Black bear spotted near Chelsea

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

A black bear wandering through western Washtenaw County recently has caught the attention of wildlife officers and more than a few area residents.

According to officials with the Department of Natural Resources, the young male black bear has been spotted raiding trash receptacles in the Waterloo Recreation Area, by farm workers and by a resident of Manchester.

"The last sighting was last week at (DuRussell's) potato farm, where migrant workers saw it standing up at the edge of a field; and a Manchester resident got a clip of it on video near his yard," DNR Public Information Officer Mary Detloff said Tuesday.

"Folks should be aware that black bears are not like grizzly bears out West," she added. "Black bears are not as aggressive; they are much more docile unless threatened."

Detloff said from evidence collected from the sightings, wildlife experts have determined that it is a young male, and it is not unusual for a young male to be chased off by older males who get more territorial as they mature.

Bears could be finding their way past the southern edge of their normal range, Gratiot County, for any number of reasons, Detloff noted, and they will go where they are not threatened by other bears or humans.

"Over the last few years we're seeing more bears being seen in the fruit belt on the west side of the state, and now we're seeing them in Jackson and Washtenaw counties," Detloff said.

Although people should be wary of any contact with this or any other black bear, there is little reason to panic, she said.

Council tunes into public safety radio tower on city property

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

The Chelsea City Council is on the same wavelength when it comes to erecting a radio tower on high ground at the city transfer station on Werkner Road.

The council heard a presentation Aug. 12 from officials connected to the project, which seeks to expand the coverage of high-band 800-megahertz (MHz) radios that are being phased in by police, fire and other public safety services statewide.

"We are building seven towers as part of the countywide millage approved in 2006," said Craig Swenson, director of the project for Washtenaw County.

"The city police, (Chelsea Area Fire Authority) and Huron Valley Ambulance will all receive new radios as a result."

The high-frequency radios will help address complaints, particularly among police officers, of spotty radio coverage in several remote areas of the northwest corner of the county.

The tower involving the city is planned for Werkner Road near the transfer station, next to the Western Washtenaw Recycling Authority main facility.

"I prefer that location; I feel it will provide better coverage to the city, and it's where the population is expected to grow over the next 20 years," Swenson told the council.

"Police officers will have to work pretty hard to find a location where it won't work."

The tower's coverage area will include Lyndon, Lima, Sylvan and Dexter townships, and will mesh with coverage from towers in other areas in Jackson, Ingham and Livingston counties.

The expected cost of each tower is $300,000; and the cost of the transmitting equipment is close to $500,000.

The project is run by an oversight committee, Swenson noted, and one of the guidelines calls for co-location of other communications equipment.

A real shot in the arm

Chelsea Rod & Gun hosts fund-raiser for Mill Lake camp

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

Taking the next step on the road to rebuild the Mill Lake Camp, sportsman's groups joined with auto racing royalty on Aug. 14 at the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club.

The second Racing for Wildlife event in this area was meant to raise awareness as well as a few dollars to get the ball rolling on the proposed $1.5 million restoration effort.

Race car driver Ryan Newman, a familiar face to the current generation of NASCAR fans, has enlisted the help of his own fan club and the philanthropic foundation bearing his name to get the word out about the project.

It is one of several similar restoration efforts in nature areas near NASCAR tracks nationwide.

The Ryan Newman Foundation is teaming up with NASCAR, Michigan International Speedway, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, The Conservation Fund and, of course, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

And on Thursday, those groups were joined by NASCAR legend Bobby Allison, well-known to an earlier generation of stock car racing fans.

"This is fun — it's a way to connect the fans and my foundation with a good cause," Newman said.

"It's important to put your philanthropic efforts into things you enjoy."

Newman explained that the foundation would collect money from fans and sponsors, but there's no set dollar amount that will be donated to the Mill Lake project.

"The goal is to have the area support the camp," Newman said. "The most important thing right now is to raise awareness; once you do that, the finances will come."

Newman, a native of South Bend, Ind., said he spent a lot of time in Michigan when he was growing up, and enjoys hunting, fishing and other outdoors activities.

Thursday's event was just part of a long weekend for Newman, who hosted about 250 members of his fan club at the Mill Lake camp on Wednesday and drove in Sunday's 3M Performance 400 NASCAR race at MIS in Brooklyn.

Although the focus of the project is Mill Lake, Thursday's event took place next door at the Cedar Lake camp, which the MUCC has leased from the state for several years as a youth camp.

After a picnic lunch of hot dogs, hamburgers and the trimmings, several of the principal players spoke to dozens of people who paid $100 each for the fund-raiser.

Rex Boner, vice president of The Conservation Fund, thanked the many participants in the project.

"Racing for Wildlife was just a concept a year ago; it's a humbling experience to see how far we've come so fast — we've met so many great people along the

It's a real pleasure to use my journalistic skills for an initiative that will benefit the community in so many ways.

I'm speaking of the plan to restore the Mill Lake Campground in Sylvan Township, a long-unused camp belonging to the Department of Natural Resources tucked quietly into a corner of the Waterloo State Recreation Area.

A plan is in place to rebuild Mill Lake as an active, year-round campground geared toward not just kids but entire families.

A long list of partners is actively working to make the plan a reality: NASCAR, Michigan International Speedway, professional racer Ryan Newman and his fan club and his philanthropic foundation, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, The Conservation Fund, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, and last but not least, the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce.

One of the first events to raise an estimated $1.5 million took place last Thursday at locations near the camp, involving people from far beyond the Chelsea area.

2007 Fair Queen wraps up her reign

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

If Jamie Innis has stars in her eyes at least she will soon be able to treat them. The 2007 Chelsea Community Fair Queen, who wraps up her yearlong reign this week, plans a career as an ophthalmologist.

Innis, the daughter of Dawna and Jeff Innis of Whitmore Lake, inherited the crown last August from Becky Allen. The Dexter High School student, sponsored by Mary Kumbier Photography, also received a sash, bouquet, trophy, charm bracelet, setting/portrait, and $1,000 scholarship.

Since her win, Jamie has appeared in the Saline Community Fair Parade,

Jamie Innis

Dexter Memorial Day Parade and the Chelsea Community Fair Parade.

She helped light the Christmas tree at Chelsea's annual Hometown Holidays, and went Christmas caroling at Silver Maples of Chelsea Retirement Community.

A talented violinist, she played her violin at the Miss Washtenaw County Pageant last fall, and served as poultry sweepstakes judge at last year's Chelsea Community Fair.

She also will play her violin at tomorrow's Ladies Day, one of many activities in a hectic week for the outgoing sovereign – with ribbon cutting, parades, helping at the livestock shows, taking part in a fashion show at Ladies Day, crowning her successor tomorrow night – and the less elegant event of getting dunked in the Chelsea Lion's Club dunk tank.

"Being Fair Queen was a great experience for me," Jamie says. "I was able to be involved in the community and share my experiences with other girls my age.

"What I enjoyed the most was being in the parades and waving to girls younger than me. Being a role model for them was special and rewarding. Everyone needs someone to look up to."

Jamie was a familiar sight at the fair over the years – she has been involved in 4-H for nine years, including serving as president of two clubs, one of which is involved in monthly community service projects such as picking up trash,

Chelsea State Bank called 'safe'

Bauer Financial, the nation's leading independent bank and credit union rating and research firm, has once again given Chelsea State Bank its 5-Star Rating, Bauer's top rating for financial strength and performance.

The announcement was made by CSB President and CEO John Mann. CSB was the only Washtenaw County based bank to make the list. Bauer Financial has been reporting on and analyzing the performance of U.S. banks and credit unions since 1983.

Financial data is compiled for U.S. banks and thrifts from call report data as reported to federal regulators. All institutions are subject to federal regulatory capital requirements, but those requirements vary among institutions and are dependent on many factors.

In general, institutions are required to maintain a tangible capital ratio of at least 4 percent, a tier 1 risk-based capital ratio of at least 4 percent and a total risk-based capital ratio of at least 8 percent. No institution pays for its rating, nor can they elude it.

In addition to the capital ratio, other criteria are used to determine the Bauer Financial Star-Rating. Some of these include but are not limited to: profitability/loss trend, evaluating the level of delinquent loans, charge-offs and repossessed assets, the market versus book value of the investment portfolio, regulatory supervisory agreements, the community reinvestment rating (CRA), historical data and liquidity.

CSB has also once again earned an "A" RATING from Weiss Safety Ratings, another national independent firm that monitors financial institutions and rates performance for safety. An "A" rating indicates that the institution/bank offers excellent financial security. It has maintained a conservative stance in its business operations and underwriting practices as evidenced by its strong equity base, top-notch asset quality, steady earnings, and high liquidity.

The Weiss Safety Ratings represent a completely independent, unbiased opinion of an institution's financial safety — now, and in the future. Like Bauer Financial, the Weiss ratings are derived, for the most part, from quarterly financial statements filed with federal regulators.

The Weiss Safety Ratings are assigned by analysts based on a complex analysis of hundreds of factors that are synthesized into five indexes: capitalization, asset quality, profitability, liquidity and stability.

These indexes are then used to arrive at a letter grade rating. A good rating requires consistency across all indexes. A weak score on any one index can result in a low rating, as insolvency can be caused by any one of a number of factors, such as inadequate capital, poor underwriting practices, operating losses, or the failure of an affiliated company.

"We are proud to receive such high ratings from the top two rating companies in the banking industry," said John Mann. "It's a credit to the bank's conservative and ethical operating practices that have been in place for the past 111 years. We have an obligation of maintaining the highest financial stability and accountability to our customers. More people, particularly prospective customers, are paying attention to our financial strength and these high ratings now more than ever before."

Founded in 1897, Chelsea State Bank is one of the oldest independent banks in Michigan, with 2 locations on Chelsea and one in neighboring Dexter. On line at www.csbonline.com.

BEAR

"They are more herbivore than carnivore; they're not going to kill your cat or dog or child," Detloff said.

"They eat fruit, and they absolutely love birdseed. We suggest you put your bird feeders away for a while, and they'll go away after a couple of weeks.

"But they'll completely mutilate bird feeders."

Detloff said bears, much like humans, tend to hunker down and find a shady spot when the weather gets warm, "but when it gets colder, that's when they're on the move."

Detloff had wise advice for those who may come across the bear:

"You shouldn't harass it, just leave it alone, go in your house or if you're in the woods, you should try to appear bigger than you are," she said.

At least it's not a female with cubs she's trying to protect; he'll sense you first and probably take off."

Detloff asked that people not put food out for the bear and not keep their garbage cans outside.

The DNR wants to study the bear's movements, and would like to trap it to fit it with a transmitter.

"People certainly should not shoot it; we have a trap located at Waterloo where it was spotted several times," Detloff said.

"We are hoping to trap the bear, put a radio collar on it and track its movements so we can do some research on why it has come so far out of its range."

If you happen to see the bear, do not try to approach it. Call the Waterloo Wildlife Field Office at 517-522-4097.

Rotary hosts seminar on improving business in slow times

Michael Angelo Caruso, a nationally recognized author and speaker, will deliver a leadership seminar on Oct. 7 titled "Growing Your Business - How to Profit Even During Slow Times."

HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS REGIONAL REPORT

Camping out - locally

Waterloo Recreation Area

Southeast Michigan offers plenty of places to pitch your tent

By Sue G. Collins
Heritage Newspapers

Camping in Southeast Michigan is no longer only about s'mores and soggy sleeping bags.

With campgrounds that offer summer-long residencies, golf-camping packages, sites where horses can stay next to the family tent and even clothing optional experiences, it may be time to think about camping again.

Campgrounds are offering free wireless Internet at each site, indoor and outdoor swimming pools, planned activities for adults and kids and themed weekends for families pitching tents, pulling trailers or parking recreational vehicles at sites for a few days or even a few months.

Summer site

Some families call local campgrounds "home" during the summer months and Jado Campground in Irish Hills provides a resting spot for their recreational vehicles. The seasonal site rent is $1,200.

There are people who come back year after year. It's a community of friends. They pick up where they left off last year," said Kay Miller, owner of Jado.

She and her husband, Douglas Miller, run the 123-site campground, open May through October. Rates are available for weekly and monthly sites, with or without electric and water hookup. A basic daily site is $20 for two adults with kids younger than 17 camping for free.

Like many of the campgrounds in Irish Hills, Jado opened to serve visitors to the nearby Michigan International Speedway, where truckloads of race-goers pull up to flood the area during the three big races each summer.

Since opening 40 years ago, Jado has changed to cater more to families. "Lucky Lou" is the resident leprechaun who welcomes guests and leads games.

"It's something unique we're in the Irish Hills, after all," said Kay Miller.

During October, Jado, along with other campgrounds in the area, host Halloween-themed weekend. The "Haunted Hills" events feature site-to-site trick-or-treating and pumpkin carving contests.

Apple Creek Campground and RV Park in Grass Lake offers wireless Internet access at campsites, set in an "up north atmosphere."

Toss in golf clubs along with the bug spray and s'more sticks when camping at Greenbriar RV Park in Brooklyn. There's an 18-hole course adjacent to the campground and golf camp packages are offered.

At the Pinckney Recreation Area, a state-owned park, why not try a night in a "yurt," a nomad-inspired structure available for rent for $60 for up to six.

Heading out

There are 97 state parks and recreation areas throughout Michigan with 250 camping units, with two nearby — Pinckney and Waterloo Recreation areas where there are campsites, trails, water sports and picnic spots.

In Michigan, campsite reservations are down by about 6 percent this year as compared to 2007, said Cheryl Greaney, Michigan Park and Recreation promotions manager.

Her division in Lansing realizes that the increase in gas prices and a weak economy has changed the climate for campers.

This summer, Greaney's office dreamed up some new strategies for attracting and keeping campers in parks. A new program gives vacationers free storage for their trailers and campers on state land between weekend visits, so they don't have to pull trailers back and forth.

"The more they save on gas, the more they'll be back and with less energy and gas being used. It's a win for everyone," Greaney said.

"We're also finding that people like being entertained when they come camping," she said.

Last year, Michigan Parks and Recreation planned more than 400 events and sent 40 Explorer Rangers out into the trails to lead games and hikes.

"It's all about getting kids away from the electronic devices and keeping people outside," Greaney said.

Nice wheels

For folks nervous about tenting, camping in a recreational vehicle can be a bit more luxurious. RV rental companies tout freedom, flexibility and fun. The reasons to rent an RV are the same reasons for taking any vacation — to get a break from the daily routine, to be with family and friends, to rest and relax, and to see new places.

When recreational vehicle sales and rental managers at General RV Center in Brownstown were looking at gas prices, forecasting a weak season, they offered up gas cards and jumbo rebates.

"We didn't know what to expect," said Jim Salamay, general manager.

They didn't need to sweeten the deal for too long.

"We are definitely not hurting with the gas price crunch. We were completely booked for all the big weekends, pulling vehicles from our other locations to fill our local reservations."

According to the Michigan Association of Recreation Vehicles and Campgrounds, campsites across the state have been full. A recent survey of RV owners revealed that more than one-third of owners say fuel costs will not affect their RV travel plans. However, even when fuel prices climb, RV family vacations are nearly 27 to 61 percent less expensive, according to the association.

With many parks offering a variety of planned and recreational activities, people traveling in RVs are saving on fuel by staying longer at their campground, taking advantage of the amenities.

At the start of the summer season, RV rental companies anticipated 2008 to be a better year, by 20 percent, for RV rentals, according to a survey of RV Rental Association members. At General RV Center in Brownstown, the country's largest rental agent, more people than expected were grabbing the keys to a motor home or camper

Several hundred Chelsea-area children decorated their bikes and themselves on Tuesday afternoon to ride in the 2008 Children's Parade, the popular opening act in the Chelsea Community Fair.

A sheep and her newborn lambs are part of a new exhibit at the Chelsea Community Fair, "Nature's Creation of Life," which opened Tuesday to overwhelming response. "There's been a continuous flow of people coming through," said Fair Board member Earl Heller. The exhibit also features cows, chicks and other animals, and a sterile surgical tent where pets will be spayed and neutered. The exhibit will remain open until today, when it moves on to the Michigan State Fair in Detroit.

Local Salvation Army welcomes new leadership

The Salvation Army of Washtenaw County (TSA-WC) recently announced new leadership at its Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti Corps.

Major John Williams and Major Dianna Williams will head up the Ann Arbor Corps, while Corps Administrator Jim Hulett will lead operations at the Ypsilanti Corps.

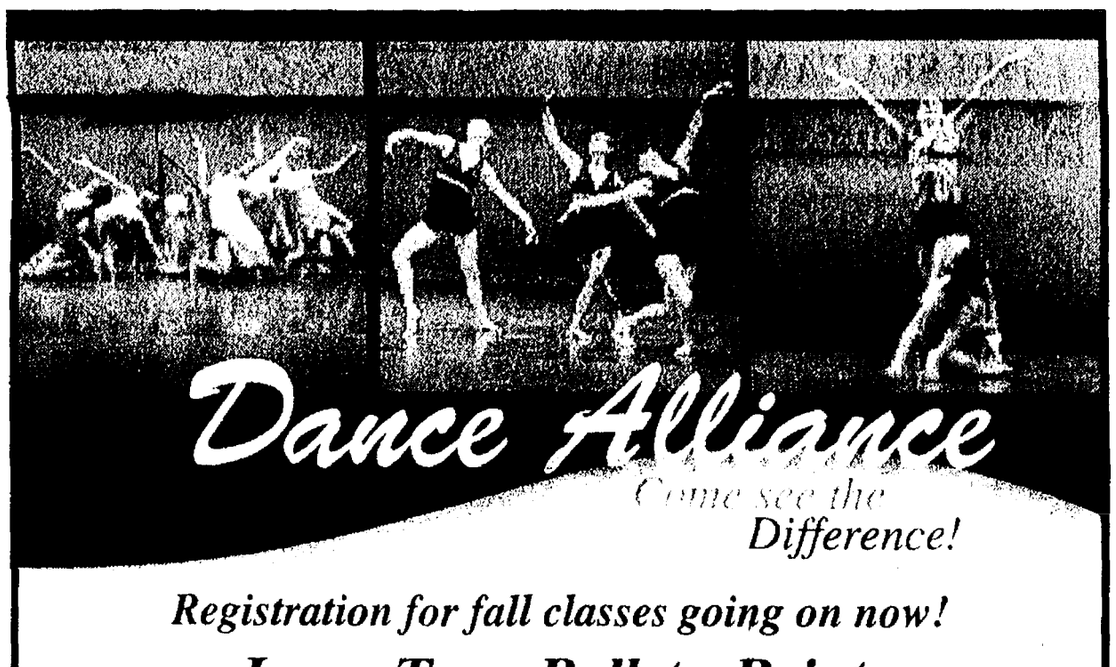

"We are very grateful to have Major John, Major Dianna and Jim on board with The Salvation Army of Washtenaw County," said Major Norman Marshall, Divisional Commander of The Salvation Army Eastern Michigan Division. "I had a hand in the selection of these new leaders because I am fully confident that their combined leadership experience will prove to be extremely valuable and will help The Salvation Army continue servicing those in need in Washtenaw County."

Majors John and Dianna Williams begin their new positions with more than 20 years of administrative and pastoral service with The Salvation Army. Their most recent position was in the Flint area.

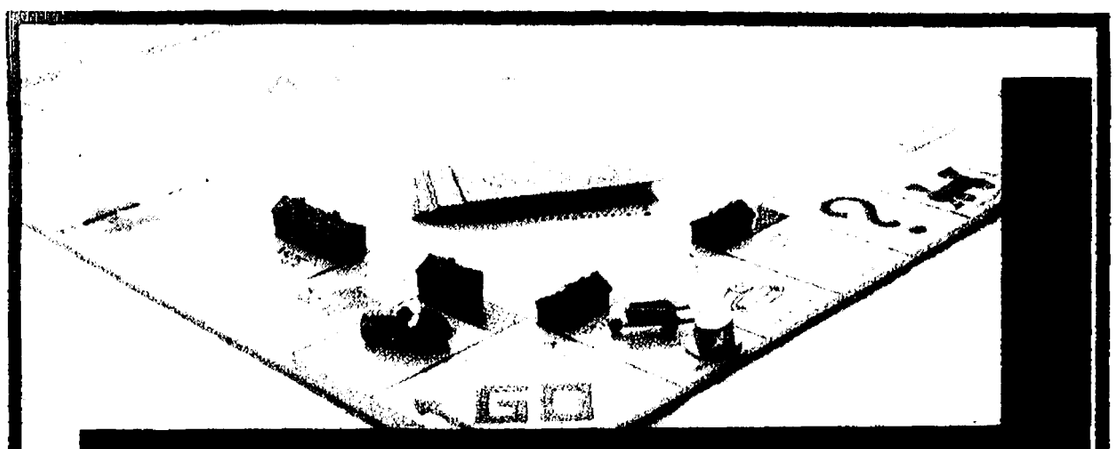

Major John previously served as Genesee County Commander in Flint. He has also served as corps officer, addictions program administrator, general secretary in the Adult Rehabilitation Centers Command and Property Secretary at Territorial Headquarters, located in Des Plaines, Ill.

COUNCIL

"Co-location is invited, as long as it doesn't interfere with operations," he said.

"A company like Verizon can use the tower, we can charge them rent and we would share that with the city."

Although an exact amount would have to be worked out with the company leasing the space, City Manager John Hanifan gave the council a ballpark figure.

"The amount of revenue is usually $15,000 to $20,000 per year, based on my experience in other communities," Hanifan said.

Council member Rod Anderson continued the line of questioning.

"This is funded by the county but it is on city land; what portion of the revenue would go to the city?" Anderson asked.

Swenson replied: "After expenses, on a 50/50 basis."

After a little more discussion on the possible obstacles to be overcome, the council voted to allow the project to proceed with the necessary permits for construction.

The council then turned its attention to a major project of its own, the $11.7 million expansion of the city's Wastewater Treatment Plant (WWTP).

The city entertained bids on engineering services from five firms ranging from $825,000 to $1.19 million.

Hanifan recommended approval of the bid from Process Results Inc. of Saline for $915,000.

"This is a very, very critical project for the city, and it's comforting to know this firm has been involved in more than 30 wastewater treatment plant projects," Hanifan said.

Council member Cheri Albertson said the public "needs to know why we are not choosing the low bidder."

Hanifan replied: "We believe they will provide the best services for the least cost."

According to Hanifan, the project team includes the same engineers who designed the expansion and conducted the quality assurance and design review.

The vote to approve the bid was unanimous.

Hanifan also had some good news regarding the purchase of bulk electrical power that had been mentioned at the July 22 council meeting.

The city "took advantage of a temporary price dip" to buy power from the Michigan Municipal Power Association at about 7 percent lower than the previously quoted rate.

"I'm pleased to announce a price of $60.40 per megawatt-hour ... instead of the $64 price we discussed at the last council meeting," Hanifan said.

That price is for 2.5 megawatt-hours – "the baseload power we will rely on every day from 2009 to 2011," Hanifan added.

The city manager presented a proposal to spend $300 to pursue a grant to seek an outside mediator to resolve conflicts that had arisen between municipal planning groups for both Chelsea and Dexter - the Chelsea Area Planning Team and Dexter Area Regional Team, also known as CAP/DART.

"We wanted to bring in an outside facilitator to mediate disagreements," Hanifan said, and suggested using the First Step Services Grant to contract with the Traverse City-based Land Information Access Association (LIAA).

LIAA's purpose is to provide technical, scientific, educational and informational services to citizens, local interest groups, local governments and nonprofit corporations for land-use planning, resource management, emergency management planning, and environmental protection.

LIAA is familiar with intergovernmental issues in Washtenaw County, working with Manchester Village and Manchester, Sharon, Freedom and Bridgewater townships on a regional planning board.

"The best example locally is SWWCOG, the Southwest Washtenaw Council of Governments," Hanifan said.

"They worked through their disagreements and came up with regional planning.

"I feel that $300 is a small price to pay; we need to take some first steps," Hanifan added, and the council agreed on the allocation.

The meeting ended with a more contentious topic, the possible sale of the Chelsea Fire Station at 200 W. Middle St. to the Chelsea Area Fire Authority.

CAFA previously expressed an interest in a long-term lease of the station in order to secure financing for much-needed repairs to the station, but that situation has since changed.

Hanifan reported that CAFA now wanted to discuss an outright purchase of the building, and suggested three courses of action for the council to take.

"Our options: tell them we're not interested and do nothing; draft a specific ordinance to sell the property and acquire a certified appraisal to determine its value; or negotiate with CAFA," Hanifan said.

Sale of the station, acquiring the appraisal or negotiating with the CAFA board would each require approval of specific motions by the council.

"We talked more than once with member committees about cost allocation and methodology," Hanifan said.

As it currently stands, just under half of CAFA's calls for service are for city residents, yet the city is footing the bill for a majority of the authority's budget.

Fixing that disparity is the cause of great concern for each of CAFA's member governments: the city of Chelsea and all or parts of Sylvan, Lyndon, Lima and Dexter townships.

Depending on the reallocation scenario, some stand to save money to varying degrees while others would end up paying significantly more.

Rod Anderson, the council's CAFA representative, suggested passing the motions as a first step toward breaking the impasse.

"I recommend we pass these motions; it does not commit us, but prepares us for the negotiations," he said.

Cheri Albertson expressed "disappointment" in CAFA's apparent unwillingness to share vital information with the council.

"I'm disappointed that CAFA is not here; it seems like every time we need financial information from them to make a decision it is not forthcoming," she said.

"I feel we are being blackmailed, and that is not the way to solve problems."

Mayor Ann Feeney said selling the station would put the city at a disadvantage.

"This leaves us out in the cold," she said. "With selling the building being our only bargaining chip we'd be only one vote out of five."

Added Albertson: "I don't see where the city benefits from this at all."

Anderson followed up with: "I don't see the compelling need for the sale."

Council member Frank Hammer proposed some decisive action.

"I move that the city does not begin negotiations until after a joint meeting with the CAFA board to discuss the sale and the cost allocation, plus a second meeting with the member municipalities to discuss the methodology," he said.

Feeney commented on the dilemma created by the situation.

"It's a very touchy subject," she said.

"They do a good job for us, but we gave up our autonomy when we became part of an authority."

Peter Pan

Chelsea's own Rainbow Players will present Peter Pan at 5 p.m. on Aug. 28 and 29 at Timbertown Playground. Athena Eyster organized this acting company of young people in 2003 to allow children to have leadership roles in set design, direction, acting and production. The performances are free, with pay-what-you-wish donations requested for Bethany Social Services, a Michigan charitable organization that assists orphaned immigrant children. Timber Town Playground is located on F.A. Weber Drive, off Sibley Road, just north of Chelsea. Everyone is invited, especially young children.

Kwame's fallout hurts the party

Is it piling on or an attempt to do good public policy? It depends on where you sit regarding the never-ending saga of Kwame Kilpatrick and what, if anything, state lawmakers should do about it.

Tim Skubick

For months, a House GOP member has had a resolution to get rid of the mayor. Months ago the popular wisdom was, this idea, in a democratically controlled house, would never see the light of day.

Well that was before the alleged shoving match, the alleged verbal abuse, the bail violation, the spectacle of the mayor in jail and now on a tether and facing a whopping 10 felony counts.

Recently even the Democratic speaker of the House concluded it was time for the mayor to step aside.

Rep. Andy Dillon's GOP counterpart, Rep. Craig DeRoche (R-Novi) thinks the House should do even more:

(1) Pass the Rep. David Law resignation non-binding resolution.

(2) Adopt legislation to wipe out health care benefits for public officials convicted of a felony.

(3) Allow the Detroit City Council to sue the mayor for the $8.4 million out-of- court settlement involving two police officers who sued.

And, DeRoche wants to recall the $4 million in revenue sharing the state just sent to Motown, adding the fear of losing that money "should help him (the mayor) make a decision on which way to go."

DeRoche contends all this is beyond politics, since he confesses, "It serves my purposes to have him on trial" in the fall in the midst of House re-election campaigns.

But let's not kid ourselves; there are a raft of outstate GOP candidates who would love to run against Democrats by exploiting the turmoil in Detroit.

I can see the TV ads now: Send me back to Lansing, because I had the guts to send Kwame Kilpatrick a message to get lost, while my Democratic opponent hides in the weeds.

All of this was coming to a head as the House was set to meet Wednesday, but then the Senate adjourned and the House decided to follow suit.

They were going to vote on an energy package, but the thing fell apart. So rather than meet on energy, both took more time off.

DeRoche thinks Dillon, faced with nothing else to do but vote on the Kwame stuff, was more than happy to scrap what could have been a tumultuous session over the future of his honor.

Meanwhile, the Kwame saga drags on and Dillon remains on the hot seat.

If he does nothing, voters may take it out on House Democratic candidates in November, especially if the GOP turns the non-action into a campaign issue. And it will.

Democrats must be able to see that Mr. Kilpatrick is not only hurting himself and his city, but now he could cost the Democrats votes in the House and maybe even the presidency.

The mayor can resolve all this, of course, with one flick of the pen on a resignation letter, but nobody is holding his or her breath waiting for that to happen anytime soon.

Although the betting money is that the mayor will resign down the road, will it be in time to save the Democrats from some toxic Kwame fallout from that political ominous mushroom cloud forming over Detroit?

Tim Skubick is the host of the television show "Off the Record."

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor: Recently, a female exchange student from Norway was in our airport very upset and crying.

While in Kelowna (B.C., Canada) she lost her credit cards and for whatever reason had to change her reservations to return to Norway. Upon checking the cost of her flight from Kelowna to Seattle, she realized she was short $100.

Not having enough money to purchase her ticket she became distraught and didn't know where to turn. Her remaining flight from Seattle had already been taken care of by her Dad in Norway.

While I spoke with her and calmed her, a gentleman who was close by asked, "what is the problem?" And between sobs she explained she was short $100 to return home. Without further question this very kind person, Mr. Bulent Buyukbozkiru of Dexter, Mich., gave her the money and wished her a happy and safe trip.

After the tears and hugs, she immediately purchased her ticket and was on her way. To this amazing and compassionate person, Bulent Buyukbozkiru, you helped an exchange student. As well, you made my day and I sincerely thank you.

Myrna Johnson
Kelowna, B.C. Canada

To the Editor: This is the time of year that candidates pepper our mailboxes with campaign literature. They are required to label their literature so we know exactly who paid for it.

For example, I received a postcard from Mark Schauer, candidate for 7th District US Representative, labeled, "Paid for by Schauer for Congress."

Last week I received a whole page from incumbent Tim Walberg. The label said, "This mailing was prepared, published, and mailed at taxpayer expense." This shady character has also placed expensive, multiple-page inserts into several newspapers, all "published at taxpayer expense." That's your money, by the way.

He will claim that these were informational pieces, but we're not that stupid (although he and his campaign think we are). It's campaign time.
Walberg is part of the new Republican Party, which is happy to spend our money freely and ignore the cleanup, while claiming every other party is for "taxing and spending."

This guy has a history of similarly shady deals. In 2004 he unseated our effective, moderate Republican incumbent by claiming "Joe Schwarz spent your money on trans-gendered street theater." In truth, the bill referenced by Walberg was over 400 pages long and was called the "Department of the Interior, Environment, and Related Agencies Appropriations Act of 2006." The bill funded veteran's health care, the National Institutes of Health, the Fish and Wildlife Service, our national parks, the Smithsonian Institution, and the Forest Service.

There was but one paragraph funding the National Endowment for the Arts. The words "trans-gendered" or "street theater" never appeared in the bill. (Obviously the bill passed by a wide margin – only eight Republicans were opposed – and the president promptly signed it into law.)

Walberg pursues a single-item, special interest agenda. He is the ultimate wolf-in-sheep's-clothing lurking in our Congress. Those who voted for him in 2006 should help fire him in 2008.

Mark Schauer truly works for the people of Michigan. He is passionate about us. And he's got a history of being above board and honest.
We should elect Mark Schauer in November for 7th District Representative.

Chelsea and president of the Western Washtenaw Democratic Club

To the Editor: I'm writing to ask the person who removed the Friends of the Library "Used Book Sale" sign near the Peace Park on Ann Arbor Street during Dexter Daze to please return it to the library. Thank you.

To the Editor: A note of thanks to the residents of Scio Township that supported the Team for Scio in the recent primary. While I did not personally win, the Team had four members who did, and most importantly, the Township won. The Board that will be seated in November is simply outstanding and will lead the Township forward.

To the Editor: As the Chelsea Education Foundation (CEF) begins a new year of giving to the community through grants and scholarships, I wish to express sincere thanks to all of the board members that gave so generously of their time and talent.

During my three year service term, I watched in admiration the people that quietly went about being great parents, family members, employees, community members as well as passionate volunteers of the CEF board. I am proud of the genuine esprit de corps of the board. Meetings often focused on identifying the best ways possible to provide more funding for grants and scholarships to all age group in the community; of particular significance in the current economic climate.

Although the majority of the CEF giving is to the Chelsea School District, the board also selected recipients in preschool age groups, the Adult Learning Institute (ALI) and local theatre groups.

A special acknowledgement to the board members completing their term: Jon Mykala, Angela Sujek and Elaine Economo. Thank you to the current board for your continued commitment: Juli Turner, Bill Wells, Owen Ballow, Nancy Salatin, Bil Arons, Mark Lodewyk, Tom Turek, Carolyn Adkins, Mats Lonnemo, Kristin Hall, Laurel McDevitt (CSD Liaison) and newcomers Jeff Kause, Susan Wellman, Gina Paulsen and Mary Jo Hess.

To learn more about how you or your children may benefit from grants and/or scholarships from the CEF, perhaps making a tax deductible contribution or serving on the CEF board, visit the Web site at www.chelseaeducationfoundation.com.

Our Chelsea History

What was the first business in the Chelsea Print & Graphics building?
A. The Chelsea Standard newspaper
B. Knapp's Hardware Store
C. Kempf Commercial & Savings Bank
D. Kempf's Hardware and tin shop.

Answer D. Reuben Kempf and his wife bought the building in 1868 from the Taylor family. Recorded as the first brick building in downtown Chelsea, Reuben and Charles Kempf ran the Kempf's Hardware and tin shop at this corner before they opened the Kempf Bank in 1876. Knapp and Wood leased the building as a hardware store in 1874. Kempf Bank remodeled in 1907 with Italianate, neoclassical architecture using marble and fine Roman ceramic bricks. In 1892 Dentists H. H. Avery in 1892 followed by A. Steger occupied the upper floor. Some other past businesses using the building were the United State Post Office, in 1942 the Chelsea Library, in 1956 State Farm Insurance and Grove's 5 and 10 in the 1950s. William and Jabez Bacon got their start in the hardware business in this building.

CAMPING

trailer for family vacations.

Jim Salamay, general manager of the rental department at General RV Center, said people are changing their way of vacationing to get more out of their holiday budget.

"A trip to Disney costs a family about $8,500 and that's hard for a lot of people this summer. Instead, they are coming to us, renting a camper for $1,200 for a week and heading off to see some of the great sites of Michigan."

For beginners, Salamay recommends a Class C motor home like the 28-foot Four Winds camper that looks like a minivan from the front, seating nine and sleeping six to eight for about $1,195 a week or $625 for a weekend trip.

It's easy to drive and park, and gets about 10 miles per gallon, he said. The deal includes 100 free miles per day, and then renters pay 25 cents per mile and $2 per generator hour, with one free per day thrown in.

Over in the sales department, Salamay said "pullable" travel trailers are selling big this summer. For $16,000, a family can invest in a camper that sleeps eight and can be pulled by a mini-van or larger sports utility vehicle, with a bumper or frame hitch. Inside are all the conveniences of home with a living area, bathroom, kitchen and a few sleeping areas.

"Ultra lightweight trailer sales are up. I think with the future uncertain for so many families, they are looking at different options for vacationing," Salamay said.

And, on average, pulling one of the lightweight trailers sucks down an additional three or four gallons of gas per mile.

With Labor Day approaching, signaling the end of summer for many families, a camping vacation can still be in the cards. Check out the resources guide, research a campground and stay close to home while feeling a million miles away.

No more robocalls

Schauer invites Walberg to end 'divisive political tactics'

Congressional candidate Mark Schauer (D-Battle Creek) sent a letter inviting Congressman Tim Walberg (R-District 7) to join him in a pledge not to make political robocalls to voters in the 7th district for the remainder of the 2008 campaign.

He also asked the Congressman to agree to publicly ask third party groups not to use robocalls for the rest of the race. "People are tired of divisive political tactics, and out of respect for the democratic process, I think we should agree to offer voters something different by not bothering them with robocalls this year," said Schauer. "With all of the challenges facing our state, businesses and workers deserve an honest and open exchange of ideas between the two of us about our respective plans for turning Michigan's economy around."

Schauer said that one group recently sent negative robocalls to voters regarding his position on domestic drilling. The calls falsely claim that Schauer opposes drilling, even though he has offered public support for responsible drilling on numerous occasions.

"To set the record straight, I support responsible domestic drilling, both onshore and off," said Schauer. "Just this week I announced legislation that is specifically intended to spur oil production in Michigan. As I have said all along, what we need is a comprehensive energy strategy that includes protecting the Great Lakes, curbing speculation, temporarily releasing a portion of the Strategic Petroleum Reserve for short-term relief at the pump, exploring safe nuclear alternatives, ending tax breaks for big oil and investing in renewable energy technology to create green collar jobs in Michigan."

Chamber backs Walberg

Walberg announced last week that he received the endorsement of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce PAC.

In the letter to Congressman Walberg, Thomas Donohue, president of the Chamber, stated it's the Chamber's goal "to advance legislation that encourages economic growth, job creation and a less intrusive federal government. ... We believe that your election to the U.S. House will help produce sustained economic growth and promote America's competitiveness in world markets."

Walberg stated that Schauer was the deciding vote in favor of the largest tax increase in Michigan history, and his opponent introduced a bill to raise the income tax by 18 percent.

"While Mark Schauer was the deciding vote in favor of massive, job-killing tax increases, this endorsement signifies my work to grow our economy, promote job creation, and make America an economic powerhouse for generations to come," Walberg said.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce represents over 3 million businesses, with 96 percent having fewer than 100 employees.

CAMP

way," said Rex Boner, vice president of The Conservation Fund.

"If we don't get kids connected to the land, we're not going to have the stewards for the next generation."

The project also has support in the state Legislature, with Republican Sen. Randy Richardville of Monroe.

"I'm interested in seeing how today's event goes," said Richardville, R-District 17. "I enjoy shooting skeet, and I'm looking forward to having some fun."

Boner introduced Allison as someone who is also an outdoorsman.

"For me it's great to be involved, and I appreciate what you're doing with trying to restore the camp," Allison said.

Cedar Lake Facilities Director Bob Smith, said reviving the Mill Lake camp will also help the Cedar Lake camp.

"We're all part of one team – having Mill Lake open will be good advertising for us at Cedar Lake," Smith said.

"Once people see how we treat families (at Mill Lake), it'll have a positive impact on us (at Cedar Lake).

"It's great that they're going to have them (Ryan Newman and Bobby Allison) lend their names to us," he added.

"It'll have more impact on our ability to bring Mill Lake back to its glory days — plus, they're just darn nice guys."

Gary Haner, who is managing the Mill Lake project for the DNR, is putting to good use his experience with children and families as the retired superintendent of Pinckney and Clarkson school districts.

"What we are planning on is, one, re-establishing the camp physically through restoration and reconstruction; and two, developing actual programming," Haner said.

"I'm very excited about the impact Chelsea will have on the camp, and the people at the camp will have on Chelsea businesses."

That impact on Chelsea businesses is one of the reasons that the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce in involved, according to Executive Director Bob Pierce.

"This has been a wonderful opportunity for Chelsea to showcase its community resources; it has also benefited local businesses," he said.

Pierce noted that the fan club event was catered by Chelsea Community Hospital's food service department, Chelsea Rentals provided equipment, and Chelsea Signs provided all the directional and welcome signs.

The organizations booked more than 20 room nights in local hotels and local restaurants were busy with fans, fan club staff and national support staff for Racing for Wildlife and the Conservation Fund, Pierce added.

"The Chamber acted as 'boots on the ground' for the fan club and made local business contacts for them," he said.

"This event is having a very positive economic impact on our community, and it's worthy of our support and collaboration."

After lunch the entourage relocated to the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club on Lingane Road for the main event, spending the rest of the afternoon on the outdoor range.

About three dozen participants divided up into teams of five for two rounds of 25 shots each.

Shotguns, shells and clay targets were provided by the club, which is solidly behind the Mill Lake project.

"The club has been around since 1937, and we're a charter member of MUCC," said club president Greg Peter. "This is an opportunity to 'marry' a lot of different groups."

Along with that variety of groups came participants from a variety of locations.

Duran Martinez of Lansing brought his 9-year-old daughter Eryn so both could take advantage of some target shooting.

"I was invited by Conservation Fund officials, they really want me to be involved," said Martinez, promotions director and DJ for Lansing radio station WMMQ, 94.9-FM.

He is also host of a radio show, "AM Outdoors," that is being syndicated to several radio stations.

"I've had involvement in NASCAR through our sister station and wanted to be part of a really neat organization; get in on the ground floor," Martinez said.

"I love radio, I love the outdoors, I spend a lot of time outdoors with my daughter, so I'm happy to get out here and support this."

Tom Altom of Springfield, Mass., likely traveled the farthest from his home after receiving an e-mail about the event from the Ryan Newman fan club.

"It's a great idea; it's great to have somebody like Ryan Newman and his foundation put some name power behind it," Altom said.

"(The Mill Lake camp) still needs a lot, but the hardest part of it will be the restoration," he added.

"Conserving the old buildings and bringing them up to today's standards will be costly."

Rob Jellison, from Hartland in Livingston County, won the adult prize package consisting of $150 in cash plus a basket full of hats, water bottles and other gift goodies, with a score of 44 out of 50.

"I'm a seventh-grade teacher at Hartland Middle School, a Ryan Newman and NASCAR fan and an outdoorsman," Jellison said.

"I donated the $150 back to the project."

The youth winner was Jacob Popp, age 11, also of Hartland, with a score of 20 out of 50.

The Conservation Fund's Boner said he appreciated the community's support of the Racing for Wildlife concept.

"This is just the first of many such projects near NASCAR tracks across the country; stay tuned for more Racing for Wildlife activities," he said.

"The community is excited about it, they're giving us great support and it'll be a great benefit for the community."

Pierce said the Chamber is "building a relationship" with NACAR and MIS through from the entire county will benefit.

"Our investment has been about 20 hours of my time, and we've already seen this kind of return on investment," he said, pointing out al the participants at the club.

"This is the benefit we have right now for the community; it will multiply exponentially as the camp progresses as the word goes out nationally through NASCAR, the Conservation Fund and the Ryan Newman Foundation."

NASCAR legend Bobby Allison is also lending his name to the effort to raise money to restore the Mill Lake campground near Chelsea.

FREUNDL

$100 for a catered lunch at the Cedar Lake camp next door to Mill Lake, plus two rounds of trap at the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club on Lingane Road.

In return for the donation, the club would provide the ammunition, the clay targets and even the guns.

Although a reporter is not supposed to become part of the story he is covering, I was persuaded to pick up a shotgun for the first time in many years and join the fun.

I'm not a big NASCAR fan by any stretch, and if not for covering the Racing for Wildlife project since it began a couple of months ago, I wouldn't know Ryan Newman from Paul Newman.

But one name I did recognize was Bobby Allison, who appeals to an entirely different, older generation of NASCAR fans.

The fact that a legendary figure like Allison was willing to lend his weight to this effort really impressed on me that this was going to be a Very Big Deal, and I was grateful to be in on the opening act.

At any rate, I've had some experience on a trap range, accompanying my father almost every Sunday for a few years a long time ago. But just how long, I had forgotten.

I had told people at the range it's been about 10 years since I'd been shooting, but when my wife reminded me she had never even heard of me trap shooting, I realized that it was closer to 20 years.

Dad was quite good, regularly scoring 90 or more out of 100 targets and going to the state meet many times.

On the other hand, my scores back in the day were more in the range of about 20 out of 25.

It was a serious hobby for my father, who acquired at least two shotguns, all the gear to reload his own shells, the shaded glasses, the earmuffs, and the fancy-schmancy shooting vest with oversized pockets for ammo and padded shoulder to cut down on recoil.

However, he had to give it up when problems with his back and legs intervened.

So I called him a couple of days before the shoot and asked if I could borrow his Remington Model 870 pump, the one I frequently used.

"I got rid of all that stuff years ago – didn't you know that?" he said, and I swear I could hear the air being let out of a balloon.

No matter, I consoled myself, it'll still be a fun story to cover. But that sounded to me an awful lot like when I recently missed the chance to ride in a B-17 bomber at the Yankee Air Museum.

So when the guys at the gun club said they had extra shotguns, I wasted no time getting fixed up with a Model 1100 automatic - the other gun Dad let me use.

With five teams of shooters there would be plenty of time for me to do my "reporter thing," switch gears, grab some shells and go up on the line, then go back and talk to more people.

Watching guys like Ryan Newman and Bobby Allison perform in an arena so far removed from their profession was great, because they are both pretty good shots.

The shooting skills of the other participants was mixed at best, because it was the first time a lot of them had fired a gun.

Since it had been almost 20 years, I figured 19 hits out of 50 total targets wasn't too bad after all.

Besides, that colorful bruise on my bicep will fade long before my memories of that day.

Even though the trap shoot didn't raise a lot of money, the effort is still in its early stages.

The Mill Lake restoration project deserves our support to bring back the camp to its glory days, and give children and families a chance to experience nature one-on-one.

Donations for Racing for Wildlife can be made through www.racingforwildlife.org; www.ryannewmanfoundation.org; and www.conservationfund.org; among others.

Chelsea Farmers' Market continues to grow on area vendors, shoppers

Kevin Heim and his family have been in the farming business for many years. He says that Heim Gardens has been growing a wide variety of vegetables for 26 years. Everything is good now, especially with the peak of growing season.

Linda Schmieding, "the flower lady," has been coming to the Chelsea Market for four years. She comes from Manitou Beach and brings a variety of mixed blooms, hydrangeas and sunflowers. If you want to keep and dry hydrangeas, Linda says this is the time to buy them, and they should be green in color. This is one of Linda's favorite markets because she says, "people seem very happy."

Hayley Townsend, 7 years old, was at the market as the winner of the Chelsea Farmer's Market coloring contest. She was looking at the items at "Pictures in Thread" and tried on the "princess" hat. The princess hat is clever and unique and also keeps your ears warm.

Dale Woods from Fowlerville brings honey to the Chelsea Market about once a month. His wildflower honey is cold pressed. In addition to his honey, he also sells honeycomb and beeswax candles.

Ruhlig's Produce is located in Dexter and they have been coming to market for about seven years. Market selling started when the Ruhlig girls wanted to start a college fund. Danielle on the left will be a senior in high school and her sister Janelle (not present) started selling gladiolas. The number of products at market has increased and they sell vegetables in addition to the flowers. Danielle reports that their college fund is healthy.

Pictures in Thread is a family business which specializes in custom embroidery. They are able to sew company logos and other special pictures on T-shirts, jackets and hats. Other items for sale include potholders, key chains and customized flip-flops.

Pregitzer Farm Market in Munith has been growing and selling produce for over 10 years. They host special events like garden tours, pumpkin patch hayrides, a petting farm and a corn maze. Wade Pregitzer (right) says that the farm specializes in watermelon and sweet corn. He brought a large supply of corn to market and said the watermelon would be ripe soon. You can check out events at yourfarmmar

David Lee Winter of Chelsea died Aug. 17, 2008 at Arbor Hospice in Ann Arbor after a year-long, hard-fought battle with Esophageal Cancer. He was 56.

Mr. Winter was born in Jackson, the son of Victor W. & Gladys M. (Runciman) Winter.

He lived in Chelsea most of his life, graduating from Chelsea High in 1970. He earned a BBA-Accounting from Eastern Michigan University. David made a 31 year career at the University of Michigan in the Financial Operations Department. He enjoyed attending auctions and spending time at his cottage on Silver Lake, where he especially enjoyed fishing. David will mostly be remembered for the laughter and smiles he brought to those around him. He taught us all to laugh. His motto in life was: Live, Laugh, Love.

In 1982 he married Diane M. Hinkley at her parent's home in Ann Arbor, and she survives. Other survivors include his son, Michael Winter of Chelsea; a sister, Mary Ann Winter of Dexter; several aunts, uncles; and cousins. He was preceded in death by his parents.

Superintendent's Corner

David K. Killips
Superintendent of Schools

Welcome back to another exciting school year in the Chelsea School District! Several new initiatives are in place in order to provide all students with outstanding educational opportunities.

North Creek Elementary will begin the implementation of full-time kindergarten for all students. This new and exciting program has demonstrated academic and social gains for students across the nation. The staff has been preparing since last school year to incorporate the new standards necessary in order to meet the needs of the students. Along with the new program come four beautiful classrooms that have been added on to North Creek.

Beach Middle School will be expanding the laptop computer program from the sixth grade to all seventh and eighth grade students. This program will be implemented in phases this school year. By semester time we anticipate all middle school students utilizing technology on a daily basis to improve their academic standard. This does not mean all instruction will be via the computer, but, rather, the computer will be an additional tool for students to expand their knowledge base.

Trimester scheduling will be initiated at the high school this fall. This new scheduling format will allow students to have additional choices in course offerings throughout their four years in high school. With the new state graduation requirements thrust upon us, it is necessary to allow students to continue to pursue additional areas of interest in various subject matters, inclusive of vocational education, music, and Advanced Placement courses.

Adolescent Literacy Initiative will become a focus for grades 5 through 12. Content Area teachers and students will work together to enhance the students' reading strategies and skills, so that students can become strategic readers in a variety of texts. Teachers will model a variety of strategies, scaffold the instruction so that students will become more independent, allowing students to read, write, and discuss the text with deeper comprehension and ownership of their own thinking.

Construction projects over the summer included new paint and flooring throughout North Creek Elementary, plus the addition of the new kindergarten wing. The hallways in the classroom wing of Chelsea High School have been painted and new flooring installed.

The Chelsea School District, along with great support from parents and community, remain committed to our mission: "Achieving educational goals one student at a time."

I hope everyone has a rewarding and enjoyable school year.

7th & 8th Grade Laptop Program

The addition of a one-to-one laptop program will be new to the middle school this year. With this extension of the 6th grade laptop program to include 7th and 8th grades, each student will be able to continue to improve their learning capabilities. According to Principal Patrick Little, "Staff considers this to be an important tool for learning and teaching." A few select textbooks may be loaded onto each computer, making the transfer of learning materials less of a hassle. Students will be able take home the laptops just as they would a textbook. Laptops will be assigned to students during October-Please follow all procedures for the safety of our children.

All-Day/Everyday Kindergarten Begins

Following Board approval, Chelsea will begin to provide all-day/everyday kindergarten for the 08-09 school year. We continue to use developmentally- appropriate methods throughout the year. We are excited about the opportunity to work more frequently on goals that develop social and emotional skills, along with academic goals for each individual child. This all-day/everyday format will allow us to best address individual needs.

Chelsea Schools Value Community Support

Parent and community members are vital to the success of students in the Chelsea School District. At the building level, parents and community members are valued as classroom volunteers, office volunteers, PTO officers and board members, PTO event volunteers, parent support group participants, field trip chaperones, music booster, and athletic boosters. In addition to building-level opportunities, the Chelsea School District has several District-wide committees on which parent and community members play a vital role.

These committees include the following:
- The District School Improvement Team: reviews District and building goals and works to coordinate professional development and other school improvement strategies across the District. This team reviews the District annual report and provides input on strategies for District goals.
- The District Curriculum Council: coordinates the review and alignment of District curriculum with state and national standards.
- The Reproductive Health Advisory Committee: oversees District curriculum and instruction in the area of reproductive health.
- Task Forces: the District, to address specific needs, may establish task forces. When established, such committees have a defined focus and timeline for reporting.

"New members are needed each year for various committees," according to Andrew Ingall, Executive Director of Instruction and Community Services for the Chelsea School District. Ingall maintains a file of parents and community members interested in serving as volunteers for these District-level opportunities, with the goal of having volunteers identified to fill positions as openings develop. Persons interested in learning more about these opportunities may contact Ingall at 433-2208, ext. 6084.

Food Service Department

The Chelsea School District lunch program offers popular lunch choices for our students every day. We emphasize good nutrition and encourage all of our student guests to select choices from our fresh fruit and veggie bar daily. We strive to provide local and regionally-grown fresh foods whenever possible and participate in a successful farm-to-school program in partnership with the Food System Economic Partnership.

School lunch menus and prices are listed on the school district web site.

The student's ID card doubles as a debit card, if parents choose to deposit money into their child's lunch account. The ability to make on-line deposits using Visa or MasterCard is offered as a convenience, as well.

Families in need are encouraged to complete a free or reduced price lunch application available on the District web site or in any school office.

Karen Carty, Food Service Director, welcomes comments and questions and can be reached at the Food Service office at 433-2246.

Student Accident Insurance

Chelsea School District does not provide student accident insurance for its students/athletes. Parents may purchase coverage on an individual basis. Enrollment forms are available at the Administration Building (500 Washington Street) or at the main office of each school building.

Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act
Annual Notification of Rights and Designation of:

Directory Information: Each year, the Chelsea School District, Washtenaw and Jackson Counties, Michigan, is required to give notice of the various rights accorded to parents or students pursuant to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). Parents and eligible students have a right to be notified and informed. In accordance with FERPA, you are notified of the following:

Right to Inspect: You have the right to inspect and review substantially all of your education records maintained by or at the Chelsea School District. This right extends to the parent of a student under 18 years of age and to any student age 18 or older.

Right to Request Amendment: You have the right to seek to have corrected any parts of an education record which you believe to be inaccurate, misleading, or otherwise in violation of your rights. This right includes the right to a hearing to present evidence that the record should be changed, if a designated official of the Chelsea School District decides not to alter the education records according to your request. If no change is made to the education record after the hearing, you have a right to place a written rebuttal in the record.

Right to Prevent Disclosure: You have the right to prevent disclosure of education records to third parties with certain limited exceptions. It is the intent of the Board of Education to limit the disclosure of information contained in your education records to those instances when prior written consent has been given to the disclosure as an item of directory information of which you have not refused to permit disclosure, or under the provisions of FERPA which allow disclosure without prior written consent.

Right to Complain: You have the right to file a complaint with the United States Department of Education concerning the alleged failure of the Chelsea School District to comply with FERPA. Your complaint should be directed to: Family Policy Compliance Office, US Department of Education, 600 Independence Avenue, SW, Washington, DC, 20202-4605.

Right to Obtain Policy: You have the right to obtain a copy of the policy adopted by the Board of Education in compliance with FERPA. A copy may be obtained in person or by mail from the Office of the Superintendent, Chelsea School District, 500 Washington Street, Chelsea, MI 48118.

Right to Object to Release of Directory Information: Generally, school officials must have written permission from the parent of a student or an eligible student before releasing any information from a student's record. However, FERPA allows school districts to disclose, without consent, "directory-type" information. The Board of Education of the Chelsea School District, Washtenaw and Jackson Counties, Michigan, has designated the following personally-identifiable information contained in a student's education records as "directory information": a student' s name; address; date and place of birth; photograph; major field of study; participation in officially recognized activities and sports; height and weight, if a member of an athletic team; dates of attendance; date of graduation; awards received; or any other information which would not generally be considered harmful or an invasion of privacy, if disclosed.

Unless you advise us otherwise that you do not want any or all of this information released, school officials may release personally-identifiable information, which it has designated as directory information. Upon such objection, this information will not be released without the prior consent of the parent or eligible student. You have two weeks from the receipt of this notice to advise the District, in writing, of any or all of those types of information about the student which you refuse to permit the District to designate as directory information. Your objections should be addressed to the Office of the Superintendent, Chelsea School District, 500 Washington Street, Chelsea, MI 48118.

Pesticide Advisory: As a part of the Chelsea School District's pest management program, pesticides are occasionally applied. You have the right to be informed prior to any pesticide application made to the school grounds and buildings. In certain emergencies, pesticides may be applied without prior notice, but you will be provided notice following any such application. Notification request slips are sent or mailed home with each student at the beginning of each school year. If you do not receive a notification request form or need additional information, please contact Ron Livengood, Director of Operations, Chelsea School District, 14138 East Old US 12, Chelsea, MI 48118, (734) 433-2276, to request a notification form.

Asbestos Law: In accordance with the Asbestos Hazard Emergency Response Act (AHERA), the intent of this letter is to meet the annual notification requirements of the law. During the past twelve months, trained in-house maintenance staff of Chelsea School District has performed routine, small-scale removals of thermal insulation to allow for the repair and replacement of heating system valve pipes and Vinyl Asbestos Tile (VAT) to allow for minor floor repairs. Nova Environmental of Ann Arbor, Michigan, serves as the Chelsea School District's consultant and inspections service on any large-scale projects.

Chelsea School District employee training is continuing on an annual basis. The in-house staff will perform periodic surveillance of all asbestos-containing material, as mandated by the AHERA Act. This inspection will occur every six months and allows the District to maintain and manage its asbestos program.

Assurance of Non-Discrimination: Applicants for admission and employment, students, parents, employees, volunteers, contractors, sources of referral of applicants for admission and employment, and all unions or professional organizations holding collective bargaining or professional agreements with the Chelsea School District are notified that the Chelsea School District does not discriminate on the basis of race, national origin, sex, age, religion, disability, pregnancy, marital status, veteran status, height, or weight in admission, access, treatment, or employment for any of its programs, activities, or policies.

Protection of Pupil Rights Amendment: Parents will be given annual notice of adoption, substantive changes in, or continued use of policies regarding the following: (1) rights of parents to inspect third party surveys before they are distributed to students, and take measures to protect student privacy when surveys ask for certain sensitive information; (2) parental right to inspect any instructional materials; (3) administration of physical examinations or screening of students; (4) collection, disclosure or use of personal information from students for the use of marketing or selling that information; and (5) the parental right to inspect any instrument used to collect personal information before it is distributed to students.

Chelsea athletes receive honors

Commissioner David Neilson has announced the 2007-08 Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association Academic Honor Roll. The honor roll recognizes scholar-athletes who have achieved a minimum 3.5 grade point average (on a 4.0 scale) for the entire 2007-2008 academic year.

The athlete also needed to have earned a varsity letter in a sport to be recognized. The Academic Honor Roll program was initiated in 1990 to recognize students at MIAA member colleges who excel both in athletics and in the classroom.

There were four students from Chelsea who earned both academic and athletic honors. Those students were Jaime Franks, a sophomore soccer player at Kalamazoo College, Richard Kinsey, a freshman swimmer at Olivet College, Missy Morcom, a senior softball player at Alma, and Ausable Schwiebert, a sophomore soccer player at Hope College.

Franks helped Kalamazoo's women's soccer team win 11 games out of 16. She scored two goals and had one assist during the regular season and was a scoring leader with five goals during the entire season.

Kinsey placed in all three of his individual events in the 2007-2008 MIAA Swimming and Diving Championships. He placed seventh in the 500 yard freestyle with a time of 4:49.15, ninth in the 1650 yard freestyle with a time of 17:05.79 and 12th in the 200 yard freestyle with a time of

Locals lead grid teams

By Ed Patino

More often than not over the past decade, the football championship in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association has been decided in the final two weeks of the season.

Many believe that trend will continue this fall as the league released its preseason football poll Aug. 7 during the MIAA Fall Sports Media Day at Alma College.

For the second straight year, Hope College was named the preseason favorite to win the championship, while Adrian College was picked second. Olivet was ranked third and Alma was picked to finish fourth. Rounding out the league rankings are Trine University (fifth), Albion (sixth) and Kalamazoo (seventh).

Both the MIAA football coaches and members of the media participated in the voting.

Hope and Olivet shared the MIAA crown last year, with Olivet earning the league's NCAA playoff bid by way of a 28-25 victory over the Flying Dutchmen during the season. Hope had the lowest combined score in the poll voting, but received only two first place votes from the media. Adrian had seven first place votes, with three from the coaches and four from the media, while Olivet had six first place votes (four from coaches, two from media).

"Historically the poll has been wrong more than it's been right," Hope coach Dean Kreps said. "There's parity in the league, and we don't put a lot of stock into the polls. We have to come to play every week."

The preseason favorite has followed through only twice since 1996, both times sharing the title (Albion in 1999 and Hope last year).

"This is always a competitive league," Albion coach Craig Rundle said. "It's not often that a team goes undefeated in league play."

Hope went 6-4 during last year's co-championship run and graduated several key players. However, the Dutchmen return senior quarterback Jake Manning, who threw 22 touchdown passes and 2,459 yards. Junior John Rodriguez and sophomore Charles Gamble will see time at running back, while junior Dave DeBoer returns at tight end. On defense, Kreps believes his team's biggest strength is its secondary.

Local players on Hope's roster include Chris Schmelz (Chelsea) and Stephen Burgett (Dexter).

"We had a great year in recruiting, and we're looking to recapture the chemistry of the past years," Kreps said. "We have some great kids and they're fun to coach."

Adrian posted a 7-3 record last year, with the three losses coming by a combined 14 points. The Bulldogs return senior slashback Troy Niblock, last year's MIAA Co-Offensive Player of the Year. Niblock will likely split time at quarterback with sophomore Mike McGee and see time at running back and receiver. Senior Pat Reagan and junior Joseph Beehler will provide weapons at receiver, while senior John Ahearn (Tecumseh) will anchor the offensive line.

The Bulldogs ranked sixth nationally (Division III) last year. Seniors Bobby Watson, Nick Pipia and Harry Bailey will lead Adrian's linebackers.

Nick Ross (Manchester), Chris Knight (Chelsea), Nicholas Hiser (Dexter), James Vinson (Ypsilanti) and Jackson Hanks (Lincoln) are local players looking to make an impact at Adrian this year.

"We've been built on speed over the last 10 years," Adrian coach Jim Lyall said. "We look forward to the competition this year, and the league is always tight and competitive."

Olivet is coming off its first championship season since 1974, and coach Dominic Livedoti will look

Jerry Moore participated in last year's inaugural Run for the Rolls. Over the past year, Moore, 75, has used daily walks to greatly improve his health.

Moore walks to better life

By Don Richter
Sports Editor

There are various reasons why people begin exercising.

Some people start working out to lose weight. Others exercise to improve their quality of life.

For Jerry Moore, it was a dislike of pills.

Yes, pills.

Last summer, Moore, 75, a native Michigander born and raised in Detroit, found out he had high blood pressure, high cholesterol and that he was a diabetic.

"The doctors found some problems," said Moore, a Michigan State University graduate and former business owner. "My son is a pediatrician (Chelsea's Scott Moore) and he has always been an advocate for exercise."

Facing serious health problems, Moore was forced to swallow a medicine chest full of pills to fight his ailments.

"I don't like taking pills," he said. "So I took my son's advice and started walking."

And walking.

And walking.

"I thought maybe I could help myself," he said.

Before last summer, Moore was not an avid exerciser. Now, with a reason to get moving, Moore hasn't stopped.

Last August, Moore, along with three generations of his family, participated in the inaugural Run for the Rolls throughout downtown Chelsea. With his newfound energy and motivation, Moore was able to complete the one-mile walk/run.

Since last year's race, Moore has been a walking machine. Beginning in January, he has walked between four and seven miles a day. Between January and May of this year, Moore has totaled 805 miles. That mileage is equivalent to walking from Moore's winter home in Naples, Fla. to 24 miles short of the Kentucky border.

Prior to beginning his walking regimen, Moore was taking daily medications for his sugar levels, cholesterol and blood pressure. After two months of walking, he was able to virtually eliminate all of them.

"Now, I take one-quarter to replace his entire defensive line, two quarterbacks and top two receivers this year. Juniors Pat Clasgens and Willie Jones return to lead the running backs, while classmate Hakeem Yakabu is back at linebacker. Michael Terranova will patrol the Comets' secondary.

John Leszcynski (Chelsea) and John Visel (Saline) are among the local players on the Comets' roster.

"We have good athletes coming back, and we want to reload," Livedoti said. "One season doesn't make a tradition, and we must now take our success to the next level."

Alma went 5-5 last year, but had a shot at a share of the MIAA title entering the final week of the season. The Scots return standout receiver Jeremy Stephens, while junior Mackenzie McGrady and sophomore newcomer Josh Rouhan will battle for the starting quarterback spot. On defense, seniors Nick Merlow, Travis Martin and James Lang will give the Scots a formidable secondary. Senior Zach Comer leads the linebackers.

"There's a lot of questions because of graduation, and we're working hard to find the answers," Alma coach Jim Cole said. "The MIAA has had some exciting chases, and teams really have to buckle up every week."

Formerly know as Tri-State University, Trine enjoyed a breakout season last year, finishing 6-4. MIAA Co-Defensive Player of the Year Courtney Pearson returns at linebacker, while Corrie Latta is back in the secondary. Sophomore Eric Watt is the starting quarterback, while Sam Hartman and Adam Kurtz will provide targets as receivers.

"I thought we arrived last year and think we can have another great season," Trine coach Matt Land said.

Chelsea's Austin Rodgers returns to play football this season for Albion College.

Albion limped to a 2-8 finish last year, its worst since 1972. Coach Craig Rundle is excited to get back on track.

"Last year was not the type of season we're used to going through, and we weren't close to our expectations," Rundle said. "This year couldn't come fast enough."

Senior running back Bill Bacarella returns to lead the Britons' offense. Sophomore Tom Fusee will battle with a number of candidates for the starting quarterback spot, including freshman Spencer Krauss (Clinton). Local players Erik Myyra (Milan), Robbie Moffett, Austin Rodgers and Jesse Stewart (all from Chelsea) will compete for playing time.

"We should be better up front, and Bacarella is one of the better running backs in the league," Rundle said. "We lost our top three receivers from last year, and still need to find a quarterback, but we have a good base to start with."

Kalamazoo welcomes new coach Jamie Zorbo, who played for the Hornets and is a 2000 graduate from the school. He inherits a team that went 1-9 last year, but is optimistic about rebuilding the program.

"I'm honored to have the chance to represent Kalamazoo College and lead the team into the future," Zorbo said. "We're eager to start preseason camp."

Junior Stephen Johnston returns at running back, and classmate Jimmy Semelsberger is back as the No. 1 receiver. An experienced offensive line will protect a new quarterback, either Brandon Luczak or Cecil St. Pierre.

The Hornets' biggest strength on defense is the secondary, which returns Steve Charon, Omari Young, Shane Nolan and Michael Herman, all seniors. Brian Flahie (Manchester) could see more time on the defensive line as a sophomore.

of the medicine I used to for my cholesterol and my blood pressure is half of what it used to be dosage-wise," he said. "I'm also no longer a diabetic."

Moore, who spends summers in Indiana, said he remains vigilant in his walking routine.

"I walk a little over four miles every day," he said. "I meet a friend at 8:15 a.m. We walk through the cornfields of Indiana."

Moore, and many others like him, will be participating in Saturday's second annual Run for the Rolls. The one-mile race/walk begins at 12:30 p.m. in front of the Chelsea Fire Department on West Middle Street, before heading south down Main Street and finally west on Old U.S. ending at Thompson's Pizzeria.

Cost to take part in the event is $15 for individuals and $30 for families. For individuals not wanting a race T-shirt, cost to participate is $10.

Registration and bib number pick up is 9 a.m. to noon in front of Thompson's. Transportation from Thompson's to the starting area in front of the fire station will be by WAVE buses.

Participants can also register online at www.chelsearec.com.

"Jerry, wow, he means a lot to the Run for the Rolls race," said Cindy Triveline, race organizer and founder. "This race was meant to be doable for all ages, with the motivational support from the spectators and the community.

"Jerry is, and should be, an inspiration to a lot of people. I know he is to me. As we runners would say, 'He gets it.' To do what he has done in such a short time is outstanding. Every time I talk about Jerry and what walking has done to his total health, it's very motivational. I'm glad I had something to do with it."

Moore's daughter-in-law Misha Strauss Moore echoed Triveline's sentiments.

"I'm very proud and very inspired by his example," she said.

Moore's son Scott, who originally advised his father on the benefits of exercise, said watching his dad improve his health has been a joyful experience.

"It's neat to see advice that I believe in rolling out before my eyes," he said. "Making exercise a big part of his day-to-day life and seeing a real turn around in his health has been terrific."

Scott Moore, who owns Moore Pediatrics & Associates in Chelsea, said the Run for the Rolls event helped spark his father's interest in exercising.

"To see someone in his mid-70s make a new commitment to making exercise part of his life is great," he said. "I'm proud of him."

Saturday's race/walk will include 14 age divisions spanning from 1- to 9-years-old to 70-years-old and older.

Race awards will be given to overall male and female winners. The top three placers in each division will also receive awards.

The top finisher in each age group will receive Common Grill rolls, hence the name of the event.

Bandanas for runners and those lining the street to watch will be sold for $1 each.

All proceeds from the event go to Chelsea Recreation.

There will also be a tennis shoe donation drop-off barrel at the registration site. The used tennis shoes will go to children and adults in less fortunate countries.

While many people participating in Saturday's race/walk will do so for a myriad of reasons, Moore's motivation for getting up and exercising started simply because of a dislike of pills.

"I feel better because I don't have to take these things (pills)," he said. "That's one of the reasons why I force myself to walk."

That's one reason, along with his unquenchable thirst for life.

"I'm going to continue (to walk) as long as I can," he said. "People get a high from running, yet I get a high from walking. I know it's helping me. It's just taking an hour or so out of your day to go out and do it."

As for Saturday's event, Moore's motivation is much simpler.

"I just love those rolls," he said.

Management benefits elk herd

When hunters take to the northern Lower Peninsula fields and forests on Aug. 26 for the opening day of the 2008 elk season, they'll be participating in a wildlife management milestone: The 25th consecutive year of elk hunting in Michigan.

"That's the way wildlife management is supposed to work," said Brian Mastenbrook, wildlife biologist at the Department of Natural Resources' Gaylord field office.

Indeed, since modern-day elk hunting was reestablished in Michigan in 1984, more than a million applications have been submitted, 5,310 licenses have been issued and hunters have taken 4,520 elk.

That's not bad, considering the animals were completely eliminated from the state a little more than a century ago.

Elk, which were indigenous to the Lower Peninsula – there is inconclusive evidence they existed in the Upper Peninsula – disappeared by 1877.

Conservation officials made several unsuccessful attempts to reestablish elk in the state. But in 1918, seven Rocky Mountain elk released near Wolverine in Cheboygan County flourished.

Those elk became the basis for the herd we have today.

As the elk herd grew, the animals expanded their range. Although a tourism industry grew up around viewing the approximately 1,200-1,500 animals in the herd in the early 1960s, conflicts arose.

Farmers, foresters and deer hunters complained the elk were having a negative impact on the area.

Good management by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources has meant a strong, healthy elk herd and fine hunting opportunities for sportsmen.

The Legislature authorized the Conservation Department to hold limited, controlled elk hunts during a two-year period.

In 1964, 23,000 hunters applied for 300 licenses for the Dec. 5-13 elk hunt. Hunting conditions were ideal with good tracking snow, and the 298 hunters enjoyed a 90 percent success rate, killing 269 legal elk.

The following year, some 35,000 hunters applied for 300 licenses for the Dec. 8-16 hunt. Weather was mild with almost no snow. The success rate fell to 61 percent with 183 elk killed.

The hunts, unfortunately, coincided with a decline in suitable elk habitat and increased real estate development in the area.

The openings and young forests the elk had been released into 50 years earlier had matured, reducing food availability. Combined with increased human activity, including numerous incidents of poaching, the herd suffered.

The population fell until there were only about 200 elk remaining in Michigan by the winter of 1975.

In the late 1970s, more public attention again was focused on the elk herd, in part because of the controversy surrounding oil and gas development in the Pigeon River Country State Forest.

The Concept of Management for the Pigeon River Country adopted in 1973 and the Elk Management Plan of 1984 both identified improving habitat as a priority.

Improved habitat along with the success of a concentrated effort by the Law Enforcement Division to reduce poaching allowed the elk herd to rebuild.

By 1984, the herd was estimated at 850 animals, near the current-day management goal for the herd.

That year, the DNR held an elk season with some 45,908 hunters applying for 50 licenses for the six-day hunt.

The following year, a record 52,658 applicants sought 120 licenses.

Elk seasons continued to run for six days until 1988, when the season was expanded to eight days; then it was adjusted annually, set for either six or eight days. For the most part, the hunts were held in December, though there were some experimental October hunts some years.

The number of available licenses fluctuated from a low of 80 (1989) to a high of 155 (1991).

But the elk herd continued to grow and expand its range, causing increasing conflicts with humans.

In 1992, the DNR began holding hunts in September in addition to what has now become known as the "traditional" December hunt.

The earlier hunts were designed to take elk that had dispersed from the desired home range on state forest land and were causing conflicts with landowners.

It also gave hunters the opportunity to take advantage of elk bugling – the calling that bulls do during the breeding season.

By 1997, the DNR issued 355 elk licenses. In 2000, when elk numbers were very high, a record 410 licenses were available.

This year, more than 40,000 hunters applied for one of the 330 elk licenses available for Michigan's 25th consecutive elk hunting season, an increase from the last several years.

Shutterbug

Chelsea resident aims for career in photography

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Chelsea photographer Ellen Brown did not have the most auspicious start as a shutterbug.

At the age of seven, she was asked to hold a camera while her mother readied Brown's sister for a photograph.

The tyke promptly took a picture of her mother bending over to pick up the younger sibling.

"However funny I thought it was at that age, my mom did not think that it was funny at all," she says.

Brown was not entrusted with a camera again for a couple of years, when her father gave her one that could take the rough handling of kid on a farm.

"I'm not sure what make or model, but you had to flip open the top of the camera and peer down through that opening to view the image you were about to shoot," she says. "After this camera, I used my parents' until I was required to purchase my own which then became the affordable brands, not necessarily ones that produced quality photographs."

Such was Brown's early introduction to photography. "I've always enjoyed holding a camera in my hand," she says.

Prior to moving to Michigan, Brown and her husband Mike lived in Murfreesboro, Tenn., where she worked for the National Park Service at Stones River National Battlefield. Her career provided opportunities to visit park sites in the southeast, as well as the Grand Canyon where her passion for photography was re-ignited.

In 2003, Brown accepted a position as administrative assistant to the director of the Gerald R. Ford Presidential Library in Ann Arbor and the couple moved to Chelsea.

Her husband was less than happy at the move, since he would no longer be able to ride his motorcycle for most of the year. The couple also had to leave church friends, established over seven years after moving to Tennessee from Northern Indiana. But, he agreed that if Brown were offered the position, he would take it as a "sign."

And what a sign it was – no sooner had the Browns moved than they found they were to be first-time grandparents. The couple now has three grandsons and a granddaughter

"I now have a lot of practice taking pictures," Brown says.

"As with a lot of families, not all our photos of the grandchildren are those with happy, smiling faces that we as parents and grandparents so richly enjoy."

Shortly before Christmas 2005, Brown received a call from her son-in-law in Indiana, that her daughter Abbe had taken 7-month-old Cash to the emergency room. From there the baby was transported to Comer Children's Hospital in Chicago, as it was believed he had suffered a stroke.

A few days later Cash was diagnosed with Moyamoya Syndrome, and had bilateral surgery performed on his head, followed by many more hospitalizations. Images and information can be seen on Cash's Caringbridge website at www.caringbridge.org/visit/cashharpp.

"I knew that I had to document these times with photographs," Brown says. "We had to keep an account of every day possible for our little guy.

"As I look back through those photos, I remember how difficult it was to peer through the lens at two loves of my life, and catch their raw emotion, and remember the tears of our family and friends, and the answered prayers offered by all."

It was during this time that Brown decided photography was the path she would follow in retirement.

Eager to learn, she signed up for a four-day conference in Illinois, The Great Outdoor Photography Adventure (GOPA), and began reading all she could about digital photography.

After studying in-depth reviews, she selected a Nikon D-200, a semi-professional camera best suited to her limited income.

"I went to a two-day conference in Novi and was able to handle the different types of camera models, and printers, and found the D-200, with the additional weight of the battery pack included, best fit my hand," she says. She recommends that anyone contemplating the purchase of at least a semi-professional camera try cameras and lenses out at a conference for a couple of days, to see if they are a good fit.

Brown uses a MacBook Pro computer with an additional 23-inch monitor, and standard photo editing and organizing programs such as Nikon Capture NX, IPhoto, Photoshop Elements, and Apature.

Brown draws inspiration from Pulitzer Prize-winning photographer David Hume Kennerly, contributing editor for Newsweek Magazine, who visited the Gerald Ford Museum in Grand Rapids in 2006 to kick off the exhibit, "The Requiem: By the Photographers Who Died in Vietnam & Indochina."

Kennerly, White House Photographer for President Ford from 1974 to 1977, later visited the Library to select archive photographs for his book, "Extraordinary Circumstances: The Presidency of Gerald R. Ford."

Kennerly's Ford photographs, Requiem photographs, and the photograph for which Kennerly won the Pulitzer Prize in Journalism for Feature Photography in 1972, had a great impact on Brown, a "baby-boomer" who experienced the Vietnam era.

"To me, a black-and-white image has great impact," Brown says. "Kennerly's 1972 photo of a lone G.I. in Vietnam truly does, as he states, 'captures the loneliness and desolation of war.'"

Kennerly's visits gave Brown courage to ask Library Director Dr. Elaine Didier for permission to photograph events on her own time, with her own equipment, to gain experience and to build a portfolio. "She very graciously provided me with that opportunity," Brown says.

Brown has had the opportunity to photograph C-Span in its preparation for staging the live telecast for the program series "Presidential Libraries: History Uncovered." The episode about the Gerald R. Ford Library aired Oct. 26, 2007.

Ellen Brown (left) took this photo of her grandson Cash (right) during a vacation in Canada this past June. She took this photo of Vice President Dick Cheney (above) at the museum in Grand Rapids last October.

Brown also photographed Vice President Dick Cheney when he visited the Museum in Grand Rapids on Sept. 14, 2007.

"This was a huge milestone for me and obviously quite exciting," she says. "It also added a very nice photo to my portfolio."

The most intimidating event Brown photographed was in May, when the museum hosted an exhibit of Kennerly's photos from "Extraordinary Circumstances: The Presidency of Gerald R. Ford."

"The evening of photos included shots of an Invitation Only reception and guided tour by Kennerly prior to the program, an author talk, and a book signing and reception to follow," Brown says.

Her photos have appeared in the newsletter "News from the Ford," distributed to members of the Gerald R. Ford Foundation. Her photos are also utilized in the Library and Museum's Quarterly Narrative distributed to the main office in Washington D.C. and to trustees of the Library and Museum.

Brown says she believes there is a time and a place for everything.

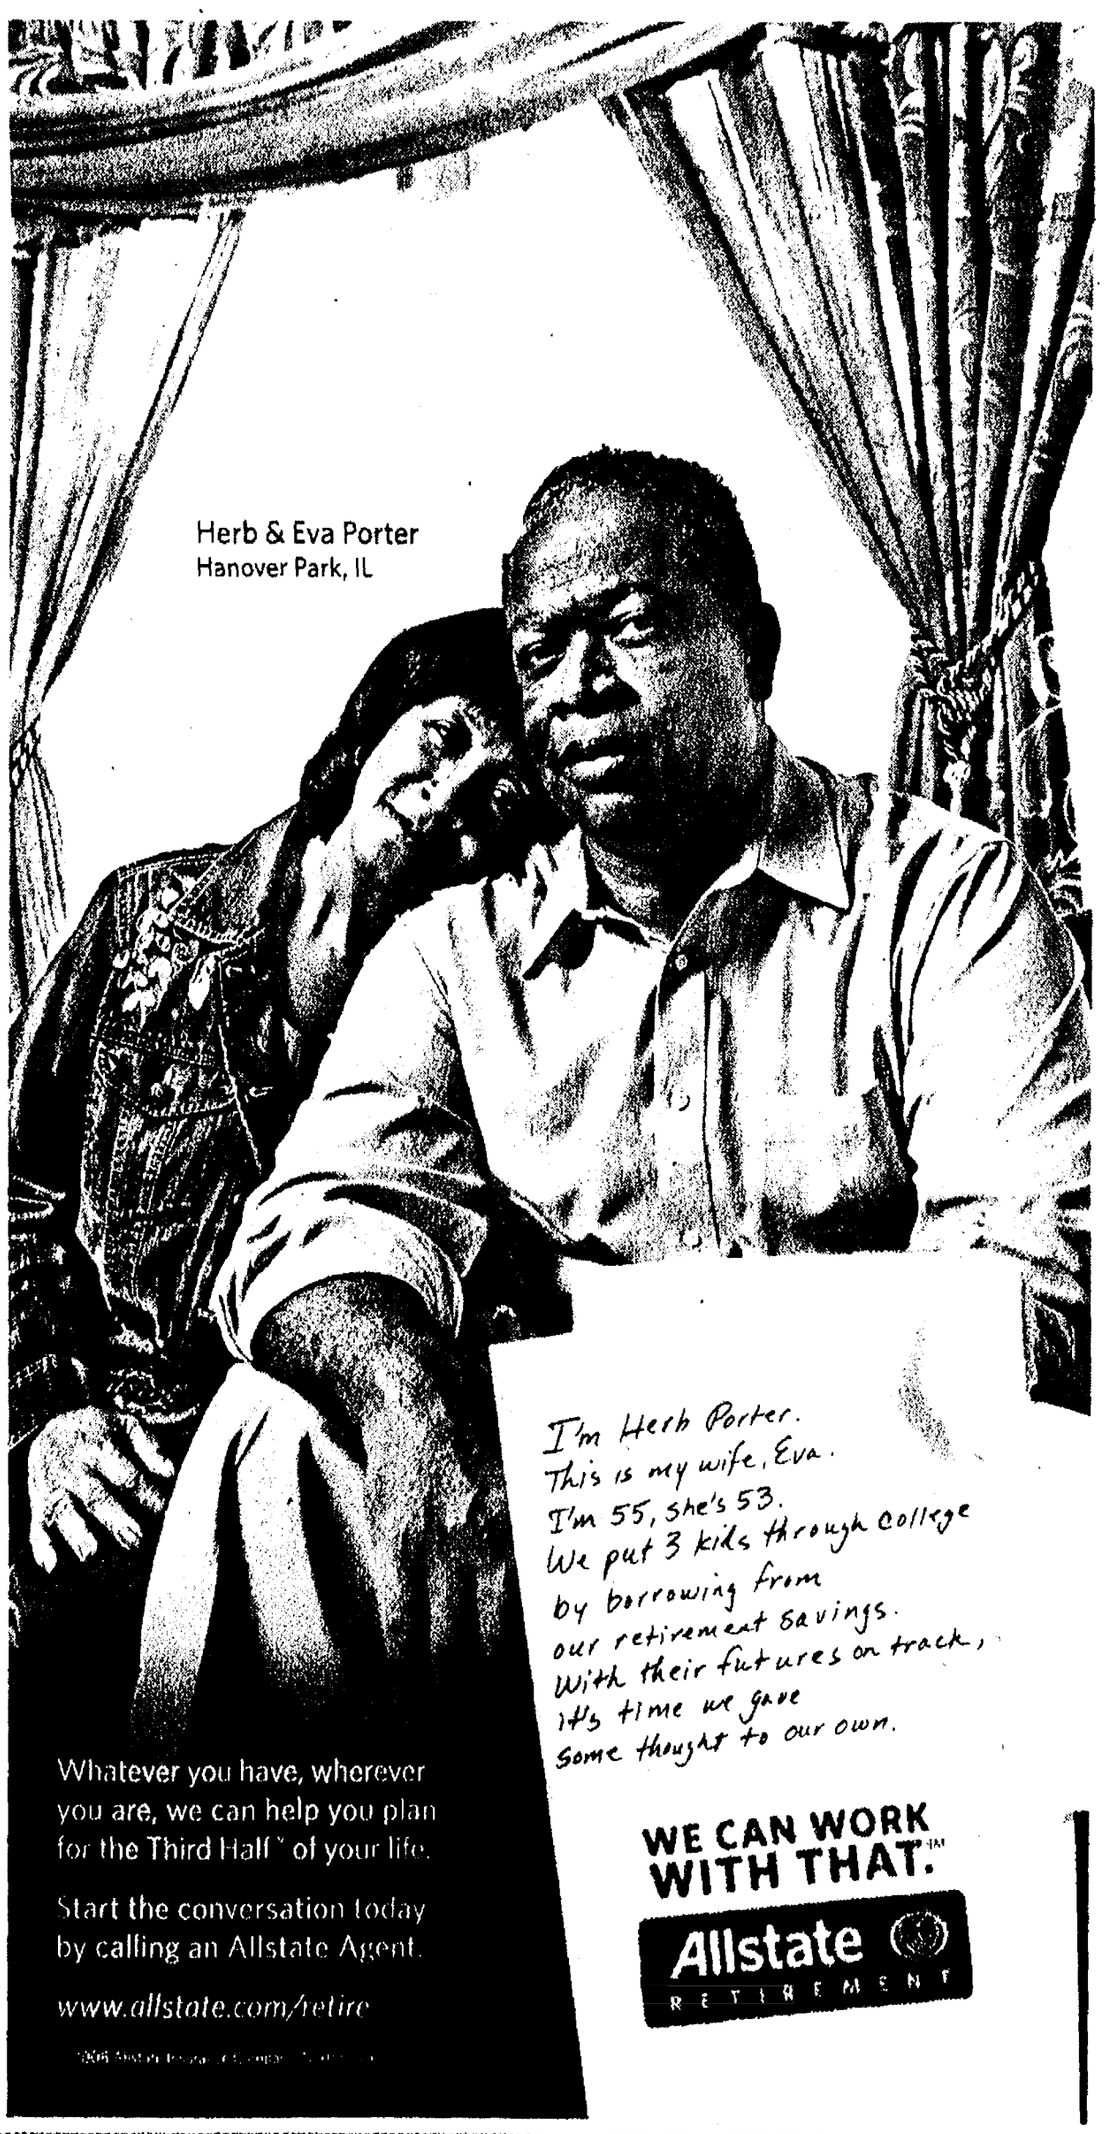

"We were in Tennessee for a season of seven years, and as we look back to our time there, we now know why, and still cherish and stay in contact with the friends that we made there," she says. "And now we are here in Michigan, only a few hours from three of our four children, and we're beginning to make new friends here. My husband plays guitar and leads music at our church in Ann Arbor and is being used mightily right now, right here where we are. We've been placed here for only God knows how long. I only know that he's preparing us for something greater.

"In a year and a half, I don't know where I'll be with my photography. Personally, I hope that it is in a field of photo-journalistic missions, if such a one exists. But I guess I will wait – wherever He decides to place us next, we'll remain obedient to His call."

Hillsdale Humane Society looking to find homes for dogs, cats

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

A crowd of people kept making its way across the open field from the A&W to a series of cages housing some cute, lovable and furry friends earlier this month during Dexter Daze. Members of the Greater Hillsdale Humane Society made the trip to Dexter hoping that many of these animals were making only a one-way trip.

There were kittens, puppies and older dogs waiting for someone to take them home. A new home.

Unfortunately, many had to return to Hillsdale.

"Due to our economy, it's sad to say the animals are showing up at shelters everyday," said Cindy Gaffield, who has been working with the Greater Hillsdale Humane Society for five years. "I help out at our pet adoption booths in places such as the Detroit Zoo, Sterling Heights, Saline, Manchester and Dexter."

They will have an adoption booth at the Chelsea Fair from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturday. They will be located on the corner across from the Chelsea Fairgrounds and at the end of the parade route.

"We will be bringing cats, kittens, dogs and puppies, whatever is available at the facility and up to date on shots and are neutered or spayed," Gaffield said. "The fees are very low, mostly to cover the medical bills for the animals."

Kittens and cats are $53. Dogs are $120 while puppies are $150.

The Greater Hillsdale Humane Society is a non-profit organization that functions on money from adoptions after the medical bills are paid.

"We also have a donation box which is placed out at every adoption to help run the facility and care for the animals," Gaffield said. "Everyone that helps at the pet adoptions are volunteers. Some are local people and friends of mine, family members and board members from the facility."

A no-kill shelter, Greater Hillsdale Humane Society requires all potential adopters to fill out a screening application. Vet and personal references may be checked and a home visit may be required prior to adoption. Animals adopted from the shelter will be up to date with their vaccinations.

The Greater Hillsdale Humane Society is located just off M-34 at 3881 S. Tripp Road in Osseo. For more information, call 1-517-523-2308 or log onto www.hillsdale.petfinder.com.

Consumers, farmers expected to give COOL law a warm reception

Beginning Sept. 30, consumers will be able to easily identify whether certain foods are a product of the United States or another country as farmers, food processors and retailers begin complying with a new country-of-origin labeling (COOL) law.

After years of political wrangling over requirements for the labeling of agricultural products, COOL is set to take effect next month as mandated by the recently adopted federal farm bill.

The law requires that the country of origin of certain food products be visible via stickers, tags, placards or other forms of labeling at the retail level. The affected commodities include beef, veal, lamb, chicken, goat, and pork; perishable agricultural commodities including fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables; as well as macadamia nuts, pecans, peanuts and ginseng.

However, these products are exempt from COOL requirements if they are an ingredient in a processed food item or were produced or packaged before Sept. 30. COOL only applies to retail establishments such as grocery stores. It does not apply to restaurants, lunchrooms, cafeterias, lounges or other food service establishments.

What does this means for consumers?

Shortly, consumers will see three different categories of labeling. The affected products will either be labeled as a product of the USA; a product of the USA and another country; or a product of one or more foreign countries. Labels bearing multiple countries will reflect agricultural transactions in the food chain, such as a U.S. farmer raising a hog that was originally born and bred in Canada.

The approaching implementation of COOL bodes well as more consumers show interest in buying local food and express concerns about food safety, said Ernie Birchmeier, Michigan Farm Bureau (MFB) livestock and dairy specialist.

"Mandatory country-of-origin labeling has multiple benefits," said Birchmeier. "With COOL, consumers know where their food comes from and can make a conscious effort to look for the USA seal and support America's farmers. In addition, the labeling will be an asset in the traceability of food products during an outbreak of a food-borne illness."

Michigan's fruit and vegetable industry also looks forward to full implementation of the COOL mandate, said MFB horticultural and forestry specialist Ken Nye. "We encourage consumers to look for and seek out domestically grown products whenever possible," said Nye.

The benefits of COOL will come at a price, though, as implementation costs are spread throughout the food chain and eventually reach the consumer.

USDA estimates that first-year implementation costs for retailers, farmers, food processors and other intermediary companies will total $2.5 billion. That's below the estimated costs of an earlier COOL proposal offered in the 2002 farm bill. Congress delayed the implementation of that original plan with the exception of labeling for fish and shellfish.

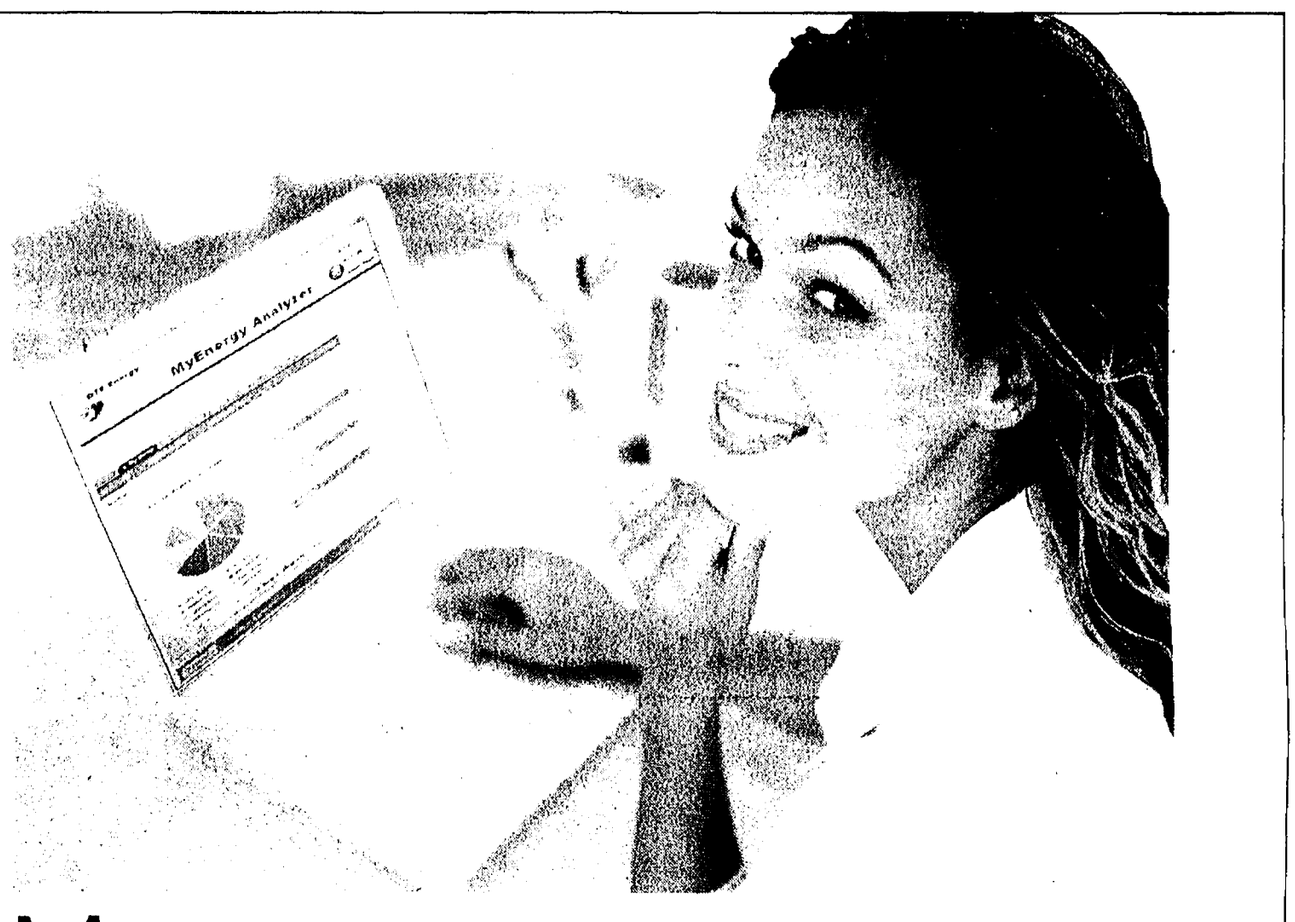

What does this mean for farmers?

Farmers affected by COOL, particularly livestock producers, should expect to sign affidavits verifying a commodity's country of origin with the company or business that markets the product.

"It will be very similar to other quality assurance programs that farmers are accustomed to," said Birchmeier. "The Michigan Farm Bureau will work to educate producers on these changes, but it's imperative that farmers also contact and work with their marketing partners to make sure they are fulfilling the requirements set forth."

USDA also plans to conduct education and outreach activities during the six months following the rule's effective date. Under the law, suppliers and retailers found in violation of COOL can be fined up to $1,000 per violation.

"The phase-in and educational period is critical as this new system is implemented, and a cooperative effort between farmers, processors, retailers and government agencies will go a long way in assuring that COOL is successful," said Birchmeier.

Chelsea Chamber Players provide intimate classical music

By Edward Freundl
Staff Writer

The Chelsea Chamber Players is entering its eighth season as a non-profit organization presenting live classical music concerts to the people of Chelsea and surrounding communities.

They have programmed a wide variety of performances over the years, ranging from strictly classical chamber music for string instruments (violin, viola, cello, and occasionally the bass), to also include works for harpsichord, flute, clarinet, piano, tuba and vocal works.

The annual spring family concert has included narrated productions of "Peter and the Wolf," "The Tall-Eared Fox and the Wild-Eyed Man," "Ferdinand The Bull," "The Shrinking of Treehorn," "Tubby the Tuba," and, in a recent collaboration with the "Wild Swan Theatre" and composer Stephen Eddins, the premiere production of "Roland the Minstrel Pig."

CCP draws on the talents of many local musicians with extensive backgrounds in performance and teaching throughout the United States and abroad, but have also included internationally known musicians from Brazil and Australia.

Along with three regularly scheduled concerts throughout the year, the CCP also presents occasional "Master Class" workshops for music students of all ages in the area.

Formed by local professional musicians Ian and Sara Cumming, the CCP began presenting programs as the Congdon Quartet (in recognition of Elisha and James Congdon, the original settlers of the village of Chelsea).

The quartet consisted of Angela Leidig and Nathan Peters on violin, Ian Cumming on viola, and Sara Cumming on cello, and performances were held in the newly renovated and historic Chelsea Depot in downtown Chelsea.

The venue provides excellent acoustics and a closeness to the performers one would expect with chamber music. It is also handicap accessible.

In a cooperative effort between the Chelsea Chamber Players and the Chelsea Depot Association, an agreement was reached making the renovated historic railway depot a home for the Chelsea Chamber Players, allowing rehearsal and concert space at no charge.

The first public quartet concert took place on April 30, 2000, with approximately 120 people attending, which was followed by a performance and workshop conducted at Chelsea High School for their string orchestra students along with the eighth-grade orchestra.

A regular concert series started in September 2000 with concerts in September, December and the spring of each year.

This series has provided the community with live performances, presented with discussion of the historical background of the music prior to the concerts, and an opportunity to meet with the musicians and enjoy refreshments afterwards.

Concerts have also been presented in local retirement communities, the Chelsea District Library and in the historic Stockbridge Township Hall.

The fall concerts in September are traditionally "classical" chamber music.

The December concert has been presented during the "Chelsea's Hometown Holiday" weekend sponsored by the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and in recent years has included a number of area high school musicians, who gain experience preparing a program with professional musicians.

The program is classical and arranged for a larger ensemble (up to 23 musicians) and presented twice to accommodate the large number of people who attend. Following the main program, the orchestra leads the audience in a sing-along of carols.

The spring program has traditionally been a family or children's concert, often with a narrated story accompanied with music and props.

While very young people may find it hard to hold still at times, all ages are welcome at all the concerts.

Ever since the spring concert of 2004, admission to all Chelsea Chamber Players concerts has been free.

This has been thanks to an initial grant from the Chelsea Community Foundation and continued generous donations of local businesses and patrons.

Additional funds are raised at an annual "Valentine's Day" fund-raising event held in local art galleries and the Mission Market Place with live music and a variety of refreshments donated by Chelsea area restaurants. Donations are also accepted at each concert, but not required.

A board of directors manages the organization of the CCP and volunteers assist in concert preparation, refreshments, and placing posters prior to each concert.

If interested in helping the CCP, contact Sara Cumming at 734-433-1622. Information on concerts and the CCP is also available at www.chelseachamberplayers.com.

The CCP is also available for contracted performances at weddings, receptions and gatherings. Specific music and contact information is available on the Web site.

The next concert will be 3 p.m. Sept. 28 in the Chelsea Depot in downtown Chelsea. The program will include Haydn's String Quartet Opus 33 No. 2 in E flat, the "Joke" Quartet, and Dvorak's String Quintet in G, Opus 77.

Performers will include Paula Elliott and Priscilla Johnson on violins, Ian Cumming on viola, Sara Cumming on cello, and Jed Fritzemeier on bass.

The Congdon Quartet - Angela Leidig and Nathan Peters on violin, Ian Cumming on viola, and Sara Cumming on cello – formed the core of the Chelsea Chamber Players in 2000, and in September will enter its eighth year of performing.

Local pilots hope for another miracle

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Rob and Jennifer Rice experienced one miracle when Rob's Cessna 336 crashed in the mountains of Guatemala - and Rob and his passengers walked away unscathed.

Now the couple hopes for a second miracle - that they can find another plane and continue flying medical assistance flights in Guatemala.

The couple founded the nonprofit organization Great Commission Air eight years ago, and volunteer their labor, returning to the Dexter area from time to time to work in the computer field and raise more funds for their ministry.

The Rices fly about 20 emergency patients a month - many of them farmers and their families living in remote areas of Guatemala. Rob even flew his own wife from their remote village to regional medical facilities when their second child was born four years ago.

Rob Rice walked away from this plane crash on July 31.

The plane crash happened July 31, when Rob was transporting an 11-year-old boy with appendicitis from a rural village to a regional hospital. Rice's other passengers for the 20-minute flight were the boy's mother, and a woman with a sick baby.

As Rob prepared for landing in Coban and extended the wing flaps, he heard a huge bang, the plane rolled hard to the right and was nearly upside down. He regained some control and the plane leveled, but the propeller stopped moving and both engines shut off, with the plane about 150 feet above the ground.

The plane crashed into bushes on the crest of a narrow ridge, flipping over twice, and the door flew open.

Amazingly Rob and his passengers walked away with only a few bruises to show from their terrifying ordeal.

Rob, who always wears a shirt inscribed with "Dios es Mi Piloto" - "God is My Pilot" - places his faith in the Almighty to help him and his wife obtain another aircraft so they can continue their ministry in the Ixcan.

"We save many lives with the service we provide in this region and there is no

Convenience of retail clinics drawing more kids in for care

Convenience and lower costs are driving even more parents to seek routine health care for their children - including vaccinations and physicals - at retail clinics in their communities.

What's more, the number of retail clinics is growing: Nearly 30 percent of parents report having a retail clinic in their community, making this emerging source of health care for children often simpler and more accessible than an appointment at a doctor's office.

These findings - released today by the University of Michigan C.S. Mott Children's Hospital National Poll on Children's Health - also reveal that in communities with nearby retail clinics, one in six parents have taken their children there for care, while one in four parents are likely in the future to take their children to a nearby retail clinic for care.

"We found that the vast majority of parents were taking their children to a retail clinic as a substitute for regular care, either at a doctor's office, emergency department or urgent care clinic," says Matthew M. Davis, M.D., M.A.P.P., director of the National Poll on Children's Health. "About half of the parents said they wanted to take care of their children's problems more quickly, which suggests to us that doctor's offices may not be meeting expectations of parents in terms of providing timely care."

The National Poll on Children's Health finds:

• 78 percent of retail clinic visits by children were covered at least in part by health insurance.

• If a retail clinic was not available, one in four parents report that they would have taken their children to the emergency room, while half would have gone to the doctor's office.

Nearly two out of three parents whose children had already used a retail clinic report that they were "likely" or "very likely" to use a retail clinic again.

• Seven out of 10 parents who took their children to a retail clinic considered taking their child to the doctor's office. But 40 percent report they could not get an appointment at the doctor's office.

Among parents who had never taken their children to a retail clinic for care, one out of seven said they were likely to use a retail clinic for their children in the future.

Typically located within pharmacies, supermarkets or discount stores, retail clinics -also called in-store or convenience care clinics - have a lot to offer consumers: No need for an appointment, short wait times, lower costs than emergency rooms and some stand-alone urgent care clinics, and the ability to care for common health problems, including rashes, sore throats, pink eye, ear infections, and bladder infections. Plus, they are staffed by licensed health care professionals - nurse practitioners, physician's assistants and sometimes physicians.

"The American Academy of Pediatrics is concerned that retail clinics interrupt the care that kids otherwise would receive from their regular doctors. When those interruptions occur in care, information about children's health problems - which their doctors need to know about - can slip through the cracks, and that can lead to worse health care for kids in the long run," says Davis, associate professor of general pediatrics and internal medicine at the U-M Medical School.

CRASH

reason for us to stop serving," Rob said.

The couple hopes to find a plane that might be more suitable for the very short and rough airstrips they use --perhaps a Cessna 182 or 206.

GCA owns another Cessna 337 that is nearly ready for sale and is being cared for at AGAPE flights in Florida. They hope to be able to use funds raised from that sale to procure another plane.

Although it could take up to two years to find a plane and return to their mission in Guatemala, the Rices are confident things will move faster.

"We're very eager to have a plane again," Jennifer said. "People cried when we left Guatemala and begged us to please come back soon.

"God has given us one miracle, he can do a greater miracle – it could be as fast as two months.

"God has given us the privilege of working with people in Michigan again. It's interesting to see how people are working together to help us."

Their hope is that someone might donate a plane, or partially fund the purchase.

"I'm sure God has a plan, that I'm a part of," Rob said. "I wish I knew what part."

The Rices, members of Scio Community Alliance Church in Scio Township, receive a lot of support from their fellow church members, and also from several Catholic parishes and other church groups. Locally, St. Joseph's Church in Dexter, St. Andrew's Church in Saline, Saline United Methodist Church and St. Paul Lutheran Church in Ann Arbor have all provided help and support.

The Rices are staying positive and upbeat. "We're keeping a list of ways we've seen God work," Jennifer said. "It's incredible to see His hand in this situation."

The Rices, currently staying with Rob's mother in Ann Arbor, were last here in April for a fundraiser.

"It's good to be back, but strange to be back so soon," Jennifer said. "This certainly wasn't planned, but it's fascinating to see God's hand in the situation.

"Most people don't survive that kind of accident, so it's clear God has some more work for us to do. In fact, we no longer talk about the 'accident,' we talk about the 'miracle.'"

One of the pluses of returning to Michigan unexpectedly is the couple was able to attend the wedding of a friend, a pilot Rob trained in Guatemala who now flies in Tanzania but who got married back in the States.

"We weren't originally going to go since we would have been in Guatemala," Rob said. "It was great to enjoy a three-day party.

"Since the crash, we've had a lot of new perspective on life."

For more information on how to help the Rices, email Jennifer.Rice@GreatCommissionAir.org, call (734) 846-4092, or visit www.greatcommissionair.org.

CITY OF CHELSEA

Audience Participation

Christine VanReesma addressed Council regarding graffiti around the City.

Mayor Feeney instructed Utilities Director Roberts to look into these areas where graffiti was noted.

Mayor Feeney shared with City Council an opportunity raised to her by Dexter Township supervisor asking City's participation in an area clean-up along with area Townships at a cost to the City between $1,000 and 1,400.00. Mayor would like to receive Council's feeling on participation. Discussion followed. This item will be placed on the August 12, 2008 regular City Council agenda.

Awarding of Construction General Contract for the Wastewater Treatment Plant Expansion project

Tom Albaugh from Tetra Tech addressed City Council regarding the bids received. Six bids were received on July 30th for the Wastewater Treatment Plant expansion project. Irish Construction of Howell was the low bidder with a base bid of $10,640.00. Tetra Tech is recommending to award the bid to Irish Construction Company in the amount of their base bid of $10,640.00. The bidding documents required that all bidders list amounts that can be added or deducted from their base bids for specific alternates to the base bid listed in the bid form. The bidding documents state that the contract can be awarded on the basis of either the base bid amount, or the base bid adjusted by alternates selected by the owner. The lowest bidder was Irish Construction Company regardless of which combination of alternates might be selected.

Utilities Director, Brad Roberts indicated that Irish Construction has completed two other projects at the Wastewater Plant and the City has been satisfied with their work.

Christine VanReesema questioned Council on funding (bonding) for this project. Will City Council award this contract this evening.

August 5, 2008 special meeting minutes

Motion by Lindauer supported by Hammer to accept the resolution to tentatively award a construction contract for Wastewater System Improvements with Irish Construction Company in the amount of $10,690,000.00. All Ayes. Motion carried. Resolution adopted (Resolution attached as Appendix A)

An amendment to Bond Ordinance 157 is necessary to continue the bond approval process for the wastewater treatment plant expansion. The amount listed was originally not to exceed $11,000,00. Based on the bids received, it is necessary to amend the ordinance to establish the not to exceed amount to $11,740,000. That is the only revision in this ordinance. This would be the first reading of this Ordinance No. 157B.

Motion by Hammer, supported by Albertson to accept the first reading of Ordinance No. 157B "An Ordinance to Amend Ordinance No. 157 PROVIDING FOR THE CONSTRUCTION, INSTALLATION, FURNISHING AND EQUIPPING OF IMPROVEMENTS TO THE SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM OF THE CITY OF CHELSEA; TO PROVIDE FOR THE ISSUANCE AND SALE OF REVENUE BONDS OF EQUAL STANDING WITH THE CITY'S SEWAGE DISPOSAL SYSTEM REVENUE BOND, SERIES 2007, TO PAY THE COST THEREOF; TO PRESCRIBE THE FORM OF THE BONDS; TO PROVIDE FOR THE COLLECTION OF REVENUES FROM THE SYSTEM SUFFICIENT FOR THE PURPOSE OF PAYING THE COSTS OF OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE OF THE SYSTEM AND TO PAY THE PRINCIPAL OF AND INTEREST ON THE BONDS; TO PROVIDE FOR SECURITY FOR THE BONDS; TO PROVIDE FOR THE SEGREGATION AND DISTRIBUTION OF THE REVENUES; TO PROVIDE FOR THE RIGHTS OF THE HOLDERS OF THE BONDS IN ENFORCEMENT THEREOF; AND TO PROVIDE FOR OTHER MATTERS RELATING TO THE BONDS AND THE SYSTEM.

Godliness for profit

MINISTERIAL Message

By Pastor Mark Porinsky
Faith Lutheran Church

Every so often a study comes out which alleges that religious people are healthier, happier, or live longer than non-religious people. Maybe that's true. Usually these studies do not identify which religions the respondents belonged to. For that reason, one could just as easily conclude that the studies prove that religion – of any kind – is effective because it perhaps satisfies a psychological need in people.

Then we have the quite materialistic idea often tossed around by some mass media preachers, that God is out to make you rich, and there is something wrong with your faith if you are a believer in Jesus Christ and aren't tapping into all the earthly wealth that He has in store for you.

It's true, there are numerous places in the Bible where we are promised that God will reward us for acts of commitment that we render to Him. I think of Jesus' words, "Seek first His kingdom and His righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well" (Matthew 6:33), or "Give, and it will be given to you" (Luke 6:36). Or when Jesus told His disciples that no one who has given things up for Him "will fail to receive many times as much in this present age" (Mark 10:29-30).

At the same time, Jesus (and others throughout the Bible) warned many times, "Watch out! Be on guard against all kinds of greed; a man's life does not consist in the abundance of his possessions" (Luke 12:15). And St. Paul denounced those "who have been robbed of the truth and who think that godliness is a means to financial gain" (1 Timothy 6:5).

In this light it's an absolute shame when the Christian faith is promoted as a means to a life of earthly riches. It's an absolute shame when good humble Christians are made to feel that their faith is inferior because they are not enjoying financial abundance. And it's an absolute shame when TV preachers flaunt multi-million dollar homes, and when even parish pastors insist that they will not serve God's people in a small congregation unless they are guaranteed financial remuneration which far exceeds what they need to live on.

The riches that God offers through His Son Jesus Christ are spiritual, and heavenly. And really, these are the riches that we need, because each one of us is going to say good-bye to this world someday. Can you imagine what a great thing it will be to be welcomed into an eternal home in heaven, and to receive a treasure that will never be exhausted? I guarantee you that kind of treasure can be yours as a free gift, forever, simply by believing in Jesus Christ as your Savior.

Blankets and Bears Blessing

St. Andrew's United Church of Christ hosts event

On Sunday, Aug. 17, there was a blessing of the blankets and bears at St. Andrew's United Church of Christ in Dexter. The blankets and bears will be traveling to Guatemala as part of Project Shunt.

Every fall since 1998 the University of Michigan department of Neurosurgery travels to Guatemala to perform surgeries, deliver supplies and provide care to Guatemalan children with neural tube disorders.

According to the International Federation for Spina Bifida and Hydrocephalus, the rate of spina bifida and other neural tube disorders in Guatemala is the highest in the world.

Last year the team of Dr. Muraszko, Dr. Suresh Ramnath and Dr. Boulis (who is now at the Cleveland Clinic) as well as anesthesiologists, residents, nurses and translators traveled to Guatemala City. They saw 60 to 70 patients and performed 34 surgical procedures, including selective dorsal rhizotomies for spasticity, ventriculoperitoneal shunts for hydrocephalus and tethered cord releases.

The main ministry of St. Andrew's Piecemakers quilting group is to make and donate quilts to the University of Michigan's C.S. Mott Children's Hospital.

One of the members of St. Andrew's church works with the doctors who go to Guatemala and in the past asked the Piecemakers if they would be willing help. They made and donated coughing bears for Project Shunt. After their surgery children often have to cough, but coughing hurts. By holding a coughing bear tightly to their chest, the coughing hurts a lot less.

This year there was a request for a few more bears and a lot of blankets. Twenty blankets and four bears were made. Just before the blankets and bears were donated, Dr. Bob Summers, the pastor of St. Andrew's United Church of Christ, explained this mission during a children's message and then blessed the blankets and bears, which had been placed on the altar in the church.

"This is what the church is all about - helping those in need," Pastor Summers said.

If you would like to make a much needed monetary donation to Project Shunt, contact Michelle Bard, the Development Officer of the Department of Neurosurgery at the University of Michigan (3552 Taubman Center, Ann Arbor, MI 48109-5338) at 734-936-8224 or email her at bardma@umich.edu

St. Andrew's United Church of Christ is located at 7610 Ann Arbor Street in Dexter with Sunday Worship Services year round at 9 and 10:15 a.m. Sunday School classes for children will resume on Sept. 7, 2008 beginning at 10:15 a.m.

According to Dr. Bob, "As our denomination says, 'No matter who you are, or where you are on life's journey, you are welcome here.'"

St. Paul UCC restores a very familiar symbol

In 2007, when Chelsea's St. Paul United Church of Christ took down the 40-foot wooden cross that had graced its rooftop at 14600 Old US-12 since 1965, some members likened the absence of the cross to a smile with a missing tooth.

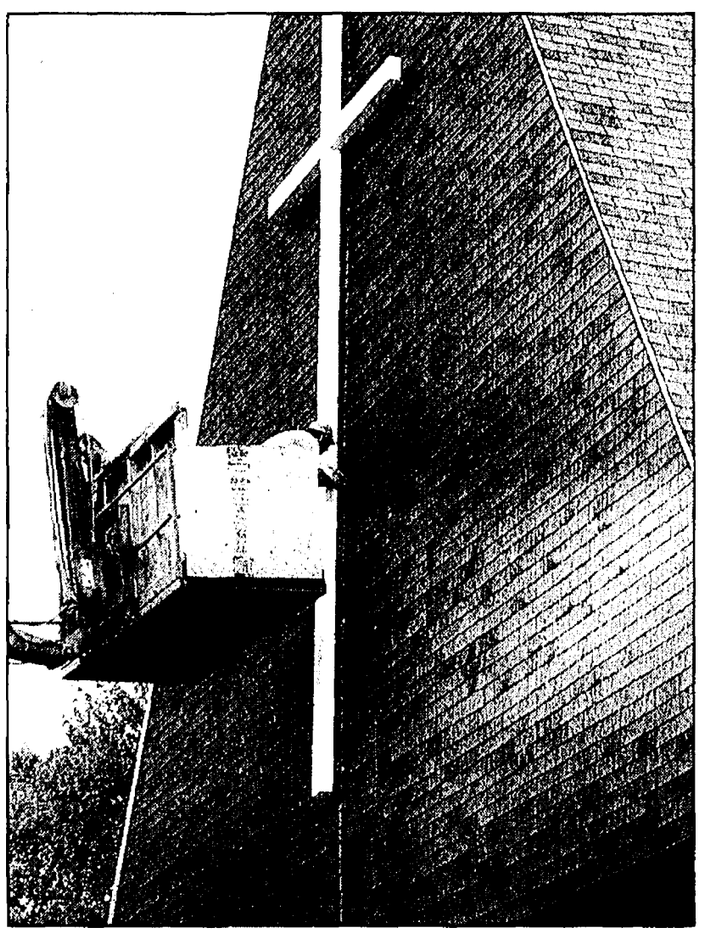

That smile was restored Aug 6, when workers from Bill Birchmeier Builders of Ann Arbor installed a new, 26-foot, white fiberglass cross on the building's south-facing gable end.

The old wooden cross was a visible landmark for more than 40 years, but wear and tear from wind and rain caused repeated leaks inside the church, which in turn damaged the church's pipe organ.

"It was a very large cross; it could be seen for miles around," said St. Paul member and architect Mike Van Goor.

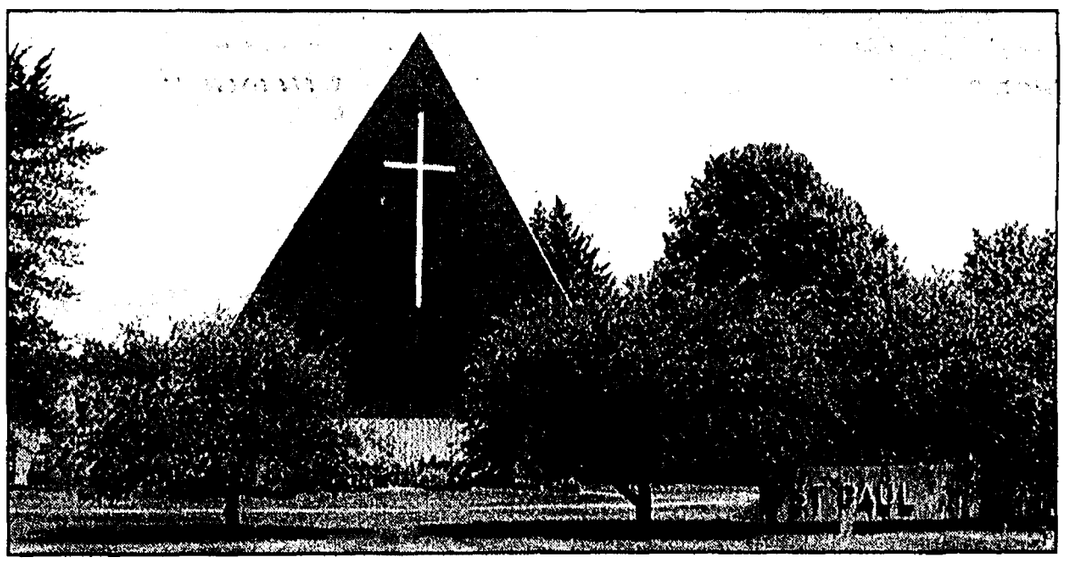

After several attempts to secure and patch the old cross, the congregation voted to remove it and replace it.

"From an architectural standpoint, it was about replacing the icon of what makes a church a church," Van Goor added. "It makes us complete again."

Michigan History

Pioneer Days come to life at Walker Tavern's annual 'Frontier Fest'

Guests of all ages are invited to become part of the westward expansion at the 4th annual "Frontier Fest" at Walker Tavern Historic Site on Saturday, Aug. 30, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

Featuring pioneer music, food, crafts and games - just the way it was done some 150 years ago - Frontier Fest offers bargain admission of $3 for adults, $1 for children ages 5 to 12, and free for children under 5. Craftspeople will be on hand to demonstrate the pioneer way. Spinners will turn wool into thread, potters will create jars from clay, and woodworkers will fashion practical implements and works of art.

Artisans will demonstrate "lost arts" including Ukrainian egg painting, paper-cutting and the tanning of hides. Frontier Fest offers an opportunity to purchase - directly from the craftsperson - hand-crafted, one-of-a-kind articles such as stained glass, weaving and jewelry.

Silhouette artist Joyce Redmen will also be doing portraits on site. Musicians will play music popular in pioneer times including bluegrass, folk, country, blues, gospel and traditional songs.

At 1 p.m. there will be a free workshop on old-time music led by Eddie Josephs. Eddie plays banj-guitar, washboard, and harmonica among other traditional instruments. Bring your own fiddles, guitars, dulcimers and other early instruments and join Eddie or get your own jam session going on the lawn throughout the day.

"The children's activities area will have old-time games and hands-on activities, including 'make and take crafts' like candle dipping, corn-husk dolls, gourd painting and tin punching for an additional charge," said Cheryl Natzmer Valentine, Walker Tavern site historian.

"Once the games begin, guests can enjoy hoop races, tug-of-war and watermelon seed-spitting contests."

At 11 a.m. there will be a frontier-style auction to raise money for the Hewitt House renovation. Auctioneer George Gordon will sell items donated to the auction, from trinkets to treasures, and all proceeds will benefit the new Visitors Center.

Natzmer Valentine said that the Biscuit Babes of Adrian will also be on hand, selling home-style cooking from family recipes that include biscuits and gravy and fried chicken gizzards. "People of all ages are invited to take part in the full day of festivities, eat some delicious food and learn about pioneer life in early Michigan."

Walker Tavern historic site is located next to the Michigan International Speedway in the Irish Hills. Situated at the Cambridge Junction crossroads of M-50 and the U.S. 12 Heritage Trail, Walker Tavern is just 35 miles west of Ann Arbor. Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday - Sunday through Aug. 31.

The Farmer's Market on Sundays run from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. and continue until the end of September. Fall tours are by appointment only. Log onto www.michigan.gov/walkertavern. Walker Tavern is one of 11 museums and historic sites that make up the Michigan Historical Museum Ass. For more information, visit www.michigan.gov/hal.

"We have had the Sleep Number bed for a few years now and can say it is the very best investment we have ever made. Back pain was a fact of life for me for years. After sleeping on the Sleep Number bed, I have improved significantly. It is amazing to go to bed in pain and wake up refreshed and pain free."

Janet D., Mt. Vernon, WA

Take Control Of Your Sleep℠

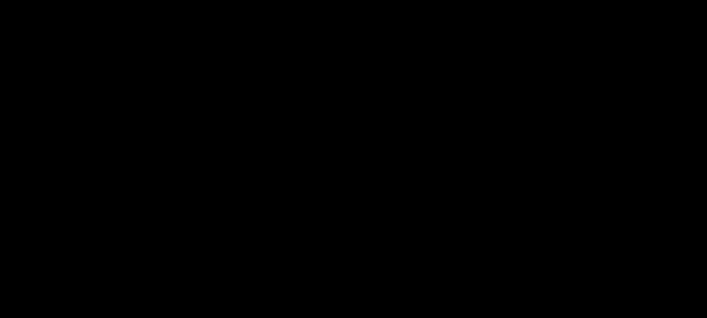

Are You Frustrated by the Quality of Your Sleep?

Do you toss and turn at night? Can't seem to find a comfortable position? Does your back ache when you awake? These are signs that your mattress may not be supporting you properly, robbing you of the sleep you need. SUFFER NO MORE!

You Customize the Firmness

The Sleep Number Bed by Select Comfort™ is unlike any other. It's the bed you adjust to your exact comfort and firmness preference, your SLEEP NUMBER® setting. Our easy-to-use handheld remote and advanced air-chamber technology allow you to quickly adjust the firmness from extra firm to feather soft at the touch of a button.

Firmness adjusts on each side of the bed at the touch of a button

Each Side of the Bed Adjusts Independently

Best of all, each side of the Sleep Number® bed adjusts independently, making it the perfect bed for couples.

Get Relief from Back Pain

93% Experienced back-pain relief

89% Reported improved sleep quality

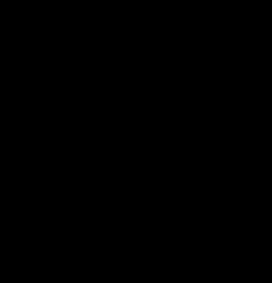

77% Discovered increased energy

It's the bed clinically proven to relieve back pain and improve sleep quality. Clinical studies show an amazing 93% of participants reported back-pain relief while 90% said other aches and pains were reduced.†

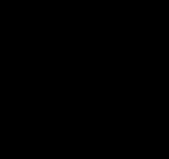

The Sleep Number® Bed Makes Innersprings Obsolete

A traditional innerspring mattress offers only hard metal coils for support. By contrast, the Sleep Number® bed's revolutionary design features air-chamber technology that adjusts to your ideal level of firmness and support.

Conventional coil mattresses create uncomfortable pressure points, interrupting sleep.

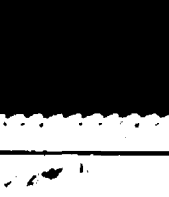

A Sleep Number bed takes the pressure off.

TRY IT FOR 30 NIGHTS, RISK FREE!†

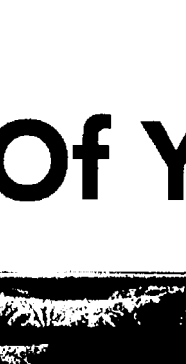

We're so sure you'll sleep better, you can take up to one month to decide, or your money back!† You've got to sleep on it to believe it.
