Students to address peers at graduation

Commencement set for 2 p.m. Sunday inside CHS gymnasium

By Alana West
Special Writer

In a flurry of caps and gowns, parties and ceremonies, graduation time at Chelsea High School is coming again. Seniors are getting ready to leave high school to enter the unknown of college and the career field.

There are two big graduation events planned for the 2010 graduates, with Class Night, an awards ceremony, set for 7 p.m. Friday in the CHS auditorium and graduation ceremonies to be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the gym.

More than 100 seniors will be awarded scholarships and awards at the Class Night banquet this year.

"We have two student speakers planned for graduation," CHS Principal Julie Deppner said.

Instead of the traditional valedictorian and salutatorian speeches, Deppner said a male and female student speaker voted on by the class will address graduates.

Schuyler Adkins and Brian Bazydlo were the two students chosen by the graduates.

Deppner said she admired the Class of 2010 for its excellent music, athletic, and academic performance.

"Dakota Cooley was ranked the No. 1 wrestler in the state. That's a first time for Chelsea. We also already have a student attending college, Nick Hill plays football for Michigan State University," Deppner said.

She said that the class is also noted for its strong achievement in academics, with six National Merit Scholarship finalists.

"Six students in one class is a pretty big achievement. It has only happened three times in the history of Chelsea," she said. "There has been some amazing talent musically, athletically and academically in this class."

Deppner said that 80 percent of the Chelsea seniors are planning to attend a four-year college next year.

Bazydlo said he is looking forward to going to Western Michigan University, but he will miss the small town atmosphere of Chelsea.

"I am hopefully going to become a history or music teacher," he said. "Music I just love, but I have to be able to get into their music school. History is important, but you can't play history."

"It's more fun to play a piece of music than to do a paper, but

Parents partner with police for safe celebrations

Officers to monitor underage drinking party tip line in Chelsea

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

The end of the school year is a time of fun and celebrations, with prom, awards banquets, concerts and games, all leading up to high school graduation. While most teens celebrate this exciting time safely and responsibly, some choose to break the law by consuming alcohol or illegal drugs.

According to SRSLY Coalition Director Kelley Lewis, among Chelsea teens who drink, 70 percent get their alcohol from a friend or family member over the age of 21.

In Michigan, it is illegal for adults to provide alcohol to minors. Penalties for a first offense are $1,000 and 30 days in jail, and $2,500 and 90 days in jail for a second offense. If a minor is hurt or killed while under the influence of alcohol, the adult who provided the alcohol could face more than one year of jail time.

"Parents who buy alcohol for their teens and allow them to drink at home are putting themselves and their kids at risk," Lewis said. "In addition to the increased risk of injury and death for the minors who drink, the adults who give alcohol to teens or allow them to drink on their property are legally responsible for anything that happens to those kids. Even if the homeowner didn't buy the alcohol, they are responsible if they knowingly allow minors to drink on their property."

Edith Burney, teen librarian at Chelsea District Library, said parents should avoid excessive alcohol at graduation parties.

"Graduation parties are a time to celebrate a teen's achievements, and they can be incredibly fun, with food, games, friends and family. If alcohol is served for adults, it should not be easy to grab, or mixed with the soda in a cooler. Sometimes people get confused about what's acceptable at graduation, so make sure all attendees know, including all attending adults, that alcohol will not be served to underage attendees," she said. "Better yet, if adults want to celebrate their teens graduation with heavy drinking, they can set it apart from the teen's celebration. Associating drinking in

Huron Valley Ambulance honors residents

Local lifesavers are recognized for heroism

Huron Valley Ambulance recently honored several residents of Washtenaw County and one Ann Arbor business at its annual Emergency Medical Services Recognition Awards Dinner May 19.

The HVA board of trustees bestowed their highest honor, the Lifetime Achievement Award, on Jude Huetteman of Ann Arbor.

An HVA board member for 19 years, Huetteman devoted her professional life to health care advocacy, trying to bring health care access and cost effective health care to those in need.

The board of trustees said Huetteman also paid special attention to how HVA served the poor, the elderly and its employees.

In a news release, HVA President and CEO Dale Berry said of Huetteman, "She has always been a supporter of HVA and made our employees her top priority while she served on the board. She made sure our employees had a high quality work life, including implementing tuition assistance and a retirement health care plan for employees."

Huetteman's five children and their spouses, along with Huetteman's grandchildren, flew in from across the United States to see her accept the award.

HVA also presented its Heart Safe Organization Award to Malloy Inc. of Ann Arbor. This award, which HVA created in 2008, recognizes businesses or other organizations that have met the following criteria for creating a "heart safe" environment:

- Automated external defibrillators in all buildings
- Staff trained in CPR/AEDs in all buildings
- Regularly practiced cardiac emergency response plan in place

Malloy is a book manufacturing facility with about 280 employees on Jackson Road in Scio Township.

In 1998, mechanical engineer Terri Roggenkamp, who accepted the award, started a first response team at Malloy with the help from and training by the HVA Center for EMS Education.

The teams have functioned during all three shifts Monday through Saturday every week since then. In addition, Roggenkamp has made sure the teams have received regular training updates from HVA.

Malloy has a total of 24 employees on the teams, and their participation has been voluntary.

Roggenkamp also started a Safety Committee that meets every six weeks and discusses ways to make the plant safer. She says they have never had to use the AED but are glad it is there.

HVA also honored local residents with Life Saving Awards for their heroism in two other rescues.

Dr. David Brown, a University of Michigan plastic surgeon and an Ann Arbor resident, along with bystander Joe Gill of Erie, received an award for a rescue earlier this year.

On March 30, while driving on I-94 in Ann Arbor, both men saw a van in front of them go off the road with no signals or brake lights.

They stopped their cars and went down an embankment to where the van was sitting in a drainage pond. They could see the driver of the van slumped over into the passenger seat.

When the driver opened the car door to get out, she went under the water. Brown and Gill waded into the water to help her. Then the two men and other bystanders cared for the woman until paramedics arrived.

The HVA awards recognized the two men for caring enough to stop and help in a situation that could have ended much more tragically.

Another Life Saving Award went to Sgt. Chris Proudlock, an officer with the Huron-Clinton Metroparks Police Department and an Ypsilanti current of the Huron River at Hudson Mills Metropark near Dexter.

Stratos had followed one of her dogs into the river after noticing that he was struggling. Suddenly, all three of them were in the water, fighting the strong undercurrent.

When Proudlock first saw them, Stratos was holding onto a dead tree with one hand and her two dogs with the other. He had difficulty navigating the swirling water, being slammed into the tree as he approached.

After pulling both dogs out on to the tree, he spotted three men in a boat and yelled for help.

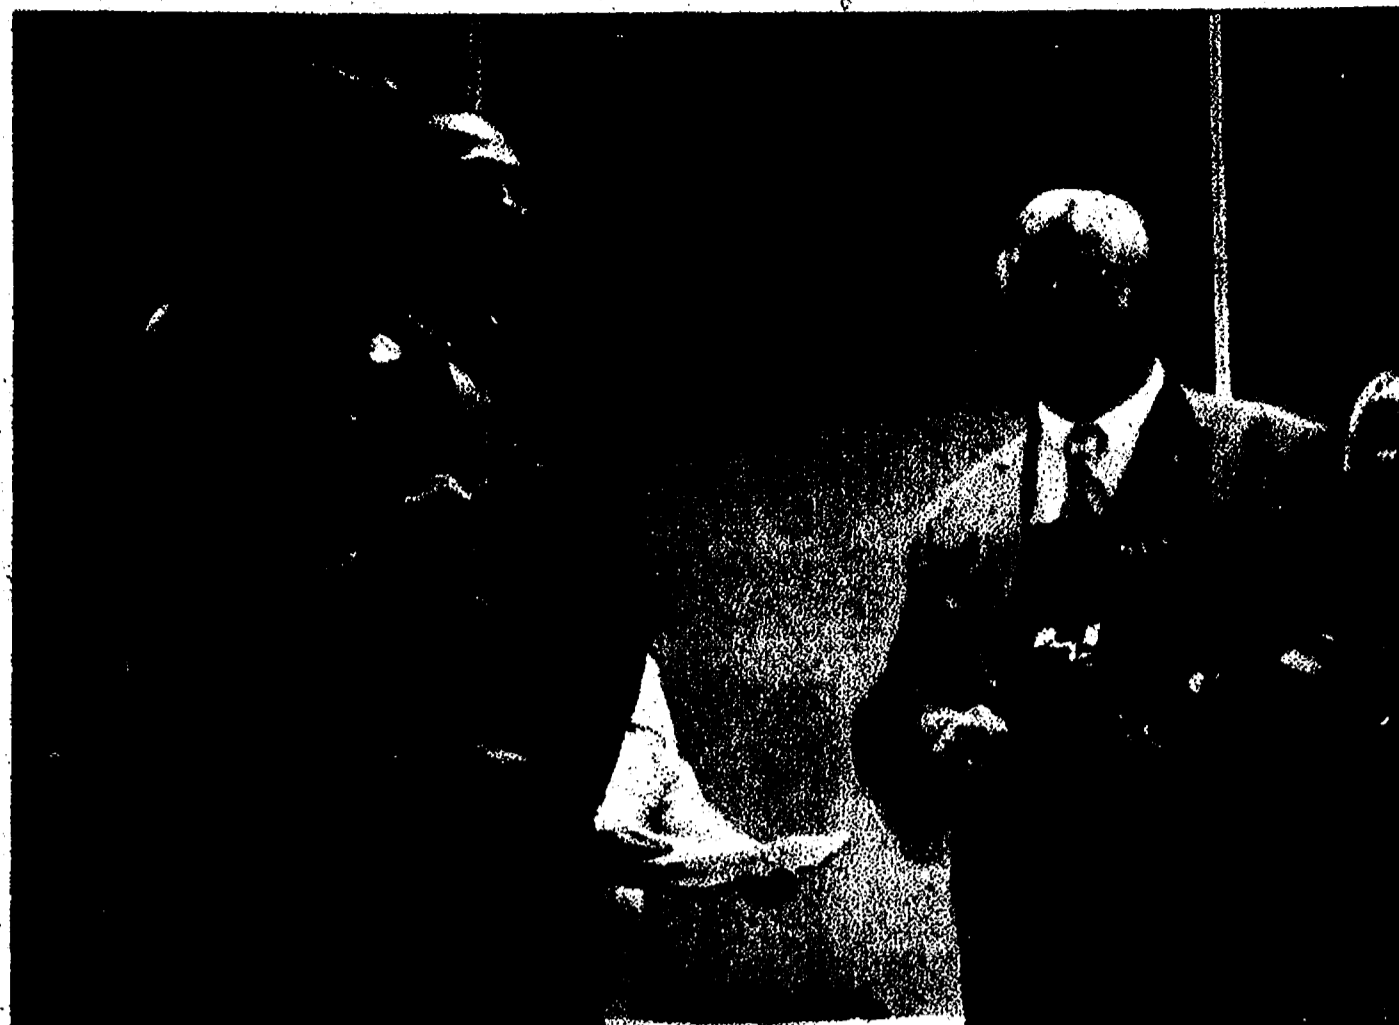

When they arrived, he was able to put Stratos and her dogs aboard and then finally himself.

This award recognized Proudlock for his courage and quick actions.

HVA also presented awards to employees for professional achievement and safe driving.

The awards dinner took place during National Emergency Medical Services Week, which honors EMS providers who deliver emergency care nationwide.

HVA is the nationally accredited, nonprofit community ambulance service covering Washtenaw, western Wayne and southwest Oakland counties.

AN EAGLE EYE VIEW BASEBALL WRAPS UP ACTION AT MAC TOURNAMENT

Paid Advertisement

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (EMUEagles.com) – After winning its first two games as the No. 7 seed in the 2010 Mid-American Conference Tournament at V.A. Memorial Stadium in Chillicothe, Ohio, the Eastern Michigan University baseball team dropped its final two games to the eventual champions from Kent State University, as the No. 2 seeded Golden Flashes went on to win the title over Central Michigan University to earn an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament.

The Eagles' 2010 season was full of ups and downs, but overall, the team finished with more victories in 2010 than a year prior under second-year Head Coach Jay Alexander.

EMU started out the season on a high-note, upsetting the No. 25 ranked Kansas Jayhawks, 3-1, behind an eight strikeout performance from junior, right-hander Corey Chaffins. Chaffins went on to earn MAC West Pitcher of the Week honors after his performance, something he would do once more in 2010.

Not to be outdone by Chaffins' pitching performance was sophomore right-hander Kendall Lewis, who would have the game of a lifetime versus Western Michigan, April 24. Lewis pitched an 11-inning complete game shutout versus the Broncos, giving up just three hits and one walk, while striking out a career-high 10 batters. Lewis would go on to earn four national player of the week awards, as well as MAC West Pitcher of the Week honors. Lewis also earned first-team All-MAC accolades at the end of the season.

For the second year in-a-row, the Eagles would finish the regular season with a 13-14 record in the MAC, earning the No. 7 seed in the MAC Tournament. And despite coming into the tournament on a six-game losing streak, the Eagles proved resilient.

In the team's first round game over the defending champions from Kent State, the Eagles got ahead early with a first inning grand slam from senior Todd Graves. Graves would go on to hit another home run and finish with six RBI, as EMU claimed a 12-4 victory over the Golden Flashes.

The drama continued in their next game versus No. 3-Toledo, with senior Andrew Marshall and junior Bo Kinder coming up with late game heroics. With the Eagles down to their final out in the bottom of the ninth inning, Marshall delivered solo home run over the right field wall to knot the game at 6-6, sending it to extra innings. From there, Kinder hit a walk-off solo blast into the Chillicothe night to give the Eagles a 7-6 win and momentum moving forward into the tournament.

But the experienced Golden Flashes from Kent State proved to be resilient as well down the stretch, handing the Eagles two straight losses, including a 9-8 decision in extra innings on May 29, to move on to the MAC Tournament championship. Both Graves and Marshall would go on to win MAC All-Tournament honors.

Despite the heartbreaking end to the 2010 season, the Eagles have several key players returning for the 2011 season, including all but two pitchers on the pitching staff and three position players.

GRADUATE

I've wanted to be a teacher since third grade. History is so fascinating. It's someone's life."

Bazydlo has been in Company C for the past four years, and it has helped him achieve some of his goals in high school.

"I was the dance captain this year (for Company C)," he said. He has also had many roles in Company C productions, including its recent production of "Shoes."

"I'm also proud I made it through four years of football," he said adding that he lettered both in varsity football and varsity track.

Bazydlo has also been on the National Honor Society and volunteered with Habitat for Humanity to build houses in Chicago, Ill.

"I'm pretty proud my classmates voted me to speak at graduation. I don't know yet what I'm going to say," he said.

He said he will miss his school friends and teachers.

"I've had endless opportunities to do extracurricular activities. I'm going to miss being able to do anything I want to do," he said.

Adkins is looking forward to attending college at Oregon's Lewis and Clark College in the fall.

"I'm going to double major in English and history," she said.

She also plans to get her master's degree in teaching to teach high school.

"That's been my plan since I was a freshman," she said.

Adkins said she was involved in several extracurricular activities at CHS.

"My biggest achievement was being a drum major for two years," she said.

She has been the social vice president of the Student Council, president of the Key Club, a member of the National Honor Society, Link Leader (mentor), Girl Scout, school newspaper staff, writer and jazz band.

"I'm going to miss all of the people I've met. The teachers are all supportive, and the PTO parents are all so great. The friends I have are phenomenal," she said.

Adkins said that she is still in the beginning stages of writing her speech for graduation.

"I'm going to comment on how much the class has grown since kindergarten. We've traveled through as a group for 13 years," she said. "I've known the same 200 students since kindergarten. It's very different from growing up in a big town."

She said she is thankful that Chelsea School District has always made a commitment to the arts.

"That has been a really big blessing," she said.

excess with a 'good excuse' like graduation can lead to a lifetime of 'good excuses.'

Chelsea Police Chief Ed Toth has set up an anonymous tip line for people to call with information about illegal activity, including parents giving alcohol to minors and allowing them to drink in their homes. The tip line goes directly to voicemail and does not identify callers by name or phone number. The tip line can be reached at 1-734-475-4078, Ext. 5.

"If it is a day or two in advance, the tip line is fine, because we can plan and get it taken care of," Toth said. "But if it's an underage drinking party that is underway, ideally people should call 911, because we can respond right away."

The anonymous tip line is checked periodically, but not immediately.

"If something is taking place at that particular time when they call, people should call 911. If people want to remain anonymous, they can say that to the dispatcher and we will respect that," Toth said.

Toth received multiple tips about parties planned for prom weekend in early May, at which parents were planning on furnishing alcohol to high school students.

To help promote safe celebrations this season, SRSly is offering parents the opportunity to "sticker shock" their graduating seniors' open houses. The same bright green stickers that are used in stores and restaurants during Project Sticker Shock can be used in homes during open houses.

Parents can place stickers on individual beverages, cases, coolers, or wear the stickers.

"The stickers offer a visual reminder of the law," Lewis said.

Parents who would like stickers can call the SRSly office at 1-734-475-4078.

Garden walk to feature six

By Jana Miller
Heritage Newspapers

Gardens are a place for inspiration, discovery, delight and beauty. All seven stunning garden displays on this year's 20th anniversary Ann Arbor Garden Walk will offer those very characteristics while raising money for a cause.

Each year, the Ann Arbor branch of the Woman's National Farm and Garden hosts an Ann Arbor Garden Walk, which serves as one of two annual fundraisers. Proceeds raised at the event help the Ann Arbor Farm and Garden to provide grants for community horticultural and environmental education.

This year's beneficiaries are the Edible Avalon Community Gardens and the Matthaei Botanical Gardens.

Edible Avalon is a project of Avalon Housing that aims to make fresh, organic food accessible to urban residents. The garden project creates and maintains raised-bed vegetable gardens.

The Matthaei Botanical Gardens will receive a grant for both the Summer Student Internship Fund and a summer internship specifically geared to developing age-specific programs for kindergarten students through fifth-graders.

The Garden Walk fundraiser has been successful in previous years, raising as much as $16,000 last year for a local garden project. It also resulted in a $15,000 grant in 2008 for the Gaffield Children's Garden at Matthaei Botanical Gardens. Incidentally, that very same garden is featured on the tour this year.

"At the time, the Gaffield Children's Garden at Matthaei was just getting off the ground," said Ann Arbor Farm and Garden spokeswoman Carrie Riedeman. "The Gaffields had provided initial seed money to get it going, but Ann Arbor Farm and Garden decided this was something to be involved with and wanted to get it jump started. They were the beneficiary of the Garden Walk that year."

The Gaffield Children's Garden is described as being, "a child-sized world of exploration, imagination, and education in the great outdoors," according to a recent press release. It officially opened in September 2009.

The public Gaffield Children's Garden, along with six private homeowner gardens, will be featured on this year's walk. Ticketholders will be able to tour each garden at their own pace in the order of their choosing.

"It's self-paced, so you can start at whatever garden you want and you're not dealing with crowds," Riedeman said. "I think it's inspirational. Part of the appeal is the desire to see what other people do in their backyards. You might drive down the street and see something that catches your eye and want to get in there, but you can't just walk up to people's doors and ask to see their garden."

"It's about peeking through the gate, getting ideas, and coming and enjoying these beautiful spaces. Plus, it helps maintain gardens in other spaces, so it's a good cause," she said.

New to this year's event, however, is a photography contest. Any ticket holder who is not a professional photographer can submit a photograph of a garden. The winning picture will be used as the art on the next Ann Arbor Farm and Garden note card.

"There is no additional fee for the ticketholder," Riedeman said. "The note cards are another fundraising item we sell throughout the year and it will feature one big, beautiful photo on the front with credit on the back."

Ticketholders also will be able to visit the Conservatory at Matthaei Botanical Gardens for free on the day of the walk. Hot dogs, chips and soft drinks will be available at Matthaei from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. from local vendor Dad's Dogs.

Tickets are currently on sale at Dixboro General Store, Downtown Home and Garden, Matthaei Botanical Gardens, and Nicola's bookstore. Advance tickets are $12 for an adult and $3 for students. Tickets also can be purchased on the day of the walk for $15 for adults. Groups can purchase advance tickets for $10 per person.

Ticketholders will receive a map of the six garden locations. Participants can visit as many gardens as they wish in whichever order they desire. Photos of the gardens featured this year are online at www.annarborfarmandgarden.org/events/garden-walk.

Ann Arbor Farm and Garden was founded in 1946 and has distributed more than $450,000 to local students, community groups and garden projects. For more information on the Garden Walk or Ann Arbor Farm and Garden, visit www.annarborfarmandgarden.org.

Question

This week's question

How did you spend Memorial Day?

A B C D

The news comes from you

Not so long ago across America, newspaper readers flipped through page after page of news, sports, entertainment and commentary while enjoying a cup of coffee and a bowl of cereal at the breakfast table.

Then they would wash the ink off their hands before heading off to work or school.

If they were really lucky, when they got home, there was an afternoon paper waiting for them and a weekly one that arrived on the doorstep.

Readers were handed the news that the editors at these newspapers thought you should know.

But I bet you've ask yourself why aren't they writing about ... you fill in the blank?

And, technically speaking, the news that you were reading had actually happened 24 hours or more before it was printed.

But that was then and this is now.

Back then, waiting for your newspaper to arrive in your driveway or on your porch was the fastest way to get printed information to you.

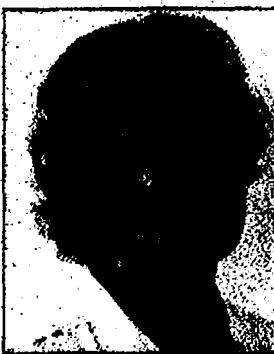

Now, you have the Internet.

Sundays were a newspaper family's holy day, where readers could really take the time to savor their favorite sections of the paper and read longer, in-depth stories about topics of interest to them.

I grew up in a newspaper-reading family and I looked forward to the Sunday paper each week. Perhaps that's why I chose to become a journalist.

Every day, I'd read other reporters' stories and I'd long to be one of them. From a very early age, I knew I wanted to see my name under those headlines and be the eyes, ears, nose and mouth of the people involved.

HOME FRONT

I couldn't wait until I'd gotten the higher education necessary to learn how to become a great reporter.

And after 30 years in this business, I'm still learning and I'm still proud to see my byline under a headline.

And it's because of you, the readers, who take the time to call and send e-mail and let me know you liked, or maybe didn't like, one of my stories.

Since embarking on this career path back in high school, what I've learned from being a reporter about life, about people and about myself has far surpassed any expectations.

I've witnessed history as it happened, and have had access to places, people and events that someone without media credentials doesn't have.

I'm truly blessed and humbled by the opportunities that journalism has offered me throughout my life.

And I feel lucky to still be a part of it.

But for better or worse, like it or hate it, newspapers and newspaper reporting have changed dramatically since my early bylines.

And it will continue to do so on an almost daily basis as new technology comes into play.

People who I "labeled" sources who would call me with a news tip now have the ability to break the news themselves via the Internet.

Bystanders and casual observers who I called upon for quotes are now Tweeting and posting news on Facebook.

Journalism has become a minute-to-minute medium, and readers want more immediacy from reporters and news publications.

And this is where I'm hoping that you will come into play. I can't be everywhere that you are, so if you see something, let me know.

Help me become a better reporter in this new information age.

If there's something going on in your town that doesn't seem fair, let's see how we can right that wrong together.

I truly believe the more astute the eyes and ears are out in our local communities, the better places they will become for all of us to live and work.

The more all of us know collectively, the better our society will become — not just today, but in the future.

So, I'm asking all of you to help me to become a better reporter in this ever-changing age of journalism. The bottom line is you, the readers, know what's important to the community.

If I'm not reporting the kinds of news stories that you want to read, you have lots of options to go elsewhere.

If you're asking yourself why hasn't the newspaper published a story on this topic, then request it.

I'd like you to continue to read me in the Heritage Newspapers and in the process make them the best local news source possible.

So tell me what topics you want me to report from your community.

After all these years covering this area, I can probably help you solve your problem, because I know lots of people who can help.

Is there something that your local government is doing — or not doing — that's messing with your livelihood, your health or your happiness?

Tell me about it. Let me see what I can do. But if I don't know what's bugging you, I can't help fix it.

So, I'm going to give you every means possible to contact me.

In addition to the information below, you can e-mail me personally at lallmendinger@sbcglobal.net, or you can call me at 433-1052.

OUR TAKE: Editorial Bipartisan support good to see in state Legislature

The Michigan legislators did something that has been rare for lawmakers over the past few years — they passed new public school retirement legislation in a bipartisan vote.

On paper, the bill looks pretty good. As in any compromise, there's something for both sides to be happy about. Local schools, hopefully, will save some money while educators will have a slightly sweeter retirement pot.

The plan will slightly increase pension benefits for eligible school employees who retire between July 1 and Sept. 1. The idea is to get older, higher-paid employees to leave to avoid layoffs and open the door for younger employees needing jobs in Michigan's sluggish economy.

Remaining school employees will have to pay an additional 3 percent of their salaries into retiree health plans starting July 1, and new teachers will be put in a retirement plan that combines traditional pension benefits with a defined contribution plan.

Supporters of the plan say it could save schools more than $670 million in the next fiscal year and about $3 billion over a decade.

Of course, not everyone is happy with the bill. The Michigan Education Association, the state's largest teachers union, and the Michigan chapter of the American Federation of Teachers, don't like the 3 percent increase in expenses to teachers.

But overall, as in any good compromise, you have to take the bad with the good.

Let's also give some credit to a few legislators.

First, in the Democrat-led House, Tim Melton, D-Auburn Hills, was among 16 Democrats who joined 40 House Republicans to vote for the bill. That took courage to go against the grain, but Melton is chairman of the House Education Committee and has often demonstrated the courage to act independently.

Also, House Speaker Andy Dillon, D-Redford, undoubtedly will take some heat from his Democratic counterparts for supporting the bill. But as he noted, its passage "means that thousands of young teachers are going to have an opportunity to get a job in the state of Michigan."

Meanwhile, Republican Senate Majority Leader Mike Bishop of Rochester is obviously pleased and deserves credit for getting the measure through the Senate.

The key element in passing this retirement bill was that it was proposed by Granholm, but needed Republican backing to become law.

There's much work yet to be done on the state budget and other issues, but wouldn't it be nice if legislators could use this bill as a springboard for further compromise and bipartisan action?

They've shown it is possible.

TV show helps us never forget the sacrifices

An HBO series, "The Pacific," aired recently and I sat down to watch with interest all 10 episodes that told the story of the U.S. Marines fighting the Japanese in the Pacific arena in World War II.

Watching the series was difficult because of the atrocities our Marines had to bear and the thousands who were lost in battle. But the series gave me a greater appreciation for my freedom as a citizen of the United States and caused me to wonder what direction our country would have taken if we had not fought against Japan to defend our country.

War is not a desirable means to an end but it is sometimes necessary to preserve the freedoms we enjoy as a democratic republic.

Freedom always comes with a price, the ultimate being the lives of men and women who honorably serve in our armed forces. Throughout our nation's history, men and women have been willing to die to preserve the freedom we enjoy today.

"The Pacific" featured war heroes such as Marine Sgt. John Basilone, who was awarded the Medal of Honor for his bravery on Guadalcanal when he commanded two sections of machine guns against 3,000 Japanese soldiers for over 48 hours before reinforcements arrived. He was also awarded the Navy Cross posthumously for heroic actions on Iwo Jima, where he died.

The Medal of Honor has been awarded to 3,448 brave military personnel who have died in the line of duty. This number represents less than 1 percent of the soldiers, marines, airmen and sailors who have sacrificed their lives for our freedom.

According to Wikipedia, 1,315,351 fatalities have been recorded for all the wars and conflicts in which the United States has fought. Over our 234-year history as a nation, this represents an elite group of honorable citizens to whom I owe my appreciation.

Most recently, the United States has sacrificed 1,082 soldiers and Marines in Operation Enduring Freedom in Afghanistan (May 24, 2010 according to icasualties.org).

Every life given in the pursuit of defending our liberties deserves tribute from those who live to enjoy it.

Speaking to graduates of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point recently, President Obama said:

"Time and again, Americans have risen to meet and to shape moments of change."

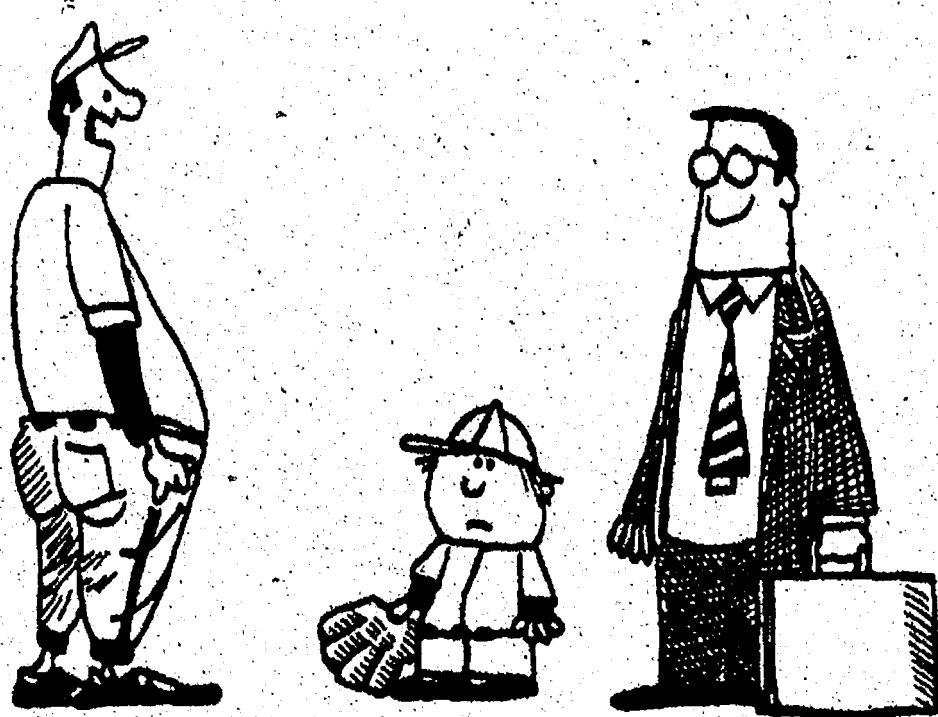

"This is one of those moments — an era of economic transformation and individual empowerment, of ancient hatreds and new dangers, of emerging powers and new global challenges. And we're going to need all of you to help meet these challenges."

"You've answered the call. You, and all who wear America's uniform, remain the cornerstone of our national defense, the anchor of global security. And through a period when too many of our institutions have acted irresponsibly, the American military has set a standard of service and sacrifice that is as great as any in this nation's history."

This past Memorial Day I hope you took the time to thank those who have served — current military personnel and military family members.

Give the gift of life

Lives are unnecessarily lost all too often as 18 people die each day across the nation because they desperately need an organ transplant.

This distressing truth is felt especially strongly here in Michigan, which sadly ranks 42nd nationwide in the percentage of licensed drivers registered as organ donors. Only 24 percent of eligible Michigan residents have expressed a desire to become organ and tissue donors upon their death.

Organ and tissue donation can benefit not only donation recipients themselves, but also their families, friends and even the families of donors. Numerous stories, collected by Gift of Life Michigan, reveal that the family and friends of the deceased can better deal with their grief knowing that the decision to make an anatomical gift helped save someone else's life.

Legislation passed this past

February that will ensure students enrolled in drivers' education learn about organ and tissue donation and how to register as a future donor.

By simply taking a few minutes to register online at www.giftoflifemichigan.org, to call 1-800-482-4881, or to visit your local Secretary of State office, you can save up to eight lives by donating organs and directly improve the lives of up to 50 people by donating tissues.

Once registered, you will receive a sticker with a red heart saying "Donor" on it to place on your driver's license, indicating that you have joined the Michigan Organ Donor Registry. If a tragedy occurs, this sticker will alert medical professionals to your wishes.

Dexter Township woman arrested for recent home invasions

A woman suspected in at least four recent home invasions in Scio and Webster townships was arraigned on multiple felony charges last weekend, police said.

Tera Bowman, 26, is charged with four counts of second-degree home invasion and four counts of conspiracy to commit home invasion for the series of crimes that started in May. She remains in custody on $60,000 bond and was scheduled to appear in Washtenaw County District Court for a preliminary hearing on June 1.

Bowman, of North Meadows Trail in Dexter Township, was arrested near her home May 21 without incident. Investigators believe she burglarized a business in Scio Township and a Webster Township home on May 12. She's also involved with burglaries at two Scio Township homes on May 17, reports said.

Authorities said she worked with an accomplice and have identified a potential suspect, but are not releasing any further information about him at this time.

The duo is also suspected in several burglaries in Superior Township, Webster Township, and Ann Arbor, as well as recent incidents in Livingston and Wayne counties, reports said. Charges are pending in those cases.

Deputies recovered hundreds of stolen items during their investigation into Bowman's alleged crimes and are trying to identify rightful property owners. The process may take weeks due to the volume, officials said.

Suspected burglars crash into sheriff's vehicle

Three home invasion suspects were arrested May 22 after they crashed their getaway vehicle into a Washtenaw County Sheriff's patrol car in Lodi Township.

Deputies were responding to reports of a home invasion that just occurred in the 6500 block of Ellsworth Road at about 11:10 a.m. when a mini-van struck their vehicle along Zeeb Road near Scio Church Road.

No injuries were reported in the crash. All five people inside the van fled and three were captured within minutes with the assistance of the Chelsea Police Department's K-9 Unit and mounted deputies with the sheriff's department.

The 22-year-old Ypsilanti man and two Ypsilanti Township men, ages 18 and 19, were captured and are expected to be arraigned on multiple felony charges at the Washtenaw County Jail.

Investigators learned that the homeowner entered her brother-in-law's driveway and saw an unfamiliar blue mini-van sitting in the driveway that was occupied by two strange men, reports said.

As the witness asked the driver who he was, three men ran out of the house and jumped into the mini-van, which sped away. The witness called 911, got into her vehicle and pursued the suspects to Zeeb Road.

Descriptions of the other suspects were not immediately available and the incident remains under investigation. Anyone with information is encouraged to call the department's confidential tip line at 1-734-973-7711.

Michigan poll: Make voting more convenient

A whopping 70 percent of Michigan voters believe the Legislature should pass bills to make it easier for them to cast ballots, putting Michigan in line with actions in a majority of states to make voting more convenient.

The statewide poll, sponsored by the League of Women Voters and the Michigan Association of Municipal Clerks, showed deep support for a bill that would allow voters to cast absentee ballots for any reason and a companion piece of legislation that would permit people to vote at polling places days in advance of the actual election.

Amazingly, support for a package including both reforms did not drop below 55 percent in any of the poll's 29 demographic segments — whether it be gender, partisan affiliation, age, geography, ethnicity, frequency of absentee voting, occupation or the presence of children in the household.

"Whether black or white, urban or rural, blue collar or white collar, old or young — voters support these common sense reforms which are tailored to accommodate people living in an increasingly busy world," said Dennis Denno, whose firm Denno-Noor Research conducted the survey. "Based on these results, making voting easier and more convenient seems like a no-brainer."

Michigan has failed to keep up with 32 states — including neighboring states Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Wisconsin — that have implemented "early voting" statutes so a voter can go to a polling place as early as two weeks before an election to cast a ballot.

Twenty-nine states provide no-excuse absentee voting, whereas Michigan essentially restricts absentee voting to those 60 and older, people with disabilities, those who expect to be out of town election day and those who can't go to a polling place because of a religious belief.

The need to do everything possible to make voting hassle free takes on added significance in Michigan this year given that the top four constitutional offices are open due to term limits (governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state and attorney general), as well as 63 open seats in the Legislature.

Term limits will cause a huge shakeup of the Senate where 29 of the 38 seats will be up for grabs.

In the House, 34 of the 110 members are also prohibited by law from running while another 14 are giving up their seats to seek higher office. Additionally, three of the state's 15 members tally of 79-30. But the bill has languished since May 6 of last year in the Senate Committee on Government Operations and Reform.

If the reforms were to wind up on the ballot, a lopsided 75 percent of those surveyed said they would be more likely to vote "yes" based just on the convenience it would offer voters.

"We allow citizens to pay their taxes through the mail.

"Why shouldn't voters be extended the same courtesy? When more people get involved in the process it makes for a healthier democracy," Reiser said.

Delhi Township Clerk Evan Hope said residents often come to clerk's offices assuming Michigan has early and no-excuse absentee voting because they've heard about it on the national level.

"Unfortunately, the majority of voters requesting an absentee ballot do not meet the requirements — and because they don't want to lie on the application, they risk not making it to the polls on election day," said Hope, first vice president of the Michigan Association of Municipal Clerks.

"I hear from people all too often that there were issues they had no idea were on the ballot. "If voters were able to come in and vote on their own time or vote absentee, they would be able to review the ballot in detail and make a more informed decision."

Other states have shown that early voting and no-excuse absentee balloting can have the greatest success in boosting voter participation in primary and local elections that traditionally draw less voter interest. Michigan, for instance, has had a pretty pathetic record for turnouts in the last five primary elections — topping 20 percent participation just once (23.3 percent in 2002).

In local school elections, voter turnout is even weaker. In a recent election, 1,444 ballots were cast out of a possible 17,545 in Delhi Township. Of of the U.S. House are hot seeking re-election, an unusually high number.

"There is no more fundamental and cherished right in our country than exercising the right to vote, especially during elections as significant as those in 2010," said Jessica Reiser, president of the League of Women Voters of Michigan, a 90-year-old nonpartisan organization that encourages citizen participation in government.

Greek festival to feature food, music

By Jana Miller
Heritage Newspapers

Celebrating being Greek isn't about a style of cooking or a certain church. It's the celebration of an entire nation of people, not to mention a way of life.

When the Ann Arbor Ya'ssoo Greek Festival returns to St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church this weekend, it will have two very special things to celebrate. First, it's the fourth year at the festival's new location on Scio Church Road and has grown exponentially in that brief amount of time. Second, it also marks the 75th anniversary of St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church in Ann Arbor.

Having attracted more than 6,000 people to the festival last year, this year's event will continue over a three-day period June 4 through 6.

Anticipating an even larger audience this year, the festival committee has added seating and tent space.

There is also an expanded menu, and a senior luncheon will be offered at a discount on Friday for visitors age 60 and older.

The festival will be held from 11 a.m. to midnight Friday and Saturday.

It runs from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday. Parking will continue to be free at Knox Presbyterian Church on Wagner Road, with a free shuttle service to the festival.

In years past, the festival has featured Greek dancing, music, entertainment, and plenty of homemade Greek food and pastries. This year's menu will feature souvlaki (kabob) dinners, gyros, pasta, stuffed grape leaves, rice, Greek salad, hot dogs, and spinach and cheese pies. Some of the tasty pastries on sale will include Greek honey puffs, baklava, sugar cookies, Greek walnut biscotti, butter cookies, walnut cake and rice pudding.

Filling the air with music worthy of dancing will be featured band ENIGMA, a live bouzouki band. Entertainment also will be provided by Kyklos Hellenic Dance Group and the St. Nicholas Dancers as they perform lively Greek dances. As in years past, there will be an open dance period when basic dance steps are taught en masse.

In between tasting Greek food and dancing it off, visitors will be able to shop in the market place and boutique for imported Greek items or enjoy themselves at the taverna and bar. Guided tours will showcase the Byzantine-style church.

New to the festival is an exhibit honoring the 75th anniversary of St. Nicholas in Ann Arbor. The church has been planning and celebrating a yearlong schedule of events for the special benchmark.

"We have progressed from attending church services in vacant buildings to erecting our first church on South Main Street in 1935, adding an educational wing in 1967 and, in 2004, building a beautiful byzantine-style edifice on Scio Church Road," said church representative Helen Garriss in a recent press release.

Admission to the festival is $3 after 4 p.m. Friday, $3 after 1 p.m. Saturday and free on Sunday. Children under the age of 12 get free admission.

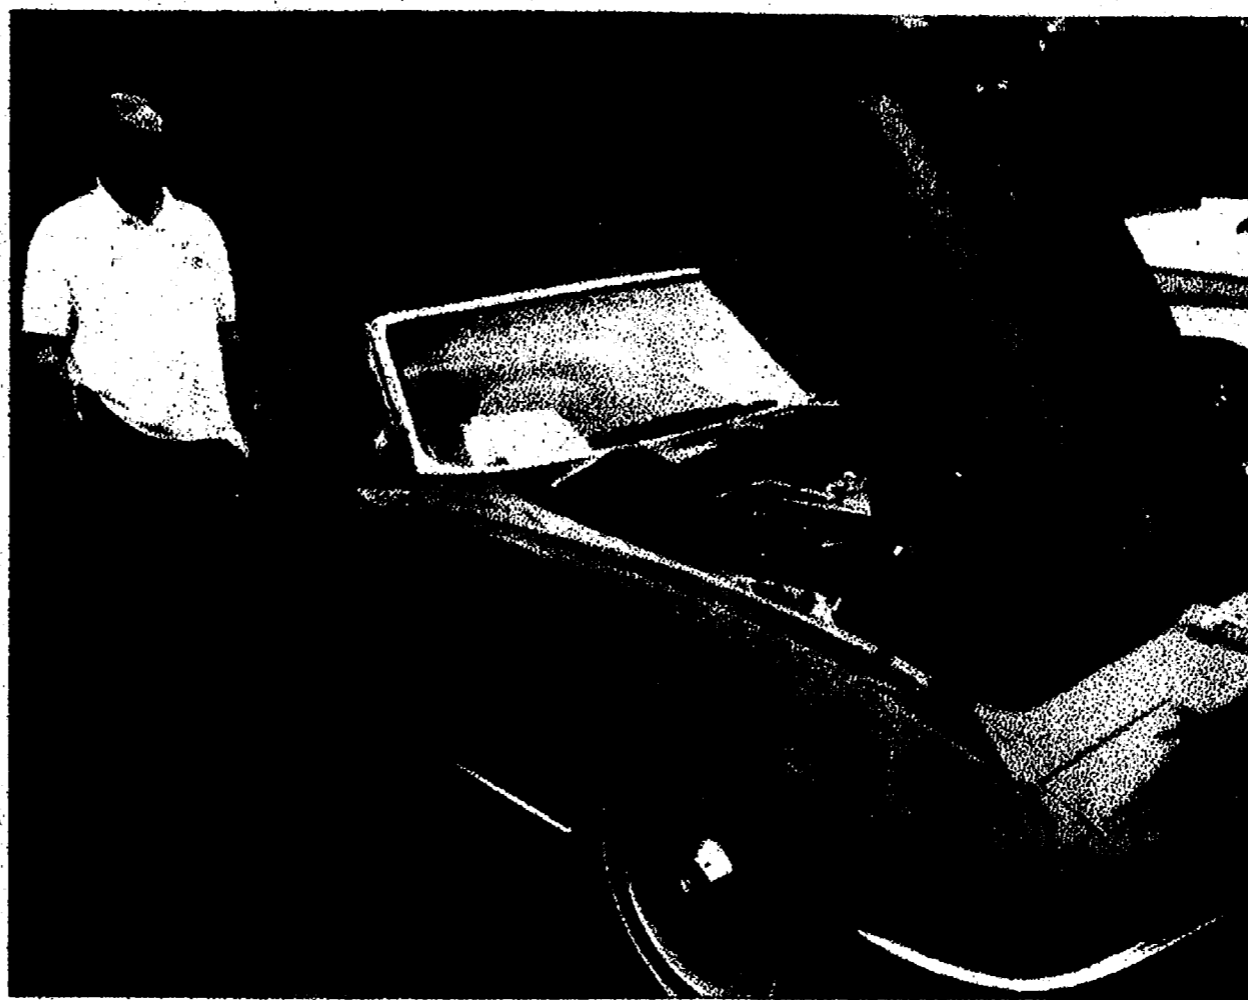

The raffle will return with more prizes, including a first-place prize of a free trip to Greece.

The prize includes airfare, hotel and a cruise of the Greek Islands for two, valued at more than $2,000.

Other prizes include a trip to the Cayman Islands and a flat screen television. Raffle tickets can be purchased at the festival or by contacting St. Nicholas at 332-8200.

AUTO

This is a vehicle you can feel good about owning; it's capable of meeting the cargo-carrying needs of most crossover owners, and at the same time, it provides the passenger space and comfort of a midsize sedan.

Chevy Equinox scores in value, performance and fuel economy

By Russ Heaps

If you're shopping for a small crossover, or even if you're looking for a fuel-efficient small sedan, visit your Chevy dealer and ask to drive the redesigned Equinox, and prepare to be impressed. This isn't a vehicle GM slapped together in a cynical effort to have a horse (any horse) in the small-crossover race; this is a carefully bred horse-engineered to dominate the race. This is a crossover designed to cause Toyota RAV4s and Honda CR-V's sleepless nights. It's that good.

This is a vehicle you can feel good about owning; it's capable of meeting the cargo-carrying needs of most crossover owners, and at the same time, it provides the passenger space and comfort of a midsize sedan.

Here are words you'll rarely hear from a card-carrying, pedal-to-the-metal, performance-is-everything automotive journalist: The lower-horsepower 4-cylinder model is the one to buy. Heavens, did I just write that? I may never get work in this industry again.

The base Equinox engine is a peppy, torquey 172-horsepower, 2.4-liter, 4-cylinder engine. It's all the engine most drivers will need. It accelerates smoothly and relatively quietly. It steps away from the line with enthusiasm when the light goes green. Once at speed, it has the guts to immediately react to a downshift and blast past slower traffic without complaint.

A 6-speed automatic transmission hands off engine output to the front wheels. Shifting smoothly, the tranny makes the most of the hardworking 4-banger.

As satisfying as this four's aggressiveness is, what really sells it is its fuel economy. The EPA estimates its mileage at 22 mpg in the city and a whopping 32 mpg on the highway.

The little Versa on loan from Honda that shared my driveway with the Equinox for a week has an estimated EPA number of 31 mpg on the highway. So even if you're considering a small econobox to stretch your fuel dollar, the 4-cylinder Equinox, with its extra cargo-carrying capacity, is a makesense alternative.

Springing for the extra $1,750 to add all-wheel drive drops the fuel economy numbers to 20 mpg in the city and 29 mpg on the highway.

Available as a $1,500 option on all but the $23,360 base LS edition is a 264-hp, 3-liter V6 that also uses the 6-speed automatic tranny. Its fuel economy is a decent, but less impressive 17 mpg in the city and 25 mpg on the highway. AWD reduces the highway number by 1 mpg.

The other trim levels are the 1LT, 2LT and LTZ. My test Equinox was a $26,190 4-cylinder FWD 2LT.

MacPherson struts in front and a multi-link arrangement in the rear comprise the core of the four-wheel independent suspension. The ride is pliant and passenger friendly. Not engineered for sporty handling, this suspension still provides better-than-average cornering for a crossover.

Seventeen-inch alloy wheels are standard on every Equinox. Opting for the V6 bumps wheel size to 18-inch alloys. Disc brakes at all four wheels, are supervised by an antilock system. Related safety features include traction control, stability control, emergency braking assist and electronic brakeforce distribution.

In addition to the somewhat rounder and softer exterior lines delivered by this year's redesign, Equinox also benefits from a complete interior makeover. A roomy passenger area provides space for five adults.

The available 2-tone color scheme looks rich and upscale. Determined that passengers experience a quiet environment, Chevrolet beefed up the sound-deadening insulation, as well as installing noise-canceling technology. From any seating position, the Equinox feels like a more expensive vehicle than it is.

The 63.7 cubic inches of total cargo space is about average for this segment. Accessing it is made easier by the rear opening's low liftover. When not folded down, the sliding-reclining 60/40 split rear seat can slide back to create more rear-seat legroom, or slide forward to enhance the 31.4 cubic feet of luggage capacity.

A programmable power liftgate that can be set to raise at different heights to prevent the rear hatch from hitting anything when opened inside a structure is optional.

At first blush, the instrument panel looks capable of launching the space shuttle. The busy array of knobs, switches, controls and displays could give Mr. Spock pause.

But everything operates intuitively. Full power accessories, a tilt-telescoping steering wheel, air conditioning, six airbags, cruise control, and 6-speaker audio system with CD player, satellite radio and auxiliary input jack are standard on every Equinox. OnStar is also included on the base crossover, with a one-year subscription to its Safe and Sound service.

My test 2LT also had Bluetooth, remote start, redundant steering wheel-mounted audio controls, USB connectivity for the upgraded Pioneer 8-speaker audio system, 8-way power-adjustable driver's seat, rearview camera and an auto-dimming rearview mirror.

Regardless of the ruler used to measure Equinox, the result is positive. In performance, fuel economy, comfort and value, it scores impressively.

The small-crossover segment is crowded and filled with competent performers. To stand out, a vehicle must exceed expectations in several areas, and Equinox does just that.

Infiniti's G37 convertible can brighten your day

By David Schmidt
Journal Register News Service

Did you just after a Nissan Z, to those many years ago in high school?

Have you recently gone and sat in the new Z, but find yourself feeling just a bit foolish? But proud you got right in and out of it without grunting?

There's a car for you, my friend: the Infiniti G Convertible. OK, there's also a coupe, but the car was designed from the start to be both a coupe and a roadster with a metal hat to make it both. So the lines of the car don't suffer, nor do the lines of the roof.

I'm a fan of Infiniti — and parent Nissan's — design philosophies. More importantly, I'm a fan of their designers. Compared to other manufacturers, they seem to catch the essence of what they're designed for and who's meant to respond emotionally to the car or truck.

In the case of the G Convertible, it should light your fire if you identified with the questions at the beginning of this story. This is all sports car, with plenty of aggressive lines and shapes. But it's not adolescent. This is capability in a silk suit, not the clown with the shaved head and tats bursting out of his Men's Wearhouse suit. This is "shaken, not stirred," as opposed to "pop-top."

This car starts with a stable and capable platform. In various forms, it's the "Z" as well as various versions of the G37 Sedan and this drop-top's sibling G Coupe. But the Convertible is a new design from the windshield back. This lets engineers add the structural bracing to counter the rigidity loss when the top is gone.

You also get a slightly wider rear track, which gives you a bit more room for the folded roof, and also improves handling when you add in the modified rear suspension. Frankly, this means the G Convertible can pretty much keep up with its coupe brother, something you usually give up when opting for a drop-top.

The convertible version also gets a slightly different interior, with a very effective wind deflector and seats that, with the optional Bose audio system, includes personal speakers or the upper corners of the climate-control seats.

For 2010, the G Convertible gets a white color scheme for the gauges and LCD instrument display to offset the extra brightness when the top's down.

The model I tested was the G Convertible, and for those interested in pushing the performance envelope, it had the Sport 6MT sport-tuned steering and larger sport brakes, along with 19-inch aluminum-alloy wheels and W-rated performance tires. There's also a bunch of premium features that you must add to the base convertible.

The powerplant is also a great piece of work. It's a variable valve 3.7-liter V6 engine that produces 325 hp. You can choose either a 7-speed automatic transmission with manual shifting or a nice close-ratio 6-speed manual transmission.

My favorite design element of this car is that it looks as good with the top up as it does when down. That's tough to do, but with this car planned from the point of initial drawings, the need for good looks was built in. To put the top down, you have to make certain that there's nothing in the way in the trunk, in which case the tops goes smoothly and quickly up or down.

If you forget about things being in the way in the trunk, you might wind up with the roof stuck straight up on Los Angeles' Sunset Boulevard. Please don't tell Infiniti I did that, as this is just a hypothetical explanation of things that can go wrong.

Naturally, in a car of this class, there are plenty of technological goodies, beginning with the optional Bose Open Air Sound System, which changes equalization of the sound after considering the outside noise, vehicle speed and whether the top is open. It works reasonably well, although when the top's down, I'm not all that concerned about what the stereo sounds like.

There's also adaptive climate

This is all sports car, with plenty of aggressive lines and shapes. But it's not adolescent. This is capability in a silk suit.

control that takes the top's position into consideration and adjusts fan speed to compensate.

I'm a sucker for a rear backup camera, and the Infiniti has one of the best, with an image in the center console's screen that looks like a digital photograph. The wipers are rain-sensing, adaptive cruise control not only keeps you a set distance from the car in front, but will start braking and tighten seatbelts if things start to go wrong. Eventually, this feature will make it to all vehicles, because the safety improvement over depending only on drivers is so vast.

Infiniti's always gotten high praise for their navigation systems, and this new generation has better graphics and a more sensible means of setting destinations. It includes real-time weather if you've got the satellite radio. The audio system has many means of getting sound into the air, including Bluetooth and USB input.

Most importantly, when you drive this car you feel good, top up or down. The interior is comfortable and reasonably spacious for two people.

There's not a lot of trunk space, especially if you plan on putting the top down, but that's forgivable when you hit the road on a beautiful sunny day.

If you feel like throwing the car around a bit, it perks up and joins in the fun, taking corners nicely flat, while still eating up much of the road surface's slight imperfections. There's plenty of power, and playing with the gears on the automatic or doing what comes naturally with the manual is rewarding not only with regards to driving pleasure, but with sounds, which are pretty thrilling considering they're coming from a 6-cylinder.

Will you confuse this with a Ferrari? Nope. With a Porsche or BMW? Maybe. More than you'd expect, in any case.

The most important element of this car is that it isn't a foot-to-the-floor, eyes-bleeding monster performer; it's a high performance tourer. It does "cool" quite well, with a great deal of performance that still doesn't require you to be uncomfortable all the time because of how harsh the ride must be to accomplish truly blistering performance.

Most importantly, you have the sun and the wind to improve whatever the day's drive brings you. And isn't that a two-seat convertible's primary purpose?

If you have any questions, comments or ideas, please send them to comments@AutoWritersLink.com.

Will Nissan Sentra be able to haul a canoe?

Q: I want to haul a canoe on my new Nissan Sentra without scratching the paint or permanently mounting some sort of roof rack.

What's the best way to do this safely and securely? I was given the canoe and haven't had any experience with these things. Thank you.

— Donna

A: The good news is that you should easily be able to haul a canoe on your car without doing any cosmetic damage.

There are many detachable roof racks available that fit most vehicles and are designed to mount canoes. Your best bet is to go to an outdoors outfitter store rather than a big-box chain, however.

ASK DR. CRANKSHAFT

Les Jackson

While the chains carry a number of low-priced roof racks, you won't get good advice on which is best for your car. The outfitter store staff will be familiar with canoes and will be far more capable of selecting the right rack for your Sentra. These racks usually sit on rubber feet, so you'll want to make sure the roof surface is spotlessly clean before allowing the rubber feet to rest there.

The staff at the outfitter store will also be able to show you the safest way to secure the canoe so that it won't cause problems at highway speeds.

Q: My BMW won't start. When I put in the key, nothing happens at all. It locks and unlocks the car and turns in the ignition, but nothing turns on and the starter doesn't crank. The car's battery is fully charged and it ran fine until a couple days ago. Now the whole thing is "dead." What should I look at first before calling a tow truck? Thanks.

—Rick in Baltimore, Md.

A: It appears that your immobilizer system might be sensing that the key doesn't belong to the car. Try your spare key first. If the car starts and runs properly, it means that the transponder in the bad key has failed.

Your keys actually broadcast a security code to the car's electrical system. If your original key has been damaged or has failed in some other way, it will be useless in the future.

Be prepared to pay a substantial amount for a replacement key.

Q: The rear tire treads on my car are cupped and scalloped looking. The edges are sort of sharpened to an edge like a knife. The local shop says that my struts are bad and they'll cost about $400 to replace.

I'd like to know if the struts can cause this problem or if it might be the tires themselves. The car has 81,000 miles on it and the tires have only been on for about 10,000 miles.

—Amy in Pottstown, Pa.

A: Assuming that your tires weren't rotated from the front axle, I'd say that the struts could easily cause the cupping and "feathered" edges you're seeing.

If the tires came from the front axle, they most likely wore that way because of improper alignment, but if they've only been on the rear, and previous tires didn't wear that way, then the symptoms point to worn struts.

How to step in financially for an elder

No one wants to give up control of his or her life. That's true for someone who's 20 or 80.

But if you sense an older relative is slowing down, or if a serious illness is threatening the finances of any loved one, it's time to fashion a battle plan.

A good first step is a financial planner — a financial expert with the experience to step into a tense situation and help you create a system for locating key information so you can make the necessary critical decisions.

Of course, the best way to set up a system is to work with the relative before there's a problem or in the early stages of illness.

Yeo & Yeo provides the following suggestions:

Understand the relative's condition and strike a cooperative balance. The first step in helping someone in a crisis is not to talk about the money but to understand the crisis.

Before talking about money issues, do everything possible to understand how they're feeling and, most important, how they want to handle family work and money issues at each stage of their illness.

It's not unreasonable for someone to want to keep control until the point when they really have to give up the reins. Get them to talk about what they believe will be triggers for them to give up control, and then find out how they would like to proceed and formulate a transition plan.

Talk about legal documents. Does this parent, relative or friend have a will and necessary health directives in place?

Health directives name a single individual to manage all key health decisions if a patient cannot make them.

A will can contain a variety of directions, depending on assets and lifestyle situation — if the relative has kids to raise or a business to run, for example.

Check to see what detailed legal instructions they have in place to manage their finances or run their business if they are incapacitated.

BIZ MATTERS

And if those plans have not been made, they need to be made immediately with the help of a financial planning professional and necessary tax and legal experts.

An individual who is ill needs to designate trusted people to handle health and personal finance decisions. But if your relative has not planned for the future of the family business, that is a third and very detailed step that needs to be addressed in collaboration with other family members as well as key co-workers or executives.

Talk about long-term care provisions. According to the American Association of Retired Persons, the average nursing home stay is 2.5 years. Whether an individual chooses long-term care in the home or in a facility it's important to understand that while some direct medical expenses will be covered by private insurance, Medicare or Medicaid, most of the cost including daily living expenses will not.

Get a handle on bills and other key financial events. It's not the most pleasant dinner table conversation, but if more people planned their affairs with the assumption that they could die or become permanently incapacitated tomorrow, survivors would have a much easier time running or settling matters in their absence.

Such planning goes beyond having simple wills and powers of attorney in an easy-to-find location. It makes good sense to establish the following:

Electronic transactions: Older relatives tend to trust traditional means of paying bills, but automatic bill pay is an extraordinary benefit for caregivers or relatives charged with managing someone else's finances.

By gathering all bills that need to be paid and programming in their payment dates, there's little or no risk that any regular bills will be paid late.

Automatic bill payment should be one of the first decisions made if an elderly relative establishes a joint checking account with a caregiver or whoever holds their financial power of attorney.

Also, if a relative wants to continue a regular savings or investment plan while they are incapacitated, those payments can be made as well. Most important — once those automatic transactions are set up, all the security codes and passwords must be kept in a safe place for both to access.

Set up a home maintenance schedule: If the relative is hoping to return to the home or if it must be sold at a later date to pay bills or to settle the estate, it must be maintained to assure its value at the time it needs to be reoccupied or sold.

Set up a correspondence system. In addition to the stress of helping someone who's ill or incapacitated, the sheer amount of paperwork associated with a serious illness can shake the most unflappable person.

Again, a financial planning professional with special skills working with elderly clients can help you set up a system for collecting and sorting that information as well as non-medical financial correspondence.

If the house is unoccupied, it's also important that there is a way to keep mail secure to avoid identity theft — buy a shredder for all mailed materials that don't need to be filed.

Pull credit reports: Get permission from your relative to pull the three annual credit reports they are entitled to during the year so you can confirm all accounts are current and that identity thieves haven't hit them.

Busch's Market marks 35-year anniversary

Local grocer Busch's Fresh Food Market will celebrate its 35th anniversary with a weeklong extravaganza that started May 31 and runs through Sunday.

Activities for children and adults are planned throughout the week at each of its 15 Michigan stores, culminating in a 35th anniversary store-wide party Saturday and Sunday.

"We're going all out to show our gratitude to our community, which has supported us for the past 35 years," said John Busch, co-owner and CEO of Busch's Fresh Food Market, in a news release.

The Busch's story began 35 years ago in 1975 when John's father, Joe Busch, and business partner, Charlie Mattis, acquired two Vesco's Foods stores in Clinton and Saline and renamed them J&C Family Foods.

When Joe retired in 1986, sons John, Doug and Tim took over. Under their guidance, Busch's has grown into the 15-store, privately held, independent supermarket chain that it is today. Busch's stores now employ more than 1,700 associates.

Busch's Marketing Director Kim Brown says, that contests, giveaways, free samples and 35th anniversary-themed sales specials will mark the festivities all week at the stores.

"When customers walk into a Busch's during this event, they'll definitely know that something special is happening," said Brown.

"And not only will it be a lot of fun for each family member, but they'll also be able to save money on their shopping trip as well."

Among the activities planned is the Summer Salad Recipe Contest, in which guests submit an original and unique recipe for a deli salad.

One winner will receive an Ecolution Artistry eight-piece cookware set, and the winning recipe will join the Busch's Deli all-star salad squad and will be available in all Busch's stores. Three runners-up will win a $25 Busch's gift card. Recipes may be submitted in store or via e-mail to recipecontest@buschs.com.

For the kids, a 35th anniversary coloring contest will be held and each entry rewarded with a complimentary treat from the Busch's bakery.

Coloring pages featuring Busch's 35th anniversary logo will be available for kids to pick up at the service desk, and completed pictures will be hung up in stores as part of the celebration. On Sunday, a drawing of all entrants will be held for three prize baskets.

Also during the anniversary week, a variety of vendor demonstrations and free food samples will be available at various store departments including Busch's deli, bakery, produce and dairy departments.

In addition, through Sunday, select items throughout the store will be featured in a 35th Anniversary "Buy One, Get One for 35 cents" sale.

Finally, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Busch's will host a birthday party complete with complimentary Busch's signature cake samples. There also will be free Busch's giveaways upon entering each store while supplies last.

Angerer Honored by Autism Group

House Majority Floor Leader Kathy Angerer, D-55th District, was honored April 27 by Autism Insurance in Michigan for her effort and advocacy in support of children with autism and their families at the Capitol. Angerer championed legislation, which has passed the House of Representatives, that requires healthcare companies to cover autism treatments to ensure that children with autism receive the quality care they need and can reach their full potential. At the event, Angerer presented AIM officials with the resolution she sponsored to recognize April as Autism Awareness Month in Michigan.

Preservationists honored

The Legacy Land Conservancy has named the Waterloo Hunt Club and Charity Steere as its Preservationists of the Year for 2010.

The annual Preservationist of the Year award honors people who exemplify the conservation ethic in their work and personal lives.

The first award recipient, Waterloo Hunt Club, is one of the few remaining hunt clubs in Michigan.

The club has a 40-year heritage of hunting on the public lands surrounding their club in Waterloo Township.

They have consistently and actively worked to preserve this natural area - from hosting Earth Day clean-ups that remove tons of debris from the park to raising money among the equestrian community.

Nearly 100 percent of their members have contributed to Legacy Land Conservancy's Waterloo Fund.

On the policy level, Waterloo Hunt Club members' many letters helped persuade the Natural Resources Trust Fund to invest in Waterloo.

Along with participants from various user groups, Hunt Club representatives took part in Department of Natural Resources meetings to determine how all could best coexist in a multi-user park.

"The Waterloo Hunt Club looks beyond its own interests to support land protection in a way that serves the larger community," said Susan Lackey, executive director of the Legacy Land Conservancy, in a news release.

Robert Tetens, president of Legacy Land Conservancy's board, said that the second award recipient, Charity Steere, is "that rare volunteer who is willing to do it all."

The award, Tetens said, came as a surprise to Steere.

"We didn't give Charity any warning, because we knew that if we told her ahead of time, she'd tell us to honor someone else," said Tetens.

Steere not only serves on the Conservancy's board of directors, she also volunteers for nearly every Conservancy workday.

She was instrumental in the creation of the Conservancy's Forever Fund endowment, which will ensure money is available to protect lands well into the future.

She played a key role in extending the geographic scope of the Conservancy, working with the Jackson County planning committee and board of commissioners to establish a farmland protection ordinance and then serving on the committee that implements it.

"Thanks to Charity's near-legendary tenacity, Waterloo is now criss-crossed with designated natural beauty roads that remind visitors to look around them - and help make sure the peace of the area isn't marred in the future," said Tetens.

With the support of the Waterloo Hunt Club and the Legacy Land Conservancy, MDNR will soon add an additional 33 new acres to the Waterloo Recreation Area. That makes 142 acres added in 2010 alone.

An additional 238 acres are under consideration for protection this year.

SPEECH

all over the world, we live in a land that is truly blessed.

Sure we have our religious and political differences, and except for the great Civil War, we were able to solve most of these problems with town meetings, legislature or the ballot box.

When our government is spoken of as some menacing or threatening entity it is often conveniently ignored that our democracy and our government is us - it's all of us.

We the people hold in our hands the power to choose our leaders, change our laws and shape our destiny. The practice of listening to opposing views is essential. Effective leadership is based on this.

We must actively seek our information that challenges our assumptions and our beliefs. We can then begin to understand where people who disagree with us are coming from and find common solutions that move our nation forward.

When we fail to educate ourselves and don't choose to make our voices and opinions heard democracy breaks down.

As citizens each of us can make a difference and citizen involvement is what makes this country great.

Are you contacting your leaders? Are you volunteering when your fellow man needs your help?

The things our soldiers fight to defend we tend to take for granted: freedom of speech, peaceful assembly, the right to bear arms, good police and fire, our abundance of clean water, 24 hour electric service and telephones that actually work.

These are examples of things that we have that many other countries do not. We as Americans (have) our strong spirit to help other countries develop democracy so that they can enjoy our wonderful way of life.

But the war has changed through the years. As we have moved from bronze swords to long bows, to muskets and machine guns, our tactics have changed. Our enemies no longer fight us face to face. They even don't make themselves known.

Our brave service people have the task of sorting out the innocent civilians from foes who would do us harm.

Benjamin Franklin said, "he who sacrifices freedom for security deserves neither."

The attack on Sept. 11, 2001 caused us to lose some of our fundamental freedoms. But tomorrow's veterans are putting their lives on the line to restore those freedoms and efforts and through the support they receive from great towns like Chelsea, we can have the security and freedom that makes our country the envy of the world.

We as a society thank our veterans for protecting the United States of America and the greatest nation on this Earth.

God bless you and God bless America.

House passes Byrnes' anti-bullying proposal

In an effort to keep Michigan students safe at school, the Michigan House of Representatives recently passed a plan sponsored by state Rep. Pam Byrnes, D-Dist.

Byrnes

named after an East Lansing student who committed suicide

52, requiring schools to adopt a policy banning harassment or bullying. "Matt's Safe School Law," after being bullied, is intended to create a safe learning environment for all Michigan students.

"No child should have to go to school terrified of what other students may do to them," Byrnes said. "Our students deserve a learning environment free of fear, where they can get a top-notch education and work toward a bright future. This plan will help raise awareness about the devastating effects of bullying and ensure that our schools have proper policies in place to protect our kids and prevent needless tragedies."

Bullying is a widespread problem. Nearly a third of students between the ages 12 to 18 reported having been "bullied during the school year in 2007, according to data compiled by the National Center for Education Statistics. Matt Epling, 14, committed suicide in 2002 after being hazed by older students. The suicide of a 16-year-old in Cadillac in February 2009 was also linked to bullying.

"The time has long passed for the Michigan Legislature to act on anti-bullying legislation," Matt's father Kevin Epling said. "Thousands of children and parents have been asking for help, and in that time we've lost additional students who needed our help."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Memorial Day still a tradition in Chelsea

It is great that the traditions of Chelsea still exist today for a great moment to remember our men and women who have and who are still serving and sacrificing for the United States and what our great nation stands for.

I consider myself fortunate to have taken part in many of those parades as a member of the Cub Scouts, Boy Scouts, and the high school band. I hope Chelsea and the citizens never lose track of those great traditions and memories and respect for those who sacrificed

all so that we have what we have today

One of the greatest was the blowing of Taps and the echo from the other side of the cemetery, what a great moment. God bless America.

Bob Keezer
Chelsea

Imagine a better world

Imagine what downtown Chelsea would look like if we spent a billion dollars a day there. It's an exercise in fantasy to be sure, but each and every day, we spend billions of dollars on foreign oil. What would happen if we spent that money creating jobs here, instead of helping prop up unfriendly regimes overseas?

For one, we'd be a lot healthier. Our communities are suffering from the consequences of using dirty energy owned by corporations that aren't concerned about the health of our children or our planet. Instead, we need to invest in clean, renewable energy sources like wind turbines and solar panels and we need to invest in technologies that will improve energy efficiency. Smart energy policies can create up to 1.9 million jobs nationwide. Our communities deserve nothing less.

Alpha Metal weathers economy

By Bob Wood
Guest Writer

Tucked away on a side street in Dexter is Alpha Metal Finishing Company. Although not as visible as a storefront business, the 34-year-old anodizing and chromate conversion business has endured the ups and downs of the economy and the throes of a competitive market. But the business just didn't rise up out of the dust - it took the imagination, skill and drive of entrepreneur Bob Wood.

Wood, 70, started Alpha Metal Finishing Company on a loan from a family member in 1976 and put his engineering background and skill set to work. In the early days of his entrepreneurial journey, Wood identified that technology was only part of the business. What would drive the business from the beginning, and sustain it, was by providing quality product with timely delivery. And, the backbone to these core values is an exceptional customer experience.

"Over the years, we have won the trust and loyalty of our customers because of our core values," Wood said. "Never losing sight of what put us on this journey is what drives the business today. I am grateful to our customers who have remained loyal all these years."

"The future is bright because Alpha Metal will continue to push forward despite the economy."

Alpha Metal Finishing Company is a custom, aluminum finishing company with more than 30 years of experience in custom aluminum anodizing and chromate conversion. Alpha's personalized service and knowledgeable staff ensure consistent high quality results. Other offerings include: high volume and job shop finishing services; lot tracking, testing and statistical process data for products requiring process traceability; and ancillary services such as special packaging for automated assembly and assembly of product.

Mack delivers laughs

The Chelsea District Library's second annual Comedy Showcase continues with a performance by Mary Mack today.

Weird, eclectic, strange and hilariously odd, Mary's endearing stage presence, sing-song child-like voice and off-kilter musical surprises stems from her background as a former music teacher and polka bandleader, "the library said in a press release.

Mack and her mandolin sing-alongs have been featured on the nationally syndicated Bob and Tom Radio Show, XM Satellite's National Lampoon's Comedy Network, and Minnesota's Polka Spotlight. After winning the 2005 California's Funniest Female Contest, she went on to appear in the Vancouver Comedy Fest in 2007 and HBO's Andy Kaufman Awards, and will have her

'Virgins' get downright dirty at Chelsea Community Gardens

By Alana West
Special Writer

In a clever self-marketing ploy, a new gardening club in Chelsea is starting to gain attention. "Seven dirty virgins and a hoe" is a club for women that is dedicated to teaching "newbies" the ins and outs of gardening.

Club member Janice Ortring came up with the catchy name. The club's original goal was to obtain seven members so that each day of the week they would have someone working at their garden plot. So far the club has 10 members but kept the name understanding that membership can fluctuate.

The club's mission is to grow vegetables that are cooked by the Yellow Door, a weekly fundraising breakfast at the Ortrings house that raises money for the Chelsea Community Kitchen. The breakfast takes place on Thursdays. Information can be found at <http://meetatyellowdoor.blogspot.com>.

"We want to fund cooking space for entrepreneurs who want to try out a recipe and make it into a business," Angie O'Neill said.

Local chefs take turns preparing breakfasts at the Yellow Door. When Craig Common of the Common Grill was the chef, the breakfast raised about $1,000. Usually the proceeds generate $400 to $500.

"When Janice suggested the idea for the gardening group, no one really jumped at it because they knew what a lot of work it was. They said if we could find someone to do it, fine. Everyone who signed up for the garden club were not a part of the Yellow Door," O'Neill said. "The first week we sent out e-mails to recruit, and we had 10 members."

She said she and Ortring also approached friends and family about joining the club.

"It was April when we started, and we had to learn how to till the land. Some of us learned to use the rototiller. We prepared the rows and had a meeting," O'Neill said.

Garden club members include Ortring, O'Neill, Beth Leissner, Denise Alekseev, Jen Alford, Jessica Graulich, Nichole Warriner, Krisha Fansler, Janet Kuras and Heather Hopkins.

None of the group has ever gardened before. The group also has a gardening mentor known only as "Mully," who is also the "hoe" in the garden club title. "Mully" doesn't do any gardening for the group, but instead dishes out gardening advice.

The vegetables cooked at the Yellow Door are already planted in the garden and include pea pods, beans, tomatoes, lettuce, carrots, cucumbers, beets, onions, Swiss chard, broccoli, cabbage, pumpkins, kale, and many herbs, including basil, rosemary, hot peppers, parsley, dill and cilantro.

"We are also going to plant lemon grass and zucchini, and butternut squash," O'Neill said.

The breakfasts at the Yellow Door are non-traditional fare, and could include a menu of grass-fed roast beef, or omelets with vegetables.

"There is so much nutrition in vegetables, so we want to incorporate more vegetable dishes," O'Neill said. "The asparagus soup has gotten rave reviews. We make a lot of things with fresh vegetables; they're a big hit."

The group decided to cut supermarket costs for the vegetables and grow their own.

"If we grow our own food, we won't be spending so much on food for the actual breakfast," O'Neill said. "The plan is that all the vegetables go to the Yellow Door. If we have a surplus, maybe other veggies go to other charities."

She suggested that the group might also learn how to preserve the harvest for use at the

The garden club works in two garden plots owned by Chelsea Community Gardens.

So far, the group has been working together to get everything planted, but after all the seeds are in the ground, each member will volunteer for one day of the week.

"My day is Friday," O'Neill said. "We'll be working on maintenance."

She said that because they have 10 members in the group, they can plan for two people to go every day to the garden.

"We blog about our experiences and share them. We check in with each other, and others can check it out too if they want to know about our experiences. We have a lot of vegetables," O'Neill said.

The workshop is presented in partnership with the Chelsea District Library, Community Foundation of Southeast Michigan and the River Gallery.

U.S. Coast Guard Seaman Apprentice Mikala B. Garland, daughter of Sherelyn and Mark Garland of Gregory, recently graduated from the U.S. Coast Guard Recruit Training Center in Cape May, N.J.

During the eight-week training program, Garland completed a rigorous curriculum consisting of academics and practical instruction on water safety and survival, military customs and courtesies, seamanship skills, first aid, fire fighting and marksmanship. A major emphasis is also placed on physical fitness, health and wellness.

Garland and other recruits also received instruction on the Coast Guard's core values

Sounds and Sights returns for summer

Submitted photo

Matt Watroba performs at the 2009 Sounds and Sights concert series in Chelsea.

Chelsea's popular summer music series, Sounds and Sights on Thursday Nights is expanding in 2010 with more music, food choices and a new partner. The weekly event runs every Thursday from June 17 through August 26, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m.

Activities include eight music stages, children's entertainers, and other attractions performing simultaneously in the downtown area. The series is the combined effort of the Sounds and Sights Committee, the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, the Chelsea Center for the Arts, and the downtown merchants. The event is sponsored by the Chelsea Downtown Development Authority with support from Chelsea State Bank and Chelsea Milling Co.

In addition to musical performances, there are a variety of children's attractions and activities including face painters, jugglers and magicians. Returning for 2010 is the "SculptureWalk Chelsea," a self-guided walking tour featuring 10 juried art pieces, which are part of a year-long community arts project sponsored by the DDA.

The River Gallery in Chelsea is the project manager with support from Chelsea Center for the Arts and the City of Chelsea.

Also returning in 2010 is the SRSly Cinema free outdoor movies at dusk. After Sounds and Sights, films are shown on a 48-foot wide screen at the clocktower complex with lawn seating and refreshments available.

The film scheduled for opening night is "The Blind Side" starring Sandra Bullock.

New for this year is an expanded variety of food choices including selections from Cleary's Pub, Jet's Pizza, Mike's Deli, Sietz's Tavern, and Zou. Zou's Cafe. East Middle Street will be closed to accommodate a stage and food vendors.

"We once again have an amazing line up of talent this year," said event co-organizer Craig Common. "It's always difficult to select acts from our auditions. We try to bring back some favorites from the year before and still add some new talent. It's also important that we have a strong representation from the area and we try some new things."

One of the new things is the adoption of the Chelsea Summer Fest for Sounds and Sights. The event is now called the Sounds and Sights Festival and with a third night added, runs from July 29 to 31.

"It made sense from so many perspectives to do this," Common said. "We can market under one umbrella and tap into each other's volunteer base. This will eventually grow the weekend event."

The 2010 music line up for Sounds and Sights features a broad spectrum of music from Celtic, folk and blue grass, to jazz, classical and country. There are also a number of new Chelsea-based groups and individuals giving the series a local flavor. Some of the more well-known performers include local folk favorite Matt Watroba, the blue grass sounds of Bill Bynum and Company, Annie and Rod Capps, and Kitty Donohoe, along with popular local acts such as Bull Halsey, The Dorkestra, and teen sensations the Clean Beats, among others.

The "open mic" stage will return to a new stage at the clocktower lot.

"We added this last year to give local musicians that were not booked a chance to be able to be a part of the event and perform in front of an audience," Common said. "A few of those that performed last year were actually booked this year as part of our lineup."

Bob Pierce, executive director of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, said other communities have begun to host similar events.

"We're seeing more and more communities follow our model for this type of event," Pierce said. "Thursday night is becoming the new Friday night and this has become a great boost for our community and local merchants, while at the same time supporting local arts."

Stage locations will be placed throughout the downtown area from the clocktower complex to the library. Covered stage areas will be located at key spots on both main and side streets. South and East Middle streets will be blocked off to accommodate covered stages and food stations. Kids activities will fill in between the entertainers.

"We're all proud to be a part of this collaboration for the community, the local businesses, and the Chelsea Center for the Arts," Common said. "This community continues to embrace and support the arts, even as we recover from the recent tough economic times. Our generous sponsors have made it possible for our group to continue to bring first class entertainment to Chelsea."

Most downtown retail businesses have committed to stay open late through the extent of the summer series. Confirmed music acts for the Sounds and Sights Festival include: Ben Daniels Band, Champions of Breakfast and My Dear Disco, the Howling Diablos and The SunMessengers and NoteWorthy and Fifty Amp Fuse. There will also be a large classic car show, the Chelsea Teddy Bear KidZone, and more. For more information, call 1-734-433-2787, or visit www.chelseafestivals.com.

A NOTICE TO ALL FELLOW CITIZENS: WE'RE LENDING.

THE WHEELS OF COMMERCE ARE SLOWLY TURNING. As a good bank, we're out there, helping them pick up speed. In other words, we're lending. We're lending because that is what a bank is supposed to do. In fact, it's the whole idea behind banking. When a business pays back a loan, we can invest in another business. We're lending because businesses can quickly turn into ever more successful enterprises and we believe in facilitating that growth. We're lending because lending makes businesses stronger, and the communities we live in stronger. (And we live here, too.) That's why we're lending. REGIONAL FEATURE: SALINE AD ROB WHITE IS OVERSEEING A STATE POWER, PAGE 3B

'Kelly's Heroes'

Fournier's goal in double OT knocks out Dexter

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

Often times, historical moments are special more because of the fight and struggle to reach them than the actual accomplishment.

Chelsea's dramatic and was it ever dramatic - double-overtime victory Tuesday against longtime nemesis Dexter was one for the history books. It was the first time the Bulldogs had beaten the Dreadnaughts in a state playoff game.

The Bulldogs will forever remember the victory but the way in which they won this game should never become a mere footnote. The struggle and fight and dedication is what made this game a landmark victory. Chelsea took a 2-0 lead in the first-round district game at Dexter only to see the Dreads come storming back to take a 3-2 lead in the second half.

The Bulldogs knew this wasn't going to be easy and the talented Dreads turned up the heat with three unanswered goals in the second half.

Chelsea never seemed fazed. The Bulldogs kept coming and eventually tied the game to force overtime. No one in the building was surprised that the winner of this game wasn't decided in 90 minutes.

After a scoreless first 15-minute overtime, the Bulldogs finally ended things just 2:06 away from going to a shootout to decide the winner.

Chelsea's 4-3 win makes the Bulldogs a heavy favorite to win the District. They play at 3:30 p.m. today at home against the winner of the Tecumseh-Adrian game. Chelsea has beaten both teams this season.

With a shootout looming, Chelsea's Cara Johnson took a few steps with the ball at midfield before letting go a long pass down the right side of the field. The speedy Kelly Fournier got to the ball first and beat a Dexter defender just inside the 18-yard box.

Sara Dixon gets a kick out of hearing her mother's encouragement before a Chelsea softball game in which Sara is catching and her twin sister, Kaley, is pitching.

"My mother always says things like, 'wonder twin powers activate,' or 'let's go Dixon chicks.' And that's exactly how our relationship is. It's how we work together in order for us both to succeed."

Both girls have been doing a lot of succeeding lately. And so have the Bulldogs, who have become one of the elite teams in the area. They do it with speed at the top of the order, timely hitting, strong defense and outstanding pitching from Kaley and sophomore Taylor Hansen.

Sara admits and accepts that the pressure is mainly on the pitcher. But as Kaley's catcher and sister, she knows how to take some of that pressure off her, allowing her to focus on reaching the ultimate goal - and that's winning games.

"I know that she has a ton more pressure on the mound," Sara says. "But in order to settle her down, I have to be the supporting actor and make pitches look like strikes. Every pitcher should know that there are two sides to this story because without the catcher the pitch would be nothing."

No one grasps that more than Kaley. "It's pretty awesome to pitch to Sara because she is an amazing catcher and she really helps motivate me and helps me when I'm struggling," Kaley said. "I mean we have our moments (girls on the softball team can agree to that), but it really is cool to always have her there with me through the good and rough times."

"We have a very strong relationship," Kaley says. "She is my best friend forever. We are going to separate colleges and that is going to be really tough. But I know with the relationship we have we will stay close and it will probably make our relationship stronger."

Sara says their relationship is closer than most. "We were 'wombmates' for months," she says. "We can finish each others sentences and have our own language at times. We still argue like sisters occasionally do, but in the end we are always sitting together and giggling. We love each other."

Kaley was the first to tee it up, playing t-ball, then coach-pitch before playing "real" softball when she 9 years old.

"I started playing because Kaley started and it looked like a ton of fun," says Sara, who joined the team at age 12. "I was shipped to every tournament so I might as well just play because it gave me something to do."

Kaley not only took to the game right away, but also

Girls' track Bulldogs finish first in SEC

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

Despite the heat and some tired legs, the Chelsea girls' track and field team took care of business during Wednesday's Southeastern Conference championship. The Bulldogs, who also went undefeated during dual-meets this year, ran away with the tournament scoring 163 points.

Lincoln was second (129 points) and Dexter third (87).

"We were a very tired team for this meet," Chelsea coach Pat Clarke said. "We used a lot of energy at last week's regional meet and it was hot (Wednesday). Despite this we had some excellent performances. The girls responded, as they have all season, with great determination."

The 800-meter relay team set a school record at 1 minute, 44.2 seconds. The team was made up of Olivia DeTroyer, Christina Coffman, Grace Sauers and Corinne Carpenter.

Senior Katrina Williams continued her fine running with a personal-best time of 48.4 seconds to place second in the

Ace of a day: Chelsea golfers tie for district title

By Terry Jacoby

Chelsea golf coach Joe Ewald summed up his team's performance in last Thursday's district tournament in one word.

"Wow," he said. Yeah, you could say that.

The Bulldogs have been building to a "wow" performance all season and everything clicked last Thursday in a high school Division 2 district golf tournament at Coldwater Golf Course. This district had some talent in it and before the teams teed off Ewald was hoping to take at least sixth and sneak into the regional.

"Our scores would generally be OK on most days, but it was quickly obvious, as the other scores were posted that they were actually pretty good," Ewald said. "In a matter of 20 minutes it went from, we should make it into the top six, to we have a chance to maybe take third or fourth, to wow, we have a chance to win this thing."

In the end, the Bulldogs tied for first place with Coldwater but finished second on a tie-breaker (the fifth-place finisher's score). Chelsea and Coldwater both shot scores of 334 with Battle Creek Harper Creek third with 336 and Dexter fourth at 337.

The top six teams qualify for regionals, which Chelsea is hosting.

"At districts I have to act as an observer and keep score and monitor a group of players (other than my own), so it is difficult to know how the team is doing," Ewald said. "About three-quarters of the way through the round I crossed paths with my team and had enough information that it looked like we were going to get three pretty solid scores if they finished strong, but we may be struggling to get our fourth."

Mason Wagner and Dylan Laidlaw both shot an 81 with Bourke Lodewyk firing an 83. Right on the mark of what Ewald was predicting. Jason Doyle then showed up with an 89 to give the Bulldogs a tie for first.

"Second place is a tremendous accomplishment for our young team (but first would have been incredible)," Ewald said. "It's very satisfying to finish ahead of a number of very good teams and especially the three teams from our league (Tecumseh, Dexter and Adrian) that have beaten us all year and finished ahead of us in the conference."

The regional tournament is today at Calderone Golf Club. The top three teams and top three individuals move on to the state finals.

IV Soccer Report

Bulldogs finish up the season with marked improvement

Dexter 3, Chelsea 0

The Chelsea junior varsity soccer team lost 3-0 to Dexter last Thursday. "Both teams were pretty evenly matched, despite the score," Chelsea coach Kristin Hendricks said. "We played great as a team. I was extremely proud of how the girls played in their final game. They battled with a tough Dexter team." Olivia Rowland, Molly Merkel and Kristen Bokros all played well on defense for the Bulldogs. Anyssa Marsh, Rachel Marks and Hayleigh Zimmerman played a great game on the attacking end. Emma Mathis, Kristen Happala and Maddie Perry played tough despite battling injuries. "They are a great group of girls and were fun to coach this year," Hendricks said. "It was amazing to see the improvements each one of them made as the season progressed."

Chelsea 1, Lincoln 0

Maddie Perry scored on a shot from outside as Chelsea dominated the entire game and had the ball in their half for 95 percent of the game. Hayleigh Zimmerman played a great game at forward. "She played with a lot of heart, which is always great to see as a coach," Hendricks said. Liz Boyce also played well making nice passes up top.

Chelsea 8, Ypsilanti 0

Seven players scored for the Bulldogs. Zoe Proegler scored on a shot from the 18, which was assisted by Amanda Johnson. Maddie Perry scored second after intercepting a goal kick. Gabrielle Lantis scored to make it 3-0. Autumn Johnson buried a shot from beyond the 18 and Rachel Marks scored from the left side to make it 5-0. Katie Kingsley made a great pass across the goal to Anyssa Marsh who drilled a shot by the goalie. Hayleigh Zimmerman finished her shot, which was assisted by Gabrielle Lantis. Perry finished the scoring with an assist by Marks.

Chelsea U-14 teams a big hit early on

It was a great start to the season for both Chelsea boys ICRL U-14 baseball teams as they visited Saline on May 15 for the their first games.

The Chelsea Lightning, led by coaches Rory Kaiser, Michael Purdy and John Easley, had a great first outing against Saline in a 7-4 win. Frank Shanley started the game working three solid innings allowing one run on two hits and two walks while striking out two. Kolten Savery pitched a smooth fourth inning, allowing no runs while walking one and striking out two. Jake LeBlanc followed with two hard pitched innings allowing two runs on three hits and four walks while striking out three.

Craig Reiley pitched the final inning, holding the good Saline team to one run on no hits, two walks and striking out two. The Chelsea Lightning offense was led by Michael Purdy, who went 2-for-2 with one RBI on a fielder's choice and two runs scored and Jake LeBlanc, who went 2-for-3 with one RBI and one run scored. Scott Moore, Zac LeBlanc, Craig Reiley, Ryan Easley and Trevor Branham each had a hit with an RBI.

Kolten Savery and Travis Kaiser both reached base after being hit by pitches. Scott Moore, Zac LeBlanc, Frank Shanley, Paul Heck and Tim Johnson all reached base after being issued walks. The entire team played well on defense, preventing Saline from having any long inning rallies or shifting momentum in their favor.

On May 22, Chelsea beat Saline 8-3. Frank Shanley started on the mound and went three solid innings giving up two runs on two hits and five walks while striking out three. Kolten Savery pitched the next three innings with another great outing giving up one run on three hits and two walks while striking out five. Travis Kaiser closed out the game pitching the final inning giving up no runs allowing one walk while striking out one. The well balanced Lightning offense was led by Scott Moore with two hits, two RBI and two runs scored. Michael Purdy, Frank Shanley, Travis Kaiser, Hunter Phillips, Tim Johnson and Ben Whitesall each had a hit in the win.

On May 26, the Lightning defeated Manchester 16-7 in a time shortened game. Frank Shanley pitched the first 2 1/3 innings giving up 5 runs on 0 hits, 10 walks while striking out 6. Kolten Savery pitched the next 1 1/3 innings giving up 2 runs on 2 hits, 3 walks while striking out 4. Ryan Knight came in to relieve Kolten Savery and pitched the last 1/3 of the 4th inning, facing 1 batter and striking him out on 3 straight pitches, leaving the bases loaded and ending the Manchester rally. Well balanced Lightning offensive stats: Michael Purdy - 2 for 3 with a run scored; Paul Heck - 1 walk with a run scored; Scott Moore - 2 for 3 with 2 runs scored; Craig Reiley - 3 for 3 with 3 RBI and 3 runs scored; Ryan Easley - 1 for 1, 1 walk, 1 hit by pitch, 1 RBI and 2 runs scored; Ryan Knight - 1 for 1, 1 walk, 1 RBI and 2 runs scored; Kolten Savery - 1 for 1, 2 walks, 2 RBI and 2 runs scored; Frank Shanley - 0 for 0, 3 walks, 2 RBI and 2 runs scored; Travis Kaiser - 1 for 2, 1 walk, 3 RBI and 1 run scored; Tim Johnson - 1 for 2, 1 walk and 1 RBI; Mitchell Mills - 1 for 3 with 1 RBI.

took to the mound early on in her career. She needed someone to catch her while practicing. She didn't have to look far.

"I started catching by default," Sara says. "My dad used to catch for my sister in the off-season but he couldn't see what she was doing mechanically and still catch the ball. So he asked me to catch. He had to bribe me to do so with shiny new catcher's gear. When I got back behind the plate it felt so natural. Now I am more comfortable there than anywhere else."

Both girls spend the off-season at camps and working out in an effort to always be better than the day before.

"I have to learn from the best," says Sara when asked about the benefits of attending camps. "I have been to many camps at several universities including U-M, Michigan State, Central Michigan and Alma. Even though I have been doing it for so long there is always something more I can take away each time I go."

Kaley took away a chance to play college softball. It was at the Alma camp that coaches there noticed this pitcher from Chelsea had game. The senior highly recommends this game she loves for kids just starting to play around in sports. "It's fun to get up on a beautiful Saturday and play softball," she said. "The atmosphere of a softball tournament is unlike any other. It's so fun to get up to the plate and be confident to hit the ball over the fence."

She also likes being the one in the center circle.

"I really like the leadership strengths you have to have in order to be one," she says. "And the fact that you are involved in every single play that goes on is one of the reasons I like to pitch."

Sara wouldn't trade that catcher's mask for anything. "Softball is a game not only on the field, but also in your head," she says. "If you play 'the game within the game,' meaning fielding the ball, throwing the ball and staying mentally tough in stressful situations. That is what makes the game fun."

And it's even more fun when you're winning and those "wonder twin powers activate."

REGIONAL FEATURE

Saline Hornets are quickly becoming an athletic powerhouse

By Don Richter
Heritage Newspapers

Four years ago when Saline Athletic Director Rob White arrived for his first day on the job, he said he felt like he was inheriting a program that was ready to reach a new level.

"It (Saline athletic program) was like a prime sports car that was built and ready to be driven," he said. "It was ready to take off."

With three state championships and one state runner-up trophy already this season, the Hornet athletic program has indeed shifted into overdrive. With multiple ranked teams competing this spring in numerous sports, the state title hardware earned by Saline might not stop at three this year.

While this season's athletic teams have excelled at the state level, Hornet squads traditionally have done well against Michigan's best in practically every sport over the years. Throughout its history, Saline has either been state champion or runner-up in 11 of the 18 varsity sports offered by the Michigan High School Athletic Association. The Hornets have won eight state titles and been runner-up 14 times during their rich athletic tradition.

Behind the success

White said multiple factors have contributed to Saline's athletic success.

"It's the coaches, it's the kids, it's the parents and it's the facilities," he said. "Saline has exploded and our numbers are continuing to grow, as are the number of programs we have to offer. In the last four years, we've added boys' lacrosse, field hockey and girls' lacrosse. Our numbers have continued to grow despite having pay-to-play sports. It's amazing."

One Hornet program that has seen enormous growth is track and field. Saline's combined girls' and boys' teams have close to 300 athletes on its rosters. That number is one of the highest, if not the most, in Michigan.

At a recent meet, the Hornets had to use five buses to transport their two squads. Longtime Hornet track and field and cross country coach Mike Smith said the athletic culture in Saline, and overall participation in groups and organizations, is somewhat ingrained in the community.

"Saline students are very involved in a number of extra-curricular activities, including music, clubs and sports," he said. "It's the standard in the Saline community to be involved. Saline athletics have traditionally had excellent participation. Much of high school sports is a numbers game, and our numbers have been and continue to be good."

Smith, who this past fall led the Hornets' girls' cross country team to a Division 1 state championship, said Saline's long and proud athletic tradition in many sports, along with its community support, has been key to its success.

"Our kids expect to do well," he said. "They know they are expected to do well. Saline is not the small farming community it once was, but even as the community has grown and become much more of a suburban community, the support and interest in athletics has continued. There is value within the Saline community for participation, working hard and working to attain success."

While the Hornets have one of the largest combined track and field teams in the state, Saline also boasts arguably the best and most impressive track and field stadium in Michigan. Separate from the state-of-art football stadium next door, the Hornet track and field complex, also used by the Saline field hockey and lacrosse teams, would be a showcase gridiron stadium by itself for most high schools.

"It's very much a plus," Smith said of Saline's track and field complex. "We have one of the nicest facilities in the state. That is why we been chosen to host the regional track meet at Saline for the past five years. We feel if we have a facility like ours, we must use it and showcase it. It helps build our program. It helps to put us on the map across the state. I think the athletes and parents take pride in having a facility like we do. It feels good when we host a regional and teams and coaches come in and say, 'Wow, look at this track. Look at what they have.' We hear that all the time."

Changing with the times

Smith, who has coached in Saline for more than 30 years, said Hornet athletics have changed significantly since he began in 1980.

"We offer many more sports," he said. "Everything from hockey to swimming to bowling to field hockey to crew. Not that many years ago there were about half the number of sports offered as we have now. There are many more chances for kids to get involved in a variety of sports."

"The emphasis on year-round training has changed. Twenty years ago, that was the exception, and now it's a fact of life. One of the main reasons Saline has had its recent success is because we have athletes, and their parents, who are willing to work and train throughout the year."

White said Saline's outstanding facilities are the product of many people, but especially former Hornet AD Ed Gall.

"With the quality of the facilities, a lot of the props have to go to Ed," he said. "He had high expectations for the facilities. He had a vision of what he wanted to see. We talk about it all the time and I use the phrase world class often, which is what we want to achieve. We're not there yet, we've got a long way to go, but I think we will eventually be a world class, interscholastic sports department."

As with so many areas today, not excluding athletics, funding is always an issue for White and Hornet sports.

"We have to come up with creative ways to improve, maintain and upgrade our athletic facilities," he said. "The educational dollars, the general funds, are not going to be there and they're not going to be there for a couple of years. The community is behind it (Saline athletics) because of the experience that the kids are getting and the relationships they are developing with their coaches. We're really fortunate that our community has been behind our projects. The community believed and supported the projects and now we're reaping the benefits from it."

Coaching staff

White said Saline's coaches are what truly set Hornet athletics apart from other programs throughout the state.

"With our coaches, it really is about the kids," he said. "It's about the relationship with the kids and the experiences that the kids are getting. The coaches are very competent in their chosen sport. We've got phenomenal coaches here as far as X's and O's of the sport."

"But on top of that, our coaches have positive relationships with the kids and they help teach life lessons. We have a number of kids returning to help out as coaches. That speaks very much to the relationship that they've developed with coaches. The kids believe in the program and once they leave, they're drawn back to it. That's a good sign to me as athletic director. With our amazing coaches and great kids, we're really primed in this athletic department to make noise at a state level in every sport."

One Saline sport that has recently been making waves at the state level is water polo. Hornet girls' water polo coach Brad Silverman, who led Saline to a state runner-up position last year and a top-five state ranking this season, echoed Smith and White when asked about the reason for Saline's athletic success.

"There's no doubt that our athletic facilities have played a huge factor in Saline's success of late," he said. "From the gym to the football field to the pool, all of our facilities are clean, inviting and top notch. Without a doubt we have one of the best aquatic facilities in the state - and I've seen a lot of them."

"It's easy to get kids excited about our programs when they see what great facilities we have to offer. People from across the state comment daily on how nice it is to come and visit a pool that is big, clean, comfortable and state-of-art. The facility also makes it easy to build strong youth programs, including Stingrays (youth team), middle school water polo and youth diving for example, which I've always felt is key to having high school programs that are consistently strong.

"It's great when teams have one good year and compete well, but it is the tradition of winning that defines a successful athletic department. For instance, our water polo and swimming programs have always been competitive, but as our feeder programs have grown, so too have our numbers and our success."

Silverman said he didn't think there was any one reason for Saline's overall athletic success, but that it was a collaborative effort on the part of the coaches, administration and community at large. "We all want the best for our kids and our school," he said. "We are proud to do whatever we can to contribute to our great tradition at Saline."

Positive approach

Senior Lea Allen, a member of the Hornets' state championship swimming and diving team this past fall and an All-State-caliber player and captain for Saline's state-ranked water polo team, said it's a mixture of circumstances that makes the Hornets so successful.

"The positivity that the coaches bring to each practice and to each game is a big factor," she said. "I also know that we as student-athletes are very competitive with each other, as well as with the other teams. In practice, we push each other to our fullest potential and that's what helps us win games. I believe it's also the fact we do have such nice facilities. It makes me more motivated to do a good job just so we (Saline) can be known for our great facilities and our excellent sportsmanship. I think we, as student-athletes, like having that good reputation."

Allen said Saline athletes take pride in wearing the Hornet colors and representing their school.

"Our high school is so much nicer than some of the other high schools that I've been to," she said. "We are so lucky to have such a nice school and great facilities. I know I am incredibly proud to be a Saline Hornet. We have accomplished so much, and just in the past year alone, too. It makes me so happy to say that I have won a state championship. Not very many people are able to say that. I have yet to find one person who feels embarrassed about our success. Everyone soaks it up. It is such a great feeling to be successful."

White said he's proud to be part of Saline athletics.

"We're very fortunate in Saline," he said. "My daughter and I were talking this morning as I was driving her to school. She asked me if we (Saline) were going to win anymore state titles this year. I said that we've got a couple programs that if things go right, it could happen. She thought for a moment and then she said, 'You're doing a great job.' That was nice."

Smith, who has seen many seasons and athletes come and go over the years, put Saline's sports success in perspective.

"Success creates success," he said.

Bulldogs win 20th straight

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea softball team will play what coach Bob Moffett is calling a tune-up on Thursday against Clinton for this weekend's district tournament at Jackson Northwest. A tune-up for this team?

The Bulldogs are running on all cylinders and haven't let their foot off the accelerator in over a month. Chelsea drove its winning streak to an amazing 20 games with two wins last Thursday in a home quad tournament.

Chelsea improved to 27-5 overall with an 8-2 win over Pinckney in the second game of the day. Sophomore Taylor Hansen struck out eight and allowed just four hits in the win. Hansen also had a double and an RBI.

Other big hitters for the Bulldogs included Marie Zill (2-for-4), Ellie Stoffer (one hit, two RBI) and Amanda Gates (a triple, two RBI).

Earlier in the day, Chelsea defeated a very good Eaton Rapids team 4-3 with a run Chelsea's Taylor Hansen brings the heat for the Bulldogs vs. Saline.

Eaton Rapids came into the game with a 27-3 record. The three losses were to state-ranked teams.

Allie Smith and Kaley Dixon got the hits. Dixon pitched the first six innings and left with the score tied 3-3. Hansen pitched the seventh to get the win.

Earlier in the week, Chelsea finished its game with Saline, winning 8-1. The game was called because of poor weather earlier in the year with Chelsea winning 6-0 after four innings. Zill went 3-for-4 with four runs and four steals. Hansen went 3-for-4 with a double and three RBI and Shelby Platt had two hits.

The Bulldogs play at noon on Saturday against Tecumseh - the last team to beat the Bulldogs.

in the bottom of the seventh inning. The Bulldogs only had two hits but walked 12 times, including in the bottom of the seventh inning to win the game.

Chelsea baseball team prepares for district action

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea varsity baseball team wrapped up a good week despite a 6-2 loss to a strong Gibraltar Carlson team Friday as the Bulldogs hope to get on track for Saturday's district opener against Tecumseh.

Chelsea coach Wayne Welton hopes the Bulldogs' roller-coaster season is riding high come this weekend.

"We had a good week of baseball," Welton said. "We pitched really well which is encouraging heading into districts. We are playing better baseball now than we were just a few weeks ago."

Carlson jumped on Chelsea early, scoring three runs in the first inning. But the Bulldogs battled back. Alex Maloney and Shane Trojanowski hit back-to-back singles in the third inning and both scored on a double by Tyler Gelger to cut the lead to 3-2.

The Marauders closed the door after that as they used three pitchers to limit the Bulldogs to six hits on the day.

On Thursday, the Bulldogs swept host Pinckney in a double-header.

Chelsea won the first game 6-5 behind strong pitching from Bradley Hepler (five innings) and Nate Udell (two innings).

Chelsea scored two runs in the first, second and fourth innings.

In one of their best played games of the season, Chelsea defeated Pinckney 3-1 in the night cap. Charlie Hess worked the first five innings to get the win and Udell came in again to pitch the final two to earn the save.

"Nate pitched really well for us in both games," Welton said. "And Charlie had his best outing all season."

The Bulldogs scored a run in the third inning when Udell singled and scored on a double by Pat Roberts. Jake Steinhauer's double in the fourth drove in a run and Nigel Schuh's double in the fifth knocked in the Bulldogs' final run of the game.

Chelsea completed a suspended game with Lincoln on Wednesday. The Bulldogs led 4-2 off May 17 when the game was called in the fourth inning because of bad weather. Chelsea ended up winning the game 4-2 as Udell worked the first four innings and Maloney got the save, pitching the final three.

The two teams played a non-league game after the completed game with the Rails winning 12-4. Connor Townsend got two hits for Chelsea.

Bulldogs take fourth at SEC league meet

The Chelsea boys' track and field team finished fourth at last week's Southeastern Conference meet. The Bulldogs were the defending champions of the meet.

"The new addition to the league, Ypsilanti High School, dominated with their quality sprinting and jumping depth," Chelsea coach Eric Swager said. "We were not without highlights, however."

August Pappas and Bryce Bradley were league champs in their individual events, while Dave Slusser, Nick Hall and Vince Verardi also earned all-league honors.

Again, some freshmen performers really stepped up and did well for the Bulldogs. Berkely Edwards ran a 200 personal-best to place in that event, while Zach Rabbitt gave three good efforts and Micheal Hovater set a freshman record with his incredible 13 foot pole vault.

Brent Akamit, Luke Oliver, Jesse Forner and Paul Ulisse also had lifetime best performances.

"With all our challenges and setbacks this year, I found this meet to be a nice atmosphere and a supportive group of guys," Swager said. "We look forward to the last week of the season and the banquet leading us into summer."

300 hurdles. Williams also placed third in the 100 hurdles at 15.8.

Sophomore Danielle Dahl had a personal-best to win the 800 at 2:24.6.

Jessi Battaglia was second in both the 1600 run (5:44) and the 3200 run (12:36). Carpenter was second in the 200 dash (26.5) and sixth in the 400 (62.9).

In the field events, Lauren Dark vaulted 16-feet to place third in the pole vault. She also tied for fourth in the high jump. Senior Christina Coffman won the long jump at 15-10. In the shot put, Zoe Sing had a personal-best of 31.7 to place third and also took fourth in the discus. Marissa Elwart was third in the discus (99.4).

Other strong performances included Courtney Maher (third in the 3200 run and fifth in the 1600 run), Emily Cottrell (sixth in both the 300 hurdles and 110 hurdles), Savers (third in the long jump and sixth in the 200 dash), Samantha Newbound (fourth in the 3200 run), and Julie Beaumont (eighth in the 800 run).

"This is the first Chelsea track team to go undefeated up to this point," Clarke said. "The entire coaching staff is extremely proud of these young ladies and their accomplishments this season. We learned a lot from this meet and the tough competition. This experience should help us with next week's state meet."

Chelsea ties Dexter to win SEC

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

When the final horn sounded Thursday afternoon, the Chelsea girls' soccer team didn't really know how to respond. They kind of looked at each other and wondered, "do we celebrate."

The answer, of course, is yes. The Bulldogs and visiting Dexter Dreadnaughts hooked up in a well played, hard fought contest in both team's final regular-season game of the season. Both teams had chances to win the game, but in the end had to settle for a 2-2 tie.

However, the Bulldogs didn't "settle" for anything. The tie gave them their first Southeastern Division title and ended Dexter's amazing streak of nine in a row.

But the tie, plus the fact that these two teams play again at 4:30 p.m. on Tuesday in a district opener, may have subdued the party just a little. Running around and screaming, "we're No. 1," may have been a little awkward since the scoreboard read 2-2 and the Dreadnaughts may have been looking for a little more motivation come Tuesday.

So the Bulldogs quietly patted one another on the back and flashed a few smiles. There is still work to be done and the road goes literally through Dexter on Tuesday.

"This was a great battle and we are thrilled to be SEC champs," Chelsea coach Kirsten Smart said. "I thought both teams played very well and Michelle Wellman came up with some big saves for us."

Despite having to play each other on Tuesday in the state playoff opener, both

Tough as nails

Players from both teams suffered some bumps and bruises but proved that the pain can wait when it comes to Chelsea-Dexter soccer games.

First off is Chelsea's Sarah Bingel. The senior suffered a broken jaw on April 22 and spent six weeks with her mouth wired shut. It looked for sure that her season was over. But Bingel was out on the field and played well on defense for the Bulldogs.

In the first half, Dexter's Ariel Star took a hard shot to the face. And after a brief moment on the ground, the senior jumped back up and helped force a long shot from Chelsea that sailed over the crossbar.

Ashley Chrisman, who played well on the backside for the Bulldogs, also took one to the head and had to leave the game.

teams wanted this game. And unlike the first time these two teams played, this was high school soccer at its best. It was not only aggressive and physical soccer, but the game featured excellent passing and smart decisions. Both teams created space and moved the ball and few plays went unchallenged.

That first match-up back on April 17 ended in a scoreless tie. Thoughts of another goose-egg performance ended quickly when Chelsea's Cara Johnson took a pass from Kelly Fournier down the left side and flicked a perfect shot over Dexter goalie Zaryn Jennings.

The goal came less than two minutes in and the Bulldogs had a 1-0 lead.

The Dreadnaughts answered quickly on as pretty a goal as you can draw up. Sophomore Emily Tarnaski saw an opening in the Chelsea defense and pushed a beautiful ball through to Emma Monaghan down the left side. The senior had a Chelsea player with her stride for stride, but she made a terrific move, and beat her about midway inside the 18-yard box.

Monaghan delivered a perfect cross in front of the goal that Jaimie Verbal redirected into the back of the net to tie the game at 1-1.

The play was set up by Tarnaski first seeing the open space and then the move from Monaghan to get open to make the cross.

Johnson helped give the Bulldogs their second lead of the game at 12:52. She made a perfect cross to an open Fournier who buried it in the net for a 2-1 Chelsea lead.

Again, Dexter would answer. Less than 30 seconds after a great save by Wellman to stop a good scoring chance from Tarnaski, the Dreadnaughts tied the game on a goal from Monaghan. With 4:12 until halftime, Monaghan hit a perfect shot from the right side that Wellman had little chance on.

The two teams battled hard in the second half, with each side getting only a couple of really good scoring chances. Most of the half was played in the midfield.

Several good Chelsea scoring chances were silenced by the play of Dexter sweeper Taylor Center. The senior twice made nice plays to prevent Johnson from getting off a shot and did the same later in the half on Fournier.

Our take: Chelsea tops Dexter in district soccer

Chelsea and Dexter had played almost 266 minutes of soccer this year without a winner. That's how evenly matched these two teams were this season.

A scoreless tie back on a cold Saturday afternoon in the middle of April and then a 2-2 tie to finish the SEC schedule last Thursday. That's 100 minutes of nobody winning and nobody losing.

On Tuesday, the teams battled through 80 minutes of regulation only to be deadlocked at 3-3. The referees could have saved everyone a lot of time by just starting the game in overtime - a place many people knew we would end up anyway.

After another almost 26 minutes of OT, Kelly Fournier finally made a winner out of Chelsea. It not only took a lot of time, but a lot of effort as two evenly matched teams played an outstanding and exciting brand of soccer. Now, I'm not going to say that both teams won because the team with three goals lost to the team with four goals.

But I will say that both teams can be proud of the way in which they not only played, but how they conducted themselves before, during and after the game.

I won't soon forget how Dexter senior goalie Rachelle Alcimi raced out to console junior goalie Zaryn Jennings after Chelsea scored the game-winning goal. Goaltenders stick together and that support was nice to see.

I won't soon forget Chelsea's Hailey Dixon standing near the sidelines with hands on her knees trying to find one more breath to keep her going.

I won't soon forget the look on the Chelsea players as they sat on the ground when it was all over, smiling but totally exhausted.

Both teams were at the top of their game. You can only give 100 percent and that's what these teams gave on this sunny afternoon.

A few years from now, these Dexter players will be looking through the school's record books and won't see the 2010 team listed among SEC or district champions. But what won't be written down is just how good this team truly was.

Stats and numbers and wins and losses don't always define a team. By any other definition, this Dexter team was a winner. And the Chelsea Bulldogs would be the first to confirm that.

SOCCER

Fournier, one of Chelsea's top scorers, scored the biggest goal of her career when she let a shot go that beat Dexter goalie Zaryn Jennings, who had made some nice saves throughout the game.

The ball ended up in the net, the Bulldogs celebrated and the Dreadnaughts watched their season come to an end after a hard-fought 108 minutes of soccer.

"Far post was all I was thinking when I took the shot," said Fournier, just moments after sending the Bulldogs to the next game. "Cara got the ball and I heard the coach shout 'now,' and I just took off. It was a foot race between me and the defender."

Fournier, one of the team's captains along with Sarah Bingel and Anna Rode, was all smiles afterwards.

"I was just thinking about how our season was on the line and how hard everyone worked to get here," she said.

Now, the Bulldogs are "there," as in finally past Dexter.

"This is by far the best game we have played all season and we knew we had to play our best to beat them," Chelsea coach Kirsten Smart said. "I think in the end it was our heart and soul and work ethic that came through. We really played as a unit."

After the first few minutes of the opening half, Chelsea took control of the game and had the better scoring opportunities.

Johnson and Rode worked a perfect give-and-go to give the Bulldogs a 1-0 lead with 2:12 left in the first half. Johnson took the return pass from Rode and slid a shot past Jennings and into the right corner.

Just 38 seconds into the second half, Fournier ripped a shot from about 15 yards out to give Chelsea a 2-0 lead.

Dexter wasn't about to give up. A little more than 9 minutes later, freshman Olivia Volmers directed a shot past goalie Michelle Wellman to make it 2-1.

With 24:50 left to play, Dexter tied the game at 2-2 on a shot from more than 25 yards out from freshman Lindsey Lloyd that Wellman misjudged.

Volmers and Lloyd had just been called up to the varsity and came up with some big plays.

Just 2:35 later, Volmers nailed as perfect a shot as you will ever see that looped into the upper left corner to give the Dreadnaughts a 3-2 lead with 22:15 to play.

With 14:49 left in regulation, Jennings made a great save on a shot by Rode, but Johnson was there to knock in the rebound to tie the game at 3-3.

The Bulldogs also can celebrate the fact that they beat a Dexter team playing at the top of its game.

"I would say it was one of our better games this season," Dexter coach Scott Forrester said. "It was an exciting game to watch and be a part of - except for the ending."

Forrester was proud of the way his team battled back after falling behind 2-0.

"We showed a lot of passion and played with a lot of momentum after we got the first one," he said. "I thought the overtime periods were pretty even. They just got the break at the end."

Huron Players plan to present 'Finale 2010!'

By Randi Shaffer
Heritage News Service

Ann Arbor Huron High School's theater group, the Huron Players, will present its final show for the 2010 season. "Finale 2010!" is a collection of six short shows, directed by Huron High School students. Showcase times are 7:30 p.m. June 4 and 5 in the little theater at Huron High School in Ann Arbor. President of the Huron Players and Student Director Jenny Thompson said about 30 students from the Huron Players organization have worked to make the event possible. "Finale" has always just been a lighthearted, really fun show," the Huron High School junior said. "It helps people realize why Huron Players are important without as much stress as a regular production." The Huron Players typically produce four shows each year, with "Finale!" to conclude the season. Student directors choose the plays to be performed from books. Auditions for "Finale 2010!" were held in the middle of May, and rehearsals took place two to three times a week. Each show takes about three or four weeks to produce. Thompson is directing a play called "Guys." "(It's) about two guys that are in McDonald's talking about regular guy things," she said. Some of the other plays people can expect to see are about camp counselors, superheroes and subway trains. Some of the shows have been performed before by the Huron Players at different festivals. Tickets are $6 for general admission and $4 for students, seniors and Huron staff. To order tickets and reserve seats for "Finale 2010!" call 994-2095.

Utility director wins award

Martin recognized for outstanding service to Scio Township

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

Scio Township Utilities Department Director Scott Martin was recently recognized as the Michigan Rural Water Association's Wastewater Operator of the Year.

Martin has been co-operator of the township's utilities service for five years and previously worked in Ypsilanti.

Martin said utility operators play a key role in local government.

"Some communities are with aging infrastructure from the early 1900s to the 1960s ... they are dealing with old cast iron water mains that are starting to fail and sewer mains that are in need of repairs or replacement," he said. "The cost and funding is going to be the (greatest challenge) for these public utilities."

Martin said with the collapse of the building boom, utilities directors can concentrate on other tasks.

"We are now able to concentrate more on our system; we have been able to start in-house preventative maintenance programs such as our sanitary sewer main cleaning program, curb box locating, hydrant maintenance and valve turning programs," he said.

Many of the methods employed over the past 10 years don't even require that utilities infrastructure be dug up to complete the work.

Being able to rehabilitate water mains and install liners that improve system flow and life expectancy make the work easier and cheaper, but Martin said utilities directors are still under the gun to plan out 20 years of system maintenance projects.

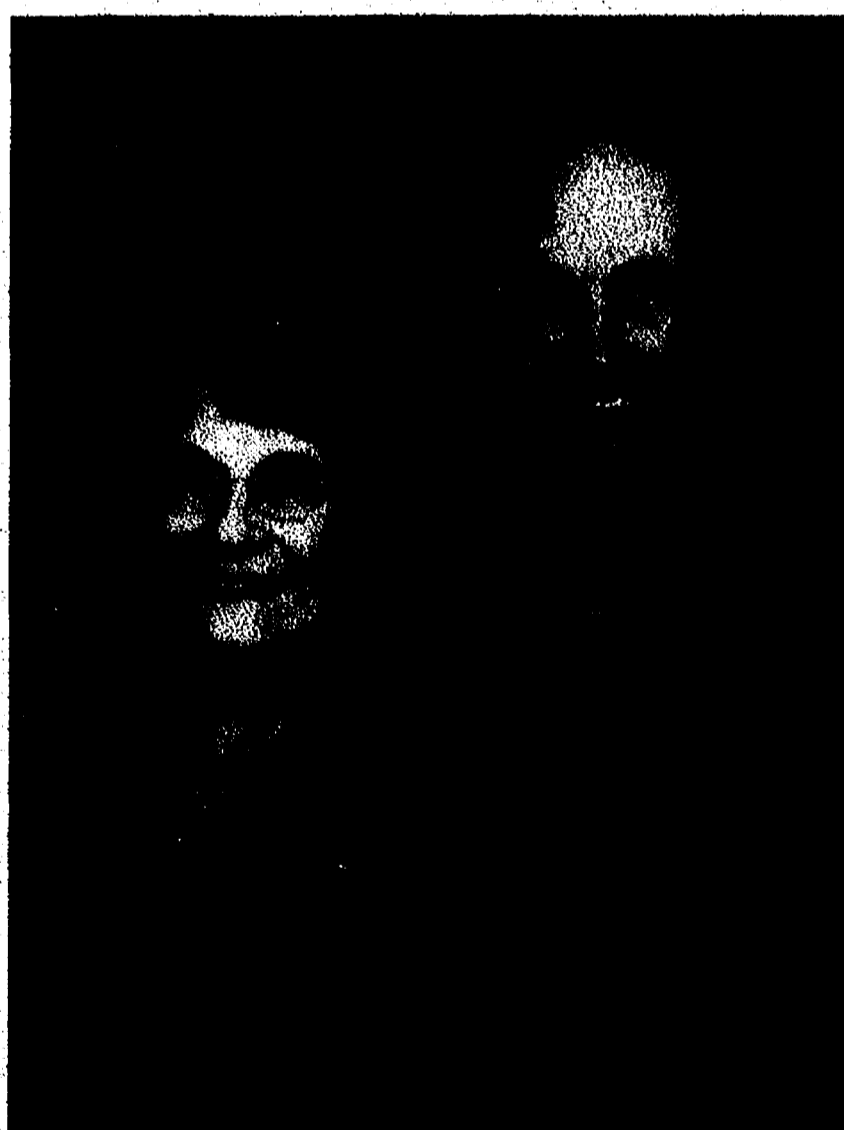

Scio Township completed a Water Master Plan in 2002, a Sewer Master Plan in 2004 and a Capital Improvement Program.

"We built the Capital Improvement Program from the master plans and we've implemented and completed seven different water projects and nine sanitary sewer projects in the last five years," Martin said. "The Capital Improvement Plan is a living document that never goes away. You have to look at it every year, reevaluate it, take off what was completed and add what needs to be done."

Martin said he feels fortunate to manage a system that is only 25 years old and honored to be recognized by the Michigan Rural Water Association.

Packaging technology has evolved over time

By Elaine Owsley
Guest Writer

Several years ago my husband and I came across an exhibit of "Packaging Technology" on the campus of Wayne State University, where he was finishing his journalism degree.

Neither of us had ever paired "packaging" and "technology," so we decided to find out what this was all about.

Now "packaging" for years and years usually involved brown paper, maybe a cardboard box and string. What could possibly be "technological" about that was a mystery to be investigated.

In this case, "thinking outside the box" was the wrong way around. It was thinking about what went "inside" the box that was the important consideration. (Actually, in the '50s we didn't know there was a box to think in or out of.)

Far from being just bottles, cans, tubes and boxes, the package that the product goes in determines how the product ships, resists breakage, stands up to sunlight, cold and heat. The product inside determines what kind of container will be used.

We've moved over the years from tin cans, wooden boxes and glass bottles to plastic, foil-lined paper, "squeezeable" containers, and various grades of strength in each category. And within each category, what's inside determines what's outside.

Does it have to be "pretty" because the product will be used on a dressing table or on a shelf near the bathtub? How big will it be — the size of a vegetable oil container for the home kitchen is far different from the amount needed for a commercial restaurant or bakery — it may extend to vats of vegetable oil versus an easily handled and stored bottle.

And what determines whether the product goes in glass or plastic containers? Is it weight alone, or are there other considerations?

Look down any grocery aisle and just for fun, count the different kinds of containers — round tin or other metal, squared cans, tall cans, short cans, boxes, bags, bottles of all sizes in both glass and plastic — someone had to decide which of these containers to use.

When the product is used up, or the "use by date" has passed, the containers are usually tossed, since they aren't what you buy — they just come with what you want. The major exception is the PEZ container. These things are so clever and cute that the candy inside is secondary to the container that holds it.

I'd be willing to bet that most people with a PEZ container collection haven't even eaten what's inside. They are just cute by themselves.

Once upon a time, the Log Cabin Syrup Company provided their product in little tin cans that looked like log cabins. Mrs. Butterworth syrup comes in a plastic container that looks like a little person. When I was a child, Shredded Wheat came in boxes that contained, along with the pillow shaped cereal, inner "shelves" of pasteboard printed with pictures of houses and buildings that could be colored, cut out and pasted to make a little village.

We would trade to have as many of the different buildings as possible, and one corner of the basement floor was devoted, for a time, to this project.

Eventually, the tin log cabins, the Mrs. Butterworths and the cereal villages lost their appeal or their stamina and were relegated to the trash. Not so with PEZ containers. They command big money if they are old or are complete sets, check Ebay.

Even the disposal of today's containers has become technological. The "greener" we try to be, the more constraints there are on disposing of containers — recycle or not?

Whole industries have grown up around what containers can be recycled and what can't. Our grandson worked at a place that just did that. Conveyor belts full of trash passed by workers who plucked out what couldn't be recycled, or maybe it was what could be, but it kept a number of folks employed to accomplish the end result.

Every kind of container has to be shipped. They go in boxes so the bottles won't roll around, the boxes go in other boxes, they go in large containers and the containers head somewhere on huge ships. It's important, too, to know how many containers — the small ones — are in each carton, so that the grocery or hardware store knows how many containers they are getting in a case.

It's not your brown paper and string world anymore. We've gone outside the box, to take care of what's inside the box and in so doing have created a science we never thought we'd need.

Bridge closed in Lima Twp.

"All of the bridges will be closed indefinitely until further notice."

By Lisa Allmendinger
Heritage Newspapers

Closed signs now block passage across Lima Center Road Bridge and Liberty Road Bridge in Lima Township and the Waldo Road Bridge.

Following annual inspections, the Washtenaw County Road Commission closed the spans on May 26 because of beam failure on the structures.

All three bridges span Mill Creek and are on local, unpaved roads.

The Lima Center Road Bridge is located between Scio Church Road and Jerusalem Road while the Liberty Road Bridge is located between Guenther Road and Dancer Road.

The Waldo Road Bridge is located between M-52 and Peckins Road.

All the bridges will be closed indefinitely until further notice, according to a press release from the road commission.

The Lima Center Road detour takes motorists from Scio Church Road to Guenther Road to Jerusalem Road.

The Liberty Road detour directs drivers from Guenther Road to Scio Church Road to Steinbach Road.

In Sharon Township, the Waldo Road detour is M-52 to Scio Church Road to Peckins Road.

The road commission will be assessing any funding options to replace these structures.

Discussions about future steps for these bridges are expected to take place at the road commission meeting on June 1.

The amount of money raised isn't the only numeric barometer of success.

There were 94 cancer survivors registered this year compared to 78 last year.

The teams registered 612 participants, which does not include the greater number of visitors to the event since the ACS does not have a method of counting foot traffic.

Last year just 468 registered participants were counted.

Luminaria sales held relatively steady at 758 to 741 last year.

▲ Last year there were only 29 registered teams compared to 34 this year.

"This was a truly amazing relay," Bayer said. "We got such great feedback from the participants about the new site and we are so thankful to the Chelsea School District for so generously donating the site."

Bayer gave special recognition to the Chelsea Relay for Life Planning Committee.
