Chelsea First hires marketing director

Dunlap-Hurden eager to work with local businesses, schools

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

The Chelsea First Steering Committee has hired long-time Chelsea area resident Dania Dunlap-Hurden as its new marketing director.

Dunlap-Hurden brings 15 years of management experience from the private and non-profit sector and a background that includes extensive experience with project launch and change management initiatives.

Dunlap-Hurden, who has lived in the Chelsea School District since 1995 and the City of Chelsea since 2006, recently bought a historic home downtown, and she and her husband, Jonathan, are in the process of renovating it.

The couple married in 2008 and has an 18-month-old son and is expecting a baby this fall. Their family comprises Samantha, 10, Madeline, 6, and Isabel, 19, a student at Michigan State University.

Dunlap-Hurden has been involved in several community activities both as a leader and as a participant.

"Many times, you'll find me behind the scenes as a go-to person to grab last minute items, to fill in when short staffed or to pull together and organize a floundering project," she said.

"Lots of times, this has been through my children in the school system or through their activities."

"I believe everyone has a duty to give back to their fellow man and woman. As a result, I volunteer for programs and projects as often as I can. In particular, as a parent, I think we need to support our teachers and administration as the schools are being asked to do more with less. Also, where there is someone in need, those of us who can afford to help, should consider it our moral responsibility to do what we can."

Crowds turnout for Painters' Fair

Weekend rain showers don't detour spectators at annual event

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

Hundreds of colorful paintings adorned the grounds of Chelsea Community Hospital during the 37th annual Chelsea Painters' Fair.

Amid a forecast calling for sporadic rain showers throughout the weekend, dozens of art collectors and art lovers turned out to peruse the local exhibits, which featured a variety of media, including watercolor, acrylic, oil, pastel, gouache, monotype prints and mixed media.

Teresa Freed, one of the artists featured in the fair, said she enjoys showing off her work.

"This gives us a chance to show the public what we've been working on throughout the year," she said.

Freed said she has always had a fondness for art. "As a kid, I wanted to grow up and be a rich and famous artist," she said. "I studied art in school but then took on the family business."

Freed said she recently began painting again and enjoys painting landscape art.

Dee Overly, another artist, said she has been working with the Chelsea Painters for three years despite being a resident of Ypsilanti.

"One of the Chelsea members invited me to join the club and I really enjoy it," she said.

Overly said she has concentrated her passion for outdoor scenery in her art over the last 10 years.

"I enjoy the outdoors and nature," she said.

Her newest venture is adding a personal touch to city skyline silhouettes, including downtown Detroit and Chicago.

Chelsea High School graduates 217 during commencement Sunday

By Krystle Dunham
Special Writer

As 217 soon-to-be Chelsea High School graduates waited patiently to receive their diplomas on Sunday during commencement exercises, some students reflected on what they will remember most as they finish high school.

Senior Witley Wheeler said she will remember all of the friends she has made.

"I will miss my friends the most," she said.

Wheeler, 18, will attend Spring Arbor University in the fall to study Special Education.

"We've been here for four years and now it's like I'm leaving a family," she said.

Wheeler said she is excited to start a new chapter in her life, but knows there will be new challenges.

"It's just going to get harder from here on out," she said.

Fellow senior Viren Rana will remember the class of 2010 as "one of the best classes Chelsea High School has ever had."

Rana, who was the student body president, said his class was able to successfully adjust to the many changes the school made over the past four years.

"I'm really excited for everyone and I hope we stay in touch," he said.

"I look forward to seeing what everyone does in the future."

Rana will be attending medical school at St. Louis University in the fall. His dream is to one day become a doctor and be able to build hospitals in India.

This year, students Schuyler Adkins and Brian Bazydlo were picked to speak directly to their classmates at commencement.

"Right now you and I have the ability to do whatever we want to do," Adkins said. "We are the future of this country."

Adkins acknowledged and thanked the teachers and administrators from preschool through high school that have helped the class of 2010.

"These amazing men and women laid the foundation for the rest of our lives and I thank them," he said.

Adkins will attend Oregon's Lewis & Clark College in the fall.

For Brian Bazydlo, being able to put a comedic spin on the past four years at CHS was something his classmates will always remember.

"With great power comes great responsibility," said Bazydlo, as he quoted a line from the movie "Spiderman."

"I can just feel this class will do great things. It's like we were programmed to do great things," he said. "I feel very blessed to have grown up with you all and to have lived in this community."

Bazydlo will attend Western Michigan University in the fall.

Thiefels, who is known for her city murals in Manchester and Chelsea, said she is the youngest painter in the club. "I do a lot of large art, so it's nice to have something to exhibit here that is different from my career," she said. Thiefels is currently working on a mural in downtown Ann Arbor.

Painters' Fair every year. "I like to come and see what's new," she said. "If always rains but I still enjoy it." Keys said she enjoys impressionistic artwork and the use of pastel colors. Gloria Maurer of Seminole, Fla., said she heard about the art show through a friend. "We are here visiting friends and I heard about the Painters' Fair on the radio," she said. "I like looking at art close up, you can really appreciate something on a personal level." Maurer also said she appreciates the relaxed atmosphere at the fair. Muriel Dority of Freedom Township said he attends art shows in Ann Arbor and Kalamazoo. "We buy what we like and we like to see local artists," he said. "The prices are good too." Beverly Fulkerson of Canton said the art fair always inspires her to go home and paint. "I'm a frustrated would-be artist. The art fair gives me incentive to go and paint, but I never do," she joked. Jules and Ika Van Dyck-Dobos, owners of Le DOG restaurant in Ann Arbor, said they like to see the progression of art work. "You get to know the artists and you can see how their art changes and gets better every year," Jules said. Ika said she usually purchases something at the fair. "The problem is we're eventually going to run out of wall space," she laughed. Daniel Lai is editor of The Chelsea Standard. He can be reached at 429-7380 or dclai@heritage.com.

Grillin' for Food Gatherers a good time, good cause

With all the fresh fruit and vegetables hitting the local farmers' markets, most of us don't think twice about stocking up on these yummy treats of the season.

But there are people throughout the county who can't afford the luxury of locally grown fruit, vegetables and meat.

That's where Food Gatherers lends a helping hand.

Food Gatherers distributes more than 5 million pounds of food annually to 150 nonprofit programs providing emergency food resources to those in need throughout Washtenaw County.

In fact, since its inception in 1988, Food Gatherers has distributed more than 39 million pounds of food in the community.

On June 13, the organization will hold its biggest fundraiser of the year. So buy a ticket or four to Grillin' for Food Gatherers 2010. The event takes place from 3 to 8 p.m. at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, rain or shine.

Grillin' for Food Gatherers started 21 years ago with about 40 people gathered on the patio at Zingerman's Delicatessen. Last year, 1,800 people attended and it raised more than $180,000.

If you've never gone, you need to check it out because you can't help but have a good time while simultaneously helping a great cause.

I know because I've attended many times, and I always seem to run into someone I haven't seen in ages.

Besides, how can you go wrong with terrific food provided by Casey's Tavern, Exotic Cuisine and Bakeries, Grange Kitchen & Bar, and The Quarter Bistro and Tavern, with dessert provided by Zingerman's Bakery and Creamery?

And while you're there, please give a shout-out to the more than 150 volunteers who help put on the family-friendly event. Live music is expected to be provided by Abigail Stauffer, Bull Halsey, Jamie Register and the Glendales, as well as George Bedard and the Kingpins.

Plus, there are some really cool children's activities hosted by Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum.

In addition, there is an amazing silent auction that features items such as a one-week stay in a private home in Elbow Cay, Bahamas; Red Wings University of Michigan hockey and basketball tickets; a big-screen TV; and a chance for Alex Young, the executive chef of Zingerman's Roadhouse, to come to your home to prepare a four-course meal.

But these are just a few of the amazing auction items, with all profits, of course, benefiting Food Gatherers.

Tickets are $50 in advance for adults, and $60 at the gate, and $10 for kids 3 through 13. Children 3 and younger are admitted for free.

You can buy advance tickets online at www.foodgatherers.org or by calling 761-2796. They are also available at Zingerman's Delicatessen, Roadhouse, and Bakehouse, as well as Saline and Dexter Picture Frame Co.

So, enjoy a wonderful meal, boogie to the music and feel good about yourself at the same time because you're helping your neighbors in the process.

OUR TAKE: Editorial

Best to reserve judgement until the facts are in

The deaths that resulted from what media reports are calling Israel's attack on an aid flotilla are tragic. But before you condemn and demonize that small democratic nation, take a look at the facts that are known and hold off until all of the facts are revealed.

The more evidence that is made public, the more it appears Israel was acting in self-defense — and the more it appears this was a public relations conspiracy aimed at making Israel look bad, although most likely they didn't intend to have the loss of life.

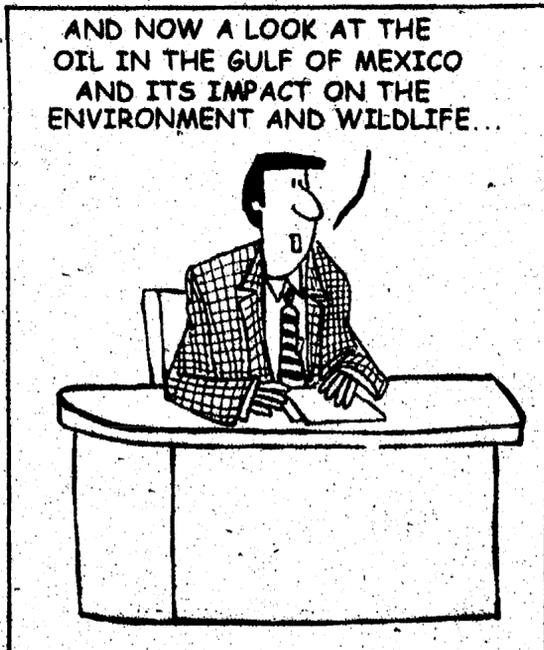

The blockade that Israel — with Egypt's participation — had established is legitimate because of the terrorist threat to both nations. It is reminiscent to a U.S. blockade in the 1960s. Some nations of the world didn't like either, but it was successful in preventing nuclear missiles from being placed in Cuba, just 90 miles from the United States.

Israel is not any more wrong today than the United States was about 50 years ago. Consequently, the Israelis were within their rights to at least check out the flotilla to make sure there were no massive guns, supplies and armed terrorists trying to sneak into the country.

As Richard Nodel, president of the Jewish Community Relations Council of Metropolitan Detroit, noted in a news release, the blockade "prevents more sophisticated arms from reaching the hands of the Hamas terrorists who continue to plan terror attacks and fire missiles at Israel. For Israel and Israelis, the blockade is a life-and-death situation."

Videos show the Israel soldiers being attacked by the crowds on the flotilla and activists on the boats have admitted they wanted to breach the blockade as much as they wanted to deliver aid to the Palestinians. There are many troubling aspects of this incident ...

Governor played Palin better than Palin

Approximately 70 million viewers watched the vice presidential debate between Joe Biden and Sarah Palin on Oct. 2, 2008. One had a vested interest as she intently watched from her Lansing home with her husband and friends gathered around the tube.

Periodically, there were shouts. "We anticipated that!"

"He nailed that!"

"We practiced that!"

As everyone now knows, days earlier Granholm had actually been impersonating Palin during Biden's prep for the debate of his life.

Now that it's debate season again and the best seller "Game Change" is out, the authors talk about the Michigan governor's role in all this, but they don't reveal the whole story.

Now, for the first time, she does.

At first, the governor, who has been on the national stage more than any other Michigan chief executive, treated it like any other gig.

"It didn't quite hit me how historic this was until we arrived at the hotel and saw the amazing setup," she said. "Then it became really clear that this was very historic."

Team Obama created an exact replica of the debate stage down to "every inch and color." Granholm remembers it as "breathtaking" when she sauntered in for five "intense" days of debate prep.

First, the Obama folks drilled the governor in a prep prep against a fake Biden.

The ultimate competitor, Granholm was on her game. The authors of the book report she "glutted herself on YouTube videos of Palin's Alaska debates."

"I became a Palintologist," the stand-in admits, and authors Mark Halperin and John Heilemann write, "The result was a perfect Palin: Charming, folksy, disciplined, flirty ... and mean."

Granholm said, "We were tougher on (Biden) in practice than Palin was in the actual debate."

That's because she went to school on both Palin and Biden.

She learned that one of his soft spots was his family and when Granholm/Palín made cracks about his son, Hunter's, lobbying history, "Joe turned defensive," and when Granholm "dangled bait by playing dumb, he turned scornful and chauvinistic," the authors wrote.

Initially, campaign insiders David Axelrod and David Plouffe were "scared." If he couldn't beat Granholm, what would Palin do to him?

As some 40 people looked on, Granholm did practice questions in the morning, and two full dress run-throughs each afternoon and evening.

"It was also a challenge," she said, "to be tough on Joe Biden, 'cuz he's such a nice guy. But, we had to prepared for all possibilities."

But why Granholm?

"I was the only other woman governor with kids still at home," she said. "It wasn't that difficult a stretch to go from 'basketball mom' to 'hockey mom.'"

In addition, Biden's chief of staff, Ron Klaine, had been a classmate of Granholm's at the Harvard law school. Need more be said?

The governor, a consummate Democrat, admits the "toughest part at first was parrotting all of the standard Republican lines convincingly! I'm pretty sure I said 'maverick' a lot."

But when the debate was over, Biden was on the horn to his sparring partner.

"We laughed at how we had anticipated so much of the debate," she said. "He had to be knowledgeable but not patronizing, not defensive, gaffe-free and gracious. He succeeded on all counts."

But they did miss one thing, Granholm sheepishly says.

"I didn't anticipate that she would wink so much," she said.

What a hoot. How could this governor wink possibly have missed that?

Pam Byrnes deserves your vote for Senate

It's heartbreaking to watch the way the local schools have been forced to deal with their tight budgets. It's sad to see some great teachers let go.

I'm thankful for Pam Byrnes, our state representative, who is finding creative ways to help solve problems like these. She supported the new public school employee retirement bill that just passed. It's effectively an early retirement offer; the auto companies successfully used similar plans when they needed to get back on track.

It seems to me that everyone wins. School employees who take advantage of the plan receive incentives. Pink-slipped employees could be recalled. If the estimated 28,000 employees retire, that opens up more jobs for our communities. More college graduates can stay in Michigan to work, raise a family, and contribute to the economy.

This new retirement system is expected to save Michigan public schools almost $700 million in the upcoming school year alone, and more than $3 billion in the next decade.

Representative Byrnes has served our community well for many years, and she has served the state of Michigan well. I applaud her for stepping up and making the tough choices that will turn our state around.

I hope you'll vote for Pam when she runs for state Senate. I know I will.

WAVE adds route in Chelsea

A new enhanced collaboration between the Western Washtenaw Area Value Express and the United Methodist Retirement Communities has led to a free community shuttle transportation service for all Chelsea residents.

Starting June 14, the free shuttle will operate Monday through Saturday, for four hours each day, and offer three "shopping loops" with a total of 11 stops that will allow residents to shop, visit the post office, enjoy the farmer's market and many other opportunities and activities throughout Chelsea.

"The new, free service is good for downtown business and good for Chelsea's events. It helps promote exercise and it's also part of a commitment to going green," Michaelene Pawlak, WAVE executive director said. "UMRC is the ideal partner to make transportation more accessible to more residents."

Lori Herbig, executive director for the Chelsea Retirement Community, said the service will greatly benefit Chelsea residents.

"We wanted to provide better transportation service for our residents, because it's very important to them, and also give something back to Chelsea, where we have been for 104 years," Herbig said. "We are committed to engaging with this community - the place where our residents live and our employees work, every day."

The free shuttle schedule will run Monday through Friday at 1 p.m., 2 p.m. and 3 p.m., and Saturdays at 10 a.m., 11 a.m. and noon.

Details of routes, timing and the shopping loops will be posted at stops throughout Chelsea and on WAVE's Website, www.ridethewavebus.org.

Pawlak notes that even though previous Monday through Friday service, that began for Chelsea Retirement Community residents in January, was popular with seniors, she expects broad community appeal for the new expanded service.

"We envision families riding together as a fun activity as well as teens who aren't yet old enough to drive taking advantage of free, safe transportation," she said. "This partnership between two nonprofit organizations could be a model for other communities. WAVE and UMRC both appreciate the support that Bob Pierce, executive director of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, and the CACC have shown as everyone involved believes this program has the potential to give Chelsea an economic boost."

Chelsea Retirement Community offers multiple living options for seniors, including several independent living choices. WAVE is a nonprofit service organization dedicated to providing community transportation.

Jazz workshop open to youth

Saxophonist Ben Jansson will bring his jazz quartet to the Chelsea Center for the Arts on Saturday for the "Jazz Alive!" workshop from 1 to 2 p.m.

Joining Jansson is Glenn Tucker on piano, Rob Bickley on bass, and Jesse Kramer on drums. The free concert will feature swinging, high-energy jazz, followed by a workshop for instrumentalists.

Jansson recently joined the CCA's music faculty, and brings with him some impressive performing experience. He studied with Detroit's legendary jazz saxophonist George Benson and with saxophonist Pat Labarbera in Toronto, Canada, before going on to complete his master's degree in music at Michigan State University.

Jansson was also recently a jazz mentor with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's Civic Youth Jazz Program.

"Playing saxophone should be fun. I believe that students who enjoy playing saxophone, improve the most. This is the core of my teaching philosophy.

I love to encourage enjoyment in music, whether it's listening or practicing. When students learn that playing the saxophone is fun and can be easy, they improve quickly," Jansson said.

Besides leading his own jazz quartet, he plays often in bands led by Ann Arbor and Detroit-area jazz musicians including bassist Paul Keller and local favorite James Dapogny. Recent performances include playing with Freddy Cole (brother to Nat "King" Cole) at Dizzy's Club Coca-Cola, backing up the legendary singer and pianist. Other singers Jansson has accompanied include Aretha Franklin and Diane Schuur.

CCA Director of Music Lisa Hinz-Johnson is thrilled to add Jansson to the music faculty.

"I had heard Ben's work on a nationally broadcast PBS special — the 'Motor City Blues and Boogie Woogie Festival,' a few years ago. He was part of the Paul Keller Orchestra, featuring Red Holloway, and I was really blown away by the group.

Ben's musicianship is extraordinary and he's an amazing young talent. We are so excited to have him on staff at CCA."

The CCA concert and workshop is free to the public and is open to jazz aficionados and players of all ages and abilities. Guests are welcome to come and listen or to bring along their instruments and participate in the workshop. For more information, call the CCA at 433-2787.

SRSLY seeks public input

The SRSLY Coalition is asking members of the Chelsea community to take a three-minute anonymous online survey. Results from the survey will be used in the coalition's evaluation and planning processes.

"We need to hear from all members of the community, not just those who are active in the coalition," SRSLY director Reiley Lewis said. "In order to measure our progress, we need honest feedback. The community survey is the best way to get it, and because its online and anonymous it can supply us with important information from the community about what they think of SRSLY, as well as their take on drinking and drug use in our young people. "Because it is totally anonymous, we hope to get candid opinions from a large number of people."

Youth and adults can access the survey through SRSLY's homepage, at www.srslychelsea.org. The 13 questions take approximately three minutes to complete, and include opportunity for open-ended feedback.

The SRSLY community survey was developed by youth and adult coalition members at a monthly meeting. Using the 2009 survey as a guide, members selected questions to include again this year, and suggested new questions to add. To date, 154 people have completed the survey.

wash fundraiser and assists the local area manager with administration. In 2009, she co-chaired the food portion of the Chelsea High School Choir Madrigal Dinner; and has led the Chelsea Community Hospital Children Center's teacher appreciation event for the past two years.

She is a member of the Leadership Team of Ann Arbor Leadership Team, where she has led initiatives in Washtenaw County including being a community presenter for Strong Moms Strong Girls for the past three years.

"Strong Moms Strong Girls is a joint partnership between the JLA and the University of Michigan Center for the Child and Family designed to address relational aggression in young girls and women," Dunlap-Hurden said. "I've performed several community presentations to school administrators and parents discussing how to help their girls navigate the murky waters of peer relationships while empowering them to grow strong, healthy attitudes towards themselves and other women."

She serves as chairwoman for a JLA/POWER, Inc. project, focusing on rehabilitation of women coming out of prison and promoting positive reconnection with the community to prevent recidivism.

For two years, she was chairwoman for the JLA/SOS Community Services Project that focuses on emergency services to families in need, literacy for children and a program assisting parents to become their children's first teachers, similar to the Parents As Teachers program. Next year, Dunlap-Hurden will serve as chairwoman for the Future Fund Development program.

"This meshes quite nicely with my new position in Chelsea, as I'll be able to help facilitate connections and synergies with other Washtenaw County organizations," she said.

She is quick to sing the praises of her adoptive city. "The beautiful thing about Chelsea is that our geography, history, local offerings and values make us extraordinary," she said. "Geographically, we're within easy driving distance from three major cities in southeastern Michigan. We have easy access to I-94, which can connect us to US-23 and Highway 127. We're minutes from a paradise of natural resources in the Waterloo and Pinckney Recreation Area, and within 45 minutes of a major metropolitan airport.

"We're uniquely positioned to offer easy connectivity while still having the feel of being in a true community. Chelsea has many of the amenities of a larger community, without the disconnection that comes from having too much packed into a city."

Although designated a city, Chelsea has not lost its small hometown feel, she said.

"When a person moves here, they become part of a true community. People and businesses are friendly, helpful and welcoming. Our police force does an amazing job of keeping us safe and our fire department is incredibly responsive. Our local government is truly progressive with many of its initiatives, and, I believe, values its citizens," she said.

Chelsea has all of the elements it needs to grow tremendously going forward, she said. "My mission will be to help put those elements together into a cohesive streamlined effort that will benefit the entire community. The focus groups and steering committee have done an amazing amount of work in a short period of time and have given me a solid base from which to work. Now, it is time to turn their well-thought out vision into reality so that our local economy can flourish to its full potential."

"I understand this will not be an easy job, but certainly, it will be rewarding. I believe the work we put in now will take root and have long-term effects. It's very exciting to be part of this initiative."

The hiring of Dunlap-Hurden is the culmination of several months of effort on the part of the Chelsea First Steering Committee.

"Since the onset of this project, everyone on the steering committee has been great to work with," committee chairman Pat Cleary said. "We represent a cross section of Chelsea business owners and community leaders who are passionate about what Chelsea has to offer."

"Everyone selflessly took time away from their businesses to put together a comprehensive plan that will instill not only a marketing vision for all of Chelsea but to find the right person to coordinate the implementation of our vision. It has been truly exciting."

SRSly Cinema set for summer

The SRSly Cinema series will once again continue alongside the Sounds and Sights event on Thursdays in downtown Chelsea this summer.

The outdoor films will start at dusk each Thursday and will be shown on a 48-foot screen at the clock-tower complex in downtown Chelsea. Lawn seating will be available and refreshments including freshly made popcorn will be for sale from the Chelsea Equestrian Team and the SRSly Youth Steering Committee.

CHELSEA

"We weren't really sure what to expect last year," said project manager Janice Ortring. Ortring and her husband, Todd, are volunteering their time again to get keep the project going.

"It was a big success, especially with the young teens and became the place to go each week," she said. "We had a great group of volunteers and very supportive sponsors to help underwrite the costs."

In order to continue the movie program, sponsors are again needed. SRSly Cinema is looking for sponsors at the $150 level and up. Sponsors have an opportunity to sponsor or partially sponsor a film, or they can sponsor a series of films. Shared sponsorships are available for $150 to $300, and an exclusive nightly sponsorship is $450.

"Our film rental fees have gone up considerably this year," Ortring said. "We're not getting the same discount as last year and we have some recent hit films that are more expensive to rent. We're hoping to get the same strong support and interest that we received last year for sponsorships and volunteers."

"Anyone can be a sponsor for a movie including families, businesses, organizations or church groups. Sponsors are recognized on screen prior to the start of the film.

Those interested can e-mail srslycinema@gmail.com or call Janice Ortring at 1-734-433-1311, or Reiley Lewis, SRSly program director at 1-734-660-8864.

SRSly Cinema has added an extra night this year on July 30 as part of the Sounds & Sights Festival (formerly Chelsea SummerFest).

"The outdoor movies are a great addition to the Sounds & Sights event," Todd Ortring said. "As the new festival grows and progresses, we wanted to add something in the evening that was a draw for our younger market -- the movies are a perfect fit."

Opening night is June 17 at dusk with the showing of the recent hit, "The Blind Side." There two films with local ties this year as both "Dumber & Dumber" and "Fly Away Home" featuring Chelsea native Jeff Daniels will be screened. A list of other films scheduled can be found at SRSlychelsea.org.

Vultures among us: Vultures as vile as their reputation

By Helen Polaski
Special Writer

In the early morning mist, just before the sun peeks over the horizon, I settle into the rock-ing chair on my front porch and bring a steaming cup of coffee to my lips. I sip slowly, enjoying the aroma as I await my first glimpse of Milan's earliest risers.

It won't be long. As soon as the sun warms the air, there will be a quiet rustling of feathers, a silent blink of intelligent eyes, a collective awakening of spirits.

Within minutes of rousing, Milan's newest and perhaps most misunderstood residents will greet the morning sun with wings spread wide.

I watch in fascination as the birds ascend from their lofty perch in synchronized order. There is no bickering within the colony; no race to be first, no worry about being last. Within seconds, wingtips have caught the slightest of breezes and a few flaps of their 6-foot wingspans have sent the resident Hurd Street turkey vulture colony gliding gracefully through the air.

A few set their sights on the city proper, wheeling and banking high overhead. The rest fly off in small groups of between one and three.

Because they don't have a syrinx, the equivalent of a bird's vocal organ, grunting to one another in conversationally tones, or hissing menacingly at predators who venture too close, is the extent of their vocalization. They may squabble from time to time over a meal, but turkey vultures are naturally non-confrontational.

At first glance, the viewer is taken aback by the bird's leathery red head, which is abnormally devoid of feathers. But, as with other oddities of this bird, this unusual characteristic serves an evolutionary purpose. To feast, the vulture must stick its head into the cavity of a dead animal. Having a smooth head means this member of the stork family can shake off the bits of carcass and bacteria from around its eyes, thereby avoiding possible infection.

Though turkey vultures prefer to spend their daylight hours hunting in relative solitude and their evening hours roosting amicably in isolated areas, a recent development has taken place. Due to loss of habitat and an abundance of roadkill, turkey vultures are adapting to city living all across the nation. Residents in Clinton, Saline and the Macon have also spotted turkey vultures roosting in nearby trees, sometimes in groups of more than 50.

This particular morning, within seconds of one another, nine majestic flyers glide over the housetops between County and Hurd streets. The vultures are flying low, moving slowly, their bodies tipping curiously from side to side as they test the air for the scent only a scavenger would call breakfast.

The photographer in me cannot resist the opportunity of so many birds in one place. I grab my camera and hop on my bike. Though I pedal hard, within seconds I have lost sight of them. Discouraged, I pull into the Hack House driveway in Milan, and wander up the sidewalk, camera in hand. Suddenly, the hairs on my neck stand on end. I may have lost sight of the vultures, but they have not lost sight of me. Four roost on the barn roof, five in a nearby tree. And all eyes are trained on me.

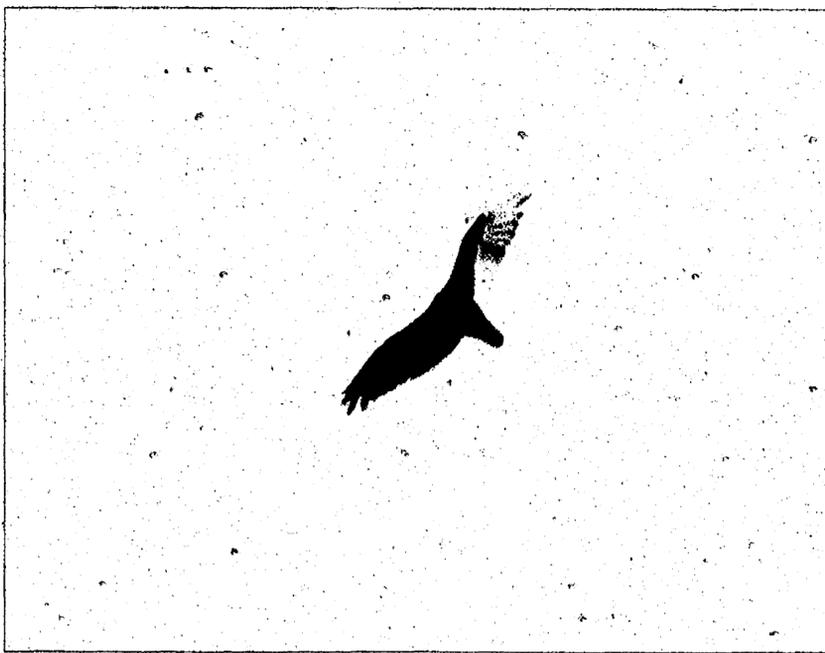

Wondering what has brought them to this silent place, I sniff tentatively, but my olfactory glands are primitive compared to those of the turkey vulture. I smell nothing. A turkey vulture can smell decomposing gases from more than 200 feet in the air. A hole in their beak — visible from either side — allows air to enter from both directions. This unique feature helps the turkey vulture find a carcass with pinpoint accuracy. Its sense of smell is so accurate that gas companies in Texas have been known to use this scavenger to help find natural gas leaks.

Because natural gas has no scent, ethyl mercaptan, one of the gases omitted when flesh is decomposing, is injected into the gas line. When the mingled gases leak out at a breach in the line, the only detectable scent is ethyl mercaptan, which immediately catches the attention of patrolling turkey vultures. All the repairmen have to do is watch for circling vultures.

Though I know red-headed turkey vultures aren't interested in the living, I keep my distance. Turkey vultures rarely attack, but they are far from defenseless. Their method for deterring predators comes in the form of projectile vomit. A turkey vulture is capable of spewing toxic vomit up to 10 feet. This vomit is not just disgusting; it's corrosive and will burn unprotected skin and mucus membranes.

The birds are about 40 feet away well within camera shot without risk of being spewed upon. I raise my camera slowly, but they are wary. They move quickly — too quickly. Though disappointed, relief rushes through me as they lunge off the roof and swirl out of range. Turkey vultures are the stuff of horror movies. They look just as eerie and repulsive

Turkey vultures use projectile vomit to deter predators.

To make matters worse, they also urinate on their legs and on one another, both to kill

The good news for Milan's birds is that their closest human neighbors on Hurd Street have not noticed any untoward behavior, so at present these birds have earned the right to remain. However, as wildlife is often unpredictable, homeowners should remain watchful and keep their distance. Children and pets

I watch in fascination as the birds ascend from their lofty perch in synchronized order. There is no bickering within the colony; no race to be first, no worry about being last. bacteria on their bodies and to stay cool. And while their milky white excrement is vegetation. Vile creatures though they may be, without the turkey should not be left unattended. In the event that black-headed vultures are discovered roosting among the red-headed turkey vultures, precaution is to be taken. Black-headed vultures are both smaller and more aggressive than their cousin the red-headed turkey vulture and have been known to attack and kill small animals.

"It was a little unnerving when I saw turkey vultures sitting on the neighbor's roof, staring into the backyard, wings spread wide," said Mayor Kym Muckler, who has an up-close-and-personal view of their comings and goings from her backyard. But after Muckler conducted a short Internet research, she, like several other nearby residents, admit to being less "creeped out" and more entertained by the city's visitors than anything else.

The turkey vulture is protected by international migratory bird treaties, punishable by a fine of up to $15,000 and six months in jail. However, should the birds overstay their welcome, drastic measures that have worked in other small towns can be implemented. Residents are permitted to continually flash lights, play loud music, and shout into the trees for several nights to discourage the birds.

Eventually, even the gentle turkey vulture will decide that no matter how comfortable the housing, city neighbors are just too rude and inconsiderate.

Dodge Challenger does retro well

By David Schmidt
Regular News Service

If there are any enthusiasts that more adamantly support their preferred brand of car than pony car owners, I'd be surprised.

There are really only three pony cars: the Mustang, for which the category was named; Chevrolet's Camaro; and Dodge's Challenger.

The folks that love these cars tend to stick with the brand for other vehicles, which warms auto marketers' hearts.

It's also why there was so much excitement when all three American manufacturers refocused on this segment.

While the financial difficulties haven't helped their success as much as was hoped, the brand identification and support has been a winner.

Just as it was in the 1960s with the original cars that invented this segment, Chrysler's entry trails in when you look at the numbers. But that doesn't limit the Dodge and Chrysler Corporation loyalists' enthusiasm.

When you look at the car, its appeal is clear. The Dodge Challenger catches the spirit and emotion of the original, but in a much more usable fashion.

The sweeping, clean lines recall the romance of the original, yet result in a good-looking, modern design.

While the Challenger has only been around for a few years, the mechanicals have been around for some time because it shares them with the Chrysler 300, Dodge Charger and now defunct Dodge Magnum.

Driving it feels a bit outdated, but that probably fits with the people who are attracted to a full-sized coupe like this.

For those who are really into the retro thing, the R/T has dual side R/T stripes and big 20-inch polished wheels that the guys back in the heyday of this car would've loved if wheels that big existed then.

There's also a body-color rear spoiler and a chrome gas cap - excuse me, fuel filler.

For 2010, you can up the muscle look with Dodge's Super Track Pack, which includes Goodyear Eagle F1 Super Car tires, front and rear Nivomat self-leveling shock absorbers, a larger rear stabilizer bar, a 3.06 rear-axle ratio and performance brake linings.

You can even turn off the stability control if you wish to experience more of the dynamics of the originals.

My test car was the Dodge Challenger R/T - the middle of the offerings, between the 6-cylinder base car and the high-performance Challenger SRT-8.

It's a classically equipped pony car with a Hemi V8 and an available manual transmission.

Most of these will probably be sold with the 5-speed automatic, but the manual allows Challenger owners to know an available model can replicate the street drags of those exciting days of old.

The model I drove did have the manual, which pleased me. It's a 6-speed, designed to handle the 5.7-liter HEMI V8's 376 hp and 410 lb-ft of torque. I wasn't completely taken with the gearbox - it takes getting used to the shift pattern.

The throws are long, and it would be nicer if they were shorter. The shifting is crisp when you finally get to the gear. You have to really pull the lever towards you for first gear. Until you get used to it, you'll find yourself trying to start off in third.

Reverse is easy to get into, being all the way at the right and up. I'd rather have the resistance be over there rather than, for first and second gear.

This is perhaps part of the stupid shift-from-first-to-fourth system that must make the government fuel watchdogs happy or something.

As an aside, the sound of this engine is reason enough to own the car, and proves this car was engineered by people who love muscle cars.

There's more space in the back than you'd expect, enough to be a usable four-passenger car, although technically it's actually a five-passenger car.

I'd want to be very attracted to the other two occupants, though.

I liked driving this car; even I looked good in it. The stereo is loud and modern, there's even Chrysler's Uconnect Bluetooth phone connection so you can talk on the cell phone without becoming a public nuisance or a threat.

The seats are comfortable and supportive enough to handle the side forces the Challenger will generate. Most importantly, it looks and feels comfortable and, well, just right.

Make sure you set the satellite radio to the Sixties on Six station.

FROST, ANDREW PAUL, 32, formerly of Chelsea; died unexpectedly in his home in Loveland, CO on May 28, 2010. Andy lived a life full of music, travel, hard work, and giving all of himself to those he cared for. An accomplished drummer, Andy demonstrated his passion for music with several rock groups, ranging from the Ann Arbor rock scene to touring Europe with The Hydromatics. He played with legends Scott Morgan, Ron Asheton, Deniz Tek, Robert Gillespie, Hiawatha Bailey, and Mitch Ryder, to name a few. Andy enamored his fans with rich, musical influences and a hard, aggressive style which brought clubs and festivals alike, to their feet. Andy was also a man you wanted to run into downtown, at Seitz's, or Cleary's for hearty conversation, and more importantly, a laugh. His engaging and jovial character simply attracted people and he is missed by his many friends. Constantly moving, Andy's occupations included everything from expertly cooking food in downtown Chelsea, to selling shoes with his father in Ann Arbor, to handling heavy machinery while working in the field of environmental cleanup in our Great Lakes and across the country. Andy was a living reminder of old school rock and roll, a throwback to a simpler time when people just went and hung out downtown. His only media was music and his pastime was his friends. He could play it all and made you like it just by watching him pour his soul into his drums. He was an inspiration to his peers, fans, and to the seasoned rock vets he played with. Andy had a place in his heart for animals. He cherished his time with them and always made them an important part of his life. He furiously defended animals and had a gentleness with them that was magnetic. Above all, Andy was an extremely wonderful son, brother, uncle, and friend who made those around him smile. He was cherished in life and will be truly missed by those he left behind. He is survived by his parents, Robert and Sharon (Simmons) Frost of Petoskey; his brothers, Lt. Robert Frost of Lawton, OK, and Joseph Frost of Traverse City; sister-in-law Melissa; nephew Robert, Jr.; and nieces Elizabeth and Abigail Frost of Lawton, OK; his maternal grandmother Maxine; several loving aunts, uncles and cousins, with his uncle Mike Thayer being a musical mentor. There will be a celebration of Andy's life held on Saturday, June 12 at 4 p.m. at Chelsea Lanes. For those desiring, a contribution in his name can be made to the Humane Society or www.musicmentors.com and would be greatly appreciated.

VARNER, CATHERINE (CROISANT): of Chelsea, MI; age 53; passed away June 2, 2010. Catherine will be remembered by her family and friends as a fiercely devoted mother, spouse, daughter and sibling, while also being an exceptional attorney, teacher, writer, poet and playwright. Catherine will also be remembered as a warm, highly optimistic person who brought light to all whom she knew. Catherine was born July 1, 1954, in Midland, to Harold and Ruth Croisant. After graduating from Midland High School, Catherine received bachelor's and master's degrees from U of M, her undergraduate degree with honors and Phi Beta Kappa recognition. After law school at Northeastern University, Catherine practiced litigation law in Boston, including 10 years as an enforcement attorney for the U.S. Securities Exchange Commission in its Boston Office, ultimately serving as a Branch Chief. In 1991, as a single parent, she adopted two children from an orphanage in Romania, Marius and Elena. In 1993, Catherine married Christopher Varner, and in 1995 they had a son, Michael. In 1996, Catherine left the practice of law to devote herself to her children. After moving back to Michigan in 2001, Catherine dedicated time to teaching creative writing in the local schools and to writing poetry; a memoir about her cancer treatments and a play. She also participated in writing workshops, including those sponsored by The Purple Rose Theater. In Chelsea, Catherine worshipped at St. Barnabas Episcopal Church and at the First Congregational Church. Although Catherine did not enjoy the brutality of the disease she had (lymphoma) or its treatments, the disease allowed her to deepen her Christian faith. Catherine is survived by her parents, of Midland; her husband; 3 children, Marius (Mallissa) of Saline, Eleana "Flo" and Michael, both at home; 2 grandchildren; her siblings: Peter Croisant of Beaver Falls, PA, Mary Woods of Ypsilanti and Robert Croisant of Merriam, KS; and 10 nieces and nephews. Services were held June 8 at the First Congregational Church of Chelsea. Donations in Catherine's honor can be made to the Lymphoma Research Foundation. Full obituary at www.ColeFuneralChapel.com

BMW 750Li an elegant, athletic automobile

By Russ Heaps
Journal Register News Service

Traditionally, the 7 Series is where BMW engineers and product planners have let their imaginations run wild, and the current crop of 750s reap the rewards of their loss of restraint. A rolling laboratory of high-tech gadgetry, the BMW 750i and 750Li are crammed full of cutting-edge safety and passenger-comfort features. Elegant, luxurious and athletic, the 7 Series makes no compromises. It's exactly what a sporty luxury sedan should be. Whether it's the $83,825 regular wheelbase 750i or the $96,180 long-wheelbase 750Li like my test BMW, the driving is exhilarating and the passenger experience unsurpassed.

The 7 Series makes no compromises. It's exactly what a sporty luxury sedan should be.

When you count among your peers the Mercedes S-Class, Audi A8 and Jaguar XJ, you must deliver on expectations, and the 750s do just that. From the dynamic lines of the sleek exterior to the near-perfect seats, this sedan oozes class and defines premium.

Other than its 5.5-inch longer wheelbase (as well as its correspondingly stretched overall length) and self-leveling suspension, the 750Li is virtually the same as the 750i. All of that overall length gain is invested into the 750Li's rear-seat legroom that totals a whopping 44.3 inches.

A 4.4-liter turbocharged V8 delivers 400 horsepower to the rear wheels by way of a driver-shiftable 6-speed automatic transmission. An extra $3,000 will add all-wheel drive to either 750. Such AWD versions include "xDrive" in their nomenclature and badging. Acceleration is blistering, particularly for a sedan of this size and heft. Getting to 60 miles per hour from a standstill takes just over five seconds.

There's a bit of turbo hesitation when you goose the accelerator, but it's not annoying and certainly doesn't seem to dampen the get-up-and-go.

Fuel economy is better than expected for a big sedan capable of sub-6-second acceleration. You won't see Sierra Club members hugging it, but fuel economy is relative and, relatively speaking, mileage for the 750s isn't awful.

Yet the base prices listed earlier include a $1,000 Gas Guzzler Tax. The EPA estimates that the 750i will get 15 mpg in the city and 22 mpg on the highway, while the 750Li achieves 14 mpg city and 20 mpg highway.

With a 4-wheel independent suspension engineered and tuned for spot-on handling, the ride may be a little stiffer than you might want from a luxury sedan.

This is one of those areas where BMW could have compromised, but instead choose to keep the 750s faithful to BMW handling traditions. A double-wishbone layout in front and a multi-link setup in the rear are the suspension's key components.

Drivers have the power to program vehicle responses through the Driving Dynamics Control system. Offering four different settings, it adjusts throttle response, shift pattern, shock absorber damping and power-steering assist. Drivers can choose the setting that best suits their driving style or current mood.

A 4.4-liter turbocharged V8 delivers 400 horsepower to the rear wheels by way of a driver-shiftable 6-speed automatic transmission. An extra $3,000 will add all-wheel drive to either 750. Such AWD versions include "xDrive" in their nomenclature and badging. Acceleration is blistering, particularly for a sedan of this size and heft. Getting to 60 miles per hour from a standstill takes just over five seconds. There's a bit of turbo hesitation when you goose the accelerator, but it's not annoying and certainly doesn't seem to dampen the get-up-and-go.

Antilock brakes on all four corners reel in forward progress. In addition to the traction control, stability control, electronic brake force distribution and emergency braking assist found on an array of cars, the 750s have BMW's brake drying and emergency braking preparation features. Entering the cavernous interior, it's difficult to ignore the seats. Both are heatable and also offer power-adjustable lumbar support. You won't hear any complaints from passengers riding in the backseat. This is particularly true in the longer 750Li, in which passengers feel as though they're being whisked to an international summit. Adjusting the expanse of gadgets in the 7 Series requires a lot of driver input. BMW solved the problem of too many buttons, switches and knobs on the instrument panel by introducing its iDrive computer interface on the 7 Series nearly a decade ago.

Exceedingly difficult to operate when first introduced, it's evolved over the years to the much more user-friendly version found in today's 7 Series. There are still some buttons for the often-made adjustments, such as volume and tuning for the 10-speaker 7.1 surround sound system, but the newer, more simplified iDrive retains control of less-accessed systems through a round knob on the center console.

Standard features include a hard drive-based navigation system, iPod USB connection, HD radio, full power accessories, tilt-telescoping steering wheel with redundant audio controls, keyless ignition, 4-zone climate control, two-person memory system for driver's seat, steering wheel, climate control and exterior mirrors, eight airbags, and Xenon adaptive headlights with cornering lights.

The $1,700 Convenience Package adds soft-close automatic doors, keyless entry and automatic power trunk lid operation. Another $2,600 will get you optional Night Vision with Pedestrian Detection, while ponying up another $1,750 adds Integral Active Steering that turns all four wheels during slow-speed maneuvering. One of the ultimate reward-yourself sedans, the 7 Series is more than just a status statement: it satisfies in every regard.

What is the towing capacity of an older truck?

Q: How do I find the towing capacity of an older truck like my 1988 Ford? I want to buy a fairly large boat and trailer and need to find out for sure what the truck can haul safely. Thanks.

— Glen in Middletown, N.Y.

A: I'm going to assume that your owners' manual is missing because all that information would be in the specifications section.

To ascertain the towing capacity, you need to know the engine/transmission configuration and also the rear axle ratio. Your best bet is to go to a site like eBay and look for a used manual.

Another thing to try is searching on the web using specific key words to narrow the search. Some manufacturer sites maintain specifications for older models and other sites like SUV.Org have valuable information in the form of application charts.

Q: My 2000 Pontiac has more than 80,000 miles on it and I'd like to know when I should have the serpentine belt changed. It's the original and has never been a problem, but my boyfriend suggests that it should have been changed a long time ago. What's the lifetime of these parts and what would happen if it broke?

— Juliette

A: Your boyfriend is correct in this case. Most serpentine belts should be changed at about 50,000 miles to ensure against catastrophic failure.

If a serpentine belt fails the alternator, water pump and power steering assist will stop functioning, but you should get a notice that it's happening via trouble lights on the dash. I always recommend that when a belt is changed, the old one should be kept in the trunk as an emergency replacement.

A large adjustable wrench will generally be all you need to rotate the idler when installing the replacement of gear. Whenever I'm in fourth gear and let off the gas, it slips out into neutral. If I hold the gear lever, it stays in but it's really bothering me. Is there some kind of adjustment that I can do to stop this? The car has nearly 100,000 miles on it and runs great. Thanks.

— J.B.

A: It's always possible that the shift assembly is out of adjustment but slipping out of fourth gear is fairly unusual. Typically, transmissions come out of gear during deceleration in the lower gears due to wear on the synchronizers and mating teeth on the gears themselves. You should take the car to a transmission shop to get a professional diagnosis.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Park Street closed for Farmers' Market

It was great to hear that Park Street would be partly closed on Saturday mornings so people can safely go to the Chelsea Farmers' Market. There is no thru traffic on Park Street from 7 a.m. to noon. Some people are not aware of this. The Chelsea Police have been worried about this safety issue for some time and have come up with a solution that still leaves plenty of parking.

Signing up at www.nixle.com for instant updates from our Chelsea Police can help us all become informed quickly about lots of things like this. Cars can still use the parking lot behind the library and the lot off of Park Street behind Merkel's Furniture. There is only one of the two parking lot entrances off of Park Street blocked off.

If you turn onto Park Street from Main Street, you can enter that parking lot and leave from there. And you can enter that lot through the library lot. Cars can still use the parking lot behind the Chelsea Market, Mission Market Place, Vogel's and Foster's, Cleary's Pub and LoJolla Jewelry entering next to the Purple Rose Theatre when coming from the east or from the alley off of East Street and exit onto West Middle Street.

To find out what the farmers' market vendors will have for sale each Saturday visit "Chelsea Update" on the Internet.

To sign up for e-mail notices, look halfway down the page on the right, where it says "subscribe." Chelsea Update will also tell us what the vendors expect to have each week at the Wednesday afternoon farmer's market at Chelsea Hospital from 2 to 6:30 p.m. You can also find local food and products on a Website called realtimefarms.com. Chelsea farmers' market has a good Website that lists its events. The Internet and cell phones are great communication tools that can help supplement the more in-depth stories from the Chelsea Standard.

Support local business and keep our dollars here.

Congratulations Latka

Congratulations to Kimberly Latka for obtaining Konover Hotel Corporation's "Manager of the Quarter" award at the Chelsea Holiday Inn Express. I had the privilege of working with Kim at the Chelsea Holiday Inn for about a year and want to say that she richly deserves this recognition. Kim was a pleasure to work with and is one of the nicest persons anyone will ever meet. It is great to see a corporation recognizing and rewarding a very deserving worker.

Impressed with Walberg

I am so impressed with Tim Walberg. On April 25, he held a town hall meeting at the clock tower in Chelsea to discuss health care a time that most people could attend. Unlike his opponent, Rep. Mark Schauer, D-District 7, who holds his meetings at 2 p.m. at the Chelsea Senior Center when few can attend.

Approximately 30 Democrat supporters attended to oppose Mr. Walberg, and most of them were not local, as opposed to the 100 or more Republican supporters that were mostly local. Shame on the Democrats for playing childish tactics that clearly blew up in their faces.

Several obnoxious and out of order Democrat supporters heckled Tim, and yet he kept his composure and clearly explained his plan for health care reform.

To me, it is perfect: tax credits, no coverage refusal and we are not forced to buy anything. Now that is the American way.

For those of you that voted down party lines last election, I must say you made a terrible blunder in voting for the out of touch attorney and lifetime bureaucrat, Mark Schauer. Shame on you who voted for the wrong candidate because you are blinded by the media.

Tim is a real person who understands our needs. He worked his way through college as a steel worker and earned his master's degree. Following that, he was a pastor for nearly 10 years. Tim understands people, unlike Mark Schauer, whose career started fresh out of college with a degree in politics and continued with politics with no experience with real people.

Schauer seems to believe he knows best... and tries to explain to us less intelligent sheep after the fact why he has decided our futures. Schauer seems to stand for more government, higher taxes to pay for entitlements and loss of freedom.

On the contrary, Tim Walberg stands for less complication, less government and lower taxes. Our nation's founders would probably vote for Tim Walberg, and so will this immigrant.

Petition rejected

The petition for Dexter's cityhood boundaries was rejected by the state and the village council has decided to resubmit a revised petition with new boundaries. The council has stated all along that the city boundaries would be the same as was the village but now that could be different.

The council will propose to include in the new city half of the Gordon Hall property and one building of Mill Creek Sports Shop. Yes, I said half and only one building. This is unacceptable from the Dexter Historical Society's standpoint, and I am sure from Mill Creek's as well.

Gordon Hall was built by Judge Samuel Dexter in Webster Township in 1841 and is still in Webster Township to this day. The historical society and Webster Township wants to keep it there. The entire property, 52 acres, also has 30 acres in Scio Township hence the dividing of the property as built and developed by Judge Dexter.

The Dexter Area Historical Society and Museum hopes the people of the Village of Dexter will oppose this new boundary and inform the council to adhere to their statement that the boundaries for the City of Dexter will not differ from the village. The new petitions for cityhood will be submitted after 117 residents sign it.

Please reject the new boundaries and keep Gordon Hall in Webster Township.

Proposed council rule changes unacceptable

At the May 25 meeting of the Chelsea City Council, an amendment to the rules of the city council was proposed that should be of concern to the citizens of Chelsea. Three of the proposed rules seem to be aimed at keeping council discussions at a minimum in open public meetings as well as after council has voted.

Those three changes are as follows:

Contact the city manager to get questions answered prior to the meeting.

Members must abide by the decision of the council once a decision has been made.

Resist the temptation, when you disagree with a decision, to try and undermine the decision; continuing concerns about a decision should be expressed privately.

In the discussion of these changes, it became obvious that they were aimed at council members Rod Anderson and Bill Holmberg who co-authored an opinion piece in the Chelsea Standard explaining their "no" vote on the issuance of bonds for the new police station.

Has transparency been so removed from council proceedings that council members are barred from expressing their disagreement with a council decision in a public forum? Is not Chelsea's city charter required to abide by the constitution of the State of Michigan and that of the United States? Are these two council members being blamed for the dissension within the community regarding a new police station?

There were many reasons why 650 Chelsea resident voters signed a petition to have the decision to sell bonds to build a new police facility put to a vote of the electorate. Almost no one stated that a new facility is not needed. But, they were obviously not convinced the current proposal was the correct answer at this time. Perhaps with more openness, instead of less, the council could move forward with a plan that would be acceptable.

At the very least, they should consider withdrawing these rule changes.

Thanks for support at athlete's fundraiser

Thank you to the Chelsea community for your very generous support during the fundraiser at Thompson's Pizzeria on May 25.

Your support will help me to attend several national wrestling tournaments over the summer. It was great to see so many people turn out and I appreciate it very much.

I would also like to acknowledge Lynda Collins and her staff for allowing us to have our fundraiser. Everyone at Thompson's Pizzeria is very generous and thoughtful and they are always willing to help out in the community.

Rep. Byrnes' leadership needed in state Senate

It's heartbreaking to watch the way the local schools have been forced to deal with their tight budgets. It's sad to see some great teachers let go. I'm thankful for Rep. Pam Byrnes, D-Dist. 52, our state representative, who's finding creative ways to help solve problems like these.

She supported the new public school employee retirement bill that just passed. It's effectively an early retirement offer; the auto companies successfully used similar plans when they needed to get back on track. It seems to me that everyone wins.

School employees who take advantage of the plan receive incentives. Pink-slipped employees could be recalled. If the estimated 28,000 employees retire, that opens up more jobs for our communities. More college graduates can stay in Michigan to work, raise a family, and contribute to the economy.

This new retirement system is expected to save Michigan public schools almost $700 million in the upcoming school year alone — and over $3 billion in the next decade.

Rep. Byrnes has served our community well for many years, and she's served the State of Michigan well. I applaud her for stepping up and making the tough choices that will turn our state around. I hope you'll vote for Pam when she runs for state Senate. I know I will.

What Memorial Day means

I reflected more than usual this past Memorial Day about what Memorial Day means to me and I wanted to share my thoughts with you.

The week before Memorial Day, Joan and I were visiting our daughter and her family in Virginia. We went to the Manassas Battle Field from the Civil War. In that war, 600,000 of our citizens died, more than all of our other wars and conflicts combined. As I walked the battlefield, I thought about how committed these men and women were to their beliefs and a way of life that they wanted to protect. In the end our country stayed as one and has grown into a great nation.

We ended our week in Virginia by attending the "Evening Parade" at the Marine Barracks in Washington, D.C. This is a wonderful event full of historical meaning and tradition. The playing of the National Anthem almost always brings tears to my eyes, and it did Friday night.

You see, I am pretty sentimental when it comes to our country and I always have been. As a U.S. Army Vietnam veteran, I served my country. I also experienced first hand the misdirected protest and opposition to the Vietnam conflict. I say misdirected because the men and women who served were simply serving their country. They did not set the policy or send the troops anywhere.

They simply served their country. It was wrong for us to experience the misdirected protests and harassment from those who enjoy freedom, have not served, and do not appreciate the cost of that freedom. The place to express your unhappiness with our country's leaders is at the ballot box.

Vietnam veterans may not have had anyone tell them "thanks for your service." It was only a couple of years ago that someone thanked me. I tell every veteran and active duty service person I meet. I encourage you to thank them also. They have and continue to serve our country and we need to appreciate and support them.

I also reflected a lot this year, as it was the first year that I was unable to thank my dad for his service during World War II. I miss him a lot and this is another reminder that he is gone. He was proud of his service. I am proud of him.

Our son-in-law continues as an active duty Marine, now with only three years to retirement. We are very proud of him as a husband, father, and a Marine. Thank you Chris and all active duty and veterans for your service.

We went to the Memorial Day parade in Chelsea and followed the parade into the cemetery where 750 veterans are buried. Several hundred people were in the cemetery Monday morning as a couple of speeches were made, the National Anthem was played, and yes, I cried.

This has been a long message to basically say, tell our active duty service and veterans "thank you for your service" every chance you get. We owe them much more than we know. We do not owe them criticism for the political decisions that are made by our elected officials.

Finally, I encourage you to vote, regardless of your political beliefs. It is important that we are active participants in the selection of our government leaders. The partisanship currently being displayed at all levels of government is tearing this nation apart. Our government leaders are not working together as the founders envisioned. Fly your American flag today. God bless America.

Dexter Library launches summer program

Surf's up at Dexter District Library and the Youth Services staff has prepared an exciting summer reading program for children in the community.

This year the library will celebrate the world of water and fun with "Make a Splash: Read!"

"There is always more time for the things we enjoy during the summer and the Dexter District Library would like to be part of your fun this summer by providing a wide variety of events and performances for children of all ages," the library said in a press release. "So put on your water goggles and head down to the library for some water reading enjoyment."

At 11 a.m. June 18, the library will kick-off its 16th annual summer reading program with a live performance by entertainer Chris Linn. Linn's comedy and magic show is titled "Cool Tricks and Funny Stuff," and there will be plenty of audience participation.

Following the performance, audience members can stop inside the Story Time Room and young adult area to register for this year's summer reading program.

There will be refreshments and funny photo opportunities at the farmers' market through the early afternoon. The program will run from June 18 until Aug. 6.

Children can register anytime during the summer. Registration involves filling out a reading record and setting a reading goal. The reading goal can be a certain number of books read over the summer or an amount of time spent reading each week.

Children who cannot read yet may participate with a parent or caregiver by signing up for the "Read To Me" program. Reading records will be kept at the library so children can keep track of their progress. Each week a small prize is given to every child who comes into the library to record the books they have read.

This year a bigger and better Teen Read Program will be offered at the library. Teens age 13 and up can register in the young adult area beginning June 18.

On June 23, local Origami expert Helen O'Toole will return to present two workshops for ages 8 and up. Children can register for either 11 a.m. or 1 p.m. during the summer reading program kick-off. Space is limited.

On June 25 at 11 a.m. Lori Fithian will bring her "Drumcommunity!" hands-on concert to the library. This interactive program will provide participants of all ages the opportunity to experience a variety of hand drums and percussion instruments in a fun, non-competitive setting.

Fithian's message of community, peace, diversity, wellness, ecology and rhythmic fun is becoming one of the library's more popular programs.

On July 2 at 11 a.m. the library will welcome for the first time the Critchlow Alligator Sanctuary from Athens.

David Critchlow will present a variety of reptiles and amphibians for audience observation while conducting an open discussion about their behavior, biology and unique environments.

This is a program for all ages and Critchlow will be available for questions following the presentation.

Residents can stay cool this summer by stopping by the farmers' market on July 7 between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Coffee House Creamery will be serving treats. Patrons who show their library card will receive a free ice cream cone or cup, compliments of the Dexter District Library.

On July 9 at 11 a.m. local storyteller La'Roh Williams will visit the library to guide children through the amazing land of imagination. Williams incorporates singing, acting and visual art into his storytelling, making it a completely unique experience for kids of all ages.

Refreshments will be served following the program.

Family movie and popcorn night will once again be added to this summer's list of events.

On July 13 at 6:30 p.m. the library will be showing "Cloudy with a Chance of Meatballs" for kids of all ages.

Leslie Science and Nature Center will visit the library on July 16. At 11 a.m. the center will present "Hunters of the Sky!" bringing live raptors and a bald eagle to the library.

Lots of laughs are coming to the library at 11 a.m. July 23 with ventriloquist Vikki Gasko returning to perform a brand new comedy show. "Wet, Wild and Funny Friends" features "larger than life" characters who interact with the audience.

On July 30 at 11 a.m. residents can meet beekeeper Dr. Peter Sutherland and enjoy an hour of interesting facts and information about bees.

Two drop-in craft days are also planned for the summer. On July 14 and Aug. 4 participants can drop into the lower level meeting room between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. to make a variety of crafts. The library's regular book discussion groups for children will continue this summer.

"Book Snackers" for grades 3 to 5 and "Super Stories" for kindergarten through second grade will meet several times throughout the summer reading program. Registration is required. Dates and times can be found in the Dexter District Library's newsletter or the summer reading program flier, available at the library.

The summer reading program will wrap things up with a special party at 11 a.m. Aug. 6. Bev Meyer "The Music Lady" will return with her lively, energetic music concert for all ages.

Participants will enjoy an afternoon of laughter, music, refreshments and audience participation and can turn in their completed program cards to the library.

Children who meet their reading goals will be given book bags full of prizes and be entered in the grand prize drawing.

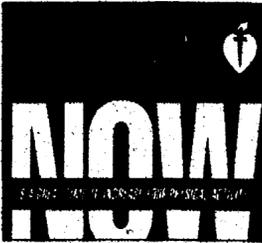

Library staff will collect the records from Aug. 2 to Aug. 15, just in time for the grand prize drawing on Aug. 16.

The grand prize drawing will feature special prizes such as CD players, iPods, Detroit Tigers tickets and Greenfield Village family passes as well as various gift cards and certificates.

The library will present all of these free events to everyone in the community. Monthly event calendars are available at the library's reference desk.

The Dexter District Library is located at 3255 Alpine St. in Dexter. For more information call 426-4477.

Schauer promotes proposed trade legislation

Congressman seeks to end unfair trade with Chinese government

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

During a brief tour of Saline, Chelsea and Manchester on June 3, U.S. Rep. Mark Schauer, D-District 7, took time to lay out a new bill he presented to Congress in May that would block U.S. government contracts going to purchase goods made in China.

"I committed during my last campaign that I would focus on fair trade issues. We've lost hundreds and thousands of jobs to NAFTA and other so-called free trade agreements and unfair trade with China," Schauer said.

According to Schauer, when China joined the World Trade Organization in 2001, it never signed the government procurement agreement.

"What China said when it joined the WTO in 2001 was, 'we're not going to let businesses from the United States do business with our government.' Unfortunately our government has allowed Chinese companies to do business with them at the expense of our tax dollars and at the expense of our jobs."

Schauer said since 2001, the United States has lost 68,000 jobs due to unfair trade practices. Schauer's district has lost 4,700 jobs.

"Currently, goods produced by Chinese firms are being purchased under state and federal contracts in the United States across multiple industries — such as manufacturing, construction and renewable energy — instead of goods produced by American workers and businesses," he said. "For example, items made in China were used as promotional items for the U.S. Census, even though we have businesses here in the United States that need the work and could have easily produced the items."

Schauer said he also introduced the bill in response to the federal government's "Cash for Caulkers" program, which rewards rebates to homeowners who upgrade their home appliances, such as air conditioners, to save energy.

Schauer said he was upset when an aide dispatched to a local hardware store reported back that 238 of the 240 air conditioners that were for sale were made in China and many would qualify for energy tax credits under the "Cash for Caulkers" program.

"Under the Cash for Caulkers program, you could buy an air conditioner for $300 and get a $150 rebate, meanwhile more jobs would be created in China," he said.

Schauer said he sought an amendment to the legislation that would exclude Chinese-made products from the rebate program unless the Chinese government opens its government contracts to U.S. businesses. His effort failed, and the House passed the bill, without his amendment. He was one of seven Democrats to vote against it.

"I've drawn a line in the sand. The most wasteful spending I can think of is the use of taxpayer dollars to support China," Schauer said. "I will continue to press this issue in every way possible."

For his efforts, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi recently appointed Schauer to President Obama's export council.

"Being on the export council is very important in taking on unfair trade practices that are costing us jobs," Schauer said.

Killips misrepresents self with speech

I hope David Killips, superintendent of Chelsea schools, doesn't decide to change careers and get into journalism.

But, on second thought, in what profession would plagiarism and misrepresenting the facts be permitted?

Is it acceptable for a school administrator to steal someone else's words, passing them off as his own, and fabricate a story, stating he overheard something that never occurred?

I attended the Chelsea High School graduation ceremony Sunday and listened to something that sounded way too familiar for Killips to claim it as his own personal experience (also listen to our video at www.heritage.com). Killips said:

"... However, I do have a few things I'd like to share with you, and first of all it's a conversation I heard last fall on the football field. This apparently self-important college freshman was sitting next to me and right behind an elderly man — I think about 80 years old. Out of the blue and unprovoked, the young man started talking about how it was impossible for the older generation to understand his generation. The young man said, 'You know we grew up with television, jet planes and space probes going to Mars and the sun. We have nuclear energy, electric and hydrogeot cars, cell phones, iPads, lightening-fast computers and other things you wouldn't just understand.'

"I obviously thought this man was out of line, but before I could say a word, the older gentleman turned around and said, 'You're right, son. We didn't have those things when I grew up, so we invented them.'"

When Killips said that he overheard the conversation last fall and it included a mention of the iPad, that's when I knew something was fishy. By the end of the speech, I thought it sounded familiar, with some slight variations in word choice. When I returned home, I did a search on Snopes.com and found Sen. John McCain did the same thing Killips did, stealing someone else's story and making it his own.

According to the Website, the anecdotal story meant to address the so-called generation gap, originated with President Ronald Reagan.

The Website credits Nancy Reagan's memoir as its source and states the story originated in 1967 after Ronald Reagan was elected governor of California.

According to the Website, 'At one campus meeting, a student told Reagan that it was impossible for people of Reagan's generation to understand young people. 'You grew up in a different world,' he (the student) said. 'Today we have television, jet planes, space travel, nuclear energy, computers.' Without missing a beat, Reagan replied, 'You're right.

It's true that we didn't have those things when we were young. We invented them.'"

So, Killips threw in a few more things that had been invented since 1967 and acted like this conversation took place in fall 2009, even before iPads hit the market. While his intentions may have been good (I did e-mail him and ask him for comment, but as of late Monday afternoon we were playing phone tag) and meant to generate applause from the audience, which it did, he should have been honest about the anecdote's origins.

With hundreds of students gathered and a gymnasium full of family, friends and community members hanging on every word, Killips gave himself and the district a black eye. He should have set a better example.

Honesty and full disclosure is always the best policy, especially in today's age of technology, when anything can be Googled.

Now there's an anecdote for you.

Songs are a big part of putting on a musical theatre production

By Abbie Stahlin Gentry
Guest Writer

When you are putting on a musical, each cast member — from star to chorus — must work hard. The cast members of this summer's Dexter Community Players production of "Curtains" are learning this as they prepare to present their show in July.

For the first couple of weeks of rehearsals, the cast has been learning how to sing all of the music. They have written music in their scripts to use for rehearsing. Some cast members have purchased the original Broadway soundtrack, which can help.

Music Director Brian E. Buckner taught all of the "ensemble" songs first. An "ensemble" song is one in which every cast member sings, so these rehearsals are large. The cast arrives for the first music rehearsal, and Buckner assigns them to sit in sections based on the singing parts they feel the most comfortable singing in.

"Brian is extremely energetic, which keeps everyone focused. He helps everyone get on track and sounding great. We learn it right the first time, and keep working on it, which imprints it in our minds," cast member Kennedy Shuck, a seventh grader at Mill Creek Middle School said.

Buckner uses some interesting techniques to teach. Observing a music rehearsal run by Buckner, one might see the cast sitting at one moment, or standing up marching, to get the feel of a song. No matter what the cast is doing, they generally are smiling. No matter if the cast has prior experience, or just plain willingness, Buckner will teach each person to be their best, and you can see confidence and joy in every cast member's face as they rehearse.

"Curtains" is a show with several different types of songs. One of the first songs rehearsed is "Wide Open Spaces," which is a song from the show-within-the-show. The cast begins to get a feel for the different types of songs that help to set the difference in setting from 1969 Boston to the 1800s Wild West.

"The music is so unique — it's a variety of everything really, and it all comes together really well," Shuck said.

The cast then moves on to learn "The Woman's Dead," which has a completely different style. Learning the songs well and completely is important, because the next step is to combine the singing with dancing, which will also reflect the various styles of the different settings.

Once the ensemble songs are all taught, Buckner will teach the lead characters their songs. Most of the actors playing lead roles have already been learning their songs on their own, leaving Buckner the freedom to refine each song, getting the very best out of each cast member.

"We must acknowledge the feel of the late 1800s (the implied period setting of the show-within-the-show), the 1950s (the period during which the frame story action occurs), and the present day, because the composing team, Kander and Ebb, creatively infuse each of the throwback styles with modern musical vernacular," Buckner explained. "This unique combination is what makes 'Curtains' such a delight to perform and to watch."

Curtains will be performed July 23 through 25 at Dexter High School's Center for the Performing Arts. Tickets are $15 at the door or $12 in advance via the order form or www.dextercommunityplayers.com, or $10 apiece in packs of 10.

ARE YOUR EYES CRYING FOR HELP?

Strange but True: Watery eyes may indicate Dry Eye Syndrome

Everyone experiences the symptoms from time to time: Burning, irritable eyes. A feeling that something is actually scratching the eye. But for some 3 million American women (and 1 million men), these symptoms are chronic, because they suffer from Dry Eye Syndrome.

TEARS ARE IMPORTANT Tears are essential to good vision. They lubricate the eye, protect it from infections and wash away allergens. With Dry Eye Syndrome, the eye produces too few tears, or tears of such poor quality that they don't stay on the eye. Ironically, some people with Dry Eye Syndrome may actually experience tears running down their cheeks.

WOMEN ARE MORE SUSCEPTIBLE While everyone experiences reduced tear production as they age, women are more prone to Dry Eye Syndrome than men by a 3 to 1 margin. Studies have shown that hormone therapy may increase the incidence of Dry Eye Syndrome. It is also a side effect of other drugs such as birth control pills, blood pressure medicines, antihistamines and certain anti-depressants.

OUTSIDE INFLUENCES Environmental factors may magnify the symptoms of Dry Eye Syndrome. These include a dusty, dry or windy climate, air conditioning or heating systems (especially if the vent blows on your face), and even staring at a computer screen for extended periods of time.

HELP IS AVAILABLE Your eye doctor can offer several options for managing Dry Eye Syndrome, such as:

- Lubricating drops that can minimize the dry, scratchy sensation
- Prescription eye drops that can actually improve tear production
- Temporary or permanent closure of the lacrimal (tear) ducts to keep your tears from draining away so quickly

If you are experiencing any of these symptoms of Dry Eye Syndrome, please let us know.

SHELBY PLATT AND THE CHELSEA SOFTBALL TEAM FALL IN DISTRICT ACTION. PAGE 7B

Heartbreaker

Soccer team falls to Skyline in district final

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

Only one team doesn't end the season with a loss. Unfortunately for the Chelsea soccer team, the Bulldogs won't be that one team this year.

The Chelsea varsity soccer team will look back on this year as a season of great accomplishments. The Bulldogs won their division in the Southeastern Conference for the first time and they did that by tying Dexter in the final regular-season game.

The Bulldogs also defeated the Dreadnaughts for the first time in the state playoffs with an exciting come-from-behind win to open district action. That game will go down in the history books for not only being the first win over rival Dexter in the playoffs but also as one of the most exciting soccer games in recent memory.

However, after an easy victory over Tecumseh in the next game, the Bulldogs were upset in the district final by Ann Arbor Skyline. Despite fielding a team of only freshmen and sophomores, Skyline had a very good team. The two teams tied 1-1 earlier in the season so the Bulldogs were not taking this game for granted.

"We just didn't play as well as we had in the previous games and that was somewhat disappointing," Chelsea coach Kirsten Smart said. "We are a team that plays with possession and they

Girls grab the bronze

Bulldogs win two relays to help take third at states

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea girls' track team capped off an amazing season with a third-place finish at the state meet on Saturday at Zeeland.

"The meet went about as well as it could for us," Chelsea coach Pat Clarke said. "Each girl performed just super. We took 13 girls and won 14 all-state medals."

The third-place finish ties the highest ever for a Chelsea girls' track team.

"I am extremely proud of these young ladies and the attitude they have displayed this season," Clarke said. "It was a fitting way to cap off what has been a truly outstanding season for our team."

The performance of the day was the 1600-meter relay team that entered the competition seeded 16th overall. The team ran a school-record time of 3 minutes, 57.3 seconds to win the event. Their time trimmed 6 seconds off the previous record.

The team featured Olivia Detroyer (56.4 seconds), Corinne Carpenter (61.2), Danielle Dahl (59.8) and Grace Sauers (59.9).

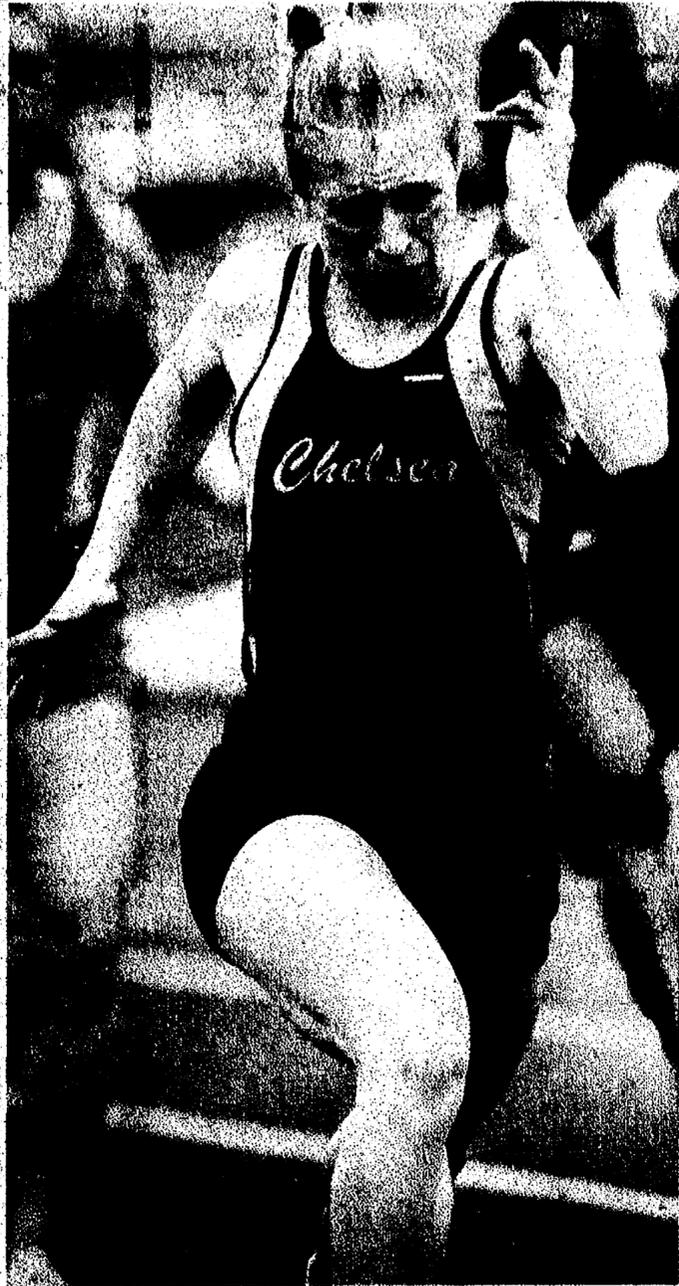

The 800-meter relay team also won with a school record time of 1:42.3. Their time was .6 seconds below the previous record. The team featured Detroyer (25.5), Carpenter (25.6), Christina Coffman (25.7) and Sauers (25.5).

Detroyer, a senior, had quite a day for the Bulldogs. She made all-state four times in four events setting two school records in the process. She anchored the 1600 relay to a state championship with a blazing 56.4 split for her 400 meters. She was fourth in the 100 meters at 12.7 and ran fifth in the 400 meters at 57.6.

"We will miss her next season," Clarke said. Sauers, only a freshman, had her finest day of

Taylor Heldt, Manchester

Taylor Heldt capped off her prep track career last Saturday by earning a state medal in the Division 3 State Championship Meet at Comstock Park. The senior placed fifth in the high jump event by clearing 5 feet. It was Heldt's third career appearance in the state meet. She will attend Ferris State University in the fall.

Devin Wilson, Lincoln

Lincoln pitcher Devin Wilson went nine innings and lost by one run in a pre-district game last Tuesday to Saline (1-0). She led the team to their best ever record of 20 wins on the season.

Grace Sauers, Chelsea

Freshman Grace Sauers had her finest day of the season last Saturday at the state meet. She ran three personal-bests in the relays and made all-state three times to help lead the Bulldogs to a third-place finish - tying the school's best finish ever at the state meet.

Ryan Shoner, Dexter

Ryan Shoner fired a 75 to help lead the Dexter golf team to a third-place finish at last Thursday's regional hosted by Chelsea at the Calderone Golf Club. The top three teams move on to the state meet this weekend at Forest Akers West. Tecumseh was the low qualifier at 301 with Battle Creek Harper Creek second at 309 and Dexter third at 316.

DNRE considers expanding gear restricted trout streams

By now, most trout fishermen know that the Department of Natural Resources and Environment made its first major adjustment to trout stream management since the system of categorizing streams into "Types" - using standardized regulations for each type - was adopted in 1999.

In 2010, three river types - Types 5, 6 and 7 - were bundled together into a single category of Gear Restricted Streams. All streams in the new category maintained the same regulations as they had during the previous system such as artificial lures only, flies-only, and flies-only with no-kill allowed.

The Gear Restricted Streams category was designed to allow more flexibility for regulations among the streams in the category than was allowed under the original system.

Outdoors

Last spring, the DNRE had also proposed eliminating the Type 2 category, which had larger minimum size limits than Type 1 streams, because, for the most part, the more-restrictive regulations did not yield the desired results; they did not produce bigger fish. But a number of members of the trout fishing community did not like the idea of eliminating Type 2 streams entirely. So the DNRE withdrew that proposal and announced that it would review all Type 2 streams to see if they would fit better into a less restrictive category, should remain as Type 2 streams, or should be included in the Gear Restricted Streams category.

Until 2002, the department was limited by statute to a total of 100 miles of streams with gear restrictions. In 2002, the Legislature expanded the allowable total of gear restricted streams to 212. And ever since, some trout-fishing organizations have lobbied for more miles of gear-restricted streams.

After meeting with the state's Coldwater Regulations Review Committee

- which is made up of representatives of various constituency groups, such as Michigan United Conservation Clubs, Trout Unlimited, Federation of Fly Fishermen and Anglers of the Au Sable - the department asked the public to nominate streams or stream segments for inclusion on the Gear Restricted category.

The DNRE received more than 500 individual emails, nominating more than 1,300 miles of stream for the Gear Restricted category.

Since that time, DNRE fisheries biologists have reviewed the nominations as well as all Type 2 streams. Department personnel evaluated the proposed stream segments based on biological and physical criteria. Biologically, the streams had to exhibit good growth rates for trout, show good survival of trout, and enjoy low natural mortality rates for trout to be good candidates for the Gear Restricted Streams category. Biologists also looked at other factors, such as accessibility to the public, how well the streams were suited to fishing with restricted gear, and the level of public acceptance for gear restrictions on those streams.

The DNRE staff has come up with a number of recommendations as part of a document that has been presented to the Coldwater Regulations Review Committee and posted on the DNRE web site. Department personnel identified a little more than 150 miles of stream to date that might be suitable for the Gear Restricted Streams category, including 105 miles that are currently in the restricted-gear category.

Some of the recommendations call for expanding the mileage of streams that already have segments included in the category, such as the eight-mile stretch of the mainstream of the Au Sable River, from Wakeley Bridge to McMasters Bridge. Others are segments of streams that have been managed under experimental regulations, such as the 15-mile stretch of the Au Sable from the power lines below Mip Dam to McKinley Bridge, which already has artificial lures-only regulations. And others are new stretches of river, such as some stretches of the South Branch of the Paint River in the Upper Peninsula, which have good public access, self-sustaining trout populations, and good growth rates. Specific regulations have been proposed for each stream segment.

The DNRE will soon begin holding public meetings in the vicinities of the streams that have been recommended for inclusion in the Gear Restricted category. The meetings will not only inform local residents of the proposed changes to regulations, but will allow public comment, helping staffers judge how well the public will accept the regulations.

There will likely be areas where the anglers will welcome the regulations changes and others where there will be opposition. The meetings will help the DNRE come up with a final list of recommendations for Gear Restricted Streams.

Final recommendations from the department will be presented to the DNRE director - who has authority to set fishing regulations - and at a meeting of the Natural Resources Commission this fall. Based on additional public comments on the proposals at the NRC meeting, a final list of river segments with gear restrictions will be put together by the end of the year.

Those stream segments will go into the Gear Restricted Streams category effective April 1, 2011.

For a look at the DNRE's recommendations - or to find out about public meetings concerning the proposals - visit the DNRE website at www.michigan.gov/dnre.

Trout, collected from a stream by a DNRE survey crew, will be aged and measured to help determine the best regulations to reach the stream's potential.

TAYLOR MADE ADVENTURES

RICK TAYLOR

Heather O'Neal is a world traveler, respected author, inspirational speaker and professional tour guide for private clients to exotic destinations around the world. Heather has taken her clients to see Spain, US National Parks and other intriguing destinations. However, she's famous for taking clients into the heart of the Himalayas, more specifically Mt. Everest.

Heather won't take you to the summit of Mt. Everest, but her trusted Sherpa Pemba (Pem) Durjee will.

I first met Heather three weeks ago at a party she hosted for her past clients. Heather was celebrating her 10-year anniversary as owner of "Of Global Interest Adventure Travel" based out of Ann Arbor.

My fiancé, Shelley, was invited to the party. Shelley grew up with Heather in Ann Arbor and they've been life-long friends. Oh yeah, did I mention I'm getting married?

I had no idea what I was in for on this special evening. Quite frankly, I just wanted to have a nice relaxing evening with Shelley and meet more of her friends.

There were past clients from around the country who made it to this party. They talked about their adventures and how their life-long goals were achieved. Some clients talked about their trips to Spain while others talked about trekking from Katmandu to Base Camp at Mt. Everest.

Everyone shared a sense of awe and humility about their various adventures and how it changed their lives. It was an eye-opening experience for me, far more than what I expected for the evening.

Heather was nice enough to talk with me about the Himalayan people and their culture.

As hard as I tried I just couldn't remember all that she shared with me. Heather described the majestic Himalayan Mountains and the beautiful people who inhabited the area.

However, she also discussed the extreme poverty, cultural taboos, child trafficking and leprosy that have plagued the region for centuries. Any of these topics could make the strongest person weep for those who have suffered.

But, nothing prepared me for what Heather talked about next.

Men and women who are convicted of a crime sometimes must also take their children to prison as well.

Talk about sins of the father. My heart broke when Heather explained the reasoning behind this cultural practice.

There's a term called "juto" which loosely translated means bad luck.

It's believed that people who dishonor themselves bring bad luck (juto) to other family members.

Therefore, even the children of the convicted bring dishonor (juto) to other relatives. It's this reason why the children typically go to prison with their parents.

Heather has worked tirelessly to help these children and other poor people by instituting the "Random Acts of Kindness" fund.

Heather discussed her relationship with a friend by the name of Joe Connaughton who opened her eyes to the children in prison.

In short, Joe gave her $100 back in 2000 and asked her to talk to the prison guards and get the kids some shoes or take them out to lunch.

Heather did just that and the rest is history. She collects money every year for the "Random Acts of Kindness" fund and helps the children out.

Please go to Heather's Web site for the full history of this inspiring story.

The highlight of the evening came when I met Pem, his wife Moni Mulepati and their beautiful daughter. Pemba is how you say Saturday in the Sherpa language. The mountain people of Nepal often name their children on the day they're born.

So, if you meet someone whose name is Pemba then it's safe to say that he/she was born on a Saturday.

Pemba is the Sherpa guide that works with Heather. In 2002, they had a client who became the first cancer survivor to reach the top of Mt. Everest. Pemba was born in Nepal and has a story so extraordinary that it defies all logic.

A Sherpa is a member of the Buddhist people of Tibet living on the southern side of the Himalayan Mountains in Nepal and are famous for their mountaineering expertise.

I found it extraordinary to be in the presence of someone who was born and raised in the heart of the Himalayas and who climbed Mt. Everest on two occasions.

These accomplishments in and of itself are astonishing. Pemba was born in a remote village high in the Himalayan Mountains.

Pemba didn't have electricity, running water and never saw the lights of a big city or cars until he was 20 years old. However, Moni was born and raised in the bustling city of Katmandu. Pemba was a Buddhist and Moni a Hindu. Simply stated, their respective religions forbid them from getting married.

But, love finds a way to enter one's heart no matter where you're from.

Pemba and Moni fell in love, but feared their families may never accept their marriage as legitimate.

But, they believed in each other and hatched a plan that eventually made world news and history.

Both Pemba and Moni made the near impossible decision to attempt a summit to the top of Mt. Everest.

There, they would exchange their wedding vows should they make it to the top. Pemba and Moni fought off frostbite, exhaustion and survived in the oxygen deprived area known as the "Death Zone" long enough to meet atop the summit of Mt. Everest.

They literally found themselves on top of the world, briefly took off their oxygen masks and exchanged wedding vows.

They were the first to ever get married on top of Mt. Everest.

Word soon spread of the good news, making them heroes in Nepal.

"Not only did their parents finally accept their marriage, many people in their country admired their courage," said Heather. "In many ways their world news making Everest wedding has been influential in changing thousands of years of cultural traditions. Of course the younger generations are much more accepting than the older ones."

It's arguably the most beautiful story I've ever heard and wanted to share it with all of you.

I think this story has the makings of a great movie if Hollywood gets a hold of it. I'd like to thank Heather for her hospitality and opening my eyes to the Himalayan culture.

Don't hesitate to visit Heather's Web site should you want to donate to "Random Acts of Kindness" or if you have any questions or interest in traveling to some amazing destinations around the world. Her Web site is www.ofglobalinterest.com.

Your story ideas and comments are warmly welcomed.

Perfect season

The Chelsea boys' middle school track team completed its season undefeated with an exciting win over Saline last week. Saline and Chelsea were both undefeated coming into the meet. The last time the Bulldogs had an undefeated season was in 1991. The meet this year against Saline came down to the last event, the 400-meter relay. Tye Nelson, Craig Riley, Alex McDougal and Taylor Wagner combined for a time of 49.12 to break the previous record of 49.20 held by Jorge Fazzario, Jim Irwin, Peter Straub and Tom Irwin. Pictured is the record-setting relay team of Taylor Wagner (L-R), Alex McDougal, Craig Riley and Tye Nelson.

were just blasting the ball down the field and had some fast players.

Skyline jumped out to a 1-0 lead at 19:47 of the first half. But Chelsea quickly answered.

Junior Anna Rode scored with an assist from Kelly Fournier at 18:25 to tie the score at 1-1. Skyline took a 2-1 lead with just 2:05 left in the first half off a direct kick.

Skyline finished off the scoring with a goal at 22:57 of the second half and went on to a 3-1 win over the Bulldogs.

There were some questionable calls and Skyline was aggressive and fast. Smart said, "We had to play without (fullback) Jessica Ruikka who was out with a torn ACL and that hurt. It was a disappointing way to end an otherwise great season." The Bulldogs finished with a division title and a 13-2-5 overall record.

Chelsea advanced to the district final with a 5-0 win over Tecumseh.

Rode started the scoring with an assist from Cara Johnson and then Hailey Dixon scored her first goal of the season to make it 2-0 after the first half.

In the second half, Fournier scored on a direct kick and Johnson and Rode added goals for the Bulldogs. Rode also had two assists.

"We really played well," Smart said. "We also got a lot of different players on the field. Senior Chelsea Vincent and Daniëlle Coleman both did a really good job for us."

Thunder, Lightning rack up wins

The Chelsea Thunder Under-14 baseball team continued its winning ways by defeating Saline 14-4 as Zach LeBlanc, Mitchell Mills and Ryan Knight combined on a five-hitter with 11 strikeouts.

Ryan Knight went 3-for-4 with a double while Zach LeBlanc, Jacob LeBlanc both went 2-for-3.

The Manchester Gold team came to Chelsea and played excellent ball and gave Chelsea their first loss of the season. A well-coached team, Manchester only gave up two hits and their pitcher did a fantastic job. Manchester hit the ball well and played a good defensive game to defeat the Thunder 9-3.

A rematch of the Chelsea Thunder against the Chelsea Lightning saw a wild and exciting game between the two teams with 3-1 records. Thunder batters had nine hits with Zach LeBlanc went 3-for-3 with two doubles and Ben Whitesall and Jacob LeBlanc each had two hits.

The back-and-forth game ended in a 14-14 draw.

Frank Shanley, Kolten Savery, Craig Reiley and Ryan Easley pitch solid innings for the Lightning while Zac LeBlanc, Mitchell Mills and Jake LeBlanc pitched just as well for the Thunder. The Lightning offense was led by Craig Reiley, Travis Kaiser, Frank Shanley, Tim Johnson, Trevor Branham and Paul Heck who each had a hit with runs scored and an RBI. Branham smashed a double in the fourth inning to start a six-run rally.

The Thunder offense was led by Zac LeBlanc, Ben Whitesall, Jake LeBlanc and Jack Kloviski who also had hits with multiple runs scored and RBI.

Both coaches want to have a final rematch to the series adding to the excitement both squads bring to the Chelsea vs. Chelsea games.

The Chelsea Thunder completed the Saturday game against an excellent Saline team with great pitching performances by both teams. Saline took an early lead and quieted the Chelsea bats until the late innings. Saline pitchers allowed only two hits in the game, one from Frank Shanley smashing a double and a well hit single off the bat of Will McEachen, bringing the final score to 3-7 in favor of Saline.

Overall, the game was well played defensively as Ryan Knight made two fantastic catches and throws from short-stop ending Saline's attack. A well played game for both teams.

The Lightning had a game last Friday against a very good Adrian team that ended with an 8-2 loss.

Craig Reiley pitched the first three innings, giving up three runs on three hits, seven walks while striking out four. Kolten Savery pitched the next 2 2/3 innings giving up five runs on six hits, two walks while striking out five. Frank Shanley pitched the final 1/3 of the time shortened sixth-inning game allowing no runs on one hit while striking out one. The offensive highlight of the game was another strong performance by Scott Moore at the plate going 3-for-3 with another RBI.

The Lightning followed up that tough loss on Saturday at home against Saline with a great come from behind 12-11 win in the bottom of the seventh. Michael Purdy started on the mound pitching the first three innings allowing seven runs on seven hits, five walks while striking out five. Kolten Savery pitched the next three innings allowing three runs on four hits while striking out eight. Craig Reiley came in to pitch the final inning allowing one run on one hit while striking out two.

The high powered and well balanced Lightning offense was led by Travis Kaiser, Ryan Easley and Frank Shanley all with three hits. Michael Purdy, Craig Reiley, Scott Moore and Paul Heck each had two hits. Seven of the 10 players on the team scored at least once. It was an exciting and great team effort victory.

Bulldog boys wrap up track season at state

Chelsea's Geoff Smith-Wooliams hands off the baton to Alex Cuper during the distance medley relay. The pair were part of a team that placed at the state meet.

By Terry Jacoby

The Chelsea boys' track team scored eight points and finished tied for 29th place at the Division II state meet last Saturday at Zeeland High School. Out of roughly 150 teams in Division II, 70 teams scored in this meet.

Byron Center won the meet with 30 points. Chelsea's August Pappas was all-state in two events after running a pair of lifetime best runs. "He competed hard and pushed the pace in the middle of both races," Chelsea coach Eric Swager said. "He was the top non-senior in the two mile run. His off-season work continues to pay dividends."

Pappas finished fourth in the 3200 run with a time of 9 minutes, 31.39 seconds. He also took sixth place in the 1600 run with a time of 4:20.12.

Chelsea's Landen Niesen had a fine vault of 13 feet, 3 inches but missed a state medal because of more misses at that final height.

"He was a solid vaulter all year for us," Swager said.

Last Tuesday, the Bulldogs had a strong showing at the Larry Steeb Meet of Champions.

"We took just a few of our athletes to this meet," Swager said. "One goal was to run a fast distance medley relay and set the school record. We did just that. August Pappas' 3:09 split was possibly the fastest 1200 split in school history, and boded well for his performance at the state finals for the mile."

The distance medley relay team of Pappas, Alex Cuper, Spencer Cone and Bryce Bradley took fifth with a school-record time of 10:59.7. The 3200 relay team of Cuper, Cone, Geoff Smith-Wooliams and Zach Rabbitt also took fifth.

Niesen took third in the pole vault at 12-10. Verardi was seventh in the high jump (5-11) and Nick Hall was eighth in the shot put at 45-8. Dave Slusser tossed a 127-4 in the discus.

Chelsea's August Pappas was all-state in two events at the state championship meet.

Chelsea pole vaulter Landen Niesen took third at the Meet of Champions last week.

the season at the right time. She ran three personal-bests in the relays and made all-state three times.

Coffman, a senior, also ran well in her final meet of an outstanding high school career. She made all-state twice. She went 16-5 in the long jump.

Carpenter, a junior, had an outstanding day making all-state three times. She also ran a 26.4 in the 200 meters during prelims.

Lauren Dark, a junior, set a personal-record in the pole vault at 10-9.

Junior Emily Cottrell set a personal-record in the 300 hurdles at 47.6.

The 3200 relay team of Jessi Battaglia, Dahl, Julie Beaumont and Courtney Maher set a personal-record at 10:01.7.

The 400 relay team of Sauer, Coffman, Jenna McGrath and Carpenter took seventh place.

Katrina Williams ran 16.5 seconds in the 100 hurdles.

Earlier in the week, the Bulldogs competed in the Larry Steeb Washtenaw Area Meet at Ypsilanti High School last Tuesday. The meet featured 26 teams and Chelsea took home plenty of honors.

The Girls' Area Athlete of the Year award went to Detroyer and Clarke was named Girls' Area Coach of the Year.

"The meet went about as well as it could for us," Clarke said. "Each girl performed just super. We took 12 girls and won 14 medals."

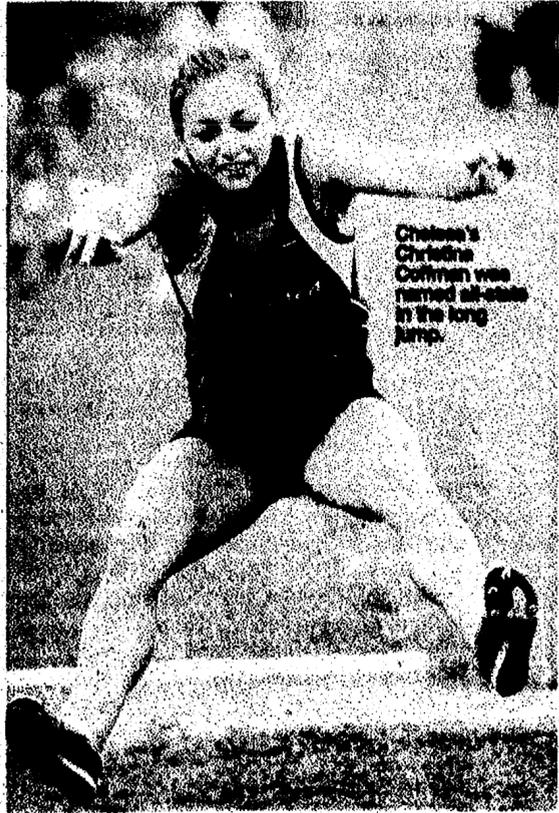

The performance of the day was the 800 relay team (DeTroyer, Carpenter, Coffman and Sauer) that blew away the school record with a winning time of 1:42.8 - 1.5 seconds below the old record. The 400 relay team (Detroyer, Coffman, McGrath and Carpenter) also set a school record at 50.1.

Dark placed third in the pole vault with a new personal-record of 10-6. Marissa Elwart had a personal best in the discus at 104-10.

In the pole vault, Dark took third (10-6) and Elaine Johnson was seventh (9-6).

The distance medley relay team of Dahl, Beaumont, Maher and Battaglia was fifth in 13:21.

Marissa Elwart was seventh in the discus (104-10).

Chelsea's Christina Coffman was named all-state in the long jump.

Tecumseh blanks Chelsea in baseball district opener

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea varsity baseball team was shut out only twice all season. Unfortunately for the Bulldogs, it came at the hands of the same pitcher including in Saturday's district opener at Jackson Northwest High School.

Tecumseh's Jake Moore blanked the Bulldogs for the second time this year on Saturday to lead his team to a 3-0 win.

"He's not overpowering, but we just couldn't get anything going against him," Chelsea coach Wayne Welton said. "He was getting ahead in the count all day against us and really did a great job. We never really threatened the whole game.

"It was one of the few times all year that we just couldn't get the bats going."

The Bulldogs did out-hit Tecumseh 5-4 in the game.

Chelsea got solid pitching from sophomore Jarred Scheese (one earned run in 3 1/3 innings of work) and junior Nate Udell.

Tecumseh scored one run in the third inning and two in fourth.

Chelsea finished the season with a 10-21 overall record as the young Bulldogs had a roller-coaster-type season.

On Wednesday, the Bulldogs played a strong Brighton team at the University of Michigan baseball stadium.

"It was a real treat to play there for both teams," Welton said. "I know our players really enjoyed it."

Chelsea lost both games by 8-1 scores. "We gave our pitchers a couple innings each to get ready for the districts," Welton said. "Jake Steinhauer and Bradley Hepler both pitched really well for us. We played 21 guys in the two games."

Matt Lindauer ripped a double down the line and T.J. DeRosia also had a nice hit for the Bulldogs. And Nigel Schuh drilled one off the wall in the opener for a double.

Chelsea falls in districts

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea softball team entered district play riding an incredible 20-game winning streak. The Bulldogs' last loss was part of a double-header to Tecumseh back on April 29.

Sometimes, a team just has your number. The Bulldogs picked the worst time to not play well and it cost them as Tecumseh won 9-2 to eliminate Chelsea from the state playoffs.

"The third inning really hurt us," Chelsea coach Bob Moffett said. "We made some poor decisions and had some mental breakdowns and instead of getting easy outs, we tried for the big play and it didn't work out."

Tecumseh broke open the game with seven runs in the third inning.

Taylor Hansen started for Chelsea and took the loss. Kaley Dixon came in and pitched 3 2/3 innings of relief.

Marie Zill had three of Chelsea's six hits. She also had two steals. Dixon and Shelby Platt had RBI for the Bulldogs, who finish the season at 27-8 overall.

Tecumseh went on to win the district championship.

Still, it was an amazing season for the Bulldogs.

"Our goal at the start of the season was 25 wins so I knew we had some talent," Moffett said. "And we would have gotten to 30 if not for some rainouts."

Chelsea also won an SEC division title.

Golf team just misses states

The Chelsea golf team came within a chip shot of competing in the state meet following an outstanding showing at the June 3 regional hosted by Chelsea at the Calderone Golf Club.

The Bulldogs bested their top team score of the year by eight shots.

"The Chelsea guys played great, not quite good enough to advance to the state meet but they played great," Chelsea coach Joe Ewald said. "I had in my head our best case scoring scenario and the guys bested that by two shots. As a coach, you can't ask for more than that."

"Our guys played their best tournament of the year in our biggest event and we shot our best score of the year."

The Bulldogs finished fifth out of 12 teams (at the regional it's pared down to 12 good teams) and were only two shots out of fourth.

"This definitely provides some optimism for next year as we had only one senior in the mix," Ewald said.

The top three teams move on to the state meet next weekend at Forest Akers West. Tecumseh, which just barely got the sixth spot at districts, was the low qualifier at 301. Battle Creek Harper Creek was second at 309 and Dexter got the final spot at 316.

Trenton was fourth at 326 with Chelsea fifth at 328.

Sophomore Mason Wagner and junior Dylan Laidlaw both shot a 79 to lead the Bulldogs. Sophomore Bourke Lodewyk and senior Jason Doyle each shot an 84.

There was a tie for individual medalist between Bobby

Thomas and Jacob Bloom (both of Tecumseh) at 72. Thomas won the playoff with a birdie on the second hole.

Individual qualifiers to the state meet from the Chelsea regional were Dillon Dossey of Trenton (73), Kyle Bowler of Parma Western (75) and Nick Corbiel of New Boston Huron

'Club Morocco' a one-of-a-kind experience

Jessica Grové and Paul Kerr embraced last Saturday night on the Encore Musical Theatre's stage bringing the experience that is "Club Morocco" to a magnificent crescendo.

As their alter egos, main attraction Nugget Rialto and mysterious hardboiled dick Frank McCann, reached the end of their story, rain from the weekend's merciless storms pounded the Encore's roof.

I honestly had no idea it was real. It felt like part of the show, part of "Club Morocco."

We were all part of "Club Morocco" that night, which I think is what co-creators Barbara Cullen and Jon Huffman, and artistic directors Dan Cooney and Steve DeBruyne, and the rest of the people responsible for crafting and executing this production were aiming to achieve.

Bulls-eye.

This is easily the most innovative show I've seen, period not just from a musical theater perspective. I've seen a bunch of concerts, live comedy and, of course, movies. This is the most original idea in entertainment I've seen, and it was a privilege to witness it first hand.

As folks walk in the door, a couple of the cast members pose as doormen, talking in slang from the '40s and cajoling folks to get in the dancing mood.

While everyone is being seated, other cast members wait on tables — the front "row" of seats during the show is round black nightclub tables. These also flank the stage on both sides, with the rest of the seating in house being the usual theater seating.

Once the show gets going,

PLAY REVIEW

SEAN DALTON

"Club Morocco" comes to life. While there is a plot that occurs on stage every so often, this show is mostly about the wonderful '40s music Tony Owens, as Chick Valentine, and The Swing Street All-Stars play. Just about everyone in the cast performs a song and does so extremely well with passion and visible joy, but Owens is the man who stands tallest like a giant.

During the show, a row of lights on either side of the theater illuminate, inviting the audience to come out onto the dance floor blurring the line between reality and fiction.

Not every number filled the dance floor. Sometimes there were only a handful of couples, while other times it seemed like half of the house was swinging their honeys to the hopping tunes.

It wasn't until halfway through the show, watching the actors blend in and out of the crowd, weaving the story through stage and sometimes audience that it dawned on me that "Club Morocco" isn't the play setting, it's the main character.

And that character enveloped all of us.

For those who had fun attending "The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee," you owe it to yourself to see "Club Morocco."

Both shows had innovative, voluntary audience involvement that added a great amount of fun and laughter to the experience. "Club Morocco" brings that and a whole bunch of charm.

The actors do just as good a job with the acting part of the gig. Kerr's line delivery and comedic timing punched the laughs out of us, and he handled the more dramatic stuff with just the right balance of tongue-in-cheek seriousness.

When she's not shining on the microphone Grové shines as Nugget during her interactions with lead Kerr. The two really seem to enjoy working with each other and play off their respective stage chemistry in a way that made me feel joy.

Tony D. doesn't just sing, but participates as a character in the plot arch, speaking in jive-speak. Steve DeBruyne (master of ceremonies Steve LaRue) is hilarious as his "interpreter."

The trio brings a great deal of chemistry to the stage, sowing fun and laughter every chance they get.

The "Club Morocco" dancers — Clare Elsentrou as Kitten Springs, Sebastian Gerstner as Slick Wannabe, Nathan Magyar as Rocco deHavilland, Cara Manor as Ruby, Evan Williams as Butch Wannabe and Sarah Zuccaro as Minx Mirage — do a wonderful job dancing the night away, and were great at gently convincing folks to dip their toes in the water on the dance floor.

Williams, who played the hilarious Leaf Coneybear in "Spelling Bee," should have gotten more lines, but then again he was one of the highlights of that show. Maybe next time.

Musical theater goes interactive with the audience in "Club Morocco." Leading the cast are Jessica Grové as Nugget Rialto and Paul Kerr as Frank McCann.

The rest of the cast, Barbara Coven (Club Morocco's mother-hen Velvet St. Regis) and Tim Henning (Club Morocco owner Torch Tangier) prove their years of experience on stage with clean professionalism. Another highlight of the show is when Henning banter with club patrons.

I can't close this review without mentioning a couple of technical difficulties, particularly with the instruments and at a few points with the microphone, but they weren't nearly enough to take me out of the experience.

Who: Encore Musical Theatre Company
Where: Encore Musical Theatre, 3126 Broad St., Dexter
Tickets: $28 (seniors, students, $25; groups of 10 or more, $22)
For more information: 268-6200.

"Club Morocco" has begun an upward trend from where the Encore's core team started with Spelling Bee. It will be intriguing to see where the trend goes from here.

These shows obviously symbolize what the Encore staff wants to do in Dexter, judging by my talks with Cooney. Shows like "Annie" and "Oklahoma" are nice, but they're mechanically standard, well-tread ground.

Broadway-infused community musical theater is transcendent in "Club Morocco," and with shows like this Dexter has a chance to shine in a unique way.

TAKE CARE

After several months, reporter graduates to next stage

Sean Dalton

Graduating from the first stage of chiropractic care isn't quite as emotionally momentous as graduating from a university, but physically the world feels just as new and different.

If you recall, the last time I shared an update on how my care under Dr. Bill Simpson was going I had noted several improvements. Only a month or so after that February article something that I didn't bargain for happened.

My back and neck felt fine - completely fine.

It is nice to receive compliments on how you're carrying yourself. Someone even commented on how "fit" I looked. I hadn't really lost any weight or gained any muscle since the last time I saw that individual.

The removal of subluxations in my spine and neck has done wonders for my sleep. Vivid dreams have been a part of my sleep for a couple of months now, which is an indicator that I'm getting to the very important REM cycle of sleep.

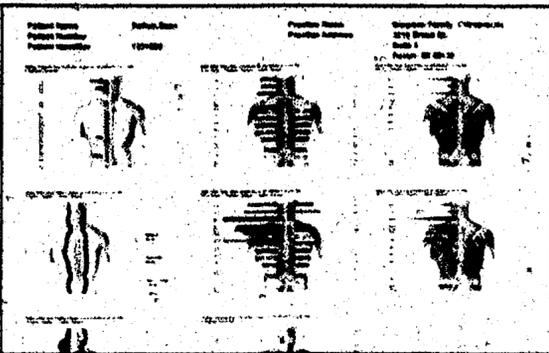

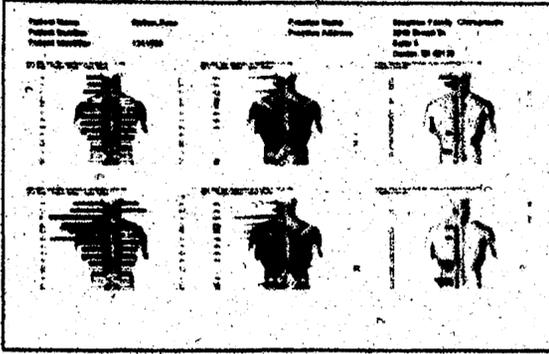

Prior to my chiropractic treatment I had a dream maybe once every three or four months - usually a nightmare or if I was lucky a nonsensical dream of roaming the halls of John Glenn High School in my boxer shorts.

I've gone off of a couple of medications that I was taking regularly for health problems involving my stomach and other abdominal organs, which are neurologically connected to my lumbar spine - for me a problem area.

Antibiotics have always been a necessity for fighting off infections as well, so I was surprised when I fought off the flu a month and a half ago without antibiotics. The last time I tried a stunt like that was last autumn. After thinking I had beaten that bug with my own immune system, it came back and I was sick for another week.

Part of my graduation was a second set of X-rays and neurological scans from the bottom of my lumbar spine all the way up to my brain stem.

The first thing that jumped out at me was the measurement of my atlas at the top cervical spine or neck. A protractor taken to a completely perfect spine should show the atlas resting at a 30-degree angle.

Mine was at 13 degrees when I came in - probably the most frightening indicator of my initial spinal health, and certainly the one that I thought about the most the night after the first round of X-rays.

Last month I felt a lot better after Dr. Simpson showed me an X-ray with the number 19 penciled onto it next to the outline of my atlas. He just pointed and I smiled.

As I've discussed before, this part of our spinal column is very important, for a number of reasons, not the least of which is the fact that it connects the brain to the body. It also has an impact on everything from the heart to lungs, shoulders, fingers and everything in between them on our arms.

The only headaches I ever get are related to eyestrain, because of long nights spent writing articles like this one. That wasn't always the case, but it is now thanks to my treatment.

Aside from the atlas, my cervical vertebrae are all lined up, except for the fifth and the sixth vertebrae, but I'm pretty happy about that considering that I had issues at almost every level of the cervical vertebrae when showed white, green and blue results whereas there were a number of red and even black (off the chart) readings when I first came in.

At first I had obvious subluxations in my upper and lower thoracic spine - between the first, second, third, fourth, fifth vertebrae, and on down.

There are still a few problem areas, but the improvement shown in the X-ray is stark. Even an area where there was a bone spur and stage two degeneration has improved beyond Dr. Simpson's expectations.

This doesn't make me invincible though, and there is still a long way to go.

I'm sort of ashamed to admit that I injured my back and pelvic area about five weeks ago and am still recovering. I've done so before. The healing process is going noticeably better this time, and I was much more functional after this injury than I was after ones in the past, definitely due to my treatment.

After a week and a half, my adjustments had fixed my back and only the pelvic part of the injury persisted, probably because my job involves a lot of sitting.

I think Dr. Simpson put it better than I can: "As you climb in health you have to go through little valleys. You want to get to a point where this kind of thing doesn't happen again."

And so I graduate from three to two treatments a week and continue the healing process, both of my long term spinal issues and short term injuries.

It's worth mentioning for those in Dexter that Dr. Simpson holds a lunch each month at Dexter Pub, his treat to talk about chiropractic care. For more information on how to sign up, visit to <http://simpsonfamilychiropractic.com>

CHS alumna to paint Times Square

Dilworth's 'river' will run through five blocks in New York

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

Chelsea High School alumna Molly Dilworth is preparing to leave her mark on New York City in a huge way. Dilworth was recently awarded the commission to paint Times Square by the New York Department of Transportation.

As the winner of the city's temporary plaza treatment competition, Dilworth will paint an aqua-colored river through 42nd to 47th street on Broadway. The installation titled "Cool Water, Hot Island" plans to use four colors of solar reflective paint to cool down the streets of the iconic square. Rooted in NASA's infrared satellite data of Manhattan, the design will respond to the regularly chaotic and seasonally heated conditions.

Dilworth plans on taking the data, which reveals the varied temperatures throughout the city, and formulating it into a long narrow segment of color. She was awarded $15,000 to complete the job.

"I am really excited," Dilworth said. Dilworth competed against 150 other artists across the world during the contest, which ended April 16.

She said the "river" will be installed in the coming weeks and should be completed by mid July. It will remain in Times Square for 18 months.

Dilworth, who first began her career as a painter 16 years ago, discovered large-scale painting when she worked for an artisan boutique wallpaper company. From there, she moved to painting murals on business rooftops while experimenting with solar reflective paint.

"A lot of buildings in New York have flat silver rooftops that reflect light," she explained. "I started working for a company that helps businesses conserve energy and I learned a lot about buildings and how buildings work."

Dilworth graduated from CHS in 1993 and moved to California before being accepted to graduate school at New York University.

"I moved around a lot when I was younger, but I enjoyed my time in Chelsea," she said.

Dilworth said she hopes her design will add to the ambience of the area now that it has become a pedestrian only area.

"I hope the river adds more calm to the area in contrast to how it actually feels there," she said. "In Times Square, everything is geometric and I wanted to create something that could take you away from that."

Dilworth said when she first received word about the contest results she was ecstatic.

"I was jumping up and down in the middle of the street," she said. "It's the only time something like this is going to happen and so it's really surprising that I'm the one doing it."

No stranger to large paintings, Dilworth has made her mark by painting supersized murals visible from space as well as Google Earth. However, she said the Times Square project presents some new challenges.

"It's a little intimidating having to work with all these city agencies, but I enjoy new problems to solve," she said. "Normally I work by myself, but when you work by yourself for too long, it starts to get boring."

helping out. Dilworth said she is eager to see what the finished product will look like.

"All of my projects look different on paper than in real life," she said. "My hope is when you zoom in it will be like a psychedelic lava lamp. But it will be a river. When you're in a plane and you look down you will see a river. When you are standing next to it, it will feel like you are standing next to a river."
