School Board continues to trim budget

By Crystal Hayduk
Special Writer

The Chelsea Schools Board of Education announced a change to the board policy concerning facility use rates at their meeting April 12.

CHELSEA

Beginning July 1, there will be a change in hours and an increase in rental fees. The recreation council will also be affected by the increase, in smaller increments over the next three years rather than one large increase this summer.

The board voted to approve the lowest bidder, Baseline Construction, for work at South Meadows Elementary School. According to Ron Livengood, director of operations, the lowest bid for the project came in over budget by $11,162. However, the South Meadows gym and playground project is more than $600,000 under budget, so some gym funds will be reallocated. Funds for construction projects are made available through the 2009 bond.

The board is considering the use of 2004 bond money to purchase an integration appliance from Level Data. Scott Wooster, director of technology, said that the Washtenaw Intermediate School District recommends the appliance in order to save data entry time and eliminate the potential for errors.

Athletic Director Wayne

Welton will meet with coaches in early May regarding cutting $60,000 from the athletic budget. Discussion will center on the possibility of eliminating the two team concept at Beach Middle School, and using fundraising to keep ninth grade sports. They will also discuss pay and reducing supplies for coaches.

"People often think that fundraising is the answer, but it's hard to raise money when the economy is down and businesses aren't doing well," Superintendent David Killips said.

In other news:

• Board President Laurel McDevitt reported that the Chelsea Education Foundation gala event raised over $14,000 for scholarships and grants.

• A representative from state Rep. Pam Byrnes' office will be at the Chelsea Senior Center at 9:30 a.m. Friday. The public is invited to attend.

• Joe Tinsley received an Excellence in Education Award for integrating technology and teaching from the Michigan Association of School Boards.

• The next board meeting is at 7 p.m. April 26 in the boardroom at the Washington Street Education Center.

• May 4 is Election Day for two board seats.

Longworth property to get new facelift

Dangerous Architects proposes reuse project to revitalize downtown

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

Area residents walking past Dangerous Architects' front door on Main Street in downtown Chelsea may have noticed an exciting new development.

Scott McElrath, owner of Dangerous Architects, developed a rendering for an exciting adaptive reuse project to be located at the former Longworth Plating site, which has been posted in his front window for the past few weeks.

A team of Chelsea residents has put forward a proposal to the Chelsea Downtown Development Authority, which would renovate most of the complex and make it a new focal point that will help bridge the current divide between downtown and the Chelsea Clock tower.

"We all know what an eyesore the complex has been for a number of years. This proposed project is a great example of adaptive reuse of downtown structures that will benefit Chelsea for years to come," McElrath said.

The Preservation Chelsea group that developed the plan proposes the buildings be used for market, retail and entertainment space.

"The business we're working with is a perfect fit for the site. They focus on local, sustainable food, art and entertainment, and are looking to expand their current operation," said Tom Girard, a member of Preservation Chelsea said.

The Livery Building will house affordable urban-edged studio apartments on the second floor, with a new third floor roof garden and patio for tenants, and enclosed tenant parking on the first floor. Sharing a portion of the first floor of the Livery Building will be The New Craftsmen Workshop, a cooperative workspace for local artisans to work their craft.

"We're trying to create a great place to live, work and play that will add to the vitality of our downtown," Girard said.

The future of the buildings has been uncertain since the complex was acquired by the DDA. Although community members expressed support for preserving the buildings at a visioning session held in April 2009, the DDA planned during the summer to move forward with demolition of the Livery, which dates from the early 1900s and is adjacent to the Farmers' Supply.

In response, a group of preservation-minded citizens, known as the Save the Livery Coalition, mobilized to halt the demolition, gathering more than 700 signatures. The DDA then granted a stay of demolition, and the Preservation Chelsea - Chelsea Connection Team was formed to develop an alternative plan for the complex.

This team includes Chelsea citizens who have contributed their substantial expertise in architecture and design, construction, engineering, project management, historic-building

Parents learn dangers of drug, alcohol abuse

SRSly partners with St. Joseph Hospital to address local issues

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

An empty coke can, a bottle of Cool Whip and a plastic dartboard might seem harmless to the naked eye. But these items along with 70 others commonly found in a teenager's bedroom can be warning signs of substance abuse.

Parents of Chelsea teenagers had the chance to learn valuable lessons on the topic of drug use at a presentation hosted by SRSly (text language for seriously) and the St. Joseph Mercy Health System titled, "Drugs 101: What Parents Need to Know" on April 8 at the Washington Street Education Center.

The two-hour workshop included role-playing, demonstrations and tips to help parents identify drug use and how to communicate with their teenager about the dangers of drugs and alcohol.

According to Reiley Lewis, coalition director, the workshop was an eye-opening experience for several parents.

"After the presentation, one parent remarked to me, 'it was so amazing; I was so naive before tonight,'" Lewis said.

The workshop began with parents entering a mock bedroom set up to look like a teenage drug user's room. Parents were asked to identify any drug and alcohol-related items placed within the room. Most said that there were between 10 and 20 items in the room, but there were actually 70 items identified as drug and alcohol paraphernalia.

"The room is set up to include some obvious items, and some that are not so obvious," Erin Murphy, a member of the Washtenaw Alcohol Reduction Project said.

non-obvious ways teenagers hide drugs was in the insert of a travel coffee mug. Several other signs and symptoms of current trends and street lingo were also presented to the parents.

"Prescription drugs are the fastest growing drug of choice for teenagers," Gretchen Nachazel of St. Joseph Mercy Health System said.

Nachazel also told parents that 90 percent of smokers are given their first cigarette before the age of 21.

"If we can teach students in middle school and high school about the dangers of smoking, there is a good chance we can prevent more lifelong smokers in our communities," she said.

Later in the workshop, health staff role played with the parents on how to engage their teenagers into conversations about drugs and how to overcome peer pressure. The presentation ended with the parents once again asked to identify drug paraphernalia in the mock bedroom.

"I think the mock bedroom is the best part of the program," Lewis said. "The times have changed so much, you would never think of some of the things teenagers can come up with to abuse."

During the presentation, students at Chelsea High School and Beach Middle School held a youth meeting to discuss peer pressure.

"They had this incredible discussion about peer pressure and it was interesting to see what students were pressured into at different age levels," Lewis said.

Lewis said drug and alcohol abuse is prevalent in the Chelsea community.

"It's incredible. At the preservation, fundraising, communication and organizing.

In January, the DDA issued a Request for Proposal to redevelop the site. In February, the group submitted the only proposal received by the city. At the March DDA meeting, the proposal was not well received, largely due to the fact that the group proposed that the city continue to own the property during redevelopment. Preservation Chelsea has now restructured their proposal to include purchase of the property through a newly formed limited partnership.

"Our team has worked diligently to make this a win for everyone in Chelsea. Many of us live and/or work within a few blocks of this structure. We all want what we feel is best for Chelsea. We just hope our arguments will be convincing enough to help the DDA visualize how to best use the site," McElrath said.

"The proposal will create a mixed-use facility that will become an attraction not only for the businesses housed there but also for its historic value and forward-thinking design. We feel creating an energetic development, preserving Chelsea's historic character, adhering to green design principles and increasing the tax base are more important than the additional parking spaces," Girard said.

elementary level, tobacco has already been introduced. At the high school, students have noticed prescription drugs becoming more prevalent."

Lewis also said Chelsea High School students are also engaging in more risky behavior including anal beer bong and vodka soaked tampons.

"This was going on at a high school party just last weekend," she said. "It's shocking to hear. It's more shocking if parents know about these activities and allow them to go on."

Cheryl Phillips of St. Joseph

Mercy Health System said anal beer bong and alcohol soaked tampons are more common than parents acknowledge.

"Our youth falsely believe that they can get drunk and parents won't smell the alcohol on their breath if they use other orifices," she said.

Phillips said the unprotected membranes of the vagina or anus allows alcohol to enter the bloodstream faster than the acid-protected gastrointestinal tract.

"As a result, there are more underage teenagers coming to the hospital with bleeding as a side effect from the alcohol," she said.

Kiwanians team up for Day of Service

Group aims to help locals in need of aid

By Jeremy Allen
Heritage Newspapers

As a part of the Kiwanis International One Day of Service, four local chapters converged at the Alpha House, a shelter for homeless families in Scio Township, for a day of building wheelchair ramps for the Neighborhood Senior Services of Washtenaw County.

Members of the Downtown Ann Arbor Chapter, the Western Kiwanis Club, the Morning Edition and the Ypsilanti Kiwanis Club chapters all helped with the event, while the Saline and Milan chapters performed yard cleanup for seniors in their respective areas.

"This is one of the many projects being done by Kiwanians around the world on our International One Day of Service," said Linda Lawther, Ypsilanti Club member and lieutenant governor for Division 10.

"Today we're helping the Neighborhood Senior Services by building wheelchair ramp modules. We wanted to find a way to help seniors, as we're generally an organization that does a lot for children. So, this was our way of reaching out beyond our normal scope."

Rob Reilly, who was on site as a representative of Neighborhood Senior Services, said he is thankful for groups such as the Kiwanis Clubs for volunteering their time.

"Volunteers help us keep cost down and allow us continue to help those seniors who need our assistance," Reilly said. "Our goal, as an organization, is to help seniors to be able to stay in their homes. We service all of Washtenaw County. Kiwanis is building this modular ramp today, which we will be able to take out into the field and finish it up at someone's home. This particular ramp they're building is going to be put onto a mobile home."

Reilly said that the Neighborhood Senior Services operates on a grant from Washtenaw County, so when the funds from the grant run out, they won't be able to continue with their operations. He pointed to that reason as to why he's so grateful that the volunteers, which, more than two dozen showed up for Saturday's project at the Alpha House, contribute so many volunteer hours.

"This is what Kiwanians do," Lawther said. "We're glad we are able to reach out and help, especially in these tough economic times."

The Kiwanis Club is having one of its largest fundraisers Saturday, when it hosts its annual all-you-can-eat pancake breakfast at the United Methodist Church on Washington Street in Ypsilanti. The event will be held from 7 a.m. to 1 p.m. All profits will go toward the Kiwanis Club's continued community service efforts.

Two newspaper executives promoted

Duo look to continue company's growth as a news leader

By Jerry Wolfe
Journal Register News Service

The Journal Register Co., owner of Heritage Newspapers, has announced the promotion and added responsibilities for two executives currently based in Michigan.

Jerry Bammel, 51, currently vice president of finance, now has the added responsibilities of general manager of JRC newspapers in Michigan.

Pat Eagan, 50, of Shelby Township, currently vice president of newspaper operations in Michigan, now has the added responsibilities of director of production for JRC, based in Yardley, Pa.

The appointments are effective immediately, said Kevin Haezebroke, senior publisher of Journal Register Newspapers in Michigan.

"Jerry, Pat and I have worked together successfully on projects in Michigan in the past and I am confident we can work together at the same effective level going forward," Haezebroke said. JRC is divided into a series of regional clusters and in Michigan, besides Heritage Newspapers, owns and operates The Oakland Press, The Macomb Daily, the Daily Tribune in Royal Oak, the Advisor/Source and Voice Newspapers in Macomb County and Morning Star publications based in Mount Pleasant. JRC is known as a leader in local news and information, serving 992 communities in 10 states.

Jerry Bammel

JRC acquired its Michigan cluster in August 2004 from former owner and publisher Frank Shepherd, who ran the company as 21st Century Newspapers, Inc.

Bammel earned a master's degree in business administration from Wayne State University. In May 2003, he joined the company with the Independent Newspapers Inc. unit, parent company of The Macomb Daily.

Bammel had worked for 17 years with Gannett Co. Inc. in Michigan, New Jersey and Wisconsin, and relocated to Michigan to begin his tenure with 21st Century Newspapers, Inc.

"My goal is to work closely with top Michigan management to continue the growth of our digital and print publications," Bammel said. "I am looking forward to my new responsibilities and moving the company forward."

Eagan, started at The Macomb Daily as a vehicle mechanic in May 1979. He worked in maintenance and became production manager of The Macomb Daily in 1990.

Under Shepherd's leadership, Eagan was promoted to vice president of operations for the Metro Detroit Group.

"Pat Eagan was the clear choice to direct production across Journal Register Co.," said William J. Higginson, president and chief operating officer of JRC. "Pat has demonstrated strong management skills and has the experience and ability to do the job. Pat understands all aspects of production and facilities management, and he has a proven track record of providing excellent results vs. business plans. It is with great pleasure and confidence that we announce Pat's appointment and acceptance of these expanded responsibilities."

Added Eagan, "I'm definitely looking forward to the new challenges and working with other executives and production employees of JRC. I welcome the opportunity."

Eagan lives with his wife, Gigi, and has a daughter, Christina, 31; son, Nicholas, 24; and three grandchildren, Kain, 8; Landen, 2, and Bryce, 4 weeks old.

Habitat for Humanity's local chapter to mark anniversary

This year marks the 20th anniversary of Habitat for Humanity of Huron Valley, and the organization will be hosting a special Coming Home celebration in combination with its sixth annual live and silent auction fundraiser.

In the last 20 years, Habitat has helped 92 Washtenaw County families own a home while paying a zero-interest mortgage and contributing to the tax base. The organization is inviting the public to join them to celebrate these accomplishments.

The nonprofit was founded in 1976 in Americus, Ga., and Bill Clinton deemed Habitat for Humanity "the most successful continuous community service project in the history of the United States" after awarding its founder, Millard Fuller, the Presidential Medal of Freedom.

Though many know about the organization, they may not be aware of how important local support is to the different Habitat affiliates. While Habitat for Humanity of Huron Valley is part of its larger parent organization, Habitat International, Habitat for Humanity of Huron Valley is supported entirely by local volunteers and funding.

Habitat International does not come in and save the day if a local branch goes under financially. In fact, the relationship is quite the opposite. Habitat for Humanity of Huron Valley contributes a percentage of the organization's unrestricted funds (10 percent) back to Habitat International to support overseas house construction and renovation.

Habitat for Humanity of Huron Valley was successful enough last year to build a house abroad for each house they built or renovated in Washtenaw County, thanks to community support and significantly less expensive building costs overseas.

The Coming Home anniversary celebration/fundraiser will help the organization continue those successes and reach its goals for the year.

Right now, Washtenaw County is faced with a growing number of foreclosed and abandoned homes, and Habitat is at the forefront of addressing this challenge.

Habitat, in partnership with its donors, partner families — families currently in the Habitat program earning sweat equity — and the local government, is purchasing and renovating foreclosures in areas hit hardest by the housing crisis.

"We're taking boards down from the windows, mowing the lawn and breathing new life into abandoned homes," said Sarah Stanton, executive director of Habitat for Humanity of Huron Valley, in a news release.

"We have a commitment to stabilize property values and revitalize neighborhoods — our community will benefit ten-fold from investing ourselves in these areas that need us most."

The local chapter has grown from building six homes annually to building or renovating ten homes in 2009, and the organization has plans to renovate at least 30 more.

Despite these high aspirations, Director of Development Theresa Finney-Dumais maintains that the organization is optimistic about community support despite the economic recession.

"People are realizing that everyone is hurting, including those in lower income brackets than they are, and they really want to help each other. The economy has resulted in lower corporate donations due to competition for their tied-up funding, but individuals have always been the highest percentage of those giving in our country, around 80 percent."

Even if people can't give at the same level, they are still supporting their favorite organizations."

Habitat officials stress that the fundraiser is not a fancy black-tie gala, but rather a business-casual gathering with a live local band, free drinks and food, and the live and silent auctions.

Furthermore, they're aiming for 350 to 400 guests this year and are hoping to exceed the $100,000 that past auctions have raised.

"Annual donors supporters are a strength and pillar of the organization," Finney-Dumais said.

"Giving anywhere from $5 to thousands every year really helps sustain us. We are so lucky to have a significant number of volunteers and supporters who have continued to support us since our founding in 1990. We have a volunteer attorney, for example, who has been with us for almost 10 years now. And Bob and Connie Amick founded the branch and have stayed with it for 20 years."

"Our volunteers and families do a tremendous amount of the work and keep our organization moving forward."

During the Coming Home event, the organization is honoring two long-time supporters, Robert and Connie Amick, with the Founders Award.

The Amicks, along with a handful of other volunteers, founded the local Washtenaw County affiliate in 1990 around their kitchen table.

To show that support from local businesses is also important, Thrivent Financial will receive an award for Sponsor of the Year.

The night will feature not only donors but Habitat families, as well. Brian Stewart, who moved into a Habitat home in early 2009, will attend the event with his family and will serve as the keynote speaker, giving a short testimonial.

He calls living in his new home with his wife and three children "a dream come true" and will share more about the positive impact of being involved with Habitat for Humanity of Huron Valley at the event.

The 20th Anniversary and Annual Auction to benefit families will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. April 30 at the Morris Lawrence Atrium at Washtenaw Community College.

Tickets are $50 per person of which $35 is tax deductible, or reserve an eight-person table for $400. For tickets and more information, go to <http://www.h4h.org>.

Caring about parks makes sense

This spring, get involved in an adopt-a-park, median, high-way or plant-a-garden program. With so many municipalities and nonprofits facing dwindling resources, all of us need to become more involved in our communities.

You don't have to be a Master Gardener or even have any park experience.

In Ann Arbor, for instance, there are more than 2,000 acres and 162 parks in the city limits. Thousands of volunteers happily assist city staff to care for, maintain and improve those parks.

Because of this community involvement, each park has its own personality, and is shaped by the individuals and families who have made that space special to them.

Volunteers plant flowers and trees, maintain and clean up the trails, rid areas of invasive species, paint and care for park structures.

ALLMENDINGER

The list of possible activities is as varied as the parks themselves. So even if there isn't a formal program in your area, there's nothing that says you can't start one.

No local park near you? Then improvise.

Start an outdoor beautification project at your local church, fire department, police department or town hall. Use your imagination.

As you are driving around, take note of what area needs to be spruced up in your community.

Pick a spot, gather some friends or neighbors and kick off the project May 15.

That date is a red letter day on the Adopt-A-Park calendar in Ann Arbor.

On that Saturday, from 9 a.m. to noon, neighbors and park lovers will beautify their favorite location.

Events are planned at Allmendinger, (my personal favorite and where I'll be), Arbor Hills Nature Area, Beckley, Belize, Bromley, Burr Oak, Esch, Hanover Square, Hunt, Huron Hills Golf Course, Kilburn, Lansdowne, Maryfield Wildwood, Northside, Redwood, Rose White, Veterans Memorial, Waterworks, Wheeler and Wurster parks.

If you live in Ann Arbor, a park near your home isn't listed, then contact the Adopt-A-Park Program at 794-6627 or e-mail adopt-a-park@a2gov.org and get something started.

Even if you don't live in Ann Arbor, there might be a program in your town. Call your township, village or city offices and find out.

Take pride in your local park and get involved in making it a special place for you, your friends and your family.

Make this spring the time you make your community an even better place to live.

OUR TAKE: Editorial

Which comes first, the book or presidency?

The late President Ronald Reagan once observed that, "Politics isn't a bad profession. If you succeed there are many rewards, if you disgrace yourself you can always write a book."

Actually, in presidential politics, the books tend to come well before someone's elected.

Consider President John F. Kennedy, a World War II veteran who wrote "Profiles in Courage" about political courage and won a Pulitzer Prize in 1957. His election to the White House followed in 1960.

Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, a veteran and peanut farmer relatively unknown nationally, introduced himself to the country in 1975 with his book "Why Not The Best?" He went on to a narrow victory over President Gerald Ford in 1976.

Bill Clinton released "Putting People First" in June 1992, just a matter of months before defeating President George H.W. Bush.

George W. Bush released "A Charge To Keep" in 1999 prior to his 2000 election to the White House.

And, of course, Barack Obama released "The Audacity of Hope" in 2006 to kick off his successful two-year presidential campaign.

That's not to say that you have to write a book to win the office. Reagan waited until two years after he left office to publish "An American Life" in 1990.

And plenty of candidates have published books only to finish in the also-ran category.

Republican Mike Huckabee who, like Clinton, is a native of Hope, Ark., wrote "From Hope To The Higher Ground" in 2007, but lost the GOP nomination in 2008 to Arizona Sen. John McCain. McCain released "Hard Call" in 2007, but lost the general election to Obama.

For those seeking the country's highest office, however, writing a book is a good way to introduce oneself to the public and to polish the policy points for the inevitable debates during the campaign.

Even in the new era of digital campaigns using Web pages, Facebook and Twitter, traditional books continue to play a part in budding presidential campaigns.

Already, some likely candidates in the 2012 presidential election are releasing books and making the rounds at book signing events.

Former Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin, McCain's running mate in 2008, released "Going Rogue: An American Life" last November with a stop in Grand Rapids.

Most recently, Michigan native and former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney was at Borders in Birmingham to discuss his new book "No Apology: The Case for American Greatness," which outlines his philosophies as a conservative Republican.

Romney was a 2008 presidential contender, winning 11 state Republican primaries, including Michigan's, before folding his campaign and throwing his support to McCain.

He's likely to make a repeat appearance in 2012, though no one has formally announced a presidential run yet.

With Obama as the presumptive nominee on the Democratic ticket, most of the action will take place on the Republican side early in the campaigning and in states such as Michigan with early primary dates.

Besides Romney and Palin, other Republicans seen as possible candidates in 2012 include Minnesota Gov. Tim Pawlenty, Huckabee, Texas Congressman Ron Paul, Newt Gingrich and likely a few others.

Keep an eye out for more books to come — and more stops in Michigan — as more candidates get serious about their presidential aspirations.

A dog with geometry skills comes out on top

NEW IN TOWN

MCVEY

After reading "How to Teach Physics to Your Dog" by Chad Orzel, I was startled to discover that my dog, Dalai, is a master of advanced geometry.

Just so cat owners don't feel ignored, I once tried to figure out a metaphor for cats, but found them too random. Napping cats appeared in odd places — on counters and keyboards and in bags and boxes. The physical space seemed to be the important factor — dark, warm, safe, or any combination of the three.

But my dog loves geometry both physical and temporal. Her bladder needs bisect the clock in two-hour blocks with the "big walk" at six in the morning and six in the evening. Within these neatly carved blocks of time, she explores her real passion, which is geometry.

We noticed it when she was a puppy. If I was working in the upstairs office and my daughter was downstairs watching television, Dalai would find a space on the landing of the stairs and nap there. It was the exact midpoint between two people.

If two of us were on the same floor, but in different rooms, she would work out a geometric advantage point between us, often in a completely separate room. So, she was ready if one of us got it in our head to dig out the dog treats. It could happen.

Sitting in the same room, Dalai would survey the landscape and determine, again the exact midpoint between the two of us and chew a toy while keeping an eye on us both.

But finding the midpoint between two people is puppy's play. She ramps up her geometric calculations when there are three of us in the room. Add a third party in the house and she recalculates based on the proximity each of us is to doggie treats, as well as the potential threat we each pose to her squeaky toys — a very advanced non-Euclidian geometry.

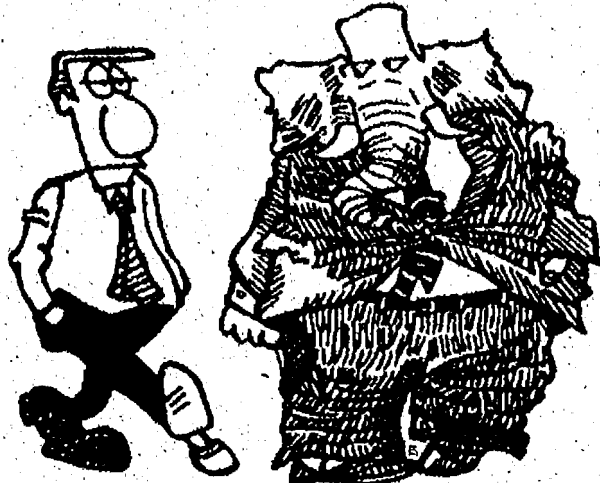

Dalai's greatest joy, though, is calculating angles and probabilities that would make any pool player envious. Rolling a tennis ball for her to catch is more suited to a lesser creature. She prefers a vigorously tossed ball releasing its kinetic energy off table legs, walls, cabinets and chairs.

As she races down the hall, delightfully happy, you know she is thankful for the challenges and the puzzles, the chance to keep her natural geometric mind engaged, with physics thrown in for fun.

"I NEVER FORGET BECAUSE I'M AN ELEPHANT... THAT, AND A LOT OF STICKY NOTES..."

Your Voice: Letters to the Editor

Spend tax dollars on teachers, not warriors

Recently on a flight to San Francisco, one of the flight attendants asked if I was "in the service." I was surprised that anyone could confuse me for one of those "few good men."

It must have been the haircut. But what was more surprising than the question was my inability to respond right away. I am a pacifist and anti-militarism activist, yet I felt honored by that statement. I ended up thanking her for the attempted compliment.

That incident got me thinking about the perceived importance of the "service" in this country. Enlisting in the armed forces is one type of service, one that many people in this country respect; however, there are others, as well.

Teachers and firefighters also serve our country, as do the road crews that fill our notorious Michigan potholes every spring. These are important jobs that serve our country. Despite the importance of these other jobs, Congress still overwhelmingly focuses on the military and the jobs created from it.

We can see this fixation during their debates on what projects to fund with taxpayer money. For example, Sen. Saxby Chambliss, R-Ga., has argued to maintain funding the F-22 Raptor, saying in the name of "95,000 good paying jobs." What Senator Chambliss doesn't mention is that the Department of Defense considers the F-22 unnecessary.

I believe it is necessary today. Tax Day, to ask if building unneeded fighter planes to spend our money? Is this the best way to create jobs and let people serve our country?

Although military and defense spending does lead to job creation, more jobs are created by funding other areas. According to the U.S. Census Bureau in 2009, 8,555 jobs are created for every billion dollars of our tax dollars spent on defense. However, that compares to nearly 10,800 jobs by cutting the same amount in personal taxes. Not spending money creates more jobs by giving that money to the Pentagon.

According to same study, spending the same amount of money on mass transit and education leads to nearly 19,000 and 18,000, respectively. These education jobs pay on average $9,600 more and employ more middle and working-class individuals than jobs created by funding the military.

Non-military funding leads to more high-paying jobs for more people across all socio-economic lines. You create more and better jobs by investing in civilian infrastructure than by building militarily useless fighter planes.

Yet why should these findings mean anything to the average taxpayer in Ann Arbor? This issue of military funding has local repercussions and can be solved by local efforts. This year, Ypsilanti voted to close two of their schools to save $6.4 million.

However, just last year people in the city of Ypsilanti paid nearly $27 million worth of federal taxes to the military budget.

That's enough money to save the two schools and to afford nearly 300 new elementary school teachers, according to calculations by National Priorities Project. Instead of cutting education spending, we should limit Pentagon spending.

Thankfully, there is something we can do about this situation. Write or call your U.S. House representative — for most this area it would be John Dingell — and him or her that you want fewer dollar spend on defense and more on education, health care, mass transit, or infrastructure. These investments create more jobs than the military for the same amount of money.

This same kind of grassroots effort stopped the wasteful spending on another unnecessary project, the F-22. This tax money is yours and you can use your voice to remind the politicians of that.

Think about that while you are turning in your tax return today. I urge you to tell them that when they talk about cutting spending to get out of recession that they should start by de-funding military spending. They should spend our taxes on making more teachers, not warriors.

Local teachers make a difference in lives

I write this letter with the intention of lifting the spirits of the educators who are the heart of Saline.

A jog around town brought me to the heart of why I am where I am today. Since first grade in Mrs. Bates' class, I began as a little Hornet in Houghton Elementary.

Mrs. McCormick taught me about butterflies, Mrs. Nuzzo had a D.E.A.R. marathon and Mrs. Barkel shared the world with me.

Upper elementary brought me to the new Heritage school with Ms. Evans and Mrs. Kelley, where my name is still brightly painted on the cinderblock wall.

Middle school was short and sweet with great teachers: Mr.

and Mrs. Bruckman, Mason, Wicker, Karapas, Kliman, Mabley, Johnston, McNutt and Budnik. I remember feeling at home in that square building, playing football in the front for physical education, walking to math in the portables and enjoying the air conditioning of the newer band wing.

I started high school surrounded by 85 female cross country runners and a fantastic group of coaches, and was immediately encouraged by countless staff members to be the best I could be. All my teachers — from Townsend, Breneman, Beasley, Marcero and Schmier to Loveland, McGee, Koppleman and Mr. and Mrs. Lauch — reached out to me in their own unique way.

Senior year brought us into a new school with new expectations — the discomfort of something so sterile and new was instantly warmed by the familiar faces of the Hornet staff.

My battle with cancer was greeted with encouragement from Mr. Pike, Mr. Hill, Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Jonik. Their hearts of gold kept me believing in the health of my own.

It is my sincere hope that the Saline teachers and staff can know how valuable they are to where I stand today and where I hope to be.

You've sacrificed the time, the pay and the colored copy-ing paper. You've persevered through cut after cut, gotten rid of your personal classroom fridges, increased your co-pay and used your own pennies to contribute to your classroom resources. Your sacrifices do not go unnoticed.

Even though I no longer roam the halls, you've created a safe place to call home inside my heart. You've built my foundation and I've used it to pursue education as my future.

You believed in me, you called my family your own, and you are fighting for something that is under-supported and mistreated. You are all phenomenal individuals of strength, and together you make Hofnet Country a fantastic place to call home.

Thank you for teaching with passion when the economy gives you every reason to lack it. Thank you for spending time and love where pinched pennies and low funds can't stretch.

Thank you for choosing the creative over the original, for showing compassion over frustration and for reminding us that education does not stop at the door of any classroom.

You are all sacrificing to make a difference, and I am forever grateful.

Council is not representing residents

As a city resident, I don't dispute the need for a new police station. However, I take offense at the city council's methods to accomplish their version of the best size, location and scale of a new facility. The dominant issue here is the council's selective memory as to the democratic process.

The primary function of any elected official is to fairly represent those who put them in office. Ms. Cheri Albertson has criticized the planning commission for not doing its job, yet the council fails to do its own when they ignore or block the right of the public to communicate its wishes to them.

A group of citizens - all registered voters - undertook the task of canvassing other registered voters and securing enough signatures on a petition requesting a city-wide election on this issue. The council, however, intends to set this petition aside and proceed at full speed.

My signature on a ballot application or checks made out to the city are taken at face value, but on a petition, it somehow becomes invalid. Matters such as the font size of a document manage to negate the spirit of the message it conveys.

Mr. Hammer's letter to the editor in the April 8 edition of the Chelsea Standard attempts to outline the merits of this proposal. If the information is all true, then the council should have no fear of the matter being put to a vote.

Whether the corner of Main and Summit streets will house a new police station or not, it will certainly be the ground zero for political suicide for any council member seeking re-election after so willfully disrespecting the public he or she is meant to serve.

Maura Robbins
Chelsea

Council ignores residential petition

Six hundred and fifty one Chelsea city residents signed a petition to force the city to allow them to vote on the $2.5 million bond issue to pay for the proposed new municipal building.

The two-line city response was, "The city reviewed the petition submitted by your group and it does not comply with the applicable statutory petition requirements and therefore does not provide a lawful basis for a referendum election."

As directed by the city, the Washtenaw County Board of Elections, Lansing Board of Elections, and an attorney were contacted before the petition was submitted.

If you are concerned, and you would like to know why, I suggest you contact your city council or attend the next meeting at 7 p.m. April 28.

Charlie Silkworth
Chelsea

Public input needed

At the March 23 Chelsea City Council meeting, council member Cheri Albertson reported to the rest of council that the Planning Commission had voted 4 to 3 to recommend against the city's rezoning request connected to the building of a new police station and council chamber.

In her comments, Ms. Albertson seemed to imply that opposition to this plan is primarily an issue to residents of Orchard and Summit streets. There is, however, much skepticism in the community beyond those who would live with this project in their backyard.

I am one of the people who gathered signatures petitioning the city to place the $2.5 million bond needed to finance the police station and council chamber project to a vote.

We found eager support, among a strong majority of those with whom we spoke. My wife and I focused our efforts primarily in the Belser Estates neighborhood - far away from any "not in my backyard" sentiment.

We knocked on many doors over several days and spoke to Chelsea voters at 62 homes.

Voters at 84 percent of those homes signed the petition. I urge Ms. Albertson and the rest of council to get out and speak with their neighbors as we have. Council needs to seek input to this important issue.

ARE YOUR EYES CRYING FOR HELP?

Everyone experiences the symptoms from time to time. Burning, itchy, watery eyes. A feeling that something is actually scratching the eye. But for some 3 million American women and 1 million men, these symptoms are chronic, because they suffer from Dry Eye Syndrome.

TEARS ARE IMPORTANT! Tears are essential to good vision. They lubricate the eye, protect it from infections and wash away allergens. With Dry Eye Syndrome, the eye produces too few tears, or tears of such poor quality that they don't stay on the eye. Ironically, some people with Dry Eye Syndrome may actually experience tears running down their cheeks.

WOMEN ARE MORE SUSCEPTIBLE While everyone experiences reduced tear production as they age, women are more prone to Dry Eye Syndrome than men by a 3 to 1 margin. Studies have shown that hormone therapy may increase the incidence of Dry Eye Syndrome. It is also a side effect of other drugs such as birth control pills, blood pressure medicines, antihistamines and certain anti-depressants.

OUTSIDE INFLUENCES Environmental factors may magnify the symptoms of Dry Eye Syndrome. These include a dusty, dry or windy climate, air conditioning or heating systems (especially if the vent blows on your face), and even staring at a computer screen for extended periods of time.

HELP IS AVAILABLE Your eye doctor can offer several options for managing Dry Eye Syndrome, such as:

- Lubricating drops that can minimize the dry, scratchy sensation
- Prescription eye drops that can actually improve tear production
- Temporary or permanent closure of the lacrimal (tear) ducts to keep your tears from draining away so quickly

Strange but True: Watery eyes may indicate Dry Eye Syndrome

If you are experiencing any of these symptoms of Dry Eye Syndrome, please let us know.

MILITARY NEWS

U.S. Navy Seaman Jessica M. Schulz, daughter of Dawn and Floyd Schulz of Grass Lake, recently completed U.S. Navy basic training at Recruit Training Command, Great Lakes, Ill.

During the eight-week program, Schulz completed a variety of training, which included classroom study and practical instruction on naval customs, first aid, firefighting, water safety and survival, and shipboard and aircraft safety. An emphasis was also placed on physical fitness.

The capstone event of boot camp is "Battle Stations."

This exercise gives recruits the skills and confidence they need to succeed in the fleet. "Battle Stations" is designed to galvanize the basic warrior attributes of sacrifice, dedication, teamwork and endurance in each recruit through the practical application of basic Navy skills and the core values of honor, courage and commitment. Its distinctly Navy flavor was designed to take into account what it means to be a sailor.

Schulz is a 2008 graduate of Chelsea High School.

Collins to receive award

Chelsea resident Lynda Collins, recipient of the 2010 Howard S. Holmes Humanitarian of the Year Award, will be honored at the Faith in Action annual benefit banquet on April 24. The banquet honors a Chelsea or Dexter individual or group who has been an example of the spirit of Faith in Action.

"More, now than ever, is the time to give credit to this local hero who has done so much for those in need in our community," board president Jack Edington said. "And it's not just a once or even twice kind of thing but a lifestyle of generosity that never stops."

Collins has donated suppers to feed hundreds of people at fundraisers for worthy causes such as Relay for Life, the Chelsea Depot restoration, the veteran's dinner for the 175th anniversary of Chelsea, varsity softball, Manchester prom, agricultural banquets and medical fundraisers for Robert Wood, Michael Radka, Julie Coleman and the Darwin family. To be a part of the event honoring Collins, call 475-3305.

Lions Club to hold convention in Ann Arbor

More than 250 members to meet this weekend

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Lion sightings in Ann Arbor?
No, it's not an escapee from a zoo. It's the District 11-B1 Convention of the Lions Club, expecting to draw more than 250 Lions, Lionesses and Leos Friday and Saturday to the Clarion Hotel in Ann Arbor.
"There will be over 40 clubs from this district, which includes all of Washtenaw County, part of Lenawee County, and then west to Battle Creek," said Terry Walters of Dexter, the Lions' district governor.
There will be speakers on all of the Lions' state and district projects, including Michigan Eye Bank, Project Kid Sight, Leader Dogs for the Blind program and Penrickton Center. The event also will include a memorial service, Penny Carnival and Friday evening entertainment from the Saline Fiddlers.

There will be more than eight project tables, opportunities to bid on gifts, recognize fellow Lions, Leos and Lionesses for commitment to their club, community and district, and the opportunity to learn more about projects in the district, Walters said.
Delegates will vote on the new district officers, constitution changes and other items on the business meeting agenda. The guest keynote speaker is past International Director Ron Duffe of Wisconsin, who was elected to a two-year term in 1998. As director, he served on the Headquarters Operations and Finance Committee and as its chairman 1999 to 2000, and was appointed to the International board for 2000-2001.
A member of the Roberts

Lions participate in a variety of projects ranging from cleaning up local parks to providing supplies to victims of natural disasters. The organization is especially known for working to end preventable blindness.

Lions Club, Duffe has been a Lion since 1972, and held many offices, including club president, zone chairman and district governor. He has been a coordinator for the Wisconsin

Lions Mission to Mexico program; served as director and president of the Wisconsin Lions Foundation; and director, vice president and president of the Wisconsin Past District Governors Organization.
A recipient of numerous awards, Duffe, a retired accountant, served his district as leadership chairman and has been a committee member of the USA/Canada Lions Leadership Forum.
Lions Clubs International is a volunteer organization dedicated to leadership development through community service. There are 1.3 million men and women in 202 countries working to answer needs that challenge communities.
Lions participate in a variety of projects ranging from cleaning up local parks to providing supplies to victims of natural disasters. The organization is especially known for working to end preventable blindness.

There are more than 14,500 members in more than 500 clubs throughout Michigan. District 11B-1 has close to 1,400 members, and has successfully continued its theme of "Move to Grow," Walters said. The Dexter Lions Club, and Dexter Lions Richard Ulrich and Jeff Turck got the Dexter High School Leos Club started, extending an opportunity to get more youth involved in community service.
The Manchester Lions, and Lions Fred Best and Ed Sterling worked hard to get a new club in Clinton. As of March 25, the district completed the extension of the Clinton Lions Club with 22 charter members.

Ann Arbor Host Lions, Jonesville Lions, Michigan Center Lions and the Eastern Michigan University Lions in Ypsilanti continue to make their clubs stronger, and each club has added more than six new members this year.
"I'm excited about the District 11-B1 Convention," Walters said. "This weekend is set up to have fun and to come together as a district that has had a tremendous year in service to our communities."

Ralph seeks county board seat

Alice Ralph will run for the District 11 seat on the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners.
Ralph, a Democrat, has lived in Ann Arbor for more than 30 years. She is a registered architect with degrees from Lawrence University of Wisconsin and the University of Michigan.
She also has been involved with a variety of causes and organizations addressing issues that include livability, access and accountability, collaboration, land use and environment.
"Creating an Abundant Future in Washtenaw County" is the theme of Ralph's campaign. Ralph said she believes the Washtenaw County Board can create abundance for residents by setting resilient policy that ensures coverage of the core responsibilities of the county.

Ralph says that means "meeting crises with flexible and durable solutions and effective delivery of legally required services to lighten the burdens carried by supplementary programs and nonprofit agencies."
Additionally, she said that means moving forward in the face of climate change and energy transformation with actions that open doors to just and sustainable progress.
"Resilient policy, core responsibilities, future abundance. This is my version of the triple bottom line for social, economic and environmental accounting," Ralph said in a news release.
Ralph said her years of activism have given her an understanding of authorities, and city and county governments, and that sustained progress can be achieved if the cities, townships and universities of Washtenaw County work together even more closely.

One of her goals as a county commissioner would be to help overcome divisions and further increase collaboration among governmental units.
Another of Ralph's goals as county commissioner would be to refresh comprehensive program and systems planning services at the county level.
"Neighborhoods and communities can't meet the urgent priorities of a new economy without collaborations of local, countywide, regional and state levels," Ralph said. "Working together, we thrive."
Ralph is a current or past leader in local groups including:

• Former A2D2 Design Guidelines Advisory Committee.
• Friends of the Ann Arbor Greenway.
• Ann Arbor Committee for the Commons.
• Washtenaw County Historic District Commission.
• Dexter's Gordon Hall Management Advisory Committee.
• Women Progressive Activists, executive board.
In 2006, Ralph ran for Ann Arbor City Council in the Third Ward, which significantly overlaps District 11.

HAMILTON, DOROTHY N, nee NOK, age 99, of Ann Arbor, MI, died on April 3, 2010, at Chelsea Retirement Community. She was born in Cleveland, OH, on February 7, 1911, the daughter of the late Florence and Earl Nock. She married James B. Hamilton on September 29, 1933, and they were married 35 years until his death in 1968. She lived in Fairview Park, OH, Toledo, OH; Lakeland, OH; Manchester, MI, and Ann Arbor. A private family service will take place at a future date.

DORER, JANICE ELAINE BOVAY, of Chelsea, MI, age 76, peacefully passed away, Tuesday, April 6, 2010. Janice was born December 13, 1933 in Saginaw, MI, and is preceded in death by her parents, Floyd and Mildred Bovay. She is survived by her husband of 54 years, Gil Dorer, her daughter, Cynthia Dorer of Woodstock, GA, her son, Robert (Sally) Dorer of Minneapolis, MN; two grandchildren, Ethan and Jenna, her brother-in-law, Gary of Sedona, AZ, many nieces and nephews, and a lifetime of wonderful friends. It was during the loving embrace of her husband, Gil, and her two children, Cindy and Bob, that she passed from this earth. The moment will always be etched in their memory. Shelly, our wonderful caregiver, Hailey, her 8-year-old angel of a daughter, and Beth, our warm-hearted nurse from Hospice, were present as she passed from this world. The Hospice people were so kind and gentle as they guided us through this journey. Her passing was amazingly ethereal. Jan chose the time to pass as our dear friends, Arlene Riba and Dave Busfield stopped by to check on her. Finally she is at peace and rid of that dastardly Alzheimer's disease.

Jan was a special, gifted person. She had a love for people, especially children. They would flock to her knowing her gentle kindness was there to warm them. Another gift was to her children, Cindy and Bob. She was always there to the best of her ability and loved them unconditionally. Jan was an artist. Not just an artist but one who was given the ability to touch people with her paintings. Hundreds of her paintings hang in homes throughout this country and others. It was her gift to the world. She was amazingly creative and able to speak to those with the ability to see the message. The message was always kind and gentle. Few are so rewarded to hear how much they have enriched the lives to those able to see her message through art. It is a personal gift to be able to create and also a gift to receive it. Many letters arrive expressing the joy received from her art. One letter says, "I have a depression problem. Every morning the first thing I do is view each of your seven paintings. They make me smile and help with the new day. Another, 'Every New Year's Eve we, husband and wife, have a glass of wine together and think of all the wonderful things that have happened to us in the previous year. We want you to know the joy your paintings have given us and how much we love the time we have spent with the two of you. Please know you are special in our hearts.' There are many more such heartfelt letters in her collection. Many have commented on how humble she was saying, 'She has no idea of how good or successful an artist she is.'

What a reward to be so acknowledged during one's life time. Gil is so proud to have been able to care for her and keep her here in the comfort of their home. It was a struggle but not difficult, for her twinkle remained throughout. Jan's decline was a period of sorrow and joy for her. Her humor did not leave. A few years ago Jan and Gil decided to donate their bodies to the U of M Medical School. Hopefully her gift may help medical science in the future. It is her last gift to humanity. There will be a Visitation at the Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, 901 N. Main St., Chelsea, MI 48118, (734) 475-1444, on Sunday, April 11, 2010 from 1 to 3 p.m. Jan did not like being singled out even for an award. The visitation will be a celebration of her life in keeping with her wishes. If you wish to do something in Jan's memory be kind to a person who needs it.

EDICT, BARBARA JULIE, of Dexter, MI, passed away April 8, 2010. She was born January 5, 1926, the daughter of Edward John Yeomans and Frances Marie Bosch of Holland, MI. She worked as a medical technologist (hematology) at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, MN, the original University of Michigan hospital, and the old Mercyway Psychiatric hospital on Jackson Avenue, Ann Arbor. She loved nature and the outdoors, still paddled a canoe in her 70s and she and her husband were frequent travelers and watchers. She is survived by her husband of 54 years, Glenn, two daughters, Julie (Peter) Card of Manistee, MI, and Nancy (Jeff) Wilkins of Aurora, CO; two grandchildren, Zachary and Mark Wilkins, and her sister, Mary Hobeck of Holland, MI. She was preceded in death by her brother, Jack, and her sister, Columbe. Services were held April 10 at the Hosmer-Muehlig Funeral Chapel in Dexter, MI, and she was laid to rest in Forest Lawn Cemetery in Dexter.

FITZSIMMONS, LOUIS H., age 82, passed at home after a quick battle with cancer. He was born July 3, 1927 and is survived by children, Stephen, John, James, Donna, and four grandchildren; plus two great grandsons. Cremation has taken place and no services are planned at this time.

KATONA, MARIAN A., of Milan, MI, age 83, died Wednesday, April 7, 2010, at Saline Community Hospital with her family by her side. Wife of Antal Tony Katona, mother of Kathy Goszdzinski and Nancy Magnis. Cremation has taken place. HANDELSMAN, THELMA, 93, passed away quietly in Chelsea, April 3, 2010. Those in Chelsea knew a woman courteous, without fail, always walking and reading, a smile for everyone. A Brooklyn, NY gal, her tennis ability led to meeting physician husband Jack on the courts. She lived among art she and Jack created. Golf club champion 6X, wins esteemed by family more than her. Girls would look over and think I would beat them. They didn't know all I wanted was a pleasant game. Thelma loved both visual and performing arts, and would encourage all to attend live cultural events. She delighted in good and healthy food. The youngest of ten in a very close knit family. Proud of sons, Larry, Ben; daughter, Linda, daughter-in-law, Joanne, grandson, Amiel and wife, Julie, and darling new great grandson, Jacob, namesake of both her husband and father. Thelma was thankful to all those who helped her at Silver Maples, Chelsea Community Hospital, St. Joe's including the nurses in dialysis, her wonderful Synergy caregivers and attentive Towsley Village staff. Instead of flowers, she would ask you to make a point to speak very slowly and clearly to someone you know who has poor hearing and take time yourself for a long daily walk. Incredibly healthy, a lifelong athlete. Others always came first.

REINHART, SHIRLEY, age 88, of Manchester, Michigan, and was a resident until 1958, passed away March 30, 2010. Shirley was born October 7, 1921 in Detroit, MI, the daughter of Burt and Minnie (Billingsley) King. She married Wendell Reinhart on December 1, 1940 and he preceded her in death. Mrs. Reinhart was a member of the Kings Daughters, the Manchester United Methodist Church, and the Manchester United Methodist Women. Shirley is survived by her children, Paul (Deborah) Reinhart, of Brooklyn, Dennis (Barbara Anderson) Reinhart, of Jackson and Janet (John) Binder of Cement City; 8 grandchildren, 11 great grandchildren, 1 brother, Delbert (Ruth) King of Venice, FL, and sister-in-law, Ruth Reinhart. In honor of Shirley's memorial donations may be given to Manchester United Methodist Church Building fund. Envelopes will be available at the Borek Jennings Funeral Home, Jentner Chapel where the family will receive friends on Monday, April 12, 2010 from 2 to 4 and 6 to 8 p.m. A Healing Farewell Service will be on Tuesday beginning at 10 a.m. with Funeral Service at 11 a.m. at the Manchester United Methodist Church with Pastor Larry Wik officiating. Interment will be in Pleasant View Cemetery, Petersburg, MI. Please sign Shirley's guestbook at www.borekjennings.com or leave a message of comfort for her family by calling 877-231-7900.

He was born on November 3, 1929, in Paragould, AR, the son of George T. and Velzia (Howe) Hill. On June 4, 1960, he married Nancy Lee Smith and she survives. Frank served his country in the Air Force from 1948 to 1952 in Korea and Germany. He retired from Chelsea Milling Company in 1997. Frank liked classic and antique cars but most of all loved spending time with his family and especially his grandchildren. Local doctor pens book on county bike routes

By Steven Howard
Heritage Newspapers

Long before he wrote the book on bike routes in Washtenaw County, Joel Howell was an authority on the subject.

While developing his career within both the medical school and history department at the University of Michigan, Howell said he spent much of his free time road biking in the area.

Now 56, Howell said friends and colleagues have often solicited advice from him over the past 25 years on the best places to ride, knowing he had accumulated a wealth of knowledge on the subject.

It was in these solicitations, Howell said, that he got the idea to write "Washtenaw County Bike Rides."

"People would get sent to me and ask me where to ride," he said, prompting him to question: "Why not just turn it into a book?"

"People would get sent to me - and ask me where to ride."

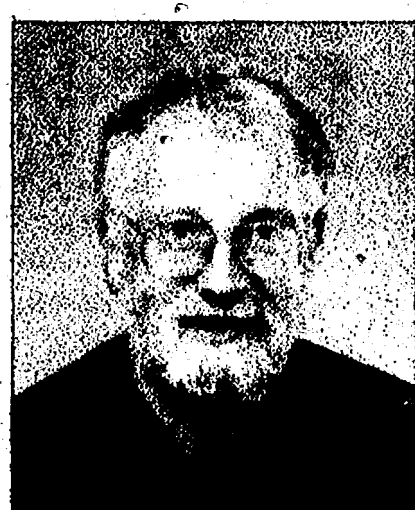

After getting approval from the University of Michigan Press, Howell said he began composing the book.

Though Howell said the writing of the book was "something I did in my spare time," he said the text came together rather quickly because all of the research was already in his head.

"The core of the book, I already knew," he said.

Containing 10 primary routes, as well as alternative side trips, the rides in the book cover a wide area.

Long before he wrote the book on bike routes in Washtenaw County, Joel Howell was an authority on the subject.

Many parts of Ann Arbor are covered, with trips north along Dixboro Road and west via Huron River Drive.

Longer rides extend out to Chelsea and Manchester, even reaching East Lansing on one particular jaunt.

Those willing can even follow maps straight to Hell, Mich., of course.

Washtenaw County Bike Rides

JOEL D. HOWELL

The route maps connect one-to-another, so as to provide clear paths to cover large geographic areas.

Though riding a bike on any public roadway can be risky, Howell said the routes he has put in the book can be ridden safely with a little bit of personal caution and awareness.

"They're all my favorite rides," he said. "Every one of them I've ridden dozens and dozens of times."

The book includes fact boxes containing tips on how to avoid some of the most common road hazards, such as discourteous drivers and rogue animals.

"I've never been hit by a car," Howell said. "Flat tires - sure I've had them. You want to be able to deal with a flat."

Howell said it's most important to realize that, as a cyclist, even though you may have the right of way, cars do not always do what you expect them to do.

"Bikes are soft, cars are hard," he said.

Howell said he wrote the book to inspire a new generation of riders because he felt he should return the favor to those who inspired him.

"In part, it's trying to pay back all the people who taught me how to ride," he said.

However, being a physician, Howell said he also hopes the book will help people to generally live a more active lifestyle through cycling.

"The biggest thing I would say is exercise is the key to almost everything," he said. "It's good not just for your physical health, but your mental health, as well."

Howell said all profits from his book will go toward the Ann Arbor Bicycle Touring Society safety fund.

The book costs $12.95 and is available in area bookstores.

Beware of the dangers of a personal loan

As lending requirements stay relatively tight for most consumers, the chance to borrow outside the banking system from family or friends can be attractive. After all, it's rare to see a parent or sibling demand a credit check or other lengthy documentation.

On the other hand, it could be one of the most dangerous financial transactions you ever make simply because money can drive a wedge between relatives in even the closest of families.

There are benefits and drawbacks to private loans. Here's the good news first:

- Terms can be significantly friendlier than a borrower would qualify for in the open market. For example, the rate charged on the loan can be higher than the lender would receive in a deposit account but lower than the borrower would pay a commercial lender.

- They can require little or no collateral.

- It's a way to keep money in the family.

- It's a way for a borrower to be able to buy a home, a car or other critical assets even if they have a poor credit rating.

- There's no loss of tax benefits to the borrower or lender if an agreement in the case of a mortgage loan is structured and reported properly.

Now the bad news:

- Unclear agreements can lead to missed payments or default.

- If the borrower dies suddenly, the lender's investment may be lost if the agreement isn't structured correctly. A properly executed promissory note is still an obligation of the estate, and may continue to be paid to an heir or other person or entity based on the terms as agreed.

- Jealous relatives could say they weren't treated fairly.

- Disagreements between borrower and lender could kill an important relationship.

The best arrangements are formal written in proper legal language, notarized and recorded in the county where the property resides. A financial adviser such as a financial planning professional can talk to both parties about what such loans, particularly large loans for real estate or tuition, can mean for their respective finances.

It also makes sense for both parties to visit their respective tax professionals to make sure they know the correct ways to document the loan transaction over time for tax purposes.

A detailed document prepared with the help of an attorney or a certified public accountant can also lay out specific scenarios if either the borrower or the lender has to break or alter their agreement.

Such trained experts can talk you through the benefits and pitfalls of a private loan arrangement as it affects your particular situation; either as lender or borrower, and specific laws and requirements in your state you have to follow if both borrower and lender are going to derive tax advantages from the agreement.

You should be aware that the IRS governs these interest rates and provides an annually updated table that you can find at www.irs.gov/app/picklist/list/federalRates.html. These rates are Applicable Federal Tax Rates (AFR). You can also forgive a portion of the loan each year up the annual gift exclusion, which is $13,000 this year.

Generally, any private loan transaction should include a promissory note that establishes how the debt will be repaid. That's true for business loans or loans for most types of property.

In the case of a business loan, it makes sense for the potential borrower to get specific advice on how lenders in their business will be treated not only in terms of repayment, but default. These agreements are particularly important for tax purposes as well.

In the case of a loan made for real estate, a mortgage or "deed of trust" statement, depending on the state you live in, or an agreement specific to the type of loan that binds the property as collateral for the promissory note will be necessary. It basically says that if you don't fulfill all the terms in the agreement, the lender has the right to foreclose or repossess the property.

Even if a friend or relative makes an offer of help, it's proper for the borrower to take the initiative to structure the arrangement in a way that's responsible and beneficial to both. If a relative is drawing income from the loan, special provisions should be made for prepayment and other contingencies.

The most important thing to remember and plan for: When two people who are close to each other enter into such an arrangement, the most valuable thing really isn't the money - it's the relationship.

Briarwood Mall receives recycling award

Recycle Ann Arbor, a recycling and waste program, recently announced that Indianapolis-based Simon Property Group has been awarded the Business Recycling Leadership Award for its Briarwood Mall location.

The award recognizes outstanding recycling and sustainability efforts on the part of Ann Arbor businesses.

To earn the award, businesses must:

- Be located in the city of Ann Arbor.

- Be a Recycle Ann Arbor customer.

- Recycle a high percentage of waste, as verified by a waste and recycling audit.

- Have a designated staff person or green team that coordinates recycling.

- Recycle special items, such as printer cartridges or fluorescent light bulbs.

- Offer recycling education to employees.

- Be involved in at least three sustainable practices, such as green purchasing, zero waste efforts or energy efficiency programs.

Simon Property Group manages more than 320 shopping centers in the United States and has owned Briarwood Mall since 2007. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency named Simon Property Group a 2008 Energy Star Partner of the Year for outstanding energy management and reductions in greenhouse gas emissions at its malls across the country.

From April 2008 through January 2010, Briarwood Mall recycled 3,582,300 pounds of paper and 127,950 pounds of containers. The mall had been recycling cardboard since 2003 and containers since 2007, but was able to increase recycling volumes through partnering with its 101 tenants and using the City of Ann Arbor's free recycling program.

Briarwood Mall General Manager Ida Hendrix and Operations Director Mike Ewald are the driving force behind the mall's recycling program.

"We go above and beyond traditional programs by recycling materials such as fluorescent light bulbs, ink cartridges, and batteries," said Hendrix in a news release.

"We keep our tenants updated about recycling efforts through quarterly merchant meetings."

Other environmentally friendly efforts include upgrading the mall's lighting from T-12 fluorescent bulbs to energy-saving T-8 bulbs, a project which Ewald is working to complete with light manufacturer Sylvania.

In November of 2008, the mall conducted a "Shop Smarter Campaign" to distribute 500 reusable shopping bags to customers. Each bag contained a Sylvania compact fluorescent light bulb as well as a list of resource conservation tips and practices.

It's all part of the Simon Property Group's internal initiative to do business efficiently, said Hendrix.

"As part of this goal, we are continually looking for ways to save resources and money, while helping the environment."

Recycle Ann Arbor started Michigan's first curbside recycling program in 1978 and currently operates the state's largest community drop-off center. The ReUse Center, Recycle Ann Arbor also operates the Environmental House green building resource center, the Ann Arbor curbside recycling program, Calvert's Roll-Off Containers and Energy Works of Michigan.

Representative discusses his vote on the controversial $940 billion health care bill Addressing a packed house Friday, U.S. Rep. Mark Schauer, D-7th District, held an informal question-and-answer session with constituents about the Health Insurance Reform legislation at the Washington Street Education Center in Chelsea.

The meeting was one of several Schauer has held throughout the area in the past two weeks.

Schauer said he is still combating myths and half-truths. At a town hall in Hillsdale, Schauer said he was asked about the government installing microchips in people.

"It's ridiculous. I have an obligation to my constituents to present the facts," he said.

The facts, Schauer said, are that the new law improves coverage for 42,000 residents in the 7th District, gives tax credits and assistance to 167,000 families and 12,100 small businesses to help them afford coverage, extends coverage to 30,000 insured residents and guarantees 8,600 residents with pre-existing medical conditions can obtain healthcare coverage.

With most of the audience at or near retirement age, Schauer spent most of his time focusing on Medicare benefits for seniors.

Under the new legislation, seniors on Medicare will continue to have that program available to them for the foreseeable future," he said.

When asked why he voted for the healthcare legislation — which will cost $940 billion over the next 10 years — Schauer said it was the right thing to do.

"Right now we're paying $2.5 trillion a year on health care in this country," he said. "This legislation has been part of a very long process. I have spent a lot of time listening to the 600,000 people in my district, and I have heard many stories."

"There are a lot of reasons why I voted on the healthcare legislation. The No. 1 reason was purely economical. Health care costs are growing out of control. Health care makes up 18 percent of our country's gross domestic product. Other countries spend 9 and 10 percent. We're literally handing them a club, telling them to beat us on the head and take our jobs."

Schauer said he is also happy that the bill extends healthcare coverage on a parent's plan for children until the child reaches the age of 26.

"Fifty-one thousand young people in my district will benefit from this provision," he said. Another provision eliminates the "doughnut hole" for seniors covered under Medicare Part D by 2020, he said.

This year, seniors who fall into the "doughnut hole" of coverage will receive a rebate of $250. Next year, seniors will receive a 50 percent discount on all brand-name drugs and a 7 percent discount on generics while they are in the so-called doughnut hole. Beginning in 2011, seniors on Medicare can receive free wellness care.

Reid McCarthy of Chelsea thanked Schauer for voting on the legislation.

"Reforming Medicare Part D will save my clients a lot of money," McCarthy said. "I just want to say thank you for your vote."

Brooks Cone of Chelsea said he doesn't agree with the new legislation.

"The Democrats have received a lot of criticism on how they railroaded this bill through the system. Congressman Schauer's own Web site has 43 people voicing their opinion against it," he said. "I want to know what ultimately factored into his vote."

Chelsea resident Marsha Towne also expressed frustration with Congress.

"I'm ashamed of our government. This legislation was partisan, and it was bullied and pushed through by our president," she said.

Schauer acknowledged that voting for the legislation in the face of adversity was not easy.

"I have never listened so hard in my life. This healthcare bill was deliberated, analyzed and reanalyzed for 14 months," he said. "I believe it was Teddy Roosevelt in 1908 that suggested Congress do something to help provide health care for

Five bridges on repair list

County looking for money from MDOT funds

By Lisa Allmendinger

The Washtenaw County Road Commission plans to submit applications for five local bridges to the Michigan Department of Transportation local funding program.

On the list are:
• Ford Boulevard Bridge in Ypsilanti Township
• Klinger Road Bridge in Lima Township
• McGregor Road Bridge in Dexter Township
• Austin Road Bridge over the Saline River in Saline Township
• Austin Road Bridge over the Bauer Drain in Saline Township

Replacement funding is being requested for the Ford Boulevard Bridge over the Norfolk Southern Railroad, the McGregor Road Bridge over Portage Lake Canal and the two bridges on Austin Road.

Removal funding is being requested for the Klinger Road Bridge over Mill Creek.

The road commission would like to remove the Lima Township bridge completely, said Steve Puuri, managing director of the road commission.

The replacement of the two Austin Road bridges would be done as a pair, said Washtenaw County Road Commissioner Doug Fuller, because of their proximity to each other.

Puuri said the road commission is limited to just five requests, and the applications are due June 1.

If the applications are chosen by MDOT, 95 percent of the construction costs are paid by the state, while the road commission would be responsible for the design, right-of-way, construction engineering and local match for the construction costs, he said.

In a related funding instance, MDOT funding to the road commission for February was 7.54 percent lower than the amount received for the same month in 2009.

In February 2009, the road commission received about $1.724 in state transportation funding; in February 2010, that amount was about $1.594 million.

Puuri said a reduction of 5 percent from last year's receipts was budgeted and, at this point, the funding is 6 percent short of last year's level.

He told road commissioners that he hopes the receipts for March will be more favorable.

To date, the road commission has received about $3 million from the state, which is about $189,877 less than in 2009.

Funding for the state's road commissions is based, in part, on gas tax receipts.

Americans. Every president since then, both Republican and Democrat, has pushed for healthcare reform."

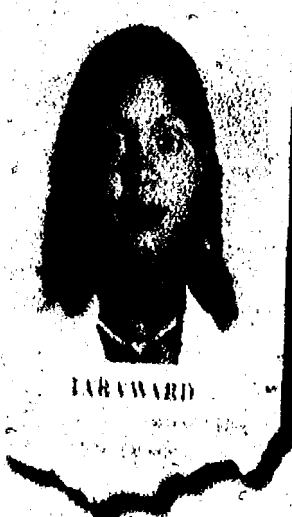

One resident, whose 3-year-old daughter has asthma and was denied healthcare coverage because of a pre-existing condition, thanked Schauer for his vote.

"For all the young people out there who have pre-existing conditions and cannot get health care, thank you," she said. "I know that there are wrinkles in the bill and some things still need to be worked out, but it is a step in the right direction."

Aspartame name change cause for concern

TAKE CARE

SEAN DALTON

You really can't change your body without changing what you put into your body.

That's why this time we're taking a break from talking about my care at Simpson Family Chiropractic in Dexter (which continues to go very well) to discuss something that has interested me for awhile now — aspartame, an FDA approved artificial sweetener with a questionable reputation.

Reading about high fructose corn syrup was my first real exposure and awareness of chemicals that are put in our food.

There are studies that go either way. Some experts describe the way high fructose corn syrup — which doesn't occur naturally but must be synthesized in a sterile laboratory — is digested in the body as inducing fat production and being hard on the liver.

Frighteningly enough, high fructose corn syrup is presented as digesting similarly to alcohol.

Luckily it's easy enough to spot high fructose corn syrup on the ingredients inventory on most foods that contain the substance, which is quite a number of them (mostly condiments, sweets, "fat free" foods, low carbohydrate foods and many breads).

I would be very concerned — and would want to know if high fructose corn syrup were going by any other name.

In the case of aspartame, also known as Nutrisweet, Canderel and now Aminosweet, that very thing has happened.

Opponents to aspartame claim a number of potential side effects, including headache, change of vision, convulsions, seizures, nausea, vomiting and joint pain.

Some studies have correlated the introduction of aspartame into the food supply of laboratory mice and an increase in cancer rates in that same group of rodents.

Luckily I don't consume anything with aspartame in it, and I don't use the non-white sugar packets in my coffee (which I don't have often because it's bad for you too).

And I'd like to keep it that way, which makes this re-branding all the more disconcerting. I'm not very extreme in my dietary beliefs. I don't conform to any strict or special diet and I'm not a member of the vegan orthodoxy.

When it comes to artificial materials replacing basic nutritional building blocks in my food I draw the line, particularly when they have multiple aliases.

If you're reading this and are concerned, I would encourage you to run a search on Google and read some of what I've read in the past couple of weeks. There's no point in regurgitating it here.

One thing I can attest to that means more to me than any study I've read is my personal prohibition on high fructose corn syrup.

The results have been very positive. Within a week of avoiding condiments, beverages, breads and other items in my cupboard and fridge with high fructose corn syrup listed as an ingredient, I saw a boost in energy, a reduction in fatigue and I noticed that my gym visits were yielding better results — more than likely in the case of the latter because my body's fat production fell with the removal of high fructose corn syrup in my system.

While the FDA takes lumps for allowing some of this stuff in our food in the first place, I'm grateful that the federal government makes listing such ingredients mandatory.

Being able to make a choice is very important and the reason I'm writing this column.

Please read up on what's in your food, and with that knowledge in hand make a choice about what goes into your body one way or another.

Thank you for reading, and until next time — take care.

Community remembers life cut short

Residents deal with grief in loss of young man

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

While authorities continue to investigate the string of fires in Ann Arbor that killed Dexter resident Renden Lemasters and injured two others April 3, the Lemasters family began the grieving process in earnest last week.

Renden's father, Robert Lemasters, planned a memorial service and funeral at St. Joseph's Parish in Webster Township April 5, just days after what would have otherwise been a mundane game of golf with his son.

"We were running out of time and I hit my ball into the woods (during a golf game on April 2) we left the balls and said we'd finish the game Sunday," Lemasters said.

Two days later, he returned to the green alone, picked up his son's ball and walked somberly away from the half-hole that Renden would never finish and Robert would never forget. He said he was grateful for a meaningful last evening with his son.

"His brother and stepbrother were supposed to play, but they couldn't make it, so it was just us," he said. "Maybe it was meant to be that day."

Lemasters said when the fire broke out at a home on South State Street near the University of Michigan central campus in Ann Arbor, his son was asleep in a second-floor bedroom.

"Someone woke up and went to get water when they were told there was a fire on the porch. But by the time he got back, the couch had caught fire and that's what really started (the blaze)," Lemasters said. When word spread about the fire, panic ensued and Renden ran out of the front door and into the fire's epicenter.

"The fire marshal ended up pulling up right as he was running out the door; they knocked him down with a fire blanket and put out the fire," Lemasters said. "He said he was fine, but he didn't realize how bad he was burned."

Lemasters isn't sure if his son was the victim of a malicious prank or a horrible coincidence, but he wants his son's story to "make a difference."

Renden's mother Kimberly said she will miss her son.

"He had the biggest heart there ever was," she said.

She said Renden was the quintessential big brother to his 15-year-old stepsister, Alex Semifero, his brother Ryan and stepbrother Jay. "He was his brother's (Ryan) biggest fan," Kimberly said.

The large crowd that attended Renden's memorial service April 8 was a testament to how many lives he touched. Josh Weaveman said he and Renden weren't best friends, but he was "just happy to call him friend."

"It didn't matter who you were, he would just talk to you and he would listen," Weaveman said.

The last time he had seen Renden was at a Christmas party last year.

Nick Bensinger, another Dexter Community Schools student who was a classmate of Renden at Washtenaw Community College before transferring to Eastern Michigan University, spoke highly of his friend.

"We never had any classes together, but we shared a lot of common interests," Bensinger said. "I was into electronics and (Renden) would take any opportunity to talk about computers."

Bensinger said Renden was one of the most positive people he knew and his influence will be missed.

Kimberly said her son was the kind of person who cared about others and liked to help.

"I'm going to miss him every time I need his help with the phone, the computer or our entertainment center," she said. "If I messed something up, he would get it back on track."

Renden was planning a career with the Thetford Corporation's technical department, located on Jackson Road.

He was a single semester away from graduating from EMU with a degree in computer logistics and warehouse distribution at the school's Department of Science and Technology.

Those close to him said that the 2005 Dexter High School graduate never lost the energy he had as a member of the DHS varsity soccer team.

"He had just gone to a trade show a couple of weeks ago and he made a sale. He was really excited about that," Lemasters said. "He said, 'I got that salesmanship from you, Dad.' Of course, it made me smile."

Area residents enjoy A2's Festifools

Hourlong parade attracts families, the curious

By Austen Smith
Heritage Newspapers

Ann Arbor's Main Street was invaded by a parade of fools on Sunday as the wonderfully whimsical Festifools delighted local families with giant papier-mâché puppets, theatrically dressed musicians and general foolishness.

Festifools started in 2007 and has grown every year, including this event, which co-founder Mark Tucker estimated was four to five times larger than last year's.

He said there were about 100 participants in the parade that marched up and down Main Street between William and Washington for about an hour.

"There are so many new (puppets) that I didn't even expect," Tucker said Sunday.

"And all these people coming out, next year they will be participants ... because creativity is something we all have, so we've got to take care of it. We have to nourish that."

Tucker credited the good weather for the large turnout, as well.

Festifools originated when

Tucker and then-graduate student Shoshana Hurand became inspired by giant, human-powered floats that Tucker observed while studying in Italy. At that time, Tucker served as the creative director for the Michigan Thanksgiving Day Parade. He now teaches art through the University of Michigan Lloyd Hall Scholars Program.

Many of Tucker's students built their own floats and participated in Sunday's event.

According to its Web site, Festifools is one of the largest giant puppet shows in the world. The event has drawn volunteer help from University of Michigan students and the city of Ann Arbor.

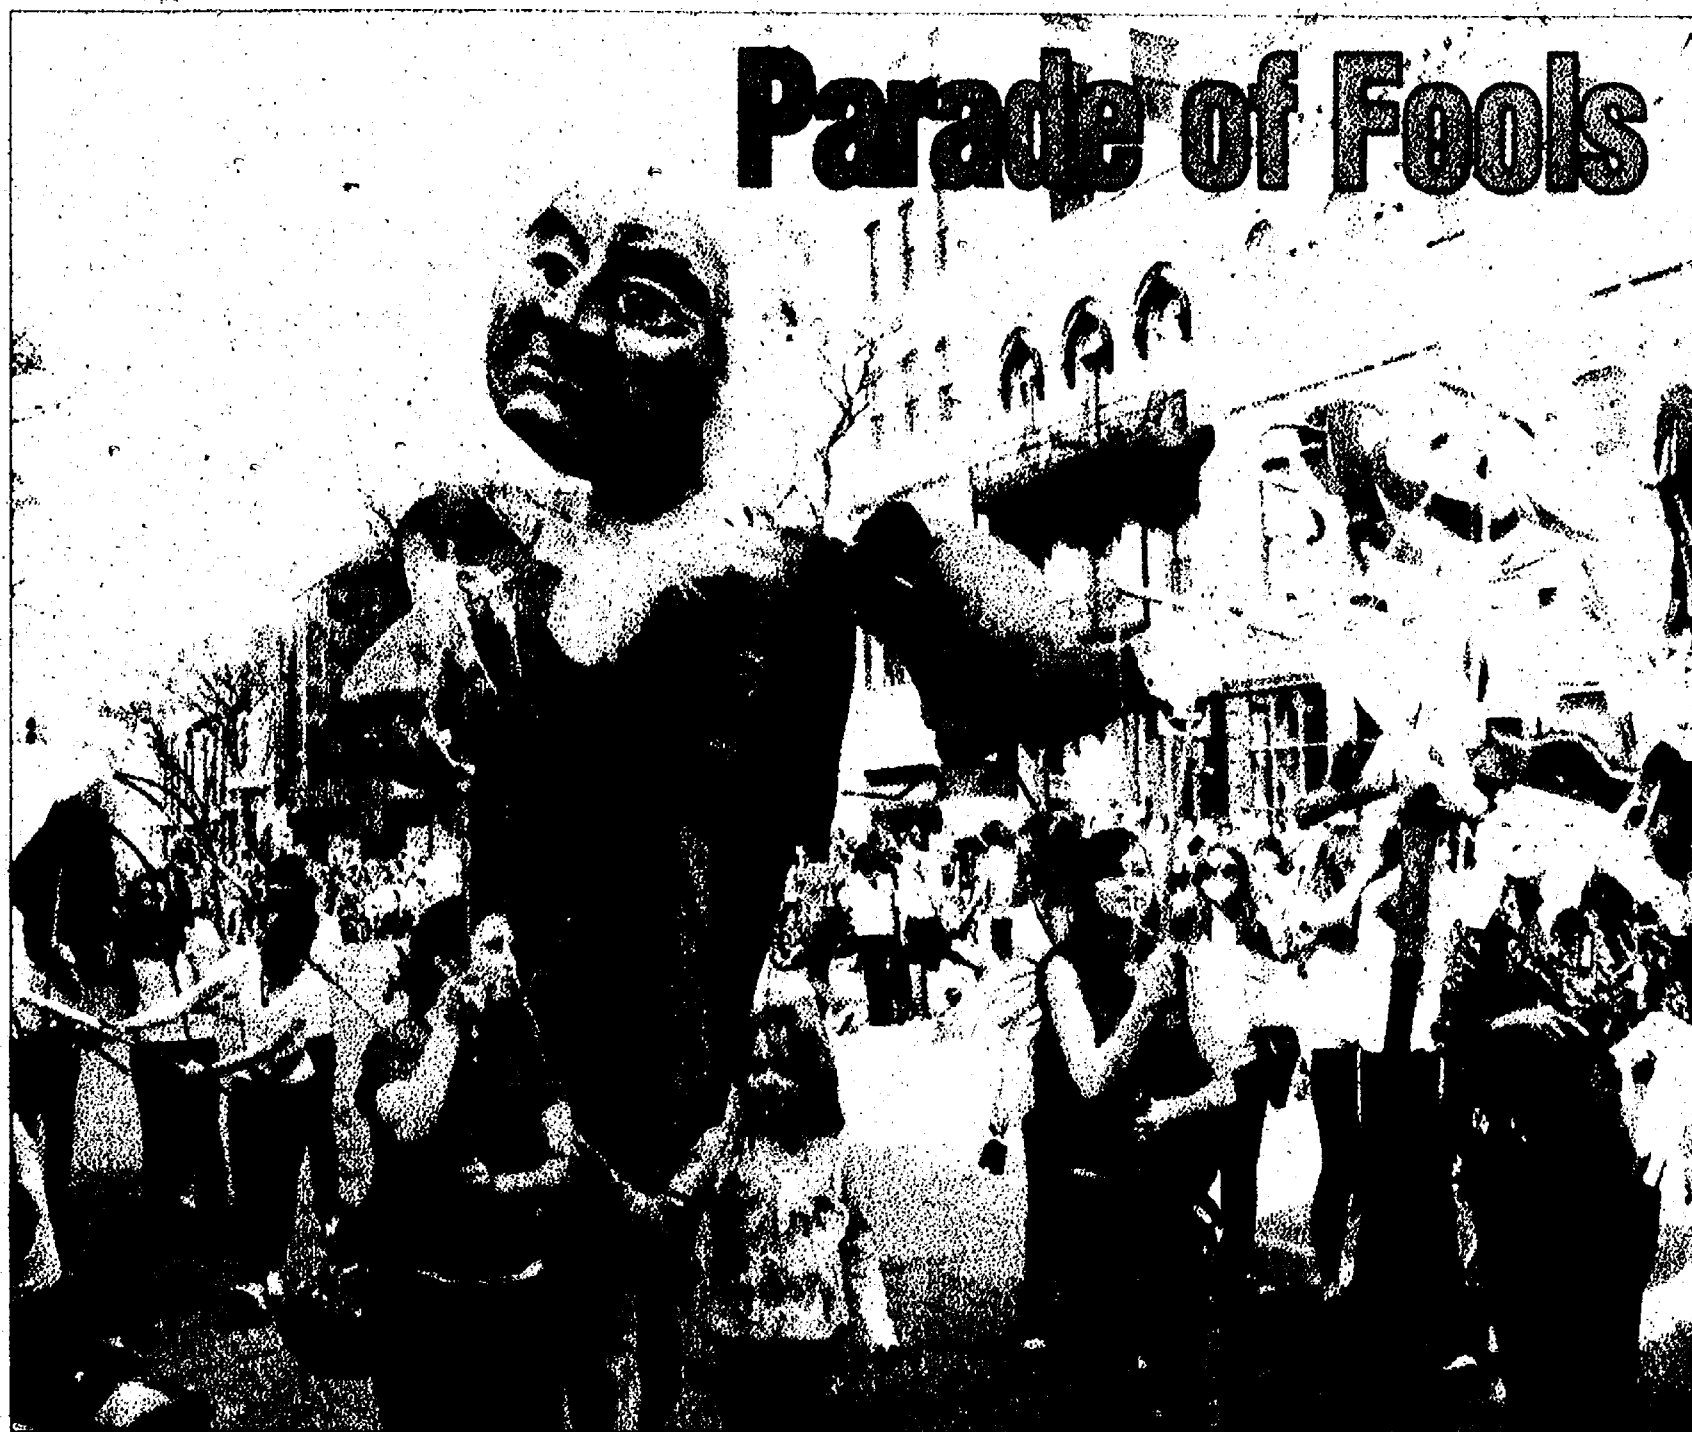

On Sunday, Mayor John Hieftje and his caricature-like, papier-mâché head enjoyed the good weather as they chatted up local families at the parade.

"The city loves this project — this whole thing," he said.

Hundreds of community volunteers and students have worked diligently throughout the winter to create the 10- to 15-foot-tall animated puppets.

It certainly was a "foolish" day for Ann Arbor during Sunday's fourth annual Festifools event, which ran from 4 to 5 p.m. on Main Street. Nearly 100 different puppets and performing acts circled up and down delighting thousands of spectators. The Ann Arbor event was started by University of Michigan professor Mark Tucker, who is now considered the "head fool." For more information, visit the Web site www.festifools.org.

Children's author addresses capacity crowd

Chris Van Allsburg has penned 'The Polar Express' and 'Jumanji'

By Steven Howard
Heritage Newspapers

Celebrated children's author Chris Van Allsburg spoke to a full house at the University of Michigan Museum of Art Thursday, discussing his life and career, and describing the compositional process that went into creating some of his most beloved literary achievements.

Perhaps best known as author of "The Polar Express" and "Jumanji," which both won the Caldecott Medal and were later turned into major motion pictures, Van Allsburg's writing career has spanned more than 30 years and includes 16 picture books, as well as several other collaborations.

Van Allsburg said he attended U of M as an undergraduate before moving back East to further his sculpting career.

"When I graduated from the University of Michigan, I went on to the Rhode Island School of Design," he said, indicating he then found studio space in an old and drafty building.

Van Allsburg said the industrial space was fine to sculpt in during the day because the heat was on for other tenants, but became far too cold on winter evenings when the thermostat was turned off at 5 p.m.

Looking for something to do at home in the warmth, Van Allsburg said he found a more portable artistic medium.

"I started drawing," he said. Though initially he created images void of textual accompaniment, Van Allsburg said the nature of his illustrations begged viewers to ask questions of what was going on inside of them.

He described the phenomenon as "narrative hooks."

"I was fascinated how you can trigger those narrative impulses," he said. "So, this was my first step as a writer."

Van Allsburg said his wife then sent his illustrations to a prominent publishing house.

They liked them, so they sent back pre-written stories for him to illustrate.

He said the subject matter of the traditional juvenile plotlines were not to his liking.

"The little bunny stories didn't do it for me," he said, indicating his desire was to create narratives with a bit more edge.

That is when he decided to create his own textual content to accompany his often irreverent and fantasy-inspired images.

Van Allsburg said he asked himself a simple question: "What would I want to read when I was 8 or 9 years old?"

Now, more than a quarter of a century after his writing and illustrating career began, Van Allsburg has set to work on another children's book that chronicles the tale of Annie Taylor, purported to be the first woman to go over Niagara Falls.

Van Allsburg delighted audience members attending Thursday's lecture with a sneak peek of illustrations for the book, saying he decided to go with nonfiction this time because fabricating stories requires a lot of effort.

"I get tired of trying to make things up all the time," he joked.

Van Allsburg's daughter, Sophia, who is a freshman at U of M and attended the lecture, said she is finding as much inspiration in Ann Arbor as her father did.

"I'm welcome here. It's a nice place to be," she said. "I came here where he has his history, but where I can create my own history, too."

WineFest fundraiser to be held May 8

WineFest 2010, the Ann Arbor Art Center's annual fundraiser, will be held 7 p.m. May 8 at the University of Michigan's North Campus Research Complex, formerly owned by Pfizer.

The space was selected because of its unusual layout, expansive windows, upscale finishes and high ceilings, which are needed to accommodate the large-scale art installation pieces that will be on display throughout the venue, according to a news release from the art center.

The art installations were created under the direction of BIGthink, an art education technology collaborative from Kalamazoo.

The creative black-tie optional event will include an international wine tasting, a gourmet strolling supper, and first-class silent and live auctions.

The honorary chairman of the event is Laurence Feraud, owner and winemaker at Domaine du Pegau, a winemaker from Chateaufort du Pape in France. She has been chosen by Robert Parker of Wine Advocate as a Wine Personality of the Year.

In conjunction with WineFest, Feraud will also host a WineMaker Dinner at which the wines of Chateaufort du Pape will be paired with a gourmet meal prepared by Chef Robert Underwood of Mediterranean Restaurant. The WineMaker Dinner will take place at 6:30 p.m. May 6 at Mediterranean Restaurant in Ann Arbor.

The WineFest event chairs are Tom Root and Toni Morrell, owners of Zingerman's Mail Order. The honorary community chairs are Rich and Karen Brown.

"It is an honor to be a part of an organization that has been focused on their mission for over 100 years. We are just a small part of helping that mission by hosting WineFest 2010," Root said in a news release.

General tickets for WineFest are $100. Patron level tickets are $200 and include a private reception with Laurence Feraud starting at 6 p.m.

reserved seating, a special tasting glass and an advanced preview of the auction items with a "buy it now" option. The cost of the WineMaker Dinner is $150.

Funds raised by WineFest help support the programs of the Ann Arbor Art Center, a nonprofit organization dedicated to engaging the community in the education, exhibition and exploration of the visual arts.

Offering studio art classes, workshops, exhibitions, summer camps, outreach programs and more, the art center is celebrating its 100th year. The center is located at 117

W. Liberty St. in downtown Ann Arbor. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and noon to 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

WHO'S WATCHING THE CHILDREN?

The Orange County Register thought it was a good idea to look into the criminal histories of workers in the state's day care facilities. After all, the paper's readers were playing their own trust and their children's well-being in the hands of those workers.

But, the state of California turned down a series of requests for information requests to look at those histories, citing the privacy rights of the workers. It also refused access to its data base of offenses and other data on criminal violations unless the newspaper paid $4,500 for the information.

In the end, the Register won its fight for access to the records, which were used to find a few of the state's most public and recent incidents involving day care workers. The newspaper also filed its own data base from its files. (The paper's report on the issue and a complaint against the Orange County Register is available at the state's public records website.)

California, thousands of day care workers have long criminal histories. The results of the data base analysis also showed that many of the offenses were not related to child care, but to other crimes.

If you lived in Orange County, or any other county with day care, wouldn't you like to know whether the adults your children come in contact with have committed crimes?

Straub advances to national tournament

Courtenay Ackley
Guest Writer

In late March, while many students at Chelsea High School were packing for their spring break vacations or finishing homework assignments, senior David Straub was preparing to face one of his worst fears: public speaking.

Straub is the captain of the CHS forensics team, and the competition to qualify for the national tournament was March 27. Forensics is a collection of public speaking and drama interpretations known in other states as "individual events." Ranging from dramatic interpretation to informative speaking, forensics covers all the bases for people interested in the art and science of communication.

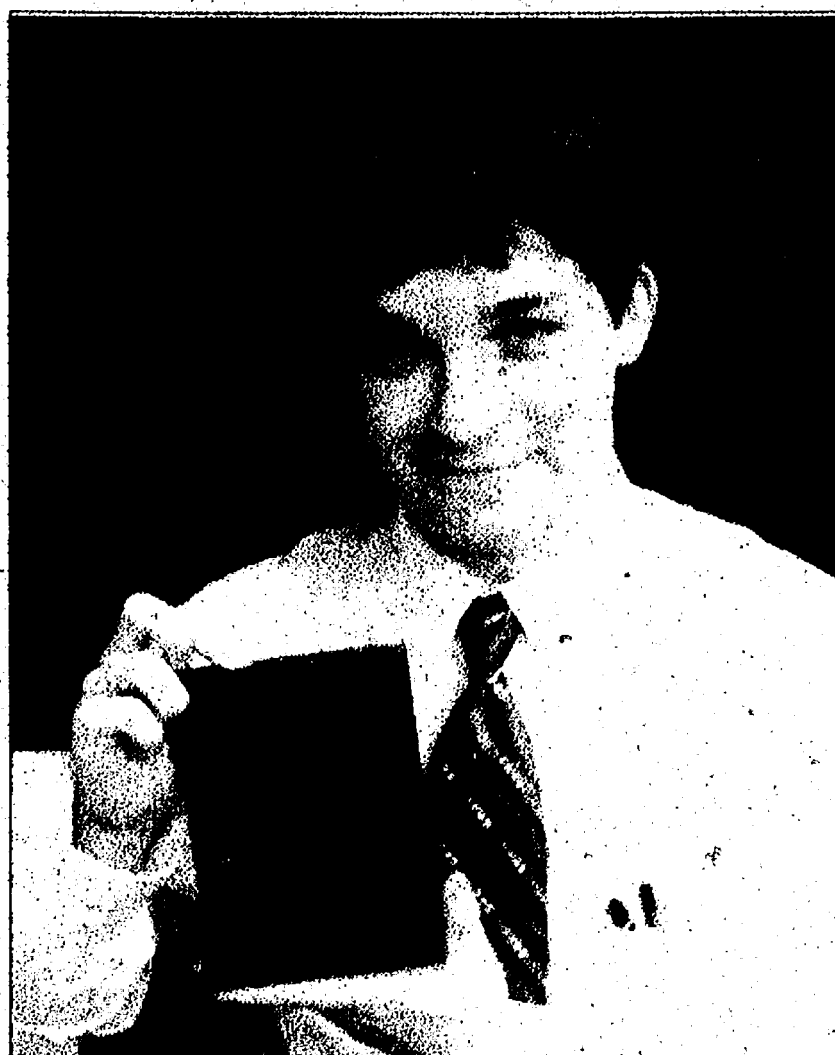

The national qualifier tournament, held by the National Forensics League's Michigan district in Holland, determines the single representative in each category that will be sent from Michigan to the national tournament in Kansas City, Mo.

As other teenagers were letting go of their responsibilities in preparation for their spring break, Straub tirelessly prepared the minutiae of his speech. For hours he, with the help of Chelsea Drama and Speech Coach Kim Potocki, reviewed his recorded speeches, practiced expressive hand gestures, and even practiced his speech using several sophomore English classes as audiences.

When the competition finally arrived, all of his hard work and effort paid off. Straub earned the highest score possible in the competition perfect "1s" every round and swept the tournament to become the Michigan district's 2010 representative in Original Oratory.

This would not have been possible without the support of the Chelsea school district and the community.

While Straub was the only member of the Chelsea team to compete at the national qualifying tournament, he and the seven other members of the high school forensics team travel all over the state to compete in events. The benefits of this club are many and various: ranging from increased self-confidence to an increased ability to communicate and express one's ideas and creativity.

David Straub, a senior at Chelsea High School, will represent Michigan in the national forensics tournament in Kansas City.

Unfortunately, the excellence of the Chelsea forensics program has in recent years been threatened, first, by the cancellation of the school-provided forensics class, and now by a lack of financial means to register for and provide transportation to the far-flung forensics events.

This lauded program, launched by Bill Coleius, has provided students in our community with the opportunities to excel and nurture their talents in ways that they would never have otherwise had.

"I have seen kids coming through our program here that have been absolutely transformed by their experience. Young people who no one else would think twice about have proven to themselves and the world that through hard work and dedication, they can achieve their dreams," Coach Kim Potocki said.

In lieu of official district funding, the forensics team has jumped at every fundraising opportunity available to them, even opening the door to donations from the community. Whatever the outcome for the team, it intends to keep on being just as busy as ever.

For those interested in supporting the CHS forensics team, donations can be sent to Chelsea High School, 740 N. Freer Road, Chelsea, MI 48118. Courtenay Ackley is a student at Chelsea High School and a guest writer.

Origami artist to appear at Pioneer Art Fest

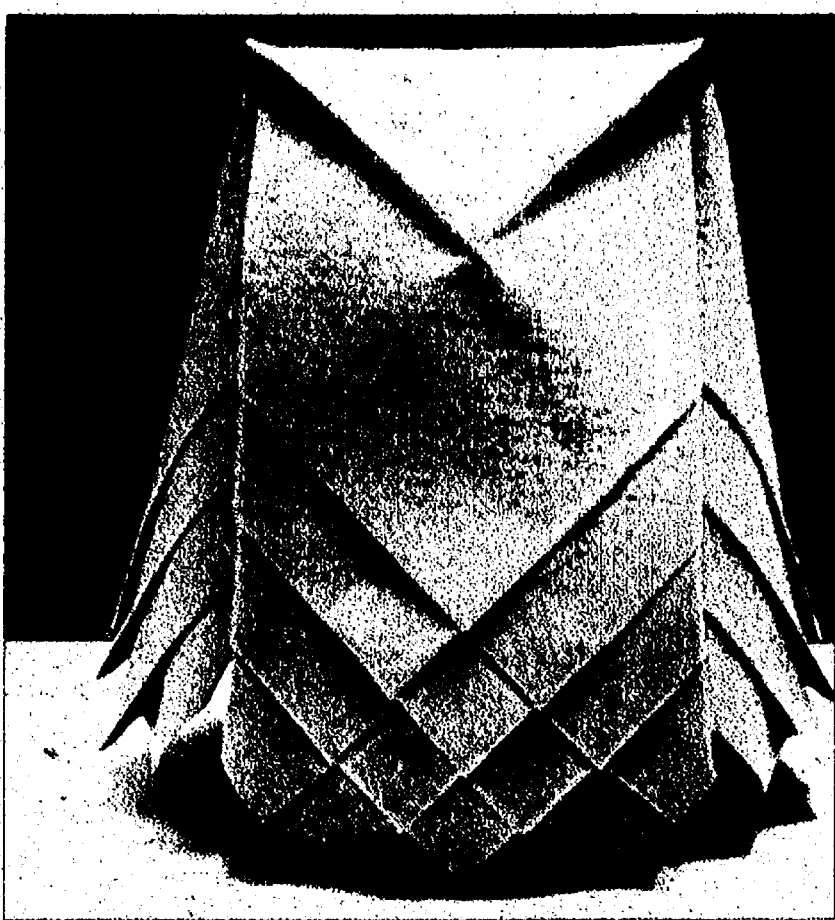

By Manya Grant
Guest Writer

The Japanese art of Origami is coming to the Dexter Pioneer Arts Fair on April 17 at Creekside Intermediate School. The fair will feature more than 50 artists including local Origami artist Beth Johnson.

The traditional art of paper folding was first developed in ancient Japan. Through the centuries Origami has endured and evolved into a modern art form. Johnson started doing Origami as a child. Years later, after pursuing a career in environmental policy, she decided to change careers and make art her focus. She started taking art classes and began looking at Origami as something more than a hobby.

Recently, Johnson began designing her own Origami patterns and has gone through what she describes as a "creative explosion." She, like many other contemporary Origami artists, has modernized the traditional art form and has found many new applications for Origami.

Johnson is excited to attend the Dexter Pioneer Art Fair, where artists are given a unique

While meeting with legislators, Skiles discussed how the Edward Jones Grassroots Task Force supports tax incentives that encourage people to rebuild and retain their retirement accounts,

Firefighters stay fit on the job

Firefighter Matt Rose demonstrates all the gear that firefighters wear at a fire scene.

By Lisa Allmendinger
Heritage Newspapers

For those who have seen the Chelsea Area Fire Authority's Engine 1 parked and running near Anytime Fitness or at Polly's Country Market -- there's a legitimate reason. For the firefighters, that fire engine is a mobile office.

"It contains all their tools and equipment -- like a laptop on wheels," said Chief Jim Payeur. However, residents have been lodging complaints about seeing the engine running at the grocery store or in the parking lot near the gym.

Firefighters work 24 hours on their respective shifts, and they need to eat and they are encouraged to work out.

In fact, staying in shape is encouraged by the Chelsea Area Fire Authority Board, which pays for the gym memberships for the six full-time firefighters, according to board chairwoman LuAnn Koch.

"The better shape the guys are in, the less on-the-job strains, sprains and injuries (there are)," Payeur said.

And while they are inside the gym, the diesel fuel engine is left running for optimal performance.

"We're not wasting taxpayer money," Capt. Sam Norton said.

If the department has to respond to an emergency call, firefighters on duty can drop what they are doing, run to the engine where their gear is stored, and leave quickly.

At a fire, firefighters wear about 75 pounds of equipment and clothing. In the case of a building fire, they might carry about 100 pounds of extra hose into the structure. During a medical call, they are carrying about 50 pounds of equipment.

"In a larger department, you can spread the work around," Payeur said. "With two people on 24 hours, seven days a week, supported by paid on-call guys, they have to bring all the stuff with them, and respond right away."

"No one knows what a firefighter does. It's not like 'Rescue Me' or the movies."

He compared the job to a military combat infantry unit.

"They are assigned to tasks and they train for a mission; when that mission happens, it becomes the priority," he said.

Payeur said firefighters are in the business of life safety and fighting fires. Being in top shape helps firefighters perform their mission safely and efficiently.

Payeur said in most occupations, people can take their time to get the job done.

"When a call comes in, time works against us; the more time it takes, the less chance there is of survival," he said.

Payeur said his firefighters must build up their body's endurance due to the physical strain that comes naturally with the job.

"Cardiac arrest is the No. 1 reason for firefighter deaths because they aren't physically fit," Payeur said.

Currently, the fire station has neither the space nor the equipment for firefighters to get a good workout. So they do the next best thing by working out at Anytime Fitness because of the hours and the special membership prices. "It's physically demanding whether on an emergency medical call or fighting a fire," he said.

The Chelsea Area Fire Authority covers a large area that includes the City of Chelsea, Sylvan and Lyndon townships, as well as portions of Lima and Dexter townships.

POLICE BRIEFS

On April 7 at approximately 5 p.m., a Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputy was dispatched to the 10000 block of Dexter Chelsea Road in Lima Township for a burglary.

According to police reports, entry was gained through a side garage door during the day. One 50 inch TV, five pair of cuffs links, one brown Swiss watch, one black Seiko watch, a 1974 gold University of Michigan class ring, one unknown silver watch, one Navy Seal Luminex watch, and one CPAP breathing machine was taken.

The suspects are unknown at this time.

According to Sgt. Lisa King, several mailboxes were also damaged in the township over the Easter holiday weekend.

To report information on the incidents, call the Washtenaw County Sheriff's confidential tip line at 1-734-973-7711.

Police reports are compiled by Heritage Newspapers staff.

'Little Shop of Horrors' a gem of a show

By Angie M. Lai
Special Writer

Gardeners beware. The Performance Network in Ann Arbor is going "green" in a big way with its latest production of "Little Shop of Horrors."

"Little Shop of Horrors," the 1982 Off-Broadway musical about a man-eating plant and long a staple of high school theater programs, began life as a 1960s film, perhaps most notable for featuring a brief performance by a young Jack Nicholson.

The musical's score was created by the songwriting team of Howard Ashman and Alan Menken, shortly to become the golden duo of Walt Disney Studios, responsible for such hits as "The Little Mermaid," "Beauty and the Beast," and "Aladdin." The musical recently received a big-budget revival, this time on Broadway, in 2003.

The Faustian plot chronicles the adventures of a meek flower shop clerk, Seymour Krelborn (Jason Richards), who adopts an unusual specimen of plant that mysteriously appears following a total eclipse. He names it Audrey II after his co-worker and crush, the beautiful-but-self-esteem-challenged Audrey (Courtney Myers), who is in a relationship with an abusive dentist (Aaron T. Moore).

The plant's uniqueness attracts some attention, but it doesn't really seem to flourish until Seymour accidentally discovers the key — human blood. At first, Seymour himself provides nourishment. But as Audrey II grows, it demands much more.

Jason Richards makes an enjoyable, even loveable Seymour, singing with a strong, clear tenor and giving the character a personality beyond that of the old nerd cliché. His attraction to Audrey seems genuine and heartfelt, especially in their big love duet, "Suddenly Seymour" in the second act.

Myers could have added a little more vulnerability to her portrayal of Audrey, but she delivers a fine vocal performance, especially in her wistful solo "Somewhere That's Green."

B.J. Love as Mr. Mushnik — Seymour's boss — is grumpy but endearing, and the Greek chorus, consisting of three highly talented young ladies (Sharon Brooks, Sharrise Hamilton, and Diviin Huff) provide beautiful harmonies.

Arguably the hardest working actor in the cast is Aaron T. Moore, who plays not just one, but nine different characters, including the sadistic Dr. Orin Scrivello. Moore plays Scrivello with such wicked glee that, despite the character's incredibly nasty personality, he's fun to watch.

This production's handling of the show's "real" star, Audrey II, showcases the merits of occasionally re-imagining shows that have been around for years. Traditionally, Audrey II has been played by a male actor with a deep bass voice, and represented onstage by a huge puppet resembling a Venus flytrap. This production takes it in a different direction, not only casting a female (Naz Edwards), but

'Date Night' a movie with all the right moves

MOVIE REVIEW

PAUL BIONDI

Every now and again, a movie delivers exactly what it promises based on what you are able to learn from the trailers, TV commercials and newspaper ads.

And sometimes that is a good thing, even if the movie promises only a light, uncomplicated, easy-to-follow romp that, perhaps, more than a few married suburbanites can relate to.

"Date Night," starring the marvelously paired Steve Carrell and Tina Fey, is that movie.

Just when you thought you couldn't go to the movie theater and not see some teen vampire movie or star-driven overcooked drama or a movie that is a special effects blow-up of a comic book, "Date Night" gives stressed-out husbands and wives a delectable slice of their lives that goes down smooth with no bitter aftertaste.

Carrell and Fey have an unmistakable onscreen chemistry that just works in the setting of a couple of overachieving professionals whose weekly date night gets turned on its ear in a wholly unpredictable and inoffensive plot twist involving the mob, the District Attorney and New York's finest.

Carrell's quirky deadpan delivery is on full display and Fey's knack for physical comedy is simply fun to watch. There are several scenes where the two of them bring out the best in each other's complimentary acting abilities while adding insight to the characters they portray.

They are believable as a long-married couple who find themselves in a dangerous and implausible fraud scheme that is tense, taut, casual and loose all at the same time.

Supporting cast includes a welcome return to playing an organized crime boss by Ray Liotta and a funny and mostly shirtless Mark Wahlberg, who adds just the right amount of straight-faced comic relief that Carrell and Fey play off of effortlessly.

"Date Night" is a silly romantic comedy at heart that plays up the suburban angst of a couple who have been together long enough to know that they are still in love, remain each others' best friends and remain able to find the humor in every situation. Surprisingly, the obligatory yet inventive car chase scene doesn't deter from that.

Go into the theater expecting to be entertained, but not challenged. Laugh freely at certain softball sexual innuendoes without the risk of being offended by them. Face only a sprinkling of noisy special effects that add to the plot, instead of being a distraction.

In other words, have fun at the movies and not leave dreading the inevitable money-grabbing sequel.

'Fame' hits Riverside's stage April 22

Leotards, legwarmers, and bright colors reminiscent of the 1980s will be all the rage when Dynamic Stage Productions presents "Fame The Musical" April 22 through April 25 at the Riverside Arts Center in Ypsilanti.

Set in a New York performing arts school, "Fame" follows the students and their sheer hard work as they search for the success that will make them "live for ever."

"Fame" features many individuals from throughout Washtenaw County. It's directed by Kyle Farr with musical direction by Kyle Phillips and choreography by Craig Nichols.

Jen Schinker takes the lead role of Carmen Diaz. Gary Clayton plays Jack and Linzi Joy Bokor plays the role of Miss Sherman.

Other cast members include Caleb Kruzel of Dexter, Abigail Hill Kennedy, John Ellett, Holly Knick, Christine Corless, Keshia Oliver, Catherine Crawford, Briana Bradley, Nick Rapson, Kasidy Shepler, Jordyn Shepler, Stefanie Shepler, Mollee Chowen, Shannon Allen, Jami Krause, Nick Stock, Jeff Foust and Tim Chanko.

"We're really looking forward to these performances for 'Fame.' The combination of the production and talent is promising to be one of the most successful shows we've had," Kyle Farr said.

Performances start at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, with a Sunday matinee at 2 p.m.

Ticket prices are $15 and can be purchased online at www.dynamicstageproductions.com or at the door.

Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra to perform

The Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra's Season of Celebration concludes with a splash of musical color in "Musical Portraits" 8 p.m. April 24 at the Michigan Theater.

The concert celebrates the landmark opening of the University of Michigan Kellogg Eye Center's Brohm Tower, an innovative facility that expands the University of Michigan Health Center's capacity for eye care, research and education, and diabetes research.

In addition, the winners of the Sight and Sound Competition will be announced and performed.

True to the concert's title, the evening's repertoire will feature a feast for the eyes and ears. Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" is an imaginary stroll through an art gallery where every picture is depicted by a unique melody.

In Berlioz's "Roman Carnival Overture," the audience will hear the story of rapsallion artist Benvenuto Cellini and Concertmaster and U of M professor of violin Aaron Berofsky will perform the Brahms "Violin Concerto."

Patrons also will be present at the announcement of the Sight and Sound Competition winners, the world premier of an original symphonic composition set to original video created by members of the Ann Arbor Film Festival.

The "Sight and Sound Competition" is presented by the Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra in connection with the Ann Arbor Film Festival and the University of Michigan Composition Department.

U of M composition students submitted three- to four-minute orchestral scores for the competition. Department Chair Evan Chambers and U of M composition faculty chose three finalists; their works were presented online to a pool of filmmakers for the final stage of the competition.

Filmmakers created videos to match the final compositions, and these works were chosen to screen at the 48th Ann Arbor Film Festival in the Michigan Theater. The award-winning film composition will be performed live by the Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra at the Michigan Theater during the concert April 24.

A pre-concert lecture covering the evening's repertoire will take place from 7 to 7:30 p.m. on the main floor of the Michigan Theater. Lecturers will include concertmaster Berofsky, maestro Arie Lipsky and Ann Arbor Film Festival Executive Director Donald Harrison.

Tickets range from $6 to $49 and are available by calling 994-4801, visiting the orchestra office at 220 E. Huron St., Suite 470, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. the day of the concert. Tickets also may be purchased online at www.a2so.com. If there are any remaining tickets, they will be available at the Michigan Theater box office starting at 6 p.m. the day of the concert.

Two nonprofits merge operations

The Ann Arbor nonprofit organization Neighborhood Senior Services merged operations with Catholic Social Services of Washtenaw County to enhance and streamline its existing programs.

The new affiliation "will strengthen the commitment and impact we all have toward helping people in the accelerating demographic of older adults, and the community we live in," said Catholic Social Services of Washtenaw County President Larry Voight in a news release. "We are delighted to work with a program that has such a sound and meaningful legacy in our community."

Neighborhood Senior Services, established in 1975, provides support and advocacy for older adults living in their own homes with programs dedicated to injury prevention, home maintenance, medical access and companion services. As part of Catholic Social Services, NSS will work jointly with CSSW's Older Adult Services unit, which offers a spectrum of programs supporting local seniors.

"NSS and Catholic Social Services share similar missions, visions and values and already work closely together," says Barbara Penrod, NSS program director. "The merger provides us with an excellent opportunity to help sustain and grow our client services in these difficult economic times and into the future."

Catholic Social Services of Washtenaw County, established in 1959, helps thousands of individuals and families each year through a variety of programs and services — adoption and pregnancy counseling, food assistance, homelessness prevention, domestic and child-abuse intervention and prevention, family therapy, and services designed to assist older adults, individuals with developmental disabilities and at-risk families with young children.

Plant sale set for May 15

The Chelsea Area Garden Club Plant Sale takes place from 8:30 a.m. until noon May 15 at the Park Street Lot in downtown Chelsea, behind the Chelsea District Library.

Krausse leaves legacy in Chelsea

Local doctor cared for ill patients during 44 year medical career

By Alana West
Special Writer

For 44 years, Dr. Charles Krausse of Chelsea embodied the spirit of a true community doctor.

CHELSEA

Upholding the Hippocratic Oath in his everyday life, Krausse became a friendly face for many of his patients.

He was a loving and very special person, his wife Mildred "Millie" Krausse said.

"My husband and I went to Dr. Krausse his entire career," Barbara Fredette of Chelsea said.

Krausse retired in 2005 at the age of 85. He died March 17.

"He was a very loving, caring person," Fredette said.

Her son Shannon's favorite memory of Krausse involves a time when he fell ill on a Saturday, and the doctor still made time to see him.

"You don't find that any more. He knew a lot about his patients," she said.

Krausse is survived by two grandchildren, Dylan and Eli; a daughter, Mary Krausse; and a son, Charles G. Krausse.

Krausse grew up in Petoskey and served in the Army in 1942 for four years during World War II.

Krausse never attended high school, and it was a matter of some pride and a guarded secret that he had only gotten an eighth grade education before he started as a student at Central Michigan University, eventually entering medical school at the University of Michigan. It was around this time that Krausse began to pick up his education so he could be eligible for college classes.

"He educated himself,"

Millie said. "He read the National Geographic from cover to cover by kerosene (lantern)."

She said that the Central

Michigan University admissions department thought he should have a diploma, and encouraged him to get one.

John Keusch, a long time patient and friend, said that Krausse began to take his high school classes while he was in the military.

"He was a self-educated person," he said.

Later in his life, Krausse became somewhat of an icon in Chelsea.

"So many people came to his funeral... I think everyone in Chelsea pretty much knew him," Millie said.

When the couple was younger, they traveled to South America, visiting Colombia, El Salvador and Costa Rica, and attending seminars in San Diego, Calif.

He loved gardening, and every year planted a huge garden.

"We had far more vegetables than we really needed. He grew them, and I had to pass them out. I did the freezing, too,"

Millie said.

While still practicing medicine, patients would call often in the middle of the night.

"They would ask him to come and do surgery and he never hesitated," she said.

Millie said she was a widow when she married Krausse in 1967, with a young daughter of her own.

"I met him when he first came to Chelsea. He was just a great husband. We got along very well. People always said that he had three loves: medicine, Millie and his garden," she said.

Doctors Diane Howlin and Rebecca Patrias were treated to Krausse's hospitality when they first came to Chelsea to take up practice, Millie said.

"He took them out for a meal and a welcoming (chat)," she said.

Howlin remembers the meal that the three shared together.

"He was very welcoming to the next generation," she said.

Howlin added that Krausse treated his patients with kindness, visiting them in the hospital whether or not they were being treated by him or not.

"I'm going to miss having him around," she said.

"Everyone respected Krausse. He also did free care for the poor. That was a nice part of him too. He was an old-fashioned doctor."

Elaine Boyce and Sue McCalla, who worked with Krausse for 25 years and 18 years respectively, shared their stories of fond times with the doctor.

"He worked many Saturdays," Boyce said. "He was a nice guy to work with. I felt bad when he passed away."

Boyce said that many of his 15 minute appointments turned into 30 to 45 minute appointments because he took his time with his patients.

"He didn't rush through like so many do today," she said.

McCalla said she worked with Krausse until a few years before his retirement.

"He was the best boss I've ever had," she said. "He was a great man who put his patients first."

She herself was a patient of Krausse's long before she worked for him, and she remembers a time when she went over the handlebars of her bike and got a three inch gash.

"He stitched me up," she said. "It's funny that I started out as a patient and ended up working for him."

Keusch, a former attorney for Chelsea, said that Krausse was a good subject for a story.

"I've known him for as long as he was in Chelsea," he said.

"He was not one of those in and out guys that have limited time. He was very patient. He always felt that when the time came for the visit to end, it was the patient and not the doctor who ended it."

Keusch said that Krausse also paid him house call visits when he needed it.

"He was my doctor for years. He was real personal," Keusch said.

Global warming topic of professor's lecture

Dr. Henry Pollack speaks at the Chelsea District Library as part of the Transition Town Chelsea monthly series.

Dr. Henry Pollack, professor emeritus at the University of Michigan's Department of Geological Sciences, spoke to about 35 people at the Chelsea District Library on April 6. He discussed his new book, "A World Without Ice," which addresses global warming and how it has already affected the glaciers across the globe.

Pollack worked with former vice president Al Gore on the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change, and in 2007, the panel shared the Nobel Peace Prize.

When asked about climate change skeptics, Dr. Pollack said: "Ice asks no questions, presents no arguments, reads no newspapers, listens to no debates. It is not burdened by ideology and carries no political baggage as it changes from solid to liquid. It just melts."

He showed slide after slide comparing the ice in a particular glacier or mountain 50, 20, or even 10 years ago with what's left today. He talked about how rising temperatures bring about melting ice, and melting ice raises sea levels, and how that threatens entire island nations as well as coastal regions all over the world.

The talk was the first in a series that Transition Town Chelsea is hosting in April at the Chelsea District Library. Transition Town Chelsea is a group working to help Chelsea map a resilient future as it deals with peak oil, climate change, and economic uncertainties.

MUSIC REVIEW

Scorpions go out in style with final rock album

By Lee Copley

Artist: Scorpions
Album: "Sting In The Tail"
Label: Strategic Marketing
In the late 1970s and 1980s, a new form of rock hit the world with a force that had been unknown up until that point. Hair metal became possibly the biggest genre in the world. It helped bridge the gap between pop music and rock; a bridge that has helped acts like Green Day, Nickelback and even Slipknot become popular.

Combining the energy of rock with the sheer catchy factor of pop music was a formula for instant success for a lot of bands, and members of said bands are still floating on their fame today. One band that has been under the radar in America but that has continued to make good music is Scorpions.

Scorpions are most well known for their 1984 hit "Rock You Like A Hurricane." Most hair metal bands from that era died out, mutated into other bands, or lent their members to various modern reality shows to stoke the fires of popularity. Scorpions is not one of those bands.

Since their popularity in the United States waned, they've continued to release solid albums to their diehard fans in America and their native Germany. Their 17th album "Sting In The Tail," marks their end in music.

The Scorpions are planning on retiring after touring ends for this album, and the quality of "Sting In The Tail" is a preview of a solid closing tour. The album opens with "Raised On Rock," which is an insanely catchy song. It helps hook the listener for the entire album. "Rock Zone" has a pure old school rock feel and pumps up whoever is listening. "Slave Me" sounds like a song released right along with the band's biggest hit. From the lyrics to the guitar, it sounds like something made in the '80s. "Lorelei" is a pure rock ballad. It has a slow, almost acoustic sound. The only bad song on the album is "Sly."

It's another ballad, but it drags on and on. The song takes forever and will kill any attention of the listener. Aside from "Sly," "Sting In The Tail" is a great album.

The fact that Scorpions is retiring is a musical tragedy. Bands like this have kept a dying genre going with solid music that showcases how good it can be. Without Scorpions, the only hair metal people will have is the random singers who show up on dating or fitness shows on VH1. "Sting In The Tail" gets an A.

Artist: Streetlight Manifesto
Album: "99 Songs of Revolution Volume 1"
Label: Victory Records

Ska music has become massively popular among the select groups who really know what it is. Some ska bands, such as Reel Big Fish or Less Than Jake, have gained some commercial recognition for one reason or another, but a lot of ska bands remain mostly underground. A perfect example of this is Streetlight Manifesto.

In the last eight years, the band has created some of the best ska around and their most recent album, "99 Songs of Revolution Volume 1," just hit the scene.

"99 Songs of Revolution Volume 1" is an odd album. First, it's all cover songs. Second, it's the first part of an at least eight album-long series. Four ska bands, including Streetlight Manifesto and Bandits of the Acoustic Revolution, teamed up for this massive project.

"99 Songs of Revolution Volume 1" was the first of two Streetlight Manifesto albums in the series, and it lives up to the quality of the band for the most part. "Just," originally by Radiohead, has a classic ska feel and a great beat. It's only downside is it's annoying close. "Birds Flying Away," by Mason Jennings, is a great song with an almost funk feel to it. "Such Great Heights," a cover of The Postal Service, starts with an all horn intro that begins the song on a great note. The rest of the song keeps that pace. The two worst songs on the album are "The Troubadour" by Louis Jordan, and "Punk Rock Girl" by The Dead Milkmen. These two songs just pale in comparison to the rest of the album, and their quality is nothing but lacking.

Streetlight Manifesto is a band that deserves to be bigger than they are. Their music is consistently good, and "99 Songs of Revolution Volume 1" does nothing to change that trend. This album was a great start to a hopefully great series of albums. "99 Songs of Revolution Volume 1" gets an A.

The Washtenaw Whippets will now consist of players from Chelsea and Manchester.

Field hockey of dreams Dexter forms new varsity program; Chelsea could be next as sport grows

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

When the Washtenaw Whippets were created six years ago, the goal was always to break up the team and create programs in girls' field hockey at the individual schools. A few years ago, Saline players were the first to depart from the Whippets, forming their own junior varsity and varsity programs.

The Hornets had 50 girls on the JV and varsity teams last year.

This coming fall will be the first year that Dexter players go solo, and team organizers are confident that the roster could reach 35 to 40 players, enough for both JV and varsity teams.

The Whippets are now down to a roster featuring players from Chelsea and Manchester.

"The goal now is to get Chelsea to form its own varsity program," said Whippets coach Roxy Block. "We will have seven returning players from Chelsea. We need to get out and promote the team at the sport through indoor clinics and other ways. The middle school recently added field hockey to the physical education program so we expect that to help create interest."

Craig Flocken will coach the Dreadnaughts in the fall and has been encouraged with the interest already created in Dexter.

"Field hockey is one of the best girls' team sports out there," Flocken said. "It's a lot of fun and people should check it out."

Players interested in playing for Dexter High School can sign up for the program on June 2 at the Dexter Area Library. Even though the sign-up is still a few months away and the season doesn't officially start until August, players have already Chelsea's Nate Udell is one of several pitchers with the potential to step up and be the Bulldogs' ace for this season.

By Terry Jacoby

The Chelsea baseball team began its season recently in sunny Florida, and the outlook for the rest of this season appears to be bright for the Bulldogs. The annual trip to Florida is a chance to play a little ball and bond as a team. It's something longtime coach Wayne Welton has been doing for years.

"It was a great experience," Welton said. "We brought 21 players and nine coaches. Everyone had a ball. We played some baseball, watched a couple of the best high school teams in the country play and even watched the Tigers play the Orioles."

The Bulldogs are coming off a 15-21 season in which they improved enough during the season to win a district title before losing to Milan in a regional game.

"Last year was not what we're used to," Welton said. "But we got better every day and our hard work was rewarded with a district title."

The Bulldogs have plenty of talent on the roster this year, including a talented group of sophomores.

"Juggling our sophomores and getting them in the varsity lineup but also making sure they are playing and getting at-bats will be a challenge this year," Welton said. "Our roster will change almost on a daily basis as we bring sophomores up and send them back down. The key is getting them playing time."

Welton admits this is a good problem to have.

"We have depth and competition and that's good," he said. "We are two deep at every infield position and have a group of guys who can play almost anywhere on the field. It's good to have choices."

Welton would like one of his talented pitchers to step up and become the ace of the staff.

"We have a lot of candidates who could turn out to be that pitcher we need to win us a ballgame when we need it most," he said. "We have a deep pitching staff so hopefully one or two can step up and be that go-to guy."

While the Bulldogs have youth on their side, the team does have some experienced players to lean on this season.

Senior Brett Caid is a starter back from last year's team.

"Brett could be that No. 1 pitcher," Welton said. "He was a starter last year for us and has had a great off-season. He's a right-handed pitcher who will also play

Kelly Fournier beats Milan goalie Erin Jenna to give Chelsea a 2-0 lead last Thursday. Ashley Chrisman earned the assist.

Rode, Fournier lead CHS to win

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The last few weeks have featured more than a few summer-like days all around the state.

Unfortunately for the Chelsea girls' soccer team, their schedule and these warm temperatures haven't exactly been on the same page.

Fortunately for the Chelsea girls' soccer team, the Bulldogs haven't let the chill in the air bother them in the least.

The Bulldogs delayed their league-opening soccer game with Milan on Thursday a few hours and moved to the football field where the turf wasn't affected by all the rain that had fallen over the previous few days. The delay didn't seem to bother the host Bulldogs who scored twice in the first half and two more times in the second half in a dominating 4-0 victory.

Chelsea goalie Michelle Wellman had to make only two saves the entire game as the Chelsea defense turned away most of Milan's scoring threats.

Columnist explains the thrill of the hunt

Why hunt?
I spent the first 24 years of my life asking that very question. I grew up in a family where nobody hunted, although we enjoyed fishing every now and then. Our family didn't believe in guns and we certainly didn't shoot defenseless animals. How many of you can relate to this way of thinking?

I remember watching Bambi as a little boy and wondering how that mean hunter could shoot Bambi's dad?

There are many other movies that depict hunters in this light including "Star Man," "Powder," "My Cousin Vinny," "The Deer Hunter," "Deliverance" and on and on. I honestly can't think of one single movie that accurately depicts a responsible hunter in our society today. If this doesn't bother you, then perhaps it should. The only movie that comes even remotely close to accurately representing hunters is "A River Runs Through It."

The movie had nothing to do with hunting, but a lot to do with an appreciation for wildlife and the art of fly-fishing. Well, don't forget the back story of a troubled family. Either way, it's my favorite movie of all time and I highly recommend it to everyone.

There's a visceral divide among anti-hunters and hunters alike. Some refuse to give an inch and both usually point the finger at each other as the ignorant party. I hope tolerance will prevail someday and both parties can agree to disagree.

After all, it's difficult to actively listen to someone with a different point of view when they're screaming in your face.

I used to jump deer quite often on the way to one of my favorite fly-fishing holes while attending Northern Michigan University. I came home from fishing one afternoon and my roommates were cooking dinner. In a nutshell, I had asked what was for dinner. Little did I know this day would change my life and outlook on hunting forever. One of my roommates said venison was our table fare. I didn't even know venison was deer meat.

Let's just say that I was shocked at how delicious venison was even if I had to force it down my throat at first.

I can go back in time and vividly remember my dad and I saving a raccoon after we watched it get run over by a car. This was in the late 1970s and I was around 10-years-old. I was crying and my dad put the near dead raccoon in the car and we drove it home. We found a box for it and took turns feeding it for a few weeks.

We finally let that raccoon go as its health returned, but it carried a limp as a reminder from the accident.

Every now and then we'd see that raccoon walking through the woods in our backyard. It was awesome to know we played an active role in saving that animal.

I tell you this story because you must know I don't take hunting lightly. I know I'm taking the life of a beautiful wild animal. But, I also know that I won't hide behind a grocery store receipt where I've hired someone to do the killing for me.

How can it be that a cow has less value than a deer, bear or other wild animal? How can it be that the public turns a blind eye at how chickens and turkeys are raised in the condition they're in? Have you ever seen those chicken and turkey farms? Quite frankly, I feel lucky that I'm eating healthier than most people.

Talk about organic food. Trust me when I tell you that hunters have been eating organic for quite a long time, long before it became trendy.

I'm not trying to convert anyone into hunting. But, understand that hunting dollars raised through licensing saves forests, wildlife habitat and animal populations.

I brought up Bambi earlier to make an important point regarding true wildlife behavior. I find it endearing that we, as a people, look at wildlife with such beauty. However, wildlife is far more brutal than the animated movies we've seen as children.

Most people look at Hippos as one of the cutest animals in the world. There's even a Christmas song that says, "I want a Hippopotamus for Christmas."

This sounds cute doesn't it? The reality is Hippos kill more people in Africa than any other animal on that continent. Go ahead and read that line again if you have a hard time believing it - it's true.

Ever wonder why a mother bear is so protective of her cubs? It's because the adult male bear knows she'll go into heat again if he kills the cubs and eats them. He also knows if he kills the male cub there will be less competition later in life.

Coyotes, lions, tigers, cheetahs, hyenas and wolves will work together to kill animals of all sizes. Furthermore, they'll begin to feed on their prey before they're even dead. They'll typically start feeding on the hindquarters first, furthest away from the heart. You get the idea. I could go on for hours, but I hope you get the point that wild animals practice survival of the fittest every single day.

Disease and starvation kill far more animals than hunters do - it's just the way it is in the wild.

I didn't know who Fred Bear was until I began hunting. Fred Bear was arguably the most famous archer of all time. Fred was an inventor, wildlife conservationist and also a hunter. He knew that a properly placed arrow would kill a deer within mere seconds. Have you ever cut yourself and not realize it? A razor sharp arrow does the same thing. Trust me, I've cut my fingers too many times.

There's a medical term called "Cardio-thoracic shock." Your heart and lungs work in a vacuum. It's similar to siphoning gas.

The hose will carry fluids, but will stop working when air is added to the hose. Well, the same can be said for the heart and lungs. An arrow (or bullet) will stop the efficient flow of blood and the animal passes out and dies as a result. Fred Bear knew this and has always maintained, "The death I bestow upon an animal is far kinder than what nature had intended for it."

It's a powerful and accurate statement. So much so that it gives me comfort when I choose to hunt.

So, why do I hunt?
I hunt for many reasons.

One of those reasons is because it's in my DNA to do so. There's a primal part of my past that comes alive when I'm out there in the wild. We all have respect for Native-Americans who hunt, as we should. But why do they get a free pass from society, but I don't? Makes you think, doesn't it?

My primal reason doesn't carry weight with some people, trust me, I know. But, there's another part of us that's primal. Any guesses as to what that is? That's right, it's sexual reproduction. Talk about primal. Think about the actual act and how you felt or how your partner felt. Imagine not practicing nature's way of reproduction, but rather using test tubes and a Petri dish. You can still make a baby this way, but it's not quite the same is it? My point is simple - you shouldn't be made to feel guilty for your primal feelings. Trust me, it's worked well for our species for years and years.

Hunting also provides the means for a healthy diet. Of course, you need to eat your vegetables, too.

I respect those who have differing views than mine when it comes to hunting. I hope you can respect my views, as well.

The spring turkey season is coming up in the next two weeks.

If you like the taste of a store bought turkey, then you might just love the taste of a wild turkey, as well. But, whether you like store bought turkeys, wild turkeys or even soy turkey sandwiches, I hope you get out there and enjoy the wild. It's a beautiful place to be.

Your story ideas and comments are warmly welcomed. Please e-mail me at rtaylor@reinhartrealtors.com or call me at (734) 223-5656.

"Our defense played really well," said Chelsea coach Kirsten Smart.

The Bulldogs' defense was led by junior Rachael Cooperrider, freshman Emma Doty and sophomore Jessica Ruikka. And senior captain Sarah Bingel "captained" the tough defense.

"Sarah was hurt and didn't play until (Thursday) and I thought she played a strong game for us," Smart said. "She is going to be a big part of our success on defense this year."

Milan coach Leah McGrath, who knew going into the game that Chelsea was going to be tough, was impressed with the Bulldogs. Chelsea plays at a level Milan hopes to get to someday.

"We actually played them better than we have in the past," said McGrath. "So we're getting better and catching up. But we're not there yet. They are a very good team."

McGrath said a slow start proved costly for the Big Red. "We started slow and a week off because of Spring Break."

Chelsea JV team wins

"We controlled possession of the ball for a majority of the game and were in their half of the field 90 percent of the game," Chelsea coach Kristin Hendricks said. "We are starting to understand our positioning on the field and are playing much better together as a unit."

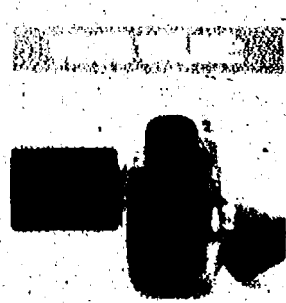

The Bulldogs were led by Molly Merkel on defense. Olivia Rowland and Kristen Bokros also played well on the defensive end.

Maddie Perry helped control the midfield and scored the game's only goal on a breakaway. Lela Longworth had some great shots on goal and kept the pressure on Milan.

"Overall, this was a great team effort and I'm proud of the way they battled to pull out the win," Hendricks said.

didn't help, and we weren't used to playing on a turf field," she said. "It also took us awhile to figure out that (Anna Rode and Katelynn Stehlik) were really good and that we need to know where they were at all times. They already had a goal on the board before we figured that out."

While the defense was doing its job against the Milan offense, the Chelsea offense was creating plenty of chances. The Bulldogs were called for a number of offside penalties early in the game as the Big Reds were trapping the aggressive Chelsea forwards. And when they were getting shots off, Milan goalie Erin Jenna was making some nice saves.

The Bulldogs kept the pressure on and Anna Rode got the Bulldogs on the board with a goal at 28:35 of the first half with an assist from Kelly Fournier. It was a great individual effort by Rode who came down on the left side with Jenna charging out of the goal. The Milan goalie was able to get her hands on the ball but couldn't pull it in as Rode regained control, kept her composure and placed her shot into the open net.

Fournier, one of three team captains, made it 2-0 at 19:48 with an assist from junior Ashley Chrisman.

Chelsea's third goal was as good as it gets, especially this early in the season. Sophomore Katelynn Stehlik came down the middle of the field with the ball. When two Milan defenders converged on her she flicked the ball to her left to an open Fournier. The senior made a nice move, cutting between two Milan defenders, and pushed the shot below a charging Jenna and into the net, just inside the post.

Rode scored her second of the game at 32:08 with an assist from Cooperrider to finish the scoring.

"I'm very happy with how we played overall," Smart said. "I think we were more confident and more aggressive than Milan and dominated the entire game."

Chelsea track teams open with easy wins

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea boys' and girls' track teams got off to an easy start on Tuesday, easily defeating young Ann Arbor Skyline. The new Ann Arbor school has only freshmen and sophomores competing.

The boys' team won 100-37 while the girls' team won 125-8.

"We had a nice day to run at Skyline," said Chelsea boys' coach Eric Swager. "We are far from being in shape and ready to compete at the level we want, but there were some encouraging signs."

Several freshmen stood out for the Bulldogs.

"Michael Hovater and Travis Weiss' performances in the vault are wonderful for their first varsity meet ever," Swager said. "Shane McGrath did well in the hurdles, as did Zach Rabbitt and Berkley Edwards in their events. Christian Vosters had a very nice long jump as well."

Other performances at or near lifetime bests were Chris Stewart in the high jump, and the tough 400 by Alex Cuper. His effort shows the result of training hard during the off season."

Senior Nick Hall won both the discus (100 feet, 11 inches) and the shot put (42-4) while Paul Ulisse was second in both the discus (94-11) and shot put (41). Junior David Slusser took third in both events.

In the high jump, senior Chris Stewart took first (5-6) and junior Chris Ballow was second (5-4). Ballow also took first in the long jump (16.8), with senior Cody Adams third.

The Bulldogs swept the top three spots in the pole vault with Hovater first (10-6), Weiss second (10) and Jake Dyer third (9).

Chelsea also swept the top three spots in the 110 hurdles with junior Mason Borders first (16.3 seconds), Shane McGrath second (19) and James Rebuldela third (20). Borders also took first in the 300 hurdles (43.1).

Chelsea dominated the relay events. The team of Adams, Logan Yordanich, Chris Ballow and Berkley Edwards was first in 46 seconds while the team of Adams, Jake Dyer, Yordanich and Alex Cuper won the 800 relay in 1 minute, 39.6 seconds. The team of Spencer Cone, Dyer, Brent Aksamit and Chris Stewart won the 1600 relay.

Cuper was first in the 400 dash and Bryce Bradley was first in the 3200 run.

The boys and girls will run April 13 against Tecumseh and then compete at the Hastings Invitational on April 17.

Girls dominate

The Chelsea girls' team defeated Skyline 125-8, winning every event. "It is very early in the season and just one day after spring break, but our girls performed well," coach Pat Clarke said. "We had a good first meet with a lot of young kids who learned how to perform well."

Senior Christina Coffman won the long jump with a lifetime best jump and new school record of 16-3. The old record, previously held by Edie Harook, had stood for 24 years.

"We must continue our improvement and eliminate mistakes if we are to continue to be successful," Clarke said.

Junior Lauren Dark won the pole vault at 9-6 and freshman Grace Sauters ran on three winning relay teams.

Katrina Williams won both the 110 hurdles (17 seconds) and the 300 hurdles (52); Corinne Carpenter won both the 100 dash (13.2) and the 200 dash (27.3); Danielle Dahl won both the 1600 run (5:54) and the high jump (4-4).

The Bulldogs swept the discus with Marissa Elwart taking first (98-3), Zoe Sing in second (78-3) and Aimee Meeko third (64-10). They also swept the shot put with Sing first (28-4), Meeko second (25-6) and Lauren Zigman third (24-6).

Olivia Detroyer won the 400 dash in 62.5 with Megan Hall second in 84.3.

Chelsea swept the 800 run with Elaine Johnson first (2:47.8), Hall in second (2:49.1) and Julie Beaumont third (2:50.6). They also swept the 3200 run with Jessi Battaglia first (12:59), Samantha Newbound second (13:24) and Kennedy Aldrich third (14:03).

first base and DH. He's a good bat in the middle of our lineup."

Another senior coming back is Nigel Schuh.

"He came on strong for us last year and is another good bat for us," Welton said. "He will play left field and can also pitch in long relief."

Senior catcher Shane Trojanowski will give the Bulldogs experience behind the plate.

"He handles the staff well and caught some key games for us last year," Welton said.

The Bulldogs also have a talented group of juniors, including three with varsity experience, led by Nate Udell.

"Nate is a three-year varsity player and someone who will be at the top of our rotation," Welton said. "He can play anywhere in the infield and is a very good hitter. We are expecting a lot from Nate this year."

Junior Charlie Hess also returns to the varsity.

"He has a very strong arm and can play anywhere on the infield," Welton said. "He will pitch and even catch at times for us."

Junior Brian Paulsen, who played third base last season, will switch to second base this year.

"He has very good hands and a good bat," Welton said.

Junior Jake Fox is back and will play right field and could end up as the team's closer after what Welton called a "strong showing in Florida."

The rest of the talented junior class includes Tyler Camp (OF), Matt Lindauer (LF/DH), TJ DeRosa (2B), Connor Townsend (1B), Bobby Hall (OF) and Tyler Frank (C/1B/OF).

Two sophomores, Jake Steinhauer and Jarred Scheese, will both see time on the mound and at third base. Other sophomores expected to see varsity action this year include Tyler Geiger (INF), Tanner Starkey (1B/C), Truman Hadley (OF/INF) and Brad Hepler (INF).

Alex Maloney is only the fifth freshman to make the varsity team in Welton's 33 years as head coach of the Bulldogs.

"He's gifted defensively and also can hit," Welton said. "Look for him to play quite a bit at short stop."

The Bulldogs' game last Thursday with Allen Park was rained out. They are expected to open the season Saturday in the Coldwater Invitational. They also will play at 4 p.m. on Monday at Ann Arbor Huron and next Thursday at 4 p.m. at home against Bedford.

Senior reaching new heights

By Terry Jacoby

Howard Booth, a Chelsea resident and a regular at the Chelsea Wellness Center, is an avid masters track and field athlete. Avid and exceptional.

Booth returned from Kamloops, British Columbia last month where he competed in the World Masters Athletics Indoor Championship. The 66-year-old athlete returned with a gold medal in the pole vault and a fifth-place finish in the long jump in the male 65-69 age group.

"With a bar-rattling vault of 3.06 meters (10 feet), I edged out a former top Olympian (1972), Hans Langerqvist from Sweden to earn the gold medal," said a proud Booth.

Robert Garnier from France was third.

"This was a fantastic ending to a very traumatic start of the week," Booth said. "My wife and I flew into Seattle to discover all three of my vaulting poles were broken in transit. In Kamloops, the only option was to rent an unfamiliar pole that didn't match either length or weight. With a day's practice this worked well enough that in competition, to quote my wife, 'the jumps were not pretty but gritty.' Still the bar stayed up at the key times."

The previous day, Booth's jump of 14-feet, 4-inches moved him from seventh in the preliminary rounds up to fifth in the finals against a dozen competitors from Russia, Canada, Germany, Japan, Sweden and the USA. Nearly 2,000 athletes representing 60 countries converged on this scenic oasis community of 70,000, tucked between two mountain ranges about 200 miles west of Vancouver. The athletes competed in the entire range of track and field events at Thompson River University during the first week of March.

Booth grew up in Mio where, according to him, he picked pole vaulting and long jumping because, "I wasn't quite fast enough to be a top three sprinter and only a couple of us wanted to work hard enough to learn the pole vault."

It turned out to be a great decision. Booth finished with school and league records and placed fourth in the state meet.

He went to Eastern Michigan University where he was recruited for the gymnastics team.

"As team captain and a regular in still rings, parallel bars, floor exercise and vaulting, I had a primary commitment to that sport. So with the seasons overlapping, I only pole vaulted for EMU two outdoor seasons," Booth said. "My highlight was earning a third-place finish in the PAC Conference my junior year with a 12-6 vault."

During graduate school (MS at EMU and Ph.D at MSU), Booth got interested in distance running and local 5K and 10K races. He also stayed fit with regular workouts in the gym for upper body conditioning.

"About six years ago I was encouraged by one of my gymnastics teammates to look into competing in the Michigan Senior Olympics," he said. "I signed up for the 5K run, bench press, and was looking for a third event (three for the same price) and checked out the pole vault heights for 60 year olds. I thought I could possibly do that."

To see if he "could do that," Booth didn't exactly work out at an Olympic training facility.

"I tried it out in my backyard with a freshly cut maple sapling and had some success so I bought a fiberglass pole and started working at it," he said. "I had used only stiff aluminum or steel poles before so it took a while to learn how to bend and use the spring of the fiberglass. In fact, I'm still working on the fine points of that."

Booth set a new age group state record in his first meet and was hooked.

He has since set new age group state records in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, and last summer won the National Senior Olympics gold medal at Stanford University. He also added a silver medal for the Team Michigan 4x100 meter relay and a bronze for the long jump.

Last year, he won silver medals in both pole vault and long jump in the National USATF Indoor Masters Championships in Washington, D.C. At the outdoor National USATF Masters Championships, he took the silver in pole vault and was fifth in the 100-meter sprint and a top 10 national ranking in the 200-meter race.

Practicing the pole vault isn't an easy thing to do. It's not like training for a marathon where you just go out and run. You need certain items, including a pole and a vault.

"I inherited a set of old and discarded pole vault pads from EMU three years ago," he said. "With the help of several EMU vaulters, we built a runway in the valley behind our house so we masters as well as a number of younger vaulters could workout during the summer."

Booth has been a professor in the Biology Department at EMU for 43 years, teaching and doing research in the areas of human physiology, animal physiology, zoology and quality science teaching. Booth and his wife, Lu, enjoy hiking, running, snow shoeing and cross country skiing the trails of the Pinckney Recreation Area.

Crystal Hayduk is writing a series of columns as she prepares to participate in the Heart and Sole 5K, May 15.

These shoes are made for running

By Crystal Hayduk

Special writer

Before beginning what can be considered real training for this 5K, I started walking. Given my schedule and previous lack of exercise, my first reasonably attainable goal was to walk three times a week.

According to those who give advice about goal setting, I should have been specific regarding time or distance, but I wasn't mentally at that point yet.

I am happy to report that for the month of March, I did walk three times a week. Some days I only squeezed in 20 minutes, but some days I managed up to an hour.

After the first few longer walking sessions, I noticed some lingering discomfort on the side of my left foot, and mentioned it to my family at dinner. "I know what you need, mommy," said my energetic 9-year-old, Katie Rae. "You need new shoes. Then you'll be able to run really fast - like me!"

I had my doubts that new shoes would make this non-runner run fast. And I would need a jet pack to keep up with Katie Rae. But it had been over five years since my last new pair of athletic shoes, so why not give it a try?

Running Fit employee Chelsea Earls measured my feet and checked my arches, looked at my old shoes for signs of uneven wear, and watched me walk and run. She suggested New Balance shoes in a size larger than I usually wear. They were lightweight and felt good. (Megan, 5, liked that they were trimmed in pink.)

Since getting my running shoes, I haven't experienced any foot discomfort. They feel so good that I can go farther without experiencing heaviness in my feet or fatigue in my legs.

Special offer

As an official sponsor of the Heart and Sole race, Running Fit is offering 10 percent off the price of running shoes. To get the discount, just tell them that you're part of the Heart and Sole gang.

Randy Step, co-owner of Running Fit stores in Michigan, explained that store employees are trained to help people find the best fit and type of shoe for their feet. Running shoes are flexible from front to back to provide easier forward movement of the foot, and come in one of three basic types: neutral, stability or motion-control. "Notoriously, people like to buy their shoes too small," Step said. "You have to ignore the number that you think you usually wear. They size running shoes smaller than dress shoes."

Chelsea wins season opener

The Chelsea varsity water polo team defeated Portage Northern 10-4 on April 8. This was the first match of the season for the Bulldogs. Donna Prieskorn (top) gets ready to toss in one of her goals for the Bulldogs. Jacyln Murphy (left) scores while Kalia Croskey (right) passes the ball. The JV team won 13-6.

From the blog

It's been a crazy month of April so far and we are only nine days in. Just last Friday I was playing golf with my son wearing shorts and a golf shirt and wiping sweat off my forehead after one of my ripping 190-yard drives into the woods. Hey, it's early.

On Thursday I was standing on the track at Chelsea High School wearing my winter coat watching a soccer game remembering just how painful a hard soccer ball can feel on freezing legs. I didn't hear one complaint from any of the Chelsea or Milan soccer players about how cold it was - they just played hard and didn't let it bother them.

Now, as a former soccer player I promise I won't make fun of the baseball team. Yes, the baseball game was cancelled because it was too cold and the field was too wet. As I told my dad countless times growing up, soccer players are just tougher than baseball players. The soccer players proved it again on Thursday.

I was looking forward to watching the baseball team play in a double-header and then head over and watch the soccer game. It was going to be the perfect afternoon. But Mother Nature interfered. Well, it's spring after all.

The girls moved the game to the evening and turned the lights on at the football field. The Bulldogs provided plenty of electricity with a very well played 4-0 win. Still, it was freezing - even with a winter jacket on.

It's been quite a week in the sports world. The Yankees-Red Sox marathon on Sunday night to start the baseball season, Duke holding off Butler with that dramatic ending in Indianapolis and Tiger proving he's still Tiger with a golf club in his hand. But Fred Couples and Tom Watson atop the leaderboard? You can't script it any better.

Spring break will finally be over next week and the spring sports season will finally take off. Hopefully I can take off my winter jacket and put it away until the fall.

HOCKEY

started getting ready for the Dreads' inaugural season.

"We started a conditioning program that meets twice a week and we are getting 15 to 20 girls per session, so that's very encouraging," said Flocken, whose daughter currently plays goalie at Central Michigan University. "There also has been strong interest at the middle school level. The coaching staff has been very encouraged with the response."

That coaching staff, which includes three former University of Michigan players, will be doing a lot of teaching.

"Our job will be to prepare the girls for the games and it will be their jobs to take what we teach them out onto the field," Flocken said. "We will have 12 girls with experience playing with the Whippets. But most of the others will be brand new to the sport."

Following last season, Dexter formed a club sport board and in January voted to form a Dexter program.

"We've hit the ground running since then," Flocken said. "By the response we've already gotten, we are expecting a varsity and junior varsity program in our first year."

There are now 23 teams in the Michigan High School Field Hockey Association. High school games are played with 11 players on each side.

"We owe a lot to the Whippets for helping create an interest in Dexter," Flocken said.

The Whippets will also have their registration meeting at 6 p.m. on June 2 at the WSEC cafeteria. The Whippets is open to students from both Chelsea High School and Manchester High School.

Starting early

Both Dexter Community Education and the Chelsea Recreation Department will host field hockey leagues this month for students in grades 3 through 8. There will be three teams: grades three-four, grades five-six, and grades seven-eight. Each team will practice once a week and play in six games against teams from Chelsea, Dexter and Saline.

"We had four teams in the fall in two age groups so we are hoping to build on that," said Jennie Greeley, a recreation department coordinator. "A lot of these players had never been in a team sport so it was a new experience for many of them."

Keely Tamer, who played four years at U-M and has taught at the collegiate level, will help run the program.

Players from Dexter can sign up at www.onlinedexter.com. The program begins on Saturday. The cost is $60.

The Chelsea Rec teams will be divided into two categories: grades three-five and grades six-eight.

Like in Dexter, the program begins Saturday and will run through May 22.

The cost is $60 and includes a t-shirt. Each player will be

YOUTH DANCE THEATRE OF MICHIGAN

Youth Dance Theatre seeks to provide professional caliber dance training through master classes, performance opportunities and enrichment to young dance students, thereby helping to nurture strong minds and healthy bodies in an artistic environment. In turn, YDT encourages company members to demonstrate responsibility and commitment towards a larger goal of entertaining and educating an audience comprised of the communities that support their work.

Thank You!

With the support of the businesses advertising in our 09/10 programs, YDT presented the Nutcracker ballet in December and will present Sleeping Beauty April 24-25, 2010.

Please support our advertisers & enjoy the Sleeping Beauty ballet!

Thank You!

The Youth Dance Theatre of Michigan (YDT) thanks you all for supporting our dancers, including the following businesses and foundation that supported YDT this season. Your community support is invaluable and YDT thanks you all for enriching our programs and the community.
