Growing local

Shopping at area farmers' markets is 'taking root'

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Choose your own metaphor: "taking root," "growing like a weed," "sprouting" — the increasing demand from consumers for more locally grown foods can only help local farmers.

"The 'support your local merchants and farmers' movement is really taking root," said Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Bob Pierce.

Schools, restaurants, grocers and other institutional services are receiving increased requests to use food from local farms to meet consumer needs.

According to Michigan State University Extension-Washtenaw County, a smaller percentage of food dollars is spent on transportation costs when food is sourced from nearby farms, and purchasing from local farms strengthens regional economies.

Consumers often prefer food products that can be traced back to local fields, and small and mid-sized farm businesses have received price premiums by selling directly to consumers through local businesses.

In Southeast Michigan, the Food System Economic Partnership is a five-county initiative which provides research, education and outreach resulting in agricultural development opportunities, sustainable communities, and healthy local economies.

MSU Extension works through FSEP to help entrepreneurs develop plans for new farm-related businesses, and to assist entrepreneurs in launching new or expanded ventures.

Mike Score, MSU Extension Agricultural Agent and Regional Agricultural Innovation counselor, has been working with local farmers, non-farm businesses and consumers to increase farm profitability and improve consumer access to local farm goods.

"The lack of distribution businesses which operate efficiently and effectively to place local farm goods in our regional marketplace has been a bottleneck to broader food system economic development," Score said.

He realizes that farmers will continue to sell through traditional marketing channels.

"This new distribution business is not designed to replace farm markets, roadside stands or other sales opportunities," Score said.

HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS REGIONAL REPORT: SUPPORTING AREA FARMERS

Warning: 'Espionage coming to Chelsea'

Suspense writers pick Chelsea for location of their latest international mystery novel

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

It's no secret in these parts that Chelsea has the power to reach out and grab you. Just driving down main street or strolling through a few neighborhoods or meeting a few of the residents is all it takes. A pastry, a cup of coffee, conversing with the couple running the local art gallery, dinner at the Common Grill, rapping with the locals at the pub, an original play at the Purple Rose ... we can go on and on.

Chelsea leaves a lasting impression. It simply doesn't take much to fall in love.

And that's what happened with Diane and David Munson – they fell in love with the small town with a big heart. Norman Rockwell's America was on display and the Munsons just couldn't look away.

"We were living in the western part of the state and my mother was in the hospital in Ann Arbor," said David Munson. "One day she was well enough for us to take her somewhere nearby and for some reason we decided on Chelsea. We had never been there before and just loved it."

Meet the Munsons Monday at McKune

What: Chelsea plays a starring role in the new thriller by husband and wife team Diane and David Munson. Hear them speak about the writing process, the research they did locally, and the tale of a conspiracy theory that comes back to life. The event is the kick off to the Summer Reading Program.

When: 7 p.m., Monday

Where: McKune Memorial Library

Calling all residents: In an effort to create as much realism as possible in their upcoming book, the suspense writers would like to talk to Chelsea residents about different aspects of the town, including the location of local hangouts.

Novels: "The Camelot Conspiracy," "Facing Justice," and "Confirming Justice."

On the Web: www.dianeanddavidmunson.com

The Munsons weren't your typical family out for a daily stroll. In fact, the Munsons are as far away from typical as Chelsea is from the moon.

Rock legend's long, strange trip stops in Chelsea

Moby Grape founder Peter Lewis playing Friday at McKune

Tomorrow night
Peter Lewis, one of the founding members of legendary Mobe Grape, will perform at 8 p.m. on Friday at the Chelsea District Library outdoor amphitheater. He will appear with David West.

Story and Italic Lyrics
By Terry Jacoby

How's this for a way to spend the day? "I write and record music, I paint and I wait for my wife to get home."

This is the life of Peter Lewis. But how Lewis got here is the real story. And the fact that he actually arrived here is another story. And that cob webs still linger and issues still fester and demons still dance is yet another story.

So while it might seem like he's in a good place right now, Peter Lewis is not all that far from the edge of the cliff. He's seen his share of people go over that edge, taking with them a part of him. The fact that he knows the trail to that edge and all it's pit falls helps keep him walking on terra firma.

Still, he admits, there are days the voices rise out of the depths of his past. It's just that now he seems to know how to answer them.

The "Peter Lewis Story" can be found in many places – tragedy, adventure, mystery, comedy. Like many rocks stars, his life is both fiction and non-fiction, falling somewhere between what fans want to believe and the reality of the truth.

The only running theme in the Peter Lewis story is that there is no running theme.

There's no blood on my hands, but there's dirt up my sleeve
Forever is at hand dear friend, no matter what you believe
One step at a time may be too fast a pace to keep
You stand to conquer fears, but sacrifice from your knees

Lewis is one of the founding members of Moby Grape, an American roots rock and psychedelic group considered by many to be the best rock band to emerge from the San Francisco music scene in the late sixties. The band was originally known for having all five members contribute to singing and songwriting, and who collectively merged elements of jazz, country, and blues together with rock to form an exciting and original sound. They later became known for other things – more tragic than exciting or original.

To understand where Lewis is now in his life is to learn what Lewis went through earlier in his life. We are all made up of components consisting of where we come from, family, beliefs, experiences, lessons learned and lessons not learned. If Lewis had not learned some of those lessons yesterday there is a good chance he might not be here today.

"A lot of good people didn't make it through the sixties," Lewis said this weekend from his home in Solvang, Calif., near Santa Barbara. "The people that did survive have to show people that we are OK. Right now, I'm OK. And if it gets worse, so what. Things go bad for everyone. You just have to deal with it."

Lewis, the son of Academy Award winning actress Loretta Young and screenwriter Tom Lewis, began dealing with the bad early in his life.

"Childhood was good until I was about 11," he says. "It was like paradise. We lived in a place called Doheny Ranch, 365 acres in the middle of Beverly Hills before it was all developed."

Paradise didn't last long.

"People used to say, 'you had everything.' But when I was 11 my parents got divorced, and my dad took my brother Chris and me to live in New York. We had been going to a military school that was too difficult for me. I was the kid who wanted to compete and be involved, but at that point we'd already been to nine different schools. And now there's this tremendous upheaval in the family."

So Peter did something he would do a lot of throughout his life. He stood up for himself.

He didn't like living in New York City. He wasn't thrilled to be with his father, who felt the same way about Peter.

"There were seven kids in my class in the school I was going to, and they'd been taking Latin and French since the first grade," he said. "I had a panic response. I went completely nuts and ran out of the classroom into the streets of New York City. I had a nervous breakdown. I spent the night in Grand Central Station and the next morning I found my way home. They found me on the roof, trying to get up enough guts to jump off."

It was a young age to be standing at the edge of the cliff.

His father, who was a vice president of an advertising agency and never around at the time, turned Peter over to a behavioral psychologist.

"He wanted to put me in a mental ward," he said. "They tricked me into going to the psychiatric hospital by telling me I was getting a physical exam. And when I got there they shot me full of Thorazine and locked me up until I promised to go to school. I was completely screwed up."

Standing on unfamiliar ground your fate drowns in the well

Turn the other way and try to avoid what's sure to be your farewell

You got nothin' to hide unless you count the secret they keep from you

When you don't have nothing to hide, you don't have nothing to lose

Peter Lewis owes a lot to music. You can start with sanity and drive down the highway until you reach survival. Without music to grab a hold of, Lewis would have more than likely let go of life.

Sitting in that psychiatric hospital he noticed a guitar and a TV. And a flashing red light that said EXIT!

"There was a guitar in there and a TV and that's where I saw Ricky Nelson for the first time on the Ozzie and Harriet Show," he said.

Ricky Nelson wasn't exactly Elvis Presley, but Lewis didn't need the king. He just needed a way out.

"I hated that place, but I learned that if I just held onto the guitar people would stay away from me because I'd look occupied," he said. "In a weird way that whole experience was responsible for me starting to play the guitar. Ricky Nelson gave me this thing: 'I want to be like that guy.' And I latched onto it."

Lewis escaped New York, back into the arms of his mother and back to California where he belonged. But he didn't escape his problems and kept the edge of that cliff in full view.

He was "sort of the semi-juvenile delinquent type." He ran away and one time they caught him in Las Vegas at age 13.

"I was disturbed," he said. "I never recovered from my experiences in New York."

On file: Peter Lewis

Age: 62
Wife: Corin (married since 1979)
Home: Solvang, Calif.
Guitars: Guild D-25, Takamine 12-string.
On music: "The first time I saw the Byrds, at the Long Beach Arena, I couldn't stop focusing on the harmonies, the Dylan songs and that sound. I really liked surf music, but when I saw the Byrds, it was just like when Mr. Toad found the motor car."
On his famous mom, actress Loretta Young: "It took us a real long time to form a real relationship. My mom would always be the one to decide when to end a conversation. We were always on her time. But when I forgave my mom for being Loretta Young, we started to get a long. And we had some good conversations about religion and philosophy and life."
Rolling Stone magazine on Lewis' solo album: "In 1967 the great, ill-fated Moby Grape made one of the truly perfect debut albums in rock. Twenty eight years later, Lewis turns up with an equally exquisite solo bow, rich in luminous vocal harmonies and sweet folk-rock lyricism."

Coming to Chelsea

Peter Lewis, one of the founding members of legendary Mobe Grape, will perform at 8 p.m. on Friday at the Chelsea District Library outdoor amphitheater. He will appear with David West, who has played as a sideman in recording sessions and performances with many well known artists.

Lewis let go of Mobe Grape with the release of his first solo album in 1993. Rolling Stone gave the album five stars and the songs were expertly crafted, rich on melody and featured intricate musical arrangements.

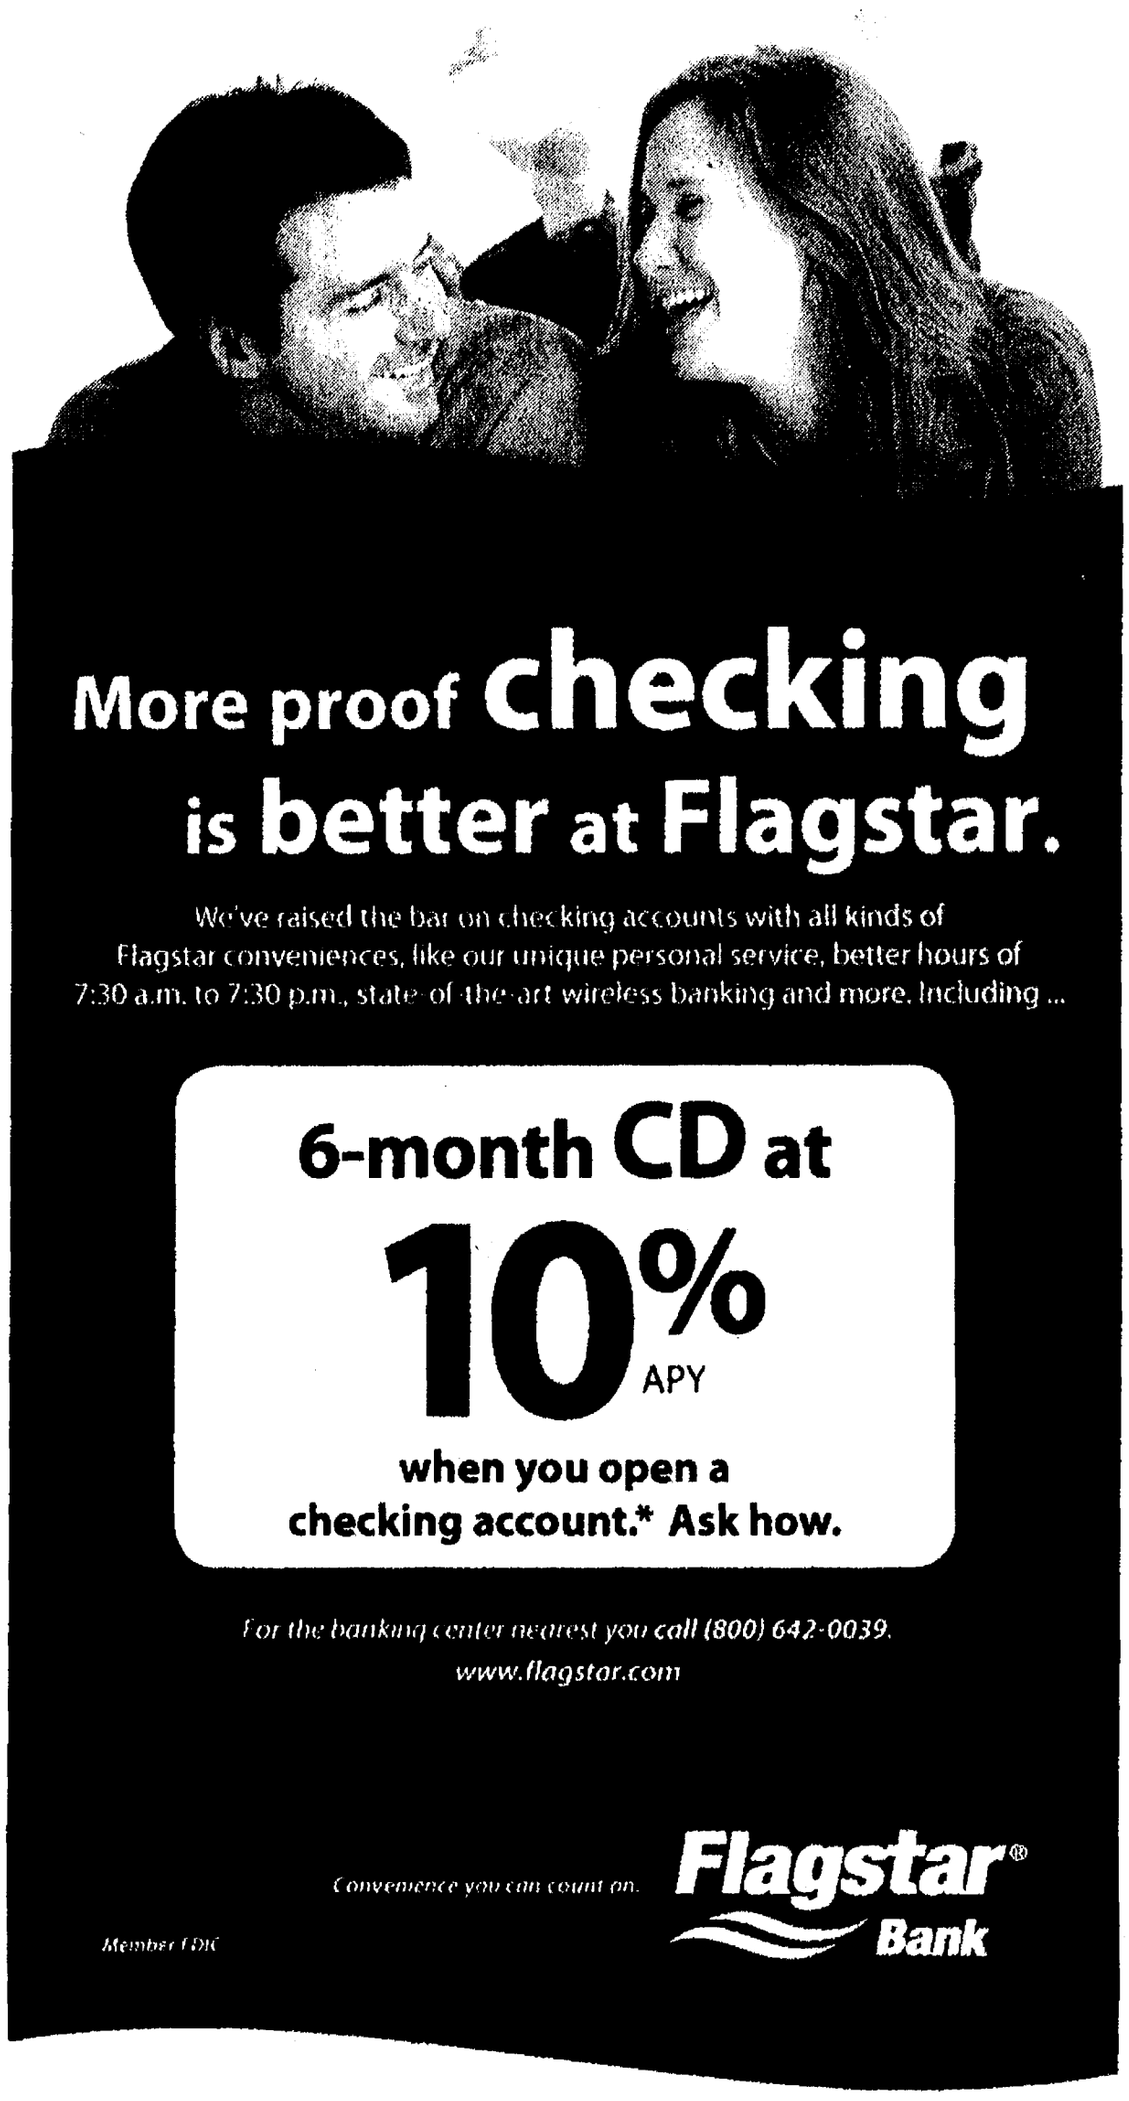
"We will pick some of the best songs from over the years and move them forward," Lewis said, when asked what people can expect to hear on Friday. "We kind of take a minimalist approach. There will be some guitar picking and we will present songs a little differently."

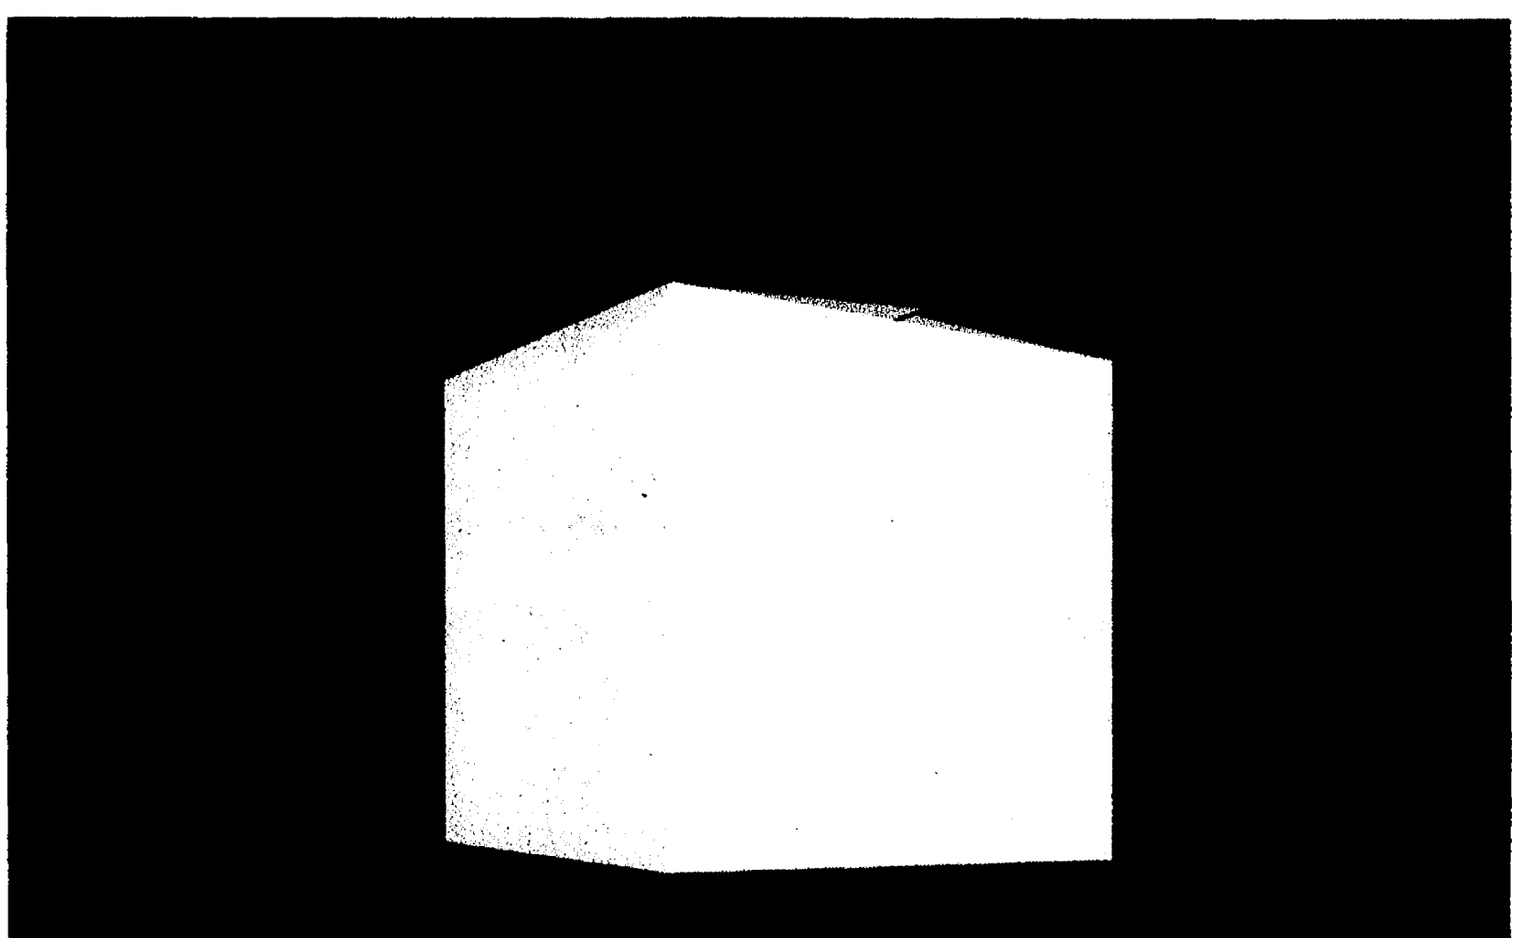
Lewis said he is excited to play and always glad to have West by his side.

"Playing with David West is cool," he said. "You don't have to tell him what to do and when you find someone like that, you want to hold on to him."

Lewis will stick to his guitars, including a 12-string Takamine "that I tune like a harp." West will bounce back and forth from guitar to banjo to mandolin.

The concert is free and sponsored by The Friends of the Chelsea District Library.





NOVEL

Diane and David Munson are husband and wife authors of legal suspense novels drawn from their own experiences in the U.S. justice system. Their novels "weave together multiple plots that are related to each other, although sometimes do not reveal the connection until the exciting conclusion."

But they were quick to make a conclusion about how they felt about Chelsea. They even concluded that Chelsea would make a perfect setting for their next novel.

"We had just finished our most recent book ("The Camelot Conspiracy") and were thinking about where our next story would take place," Diane said. "We thought it would be perfect to have one of our main characters living here in Chelsea."

The untitled novel is currently being written, and while they are excited about the recent release of "The Camelot Conspiracy," they can't stop thinking about what is unfolding on the pages in front of them. And it's all happening right here in Chelsea.

The Munsons have spent time recently in Chelsea doing research on the community. While the stories are fictional, a good part of what happens is based on truth and reality. And a good part of that truth comes from their own experiences. It also comes from the desire to create meaningful and convincing characters and put these characters on the streets lined with realism and flavor.

"We want to know as much as we can about Chelsea," Diane said. "It's important to us that we present a true picture of the community."

While not wanting to give away every twist and turn, David and Diane did offer a glimpse into what Chelsea has to look forward to in the near future – at least through their eyes of the near future.

"Bo Rider is a small character from 'The Camelot Conspiracy' who is working on a case where espionage comes to Chelsea," David said. "What happens greatly impacts a family in Chelsea. A single mom from Chelsea goes on an archeological dig in China and is arrested by the Chinese government for being a spy. Her 4-year-old son (Lucas) is left with her mother back in Chelsea."

While Rider is trying to help free her daughter in China, the grandmother (Sophie) in Chelsea is facing legal problems of her own. The estranged father's parents have shown up and are claiming custody of Lucas.

"A lot of suspense novels lack authenticity on how the system works," Diane said. "Our background helps us tell our stories based on how it really is."

And Diane and David know first hand "how it really is."

Diane Munson was an attorney for more than 20 years. She served the U.S. Department of Justice as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in Washington, D.C. where as a Federal Prosecutor she brought indictments, tried criminal cases and argued appeals. Earlier, she served the Reagan Administration, appointed by Attorney General Edwin Meese, as Deputy Administrator of the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

She also worked with the Justice Department, the U.S. Congress and the White House on major policy and legal issues. More recently she has been in a solo general practice specializing in helping families and representing children and parents in cases of neglect and abuse.

David Munson served as a Special Agent with the Naval Investigative Service, U.S. Customs, and U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration during a 27-year career. He conducted many investigations and often assumed undercover roles, even infiltrating international drug smuggling organizations. He even traveled with drug dealers, met their suppliers in foreign countries, helped fly their drugs to the U.S., then feigned surprise when shipments were seized by law enforcement.

"Many things in our books have happened to either of us, while some have happened to our associates or others," David said. "Remember, facts, names, and situations have been fictionalized to protect everyone's privacy. Suffice it to say, our careers provide us with much fodder for fiction."

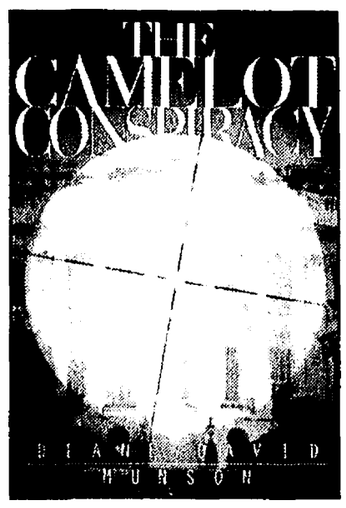
Publishers encouraged the Munsons to write a novel related to their careers, which resulted in their first novel, "Facing Justice."

In the Munsons' much awaited new suspense thriller, "The Camelot Conspiracy," TV reporter Mary Katherine Kowicki takes on powerful U.S. Senator Lars Zorn, only to be demoted from Washington D.C. to Chicago. When she receives evidence about President John F. Kennedy's assassination from a retired Chicago police detective, who worked on the assassination in November 1963, Kat plunges into a decades old conspiracy and her life is rocked to the very core. The Munsons once led fast-paced lives and the stories in their books rarely break stride. Readers are advised to put on their track shoes along with their thinking caps – and set aside plenty of time because once you're hooked, you're hooked.

Writing about the Kennedy assassination was a natural for the Munsons. Diane studied the JFK assassination in college, reading the Warren Commission report and always believing there were unanswered questions and flawed conclusions about Lee Harvey Oswald being the lone shooter.

David worked as an investigative aid at the Chicago FBI office while in college.

David and Diane Munson.



On the night of Nov. 22, 1963, he received a telephone call from FBI Dallas with an urgent request to identify the purchaser of the murder weapon at Kleins' Sporting Goods in Chicago. Thus, began his interest in the unsolved mystery.

"Because Americans remain fascinated with what happened to John F. Kennedy, we both felt it was time to revisit the facts," Diane said. While "The Camelot Conspiracy" deals with the death of a president, their newest novel will focus on the living. And you can be sure that Sophie will help Chelsea come alive.

"We have an idea of where she is living, somewhere in the northwest part of town on a farm," Diane said. "She is an illustrator for children's books and loves to paint."

No doubt some of the pictures on her canvas will look pretty familiar to the people of Chelsea.

'Around Town with Linda'

"Around Town with Linda" will feature Jeff Crowder, minister and Chelsea School Board member, beginning today.

"Around Town with Linda" features interviews conducted by the local host Linda Meloche.

The show airs daily on Channel 18 at 7:30 a.m., noon, 7:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m.

A new interview begins every Thursday evening and runs for a week. The guests all live or work in Chelsea, and everyone connected with the show is a volunteer.

Previous shows are available at McKune Memorial Library.

CHS commencement Sunday

The Chelsea High School Class of 2008 will walk down the aisle and out into the world beginning at 3 p.m. Sunday in the CHS Gymnasium.

The public is invited to the graduation ceremony and doors open at 2 p.m. There will be general seating in the bleachers; no tickets are needed.

The event will feature student speakers Michael Sullivan and Robin Olinyk, with musical performances by Katie Falk and Jillian Heinrichs.

Waterloo Farm event

The Waterloo Area Historical Society will host its third annual Native Heritage experience on, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The event is an authentic re-creation of a Woodland Indian Village and French Fur Trading Post on the grounds of the Waterloo Farm Museum.

Complete with traditional Native crafts, cooking, and games, the event will also feature lamplight tours of the village on Saturday night.

Admission to the Waterloo Farm Museum grounds for this special event is $4 for adults, $3 for seniors 62 and up, and $2 for children aged 5-17. Children under 5 and members of the Waterloo Historical Society are free. Admission includes a guided tour of the 10-room farmhouse.

For details and directions, visit waterloofarmmuseum.org or contact Event Coordinator Wesley Perry at 517-763-6409.

Byrnes coffee hour Monday

State Rep. Pam Byrnes, D-District 52, will host her next coffee hour with constituents on Monday from 10 to 11 a.m. at the McKune Memorial Library, 221 S. Main St., Chelsea.

The purpose of the coffee hour is for Rep. Byrnes to meet and talk with her constituents about the issues they feel are important to them. It is an informal, free event open to the public.

For more information, call Byrnes' office at 1-800-645-1581.

'Supermarket Sweep' helps refill FIA pantry

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

It only took five minutes, and when it was over they needed a cleanup in Aisle 5.

American 1 Federal Credit Union celebrated the grand opening of its branch inside the Polly's County Market on South Main Street on May 28 by coming up with a way to have fun, involve the community and benefit a worthwhile charity all at once.

The credit union and grocery store recruited local companies and non-profit organizations for a "Supermarket Sweep" to restock the Faith In Action food pantry.

The event began at about 11 a.m. May 28 with a ribbon-cutting ceremony featuring American 1 President and CEO Dave Puckett, Branch Manager Sharon Hayes, and Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce Executive Director Bob Pierce.

Then the 12 three-person teams lined up their grocery carts at the checkout lanes, waiting for the signal to start the sweep.

Employees were posted at both ends of each aisle to ensure adherence to the rules, which were simple:

Each team member had to keep at least one hand on the cart at all times, they could choose from a variety of items that were clearly marked on the shelves, and they had only five minutes to collect as many items as they could.

The K105.3 team races down the aisle at Polly's Country Market during the "Supermarket Sweep" on May 28 to gather donations for the Faith In Action food pantry.

When the starting signal was given, the teams raced through the store, skidding around corners and catching bewildered regular shoppers unaware.

"This is our first Supermarket Sweep event here; we did it in Jackson when we opened a branch at Felpausch in Jackson a few years ago," said Kristi Latoszewski, vice president of Marketing for American 1.

"All groceries collected will be donated to the Faith In Action food pantry."

Accidents can happen even when shopping at normal speeds, and this was no different.

After five minutes of carts jostling their way through the aisles a large jar of grape jelly lay shattered, great lumps of purple goo staining the tile floor.

It was a worthwhile sacrifice, however, because when all the teams had cleared the checkouts, more than 500 items valued at just under $1,400 had been collected for the food pantry.

"American 1 and Polly's will be paying the bill for the food, and the teams donated their time," Latoszewski said.

Following all the excitement, the teams loaded a pickup truck with the bags of food and were treated to free hot dogs, chips and refreshments outside the store's main entrance.

Business After Hours brings Chamber members together

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce members had a chance to meet the staff and tour renovated rooms at the Holiday Inn Express during a "Business After Hours" event May 28.

After Hours is an opportunity for Chamber members to visit another member's establishment at the end of the business day to relax and enjoy some light refreshments, conversation and always-important business contacts.

Donnie Alsdurf, the hotel's general manager, hosted the event and arranged for tours of the rooms and other points of interest for about 60 guests that came and went from 5 to 7 p.m.

A "Business After Hours" event on May 28 at the Holiday Inn Express on Commerce Drive attracted about 60 members of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce.

"Business is doing wonderful," Alsdurf said, with hotel occupancy remaining steady even with skyrocketing fuel costs and an overall slow economy possibly giving travelers second thoughts.

"Right now I don't find that to be the case," Alsdurf said. "It might do a little bit of damage eventually but right now, not at all.

"It's just the natural cycle of business."

Alsdurf said the hotel had recently switched from winter to summer pricing, but doesn't anticipate any rate increases for travelers.

"We haven't raised our rates," he said. "Winter rates are different than summer rates, but not by much."

Alsdurf noted that the Chamber event was scheduled for the hotel before a corporate ownership change resulted in him being posted here as general manager late last year, but he could see the value of the event.

"The After Hours had already been set before I got here, but either way I would have made it happen," he said.

The economy and rising farm commodity prices have forced an increase in retail prices for another Chamber member, Chelsea

City Council awards bids for road work

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Reflecting the competition among contractors for steady work, C&D Hughes of Charlotte won contracts for two large road construction projects in Chelsea by bidding far below estimated costs.

The Chelsea City Council approved the bids May 27, noting that Hughes had done excellent work on projects in the city in 2006 and 2007.

The cost of the first project will be shared with the Downtown Development Authority because it takes place partly within the DDA district.

The city's portion involves Park Street from Main to East outside DDA limits; South Street from Garfield to Congdon; and sections of Wilkinson north of Wellington along with minor storm drain work.

The DDA will fund Main to East streets within DDA limits; resurfacing municipal parking lot behind the Common Grill and the courthouse alley, sidewalk and curb.

Hughes' total bid was $263,950.18, much less than the engineering estimate of $320,458.71.

The city will pay $154,813.57. In addition, the council approved a requested $15,000 contingency fund to guard against unforeseen circumstances.

"I just wanted to point out the coordinated effort that went into this project," City Manager John Hanifan told the council.

"With the DDA's help we were able to add this to the scope of the project, and (DPW chief Craig Maier and City Engineer Christine Linfield) were able to move quickly to do the DDA part."

The council also awarded Hughes the second road bid, for a much larger project through the Michigan Department of Transportation.

The scope of that project is to rebuild 1,100 feet of Railroad Street (Dexter-Chelsea Road), and McKinley Street from Jackson to Middle.

Utility upgrades include new storm and sanitary sewer and new water mains on Railroad Street.

Hughes' bid was $557,681.46, while engineering estimates had it pegged at $682,298.70. Federal funding of $208,600 will also be used.

Due to the larger total cost of the project, a contingency of only 5 percent - $28,000 - was sought and approved.

In other business, the council also approved changing the time of council meetings from 7:30 p.m. to 7 p.m.

They also authorized Police Chief Ed Toth Jr. to reclassify an existing patrol officer position to sergeant level to increase the supervisory capacity of the department.

Electric fire

A Chelsea Electric Department pickup truck was destroyed by fire about 9 a.m. on May 28 on the 500 block of North Main Street near Dewey Street. Fire officials said the exact cause of the fire was undetermined. Electric Department Superintendent Bob Shepherd, who was using the 1999 Chevrolet to inspect a power outage on Dewey Street at the time, said the fire might have been due to faulty wiring under the dashboard.

Local woman's bridge club plays last hand

The Woman's Club Marathon Bridge has successfully completed the 2007-2008 season by holding a dessert and card party on May 22 at The Pines community room. Prizes were awarded to the winners of the two leagues. Winners of League One were Laurie Gravelin and Jane Shrosbree with high score of 17,980 points. Second place went to Jean Schmidt and Sharlene Eisenbeiser with a 15,080 point total. League Two winners were the mother-daughter team of Helen Lancaster and Laurie Gravelin with 12,180 points. Coming in second were Arlene Howe and June Weiland with a total of 9,700 points.

It was announced that the Woman's Club of Chelsea will no longer sponsor the Marathon Bridge Club which has been organized since the early 70's. A new sponsor, Ele's Place which was founded by Sheila Morrison-Patrias of Chelsea, and will be headed by board member Jane Shrosbree, will continue the Marathon Bridge Club. The women attending the card party were signed up for next season and other members who were not in attendance and any other women of the community who are interested in joining may call Ms. Shrosbree at 475-1711.

The Woman's Club of Chelsea will no longer be an active community club, the club has accomplished much in it's 77 years and the many organizations it began are now being successfully continued by other groups. The club held it's final Spring Luncheon at Reddeman Farms on May 13, with a special program "High School Memories" featuring a graduation picture contest and suitable table decorations. The club members will continue to meet socially.

Milling, whose signature Jiffy Mix brands use a lot of corn and wheat.

"Business is good; so far we're having a good year," said Ed Hostetter, Vice President of Chelsea Milling Co. "We needed to raise our prices a little, but we're still a good value," he added.

Hostetter said most of what his company uses for its baking mixes is a soft white wheat that comes from Michigan's Thumb area.

"Wheat prices are falling right now and they'll probably continue to do that," he said.

Unfortunately for Jiffy's popular corn muffin mix, "I think corn prices are going to stay pretty high; there's a lot of demand."

Hostetter said the Business After Hours events are "a good networking opportunity."

"They typically have 65 to 80 people and sometimes more at these things," he said. "We had one at Chelsea Milling a few years ago that drew about 85."

Concern about the economy is also affecting clients of Bryan Merillat, a financial planner with the Merillat Financial Group.

"Business on my end has been pretty good. I'm busy all the time," Merillat said.

"A lot of times I get questions about the volatility of the market, and what should we do — I try to educate clients in what to expect."

Merillat said he has about 300 clients encompassing individuals and businesses, and does a lot of business with the schools.

He even had some free advice for people who have questions about investing their nest egg.

"The important thing is to be diversified according to your tolerance for risk," Merillat said.

"Everybody's situation is different, but that's exactly what I like about it."

Dems debate challenger for chief justice

You can't beat anybody with nobody and Michigan Democrats, who desperately want to remove the black robe from State Supreme Court Chief Justice Cliff Taylor this fall, are taking their good old time finding that somebody.

"It could be another few weeks," advises one of the inside players trying to find just the right challenger that appeases all the special interest groups in the party.

Tim Skubick

Some heavyweights have already turned down the offer, including Judge Robert Columbo Jr. from the Wayne County bench. He reportedly at one point was in, but then dropped out.

Former Oakland County jurist Jessica Cooper was eager to take on the incumbent GOP jurist. The theme was to label Taylor a political loser who only got a job when his buddy, Gov. John Engler, finally gave him a seat on the high court.

But when Cooper approached the party, it put her on hold and by the time the party got back, she was running for Oakland County prosecutor.

Upward of a dozen or so would-be contenders participated in a cattle call with no apparent front-runner. Meanwhile, Taylor gets a free ride as he campaigns all over the state without any opposition — other than Democratic Party Chairman Mark Brewer.

Brewer has made the rounds of the statewide political TV talk shows and accuses Taylor of everything short of starting World War II.

Brewer argues Taylor has a "pattern" of decisions that hurt the common man and woman and look for those rulings to show up in commercials coming to a TV set near you this fall.

Baloney, counters Brewer's counterpart and state GOP Chairman Saul Anuzis, who defends Taylor as "one of the best jurists in the country."

Anuzis admittedly has the tougher sales job because he will have to tediously explain why Taylor made any decisions in question. All Brewer and company have to do is run emotional TV spots on the issues of rape, kids being killed in traffic and who knows what all.

When the two sides are done firing off all these commercials, a whopping $20 million may be spent on a job that pays considerable less.

But much is at stake. If the Dems beat Taylor, they could take control of the high court. If they do that, when it comes time to redraw the voting district lines for Congress and the state Legislature, Democrats could construct the lines to favor their candidates over Republicans. In other words, it is worth the $20 million.

Even though the hunt continues for somebody to line up against Taylor, some betting money is on Marietta Robinson, a private lawyer from Oakland County, who took on Taylor once before and lost.

She has a long list of demands to become a candidate, but as one insider put it, "She would give Cliff heartburn."

The governor's office would be comfortable with Robinson, too.

The best speculation in this hunt surrounded current Justice Betty Weaver, who has been highly critical of the Taylor court. It had her resigning her seat and then running against Taylor.

"I never thought of it," she explains. "It's laughable."

Maybe so, but it would have been one heck of a battle between two jurists who are not, shall we say, the best of friends.

Right To Work is wrong for workers

Right To Work states see a lower standard of living and is detrimental to state economies. That's the message that was delivered by Brent Gillette, Michigan field mobilization director for the AFL-CIO at the May meeting of the Western Washtenaw Democrats.

"Right To Work is not good for our workers, and it's not good for our state," Gillette said. "It really should be called 'Right To Work For Less' because it lowers everyone's standard of living."

Gillette said that other states that have adopted Right To Work (RTW) statutes have seen a decline in wages and benefits for workers.

"Right To Work laws have brought about lower wages across the board," he said. "They have reduced benefits for all workers, net loss of jobs and loss of factories and other businesses."

The presentation included comparisons of yearly salaries in non-RTW regions against those with RTW laws on the books. Teachers, for example, in the east and north central region of the country (that do not have RTW laws) earn on average $49,916 a year. Their counterparts in the western and northern central part of the country that have RTW laws earn on average $39,164. The national average for teacher's salaries is $47,602.

Overall, in Michigan, the average yearly earning is $39,443. The average yearly earning in RTW states is $31,632.

"Right To Work really means 'Right To Work for Less'," Gillette said. "It adversely impacts all aspects of an economy, not just wages. Social services are overwhelmed when people's benefits are reduced, and poverty rates actually are higher in states with RTW laws.

The percentage of population without health insurance is 13.4 percent in non-RTW states. In Michigan, it is 11.6 percent while in Right To Work states, the number of people without health insurance is 15.4 percent.

Gillette also cited statistics from the U.S. Bureau of the Census 2006 which found the state poverty rates in non-RTW states is 11.9 percent. In Michigan, that figure was 12.3 percent. In states that have Right To Work laws on the books, the number jumps up to 13.8 percent which is higher than the national average of 12.6 percent.

Gillette said the Right To Work bills that are in the Michigan legislature are currently stalled, but they are not dead.

"We expect them to be brought forth again in the future," he said, "and we will continue to fight against them. The workers of the state of Michigan will be far better off without these regressive laws."

Rich Robinson is the communications director for the Western Washtenaw Democrats.

On the left, Brent Gillette, Michigan field mobilization director for the AFL-CIO, is joined by Fran Brennan of Scio Township, Lyndon Township Clerk Linda Reilly, and WWDems Chairman Roy Schmidt at the May meeting.

Our take:

Price of gas unreasonable no matter how you pump it

There probably has been an irrelevant list bloating your e-mail "inbox" that compares the price of a gallon of gasoline to other commercial substances.

Of course, the list tries to argue that because these other products are so ridiculously expensive by the gallon, the price of gas is really quite reasonable.

Most people, we hope, realize that the rationalization does not work and that such comparisons are just plain ridiculous.

The problem is there are some people who actually believe the illogical debate.

Oil company executives must love these unfortunately naive and gullible consumers.

First, let's take a look at the list. We can't testify to the veracity of their math because the Internet is full of misleading and inaccurate information. However, to do the math ourselves would be a waste of time. We'll do something that you rarely, if ever, should do in journalism — that's assume the figures, if not completely precise, are at least close. Either way, they are an absurd distortion of logic.

The list includes Scope, 1.5 ounces, $0.99, $84.48 per gallon; Diet Snapple, 16 ounces, $1.29, $10.32 per gallon; Lipton Ice Tea, 16 ounces, $1.19, $9.52 per gallon; Gatorade, 20 ounces, $1.59, $10.17 per gallon; Ocean Spray, 16 ounces, $1.25, $10 per gallon; brake fluid, 12 ounces, $3.15, $33.60 per gallon; Vick's Nyquil, 6 ounces, $8.35, $178.13 per gallon; Pepto Bismol , 4 ounces, $3.85, $123.20 per gallon; Whiteout, 7 ounces, $1.39, $25.42 per gallon; and Evian bottled water, 9 ounces, $1.49, $21.19 per gallon.

First, unless you're a wholesaler or just plain crazy, you don't need to buy any of these products in gallon amounts. However, most people easily must purchase 15 to 20 gallons of gasoline a week, often just to get to work and back.

None of these products are at all essential to your everyday living the way gasoline is. And if you do purchase of these products, you're certainly not going to buy them in the volume that you would gasoline.

In most cases, you're not even going to need a gallon of any of these products, except maybe the Pepto Bismol when you go to the service station to buy gas.

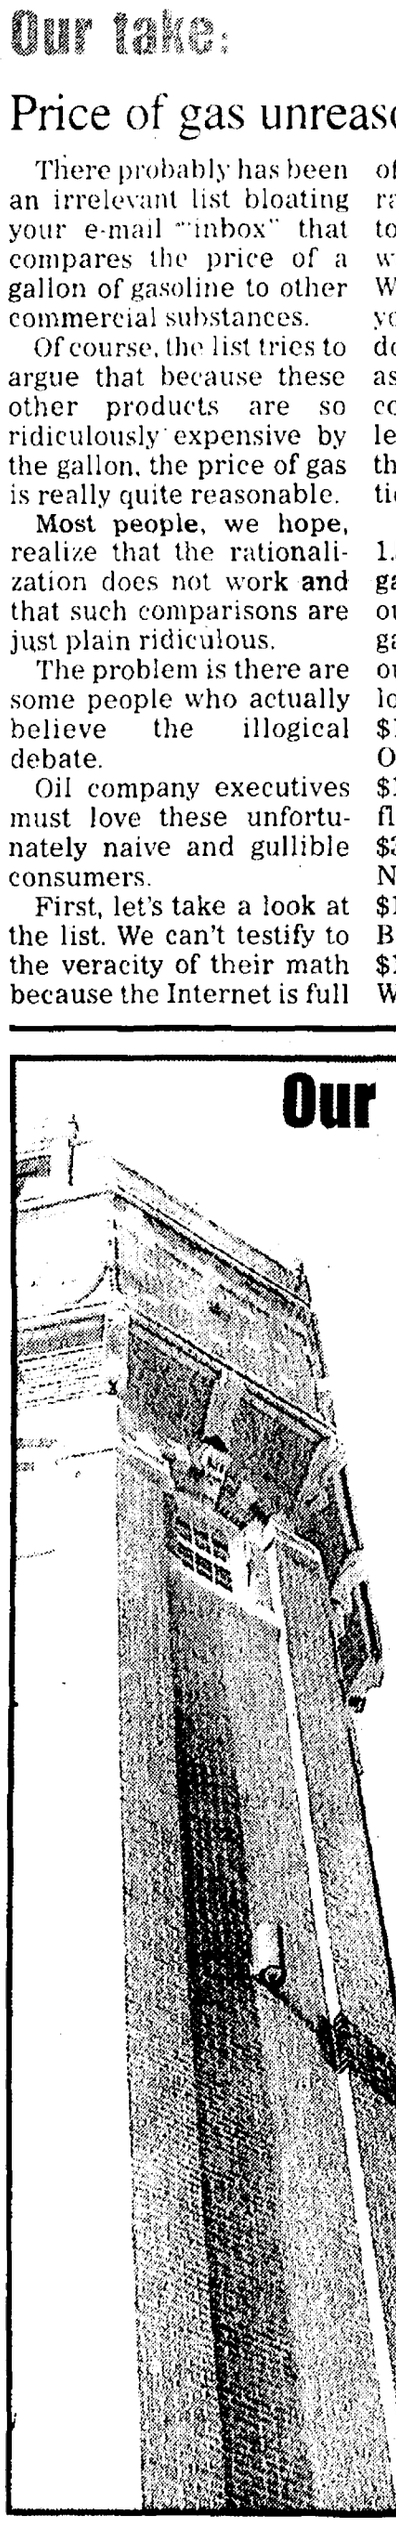
Our Chelsea History



When were Chelsea's elevated wood plank sidewalks replaced with cement sidewalks?

A. In 1920.

B. When a lady fell through and broke her ankle in 1915.

C. 1909 after the Holmes-Walker furniture store fire.

D. Summer of 1911.

Answer D. Beginning in July 1911 new cement sidewalks were being laid in several downtown localities. By the end of that summer very few plank sidewalks remained in Chelsea. Another improvement was the installation of new iron hitching posts in front of the Gorman (store next to today's Chelsea House Victorian Inn) and the side of the McKune Block on East Middle Street.

Women will brave a few blisters to fight cancer

A Chelsea woman and her daughter are demonstrating their devotion to a friend in need by walking 60 miles in three days for a cancer fund-raiser.

Linda Smith of Chelsea and her daughter, Michelle Smith, are walking in the Susan G. Komen "Breast Cancer 3-Day" from Sept. 26 to 28 in honor of their friend, Suzie Bell of Gregory.

The location of the event is typically not announced until the date of the event, Smith said, but last year's event took place at Oakland University. Each participant walks 20 miles per day for three days, and is required to raise $2,200 in donations.

To help them reach that goal, the women have organized number of fund-raising events.

For the first one, a benefit golf outing on June 21, golfers, sponsors and gift donations are needed.

It will take place at the Waterloo Golf Course, 11800 Trist Road, Grass Lake. Registration is 8:30 a.m., with shotgun start at 9 a.m.

Donation is $50 per person, which includes 18 holes and cart; bagels, sweets and coffee; hot dogs and chips at the turn; burgers, baked beans and potato salad at the "19th hole;" prizes and a 50/50 raffle.

Hole sponsorship is $100, and Bob Tracy of Tracy Graphics in Stockbridge is donating signs for hole sponsors.

Various businesses in Chelsea, Gregory and Stockbridge have already made gift certificate donations.

To sign up, see Debbie Fusina at the Country Pub in Gregory, or contact Linda Smith at 734-552-0999.

Walberg honored

U.S. Congressman Tim Walberg, R-Michigan, was recognized at the U.S. Capitol on May 14 by the Police Officers Association of Michigan (POAM). POAM hosted an event for the Michigan Congressional delegation and thanked members of Congress for supporting Michigan police. Officers from across the state of Michigan were present at the event, including the Metro Detroit Police & Fire Pipes and Drums. During the event, the Metro Detroit Police & Fire Pipes and Drums saluted their fallen colleagues with a rendition of Amazing Grace.

YPSILANTI, Mich. – The Eastern Michigan University athletic program has enjoyed a great 2007-08 year and now just one athlete remains active for the Eagles.

Eastern, which won a Mid-American Conference record eight league championships in 2006-07, followed that up with four league championships, a league tournament title, and the men's all-sports crown, the Reese Trophy, this year.

The baseball team and men's and women's outdoor track teams were in action last weekend (May 29-31) in NCAA regional championship action.

Head coach Jake Boss' baseball team won the MAC West Division title and also the MAC Tournament championship to qualify for the NCAA Ann Arbor Baseball Regional.

The baseball Eagles came up with two solid team efforts in that regional, but fell to No. 1 seed and eventual Regional Champion Arizona, 13-7, and No. 3 seed and Regional runner-up Kentucky, 4-3, to get eliminated from the four-team field.

Head coach Brad Fairchild's EMU men's outdoor team sent nine student-athletes to the NCAA Mideast Regional in Fayetteville, Ark. Women's head coach Sue Parks sent three competitors to that Mideast Regional.

Eric Alejandro

Eric Alejandro (Pembroke Pines, Fla.-Flanagan), who was named the men's Most Valuable Performer at the 2008 MAC championship after winning both the 110 and 400-meter hurdles and competing as a member of the 4x100 and 4x400-meter relay teams, was the lone Eagle to advance out of the regional to race in the NCAA National Championship, June 11-14, in Des Moines, Ia, placing second in a career-best time of 50.51 seconds, which places him second on the EMU all-time list, behind Jeff Dils' mark of 50.08 seconds.

Tennis event raises money for local teams

By Crystal Hayduk
Guest Writer

Tennis representatives of the Chelsea Athletic Boosters are hosting a tennis tournament on Saturday, June 14, from 10 AM to 2 PM. Funds raised will benefit the Chelsea High School tennis teams.

"We thought the tournament would be a great way for people to have fun playing tennis and for us to create revenue for the tennis program," said Matt Pedlow, girls' varsity coach.

Margy Boshoven, one of the booster representatives for the girls' tennis team, said that an additional goal of the tournament is to encourage tennis as a family sport. "Tennis is really a lifetime sport and it has terrific health benefits. The courts at both the high school and the middle school are not locked, so any time they're not in use by the tennis teams or community rec lessons, they are available for anyone to play on," said Boshoven.

This is the first fundraiser ever held for the tennis team. In the past, items have been purchased through direct donation or with booster money, according to Rahn Rosentreter, boys' varsity coach.

Tournament participants can play singles or doubles, and may request a partner if they wish. "We just ask that people who sign up to play can rate themselves as intermediate or advanced players. In other words, this is not for someone who has never swung at a ball before," said Micky Howe, booster representative for the girls' team.

You don't have to play tennis to support the team fundraiser. Refreshments and t-shirts will be available to purchase at the tournament. Direct donations will also be accepted. Checks should be made out to Chelsea High School with "tennis fundraiser" in the memo.

Registration forms can be obtained through the Chelsea Community Recreation Office or by calling Nancy Mauti at (734) 475-2950. The deadline to register is June 9.

"American 1 is committed to the communities we serve; this is just the beginning of what we plan to offer the Chelsea community," Latoszewski said.

"We plan on sponsoring more fun family events."

Pierce said he was involved with FIA as a business owner long before he became associated with the Chamber.

"Faith In Action is truly unique; it's one of the most outstanding organizations in Chelsea," he said.

"Summer is their slow time for food donations and they really need them.

"With the kids home from school and the usual donors on vacation, the need increases," Pierce added.

FIA Program Manager Doug Smith appeared stunned by the truck filled with supplies.

"This is awesome," he said.

"The generosity of this community is amazing. Whenever we ask for help, they always come out to help us."

Planting for the future

Alternative energy projects taking root at Proving Grounds

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Denny Huehl wheels his tractor around the field, in the thin shadow of a steel spire that looks a lot like an antenna tower, but isn't.

And it's not his own land on which the Freedom Township farmer is planting dozens of acres of soybeans.

But as unlikely as it sounds, the two are actually related.

This is the second year that Denny's farm, Huehl Acres, agreed to be part of a Chrysler Corp. research project into alternative energy at the Chrysler Proving Grounds south of Chelsea.

On part of the acreage where the Huehls are planting, Washtenaw County and the University of Michigan have installed a tower with a number of meteorological sensors to determine if the Proving Grounds would be a good site to place wind turbines to generate clean electricity.

"One of the company's main initiatives is to 'go green,'" said Bill Anderson, Chrysler Proving Grounds Facilities Project Manager.

The renewable energy research has shown Anderson a piece of another world outside the automotive industry.

"This is my project, and I've enjoyed being part of this," he said May 29 as he watched the tractor roll across the dry, dusty field. "The things I've seen, I've never known before."

Besides soybeans, Chrysler is looking at other crops that can be used for fuel.

The only thing is, which crop that will be is still up in the air instead of in the ground.

The original plan called for that to be switchgrass, but found it to be impractical.

"We're looking at other crops, because switchgrass doesn't grow well in this climate," Anderson said.

"Then you have to find a place to process it into fuel, and that has a bearing on what we choose to plant," he added. "No place processes switchgrass around here."

A meeting took place Monday at which various alternative crops were discussed, but many, like and camelina, canola and ditropa, had the same drawbacks, Anderson said: they don't grow well here, or there's no processing facility available.

One crop showed great promise, however - pennycress.

Freedom Township farmer Denny Huehl plants soybeans at the Chrysler Proving Grounds on May 29 to be grown as part of a biodiesel research project. Plans call for a total of about 80 acres of different crops to be planted on several parcels of vacant land at the 3,600-acre Proving Grounds.

"Pennycress is a weed-like plant (that) has a high oil content," Anderson said. "You plant it in September and harvest it in the spring."

Although growing corn for ethanol has been standard procedure for the past several years, recent environmental and food supply concerns have made corn fall from favor.

"Everybody's down on corn for ethanol at this point, but that's what's working," Huehl said.

"Everything else is kind of in the experimental stage right now."

Like corn that is processed into ethanol, soybeans can be processed into a form of diesel fuel — and with diesel prices soaring past gasoline prices for the first time in history, scientific research into the best way to make

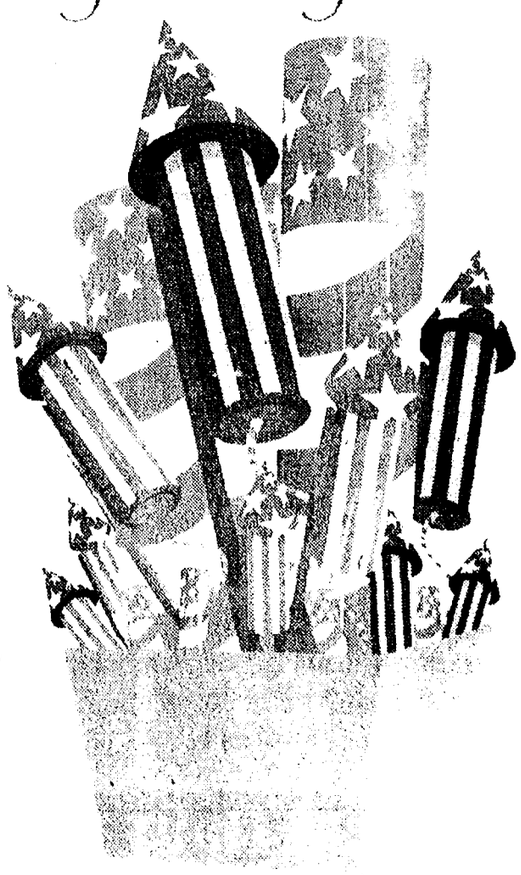
Keep Safety in Sight This 4th of July
FIREWORKS

The sights and sounds of a fireworks display are a traditional part of a 4th of July celebration. Unfortunately, fireworks can also lead to another annual tradition - a trip to the emergency room. According to the Center for Disease Control, approximately 6,400 Americans are treated annually for fireworks-related injuries during the 4th of July holiday period. And of those, almost 1,600 are treated for injuries to the eye. Here are some more eye-opening statistics about fireworks and their danger to your vision:

• Each year, as many as 4[illegible] Americans lose sight in one or both eyes due to fireworks.
• Children under the age of 10 account for 6[illegible] of fireworks-related eye injuries.
• Almost half of fireworks injuries happen to bystanders.
• The fireworks that cause the most injuries are bottle rockets, firecrackers and sparklers.

What can you and your child do to celebrate 4th of July safely?

• Consider attending an authorized public fireworks display conducted by licensed operators.
• If fireworks are legal where you live, and your family purchases fireworks follow these safety guidelines:
  • Adults who ignite the fireworks should wear eye protection.
  • Never allow children to play with or ignite fireworks.
  • Read and follow all warnings and instructions.
  • Be sure other people are out of range before lighting fireworks.
  • Only light fireworks on a smooth, flat surface away from the house, dry leaves, and flammable materials.
  • Never try to relight fireworks that have not fully functioned.
  • Keep a bucket of water in case of a malfunction or fire.



Ask our office about safety glasses that can protect your eyes from injury year-round.

GROWING

"It does present an opportunity to diversify marketing strategies of regional farm businesses and increase the amount of food sold by local farms into Southeast Michigan communities."

Score said there has been a fair amount of interest in the FSEP Web site, fsepmichigan.org, which utilizes new software developed at MSU, "Market Maker."

"It is a Michigan version of online directory other states have used to help farmers find consumers for those products," Score said.

Consumers and institutional buyers can use Market Maker for finding sources in Washtenaw, Jackson, Lenawee, Monroe and Wayne counties.

About 70 different producers are listed in Washtenaw County itself, and groups can be sorted by age, income and education level.

Score said Superior Foods, a large food distribution company near Grand Rapids with 2006 gross sales of $156 million, is interested in setting up an enterprise that focuses on organic produce to improve access to Michigan organic produce in the marketplace.

"They would like to open up a warehouse in Ann Arbor where farmers could deliver goods and it could be sorted, grocery stores and other institutional buyers could buy from them," Score said.

"I worked with a group of farmers, distributors and retailers last year to set up a business plan. When we completed it, we found that for the scale of business to be feasible we could not set up a profitable operation at this point.

"(Superior) already has a large operation that will absorb some of the overhead."

About 35 members of the group attended a meeting in December from the Ann Arbor area, Manchester, Ypsilanti, Lenawee County, Monroe County and Lansing, Score said

"The demand for local food is extremely high, but the challenge is overcoming the overhead costs," he said.

It's one of the most important economic development projects related to the food system in Southeast Michigan, Score said.

"Every institutional buyer is getting more pressure from consumers," he said.

The way it is now it's very inefficient. There needs to be some local collection point for local food, and if this business falls into place it will fill the gap."

Patty Henes of Saline represented H&H Harvest Saturday at the Saline Farmers' Market. She was selling hanging baskets of flowers grown on the farm.

Chelsea: Dry Bucket Farms is an organic farm located half way between Manchester and Chelsea. Veronica Freeman and husband John Larder were at the market selling eggs, asparagus, herbs and lettuce. Organic strawberries and heirloom vegetables will be coming soon. They also plan on selling other types Michigan fruit such as peaches.

Dexter: Sam Hicks has plenty of goodies to sell at his stand in Dexter.

Saline: Jeff Brown was among the vendors Saturday at the Saline Farmers' Market. Brown sells honey and various bees wax products.

Local growers speak up

Mike and Kathy Fusilier have a greenhouse and farm operation near Manchester that primarily produces bedding plants, vegetables and traditional field crops.

Although the demand is there from consumers, retail establishments are still lagging behind in supply.

"We've never yet seen a Michigan tomato in the stores in the summer," Kathy Fusilier said.

"I know people who grow for wholesale, but you don't see their stuff in the stores."

The Fusiliers grow literally "tons of stuff" on about 200 acres.

"Different types of lettuce and spinach, onions, eggplant, peppers, melons, beets, green beans, radishes, and we just added raspberries this year," she said.

"And we're trying to figure out how to grow carrots on a large scale."

They also have chickens for a ready supply of fresh eggs, and grow and sell annuals and perennials.

The majority of their produce can be found at about a dozen farmers markets a week, keeping the couple and their children busy throughout the big market rush of May through October.

Still, "it's better than it was, when we had hogs and corn," Fusilier said.

The couple started the greenhouse in 1996, and business has improved every year for one simple reason.

"We try to grow what the customer wants," she said.

Mike DuRussell is one of the owners of DuRussell Potato Farms, which grows not only potatoes but about 20 different crops like vegetables and grains on almost 2,000 acres near Manchester.

The family-run business has been selling to grocery chains like Spartan and Meijer for more than 10 years, and is a select supplier for the Campbell's Soup Co.

DuRussel said he is seeing a definite corporate shift toward the "buy local" side of the field.

"They are changing their ad policy so that people are aware that the produce is local," DuRussell said.

"The grocery stores now request that we label things with point of origin."

The Ypsilanti Food Co-op has made buying local a key component of the business since day one.

"We've been in business for 33 years, and we get as much as we can get locally," said manager Corinne Sikorsky.

"Customers request locally grown produce and we've always done that.

"For us, it's not a fad. It's been going on for a long time."

The co-op even features local vendors every month or two in its newsletter for members, Sikorsky said.

The majority of the items the co-op carries come from either local or regional suppliers.

Shoppers can find Michigan beans and flour, some in bulk and some in packages; local beer and wine, local poultry and eggs, pasta, corn chips, the conversion is on the front burner.

PLANTING

Part of the process is for Chrysler to learn lessons that farmers face every year with every crop.

"Last year we got a late start (planting the beans), and then it was so dry that it didn't do well," Anderson recalled.

"We only had 40 acres, and only about 25 percent of that sprouted."

Huehl said he and his brother Jerry, his partner in Huehl Acres, look at the Proving Grounds pretty much "like any other field" that they rent from other landowners to raise a crop.

"Basically we get free ground out of the deal, and we'll get the beans when we harvest," Denny said.

"It's not real good ground to begin with; it's been bulldozed over the years and a lot of it is in 2- or 3-acre plots, so you wouldn't pay a lot for it anyway."

Because it is within the perimeter of the high-security Proving Grounds, "We did have to meet extra liability and other requirements," Huehl added.

Anderson said that between the soybeans, the yet-unnamed second crop and the wind tower experiment, the car company is trying to be sensitive to opinion about renewable energy research.

"These crops are less costly, more environmentally friendly alternatives to mowing acres of grass," Anderson said.

"We have to keep our ear to the ground about the public perception," he said.

But there was this guitar. It was never far away. And now girls and surfing and Ricky Nelson were ringing in his ears. While he may not have known how to get there, he knew where he wanted to go.

"I met Charlie Correll during my first year at Loyola and he took me to where he was playing with Art Linkletter's son, Bob," Lewis said. "And it was Bob who got me into the electric guitar."

Lewis, Correll and Linkletter helped form the Cornells, an LA-based band that played mostly surf music and who opened at the Hollywood Bowl for (comedian) Soupy Sales and played the LA Sports Arena with Bobby Freeman, the Coasters and Wayne Newton.

Lewis went off to Purdue University and in 1966 helped form Moby Grape with frontman Skip Spence, the original drummer for Jefferson Airplane. In 1967, they released "Moby Grape," now and at the time considered an exceptional rock album.

They were called everything from the "American Rolling Stones" to "the next big thing." Critics and fans loved the record with the song "Omaha" reaching the American singles charts in 1967. The band even performed at the now legendary Monterey Pop Festival.

This is when things began to pop for Moby Grape. While some of the mistakes were out of their hands, others were quite literally self-inflicted. Marketing blunders were made, legal trouble emerged and their relationship with their manager crumbled. Alcohol and drugs were as prevalent as chord changes and long hair.

The band's second album "Wow" was anything but.

"We made a huge mistake with that album," Lewis said. "The Beatles had just released Sgt. Peppers so we tried to put out a record just like that instead of doing what we did so well on our first record. It was a mistake because many of the songs we couldn't play live. We couldn't reproduce that sound on stage back then."

As it turns out, Moby Grape never got back to the success it had with its debut album.

I just signed, a suicide note
My faith conceding, every word I wrote
I could not afford, the steep price to pay
Was resigned to the fact, there wasn't any other way
I bowed to my fears, and surrendered to the pain

There is a line on the Moby Grape page on Wikipedia that jumps right off the computer screen: "unfortunately (Moby Grape) never fully realized its potential." Those words can certainly sting. But they also can weigh on a person, even destroying them if they let it. "Never realizing your potential" isn't exactly what you want on your tombstone – or Wikipedia page.

But that certainly fits the life of Skip Spence, a gifted and brilliant musician who Lewis cherished as a friend – and still does. Spence was never the same after allegedly consuming large quantities of LSD. And even though the band carried on for a few more albums, they were never the same without Spence.

Spence was committed for six months to New York City's Bellevue Hospital, where he was subsequently diagnosed with schizophrenia. He died in 1999 of lung cancer at the age of 52.

"Skip was never crazy around me," Lewis said. "And it wasn't about crazy, it was about not being understood. And when you got away from the band members, no one understood us. We are stuck together and we are the only ones who can relate to one another.

"When Moby Grape ended there was some serious suffering that went on after that. And no one suffered more than Skip. He suffered more than I ever did and he never got bitter. That's the lesson, among others, he left me. No matter what happened, he never got bitter."

It took Peter Lewis a long time to shake off the troubled legacy of his band.

"I had a lot of anger and I still deal with it," Lewis said. "But I have learned that the best decisions have to be meaningful. It's like the pollywogs in a pond when the water dries up. Either you grow lungs and survive or you die."

Rock 'n roll is many things to many people. It's an escape, it's a way out, it's a way in, it's a friend, a life-jacket, an excuse and a way of life

Rock 'n roll also is a teacher – Bruce Springsteen once wrote, "I learned more from a three-minute record than I ever learned in school" – where the students never stop studying. And Lewis is always studying – playing, writing, listening, growing and most importantly reaching. He's reaching for that next level.

You see, dedicated musicians are forever studying music 101, trying to understand and better experience this beautiful art form that no one ever truly masters. And no one owes more to music than Lewis.

"Music was my saving grace," he says. "If you can keep from losing your faith in music, then you've succeeded. Even if you never get to be super famous, you can still write and record songs. Where ever I was in my life, at any time, I could always go in my room and play my guitar. It was the one thing that was always there for me."

And it's still there for him.

At 62, Lewis has been married to his wife Corin since 1979. They live off a golf course in sunny California, a safe distance from the cliffs that once seemed so close. He could have been a major rock star. He is going to have to settle for being a minor rock star. As long as he can continue "writing tunes," painting and "waiting for his wife to come home," he's learned to deal with that.

Has he accepted that? Probably not. After all, he's a pollywog with lungs still swimming in this giant pond.

It's tough to explain, gut-wrenching to discuss, impossible to defend
I know where I am right now, but I also know where I've been
The lights flicker out, the music fades and my heart beats from fast to slow
All my fears and disappointments are packed up by the side of the road
I'll hide here tonight in the warmth of your arms, sit back and enjoy the show
If the past wants to find me, search no more, but this time I won't be alone

Groups unite to refute food vs. fuel myths of anti-ethanol campaign

LANSING — Several of the nation's leading agricultural organizations banded together this week to say they're fed up with debating myths about ethanol and its exaggerated impact on food prices, and they want the Grocery Manufacturers Association (GMA) and others involved in a massive anti-ethanol campaign to quit making ethanol "the scapegoat" for increased food costs when out-of-control prices for crude oil are the bigger culprit.

"(Their) propaganda is doing nothing short of dividing the agriculture industry in order to capitalize on the public's misconception about food prices," said American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) President Bob Stallman of a multi-million dollar anti-ethanol campaign led by GMA.

"Efforts such as this campaign work against the national policy and goal of less reliance on foreign sources of fuel and only contribute to an environment where the real issues are ignored and little will be solved," said Stallman. "Instead of using ethanol as a scapegoat for increased food prices, we should be having a real discussion about the business, economics and policy issues connected with the world of $130-plus per barrel oil."

Stallman made his comments last Wednesday during a press briefing that also included leaders from the National Association of Wheat Growers, National Corn Growers Association, National Farmers Union, National Sorghum Producers, and the Renewable Fuels Association (RFA).

The group cited several examples in which ethanol has been unfairly blamed for price run-ups on food products not made from the same type of corn used in ethanol production – or corn at all. The situations range from ethanol being blamed for pasta riots in Italy when wheat, not corn, is used to make pasta to theaters jacking up ticket prices for movie-goers because ethanol allegedly has forced them to pay more for popcorn, yet ethanol and theater popcorn are made from completely different types of corn.

"The farm price of a tub of popcorn is less than the cost of the paper tubs they scoop into it," remarked a frustrated NCGA President Ron Litterer.

Part of the problem, the group said, is most consumers don't realize that the majority of corn grown in the United States is field corn, not sweet corn which they are more familiar with as fresh corn on the cob or canned corn. Field corn, which is used for ethanol production, is primarily grown to feed livestock, with a small portion of the crop used for corn syrup and other processed food products. Litterer adds that in nearly every food product, corn remains an inexpensive ingredient. So even with $6 per bushel corn, the amount of corn in a box of corn flakes costs less than a dime, he said.

The group worries, though, that consumers have been brainwashed into believing that retail food prices move up or down solely based on agricultural commodity prices when most often several factors are at play, including costs for labor, packaging and transportation. That's why even with wheat trading lower now at $7 a bushel, consumers can probably still find a loaf of bread today priced the same as it was in March when wheat shot up to $12 a bushel, said David Cleavinger, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers.

"We're extremely disappointed by the lengths to which the Grocery Manufacturers Association and its allies have gone in their efforts to bad mouth corn farmers and ethanol producers," said Litterer. "It really is an attack on all of agriculture because it asserts that farmers are no longer able to do what they've done for centuries — feed the world."

In reality, U.S. corn farmers have produced the four largest corn crops in U.S. history within the past five years, and yields have increased by about three bushels per acre each year, said Litterer.

"It's not that we're taking corn away from other uses. We're producing more corn to meet the newly expanded market demands," he said.

Unfortunately, said Litterer, other countries such as Africa have not kept the same pace for various reasons ranging from limited use of biotechnology to domestic policy issues that interfere with agricultural growth in their country.

National Sorghum Producers CEO Tim Lust pointed out that a little over a year ago some countries and international organizations blamed the United States for overproducing crops and flooding the world market with cheap food to the point where developing nations couldn't compete. Now, these same critics have turned the tide and just 18 months later are accusing the United States of not producing enough food.

URC backs two 'revolutionary but feasible' energy projects

The University Research Corridor, an alliance of Michigan's three research universities, announced this week its first seed fund grants to provide startup support for two "revolutionary but feasible" energy projects.

University of Michigan President Mary Sue Coleman, Michigan State University President Lou Anna Simon and incoming Wayne State University President Jay Noren announced the awards at the Detroit Regional Chamber's Mackinac Policy Conference.

The seed investments will help launch two collaborations for efficient development of cheaper forms of electricity and fuel, one involving all three universities and the other involving MSU and U-M. Out of 13 proposals, URC provosts selected:

Thermoelectric materials for power generation Chemistry, chemical engineering and physics experts representing each of the universities are developing far more efficient low-cost thermoelectric materials. The technology could be used for power generation and environmentally friendly heating and cooling systems.

The proposal states: "In this project, we seek to develop bulk thermoelectric materials containing nanostructure with enhanced thermoelectric properties, since such systems offer the promise of low cost, ease of manufacturability, and wide application. Our approach is revolutionary in concept, but its successful implementation will provide a direct route to a feasible methodology for improving the energy efficiency of industrial processes."

The team was awarded $523,282 covering a three-year period.

Improved ethanol from switchgrass, corn stovers An MSU/U-M project with Lansing-based Technova Corp. to develop nano-biocarriers to rapidly and efficiently produce low-cost ethanol from switchgrass or corn stover (the leaves and stalks that make up about half of a corn crop). Production facilities would require a much smaller footprint.

bread, honey, even handmade soap and shampoo.

"I supply rhubarb when I have extra, and we get some from neighbors like that," Sikorsky said.

The co-op even gets some of its stock from an unusual local source.

"We also shop the Ypsilanti Farmers' Market on Tuesdays and Saturdays," Sikorsky said.

And much like a farmers market, the co-op's selection varies seasonally.

"Right now, there's not as much as there will be in August and September," Sikorsky said.

"Almost 100 percent of our lettuce, spinach and other greens will be local."

That availability brings up another issue of buying local: Michigan's climate isn't exactly what you'd consider optimal for year-round growing and harvesting.

"It's a lot of work and expense to prolong the growing season year-round," Sikorsky said.

Just as important as coming from a local source, Sikorsky said, is the quality of locally grown or manufactured products.

"There is a market — if high-quality products are available, people will buy them," Sikorsky said.

"People are choosing them because they're good products, not just because they're local."

Nancy Thelen, Washtenaw County MSU Extension director, agreed that availability of local products is a concern that needs to be addressed.

"One of the biggest problems is to have enough supply for the entire year," Thelen said.

"From my perspective, it takes extra work to sell to Meijer and other large retailers, but it's certainly been profitable because the interest in buying local food continues to increase," she said.

"There have been oodles of interest, but the problem is just trying to get everybody together."

Future leader

Chelsea's Cassell attends national leadership conference in Washington

Jacqueline Smith
Special Writer

What better place for a youngster to test their ability to lead than in Washington D.C. Chelsea's Julia Cassell recently got the chance to test her leadership skills at the National Young Leaders Conference (NYLC) April 1 in the nation's capital, the home of America's leaders.

Cassell, a Chelsea High School sophomore, was one of nine students nominated by her teacher Beverly Martin-Read last fall. It was an opportunity too good to pass up.

"I received a very formal-looking invitation in November," Cassell said. "I was excited, but a little apprehensive because I had never heard of NYLC. My parents researched the program and could only find positive information about it, so I accepted the invitation."

NYLC is a program that strengthens the leadership skills of high school sophomores, juniors and seniors, while giving the students a greater understanding of their roles in a democracy. Cassell was the only one of the nine students nominated to attend the conference.

Martin-Read said many students do not accept the invitation because of financial reasons.

"They have to pay their own way," she said. "There's no type of scholarship."

Martin-Read said she nominates students for the opportunity on the basis that they exhibit leadership abilities, take initiative, respect authority and cooperate with their peers. She says she does not always nominate when asked, but Cassell was a qualified candidate.

"Julia has a very positive attitude, an upbeat attitude about life," she said. "She's a great leader."

Once her parents drove her to the airport, Cassell figured she could take the trip by herself after a previous experience of traveling all the way to Japan. "I was a little nervous about traveling alone," she said. "I knew there would be other kids from all over the country at the conference."

Cassell stayed with two other girls, one from Missouri and the other from California, just outside of Washington at the Tyson's Corner Best

U-M opens new sleep research center

One of the world's first laboratories devoted solely to research on how sleep and biological rhythms influence depression, substance abuse and other aspects of mental well-being has opened at the University of Michigan Health System.

The U-M Sleep & Chronophysiology Laboratory, based at the U-M Depression Center, welcomed the first research volunteers to its new eight-bed facility this month.

The new facility is home to a number of highly scientific studies on sleep and the daily cycles known as circadian rhythms.

Two of the bedrooms are located within suites that may be unique in the world. Called Temporal Isolation Labs, they're designed so that a research volunteer can be closed off entirely from the outside world, unable to tell what time of day it really is.

These suites are specially equipped with banks of lights on the walls and ceiling that can be adjusted precisely by the center's staff to simulate all times of day or night. This can allow a volunteer's innate circadian rhythms - patterns of rest and activity in both body and mind - to be monitored or even altered temporarily.

The facility also can be used for light therapy to combat problems such as depression.

Cancer Prevention and Survival Cooking Course

What: The Cancer Project, a national nonprofit dedicated to advancing cancer prevention through education and research, is offering a free, four-session cooking course designed to help area residents prevent and survive cancer through proper diet and nutrition. "The single easiest and best thing most of us can do to prevent cancer or its recurrence is to eat right," says Jennifer Reilly, R.D., a senior nutritionist for The Cancer Project. "More than a third of all cancer deaths in this country are due to poor diet."

When: June 19 through July 10 (Thursdays), 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Where: Chelsea Community Hospital

Sponsor: The Cancer Project

Cost: Free (suggested $20 donation per class)

Mott Hospital honored

The University of Michigan C.S. Mott Children's Hospital ranks among the best pediatric hospitals in the nation in U.S.News & World Report's "America's Best Children's Hospitals" issue. It is also the only hospital in the state to be nationally ranked in all seven pediatric specialty areas featured in this special report.

Mott ranks fourth for heart and heart surgery, 15 for neonatal care, 16 for respiratory disorders, and among the nation's best for all other pediatric specialties – cancer, digestive disorders, general pediatrics, and neurology and neurosurgery.

The 2008 "America's Best Children's Hospitals" issue will be published in the magazine's June 9 issue.

Treating blood pressure in people with diabetes

For people with diabetes, high blood pressure poses a special threat, multiplying their risk of heart attacks, strokes and kidney problems.

But a new study finds that even when people with diabetes show up in their doctor's office with a high blood pressure reading, there's only a 50-50 chance that each of them will get some sort of attention for it. That might mean a change to their medications, or a plan to follow up a few weeks later to see if the reading is still high. What happens the other 50 percent of the time? Something that others have termed "clinical inertia" takes over, say the University of Michigan Health System and VA Ann Arbor Healthcare System researchers who conducted the study.

The fear is that this lack of response to high blood pressure readings at clinic visits could mean that patients' pressures will keep getting worse.

The study takes a look at possible causes of clinical inertia and finds little evidence supporting the idea that providers are just "ignoring" blood pressure problems.

What really seems to have an impact on treatment decisions is plain old uncertainty about whether the blood pressure is really elevated, or providers being occupied with other medical issues. Providers might need to spend the visit addressing more pressing problems, some of which, like pain, may be contributing to elevated blood pressures. Or, they might take another reading and conclude there's no need for action. Or, patients may report that their pressure readings at home have been fine.

More systematic guidelines for monitoring blood pressure in people with diabetes, and better guidance for when to change treatment when pressures get too high, are needed, say the researchers.

"While there are many guidelines about treating hypertension, there is an amazing lack of clarity and guidance about how many blood pressures should be taken at a clinic visit, whether those blood pressures should be averaged or whether just the lowest should be used, and how to incorporate home blood pressure readings in decisions to intensify medications," said Eve Kerr, M.D., MPH. "As long as this confusion exists, we may not make progress in treating hypertension."

Western. Meeting other students from across the country was her favorite part of the conference.

There was only one thing she didn't like.

"My least favorite part was all of the homework we had to do each night," Cassell said. "There was a tremendous amount of reading to prepare for the following day."

The conference participants underwent leadership training and had a role in simulations of different branches of government. They also toured Washington and met with many professionals such as politicians, lobbyists, journalists and judges.

One of the politicians Cassell met was U.S. Sen. Debbie Stabenow (D-Michigan). She and other NYLC Michigan students had their photograph taken with Stabenow. They also walked across both the political and legislative aisle to meet U.S. Rep. Tim Walberg (R-District 7).

Receiving the 2008 Chelsea High Underclass Award for Character and Leadership, Cassell believes that the conference helped her become a better leader. And she has seen other benefits from the experience as well.

"I was just accepted to be a Link Crew leader for next year," Cassell said. "I think the leadership training I had in Washington, along with the training we will get at school, will prepare me for this new leadership role."

Link Crew, a high school transition program which welcomes and assists incoming freshman with their first year, has the goal to create the environment for students to connect and is built on the belief that students can help other students succeed.

The program trains soon-to-be juniors and seniors as Link Leaders, so that they may serve as role models and motivators. Link Crew coordinators Cindy Rhodes and Adam French had to be selective when accepting students to train.

"The selection process was extremely competitive," said Rhodes of the first-year program. "We had more exceptional students that applied than slots available. Julia was chosen based on her leadership abilities, strength of character, personal experiences and kindness."

Cassell, who also received a nomination from a teacher for the role, will be a part of the freshman orienting process next August.

"(Julia) can really be somebody the kids can look up to," French said.

Principles to help owners get solid results

Your Biz coach

By Lauren Eichner

I want to share with you some valuable principles that we share with all of our clients. These principles are what our clients claim make the greatest difference for them. I'll start with generally summarizing them in this column, then follow up by explaining them in detail in future columns.

Here are the Top 10 Getting Results Principles:

1. Whatever you give your attention to you get more of. The question becomes, what are you paying attention to? If you pay most of your attention on fighting fires all day, you will get more fires. If you pay attention to your best clients, you will get more of those great clients.

2. Be Interested NOT Interesting. We spend so much time trying to show others how interesting we are that we never really get to know them, nor do we hear what they are really saying. In order to really connect with another person, try being interested in them. Ask questions about their kids, dogs, work, hobbies, etc.

3. You only rise as high as you those you surround yourself with. Be discerning about the community you keep. If you want to have a fantastic relationship with your spouse, don't spend your time with skirt-chasing philanderers. If you want to be a successful business owner, spend your time with other successful business owners.

4. Uncommunicated expectations are disappointments waiting to happen. If you find yourself constantly frustrated with someone, first look to yourself as to how you can communicate your expectations of them more clearly. I see this happen a lot with assistants.

5. . Be Committed to the Outcome, Unattached to the Results. Being attached to the result will only lead to perseverating on the past. Learn from the result and more on. Beating yourself up for 'failing' is wasting precious time you can be spending on readjusting your aim to attain your objective.

6. Take Personal Responsibility for your Outcomes. This one principle will change your world. Making others responsible for your outcome renders you powerless. Taking responsibility for them gives you the power to change whatever the outcome is.

7. You Can't See the Back of Your Own Head. You can only see a reflection of it. The same goes for your own behavior and how you occur. Many arguments would be thwarted if we could all understand that we may not know ourselves the way we think we do. Great growth can happen if you are humble enough to say, 'maybe they are right, maybe they see something that I don't.'

8. What Ever Your Resist will Persist. If you don't want to make that phone call, the burden of having to make it will persist until you get it done.

9. Don't assume you know what someone is saying. Get clarity on what the other person is saying. Ask for examples. Check in with them to make sure you understood what they were saying before you take action on it. This will help prevent miscommunication.

10. Do what is in the best interest of others (as long as you don't compromise yourself). Serving others is the easiest way to become successful and it feels great!

I will spend the next several columns providing greater clarity on these principles, so keep your eye out for them and keep reading!

Chelsea wins district crown

Chelsea's girls' soccer team captured a Division 2 state district championship last Saturday defeating host Eaton Rapids 3-0.

Bulldog junior Brooke Ehman opened the scoring with a goal off a pass from sophomore Sarah Bingel at the 36th minute of the first half.

"That gave us a lift at halftime, but I still wasn't happy with the way we had played," said Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi. "We took lousy shots in the first half and squandered great scoring chances early. We talked at halftime about raising our level of play to a true championship level."

In the second half, senior Ellen Stewart scored giving Chelsea (13-2-4), ranked No. 5 in the state in Division 2, a 2-0 advantage seven minutes into the stanza.

Three minutes later, the Bulldogs struck again as freshman Anna Rode scored for the game's final margin. Senior Emily Rabbitt picked up an assist on the play for Chelsea.

"We dominated play throughout most of the contest," Orlandi said. "Eaton Rapids was tough as their seniors were playing on their home field on their last day of school.

"In the first 20 minutes of the second half, we played some of the best soccer we've played all season. We were all over them. It led to two goals."

Chelsea's girls' soccer team gathers together after winning a Division 2 state district championship last Saturday.

Defensively, the Bulldogs were outstanding. The shutout victory was Chelsea's third in a row.

Bulldog senior keeper Jenna Jarvis earned the shutout in net.

"That was a great accomplishment for our defense," Orlandi said. "Jenna has been great as a leader and all of our defenders have been very sharp. This is our first district championship since 2000, so it's special."

Orlandi said it's felt good to finally win another district title.

"We recognize that these things don't necessarily come around that often," he said. "We also recognize how much harder we'll have to work to have the same kind of success at the regional level."

Chelsea's girls' track and field team finished its season as one of the state's best teams, placing fifth overall at last Saturday's Division 2 final at Zeeland.

The Bulldogs ended up with 26 points.

Winning the Division 2 state championship was Grand Rapids Forest Hills Northern with 54 points.

Finishing second was Ypsilanti with 40 points, while Detroit Renaissance was third with 35 points and East Lansing fourth with 34 points.

Sixty-seven schools competed in the final.

"This meet went about as well as it could for us," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke. "Each girl performed just super. We took six girls and won 10 All-State medals."

Leading Chelsea on the day was sophomore standout Olivia DeTroyer, who won a state championship in the 400-meter run placing first with a school record time of 56.49. Only Division 1 state champ Brittani Williams of Jackson, who finished with a 56.08, bested DeTroyer's clocking.

"Olivia ran the race of her life," Clarke said. "She has worked very hard at her running all year long and certainly deserves her state championship."

In the shot put, senior Jillian Fischer placed sixth with a throw of 36-feet, 7 ? inches. Though not placing, Fischer tossed the discus 115-6.

Senior Cassie Coffman ended up 12th in the state in the pole vault clearing a personal best 10-0.

Junior Erin Benjamin reached the state semifinals in the 200 meters with a time of 26.2. In the preliminaries, she ran a 26.6 for Chelsea.

In the 1,600-meter relay, the Bulldog foursome of freshman Corinne Carpenter, Cassie Coffman, DeTroyer and Benjamin placed second in 4:06.1.

"Junior Erin Benjamin again came through for us in the final race of the day, the 1,600-meter relay," Clarke said. "Erin took the baton in sixth place and with a great surge moved us up to a second-place finish. With that effort, the team moved up to a fifth-place overall finish in the state."

Ypsilanti won the 1,600-meter relay state title with a 3:57.89.

Carpenter wins hurdle state title

Chelsea's boys' track and field team concluded its season last Saturday competing in the Division 2 state meet at Zeeland.

The Bulldogs finished 10th overall in the state with a team score of 17 points. Chelsea finished in the state's top 10 for the third straight year.

Winning the Division 2 state championship was Williamston with 57 points.

Placing second was East Lansing with 42 points, while Zeeland West was third with 32 points, Dexter fourth with 28 points and St. Clair Shores South Lake fifth with 23 points.

Individually for Chelsea, senior Evan Carpenter captured a state title in the 110-meter hurdles placing first with a time of 14.71. Last season, Carpenter, who'll continue his track and field career at Indiana Tech next year, finished as state runner-up.

"Evan Carpenter's accomplishment was unexpected," Swager said. "When he pulled his hamstring at the start of the year, it looked like his championship dreams were over. Still, he kept working hard throughout the season.

"As late as (last week) Justin McGrath beat him substantially in a race, but on Saturday, he ran consistent and competitive

Bulldogs lose in districts to Maples

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea softball bowed out of the Division 2 state playoffs last Saturday, losing a district semifinal to Adrian 3-2.

The host Bulldogs finished the season with an overall record of 21-14-1.

The Maples led 2-0 after hitting a two-run over-the-fence home run in the fourth inning.

In the seventh inning, Adrian added an insurance run for a 3-0 lead. The run, however, was vehemently disputed by the Chelsea faithful. With the bases loaded, the Maples hit a ground ball that was fielded by the Bulldogs and thrown home. Chelsea senior catcher Brogan Darwin appeared to clearly touch the plate in plenty of time before the Adrian runner reached home. The home plate umpire, though, called the runner safe, much to the chagrin of the Bulldog coaching staff and fans.

Despite the difficult call at the plate, Chelsea regrouped and was able to retire the next two Maple batters getting out of a bases loaded jam.

"We were able to get out of the inning with only one run scoring," said Chelsea coach Robin Raymond. "The (disputed) run hurt. I felt we could have made up the two-run deficit. The difference between a two- and three-run deficit is a lot in softball."

In the bottom of the seventh inning, the Bulldogs rallied. With two outs, freshman Marie Zill dropped down a perfect bunt beating out the throw to first base.

Up next was Darwin, who'll play for Central Michigan University next season. The All-Stater promptly lined a single up the middle, putting runners at first and second base with two outs.

Freshman Ellie Stoffer then doubled, driving the ball over the Adrian center fielder's head bringing home Zill and Darwin and cutting Adrian's lead to 3-2.

The Maples, however, held tough, regrouping to record the final out to preserve their win.

Chelsea rallies for late victory

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's freshman baseball team concluded its season winning 11-9 in eight innings over host Milan May 23.

The Bulldogs trailed 5-0 and 9-5 before rallying to earn the victory.

To send the game into extra innings, Chelsea's Jake Fox connected on a two-out, two-run single in the seventh inning.

In the eighth inning, the Bulldogs scored two runs to secure their victory. Pitcher Nate Udell retired the Big Reds in order in the bottom of the eighth.

Getting key hits for Chelsea in the win were Tyler Cam and Devon Spaulding.

Joel Benjamin started the game for the Bulldogs from the mound.

"I thought our ability to compete and never give up was great," said Chelsea coach Jason Morris. "These guys never believed they were out of the game."

Morris said he enjoyed working with this year's Bulldog team.

"They were a great group of guys to coach," he said. "It was great to see the improvement throughout the year."

On May 20, visiting Chelsea lost to Ann Arbor Huron 12-11 in extra innings.

As they did against Milan, the Bulldogs rallied to send the game into the extra frames. Chelsea trailed 11-6 entering the seventh inning before scoring five runs to send the contest into extra innings.

Connecting for the key hit in the seventh inning for the Bulldogs was Charlie Hess with a two-out, two-run single.

In the second game, Chelsea led 4-3 after four innings before the contest was stopped because of darkness.

Chelsea linksters sixth at regional

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

Chelsea's boys' golf team finished sixth at the Division 2 state regional match at Richland Gull Lake's Stonehedge North Golf Course last Thursday.

The Bulldogs ended up shooting a 319.

Winning the 12-team regional was Battle Creek Lakeview with a 302.

Placing second was Dexter with a 305, while St. Joseph had a 306.

Only the top three teams advance to the Division 2 state final at Eastern Michigan University Friday and Saturday.

"I knew going in that we had to play our absolute best if we wanted to make it to the state final," said Chelsea coach Joe Ewald. "We had no room for error. Once you get to the regional, every team is very good."

Leading Chelsea individually was senior Chris LaDuke who finished with a 75. LaDuke was two shots off making the state final as an individual.

Senior Danny Battistone ended up with a 77, while senior Elliot Marshall had an 82 and senior Matt Heinen an 85 rounding out the Bulldogs' scoring.

The top teams in the hunt for the Division 2 state crown heading into this weekend's final match include Haslett, Lakeview, Dexter and St. Joseph.

"I've seen Haslett this year and they're really good," Ewald said. "They have a kid going to Michigan State and he wasn't even their top scorer at regionals."

efforts. He caught a couple breaks and performed when it counted. Coming in (to state meet), he was ranked No. 22 on the (seeding) list. To pull off a victory was the biggest upset of the whole meet."

Also in the 110-meter hurdles, Bulldog senior Justin McGrath placed seventh in 15.22.

In the 300-meter hurdles, McGrath finished fourth in 40.40.

"Justin's two races were like he has been all year – solid," Swager said. "He ran hard and worked his way into two All-State medals."

On May 27, Chelsea participated in Washtenaw County's Meet of Champions at Ypsilanti. The Bulldogs earned seven medals at the meet.

McGrath finished first in the 110-meter hurdles in a lifetime best 14.5, while Carpenter was second in 14.9.

"The hurdlers dominated their race," Swager said.

Freshman August Pappas placed second in the 3,200-meter run with a clocking of 10:02, while junior Nick Hewitt was third in a personal best 10:03 for the Bulldogs.

"The 3,200-meter run was a great Chelsea showing with August Pappas and Nick Hewitt battling intensely for runner-up honors," Swager said. "In the last 50 meters, August kicked past Nick in impressive fashion, running his second-best time ever. Nick's time was a personal best by more than 30 seconds."

Junior Kevin Rosentreter crossed the line fourth in the 400-meter run in 54.4 for Chelsea.

Sophomore Cody Adams ended up fifth in the 100 meters with a time of 11.1.

"Kevin Rosentreter and Cody Adams each performed well against quality competition," Swager said.

In the discus, senior Sam Birgy was fourth with a toss of 128-feet, 9 inches.

"Sam had the best discus day of his life," Swager said.

In the pole vault, sophomore Landon Niesen cleared 11-0 to lead the Bulldogs.

Senior Sam Dyer paced Chelsea in the shot put with a throw of 43-1, while teammate junior Adam Bauer had a heave of 39.8 for the Bulldogs.

In the 400-meter relay, sophomore Nick Hill, senior Brad Ratliff, Adams and Rosentreter stopped the clock in 45.7.

"I am glad that several of our athletes took advantage of this opportunity to perform well," Swager said.

the 800-meter relay with a school record time of 1:45.47.

East Lansing won the 800-meter relay state crown with a clocking of 1:43.73.

Clarke said Chelsea's performance at the state meet made him proud.

"It was a fitting way to cap off what has been a truly outstanding season for our team," he said.

On May 27, the Bulldogs competed in Washtenaw County's Meet of Champions at Ypsilanti.

Chelsea won seven medals at the event.

Fischer finished first in the shot put with a heave of 36-8. She also bested the field in the discus with a personal best 123-6.

Ashlee Walker also performed well in the shot put for the Bulldogs throwing a personal best 31-4.

In the pole vault, Cassie Coffman finished fourth with a mark of 9-3.

In the 400-meter relay, the Chelsea quartet of Christina Coffman, DeTroyer, Carpenter and Benjamin placed third in a school record time of 51.05. The previous record had stood for 32 years.

"We entered seven people and won seven medals," Clarke said. "You can't do much better than that."

regional semifinal at Plainwell after press deadline.

If successful against the Lancers, the Bulldogs would play the winner of Holland Christian-Portage Northern Friday at 7 p.m. in the regional championship game.

On May 29, Chelsea defeated Mason 1-0 in a district semifinal at Eaton Rapids.

"This was a really tough contest and both teams spent a lot of energy," Orlandi said. "We had a great warm-up and it looked like Mason wasn't ready to play. I told our girls that we might have a great opportunity to score in the first 10 minutes on them."

Orlandi was correct, as Rode scored nine minutes into the contest for the game's only goal.

Mason responded with increased intensity, controlling play throughout the first half.

Defenders senior Codie Barron, freshman Rachel Cooperrider and Bingel played well during Mason's resurgence.

Early in the second half, Chelsea regained control of the game.

"We did a good job of controlling the ball and dominating possession, but the field is so rough we'd make one bad trap and Mason would launch the ball back the other way," Orlandi said. "We were frustrated by the field and the officiating which called the game very tightly."

Defeating Lansing-area power Mason (10-6-4) is a feather in the Bulldogs' cap.

"Shutting Mason out is a great accomplishment and this was the first time we've ever beaten their program," Orlandi said. "It's a great win."

On May 27, Chelsea defeated Marshall 4-0 in a district first round matchup at Eaton Rapids.

The Bulldogs out-shot the Redskins 20-2 for the contest.

"Marshall frustrated us early by playing a very defensive style," Orlandi said. "They packed the box with nine players and forced us to really work for open shots."

Ehman opened the scoring with a goal at the 14:31 mark of the first half.

Three minutes into the second half, Rode scored for a 2-0 Bulldog advantage. Ehman recorded as assist on the goal for Chelsea.

With 10:56 left, Rabbitt scored for a 3-0 lead. Rode assisted on the play.

Senior Stasi Kanellopoulos ended the scoring with a goal with 7:40 remaining on the clock. Rode picked up another assist on the goal for the Bulldogs.

Jarvis earned the win in next for Chelsea.

"Defensively, we were just about perfect," Orlandi said. "I like how hard we worked to play on a very challenging field. This was a good way to start our tournament run."

get Ellie home," Raymond said.

Despite ending its year with the loss to Adrian, Raymond remained upbeat.

"We had a good season," he said. "We improved as the season went along. The last few weeks we've been playing our best softball.

"Adrian is a good team and we knew it would be close. Both teams played good softball. We came up one run short."

Raymond said he was proud of his squad's effort.

"We played hard," he said. "We never gave up. We played until the very last out. We showed a lot of heart."

Camping: A fun and inexpensive way to vacation

High gas prices got you down? DNR suggests staying in Michigan and saving some coin

With today's skyrocketing gas and food prices, many Michigan families are reevaluating their ability to take a vacation.

If traveling to some far-away location is not in your family's budget this year, the Department of Natural Resources welcomes you to discover the wildness of Michigan at a state forest campground.

There is nothing more enjoyable than going to bed to the sound of crickets in the evening and then waking up in the morning to the sound of birds chirping outside your tent.

Teaching a youngster how to roast a marshmallow over an open fire will be a fond memory for years to come and looking for shooting stars in a sky bright with stars is an experience that cannot be fully appreciated in the city.

But the best news is that the cost of camping is still a bargain compared to staying in a hotel, motel or a rental cabin at a resort.

The DNR offers a variety of camping facilities in Michigan's state forests and state parks that offer something for everyone.

State parks typically are more developed, offering higher density camping with closer neighbors.

But if you are looking for an opportunity to commune with nature or an escape from the maddening crowds at a cost that's easy on your pocket book, then a rustic state forest campground is the place for you.

In fact, some state forest campgrounds are so remote they can only be reached by a determined hike through the woods or by paddling down a scenic river.

There are 145 state forest campgrounds, all in the Upper Peninsula and northern Lower Peninsula. These campgrounds contain more than 3,000 campsites and are spread over nearly four million acres of state forests.

Each designated site campground contains between four and 50 campsites that are available for use on a first-come, first-served basis.

After arriving at the campground, select a vacant, non-registered site for use, return to the Information Station to register and pay the modest camping fee ($15 to $20 per night at designated campgrounds) and then return to the site with the camp card which is posted on the campsite marker post.

It's that easy.

Group campgrounds are licensed for 80 to 200 individuals and are available for use by larger groups via a reservation. Small groups or individuals may use group areas on a first-come, first-served basis, if a reservation has not already been issued.

State forest group campgrounds are referred to as group camps, trail camps and canoe camps. At these locations, fees are $6 per person per night.

If you are contemplating staying at one of these camps, it is recommended that you call the local DNR office to check reservation requirements and/or the camps availability prior to your visit.

State forest campgrounds and camps do not have electric hookups but they do have potable drinking water from hand pumps and rustic vault toilets.

Most campgrounds are located on a body of water, such as a lake, river or stream. All offer multiple water-based recreation opportunities, so bring your canoe, fishing poles, swimming suit and sunscreen.

Sixty state forest campgrounds have nearby pathways for non-motorized trail recreation, such as hiking, mountain biking, horseback riding and nature observation.

Many people simply like to use the campgrounds as an easy means to access the surrounding forests for berry picking, mushroom hunting and exploring activities.

Other state forest campgrounds cater to equestrians.

Most equestrian state forest campgrounds and trail camps are located along the Michigan Shore to Shore Riding and Hiking Trail. This unique trail was developed to facilitate long distance, multi-day riding trips and has two routes that span the state. Beginning in Oscoda, the east-west corridor traverses the northern Lower Peninsula to its end point in Empire. The north and south route begins in Mackinaw City and goes to Cadillac.

There are a total of 18 campgrounds along this 500-mile trail corridor of which 11 are designated state forest trail camps.

The Michigan Trail Rider's Association, the organization instrumental in the development and maintenance of the Shore to Shore Trail, holds several trail rides each year. Riders interested in joining these organized events should contact the association at www.mtra.org.

Several campgrounds also have direct connectivity to designated ORV trails, which appeals to Sherri and David Burley of Milford, who are long-time campers and ORV riders.

"These two activities go hand in hand," Burley said. "We love the freedom of being able to step outside our camper's doorstep and access the trails we love to ride."

Denise Gruben of Portland prefers going for the peace and quiet. She likes to camp with friends several times each summer at some of the more remote campgrounds in the Lower Peninsula where they can kayak and go fishing.

"I lead a busy life and my work schedule can be hectic. So, when I find the time to go camping, I know the rustic campground offers me the peace and solitude I'm looking for."

Gruben said, "Whatever outdoor activities are planned for the day, I'm communing with nature and that always relaxes me."

Many users of state forest campgrounds feel the same way. These rustic campgrounds generally are quiet and set away from the hustle and bustle you might find in other camping settings.

However, in order to offer everyone that atmosphere, campers need to abide by a few simple courteous rules.

Though some people are tempted to "stake out" a campsite in advance, campers are subject to a ticket if they leave a campsite unoccupied for 24 hours.

At least one member of the camping party must be present at the campsite during nighttime hours. Pets must be kept on a leash and never leave them unattended in a campsite at any time.

Excessive noise is not permitted either, meaning radios, generators and other amplified devices cannot be used in a manner that creates excessive noise. The designated quiet hours are from 10 p.m. to 8 a.m., meaning that peace and quiet must prevail during that time.

Camp stays are limited to no more than 15 consecutive days in a campground.

So, consider camping this summer for your vacation or even a weekend stay. Not only will it save you some cash, it also will provide you a pleasant getaway where you can enjoy high-quality recreational opportunities in one of the prettiest states in this country.

Lorine Ellenwood
Chelsea

Lorine Ellenwood of Chelsea passed away at home surrounded by her family on May 28, 2008. She was 85.

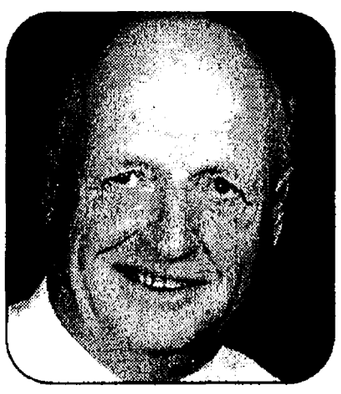
She was born the daughter of Clare W. and Agnes (Bell) Brown. On Aug. 23, 1942 she married George E. Ellenwood, and he preceded her in death on Aug. 14, 1989. Lorine was known to all as a very hard worker. She was known to many at the Wolverine Bar where she worked for many years. When she was not at the Wolverine, she was a 4-H Leader, Girl Scout Leader, and cook for everyone. Faith, family and friends were most important to Lorine.

Lorine is survived by her children Sharon (Ellenwood) Biggs of Chelsea, Sandra (Mac) Davis of Gregory, Sally Ellenwood of Chelsea and Paula (Tony) Clark of Chelsea. Also surviving are her grandchildren Daniel Jr., Michael, Jessica, and George, along with several great-grandchildren and her nieces and nephews. Also surviving are her brother Emmerson "Skip" Wheeler of Chelsea, and her sister Betty Hough of Florida.

The family would like to thank the following special people that helped the Ellenwood family during this time, Joe and Judy Merkel, Arlene Gillogs, Debi Gale, Tiffi Portito, as well as her many special friends, and you know who you are!

In addition to her parents and husband, she was preceded in death by her daughter, Susie Kiner, and her son, Daniel T. Ellenwood, as well as her sister, Mary Ann Eder and a young sister, Haroldine.

Funeral Mass was celebrated on Saturday May 31, 2008 at St. Mary Catholic Church with the Rev. Fr. William J. Turner officiating. Expressions of sympathy may be made to the Chelsea Area Fire Authority and St. Mary Catholic Church.



Warren H. Porath Sr.
Chelsea

Warren H. Porath Sr. of Chelsea passed away Wednesday, May 28, 2008 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Superior Twp. He was 83.

He was born Jan. 20, 1925 in Summit, S.D., the son of Lawrence and Regina (Jerde) Porath. Warren moved to the Chelsea area as a young boy and lived here most of his life. On July 28, 1945, he married Rosetta F. Robinson. He worked in the construction business for over 50 years. He established his own construction company in 1958, Porath Construction, working with his son Warren Porath Jr., building houses in the Chelsea Area. An avid outdoorsman, he built a cabin in Rose City, where he enjoyed deer hunting. He made several fishing trips to Canada with his wife and family. Warren and Rosetta raised their three children in Chelsea and were members of the First United Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife of nearly 63 years, Rosetta; sons Warren Jr. (Pauline) Porath of Chelsea, and Lawrence (Linda) Porath of Charlevoix, and one daughter Shelly (Paul) Stringer of Flushing; eight grandchildren: Mark (Lisa) Porath, Crystal (Steve) Heydlauff, Lucas (Jane) Porath, Jacob (Amanda) Porath, Ryan Stringer, Daniel Stringer, Joseph Stringer, and Kathryn Stringer; eight great-grandchildren: Michael, Taylor, Kevin, Reece, Kyle, Emma, Foster and Jackson; two brothers, Lawrence Jr. (Janet) Porath of Houghton Lake, and Harold (Joan) Porath of Munith, and one sister-in-law, Mary Porath of Chelsea; also his faithful friend and companion, his black lab Cody. He was preceded in death by two brothers Royce Porath and Donald Porath.

Funeral services were Saturday at the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home with Rev. Joy Barrett officiating. Burial followed at Oak Grove East Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the First United Methodist Church of Chelsea or the Huron Valley Humane Society.

Ted Picklesimer
Chelsea

Ted Picklesimer of Chelsea died Wednesday, May 28, 2008 at Saint Joseph Mercy Hospital. He was Age 58.

He was born June 22, 1949 in Stockbridge, the son of Ishmael & Mae (Bailey) Picklesimer.

Ted graduated in 1968, and worked for Dana in Chelsea, and later for Real Estate One. He was a member of the Olive Lodge #156 F. & A.M.

Survivors include his mother, Mae Picklesimer of Chelsea; his siblings, Castle Jerry (Mary E.) Picklesimer, Linda (Gail) Shears, Rita (Karl) Gadnai, Ishmael (Debra) Picklesimer Jr., Sam (Theresa) Picklesimer, James Picklesimer; as well as many aunts, uncles, nieces, nephews and cousins.

The family received friends and held a Masonic Service Friday at Cole Funeral Chapel. A private burial was held at Oak Grove Cemetery, Chelsea. Memorial contributions may be made to the American Heart Association.

Daniel K. Grignon
Gregory

Daniel K. Grignon of Gregory passed away at the University of Michigan Hospital on Saturday, May 24, 2008. He was 63.

He was born May 4, 1945 in Ann Arbor, the son of Kenneth and Betty (Warden) Grignon. Daniel worked as a test driver for Chrysler Proving Grounds for 30 years. He had a speeial love for cars, especially sports cars and NASCAR, as well as tractors.

He is survived by one daughter, Shelley Braden, of Florida, two sisters, Pamela (David) Carver, of Tennessee, and Becky (Pete) Grasshoff of Ann Arbor; three nephews, Jason and Jeremy Grasshoff, and Michael Klapperich, and one niece, Melissa Hill, as well as his special friend, Kat Rogers. He was preceded in death by his parents.

Funeral Services were Friday, May 30, 2008, from the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, Chelsea, with Rev. Kathy Schell officiating. The family received friends on Friday. Interment followed at Vermont Cemetery.

Memorial contributions may be made to the American Cancer Society.

Dale F. Rappette

Dale F. Rappette of Ashwaubenon, Wisc., died Wednesday, May 28, 2008. He was 74.

He was born Sept. 9, 1933, to the late Andrew and Prudance (Taylor) Rappette in Escanaba. Dale served his country in the U. S. Navy during the Korean Conflict from August 1952 to 1956. On Sept. 19, 1959, he married Mary Ann Kivisto in Flat Rock; she preceded him in death Aug. 12, 2003. He was a graduate of St. Joseph High School in Escanaba. Dale had been employed as an electrician at Paper Converting Co. from 1969 until his retirement in 1999. He enjoyed golfing, fishing, hunting and spending time with his family. Dale was a proud member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post #10244.

Charles "Chuck" M. Gemmill

Chelsea

Charles "Chuck" M. Gemmill of Chelsea died Saturday, May 31, 2008 at Silver Maples, Chelsea. He was 83.

He was born Sept. 27, 1924 in Ida Grove, Iowa, the son of Charles William & Ethel Irene (Mein) Gemmill. Mr. Gemmill had lived in Chelseasince 1991. He was a member of the United Methodist Church of Chelsea, and the Kane Masonic Lodge #377 F.& A.M. in Ida Grove, Iowa.

Following his service in the armed forces in World War Two, Mr. Gemmill worked for the family business in Ida Grove, Gemmill Electric, until he was recruited to join General Motors. After many years in the auto industry, in many parts of the country, first in the Parts & Service Division of General Motors and then at Ford Motor Co, Mr. Gemmill retired in 1987.

He then began his second career, that of volunteer at Chelsea Community Hospital, where he remained an active volunteer for 17 years, providing over 1000 hours of service. Known by many as "the flower man", he developed and maintained a large garden on the Hospital property, where he grew thousands of beautiful flowers that were used throughout the hospital.

In addition, his volunteer roles included maintaining the (then) new tropical fish tank in the E.R waiting room, and many years of staffing the desk and helping patients and their companions in the surgery waiting room.

A loving and generous man, Chuck was also was an avid craftsman/artisan and made lovely jewelry and stained glass, which he enjoyed giving to others.

He was married to Anna Mae Pearson in Ida Grove, Iowa on Nov. 28, 1946, and she preceded him in death on Sept. 30, 1998. He then married Agnes Buehler on May 19, 1999, and she died July 23, 1999. Survivors include two sons, Joe (Linda) Gemmill of Kalamazoo, James (Amanda) Gemmill of Brighton; one daughter, Lisa (Bryan Magnuson) Pasbjerg of Ann Arbor; a sister, Audrey Rathjen of Missoula, Mont.; three grandchildren, Elise Magnuson, Bradley Gemmill and Madison Gemmill. He was preceded in death by a sister, Florence Woolridge.

The family welcomes his many friends to a memorial service and celebration of his life at 5 p.m. Saturday, June 7 at Silver Maples, Chelsea, with Revs. Kathy Schell and Joy Barrett officiating. Memorial contributions in his honor may be made to: The American Heart Association, Arbor Hospice, the United Methodist Church of Chelsea, or Silver Maples. Arrangements by Cole Funeral Chapel, Chelsea.

The sounds of summer

Sounds and Sights hits the stage(s) in Chelsea on June 19

By Todd Ortbring
Guest Writer

It's clear that summer can't be far away with announcement of the 2008 lineup for Sounds & Sights on Thursday Night in downtown Chelsea. Every Thursday night from June 19 through Aug. 28, 6:30 - 8:30pm, a lineup of 10 - 12 music acts, children's entertainers, and other attractions will perform at separate staged areas simultaneously in the downtown.

The series is the combined effort of the Sounds & Sights Committee, downtown merchants, Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, and the Chelsea Center for the Arts. The event sponsor is the Chelsea DDA.

In addition to music performances, there will be a variety of children's attractions and activities including face painters, jugglers, magicians, and several new acts this year. Back again are guided horse-drawn carriage rides offering a relaxing and informative stroll through the historic neighborhoods of Chelsea.

The event will also feature more food vendors this year.

"The event just keeps evolving," says co-organizer Craig Common, owner of the Common Grill. "We had an amazing turn out at this year's auditions, which has made for a fantastic lineup. Groups from as far away as Kalamazoo auditioned."

Local group Blacktrain returns this summer to play the popular Sounds & Sights in Chelsea.

The music lineup features a broad spectrum of music genre from Celtic, Folk, Blue Grass, Jazz, Classical and Country including recent Detroit Music Awards winners, The Hummingbirds. All performers are paid, a priority for organizers who all feel that artists should always be compensated for their work.

Several Chelsea-based groups and individuals will perform giving the series good local flavor. Some of the more well-known performers include local radio host and folk singer Matt Watroba, Blue Grass great Bill Bynum, All About Eve, the Royal Garden Trio, and local favorites such as the Chelsea House Orchestra, and the young singing sensation, Charlotte Prenevost, among others.

"This event is talked about by other communities all over the state," says Chelsea Chamber Director, Bob Pierce, one of the series organizers. "Every conference or tourism related event I attend, other communities ask us about Sounds & Sights and how we got it started. This is such a wonderful draw for our community. The lineup for this year is just an amazing representation of talent from across Michigan. Bring in performers like The Hummingbirds and Matt Watroba is pretty special."

Stage locations will be placed throughout the downtown area from the Clocktower to the library. Covered stage areas will be located at key spots on both Main Street and Middle Street. South Street will be blocked off to accommodate a stage. Kids activities will fill in between the entertainers and also have a weekly presence at the Clocktower complex.

There are several new acts for the kids this year.

The popular open-air horse-drawn carriage rides are back and will depart from the front of Cranesbill Books on East Middle Street. Local resident and Civil War historian and reenactor George Till will offer a historical narrative during the ride through Chelsea's scenic, historical streets.

"Our goal is to make this event better each year," says Common. "We're all proud to be a part of this collaboration for the community, the local businesses, sponsors, and the CCA. We extend a special thank you to our sponsors and especially the Chelsea DDA, who has stepped up to become a major sponsor. Without the support of our sponsors, there is no event."

Downtown retail businesses will accommodate the expected additional foot traffic and have committed to stay open late through the extent of the summer series. A special benefit concert sponsored by Chelsea State Bank featuring Detroit's own Mitch Ryder and the Detroit Wheels will be held Thursday, July 24, 7 p.m. under the tent behind the Common Grill.

Tickets are $35 for general admission ($40 at the gate), or $100 for VIP seats which also includes a signed copy of Ryder's new book "It Was All Right." Tickets are available at various locations downtown, or online at www.chelseacenterforthearts.org. Gold sponsors for Sounds & Sights include Vogel's & Foster's, Chelsea Milling, and KeyBank.

For more information go to www.chelseafestivals.com or call the CCA at 734-433-2787.

'Keeping your jealous eye on the ball'

Ministerial Message

By Dr. Matt Hook
Dexter United Methodist

I was hit by a fast pitch. Between the eyes. And I didn't even know I was at bat. I was convicted last week out of the blue. All I said was "He's a great baseball coach, but you should see him when he loses it."

I didn't think I was petty. I didn't think I was jealous of much. But it snuck up on me. Maybe it's snuck up on you, too. God must have known we'd struggle, because there are 12 chapters in the Bible dealing with a jealous eye. 12 chapters! And it destroyed the life of a king.

It began innocently. David fights Goliath and brings victory to Israel. On one hand, King Saul is excited. The enemy has been defeated and Israel's pride has been restored. On the other hand, Saul is irked that it was a shepherd boy who caused this great victory for Israel. And, though he tried to suppress the emotions, deep down there was a jealousy about this boy. David continues winning battles against Saul's enemies. And Scripture says "Saul was very angry; this refrain galled him...and from that time on Saul kept a jealous eye on David." 1 Samuel 18:7-9.

Simple jealousy destroyed King Saul. Jealousy is that powerful. Saul decides that David is the enemy. What did David do that so angered Saul? He succeeded. Saul's warped view makes David seem like the enemy, even though David did everything right. Saul is wrestling with natural jealousy when someone outshines him. Saul thinks he should have been the one in the battle defeating Goliath, but he stood and watched as the young man David defeated him. Saul thinks he can outsmart God by simply killing this man. His motivation is reduced to his own poor self-image. How sad. May our motivation in life never be poor self image, jealousy, or fear.

Saul is one of the dark characters in the Scripture. He wasn't always a villain, but he allowed himself to become one. Every one of us in this room has the Saul syndrome in us, lurking. We have a tendency to watch people who outshine us, and not only to be jealous, but to act upon those jealousies. That's when I realized "I'm like Saul,"—and that's freaky.

There was a business woman who was junior level exec who had extraordinary success, and was selected for a vice-presidency position over others, some of whom had been two or three levels over her in the company. Her promotion created a number of hard feelings. People watched her take the corner office when they thought they deserved it. And the Saul syndrome began as passive aggression. When they saw her, they would welcome her and congratulate her. But the moment she would walk out the door, those same folks would say "I wonder what she had to do to get this job? I bet I know what she did to get it." And they would tear her down.

They would question her abilities and her methods, and whenever she did something wrong, they were watching, like vultures. And instead of going to her quietly and saying "You know, we might want to do something differently," they ran it up the flag pole, so everyone would see her mistakes. They tried to destroy her.

You know what's interesting about those folks? About 90 percent of them go to church. Good Christian people who are involved, and hear good sermons, week after week. The Saul syndrome got the best of them. It doesn't just happen in corporate America. In happens in high school. Someone new moves into town, and suddenly all the girls are interested in that new guy. It's threatening, so the other guys make comments and look for ways to make him look like a fool. Some of those kids go to youth groups and Bible studies. It happens in our families and our neighborhoods and in Little League baseball diamonds. "Yes, he's a good coach, but you should see when he loses it..."

The Saul syndrome is the inability to rejoice when someone else succeeds and the ability to tear them down: either to their face, or behind their backs. And the tragedy is, in the end, it destroys us. Like a worm eating away at our soul. It tears us down. It hurts us. Like Saul, we build the wall between God and ourselves higher and higher. Listen: these are natural tendencies. The question isn't will you wrestle with these feelings or not, it's what will you do about them? Will you act upon them or will you submit them to Christ?

And pray "God, please help me rejoice in the victory of others. Help me to say encouraging words and not destructive words." Jesus says it's important that we love our neighbors as ourselves, and sometimes our neighbor is the person we resent. It's the Golden Rule. So ask, "If I were the person who just got the promotion, or the win, what would I want those people to say around the coffee pot?" It might help us in moderating what we say. Someday, it may be you. Paul says in Ephesians 4:29-32. "Let no unwholesome talk come out of your mouth. Only that which is useful for building others up. Get rid of all bitterness, rage, and anger, brawling, and slander, along with every form of malice. Be kind and compassionate toward one another, forgiving each other, just as in Christ, God forgave you." The Saul syndrome is deadly.

As you work your way through the Little League tournament this weekend, and all the other challenges you face, may you never fall like Saul. May you put yourself in their shoes, and treat them the way you know is right.

Thanks, Mr. Mead!

Community shows its affection for retiring CHS principal

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Ron Mead and his wife Marilyn stood at the head of the reception line, accepting handshakes and congratulations from a seemingly endless queue of well-wishers.

Something else that was seemingly endless were the sentiments of perhaps 200 people who had come to the Chelsea High School commons on May 28 for an open house to bid farewell to Mead, the school principal of 19 years.

"This is about saying goodbye to someone who meant a lot to the community," said Julie Deppner, who will move up from her assistant principal role and move into Mead's office when the school year begins in July.

"I keep hearing that Ron's left big shoes to fill, and I would say nobody knows that better than I," Deppner added.

A slide show of photos and news clippings detailing Mead's tenure was projected continuously on a large screen, while musical entertainment was provided by high school seniors Megan Emberton on piano and vocalist Jillian Heinrichs.

Guests enjoyed a long buffet table packed with hors d'oeuvres and desserts provided by a number of businesses and community organizations: Silver Maples, Covenant Church, St. Mary Catholic Church, St. Mary Youth Group, Polly's Country Market, ZouZou's, Thompson's Pizzeria, the Common Grill, and The Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce.

Along one wall stood a large billboard filled with handwritten sentiments from students.

"I love that I got to have Mr. Mead for four years; I also got to know Mrs. Deppner, the assistant principal," Heinrichs said.

"We'll certainly miss him."

Conversations around the room took that same vein, regardless of peoples' involvement with the school district.

"Today was an anxiety moment; it kind of sunk in on us," said Teresa Zigman, the district's Director of Finance.

"You wonder what tomorrow will hold, but we have lots of good people - we'll be OK."

School Board President Laurel McDevitt said Mead had "done wonderful things for the district."

"He will be missed," she said. "We are sad to see him go, but he's getting some much-deserved time off."

"Howdy" Holmes, president of Chelsea Milling Co., agreed with McDevitt.

"He's going to be sorely missed, of that I'm certain," Holmes said. "He's a wonderful leader; just a nice man."

School Board Vice President Steve Olsen tried to imagine the thoughts going through Mead's mind at the moment.

"If I was standing in Ron's place, I'd be ambivalent — happy I'm leaving, but at the same time sad that I'm leaving," Olsen said.

"It's part of the change in the journey of life. He's done such a good job and made so many friends, it's incredible."

Members of the community shared their sentiments as well.

Dave Pruess said he has known Mead for many years and is impressed with his commitment to the school.

"Ron's a great guy; it'll be really tough to replace him," Pruess said.

"At every school event he's here working hard - that's a lot of dedication."

Marilyn Mead, who met Ron in college and has been at his side throughout his entire career in education, beamed with pride at the stream of praise she was witnessing.

"We'll be married 36 years in August," she said. "I'm really proud of him; it's really heartening to see that all the time he's put in has been appreciated."

According to Deppner, the open house was put together by a committee of school staff and community volunteers, including herself, Mary Ann Sprague, Steve Hinz, Karen Allen, Marie Lombardo, Mary Lou Han-Setta and Sandy Inman.

She said Mead has been a great mentor to her, but she was ready for this next step in her own career.

"I have his mentorship and I also have my own ideas and experience as well," Deppner said

"But I have Ron on speed dial if I need him."

Local singing talent will shine at Michigan State Fair

By Sean Dalton
Staff Writer

When Kaylyn Pace isn't a typical sixth-grader at Creekside Intermediate she is preparing for a live musical performance or taking lessons to hone her singing skills.

The Dexter girl won the "Sumpter Idol 2008" contest at the Belleville Sumpter Country Festival over the Memorial Day weekend, which qualified her to perform at the Michigan State Fair this year, in addition to earning her a trophy and $100.

Pace considers herself a country music singer with an ear and an interest for a variety of sub-genres in the country music spectrum. She has been singing since the wee age of 5 and started taking lessons when she was 8.

"I like bluegrass, and regular country ... I like R&B too, and rap, but I don't sing rap," Pace joked. "I like to listen to and sing the blues and jazz. They're really fun if you get into it."

She hasn't always been so at ease with the attention of a crowd or scrutiny of her growing talent.

Early on, Pace performed at Coopersville, one of her first larger-scale venues, which is where she really started to confront the anxieties of performing in public.

She recalls being exposed to music at an early age, with her parents and other various people being performers or music enthusiasts.

It wasn't until her great uncle, Larry Parker, started bringing her to shows and letting her be his opening act that she really blossomed.

Dexter's Kaylyn Pace will perform at the Michigan State Fair.

"He's been trying to teach me guitar," Pace mentioned, which is a welcome change of pace from violin lessons she ditched because "it just wasn't really me."

"I did the violin for one year, but then the next year I decided to quit because I didn't really like it," she explained. "I decided to just quit and play a little bit of the guitar."

Last week Pace sang for the Special Olympics at Dexter Community Schools. After a "fun run" she sang the national anthem in front of 1,200 people.

"I never sang in front of that many people," Pace reflected, although she has signed up for every festival, fair and other open singing opportunity scheduled in and around Washtenaw County.

Pace said Monday that sometimes she feels like she is bragging, which isn't her. She's more modest than that, but at the same time enjoys entertaining a crowd.

"It's just something different that you're doing in your life," she said.

Pace has also recorded one CD and will record another this summer in Fenton.

Her existing CD has country tunes on it, such as "Redneck Girl" and "Breakaway."

She says she is unsure what to expect at the state fair in late August.

"I'm really excited, but really nervous at the same time ... I don't know what it's going to be like," Pace said. She will be performing "Everyday America" by Sugarland – one of her favorite standbys for shows.

"My family really has influenced me and they (support me) at concerts too," she said. "And I have a really big family ... (also) I have my mom come in and listen to me so I can see what she thinks."

Pace's next performance is at 1 p.m. June 15 at the "National Strawberry Idol Contest" in Belleville.

Honors & Awards

Sophomore awarded spot in ocean science program

AnneMarie Opipari, a 10th grader at Greenhills School and resident of Dexter, is one of just six high school students to be awarded a spot in the Coast and Ocean Science Training (COAST) Internship Program that takes place this summer at Redwood National Park in California.

The Internship Program comes via a partnership with the National Ocean Sciences Bowl (NOSB) and The Student Conservation Association (SCA). AnneMarie was part of Greenhills' inaugural NOSB team, which competed in the science quiz bowl at the University of Michigan this spring.

All expenses for the month-long program are paid for by COAST, which describes their Internship Program as "an opportunity for individual challenge, meeting new friends and trying new activities while getting hands-on experience working in one of our nation's most pristine and diverse habitats. COAST is not a summer camp experience; it is, however, a chance for students to learn about the coastal environment in ways that they never could inside of the classroom or by reading a textbook."

Among the projects in which AnneMarie will take part are measuring intertidal zone turbidity, salinity, and water temperature, and taking water and sand samples along the 35-mile-long coastline of Redwood National and State Parks. The students also will camp in the park near an old-growth redwood forest.

PET APPEAL

Sanctuary rescues rabbits, adopts them out

Since 1995, Great Lakes Rabbit Sanctuary in Whittaker, near Ypsilanti, has provided a safe haven for abandoned, abused and neglected domestic rabbits, as well as other animals.

In addition to approximately 600 rabbits, two cats and four potbelly pigs call the sanctuary home.

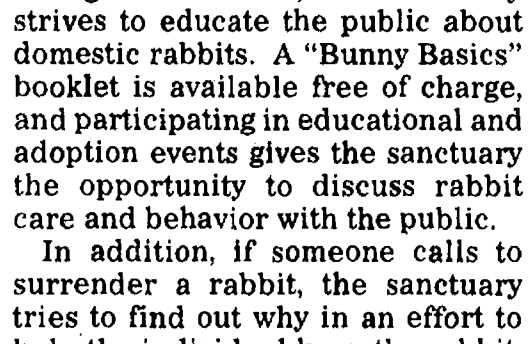
The sanctuary rescues rabbits from across Michigan and, when able, from other areas of the United States. After their arrival, the rabbits are given medical care, if necessary, spayed or neutered, and are then ready to meet their potential adopters.

Rabbits not eligible for adoption, due to either health or temperament, live out their lives at the sanctuary, located on a farm.

In addition to providing a safe and loving environment, the sanctuary strives to educate the public about domestic rabbits. A "Bunny Basics" booklet is available free of charge, and participating in educational and adoption events gives the sanctuary the opportunity to discuss rabbit care and behavior with the public.

In addition, if someone calls to surrender a rabbit, the sanctuary tries to find out why in an effort to help the individual keep the rabbit. Sometimes this requires a little education on "bunny proofing" a house, or an explanation of rabbit behavior and a referral to a veterinarian for spay or neuter surgery.

There are many ways individuals can help Great Lakes Rabbit Sanctuary. In addition to financial contributions, volunteers are a very important part. The list of tasks volunteers perform goes beyond feeding and caring for the rabbits. They also help with fundraising events, marketing and office work. A full list of activities is available at the Web site www.rabbitsanctuary.org or call 1-734-461-1726.



Many adoptable rabbits are in need of homes. Visit the sanctuary's Web site at www.rabbitsanctuary.org to look at the rabbits up for adoption.

UPCOMING EVENTS

June

• A work day is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday. Work days are when the Great Lakes Rabbit Sanctuary tackles bigger projects such as painting, maintenance, repairs and other tasks. To volunteer to help, e-mail info@rabbitsanctuary.org or call 1-734-461-1726.

• An adoption event will be held from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. June 14 at The Pet Emporium, 4940 Ann Arbor-Saline Road, in Ann Arbor.

July

• A work day is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. July 6. Work days are when the Great Lakes Rabbit Sanctuary tackles bigger projects such as painting, maintenance, repairs and other tasks. To volunteer to help, e-mail info@rabbitsanctuary.org.

August

• The Pet Emporium's second annual Pet Fest will be held Aug. 9 at 4940 Ann Arbor-Saline Road in Ann Arbor. Plenty of adoptable rabbits will be on hand, as well as volunteers to answer questions and arrange adoptions.

October

• The sanctuary will hold an open house in October. The event is an opportunity for the public to meet all the rabbits who call the sanctuary home. Time and date will be posted soon on the sanctuary's Web site.

Important Dates

• National Pet Appreciation Week is June 1 through 7.

• National Take Your Dog to Work Day is June 20.

• National Animal Rights Awareness Week is June 22 through 28.

• July is Pit Bull Spay and Neuter Month at the Humane Society of Huron Valley.

• The Humane Society of Huron Valley will have a nonprofit booth set up at the Ann Arbor Art Fairs July 16 through 19.

• August is Cat Spay Month at the Humane Society of Huron Valley.

• Visit the Humane Society of Huron Valley at the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival Aug. 17 through 19.

• National Dog Week is Sept. 21 through 27.

SASHA Farm provides a home for all animals

Located in Manchester, SASHA Farm Animal Sanctuary is the Midwest's largest farmed animal sanctuary, providing lifetime care to more than 200 animals.

From humble beginnings as a hobby farm in the 1980s, co-founders Dorothy Davies and Monte Jackson have turned SASHA Farm not only into a sanctuary and safe haven for the animals who call it home, but also into a destination for people across the country interested in animal welfare.

After moving from Westland in the '80s, Davies and Jackson started rescuing animals, a few at a time. First there were a handful of goats and donkeys, and a beloved border collie, the product of a puppy mill, named Sasha. Their rescue efforts became known and more animals followed, finding safety and comfort at the 65-acre farm.

In 2001, they decided that to grow and save more animals, they would become an official nonprofit animal sanctuary. SASHA Farm, Sanctuary and Safe Haven for Animals, was born.

In the years that followed, they participated in high-profile rescues both locally, with the successful negotiation for the release of Jefferson, a steer that escaped out the side door of a slaughterhouse in Detroit, leading police and news helicopters on a chase down Jefferson Avenue, and later nationally, when they accepted Moo, a second slaughter-bound steer who bolted to freedom on Long Island, N.Y.

SASHA Farm is now home to everything from massive Holstein steers to tiny Bantam roosters, thoroughbred former racehorses and handicapped pigeons wounded for sport. There are even a few dogs and cats, as well as a wild boar roaming the sanctuary.

The animals live in flocks or herds with others of their own kind, and spend their days grazing, being pampered by visitors, or just napping

Shelter to Home recruiting foster homes for dogs, cats

Shelter to Home Inc. animal rescue is recruiting foster homes for cats and dogs.

Shelter to Home is a nonprofit organization founded in 2007 with a mission to rescue impounded animals, and to reduce euthanasia rates of healthy, adoptable animals at animal shelters.

It began by rescuing animals in the Downriver area, where euthanasia rates are as high as 97 percent at some shelters. Shelter to Home has now branched out to rescue animals in need across the Metro Detroit area.

Because of the group describes as an "extremely high need for assisting the local pounds/shelters with impounded animals," Shelter to Home doesn't accept owner surrendered pets or strays into their rescue program.

"During this time of year, we see hundreds of homeless kittens enter local shelters," Kalin Albertsen, director of Shelter to Home, said, in a news release. "We would love to have more volunteers to become foster homes to save these kittens from an otherwise certain death."

Because Shelter to Home doesn't have a physical shelter, all rescued animals are placed into a foster care setting, where they can be provided with food, love and veterinary care. The group adopts out cats and dogs only after they have been spayed or neutered, and properly tested and vaccinated for common diseases.

Shelter to Home incurs all costs for foster animals; foster parents are not responsible for payment. Foster parents also have the ability to choose which animals they would like to foster. The group consists entirely of unpaid volunteers.

In 2007, Shelter to Home rescued and adopted 307 animals. Its goal for 2008 is to rescue 500 animals, which can be accomplished as more foster homes are acquired.

Donations are needed to continue its mission and provide veterinary care. A donation can be made via Shelter to Home's Web site, or may be mailed to Shelter to Home Inc., P.O. Box 127, Allen Park, MI 48101.

SHELTER TO HOME

Shelter to Home Inc. is a nonprofit organization founded in 2007 with a mission to rescue impounded animals, and to reduce euthanasia rates of healthy, adoptable animals at animal shelters.

To learn more about how to become involved with Shelter to Home, or to view current adoptable animals, visit www.sheltertohome.com.

Adoptable also can be viewed at the cat habitat that Shelter to Home occupies at the Canton PetSmart, 41856 Ford Road.

All donations are 100 percent tax deductible.

Shelter to Home recently received a $5,000 grant from Maddie's Fund, a grant generated for hard-to-place animals. The group rescued 96 cats and dogs during 2007 that were considered hard-to-place animals, often attributed to physical appearance or medical problems. For more information about Maddie's Fund, visit www.maddies fund.org.

Thinking about getting a dog?

While new puppies are cute and cuddly they require an extraordinary amount of care and attention. That's why the ideal canine companion for many dog lovers may be an older dog.

Humane society building new shelter in Ann Arbor

After spending the last 59 years in a facility that has seen better days, the Humane Society of Huron Valley soon will break ground on a new building.

A new 29,000-square-foot Animal Resource Center will be built to the south of the humane society's existing location at 3100 Cherry Hill Road in Ann Arbor. It's slated to be complete in fall of 2009.

It will replace the current shelter that staff describe as decrepit in a news release. The new facility is expected to provide a healthy, low-stress, family-friendly environment with state-of-the-art noise and disease control, allowing the thousands of animals that arrive each year to stay healthier, happier and, ultimately, more adoptable.

The Humane Society of Huron Valley, which is located in Ann Arbor, is the only animal shelter in the county taking in all stray, lost, abandoned and unwanted animals. In addition to sheltering and adoptions, it offers a variety of services targeted at advancing the protection and responsible care of animals in the community.

Services include cruelty investigation, 24-hour rescue services, behavior helpline, lost and found, a veterinary clinic offering low-cost spay/neuter and wellness care, community education, as well as a trap, neuter and return for feral cats.

"Our goal is to offer an adoption guarantee to homeless animals and to end euthanasia for those that are healthy and treatable," Tanya Hilgendorf, executive director of the Humane Society of Huron Valley, said in a written statement. "It's because we simply don't have the ability to reach this goal now that the construction of the new shelter is so important."

The humane society launched the "Unleash the Possibilities" capital campaign to raise funds for new building construction. It needs campaign gifts to reach its goal. Donors also can purchase personalized bricks for the "Path of Love," which will border the walkways of the main entrance. The bricks provide an opportunity to honor or memorialize a family member, friend or animal companion while supporting the work of the humane society.

Legislation builds on anti-cruelty laws in place

The Michigan Humane Society has collaborated with stakeholders across Michigan to introduce legislation addressing several deficiencies within Michigan's anti-cruelty laws, including animal hoarding.

The bill will strengthen the anti-cruelty law in Michigan, and protect some of the most vulnerable companion animals, according to a news release from the Michigan Humane Society.

Animal hoarding occurs when an individual possesses a large number of animals and fails to provide them with the most basic care. In hoarding cases across the state and the nation, hundreds of animals reportedly suffer. Only instances of animals with the most severe injuries or illnesses are brought to trial, and many cases are never prosecuted.

The hoarding recidivism rate nationwide is near 100 percent, and whether convicted or not, many hoarders often move to another town, and begin collecting animals again.

"This legislation is critical for the well-being and safety companion animals," Michigan Humane Society President and CEO Cal Morgan said in a written statement. "Hoarders believe they are acting in the best interest of the animals, but in reality, they cause suffering that is often long-term and has lifelong negative behavioral and health consequences."

Psychological evaluation and treatment for convicted hoarders are not currently required under Michigan's law. The bill will provide treatment for the hoarder and protection for the animals in their care.

The home in which the people and the animals live is typically clogged with garbage and animal waste, and uninhabitable according to reasonable standards. Hoarders continue to collect more and more animals

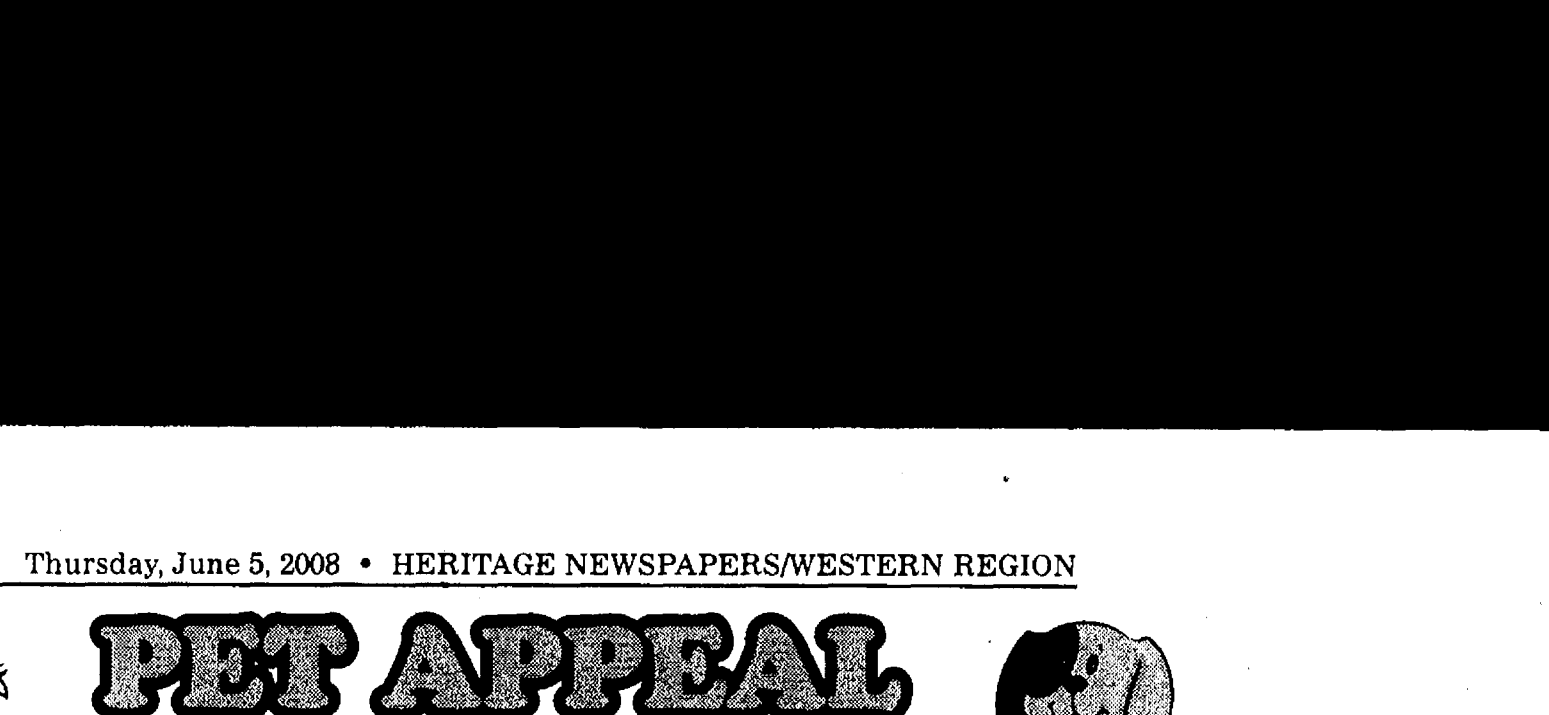
— Bunnies Need Help —



More than 600 bunnies call the Great Lakes Rabbit Sanctuary home. The shelter, located in Whittaker, near Ypsilanti, provides a safe haven for abandoned, abused and neglected domestic rabbits, as well as other animals. The sanctuary rescues rabbits from across Michigan and, when able, from other areas of the United States. Volunteers are needed to help with fundraising events, marketing and office work. A full list of activities is available at the Web site www.rabbitsanctuary.org.

Foundation helps pay for sterilization of cats

The Zimmer Foundation spay/neuter program in Ann Arbor has helped more than 10,000 cats — and 5,000 in the last 18 months alone — get sterilized to increase the likelihood they can keep their homes long-term.

The foundation funds the sterilization of both managed outdoor cats living on land with property owner commitment to provide life care and lower-income family pet cats at homes with an annual income under $40,000 per year.

The foundation's spay/neuter vouchers are free to qualifying cat caregivers living in Washtenaw County and adjacent parts of Jackson, Lenawee, Livingston, Monroe, Oakland and Wayne counties. Through the program, the foundation has helped more than 3,000 cat caregivers. Now sterilized, there is no longer a concern about unplanned kittens, spraying, yowling or the other unsavory behaviors eliminated through sterilization.

The foundation pays area vet clinics to spay and neuter cats, with 30 regular vets providing a discount for the work. The cats are brought to the clinics by their caregivers. The foundation's office staff provides the caregivers with vouchers and pays the invoices issued by the vet clinics.

The Zimmer Foundation is located at 350 Corrie Road in Ann Arbor and can be reached at 663-8000. To learn more about the foundation, visit the Web site www.tlconline.org.

Counseling services help with loss of pet

A new program strictly for humans is now available at the Michigan State University Veterinary Teaching Hospital — the MSU Veterinary Social Work Services.

A first of its kind in Michigan, the program offers counseling services for pet owners, veterinarians, veterinary technicians and other staff.

"We provide crisis counseling for pet owners whose pets have serious medical conditions or who are facing grief from pet loss," Amanda Morgan, a master's student in social work interning at the MSU hospital, said in a news release.

The program is led by Linda Lawrence, clinical instructor and undergraduate adviser in the School of Social Work, who oversees Morgan and Marilyn Somoza, another master's student in social work and intern.

The program's primary goals are to alleviate crisis situations for pet owners and provide support for veterinary staff members. While some pet owners have begun to seek counseling services, many are first contacted informally while waiting for their pet's appointment or services to be completed.

"Radiation clients are here four to five days a week for up to four weeks," said Lawrence. "We have time to build a supportive relationship. Oncology patients and their owners are here for regular appointments for an extended period of time and are wonderful support for each other."

"Losing a pet is a traumatic experience," Lawrence said.

A pet is a "member of the family," she said, and nonpet owners often don't understand the human-animal bond that is formed between pet and owner. When a pet passes away, owners experience grief, sometimes lasting months.

"We are here to normalize people's grief over losing a pet," Morgan said. "Socially, people are often told to 'get over' losing a pet and that the pet is 'just a dog' or 'just a cat.'"

"Explaining to owners that what they feel is normal helps people understand their feelings," Somoza said.

Cat owner Elaine Muscat said her experiences with Lawrence as a source of support and compassion were exceptional. Muscat's cat, Jasper, was diagnosed with cancer in 2004. Through the support of Muscat's family and the Veterinary Teaching Hospital, Jasper's life was extended for about two more years.

Meanwhile, as Jasper was receiving treatments, Muscat's father passed away. At that time, Lawrence began meeting with Muscat, who traveled from the Detroit area, on a regular basis.

"Linda made sure Jasper's appointments were always on Mondays at 10 a.m., and she was available to have coffee and speak with me," Muscat said. "It was wonderful therapy for me while Jasper received high-quality treatment from doctors and staff at the hospital."

The social work program is planning to start a pet loss support group and a veterinary technician support group. Research has shown that veterinary staff often experience "compassion fatigue" or a form of stress resulting in caring and working with others who are suffering. The support group will help veterinary technicians work through their feelings and learn coping skills.

The program is currently funded by the School of Social Work and the Veterinary Teaching Hospital.

For more information about the social work services program or to talk with a staff member, call 1-517-353-5420. More information about pet loss is available at http://cvm.msu.edu/petloss/index.htm.

Tips for choosing a veterinarian for your pet

When it comes to choosing a physician, it's often hit or miss. For some people, a doctor's bedside manner is extremely important, while others care more about a doctor's credentials than his compassion.

The same is often true for pet owners when it comes time to choose a veterinarian, though in many cases pet owners prefer a vet who has a gentle approach to their pet. Since a pet cannot speak for itself, it's important to find a vet who will be gentle with the animal, but several other factors should go into a pet owner's decision as well.

• Reputation: A vet's reputation is often his best reference. When looking for a vet, seek advice from family, friends or coworkers. When doing so, be sure to get a grasp of that person's approach to pet care.

Just like there are different breeds of dogs, there are different types of dog owners. Some take a more lax approach to pet care, only taking their dog to the vet when something's noticeably wrong. Such people might not be the best judge, since they likely have little experience with the vet.

Find someone who has a conscientious approach to pet care and seek their advice on a vet. If no one in your circle of family and friends can offer advice, visit a nearby dog park and ask for advice. Even if you don't own a dog, you're liable to get valuable insight.

• Facilities: A veterinarian's facilities also should be considered. The American Animal Hospital Association offers a voluntary membership that offers guidelines with respect to facilities, equipment and the quality of care. Those who volunteer for this membership must meet those guidelines, so pet owners who see that an animal hospital is a member of AAHA can be certain that the hospital is up to snuff.

• Specialty: Much like physicians, veterinarians can specialize in certain areas, and some even specialize in certain breeds. This could be something pet owners, particularly those who might own a purebred dog, would want. For some, however, and fail to recognize the deteriorating conditions around them, according to the news release.

See TIPS — Page 8

LAWS

"The Animal Law Section Council supports legislation to address the complex issue of hoarding," said Bee Friedlander of the Animal Law Section Council. "The bottom line is animals suffer regardless of what motivates the person to collect animals, and this bill is a positive step in the right direction to ending this suffering."

The legislation has been referred to the House Judiciary Committee and, once approved by the committee, will move to the full House, and lastly arrive at the Senate for final approval.

The Michigan Humane Society is encouraging residents to write or call their state representative's office and ask for their support of the bill.

TIPS

this might not be of the utmost importance. If possible, choose and animal hospital that has a specialist on staff, even if your individual vet is another doctor. This can make any unforeseen circumstance, such as emergency surgery, less difficult to deal with.

• Fees: While it's available, most pet owners don't have pet insurance. Therefore, fees should be considered before choosing a vet. Still, simply because a vet charges more for standard visits or consultations doesn't necessarily mean he's the best vet in town. It could simply mean that the town he practices in is more affluent, and his business costs are higher and force him to charge higher standard fees. Because pet ownership is such a big commitment, it's important to get a grasp of these fees before choosing a vet.

• Emergency service: This can be very important when choosing a vet. Know what type of emergency service the hospital your vet is associated with provides. No pet owner wants to find themselves in an emergency and not know what to do.

If a certain hospital does not meet your emergency requirements, look elsewhere. If that's not an option, always be sure to keep a history of vet visits, so in the case of an emergency, you're immediately and fully prepared to show your animal's history if you need to see a vet whom you have not seen before.

• Proximity: Proximity can be especially important for pet owners. It's just more convenient to be nearby to a veterinarian. If the vet's office is far away, that could be costly in case of an emergency.

In addition, routine appointments have a tendency to get put off if the vet is too far away. In general, try and use a vet located close enough to your home to make both of these things a non-issue. If need be, you can always consult a vet who specializes in your breed while allowing a nearby vet handle the more routine consultations.

Lynn McPherson of Ypsilanti is with Wilbur, who used to live at a petting zoo until he grew to big to interact safely with young children. He still loves it when kids come to visit him at SASHA Farm in Manchester. McPherson volunteers twice a week.

in the sun. They live out their lives as naturally as possible, with access to large pastures and barns.

Some of the residents have scars, physical or emotional, from the abuses they've suffered in the past. Some have been discarded due to aging or ill health. Access to good veterinary care is an ongoing concern for the sanctuary. The sanctuary receives no government funding, and is not supported by any other humane associations or shelters.

To continue to fulfill its mission to provide lifetime care, good nutrition, safe shelter and medical care for neglected, abused and discarded animals, the sanctuary relies on the financial support of individuals.

To help, attend a volunteer work days, potluck, fundraising event or send a check. The next event at the sanctuary is the second annual Walk for Farm Animals Walkathon Sunday. More information on that and other events can be found at the Web site http://sashafarm.org.

A concrete passion

Paving company focuses attention on satisfaction

In 1987, while a graduate at the University of Detroit, Thomas Burke started applying concrete to driveways and parking lots to help pay those tuition bills and make his parents proud. At the insistence of his mother, the only child began to support the business.

As my business grew, I pursued a master's degree in business administration and a law degree to help me better run this growing business," Burke said. "After completing my MBA degree, passing the State of Michigan Bar Exam and being admitted to the practice of law, I decided to continue my business and it has become my passion."

A smart man knows a good thing when he sees it and Burke saw a business opportunity too good to pass up.

T. Burke's Asphalt & Concrete Paving Inc. of Ann Arbor specializes in professional asphalt and concrete paving and sealcoating. Projects for asphalt services include driveways, ground up construction from gravel base, golf cart paths, walking paths, parking lots and private roads. Projects for concrete services include footings, sport courts, patios, walks, sidewalks, garage floors and basements.

A full line of products and services is only half of what makes Burke special.

"We believe in providing our customers with the level of quality that we would expect at our own homes and our staff members are committed to this level of excellence in everything they do," Burke said. "From the actual planning of the drive, sidewalk, parking lot or roadway to its excavation, grading and preparation and ultimately to its installation in either asphalt or concrete."

The focus is solely on satisfaction.

"We believe in our skill and ability so much that we do not accept any payment until we actually do what we have promised to do," Burke said. "In this way, we take the risk away from the customer and squarely bear it on our shoulders where it belongs."

High quality plus different options plus best price equals T. Burke's Asphalt & Concrete Paving Inc.

Like a seed

Daily Rain growing with satisfied customers

Starting with only dirt beneath his feet, Jerry Boquette's business began to grow like a seed of grass. And over time he has created a lush, green business.

Jerry Boquette has owned Daily Rain Inc. since it was founded in January 1996. The company specializes in residential and commercial lawn irrigation and lighting, both installation and service. Daily Rain has expanded over the years to more than 3,000 clients and now serves customers in Livingston, Wayne and Oakland counties.

"We guarantee that you will receive an irrigation system that is right for you and your property," Boquette said. "Our service department is capable of maintaining or expanding any irrigation system. We never settle for anything less than the best for our clients and our company."

The business has grown from a two-man operation to more than 22 seasonal team members. The staff has undergone extensive training for making systems more water efficient in an effort to save clients money – keeping the grass green while keeping their wallets greener.

"We continue to retain 99 percent of our clientele base," Boquette said. "Our team genuinely cares about how we service our clients."

Daily Rain Inc. is located at 10000 Jackson Road in Dexter and operates daily from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. They can be reached at (734) 475-3323 and www.dailyrain.com.

Saline business named Country Clipper Top 10 dealer

Country Clipper, a manufacturer of residential and commercial zero-turn lawnmowers, awarded Bridgewater Sales & Service the 2007 Country Clipper Top Ten Dealer Award. Bridgewater Sales & Service is located in Bridgewater and brings 24 years of experience to its customers.

"We were proud to recognize them as one of our Top Ten Dealers," said John Willard, Country Clipper district sales manager. "They have really worked hard this past year moving equipment and working hard at customer service. A good dealership always steps up to challenges and they definitely did that."

In winning this award, Bridgewater Sales & Service represents one of the Top Ten largest Country Clipper Dealerships.

"Customers appreciate quality products and excellent service," said Dennis Ervin, director of marketing and sales. "This recognition as one of the Top Ten Country Clipper Dealers verifies Bridgewater Sales & Service provides their customers with both."

Country Clipper manufactures a complete line of mid-mount zero-turn mowers and accessories for lawn care professionals, and residential and estate homeowners. Country Clipper offers a full line of zero-turn walk-behind and riding lawn mowers with features such as the patented stand-up deck for easy maintenance, revolutionary point-and-go joystick steering for easy maneuverability, articulating front axles and decks for exceptional curb-handling ability and a smooth, easy ride, plus a whole host of other features.

Growing with experience

Heritage Perennial Farm has the plants you want

Heritage Perennial Farm in Tecumseh may be new to the local landscape, but that doesn't mean they don't know what they're doing. Scott Cline was part owner of Neil's Perennial Farm since 2000 when he decided it was time to take root in his own company.

Cline, the sole owner of Heritage Perennial, has the experience customers can benefit from.

"I've been in the nursery business since the age of 14," Cline said. "I attended Ferris State University's Ornamental Horticulture Technology program. I am a Michigan Certified Nurseryman and an accomplished landscape designer."

Heritage Perennial Farm is a plant nursery specializing in perennials, as well as shrubs, trees and garden supplies for retail and wholesale customers.

"Our main intention when starting the business was to grow perennial plants primarily for the wholesale market," Cline said. "In the beginning wholesale made up 90 percent of our sales. Over the years we've developed a great reputation in our community, and wholesale has become less of the main focus. Now retail plant sales make up over 60 percent of our total volume."

Cline said customers will discover that Heritage Perennial Farm is a unique place.

"What makes us different is that we specialize in perennials," he said. "Our staff is friendly and knowledgeable. We have over 40 years of combined experience growing plants. We operate an exceptionally clean, neat and well organized nursery."

Cline said Heritage Perennial Farm is a great place to special order plants.

"Every week we have customers come in and ask for a plant that they have been looking for, that we might not have in stock," he said. "Sourcing plants from several nurseries, we are able to locate these items and have them within about a week. This allows us to cater to our customer's needs."

Heritage Perennial Farm is growing and looking to a blossoming future.

"In the near future we will custom design perennial gardens and perform the installation as well," Cline said. "Tree and shrub maintenance is another division we plan to add to the business. This year we have added a greenhouse to help develop the plant-propagation side of the business, and to allow us to maintain a larger inventory of annuals in the spring."

Heritage Perennial Farm is located at 3375 Staib Road, only a quarter mile west of Tecumseh-Clinton Road in Tecumseh. The hours are Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Saturday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

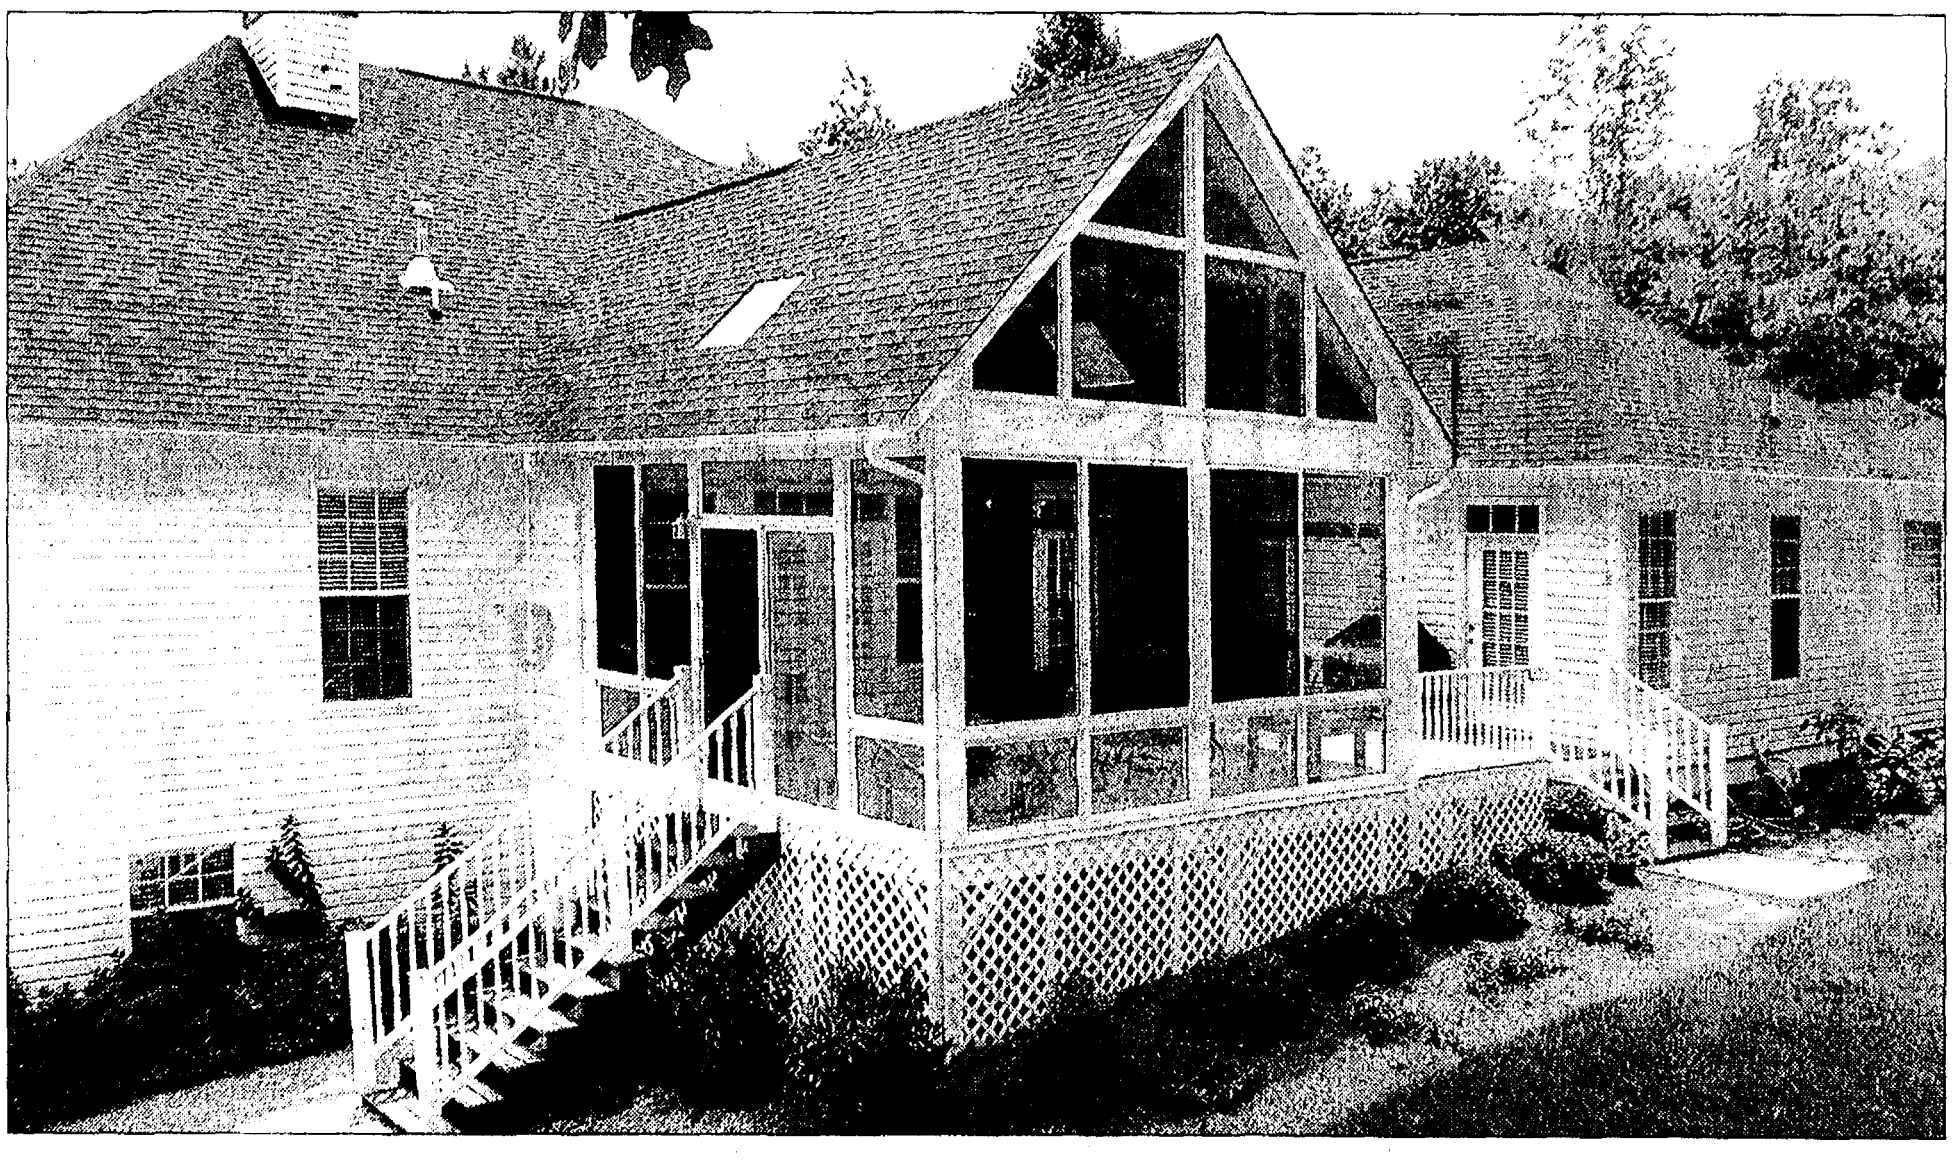
ABCs of Home Living



Here comes the sun

Sunrooms can be beneficial to your health

If you think about the demands that we confront daily, it's easy to see why many of us need a place to unwind: the commute, the meetings, the deadlines. The full in-box. The boss..

But coming home to a sunroom where you are surrounded by a natural living environment is a great place to lose the stress that has accumulated during your day. Relaxing in full view of grass and trees, morning sunlight, afternoon breezes, puffy clouds and sunsets receding into a canopy of twinkling stars, it's easier to let go of the cares of the day and enjoy your home and family.

Your sunroom can be a sanctuary for reading, gardening and exercising to music, or simply dining and relaxing with family and friends... a place designed to rejuvenate your spirits.

Though you'll hear the pleasant songs of nature's creatures while in your sunroom, you can eliminate any unpleasant one-on-one contact. And if it rains, you just continue doing exactly as you've planned by closing doors and windows if necessary.

Before calling a sunroom company, there are several issues to consider in order to receive the best value for a sunroom that you will love.

Start by determining the room's purpose. Most people initially think of sunrooms as a place to escape the dust, bugs and heat of an open patio. But think about other uses, such as entertaining, home office, spa or music room. Homeowners who plan wisely find their sunroom becomes the most used room in the house. A well-built sunroom will often return up to 100 percent of your investment at resale.

When choosing a sunroom, look for one that maximizes your view of the outdoors and allows natural light to fill the room interior – an effect known as "daylighting." Floor-to-ceiling glass walls, glass doors, and strategically placed glass roof panels allow ambient daylight to illuminate a sunroom interior, reducing the need for electric lighting and relieving eye stress.

Another sunroom benefit is the passive heating and cooling derived from opening windows and doors that provide cross-breezes, allowing occupants to control the sunroom environment – often without the aid of a heating or cooling system, although a system may be required for comfort during temperature extremes.

To maximize the use of your sunroom and extend your seasons, make sure the windows, doors, and ceiling are double-paned and insulated. Ask your representative about ENERGY STAR ratings on major sunroom components such as ceilings, floors, and glass windows and doors.

Why not take a step towards a healthier lifestyle and more living space by contacting Patio Enclosures Inc. and asking for a free in-home design consultation? A design consultant will help you to choose the sunroom, solarium or conservatory design that best meets your lifestyle, your home and your budget.

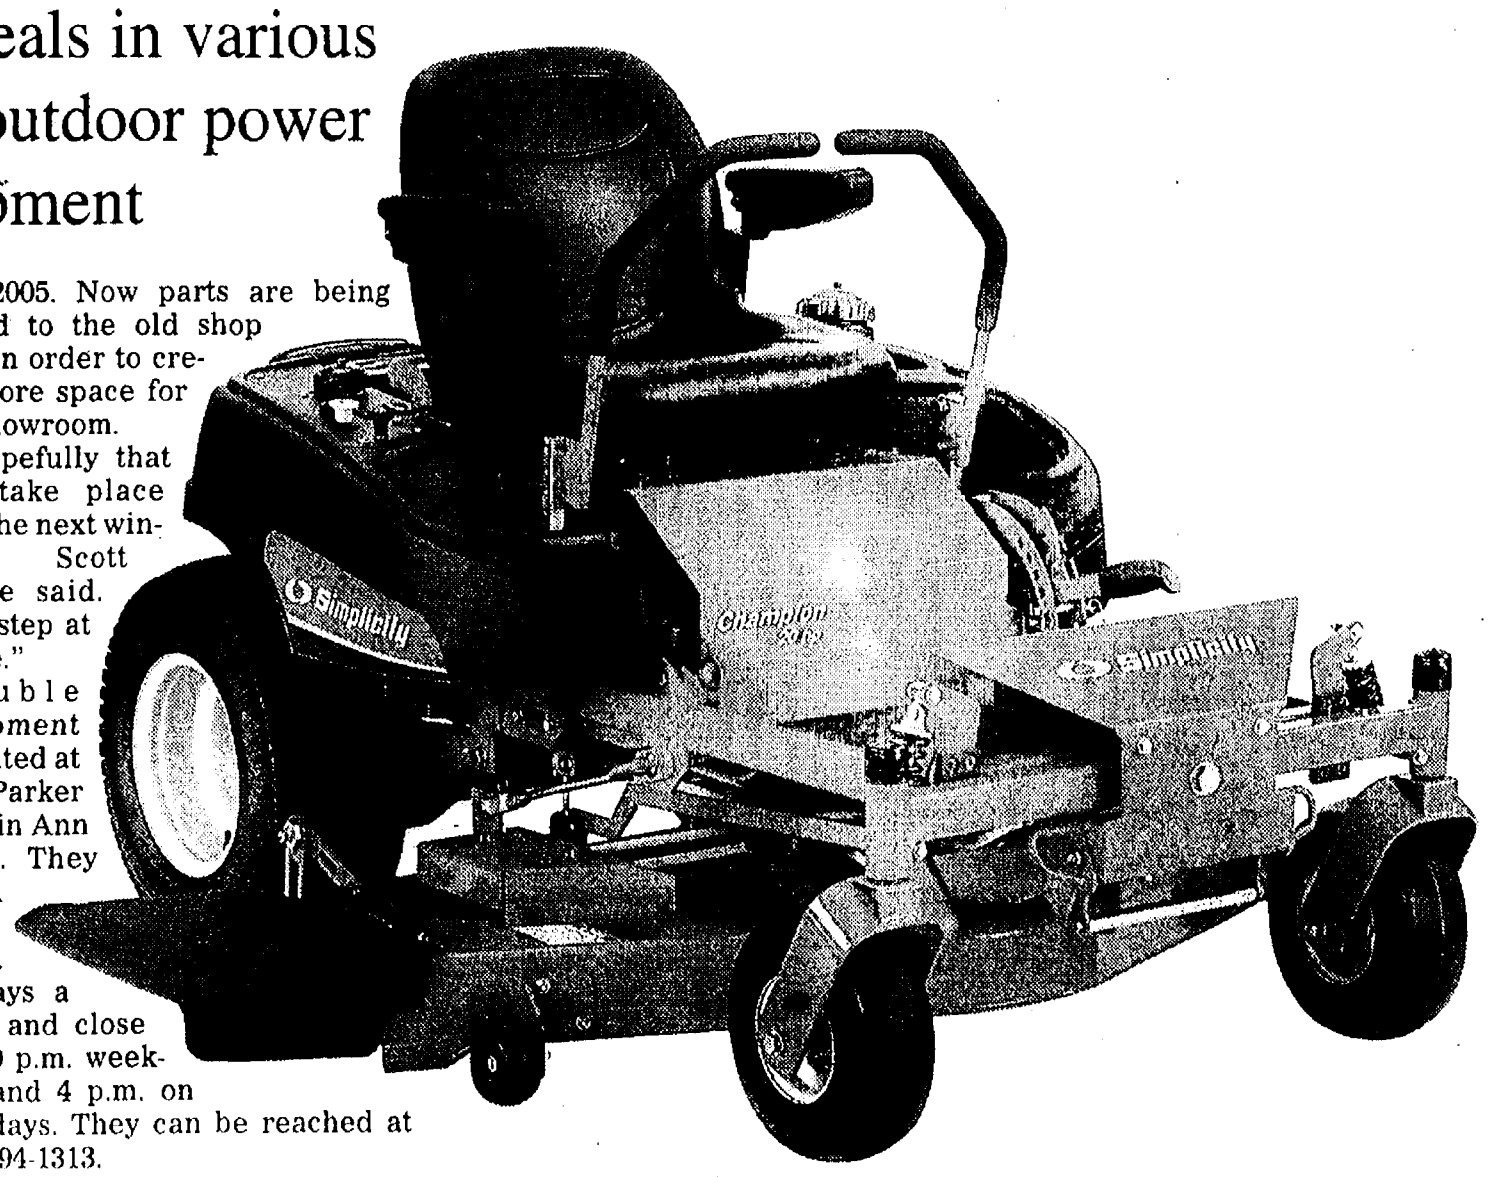
All in the family

Ann Arbor's Diuble deals in various types of agricultural, outdoor power and construction equipment



Diuble Equipment in Ann Arbor is a family affair.

The business was founded by Elmer Diuble in 1967 and is now run by owner Rob Diuble and family members Peg, Scott, Mike and Kevin. The Diuble family business is oriented around various types of agricultural, outdoor power and construction equipment.

They began their first year selling primarily products related to agriculture. In 1970 outdoor power equipment was introduced. And by 1974 Diuble added small construction equipment such as the Bobcat Skid Steer loader to the lineup.

Scott Diuble said his family's business is unique for its parts and service for all brands of equipment.

"We establish relationships with customers, and as a result have ended up with customers for 30 plus years," he said.

Because of their customer care, the business continues grow. There was an addition to the shop in 2004 and 2005. Now parts are being moved to the old shop area in order to create more space for the showroom.

"Hopefully that will take place over the next winter," Scott Diuble said. "One step at a time."

Diuble Equipment is located at 4365 Parker Road in Ann Arbor. They open at 8 a.m. six days a week, and close at 5:30 p.m. weekdays and 4 p.m. on Saturdays. They can be reached at (734) 994-1313.

STOP BEDWETTING

Pacific International has been dealing with this major parasomnia and correcting it effectively for 57 years when not caused by organic defect. Bedwetting is a sleep problem.

When a proper correction is achieved with an enuretic (bedwetter), they may learn to sleep better or more normal. IF YOU WAIT TILL IT'S EVIDENT THAT IT'S AFFECTED YOUR CHILD, YOU'VE WAITED TOO LONG. Bedwetting can cause a lack of self-image, self-esteem and lead to other problems. They can't go to camp or stay over night without the fear of discovery.

Our 57th Year

The wet bed is not the only problem. The child or adult who has the problem of bedwetting is sleeping incorrectly and may not benefit from the REM (Rapid Eye Movement) the way they should and can have poor concentration or ADD-ADHD issues. The late Dr. Joseph G. Molner, MPH, recommended our Program, as does Dr. E. Safapour, MPH and Dr. Douglas Palmenter, Pediatrician of 30 years.

Did you know... that you can reserve a campground or harbor in Michigan online?

Take advantage of the beauty of Michigan and head to www.midnrreservations.com. Reservations for campsites, harbors and mini-cabins can be made six months in advance, while reservations for rustic or camper cabins can be made up to one year in advance. Campgrounds are often seasonal and have limited availability, so it pays to make your reservation early.

Transportation Funding

I'm honored to announce that I've been appointed to a transportation funding task force that will examine new and alternative funding for transportation. I'm looking forward to working with leaders from across Michigan to improve the quality of our infrastructure, especially after the difficult winter we've endured. As always, I want to hear what you think. How do you feel we should fund transportation in the state of Michigan? Contact my office toll-free at (800) 645-1581, or e-mail me at pambyrnes@house.mi.gov, to tell me your opinion on transportation funding.
