Crime on the rise

Police: Poor economy the major factor in crime rate increase

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

It seems like a matter of common sense: When the economy goes bad, more people turn to crime.

But local law enforcement agencies have hard numbers to back up that assumption.

"During tough economic times, you find desperate people out there committing crimes," said Washtenaw County Sheriff Dan Minzey.

Those thoughts are echoed by Chelsea Police Chief Ed Toth Jr.

"With the economy bad, people are trying to survive and provide for their families, and sometimes they make bad choices," he said. Statistics from the three agencies responsible for law enforcement in this area - Chelsea Police, Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department and Michigan State Police - seem to indicate definite trends from 2005 to 2007.

The MSP's Criminal Justice Information Center is responsible for compiling data from every police force in Michigan into the annual Uniform Crime Report, showing the number of offenses reported by individual agencies and counties.

They are broken down into categories, such as so-called "index crimes" - the major felonies of murder, criminal sexual conduct, robbery, aggravated assault, burglary, larceny, vehicle theft and arson.

The reports also contain "non-index" crimes, the felonies and misdemeanors of negligent manslaughter, non-aggravated assault, forgery and counterfeiting, fraud, embezzlement,

Chelsea acquires long-range thermal imager

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

The Chelsea Area Fire Authority has a new tool in its arsenal, thanks to our federal tax dollars at work. The department last week received a long-range thermal imaging camera that cost $20,000 but was fully funded by a grant from a federal agency.

"We received a $20,000 grant for a thermal imaging camera, but it didn't cost us a thing," said CAFA Chief Jim Payeur.

"We applied for the grant last summer through the Department of Homeland Security."

Payeur just returned from a four-day trip to Chicago to pick up the camera and be trained in its use, and quickly discovered he was in the minority.

"There were a large number of police officers there, because it has all kinds of uses for law enforcement," Payeur said.

"We can use it primarily for search and rescue - people lost in the woods, water rescues, hazardous

$30K raised during local CROP Walk

Despite a struggling economy, last October residents participated in the Chelsea/Dexter CROP Hunger Walk and raised more than $30,500 for the poor and hungry.

Fifteen percent of this money will go to Faith in Action to help locally, while the rest will go to the far corners of the world.

Thirteen organizations participated in the CROP Walk: Ten local churches, the Chelsea High School Interact Club, Silver Maples senior housing and the Chelsea Retirement Community.

Each year the organization that raises the most money per walker is awarded the Golden Sneaker. This year's recipient is the Dexter United Methodist Church (DUMC), which raised $15,109 in total and averaged $540 per walker.

Kathie Gourlay, the walk coordinator, presented DUMC with their Sneaker at DUMC's 10:30 a.m. church service on Feb. 24.

Bill Wade has been the lead organizer for Dexter United Methodist for many years. He began walking in 1972 and has walked ever since.

Last year he raised nearly $8,000 by collecting donations. This made him the Walker who raised the second highest amount in Michigan. He says that many of his donors are people in the community who are already aware of the CROP Hunger Walk and

REGIONAL REPORT: GRANDPARENTS AS PARENTS

How grandparents raise their grandkids

By Daniel Lai
Staff Writer

Millions of grandparents are doing it all over again: raising children. But raising grandchildren is much harder than the first time around. Grandparents have lower energy levels, their discipline techniques can be outdated, their adult children often have serious problems and orphaned grandchildren suffer from profound grief.

In an effort to reach out to the growing number of grandparents seeking support and advice, Catholic Social Services of Washtenaw County offers a free support group whose members cater to local residents and families. "For the grandparents who actually know our services are available to them, the program can be highly successful," program coordinator Sue Monet said. "More grandparents than ever, as well as other relatives, are parenting, regardless of legal custody status, and often feel isolated and conflicted about parenting again. They say, 'It wasn't supposed to be like this.' Our program is intended to build a sense of confidence and comfort for those moving into a parenting role anew."

Monet said nationally, some 4.5 million children are living in grandparent-headed homes, a 30 percent increase from 1990, according to the 2000 U.S. Census.

"That's more than 6 percent of children in the United States," she said.

Bunton has over 20 years of experience in orthopedic rehabilitation of sport-related injuries, physical development and sports performance.

Body Specs, Inc. is a sports performance and sports injury management training facility that recently opened in January.

Area residents, who are looking to change up their exercise routine and want to train like athletes, may find Body Specs, Inc. to be the perfect fit.

Body Specs, Inc. is a sports performance and sports injury management training facility that recently opened in January.

The facility is located at 3723 Plaza Drive in Ann Arbor, near the airport off South State Street. Body Specs is next door to Zingerman's Bakehouse.

With the facility's logo "Train Different!" clients can expect a different approach than most gyms or bootcamp classes.

Equipment found in Body Specs is dedicated to performance. Clients will not find a large amount of high-tech, computerized machines.

Edwin 'Skip' Bunton, MS, ATC, founder and president of Body Specs, Inc., said the classes at the facility have been designed to not let clients get comfortable with the same routine.

"Our classes have no script, we avoid training plateaus," he said.

The facility is designed to improve athletic performance, develop new techniques for resolving chronic sports injuries, create challenging training environments for pre and post surgery of the extremities and spine, and provide solutions for orthopedic sports injuries when traditional methods fail. Bunton said he has dealt with several cases where "athletes are told they won't ever be able to play sports again." Bunton said that is not always the case.

His clientele ranges from non-athletes to adolescent athletes to the professional athlete.

Bunton has been in business with Body Specs, Inc. since 1992, where he originally started the business in Wyandotte.

Bunton has over 20 years of experience in orthopedic rehabilitation of sport-related injuries, physical development and sports performance.

The 46-year-old was voted "Top 100 Trainers in America" in 2004 and 2005 by Men's Journal magazine.

Bunton has allied himself with two area orthopedic surgeons and said he will make the call to the surgeons, if he doesn't think a client's case can be helped beyond regular rehab or treatment.

Signature classes offered at the facility are Powerball Performance, which involves progressive sport performance techniques using a medicine ball and Powerball Plus, which also uses sport performance techniques using a medicine ball and finishing with a boxing circuit.

Clients can take boxing classes, where they can learn basic boxing footwork, punches, focus mitt sparring and heavy bag training with a mix of core exercises developed by Bunton.

The Max 30 class focuses on sport specific group training for runners, triathletes or any endurance sport. The class only takes 30 minutes and shows clients how to prevent injuries and race strong.

The class is also designed as a time management class for clients who have a hard time fitting exercise into their daily schedules.

Yoga for Athletes is offered and includes a variety of poses, using breath work as the basis. No prior yoga experience necessary.

The facility offers triathlon 101 training that is led by Edie Sherman MS, Level 1 USA Triathlon Coach. The training is designed for those preparing for their first triathlon.

Body Specs also offers summer sports programs for kids to improve athletic abilities. Parents can ask questions and learn more about injury prevention or injuries their child may have had or is dealing with.

"Parents want to know that someone can help their child," Bunton said.

Chelsea City Council: Roundup

Sheridan Books nets $7.9 million in tax breaks

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Action taken at the March 25 City Council meeting will allow a Chelsea book manufacturer to reap tax benefits from a $7.9 million expansion.

The council conducted a required public hearing on Sheridan Books' application for an industrial facilities tax exemption (IFT).

Company officials said Sheridan is expanding its production line again by adding a fifth Timson offset web press and other equipment, which will require a physical expansion of the facility at 615 E. Industrial Drive.

The 10-year tax abatements were for a $120,000 building expansion, and for $7,763,816 in new equipment.

"It's a reflection of the continuous growth here," said Michael Seagram, Sheridan Books' President and Chief Operating Officer.

"We addressed on bottleneck in the plant in our large books with the press we got last (October), but at the same time that we added that capacity, we saw an increase in our smaller books - that demand has gotten so heavy we needed to expand."

Seagram said some of the plant's older equipment will be retired and removed to help make room for the increased business.

"We are going to be taking two of our three black-and-white sheet-fed presses offline," Seagram said.

"We found a buyer for them and will take those off our floor just as we take delivery of the new press, which will be some time in the middle of August."

No residents in the audience spoke either for or against the proposal, so the council immediately took action on the request.

"They have met all the criteria for a 10-year abatement for personal and real property," said City Administrative Assistant Georgia Beeman.

On separate unanimous votes, the council first approved the real property tax exemption for the building expansion, then approved the personal property exemption for the new equipment.

Seagram noted that Sheridan's work force would be expanding as well. "We are going to be adding 20 or 30 employees overall this year as a result of the additional volume," he said.

In other business, the council heard a presentation by Chelsea Senior Center officials on their annual making budget request.

Senior Center board president Chuck Schauer told the council about meeting a group of seniors from Findlay, Ohio, who were on a tour of Chelsea recently.

The group was visiting the McKune Memorial Library, the Chelsea Teddy Bear Co., Chelsea Milling Co. and the Gourmet Chocolate Café.

"That gives you an idea of what other communities think of us and what we have to offer seniors," Schauer said.

He asked the council for continued financial support from the city "if you can see your way clear."

Senior Center Director Tina Patterson told the council that the center receives no federal, state or county funding for its programs, which have increased by 35 percent.

"Ours is one of the most active senior centers in the state," Patterson said.

"It is a one-stop shop for the mature citizen of Chelsea. We're not asking for ourselves, but for our burgeoning senior population."

Patterson requested $25,000 for 2008-09, and noted that it had been two years since county government had extended an offer of financial help.

"We received $12,500 in matching funds from the county two years ago, but we were told we were not to anticipate that ever happening again," Patterson said.

The budget request was a formality, because city staff is just now beginning to build the '08-'09 budget.

"We will consider your request at our budget meetings in April," Mayor Ann Feeney told Patterson.

The council will conduct work sessions open to the public to discuss departmental budgets at 6:30 p.m. April 16 and April 17, at city offices, 305 S. Main St.

"I hope you would consider putting a City Council representative on your board of directors," City Manager John Hanifan suggested to Patterson.

"I think that would facilitate communication between the two bodies."

The final item on the agenda was to choose an auditing firm for the city.

Director of Administrative Services Kim Garland told the council that she received proposals from a number of firms and selected several to conduct face-to-face interviews.

"We received six proposals and evaluated them on price and services, but we weren't confident in the low bid so we want to interview three firms that were in the mid-range," Garland told the council.

The firms selected were Plante & Moran, Rehmann Robson and Post, Smythe Lutz & Ziel.

"Myself, John Hanifan and a council member will do the half-hour interviews," Garland said.

Chelsea MEAP scores outpace state averages

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Chelsea school students continue striving for excellence, according to the results of the state's main education measuring tool.

Scores for the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) exams were released to local school districts on Tuesday.

"We were up in some areas and down in others, but we're still ahead of state averages in all categories," said Andrew

School District.

The tests were given last fall to students in grades 3 through 9 in different subject areas.

Reading, writing, English language arts and math were tested in grades 3 through 8.

Science was added to the tests in grades 5 and 8; social studies was included on the sixth-grade tests. Ninth-graders were tested in social studies only.

Chelsea third-graders beat state averages by 15 percent in writing; fourth grade, by 12 percent in writing; fifth-grade, 14 percent in math; sixth grade, 18 percent in math; seventh grade, 16 percent in reading; eighth grade, 13 percent in both math and science; and ninth graders scored a whopping 20 percent increase over state averages in social studies.

Parents won't have to wait long to post their child's grade on the refrigerator.

"We've got all the reports for individual students, and those will be going out in the mail to parents this week," Ingall said.

A more in-depth report on MEAP results will follow in next week's edition of The Chelsea Standard.

Chelsea contractor wins award for work at U-M's Crisler Arena

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

If you noticed a better picture on your TV while watching Michigan Wolverine basketball this season, your eyes were not deceiving you.

It wasn't your TV, it was new lighting at Crisler Arena that was installed by a Sylvan Township electrical contracting firm.

The work of JG Squared was so good, in fact, that it even won the 2008 Pyramid Award from the Washtenaw Contractors Association.

"The award was for the innovation we used," said Jerry Gordenier, owner of the company.

The WCA bestowed the award at a banquet held March 14 at Ann Arbor's Kensington Court Hotel.

Gordenier explained that because of the innovation they came up with, they were able to complete the work without having to cover and uncover the floor each time or disrupt normal operations.

The arena was used for basketball practices and other events during the day, so the work had to be done from 10 p.m. to 5 a.m.

"We came up with a support system that hung from the rafters," Gordenier said.

"We carried it up the bleachers and slid it out on the catwalks and left it there to eliminate the time-consuming process of moving equipment on and off the floor every day."

The goal was to have the lights installed by Nov. 1, in time for the first men's basketball game, and Other contractors had convinced the university that the job could not be completed by then, and were given an extension to Dec. 1.

JG Squared was able to complete the 45-day job by Oct. 28 with a crew of six to 10 workers.

Gordenier said U-M was pleased with the company's performance on the $850,000 contract.

"They were thrilled with the job," he said, noting that about 70 percent of his company's work is for the university.

Although this is the first Pyramid Award that JG Squared has earned in its 10-year history, it has twice won the "Fast Track" award for business growth from the Washtenaw Business Development Council.

The award-winning innovations consisted of the creation of special brackets to fit to the existing 90-foot high I-beams that would support perpendicular scaffolding. These were necessary to overcome the problem of the new lights being installed 10 feet away from any existing platform.

Another technique was created to install six-light sets in each of the arena's four corners, because the weight of the new lights prevented them from being mounted in the previous manner.

With help from the Musco lighting company, a design was created using a combination of aviation wire, shackles, turnbuckles and chokers to suspend the fixture mounting bars 10 feet from an existing catwalk and 60 feet above the basketball court.

This setup was installed by straddling a ladder from the catwalk to the mounting bar.

The new lighting now meets NCAA standards, and Gordenier said people immediately noticed the upgrade.

"The difference between then and now is like the Stone Age vs. the Space Age," he said.

New law aimed to protect homeowners

Bipartisan legislation that will allow Michigan homeowners to refinance their home loans at lower interest rates to avoid foreclosure was signed last week by the governor.

"Many homeowners in Michigan are facing economic challenges and are fearful of losing their homes," state Sen. Randy Richardville, R-17th District, said in a news release. "This legislation will help them refinance their home loans with lower interest rates. It should help reduce the number of foreclosures in Michigan and strengthen the state's struggling housing market."

Senate Bill 1133, sponsored by Richardville, will expand the total family income cap threshold to $108,000 for those seeking a loan offered by the Michigan State Housing Development Authority. It also will allow state residents to have increased access to MSHDA programs.

"As chair of the Senate Banking and Financial Institutions Committee, issues related to Michigan's housing and mortgage industries are very important to me," Richardville said.

"Throughout the past several months, I have worked closely with the members of the mortgage community, state representatives and the administration to develop this legislative package. I am pleased that it is now state law so that homeowners can begin taking advantage of these new programs."

materials situations, even fuel tank leaks."

It operates on the same principle of infrared "vision" as the more common fire department thermal imaging cameras, but there are significant differences.

"It works just like our fire service thermal imagers, but with this the image is in black and white, and heat shows up as white," Payeur said.

"Ours show a range of color, and heat shows up as red."

"It also has the ability to interface with the other fire service thermal imaging cameras, which are used for close-up work," he added.

The imager is a spin-off of one that the military has for long-range use that has a range of about 2,000 feet, Payeur said.

"The nice thing about it is it has a wireless remote, which allows the entry team to see what's going on while allowing the command post to see the same image, and it also can be recorded," the chief said. "It's simple, easy to use — it's a nice little piece of equipment."

Payeur is fully trained in its use, and will make sure the other firefighters are trained as well.

"We'll have to train the other guys, but training only takes about an hour," he said.

The battery-operated unit weighs only about 5 lbs., and comes with a padded carrying case for all the components, including the remote monitor, detachable eyepiece and viewfinder, and detachable handle with wireless transmitter.

For all its advantages, the imager does have a couple of drawbacks.

"It can't see through buildings and it can't see through water," Payeur said, but that shouldn't be a problem for the tasks for which it will be used.

Payeur said he would make the unit available to other local public safety agencies if they have a need for it.

"This is the only one in the county that I'm aware of," he said.

"I've shared information on this with Police Chief Ed Toth and Sheriff Dan Minzey; the sheriff really seemed interested in it."

"It's for the good of the community."

Prom Dress Exchange April 17

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

McKune Memorial Library in Chelsea will provide some pre-Prom excitement by hosting a two-hour Prom Dress Exchange from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. April 17.

Teens can bring a clean, gently used dress or two to the drop-in event, and take home a different outfit, in preparation for the May 3 prom at Chelsea High School.

"When Shawn Personke developed the idea back in 2007, I was excited by the prospect of having a teen program that really provided a much needed service to high school teens in Chelsea," said Edith Burney, the library's Youth/Teen librarian.

"The following fall we had a Homecoming Dress Exchange, which was also quite successful, with gracious dress contributions from a Saline teen-run fundraiser that happened the week before our event."

"What makes the Prom Dress Exchange work is having newer, nicer dresses that girls want to wear. I hope that everyone finds time to look in their closets and contribute clean and gently used gowns for the event."

CRIME

stolen property, vandalism, weapons violations, prostitution, gambling, sex offenses, narcotics violations, family and children offenses, driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs, liquor law violations, disorderly conduct and more.

The reports for 1997 through 2006 can be viewed on the State Police Web site (www.michigan.gov/msp) under "Publications, Forms and Statistics."

Although Chelsea's 2007 numbers are available now, county and state statistics for 2007 are not yet available.

"We can't release them to the public until they are all compiled, which probably won't be until September or October," said CJIC spokeswoman Wendy Easterbrook.

Chelsea tracked 14 categories of offenses from 2005 to 2007.

Minor increases were reported in criminal sexual conduct and robbery from '06 to '07, but significant increases were seen during that time for domestic assault (from 8 to 18), assault and battery (from 10 to 18), closed-account checks (from 4 to 17), heroin possession (0 to 4) and driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs (28 to 34).

"I'm pretty confident in the 2007 numbers - they are accurate," Toth said, explaining that the department was adopting a new incident reporting system.

"Crime is up and down; sometimes you have a year that you have an increase for whatever reason," he added.

"The closed-account checks - you can attribute that to the bad economy."

The 2005 and 2006 statistics for Michigan State Police and the Sheriff's Department point out some troubling trends.

MSP responded to one homicide in 2006 in its patrol area within the county, as opposed to none in 2005.

Larcenies were up by 40, narcotics violations increased by 30, aggravated assaults were up nine, arsons increased by three, robberies went up two and fraud was up by one.

The Sheriff's Department, on the other hand, reported decreases in almost every category except vandalism (up 134 to 407), robbery (up three to 80) and arson (up two to 21).

That's not to say the numbers are falling to "acceptable" levels, however.

"I hear the circuit court judges saying they don't ever remember their dockets being as busy as they are now," Minzey said.

"I'm still seeing a high number of property crimes, shootings, stabbings; all of which gives me a sense that there is still a high level of serious crime being committed."

Washtenaw County Sheriff Dan Minzey.

"I'm still seeing a high number of property crimes, shootings, stabbings; all of which gives me a sense that there is still a high level of serious crime being committed."

Minzey said a poor economy leads to a downward spiral of increased criminal activity and a lack of police officers to combat it.

One of the first things a municipality will cut in a budget shortfall is police service, Minzey contends.

"There are 1,600 or 1,700 fewer police officers in the state now than just a few years ago," he said.

"You begin to get out of proactive mode, and you find yourself in the reaction mode."

"Criminal activity is on the rise, without a doubt, and tough economic times are pushing us to a position of having fewer officers out there," the sheriff added.

That's where having a little help from the public can come in handy.

"You can gauge it to the number of officers or to unemployment, but I feel the major difference is lack of community involvement - people need to get to know their neighbors," said Lt. Ann McCaffery, commander of the MSP Ypsilanti Post.

McCaffery attributes that to an overall change in society.

With both parents working outside the home and having children and extended family to worry about, she said, "caring about the neighbors is just not as high a priority."

The thing is, it doesn't become a priority until perhaps something bad happens to someone you know, and it takes very little effort to change that.

"People are extremely busy; they don't get to know their neighbors but still they know the cars that belong there," McCaffery said. "People have to be engaged and involved in their surroundings."

"You don't have to go to the level of a neighborhood watch," she added.

"The community has kind of pulled away instead of pulling forward."

Toth expressed gratitude that the people of Chelsea are still engaged enough in the community to be a big help to his officers.

"Without the community being involved we could not solve a lot of cases," Toth said. "When you build that public trust there's a give and take of information and the public is willing to get involved."

"That's outstanding."

Backers hope sales tax initiative goes before voters in November

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

If a radical idea in taxation takes hold, voters will see a November ballot initiative raising the sales tax to 9.75 percent but eliminating all other taxes.

Petitions are currently being circulated statewide to place the Michigan Fair Tax on the ballot as an amendment to the state Constitution.

The system would replace all other state taxes: payroll tax, business tax, property tax, etc.

Backers say it will turn around the state's economy by attracting businesses and simplifying the task of tax collection, while maintaining current revenue levels.

If successful here, it could also pave the way for reforming national tax policy and possibly eliminate the Internal Revenue Service.

Frank Dufek, who lives just outside Chelsea on South Freer Road, is one of the coordinators of the effort for Washtenaw County.

He will make a presentation on the proposal to the Lima Township Board at its regular meeting at 7 p.m. Monday at 11452 Jackson Road.

"This is something for the state that will be beneficial," Dufek said.

"It would give people more of a choice in how they would support the state, and make government more responsible to the people."

The 9.75 percent sales tax would be applied to all new goods and services, including food.

Used merchandise would not be taxed, because tax had already been paid when the item was new.

"The object is so that you can decide," said Micah Kissling of Fenton, the State Petitions Director for mifairtax.org.

"We want to tax each thing only once. It also gives you the option to keep your money if you want to buy used merchandise."

There is an exception for all titled items, such as vehicles and boats.

Those will remain taxed as they are resold to keep people from going out of state to buy them, Kissling noted.

Houses will be taxed at the full sales price when new, then only the appreciated value will be taxed when resold, he added.

It would restore Michigan's economy, backers say, by eliminating business taxes that are passed on to consumers through higher prices.

"I don't believe most people recognize that there is a lot of business-to-business taxation, and in the end the consumer still pays for that business-to-business tax," Dufek said.

"I believe it could bring about a better business environment in Michigan, creating jobs and helping the economy."

The sales-tax-only concept takes a little getting used to, but it is steadily attracting adherents, even on the federal level.

"The nicest thing about it is, April 15 would be like any other day," said U.S. Rep. Tim Walberg, R-District 7, on a recent visit to Chelsea.

"There are good people doing good work at the IRS, but the IRS no longer as an entity wouldn't hurt my feelings a bit."

Walberg said it would be "tough" to make it work on a national level.

"The best idea would be if we can have a few states like Michigan adopt it, then let the other states see how it works," Walberg said.

"As a sales tax, it would let me pay my taxes as I buy things, that way I can choose how much I want to pay and when I want to pay it."

Trey Bailey of Ann Arbor, another Washtenaw County coordinator of the effort, addressed one of the more intriguing parts of the proposal: a "prebate" on spending.

"Poverty-level spending is an arbitrary level set by the federal government, and the goal of the prebate is to untax spending up to that level," Bailey said.

"I have no desire to balance the budget on the backs of poor people."

Everyone who pays the sales tax would be eligible for the prebate, Bailey explained, which would be a payment direct-deposited monthly into a bank account that returns the amount of tax spent on purchases equal to the poverty level.

Any tax collected beyond that level would become revenue for the state.

"If you're only spending at that poverty level you'd receive a check for that," Bailey said. "It's called a 'prebate' because you're getting it ahead of time."

There is also a wider, socially conscious reason to adopt the Fair Tax, Bailey noted.

"Why not tax consumption?" Bailey said. "It encourages conservation, and that's the first step to recycling."

Bailey said he was confident that if the measure makes it on the ballot, "we can get peoples' attention."

"Everyone in this state is talking about what is the best, most productive way to tax the people of this state," he said.

"Once the people know all the relevant facts, we generally make wise decisions."

Kissling dismissed the notion that people would travel out of state to avoid paying what would be the highest sales tax in the nation if the measure is approved.

"At first there might be a drop-off in revenue, but people will quickly get tired of driving to another state to buy everything," Kissling said.

"If anything, prices will go down - if they don't, competition from the new businesses that will come to Michigan will drive prices down."

One promise of the proposal is it would be "revenue-neutral."

The tax rate of 9.75 percent was derived from an economic analysis conducted by Hillsdale College, Kissling noted, and the proposal has built-in "triggers" to reset the figure higher or lower if it does not adequately replace current revenue.

"If it pulls in more revenue, it adjusts down for a year; and if it's not enough it will reset, but only for the following year," he said, adding that the rate would have to be reset by a referendum vote after a year.

The last pillar of reform to the Fair Tax is a constitutionally guaranteed level of revenue sharing to local units of government, which have seen their state funding dwindle by as much as 50 percent in the last five years as the state struggled to balance its budget.

Kissling said it is imperative that Michigan adopt the proposal as soon as possible, because similar measures are being considered in several other states.

"If Michigan's economy is boosted, which it would be under this proposal, businesses will come back and the economy will get better," Kissling said.

"Florida and Texas take in almost all their revenue through sales tax, and they are both doing great."

"If we can get this passed in Michigan first, our economy is going to have a two- or three-year jump on the rest of the states."

The Eastern Michigan University women's golf team is on a roll and head coach Sandy Wagner is hoping it continues right through to the Mid-American Conference championship, April 25-27, at the Brickyard in Indianapolis, Ind.

Sandy Wagner

The Eagles' latest tournament proved to be the record breaker as the Green and White not only made history at the Eastern Kentucky Invitational (April 5), but it did so in resounding fashion by blowing away the rest of the seven-team field in the process.

Eastern Michigan continued its outstanding 2007-08 campaign by dominating the field at the par-72, 5,817-yard course Arlington Golf Club at ECU with a 20-shot victory - its record-setting fourth overall title during the 2007-08 season. The Eagles improved to 44-13 in four spring tournaments. The four tournament wins overall are the most in a school year.

Eastern's other tournament wins this season came at the NIU Brickyard Invitational (Sept. 10-11), the Shootout at the Legends (Oct. 8-9) and at the Red Rocks Invitational (March 1-2).

Overall the ECU win marks the 12th overall title in the program's 14-year history and the eighth during Wagner's three-year tenure as coach. Additionally, the victory is the second consecutive ECU Spring Invitational championship for the Eagles, as the squad won the weather-shortened 2007 ECU Spring Invitational trophy with a 646 (324-322).

The Eagles have been led all year by junior Stephany Fleet and senior Catherine Fortin.

Fleet captured low medalist honors at the ECU Invitational with a two-over 146 (73-73) for the two-round event. Fleet's victory was the third of her career and her second this season. During the fall, Fleet won the Wolverine Invitational, Sept. 29-30, 2007, when she notched a 219 (72-70-77) to claim the prestigious title. Additionally, her first-place finish is her fourth top five finish of the year and the ninth of her stellar career.

Fortin also continued her exceptional play with a third-place finish. Fortin shot four-over 148 (73-75) for the tournament and notched her 17th career top 10 finish as well as her 14th top five showing.

Wagner will also count on Courtney Allil, Darby Peters, Stephanie Bevington, Marjorie Thuot and Melissa Spalding to give the Eagles a run at the MAC title.

Casualty of war: The first thing that goes is political honesty

The first casualty of a political war is the truth. Amen. And there are enough examples from both political parties this election year to fill volumes, but we dissect only two here.

Tim Skubick

GOP candidate John McCain suggested that the United States might have to stay in Iraq for 100 years. He did not mean the fighting would be prolonged that long. He did mean U.S. troops might be there to help maintain a presence in postwar Iraq much like this country is doing in South Korea and Japan.

Funny thing happened on the way to interrupting his remarks.

On Feb 19, Democratic Party candidate Barack Obama said, "He says that he is willing to send our troops into another 100 years of war in Iraq."

On March 17, Hillary Clinton, the other Democratic frontrunner, said: "He's willing to keep this war going for 100 years."

And the news media has perpetuated the same conclusion. CNN anchor Rich Sanchez is quoted saying, "McCain is telling us ... that we need to win even if it takes 100 years."

It was McCain's fault for uttering his comments in the first place without making sure his comments were clear. Had he said, "American troops will not be fighting this war for the next 100 years, but we might need some ground forces there just as we have them in South Korea and Japan, his stance would have been clearer."

But he didn't and now he has to try to undo what he did. And he has company.

Michigan House Speaker Andy Dillon has the same foot-in-mouth disease and the state GOP is exploiting it.

GOP state chair Saul Anuzis, in a fund-raising letter, notes that Dillon recently told a group, "He can't rule out another tax increase to balance Michigan's budget this year."

For the anti-tax crowd, those are fighting words — but Dillon didn't say that.

He did discuss a possible gas tax vote after the fall elections, but that was never in the context of balancing the budget, nor did he ever reference a general tax increase, as Anuzis' statement suggests.

Anuzis, trying to spin his way out of his original misleading statement, sought to clarify his remarks.

He noted that Gov. Jennifer Granholm has projected a $300 million to $500 million revenue shortfall and, his twisted logic continues, she has not talked about cutting back services to fill in the gap.

Therefore, "How can the speaker claim there will not be a plea for additional funds? It's not honest and a little more than political posturing."

Well, if Dillon is not honest, neither is the chairman, but the chair will never be guilty of letting the facts get in the way of good fund-raising letter.

The communications department for the state GOP then got into the act. After taking a half-baked swing at deflecting the criticism, he finally conceded that he did not mind taking a hit if the column linked the words "Democrats" and "tax increase."

The governor has feverishly asserted there won't be any tax hikes this year. After all, no one in this town wants a redo of the fiscal fiasco that dominated the headlines last fall.

And if you have to explain yourself in this business, you are in trouble.

To the Editor: I am writing in response to the article about John Lennon's song Imagine by Pastor Porinsky. "Judge not, that you be not judged." Matthew 7:1

I was raised Catholic, although I no longer practice this religion. Some of the values instilled in me at that tender age have stuck with me. Going to church every Sunday morning with my father was a sacred occasion, made so much later by his loss at an early age. Those moments spent alone with my father in the house of God shaped the woman I am today. My father never forced his children to live the Catholic life, it was all he knew and therefore it was the only way he knew to introduce us to God. You see it wasn't as important to him that we have a religion, only that we establish a relationship with God.

My parents believed in being kind and considerate of others; to help when a hand was needed; that honesty was truly the best policy and to not judge others for that was God's duty. Not that I've perfected any of those things it is in fact a daily work in progress. In my personal search for spirituality I've explored many faiths, for if there is only one God why are there so many religions in the world?

When I read the article in the April 3 edition of the Dexter Leader from Pastor Porinsky I was deeply disturbed by the fact that both lines taken from Mr. Lennon's song were completely out of context, thus contradicting the original message of the song.

In my personal spiritual quest I became familiar with the song Imagine by John Lennon, and the only message that song "glorifies" is peace and brotherhood of man. Pastor Porinsky may be right about one thing with regards to Mr. Lennon in that he WAS calling for the breakdown of society as we know it.

We live in a world which

"clings to human traditions" Mark 7:8. Consider the rest of Mr. Lennon's message, imagine a world with no need for greed or hunger, no possessions, no religion, no countries, nothing to kill or die for; these are "human traditions."

"You nullify the word of God in favor of your tradition" Mark 7:13. Not to say that Mr. Lennon is God, but the imagery in which his words depict is the imagery of God; a world with peace, of sharing, a brotherhood of man; a place where mankind lives as one, a place in fact that sounds heavenly. The "society as we know it" has men walking around boasting of the billion dollar profits they make in one quarter while children are starving in the streets. The "society as we know it" has men killing one another over their interpretations of the Holy Scripture. The "society as we know it" has sacrificed the family unit by working 24/7 for the latest and greatest possessions.

If this society that we know right now were to break down, I'm not so sure it would be a bad thing.

I do not profess to know what was in Mr. Lennon's heart it is not for me to judge, but I do know he was an activist for peace.

From the humble way he presented himself to the world materially, I "Imagine" he would have given significantly from his "accumulated fortune" to aid in his vision of peace and freedom from greed and hunger.

Unfortunately, his life was cut short so all we can do is "Imagine" the good he might have accomplished had he been able to continue his advocacy for peace; especially in today's war torn world.

So I ask, "Why do you notice the splinter in your brother's eye, but do not perceive the wooden beam in your own eye?" Matthew 7:3.

To the Editor: Farmers do care about protecting Michigan water. That's why we support Michigan ratifying the Great Lakes Water Compact and implementing additional protections.

However, we see a real problem with the approach that legislation in the Michigan House of Representatives takes for managing large water uses. The House bills would restrict access to water based on volume thresholds set arbitrarily without any scientific evidence of an environmental benefit. For instance, the bills could require a farmer planning to install just one new well to water field crops or greenhouse plants or provide water to animals to apply for a water permit and be the subject of a public hearing, all in an effort to determine if the proposed use of water is in the public interest.

Farmers support water conservation, but we believe the system should be fair and produce tangible results.

Agriculture is working to conserve and protect Michigan's water while producing food, an effort we hope you agree is in the public interest. To this end, we're simply seeking a fair and reasonable system in which science is the measuring stick to determine when a water withdrawal is harmful and when it is not.

That's why we're urging our legislators to oppose House Bills 5065-5073 and instead give consideration to passage of the Great Lakes Compact and a science-based water management approach for Michigan that does not unfairly restrict the growth of Michigan's economy.

To the Editor: I find it interesting that Tim Skubick's column regarding press coverage in the April 3 issue of the Chelsea Standard began with a note of negative criticism on the way in which it is handled.

He gave as an example the Associated Press coverage of Hillary Clinton's schedules as First Lady. He vilifies the tactics of using cheap shots regarding personal incidents in her life, simply to appeal to the public's prurient interest in these reports.

Nevertheless, to make his point, he quotes in detail, the very things he is disclaiming — which in the beginning of the article, he says: "Without useful information getting to the citizens, how are they going to make good decisions about politics and government?"

How indeed!

Government roundup

Stabenow, Walberg focus on creating new jobs

U.S. Senator Debbie Stabenow, D-Michigan, last week announced Senate passage of her Amendment to encourage American manufacturers to invest in the economy, thereby creating jobs at home. The amendment allows manufacturers to utilize built up tax credits to stimulate the economy, invest in capital, and create new jobs.

Cosponsored by Senator George Voinovich (R-Ohio), the amendment is part of the Foreclosure Prevention Act of 2008, expected to be voted on this week.

Stabenow's amendment comes on the heels of today's Department of Labor report announcing the single largest monthly job loss in five years, including 48,000 in the manufacturing sector alone.

"Across our state and across our country, middle-class families are struggling," said Stabenow.

"Today's Department of Labor report that 80,000 jobs were lost nationally last month only serves to underscore what we have known in Michigan for some time. My amendment is a critical step in reversing these trends, stimulating the economy, and creating quality, good-paying middle-class jobs here at home."

The Economic Stimulus Act of 2008, which became law earlier this year, included an accelerated bonus depreciation provision to give companies a strong incentive to increase investment and stimulate the economy.

The Stabenow Amendment allows those companies hurting the most to utilize already accumulated tax credits to make critical investments in their businesses and workforce. Specifically, manufacturers may elect to utilize accumulated alternative minimum tax credits and research and development tax credits to make investments that would qualify for bonus depreciation, if manufacturers were profitable.

More jobs

The U.S. Department of Labor released its March jobs report, and the report confirms what we in Michigan already know: jobs are getting tougher to come by.

"During these tough economic times, creating good-paying jobs is number one on my priority list," said U.S. Rep. Tim Walberg, R-District 7. "Over the past few weeks, I've hosted at least 15 public forums, and at each of these events, the conversation was dominated by talk of how to bring back jobs to Michigan."

While times are tough in Michigan and across America, Walberg believes things will turn around.

"I am taking practical steps to encourage the creation of good-paying jobs and economic growth," he said. "Our economic slowdown gives Democrats and Republicans the chance to work on meaningful solutions that create jobs and allow small businesses to grow."

"For example, our American auto manufacturers spend $20 billion a year on research and development, and I am working with my colleagues to pass the Investment in America Act (H.R.2138) to extend the research and development tax credit. Passing this bill would allow Michigan to keep high-tech, high-paying jobs and encourage further investment."

Walberg also has co-sponsored the Capital Gains Inflation Relief Act (H.R.1261), which would stop American families, small business owners and family farmers from being taxed on gains that came simply from inflation. This legislation would provide homeowners, farmers and business owners tax fairness and encourage investment and saving.

"Leadership in the House is pushing a massive $680 billion tax increase on families and job providers, and I am strongly fighting this ill-timed, bloated bill," Walberg said. "Michigan's economic turnaround depends on manufacturers innovating, growing and expanding, and higher taxes will prevent manufacturers from even thinking about growing."

"Congress must tighten its belt and foster a climate where good-paying jobs can be created. This is common sense."

Coffee hour

State Rep. Pam Byrnes, D-Lyndon Township, announced her next coffee hour will be from 9 to 10 a.m. on Monday at the Scio Township Hall, 827 Zeeb Road, Ann Arbor.

The purpose of the coffee hour is for Rep. Byrnes to meet and talk with her constituents about the issues they feel are important to them. It is an informal, free event open to the public.

Dexter Community Schools District. During that time, the district constructed a new high school, a new elementary school, added a wing to the middle school and renovated other buildings to accommodate a growing, thriving student population.

We've made a significant investment in the quality of education in Dexter, and it has been well worth it - for the students and for the vitality of our community. Now the opportunity is at hand to protect the investment and continue the commitment to our students and community. The current bond proposal will provide crucial funding to make needed improvements to school and community facilities including energy efficiencies and security, to upgrade fading technology that is vital to teaching and learning, to ensure proper maintenance and replacement of our school buses, to provide adequate resources for music and performance programs and athletics.

All of this, and it won't cost us any more than the investment we have already made. Because of the population growth within the district over the past 10 years, the bond we approved back in 1998 will be paid off sooner than originally projected. The proposed new bond will simply leverage the accelerated debt reduction of the existing bond, maintaining the same millage rate for a few years before the rate begins to tail off sharply to final payoff. And we'll still complete the 1998 bond debt ahead of the original timetable.

Please, support the new bond proposal. Without taking on any more tax burden, we can sustain and extend the investment we have made in the education of our children and grandchildren and in the well-being of our community. On May 6, vote "yes" for the bond proposal.

Monet said reasons for the growing trend include parents unable to raise their children because of drugs, alcohol and mental health problems, incarceration, divorce, child abuse and neglect, teen pregnancy, poverty, HIV/AIDS, domestic violence, military deployment and death.

"It's so sad," Monet said. "Some of these grandparents are dealt a double blow by finding themselves in the middle of a family crisis and then all of a sudden taking on the responsibility of raising a grandchild at home."

Founded in 1992, the Catholic Social Services Grandparents as Parents program, whose headquarters are based at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ypsilanti, has seen a gradual rise in county clients seeking out their services in recent years.

"I think if more people knew where we were and what we did, we would have a lot more grandparents seeking us out," Monet said.

According to the agency's adult older services manager, Joshua Hartman, the program currently services 120 clients from Ann Arbor, Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester, Saline and Ypsilanti. However, in a study released by the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging, in 2006, there were 3,573 households with the grandparent as listed as the primary caregiver.

"That means we're only reaching a small percentage of grandparents in our county," Monet said. "The biggest message we want to get across to people is that they are not alone."

Chelsea resident Ann Wright, who took on the responsibility of raising her daughter and son-in-law's children in 1989, said the program provided her with peace of mind knowing there were other families who were experiencing the similar circumstances.

"All the friends I had at the time already had kids who were grown, so they didn't understand why I would take on such a huge responsibility," she said.

"They kept telling me, 'Why would you do that?' and it made me feel totally alone."

Despite struggling financially after her husband lost his job, Wright said she felt it was her duty as a mother to help her daughter.

"I wasn't going to let my grandchildren slip into the system," she said. "If I didn't take them, Protective Services told me they couldn't guarantee if I would ever see them again or whether or not they would be split up into separate homes."

However, Wright said nothing could have prepared her for the financial strain associated with the adoption.

"It's definitely a long road, especially financially," she said. "Like many others, we didn't know where to turn for help."

However, Wright said after helping start the Grandparents and Parents Support Group in Chelsea, she quickly learned about the myriad financial and counseling services available to grandparents.

"It's a wonderful program," she said. "Working with Catholic Services, we started finding out that there were resources out there to help us and then suddenly that fear of thinking the police would come any day and take the kids away, stopped."

Today, though her grandchildren are all grown up, Wright said she still helps out at the group's meetings, serving as a mentor to other grandparents.

"As someone who has gone through the depression and anxiety of not knowing, I feel I am able to help others cope," she said.

"Taking on young grandchildren is a whole new world. Grandparents are having to reeducate themselves on a lot of different aspects because kids today are dealing with issues our kids never had to deal with."

Wright said as part of her crusade, she recently attended a legislative hearing on Senate Bill 170, a financial bill that could allocate more state-funded dollars to grandparents and other relatives caring for children.

"There are a lot of grandparents in our group who are caring for children with just the money they get from Social Security," she said. "I went to testify on this bill because there is a strong need for our state leaders to step up and support our youth."

However, Wright said the bill has not yet been passed by the Legislature.

"It's gone nowhere and it's really frustrating," she said. "These grandparents need this money now because we love our grandchildren and we don't want them sent away to a complete stranger."

"It's not right that they keep saying 'Our kids are important,' but then they ignore the fact that some children don't have a warm place to sleep or eat at night."

Deborah Simpson of Ypsilanti said the Grandparents as Parents program has had a significant impact on her ability to raise her 10-year-old grandson.

"It's amazing how welcoming the people in our group are," she said. "I needed someone to talk to and they have been there every day."

Simpson said she sought out help from the group beginning in February after taking full guardianship of her grandson.

"I was in the hospital and they brought me food and talked with me and allowed me to unload," she said. "It was so good to meet people who knew my language. Other people that don't go through family situations tend to give you a guilt trip and cast doubt in your mind about raising children all over again."

But Simpson said through the help of Grandparents as Parents, she was able to get financial, medical and moral support for her grandson.

"They are always asking me if there is anything they can do to help," she said. "I enjoy meeting with them every week and my grandson looks forward to it, too. I just wish we could meet more than once a week."

Simpson said she enjoys talking with other grandparents and sharing suggestions to help others in the group.

"I like listening and sharing because you don't feel like you are a lone," she said. "Everyone is open to sharing because it's so easy to share how you are feeling."

Simpson said one thing she has learned from the group is how to support her grandson emotionally.

"He's in counseling now and I have him enrolled with Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Washtenaw County. He's also involved with Boy Scouts."

Simpson said the group has also educated her on how to handle her grandson's reactions to the change in family life.

"He still has some behavior problems, but that is just all part of the process all these kids go through," she said. "Before moving in with me, he was failing school and now he has all

DRY EYES

No More Tears Is Not Always A Good Thing!

Everyone experiences the symptoms from time to time: Burning, irritable eyes. A feeling that something is actually scratching the eye. But for some 3 million American women (and 1 million men), these symptoms are chronic, because they suffer from Dry Eye Syndrome.

Tears Are Important

Tears are essential to good vision. They lubricate the eye, protect it from infections and wash away allergens. With Dry Eye Syndrome, the eye produces too few tears, or tears of such poor quality that they don't stay on the eye. Ironically, some people with Dry Eye Syndrome may actually experience tears running down their cheeks.

Women Are More Susceptible

While everyone experiences reduced tear production as they age, women are more prone to Dry Eye Syndrome than men by a 3 to 1 margin. Studies have shown that hormone therapy may increase the incidence of Dry Eye Syndrome. It is also a side effect of other drugs such as birth control pills, blood pressure medicines, antihistamines and certain anti-depressants.

Outside Influences

Environmental factors can magnify the symptoms of Dry Eye Syndrome. These include a dusty, dry or windy climate, air conditioning or heating systems (especially if the vent blows on your face), and even staring at a computer screen for extended periods of time.

Help Is Available

Your eye doctor can offer several options for managing Dry Eye Syndrome, such as:

- Lubricating drops that can minimize the dry, scratchy sensation
- Restasis® drops that actually increase tear production
- Temporary or permanent closure of the lacrimal (tear) ducts to keep your tears from draining away as quickly

If you are experiencing any of the symptoms of Dry Eye Syndrome, please let us know.

Island paradise

Drummond Island is a special vacation spot

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

As the stocky young man with hair falling out of his baseball cap approaches the driver's side window, the car is suddenly rocked back and forth. While the passengers in the car are a little surprised by the jolt, the young man doesn't skip a beat.

"That's $12, sir," he says, barely making eye contact.

And so the journey to Drummond Island begins - with a jolt, 12 bucks and a 10-minute ferry ride across the St. Mary's river. Because there are no roads or bridges to the island, visitors with automobiles must take the ferry, making the final leg of the trip not only a little different, but special - a very fitting introduction to this little gem sparkling along the edge of Lake Huron.

If you look at a map of the boundary line between Canada and the United States, you will see that the more straight line would have given Drummond Island to the Canadians. But for some reason the boundary breaks off and goes around Drummond Island, leaving this northern paradise on the American side. If trading the Upper Peninsula for Toledo was Michigan's greatest steal, procuring Drummond Island was a nice little heist.

Up North means many things to many people. For example, some people never head north without the golf clubs in the trunk. If golf is your game, The Rock is your place. This 18-hole gem can play with any of Northern Michigan's top courses - and that's saying something.

Others head north with the fishing poles and tackle boxes banging around in the back. Drummond Island boasts some of the best fishing places around - even in the so-called slow years. Salmon, pike, walleye and perch are among the biggest catches.

Of course hunting also is a popular sport on the island. Hunters visit the island from all over the country and many make a week of it, staying in one of the local cabins or campgrounds. The DNR estimates as many as 6,000 deer call Drummond Island home.

If kayaking is your thing then Tiny Harbor Island and its nature preserve is a must destination. This hot spot offers plenty of ecological wonders of the area.

Hiking and mountain biking also are on many visitor's to-do list. With 150 miles of rugged scenic shoreline, 133 square miles of forested landscape and 76 miles of paved roads, there are plenty of options available. The many trails provide some beautiful scenery and offer that up-north feeling of peace and tranquility.

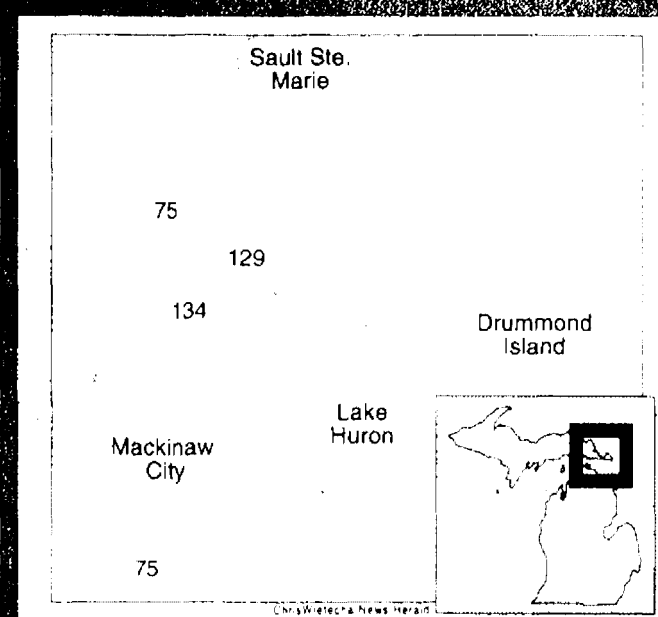

Drummond Island is the largest American island in the Great Lakes with 133 square miles. It's an ecological paradise. In fact, 61 percent of the island is state forest land and is home to uncountable migratory birds, deer and other animals. It's also home to the alvar plains, a rare geological feature left over from the ice age.

Maxton Plains is one of the largest and least disturbed alvars in the world. Alvars are broad, flat areas of limestone bedrock on which the topsoil was scraped away, in this case by Ice Age glaciers. While Drummond Island certainly offers some magnificent scenery, Maxton Plains must be appreciated because of its uniqueness and subtle beauty - and the best way to see that is up close and personal.

Local residents offers 'family' hospitality

Bonnie Papin and husband Ron own Papins Resort on Drummond Island. Bonnie recently participated in a Q&A with Heritage Editor Terry Jacoby.

Q. How long have you lived on Drummond Island?

A. We have lived on Drummond Island since 1988. We first moved to the Upper Peninsula in 1985 and lived in DeTour Village because we couldn't find a house on Drummond Island right away.

It was August and school was about to start. We moved from a small little town called Black River, Mich., which is about 20 miles south of Alpena. Ron was a logger and the opportunity looked good.

Q. What is it like living on Drummond Island?

A. It's great living on Drummond Island. The schools are small and personal. There are two grades to a room in the elementary school. The kids loved growing up at the resort and they made a lot of friends from year to year. We have watched a lot of kids grow up coming here because we have a lot of repeat customers. Many people that come here come back every year.

Q. What is it like raising a family on Drummond Island?

A. I think it is the perfect place to raise a family. Two of our kids still live, work and have families in this area.

Q. What are some of the advantages and disadvantages to living on the island?

A. The small town atmosphere is a major plus. A disadvantage might be the fact that you plan your time off the island with the ferry schedule. It is a bummer when you miss the ferry. It runs every hour if not more during the summer so it's usually not a problem.

Q. When did you first get into the cabin renting business?

A. We bought the resort in April of 1988. There were six little cabins here and an old cement block bait house.

Q. What makes Papins special?

A. I would say it's the family atmosphere here. We are friendly and love to accommodate people. I figure a lot of people are only going on a weeks vacation once a year and it needs to be special every time.

Q. You build almost everything by hand, including the kitchen tables, lamps, decks, etc. How long have you and Ron been builders?

A. We have been building our own log cabins/homes for almost 20 years now. We also build for other people. For the last couple of years we have pretty much turned the building for other people over to our daughter and son-in-law. We mainly just keep them supplied with the building material.

Q. What are some things people can do on Drummond Island?

A. There are a lot of things to do here. There is boating, fishing, hiking, canoeing, kayaking, hunting, biking, snowmobiling and more.

'Growing Pretty' will grow on you

By Sean Dalton

Staff Writer

Freshman playwright Carey Crim is off to a great start with her Purple Rose Theatre Company writing debut "Growing Pretty," thanks to tailor-made dialogue and a cast of believable actors to pull it off.

The thing that really stands out about this production and makes it come alive is the quality of the performances, thanks to the fact that everyone on stage has completely bought into what Crim presents in her script.

Lucy Keen, played wonderfully by PRTC professional newcomer Stacie Hadgikosti, is such an interesting lead character, and real, too.

It helps that Hadgikosti is a newer actor and has a freshness to her, since her performance was more raw than that of co-star Grant Krause, who is generally more polished due to the sheer length of his resume.

That rawness lent a great deal of authenticity to the vulnerability and pain that Lucy feels throughout the play.

Michael Brian Ogden also needs to be recognized for his intense and often spastic performance as Lucy's childhood best friend Hami.

His character is best summed up as the ultimate conflicted best friend with romantic ambitions that are constantly at odds with a friendship that is too valuable to chance.

It doesn't help that both Lucy and Hami have a number of crises at home that distract them from each other and push their platonic relationship to the forefront — much to Hami's chagrin.

He is essentially "in the friend zone" when it comes to the love of his life, and Ogden not only gets that across with his great delivery, but facial expressions, body language and the entire kit and caboodle. He conveys pain, frustration and introversion masterfully.

"Growing Pretty" opens with Lucy and Hami taking photos for a Redbook magazine mail-in amateur model competition.

At the start, Lucy is trying to be acknowledged by her mother (played by Rhiannon Ragland) — a task that leads her to seek general acceptance from everyone and Krause's Jack, who at first comes into the Keen household as a boarder, but is quickly driven out of the home and Lucy's life after an incident involving his camera and Lucy's mother.

As always, Krause is great at playing the experienced, worldly anchor to the rest of the cast. He has a penchant for playing a philanderer, which is part of who Jack becomes in the end.

After Redbook editors render their verdict on Lucy's supermodel ambitions, the focus quickly shifts to Jack, and Lucy's childhood infatuation with him.

Lucy seeks out Jack for reasons both personal and professional, but the relationship ends up being extremely volatile and the source of one of the biggest twists in the story.

Let's just say that Lucy and Jack, who become pupil and mentor, are on different trajectories of success and desperation rears its ugly head.

These three relationships take a lot of twists and turns over the course of the story's 18-year span, which sees Lucy grow from age 12 to 30.

Once the kids are out of college and Lucy's true journey to become a photographer like Jack — her love and one of the few people who acknowledge her — the true plot thread begins and doesn't stop making heads and hearts ache until the final scene, where the resolution is dropped in the audience's lap with little warning.

Over the course of the play, Lucy will grow into adulthood and realize her ambition of becoming an artist. Along the way she develops into a more complete human being in general, but whether or not that is the result of her growth into an artist or one of the keys that allowed it to happen is up to the audience's interpretation.

At first it seems like Crim and "Growing Pretty" director Michelle Mountain cast aside the supermodel ambitions and childhood portion of Lucy's life prematurely.

These are mined thoroughly for comedic effect early on, but the production doesn't really hit its stride until Lucy, Hami and Jack grow up (or grow older, in Jack's case).

From there on, it is a very touching, emotional story that had men in the audience at last Saturday's media performance crying during the curtain call.

Hugh Maguire, playing Lucy's father, doesn't get much stage time, but what little he has is touching and his performance during one of two funeral scenes drops an emotional bomb so poignant the resolution of Crim's tale would not be the same without it.

Even though the play is titled and promoted in such a way that one might think it's just for the ladies, Lucy's story is definitely one to which we can all relate.

Whether you've had a childhood friendship that had romantic love at its core but was too valuable to chance, or the strained relationship between Lucy and her mother, there's at least one thing here for everyone to chew on.

Unless, of course, you've led a "charmed life," as Mountain put it.

beauty of Maxton Plains. The best way to see that is by foot or bike.

As you would expect, Drummond Island is home to people who prefer the slower pace of life, the wonders of nature and the friendliness of the small town. Bonnie Papin is one of those island residents.

"We have lived here since 1988 and love it here," said Papin, who owns and operates Papins Resort. "There are so many things to do here, but there is also the opportunity to just relax. And I think that's why a lot of people like to come here. Of course, we get plenty of fisherman and hunters renting our cabins, but we also get families just looking to spend some time with nature and relax."

Papins Resort offers more than a dozen choices of log cabins, many with scenic views and built right into the woods. The inside of the cabins are more like a home and the Papins take care of almost everything you would need during your visit.

Between 1,000 and 1,200 people live on the island and they expect visitors to leave their "home" in better condition than they found it. In return, they serve as the island keepers and tour guides, offering friendly advice and tips for anyone in need of some local knowledge.

Small town charm is certainly in abundance on the island. As is the feeling you

While the Rock is a must play for any golfer, the Drummond Island Resort offers plenty of other ways to enjoy the island.

Moffett, Nalli leading teams

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

With the weather changing for the better recently, Chelsea and Dexter athletes have headed outdoors. Whether indoors or out, local athletes continue to raise eyebrows and turn heads at the collegiate level.

At the University of Akron, Chelsea's Katrina Moffett led the Zips to a 10-2 softball victory over visiting University of Buffalo last Sunday. The senior first baseman finished 2-for-2 with two runs scored and one RBI. Last Saturday, the Akron clean-up hitter again went 2-for-2 with two runs scored and one RBI as Akron topped Buffalo 6-4.

For the season, Moffett lead the Zips with a .375 batting average. She has started all 36 games at first base for Akron this season, recording 30 hits, nine doubles and eight RBIs in 80 at-bats.

At the University of Michigan, Dexter junior Tony Nalli finished second for the men's track and field team in the 3,000-meter run in 8:31.44 in the Wolverines' 110-93 dual meet loss against Ohio State University in Columbus last Saturday.

Also at U-M, Chelsea sophomore Rachel Severin placed seventh for the women's track and field team in the 1,500-meter run with a time of 4:40.33 at the Florida State University Relays in Tallahassee March 29. There was no team scoring in the meet.

Dexter senior Lindsay Davis placed 51st for the University of Michigan's women's golf team at the Mountain View Challenge in Tucson, Ariz. March 30. Davis ended up with a three-day score of 230 (76-76-78). As a squad, the Wolverines finished 10th out of 17 teams with a score of 907.

At Aquinas College, Chelsea sophomore Joe Welton had one RBI in an 8-5 Game 1 doubleheader loss against Concordia College last Saturday. In the second contest, Welton had one walk in a 9-2 Aquinas loss. Welton plays outfield and pitches for the Saints (9-13) this season.

At Indiana-Purdue Fort Wayne University, Chelsea freshman Chad Nielsen earned the victory from the mound in the Mastadons' 5-4 win over host Southern Utah University last Friday. Nielsen allowed five hits, two runs, struckout two and walked one in picking up the victory. IPFW is 6-17-1 overall this year.

Chelsea senior Andy Korc returns to the mound this season for the Bulldogs. Last year, Chelsea finished 29-11 overall and reached the state quarterfinals before losing 3-1 to Orchard Lake St. Mary's.

Speed key for Bulldogs

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Speed will be the name of the game for Chelsea baseball this season. As opposed to the last two years, in which the Bulldogs advanced to the state semifinals and quarterfinals behind power pitching and hitting, this season's Chelsea squad will rely more on finesse and clutch hitting.

"We'll clearly be a different ball club than in the past," said Chelsea coach Wayne Welton, beginning his 31st season in the dugout. "We have tremendous team speed. We'll try and hit and run more. We should be very difficult to play against."

Last year, the Bulldogs finished 29-11 overall capturing their eighth consecutive Southeastern Conference White Division title. Chelsea also won state district and regional crowns, before losing to Orchard Lake St. Mary's 3-1 in the state quarterfinals.

The Bulldogs lost quite a bit of talent off of last season's club. Chelsea sent four players onto to college a year ago. Dan Augustine is now playing for Oakland University, while Chad Nielsen is at Indiana-Purdue Fort Wayne University and Adam Connell and Dan Rhodes are suiting up for Hillsdale College.

Returning to lead the Bulldogs in 2008 are three-year varsity players seniors outfielders Christopher Schmelz and Jeff Adams.

Welton said Schmelz, who'll play football at Hope College next fall, would lead off for Chelsea.

"He could challenge (Adam) Connell's stolen base record set last year," he said. "He'll definitely set the table for the offense."

Welton said Adams would hit in the middle of the lineup.

"He's got some pop in his bat," he said.

Rounding out the starting outfield will be senior Donny Riedel. Also a right-handed pitcher, Welton said Bulldog senior Jeff Adams will patrol center field for Chelsea this season. The powerful hitter will bat in the middle of the Bulldog line-up this year.

Riedel would be one of Chelsea top two throwers this season.

"He has some nasty stuff," Welton said. "He has a very lively arm."

Welton said the threesome of Riedel, Adams and Schmelz would be a treat to watch this year.

"They all can run," he said. "They will be as fast an outfield as we've ever had."

Other seniors returning to the squad this season include first baseman-catcher Matt Prince, second baseman Matt Schwarz, pitcher-third baseman-designated hitter Andy Korc and pitcher-utility infielder Paul Bell. A senior newcomer is pitcher-outfielder Jake Galarowic.

Key juniors on the team include catcher Randy Cox, shortstop-pitcher Scott Rhodes, pitcher-outfielder Michael Lenneman, outfielder Steven O'Keefe, pitcher-third baseman

Who?

Raptor rehabilitation is a stimulating experience

By James Orr
Guest Writer

I went inside the owl cage to give my recuperating barred owl his chicken thigh dinner and he startled me by suddenly flying from one side of the cage to the other right over my shoulder.

The cage was actually a 6-foot by 10-foot kennel about 10 feet tall, so a large owl with a three-foot wing span, sharp talons and a flesh tearing beak flying over your shoulder is what I call highly stimulating.

This was the first time he had flown since I had rescued him from the highway several weeks earlier.

I found him on a dark rainy night sitting on the center stripe of a highway.

He was in shock and had a large wound on his wing where he had apparently been hit by a car.

He was in a daze, seemingly unaware of the vehicles barely missing him at 50 mph.

I did not have my animal rescue tools with me and the thought of picking up a wild raptor capable of removing a finger was cause for hesitation.

I removed my coat and used it to capture him, figuring I'd rather be cold than risk losing a digit.

Once I had him loaded in the backseat it was hard to concentrate on the dark winding mountain road trying not to think about what could happen if a kidnapped owl got out of my coat and decided to fly inside my vehicle.

Since I was no longer wearing a coat I was particularly vulnerable to his 2-inch talons, which I knew were capable of exerting hundreds of pounds of pressure per square inch.

Every time I heard a rustle from the back seat I envisioned him attacking my ears with his powerful beak.

This is a good point to mention you can go to jail or be fined if caught in the possession of an owl or migratory bird.

Federal laws protect them and even helping one requires a licensed bird rehabilitator. Rather than use an assumed name and secret hideaway to help my feathered friend I reported the rescue and got the required authorization and supervision to proceed.

I made it home without incident and treated his wounds keeping his head covered as I administered injections, carefully avoiding the talons that kept grasping at his unseen benefactor.

He had no visible broken bones but was pretty much comatose. Swelling around the brain can cause everything from temporary blindness to shock and disorientation. Steroids given the first few days are very effective in reducing swelling and can have miraculous results restoring functions.

I was instructed to force-feed him the first few days until he came out of his stupor.

Force-feeding an owl is also highly stimulating.

You grasp his upper beak with your fingers and lift, tilting his head back until he opens his mouth.

Next you maneuver a piece of raw chicken about the size of a finger into his mouth pulling out your finger before reflex action causes him to snap shut his razor sharp beak.

Michigan's Stream Team: Partners in Stream Restoration

Even though it was only late October, the water in the East Branch of the Pine River near Tustin was so cold it took Cyndi Rachol's breath away as she picked up rocks from the stream bottom and carefully measured each one, even the tiny grains of sand.

Standing at her side, Kristine Boley-Morse tried to keep her fingers warm enough to record each measurement in a notebook.

For Rachol, a hydrologist with the U.S. Geological Survey, and Boley-Morse, watershed coordinator for the Calhoun Conservation District and Michigan State University graduate student, it was just another day's work for these two members of Michigan's Stream Team.

Michigan has more than 36,000 miles of rivers and streams and many different organizations who contribute to the management, protection and conservation of these waters.

About six years ago, members from several federal, state and local agencies who were involved in stream restoration got together to share their knowledge and experience. From that meeting, Michigan's Stream Team was formed.

"The Stream Team began when staff from several agencies working on stream restoration got together to develop common ways of collecting stream measurements and to share collected data," said Ralph Reznick, senior engineer for the Department of Environmental Quality's Nonpoint Source Program. "We realized that each agency didn't have to resample the same river or stream to meet their specific needs."

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has been involved since the Stream Team's inception in 2002, and the group has grown to include 12 organizations.

The primary goal of the Stream Team is to share resources and develop common methods for collecting information related to the physical characteristics of the stream channel.

The data is the basis for the development of regional hydraulic geometry reference curves — a fancy name for a tool that allows biologists to predict characteristics of streams based on the size of their watershed or drainage area.

"By using the regional curves on streams for which we have little or no information, we hope, to save time and allow for better

Shake, Rattle & Roll

Chelsea High's Company C hosts fund-raiser at Big Boy in Scio Twp.

The Chelsea High School show choir, Company C, will be serving and entertaining the patrons at the new Scio Township Big Boy at 497 N. Zeeb Road (just north of I-94) from 5 to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, April 22.

Diners will enjoy excellent food and a "Doo Wop" atmosphere as they are taken back in time to a 1950's diner, complete with 50's decor, singing waiters, toe-tapping music and the opportunity to participate in both auctions and raffles - all while helping to raise funds for the Company C program.

The Scio Township Big Boy is donating all tips to Company C, as well as a percentage of sales for the evening.

The singers will rock the restaurant with special table-side performances to seven big song and dance favorites including "Shake, Rattle, and Roll," "Whole Lotta Shakin' Goin' On," "Willie and the Hand Jive," "Peppermint Twist," "Tutti Frutti," "C'mon Everybody" and "Jailhouse Rock."

The event will give diners a "taste" of what's in store for the group's biggest show of the year, "Cabaret" on May 9-10 at Chelsea High School. This will be a full scale theatrical show entitled, "Shake, Rattle and Roll," a fast-paced romp through the 1950's - reliving the early years of rock and roll, complete with young love, broken hearts and malt shop dreams.

Stop in to the Scio Township Big Boy and enjoy this lively dinner celebration as these students share their love and enthusiasm for entertaining in this unique setting.

restoration project design," Reznick said.

Staff from the DNR Fisheries Division will use the regional curves for projects such as dam removal or stream restoration.

According to Chris Freiburger, who coordinates the state's role with the federal government in the regulation of hydroelectric dams and the licensing of hydropower plants in Michigan, completion of the curves will aid efforts underway as well as new projects.

"We currently help fisheries managers throughout the state by reviewing projects involving dams, fish passage and stream channel improvement," he said. "The regional curves will provide another resource to help us provide better advice and guidance."

Although all members of the Stream Team pitch in to help, the primary responsibility of data collection for the regional curves falls upon Cyndi Rachol and Kristine Boley-Morse.

Much of the financial assistance for the regional curves is provided by members of the Stream Team, including the Department of Environmental Quality, Department of Transportation, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. Geological Survey, and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Thus far, 31 different rivers and streams throughout Michigan have been surveyed for the regional curves, and the goal is to collect data from a total of 50 streams. The selected streams must meet specific criteria including being wadeable and having unaltered channels with existing flow-gauging records.

For information, visit the Stream Team's Web site at www.michigan.gov/streamteam

RAPTOR

Since both top and bottom bill are pointed to facilitate tearing flesh there is not a lot of room for error.

By the third day he regained enough of his senses to take food out of my hand voluntarily. This is not to say he was tame.

An animal in shock can appear quite calm giving the illusion he is tame but this can change at any second.

After three weeks he had recovered from the concussion and all I had to do was leave a couple chicken thighs in the cage each night.

He would eat everything to the bare bone.

The first attempt to release him was unsuccessful. He was only able to fly a few yards to the ground, so I returned him to the kennel to recuperate further and build up strength in his injured wing.

In rehabilitation class they instruct you that the animals will tell you when they are ready to go.

Seeing him fly around his cage buzzing my ears after staying immobile for almost four weeks was a pretty clear message: Mr. Owl was ready to leave.

The trick was to capture a now fully healthy owl without getting either of us hurt. It would be terrible to injure him if he panicked in the confines of the cage.

This time I was protected with Kevlar gloves and heavy leather arm guards. As I entered the kennel and closed the door behind me I started thinking about ear snacks again.

I covered his head with a towel, which caused him to remain fairly still and I was able to pick him up pinning his wings from behind to avoid talons and beak, either of which could cause significant injury.

Owls can hiss, snap their beak and make a very loud clicking sound when threatened which I can say from personal experience is most intimidating.

As if the sound effects were not enough they can turn their heads 180 degrees, which causes additional problems because you cannot tell the front from back with a towel over their head, and when you take the towel off they can turn their head around behind them and snap at your hands.

It takes a lot of confidence in your training to not panic when they pull this exorcist routine on you.

I successfully carried my patient out of the cage and uncovered him. He hopped from my gloved hand to my leather-sleeved arm. He calmly looked me over one last time making direct eye contact as if to say "What now?"

I began to fear he was sizing up my ears again.

Looking into his magnificent eyes I was reminded owls have incredible night vision. A person with comparable sight could read a newspaper by candlelight from the opposite end of a football stadium.

He flew to the ground and I began to wonder if this would be a repeat of the last release attempt.

He sat there for a few minutes watching me and then flew away into the late afternoon sky. Owls fly silently, no wing flutter like other birds due to very soft downy feathers.

It is an eerie sight to see such a large bird fly silently. I felt really fulfilled and as I walked into the house and I felt my ears noticeably relax.

Water quality tests

Free water quality risk assessments and nitrate screenings are offered to residents of Washtenaw, Monroe, and Lenawee counties through the Michigan Groundwater Stewardship Program.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency recommends that drinking water from wells should be tested once a year for nitrates, nitrites and bacteria.

Nitrates and phosphates from fertilizers, fuels from storage tanks, septic waste, and pesticide chemicals all can contaminate groundwater.

The Washtenaw County

Conservation District offers water quality assessments through the Michigan Department of Agriculture's groundwater stewardship program, a statewide program that helps residents learn how they can protect water resources.

The assessment will show you how to properly use and store pesticides and fertilizers, maintain your septic system, care for your water well and much more.

For a free water quality risk assessment and nitrate screening, contact the Washtenaw County Conservation District at (734) 761-6721, ext. 101.

Sons of local celebrity take center stage

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Benjamin and Luke Daniels of Chelsea are following in their father's famous footsteps and into the footlights in separate productions.

Oldest son Ben was recently featured at the Michigan Theater in Ann Arbor in a 12-minute independent film titled "Fingers," in which he played guitar and sang a song he composed, according to a member of the Daniels family.

Following the screening of the film he came onstage and performed the song for the audience.

Middle son Luke has a role in the Michigan State University production of "Babes in Arms," a classic Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart musical with an updated libretto by Joe DiPietro.

The musical begins its run at 7:30 p.m. today at the Pasant Theater at MSU's Wharton Center for the Performing Arts.

Performances continue through Sunday and again April 17 to 20. Tickets are $18 for adults or $13 for students and available online at whartoncenter.com or by phone at 1-800-WHARTON.

Chelsea Gallery to feature 'New Works'

The Chelsea Gallery is hosting an opening reception featuring Martha Ceccio's "New Works," Saturday, May 3, 6 to 9 p.m.

New encaustic works and oil paintings by Martha Ceccio will be exhibited May 3 through June 24. Ceccio's landscapes frequently depict scenes that are dreamlike remembrances of past times and places. Her encaustic paintings combine digital photography with beeswax and resin, producing quietly reflective images of nature.

Ceccio has been a Resident Artist at Voyageurs National Park in Northern Minnesota, and at the Red Cinder Creativity Center on the Big Island of Hawaii. Exhibiting nationally, she has placed numerous works in public and private collections including the University of Michigan Museum of Art, the J.P. Morgan Chase Bank and the Department of the Interior National Park Service.

The Chelsea Gallery is located at 115 S. Main Street, Chelsea. For more information, call 1-734 475 1008.

For those about to rock, we salute you!

Tonight Dexter's teen bands will battle it out yet again at the Copeland cafeteria on Dexter-Ann Arbor Road.

The "battles" are put on three times per year by Deborah Marsh and her Student Produced Artistic Collaborative Events or SPACE program at Dexter Community Schools. The events are typically held at the Copeland Building's cafeteria.

This time around will see the return of Untitled and Vintage, previous winners from last February and October respectively.

Untitled consists of lead singer Graham Low, Ian Boyd and Sean Pollard on guitar and Jeremy Horner on drums.

The girls of Vintage include Lauren Wright, Chelsea Low and Georgia Myers. Graham is also a member of this more up-tempo, melodic band.

A lot of new faces will be showing up at this latest battle, including solo acts by Higgs and Lows, Lucas Longoria and Shere Khan.

I Come From Julius is a new band. Jim Kelly is lead guitar, Colin Clegg is lead vocals, Mason Nuttle is rhythm guitar and Derek Fead is on bass, with Tayo Norton on drums.

"We play death metal with screaming, but it's Christian," Kelly said. "Our name is from famous cold war espionage trials. It was used as a code phrase."

The cryptically named I Heart Firepup will also debut with Rob Elder on bass guitar and lead vocals, Anthony Muisano on drums and Carl Schimmel substituting for Billy Elder, who is the band's regular vocalist and lead guitar.

Dan Stephansky's band 7 Ate 9 will also be returning as Crown of Thorns.

Teacher band Progress Report will cap off the night with a performance straight out of the school of rock.

Dexter opens door for bed & breakfast inns

By Sean Dalton
Staff Writer

After an undisclosed Saline businessperson expressed interest in moving to Dexter to run a bed and breakfast inn, the village has opened its door to that possibility.

Dexter Village does not have accommodations for those seeking overnight lodging in or near the downtown area, and the nearest B & Bs are in Chelsea and Ann Arbor.

Last month, a number of village zoning ordinances were either amended or modified to allow the property usage and placement of signage such a business would require.

In the past, the village has permitted such a business only as a special land use in Village Residential Districts, although the interest in such a business spurred the Village Planning Commission to recommend that the ordinances be altered.

A bed and breakfast inn must have two parking spaces for the owners and one per rented room, according to the revised ordinances.

Signage is also set at 5 square feet with a maximum height of six feet, according to Article 8 of the village ordinance.

The residential façade and appearance of a building being used for such a business must also be maintained.

Language addressing B & Bs was also added to ordinances dealing with single- and multiple-family residential districts, as well as village commercial and central business districts.

"(This) excludes Westridge (subdivision), Dexter Farms and probably 50 percent of the village," said Allison Bishop, community development director.

That leaves almost half the village available for such a business, for which there is more than ample real estate available, Bishop added.

"You're not going to locate a bed and breakfast within driving distance anyway," she said. "You want people within walking distance."

While the retired Saline woman has since backed off due her desire to run the business on a part-time basis, conflicting with the costs associated with starting and running such an operation in Dexter, according to Bishop, the village is still interested in filling that niche.

"We're prepared for the next person who comes to us about this," Bishop said. She indicated that the idea of a bed and breakfast would be a good way to bring tourism to the Dexter downtown area, which will be transformed after this summer's gauntlet of construction work of a new bridge, library and other improvements.

The village will also soon be home to the Encore Musical Theater, although that development is just shy of being established contractually.

"I think the community is really interested in having a bed and breakfast, and we have a couple of houses that are just perfect for it," Bishop said.

Two locations sprang to Bishop's mind: A 1,966-square-foot house at 7889 Ann Arbor-Dexter Road with three bedrooms, two bathrooms, a study and a formal dining room; and a historic house at 7950 Fifth St. that was built in 1899 and has four bedrooms and four baths.

Those two properties seem like givens for the purpose of a B & B, according to Bishop.

"Typically a bed and breakfast is located in a historic house," Bishop said. "We want it near the downtown, where the restaurants and (historic amenities) are."

"If village residents want to have their family visit from out of town, we would like to give them a place to stay in the village, rather than them having to go to Ann Arbor or Chelsea."

This house on Edison and Dover streets is one of a few quaint, historic homes that village officials believe would make a great bed and breakfast inn.

McKune, CCH partner for women's health series

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

McKune Memorial Library in Chelsea is teaming with Chelsea Community Hospital to present free seminars about women's health. All seminars will be held at the library, 221 S. Main St., in Chelsea.

"The library couldn't be more pleased to join hands and partner with the Chelsea Community Hospital and utilize the expertise we have right here to focus on some of the important issues in women's health," said Bill Harmer, the library's head of Adult Services.

"Together we're looking for an opportunity for new and expanding ways to reach a larger audience and to fill a need, which in this case regards the questions facing women as they struggle to manage their health care these days."

The series kicks off 7 to 8 p.m. April 22 with "Food Fads and Facts: How Popular Diets Really Affect Your Health," presented by Don Martin, MD, from Dexter Internal Medicine and Pediatrics, and Lisa Lutchka, a registered dietitian at the CCH Health & Wellness Center.

Women will learn the health risks and rewards of popular diets including The South Beach Diet, Weight Watchers, and The Mediterranean Diet, and will learn about food substitutions, meal planning, and assessing diets.

Adult Services Librarian Elizabeth Goldman will hold a session about Online Health Resources in the library's Learning Lab, 6:30-8:30 p.m., April 24.

Space is limited and registration is required.

"The workshop is designed to help people navigate the masses of websites about medical conditions," Goldman said. "When someone receives a diagnosis or wants to learn more about a disease, the Web is an obvious place to go. People can use it to learn at their own pace, come up with good questions to ask their doctors, and meet others in similar situations for support.

"But it's hard to tell what's legitimate and what isn't. The workshop will go over free websites and library databases that contain trustworthy, unbiased, and easy-to-understand information. These are sites where people should start when they need health information and which will refer them to other trustworthy sites with more specialized information."

The workshop will also offer quick tips on how to tell if a site is legitimate or not, Goldman said.

For those having trouble getting a good forty winks, Mark Garwood, MD, from Greater Ann Arbor Neurology Associates, will lead "Stop Stressing About Sleep: Five Things You Didn't Know Could Improve Your Sleep," 7 to 9 p.m. April 29. He will be joined by Sarah Holda, NP-C, a Nurse Practitioner at the CCH Women's Health Center, and the pair will offer practical tips to improve the quality of sleep, and reveal the common causes of poor sleep among women.

The series will wrap up with "Midlife, Menopause, Osteoporosis and Memory," a question and answer session on common health concerns among women, such as hot flashes, bone density and memory problems. This session, from 7 to 8 p.m. on May 6, will be led by Therapist Meg Chase, ACSW, from Behavioral Health Services, and Fran Beckley, NP-C, Nurse Practitioner, Women's Health Center.

"I believe this health series has a lot of potential for the community-at-large and is potentially a great partnership between the library and the medical center," said Wendy Smith, the library's marketing and development coordinator.

For more information, call the library at 475-8732.

Five key questions to ask about retirement

Whenever you see people enjoying a comfortable retirement - traveling, volunteering, pursuing hobbies, taking up a new career - you can be pretty sure it all didn't happen by accident. In fact, success at retirement is similar to success in just about any endeavor - you have to plan for it.

Of course, your planning could take many different forms. But, as you get close to retirement, you might find it easier to organize your efforts if you ask yourself these five key questions:

Where am I today? Shortly before you retire, make a detailed list of your financial assets, such as your bank accounts, investments, IRA, 401(k), etc. You may want to consider consolidating as many of these accounts as you can with just one company. This consolidation will help you get a clearer picture of your overall situation, and it may even help you reduce maintenance fees and make it easier to calculate required minimum distributions (RMDs) you might have to take once you reach 70-1/2. On the "flip side," you'll want to list out all your obligations - mortgages, home equity credit lines, car loans and other debts.

How much will I need to enjoy the retirement lifestyle I've envisioned?

You'll probably need between 80 percent and 100 percent of your pre-retirement income to maintain your standard of living in retirement. But this is a general rule; your actual needs will depend on what you want to do during retirement. So, if you want to travel extensively, you might need more income than if you chose to stay close to home, volunteering and pursuing hobbies. In any case, try to estimate your annual expenses during retirement, knowing that your plans may change later.

How much can I withdraw each year? Your investment portfolio is likely to account for a good percentage of your retirement income. Consequently, you'll want to work with your financial advisor to determine how much you can take out each year without running out of money. The percentage you withdraw each year will depend on several factors, including your portfolio's rate of return, the age at which you start taking Social Security and the size of the distributions from your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored retirement plan.

What portfolio and lifestyle adjustments do I need to make? Once you've determined how much you can realistically withdraw each year, you may need to rebalance your investments to get the right proportion of equities and fixed income. You also might need to look beyond your portfolio to see what lifestyle changes you may need to make. For example, you may decide that you wouldn't mind working for an additional year or so to take some of the pressure off your investments as an income source.

How can I stay on course? Over time, your goals, health or income needs may change, so you might have to update your withdrawal and investment strategies. At this stage of your life, you'll want to review your situation with your financial advisor at least once a year.

By asking yourself these questions - and then answering them - you can go a long way toward enjoying the retirement you deserve.

A trip down memory lane

Seniors to visit Dewey School Museum
April 24

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Local seniors will take a trip down memory lane on April 24 with a special "school" event hosted by the Chelsea Senior Center and McKune Memorial Library.

Anyone who as a child attended a one-room school-house is invited to take part in the outing, part of a series of local programs designed to preserve this legacy of rural Americana. After an old-fashioned school lunch at noon at the Washington Street Education Center - the menu will sport the classic kids' favorite of grilled cheese sandwiches, tomato soup, and apple crisp - participants will enjoy a private tour of the fully restored Dewey School and Waterloo Farm Museum in Waterloo.

"We expect former Dewey students to be a part of our trip and certainly hope so," said Tina Patterson, director of the Chelsea Senior Center.

"I took a tour of the Dewey School and I'm so impressed with how it has been authentically restored. I can't wait to see the faces of our project participants as they are transported back to yester-year."

"It's still hard for me to believe that up to 1959 this is how rural Washtenaw was educated."

The first school in that area was a log building, located where M-106 intersects with Mt. Hope and Territorial Roads.

As attendance grew, in the mid-19th century the Solomon Dewey family donated land east of the old site for a brick school building, to be called the Dewey School. Ida Kassel was its first teacher.

During a meeting in 1883, the floor collapsed, fortunately with no injuries. A new school was built with salvaged bricks and new bricks from the Waterloo brickyard.

Dewey School did duty beyond educating local children in the 3 "Rs" - Reading, 'Riting, 'Rithmetic - it also served as a community center and for meetings, church services and funerals.

Children in grades 1-8 learned in the same room, girls on one side, boys on the other - and the youngest at the front of the class. Boys brought daily supplies of wood provided by their families for the woodstove.

Children drank from a dipper in a bucket of water, and lunches were stored in metal pails with lids, in the cloakroom.

Dewey School, with Berta Matthews as its last teacher, closed in 1956 when all the country schools consolidated to form Stockbridge Community Schools.

A group of former pupils and friends - encouraged by George May and Solan Weeks from the State Historical Commission - spearheaded the task of preserving the school as a museum. The school, its land, two outhouses and a woodshed were purchased for one dollar, and authentic historic furniture and teaching materials were sought from donors.

The Waterloo Area Historical Society has owned and operated Dewey School for over 40 years, providing the experience of 19th century rural schooling for children and teachers each year from May through September.

The Chelsea Senior Center luncheon and tour are part of an ongoing project spearheaded by Patterson, to preserve the legacy of local one-room schoolhouses.

Last year, Patterson teamed with Bill Harmer, head of adult services at McKune Memorial Library, and Elizabeth Goldman, adult services librarian,

Weddings

Josie Rukuwai and Peter Ayers were married Dec. 1, 2007 on the beach near Christchurch on the South Island in New Zealand. The bride wore a simple sundress with roses in her hair that matched her bouquet.

The bride is the daughter of Dave and Pat Rukuwai of Christchurch, New Zealand. The groom is the son of Mark and Carolyn Ayers of Whitmore Lake.

The maid of honor was Trinnie Rukuwai, sister of the bride, and Odessa Rukuwai, another sister of the bride was the bridesmaid.

Mark Ayers, father of the groom, was the best man.

The memorable ceremony began with a Maori song, sung by a sister of the bride. The guests stood on the beach, facing the ocean while a Baptist minister performed the ceremony. The bride and groom exchanged their vows and shared communion, barefoot in the sand, with the ocean breeze blowing strong. Family and friends of the bride from all over New Zealand attended, as well as the groom's parents from Whitmore Lake.

The reception was held in the backyard garden of the couple's residence in Christchurch, New Zealand.

The bride graduated from Christchurch High School, NZ. She was formerly employed with the New Zealand Air Force, and is currently the warehouse manager for James Hardie.

The groom is a 1998 graduate of Dexter High School. He was a U.S. Marine stationed in San Diego and Iraq, then employed at McMurdo Station in Antarctica. Peter is currently a stay-at-home dad.

The couple is planning to move to Michigan with their children Tahunuiarangi and Sophia in the fall of 2008.

and obtained a grant from the Chelsea Community Foundation.

With the support of the library and the Chelsea Historical Society, Patterson developed an outline of activities, questions, and a variety of programs to bring together local people with a story to tell.

"So far we have done 64 initial and comprehensive interviews of people who went to one-room schools," she said.

Five hours of videotape will be added to at Dewey School and at a summer picnic. This will be professionally edited, scripted and turned into a completed project by the end of September.

"We'll do an 'end of school year' party on June 7 at the Bollinger Farm that should be great fun," Patterson said.

Earlier this month, Patterson spent time in California where she spoke about the project to a group of social workers and Senior Center Directors.

"Our project might be replicated in the San Diego area," she said. "We're getting interest nationwide."

Seniors are excited about the upcoming event.

Glenn Burgess, 84, is looking forward to comparing Dewey with the school he attended, he said. He remembers playing softball at recess and "Mumbley Peg" in the spring.

Mildred Gieske Huehl,

81, attended Rows Corners one-room schoolhouse for all eight of her primary school years. The school, which was located at M-52 and Pleasant Lake Road, housed about 18 pupils in all eight grades, Huehl said.

Her fondest memory was "Ante Over the School House Roof," a game of tag played with a ball thrown over the schoolhouse. A hot lunch was often a jar of soup brought from home and placed on a big register in the middle of the floor that heated both the room and the soup.

Like Burgess, Huehl will compare Dewey to her own school as well as schools she taught in for five years.

Arlene Dobberstein Harvey, 82, was a pupil at Jerusalem School, which was located on the corner of Fletcher and Sager roads. Harvey, who remembers the flip-top desks and pot-bellied stove, had the same teacher for all eight years there, and about 20 students attended the school. A favorite game at recess was a form of softball called "work-up," with no teams but each player had his or her own record.

For information on the luncheon and Dewey School outing, call 475-9242. Reservations must be made by April 18 so transportation can be arranged for from the WSEC. Participants also may arrange carpools.

Inheritance - Is it Really Mine?

Last year I received a small portion of inheritance from an aunt and uncle. I'm very grateful for what I received. I realize I didn't earn or deserve any of it. It's amazing, though, the hard feelings that inheritance can cause. Disputes and jealousy over inheritance can break up families and leave lasting wounds in relationships. This is ridiculous, when you look at it rationally, since by its very definition an inheritance is something that a person does not deserve. Oh, it's true that each society's customs tend to dictate how an inheritance is to be distributed; it's also true that some people place conditions and demands on those who will receive their inheritance. But in the end an inheritance is a gift rather than something earned. I would not have been unhappy if my brother, who took care of my aunt and uncle the last couple years of their life, had received everything; on the other hand, my brother was not at all unhappy that I received something as well. The Bible

MINISTERIAL Message

sometimes refers to heaven and eternal life as an inheritance that the Lord bestows on His people. In order to do this, He first had to make us His children, so that we could become

His heirs. He made it possible for us to become His children by sending His only true Son, Jesus Christ. Then, He adopts each individual into His family by bringing them to faith in His Son. Those who become adopted automatically become His heirs.

We will not enjoy the ultimate inheritance until this life is over. But it is guaranteed. The Bible says, "In His great mercy He has given us new birth into a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, and into an inheritance that can never perish, spoil or fade - kept in heaven for you" (1 Peter 1:4-5). No one can take that away from us, and no one has to fight about it, since each believer in Jesus Christ has that same inheritance to look forward to.

It's a great feeling to receive an inheritance on this earth, no matter how large or small it is. But whether you ever receive anything here or not, with faith in Jesus Christ you can look forward to an inheritance in heaven that will put every earthly thing to shame.

Chelsea Area Players

Fuse sight and sound in latest production

By Sean Dalton
Staff Writer

One of the most popular and widely performed classics from Shakespeare's repertoire is getting a fresh coat of paint this year.

The Chelsea Area Players completed auditions last month and will be polishing their "neo-production" of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," complete with contemporary visual cues and music from all points of the spectrum.

"In putting together my vision for (our) production of this Shakespearean classic, I knew that I wanted to incorporate music as underscoring and to establish character themes," said director Ty Jacobs.

Music by 19th-century German composer Felix Mendelssohn will be interwoven throughout the production with contemporary beats by French electronic music duo Daft Punk, as the tale of four young Athenian lovers, a group of amateur actors and fairies who inhabit a moonlit forest plays out before the audience.

Mendelssohn was born in 1809 in Germany and was a composer, a pianist, and one of the very first conductors in what is known as the Romantic period in classical music.

At the age of 17, he composed his first well-known work, his "Overture to Shakespeare's 'A Midsummer Night's Dream.'"

"I knew that I wanted to incorporate music as underscoring and to establish character themes," Jacobs said.

"You can imagine my immense treat in discovering that music had already been composed for the play."

Jacobs says the play's three distinct groups, the Societals (or the Greeks), the Mechanicals (or the Actors) and the Supernaturals (or the Fairies) were so distinct in his mind that he wanted to create a world for each of them via musical ambience, which is why the Mendelssohn sometimes gives way to Daft Punk.

"Since the Fairies of 'Dream' are, indeed, of a dream world, why not represent them in a futuristic, eye candy, and techno-enhanced fashion, both in appearance and musically?" Jacobs said. "So who better to represent this than Daft Punk?"

Choreographer Devyn Bauer teaches the actors a dance.

The electronic music duo, named after a critic who referred to their first collaboration derisively as 'daft punk,' are known for such hits as "Around The World" and "One More Time," which will be featured in the production, among other songs.

The play features three interlocking plots dealing with some colorful interpretations of already colorful characters from the Shakespearean pantheon of plays.

The performances are slated for 7 p.m. May 8 and 9, with a special Mother's Day Matinee scheduled for 2 p.m. May 10.

Tickets are available online at www.brownpapertickets.com/event/32101. They are also available for $10 or $5 for students at Chelsea Pharmacy, 1050 S. Main St., and Gourmet Chocolate Café, 312 N. Main St.

Motive peace: Friends Center to host Family Peace Day April 19

By Sheila Purglove

The Michigan Friends Center will host a Family Peace Day on April 19. The program, running from noon to 5 p.m., costs $15 per family and pre-registration is required.

Participants can choose from activities to improve peacemaking and conflict resolution skills, and the program will include art, games, community singing, meditation, quiet reflection, yoga and more.

peace, including conflict resolution, community building and sharing stories with those who have connected their lifetimes with supporting peace initiatives.

"Our goal is to offer this programming in our community in a way that feels accessible and connects people of all ages with the natural setting of Michigan Friends Center," said MFC Executive Director Elaine Economou.

"Motive Peace is just the group for us to work with in this way. They have really excellent programs that offer kids and adults of all ages the opportunity to develop their own values and work within their age group to build leadership and conflict resolution skills and their own self esteem."

The idea is to introduce Motive Peace to local families so they can see what the upcoming MFC Peace Camp will be like, Economou said.

To that end, the $15 cost will be credited toward the cost of Peace Camp, and sibling discounts are offered.

"When I met Laura Ross, the director of Motive Peace, I knew we had a shared vision to do this work in a fun, playful, outdoor setting," Economou said. "It seemed they had the perfect programs and we have the ideal setting."

"I'm so glad she is able to help us develop our own local Peace Camp at MFC and I'm excited to share this work in our community."

Motive Peace Camp, for children entering K-8th grade, will run from 1 to 5 p.m. June 16-20. Registration is $150 by May 1, and Chelsea senior Karah Schanz returns to the circle this year as one of the Bulldogs' top pitchers.

Raymond begins inaugural season in Bulldog dugout

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea softball will have a new coach, but a familiar face, in the dugout this season. Robin Raymond, longtime Bulldog boys' basketball coach takes over the reins of the Chelsea softball program this season.

Though never coaching softball at the high school level, Raymond is well acquainted with his Bulldog players.

"I coached JV (girls') basketball a year ago, so I know a lot of the girls on the team," he said. "I've been around a long time. I've known a lot of these girls for quite some time. Plus, I have a really good staff."

Assisting Raymond this season will be coaches Jeff Connelly, Beth Starkey, Chris DeFant, Bob Moffett and Rebekah Milian. Milian, a former University of Michigan star, helped lead the Wolverines to the NCAA softball national championship in 2005.

"She's working with the outfielders and helping the team with hitting," Raymond said of Milian, a Grand Blanc native. "She's student-teaching at Beach. She's a welcomed addition to the staff."

Returning to lead this season's Bulldog squad are senior pitchers Karah Schanz and Kelly Whitley. Both players will also see time in the outfield when not toeing the rubber.

Also expected to pitch this year for Chelsea is sophomore Kaley Dixon. When not throwing, Dixon will play in the infield.

The Bulldogs' best player, however, will be senior shortstop-catcher Brogan Darwin. The 6-foot All-Stater will play at Central Michigan University next season. Though a catcher for most of her high school career, Raymond said Darwin would take off the shinguards and play shortstop this year.

"That really solidifies our infield," he said. "Brogan is such a fine athlete and shortstop is a key position."

At second base for Chelsea will be senior Annie Hollandsworth, while senior Lizzy Bentley will man first base for the Bulldogs.

Senior Rachel Voicechovski will play the hot corner at third base, while sophomore Shelby Platt will contribute at positions throughout the infield this year for Chelsea.

Depth key to Chelsea tracksters' success

By Don Richter

Sports Editor

Chelsea's girls' track and field team appears to be stronger than last year's squad said Bulldog coach Pat Clarke.

"We lost a lot of talent last year, but we also have picked up a great deal of talent this year," he said. "We are a lot further ahead in our development this year at this point."

The Bulldogs will field a team of 35 this year.

Leading the charge this season for Chelsea will be seniors Cassie Coffman, a returning middle distance state qualifier, Jillian Fischer, defending Southeastern Conference shot put champion, Kate Martin, defending SEC high jump champ, Nikki Oberholtzer, a hurdler, and Kiara Bates, a pole-vaulter.

The junior class is led by all-league sprinter Erin Benjamin.

"Erin had a season-ending injury last season that kept her out of the final competition," said Clarke, entering his 30th season. "She has fully recovered and looks to be even better this season."

Other juniors expected to contribute this season include Victoria Kingsinger in hurdles, Stephanie Becker in throws, Jessica Brown in sprints, Nicole Hopp in distances, Katie Lindauer in distances and Taylor Lewis in hurdles.

Clarke said the sophomore class is large and talented.

"They will give us a surge of talent that should greatly improve our team depth," he said.

Leading the sophomore group will be Olivia DeTroyer. Last year, DeTroyer was the state regional champion in the 400-meter run. She set freshman records in the 400-meter run and the 200 meters last season.

Another speedy sophomore is Christina Coffman. Last year, she set a freshman long jump record.

Other sophomores looking to score points this year include hurdlers Emily Bougher, Katrina Williams and Jenna McGrath, throwers Marissa Elwart, Aimee Mesko and Ashley Walker and distance runners Julie Beaumont, Nikki Laeder and Courtney Maher.

Lauren Dark will be one of the top freshmen. Last year, Dark set a Beach Middle School record in the pole vault.

Freshman Samantha Newbound is expected to be one of the team's best distance competitors. Newbound was Chelsea's No. 1 cross country runner last fall.

Other freshmen of note include sprinters Corinne Carpenter, Meghan Smith, Lauren Gray, Haleigh Meypans, Alexis Roberts and Sarah Weingartz, hurdler Emily Cottrell and distance runner Taylor Heydlauff.

"We should cover all events and our strength will depend on how much we improve," Clarke said.

Assisting Clarke this season will be Bert Kruse. Kruse replaces Mora Arnold who is teaching in North Carolina.

"Bert is just a great asset to our school and staff," Clarke said.

Clarke said the SEC White Division is up for grabs.

"Defending champion Dexter will again field a strong team," he said. "Tecumseh appears to be the favorite, returning most of the team that finished seventh in the state last spring. Finally, do not count out perennial league power (Ypsilanti) Lincoln. The Railsplitters will again have a very strong, fast team to be reckoned with."

Clarke said he has high hopes for this season's Bulldog squad.

"We hope to improve as much as we did last spring," he said. "If we do, our season could be bright, indeed."

Sports Editor Don Richter can be reached at 475-1371 or at drichter@heritage.com.

Stoffer will also catch for the Bulldogs this year.

Raymond said he likes Chelsea's overall depth this year at a number of positions.

"We have 12 or 13 players that can step in at a couple different positions," he said. "We're going to have pretty good versatility. We're going to have pitching depth. We have a lot of competition for pitching time. They've all done a nice job so far."

"We've looked good hitting in the

Bulldogs to field largest team ever

Don Richter

Sports Editor

Chelsea's boys' track and field team had a banner season last year, winning the Southeastern Conference White Division title and placing ninth overall at the Division 2 state meet.

Entering his 13th season, Bulldog coach Eric Swager has built one of the area's top programs.

"This year we currently boast the largest team in school history," he said. "We have 60 plus runners. That has some benefits, but also some challenges. More than two-thirds of them (team members) are first year or non-letter winning athletes, so the coaching staff will have our hands full. I am excited about watching them improve, however."

Returning to pace Chelsea this season is senior Evan Carpenter. A double school record holder in the 110- and 300-meter hurdles, Carpenter was state runner-up in the 110-meter hurdles at last year's Division 2 state meet.

"He hopes to compete for the state title in both events," Swager said.

Complementing Carpenter is senior Justin McGrath.

"Justin also hopes to make it to the state meet," Swager said.

In the shot put and discus, seniors Sam Birgy and Sam Dyer and juniors Adam Bauer and Josh Rudd will be counted on for points this year.

In sprints, sophomore Nick Hill will lead an extremely young and unproven group.

"If we are to repeat as SEC champs, we need to find a few sprinters to contribute from this group," Swager said.

In the 400-meter run, junior Kevin Rosentreter should be one of the area's best.

"He appears healthy and competitive early on," Swager said.

In the pole vault, junior Peter Wilke, junior Noah Hermann and sophomore Landen Niesen will soar for the Bulldogs.

Senior Teddy Eyster, junior Mark Smith, sophomore Geoff Smith-Woolams and freshman August Pappas appear to be the frontrunners in the distance events for Chelsea.

"The distance runners are a mixed bag," Swager said. "We are deep, but a question mark."

Swager said a concern for the Bulldogs this year would be finding a high jumper and quality depth in the sprints.

"In general, our goals are to perform well where we have talent and to seek improvement where we are green," Swager said.

cage. We also have a lot of experience in the infield."

Raymond said with the cold conditions outside recently, the Bulldogs have worked on their conditioning and hitting indoors during the off-season.

"We've also gone over a lot of our defensive coverages indoors," he said.

Raymond said the team would set the majority of its season goals during spring break training in South Carolina.

"Winning the SEC (Southeastern Conference White Division) is the No. 1 goal," he said. "That will be a huge challenge. Tecumseh won the state title last year. They're going to have another strong team this season."

Chelsea's girls' soccer team will have plenty of holes to fill as it enters the 2008 season.

The Bulldogs, who finished 16-3-2 a year ago and were ranked as high as No. 9 in the state, lost 10 starters to graduation last season. In addition, another player off of last year's squad moved to Germany, while a second transferred to another school.

Chelsea will have to replace All-State caliber players Maggie Manville, Sarah Reinhardt and Kait Ehman. Both Manville and Ehman are currently playing for Eastern Michigan University, while Reinhardt ended her prep career as the Bulldogs' all-time leading scorer.

Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi, who begins his 14th season, said experience, or lack of it, would be a major issue for this year's team.

"We only return one starter and five players who had any quality varsity time at all last year," he said. "We have three sophomores and three freshmen, so we're very young."

"I'm concerned about defense right now. We have some issues to sort out back there and we have to do it in a hurry. There may be some bumpy times ahead, but I think we'll be tough to beat come May."

Anchoring the defense this season will be senior captain Jenna Jarvis who'll take over for Manville in net.

Senior Codie Barron will lead the defensive corps around Jarvis.

"Codie moves into a starting role on the defensive line and is certainly one of the area's best," Orlandi said.

At left midfield, senior captain Ellen Stewart returns, while sophomore Cara Johnson and junior captain Audrey Ruikka will also start in the midfield for Chelsea.

Senior Emily Rabbitt and junior Brooke Ehman return at the forward spot for the Bulldogs.

Newcomers expected to contribute this season for the Bulldogs include sophomores midfielder Kelly Fournier and defender Sarah Bingel and freshman forward Anna Rode.

Orlandi said it's difficult to gauge Chelsea's strength at this early point in the season.

"We haven't even played on a real soccer field yet," he said. "We've only played in gyms and on our turf football field because of the weather. I think we have pretty good team chemistry. These girls are committed to working hard and selfless play. I like what I've seen from an offensive standpoint. I think we'll be able to score on people."

"I also love Jarvis back there in net. She's primed for a super senior season."

Orlandi said the team's goals this year focus on and off the field.

"I love that our girls pledge to keep the drama away and to trust their coaches," he said. "That alone helps us to get on the same page in a hurry."

"Dexter is the team to beat as far as we're concerned. Beating Dexter (Division 2 semifinalist and defending league champion) and winning SEC (Southeastern Conference White Division) and district titles are always top on the list. Those are incredibly challenging goals for this group, but I believe in these kids. We're going to have an exciting season."

Seniors to lead Chelsea linksters

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

After a year and a half break because of the season switch, Chelsea's boys' golf team is back on the links.

With 24 kids in the program, the Bulldogs are primed for a strong season.

"My expectations are high," said Chelsea coach Joe Ewald. "We have a lot of experience. Anything less than qualifying for the state tournament would be a disappointment."

Returning to lead Chelsea this year are a talented group of seniors. Tops among the upperclassmen is Chris LaDuke, who last season earned first-team All-Southeastern Conference accolades.

Elliot Marshall, Danny Battistone, Matt Heinen, Jonathon Mykala, Drew Martin, Garrett Nickels and Kyle George are other seniors expected to carry the load this year for the Bulldogs.

"All are expected to see varsity time this year," Ewald said.

Ewald said having so many seniors on the team is uncommon.

"This year is unique," he said. "We only had one senior on the team last year. This year, we have eight returning seniors. All are very capable players."

Other players seeking to crack the line-up this year for Chelsea include junior Nick Gordenier and sophomore Tyler Zegarzewski.

While upperclassmen should be prevalent this season for the Bulldogs, Ewald said the future looks bright for Chelsea on the links.

"It looks like we have a relatively strong freshman class coming in, too," he said.

Berklich begins first season

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Dexter baseball will begin the Greg Berklich era this season. A former freshman coach and varsity assistant coach, Berklich is no stranger to the Dreadnaught program. He replaces Al Snider, who after 11 seasons on the Dexter bench, decided to step down for personal reasons.

"I've been with the program since 2003," said Berklich. "I have a pretty good idea about the kids. It's not that big of a transition. I don't think it was a culture shock for the kids. I've been around and helped out."

Snider left the program in pretty good shape for Berklich. Last year, Dexter finished 19-13 overall and second in the Southeastern Conference White Division. The Dreadnaughts have lost in the state district finals the last two seasons. In 2005, Dexter claimed a district championship.

Despite losing players such as Brent Opland (Hillsdale), Brandon Paulun (Bethel), Johnny Benjamin (Northwood) and Andrew Klinkman (Hope) off of last year's team, along with three-year starting catcher Bryan Staton, the dugout is far from bare for the Dreadnaughts this season.

Returning to lead Dexter in 2008 is senior three-year varsity performer Chris Marsh. The 6-foot-3, 220-pound right-handed pitcher-shortstop is primed for a big season. Topping off at 90 miles per hour with his fastball, Marsh, an All-State selection last year, is being recruited by numerous Division I and Division II college teams.

Also returning is four-year varsity performer Joe Berklich. A right-handed pitcher-utility player, Berklich (6-1, 195), an All-SEC pick the last two years, throws in the mid-80s and bats left-handed.

"Both players are 15 hits shy of 100 career base hits," Berklich said.

Also playing a key role this season for the Dreadnaughts will be senior right-handed pitcher-outfielder Alex Krull and juniors pitcher-shortstop Mike Dexter's Chris Marsh returns to the diamond after earning All-State recognition last season. The 6-foot-3, 220-pound senior pitcher-shortstop throws 90 miles per hour and is being recruited by numerous Division I schools.

Clutterbuck and pitcher-outfielder Stephen Zalucha.

A newcomer of note is senior transfer Andrew McGriff, a pitcher-third baseman from Indiana.

"He's looking pretty good," Berklich said. "I didn't expect it (transfer) this year."

Other seniors looking to contribute this season include catcher-outfielder Ty Boik and first baseman-outfielder Kyle Cozart.

"They'll both see a lot of action this year," Berklich said.

Juniors expected to provide a spark this year include second baseman Scott Crompton, and utility players Andy Whitaker, Nate Shaw and Stephen Grafton.

Rounding out the line-up will be sophomore standouts catcher-infielder Henry Haley and pitcher-infielder Alex McMurray.

"McMurray has a good arm," Berklich said. "I'm excited about both of them."

Berklich said he's pleased with the numbers throughout the program.

"We have a strong sophomore group on the JV and throughout the program we have about 50 kids," he said.

Berklich said the strength of this season's squad would be its pitching.

"We're pretty solid," he said. "We can go four or five deep pitching. Defensively, we also look good. Even though we lost quite a bit last year, we have a good mix this season."

An area of concern this season for Berklich is the outfield, though he said it wouldn't be a problem for long.

"Somebody will step up," he said.

Berklich said the team's goal is to win the SEC.

"It's going to be tough," he said. "(Ann Arbor) Pioneer will be tough. And never count Chelsea out. Plus, Tecumseh has a lot coming back and (Ypsilanti) Lincoln will be strong. It'll be very competitive."

Snyder, Olsen to lead netters

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Last season, Chelsea's girls' tennis team had a memorable year. The Bulldogs finished first in the Southeastern Conference White Division and placed 16th overall at the state match.

Despite losing eight players off of last season's squad, including Liz Hood and Maggie Valle who played first and second singles, respectively, for Chelsea, the Bulldogs have plenty of capable athletes waiting to step up and contribute this year.

Leading Chelsea this season will be third-year varsity performer Amanda Snyder. The senior will play No. 1 singles for the Bulldogs this year.

At No. 2 singles for Chelsea will be junior Carolyn Olsen.

In doubles, seniors Bailie Simpson and Robin Olynk return to play at the No. 1 flight for the Bulldogs.

Sophomores Diana Bach and Hannah Boshoven will combine forces at No. 2 doubles.

A top newcomer for Chelsea this season will be Alison Gines. The junior will play No. 3 singles for the Bulldogs.

"The strength of the team will be found at our first two singles players," said Chelsea coach Matt Pedlow, entering his second season. "Both Amanda and Carolyn should be quite successful this year."

"Also, our doubles teams are veteran players and should improve as the year goes on."

Pedlow said a weakness of this year's squad would be its youth and inexperience.

"We have eight new varsity players, seven of whom have never played a varsity match," he said.

Pedlow said Chelsea's goals heading into the 2008 season are pretty clear cut.

"The goal is to win regionals this year and compete at the state finals again," he said.

It's a new Day for Dexter softball

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

A new chapter in Dexter softball history begins this season as Kathy Day takes over the reins of the program. A former college player at Madonna University and a prep standout at Livonia Ladywood, Day replaces Shan Cook who stepped down after four seasons as Dreadnaught coach.

"I want to change the mindset of Dexter softball," said Day, who last year was Dreadnaught JV coach and two years ago JV coach at Livonia Clarenceville. "I want to improve Dexter's softball image."

The Dreadnaughts have seen some lean years recently.

"I want them (players) to see what it's like to win," said Day, a 2005 graduate of Madonna. "I want them to get their competitiveness back."

Returning to lead Dexter this season will be sophomore pitcher-second baseman Brittani Martini.

Other pitchers seeing time in the circle this year for the Dreadnaughts will be freshman Taylor Aeschliman and junior transfer student Kiersten Cunningham. When not pitching, Aeschliman will play first base, while Cunningham, who transferred from Las Vegas, will play outfield.

Also patrolling the outfield for Dexter this year will be seniors

Dexter senior Breanne Svihra will patrol the outfield this season for the Dreadnaughts.

Breanne Svihra and Journey Benjamin and juniors Anna Jones and Lindsay Baker.

Seeing time behind the plate at catcher this year for Dexter will be

While the Dreadnaughts are an eager and talented group, Day said there are areas of concern.

"Our hitting is one and we need to keep our errors down," she said.

Day, however, said she enjoys coaching her squad and that the team should improve throughout year.

"Our attitude is very positive," she said. "Most of the girls have played together as a team. I'm fine-tuning things. But they know how to work together as a group."

Dreads prepare to tee off in 2008

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

With the switch in seasons, it's been approximately a year and a half since Dexter's boys' golf team hit the links. That's a long time for clubs and tees to be sitting in a golf bag.

The Dreadnaughts, however, have one of the area's best, all around programs and, while losing top talent off of last season's squad, Dexter golf looks to remain as strong as ever in 2008.

Despite the longer than usual layoff, the Dreadnaughts are ready to make their mark on a state level this year.

"Our goal is to get to the state tournament," said Dexter coach Frank McAuliffe. "I think we can do that. Plus, we want to win the SEC (Southeastern Conference) White."

Leading this season's club will be juniors Jordan Marken and Brent Muse.

Also contributing to Dexter's fortunes this year will be seniors Hunter Lyons, Don Knight, Ryan White and Jimmy Williams.

"Our experience level is a strength," McAuliffe said. "We have a lot of guys pushing to get into the line-up."

McAuliffe said it's a pleasure working with this season's squad.

"They all work together very well," he said.

Defending state champions to reload

By Don Richter

Sports Editor

The defending Division 2 state champion Dexter boys' track and field team looks to overcome obstacles and reload this season.

"We had quite a few losses to graduation, injuries and attrition," said Dexter coach Chris Hanlon. "It could be a challenging year. We'll be counting on a lot of younger athletes. We have a very large senior group and a large freshman group. We're very thin in the middle. But, we have good leadership and a lot of experienced athletes."

The Dreadnaughts will have to do without the services of Dan Jackson and Ryan Neely this season. The graduated senior duo was a big part of Dexter's state championship season last year. Jackson is now running at Notre Dame, while Neely is competing at Harvard.

Adding to the Dreadnaughts' early-season woes is the fact two standout performers are nursing injuries. Junior Jason Bishop, arguably the top distance runner in his class in the state, and Peter Burgett, one of the team leaders, are both out with injuries. Bishop is out for the season with a knee injury, while Burgett is battling back problems.

Despite the setbacks, Dexter still returns a bevy of talented athletes to the track this year.

Leading the pack is senior distance runner Bobby Aprill. The state runner-up to Jackson last year in the 3,200-meter run, Aprill, who'll run next year at the University of Michigan, will be the favorite for the 3,200-meter crown this season.

Other distance runners for Dexter expected to contribute this year include senior Ben Steavenson, senior Alex Hess, junior Ken Metz and junior Ian Nystrom.

"They'll all lead the charge scoring-wise this year," Hanlon said.

In the pole vault, returning state qualifier senior Nick Butler should have a big year or the Dreadnaughts. Sophomores Steve Ferguson and John Oliver round out the pole vault unit.

In hurdles, senior Nick Bayer, sophomore Alex Kantola, sophomore Dillon Kipke, Ferguson and Butler will compete for Dexter.

"We'll have a lot of quality depth in that event," Hanlon said.

In high jump, senior Ryan Kantola returns after qualifying for the state meet in the event a year ago.

"He's also one of the best long jumpers, too," Hanlon said.

Dexter's Ross Seagram (left) receives the baton from senior teammate Adam Cares in relay action last year. This season, both sprinters return to lead the defending Division 2 state champion Dreadnaughts.

Senior Kevin Novak and junior Matt Klein will also compete in the high jump, while sophomore Sam Laidlow will participate in the long jump.

In sprints, seniors Ross Seagram and Adam Cares return.

"They should make a good tandem," Hanlon said.

Other sprinters in the mix include senior newcomer Nick Crow, senior Dan Ryan and junior Mike Swantek.

In the shot put and discus, seniors Michael Schultz, Kyle Cook and Nick Reynolds, along with junior Hunter Briggs will earn points for the Dreadnaughts.

Assisting Hanlon with the throwers this season will be Nick Kolokithas.

Though graduation and injuries have hurt Dexter as it enters the 2008 outdoor season, Hanlon remained optimistic about his club's chances this year on the oval.

"We still have a load of talent," he said. "I'm prepared to be pleasantly surprised by some of the freshmen and newcomers."

GOOD LUCK DEXTER BASEBALL!!

Dexter strives for third straight title

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Dexter's girls' track and field team is aiming for its third straight Southeastern Conference White Division championship this season. The Dreadnaughts return a whole host of talented athletes to the oval in 2008.

"We have a large senior group," said Dexter coach Chris Hanlon. "We're experienced and inexperienced, if that makes any sense. We have very little middle ground this year."

Returning to lead Dexter is pole-vaulter Becca Pilkerton. The senior All-Stater was the Division 2 state runner-up last season. The school record-holder, Pilkerton will continue her pole-vaulting career in the Big Ten at the University of Minnesota next season.

"She'll be the favorite to win the state title this season," Hanlon said.

Overall, the Dreadnaughts will have one of the deepest and most talented pole vault units in the state this year.

Besides Pilkerton, Dexter returns top-notch pole vaulters senior Christine Murray, a state qualifier last year, senior Carly Dalton and senior Jenelle Heldt, both regional qualifiers a season ago and junior Catherine Bergren. A newcomer to the unit will be junior Rachel Marks. An accomplished youth gymnast, Marks has shown potential to excel in the event during the pre-season.

In distance events, traditionally a Dreadnaught strength, senior Ellen Riehle returns to pace this group.

"She'll run a little bit of everything this year," Hanlon said, of Riehle.

Other strong distance runners for Dexter this year will be senior Mari Couasnon, junior Abby Hess and sophomore Kristen Yarows.

Helping Hanlon coach the distance crew will be Dave Testa.

In hurdles, seniors Sheree Christian, Sherri Gamble and Ria Brundage will be the frontrunners for the Dreadnaughts. Sophomore Alex Dutcher will also be looked upon for points this year in the event.

"Hurdles should be a strong event for us this year," Hanlon said.

In sprints, junior Stephanie Ward returns, while senior Diana Leadley and sophomore Candace Weisner should also be point-producers for Dexter this season.

In the shot put and discus, senior Leah Gibson and junior Emily Hattie will lead the Dreadnaughts.

Gamble will be the team's top high jumper, while long jump is still up in the air.

"We're still trying to find long jumpers," Hanlon said. "I think (Stephanie) Ward will give it a shot."

Hanlon said his team is strong, but that there are still quite a few unknowns.

"But I'm excited for the season," he said. "We have a great bunch of girls."

Dreadnaughts look to take next step

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Dexter's girls' soccer team looks to take the next step this season. For the past two years, the Dreadnaughts have reached the Division 2 state semifinals only to lose, one game away from the championship.

Last season, Dexter lost to Grand Rapids Forest Hills Central 4-0 in the state semifinals. Forest Hills Central would go on to beat Bloomfield Hills Lahser 4-1 in the state title game.

In 2006, the Dreadnaughts lost to Lahser 2-0 in the state semifinals. Lahser would end up losing to Okemos 2-1 in the final.

This year, Dexter looks to get past that state semifinal roadblock and play for a state championship.

"Our goal is to continue our tradition in our conference play and postseason play," said Dexter coach Scott Forrester, beginning his fourth season. "We want to win the last game of the season."

Last year, the Dreadnaughts finished 18-3-3 overall and 7-1-2 in the Southeastern Conference White Division. Dexter captured the league title.

Returning to lead the Dreadnaughts this season is senior All-Stater Caitlin Henderson. A high-scoring forward, Henderson will play at Western Michigan University next season. Last year, she scored eight goals and had nine assists.

Also returning will be the All-State sister duo of Katie Marsh and Amanda Marsh. A senior forward, Katie scored 18 goals and had 13 assists last season. A senior midfielder, Amanda finished with 13 goals and 10 assists a year ago. Both will continue their soccer careers at Eastern Michigan University next season.

While plenty of talent returns for the Dreadnaughts this year, they still have areas of concern said Forrester.

"We lost key players in central defenders Magaly Cantu and Krystyna Taheri, along with keeper Liz Umstead," he said. "Our new defense should be our Achilles heel."

Despite early concerns defensively, Forrester said Dexter's play in scrimmage games has been encouraging. The Dreads have been solid against tough foes.

"In our pre-season games against Troy Athens, Brighton and Royal Oak, we have shown that it (defense) will be as solid as ever," he said.

Forrester said the key for this season's squad would be its veterans.

"The experience that the returning players have, five of which will have played all four years on the varsity team, will be a strength," he said.

Transportation Funding

I'm honored to announce that I've been appointed to a transportation funding task force that will examine new and alternative funding for transportation. I'm looking forward to working with leaders from across Michigan to improve the quality of our infrastructure, especially after the difficult winter we've endured. As always, I want to hear what you think. How do you feel we should fund transportation in the state of Michigan? Contact my office toll-free at (800) 645-1581, or e-mail me at pambyrnes@house.mi.gov, to tell me your opinion on transportation funding.

Did you know... that you can track your tax refund online?

Just head to www.irs.gov, and click "Where's My Refund?" in the left sidebar. From this Web site, you can trace late refunds and change your address in case your refund was sent to the wrong place. Be ready to provide your Social Security number, your filing status and the exact amount of your return. Do not fall victim to unsolicited e-mails that claim to track your refund if you give them this personal information. This is a scam. The IRS will not initiate e-mails; they will only respond to you.

Did you know... that you can reserve a campground or harbor in Michigan online?

Take advantage of the beauty of Michigan and head to www.midnrreservations.com. Reservations for campsites, harbors and mini-cabins can be made six months in advance, while reservations for rustic or camper cabins can be made up to one year in advance. Campgrounds are often seasonal and have limited availability, so it pays to make your reservation early.
