Cancer Declassified: A column in courage

Writing, sharing helped me 'find myself'

ALISON MARABLE

Not a week goes by that I don't receive e-mail and phone calls from people thanking me for writing my column. Both male and female readers stop me on the street or in stores just to talk about cancer when they realize I am the face behind the column. One reader recognized me, shook my hand and called me brave. A man who knew my father in high school called me after reading my column on obituaries and another reader plans to share that column with her genealogy class. I have found links to my column on cancer-related Web sites. Many readers have told me they pass the columns on to friends living outside the local area.

I've heard numerous positive comments about my article, and only one negative. One man shared with me that he believes my column is pointless, especially when the column is just me talking about myself. My response is that my column gives a voice to the women who are both scared and courageous at the same time

The number of women with breast cancer, or any cancer, is staggering, so it makes sense that there is an entire population of people who are directly affected by cancer. There's a common and a unique experience for each person and each type of cancer. My opinion is that there is value in educating others on the basics of cancer, as well as the human aspects of a terrible disease. Over the last few months, I've spoken to countless women about their newly-diagnosed friends, as well as heard the personal triumphs of cancer survivors. Several women said they were glad that someone could speak

"We love it. We get a great response from the city," said Rob Lossing of The Motor City Outlaws.

'Sounds and Sights' strengthens community bonds

By Phoebe Conybeare
Special Writer

On Thursday nights, the streets of Chelsea are awash with a plethora of visitors.

As one of Chelsea's newer additions to its vast repertoire of entertainment and community involvement, "Sounds and Sights on Thursday Nights" has become a must-do for any area resident.

"We come to 'Sounds and Sights' pretty regularly," said Jennifer Aquilino, a Chelsea local and mother of three.

"We love the kid's entertainment, the different types of music, and it's a fun place to see your friends from Chelsea."

Four years ago Craig Common, owner and executive chef of The Common Grill, saw the idea of a weekly community event being done in Naples, Fla.

He talked it over with a few other community members and started up what is now known as "his baby."

"My favorite part has to be watching everyone smiling and listening to the different music groups," Common said.

He smiles as we stand outside his restaurant, visitors eyeing his chef hat and apron as they pass by.

"It's about making people happy ... I like that," he added. "I think people enjoy themselves; you can see it in their faces."

The city seems to swell with anticipation before the entertainment even begins.

It is very muggy and warm, but that does not stop families from strolling through businesses and chatting with the storeowners.

"There is definitely an increase in traffic, excitement, and community bonds," said Trinh Pifer, owner of the Garden Mill. "It's one of the best benefits of 'Sounds and Sights.'"

There are children laughing and dancing everywhere you look, the train passes the historic Chelsea Depot, and cars slow down as occupants gawk at just how many people are on the sidewalks and

Lyndon's calling Sparks fly in Lyndon Twp. supervisor race

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

For those who love local politics, the Lyndon Township supervisor race is virtually the only game in town.

Because both incumbent Maryann Noah and her challenger, former supervisor John Francis, are running as Republicans, the Aug. 5 primary election will decide who will take the supervisor's seat for another four years.

Each candidate was asked a series of similar questions. Due to newspaper space considerations, an abbreviated version of their responses is below.

For the full version, please see the Chelsea Standard Web site at www.chelseastandard.com.

What are your main concerns with the way the current supervisor has run the township? On what issue(s) do you disagree?

Francis: Spending. I am adamantly opposed to the current supervisor's excessive spending habits.

We must return to responsible spending that includes sacrifice on the part of the board. Our present economy dictates that we absolutely do not spend any township funds unless necessary.

The residents of Lyndon Township work hard, have long commutes and family responsibilities. They do not have time to attend our board meetings and give their input. I will ensure that every decision made for spending is in the best interests of the residents.

Examples of outrageous spending initiated by the current supervisor include:

Spending over $33,000 on the trailer next to the township hall building, and currently pursuing bids for a new roof while the trailer is considered a "temporary structure."

Spending over $25,000 on paving township hall parking

Chelsea City Council

Feeney: Post office to change its address to former Polly's store

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Putting to rest longstanding persistent rumors, Chelsea Mayor Ann Feeney publicly announced that the Chelsea post office is relocating to the former home of Polly's Country Market.

Feeney made the pronouncement during the July 8 City Council meeting.

"The Chicago (regional) post office people assured me that they were making good progress with Polly's and architects were working on drawings," Feeney said.

"The Post Office is taking only part of the space, however; (Polly's spokesman) Sean Kennedy said they would have to break that up to make it more marketable."

Feeney's public state ment clears up a lot of confusion and speculation surrounding the long-vacant property at Old US 12 and South Main Street.

The Jackson based super market moved from its anchor spot in the Village Plaza into the former Farmer Jack grocery store about a half mile down the road a couple of years ago.

Chelsea Postmaster Ted Dave could not be reached for comment.

Polly's spokesman Sean Kennedy confirmed Feeney's assessment, but with reservations.

"They've already spent a bunch of money. I think they're coming. I hope they're coming," Kennedy said.

Chelsea man named Healthcare Hero

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Chelsea resident Dean Carpenter, a family nurse practitioner who works part-time at the Neighborhood Service Organization in Detroit, has been selected as a Healthcare Hero for Crain's Detroit Business for 2008. The feature will appear in the Aug. 11 issue.

The award is the result of a "Sock Drive" last winter, when Carpenter asked the Chelsea community for donations of socks for the homeless.

Carpenter, who sees many cases of foot injury and damage because of wet and frozen feet, arranged with Pamida store team leader Amy Justice for a donation box at the store in the Chelsea Shopping Center, and also asked his neighbors to help.

Local residents donated over 200 pairs of socks. NSO also received 200 pairs of shoes from an organization called Soles4Souls. Four surgeons from Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit and two orthotists helped with fittings and treated foot ailments.

Carpenter also received local donations of gloves, scarves, sweaters and coats, and women's clothing.

The homeless center has been renovated and renamed the Tumaini Center, the Swahili word for Hope, Carpenter said.

Dexter Township landowner helps protect his land

Harold Baker, 86, has resided near the Pinckney Recreation Area on Half Moon Lake (Dexter Township) since 1951. Over the years, he has consolidated several small lots totaling approximately two acres, directly adjacent to the 11,000-acre public natural area. This year, Baker protected these forested parcels through a permanent conservation agreement with the Washtenaw Land Trust.

Baker, who has been involved with the Boy Scouts for more than 50 years, has led countless projects to build and restore trails in the Pinckney Recreational Area. For Baker, the trail work enhanced his love of the woods and his appreciation for leaving things in nature the way that they are.

A self-proclaimed tree-hugger, Baker explained that he wanted to protect the natural beauty of the wooded land. He said, "I love the woods, and I didn't want anything to happen to them in the future. I want them to be able to stay the way they are."

"I think that what the Washtenaw Land Trust is trying to do in protecting land is wonderful. I urge anyone who has a piece of land and loves the land for the land, to do something about it before 'progress' takes hold of it." Susan Lackey, executive director of the Washtenaw Land Trust, said: "It's important to protect buffer parcels like this that are adjacent to already-protected lands. It helps keep these natural corridors intact. We're grateful for Mr. Baker's gift to the community."

Guest Column: Tim Walberg

Pushing for an energy policy that works

By Tim Walberg

Over the past few weekends, I've held multiple events in the Seventh District to hear firsthand how high gas prices are affecting my constituents. One single mother offered remarks which I found particularly memorable.

She shared how she drives an hour, from Adrian to Ann Arbor, each way to the hospital where she works. Because of high gas prices, she recently requested and received permission to begin working back to back 8 hour shifts, two days per week, so she doesn't have to make the hour long commute each day.

This remarkable woman then shared something that really struck me. She said that in a couple years, when her daughter turns 16, handing her daughter the keys to the family car will be an extremely stressful experience. But unlike when she was a teenager and her father was worried about her driving abilities and the car's safety, this mother is worried she won't be able to afford to pay for the gas her daughter will use to take the family car and go out with friends.

This is just one example of how real Americans outside the DC beltway are struggling to pay for gas. All across our great country and especially in rural areas, Americans can barely afford prices over $4 a gallon. With wheat harvesting just beginning, high gas prices will mean higher costs for our family farmers as they harvest and transport this year's crop to market.

Meanwhile, leaders in Congress will not allow any legislative action to increase American energy production. Instead they continue to push for tax increases on energy and offer silly proposals like having trial lawyers sue OPEC and requiring oil companies to drill on land where oil likely does not exist.

This plan to tax, sue and mandate the Jed Clampett oil exploration method (no scientific research, just drill on the ground you have) will surely fail. In fact, these proposals will likely produce less American energy.

Along with many of my colleagues, I am working daily to push for more American energy production. We have introduced, fought for and demanded votes on legislation to immediately drill in places like the Gulf of Mexico, ANWR and the Outer Continental Shelf and to increase our refinery capacity. We are also pushing bills to expand the development of alternative energies and build new nuclear power plants.

By passing these reasonable energy proposals, we could bring more American-produced gasoline to the market and lower our energy bills. Yet, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi refuses to even allow a vote on these common sense solutions.

This week I sent a letter to Speaker Pelosi urging Congressional action to bring down high gas prices before Congress goes on summer recess. The full letter is available at walberg.house.gov/blog.

In the letter, I state, "To solve America's energy crisis, the House of Representatives needs to act now."

I believe the longer we wait to address energy prices, the greater the national security risk high prices become. America simply cannot continue to rely on large amounts of imported Middle East oil and Americans should not have to send hundreds of billions of dollars overseas because Congress has failed to allow American energy production.

openly about the topics that they were too shy to discuss themselves.

I believe I am one of the few women who cannot rattle off the date of diagnosis, the date of each appointment or surgery, and the months or years of survivorship. These milestones are deeply important to many women, but I have decided to forget the numbers and not let them occupy space in my heart.

For an extended period of time after diagnosis, I didn't know what to expect, who I was, or where I was headed. There's a favorite song of mine with lyrics that I think sum up how I was feeling for so long: "I can't find myself."

Following a season of being lost, I can see the new-found freedom to begin over and head in any direction that I choose. Sometimes it feels like the world has changed, but it hasn't. I am the one who has changed throughout the process of fighting cancer.

My new motto is: "Steal everything." My husband tells me I need to tweak that a bit before it catches on, but he knows that its meaning is rooted in baseball. If there's an opportunity, I'll be off. I am going to do whatever I can to get to the next base instead of waiting cautiously on the current base.

With this in mind, and after some great thought, I feel the time is right for me to discontinue "Cancer Declassified."

My wishes for this column were granted: discussions were started, women who might have felt alone had someone to connect with, and readers learned about the life of a cancer patient.

So many people have shared this journey with me. How generous of all of you to take the time to contact me, share your own stories of cancer with me, and to take such loving care of your friends and family who are battling cancer.

I want to thank the editor, Michelle Rogers, who saw the value in my column: my family, for letting me put our private lives on display; and the readers, for without you, these thoughts would have been tucked away in a journal where they would have helped no one but me.

jaywalking across the streets. "Two Friends and a Hot Dog" sells bratwursts and hot dogs in front of the McKune Memorial Library, drawing a very hungry crowd of visitors.

"I love the people and the atmosphere — it's a lot of fun. We've listened to some great bands!" exclaimed Sue Crow, one of the two "Friends" who own the stand.

And what a variety of music selections can be found, ranging from local teenage rock sensation "Phonetic Sound" to tonight's rock 'n' roll legend Mitch Ryder and The Detroit Wheels.

While wandering down Main Street one cannot go far without stopping time after time to listen to classic Southern rock bands like the "Motor City Outlaws" or the bluesy, foot-tapping "Derek and the Silver Tops."

Among many of the musicians performing throughout the weeks of summer, high school senior and percussion sensation Amelia Raines is found tucked away outside the Chelsea Clocktower.

Eric Hohnke, a 2007 Chelsea High School graduate, noted that although he "loves it when high school students perform, it'd be nice to have one main-stage event that's very big — something like Ann Arbor's "Top of the Park."

Another way many visitors said "Sounds and Sights" could improve is to have it last longer — something like an all-afternoon event instead of just two-hour segments.

Looking for a little Celtic attitude? Don't miss the North Creek Fiddlers.

Like a little comedy with your tunes? Don't forget about local favorite "Coconut Radio."

"The most amazing part of 'Sounds and Sights' is the quality of the performances," stated Jed Fritzeimer, middle and high school orchestra teacher and an accomplished musician himself.

However, he felt there is a drawback to having so many people on the sidewalks of Chelsea.

"The acts are too close and crowded into the streets," said Fritzeimer. "If you pushed them back further, you could have the same effect of the music and more people would be able to gather around them."

Dwight and Sue Crow of Two Friends and a Hot Dog sell hot dogs in front of McKune Memorial Library. "We average about 60 bratwursts and hot dogs in one night," remarked Sue Crow. Chelsea Gallery owner Gary Galvin with local artist Barb Anderson.

Let us not forget the other medium of entertainment found flourishing in the Chelsea neighborhood — the fine arts.

Chelsea is home to three fantastic art galleries: the River Gallery, Chelsea Gallery, and West of the Moon Gallery.

"It's really fun to see the families and couples out — what's really interesting is to see all the people walk around and see their friends and say hello to their neighbors," said Chelsea Gallery owner Gary Galvin. "I think that's really key: People are rediscovering their own downtown."

When asked why they came downtown for Thursday night festivities, visitor response was overwhelmingly because of the "sense of community" that Sounds and Sights brings to them.

"We love the atmosphere," said John Stickrad, an eight-year resident of Chelsea.

Wayne Petty, a downtown homeowner also raved about the city's culture.

"There are so many great things in Chelsea, it's hard to know what your favorite thing is," Petty said. "Everything is so wonderful."

Chelsea's Harris wins $1,000 scholarship from credit union

American 1 Federal Credit Union awarded a Chelsea High School graduate a $1,000 scholarship for her commitment to altruism and community service.

Emily Harris of Chelsea received a $1,000 Community Involvement Award scholarship, sponsored by American 1.

The credit union opened its first Washtenaw branch at Polly's Country Market in Chelsea in December, and Harris is the first Chelsea High School graduate to win the award.

Applications were taken in February and the scholarship committee decided the winners in April.

Harris was highly involved in both extracurricular activities and the community while in high school.

She wrote a 2,500-word or less essay on the benefits of altruism and how she improved their community through service.

American 1 has rewarded deserving and community-minded high school seniors with $1,000 scholarships since 2000. The credit union awarded 10 high school seniors with the award this year to students in the communities it serves.

Part II: Township candidates talk issues

By Edward Freundl

Staff Writer

EDITOR'S NOTE: As a rule, we do our best to cover local elections in a fair, accurate and comprehensive manner.

Regrettably, mistakes occasionally happen, and then we do our best to make up for it.

The following candidates were omitted from last week's coverage of township elections.

As a means of introducing the challenges and incumbents to the electorate, The Chelsea Standard asked each of them to respond to these questions:

1. Biographical: age, education, family, political experience.

2. Why did you decide to run for election (or re-election)?

3. What is the single most important issue facing your township, and how do you plan to address it?

Sylvan Township Clerk:

LuAnn Koch, Republican: Age 54, husband Brian, four children, high school, some college classes.

It has been a privilege to be allowed to serve as the Sylvan Township Clerk for 16 years and I would like to continue another four-year term.

I enjoy the opportunities and challenges the clerk's job provides.

It's great to look back at the accomplishments I have participated in: Chelsea Area Fire Authority, Chelsea Area Construction Agency, Sylvan Township Water & Sewer Authority, Chelsea Area Planning Team to name a few, and exciting to look ahead to future endeavors by making sure the best interest of the township comes first.

The most important issue now is to resolve the financial situation of the township as it relates to the water and sewer bonds, by investigating all options.

Lyndon Township Clerk:

Barb Fredette, Republican: Age

56, following graduation from Chelsea High School in 1969, I married Charley Fredette. We have two sons, Shannon and Aaron, and one grandchild.

I was born and raised in the family farm in Lyndon Township and have been a resident for 46 years.

My father, George Bauer, served as Lyndon Township Supervisor from 1957 to 1968.

I have never held political office. I decided to run for clerk because I feel I could bring a wealth of experience and professionalism to the position.

I retired from the city of Chelsea

History pulls into Chelsea

Tour of historic autos attracts visitors from near and far

By Edward Freundl

Staff Writer

If it weren't for the style of clothing, you wouldn't know what century you were in.

A group of antique car and motorcycle buffs hit Chelsea on July 13 to kick off a weeklong tour to promote the centennial of the EMF Motor Car company, and the Clocktower Complex was the ideal backdrop.

"This is neat; you're not going to see this many Flanders and EMFs in one place again," said John Daly of Millington, Ill., tour organizer and Webmaster for the EMF car club.

"We wanted to do something for the 100th anniversary."

The vehicles

The cars were manufactured under the EMF and Flanders brands during their production run from 1908 to about 1912.

Flanders was the name of industrialist Walter P. Flanders of Chelsea, and the other initials were derived from the names of his business partners.

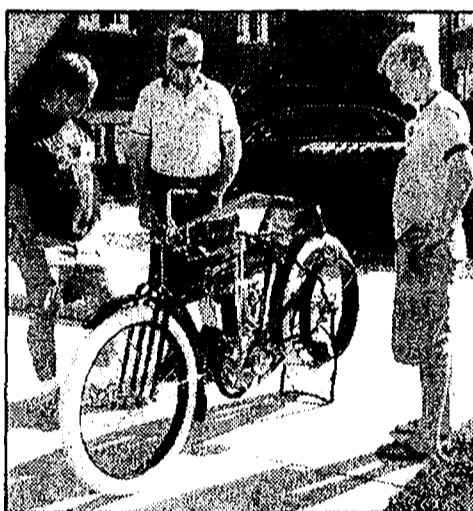

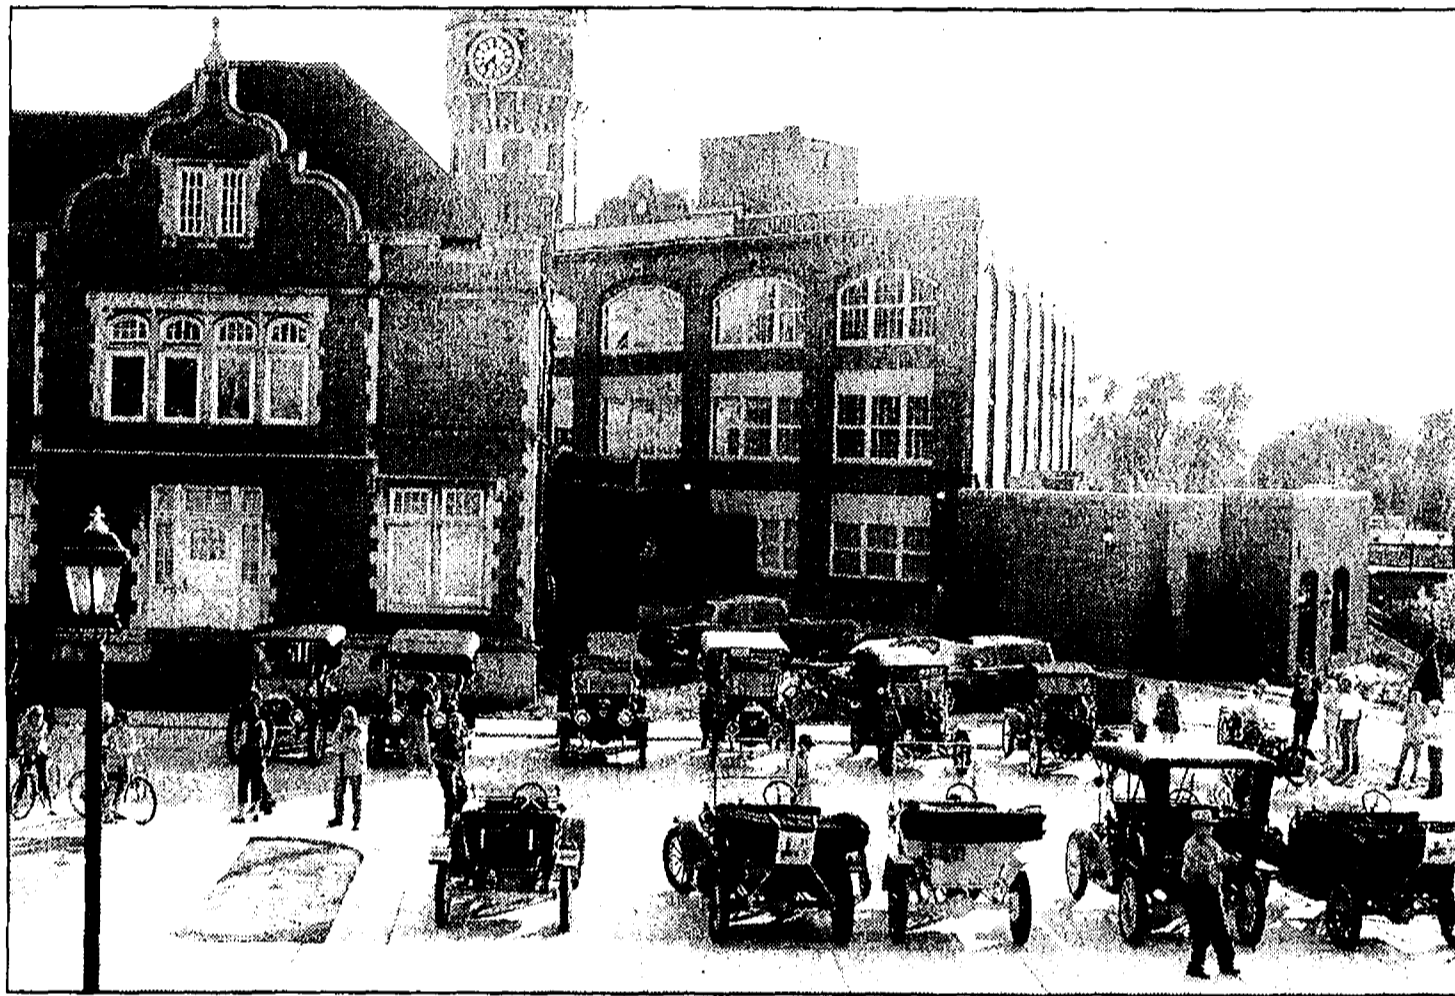

Byron Everitt was trained in the art of carriage making and was an early car body designer.

William Metzger was the nation's first auto dealer, and invented the concept of the auto show.

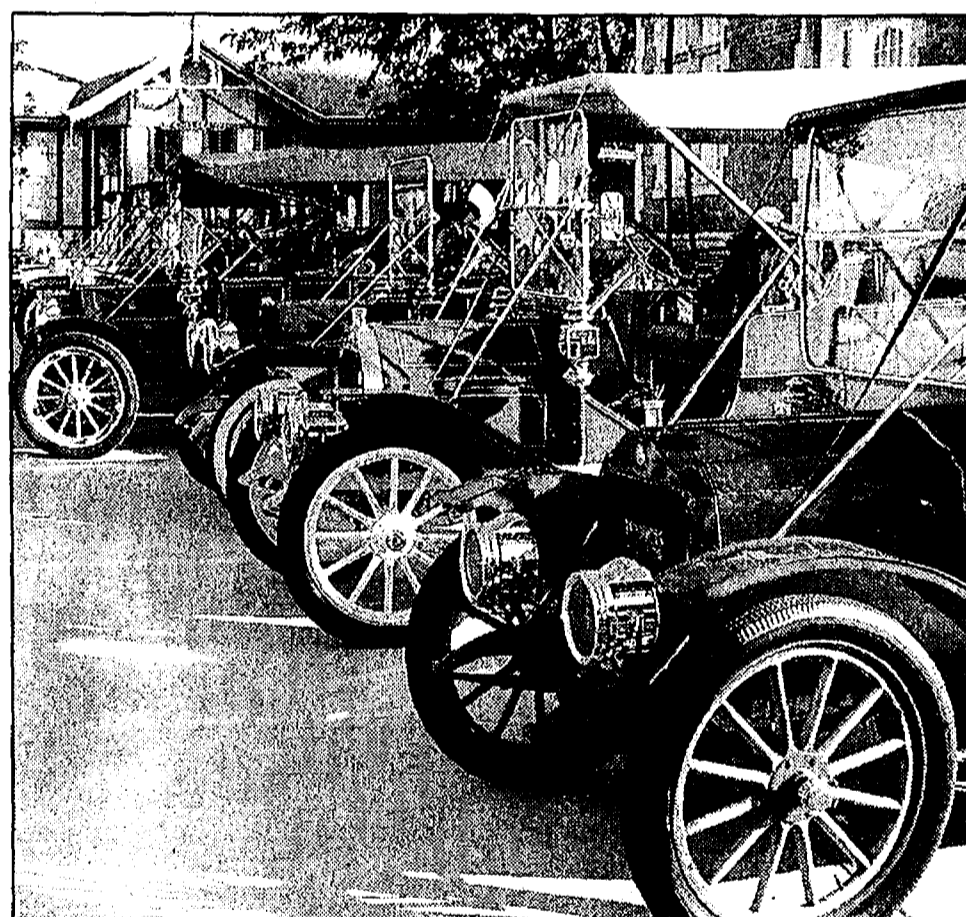

Flanders was a machining and mass-production genius who managed Ford Motor Co. plants and set up the initial assembly line practices.

Ironically, the assembly line techniques Flanders developed for Ford would be the downfall of his own EMF Company.

He also confirmed that the post office had signed up for about 6,000 of the 30,000 square feet available.

"I met with their engineer and contracting agent; I told them as soon as we get the lease signed you can go ahead and go at it," he said.

"They're going to do the lion's share of the work to get it ready."

Kennedy said working with postal officials to finalize the agreement was "frustrating."

"It's frustrating - I think they're moving, but I don't have a signed lease," he said.

In other council business:

The July 8 meeting also afforded a first reading of Sewer Bond Ordinance No. 157, to continue the bond approval process for obtaining up to $11 million in financing from the state's ultra-low-interest Sewer Revolving Fund.

"(The ordinance) authorizes us to raise the money for improvements to the system," said City Manager John Hanifan.

The ordinance authorizes up to $11 million in bond funding for improvement and expansion of the Wastewater Treatment Plant (WWTP), but it also specifies the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality will have final say on the actual amount.

"Codifying this as part of our municipal laws is required by the Michigan Municipal Bond Authority."

'Financial Peace'

Chelsea Church of the Nazarene will be offering "Dave Ramsey's Financial Peace University," a 13-week class to get you on track to use your money wisely.

The two-hour sessions begin at 6:30 p.m. today at the church, 12126 Jackson Rd.

Ramsey appears nightly on Fox TV network and on various radio stations and has written three New York Times best-sellers.

Hanifan said, explaining the need for such an ordinance.

The council can repeal the ordinance at the end of the 20-year life of the bond, he added.

A second reading and council vote was expected at Tuesday's regular City Council meeting, and a special meeting was set for 7 p.m. Aug. 5 to review and award the Wastewater Treatment Plant project construction bids.

Also expected at Tuesday's meeting was a decision to accept or reject a draft version of the city's Master Plan.

The city Planning Commission approved the proposed document on May 20.

In his City Manager's Report, Hanifan said the next town hall meeting will take place at 7 p.m. this Tuesday.

Among the topics to be discussed are review of the new video coverage of city meetings, the progress of the Veterans' Park bridge over Lett's Creek, and a review of the WWTP project.

"I think it's appropriate that we meet with citizens one more time for final input," Hanifan noted.

He also wanted to give recognition for the team effort shown in cleaning up after the severe storm on July 2, not only for all the city workers involved but also for the restaurants that provided food and drinks for them.

"As city manager it was one of the best moments I've had here," Hanifan said. "Talk about everybody in the community pitching in."

in December 2006, ending a 37-year career in municipal government. Many of the responsibilities I had with the village and city of Chelsea parallel those of township clerk.

I have a caring and outgoing personality and enjoy working with and serving the public.

A key issue facing Lyndon Township is the lack of access to affordable high-speed Internet. This is a commodity in high demand in our fast-paced world today. If elected, I would actively research avenues to provide this service to our residents.

I would also be diligent in keeping spending under control during these difficult economic times.

Trustee:

Leon Moore, Republican: Age 47, wife Susan (served eight years on the Chelsea School Board); children Chris, Garrett, John, and Scott; and a yellow Lab named Bailey.

Occupation: Environmental Health Supervisor, Bachelor of Science in Public Health from Central Michigan University.

No previous elected office; current public and community service: Lyndon Township Planning Commission Chairman, Lyndon Township Zoning Board of Appeals vice-chairman; Chelsea Recreation - K-6 baseball, flag football, and wrestling coach; Washtenaw County Local Emergency Planning Committee Information Officer.

Lyndon Township is a special place. My work on the Planning Commission has exposed me to a variety of issues that the township faces. I feel that I can help the township deliver services in both an efficient and cost-effective manner.

It is very important to me that residents feel that the township is doing all that it can do to maintain a high quality of life and a rural recreational community to live in.

Maintaining the natural beauty and character of the township is very important while balancing personal property rights. Effective collaboration with neighboring communities and providing services on a regional basis is a priority.

Dexter Township Trustee:

Donald "Ducky" Dettling, Democrat: Age 47, married, one stepson, one grandchild, Associate's degree, Washtenaw Community College.

Background: Captain and fire inspector, Dexter Area Fire Authority, past president of the Dexter Firefighter's Association, past president of the Chelsea Firefighter's Association.

Boy Scouts of America Troop 476 Executive Board, current member of the executive board of the Dexter Area Firefighter's Association, current president of the Dexter Area Local 4090 International Association of Firefighters, President Webb Shore Drive Property Owners Association.

Public and community service: Dexter Firefighters Association, community advisor to Dexter Area Chamber of Commerce, member Washtenaw County Local Emergency Plan Committee, charter member of the Washtenaw County Hazardous Materials Team.

Public safety is a key issue. We need to work collaboratively with neighboring municipalities to provide the best possible services for township residents and work toward a truly regional approach that will ensure the health, safety and welfare of Dexter Township residents in the most cost-effective manner. We in the Dexter Township area have enjoyed an area-wide regionalization for many years.

lot (without prior board approval).

Replacing two toilets at a cost of $865 (without prior board approval)

Total town hall improvements/construction of $105,313 as of 2006.

During 2003-2004 attending an excessive amount of meetings for Chelsea Area Fire Authority and other authorities and charging all meetings to the township (the supervisor's W-2 in 2004 reflected she earned $30,603.64 from the township while her base salary was $20,800).

March 23, 2006 budget workshop minutes reflect that the trustees asked the entire board to "freeze" their salaries because of the economy. The current supervisor disagreed, and asked for a 3.3 percent increase in salary.

In spite of a downturn in the economy my opponent has asked for increases in salary every year except for 2007 (during the recall initiative) and 2008 (an election year).

For several years the supervisor was paying herself for special meetings being held at the township hall. This practice is in violation of Michigan Statute (MCL 41.952): "... The supervisor, clerk, and treasurer shall receive no additional compensation for attending meetings of the township board ...".

In April this year the supervisor without explanation offered the following motion: "No township salaried elected official shall be reimbursed for any special meetings of the Township Board."

For the last two meetings the board has been questioned about how they violated state law. The clerk has made statements that suggest that the board didn't realize they were in violation of state law when they paid themselves for the special meetings.

What I find repulsive is the fact that each time this issue of illegal pay is raised the supervisor has nothing to say. She will not admit she violated state law. She will not give any reasons for her making the motion to no longer be paid for special meetings. She will not admit that in fact she made a mistake in paying herself illegally.

But most important is the fact that she has not apologized to the people in the township and she has not repaid the township the money she took illegally.

I can forgive a mistake if an apology is given and restitution is made. In this case the supervisor's behavior is arrogant and her apparent lack of concern for taking money illegally from the township for whatever reason and not making amends is reprehensible.

This type of behavior is See LYNDON — Page 13-A about $1,200 which was a lower price than others of the time," Daly said.

"Then Henry Ford brought out the Model T. Ford was killing them and EMF came up with the EMF 20, a 20-horsepower version."

Daly also described how Flanders came to put his own name on an automobile and one other mode of transportation.

According to Daly, EMF was the target of acquisition by Studebaker, another giant in the early auto era that eventually fell by the wayside.

"Studebaker really started pushing them for a takeover, and Everitt and Metzger got sick of it and left," Daly said.

"When Everitt and Metzger broke away from EMF, Flanders kept going on his own, and he also came up with the Flanders motorcycle."

Along with a couple of dozen EMFs, Flanders and even an Everitt model, there were two rare specimens of the Flanders motorcycle that were actually built at the former Glazier Stove factory in Chelsea.

John Fretschl of Oshkosh, Wis., brought his fully restored Flanders 4 to the car rally.

"This was a 1911 model, and only about 3,500 were made in four years of production," Fretschl said.

"I was told there were 20 or 25 of them left, but I can only account for 16."

The Flanders 4 was a one-cylinder, 4-horsepower motorcycle that was actually more of a bicycle with a motor bolted to it, and a wicked-looking leather belt powering the rear wheel.

"You had to pedal it to get it up to speed, then release the valve and the belt tensioner, and the motor takes over," Fretschl said, describing the rather exhilarating method of operating the machine.

With the rider's left leg being so close to the open, rapidly spinning parts, it is no wonder that motorcyclists developed a reputation for being daredevils.

The tour

Daly said the EMF owners' club had rallies elsewhere in 2004 and 2006 in preparation for the Chelsea event, "to gauge the interest."

"This is the first stop on the tour — we're having a great time this week," he said.

"We have owners from all over the U.S. as well as Canada and South Africa."

Most of the owners packed up their four-wheeled treasures on trailers to make the trip, and gathered at a local hotel as a staging area.

According to Daly, the schedule for the schedule for the rest of that week was to drive the cars to Manchester, Ypsilanti and Jackson, and also take a tour bus to Detroit to visit the original EMF factories.

"We don't go very far with them, maybe 50 miles and back," Daly said.

A wise move, considering the cars' age and the investment their owners have poured into them.

But even at nearly 100 years old, they hold up remarkably well mechanically.

"My experience has been, once you get them going they run great," said Daly, who owns an EMF and a couple other antique cars himself.

Tour participants Steve and Sally Dillon of Connecticut are owners of one of the last EMFs and one of the first Flanders, model year 1912.

"This is automotive history here," Steve Dillon said. "When we see the manufacturing facility here, it makes us think about that history."

Pete and Maurine Davie of Elyria Ohio, drove a recently restored 1912 model.

"This is our big test drive," Pete said. "It took us about two years to restore it, and this is the first time we've toured with it."

"I paid $18,000 for it, but it sold for about $800 when it was new," he added.

"As soon as Flanders came out with the $800 price, Henry Ford lowered the price of his Model T's, and that was it (for the Flanders)."

Walter Flanders' influence was even felt across the years, through the efforts of his great-grandson, Bill Spencer, in organizing the tour.

"It's a dream; it's something I've thought about for years," Spencer said.

"We're off to a great start, everybody made it here."

"It couldn't have come out any better if we'd scripted it," he added. "The people of Chelsea have been very open and inviting."

Up-and-down economy hurts Granholm

When the historians wade through Gov. Jennifer Granholm's record and they come across July 15, 2008, they will be tempted to merely dismiss it as Day No. 2,687 in office.

But a closer inspection would reveal that it encapsulates in a single day the very essence of the Granholm tenure in office.

The Granholm years to date have been plagued by an economy that refused to give her a break. When she took the oath, she never expected to spend every waking moment trying to accomplish what others would do but didn't — i.e. diversify the state's auto dominated economy.

Along the way, she hit some home runs, but at other times she looked like Gary Sheffield looking at a called third strike. July 15 was that kind of day.

The night before her inner circle anxiously awaited word on a major breakthrough project. If she reeled it in, she could boast that her diversification mojo was working.

Dow Chemical and a petro plastics company in Kuwait, ironically run by women, held the governor's fate in their hands.

Michigan was up against some stiff competition. Even though Dow calls Michigan home, it had "vacation homes" in Texas and Louisiana where those governors wanted this $11 billion joint venture, too.

As the tension mounted, the call finally came in. Michigan had won! A new world headquarters, 800 super duper high-paying jobs and a ton of pop were the governor's bounty.

But the smiles were quickly tempered with bad news from General Motors. GM had been goaded by Wall Street to make drastic cuts in its white-collar work force aimed at ending bankruptcy chatter on the stock market.

Consequently, at what should have been a triumphant news conference announcing new jobs from Dow, the governor also had to field questions about the GM "right sizing," a fancy way of saying "job losses." It took the edge off the Dow story.

But the resilient governor was not done. An hour or so later she bounced into a meeting of the state board that doles out tax credits. She emerged with her smile firmly back in place, announcing 19 new projects creating a whopping 6,900 new jobs with none of them in the shaky major manufacturing segment of the economy.

Despite the GM setbacks, she confided that with the Dow deal and these other 6,900 jobs, she could honestly say she was changing the job landscape in Michigan, one job at a time.

But in the same interview, she had to explain why Michigan lost the new Volkswagen plant to a state in Dixie. In a more reflective tone, she confessed that Tennessee had a plant site ready to go; Michigan did not. When asked if Michigan's strong union roots were part of the problem, she receded.

"You'll have to ask the company," she said. "I don't want to speculate."

But she conceded that VW had asked "lots of questions about that."

So there you had a July 15 full of the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat.

It was the type of two-steps-forward and two-steps-backward kind of day that has haunted this governor from the opening bell.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor: I am writing to Lyndon Township residents voting in the upcoming Aug. 5 primary. This election is not about property taxes or the township board members ability to raise or lower them. Taxes are allocated by operating charters of schools and community colleges, the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners for county taxes and the state mandates the State Education tax. Additional taxes for these institutions are voted millages. They must appear on a ballot and are approved or rejected by you, the voters.

The Lyndon Township millage is under 1 mill and was the lowest operating millage in Washtenaw County at .7224 for 2007. The Headlee Amendment will reduce this millage again in 2008.

Mary Jane Maze
Lyndon Township
Treasurer

To the Editor: Regarding the John Francis vs. Maryann Noah campaign for Lyndon Township supervisor.

I've been a resident of Lyndon Township for 25 years. During Noah's reign she has done everything in her power to block any advancement to the current century. She has blocked tornado sirens, cell towers, cable service, high speed internet, etc.

Interesting that during Noah's reign she has always banned signs lining the roads until this campaign. Now that she has an opponent it's OK for her to line the roads with campaign signs.

The point was made during the recall effort that Noah is no longer wanted to lead this township. Francis is the only answer to bring our community into the 21st century. He has the broad vision and a plan to move ahead.

Claudia Bahm
Lyndon Township

To the Editor: Maryann Noah, the incumbent Lyndon Township supervisor, has earned and well-deserves the support of the Lyndon Township electorate on Aug. 5.

She has dedicated herself to protecting and preserving the beauty of Lyndon Township while recognizing the need to confront practical challenges facing its' businesses and families, such as the need for high-speed (broadband) internet access - necessary not only as a matter of convenience, but also in order to maintain the marketability of the Lyndon Township lifestyle.

Throughout the past 12 years Maryann Noah has worked as township supervisor to build solid, functioning relationships with leaders of the greater Chelsea area and Washtenaw County.

Whether working as a member of the Multi-Lakes Sewer Authority, the Chelsea Fire Authority, on a variety of regional water, sewer and utility boards, or the Chelsea-Dexter planning team, Maryann Noah is a dedicated advocate for and guardian of Lyndon Township. Having had the opportunity to work with Maryann Noah through my efforts on the Zoning Board of Appeal, I enthusiastically support Maryann Noah's campaign for Township Supervisor and ask others to consider doing the same.

Susan V. Brown
Lyndon Township

To the Editor: One of my supporters for supervisor informed me on Sunday that some of my campaign signs are missing from the front yards around the township.

I checked and some signs are indeed missing from the spots where I was given permission to put them.

Those signs are important to me. They are a campaign tool to encourage folks to vote for me in the Aug. 5 primary. I don't want to lose more signs.

If these are the actions (supporters of Maryann Noah) condone, if this is the way you think you can win an election - then that speaks to your character. I am putting you on notice that I am running my campaign for supervisor of Lyndon Township with integrity, and I expect the same from you.

With or without my campaign signs, the residents of Lyndon Township will know the name Francis.

John Francis
Candidate for Lyndon Township supervisor

To the Editor: I support Maryann Noah for Lyndon Township Supervisor.

Janet and I have known Maryann since I was appointed Lima Township Supervisor in 1997. She was a significant help to me as I served Lima Township.

Maryann is dedicated and committed to the needs of Lyndon Township and our entire Chelsea region. She has the ability to investigate, understand, and address the continuously changing conditions that we face especially in the current challenging economic conditions.

Regional cooperation is extremely important especially in the areas of public safety (emergency medical, police, and fire services), roads, zoning, and planning. In 1999 she and I were two of the 10 signers of the Chelsea Area Fire Authority Articles of Incorporation. She continues to serve as chairperson of the CAFA Board and I served with her as an at-large board member for two years. We worked together on the Chelsea Area Planning Team, the Chelsea Area Traffic Committee, the Washtenaw Chief Elected Officials, and on formation of the Chelsea Area Construction Agency.

Two specific lesser known examples of Maryann's leadership come to mind.

First, Maryann organized a workshop presented locally by the Michigan Township Association entitled "How to Avoid Zoning Lawsuits." In that workshop we learned how to make our ordinances more defensible in court while

Changes are needed in state government

A group has surfaced in Michigan supposedly seeking to place on the November election ballot proposals for sweeping changes in state government.

Among the changes being proposed by Reform Michigan Government Now, the Legislature would remain full-time and term-limited, but it would shrink. The Senate would be reduced from 38 seats to 28, while the House would go from 110 to 82.

The pay raise lawmakers gave themselves in 2002 would be rolled back. Lawmakers also would have to disclose personal financial information and be out of office for at least two years before they could become lobbyists.

A nonpartisan panel would be appointed to handle legislative redistricting, a task now dominated by whichever political party happens to be in control at the time.

The group faces a similar deadline to an organization that Henry Woloson of Clarkston helped form. Woloson's group, Reform Michigan Government, had been trying to place a proposal for a part-time Legislature on the November ballot, but has stopped that effort after determining they couldn't gather the 400,000 they wanted by the July 7 deadline.

Woloson has questioned the similarity of Reform Michigan Government Now's name to his own group's name and also doubts it will meet the deadline.

His group is now concentrating on winning approval for a Constitutional Convention, where plans and proposals to revamp state government could be studied, discussed and drafted.

Woloson says he's worried that people will confuse the two groups and possibly make his efforts for a Constitutional Convention more difficult.

Voters are asked every 16 years if they want a constitutional convention. They said no in 1978 and 1994. The last constitutional convention in Michigan was in 1961. Voters will get a chance to say "yes" in 2010 and that's what Woloson and his group want.

We share Woloson's concerns. It appears highly unlikely the new group will meet the deadline for gathering signatures.

In the meantime, if people get too confused over the names, then they may just say no to everything.

That would be a mistake. A constitutional convention just might be the best way to reorganize state government, something that is badly needed.

Grassroots efforts such as Woloson's are good for Michigan. We encourage them and would love to see more people get involved in helping determine how they are governed. Too many people complain about state government, but are either afraid or too apathetic to get involved.

Whether you agree with him or not, Woloson is to be commended for his dedication and the hours of volunteer work that he has given to these causes. We need more people like him.

Admittedly, we can't say for sure that a part-time Legislature or expanded term limits are the solutions to the state's huge economic problems and laborious government. But they are alternatives that deserve to be studied and/or voted on by the people.

A constitutional convention may just be the forum for which we can study, discuss and draft improvements to state government. It's been the "business as usual" mindset that has placed Michigan in its current tenuous position. Maybe the exact solution or solutions haven't been drafted or finalized. But one thing is certain, changes in state government need to be made.

And grassroots changes that involve citizens making common-sense, reasonable decisions are, ideally, the best path to follow.

Our Chelsea History

Who was the function of the early American Express agents in Chelsea?

- A shipper of coffee and tea.
- An early postal delivery system.
- Shipper of packages and goods by railroad.
- National travel and insurance agents.

Answer C. Since 1859 William Hatch was Chelsea's first express agent out of his downtown store. Albert Winans was another American Express agent bringing the business into the current Winans Jewelry building in 1898. Walter Kandlehner, also an optometrist and jeweler, ran an express office at the corner of Main and Middle. In 1913 Donald Bacon, who became owner of Central Fibre, was once a United Express agent one block south of the Chelsea House Hotel (Sylvan). An express agent was responsible for railroad express letter shipments and the package delivery industry. Wells Fargo, founded in 1852, was the American Express forerunner.

fairly and reasonably serving our residents' needs and desires.

Second, Maryann led a challenge to the proposal when we heard that a new oil pipeline was being planned to run through our townships. As a result of her leadership the pipeline was co-located on an existing electric power right-of-way and did not create a new utility easement running through our resident's yards. The Michigan Public Service Commission noted that this was the first time that local units of government had challenged one of their petitions.

I have seen Maryann spend countless hours working effectively for us all. Recently a friend asked me what I thought about this primary election. My answer, I support our friend Maryann Noah for Lyndon Township supervisor.

Former Lima township supervisor.

To the Editor: On Aug. 5 we have a chance to change directions in local politics in Lyndon Township. The primary will decide who will steer the township for the next four years.

The leadership should provide equal treatment for all residents in the township. Everyone should feel welcome and comfortable attending and speaking up at township meetings. The atmosphere should be collaborative and work toward solving problems and not adversarial and punitive.

I live on a private road that was put in years before our current Private Road ordinances were enacted. We were encouraged to develop an association, and when we didn't, a punitive policy was enacted to make any private road without an association apply for a variance to obtain a building permit.

You have pay $500 for the variance application, put up $750 to pay for an engineer to survey the road and pay for any improvements at the discretion of the township. The same engineer is paid repeatedly rather than making a list of the recommended improvements for fire and emergency access and have each person do the top two on the list. The previous permit requestors were only asked to do improvements up to their property and the policy changed for me and I was asked to do improvements beyond my property.

John Francis is running for Lyndon Township supervisor. I had the several opportunities to meet him in his role as township assessor in the 1980s and he was always approachable, respectful and handled the situation in a professional manner.

Over the years I have gotten to know him better and feel he will provide the type of leadership that will be fair, respectful and work with the citizens of Lyndon Township to solve problems. He feels that local government at this level should not be political but representative of the interest and concerns of the citizens of Lyndon Township.

I encourage everyone that has these same feelings make it a point to get out and vote, as this primary election will decide the position as there are no opposition in the fall.

Glenn R. Miller
Lyndon Twp.

To the Editor: For some time now the trustees of Lyndon Township Board have felt great frustration and grave concerns about the leadership of the township by Maryann Noah, supervisor. What we see is an atmosphere of disrespect and lack of consideration for the residents of our township.

There is a lack of open-mindedness, a lack of compromise and a lack fairness by the supervisor. Opposing view points, asking questions, voting "no" on motions is viewed upon with mistrust and negativity.

There is a policy in place to limit public input at board meetings. Lyndon Township Board minutes do not contain opinions of board members, comments made "for the record" are not allowed in the minutes.

Noah overrules and has final say on what is contained in the Board minutes before they are released. It is clear that the supervisor manipulates appointment to boards and authorities so that her personal agenda is met.

Lyndon Township is in the tight-fisted control of Maryann Noah and the best interests of the township are not being met. The decision-making process by the township board should be made with the best interests of the township residents in mind.

The reality is that the best interests of the public are secondary to the agenda of Noah. It is about power and control. In the bigger picture it is an erosion of democratic rights. What should be the norm - voices of all being heard and respected, after all this is grass-roots government.

Lyndon Township's leadership has strayed from what we all count on, and what we deserve.

Ignorance is bliss. But, as the trustees of Lyndon Township we want our residents to understand what is going in their local township government. We don't want it to be said that we didn't make an effort, before our terms of office end in November, to fully inform the constituents that we represent, to disclose issues that deeply concern us.

Lyndon Township Trustees
LeeAnn Shanahan and
Kathryn Francis

To the Editor: Once again we are nearing the political scheme of things, not only in our nation but our state, county and townships. There have been a lot of fireworks already fired in these contests as we are aware, and how much of it is true is anyone's guess.

More a case of political smog!

I am far more interested in hearing about what a person stands for. I am more concerned about their moral character. Do they have the drive to sincerely speak for us? Are we progressing as a county and township in the mainstream by our elected officials? Do they keep us informed? Are we progressing into the future?

I live in Lyndon Township and you have probably heard that our township supervisor is once again seeking another four year term. Mary Ann Noah has served us admirably for the last 12 years.

Mary Ann Noah has: Initiated the popular Fall Clean Up. Opened the offices at the Township hall for availability to residents. Developed a Web site. She insisted on training for all Planning Commissioners, Zoning Board of Appeals and Board of Review members. Provides Monday Friday, 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. availability of the Township Assessor. Offered informational seminars for Lyndon lake community residents. Open communications and coordination with neighboring governments. Ongoing and proactive in remediation of the Werkner/M-52 intersection. Characterizes Lyndon as a recreation and conservation township. Actively sought broadband access. Initiated the installation of water hydrants through out the Township to help ensure a rapid water supply for fire suppression. Stop the use of taxpayer dollars to pay for consultants used by the Township on behalf of developers. Establish a public utility corridor under the electric towers bisecting Lyndon. Challenged and won against the Michigan Public Service Commission establishing that Lyndon has the final authority for land use decisions. Challenged and won against the DNR when they attempted to violate Lyndon's zoning ordinance.

This is very impressive. Let me add that I am not necessarily playing on the Republican side. We have a mixed group in Lyndon Township. The Clerk, Linda Riley (Democrat), has served us honorably. I know of few people that could have done as well. She takes her job seriously and gives constantly in her duties. The same for our treasurer, Mary Jane Maze (Republican).

She is an outstanding person in her duties and is uncontested in this election. I am proud of the cohesiveness of our current elected officials. They work as a team for our benefit.

An open letter to those at the June 19 Dexter town hall meeting

By Shawn Keough
Guest Writer

On behalf of the Dexter Village Council, I would like to personally thank all those who attended the village's second town hall meeting on June 19.

Keough

It was a great way to discuss the topic of cityhood, and council members appreciate the interest and audience participation.

We were very pleased with the large attendance and the respectful manner in which questions, answers, thoughts and ideas were shared.

We will prepare a summary of the questions from the meeting and place them on the village Web site soon. We are also researching answers to some of the questions that we could not answer.

As we look to the future, residents should feel free to contact me or any other member of the Village Council with any question you may have.

We truly appreciate the feedback and input. We are also trying to find ways to increase communication with our residents, business owners and neighbors.

One way to ensure that you are aware of current events is to submit your e-mail to Courtney Nicholls at cnicholls@villageofdexter.org so that we can add you to our new e-mail distribution list.

You can also call Courtney at the village office with your e-mail information at (734) 426-8303, ext. 17.

If you choose to submit your e-mail address, we would also appreciate it if you could tell us how you first heard about the Town Hall meeting.

We are working hard to get the message out for future meetings (the next one is planned for Oct. 16) and we would be interested in knowing which of our current communication methods work best.

Again, thank you for your interest in our village and for your attendance at the town hall meeting. We look forward to seeing you at future village events, meetings and around our town.

Shawn Keough is President of the village of Dexter and can be reached at skeough@villageofdexter.org.

Idol success

Chelsea's Bobby Kucinski (above) and Charlotte Prenevost (left) finished in the top 10 at the Jackson's Teen Idol contest on Saturday. Prenevost made it to the top five following her rendition of "My Foolish Heart." Prenevost, who also performed "You're so Vein," received a $50 savings bond.

Washtenaw County: News

Money raised for shelter

The Home Builders Association of Washtenaw County recently held its sixth annual Festive Affair Charity Golf Tournament, which took in more than $33,000. The golf outing is held annually to benefit the Ken & Marianna Staples Family Center, a 90-day homeless shelter program operated by The Salvation Army of Washtenaw County.

"We are very blessed and grateful that the Home Builders Association chooses to support the Staples Family Center each year and contributes to the work we do to help individuals and families who have faced tough situations get back on their feet," Johnnie Bass, program director at the Staples Family Center, said in a news release.

The outing was held at the Polo Fields Golf and Country Club in Scio Township. A diverse group of 148 golfers participated in the event.

"The HBA of Washtenaw County has been involved with the Salvation Army Festive Affair because of the importance that the Staples Family Center plays in the hearts of so many in the community," said Maureen Sloan, chief executive officer of the Home Builders Association of Washtenaw County.

Blue Lake hosts concerts

Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp's International Youth Symphony Orchestra and International Choir will present two concerts at Hill Auditorium on the campus of the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor 7:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday. There will be no charge for admission.

Tuesday's concert will feature both the International Youth Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of its group leader and assistant conductor, Leah Brockman, and the International Choir, conducted by Mark Webb and accompanied by pianist Amy Grinsteiner.

Wednesday's concert, the International Youth Symphony and Music Director Fritz Stansell will perform and, in the Strauss Horn Concerto, the orchestra's group leader and assistant conductor, Leah Brockman, will be the horn soloist.

The 72 voice International Choir also consists of Blue Lake campers from Michigan and across the United States, some of whom have traveled from as far away as Louisiana and Washington State to participate. Washtenaw County singers include Gena Crichton of Ann Arbor and Daniel Wilson of Ypsilanti.

Business Coach: With Lauren Eichner

Showing interest in others

In a previous column I shared a summary of the "Top 10 Getting Results Principles."

Eichner

Perhaps the one principle that is vital to the lasting success of your business, but can be challenging for many is to focus on what is in the best interest of the client.

It may not immediately put food in your mouth, which is exactly why it can be difficult if you don't already have a thriving business.

Abraham Maslow, father of humanistic psychology, would tell you just how tough it is to put someone else's interest above your own if you can't even rub two nickels together for your own family. As explained by Maslow's Hierarchy of Needs, you need to be able to meet your basic human needs (food, water, shelter) before you can focus on anyone else.

He's right. But what most people fail to do is see that by helping others you can actually help yourself.

While there may be times when what is in the best interest for your client may not be in your pocket's best interest, the majority of the time it is. Thinking about what is honestly in your client's best interest will allow you to 'sell' better.

Often, the most challenging part of selling is that we feel that we are somehow taking advantage of them or duping them into buying what we are offering. That is coming from the 'needy' mindset. The alternative way of 'selling' is to really focus on what your client truly needs.

After all, you are the professional and you have the knowledge and skill-set to help your client. This is all you have to focus on to make your job much easier.

Being in the position of having to sell our service or product that serves other people can create a bit of a mental dilemma. Rather than come from a mindset of a salesperson, start with the mindset of a service person. Making this subtle mental shift will ultimately make you a substantial financial shift.

Lauren Eichner is a nationally renowned business coach who works with business executives and individuals in relationship based sales businesses. You can check out their website at www.GettingResultsCoaching.com

County news

Washtenaw County Sheriff Dan Minzey cleared in Hatch Act Probe

Washtenaw County Sheriff Daniel J. Minzey received notice from the U.S. Office of Special Counsel that he has been cleared of any wrongdoing as a result of the investigation into alleged Hatch Act violations.

Dan Minzey

Minzey was recently contacted by an attorney with the Hatch Act Unit who told the sheriff that the investigation was completed and there was no evidence of any violation of the law.

An anonymous complaint was filed recently with the federal government alleging that Minzey violated the federal Hatch Act while campaigning for sheriff in the 2000 general election. It was during that campaign season that Minzey was first elected as sheriff of Washtenaw County.

"I knew that was going to be the case," Minzey said. "I was not in violation of the law. The complaint was filed solely for political reasons, and I think the investigators saw that."

Minzey was a road patrol sergeant when he ran for office in 2000, and as such did not administer or receive any federal funds, which would have been contrary to the statute.

"I very quickly provided them with documentation demonstrating that I was not in violation of the law, so that they could complete their investigation and move on to other matters," Minzey said.

Salvation Army is in need of food donations

The Salvation Army of Washtenaw County (TSA-WC) recently received more than 30 boxes of food donated by employees and residents of McKinley Associates at the company's annual picnic.

While McKinley's donations will help bulk up the food pantry, TSA-WC is asking the community to continue donating items to help stock the low pantry.

Following are items needed for TSA-WC's pantry: Cereal (hot and cold), canned meat (tuna, chicken, beef in gravy), canned beans (all varieties), peanut butter, saltine crackers, packaged dinners (macaroni and cheese, hamburger and tuna noodle casseroles), rice, instant potatoes, egg noodles or noodle mixes, dry pasta and spaghetti sauce, canned fruits and vegetables, dry milk, Jell-O flavored gelatin and pudding mixes.

TSA-WC's 90-day homeless shelter, the Staples Family Center, is also running low on the following items: Bed linen, towels and wash cloths, personal hygiene items (disposable razors, soap, toothbrushes, toothpaste and feminine products), kitchenware, cleaning supplies and children's books.

All those interested in donating or volunteering with TSA-WC can stop by the Ann Arbor Corps (100 Arbana Drive), or call Janice Nelson at 734-668-8353 (ext. 217).

exactly why this township needs a new supervisor.

I am shocked by current supervisor's lack of compromise and a fair treatment to all residents. I have spoken to residents who will not speak up on their problems or concerns to her because they fear retribution of some sort. She does not treat all residents in Lyndon Township the same.

I disagree with the way she chairs the board meetings. I gave much more time and consideration to members of the audience and the board members to express themselves, as well as asking their input during meetings.

I have encouraged, and will encourage residents to attend meetings. I will share the floor whenever necessary. One of my strengths is the ability to keep an open mind and be flexible when important decisions need to be made that involve many township residents. Good leadership demands the ability to compromise, cooperate. A good supervisor and board makes the most of working as a team to improve our township and future.

Your opponent and his supporters have raised a number of questions about your governance, alleging improper billing for attending meetings, spending township funds without board approval on an office trailer and paving the parking lot at the township hall, not pursuing high-speed Internet access, not allowing free exchange of ideas at meetings, and even stealing election signs from people's yards. How do you respond?

Noah: When I was elected in 1996 I was the only new person on the board. When we had special meetings we got paid for them that was how it was already set up.

I started going through budgets and audits, board members when he was supervisor got paid for meetings and raised the budget to pay for it.

The board several years ago passed a resolution that you can get paid for up to two nonstatutory meetings a month.

News in Brief

Chelsea's Harris wins $1,000 scholarship from credit union

American 1 Federal Credit Union awarded a Chelsea High School graduate a $1,000 scholarship for her commitment to altruism and community service.

Emily Harris of Chelsea received a $1,000 Community Involvement Award scholarship, sponsored by American 1.

The credit union opened its first Washtenaw branch at Polly's Country Market in Chelsea in December, and Harris is the first Chelsea High School graduate to win the award.

Applications were taken in February and the scholarship committee decided the winners in April.

Harris was highly involved in both extracurricular activities and the community while in high school.

She wrote a 2,500-word-or-less essay on the benefits of altruism and how she improved their community through service.

American 1 has rewarded deserving and community-minded high school seniors with $1,000 scholarships since 2000. The credit union awarded 10 high school seniors with the award this year to students in the communities it serves.

Kids must read or listen to 20 books and teens have to read 2,000 pages to be eligible.

for two meetings a month for the recycling authority and construction authority. She was charging $65 for going over and signing checks and calling it a meeting.

They are taking things and turning them 180 degrees out of phase.

Those other expenditures were board approved, they are in the minutes.

We have a policy on maintenance issues, we can only spend up to $250 without board approval.

The township hall is a township asset; you have a fiduciary responsibility to maintain it as the seat of government.

I think high-speed Internet access is hugely important, because without that inter-connectivity Lyndon residents are at an extreme disadvantage.

Why would someone buy a house in Lyndon without Internet access when they can go to any other township and have it?

This election better be won or lost on a whole lot more than missing yard signs.

I've done so much in my last 12 years to serve the township and the greater community, I'd hate to see my record diminished by something so petty.

As you know, most residents of a township don't follow the local political scene very closely (unless their taxes are going to be raised), so why should residents care about this election?

Francis: Lyndon Township residents need to know that their supervisor will be chosen on Aug. 5. This primary election is an extremely important date. There are only the two candidates running for Lyndon Township Supervisor.

Noah: Local government has everything to do with the desirability of an area to live in. It's not a county, not a state and not a federal responsibility; it's up to local government.

There's a lot at stake in keeping Lyndon a desirable, safe place to live.

I want people to think that they are not residents of Chelsea or Stockbridge or Gregory, wherever their mailing address happens to be; I want them to take pride in being residents of Lyndon, and that depends 100 percent on the level of goods governance by their local elected public officials.

Chelsea Teddy Bear Co.
opens toy museum
featuring impressive collection from world-renowned collector

Photos by Burrill Strong

Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. owner Bob Turner will host a grand opening of the Chelsea Toy Museum this weekend.

Inventor of Teddy Bear lived in Jackson

While Santa Claus came from the North Pole, the man responsible for creating the teddy bear boom lived for many years around the corner from the Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. Richard Steiff, creator of the greatest toy in the world - the teddy bear - lived in Jackson after moving from his native Germany.

"He's right up there with Santa Claus when it comes to toys," says Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. Owner Bob Turner. "He was a real character too, a Willy Wonka type character. And very few people knew or know to this day that he lived in Jackson."

Steiff, a German inventor and entrepreneur, was the nephew of toymaker Margarete Steiff and is credited with designing the Steiff Company's first toy bear. Born in Glengen, Germany, Steiff entered his aunt's toymaking enterprise in 1897. While attending the School of Arts and Crafts in Stuttgart, he would often visit the Nill'scher Zoo and spend much of his time drawing the residents of the bear enclosure.

His sketches of the bears were incorporated into the prototype of the toy bear he created in 1902. At its debut at the Leipzig Toy Fair in 1903, the bear initially attracted little attention, but its fortunes were saved when an American buyer snapped up the entire lot of 100 bears and ordered another 3,000 just before the exhibition finished.

At the Saint Louis World's Fair in 1904, the Steiffs sold 12,000 bears and received the Gold Medal, which was the highest honor at the event. The kind of toy bear they pioneered acquired the appellation "teddy" from several legends about Theodore Roosevelt.

Steiff bears, with a small metal "Steiff" clip in the ear, are now quite valuable. "After the war he really struggled because the entire town counted on him for work," Turner said. "He was told to either move or the pressure would kill him. So he moved to Jackson, Michigan in 1923. He continued to manage the German toy company Steiff GmbH long after he moved here."

Steiff died at age 62 in Jackson on March 30, 1939.

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

Robert Turner can barely contain his excitement. He's like a kid in a candy store - or better yet, an owner of a teddy bear company in a toy museum. It just so happens to be his toy museum inside his teddy bear company.

Turner, owner of the Chelsea Teddy Bear Co., may be married and have kids and look all grown up, but inside he's just a kid. His business is a model of efficiency. It employs many talented and hard working people, and his company continues to grow and expand.

Many people who have enjoyed this kind of success buy toys such as fast cars, boats and private jets - all for their own enjoyment.

Turner also enjoys toys. But these are real toys and he likes nothing better than to show them off and share their stories. All of this led to his creating the Toy Museum, another jewel in the ever expanding crown of Chelsea.

"The teddy bear has been the most popular toy in the world since it was first introduced in 1906, so teddy bears will obviously be a big part of the attraction, and some of the best early examples from companies like Steiff and Bing will be represented in the museum," said Turner. "On exhibit will be many rare and valuable toys that trace the history of toys around the world."

The Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. will officially open the new Toy Museum this weekend as part of the SummerFest activities. Tours and other family events are planned as part of the celebration.

The Toy Museum is a new addition to the company's downtown Chelsea factory complex, and is being billed as one of the finest toy museums in the United States.

"Ken Yenke has one of the greatest collection of toys in the world and he was excited about showcasing some of them here in Chelsea," Turner said. "The museum is based on his collection. What's really interesting is seeing the history of toys and how they have been a teaching tool for kids. These toys have taught generations of kids how to do things."

The exhibit includes many rare and valuable antique toys from Yenke's collection. One teddy bear on display in Chelsea has only one other like it that is known to exist, and that bear is on display in the Smithsonian.

Yenke, an author who travels the country giving seminars on his collection, was excited about the idea of sharing his passion with Turner.

"Two years ago I was doing a show in Ann Arbor and Bob introduced himself and invited me to talk in Chelsea," said Yenke, who lives in Strongsville, Ohio. "Bob went to Germany on business and spent a day visiting some of the museums there and he was so enamored with them that he asked if I had enough items to start a museum here."

Yenke didn't think they would be able to put everything together in time for SummerFest, but "somehow Bob got everything together and got everything in place."

Basketweaving classes are tomorrow, Saturday

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Basketweaver Mary Smith-Stokes returns for a third time as guest instructor tomorrow and Saturday at Cheryl Braun Basketweaving, 7300 Huron River Drive in Dexter.

The Battle Creek weaver will teach some of her original designs - a needle-felted pincushion basket class on Friday evening and several selections in a day of basketweaving on Saturday.

"Mary is a top notch veteran and very well known nationally," Braun says.

Smith-Stokes has been weaving since 1984 and teaching for almost as long. She has a bachelor's degree in Home and Family Living from Siena Heights University in Adrian and has taught at the junior and high school levels.

Basketweaving became a passion with her very first class, after which she and a friend decided to pass on their newly learned art to friends.

The sessions were a success, and they continued taking classes and co-teaching - not just for friends but at several area craft shops and the Battle Creek Art Center.

They also established a business, Tisket 'n' Tasket, to sell their woven baskets at local art fairs. After her friend moved out of the area, Smith-Stokes branched out on her own, quickly gaining recognition as a skilled instructor.

She has spent more than two decades teaching many aspiring weavers through community education, girl and boy Scout troops, churches, basket guilds, and state associations in over 15 states.

A highlight was the opportunity in 2000 of teaching a class in Tokyo where her husband was working as a consultant. "This was truly a high point in my weaving career and one of my fondest memories," she says.

Her style of basket weaving is usually along utilitarian lines, she says. While designing baskets, she includes weaving techniques that will give students a more vast knowledge of skills upon which to build their own creations and improve their weaving level.

"Nothing gives me more pleasure than to see a student's excitement when mastering a technique or learning a new method of weaving," she says. "And there are many tricks I've a recently published book spotlighting basketweavers in the Great Lakes region that have contributed to the preservation of the art of basket weaving.

Three of her baskets have been donated to the Michigan State Museum along with over 70 baskets of other weavers involved in this project.

She also has woven baskets for an upscale bath and kitchen shop in Kalamazoo and a trunk for a 1911 Hudson. Her Cat Head Mitten Basket pattern was featured in 'Just Patterns' magazine a few years ago.

Smith-Stokes is the second top-notch instructor in recent weeks at the Dexter store. Earlier in the month, international teacher Gail Hutchinson from West Virginia spent three days teaching there.

"My shop has been a draw for several of the best known teachers in the country," Braun says. "And for one of the best known in the world, Flo Hoppe. She has taught in Australia, Japan, Germany, England, Canada, the United States, and I don't even know how many other countries, and she was here last summer to teach for three days."

"I guess my shop is getting known nationally little by little. I've had teachers from all over the country and with various specialties come here to teach."

Like Smith-Stokes, Braun was hooked on basketweaving from her very first attempt, and since then has "gone crazy" weaving, designing baskets, and teaching, she says.

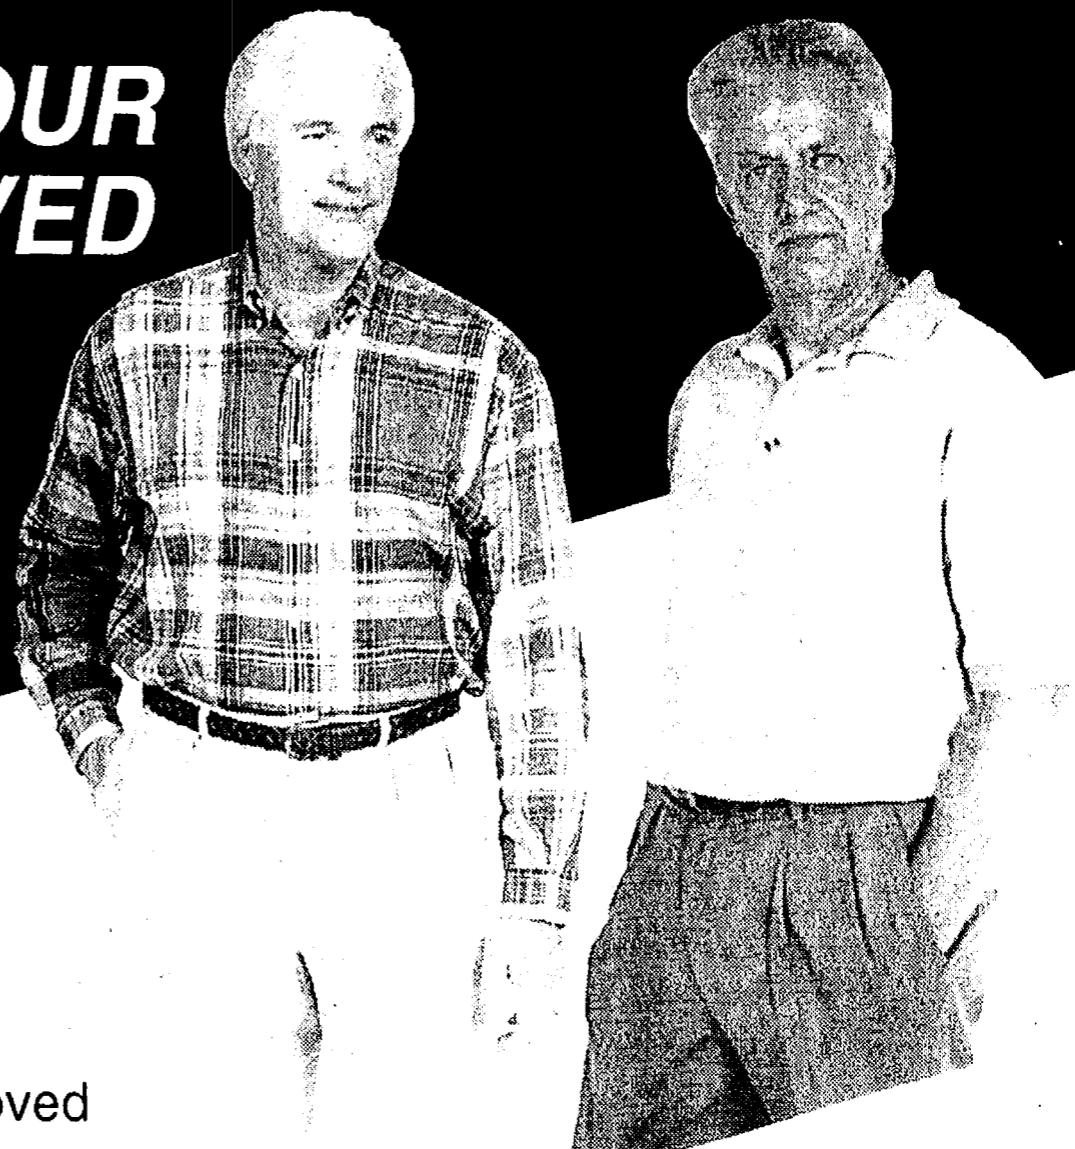

She was excited and honored to be featured as the cover story in the May 2008 "Basket Bits" magazine, the largest basket magazine in the country.

"It's a pretty big deal in basket circles," she says. "I was also the featured artist in the Fall 2007 'Just Patterns' magazine, the other major basket magazine in the country."

"I still don't think people realize how rare it is to have a full service basket shop right here in Dexter, with an internationally known teacher at their fingertips."

Bring a Teddy Bear and become part of history

The Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. invites all teddy bear lovers to help them break their own Guinness World Record for the world's largest teddy bear mosaic in an event taking place on Saturday.

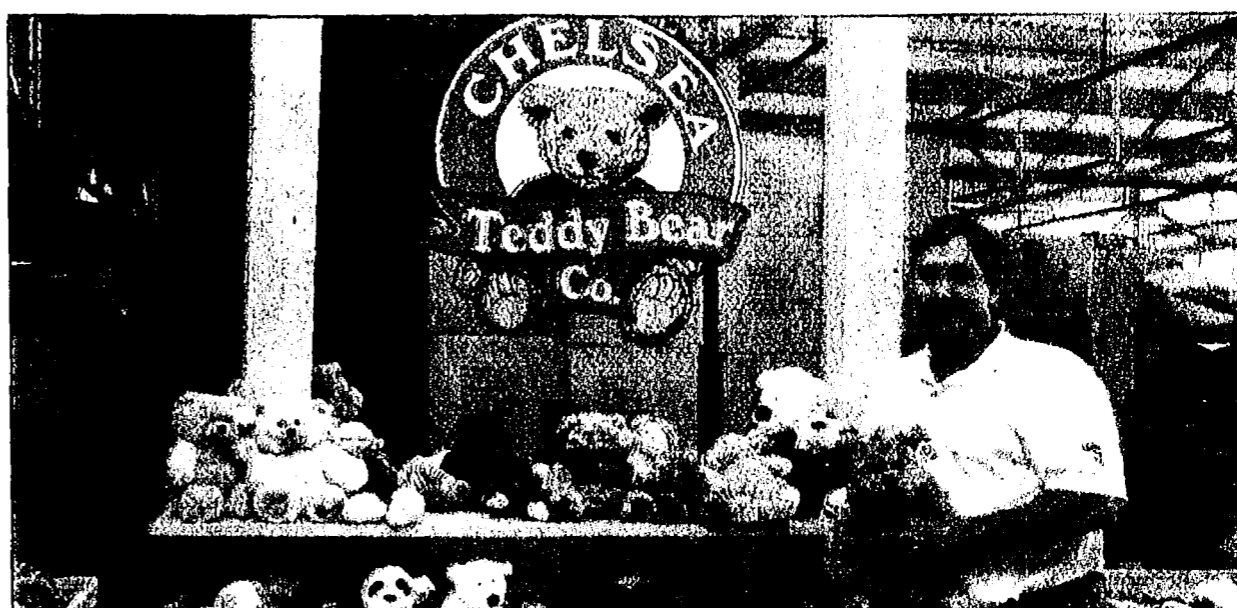

The company asks anyone interested in contributing to the world record to bring a teddy bear to the event. That bear will become part of a large peace symbol mosaic in the parking lot for the official Guinness measurement and picture scheduled for noon on that day.

The teddy will be returned to its rightful owner after the official measurement and record is broken.

The Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. is the current Guinness world record holder for a large American flag made out of red, white and blue teddy bears, now on display in the factory outlet store. A picture and description of the record mosaic appears on page 176 of the 2008 Guinness World Record book.

"Since we are the current record holders, we know what needs to be done to set a new world record, so anyone joining us for the event can be pretty confident that your teddy bear will help break the record and will appear in the Guinness Book next year," Company President Bob Turner said. "This is something your teddy bear can be very proud of."

The peace symbol mosaic was chosen because teddy bears are universally loved around the world, and "they're good ambassadors for peace," says Turner.

Owner Bob Turner of the Chelsea Teddy Bear Co.

"The museum will be free because we understand that families especially are feeling the pinch of higher gas and food prices," Turner said. "We want to offer them something to do that doesn't cost anything."

Yenke, who often brings part of his collection on the road when giving lectures, was glad to have a place to showcase his collection. The items on display range from the late 1880s through the 1950s.

"The Chelsea Toy Museum will not be the largest in the world, but it will be one of the best," he said. "Visitors will be able to get a very good idea about the history and evolution of toys. They will see items that are seldom seen and possibly not on display anywhere else."

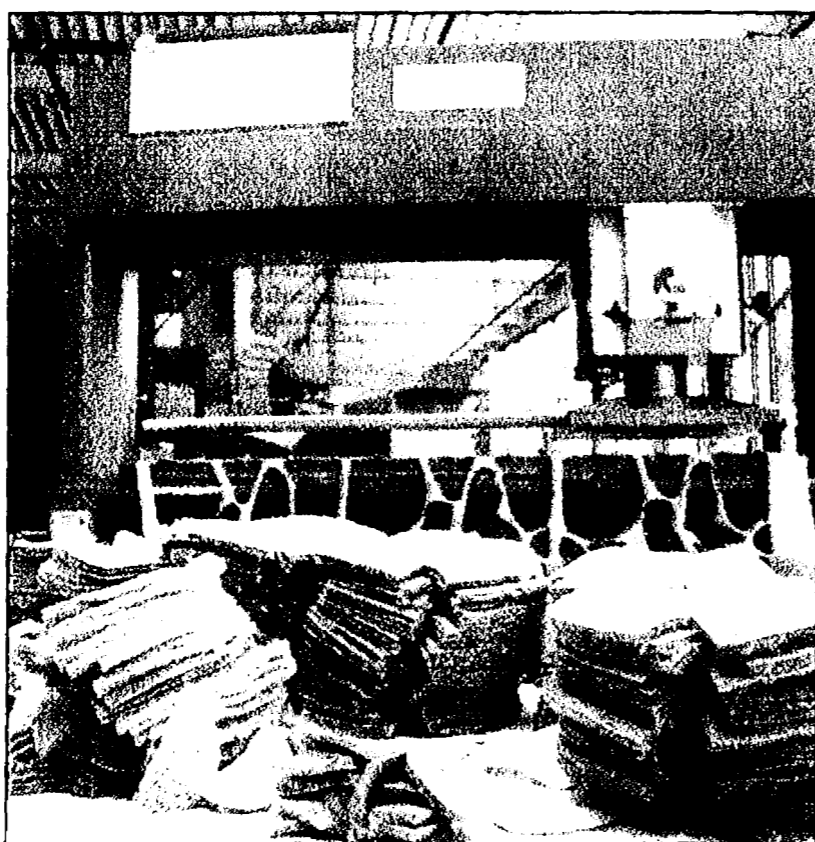

Breaking up his collection wasn't easy.

"The hardest part was separating ourselves from these things," he said. "Some of them are one of a kind or only one of a few known to exist. But we take comfort knowing they are in good hands and in the right place. They are displayed well and people young and old can now appreciate them."

Yenke, who has been collecting toys for over a quarter century, is more concerned about quality than quantity. While the Chelsea Toy Museum isn't the largest in the world, it's filled with unique and historical pieces.

"You don't want one of the largest museums, you want one of the finest museums," Yenke said. "And I think Chelsea has that with this collection."

That collection includes a 1905 16-inch Steiff Bear, one of only two known to exist. The other is on display in the Smithsonian. The Toy Museum also has another 1905 Steiff Bear, most likely the first teddy bear to be seen in Michigan. A year later, in Tours inside the Chelsea Teddy Bear Co. give visitors a first-hand look at how the bears are created.

Teddy Bears get their name from former President Teddy Roosevelt, who adopted them as his mascot during his re-election campaign.

1906, the teddy bear became the No. 1 toy in America and has been ever since.

Turner points out a photograph of President Teddy Roosevelt along with a cartoon that was featured in the Washington Post. He then goes into story-mode, telling how the teddy bear got its start in America.

"In 1902 the president had to go down to Mississippi to help settle a border dispute between Mississippi and Louisiana," Turner said. "While they were there they went hunting and he came away empty. So they cornered, clubbed and tied a cub bear to a willow tree and called Roosevelt to the site and suggested he shoot it. He wouldn't shoot it because that wasn't really sportsmanlike."

"Well, a cartoonist from the Washington Post (Clifford Berryman) picked up on this and drew a cartoon of the scene. He then went on to include a small bear in many of his cartoons of Roosevelt. So Teddy adopted the bear as his campaign mascot."

The Chelsea Toy Museum features two of about a half dozen known "Teddy's Bears."

Admission to the museum is free.

Local athletes receive accolades

Chelsea and Dexter athletes continue turning heads and earning honors with their performances at all levels throughout the sporting world.

At Albion College, Chelsea's Austin Rodgers received a varsity award for his participation in men's track and field this past season. The Britons finished third in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association this year.

Also at Albion, Chelsea's Chris Tapping finished with a 13-7 overall record this season as a member of the Britons' men's tennis team. He placed third individually in the MIAA with a 4-2 mark.

In May, Dexter brothers Branden and Andy Paulun faced each other on the baseball diamond. Branden pitched two innings for Bethel College allowing only one hit. Andy, however, took home bragging rights, as Spring Arbor University prevailed 22-5.

Chelsea native Dallas Cochrane won a golf Masters Tournament last month shooting a four over par 76.

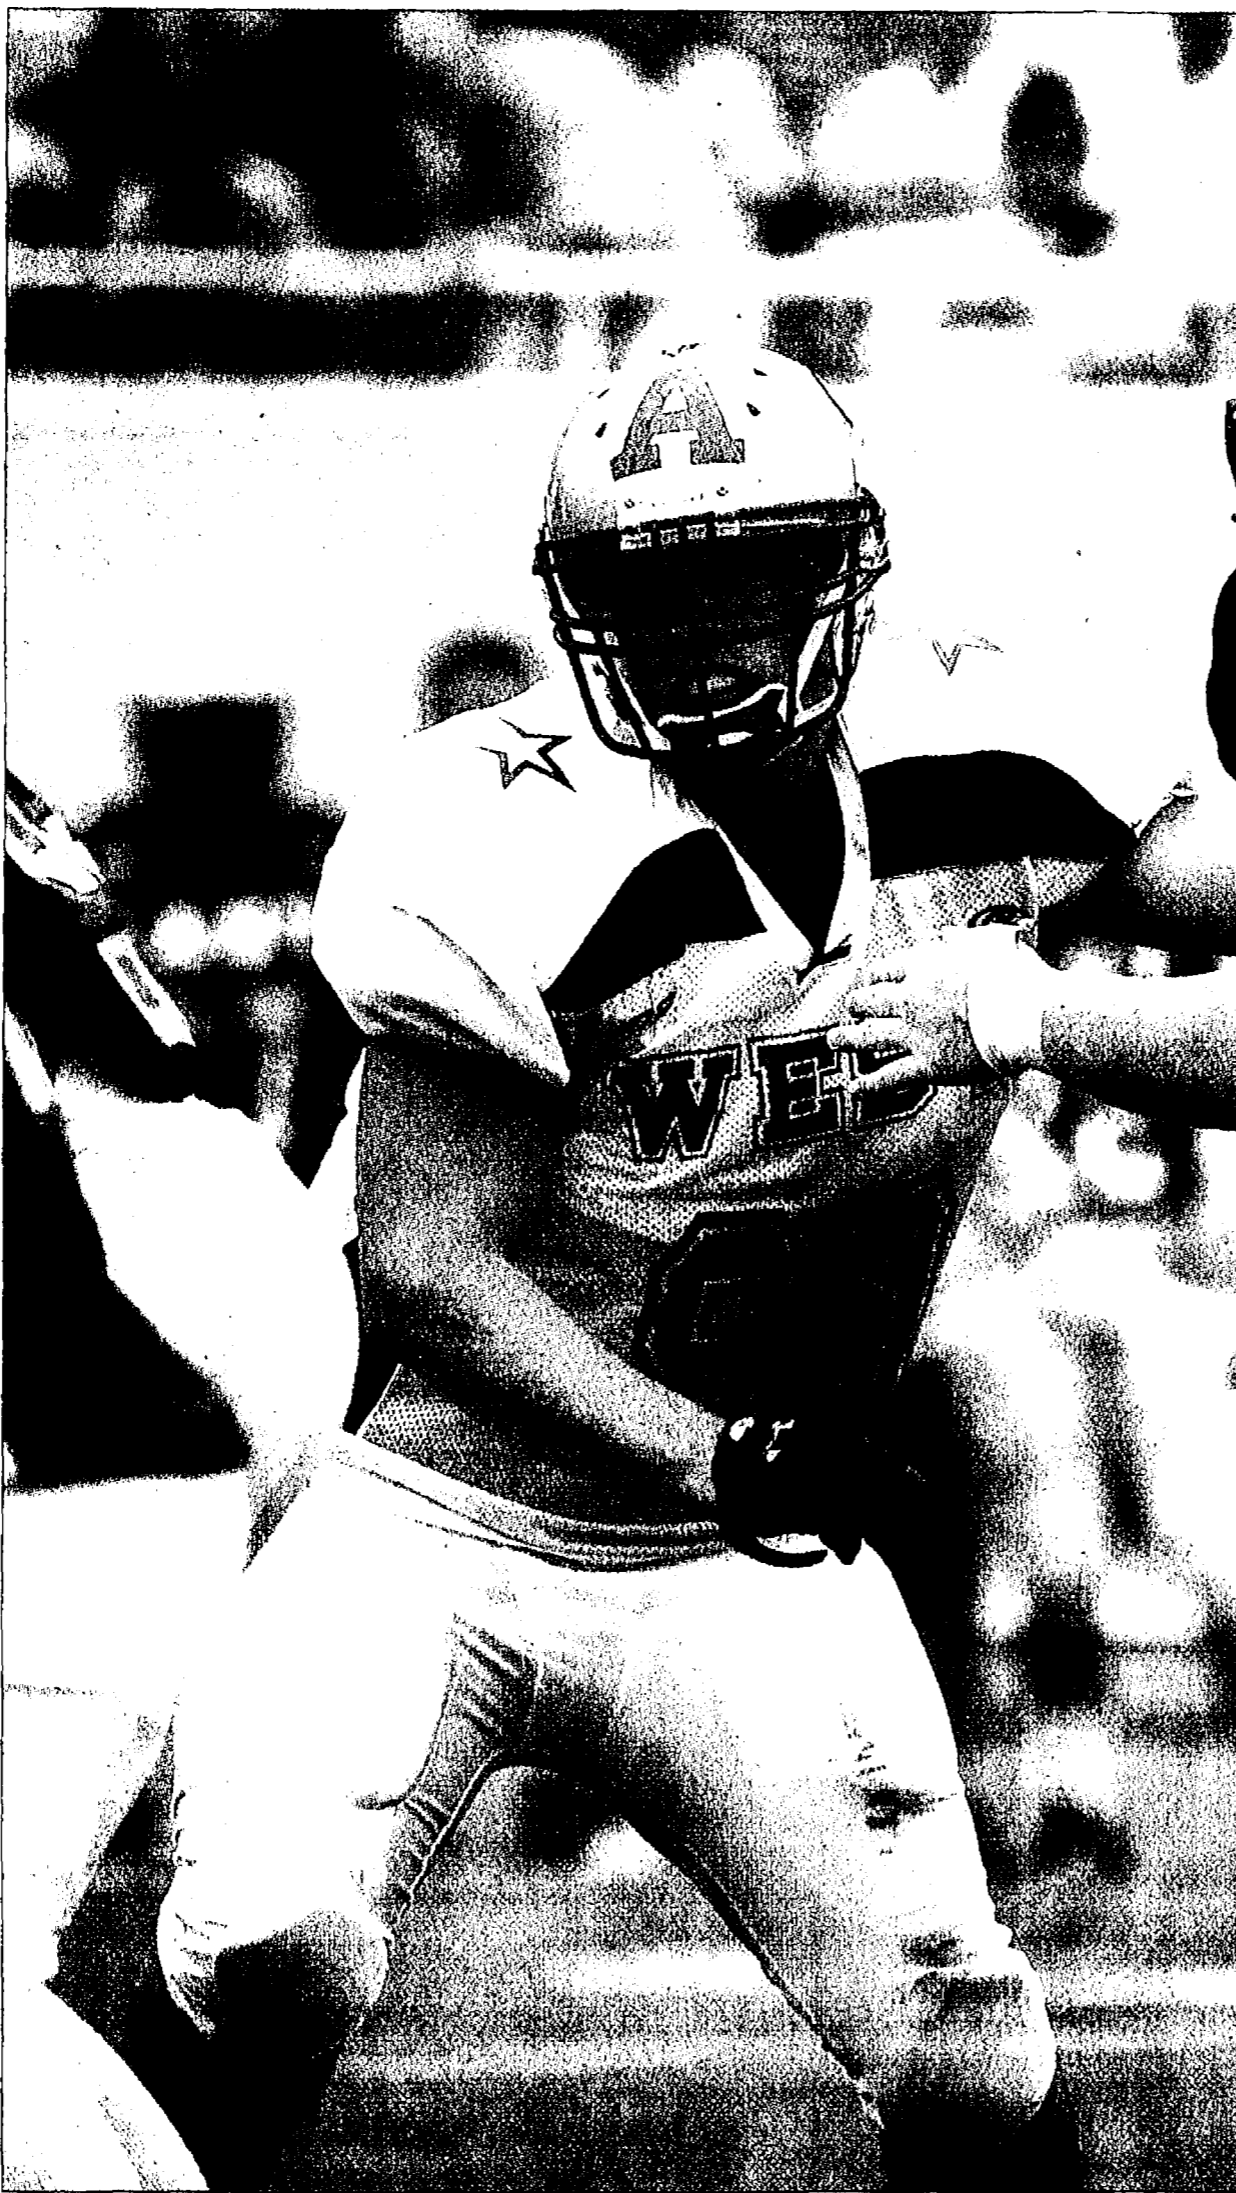

At Alma College, Chelsea's Missy Morcom concluded her softball career as one of the Scots' best ever on the field and in the classroom. An outfielder and lead-off hitter for Alma, Morcom recorded 43 putouts and committed only one error this past season. For her career, Morcom clubbed a Scot record 22 home runs. She finished her career second in Alma softball history in walks with 60, third in doubles with 35, third in RBIs with 99 and 10th in batting average with a mark of .347.

Morcom was named first team All-MIAA and second team All-Region this past year. She was selected co-MVP with shortstop Amy Gaudard. In the classroom, Morcom made the MIAA Honor Roll of Athletes and the Dean's List with a grade point average of 3.85.

At Hillsdale College, Dexter freshman Brent Opland started 38 games for the Charger baseball team this past spring. Opland batted .257, with 14 RBIs, 29 hits, 14 runs scored, four doubles and 12 walks. Also on the Hillsdale team this season were Chelsea freshmen Adam Connell and Dan Rhodes. Connell started 45 games batting .333, with one home run, 12 RBIs, 44 hits, 27 runs scored, seven doubles, two triples and eight stolen bases.

Rhodes appeared in a team-high 12 games as a pitcher, with a 2-5 record. 3.83 earned run average, two saves, six starts, 49 innings pitched, 22 strikeouts, 18 walks and 27 earned runs. Hillsdale finished 17-29 overall and 10-18 in the Washtenaw County was well represented at last Saturday's 28th annual Michigan High School Football Coaches Association East-West All-Star Game at Michigan State University's Spartan Stadium.

The East defeated the West 9-0 in a rain-soaked, defensive-minded game in front of over 7,000 fans.

Locals participating in the game included Chelsea's Brad Bush, who was head coach of the West All-Stars, assistant coach Grant Fanning and defensive tackle Dean Roberts (6-foot-3, 265 pounds). Dexter outside linebacker Chris Marsh (6-3, 215), Ypsilanti wide receiver Marvon Sanders (5-9, 170), Saline wide receiver Sam Burchyett (6-2, 190) and Ann Arbor Pioneer offensive tackle Fadi Farha (6-4, 280) also competed for the West squad in the contest.

"I never thought it'd be 9-0," said Bush, whose Chelsea program is known for its high-scoring, wide-open offense. "I really thought offensively we'd score some points. Our defense played great. It's frustrating. It's tough to get ready in six days, but they outplayed us. We were just a step away the whole game."

On numerous occasions last Saturday, West receivers found themselves open down the field, but quarterbacks Adam Follett (6-5, 210), from Alma, who'll play at Indiana next season, and Kirk Deering, from Grand Rapids West Catholic, (5-11, 180), who'll suit up for Saginaw Valley State University, oftentimes overthrew their intended targets.

"We were just a hair out of synch offensively," said Fanning, normally Chelsea's defensive coordinator, but last Saturday he coached the receivers and tight ends. "We were close, but that's how it goes in an All-Star game."

The East opened the scoring as Westland John

Glenn's Victor Sanders kicked a 32-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead with 2:26 left in the first quarter.

At 11:07 of the second quarter, Sanders booted a 42-yard field goal for a 6-0 East advantage.

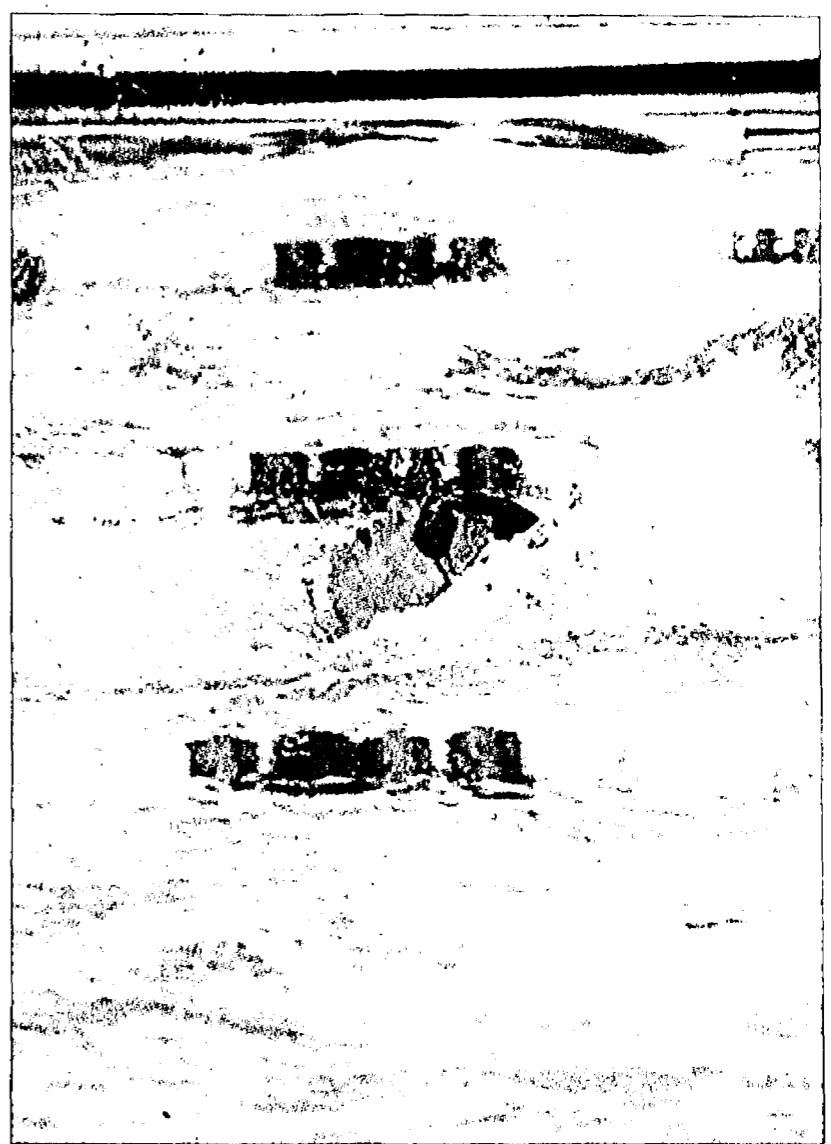

With 4:55 remaining in the third quarter, Sanders split the uprights with a 32-yard field goal for the game's final margin.

With the win, the East avenged last year's 9-7 West victory. The East leads the all-time series 15-13.

Despite the loss, Bush said last week was an enjoyable experience.

Rec council growing

By Michelle Mitchell
Guest Writer

Over the years, Chelsea Recreation Council has grown in both its programs and in its participation. With this growth, we have experienced many, many positive improvements.

We recently implemented the Inter-Community Recreation League (ICRL) with the baseball and softball leagues. Behind the scenes, this was a huge undertaking. We brought community leaders together with one common goal - creating a league that will allow children to play ball with neighboring communities on a recreation level. Community leaders are committed to coming together and hammering out all the issues and mishaps over the off season with one goal in mind - enhancing community recreation.

Looking forward, we will spearhead the expansion of the ICRL movement into basketball and soccer. It will not be an easy task nor an overnight success. As in any growth, we will experience those growing pains and do everything we can to minimize the affects on the participants.

With that being said, we are implementing several new programs/concepts to improve our customer service and overall recreation experience.

First, our biggest improvement will be with getting the public more information about their child's team in a more timely manner. Our Web site is in the process of being redesigned. It will be more user-friendly. Parents will be able to set up an account for their family, totally protected by their personal password. When you register on line, you will receive confirmation of registration, confirmation of payment, and/or an invoice that you can mail in with your payment.

Parents will have around the clock access to vital program and team information. They will be able to look up their child's practice schedule and game schedule. Parents will also receive e-mail alerts concerning programs that they have registered for.

How great will it be to get an e-mail alert stating "Tonight's basketball practice has been moved to North gym from 6 to 7 p.m."

Coaches will love this new arrangement. Coaches will have access to the team page and be able to send out messages and reminders to the entire team. There is even a team message board and photo gallery.

As you can see, it is a very powerful program and we hope everyone will take full advantage of the information on hand.

Another change will be in creating equal and balanced teams. In the U-10 and the U-12 divisions, a skills day will be included before the season begins. This skills day will allow the program administrators to create teams based on talent at a coaches draft night. In the PK, K, and U-8 division, we recognize how important it is to play with friends. The new registration program will honor buddy requests and link children together while creating teams. Again, it is a very powerful program. Once teams are created, parents will receive an e-mail alerting them to what team your child is on and the link to where the team page is located.

The team page will have the name and number of your child's coaches, the team practice schedule and the team game schedule.

And, our last big change is with our photography company. We will now be taking pictures with TSS a nationally recognized sports photography company. They will be responsible for mailing out picture orders directly to your house. We believe this change will be a huge improvement and you will receive greater customer service.

As you can see, we are making some major improvements to the entire infrastructure of Chelsea Recreation. All improvements will be up and running by Aug. 15. That is our goal. Enjoy the improvements.

Send us your feedback, so we can continue to meet your needs. For additional information check online at www.chelsearec.com. And, "pardon our dust" while we work through some bumps.

Michelle Mitchell is Chelsea Recreation director.

Runners challenge switchbacks

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

For those of you looking for a workout challenge, head over to the Waterloo trail system Saturday for a 5K of a different kind.

Running what locals call the switchbacks, athletes will make their way over four loops of dirt, rocks and hills covering a section of the Waterloo trails. Runners also will compete on nearby Green Road. The event will begin at noon.

"Everyone is welcome," said event organizer and Chelsea boys' cross country and track and field coach Eric Swager. "It (race) is a section of trail that sometimes I have the team train on, so I just turned it into a race. Last year was the first one, and then we had a winter race. We will probably do it twice a year."

The start of the race is uphill from the parking lot of the south side of Green Road near the Jackson County line. To reach the starting line, take 194 to Exit 153. Head north two to three miles to Green Road. Head east on Green Road for about three-quarters of a mile to reach parking lot area.

Cost to participate in the unique race is $5. There is no pre-registration. Race day registration will start at 11 a.m. and be limited to the first 50 athletes.

Proceeds from the race will go toward awards and toward the Chelsea Runners Club.

The event will not provide water. Runners are encouraged to bring their own water. There will be no splits, no music, no cheerleaders or other entertainment. With tongue in cheek, race organizers say runners will receive nothing except a handshake, if they survive the switchbacks.

great kids," he said. "We're all a little disappointed with the way we played. Offensively, maybe some of that was timing, or maybe it was the game plan, who knows. Overall, though, it was a great week. I can't say enough about the coaching staff."

Besides Bush and Fanning, members of the West staff included Cadillac's Jim Webb and Pat Hinkle, Frankfort's Michael Pratlley and Haslett's Charlie Otlewski.

Head coach for the East team was Paul Verska of Warren De La Salle.

"The game was awesome," said Marsh, who finished with two solo tackles, three assists and one tackle for loss. "It was definitely an experience I'll never forget. Out of all the football games I've played, this was the best way to end it."

Roberts, who'll play for Ferris State University in the fall, said last Saturday's game was special.

"I think I did pretty well," he said. "The defense overall did really well. The offense didn't put much together, but our defense played about as good as we could. We only gave up nine points."

Roberts, who ended up with two tackles, said he'd never forget meeting all the different players.

"I made a lot of new friendships this week," he said. "We (West squad) had a special bond."

Roberts said playing in the All-Star Game was a fitting ending to his high school career, but that he's ready for the next chapter in his life.

"I would absolutely do this all over again," Roberts said. "But, I'm really excited to go to Ferris and show them what I can do."

Marsh, who'll play baseball at either Eastern Michigan University or at a junior college next season, said competing against the best players in the state was something he'd always remember.

"The players are a lot bigger," he said. "And speed-wise, it's a lot faster. The hits are, also, a lot harder."

Marsh said he enjoyed getting to know the other players from throughout the state.

"Playing together with all the guys and coming together for one game was pretty cool," he said. "I'll never forget it."

Fanning said he wanted the week to continue.

"We'd love to keep coaching these guys," he said. "We're all so close. We were just a little bit off today. It was a great week, though. It was a real good time."

Overall, the West finished with 110 total yards of offense, including 105 passing yards. The East, on the other hand, ended up with 218 total yards, with 185 yards on the ground.

Individually, Saline's Burchyett had two receptions for 19 yards, while Ypsilanti's Sanders had one catch for 35 yards. Sanders' reception, which featured the Eastern Michigan University-bound standout going airborne and stretching out to make the grab, was arguably the highlight of the game for the West squad.

For the East, Michigan State University recruits Caulton Ray (5-10, 195) of Birmingham Brother Rice and Glenn Winston (6-0, 215) from Detroit Denby, led the rushing attack with 78 and 77 yards, respectively.

Race needs volunteers

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

It's a month away from the second annual Run for the Rolls. The one-mile run/walk Aug. 23 begins at 12:30 p.m. in front of the Chelsea Fire Department on West Middle Street and travels down Main Street before turning down Old U.S. 12 and heading west to the finish line at Thompson's Pizzeria.

Race founder and organizer Cindy Triveline said she needs more volunteers for this year's race.

"I need volunteers for street closures," she said of people needed to block off side streets along the race course. "Volunteers can pick their street. They get a free T-shirt and a volunteer pin. I need 22 more volunteers. Most of the closures are on Main Street, but there are some on West Middle, too."

This summer's event, which is bigger and better than last year's inaugural race, will include a tennis shoe charity box. Triveline has partnered with Journey's International out of Ann Arbor to provide a drop-off point for Run for the Rolls participants and families to bring gently used tennis shoes to give away for those less fortunate.

"Last month, we took 50 pounds of shoes, two full duffel bags, to Journey's International," Triveline said. "They, in turn, took the tennis shoes to Tanzania and gave them to the kids there."

Triveline said what's good about Journey's International is the quickness of shoes getting to those in need.

"They (shoes) are not stored in a warehouse," she said. "They're taken right to the kids."

Triveline said she'd have a marked bin at the registration area for people to drop off their used tennis shoes.

For those who would like more information on Run for the Rolls, Triveline said the event now has its own Web site.

"It's at runfortherolls.com," she said. "The Web site will have race information and photos from last year's event. I'm already getting five to 10 hits a day and it hasn't even been made public yet."

Overall male and female winners in this year's race will receive a sandblasted award with the race logo on it, along with Common Grill rolls. All first place age division winners will also receive Common Grill rolls.

Second place winners in each division will receive gift cards from area businesses. New this year will be third-place medals crafted by Chelsea artist Nicole Pangas Henry.

Run for the Rolls will receive some national press next year said Triveline. "Runner's World Magazine is planning on publishing the race in an Aug. 2009 issue," she said. "It'll be in the Athlete's Palate section of the magazine. I'm really excited about that. Runner's World is a global publication and runners everywhere read it."

Triveline said Run for the Rolls will sell orange and gold bandanas at this year's event.

"This is to make it look more festive," she said. "People can wave the bandanas along the race course."

Triveline said local group Girls on the Run would sell the bandanas for $1 beginning this week and ending the day of the race at locations throughout Chelsea.

Registration forms for the race can be obtained at the Chelsea Recreation office at the Washington Street Education Center. Up until Aug. 19, cost for single runners is $10 and $25 for families. On the day of the race, cost for single runners is $15 and $30 for families.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. the day of the race.

For more information, e-mail Triveline at triveline@hotmail.com.

Chelsea duo TUNE IN with the past

By Tina Ponder

Special Writer

Outside the mood is gloomy, with the weather providing only gray clouds and show-ers.

However, inside the Silver Maples of Chelsea assisted living facility, the mood is completely the opposite.

Deb Alvarez and Judy Koenn of Chelsea are bringing sunshine to the day through dancing, acting, singing and playing dress up in front of an audience.

The two women hum a late 19th-century tune while twirling parasols on their shoulders one moment, but suddenly trade in their lace umbrellas for sparking feather boas and top hats the next moment while singing show tunes from the 1930s.

Alvarez and Koenn make up the new performance group "Tune In," which showcases historical songs ranging from the late 1800s to the World War II era.

The crowd at Silver Maples cheers after each song, showing their appreciation for the trip back in time through such familiar and popular songs.

"They have really good, strong voices and their show was a selection of unique songs that you don't always hear," said Shawn Personke, director of activities and public relations for Silver Maples.

"They were two ladies traveling through time with the songs. The costumes were really brilliant. It was like a combination of cabaret and vaudeville."

Koenn, a retired public safety dispatcher, said that the show is for mixed ages and not limited to just an older audience.

"It appeals to every generation and is transcendent," said Koenn. "It's our history."

According to Alvarez, "Music and song is one of the ways we pass memories and values from one generation to the next."

All of the women's costume changes are done live and all props are pulled from vintage suitcases, naturally, for the 25-minute program titled, "A Sentimental Journey."

"We like to dance, we like to clown and we like to have fun," said Koenn. "It's fun to play dress-up."

While watching the performance, it is not a secret that Alvarez and Koenn love what they do.

Not only do they have constant smiles on their faces, but they interact with the audience as well, even making some viewers become part of the act.

Deb Alvarez (top) and Judy Koenn make up Tune In.

"Would you like to dance?" asks Alvarez as she randomly grabs a man's hand and spins him through the rows of other audience members in the middle of the performance.

"The songs are familiar to most people and our audience is tempted to sing right along," Alvarez said.

Even the Great Depression portion of the program is a delight to watch as Alvarez and Koenn exchange comical dialogue while dressed like ragamuffins.

"We've been told that it is our enthusiasm, silliness, theatrical style and choice of music that puts people over the edge," said Alvarez.

Added Koenn: "Everything ends on a high note!"

The group was formed three years ago after Koenn was unsuccessful in finding someone worth hiring as a singing telegram for a party.

Already friends, Alvarez and Koenn solved the problem by doing something on their own and "Tune In" was born.

"We spent many hours in the studio of Andy Sacks, a talented local musician, to get the background music for our program just right," said Alvarez.

According to Koenn, the program can be personalized for any occasion. Tune In has performed at anniversary and birthday parties and is currently working on a holiday program.

"When we rehearse, our husbands just shake their heads and say, 'There they go again!'" Alvarez said.

Residents Dick and Ginny Koester were glad they showed up at Silver Maples.

"We thought it was clever the way they made subtle costume changes appropriate to the musical era without disrupting the flow of the program," Ginny Koester said.

His percentages are good

A few months ago I burst out laughing during our Women's Bible study, because one of our women was talking about a particular surgeon and she said, "His percentages are good."

I found that funny because, for some reason, in my mind, I applied that statement to myself as a spiritual doctor, and it seemed like a strange concept to think about a pastor's "percentages."

What is the goal of my non-medical practice? To get people to heaven, through faith in their Savior Jesus Christ. So how would I ever know what my percentages are? I can't judge by how many people join my church, because not everyone who belongs to a church is a true believer in Jesus

MINISTERIAL Message

By Pastor Mark Porinsky
Faith Lutheran Church

Christ, and for that matter, I might have influenced others who never came near my church to turn to Jesus for forgiveness and eternal life.

I also cannot do any calculations based on how friendly or happy my members appear to be, how successful they are in their marriages, how well they deal with problems that arise in their lives, or whether they enjoy my sermons. There's only one bottom line: How many people die with faith in Jesus Christ and therefore are received into eternal life in heaven.

Surgeons can measure what percentage of their procedures are effective. Hospitals can measure what percentage of patients with a given form of cancer survive five years or more. But only God knows how many people from a given church, or who hear sermons by a given preacher, will end up in heaven.

This does not mean it's a totally random thing, however. We know that the only way to enter heaven is by believing that Jesus lived and died as our Savior for our sins, and that He rose again. We know that the only way to believe that is to be in contact with the Word of God, specifically the Gospel message in the Bible. So we can conclude that, by being part of a church which teaches the Bible with a high degree of accuracy, a person can increase the chances of themselves and their family remaining in the true faith in Jesus and entering eternal life in heaven.

Sometimes I wish I could see the results of my work here on earth. Sometimes I wish I could point prospective church members to my "percentages," and offer them proof of my effectiveness. As it is, all I can do is proclaim the message God gives me in His Word, and trust that God will take care of the percentages.

Someday I will be in heaven. I will get there the same way anyone else will: By believing that Jesus my Savior has taken away my sins. On that day I will hopefully have the joy of seeing a large percentage of the people I've shared the Gospel with, in heaven with me.

Mark Porinsky is the pastor at Faith Lutheran Church, 9575 North Territorial Road in Dexter. The Web site is www.faithdexter.org.

Art project is for everyone at SummerFest

Chelsea Summerfest is upon us and there will be plenty to see and do, eat and enjoy.

ARTicipation will be a "must see" part of the festivities. Among the beautiful displays of talented artisans will be a community project for people of all ages.

Participants are invited to help us create a 12 foot mural of the city of Chelsea by painting a 4" square, or several squares, to make up this colorful cityscape inspired by the art of Romare Bearden. Each square will be numbered and a legend will be created to accompany the mural as it travels around the town from business to business. When you show off your artwork, you'll know exactly which square you painted.

The project is hosted by the Chelsea Center for the Arts with proceeds benefiting their Art Education Programs. Each square is $2 and there is no limit as to how many you can paint. The project booth will be located at the McKinley Clocktower complex. Look for the CCA sign and the line of aspiring artists who want to be a part of this!

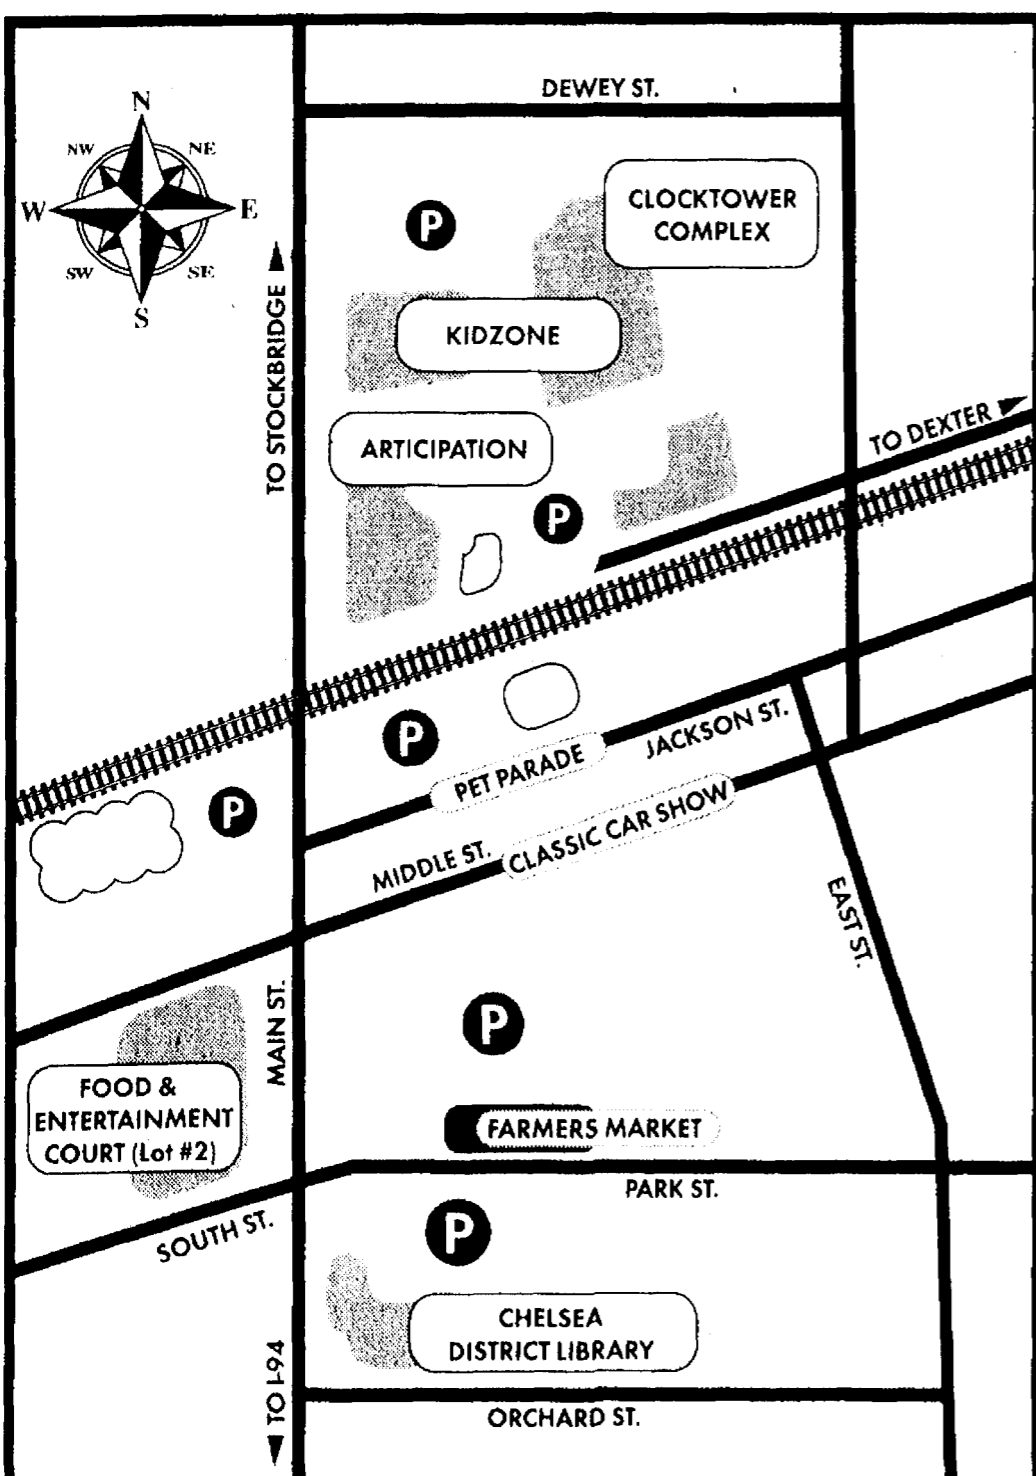

For more information, please contact the CCA at 734-7433-2787 or visit our Website at www.chelseacenterforthearts.org.

Pet parade

Participants of the SummerFest Pet Parade will gather Saturday at the event's host, Chelsea Farmer Supply on Jackson Street, for a 10 a.m. start.

The merry Mardi Gras band will make its way east along Jackson to East Street, south to East Middle, west on East Middle to Main, north on Main across the railroad tracks and end at the Kid Zone in the Clocktower complex where awards will be handed out.

Previous awards have included Best Costume, Prettiest Dog, Longest Tail, Oldest Dog, Best Costume, Best Kisser and Best Tail Wagging.

Mitch Ryder live tonight

Rock and Roll legend Mitch Ryder and the Detroit Wheels are coming to Chelsea this summer to perform a benefit concert for the Sounds & Sights on Thursday Nights.

The concert is tonight and will be held under cover behind the Common Grill Restaurant. The gates will open at 7 p.m. The Witch Doctors will open for Ryder.

The event is generously sponsored by Chelsea State Bank.

General admission tickets are $35 in advance ($40 at the gate), and are on sale at the Common Grill, the CCA, Chelsea Market, and Cranesbill Books. Special VIP tickets are $100 and may be purchased at the Common Grill or CCA.

Tickets may also be purchased by phone by calling the CCA at 734-433-2787, or buy them on-line at www.chelseacenterforthearts.org. A major portion of each ticket purchase is tax deductible. All proceeds go to Sounds & Sights to help cover operating costs and performer fees.

The concert is open to all ages. There will be beer, wine, soft drinks, and food for sale, and wrist bands will be given to ticket holders 21 years and older at the gate. VIP ticket holders get preferred seating at the show, complimentary beverages, entry to a private pre-concert cocktail party to meet Mitch Ryder along with a signed copy of his new book "It Was All Right" (Wayne State Press).

Helping this turtle cross the road hardly a snap

By Jim Orr

Heritage Newspapers

Since it's a cold-blooded animal, a turtle's body temperature equals its surrounding environment. The hotter it is, the more actively they can react.

As it cools, turtles slow down and eventually hibernate if it gets cold enough. Water turtles hibernate underwater — burying themselves in the mud and breathing through gills in their tails.

Snapping turtles are the only ones that really can be dangerous to people; unless you count tripping over a turtle as a potential threat.

Alligator snapping turtles are the largest water turtle found in North America. Living primarily in the South, they can reach 300 pounds.

They can remove a limb if you afford them the opportunity (which is not recommended unless maybe its a tree limb).

They have small appendages on their tongues that resemble a worm and hunt by sitting underwater with their mouths open, wiggling this lure.

Any unlucky fish that responds is invited to dinner.

My younger brother, apparently admiring my animal rescue stories, decided to join the cause recently by trying to rescue a very large snapping turtle that was trying to cross a highway. He had enough sense to keep his important appendages away from the irritated turtle and did not actually try to pick it up with his hands.

His original plan was to guide the 25-pound turtle to safety with a long plastic ice scraper.

Let's take a moment to laugh.

The turtle latched on to the plastic implement in a split second and took it away from my nervous brother. Turtles do not have teeth but they do have razor-sharp jaws and can snap a branch or remove a finger as easily as a tree-pruning tool.

My brother can be as hard-headed as the turtle's shell and is not one to give up on a cause he believes in. He drove to a nearby produce stand and borrowed a large wooden crate.

He returned to the sui-dal turtle, which I suspect probably seemed to have grown in his absence.

My brother's plan had two parts: Lure the turtle into the corn crate and transport it to a local pond at a state park.

The first part was easier than expected as the monster cooperated by crawling into the crate when it was placed in front of it.

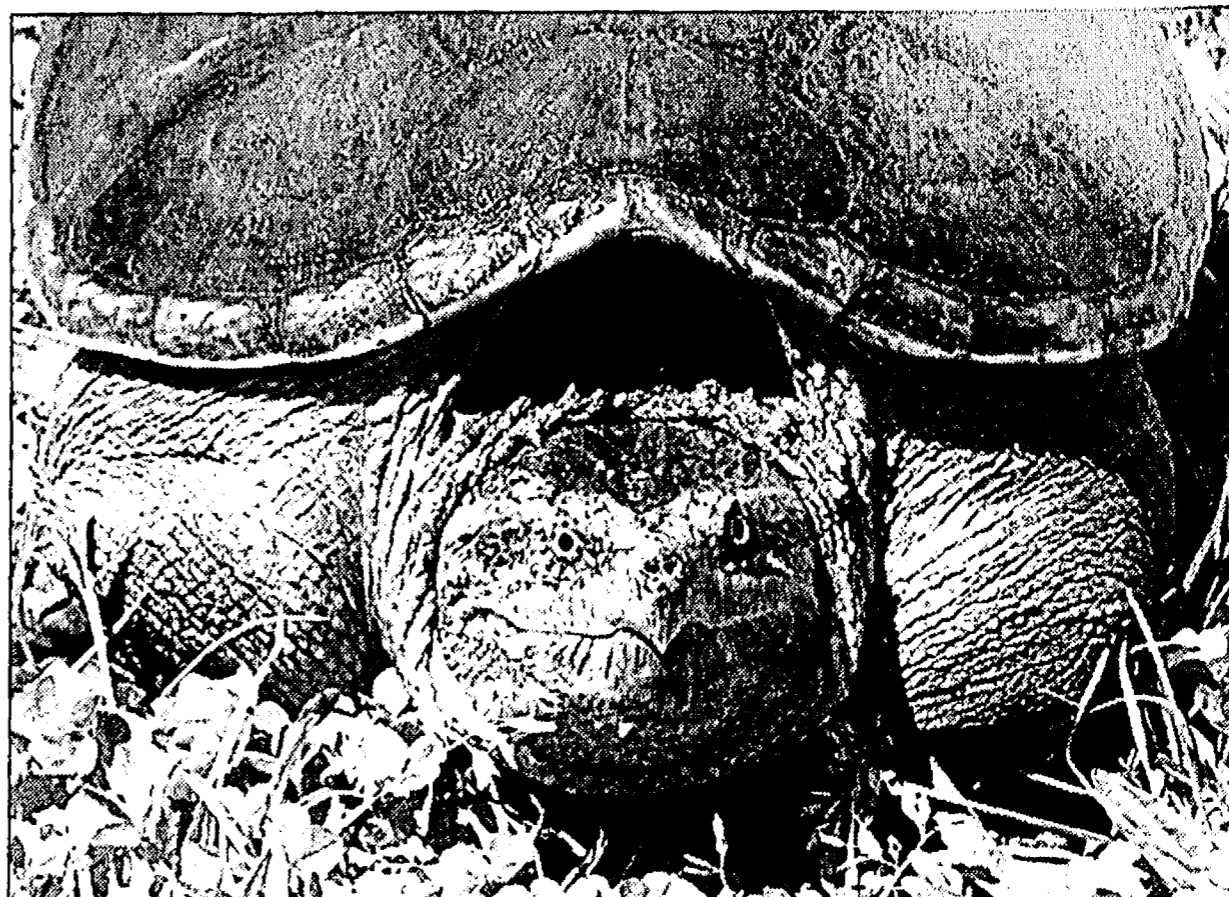

Fearing he might lose a finger while lifting it into the car, my brother twisted the crate, locking wires tightly, and rigged a sling out of a blanket to set the crated turtle in the back seat of his car.

Have you ever smelled a wet, algae-and-sludge covered pond turtle? My brother did.

He started his drive to the local park and was proudly thinking he had equaled the supreme skill of his older and wiser brother.

Once again, it's time for a laugh.

His smug smile fell off his face and his mouth dropped open when he saw the head of the dinosaur push through the crate slats. As the rowdy reptile began prying his massive body through the broken crate and snapping his jaws, my brother revised his release plan rather quickly.

Jim Orr's brother learned the hard way that snapping turtles, even those that need human assistance, are not to be taken lightly.

"The Park is kind of far, and the creek beside the road looks just fine," he decided as he screeched to a stop.

By the time he got the back door open, the turtle was out of the crate and climbing up the back seat upholstery. Somehow he managed to roll it out the car and point it toward the creek where it quickly disappeared.

It would have been funny if a rabbit showed up right about then and asked the turtle, "How in the heck did you beat me here?"

Wildlife rescue is a great cause, but be careful and make sure you don't underestimate the strength, stench, and danger a particular animal presents.

Wild animals are WILD!

'Holy Water' a fly fishing destination

DNR hopes project will make Au Sable even better for anglers

In fly fishing circles, few trout streams in the world are more renowned than Michigan's Au Sable River.

A state-designated Natural River as well as a Department of Natural Resources-dubbed "Blue Ribbon Trout Stream," the Au Sable is not only one of the eastern United States' most legendary streams, but it also is the birth place of Trout Unlimited, a national conservation group that soon will celebrate its 50th anniversary.

Yet, within the Au Sable River system, which encompasses several branches and numerous stretches of varying character, there is one portion of the river that stands out from the rest — a stretch known as "The Holy Water."

A 8.7-mile reach on the mainstream that begins just east of the city of Grayling in Crawford County, the Holy Water meanders from Burton's Landing to Wakeley Bridge and is known for its wadable water, dependable insect hatches and quality trout fishing.

The name Holy Water was coined in the early 1970s by the late Cal Gates, owner of Gates' Au Sable Lodge, a fly fishing mecca on the south bank of the famed stream.

"My dad always said that God created the Au Sable River for fly fishing with its fabulous trout populations, its cold clear waters, its stable flows and stream depths and bottom ideal for wading," said Cal's son and the present lodge owner, Rusty Gates.

The Au Sable River is unique among all rivers in the United States in one important aspect: It has the most stable flow of any stream in the country. The sand and gravel that was deposited by the last glacial retreat — some 11,000 years ago — allows precipitation to soak into the soil, creating massive groundwater aquifers that produce streamside springs feeding the Au Sable River and its tributaries.

These springs result in a constant flow of cold, clear and clean water — the kind of habitat that not only allows trout to survive, but to thrive.

The numerous and plentiful fly hatches on the stream just add to the Au Sable's allure. Fly hatches begin occurring as soon as the weather starts to warm and the winter snow begins to melt, usually in late March and early April.

First, black stoneflies come off, followed by the Hendricksons, sizeable mayflies that signal to most anglers that fly fishing season has truly arrived. In rapid succession, little black caddis and mahogany and sulphur mayflies add to the smorgasbord.

June and July bring hatches of large and plentiful bugs — brown drakes, Isonychia (white gloved howdies), the infamous giant Michigan mayfly (Hexagenia limbata) and the tiny but prolific tricos.

August through October brings an onslaught of terrestrial insects, including grasshoppers, ants, inch-worms and beetles, along with a variety of small mayflies known collectively as "blue winged olives."

"The Au Sable River has one of the most prolific and diverse insect communities of any Michigan river that I know of," said Andy Partlo, manager of the Old Au Sable Fly Shop in Grayling.

But it takes more than insects to make a trout stream.

Experts at the Michigan Department of Natural Resources think the Au Sable River will be an even better fly fishing destination after a rehab project.

"The trout population within this reach is second to none in the state," said Steve Sendek, a DNR fisheries biologist who works out of Grayling. "The Au Sable River boasts a magnificent population of brown trout and brook trout with a small resident population of rainbow trout mixed in."

Few trout streams anywhere have been studied as extensively at the Au Sable. The DNR maintains detailed data sets on the Holy Water, which shows how truly unique it is.

Population studies at Stephan Bridge — about the midway point on the Holy Water — show a long-term average of well more than 100 pounds of trout per acre. That's more than double the statewide median of 51 pounds per acre.

Unlike many streams in Michigan (or elsewhere), the Holy Water of the Au Sable is completely dependent on natural reproduction.

"We have not stocked that section of the Au Sable since 1965," Sendek said. "It is a totally self-sustaining trout population — brook, brown and rainbow."

"Combined with our current no-kill, year-round flies-only fishing regulations, we're managing for quality."

Although the Au Sable's fish habitat is very good, Sendek said it isn't as good as it could be. This summer and next, the DNR will take advantage of federal fisheries grants from the Sport Fish Restoration Act to improve the river by adding large woody debris in the Holy Water.

The DNR will spend $400,000 over the next two years on this effort.

"We still haven't fully healed from the damage done during the logging era at the turn of the 20th century," Sendek said. "It takes a stream a long time to recover from being completely logged over."

"But with the maturation of the surrounding forests and the addition of whole trees into the river, we're getting there."

Orphaned opossums prove loveable charges

By Jim Orr

Heritage Newspapers

I was just about to leave for a Sunday dinner when I received a rescue call for orphaned baby opossums. The mother had been hit by a car and a passing motorist had collected four surviving infants from the side of the road clinging to their mother's carcass.

He called the Arkansas Wildlife Rescue and Rehabilitation Association, which in turn choose to disrupt my dinner plans by giving me the call.

When I picked up the infant opossum "joeys" they were extremely dehydrated. I gave them fluid injections on the spot to help them stay alive until I could get them to my rehabilitation facility. They were very small — 28 grams — and had only just started to open their eyes. You easily hold all four in one hand.

The first week was extremely touch-and-go. One of the four died the second day and the others required constant fluid injections to keep them nourished until they finally recovered enough to start nursing from an eyedropper.

Opossums require a very specific formula to avoid bone disease. Too much protein, for example, will cause deformities; too little calcium can cause bone degeneration.

I made a daily mix of puppy milk replacer, apple juice, Nutrical, yogurt, calcium powder, egg yolk and brewers yeast. They kept me occupied with feedings every four hours for three weeks until they finally started eating on their own and I was able to sleep. I supplemented their formula with baby food and mashed fruit.

A few weeks later I weaned them off the formula altogether and started feeding them Purina cat chow and solid foods.

Being a certified wildlife rehabilitator is not exactly glamorous. I had to take the place of the mother in more ways than simple feeding by teaching the babies when and where to relieve themselves. They have a natural instinct not to go in the nest. Unless stimulated to relieve themselves they become constipated and deathly ill.

The mother would normally take them outside the nest and lick their privates to stimulate the elimination activities. I used a warm wet towel in lieu of my tongue. After a gentle massage they usually took care of business.

If they did not, a warm bath triggered the desired response.

They were quite easy to paper train, which greatly simplified my chores. That also made it possible to let them roam the guesthouse I kept them in. Opossums are one of the few wild animals that are not terribly destructive. Squirrels and raccoons, for instance have a tendency to shred furniture and curtains if left unattended indoors.

It is important to keep rehabilitation animals as independent as possible and avoid overly domesticating them. They need to retain their natural fear of people and predators.

They also have to learn to identify their own food sources. I would usually hide food around the guest house ("Possum Kingdom" as my neighbors referred to it) so they would learn to hunt for it.

Adult opossums eat almost anything — plants, fish, eggs, insects, carrion, insects, birds, sticks, leaves, mice, fruit, vegetables and crawfish to name a few. They are largely immune to poisonous snakebites and have even been known to eat venomous snakes.

Although generally slow moving, they can be quite fast in catching prey. It always was a thrill to put them in an empty tub with live crickets and watch them switch into super drive to catch all in a few seconds.

If you startle a possum "doing lunch" in your trash it probably will pretend to be vicious, hissing and showing all 50 teeth. Although it is largely a show and unlikely to attack unprovoked, it can and will bite if it feels threatened.

G'Day mates!

Chelsea seniors enjoy trip Down Under

Chelsea Seniors

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

When 25 members of the Chelsea Senior Center wish upon a star, it will be the Southern Cross constellation they viewed on a 15-day adventure Down Under.

The group left May 21 for Los Angeles, then a 14-hour flight to Sydney, before flying over the Great Dividing Range to spend three days in Cairns on Australia's north coast.

"Cairns is a tropical paradise with palm trees, sail boats and warm days even in winter," says Jean Dunn, a member of the center's travel committee.

The first adventure was a boat ride to Green Island to experience the Great Barrier Reef.

"Wow, you haven't seen anything until you ride the glass bottom boats over the reef," Dunn says. "The colorful fish that perform their own ballet, as well as the waving coral trying to attract their prey, make this an unforgettable experience."

Atherton Tablelands was the next stop, by way of the Kuranda Railroad, originally established to bring out gold from the mines. The railroad, passing waterfalls, mountains and lakes, goes through many tunnels, and in places passengers can view both ends of the train as it goes around curves.

At the Tiapukai Aboriginal Cultural Center several members tried throwing boomerangs and spears, once used to bring down animals for food.

Then it was on to Hartley's Croc Farm, where crocodiles are raised for leather and exportation of meat, and a croc performs on command, for food.

The farm also has koalas, various types of birds, and wallabies, a smaller cousin of the kangaroo.

"They're all over," Dunn says. "Instead of 'Deer Crossing' signs, they have 'Wallaby Crossing' signs. We saw many, many wallabies."

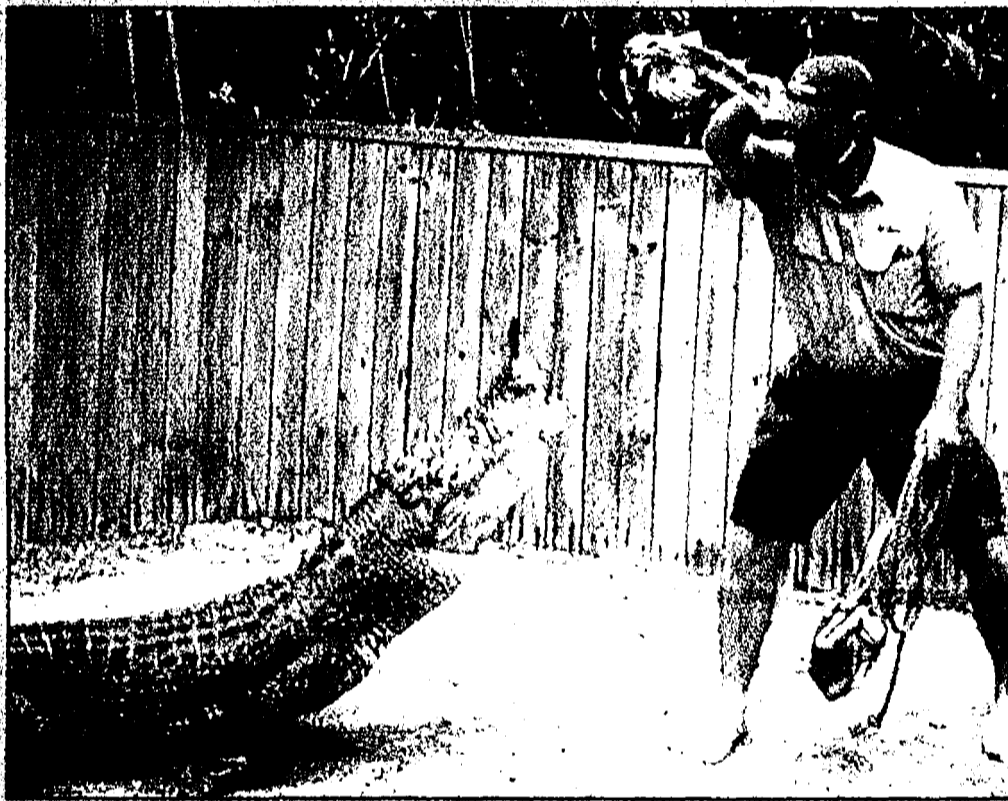

Next stop was Sydney, which Dunn says has the feel of small-town America. The hotel was a short distance from the wharf, right by Chinatown.

During a tour of Australia's largest city, the travelers had an opportunity to sit in "Mrs. McQuarrie's Chair," a stone chair made for the wife of the first governor of Australia who was homesick for her native England. She would sit and look out over Sydney Harbour.

Sydney offered botanical gardens, museums, and shopping areas, the Barracks Museum, housing exhibits dealing with the founding of Australia as a penal colony, and the Maritime Museum with its colorful sailing history.

"All of us enjoyed hearing about opal mining, and many chose to buy opals as souvenirs," Dunn says.

The Sydney Opera House was a highlight of the trip. The group heard its story, walked its many steps, and enjoyed an evening dinner cruise on Sydney Harbour beside the Opera House and Harbour Bridge.

Next up was Queenstown, on the South Island of New Zealand, a popular place for outdoor recreation — boating, fishing, off-roading, and winter skiing and snowboarding in the Remarkable Mountains.

The group was struck by the difference in color between the two countries — Australia was shades of red and brown, New Zealand was shades of green, Dunn says.

A gondola ride up a mountain to the Skyline Restaurant led to a spectacular view of Queenstown in the valley with Lake Wakatipu and the surrounding Remarkables. After a buffet, the group was introduced to Maori culture and learned Maori dances using the Poi and Haka.

Queenstown and the surrounding area was the setting for several films including "Lord of the Rings." A "Lord of the Rings" tour by 4-wheel drive Land Rovers included a stop for tea and cookies — or "biskies" as Kiwis call them.

A coach tour to Milford Sound, a fjord, included two stops, the first at Mirror Lake to walk along a trail bordering the lake.

"We were able to see the reflection of the mountains in the lake, as well as the trees, flowers and grasses on our side of the lake," Dunn says. "Mirror Lake was very clear so we were able to see the fish and tadpoles."

The second stop was after the three-mile long, single-lane Homer Tunnel with a traffic light at both ends to regulate traffic. The walk, into a tropical rainforest, ended at a waterfall crashing to the river below.

At Milford Sound, the group boarded a ship that took them past rock faces towering over 4,000 feet, and many waterfalls.

On the way to Christchurch, the most English city outside of England, the travelers hoped to see the summit of Mt. Cook, the highest mountain in New Zealand, but it was covered clouds.

"We did have opportunity to visit a beautiful little church that had windows behind the altar allowing panoramic mountain views," Dunn says. "This little church held both Protestant and Catholic services and was the setting of over 100 weddings a year."

Agriculture is a large part of the New Zealand economy, especially sheep and dairy cattle, and the cattle or sheep dog is the farmer's right hand. The tour group enjoyed a visit to Oakleigh Farm, a 1,320-acre farm with over 1,000 sheep, and 700 cattle that are milked twice a day on a merry-go-round milker.

"Charles, our farmer, told us how his dogs, Sam and Poppy worked the sheep and drove them into the shearing barn," Dunn says. "The sheep are shorn once in the spring and are partially shorn in the winter if they are ewes that are going to lamb."

Christchurch offered the opportunity to have dinner with New Zealand families, with meals of pumpkin or tomato soups, roasted potatoes, lamb and mixed vegetables followed by a meringue dessert topped with yellow and green kiwis.

"All of us have fond memories of our hosts and a very rewarding experience," Dunn says. "It was an opportunity to find out about their homes, types of jobs, and the state of their economy — yes, petrol is high there, between $8 and $9 a gallon!"

Christchurch is the jumping off place for Antarctica and the group saw both the New Zealand and American facilities, and went to the International Antarctic Center where they rode on a vehicle used in Antarctica.

"In addition, we saw many Antarctic exhibits including penguins and a cold room where you experienced a storm in Antarctica," Dunn says.

A farewell dinner was held at Riccarton House in Christchurch, once the home of the original Scottish founders of the city, before the group flew from Christchurch to Auckland on the North Island and boarded a flight home. A dozen trip members spent time in Fiji before returning to Michigan.

"We truly enjoyed our time in Australia and New Zealand and are looking forward to our next traveling adventure with the Chelsea Seniors," Dunn says.

Purple Rose extends 'Panhandle Slim and the Oklahoma Kid' through September

The Purple Rose Theatre Company announced a four-week performance extension of Jeff Daniels' new comedy "Panhandle Slim & The Oklahoma Kid."

Originally scheduled to close at the end of August, Panhandle Slim will now run until Sept. 27, 2008. Performances for the remainder of the engagement will be Wednesdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. with Saturday matinees at 3 p.m. and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. with a variety of added weekly performances. All performances are at the Purple Rose Theatre, 137 Park Street, Chelsea.

The additional performances are being added to accommodate record ticket sales.

"Positive word of mouth created an overwhelming demand for tickets," says managing director Alan Ribant. "We hope that adding another month of performances will allow thousands of additional patrons the opportunity to enjoy 'Panhandle Slim & The Oklahoma Kid' this summer."

Tickets for the extension go on sale on Monday, Aug. 4. Reservations can be made by calling the PRTC Box Office at (734) 433-ROSE (7673); Box Office hours are Monday through Friday 10:00 am to 6:00 pm.

Volunteers sought for new exhibit at fair

A new exhibit this year at the Chelsea Community Fair will showcase agriculture, farming education and animal birthing.

The fair will take place Tuesday through Saturday, Aug. 19 to 23. Exhibit hours will be 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. each day.

It will also include a Healthy Pet Surgical Tent from Tuesday until Friday, which will be manned by local area veterinarians, as well as sheep shearing demonstrations on Friday and Saturday.

There will be stations to learn about dairy farms, how cows are milked, games, speakers and even scheduled, hands-on children's lessons in related science and agriculture areas.

"Volunteers are needed to assist with the exhibit," said organizer Cheryl Quinn. "You don't have to be a farmer to assist, although if you are, we'd love to have your help."

Anyone interested in agriculture, animals, food, science, children and education and the like would be a perfect fit for this exhibit. "We would be happy to have students 16 years and older who are interested in a career in agriculture, animal sciences, veterinary medicine and education volunteer and get time with folks who work in those careers," Quinn said. "This experience would look good on a resume."

Two-hour slots are scheduled between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. daily. "Even if you could help for just one two-hour slot, it would go a long way in helping educate our community about farming and agriculture," Quinn said.

If you are willing to help out as a volunteer, please email Quinn at tacquinn@hotmail.com, or phone her at 734-433-1687. Please feel free to write or phone with any questions you may have.

"If you have any ideas or something you are interested in exhibiting, feel free to call or e-mail and chat about it," Quinn suggested.

"This is the first year for this exhibit, and there is a lot of room for ideas."

God and Family

Chelsea First United Methodist will be offering the "God and Family" program Aug. 18 to 22.

God and Family is based on pizza. Yes, pizza! The six steps for making pizza will be compared to God's plan for strengthening families. The pizza theme is meant to give a concrete, "hands-on" model on which to build an understanding of God's love for families.

Boys and girls ages 10 to 12 are invited to participate in this program and do not need to be current Scouts or Camp Fire members or church members.

Registration is due by July 25. Cost for the program varies by award ($10-14).

For more information, contact the Chelsea First United Methodist office, 475-8119.

Kids reach new heights

A day of play at the TreeHouse

By Jackie Smith
Special Writer

Three-year-old Drew Bennett and his mom Jamie have been to Chelsea's TreeHouse a few times before and they return, Jamie said, because the indoor playground and restaurant is close to home and has a "nice atmosphere."

"I think he likes it here because it's not quite as big (as other play places)," Bennett said. "He doesn't get overwhelmed."

She brought a book to read while she waited for as long her son wanted to play. After Jamie lent a hand to Drew's ascent up the play-scape, the two took a break to order something from the expanding TreeHouse menu.

Owner Michelle Balaka finds satisfaction in not only the accommodations the TreeHouse offers to parents, but also its dedication to the safety and play of her pint-size customers.

"It's fun to know that parents will stay for hours with their kids," the Chelsea resident said. "We have a group that comes every month because it's comfortable and easy."

The average amount of time groups spend is around three to four hours, Balaka said, which far exceed her original expectations.

Andi Evers and her mother Jackie are newcomers to the family fun center in the Clocktower Complex.

After watching her 4-year-old scurry through the playscape, Evers said the experience was nothing but positive.

"It's a safe place for her to play," Evers said, confirming the TreeHouse to be a "nice and calm" establishment.

Fabricating fun

Balaka's search for a play-place that adequately recognized the needs of her own children led to the creation of the TreeHouse in December 2006.

"I was a stay-at-home mom," she said. "Anywhere I went, nobody paid attention to kids' stuff."

It took Balaka a week to financially secure her playful idea with the bank, but a year of negotiations with city officials went by before her dreams became a reality.

Despite the idea being initially rejected, Balaka said she eventually had plenty of support from the community to carry out her objective.

Andi Evers, 4, hangs around at the TreeHouse.

"If I didn't have kids I wouldn't have chosen this path," she said. "When I opened this I decided I was going to do it right."

In September 2007, Balaka added to the excitement with an upper level. It gave the play-scape an area for birthday parties and additional activities, making her facilities even more adult- and kid-friendly.

Kids can enjoy themselves on slides, swings and bridges on either of the two levels, while parents can lounge comfortably at close range.

Overlooking the play area are observation windows from the TreeHouse's upper level, Balaka said, which often come in handy for the parents who bring in work to do while watching their sons and daughters.

The needs of adults and children are met with an assortment of appetizing and healthy snacks.

To avoid excluding any preference, Balaka said she serves Zingerman's coffee and products that are completely peanut-free.

For those allergic to peanut butter, she offers an alternative made completely from sunflower seeds called Sunbutter.

"We get kids that have peanut allergies every day," Balaka said. "I have kids that can't play anywhere ... I want them to be able to come here."

She assures that each child's hands are sanitized when they walk through the door, socks are worn at all times while on the tree-themed equipment and surfaces are regularly bleached.

"We're super clean ... because we care," Balaka said, noting that the TreeHouse "doesn't keep itself clean."

Future fun, feasible fame

Balaka plans to take all the same qualities of the Chelsea TreeHouse with her as she prepares to open a new location in the Chicago area.

It should be a done deal in October, she said.

Just 25 miles north of Chicago, the proposed TreeHouse will have 7,700 square feet of fun to bring to the densely populated area, compared to the 1,200-square-foot space in Chelsea.

The ambiance of the TreeHouse has recently brought up more "interesting and unexpected" opportunities, Balaka said.

Jamie Bennett helps her three-year-old son Drew climb to the top TreeHouse level.

The Web site ParentsConnect.com nominated her playscape for Nickelodeon's "2008 Parent's Pick" in the state of Michigan. She said she was the only indoor play place to receive the honor.

The local TreeHouse is part of the historic Clocktower Complex on North Main Street, which once housed the Glazier Stove Works Co. With its recently renovated courtyard, it highlights a certain ambiance that Balaka said she wants to put into the Chicago playplace.

"You can't beat a 100-year-old building," she said. "I'm going to try and make it have the same charm."

Musicians gear up for festival

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

The seventh annual Riverfolk Music & Arts Festival promises a lively lineup featuring workshops, an art fair and musical entertainment Aug. 2.

The all-day entertainment event will include main stage performances featuring artists from all over Michigan including: Billy King, the Raisin Pickers, Gemini and Corey Ledet.

This year, world-renowned musician Vienna Teng will headline the festival.

"When listening to Vienna Teng sing, the sweetness of her voice and the comfort of her words immediately strike your senses," Riverfolk musician Mark Palms said. "Teng's self-proclaimed 'chamber folk' music and approach to life are simple: Make the world a better, prettier place. And she's bringing her message to Manchester."

Teng shares her name with the Austrian home of Amadeus Mozart and Ludwig von Beethoven, and has studied classical piano from the age of five.

"There's nothing old-world about the music of Vienna Teng. The music of Vienna Teng brings to mind artists as diverse as Tori Amos, Simon & Garfunkel and Radiohead," Palms said.

Teng's first major national exposure was on the Late Night Show with David Letterman in January 2003. She has also appeared on television and radio stations all over the world.

"We are so excited to have her here at Riverfolk," Palms said.

Another headline band this year is MacTalla Mor, a hard driving, powerful Celtic band.

"While they classify themselves as a Celtic roots band, their driving groove seems to have a way of packing festivals with people who don't know what a jig is," Palms said. "Bagpipes, keyboards it all, bodhran — these guys have it down. There's even a magician that entertains the crowd as the band plays."

Tumbao Bravo, a Cuban Jazz ensemble will perform Mambos, Cha Chas, Rumbas, Boleros, and other musical rhythms.

MUSIC

"With a relaxed, groove-driven approach and sensibility, this Michigan-based ensemble, winner of three Detroit Music Awards, is among the best in the Midwest," Palms said.

Tumbao Bravo's debut appearance at Riverfolk will be Aug. 1 at the festival's "Party in the Park." The "Party In The Park" will take place from 7 to 11 p.m. at Carr Park. It will feature a cash bar, buffet and barbecue provided by Manchester's own Chef Chris. Other events include a silent auction, door prizes and awards supporting the Festival Scholarship Fund.

Free art workshops for children and adults are another popular aspect of the festival that have grown over the years. New this year is a Healthy Kids Tent featuring entertainment by Gemini and activities from the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum and Catskill Puppet Theater.

In preparation for this year's festival, Palms said the Riverfolk Music & Arts Board considered several suggestions from the public on how to improve participation.

"We lowered ticket prices, improved our recycling program and moved the artist area to the east side of the park," he said. "We have some exciting changes in the works for this year's Riverfolk Festival."

This year, tickets for both the "Party in the Park" and the Riverfolk Festival are $10, with children ages 12 and under admitted free to the festival.

Tickets, entry forms for the Old Time Fiddle Contest and juried artist applications can be obtained online at riverfolk.org.

Local artists display wares for public

The Riverfolk Music & Arts Festival will have six new faces at its art show this year.

Woodcarvers Lori Dickie and Kristie Niemiec come from a family of artists. They will display their collection of animals, Santas, ornaments and whimsical characters.

Dexter resident Denis Lee will display several of his oil and ink drawings. Lee retired in 2006 as director of the University of Michigan Medical and Biological Illustration Graduate Program. He currently owns and operates his gallery, Wall Works, in Dexter. Lee has won numerous awards for his artwork and has been featured on NBC's "Today Show," as well as in People Magazine, Newsweek and National Geographic Magazine.

His oil paintings range in price from $1,200 to $2,000.

Maureen Salazar will display her one-of-a-kind wire earrings, off-loom beaded bracelets and original paintings of various media, while Tecumseh resident Patricia Deere will feature some of her stained glass artwork.

Eric and Trudi Cooper will be showing their fused glass creations and Linda Bonawitt, a potter from Toledo, will round out the new artists attending the festival.

Returning artists this year include: Nancy Feldkamp, Deborah Burch, Sharon Miller, Annie O'Kane, Lee Krieger, Patti Vergiels, Jamie Anderson, Marne Evans, Peter Lenehan, Dee Miles, Mike Adams and Augusta Simmons.

"Most of our artists are local," event coordinator Dee Miles said.

All items displayed at the festival will be available for purchase. For more information, visit the Riverfolk Music & Arts Festival Web site at www.riverfolkfestival.org.

World renowned musician to headline music showcase

Vienna Teng, spot-lit on an otherwise dark stage, sits behind a baby grand piano. She teases out her first few notes; they hang in the air, waiting to be joined by a voice that is sultry soft, yet poised to move lightly through abrupt musical intervals.

Teng's style is not easy to categorize. Self-described as "chamber folk" or "somewhere between folk and pop, with a bit of classical and jazz," it might draw comparisons with Tori Amos, an admitted influence. Yet this recording artist's baroque to bluesy melodies, meticulously layered orchestration, and compelling vocals have claimed her a niche in the singer-songwriter world that is all her own.

Teng will headline the Riverfolk Music & Arts Festival Aug. 2 in Manchester. Organizers are thrilled to have booked Teng who, during a short break from recording, will be making this single appearance in the state.

Teng began playing classical piano when she was 5 years old. Music, however, remained a hobby until six years ago when she walked away from her Silicon Valley job as a software engineer. She has since released three critically-acclaimed albums: "Waking Hour," "Warm Strangers," and "Dreaming through the Noise." She has also appeared on such national programs as NPR's Weekend Edition, the Late Night Show with David Letterman and CBS Saturday Early Show. Teng has also toured extensively with the likes of Shawn Colvin, Joan Osborne, Patty Griffin, Joan Baez and the Indigo Girls.

Teng is excited to be playing the Riverfolk Festival and returning to Michigan. She notes that some of her earliest fan-base and support developed in near-by Ann Arbor.

The Riverfolk Music & Arts Festival will take place between 11 a.m. and midnight on Aug. 2, in Carr Park in Manchester. Advance tickets are $10 and $12 at the gate, ages 12 and under are free.

Teng will be performing with friend and collaborator Alex Wong. In keeping with the festival atmosphere, she is planning an "up-beat" show and to "invest more humor than usual." She will also be showcasing music from her upcoming album.

According to Teng, her songwriting structure remains influenced by 60s and 70s folk/pop artists Simon & Garfunkel, Joni Mitchell, and, more recently, Bob Dylan and Leonard Cohen. Her sound, which has wide inspiration, is still grounded in her classical piano training.

Though Teng has moved away from the "turbulent topics" inspired by her teen years, she still finds inspiration through the news, exploring society's "culture gaps," and advice she receives from her grandmother.

The Riverfolk Music & Arts Festival will take place between 11 a.m. and midnight on Aug. 2, in Carr Park in Manchester. Advance tickets are $10 and $12 at the gate, ages 12 and under are free.

A pre-festival barbeque and dance party will take place the night before starting at 7 p.m. featuring Tumbao Bravo and Corey Ledet and his Zydeco Band. Admission is $10. For more details, visit www.riverfolkfestival.org.

Three for the sea in spectacular art glass

With 12 legs, six eyes, and three very distinctive shells, this trio of turtle hatchlings is as cute as can be.

Together they are Turtle Trio—fascinating art glass sculptures by Lenox. And all three are sculpted as if scrambling from beach to sea—heads straining forward and wing-like flippers churning.

Displayed on a coffee table, an end table or desk, Turtle Trio will bring a welcome touch of color and whimsy to any room in your home. The price of this set of three imported art glass sculptures is just $29.50, an exceptional value for sculptures bearing the Lenox® hallmark of quality.

To acquire Turtle Trio for yourself, or as a memorable gift, simply sign and mail the attached Order Form today.
