests that certain vitamin supplements taken in combination may reduce vision loss in some stages of AMD
- Drug Therapy
- Laser Surgery (Wet AMD)

What they're saying

"The question was whose jobs were threatened and what this would mean for township supervisors and other employees," said state Rep. Paul Condino, D-35th District.

"The size of the state government workforce is smaller today than it was in 1973, yet these state employees are serving over a million more citizens today than they did in the '70s, (and) our local partners must do the same," said Gov. Jennifer Granholm in her 2007 State of the State Address.

"This legislation is a dramatic example of the things we are talking about, but just getting the conversation started is an essential first step that I think it has accomplished," said Leslie Fritz, budget spokeswoman for Gov. Jennifer Granholm.

"(This legislation) certainly brings our attention to some of the places where we have duplication of efforts and we need to 'de-duplicate' them," said state Rep. Pam Byrnes, D-52nd District.

"I've always offered to townships and villages to blend our services together to increase efficiency ... I think we should continue to offer that, but I don't think we should force other governmental units to surrender those activities unless they want to," said Washtenaw County Commissioner Mark Ouimet, R-1st District.

"The premise that townships need to be singled out for shock and awe ignores that townships are very involved in collaborative agreements," said Michigan Township Association Executive Director Larry Merrill.

level in a meaningful way is damaging the economic health of our entire community.

"(The township) boards are under significant pressure to reject or block or slow down (certain developments) and taxes, particularly in Scio Township, are slim already at just 1.5 mills.

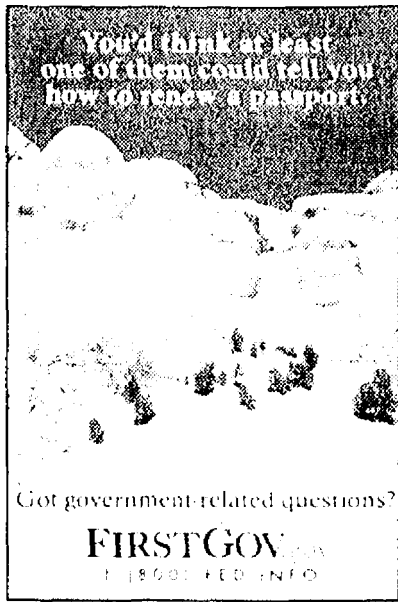

"In a time of economic tightness, where we've lost half a million jobs and people are leaving the state in droves, we cannot afford to have layers of government soaking up taxes and getting in the way of the private sector generating economic growth."

He added that Scio Township had roughly 8,000 residents 10 years ago and now has 20,000 residents — growth that he credited to "the economic vitality of Ann Arbor," while at the same time "all of the action is at the local level."

"I'm all for strong neighborhoods, but if the region suffers because of a number of decisions that are of benefit to particular neighborhoods, then ultimately the neighborhoods suffer in the end," Nacht said.

public meetings and has recently been attempting to build congruence in municipal emergency response and victim management plans with the county's standards.

His view of consolidation is more consumer-friendly toward townships.

"I've always offered to townships and villages to blend our services together to increase efficiency," he said. "I think we should continue to offer that, but I don't think we should force other governmental units to surrender those activities unless they want to."

Ouimet said he believes that consolidation will happen "naturally" as other units of government reach the point of being unable to afford rendering those services, which would then be sent up the ladder to county and state control.

"We're here to help and if you want it, that's fine. But when I ran four years ago, one of the issues that I ran on was protecting the sovereignty of individual units of government and only partnering when they want it," Ouimet said.

Some of what he would consider successful collaborative efforts between the county and individual municipal entities include:

- The adoption of software and hardware standards utilized by the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department and Chelsea Police Department.

- Collective purchasing of capital equipment and supplies through 1Washtenaw, a countywide initiative to assist communication and collaboration among the 29 local units of government.

- Various regional planning efforts.

Ouimet said boundary conflicts are one of the major issues to come before the county in recent years. In particular, two annexation requests have come up in his district between Dexter Village and Scio Township. Both times, he has been an advocate of letting residents settle the disputes at the local level.

"If people in those subdivisions want to stay in the township, that is what they should be able to do," Ouimet said. "That is why we offer the regional planning approach, if the township wants to take advantage of it. But I don't think it should be forced. The economy moves us in that direction where it's needed."

A real scream

Chelsea man designs the perfect companion for the sports fan

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Sports fans show their team loyalty in lots of ways, but a Chelsea man used his automotive design background to come up with something that should really turn some heads.

Todd Kauranen refers to his creation, The Screaming Fan, as "aesthetic automotive art."

"I had been joking around with guys at work and molded this thing, and the guys responded to it really well," said Kauranen, who owns TEK Design Studios in Chelsea.

His "day job," however, is a pre-production prototype product designer for Ford Motor Co., which he has done for almost 20 years.

The Screaming Fan is a three-dimensional molded plastic figure of a man's head and shoulders, with his mouth open wide to cheer his team to victory.

A bracket on the back attaches to the top of a car window, giving the visual effect of a head sticking out the window as the car goes down the road.

Kauranen came up with the idea in 2003, and has spent been working to come up with different color schemes to appeal to different markets as well as finding a way to manufacture and market the devices.

"After developing a few prototypes and testing out material to see if I could produce these myself I realized that I had to source it from somebody else," he said.

There are four color schemes available:

— "Blue Spirit" and "Green Spirit" are compelling to any sports team from Little League to professionals. The blue is matched with yellow, so it could appeal to either Michigan Wolverine or Chelsea Bulldog fans; the green is offset with white, the colors of Michigan State or Eastern Michigan University.

— "Redline," with its checkered flag, speedometer and flames, is directed toward the motorsports fan base.

— "The American" has a red, white and blue, stars-and-stripes pattern.

That particular model is Kauranen's favorite for a very personal reason.

"It's about supporting our troops and country," he said.

His stepbrother, U.S. Marine Sgt. Brian Burgess, was killed by a sniper in Iraq on Nov. 10, 2006.

"That's why 'The American' is so much more meaningful to me," he said.

Kauranen's initial production volume is 1,000 units of each of the four models, but hopes to expand to World Cup soccer and many other possibilities to reach as wide a market as possible.

He is selling them direct for $15 plus shipping and handling through his Web site, TheScreamingFan.com.

Kauranen said with the outlook being gloomy for the automotive industry, he needed to look seriously at his alternatives.

"Since the auto industry has been on a downward spiral, and I don't like having all my eggs in one basket, I started quoting jobs for after-hours work," he said.

"After a few years of doing this I decided to start my own business, and in July 2005, TEK Design Studios LLC was born."

He has used his creative talents for a number of non-automotive ventures as well.

"I also do commissioned art for clients, such as furniture, paintings, etc.," he said, "and I have also created sculptures for a number of charities."

But The Screaming Fan got its start "as a gag," Kauranen said.

He started a sculpture of a man hanging out of a window screaming at his colleagues and put on the side of a full-size clay model at Ford.

He then cast the sculpture in plastic and put it on his own car window, and response to it as he drove around was unexpectedly strong.

"People would be doing double-takes all the time," he said. "(They) would come up and ask where I got this thing. I would tell them that I made it, and they would ask me how much it would cost if they wanted to purchase one."

That gave him the idea to produce these for the public.

"Knowing that sports are one of America's favorite activities, and playing on the vanity of car owners, I thought that combining these two would be a safe bet," Kauranen said.

"Blue Spirit" (above) is one of four models of The Screaming Fan, a molded plastic automotive accessory that attaches to a car window and is designed to appeal to sports fans. It was designed by Todd Kauranen of Chelsea, a prototype product designer for Ford Motor Co. "Green Spirit" (right) also is available for MSU fans.

Adopt-A-Farm: The Series

The wives club

Role of 'farm spouses' evolves to confront economic necessity

By Edward Freundl

Staff Writer

Life on the farm has changed dramatically over the years for the "farm wife."

More often than not, modern economic realities dictate that they take a job off the farm so their husbands can continue to farm.

Carol and Sue Huehl are equal partners in the family farm with their husbands, Denny and Jerry Huehl, but both had to find full-time work away from the farm in order to raise their families.

"It's hard to be a full-fledged, stay-at-home 'farm wife' anymore," said Carol,

The series follows brothers Jerry and Denny Huehl throughout the year to bring you in-depth stories to raise public awareness about the challenges faced by farmers in an increasingly technological society.

who is married to Denny. "We really need the benefits through work."

Carol Huehl works at the Michigan Educational Credit Union on Jackson Road, and she also is a member of the Freedom Township Planning Commission.

"It was my dream that I could stay at home and help on the farm, but the way the economy went and with the insurance, I had to get a job," Carol said.

Her sister-in-law agreed.

"There aren't many wives that don't work at least part-time; it's really for the insurance," Sue said.

Mother & Daughter team

Local artists to exhibit at CCA

By Sheila Pursglove

Special Writer

Like mother, like daughter, as the saying goes — in this case, an artistic mother-daughter duo.

Chelsea artist Karen K. Smith and her mother, Ethel Kobach, will team up for a joint exhibition, "Water & Sand," running Feb. 4-April 4 at the Chelsea Center for the Arts, 400 Congdon St., in Chelsea.

An Artist Reception is set for 5 to 8 p.m., Feb. 23.

Smith and Kobach will exhibit their own interpretations of nature and beauty in different mediums bringing together "Water & Sand."

Smith, who works in fused glass, teaches at the CCA where she works part-time as administrative assistant. Her classes are very popular, according to CCA Program Director Leslie Greeneisen.

"Karen enthusiastically shares her wealth of knowledge and encourages creativity in students of all ages," Greeneisen says.

Smith also teaches classes at the Chelsea Senior Center, where her sessions are in great demand.

"Karen's sparkling personality, energy and zest for living make all of her classes dynamic and fun," says the center's Director, Tina Patterson. "Her creativity is boundless."

Working in her home studio, Smith creates functional work as well as whimsical items and is known for her fused glass dishes that feature "magical" dragonfly imprints.

Using both modern and traditional forms, her techniques expand into new realms of art interpretation.

Intricate wall hangings, garden chimes, glass sculptures, and jewelry often echo themes from nature.

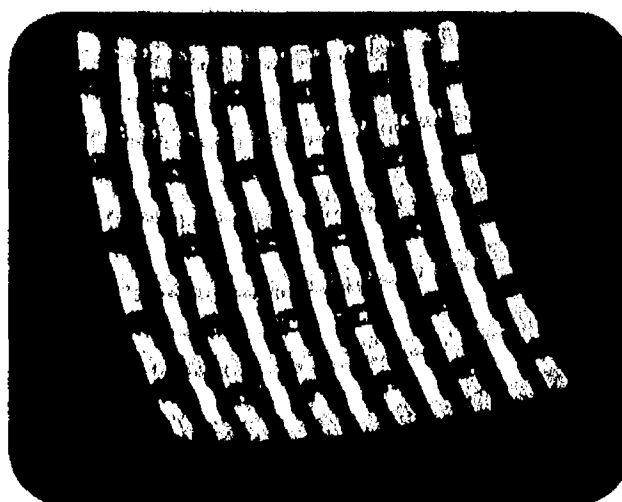

That love of nature includes a passion for animals. Smith and her husband provide a home for rescued animals on 10 acres north of Chelsea. At "Rottweiler Camp" as Smith calls it, the pair has two rescued Rottweilers, a Russian Trakehner mare and Lil' Bit, a burro.

"With all the animals in need of homes, rescuing is the right thing to do," she says.

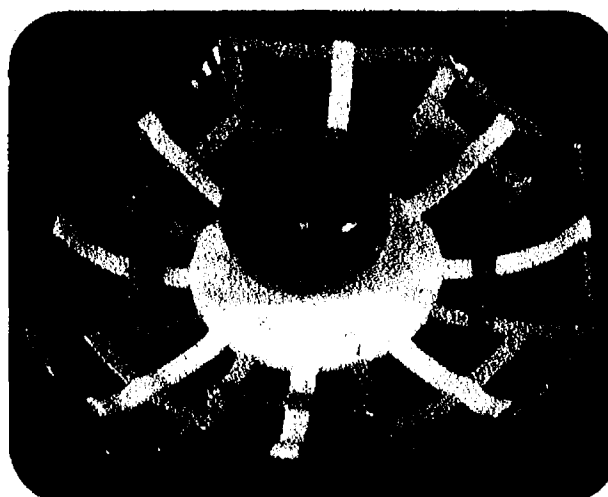

Smith's glasswork is available at West of the Moon Gallery where she has been an active member of the Cooperative since its inception in 2005. She honed her skills for eight years studying with local stained glass artist Bill Darwin before finding her own niche in glass art.

Her fused glass can be found in several places around Chelsea. Her glasswork forms the center of the Pathway to Renewal at Timbertown and also is part of the Hands of Time Quilt installed in the courtyard of the McKinley Clocktower complex that features memorabilia from Chelsea's past.

David Hopkinson, Jay Williams, Kevin Jones and Chris Kieltyka hunt for stoneflies in Mill Creek at Shield Road.

HRWC event draws 150 searchers

"We had a marvelously successful Stonefly Search on Saturday with 150 people, some from Dexter, Chelsea and other areas in the Mill Creek watershed," said Joan Martin of the Huron River Watershed Council, which hosted the event. "Teams of enthusiastic residents had a wonderful time searching 56 different sites on the Huron River and its streams. We were pleased to find the young stoneflies in the water under the ice in many of the streams."

The results will be available from the Huron River Watershed Council following analysis of the data. Results from recent studies can be viewed at www.hrwc.org.

The study welcomes people who would like to participate in measuring many aspects of the creek. There is no charge for training or participation.

The next event will be on April 26. Contact Joan Martin at jmartin@hrwc.org or 769-5123, Ext.11.

Washtenaw County

'Success By Six' offers assistance to in-home child care providers

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Success By Six is offering training for child-care providers in several locations over the next few months.

The initiative has been sponsored by the Washtenaw United Way, the Washtenaw Intermediate School District, the Ann Arbor Foundation and Washtenaw County government for the past two years.

"It is for people who don't otherwise seek out child-care training to get that training close to home, and it improves their abilities as a child care provider," said Sian Owen-Cruise, Success by Six program manager.

"We're trying to make it more accessible for providers."

The training includes child-focused topics like guidance and discipline, health and safety, food and nutrition and child development.

It will also cover the business aspects of providing in-home child care, community resources, parent-provider relationships and professionalism.

Training sessions began in Ann Arbor late last year, and are scheduled in three other areas in the coming months: Western Washtenaw (Chelsea, Dexter and Manchester), Ypsilanti and Willow Run.

Training will take place one evening a week during March and April, with exact dates and meeting locations to be determined.

The sessions may take place in Chelsea or Manchester, depending on the number of providers who sign up.

"We hope to have about 25 providers, which should impact about 50 children," Owen-Cruise said.

The target audience for the training sessions are not only Department of Human Services (DHS) providers, who tend to be grandmothers or other extended family members, but also informal providers, according to Program Specialist Nike Griffin.

"We offer this training, in part, to make sure that informal and DHS relative aide caretakers learn more about child care, and have a place to come together as a caregiver community," Griffin said.

"We hold the training sessions from 5:30 to 8:45 p.m., and we serve a hot dinner to participants at each training."

"The sessions are informal, so caretakers can come as they are, and incentives such as toys, gift certificates, and books will be offered to each child-care provider at the end of each night's training," Griffin added.

DHS providers are also eligible for a stipend of $150 when they complete the five training sessions.

Participants do not have to be licensed day-care providers, and free transportation to the sessions is available if needed.

It's all about doing the best job possible in taking care of kids.

"Our mission is to see that every child enters school ready to succeed in school and in life," Owen-Cruise said.

"Our role is to find out what's missing in the system and make sure it gets there."

For more information on dates and locations or to register for the training sessions, call 734-994-8100, ext. 6877; or e-mail agriffin@wuway.org or sowencruise@wuway.org.

Q&A: With Leslie Greeneisen, CCA director

Leslie Greeneisen, Program Director for the Chelsea Center for the Arts. For more information, contact Leslie at 1-734-433-2787 or log onto www.chelseacenterforthearts.com

When did you first get involved with CCA?

I left my previous employer with the thought that I was going to take some time off to do my art. The position was posted and I joined the team at the CCA in October 2006 as the program director, which is still my current position.

What is your role as director?

My role is to develop a schedule of classes and programs to provide art instruction for students of all abilities and interests each term. I am also responsible for programming such as concerts, outreach and community art projects. The Newsletter and all publicity also fall under my direction.

How does the CCA work?

The CCA is a non-profit organization whose purpose is to develop, foster and promote the arts as experiences central to the lives of the citizens of Chelsea and the surrounding area. We are financed by program fees, private and corporate donations and grants. We rely heavily on volunteers and supporters to keep us going both financially and programmatically.

How has CCA changed since you became involved?

Arts organizations seem to go in cycles from very busy to very slow. When I started, registration for the visual arts was fairly low and went down from there. Today, our registrations are going very well and participation is up considerably. Our private music instruction has increased since my hire by almost 25 percent to serve over 135 students last semester. Lisa Hinz-Johnson, the Director of Music, oversees well qualified instructors of piano, guitar, flute, violin, cello and voice.

The CCA has also gone through several executive directors in the past few years. With the vision of each director, we are finding our niche and our direction.

Why is CCA important to a community?

We add to the quality of life in Chelsea. The community has become such a vibrant arts community with the Purple Rose, the wonderful art galleries and art groups and the incredible music instruction throughout the community including the schools. The CCA encourages and nurtures this growth for artists of all ages and abilities. We also serve on several community festival committees including Sounds and Sights and Summerfest.

Our Building is home to three non-profit organizations. The Purple Rose has workshop and rehearsal space, the Chelsea Co-op Preschool is located in our lower level and the Chelsea Center for the Arts classrooms are located on the second level of this historic old catholic school.

Is CCA only for Chelsea residents?

We are open to anyone regardless of where they live.

What are some of the highlights coming this year?

We have lots of great workshops this winter and spring. Our first ones scheduled for Jan. 19 and Feb. 14, 15 and 16 are for watercolor artists.

On Jan. 23, we will have a "Soup Swap" as part of the 2nd National Soup Swap. ZouZou's, a local coffee house and deli, will be on hand to serve up three of their best soups for $3 a serving and folks can purchase a hand made bowl created and donated by local potters to go with the soup. Those who attend are asked to bring a can of soup to swap to help fill the pantry at Faith in Action. This event will take place at the CCA from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. to help raise funds for our pottery program.

During Spring Break, we will have a Spring Mud Fling designed for families to come and play in the clay. We'll have a different clay project each day, April 1, 2 and 3, from 10 a.m. to noon. Space is limited and advance registration is required.

Anything new coming this year?

Watch for announcements about our exhibits in the Center Gallery. There are new ones every few months spotlighting local artists with artist receptions that are free and open to the public. We will also be hosting a spring luncheon, putting together great summer camps, having family participation days and putting another outstanding party at Autumn Jubilee.

How can people get involved?

Anyone can get involved at the CCA from volunteering in the office or Center Gallery, participating on a committee for the Autumn Jubilee, our annual fundraising auction in October, or taking classes, for instance. Those interested can call the CCA at 734-433-2787 or stop in. We are located at 400 Congdon St., Chelsea.

Since moving to Chelsea in 1982, Smith has been an active member of the art community. She has been a volunteer for Chelsea Summerfest for the last five years, coordinating Articipation, which brings together artists from Chelsea and surrounding local communities.

"Karen's enthusiastic and unique leadership style has helped grow the fine arts portion of Summerfest, to exceed our expectations," says Bob Pierce, executive director of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce.

"She has established a rapport with artists, merchants and the community at large.

"It makes the Articipation portion of Summerfest a pleasure for all."

Smith grew up with art. When she was a teen in high school, over 30 years ago, her mother began painting in oils, a natural progression for Kobach who found her artistic feet as young as six, when she began drawing at home and in school.

"I was an honor roll student so my teachers let me draw during history classes," she says. "It was a good way to get out of other classes. I drew during lectures I found boring."

After starting with oils, Kobach found a different passion.

"I switched to watercolors, because oil was a pain in the neck," Kobach says. "For the last 10 years I've used only watercolors."

She studied with John Peters, a member of the Ohio Water Color Society, at the Senior Center in Mentor, Ohio. Impressed with Kobach's sketches Peters encouraged her to learn different watercolor techniques.

Kobach paints for fun and enjoyment as a hobby, and her husband Carl builds the frames and mats her work. Some of her work is on exhibit in her nephew's dental office where his patients often purchase them.

Mother and daughter are excited about the CCA exhibit.

"I feel privileged and lucky to have an opportunity to show art with my mother," Smith says.

the trauma program at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

It's no secret that farming is hard work, but the women work just as hard and just as long as the men in order to keep the farm going.

"We do all the work a husband would normally do around the house — the lawn, the garden, the painting — to allow them to do things to take care of the farm," said Sue. "It's nice that we have each other to help out."

But all that time spent working comes at a cost.

"I know it's a lot of long hours from their standpoint, but there's not a lot of together time," Carol said. "We have to make up for it in the off-season."

Even so, a large dairy operation like Huehl Acres doesn't allow for much of an off season.

"It seems like it was easier when we first got married, but back then we didn't have the seed business, and didn't have the heated workshop," Sue said.

"It doesn't seem like there's a lot of down time anymore, especially with the livestock."

"It would probably be easier if we just grew crops."

Married to the farm

Carol married the older Huehl brother, Denny, in 1979. Sue and Jerry were married the following year.

A set of fortunate circumstances allowed Carol and Denny to move into the house just next door to the north of the main farm.

"When this place came available, Huehl Acres bought it from Chuck and Peggy Buxton, but it was originally known as the Alfred Kuhl Farm," Carol Carol Huehl decorates her farmhouse with cows, a reminder of the farm's major source of income.

"There were a couple of other possibilities, but we bought this place a couple months before getting married."

The timing couldn't have worked out better, Sue noted.

"We could have ended up five or 10 miles apart," she said.

Carol and Denny have three children: Stephanie, Thomas and Nicholas; Sue and Jerry's children are Kate and Robert.

Because of their proximity, each woman helped raise the other's kids.

Their husbands' schedules took a toll on the kids, too.

Even ordinary things like a long weekend away or a family vacation has to be carefully choreographed.

"When the kids were little (Sue and I) did a lot of the parenting, but we understood (the men's) responsibilities," Carol said.

"It was hard for the kids; they'd see other kids' parents at school events but you could count on your hands the number of things Denny went to."

"It takes a lot of understanding to do what we do," she added.

Then and now

Carol grew up on South Union Street in Grass Lake near the old athletic fields, and her father inherited a farm from his father on Norvell Road.

"Our home in the village burned in 1976 so we moved out to the farm," Carol said.

She compared what life on the farm was like, and how it's changed in a relatively short period of time.

"Farming's a lot different from when I grew up," she said.

"You have to have more knowledge of how to raise crops, of the equipment and technology."

"You used to have family involved more, you didn't have to hire outside help."

Sue has also seen how the business of farming has become more complex.

"You need to have a lot of certifications now, and you're driven by a lot of regulations."

Although Carol grew up on a farm, Sue's family was a couple of generations removed from the land before relocating here.

"I came from Livonia, then my parents bought 20 acres on the other side of the farm (south on Fletcher Road)," she said.

"It was kind of a culture shock, but it was OK. We really liked it - I came from a family who liked to camp."

Although her grandparents had a farm, Sue was completely unfamiliar with a ritual of the rural lifestyle.

"We'd never been to a fair; we didn't even know what one was," she said.

These days both Huehl families are deeply involved in the Chelsea Community Fair and others in the region.

"The fair is a good place to bring city and farm together; it's an educational thing, too," Carol said.

Looking to the future

The habits learned in an entire lifetime working virtually seven days a week, from before sunup to long past sundown, don't just go away when you apply for Social Security.

Both women said the Huehl brothers are not the retirement type, and that's OK with them. They are proud of what their husbands have built, and the work ethic it has instilled in their children.

"His idea of retirement is just tweaking what he does now," said Sue.

"It really gives you a sense of commitment. People know you know the value of the day and you know what hard work is."

Carol said farming is in their blood; it's not something you can just turn off when you're done.

"I'm married to a farmer, we're not going to retire; that's how we were raised," Carol said.

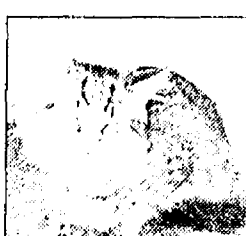

"Their hearts are in farming - it's what they love to do."

Group supports Farm to School program

The Food - System Economic Partnership was recently awarded a $20,000 grant from the Americana Foundation to support its Farm to School program.

The Food System Economic Partnership is a regional nonprofit organization encompassing five counties in Southeast Michigan — Wayne, Washtenaw, Jackson, Lenawee, and Monroe. The partnership was established in 2005 to catalyze change in the food system by providing research, education and outreach with urban and rural partnerships resulting in agricultural development opportunities, sustainable communities and healthy local economies.

The Farm to School program connects area schools with farm fresh foods. Schools buy and feature farm fresh foods such as fruits and vegetables that are grown regionally and farmers have access to a new market through the schools.

The program is also designed to educate students about local food and sustainable agriculture. The Farm to School grant will enable the Food System Economic Partnership to bring more locally produced healthy foods into schools in Southeast Michigan.

Chelsea's boys' basketball team lost to host Ann Arbor Pioneer 63-42 last Saturday. The Pioneers (12-0, 7-0 Southeastern Conference) are ranked No. 3 in the state in Class A.

"They're a very good team," said Chelsea coach Robin Raymond. "We knew they'd be fired up, since we beat them twice last year."

Ann Arbor opened the game taking a 14-6 first quarter lead.

"They came out like a house ablaze," Raymond said.

In the second quarter, the Pioneers increased their advantage to 32-18 as the two teams headed to the locker room.

At halftime, Raymond knew Chelsea (8-5, 6-3) had a significant challenge ahead of itself in the third quarter.

"The third quarter has been their (Pioneer's) best quarter of the year," he said. "All year long they've come out and buried people. They did that to us."

In the third frame, Pioneer outscored the Bulldogs 27-9 taking a commanding 59-27 lead into the fourth quarter.

In the fourth stanza, Chelsea kept battling, outscoring Ann Arbor 15-4 for the night's final margin.

"We knew they'd be a huge challenge," Raymond said. "But we kept fighting up until the end."

Leading the Bulldogs was junior guard Michael Roberts with 10 points. Junior forward Jake Mantel added seven points and three rebounds, while senior forward Greg Rebulde had six points and three rebounds and senior guard Matt Schwarze six points and two assists for Chelsea.

Junior center Michael Stratman (6-foot-7) had five points, a team-high five boards and two blocked shots, while senior forward Stu Mann had four points and three rebounds.

Senior guard Elliot Marshall and junior guard Brett Everding each finished with two points for the Bulldogs.

Chelsea was 16-of-32 from the field for 50 percent. Ann Arbor was 24-of-50, including 9-of-12 from three-point land, for 48 percent.

At the line, the Bulldogs were 8-of-15 for 53 percent. Pioneer was 6-of-8 for 75 percent.

Ann Arbor out-rebounded Chelsea 28-21, including 11-5 on the offensive glass.

The Bulldogs committed 22 turnovers, while Pioneer had 16 miscues.

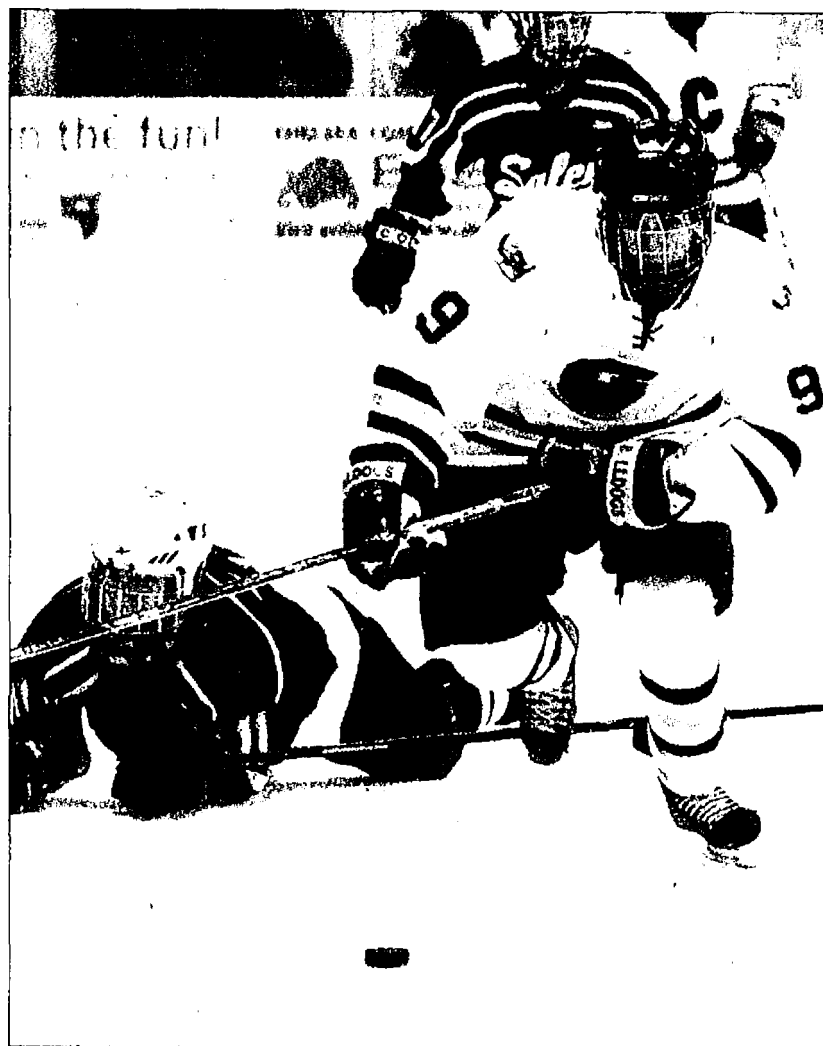

Raymond came away impressed with the Ann Arbor club.

"They play 32 minutes of all out basketball," he said. "They don't take a possession off. They play four guards and a center."

Raymond said the Pioneers like to spread opponents out offensively.

"They have Zach Williams (6'5, 215 pounds) at center and Matt Johnson (6'4) at the point," he said. "He's (Johnson) one of the best around. Then they position two guys in the corners. When they're knocking shots down from the out Chelsea hockey defeated visiting Salem 5-1 last Saturday. The Bulldogs (10-5-2) answered the bell nicely after playing one of their worst games of the season in a 9-3 loss to Howell the previous day.

"I was pleased that we responded after the Howell game," said Chelsea coach Don Wright. "We played very well."

To begin the first period, Chelsea sophomore Drew Brown scored off a pass from senior Matt Prince for an early 1-0 Bulldog lead.

At 2:00 of the second period, the Rocks' Joel Cheesman scored to tie the game at 1-1.

Four minutes later, senior Kyle George scored giving Chelsea a 2-1 lead. Picking up an assist for the Bulldogs was senior Andy Korc and Randy Cox.

At 14:25 of the second period, junior Steven O'Keefe scored upping Chelsea's lead to 3-1. Senior Matt Heinen and Brown each recorded an assist on the goal for the Bulldogs.

In the third period, George scored his second goal of the night at 4:35 of the frame, turning the light on off an assist from Cox and Prince.

At 12:05 of the third period, Brown put Salem away scoring his second goal for the game's 5-1 final margin. Freshman Steve Lesko and Cox picked up assists on the play for Chelsea.

The Bulldogs out-shot the Rocks 26-16 for the game.

Earning the win in net for Chelsea was junior goaltender Joey Hume.

In stark contrast to last Saturday's crisp, well-played victory over Salem, the Bulldogs suffered through a 9-3 loss against host Howell last Friday. The nine goals allowed are a season high for Chelsea.

The Highlanders, who have been in and out of the state's top 10 in Division 1 all season, scored five unanswered goals in the first period.

"We had an awful first period," Wright said. "Howell did a great job. We weren't ready to play. They attacked us hard. That (falling behind by five goals) hasn't happened to us all year. Everything they did went in the net in the first period. If you allow five goals in the first period, you're in trouble."

The Highlanders began the scoring with a goal by Eric Cosellian 40 seconds into the first period.

At 1:46 of the first period, Ryan Ronowski scored for a 2-0 Howell advantage.

Brandon Burton made it 3-0 Highlanders with a goal at the 7:47 mark of the first period.

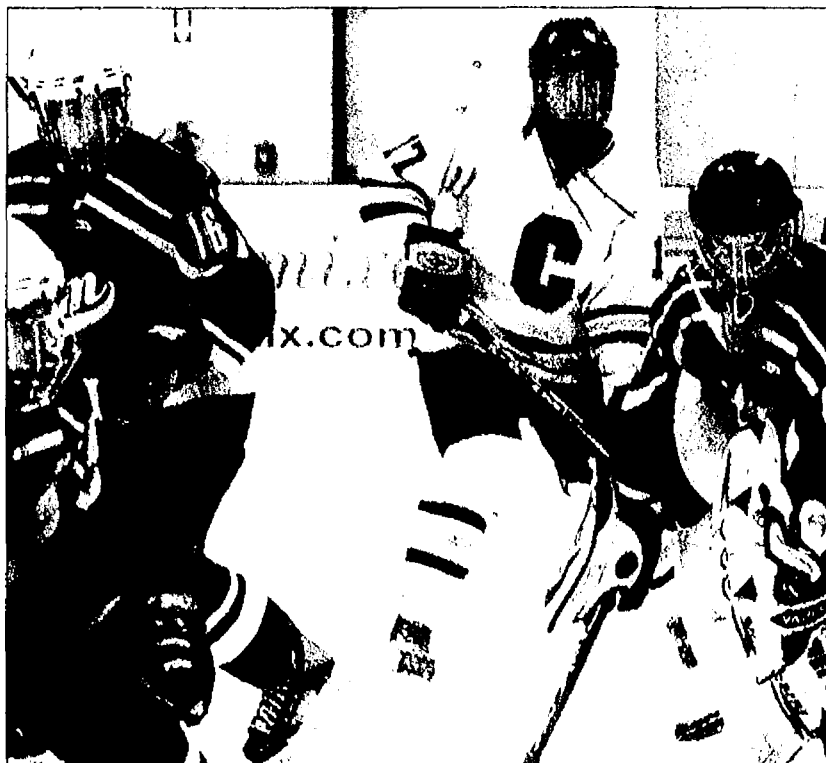

Ronowski scored a power play goal two minutes later for a 4-0 margin.

At 13:55 of the first period, Ryan Johnson scored for a commanding 5-0 Howell lead.

Despite being in the hole 5-0, the Bulldogs refused to quit.

"In the second and third periods, we played much side they're tough to stop."

While Pioneer poses a challenge on offense, it's on defense where Ann Arbor really dominates.

"They go full court all game," Raymond said. "They trap you all over the court. They try and force you into a quick shot. If you lose concentration, you lose the ball. You can never slow the ball down."

Despite the loss, Raymond said his team would learn from the experience.

"Playing against the full court pressure will help us down the road," he said. "I was pleased with our field goal percentage. We played hard."

On Jan. 24, the host Bulldogs lost to Ann Arbor Huron 65-61 in overtime.

"It was an evenly played game," Raymond said. "The whole second half it was back and forth. I was very pleased with our effort."

The River Rats raced out to a 16-10 first quarter lead.

At halftime, Chelsea rallied to tie the game at 35-35.

Entering the fourth quarter, Huron led 45-41.

In the fourth frame, the Bulldogs outscored the River Rats 11-7 forcing overtime.

Mantel hit a shot with 25 seconds left to tie the contest and send it into the extra session.

In overtime, Huron outscored Chelsea 13-9 for the night's final outcome.

"We played well," Raymond said. "We were aggressive on the inside. We were able to take the ball to the basket."

Mantel paced the Bulldogs with 22 points, including 9-of-16 from the floor. He also had seven rebounds, four steals and three assists.

"Jake did a nice job posting up on the low block," Raymond said. "We recognized we had a mismatch."

Rebulela added 13 points and six rebounds, while Marshall had 11 points and a team-high five assists.

Sophomore forward Tyler Zegarszewski had eight points and four boards, while Roberts had three points and Stratman and Mann each had two points. Mann also pulled down six rebounds for Chelsea.

The Bulldogs finished 21-of-48 for 44 percent from the floor, while Huron was 25-of-50 for 50 percent.

From the free throw line, Chelsea was 15-of-17 for 88 percent, while the River Rats were 9-of-14 for 64 percent.

The Bulldogs out-rebounded Huron 30-29.

Chelsea forced 18 River Rat turnovers, while committing 17 itself.

The Bulldogs next travel to Ypsilanti Lincoln for a game Thursday at 7 p.m.

On Tuesday, Chelsea hosts Temperance Bedford at 7 p.m.

On Feb. 8, the Bulldogs host Ann Arbor Pioneer at 5:30 p.m. After Chelsea's game against the Pioneers, the Bulldogs' varsity girls' basketball team will take the floor against Pioneer's varsity at 7 p.m.

Prior to the Chelsea-Pioneer boy-girl basketball doubleheader, Bulldog softball will be holding a spaghetti fund-raiser dinner from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. Cost is $10 per person and $25 for a family of four. There will also be a silent auction, as well, during the fund-raiser.

"People will be able to come in and enjoy a spaghetti dinner before or after the game," Raymond said.

better," Wright said.

Ten seconds into the second period, Cox scored a power play goal off an assist from George cutting the Highlanders' lead to 5-1.

With momentum suddenly on their side, Brown scored at 7:50 of the second period, drawing Chelsea closer at 5-2. Prince assisted on the play for the Bulldogs.

At 14:11 of the second period, Howell stemmed whatever momentum Chelsea had built by scoring a late goal. Johnson notched his second score of the night putting the Highlanders up 6-2.

"That goal in the last minute hurt," Wright said. "We were playing much better."

Early in the third period, Howell's Alex Burton scored for a 7-2 lead.

At 9:35 of the third period, Tyler Myers scored a power play goal for an 8-2 Highlander advantage.

Two minutes later, Cox scored his second goal of the contest. Brown and George recorded assists for the Bulldogs.

To end the game, Howell's Brandon Marshall scored at 14:00 of the third period for the night's final outcome.

The Highlanders out-shot Chelsea 26-16 for the game.

Despite the loss to Howell, the Bulldogs have won five out of their last six contests.

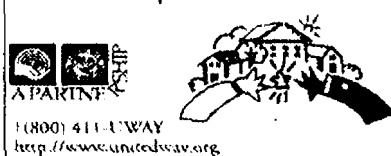

Chelsea next hosts Flint Kearsley Saturday at 7 p.m.

On Wednesday, the Bulldogs visit Saline for a match-up at 6:30 p.m.

On Feb. 9, Chelsea hosts Ypsilanti Lincoln at 7 p.m.

WHAT IS THE CREDIT UNION DIFFERENCE?

Credit union is not just a fancy word for "bank" - it's a philosophy that focuses on member service, community pride, and financial education.

For instance: American 1's kids account, the Earnsley Eagle Club, teaches children the value of a dollar. Kids receive newsletters with tips on how to save, gifts for their birthday, and a chance to become smart with their money. Just $5 in their account makes them a member, no matter what age, and gets them started on the right financial foot.

Banking isn't just about money; It's also about trust, friendly service, and local ties. That is what makes credit unions different.

The best part? Anyone can join.

The best way to bank.

Creating defined objectives is key to a successful 2008

As the new year commences and we look to 2008 with the excitement of new possibilities, I encourage you to take some real time to strategically plan out your year. Most of us make the mistake of sleep walking from one year to the next without waking ourselves up to looking ahead as to what we would like to create.

There are many benefits of clearly defining your objectives for the upcoming year. By objectives, I don't simply mean what your New Year's Resolution is. I am talking about all of those specific accomplishments you would like to achieve this year. There are a few poignant benefits to clarifying those objectives.

First, and the most obvious is that clear objectives give you direction and purpose for the activities you do on a daily basis. Without having them, you would spend your time reacting everyday, starting out with checking phone messages which leaves a list of issues and people to tend to, then moving to email (more issues and people to tend to), but this also leads to links to the web. We all know what happens once you get to the web... it becomes this black hole that seems to suck up time. By the time the end of the day rolls around, you can't figure out where all your time had gone. You can't figure out why you didn't get all that you wanted to completed and this leaves you feeling unproductive, a very dirty feeling in the business world.

The second benefit of having clear objectives is that it creates a level of excitement. You may have found that the vigor you once felt for your business has mysteriously disappeared. New objectives create new challenges and opportunities, both of which reignite our passion and excitement for what we do.

Finally, having defined and measureable objectives each year allows you to accurately assess how well you did for the year come Dec. 31. When you don't set specific objectives at the beginning of the year, you have no idea what you actually accomplished between January and December. If you don't know what you accomplished, how can you ever feel good about yourself and your business?

Will Presidential election year affect investors?

As you are no doubt aware, 2008 is a presidential election year. As a citizen, you may well have a great deal of interest in the election. But how about as an investor? How does an election year affect the investment climate? And again from the perspective of an investor - does it matter who wins?

To begin with, let's examine how the stock market reacted in the past to the selection of a president. The Dow Jones Industrial Average rose in nine of the past 11 presidential election years, with an average gain of slightly more than nine percent. So it's clear that, for the most part, the market has done pretty well when America goes to the polls.

Does the election or reelection of a president just make us more optimistic, leading us to invest more heavily and thereby drive up the markets? Probably not. In reality, many factors - such as corporate profits, geopolitical concerns, interest rates and inflation - drive stock prices. And this is true in all years, whether an election is held or not. Consequently, stock returns from past presidential election years, while impressive, cannot serve as a reliable predictor of what the market might do in 2008.

Now, let's turn to the next question: As an investor, how will the outcome of the election affect you? There's not really a simple answer. In the past, the stock market has performed well - and performed poorly - under both Democrats and Republicans. Of course, candidates of both parties will have different priorities and try to enact different economic agendas; and these priorities may have some impact - although one that's notoriously hard to predict - on different market sectors. In short, no one can accurately forecast the effect of this November's election on the financial markets, and that won't change even after the nominees are known.

Instead of pondering the "what-ifs" involved in a presidential election, you're much better off following some tried-and-true investment strategies. Here are a few to consider:

Keep on investing. World events may be good or bad, and the stock market may be up or down - but no matter what happens, the most successful investors stay in the market. Look for quality

Beware

Of the ice out there

An early season fisherman tests the ice at the boat ramp at Lake Erie Metropark. Large surfaces and shifting winds make ice fishing on Lake Erie dangerous.

Anglers need to avoid rushing

Although we live alongside some of the greatest freshwater fishing waters in the world, we ice fishermen pay a price during the winter.

The lakes and rivers are too massive and the weather too mild lately for these waters to freeze enough to make venturing on them safe during all but the coldest periods and those periods are generally short.

Wind is another factor. It moves water, and depending in which direction the winds blows, water levels on Lake Erie can rise or fall by up to a foot in just a few hours.

This causes huge sections of ice to break off and create problems for anyone caught standing on it.

An offshore wind can move the sheet away from land and safety.

That's when a poor decision can turn into a life-or-death situation very quickly.

Every year the local TV stations gleefully report about another group of foolhardy ice anglers who either went through thin ice or were blown out into the open water aboard a sheet of floating ice.

Volunteers leap to the rescue, risking life and limb in the line of duty to save the hapless anglers.

On several occasions it has been the same people requiring rescue. A judge would call them repeat offenders. I call them idiots.

Sure, everyone makes a mistake but to repeat it a week later suggests that not only the ice is frozen this time of year.

There is a saying among seasoned ice fishermen: "First ice and last ice make for the best fishing."

Unfortunately this often proves to be very accurate and it lures people out onto some treacherous ice.

I know a few guys who won't fish from a boat for anything but blissfully brave icy winds and cold temperatures just to get out on the ice. They consider this their element and are happy just to be there, whether the fish cooperate or not.

Like lemmings, the ice fishermen often throng over the beaches and breach the seawalls to get out onto the frozen water and claim their small sphere of influence.

STORY AND PHOTO
BY MIKE ZIELINSKI

With the weather finally normalizing a bit for winter, many local waters are beginning to receive their winter coverings of ice.

The key word here is beginning, not attained.

Use caution. Ice fishermen are anxious to get out on the hard water. I can't blame them. Ice fishing can be fun and very rewarding. Succulent fillets of panfish, pike or walleyes taken through the ice make for some of the best eating there is.

And as a result, a few anglers always seem to display a devil-may-care attitude about ice conditions.

Ice fishing can be as cheap or as expensive a recreation as you want to make it.

Basic elements include adequate cold weather clothing and footwear, something to bang a hole through the ice with (spud or auger) and rods that can cost anywhere from a few bucks to $50.

Live bait is the most popular and consists of minnows and several varieties of grubs. Well outfitted anglers usually also carry a depth finder, some type of portable shelter and vehicle to pull it.

Many include a small portable underwater TV unit and global positioning systems (GPS) to find their way over the ice.

According to Bill Dougherty of Bottom Line Tackle, there is about four inches of ice over the lagoon along the banana dike.

Dougherty said the fishing is very slow out there, although it always improves as we head into February.

"There are guys on the ice in the Lake Erie Metropark catching some panfish as well as the frozen canal along South Gibraltar Road," Dougherty said. "The boat launches are mostly all frozen in now. I have gotten word that Belanger Park in River Rouge is still producing a few nice perch on shiners."

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources advises that ice is building in the southern sections of the Lower Peninsula but most of the lakes are still not safe.

Those traveling on the ice should fish with a partner, take an ice spud to test the ice, wear a personal flotation device, take a cell phone and be sure to tell someone where you are going and when you plan to return.

The local big waters are slow to ice over, but there are really a number of options if you truly want to go ice fishing.

Many of Southeast Michigan's small inland lakes should be shaping up and have enough ice to make fishing on them relatively safe by next weekend.

Public access to some of these lakes can sometimes be tough, but there are plenty of options.

"There are more than enough lakes with public access," Jeff Braunscheidel, Lake Erie Management Unit fisheries biologist.

"The waters of Stoney Creek Lake located inside the Stony Creek Metropark is a popular fishing spot for pike, walleye, smallmouth bass, perch, bluegills and crappies.

"The state record crappie was caught here and the opportunity to catch a lot of fish is good.

"And for a reasonable fee, it is open to the public.

"Union Lake is another sleeper for panfish," said Braunscheidel. "You might catch some 10-inch bluegills here, which are real trophies in Michigan.

"This lake also contains a good population of walleyes and red eared sunfish. Again, there are several public access sites for your use.

"Bald Mountain Recreation Area near the town of Lake Orion is a good bet to get kids started ice fishing," said Braunscheidel. "The reason is the quantity of tiny lakes of less than 30 acres that are full of panfish and can keep a child interested for awhile."

So there you have it, the where, how and when of ice fishing. Now, if nature continues to cooperate and delivers some really cold weather we can finally get out and enjoy another of Michigan's outdoor wonders.

From the DNR

Rearing trout begins with egg take

Visit any pier along the Lake Michigan shoreline in a couple months and you likely will see numerous hardy souls sitting on five-gallon buckets, bundled up against the cold, keeping a close eye on their fishing rods baited with spawn bags.

A few might be chucking spinners or spoons in an effort to generate a little body heat, and, if the winds aren't blowing too hard, you also might see a few boats trolling spoons in the shallows or around the pier heads.

It's likely each one of these anglers is after the same thing - a fat, healthy, Great Lakes brown trout. In the fall, as deer season approaches, many of these same anglers will be wading in the shallows of our state's larger inland lakes, such as Higgins Lake, using the same techniques. Only this time they will be after inland brown trout, brightly adorned with their spawning colors.

The fish these anglers seek started out several years earlier at one of the fish hatcheries operated by Michigan Department Natural Resources Fisheries Division.

Brown trout are reared at three of the six DNR-run fish production facilities. Harrietta (18 miles west of Cadillac) and Thompson (just west of Manistique) hatcheries rear browns for production (stocking in lakes and streams) while Oden (north of Petoskey) rears production fish and maintains brood fish for both brown trout and rainbow trout.

According to Ed Eisch, hatchery manager for the northern Lower Peninsula, it takes a minimum of three years for a brown trout to reach sexual maturity and many don't produce eggs or sperm until they are four years old, so hatchery personnel need to plan ahead when it comes to collecting future brood lots.

Egg takes are conducted every two weeks from late September to early February, depending on the strain of fish. "An egg-take operation requires several people in order for it to run smoothly," said Eisch. "Two people are needed to anaesthetize the fish (one for the males and one for the females), one is needed to strip the eggs from the females, one handles egg disinfection and one runs buckets back and forth between the raceways and the disinfection station."

Disinfection is necessary because captive, hatchery-reared trout are subject to a wide array of diseases. Soon after fertilization the eggs are rinsed and covered with an antibiotic solution for one hour. The eggs then are rinsed again before they are covered with an iodine-based disinfectant to kill any pathogens that might be on the surface of the eggs.

"This may sound like a lot to go through, but with all these precautions, it is much more likely that the fish will suffer disease outbreaks," Eisch said. "Every single adult brood fish is subjected to both antibiotic and vaccine injections to help ward off some of the more common fish diseases."

Health: National Kids Dental Health Month

Dexter dentist promotes ADA event

By Sean Dalton
Staff Writer

Dexter Family Dentistry is promoting February as a very special month for the oral health of the community's children.

February is National Kids Dental Health Month as dictated by The American Dental Association.

"Give Kids A Smile" events are sponsored by the ADA and hosted by local dentists.

Dexter Family Dentistry's Brent Kolb will be offering cleanings to area children from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Kids 10 and under are eligible for a free exam and cleaning, but no X-rays will be taken.

Each child will receive oral hygiene instructions, an educational dental health take-home packet, and a summary sheet explaining the results of their free exam listing any potential dental health concerns.

Kolb says he is looking

Helpful facts about kids and dental health

- The American Dental Association recommends that kids see a dentist on or about their first birthday to encourage a positive dental experience and promote a lifetime of good oral health
- At home, children should brush two to three times a day with parental supervision
- Most important time to brush is immediately before bed so no food, sugars, acids, or bacteria have time to "soak" into the teeth while sleeping
- Most cities in Michigan have fluoridated water, however, smaller towns and private wells should be tested to check for appropriate fluoride levels. Fluoride supplements can be prescribed if needed by your dentist
- Sports drinks, energy drinks, some flavored waters, and juices deemed as "healthy" can actually be as harmful to teeth as soda
- To select the best dentist for your child: ask your own dentist, your child's pediatrician, and your friends and family for their recommendations
- Many dentists have different treatment philosophies and policies about treating children. Be sure to find one that meshes with your own philosophies.

forward to this being the first such event at his new practice, which opened in the Monument Park building last year.

"It's great because they let you sort of choose your level of involvement, so we could offer a lot of help," he said. "There are a lot of kids who don't have insurance or their parents don't have the means to get them there."

"This is a way to give those kids a start and help them have a positive relationship with a dentist."

The program has been around for six years. Kolb learned about it while he was in dental school and said it was one of the first ideas that came to mind when he opened his new practice.

"I always thought it was a good idea and participated in it through the university years back, and when I had my own practice I knew I wanted to do this for the community."

Kolb also provides free, custom-made mouth guards to the varsity football, water polo and field hockey teams in the area.

"We participate in all of the Dexter community events, including Dexter Daze and the Ice Cream Social, and we support the Dexter arts foundation and the orchestra."

Parents should call the office this week to schedule a time so staff will know how many children to plan for.

A parent must accompany the child to the exam and fill out the appropriate parental consent form.

investments and hold them until either your needs change, or the investments themselves undergo some type of transformation.

Know your risk tolerance. If you're losing sleep at night over your investments, you're probably taking on more risk than the amount with which you are comfortable. At the same time, if your investments are putting you to sleep, they may be too conservative, which could mean they're not providing the growth necessary to help you meet your goals. Strive for a balance that fits your investment personality.

Think long-term. If you're constantly adjusting your investment mix in response to short-term events, you'll probably rack up big commissions and you almost certainly won't make the necessary progress toward your important objectives, such as a comfortable retirement. So, train yourself to ignore daily or weekly or monthly price fluctuations and keep your eyes on the far horizon. If you've chosen the right investments, they should be designed to help you work towards your goals in exchange for your patience.

This November, don't forget to vote. But before and after Election Day, cast your ballot for solid investment technique.

COACH

I implore you to take a couple of hours to sit down at your favorite coffee shop (away from the office) and spend some time developing a real plan for the year. I want your objectives to include the following: a specific measurement (dollar amount, time, no. of pounds, etc), who you will need help from for each item and assign a reward for the attainment of each one and if you are really playing the game, a consequence for NOT accomplishing each one. Don't forget to include objectives for every area of your life:

business, financial, mental, physical, relational, spiritual, leisure.

The last bonus step is to declare a theme for the year that epitomizes all that you want to accomplish this year. Mine theme for 2008 is Elevation. For me, it is all about getting to an even higher level and helping my clients to continue to reach greater heights as well.

May 2008 be your best year ever.

Many kids, adults not protected against flu

Flu season is here. Are you, your children and your grandchildren vaccinated?

According to a report released today by the University of Michigan C.S. Mott Children's Hospital National Poll on Children's Health, flu vaccination rates among young children and high-risk adults are much lower than expected across the country, leaving millions of Americans unprotected should a major flu outbreak occur.

Already 26 states have reported moderate flu activity. With an estimated 40 million doses of the flu vaccine still available, Matthew M. Davis, M.D., M.A.P.P., director of the National Poll on Children's Health, encourages parents to act now to vaccinate themselves and their children against the flu.

"Everyone wins when more people are vaccinated against the flu - patients and entire communities are more protected, and hospitals need to admit fewer people with complications from the flu," says Davis.

Since the typical peak of influenza activity in the U.S. occurs in January or later, flu vaccination rates in December often offer a glimpse into how well protected the U.S. population is against a major flu outbreak.

"National efforts to prevent an influenza epidemic in the U.S. hinge on broad flu vaccination of the public before flu season hits," Davis says.

See FLU — Page 8-C

Report highlights

• Almost one-half of parents who vaccinated their children against the flu said that this was the first time their children had received the vaccine.

• Flu vaccination rates among young children, high-risk adults and seniors remain below national target levels that all people in these groups be vaccinated.

For the complete report, visit the C.S. Mott Children's Hospital National Poll on Children's Health online at www.cheer.umich.edu.

FLU

"Americans have not vaccinated themselves as well as they said they were going to before the flu season began, and this means that the U.S. population is not as well protected against influenza as it could be."

Surprisingly, a National Poll on Children's Health released in October reported that 65 percent of parents planned to have their young children - those up to 5 years of age - vaccinated against the flu during the 2007-08 season. Plus, nearly all parents who planned to get the flu vaccine themselves said they also intended to have their young children vaccinated.

But results from the National Poll on Children's Health report released today shows many parents did not follow through with those plans.

The latest poll - conducted in December - reveals that among households with children ages 5 and younger, there was only a 36 percent vaccination rate by December. And another 18 percent of households polled said they still planned to vaccinate their children this season. Flu vaccination rates among high-risk adults - adults ages 50 and older and younger adults with chronic diseases - are well below national vaccine target levels as well.

Despite flu vaccination rates being lower than expected, there is still promising news: Flu vaccination rates among young children age 5 and younger are better than in previous years, and nearly one-half of parents polled in December reported that this season was the first time they had vaccinated their young children against the flu. In June the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention extended its flu vaccine recommendation to include all children ages 6 months to 5 years, a group nearly twice as likely as older children to be hospitalized for the flu.

"The high number of households vaccinating their young children against flu for the first time demonstrates broad acceptance of new national recommendations for flu vaccination among healthy young children," notes Davis, associate professor of general pediatrics and internal medicine at the U-M Gerald R. Ford School of Public Policy.

For its report, the National Poll on Children's Health used data from a national online survey conducted in December in collaboration with Knowledge Networks Inc. The survey was administered to a random sample of 2,131 adults, ages 18 and older, who are a part of Knowledge Networks' online KnowledgePanelSM.

VILLAGE OF DEXTER ZONING BOARD OF APPEALS NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to Michigan Public Act 110 of 2006, as amended, notice is hereby given that the Dexter Village Zoning Board of Appeals will hold a public hearing at 7:00 p.m., Monday, February 18, 2008 at the Dexter Senior Center, 7720 Ann Arbor Street, Dexter, Michigan, for the purpose of hearing public comment regarding the reconsideration of the following variance application filed on November 2007 and postponed:

The applicant, AR Brouwer, on behalf of Mike Hoelzer, is requesting variances from the following sections of the Village of Dexter Zoning Ordinance for 8041 Main Street, HD-08-06-210-028 (Dairy Queen):

1. Section 21.04 and Section 21.06A1, Site Plan Review and Approval. The applicant is requesting that due to the minimal size of the addition and change in the building that the project and site plan be permitted to be reviewed administratively. The applicant is also requesting that information required on the site plan be permitted to be excluded because of the nature of the project and due to the extensive provisions sets forth in Section 21.04, Application for Site Plan Review. The applicant would be required to go through site plan review only because the building is currently non-conforming.
2. Section 7.04, Building Signs. The applicant is requesting a variance to permit a 20 square foot building sign. The ordinance permits a 16 square foot building sign based on the buildings frontage.

Information regarding the application is available for public inspection at the Village Offices, 8123 Main Street, Dexter, weekdays between 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. or by phone at (734) 426-8303 Ext. 15. Written comments regarding this project should be submitted to the Village Zoning Office, and must be received no later than 5:00 p.m., Tuesday, February 12, 2007. Sign language interpreter, or other assistance, is provided upon request to the Clerk, at least 72 hours in advance of the meeting. Minutes of all meetings are available at Village Hall. Program makes connection with seniors

Tina Patterson, director of the Chelsea Senior Center, says imagine what it would be like going all day without a phone call or connection to another person.

Sadly, for some isolated seniors this is a reality. They are fearful that in an emergency no one would know if they had made it through the night.

Responding to the needs of the community, Patterson said the Senior Center is introducing a new program designed to alleviate some of the stress of living alone. Each weekday between 8:30 and 11 a.m. a volunteer will call to say a cheerful good morning and check that the senior is doing well.

This is a free service available to everyone in the Chelsea area.

If you have a family member who lives alone, or you yourself would like to hear a friendly voice each weekday, call the Senior Center at 1-734-475-9242.

"We will be happy to sign you up," Patterson says.

What do you want put into your children?

Over 30 years ago when I was at the Seminary, we had a class on teaching children. In this class our Seminary professor used the verb "indoctrinate" when discussing this topic. He was teaching us to "indoctrinate" children into the Christian faith.

At the time I was offended by this word. Most of my life I had attended public school, including four years at the University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee, where students were encouraged to think on their own and reach their own conclusions. To me, the word "indoctrinate" seemed very close to "brainwashing."

I shouldn't have been offended. The Latin word "doctrine" simply means "teaching." Therefore, "indoctrinate" simply means to get someone into the teaching, or perhaps get the teaching into them. The teaching under consideration here, of course, is the teaching of the Bible, which all my life I've regarded as absolute truth.

Further, I should have considered the alternative: If we do not indoctrinate children into the true Bible teaching, they will sooner or later acquire other teachings, including teachings that are not true or good. It is just plain wrong, for an adult who knows the truth, to let children make up their minds on their own as to whether or not they want to learn the Bible teachings.

As of February 3, our church, Faith Lutheran, is beginning an expanded preschool program during our Sunday School time slot, from 8:55 a.m. until 9:50 a.m. It will take place in the beautiful walkout downstairs area of our church building, which can be entered conveniently from the rear of our building. We are hiring a teacher who has had quite a bit of experience with this, Mrs. Vivien Gierach. Vivien plans to read and tell stories to the children, teach them songs, lead them in little craft projects, and serve a few snacks each Sunday morning. The class will be directed at children age 3 until the point where they enter kindergarten.

Faith decided to initiate this right now because we have a relatively high number of preschool children for the relatively small size of our congregation. We have the potential for 8-10 children or more on a Sunday morning.

We would love it, if you have children in that age group and do not have a church of your own, if you would consider bringing your children here for an hour on Sunday mornings. There will be no financial cost to you, and no strings attached: you will be our guests. We also have Sunday School classes for older children, and an Adult Bible hour for you, at the same time.

Yes, there will be some indoctrination. Vivien's number one goal is "that the children might learn the way of salvation in Christ Jesus our One and Only Savior and Lord." For that reason, I would be glad to meet with you, as parents, and let you know exactly what we teach. I would be willing to do this in a brief summary in one visit, or I would be glad to offer you a more thorough class if you desire. You are also welcome to sit in on the preschool class at any time. After all, if it were my child that I was bringing to a class at a church, I'd want to know what was being taught.

Mark Pornsky is the pastor at Faith Lutheran Church, 9575 North Territorial Road in Dexter. The Web site is www.faithdexter.org.

One World Family

Local group celebrates the life and ideals of Martin Luther King Jr.

The 7th annual evening program celebrating Martin Luther King Jr. Day hosted by One World One Family featured four young essay contest winners, who read their works to the assembled audience.

The winners were Karana Wickens (fourth grade), Will Cook (fifth grade), Julia Porter (sixth grade), and Zoe Proegler (Beach school). The winners each received $30 in Chelsea Bucks, offered through the Chamber of Commerce, to use at stores in town. Runners-up each received $20 in Chelsea Bucks.

The runners-up and honorable mentions were: Fifth grade, Rylee Rosentreter and Dennis Spaulding, Honorable Mention; Emerson Desai and Hannah Heberle-Rose, runner-up. Sixth grade, Madison Rabbitt and Allison Walker, honorable mention; Colleen Bertoni and Shianne Butler, runner up. Beach, Jennifer Craig, runner up.

The One World One Family Task Force "Carrying the Dream" Award is presented annually to the person or group that has made a significant contribution to advancing the understanding of the world's different cultures, respect for diversity and non-discriminatory attitudes and practices in Chelsea and to furthering the dreams and ideals of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

This year the winners were Marcus Kaemming, principal at North Creek Elementary School; Lisa Nickel, principal at South Meadows School; and Lucy Stieber, principal at Pierce Lake Elementary School.

The award honors their leadership and commitment in implementing an anti-bullying program. The awards were presented by County Commissioner Mark Ouimet, State Rep. Pam Byrnes and State Senator Liz Brater.

"These three individuals have taken an active leadership role to say that bullying is not welcome and to provide methods of responding to incidents," Brater said. "Respect for differences and individuality is a lesson best learned very young. These principals are responsible for our youngest children and work together to provide a consistent program from Kindergarten through sixth grade. Shared vocabulary, expectations and responses set the standards for the 'buckets full' of kindness and respect that allow everyone to flourish."

The audience was treated to the professional "Our Own Thing Chorale," a community chorus from Ann Arbor, directed by Dr. Willis Patterson, professor of music at the University of Michigan. He was the first African American professor at the UM School of Music. He started the Chorale over 30 years ago. Their last number, a South African Freedom Song, sung in Swahili, brought the audience to its feet, clapping in rhythm with the chorale.

Dr. Susan Lentz, a member of One World One Family, was presented with a special award to honor her hard work and dedication to the Essay Contest.

The program also featured a short video presentation of Dr. King, accompanied by an audio segment of Dr. King delivering his "A Time to Break Silence" speech against the war in Vietnam.

Introducing The 'Royal Paulownia'...

It's one of the most incredible sights in all of nature! A huge flowering shade tree that rockets forth so fast, and umbrellas itself so wide—you need a yardstick to measure its growth in feet from week to week! It's like growing 'instant shade'! And that's only half the magic. The real show-stopping, 'magazine cover' effect takes place when it smothers itself in massive bouquets of breathtaking lavender-blue blooms... like an entire flower garden growing in the sky.

GROWS IN VIRTUALLY ANY SOIL.
NEEDS NO BABYING, NO SPECIAL CARE,
HARDY TO 30' BELOW!

Best of all it's work free. Just a sprinkle a week sends it soaring from a sapling to a roof-high tree IN JUST ONE YEAR! Turns even the barest spot into shaded 'Garden of Eden'. BUT SUPPLIES ARE STILL EXTREMELY LIMITED—SO ACT NOW!

Shhh...please don't wake the baby!

Just a few minutes ago, you thought she'd never settle down. Now, Baby Anna is sleeping peacefully...

SO LIFE LIKE AND SOFT...SHE FEELS JUST LIKE A REAL BABY

From her silky hair and eyelashes to the tiny nails on her chubby little hands, every part of Baby Anna is utterly lifelike. Her skin is amazingly soft vinyl and her body is perfectly weighted. Her thumb fits into her mouth and her head needs support—just like a real baby! Baby Anna's hand smocked and embroidered rose-patterned romper is trimmed in delicate lace and comes with a matching bonnet. Today, Proactiv[®] Solution is the leading acne treatment system of its kind in America and Japan. Since its astounding success, naturally, there have been many imitators.

But don't be fooled by a "me too" product. Not just a spot treatment, this 3-Step System is designed for your whole face. Each step builds on the one before it. The result is a Combination Therapy® System that fights acne proactively by helping to prevent breakouts before they start. Yet this 3-Step System is so gentle, your skin can actually clear up without dryness, redness, or irritation. It's the original - Proactiv® Solution.

Order now and get the Proactiv® Solution Refining Mask with its deep cleansing Sulfur formula that complements the 3-Step System. Plus, you'll get Face the Facts, with answers to your acne questions.

Try it for 60 days. If you're not completely satisfied, send back the bottles within 60 days of delivery (even if they're empty) and we'll send you a refund (less s/h).
