Community mourns farmer's death

Friends, family honor Heller for contribution to agriculture field

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

Robert Heller, a lifelong member of the Chelsea and Dexter communities, died at his home Sept. 6 following a lengthy battle with Parkinson's disease.

As a resident of Chelsea, Heller was well known for his advice, friendship and dedication to the farming community.

Local resident Daniel Trinkle knew Heller while growing up and often sought his advice while participating in the 4-H program.

"I used to help him milk his cows and he taught me the value of taking care of livestock," Trinkle said. "He cared a lot about things. He always said if he was going to set out to do something, he wanted to do it the right way.

"He always wanted to leave this world in a better place than he had it."

Trinkle said Heller was soft-spoken but was known to reach out to others in need.

"He cared a lot about other people, and a lot of people respected his opinion," Trinkle said. "Bob was never one to shy away from anything new. He was always trying to improve his life. He taught all of us about the value of life and how to take care of our time here on earth."

In addition to his responsibilities as a 4-H leader, Heller was a member of the Michigan Milk Producers Association, served as director of the Chelsea Fair Board, trustee of Lima Township, was a member of the Washtenaw County Soil Conservation Board, and past-president of the Washtenaw County Beef and Dairy Council. He was also a lifelong member of Zion Lutheran Church, where he also served on the church council.

Lima Township Supervisor Kenneth Unterbrink said he remembers seeking Heller's advice on township matters many times over the past 30 years.

"Bob was the most reasonable trustee when it came to studying the issues," Unterbrink said. "While everyone may not have agreed with him all of the time, his opinions have proven to be in the long-term best interest of the township."

Unterbrink said even after Heller left the township council, the planning commission and others in the community often sought his advice.

"He was one of the most respected people in our community," Unterbrink said. "I will definitely miss being able to sit down and talk with him over a cup of coffee."

Terry Wesner, a neighbor and longtime friend, said he has known Heller for more than 20

Spinner's Flock event to feature varieties of handmade crafts

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

The Spinner's Flock is bringing their love of everything fiber to the 27th annual fall fleece fair at Beach Middle School in Chelsea on Sept. 19.

The event will take place from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will feature everything from raw wool and llama fleeces, to spun yarn and tools for spinning. Other products include knitting and crocheting supplies, felting supplies and finished products made from handspun yarns.

"We have a lot of different items to sell," Carol Knox, a member of the Spinner's Flock said.

Over 30 vendors are expected to be on hand, and demonstrations on spinning as well as a raffle for a gift basket are just some of the activities that will take place.

"If you've never been to the fleece fair, you can't imagine how much we bring in," Knox said. "The yarn takes up one side of the school cafeteria and the wool takes up the other two thirds."

Knox said at the spring fair, the group averaged $21,000 in sales.

"A lot of money changes hands at the fair," she said.

The group, which boasts a membership of more than 200, was founded 30 years ago and its members hail from central Michigan, southeast Michigan and northern Ohio.

"We have city folk and farmers who raise sheep, llamas, alpacas, angora and rabbits," she said.

In addition to the fleece fair, the club holds monthly meetings in Chelsea during the second Saturday of the month from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Washington Street Education Center.

"We are open to anyone who has an interest in the fiber arts," Knox said. "Guests are always welcome."

She said those who do not know how to spin can enjoy the group's learner's circle at 10 a.m. every meeting.

"I'm a fairly new member myself and I like how you can learn a variety of information from our members," Knox said.

Band competition coming to Chelsea

By Kitty Golding
Guest Writer

Chelsea High School will host the third annual Marching Band Exhibition at 5 p.m. Sept. 22 at the CHS stadium off of Freer Road.

Chelsea's seventh and eighth grade middle school bands will introduce the event by playing the National Anthem at 5:20 p.m.

High school bands performing at the event include Jackson Northwest, Quincy, Dansville, Concord, Belleville, Manchester, Stockbridge, Williamston, Dexter, Saline, and Chelsea. The eastern Michigan University Marching Band will also perform.

Bands will be evaluated and receive comments in five areas: music, marching, general effect, color guard, and drum majors. The judges include John Madden, director of the Michigan State University Spartan Marching Band; other MSU band staff; and Ric Roberts from Saginaw Valley State University.

Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students and seniors. A family pack of four tickets is $12. For more information call 433-2201.

Families participate in Ignite event

By Krystle Dunham
Social Writer

For Sarah Nierman, coming downtown to the Ignite Chelsea event Sept. 9 was another way for her to get accustomed to her new home.

"I like the community events that Chelsea has," said Nierman, who recently relocated to Chelsea. "I've tried to participate in as many as I can."

Nierman, along with a crowd of about 150, spent the evening downtown at Chelsea's clock tower courtyard for the worldwide global event called "ignite," or locally "Ignite Chelsea."

According to the official Ignite website, Ignite is a fast-paced multimedia worldwide conference that is an opportunity for communities around the world to hear from entrepreneurs, technologists, creative professionals and hands-on experts in a network-oriented environment.

Each talk is no more than five minutes long. Presentations at the Chelsea event had an emphasis on wellness and were given by a variety of local individuals throughout the area.

There were 11 presenters that spoke on wellness. Jessica Garrett with the Purple Rose Theatre spoke about staying fit at work. Paul Schissler with Surface Dynamics spoke about volunteering. Christina Kim with Silver Maples talked about the "Hum Move and Groove" path. Bernadette Malinoski from the Chelsea Area Community Kitchen talked about the importance of years.

"Bob was a very close friend," he said. "He embodied the benchmark of a good farmer. He never wasted anything and always talked about how he could find better ways to use his land."

Wesner said Heller's farm was one of the main reasons why he relocated to Chelsea.

"When I was thinking of moving out to Chelsea, I was looking for that small town atmosphere that embraced 'handshake values' and had a nice farming community," he said. "One of the first things I noticed was Bob's nice, well-kept farm with a beautiful flower bed out front, well cared for livestock, and just an overall sense of pride in the land."

He said Heller would often talk about farming issues and he helped teach his sons the importance of work ethic.

"When my sons were in junior high school, they would go over to Bob's every day and help milk the cows," he said. "Bob was a true farmer. He was very self-sufficient, and that's what you like to see."

Wesner said over the years, he looked forward to sharing stories with Heller after a long day's work.

"We were both always so busy, so when we would sit down and chat, he would always talk about 'getting around to things,'" Wesner said. "And he always had a saying for everything. He was always pleasant to listen to."

"I've always said that a person is fortunate to have five friends at any one time that they can really count on to be there for them. Bob was one of my friends and he'll be missed. His activity and his presence in the community will go on for many years, but anyone who had contact with him will be affected by his death. He was a key component to this community."

Arly Spink, a friend of the Hellers, echoed Wesner's thoughts.

"A sweeter neighbor cannot be found. Bob represents the best this town can offer: Humor, respect, helpfulness and community spirit," Spink said.

Neighbors Ron and Jean Satterthwaite remember Heller taking all of the neighborhood children on a Halloween hayride.

"He would drive the tractor with all the kids on the wagon and go house to house trick-or-treating," Jean Satterthwaite said.

In addition, she said every Christmas Heller would dress up like Santa Clause and visit local neighbors' homes.

Jack Wheeler spoke on the culture of wellness in Chelsea, and Chelsea High School Principal Julie Deppner spoke on high school youth in Chelsea.

The evening included a cash bar, food from Jet's Pizza and the Chelsea Community Kitchen, and contests including a tongue twister challenge. Live music was provided by the Chelsea House Orchestra, who kicked-off the night with an hour-long performance under the clock tower gazebo.

There was also a raffle that included a $400 grand prize, and other mini-prizes were given away. The Chelsea Area Wellness Foundation and the Chelsea District Library were the hosts for the event.

Bill Harmer, director of the Chelsea District Library, said the idea for Ignite Chelsea was to provide a forum for residents to share their ideas on what they are passionate about.

"We want people to just have fun here and provide them with a forum where they can share their ideas with their peers," Harmer said.

Pat Conlin, Ignite Chelsea committee member, said the idea of the Ignite event started with the help of Chelsea Wellness Center intern Urvi Shah, who played a large role in coordinating the event. The idea began as a way to hold another event that could be a follow up to the popular Sounds and Sights in downtown Chelsea.

Conlin said he believed Chelsea is the smallest city in the United States that has held an Ignite event. He said Ann Arbor has held three events.

No easy answer to paper or plastic

By Jana Miller
Heritage Newspapers

Paper or plastic?

This question is a simple one, but the answer will have strikingly different impacts on the environment. It will also say something about the person answering the question.

In recent years, many states, California particularly, have pushed the use of paper over plastic. Most advocates cite the difficulties recycling plastic in support of choosing paper bags.

"I prefer paper because plastic is a petroleum-based product," said Tom Dembinski of Chelsea. "Paper is renewable and can last a long time. But sometimes you have to use plastic bags."

But it isn't actually as simple as which is easier to recycle. Many environmentalists were quick to point out in the early stages of the argument that there are cons to both products. Aside from reusability and durability, one must also consider life cycle costs.

For example, creating paper bags involves habitat destruction because of the logging that takes place. It also requires a great deal of fossil fuel to operate the machines that perform the task, not to mention the chemical and energy needs to make the paper and then distribute it around the country.

Plastic bags, on the other hand, are a byproduct of the oil-refining process. They often come from coal-burning plants. Recycling plastic bags is possible, but it takes work and is essentially a re-melting process. So while recycling paper bags results in a comparable product to the original, plastic bags lose their viability in the process.

But if both have significant effects on the environment, what is an environmentalist to do?

The answer for many years has been to say no to both and use reusable cloth bags. Stores such as Whole Foods Market, Busch's, Hillers, Meijer, Plum Market and Publix are just a few of the chains that offer the cloth alternatives. They sell these reusable carryalls for about 75 cents or less.

Many people in the Washtenaw County area are doing just that. Delphine Breeze of Chelsea used reusable bags recently while visiting Polly's Country Market.

"I prefer the reusable bags when I remember," she said. "I also use paper bags."

Forgetting to bring along cloth bags, however, can be a common problem. Busy lives can often dictate whether someone uses paper, plastic or cloth. So sometimes it just comes down to convenience.

Laurie Kunz of Belleville, for example, said she used plastic grocery bags when she goes shopping at Meijer on Belleville Road because plastic is what they offer. She also has cloth bags at home, but says she often forgets to bring them along on the trip to the grocery store.

Diane Burris of Belleville said that she uses all three types of materials, depending on the situation. She said she sometimes uses the cloth bags because they are sturdier and stand up better in the trunk of her car.

When she uses plastic, she either recycles or uses it to pack food on behalf of the Hunger Coalition. She uses the paper bags to recycle newspapers.

Elizabeth McGinnis of Belleville said she has been taking advantage of the reusable grocery bag trend for close to four years.

"I started using reusable canvas bags when they first started coming out," she said. "We are definitely trying to help the environment. We're big recyclers and we're big on the environment."

For all the growth in the cloth bag trend, however, yet another complication has appeared. According to a food safety research report by the University of Arizona and Loma Linda University, reusable grocery bags can actually serve as a dangerous breeding ground for food-borne bacteria. Given the number of salmonella and E. coli outbreaks in recent months, this can pose a serious risk to public health.

At the heart of the safety issue is the fact that people never think to wash their reusable bags.

The study randomly tested reusable bags belonging to shoppers in Los Angeles, San Francisco and Tucson. The researchers found that almost all consumers were unaware of the need to regularly wash the bags.

"Our findings suggest a serious threat to public health, especially from coliform bacteria, including E. coli, which were detected in half the bags sampled," said University of Arizona professor Charles Gerba in a recent press release.

Gerba added that 97 percent of those interviewed for the study had never washed or bleached their reusable bags.

The study came out just as California Legislature was seeking to ban plastic bags from all California stores. Michigan has not gone that far, but more and more of its residents are keeping reusable cloth bags in their trunk.

"A sudden or significant increase in use of reusable bags without a major public education campaign on how to reduce cross contamination would create the risk of significant adverse public health impact," the report states.

McGinnis also hadn't heard of the need to wash the bags, but thought it was a good idea.

The report, called the "Assessment of the Potential for Cross Contamination of Food Products by Reusable Shopping Bags," also offered some advice. It said that consumers should separate raw foods from other food products and that the bags should not be stored in the trunks of cars during high temperatures, which promotes the growth of bacteria.

It also suggested states should consider investing in a public education campaign or requiring that printed instructions be placed on reusable bags, indicating that they must be cleaned or bleached between uses.

Reducing the impact on the environment is no easy task. It's a difficult and complicated process with many different stages and side effects to consider. Choosing "paper or plastic" isn't such a simple question after all.

To review the report, visit www.lsu.edu/public-health/news/news-grocery-bags-bacteria.page or <http://uareports.org/pdfs/GerbaWilliamsSonclairBagContamination.pdf>.

Washtenaw County Board reinstates land bank

By Austen Smith
Heritage Newspapers

After several months of debate, Washtenaw County is moving forward with a second effort to establish and properly fund a land bank that will lend assistance to foreclosed homes.

It was re-introduced by Ronnie Peterson, D-6th District, in July. He has previously stated that bringing back the land bank could be vitally important to more-blighted areas such as Ypsilanti and Ypsilanti Township, but also beneficial to the county as a whole.

Ypsilanti Mayor Paul Schreiber was in the audience during the board's Sept. 1 meeting and spoke in favor of the resurgent program.

"As I've been campaigning, I have been going around neighborhoods and seeing the empty houses and a lot of foreclosure signs," Schreiber said. "It is an issue in our county and it's going to get worse. We're not as bad as Genesee County, but we can stem the tide... and we can empower our land bank and look for funding sources."

"It is a governmental unit and it can be complicated. I understand that control is an issue for everybody, but I ask that you save our land bank authority. It is important to city of Ypsilanti and Ypsilanti Township."

There were two resolutions adopted nearly unanimously. Commissioner Leah Gunn, D-9th District, dissented during both votes — one to rescind a March 17 board decision to dissolve the land bank and a second resolution approving several changes in the land bank's composition by adding a second commissioner to the seven-member board and removing the designated board slot for the sheriff.

The board will now consist of two county commissioners, the treasurer, the mayor or council member from city of Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti, the supervisor of Ypsilanti Township and a supervisor representing townships in the western portion of Washtenaw County.

Commissioners also decided to forego a funding component that would have been generated from a one-half of 1 percent interest tacked onto homes that are forfeited to the county from tax foreclosure. Language governing the dissolution of the land bank also was beefed up, said Corporation Counsel Curtis Hedger, making the process of opting out of the program easier if the county chooses to do so at a later date.

A third resolution introduced by Barbara Levin-Bergman during the Aug. 4 meeting, further changing the composition of the board, was voted down before a vote on the full agenda took place.

Board Chairman Roland Sizemore Jr. addressed the funding issue and suggested that seeking the proper funding streams without burdening taxpayers should be a "joint effort" on everybody's part.

"How are we going to get any progress without the funding?" Sizemore asked. "Are we going to be looking for funding and which departments is that going to?"

Mark Ouimet, R-1st District, said he and Treasurer Catherine McClary had a chance to meet and discuss alternatives for funding.

"Indeed, if this is going to work, we probably need to broaden the circle both in terms of funding and input from other segments of our community," Ouimet said.

During the July 8 meeting, McClary painted a bleak picture for residential property in Washtenaw County. She reported more than 103,000 homes that have been turned over to the county as delinquent properties starting two years ago. Of those, 16,607 were forfeited to the treasurer, meaning that the properties were facing tax foreclosure.

Out of those more than 16,000 homes, 555 were foreclosed and have been, or will be, put up for public auction. McClary added that the numbers are slightly skewed because of 2009 in that before last year, the county had experienced an average of just 11 properties annually that faced tax foreclosure.

McClary said that she expects 2010 to be the highest year for foreclosures, but is hopeful that it is a short-term crisis.

In other business, Scio Township resident Thomas Partridge, who unsuccessfully ran for the 18th District State Senate Democratic nod in the August primary and is a regular at the Board of Commissioners' meetings, announced he would be starting a write-in campaign for Washtenaw County Commissioner's 3rd District, currently held by Republican Jessica Ping. Ping chose not to run for re-election in November and instead her sister, Alicia Ping, has filed to run as a Republican.

Partridge had harsh words for not only Ping, but also for Ouimet and even Rick Snyder, the Republican candidate for governor, accusing each of having "a personal philosophy of buying elections."

Gunn responded to Partridge saying his partisan attacks were highly offensive.

"We have had a very tough year. We had to cut $30 million from the budget, Commissioner Ouimet served as vice chair of the budget working session and we worked as a team. And we all voted for the budget unanimously. I do not appreciate Mr. Partridge's highly partisan attacks," Gunn said.

PETA wants investigation at medical school

U of M's training procedures under scrutiny

By Art Aisner
Special Writer

A leading global animal rights organization wants federal regulators to investigate potentially cruel and even deadly training exercises performed by University of Michigan Medical School students on pigs and cats.

People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals recently filed a formal complaint with the U.S. Department of Agriculture claiming the university's renowned medical school is in violation of the Animal Welfare Act.

The organization specifically targeted the Survival Flight courses, which teach life-saving techniques for critical trauma patients involved in emergencies like car crashes and industrial accidents.

The complaint states that PETA representatives obtained documents from the university that show Survival Flight students learn to force hard plastic tubes down the windpipes of cats to master intubation techniques. The repeated intubation attempts can severely harm the delicate throat tissue of the animals and can result in death from collapsed lungs, PETA claims.

The documents, obtained through the Freedom of Information Act, also show that pigs are cut at their legs, throats and chests, and are stabbed in the heart for trauma-response training. Many of the animals are killed after the training sessions, the organization alleges.

The Animal Welfare Act was passed in 1966 with the intent to regulate the care and use of animals in laboratory settings.

According to the complaint, the procedures are taught even though students are learning the same skills using human-like simulators.

"U of M already uses modern simulators and acknowledges that they are superior to cruel animal laboratories, but the school still permits one faculty member to maim and kill dozens of pigs and cats," said Kathy Guillermo, PETA's vice president of laboratory investigations.

"These experiments are unjustifiable, archaic and probably illegal, and they're cheating U of M trainees out of a first-rate education."

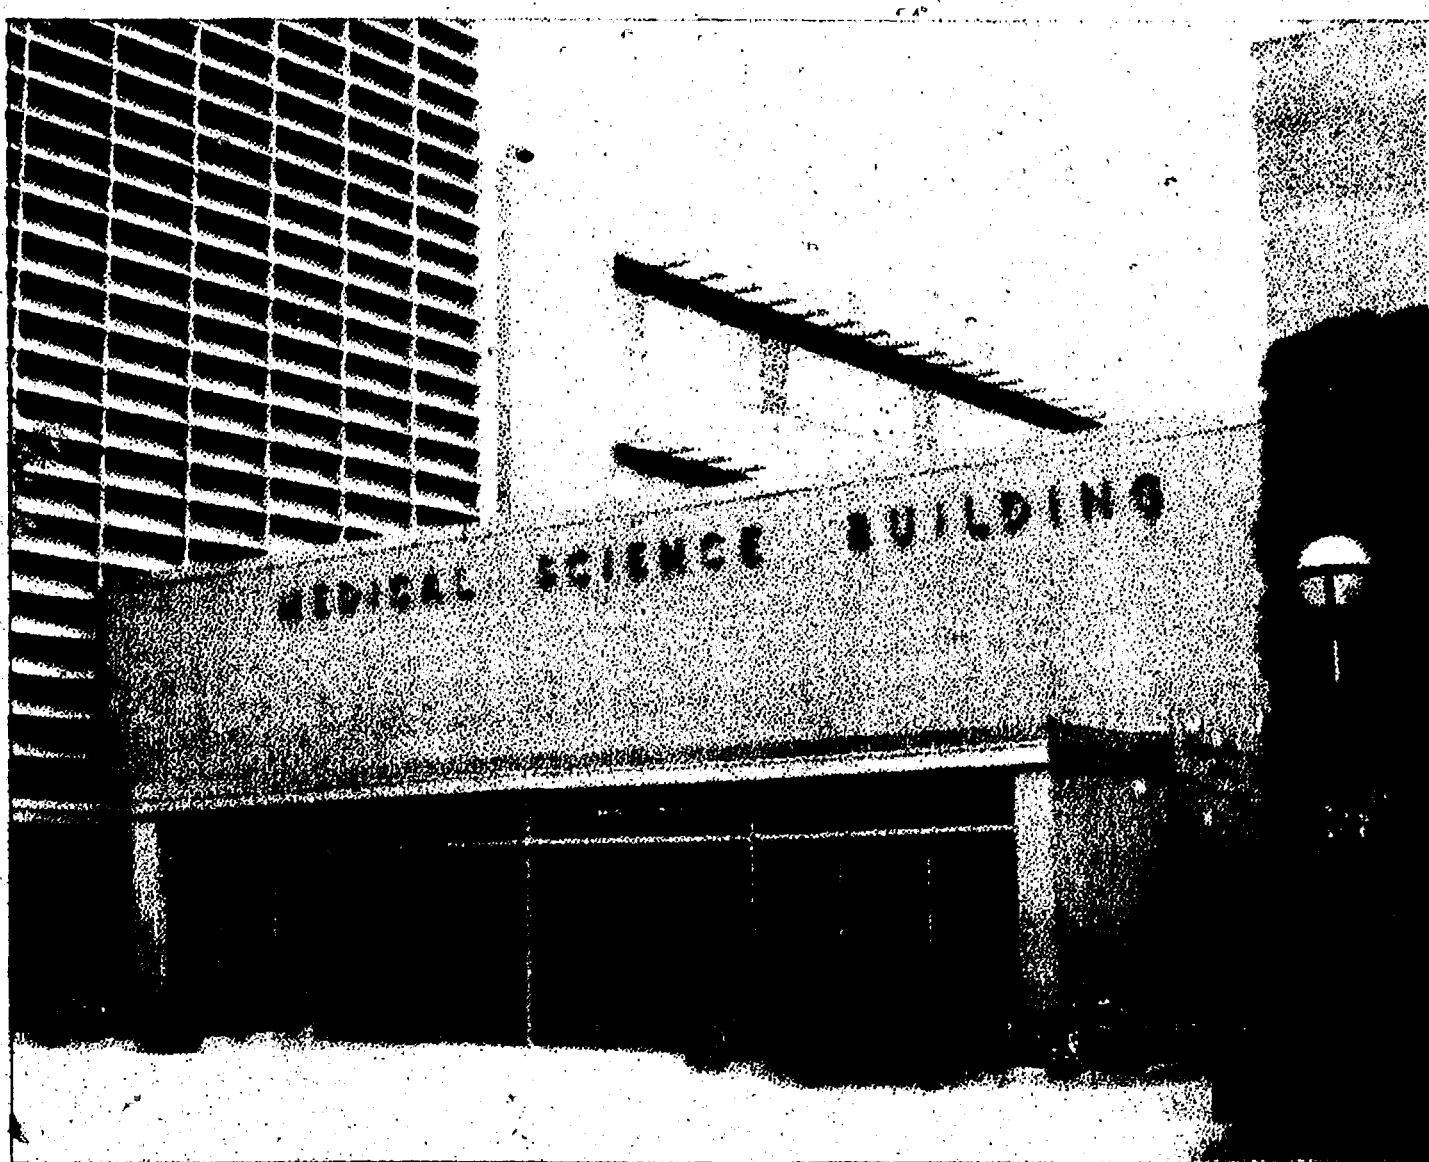

U of M's Advanced Cardiac Life Support, Advanced Trauma Life Support, and Pediatric Advanced Life Support courses all teach nurses and physicians the skills covered in the Survival Flight course by using modern simulators.

The American College of Surgeons and the American Heart Association also approve the use of simulators to teach these skills, PETA argued. Studies by leading medical experts have repeatedly found that in addition to saving animals, the use of simulators and human cadavers for training in these skills better prepares medical professionals to perform lifesaving procedures.

The university issued a statement backing its training practices despite the scrutiny.

"Despite the availability of simulators and other teaching aids, the unique environment that Survival Flight is forced to practice in requires these procedures to be performed on live tissue," the statement read. "There is no substitute for this type of training."

The university stopped using dogs obtained from shelters in its Advanced Trauma and Life Support courses last year after the Physicians Committee for Responsible Medicine asked the USDA to investigate training practices.

Members of PETA's laboratory investigations department reached out to U of M officials earlier this year to resolve the matter privately, said Justin Goodman, the department's associate director. However, the university never responded, he said.

Goodman and others said they anticipated the university's response that simulators can't replace the use of animals. But he said the notion is completely discredited when other courses use simulators as the preferred method for the same techniques.

"Either the simulators are good enough, or they're not," Goodman said. "The university can't have it both ways when they've already made a decision that teaching these techniques by simulators leaves students better prepared."

Officials with the USDA media relations office in Washington, D.C., did not return messages seeking comment last week.

Goodman said that the department typically does not respond to PETA's formal complaints and that further Freedom of Information Act requests likely will be needed to address the issue.

Conservation District makes fish available for ponds

The Washtenaw County Conservation District will sponsor a fall Fish Day event from noon to 3 p.m. Oct. 2 at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, 5055 Ann Arbor-Saline Road.

The District is cooperating with Harrietta Hills Trout Farm of Harrietta, Mich., on Fish Day, and orders for fish to stock ponds are being accepted through Sept. 29.

Fish species available will include rainbow trout, hybrid sunfish, largemouth bass, channel catfish, yellow perch, Koi and fathead minnows.

Orders should be placed directly with Harrietta Hills by Sept. 29. To place orders, call toll free 1-877-389-2514.

More information is also available on the District website at: www.washtenawcd.org.

Stocking of Michigan public waters requires a permit from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Environment, and obtaining the permit is the responsibility of the customer.

Some private ponds with a permanent inflow or outflow also require a permit. Determining whether a permit is needed is also the responsibility of the customer, and a link to the permit application is available on the Conservation District website.

For more information about the Washtenaw County Conservation District and its programs and services, visit 7203 Jackson Road in Ann Arbor or call 761-6721, ext. 5.

More information can be found on the district website at www.washtenawcd.org.

PARK(ing) Day makes no sense in Tree Town

Are you making plans for PARK(ing) Day "PARK(ing)" spaces: temporary public places," according to this event's website.

If you've never heard of it, you're not alone. So, the official explanation of this event is "providing temporary public open space... one parking spot at a time."

According to the event's website, PARK(ing) Day is an annual, worldwide event that inspires city dwellers everywhere to transform metered parking spots into temporary parks for the public good.

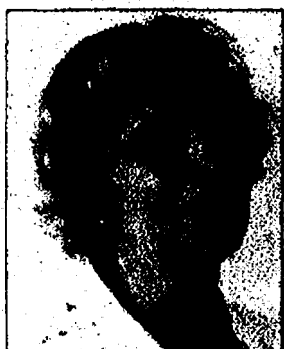

Credit for learning of this oh-so-Ann Arbor event goes to the United Way of Washtenaw County, which alerted me via a Facebook post that the city would participate with urban cities across the globe.

So, here's what's supposed to happen on "PARK(ing) Day": People are supposed to find a grassy patch near a parking meter and sit (park) there.

I'm not kidding.

Park(ing) Day is an "annual open-source global event where citizens, artists and activists collaborate to temporarily transform metered parking spaces into

HOME FRONT

LISA ALLMENDINGER

The project began in 2005 when a San Francisco art and design studio, called Rebar, converted a single-metered parking space into a temporary public park in downtown San Francisco.

PARK(ing) Day's mission is to call attention to the need for more urban open space, to generate critical debate around how public space is created and allocated, and to improve the quality of urban human habitat—at least until the meter runs out.

So, apparently, you pay for the chance to sit near a parking meter.

So, when the meter runs out, and if you're still sitting there, will you get a ticket from Ann Arbor's finest?

And, what happens if a car decides to actually park in that space?

During the original PARK(ing), the "park" lasted two hours.

According to the website, when the meter expired, the participants rolled up the sod, packed away the bench and the tree, and gave the block a good sweep, and left.

Also according to the website, in recent years, participants have built free health clinics, planted temporary urban farms, produced ecology demonstrations, held political seminars, built art installations, opened free bike repair shops and even held a wedding ceremony.

I'm all about fun events and clever fundraising ideas—Festifools, Dancing in the Streets, the ARTini Crawl, HomeGrown Festival, Bookfest—the list goes on.

I know Ann Arbor and surrounding communities have all kinds of fun, family events throughout the year, and new ones are always cropping up.

But this one? I'm not so sure.

Ann Arbor isn't Philadelphia or New York City or even San Francisco.

And there are lots and lots of parks in this "urban" city and throughout the county.

If you would like to learn more or perhaps even participate, visit the website www.parkingday.org.

You tell me, am I missing something?

OUR TAKE: Editorial

Americans need to exercise much better discipline with credit cards

Credit cards can be the bane of anyone's existence and, unfortunately, they are for way too many Americans.

For most people, when their finances are not in order, their lives are not in order. Poor money management not only can ruin their bottom line, but it can, at the very least, disrupt relationships and often it can lead to divorce when couples can't seem to get on the same page.

The figures involving credit card use and debt are staggering.

According to information gathered by the U.S. Census Bureau, there were about 173 million credit card holders in the United States in 2006, the most recent year available until this year's census information is tabulated. That number is expected to grow to more than 180 million this year. Americans charged about $1.95 billion in 2006—just over $11,300 per cardholder.

At the same time, Americans carried nearly $886 billion in credit card debt—another number expected to grow this year by another $1.177 billion.

There's an old standup comedian joke that, unfortunately, hits home too accurately these days. The comic says, "My wife's credit cards were stolen, but I didn't report it to the police. The thief uses them less than she does."

Of course, credit problems are not gender specific—men or women can be plagued by the problem.

The situation is not really funny, but sometimes it helps to laugh instead of cry.

Admittedly, the real problem is not with credit cards, they're just pieces of plastic. But it's with a lack of discipline on the part of the users.

Many people use the cards, pay off what's owed and can have their lives in wonderful financial shape.

But charging can become an addiction, as terrible as drugs, and the resulting overuse of credit cards will devastate an individual or a family.

There are hundreds, if not thousands of financial experts who can help people get off the credit card merry-go-round and hundreds of thousands of books that can give people the advice and guidance needed to straighten out their finances. The fees of the experts vary widely and people should be sure they don't get hooked on just buying the books and not following the advice.

The solution is relatively simple, but mustering the discipline to institute it often is the stumbling block.

Basically, people have to stop using credit cards. Cut them up and throw them away rather than let them sit around the house or, worse, in a purse or wallet.

If confident enough to keep some charge card accounts open, store them in a safe place and only use them in a true emergency.

Then, the most important step is to pay off the debt—as quickly as possible. It may take months or years, but as long as that total figure keeps shrinking, people are on the road to success.

Our economy is based on spending, but those who justify charging by saying it's to help fight the recession are copping out, or are just plain in denial.

Heavy use of charge cards only has been around for the past 30 or 40 years.

Before then, our grandparents and great-grandparents managed to build a strong nation without racking up huge personal debt.

We can do it too, but it takes discipline.

Michigan doesn't have to be left dangling in the wind during economic downturn

If there's anything more sobering than the sight of an empty house that's been foreclosed, it's an empty factory that once employed thousands of people.

In Michigan, that's something we see too often.

The automobile industry here may never return to its former glory. But those plants can once again become manufacturing centers of another sort. Michiganders can get back to work producing something important to the growing alternative energy industry with the wind turbine.

When the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners requested a study that would determine whether there is enough wind here to generate electricity, a meteorological tower was placed at the Chrysler Proving Grounds south of Chelsea.

Chrysler paid us to partner with them to run the test to determine the potential for wind energy.

After collecting data for months, the Wind Power Washtenaw Project determined that the wind power here was nominal. Michigan has a lot of wind. It's just that it's mostly on its west coast.

We need jobs. And we need more sources of alternative energy. We have the capabilities here in the county to manufacture these turbines, as well as use them.

But the test showed that we have enough wind here that small-scale turbines could be used by individuals to help power their own farms, homes and businesses.

We need jobs. And we need more sources of alternative energy.

We have the capabilities here in the county to manufacture these turbines, as well as use them.

So why not work with the farming community through Washtenaw County's trade unions to make it happen?

It's an idea that can become a reality if the necessary research and development is done, said Tony VanDerworp, Washtenaw County's director of economic development and energy.

"We've been successful in the region and the state with transitioning some of our plants to manufacture car batteries, but that research and development has been going on for some time," he said. "We need not just the buildings and the people who can work in them, but a little more investment in research and development here."

"The big thing is to get the product development done, and then be able to manufacture it."

The General Motors transmission plant at Willow Run is 5 million square feet, with easy access to the interstate. Last year, General Motors announced that it would shut the plant down completely by the end of this year.

"One of the things we're looking at is how do we reuse that building," VanDerworp said, "and we're certainly looking at wind companies in terms of a manufacturing base to go after."

Project manager Bret Lenart, who works with VanDerworp at the county, said the wind potential for Michigan is huge.

"I think that market will continue to expand, and expand in Michigan as well," he said. "We have a lot of manufacturing capacity, and we have a lot of capacity to plug into that industry, whether it's through our own manufacturing, or designing and manufacturing components for systems elsewhere. It's a huge opportunity for us."

Consumers Energy last month chose Vestas-American Wind Technology Inc. of Portland, Ore., to supply 56 wind turbine generators for its first wind energy park to open in Mason County in 2012.

That's great news for Portland.

Next time, those parts should be made right here in Washtenaw County. And we'll be the ones celebrating.

Mark Ouimet is the current Washtenaw County Commissioner for District 1 and a candidate for the 52nd District in the Michigan House of Representatives. He can be reached at mark@markouimet.com.

Join your local CROP Hunger Walk Oct. 10

My stomach twisted in knots, the sides rubbing against each other because they had nothing inside to grind. I opened the refrigerator looking for food, my head already light because of my hypoglycemia. All I found were a few sour, green apples. I hated the way they made my mouth pucker, but I ate them anyway, because I was hungry. I grew up in a poor family, so I often went hungry.

Of the 49.1 million people living in food insecure households last year, 16.7 million were children, or 22.5 percent of all children. This means that one or more members of the family, particularly the children, went without meals because the family could not afford to buy food.

I was one of those children, which is why I join CROP Walk every year.

For the 36th year in a row, the Interfaith Council for Peace and Justice will host the CROP, which stands for Communities Responding to Overcome Poverty, Hunger Walk Oct. 10. CROP Walk is a unique interfaith event that unites people of all walks of life to end hunger one step at a time.

Last year, CROP walkers in the Washtenaw/Ann Arbor walk raised more than $56,000.

Seventy-five percent of the funds raised by the Washtenaw CROP Walk go to support worldwide relief and development efforts by Church World Service, or they may go to other religious or development agencies that sponsors choose. The other 25 percent directly supports local groups confronting hunger in our own communities.

Food insecurity is especially high locally and everywhere in the county due to the recession. The number of people whom the U.S. Department of Agriculture deems to have very low food security doubled between 2000 and 2008.

Once my family had become financially stable, we joined CROP Walk through our Quaker meeting. It was important to us to give back to the community after they had so helped us in our hour of need. I joined in CROP walks as a child and now I am proud to walk as an adult.

I urge everyone in Washtenaw County to remember our neighbors in need, just as my neighbors once remembered me when I was a young, hungry child. Join CROP Walk to alleviate the pain of hunger. Visit <http://www.icpj.net/> today to sign up.

Businesses enjoy speed networking event

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

The first business speed networking joint venture between the Chelsea and Jackson chambers of commerce was a success by several accounts.

Dozens of business owners from Jackson, Chelsea and other surrounding areas filled the main banquet hall at the Chelsea Comfort Inn on Sept. 9.

Charlie Westra of marketing firm R.J. Michaels was one of many professionals who made their way from Jackson to network in Chelsea.

"This is old school social networking; this is Facebook in essence without the pictures."

Westra said, after finishing a four minute presentation on the changes that his company has gone through since 1999 when the Internet took off.

During Westra's two years with the company, R.J. Michaels launched 40 websites. He heavily pitched his company's web services, including Facebook and Twitter, during the event.

"This is the way it used to be," said John Thompson of R.J. Michaels' subsidiary publication, "Senior Preferences," a resource guide for seniors looking for professional services from in-home care to legal representation.

Thompson's presence at the joint networking event is a small part of an effort leading into the company's expansion from 38 counties in Michigan into the Indiana market. Like Westra he's also from Jackson.

Thompson said that Chelsea is a good fit for his efforts because it's a prime example of the demographic trend in Michigan, where somebody turns 60 every 10 minutes.

"This is the way it used to be - this is the good way," Thompson said. "I'd much rather have a face-to-face conversation than leave a voicemail for somebody and hope they return it."

"People don't return voice-mails anymore."

Chelsea business owner Nicole Greer told fellow business community members about Synergy Home Care, a local company that has grown significantly since starting three years ago. The company now employs 60 people.

Like Yellowbook media consultant Joyce Sager and Professional Communications Services CEO Kevin McLaughlin, Greer is a first-timer on the business networking scene.

"I think it's great as a business owner because I don't have time to market as much," Greer said. "When we were small I could go out every other day to market, but now it seems like I get out once every month if I'm lucky."

Sager said that she had talked to more business owners at the Chelsea event than at other business networking events, and she appreciated that many weren't from areas like Flint or Detroit that have less relevance to local business professionals and owners.

McLaughlin said that in 17 years of operation, PCS has relied heavily on referrals, because traditional marketing alone hasn't been enough to keep his company's 15 Jackson-based technicians busy.

"Marketing alone doesn't always work, but obviously in today's environment you try everything you can," he said.

EMU FOOTBALL TEAM HOSTS CMU IN BIG MAC SHOWDOWN

Paid Advertisement

YPSILANTI, Mich. (EMUEagles.com) - The Eastern Michigan University football team will be home for one of the biggest games of the 2010 season when the Eagles play host to the Central Michigan University Chippewas, Saturday, Sept. 18, at 4 p.m. in Rynearson Stadium.

The Eagles and Chippewas will be meeting for the 88th time on the gridiron. The series began in 1902 when CMU recorded a 10-0 shutout, Nov. 1.

This year's matchup is set for a 4 p.m. kickoff and it will be Boy Scout Day.

EMU and the Boy Scouts of America have teamed up to present the inaugural EMU Boy Scout Camp Out following the football game.

For just $27, all boy scouts, along with family and friends, can participate in an exciting day of football followed by a night of camping activities right on the Rynearson Stadium field.

Central Michigan enters Saturday's game with a 1-1 record after opening the season with a 33-0 win over Hampton University followed by a 13-10 setback at Temple.

For EMU the start of the season has seen the Eagles fall in a pair of heartbreaking games.

In the opener, Sept. 4, in Rynearson Stadium against Army, the Eagles took a 27-24 lead with just 7:59 left in the contest only to see Army march 72 yards in eight plays for the game-winning touchdown with only 38 ticks left on the clock to make the final Army 31, EMU 27.

Last weekend, Sept. 11, the Eagles traveled to Oxford, Ohio for the 2010 Mid-American Conference opener against the Miami University Redhawks.

Eastern once again took a second-half lead, 21-14, with 6:43 left in the third quarter, but the home team added two more scores to post a 28-21 victory.

EMU NOTES

TELEVISION TIME: The 2010 EMU football team will make five television appearances. The EMU at Ohio State game, Sept. 25, has been scheduled for a 3:30 p.m. start on ABC and ESPN (reverse mirror). The EMU-Ohio game, Oct. 2, will be shown on ESPN regional and there will be three games, EMU at Miami, Sept. 11, EMU home vs. Toledo, Oct. 30, and EMU at Buffalo, Nov. 20, televised on SportsTime Ohio.

TWO MAC HONORS: The EMU football team has had two Mid-American Conference West Division Players of the Week in the first two weeks of the 2010 season.

Senior tailback Dwayne Priest (Roanoke, Va.-Fleming-Fork Union Military) was named MAC West Division Offensive Player of the Week for the Army game, Sept. 6, and sophomore punter Jay Karutz (North Ryde, New South Wales, Australia-Holy Cross College) was named West Division Special Teams Player of the Week for the Miami contest, Sept. 13.

Police dog retired from service

Officer Jeff Staebler's police K-9 dog Tango was buried this week. Tango was brought to the United States from Germany. He then became Officer Staebler's third K-9 partner, following Ripley and Ranger. Tango will be greatly missed by his family and the community that knew him.

Tango was adored by all ages because of his interaction with so many groups such as Girl Scout troops, Boy Scouts, school classrooms, Chelsea Fair, Safety Town, Chelsea Fire Department open house demonstrations, and many other community events.

Tango's eight-year career with Staebler consisted of many armed robbery tracks ending in arrests, narcotic searches, evidence searches, tracks for lost children, missing senior citizens as well as suicidal individuals. This pair also assisted many other surrounding agencies.

Since Tango's retirement in 2007 he has enjoyed being on "Tango Time" with Officer Staebler and his family. He was a wonderful partner, friend and protector and will be greatly missed.

Officer Staebler's current K-9 Brodie follows some very big footprints but is doing a great job.

Q&A: Frequently asked Social Security questions answered

Following are frequently asked questions about issues related to Social Security and answers to those questions, organized by topic.

What can I do at www.socialsecurity.gov?

There are a myriad of things you can do at Social Security's Web site. You can get an estimate of future benefits, find out if you qualify for benefits now and even apply for benefits.

You can read one of our 150 or so publications. Many are in Spanish, and some are in 14 other languages as well as in audio and alternative formats.

Online, you also can find your local Social Security office or find out what documents you need to make a change to your Social Security card.

For the curious, check out the fun facts on our Web site, like this one: Did you know the first Social Security payment of 17 cents went to a fellow named Ernest Ackerman in January 1937?

It was a one-time, lump-sum pay out — the only form of benefits paid during the start-up period January 1937 through December 1939.

Congratulations on your 75th anniversary. Who received the first Social Security check?

First, let us explain how things worked back then: From 1937 until 1940, Social Security paid benefits in the form of a single, lump-sum payment. The purpose of these one-time payments was to provide some "payback" to those people who contributed to the program but would not participate long enough to be vested for monthly benefits.

Under the 1935 law, monthly benefits were to begin in 1942, with the period 1937 through 1942 used both to build up the trust funds and to provide a minimum period for participation to qualify for monthly benefits.

The earliest reported applicant for a lump-sum benefit was a Cleveland motorman named Ernest Ackerman, who retired one day after the Social Security program began.

During his one day of participation in the program, five cents was withheld from Ackerman's pay for Social Security, and, upon retiring, he received a lump-sum payment of 17 cents. The average lump-sum payment during this period was $58.06.

Although Ernest Ackerman was the first person to receive a lump-sum benefit, a woman named Ida May Fuller from Ludlow, Vt. was the first recipient of monthly Social Security benefits.

Learn more about Social Security's early days at our History Page. You will find it at www.socialsecurity.gov/history.

I have decided I want to retire. How do I begin?

The fastest and easiest way to apply for retirement benefits is to go to www.socialsecurity.gov/applyonline.

To use our online application to apply for Social Security retirement or spouse's benefits, you must:

- Be at least 61 years and 9 months old;
- Want to start your benefits in the next four months; and
- Live in the United States or one of its commonwealths or territories.

If you are already age 62, your benefits could start as early as this month. If you are almost 65, your application for benefits will include Medicare. Just visit www.socialsecurity.gov/applyonline.

I am trying to decide when to retire. Can Social Security help?

Deciding when to retire is a personal choice and you should consider a number of factors, but we can certainly help.

Visit <http://www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10147.html> and read our fact sheet about the things you should think about when making this important decision.

What is the definition of disability for Supplemental Security Income (SSI)?

Social Security has a strict definition of disability for children under the SSI program. A child who is under age 18 is considered disabled if he or she:

- Is not working at a job that we consider to be substantial work; and
- Has a physical or mental condition (or a combination of conditions) resulting in "marked and severe functional limitations."

This means that the condition very seriously limits his or her activities and the condition has lasted, or is expected to last, at least one year or is expected to result in death.

To decide whether a child is disabled for SSI purposes, we look at medical and other information (such as information from schools, parents, and caregivers) about the child's condition, and we consider how the condition affects his or her daily activities.

We consider questions such as:

- What activities is the child not able to do, or is limited in doing?
- What kind of, and how much, extra help does the child need to perform age-appropriate activities — for example, special classes at school or medical equipment?
- Do the effects of treatment interfere with the child's day-to-day activities?

Read Benefits for Children With Disabilities at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/10026.html for additional information on how we decide if a child under age 18 is disabled.

Does where I live affect the amount of my Supplemental Security Income (SSI) benefits?

It might. First, where you live might affect your benefit amount because some states add a supplement to the federal payment.

If you live in your own place and pay your own food and shelter costs, regardless of whether you own or rent, you may get up to the maximum SSI amount payable in your state.

You also can get up to the maximum if you live in someone else's household, as long as you pay your food and shelter costs. If you live in someone else's household and don't pay your food and shelter costs or pay only part of them, your SSI benefit may be reduced by up to one-third of the SSI federal benefit rate.

To learn more, read Supplemental Security Income (SSI) at <http://www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs/11000.html>.

I need to apply for disability benefits. Where do I start?

Start online at www.socialsecurity.gov/applyfordisability. Applying online for disability benefits offers several advantages.

You can start your disability claim immediately, and there is no need to wait for an appointment. Additionally, you can apply from the convenience of your home or on any computer.

You can use the online application to apply for benefits if you are age 18 or older; have worked and paid Social Security taxes long enough to qualify; you have a medical condition that has prevented you from working, or is expected to prevent you from working, for at least 12 months, or to end in death; and you reside in the United States or one of its territories or commonwealths.

Get started now at www.socialsecurity.gov/applyfordisability.

My application for disability benefits was denied. What do I do if I disagree with the decision?

You can appeal the decision at www.socialsecurity.gov/onlineservices.

This Web site is the starting point to request a review of our medical decision about your eligibility for disability benefits.

There are two parts to this Internet Appeal process:

- (1) An Appeal Request. Internet form; and
- (2) An Appeal Disability Report that gives us more information about your condition.

You can complete both forms online. To appeal online, the only form you must submit is an appeal request (Part 1).

However, we encourage you to submit an Appeal Disability Report (Part 2) because it will give us more information about you and help us in processing your appeal.

We estimate it will take an average of 19 minutes to complete Part 1 and an average of 30 minutes to complete Part 2.

To get started, visit www.socialsecurity.gov/onlineservices.

I understand you must have limited resources to be eligible for Extra Help with Medicare prescription drug costs. What does this mean?

To qualify for Extra Help in 2010, your resources are limited to $12,510 for an individual or $25,010 for a married couple living together.

Resources include the value of the things you own. Some examples are real estate (other than your primary residence); bank accounts, including checking, savings and certificates of deposit; stocks; bonds; including U.S. Savings Bonds; mutual funds; Individual Retirement Accounts; and cash at home or anywhere else.

To learn more about Extra Help, and to apply online, visit www.socialsecurity.gov/prescriptionhelp.

AMSDILL, FRANKLIN

WESLEY "Wes", of Dexter, left this earthly life on September 8, 2010 to meet his Lord and Savior. He died peacefully in his sleep after many months of declining health and brief hospice care. Family members were gathered at his bedside for prayers and remembrances. He was 89, just a few weeks shy of his 90th birthday and 62nd wedding anniversary. A W.W. II Navy veteran, Wes served on the first LST (landing ship tank) to land at Omaha Beach during the Normandy invasion on D-Day. He will be remembered as a teacher, dairy farmer, gentle husband, generous father and good friend and neighbor. Wes is survived by his beloved wife, Margaret; three sons, Mark (Carol), Dave (Val) and Steve (Pam); one daughter, Susan; six grandchildren, Jessica, Becky (Ted), Katie (Alex), Wallace, Darci (Matt), Myrarchek and Nicholas; five great grandchildren, Joshua, Andrew, Rylee, Vienna and Jacob. We all loved him deeply and will miss his presence in our lives. A Memorial Service and luncheon is planned for Friday, September 24, 2010 at 11 a.m. at The Chelsea Free Methodist Church, 7665 Werkner Rd., Chelsea, 734-475-1391. Memorial contributions may be made to the Chelsea Free Methodist Church or The Dexter American Legion.

King, Nicholas

age 15; treasured and beloved son, brother and friend sadly passed away September 9th, 2010 as a result of injuries sustained in a boating accident. He was born January 11, 1995 in Ann Arbor, the son of Carla Pizzoli and Greg King. He attended Dexter High School where he was entering his sophomore year. Nick was a natural athlete who enjoyed soccer, basketball, wakeboarding, snowboarding and the list goes on. If he tried it, he excelled in it. His charm, charisma and quirky sense of humor made all who met him love him. If there was any type of family gathering, he wanted to be in the middle of it. He is survived by his parents, Carla and Greg; of Dexter; his sister Kelsi; his brother Joe (Cujoe), maternal grandparents, Eugene and Mary Lyn Pizzoli; paternal grandmother, Priscilla King; stepfather Steve; step-siblings Kyle, Craig, and Traci along with aunts, Regina (Gerri), Carolyn and Andrea; uncles Louie (Lori) and Andy (Tammy); cousins Jason (Stacey), Beau, Allison, Morgan, Bella, Giho, Hannah and Emma, and countless other friends and family whom were blessed to know him. He is preceded in death by his paternal grandfather, Gerald King. Nick touched the lives of many people with his smile, big blue eyes, compassion for others and his ability to make people laugh. Services have taken place in lieu of flowers, the family asks that you consider donations in his name at TCF Bank to raise monies for improvements to the soccer fields at Dexter High School. Arrangements entrusted to the Hosmer Muehlig Funeral Chapel. www.hosmermuehlig.com

McGRATH, PHILLIP

"Brian", Manchester, MI (formerly of Chelsea), age 46; died Saturday, September 11, 2010 at U of M Hospital in Ann Arbor, MI. He was born January 31, 1964 in Anderson, IN, the son of Lewis and Delores (Huggins) McGrath. Brian was a 1982 graduate of Wheeling Park High School, Wheeling, WV and a 1988 graduate of West Virginia University with a B.S. in Mechanical Engineering. He received his Master of Science in Mechanical Engineering from WVU in 1996. Brian worked as a Chrysler Powertrain Systems control engineer for 17 years at the Chelsea (MI) Proving Grounds. During his distinguished career, he worked on 4-cylinder engine programs developing software and calibrations to improve vehicle driveability, fuel economy, and emissions. Most recently as lead systems engineer for the Continuously Variable Transmission integration. Brian was awarded three U.S. patents for his work. He was a volunteer leader for Science Olympiad at Beach Middle and Chelsea High School, a Cub Scout Leader, as well as the Pinewood Derby Master, a T-ball, baseball, and softball coach. Brian's hobbies included dirt bike riding, mechanical and carpentry work. On July 12, 1986 he married his high school sweetheart, Dana Geiser in Wheeling, WV, and she survives with his children, Justin, Jenna, Shane, and Laura. McGrath of Manchester; other survivors include his parents, Lewis and Delores McGrath of Wheeling, WV; one brother, Lewis McGrath of Morgantown, WV; two sisters, Deanna Davis and Tammy (Rob) Kruse both of Wheeling, WV; his mother-in-law, Jeannie Geiser of Wheeling, WV; his grandmother, Opal Huggins of Beech Bottom, WV; and several nieces and nephews. He also leaves behind his best friend since childhood, Robert "Mac" McAninch of Belaire, OH. Funeral Services will be held Friday, September 17, 2010 11 a.m. at the United Methodist Church, Chelsea, with Rev. Tom Burdette officiating. Burial will be at Oak Grove Cemetery. The family will receive Friends Wednesday 6 to 9 p.m. and Thursday 1 to 4 and 6 to 9 p.m. at Cole Funeral Chapel, Chelsea. Memorial contributions may be made to an educational fund for his children.

Resident asks for repairs to road

By Lisa Allmendinger

Peter Stone is on a mission. He's appealing to officials from the city of Ann Arbor, the Michigan Department of Transportation and, most recently, the Washtenaw County Road Commission to get fixed a short section of Ann Arbor-Saline Road at the I-94 interchange.

On Sept. 7, after contacting Ann Arbor and MDOT, Stone approached the Road Commission.

The Pleasant Lake Road resident was told that the south side of the bridge is in Pittsfield Township and is under the jurisdiction of the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

The north approach to that bridge is under the jurisdiction of the city of Ann Arbor.

Stone asked commissioners if they could get together everyone involved in the project to figure out how the nearly 100-yard stretch of, what he described as, pot-hole infested roadway could be fixed.

Currently, Ann Arbor is focused on securing grant funding to fix the crumbling Stadium Road bridges.

Members of the Washtenaw County Road Commission staff were asked to contact the city and to report back in October with an estimate of the cost for the repairs and when it could be fixed.

Oak Hollow Drive rejected as public road

By Lisa Allmendinger

A request by a developer to make Oak Hollow Drive in Scio Township a public road was recently turned down by the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

The 1,500-foot stretch of roadway in a subdivision with 11 lots is located on the west side of Tubbs Road, north of Huron Road Drive.

The road, located in the Oak Hollow Land Division, is part of a development that began about 13 years ago.

The Washtenaw County Road Commission turned down the request by developer Richard Fabian Sept. 7 because he never "conveyed the right-of-way" to the Road Commission, according to the board action.

In addition, the road doesn't provide any current or future interconnection to surrounding parcels.

Roy Townsend, director of engineering for the Road Commission said that, in addition, there were drainage concerns with the road and no signed agreement between the Road Commission and the developer despite repeated attempts to secure the necessary documents.

"The board hereby relinquishes the Washtenaw County Road Commission's interest in the project," the resolution states.

Lisa Allmendinger can be reached at 1-877-995-NEWS (6397) or at lallmendinger@heritage.com. Check out her daily blog at www.A2Journal.com.

HICKS, LEXINE, Saline, MI; age 79; passed away peacefully on Tuesday, August 31, 2010. She was born on July 13, 1931 in Canoe, KY, the daughter of Redwine and Sally Bell (Gross) Anderson. She will be greatly missed by her sons, Bill (Sande) Hicks and Jim Hicks; and her daughter, Pauline (Bret) Dawson; grandchildren, whom she adored, Jeffrey Hicks, Jon Dawson and Shelby Dawson; great grandchildren, Jaye Dawson, Jadeir Dawson and Korbin Folger; other survivors include: one brother, Hendrix (Edna) Anderson; two sisters, Glenna (Beecher) Herald and Jean Johnson; sister-in-law, Joyce Anderson; and many nieces and nephews. She is preceded in death by her parents; one brother, Thomas Anderson; brother-in-law, Abe Johnson; and an infant sister. Cremation has already taken place. A Memorial Service will be held on September 21, 2010 at 7 p.m. at the Fellowship Baptist Church, 1045 W. Bemis Rd., Saline, MI 48176.

KORNEIL, DANIEL LEE, Moscow, MI; age 58; died Tuesday, September 7, 2010, at Borgess Medical Center in Kalamazoo. He was born April 24, 1952 in Ann Arbor, Michigan, the son of Frank and Dorothy (Swarthout) Korneil. Survivors include her brothers, Frank (Gendal) Korneil, Gerald (Rhonda) Korneil, John Korneil; sisters, Mary Hadley, Evelyn (Robert) Kotar, Lillian (Robert) Shankleton; a daughter, Carol (James) Paquette; three grandchildren; many nieces and nephews. Daniel was preceded in death by his parents; two sisters, Bertha Richards, Shirley Driver. Only private services will be held. Memorial contributions may be made to the Borgess Medical Center. Arrangements by Cole Funeral Chapel.

Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit recently announced the opening of a new donation center in Ann Arbor on the campus of Briarwood Mall.

The donation center will accept gently used clothing and household items seven days a week. The highest quality items will be sold at Goodwill's new flagship retail store location, scheduled to open this fall.

Proceeds from the store support Goodwill employment education and training programs that help people throughout southeast Michigan earn jobs by becoming what the organization refers to as "Trained, Trusted and Ready to Work."

Located outside Sears on the north side of Briarwood Mall, near the intersection of Eisenhower Parkway and State Street, the Goodwill donation center will accept items from 10:30 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from noon to 5 p.m. every Sunday.

When it opens this fall in Canton, the 17,000-square-foot Goodwill flagship store will be the first retail location operated by Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit in southeast Michigan since 2000.

Goodwill expects its flagship store to generate approximately $1 million in revenue in the first year.

Featuring upscale boutique clothing and other donated goods, the store will be modeled after the nation's two most successful Goodwill retail locations in Indianapolis and Portland, Ore.

"Unemployment is a problem that affects all of Southeast Michigan, and we welcome the entire region to support our efforts to help local people become trained, trusted and ready to work," said Jeff Ukrainec, director of donated goods for Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit.

"Our new Ann Arbor donation center makes it easier than ever for the people of Washtenaw County to support programs that help our unemployed friends and neighbors secure jobs."

Initially, the opening of the store will create 23 jobs for southeast Michigan. Individuals interested in applying for jobs at the Goodwill Canton retail store should click the "Jobs at Goodwill" link at <http://www.goodwilldetroit.org>.

Goodwill Industries is dedicated to helping local individuals overcome challenges and secure employment. In just the past two years of the organization's nearly 90-year history, Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit has placed more than 2,000 Southeast Michigan individuals into new jobs and provided education, training and career assistance to thousands more in the region.

In addition to visiting the Ann Arbor donation center, individuals wishing to donate new or gently used clothing or other items may drop them off at Goodwill's Detroit headquarters at 3111 Grand River or call 313-964-3900 to schedule a pickup.

To connect with Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit on Facebook, visit <http://www.facebook.com/GoodwillDetroit>. To follow the organization on Twitter, visit <http://www.twitter.com/GoodwillDet>.

Local nonprofit gets $100K

826michigan, an Ann Arbor nonprofit dedicated to helping students improve their creative, expository writing, math and science skills, has received a $100,000 grant from the Toyota USA Foundation.

The grant has allowed the organization to hire a new full-time staff member to run its after-school tutoring program, which takes place at its Ann Arbor site, as well as at Ypsilanti Middle School.

The new staff member also will oversee 826michigan's evening creative writing workshops and other activities. The new position of program coordinator has been filled by poet and educator Catherine Calabro.

"826michigan is one of my favorite places in the world," Calabro says.

The ability to add staff is especially exciting for 826michigan. Currently, the two-person staff is supported by a network of more than 1,200 volunteers. However, adding Calabro as program coordinator, the organization says, will enhance its consistency, excellence and long-term planning ability.

"We remain so thrilled that we can begin to meet more of our community's need for writing and tutoring support in math, science and other areas of study," said Amanda Uhle, executive director.

"This is a critical time for us, and this gift is allowing us to unite some of our area's neediest young people with the tremendous resource of adult volunteers who are able, with our guidance, to provide them with one-on-one attention for homework and other projects."

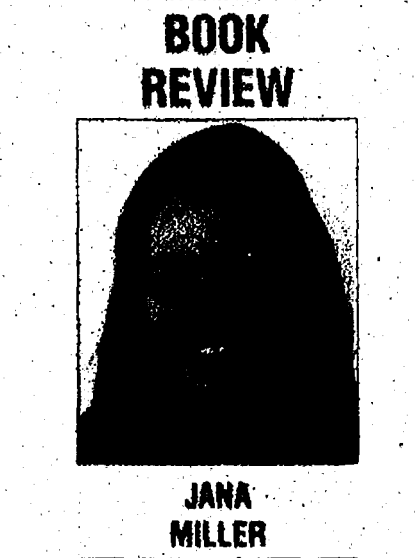

"We know that, through our volunteers, we are equipping the next generation of writers, engineers, and other professionals. We are so proud to know that the Toyota USA Foundation supports our work in the community by way of this generous, transformative grant."

'Michigan's County Courthouses' showcases history

I have no background in law and have rarely seen the inside of a courtroom. Yet, I cannot help but feel intrigued by the world of law after reading John Fedynsky's newest work, "Michigan's County Courthouses: An Encyclopedic Tour of Michigan Courthouses."

Fedynsky, currently working as an assistant attorney general for the state of Michigan, misses nothing while accounting for the 83 county courthouses and the Michigan Hall of Justice.

Accompanied by beautiful images of these distinct and unique locations, "Michigan's County Courthouses" takes the reader on a journey through each county's history. Architecture and settler background are included, of course, but what sets Fedynsky's work apart is how it engages the untold stories.

For example, why and when were wartime soldiers stationed within a county's courthouse? What is the story behind inmates assisting in the evacuation of a courthouse and then staying to put out its fire? What outrageous crimes and court cases took place in their brick and stone walls?

These are the delicate gems hidden away in the book's pages — the people stories that helped mold these structures into what they are today. In fact, in reading about one county and then the next, one can't help but wish they had been along for the ride with Fedynsky while he visited these 84 historical locations.

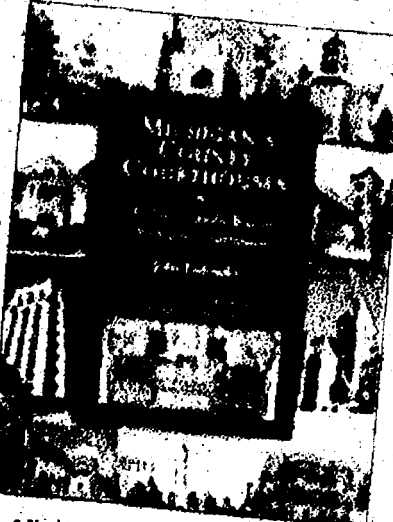

The local lore weaved into the courthouse tales is evidence of his time and care spent with these communities.

The book also includes a thoughtful foreword from-

Justice Stephen Markman, who says, "This book will certainly become the definitive work on an overlooked part of Michigan history... It is a wonderful compilation of facts and anecdotes."

Each courthouse is accompanied by local photographs. It's a pleasure in itself to browse the many pages and see evidence of the variety and beauty within the state of Michigan.

Fedynsky is a scheduled participant in the University of Michigan Press author series this fall. The presentations are free and open to the public, and followed by a book sale and signing. For those interested in listening to Fedynsky read from "Michigan's County Courthouses," his presentation is scheduled for 7 p.m. Oct. 5 at the Hatcher Graduate Library.

Visit www.press.umich.edu map for more information.

The book can be purchased for $40.

2010 Creature Feature fundraiser set at museum

By Jana Miller
Heritage Newspapers

Ann Arbor might not be much of an urban jungle, but in October one of its prized museums will become a jungle of sorts for the day.

The Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum is hosting its 2010 Creature Feature from 6 to 8 p.m. Oct. 3. This is the eighth annual Creature Feature fundraising event for the Hands-On Museum, and it will feature all manner of wildlife.

A few of the wild and wooly animals set to make an appearance include kangaroos, an Australian laughing kookaburra, scorpions, snakes, lizards, snapping turtles, an alligator, an iguana and birds of prey. These animals from around the world will provide a special interactive learning experience for families.

There will be several animal experts on hand at the event, including experts from National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration. Those professionals can answer questions and help people handle or interact with certain animals.

"Creature Feature is always popular with families," Mel Drumm, executive director of the Hands-On Museum, said in a news release. "The Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum is committed to making learning engaging, enjoyable and interactive. Creature Feature is a marquee event because it aligns with the museum's mission and provides an opportunity for a unique and fun family night out."

This year's event also features the unveiling of a special exhibit at the museum. The Creature Feature will act as the grand opening for "Great Lakes Discovery," a new exhibit presented in partnership with the NOAA.

"With the unveiling of our new Great Lakes Discovery exhibit, this year's event will be even more spectacular," Drumm said.

The Great Lakes Discovery exhibit will join more than 250 other interactive exhibits featured at the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum. More than 200,000 visitors check out the exhibits each year while the museum works toward its goal to "inspire people to discover the wonder of science, math and technology."

The Creature Feature fundraiser is a sell-out event each year. To attend, advanced tickets are required. They cost $7, and children under the age of 2 are admitted for free. They can be purchased online at www.aahom.org/giving_events or by calling 995-5439.

Jana Miller can be reached at 429-7380 or jmiller@heritage.com.

Native plants, trees available

Trees, native wildflower and prairie grass plants can be ordered through Sept. 24 from the Washtenaw County Conservation District's Fall Conservation Plants Sale.

Trees can be used for windbreaks to slow the wind or screens to block unwanted views or as sound barriers. They can be used to reduce soil erosion by providing permanent cover for the soil, and can create habitat to attract wildlife to your property.

Native wildflower plants can be used to naturalize landscapes and provide habitat for butterflies, birds and insects.

Tree species available for sale will include Concolor Fir, White Pine, Blue Spruce, Norway Spruce and White Spruce.

Wildflowers and prairie grass plants offered include New England Aster, Bee Balm, Black-eyed Susan, Cardinal Flower, Yellow Coneflower, Rough Blazing Star, Big Bluestem grass, Little Bluestem grass, Indian grass, Switch grass and 32-plant assortment butterfly garden or pollinator insect garden kits.

Also available are marking flags, fertilizer tablets and wildlife repellents. Ordered trees and plants are scheduled for pick up Oct. 8, at a location to be determined.

For more information about the Fall Conservation Plants Sale or to obtain a catalog, contact the Washtenaw County Conservation District at 7203 Jackson Road, Ann Arbor or by telephone at 761-6721, ext. 5.

The catalog is also available on the Conservation District web site at www.washtenawcd.org.

Preparing for flu season starts now

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

With flu season just around the corner, the Michigan Department of Community Health is stepping up their efforts to educate the general public about the importance of vaccinations.

"The single best way to protect against the flu is to get vaccinated each year," said James McCurtis, spokesman for the Michigan Department of Community Health.

For the first time this flu season, the MDCH recommends that everyone 6 months old and older receive a seasonal flu vaccine.

It also encourages new parents, healthcare professionals, and those who have contact with people age 65 and older to get vaccinated to help protect high-risk individuals.

Children in need of a second dose of flu vaccine must be fully protected also because flu spreads easily in classroom settings, and school-aged children often spread influenza to their siblings and family members.

However, McCurtis said the MDCH doesn't expect this year's flu season to be as bad as last year's.

"We hope it isn't as bad as it was last year. If you remember, H1N1 spread quite quickly, especially in the springtime and the fall, but it began to die down in December and the numbers have continued to die down. We hope coming into this season, we can keep it at a low number," he said.

McCurtis said the 2010-2011 flu vaccine will protect against three different flu viruses: the H3N2 virus, an influenza B virus and the H1N1 virus that caused a nationwide panic last year.

"While flu is unpredictable, it's likely that 2009 H1N1 viruses and regular seasonal viruses will cause illness in the United States this flu season," Dr. Greg Holzman, chief medical executive for MDCH said. "Everyone, including healthy people, need to get vaccinated against influenza this year and every year."

McCurtis said residents should receive a flu vaccine as soon as the vaccine is available in pharmacies, local health departments, and other vaccination locations. Flu vaccinations are effective throughout the entire flu season, which can begin as early as October and last as late as May.

"We don't really want people to wait too long because it does take about a week for the vaccine to get into your system to protect you," he said.

A vaccine typically ranges in price from $20 to $25, depending on the provider.

McCurtis said vaccine manufacturers are expected to produce 160 million doses of the flu vaccine in time for early shipment across the United States this year.

"So far, we've received a lot of doses for Michigan. It looks like Michigan will be in good shape," he said.

McCurtis said there are two types of flu vaccines. The "shot" is an inactive vaccine, meaning it contains killed virus, that is administered with a needle. The nasal-spray flu vaccine is a vaccine made with live, weakened flu viruses that do not cause the flu.

Parents, whose children don't have health insurance or are only partly insured, can ask their doctor or local health department about how to get publicly purchased vaccines through the Vaccines for Children program.

The program provides vaccines to eligible children and adolescents. Doctors and clinics will administer vaccines to children who qualify and the government pays for the immunization. Children from birth through 18 years of age can receive the VFC benefit if they are on Medicaid, eligible for Medicaid, American Indian or Alaskan native, are under-insured or don't have health insurance.

Murder suspects headed to trial in former Saline athlete's death

An Ypsilanti Township man and his younger brother were ordered to stand trial on open murder charges Friday after several witnesses testified for the prosecution.

Michael Crockett, 20, and Charles Pippins, 17, will both face counts of murder and armed robbery at a pre-trial hearing next month in Washtenaw County Circuit Court.

Both were identified in court by an eyewitness as being in a parking lot near the Golfside Road and Washtenaw Avenue intersection in Ypsilanti Township when Chris King was shot in the back July 25.

Pippins is being held at the Washtenaw County Juvenile Detention Center, but is charged as an adult.

Crockett remains at the Washtenaw County Jail without bond.

Michelle King, no relation to the victim, testified that she watched King stagger across Golfside and fall several hundred feet away outside an apartment complex.

She said she heard loud pops that she believed were from a BB gun and became concerned because she was supervising more than a dozen Girl Scouts outside the nearby Kmart. She spoke with the suspects as they walked over.

Crockett, who appeared very frustrated and angry, asked to use her cell phone because he said he was just robbed. King testified.

King said she later discovered Crockett sent a text message to someone indicating he had just shot someone.

A Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputy who was first to arrive at the scene, testified that King, writhing in pain, told him he was robbed.

A handgun was found near King's body. The 20-year-old former track star at Saline High School died in the emergency room.

Both attorneys for the accused argued that no evidence of a robbery was presented, other than King's statement to police before dying, which cannot be corroborated.

Michelle King testified that she recalled seeing Crockett lifted in the air and losing his shoes. She said she believed the three were wrestling in the parking lot and just fooling around.

Judith Wright, who was stopped at the intersection for a red light, initially thought the same thing, until she said she saw two of the youths hitting one man who went to the ground. As he tried to get up and run away, she said she heard three consecutive "pop" sounds. She spoke with detectives the following day.

Tina Crockett, the mother of both suspects, pleaded guilty on Friday to being an accessory after the fact of a felony. She told Washtenaw County District Judge Julie Creal that she drove her sons around the county the day of the shooting to avoid detectives. She faces up to five years in prison at sentencing on Oct. 13.

Deputy resolves criminal case, internal investigation pending

A Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputy remains on paid administrative leave while an internal investigation into his conduct at a Lenawee County massage parlor continues, officials said.

Chad Beaudin of Tecumseh was recently ordered to serve a suspended 30-day jail sentence and probation for soliciting a female massage therapist for sexual favors in January. Lenawee County court officials said.

The 45-year department veteran pleaded no contest to a misdemeanor count of being a disorderly person last month. Prosecutors agreed to drop felony charges of aggravated indecent exposure and enticement for prostitution as part of the deal.

Beaudin, 38, was suspended after the allegations surfaced in February. He was freed on a personal recognizance bond at his arraignment and was scheduled for trial this fall.

Michael Vincent, his attorney, said they planned to mount a vigorous defense, but opted for a favorable plea deal that could enable Beaudin to maintain his career in law enforcement.

Sheriff Jerry Clayton said he could not discuss specifics of Beaudin's criminal case or of the ongoing internal probe because it involves a personnel matter. He reiterated that the department has specific protocols to address these kinds of incidents and that the administration's handling of the case is consistent with other incidents involving alleged misconduct by employees.

"He'll remain on paid leave pending the outcome of our internal investigation to determine whether any of our procedures or policies were violated," Clayton said.

Ypsilanti Township man charged after protest atop county building

Washtenaw County prosecutors have charged an Ypsilanti Township man with three misdemeanor crimes for his overnight protest atop of the Washtenaw County Administration Building.

Bill Riney, 53, is charged with attempted resisting and obstructing police, trespassing, and disturbing the peace for his antics on Labor Day. Court records show.

If convicted, Riney could face up to one year in jail for the resisting charge, up to 90 days for disturbing the peace, and up to 30 days in jail for trespassing.

Sheriff Jerry Clayton said that members of the multi-jurisdictional SWAT team brought Riney down without incident early Tuesday morning.

"It was up to them to handle the situation properly and they took him into custody," Clayton said.

Riney called police after climbing atop the roof of the building, located along Main Street in downtown Ann Arbor at about 5:30 p.m. Sept. 6. He used a ladder to get onto the building and then lifted it up.

He was equipped with food, a sleeping bag and tent and stayed on the roof of until about 6:40 a.m. the following morning.

Records show Riney stood mute to the charges and a not-guilty plea was entered on his behalf. His bond was set at 10 percent of $1,000.

A pre-trial hearing is set for Sept. 21.

Riney is a former county commissioner candidate who recently was among six candidates seeking the Democratic nomination for the 54th District seat in the Michigan House of Representatives. He received roughly 13 percent of the vote, finishing third.

He could not be reached for comment.

Suspect in indecent exposure complaints faces judge

Authorities have charged an East Tawas man with multiple counts of indecent exposure in a series of incidents around Washtenaw County since the beginning of the year.

William Richard Engle, 48, was arraigned last Friday on four counts of indecent exposure by a sexually delinquent person, court records show.

Engle was arrested in August allegedly leaving the scene of an indecent exposure complaint at a Lima Township home Aug. 17.

The charges stem from incidents in Lima and Scio townships, Dexter Village and Ann Arbor, but investigators said he is suspected in as many as 12 incidents in those areas, as well as Chelsea, Stockbridge and Webster Township.

In most cases, the suspect would drive his vehicle up a driveway to a stranger's home and wait until someone inside looked out. Upon making eye contact with people, he would turn the interior lights of his vehicle on and expose himself. Police said many of the eyewitnesses are children.

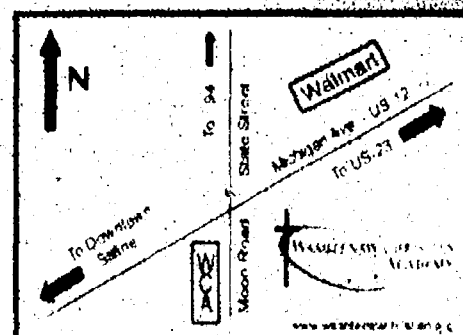

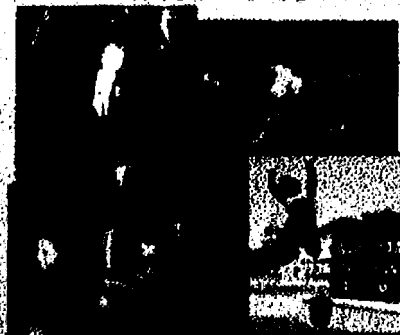

Engle, a veteran of the U.S. military, underwent a psychiatric evaluation at the Veterans Administration Hospital following his arrest, police said.

He remains at the Washtenaw County Jail on $50,000 bond pending a preliminary hearing Sept. 21, records show.

'Interwoven Inspirations' to feature local artists

Exhibit to be held Oct 1-3 at her studio

By Angela George
Guest Writer

The exhibit "Interwoven Inspirations" will feature the work of Ann Arbor weaver and spinner Mary Underwood Oct. 1, 2 and 3. Her art will again be featured during the Ann Arbor Art Walk, Oct. 22, 23 and 24.

"I'm not a traveler." That's one of the first things Underwood said in an interview in her new studio, Front Porch Textile Studio, off Traver Road in Ann Arbor.

Interestingly, Underwood has traveled to the ends of the Earth spurred by her interest in textiles and the people who make them.

"I will do anything to find textiles and fiber," she said. "I will go anywhere, endure any hardships to find them."

This "anywhere" has included four trips to Mongolia, to areas only accessible by horseback.

Underwood's passion for weaving was born in a fabric shop in Ravenna while on a walking tour in the Le Marche region of Italy with her then-husband, Brad.

After buying the last of a bolt of unique fabric, for the first time she stopped to analyze the weave structure, contemplating that someone actually wove it.

That began what has become the central passion of her life — delving into the production of yarns and hand-woven pieces, teaching the arts of spinning and weaving, and research, especially into Mongolian textiles and the weaving movement in Quebec during the 1930s and '40s.

Her own weaving began because her husband objected to the shedding of their first dog, an Elkhound, which left large clumps of hair around the house.

Underwood had a friend in Colorado who blended hair from her husky to make her own clothes. It dawned on Underwood that if she could use the hair for something practical, the shedding might be appreciated, and so she decided to learn how to spin the fur into yarn.

In 2001, Underwood took what she calls a "weave of absence" from her job as a speech pathologist in the Milan Public Schools to study weaving and textiles with Alice Griswold, who was 90 years old at the time.

Griswold was a production weaver, weaving with hand-looms and power looms, whose work was in the Smithsonian Institute and the World Trade Center.

While studying with Griswold, Underwood would launch her research into the Quebec weaving program developed in the 1930s by Oscar Beriau.

Artist Mary Underwood sits at her loom. The exhibit "Interwoven Inspirations" will feature the work of the Ann Arbor weaver and spinner Oct. 1 through 3. Her art will again be featured during the Ann Arbor Art Walk, Oct. 22 through 24.

Lois Baker, one of Griswold's friends who had traveled to Mongolia and brought back photos, activated another of Underwood's dreams.

Underwood says she has always had a deep desire to travel to Mongolia.

"I don't know where that came from," she said.

She wanted to make the 10-day trek to Burkhan Khaldan, the mountain made sacred by Chinggis Khan, by horseback, and set the goal to do it by her 50th birthday.

She arranged to make the trip, organized by Geographic Expeditions out of San Francisco, but was informed that there weren't enough people signed up for the trip.

She told the organizer that she was going to go, "even if I have to hire my own guides." Fortunately for Underwood, the trip went through the next year.

On this trip, usually undertaken by men following the route of Chinggis Kahn to the sacred mountain, Underwood spent up to 10 hours a day for seven days on the ancient breed of Mongolian horse, which is only 13 to 14 hands, but with agility and endurance that surpasses almost any other breed of horse today.

During the trip, she developed such a deep affection for the Mongolian people and their way of life that she has returned three times. She plans to keep returning until she sees all of Mongolia on horseback, taking advantage of each trip to visit her Mongolian friends and "family."

Meanwhile, she continues to import felted rugs and cashmere and baby camel hair collected by her nomad friends.

After traveling to Mongolia, Underwood began thinking of building a studio along the lines of a Mongolian ger (yurt).

She began working with architect Chuck Olewnik on plans for the building, and in 2007 builder Andy Buesser broke ground on the project.

The resulting studio, which has grown far beyond Underwood's original yurt idea to become an artistic creation itself, has been a cooperative effort between Underwood, Buesser and his crew.

Buesser's crew consists of Rick Burns, who provided sculptural details, and Bruce Dondero, who did the painting and wood finishing.

"I had decided that I was never going to work for anyone," I couldn't hug," Buesser said. "This has been the most fun I've ever had on a project. It is the apex of my career."

Underwood also enjoyed the collaboration. "Working with Andy was an amazing experience," she said. "I didn't want the construction to ever come to an end."

Underwood's plans for the new dream studio space include classes in spinning and weaving. Her first spinning classes began in the spring of 2010.

A sample of spinning classes includes Spinning Basics, Air Spinning (making light and consistent yarn), Putting on the Dog (dog hair spinning), Novelty yarns, including bouclé, Charkha spinning, Lace Yarn, and Spinning Exotic Fibers (including baby camel hair and cashmere). In 2011 she will begin offering weaving classes.

Underwood has won numerous awards for her yarns and weaving. Her handspun, hand-woven Jacob's sheep jacket, a collaboration with clothing designer Rebecca Lambers, was included in the book

"Handspun Treasures" from Rare Wools and in the Save the Sheep traveling exhibit sponsored by Interweave Press in 2000.

Her article "The House that Genghis Built" was featured in the fall 2006 issue of Spin Off, a magazine for handspunners. One of Underwood's alpaca/silk shawls and directions for making it appear in the Spring 2010 issue of Handwoven magazine.

Currently, Underwood is collaborating with photographers Jim and Angie George of Fotogypsies on an exhibit that will feature the works of weavers and potters producing works inspired by photographs.

The artists are creating their own pieces, integrating design, composition, color and/or shapes from one of two photographs chosen by the Georges.

The works will be on display along with photography by the Fotogypsies and Underwood's yarns and weavings in the exhibit "Interwoven Inspirations," Oct. 1 through 3 in Underwood's studio.

Those interested in Underwood's work also can see it again during the Ann Arbor Art Walk, Oct. 22 through 24. Participants also will have an opportunity to tour Underwood's studio.

Front Porch Textile Studio is at 1219 Traver Road in Ann Arbor. The "Interwoven Inspirations" exhibit is open from 6 to 9 p.m. Oct. 1 and 2, and from noon to 6 p.m. Oct. 3. During the Art Walk, the studio will be open from noon to 5 p.m. all three days.

Mary Underwood shows handspun yarn. She has traveled extensively and studied the art of yarnmaking. "I will do anything to find textiles and fiber," she said. "I will go anywhere, endure any hardships to find them."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Historic Chelsea buildings should be protected

I am writing on behalf of my wife, my three small children, family, friends, and myself hoping that this letter does not fall on deaf ears. We are extremely concerned over the proposed demolition of the Mack building complex, and we are hoping that with a public outcry there can be a stay of execution for a historically important part of our community.

At times it seems the demolition of historical structures is a better solution than renovation; certainly this is often the more economical option. But, I would like to hypothetically ask the community of Chelsea if they think that demolition of the Glazier home on South Street would have been superior to its renovation?

My family, friends, and I have over the last four years undertaken the renovation of this once grand structure. After two years of dismantling 50 years of neglect, filling 30 dumpsters with previous improvements, enlisting thousands of hours of help from family and friends, and spending hundreds of thousands of dollars, my family and I for two years now have had the opportunity to live in a half-completed, crooked old house.

We and many in the community now have the opportunity to enjoy old growth hardwood casework with intricate appliques, mosaic wood rug floors shimmied with the Chelsea Standard from 1899, a rounded glass turret with curved hardwood sashes, and original brass hardware that hasn't been available for 100 years.

The Daniels' showroom, Mack Building, and livery can be demolished for shortsighted gain, but the long term effect is to further diminish our community and strip it of its historic character and significance.

We moved to Chelsea because we felt the Glazier house and this town were something special that needed to be preserved. We hope that the public that has encouraged and commended our restoration efforts of both sweat and money will make their views known to the Downtown Development Authority, and that its members will change their minds and decide to agree with us that the Mack complex is also worth saving.

Friday night football not what it used to be

After Friday night's squeaker over Ypsilanti (14 to 13), our son (a senior on the team), came home. We wanted to tell him, "Nice game, you played well." But we couldn't because he never played — not once in the entire game.

He and about 18 others that we could accurately count never played yet again. Too often large numbers of the team play little or not at all on a regular basis.

This year's "pay to play" rule is more like "pay to participate" in practice only.

Cogch Bush's year-to-year promise of "seniors play" is nothing but hot air. It's more like "seniors play if and when I say so, maybe." Why are under-skilled underclassmen put on the varsity team?

They take playing time away from more capable and experienced seniors. That's why Chelsea has freshmen football and junior varsity programs (the names say it all).

The younger players are supposed to get experience and skills at these entry levels to prepare them for tougher and more intense varsity games.

Does Mr. Bush have a hidden agenda to promote some not-so-ready-for-prime-time players, instead of drawing on the talents and abilities of the seasoned athletes?

These athletes have at least two more years of playing time and have paid their dues to earn a spot on the varsity team. We would rather see the entire group lose as a team, and all share in it, with everyone having a vested interest, instead of seeing most of them standing on the sidelines for two hours watching the chosen few enjoy their status.

Had Mr. Bush capitalized on the potential talents of the other two-thirds members of the team that were standing idle instead of putting all his hopes in underclassmen, the spread on the score would probably have been greater than one point.

Let's get Friday night games back to a team sport for all the kids who signed on. Too many fine, promising athletes have quit their football careers because of the purposeful mishandling of this athletic program. Please, Chelsea High School, a program review is needed, and some positive changes should be made.

Praising the Parts Peddler

I recently patronized the Parts Peddler in Chelsea. After a couple of trips to buy a part for my truck that others couldn't get to fit on right, I went into this store just looking for a refund. I had my receipt and I was a little frustrated that the part couldn't work.

When I explained the dilemma to the guy behind the counter (Mike), he promptly processed the return, but seemed puzzled why the part couldn't work. Another guy behind the counter (Matty) also seemed perplexed. A second later Matty was on his way out to my truck to look under the hood.

The next thing I knew, Mike was out there too and the two of them had the old part off and were working on replacing it with what should have been the right part. It didn't fit. But these guys were bound and determined to figure it out, so they got another size to try.

Now, another guy was outside, determined to see my problem fixed. And they fixed it. I never expected this kind of service, but I'm so glad they helped me.

They received a customer for life now. If you've never been in there, stop by, you'll be glad you did. Chivalry is alive and well at the Parts Peddler in Chelsea. Thank you gentlemen.

Disappointed by DDA

I am disappointed by the Chelsea Downtown Development Authority's Aug. 19 decision to demolish the livery and Daniels' showroom (front and back of the former Longworth complex), and to move forward with their "Plan B" they proposed 16 months earlier — disappointed but not surprised.

In the eight months I had worked on the proposals for redevelopment of these buildings, the DDA had given me no reason to believe they would seriously consider any proposal that did not call for the removal of these historic structures. It now appears to me that the decision to demolish most of the complex was essentially made two years ago, prior to the DDA purchasing the property.

I am disappointed because I feel:

- These buildings add to the historic fabric, character and charm of Chelsea, and because it is core to the DDA's mission to protect and enhance Chelsea's historic character.

- Our proposal was financially viable, despite the DDA contention to the contrary.

- Our proposal offers the best financial outcome for the taxpayers of Chelsea: A small loss to the DDA on the sale of the property would be offset by higher property taxes (payback to the city as a whole within five years) versus keeping the property in the hands of the DDA, forcing spending of additional public funds which may never be fully recaptured.

- Our proposal offers the most environmentally responsible approach to redevelopment of the site; Cap and contain contaminants, and reuse the structures rather than tossing them in a landfill.

- The proposed building uses complement the existing downtown: Apartments with a rooftop patio and indoor parking in the livery; combination of art, music, local food, downtown information, and historic display (and office for Chelsea Area Historical Society) in the Daniels' showroom addition and Mack Building.

- Our proposal would capitalize on the support of the more than 700 community members that signed a petition to save the buildings, rather than facing continued public disapproval as will be the case with the DDA's current plan.

- Our proposal maintains high density redevelopment suitable for downtown, while addressing parking for the complex and adjacent neighbors, including the First Congregational Church of Chelsea.

- The DDA seemed to discount the fact that our proposal was assembled by a group of folks that are engaged full time in the design and construction industry.

- The potential developers with whom we discussed the project were discouraged more by the attitude of the DDA than by the complexity of the construction or financing.

- The DDA exercise to issue a request for proposals for possible sale and redevelopment was less than sincere, and that the decision to demolish was made more than a year before the RFP was issued.

- The DDA made no effort to open meaningful dialogue with our group, to discuss differences of opinion and to hammer out a meaningful compromise.

Again, I am disappointed but not surprised. Beyond all that, I'm disappointed that I was not able to bring the often vocal "historical preservation" folks together with the well-intentioned but at times inflexible DDA in a productive way that would build the community, rather than divide it, and would result in a project of which we all can be proud.

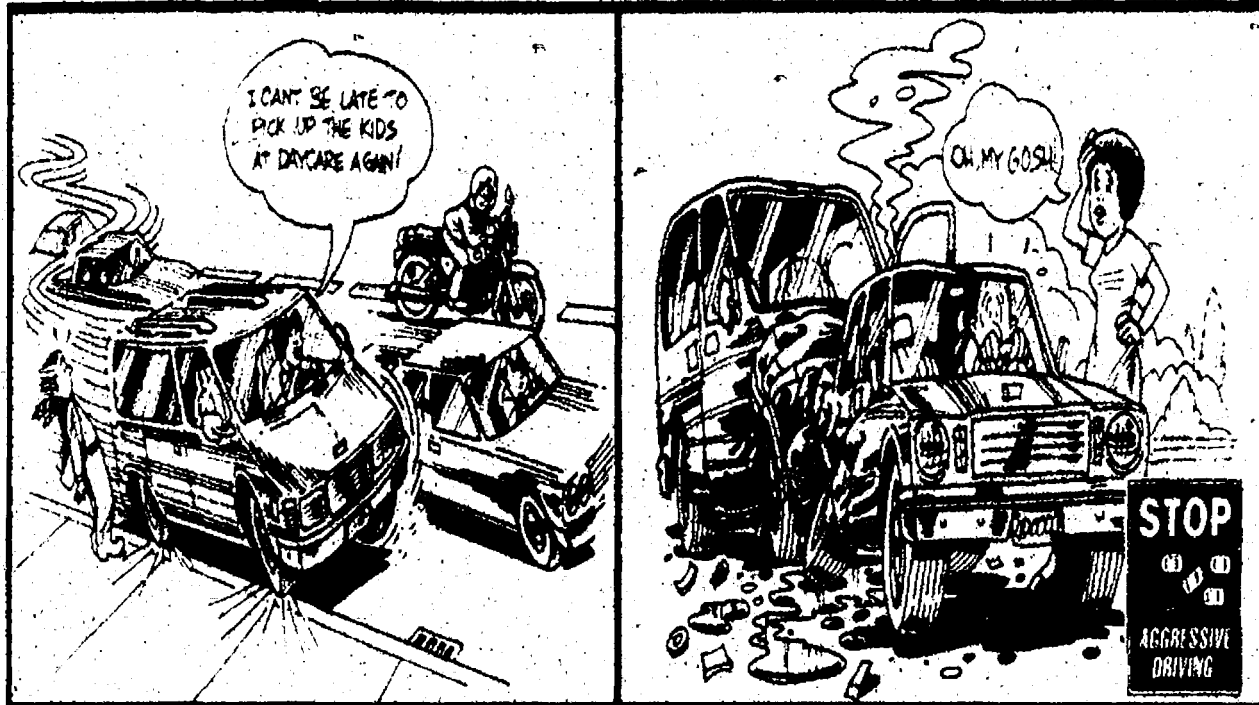

I am disappointed, but not discouraged. I believe in building meaningful personal relationships that build community and construction projects that enhance the community in a holistic way. My hope is that the DDA embrace this philosophy, reconsiders their actions, and takes corrective action immediately before they do irreparable damage to both.

Surprise me.

Chelsea State Bank to celebrate Dexter anniversary

Chelsea State Bank will celebrate the 10th anniversary of its Dexter banking center this month. Activities are planned for the entire community to take part in the celebration.

Chelsea State Bank opened its third full-service banking center at 7101 Dexter-Ann Arbor Road in Dexter 10 years ago.

Customers can appreciate the facility's welcoming lobby, drive-thru lanes, drive-thru ATM, and convenient location near shopping centers and local offices.

A weeklong anniversary celebration will take place Sept. 27 to Oct. 2. Refreshments will be served in the lobby during business hours with the grand celebration taking place on Oct. 2.

"This celebration is a small way for us to say 'thank you' for allowing us to serve the Dexter community."

— DAVID KLUMPP
Branch Manager

"Our Dexter office is located on the major thoroughfare in our community. Our customers appreciate the convenience and the expert service we provide. We hope our customers and the public will join us in the fun as we celebrate 10 years in Dexter."

Chelsea State Bank has developed a reputation for its customer-focused and friendly staff.

"The professionals serving in our Dexter office continue to build on our commitment to extraordinary customer service," Klumpp said. "This celebration is a small way for us to say 'thank you' for allowing us to serve the Dexter community." Chelsea State Bank is a full service financial institution with offices in Chelsea and Dexter. The bank was formed over 100 years ago by local business and civic leaders to provide timely financial solutions to individuals, families, and businesses in the community.

For more information, visit www.csbonline.com or call the bank at 1-734-426-6000.

Teen joins Franciscan group

Chelsea resident Rachel Severin, daughter of Mary Lou and John Severin, has been commissioned as a Cap Corps volunteer.

Cap Corps is a Franciscan Capuchin volunteer ministry, geared to college students and graduates, who wish to emulate the example of St. Francis of Assisi and serve the poor and disenfranchised.

Severin, a recent graduate of the University of Michigan with a degree in comparative literature and a minor in physics, will be providing service in Detroit to the Capuchin Soup Kitchen's Earthworks Urban Farm, an organic farm that produces vegetables for Detroit's hungry. Severin will be involved in the daily operations of the farm and apiaries, as well as helping with youth outreach programs.

"I chose this experience because of the Capuchin emphasis on social justice and peace ministries," Severin said. "I find the Franciscan philosophy of contemplation and engagement to be very powerful. I was particularly drawn to the strong focus on respect and reverence for our environment and our communities.

"I'm looking forward to learning so much from the people around me this year."

The Capuchins are an international community of friars modeling themselves after St. Francis of Assisi. The brothers of the Capuchin Province of St.

Joseph, headquartered in Detroit, serve in a variety of ministries including social service, schools, chaplaincy, retreat houses and parishes in Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Montana, Minnesota, New Mexico, Arizona, California, Nicaragua, and Panama.

Established at Mt. Calvary Wisconsin in 1857, there are currently 184 members in the St. Joseph province.

LOCAL POLICE BLOTTER

Burglary

On Sept. 10, deputies assigned to Scio Township responded to the 6000 block of Jackson Avenue for a burglary complaint. The deputies discovered the suspect(s) broke the front security light, and then proceeded to cut power to the building by tampering with the meter boxes and switching a breaker off. The suspect(s) then used an unknown object to smash out the front window to gain entry. The time of occurrence was from 1 to 7 a.m. on Sept. 10. An unknown amount of cash, television set, and laptop computer were taken. There is no suspect information at this time.

Larceny

On Sept. 10, deputies assigned to Scio Township responded to the 3000 block of Jackson Avenue for a larceny from automobile complaint. The deputies discovered the suspect(s) removed the lock from the driver's door to gain entry. The time of occurrence was from 7 p.m. on Sept. 9 to 8 a.m. on Sept. 10. A GPS system and cellular phone cord were taken. There is no suspect information at this time.

Burglary

On Sept. 10, deputies assigned to Scio Township responded to the 100 block of Jackson Industrial Drive for a burglary complaint. The deputies discovered the suspect(s) had removed the glass panel from the front door to gain entry. The time of occurrence was from 1 to 7 a.m. on Sept. 10. An unknown number of vacuums and vacuum accessories were taken. There is no suspect information at this time.

Larceny

On Sept. 11, deputies assigned to Scio Township responded to the 2000 block of Daleview Drive for a larceny from automobile complaint.

The deputies discovered the suspect(s) opened an unlocked vehicle door to gain entry. The time of occurrence was from 10:30 p.m. on Sept. 10 to 9:40 a.m. on Sept. 11. An unknown amount of cash, wallet, and wristwatch were taken. There is no suspect information at this time.

DEXTER

Retail fraud

An individual reported an alleged retail fraud complaint in the 8100 block of Main Street in Dexter Village on Sept. 8. The actual fraud was estimated to have occurred on Aug. 22. The incident involved a 17-year-old girl, who resides in the Dexter area. She was identified and contacted by police after the report. An agreement was worked out between the business and the girl, after which she was issued a trespass notice at the business owner's request.

OWI

Deputies spotted a speeding vehicle traveling northbound on Dexter-Pinckney Road at 1:30 p.m. Sept. 11. Deputies initiated a traffic stop of a 1995 Saturn. The 42-year-old Chelsea resident was found operating the vehicle under the influence of intoxicants. He was arrested and taken to the county jail without incident. The case has been forwarded to the county prosecutor's office for review.

Property damage

Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputies responded to a reported malicious destruction of property complaint that occurred at the corner of North Territorial and Mast roads at 5 a.m. Sept. 11. Deputies met with the individual who reported the incident. She was driving eastbound on North Territorial Road approaching Mast Road in her 2002 Chevy Impala. The driver of another vehicle traveling in the opposite direction allegedly threw an unknown object that struck the woman's vehicle as the two vehicles passed each other. Significant damage to the hood of the Impala was sustained. The suspect's vehicle is described as a light colored sedan.

Suspicious Vehicle

A resident in the 9000 block of Merrill Road at about noon on Sept. 8 reported a blue two-door Saturn as "suspicious." The homeowner observed the vehicle pull into his driveway and then pull back out and drive away from the vantage point of his garage. Deputies consider the report the beginning of an ongoing investigation and are asking any residents who observe suspicious vehicles or individuals to report it immediately.

Larceny

A resident of Castleton Court called deputies on Sept. 8 to report an alleged larceny from an automobile. Sometime between Sept. 4 and Sept. 5, an unknown person(s) entered an unlocked vehicle during night hours. The owner reported a wallet and cell phone missing from the vehicle.

Hit-and-run

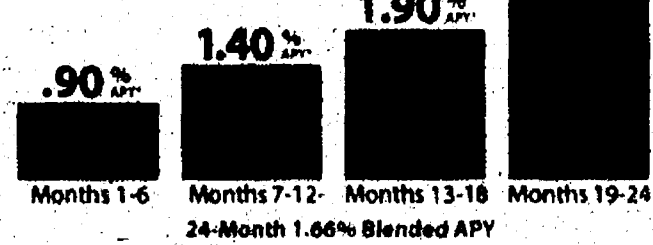

A hit-and-run accident happened in the 2400 block of Dongara Drive Sept. 4 sometime between noon and 6 p.m. An unknown vehicle struck a parked 2007 Chrysler van causing damage to the side mirror.

why we put dog poop in plastic baggies

- Our neighbors like us to.
- It makes our dogs feel important.
- It keeps the poop from being washed into the storm drains.

Select them all, and it's "two paws up" for you!

Truth is, most of us pick up after our dogs as a courtesy to our neighbors. Plus it makes that backyard barbecue all the more enjoyable.

But there's another important reason to pick up after your pet waste. When pet waste is left behind, it washes into storm drains and ditches. From there, it heads straight to your local river. No filters, no cleansing. Swimming, anyone?

Help protect water quality. Stoop, scoop, and drop those little baggies in the trash. Then give yourself a nice pat... You deserve it.

Small actions make a BIG difference!

CLASS REUNION

Nine classmates of the Dexter High School Class of 1961 experienced the cruise of a lifetime. They discovered the frontier towns of Ketchikan, Alaska; Juneau, Alaska; Skagway, Alaska; and Prince Rupert, British Columbia, enjoying seven days of sumptuous dining aboard the Norwegian Cruiseline. This was the beginning of their yearlong celebration. In February they are planning a trip to Arizona, and in May a float in the Dexter Memorial Day parade. They will gather for their 50th class reunion in June 2011. Pictured in the photo are: (back row) Faye and Jack Wisely, and Patrice Murdock. (Front row) Gilbert and Marge Campbell, and Hugh and Susan Mosher. Absent from the photo was Herb and Margarette Hammond.

SENIOR EVENTS

Senior swimming returns to high school

Senior swim sessions are being held at Dexter High School on Monday, Wednesday, and Friday mornings at 8:30 a.m. Two lanes are open for lap swimming. This schedule will run through Nov. 24. Note the change of days.

Exercise

Elizabeth Polk has returned to her regular schedule of exercise at the Dexter Senior Center. This session is free again beginning Sept. 17, thanks to Washtenaw Community College, and will run through Nov. 19.

Nurses Foot Care

Ava Passino of Nurses Foot Care Services will be at the Dexter Senior Center on Sept. 22 to provide preventive, basic foot care. All members of the Dexter Senior Center receive $5 off their first appointment.

The fee for this service is $34. You can make an appointment by calling 1-734-878-7330.

Medicare Questions

A volunteer is currently available at the Dexter Senior Center every Wednesday morning from 10 a.m. to noon. She will answer questions regarding Medicare. Appointments can be made by calling 426-7737.

You can also drop in during those hours, but appointments are recommended.

Yoga

Patty Anne Hart will offer a yoga class at 9 a.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. The class lasts one hour. Beginning Sept. 20, through Oct. 25, the six-week yoga session will take place from 9 to 10 a.m. This class costs $36 for members and $48 for non-members. A minimum of 10 participants is needed to hold the class.

STRAIGHT FACTS

In the Sept. 9 editions of the Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader, the article "Henes to help with fire facility," (page 13-A) should have said Village President Shawn Keough said that the earliest that a fire facility project could begin is 2017. Keough has said that the village cannot afford the new station at the present time. It should wait until the village's current general obligation bond is paid off, because then voters can decide whether to issue a new bond to pay for a new station without according the tax structure of the village.

Tecumseh Players to produce 'Sam and Laura'

This year marks the 100th anniversary of the death of Samuel L. Clemens, known by his pen name as Mark Twain. He has been called America's greatest writer. To commemorate the centennial of his death, the Tecumseh Players will present "Sam and Laura," a new play by Ron Powers.

The production is set 7:30 p.m. Oct. 1 and 2, and 3 p.m. Oct. 3 at the Tecumseh Center for the Arts, 400 N. Maumee St., in Tecumseh.

The performance comes just two months before the publication of the first volume of Twain's autobiography. He stipulated that it not be published until 100 years after his death.

"Sam and Laura" is a play based on a three-day romance between Laura Wright and Samuel Clemens. Sam was a 22-year-old steamboat pilot when he met 14-year-old Laura Wright on the New Orleans riverfront before the Civil War. She was traveling with her uncle downriver from her Missouri farm. Sam's boat put into a slip alongside Laura's and they soon spotted one another. While the romance was brief and chaste, it left a life-long imprint on both of them.

In 1925, Laura Wright Dake disclosed this romance to a young man by the name of C.O. Byrd. Clemens never forgot Laura and she showed Byrd the letters Sam wrote to her over the years. He wrote to her, he visited her Missouri farmhouse, and she visited him in a recurring dream throughout his life.

"My Platonic Sweetheart," written in 1898, but not published until after his death in 1910, describes the dream visits and the effect they had on him. Becky Thatcher, in "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," is based on her. Laura made Byrd promise to destroy the letters after she died. She died in 1932 and Byrd kept his promise.

Author Ron Powers was born in Hannibal, Mo., as was Samuel Clemens. He is a Pulitzer Prize-winning and Emmy Award-winning writer and critic. He became fascinated with this story and wrote the play to show a different side of Clemens and to commemorate the centennial of his death. This year is also the 175th anniversary of Clemens' birth and the 125th anniversary of the American publication of "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn."

For more information on the author and his research, visit the website at www.samandlauraplay.com.

Tickets are $14 for adults, $12 for seniors and students, and $10 per person for groups of 10 or more. They are available online from the Tecumseh Center for the Arts at www.thetca.org or by calling 1-517-423-6617. Box office hours are from noon to 5 p.m., Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday. Call now to reserve your seat.

The Tecumseh Players have been entertaining audiences in the Tecumseh area for 50 years.

Theater earns Community Spirit Award

Ann Arbor Civic Theatre was presented with the Jim Posante Community Spirit Award at the ninth annual Wilde Awards Sept. 1.

The award was given for the theater's production of "The Laramie Project," in recognition of the efforts made and special events held in conjunction with the production to promote tolerance, awareness and acceptance.

Presenter Keith Orr cited the theater's efforts to promote peaceful counter-protests to a threatened protest by Fred Phelps' Westboro Baptist Church, and for a special benefit preview of "The Laramie Project" at Ann Arbor's Sh. Aut Cabaret.

The Wilde Awards, sponsored by Between The Lines, Michigan's weekly newspaper serving the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and allied communities. EncoreMichigan.com and Comerica.com were established in 2002 to honor the excellent work produced by Michigan's professional theaters. This is the first time a Wilde Award was presented to a community theater.

"Given Jim Posante's long involvement with Civic Theatre in the 1970s and '80s, this award is especially meaningful," says Ann Arbor Civic Theatre program director Cassie Mann. "The Laramie Project was a labor of love for so many people involved with the production, and Keith Orr and Martin Contreras at Aut Bar were incredibly helpful and supportive of our outreach program. Jan Stevenson at Between The Lines invited us to the awards ceremony, and Civic managing director Suzi Peterson and I attended and had a great time. The event is so much fun."

Ann Arbor Civic Theatre, founded in 1929, provides opportunities for all members of the community to participate in and attend quality theater productions. For more information about the theater, visit www.a2ct.org or call 971-2228.

'Kiss Me Kate' coming to Canton

Theater aficionados, brush up your Shakespeare. Cole Porter is coming to the Village Theater Sept. 17 through 19 and Sept. 24 through 26 with his musical, "Kiss Me, Kate."

It's the latest presentation from the Spotlight Players. Memorable songs by this classic American composer include "Wonderbar," "So in Love," "Always True to You in My Fashion," "Too Darn Hot" and "Brush Up Your Shakespeare." Music and Lyrics are by Cole Porter, and the book is by Sam and Bella Spewack.

"Kiss Me, Kate," which won Tony awards when it debuted in 1948 and when it was revived in 2000, tells the story of Fred (Scott Behrens) and Lilli (Susan Behrens), a once married pair of actors now rehearsing Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew."

When flowers from Fred are sent to the wrong amour, fireworks abound. As always, the show must go on and it does with laughs galore, wonderful songs and a romantic outcome.

"Cole Porter is one of those songwriters whose work you know without realizing it."

The Spotlight Players will perform the Tony Award winning "Kiss Me, Kate" this weekend at the Village Theater in Canton.

He's just everywhere, and his magnificent lyrical powers are in full command for this, his most successful musical. Whether quipping on the Bard or, fittingly, commenting on the heat, Porter manages to be sophisticated, affectionate and biting all at once," said director Barbara Bloom in a news release.

"Kiss Me Kate" is a family show that will appeal to older youth with its Shakespearean tumb and tone. It is a show within a show, where the play onstage parallels the drama backstage."

The cast includes Ypsilanti residents Beverly Monty as Bar Maid/Ensemble and Kara Cardella as Soloist/Ensemble, as well as Robin Hoover of Willis as Ensemble.

Performances are 8 p.m. and 2 p.m. on various days at the Village Theater at Cherry Hill, 50400 Cherry Hill Road in Canton.

Tickets may be ordered by phone at the Village Theater Box Office at 1-734-394-5300 or 1-734-394-5460 or online at www.spotlightplayersmi.org. Cost is $18 for adults, $16 for seniors and students.

Concert benefits CCA events, classes

Local virtuoso jazz/rock band Dave Sharp's Secret Seven will play a benefit concert for the Chelsea Center for the Arts on Sept. 18 in the barn at Rancho Tranquillo, 11300 Island Lake Road in Dexter Township.

Parking is available next door at Ruhlig's Farm Market. Music starts at 7:30 p.m. with a bonfire to follow at 10 p.m. All ages are welcome. Non-alcoholic beverages and snacks will be available.

Come support the CCA and hear great music in an historic barn located on a family farm. Tax deductible contributions of $10 to $20 per person and $15 to $25 per family is appreciated.

Dave Sharp's Secret Seven is "world jazz for the jazz world," transcending musical, national and ethnic boundaries by re-interpreting, not fusing, influences from Africa, Asia, the Latin world, Blue Note Jazz, and New Orleans.

Their music brings stunning energy to instrumental jazz, with original tunes like "Africano" (Afro-Beat), "Skeleton Key" (Rumba) and "Chrispy Underground" (New Orleans Funk).

Also joining the Secret Seven is Alex Anest. Anest is a guitar, lap steel, and mandolin instructor at the Chelsea Center for the Arts.

Trail plans move forward

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

The Village of Dexter recently signed off on construction of the first portion of the Border-to-Border Trail—a 35-mile non-motorized path that will span the Huron River throughout Washtenaw County and beyond when completed.

The first phase of the project includes the Westridge Connector that will segue into the trail from the village's northeast corner. The trail will flow through Warrior Creek Park beneath a railroad bridge and then span another 100 feet leading into an observation deck with seating and bicycle stands so riders can stop for a brief repose.

The Washtenaw County Parks Department is expected to receive approval for the project from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and Environment in time for commencement of construction in the fall.

The major concern discussed at the village council's meeting on Aug. 24 involved a roof structure for the part of the trail that goes under the railroad. That portion of the 600-foot phase could be roofed with wood, steel or some other option, which would determine the length of the screening.

Another concern is cost. The steel roofing option, which came about when the width of the boardwalk was reduced to mitigate the impact on the natural features in Dexter's parks, would cost an additional $45,000 that the county has not committed to funding yet.

"How can we make it worth $45,000 and where is the $45,000 coming from?" council trustee Ray Tell asked.

Tell also asked if the Norfolk Southern Railroad Company decided that the trail didn't

Dexter library wraps up successful summer

On Aug. 16, the Dexter District Library wrapped up another successful summer reading program, drawing a record number of children to the library. This summer almost 1,200 Dexter area children and teens participated in the programs "Make a Splash - Read!" and "Make Waves at Your Library," which encouraged children to continue reading throughout the summer.

When the program began in June, elementary and middle school children set a goal for the number of books or amount of time they would read over the summer while teenagers were asked to complete a reading card based on the amount of time spent reading.

Every week children visited the library to record their progress and received prizes to continue with the program. All kids and teens that met their final reading goal in August received a plastic book bag filled with an assortment of prizes, candy and gift certificates. As always, the focus of the program was to encourage children to read for fun and enjoyment while retaining their reading skills throughout the summer.

Once again, the library hosted several entertaining and educational programs as well as special library events throughout the summer. These events provided families with fun, educational entertainment coupled with a message to keep reading. Performing at the library this summer were: Chris Linn's "Cool Tricks and Funny Stuff" comedy and magic show, Critchlow Alligator Sanctuary, ventriloquist Vikki Gasko, storyteller La'Ron Williams, Lori Fithian's "Drummmunity" totally hands-on music program, Leslie Science and Nature Center's "Hunters of the Sky," and local beekeeper Dr. Peter Sutherland. Additional events included drop-in storytimes, "Super Stories" book group for kids in kindergarten through second grade, "Book Snackers" book discussion group for kids in grades three to five, drop-in craft days, Family Movie and Popcorn Nights, and an ice cream social with Coffee House Creamery held at the Dexter Farmers' Market. The final summer reading program wrap-up party in August brought Bev Meyer's "The Music Lady" performance for children, while teens enjoyed a sundae making party on the lower level.

Teens were treated this year to many new programs targeted just for them: Drop-In Swing Dancing, Super Science Day with the Hands On Museum, Murder Mystery Night, cake sculpting and tasting with Sweet Heather Ann, gaming with Vault of Midnight, and pizza making with Cottage Inn, all enjoyed tremendous success this summer.

Several favorite programs returned this summer, especially for teens. Teen Movie and Popcorn Night, Drop-In Wii Sports and Rock Band, Drop-In Duct Tape, and the Teen Actor Boot Camp with the Purple Rose Theatre had terrific participation this year.

Throughout the program, the library held weekly prize drawings. Several area businesses and civic organizations contributed money, incentive prizes and gift certificates to the program this year. Their generosity allowed the library to hold these special drawings for prizes as an additional incentive for children to keep reading. Additionally, the library held a grand prize drawing at the conclusion of the summer reading program. All children and teens that met their summer reading goals entered their reading records into the drawings and names were selected at random.

This year 144 winners received prizes in the grand prize drawing. The grand prize winners and their prizes are as follows:

'Make Waves at Your Library'

This year 80 teens completed their teen records and were entered into the final drawing. The lucky names drawn were:

- Zeke Bass and Julie Pastorino: Four tickets to a Detroit Tigers baseball game.

BULLETIN BOARD

Around Town with Linda

"Around Town with Linda" will feature Cal Bauer, Chelsea High School athlete, musician, and volunteer. "Around Town with Linda" features interviews conducted by the local host Linda Meloche.

The show airs daily on Channel 18 at 7:30 a.m., noon, 7:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m.

A new interview begins every Thursday evening and runs for a week. The guests all live or work in Chelsea, and everyone connected with the show is a volunteer.

Previous shows are available to view at McKune Memorial Library.

Ministerial Message:

The Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader are soliciting columns from all religious leaders of any denomination in our communities for the "Ministerial Message" section. The column should be limited to 500 words or less and include your name, contact information and a headshot photo in jpg format. The deadline for the column is Friday for the following week's edition. E-mail dla1@heritage.com for more information.

Sign up e-newsletter:

Sign up for The Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader's e-newsletter to get the latest headlines delivered directly to your e-mail box, as well as breaking news and community alerts. Sign up on the newspaper's home page at www.heritage.com.

Farmers' market

Join us at the Chelsea Farmers' Market on Saturdays and keep it local. The market is located on the south side of Park Street and is open from 8 a.m. until noon. We offer produce, plants, flowers, baked goods, and handcrafted items from jewelry to furniture. There will be live entertainment every Saturday through the summer. Call 1-734-475-1145 with any questions, or visit the market's website at www.chelseafarmersmkt.org.

Golf outing

The Washtenaw County Hazmat Team will host its annual golf fundraiser Sept. 27, at Barton Hills Country Club in Ann Arbor. For more information, contact Donald Dettling at 1-734-216-4002.

Friends book sale

The Friends of the Dexter District Library will hold a used book sale from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Oct. 3 in the Dexter District Library lower level. The library is located at 3255 Alpine St. in Dexter. Prices range from 25 cents to $2. Come and stock up on your favorite authors. All proceeds benefit the library.

CACC Business After Hours

This free networking event will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Sept. 23 at the Oak Tree Shopping Center in Chelsea. It will be hosted by the Edward Jones Office of Ed McClellan, Hearts Community Service and Bliss Resale Shop of Nancy Harris, and True North Jerky Company and Bearclaw Coffee shop of Phil and Jennifer Tolliver.

Artist exhibit

"Dream Games" by Susan Aaron-Taylor will be featured at the River Gallery in Chelsea on Sept. 18 through Oct. 30. A reception will take place Sept. 18, from 5 to 8 p.m. at the River Gallery.

Self Defense Seminar

Commando Krav Maga in Chelsea will hold a free self-defense seminar for women at 10 a.m. Sept. 19. The course will demonstrate situational awareness, pre-contact cues, ground survival and breaking of chokes. Commando Krav Maga is located at 14495 N. Territorial Road.

To reserve a spot, e-mail ckmchelsea@gmail.com or call Mike Trester at 1-734-903-5003.

Dexter Daze T-shirts

There are still 2010 Dexter Daze T-shirts available at the Dexter Card and Gift Shop in adult sizes of medium, large, extra large and 2X, and children's sizes of small and medium for a cost of $5 per shirt.

Cookbook sale

The Dexter American Legion Auxiliary 557 has collected the best recipes from group members, family, and friends and compiled them into a keepsake cookbook.

Cookbooks can be purchased from any member of the American Legion for $10. The cookbook contains 350 recipes. Proceeds benefit military care packages and community service projects.

For more information call Christine Gattward at 426-2062.

Cookbooks are also available at the Dexter Card and Gift Shop and the Dexter Pharmacy.

Donations sought for FIA

Did you know Faith in Action stays open until 7 p.m. on Wednesday evenings to accept donations and provide service? They now need clothing for colder weather months and can especially use children's items. Also always useful are household items such as bedding, dishes and other housewares.

Faith in Action has served the emergency needs of Chelsea and Dexter for 30 years, focusing on food, utility shut off prevention, eviction prevention, and clothing needs. Call 475-3305 with questions. Faith in Action is open Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Veterans meeting

The area chapter of Veterans For Peace will hold a regional meeting at 10 a.m. Sept. 18 at Bear Claw Coffee, 12855 East Old US-12, just east of Chelsea and near I-94, Exit 162. The meeting is open to anyone interested in peace and justice issues, with a special invitation to military veterans. For more information, call 1-734-487-9058 or visit www.vfp92.org.

Spanish classes

Continuing with the "Art on the Lake Series," Peace Lutheran Church at 8250 Jackson Road in Ann Arbor will offer a conversational Spanish course. The classes will center on learning conversational Spanish and will also cover some history, cultural and geographical aspects of the Spanish speaking countries.

Call Peace Lutheran Church at 1-734-424-0899 for additional information.

To have an item placed on the bulletin board, e-mail information to Daniel.Lav@heritage.com by 5 p.m. Friday for the following week's edition.

need the roof under the bridge within its right-of-way for liability purposes if the project cost could be reduced by $45,000.

Community Development Manager Allison Bishop has sent a letter to the railroad asking for an exemption based on the fact that Parker Mill and other features within or near the easement weren't required to include roofs for safety purposes.

The covered trail section is located 2 feet closer to the outside wall of the railroad arch bridge putting it the maximum distance from it as possible and affording the minimum amount of headroom. The boardwalk must also be kept above the 100-year flood elevation required by the MDNRE, which further restricts the design.

The council was told that it would save $15,000 at best if the railroad removes the screening requirement altogether.

One concern of the steel roof is visual impact and maintenance costs associated with wood material.

The approved design also calls for a reduced bridge span from 90 to 82 feet and a lower boardwalk based on water elevation, the railroad arch and the Warrior Creek bank height, as well as maximizing the head clearance for boaters under the bridge to 5.64 feet.

Officials expect these portions of the trail to be completed by next summer.

There is another phase of the project planned that will connect the Huron-Clinton Metropark and a phase after that to connect Hudson Mills Metropark to North Territorial Road.

TRI-ATHLETE

Story by Terry Jacoby
Photos by Burrill Strong

Patrick Roberts stops dead in his tracks and flashes a funny look. "Video," he asks. "We are doing an interview on video? Wow. I'm going to have to get used to that."

There are a lot of things Roberts will have to get used to this year. Now a senior, the Chelsea Bulldog will not only be in front of a camera, but in the spotlight for what promises to be an exciting year of athletics at Chelsea High School.

For Roberts, the attention and dedication and devotion and commitment will all be times three. If not the clear cut best player, then Roberts is certainly among them, whether on the soccer pitch, basketball court or baseball field.

He's a talented athlete. Excellent student. Outstanding young man. But he does have trouble with one thing: Talking about himself - another thing he better get used to.

Patrick Roberts is a tough interview. The questions are usually longer than the answers. He smiles a lot. Agrees with almost everything. And while he certainly appreciates the attention and even understands it, he clearly prefers playing over talking about playing.

The three sports he excels in all have one thing in common. They are team sports. And Patrick Roberts is a team player - sometimes to a fault. But we'll get to that later.

He "matter of factly" states the obvious on why he plays three sports instead of focusing on just one.

"Yeah, I like them all," he says with that crooked smile, a frequent part of his straight-forward personality. "I like playing for school teams, too. I like them all equally. It seems I come out of every season liking that sport even more."

Roberts wasn't any different than most young kids growing up in Chelsea. And sports quickly became a big part of his life.

"At a really young age I started playing all the sports," he said. "I attribute it a lot to my parents and they gave me the opportunity to play whatever sport I wanted to and I picked the ones I liked. And I've just stuck with them ever since."

The summer is the most challenging time of the year for Roberts. You see, in the fall he plays soccer. In the winter he plays basketball. And in the spring he plays baseball. He plays whatever sport the calendar tells him to play.

But the summer is a different story. The baseball coach wants him to play travel baseball. The basketball coach suggests an AAU team. And the soccer coach has a few ideas of his own. They all have good intentions, strong arguments and they all make sense. And if you know Roberts, he probably agreed with each one of them and then strolled out of the room and back home to be with his family.

"I am trying to juggle everything around and I like to play a little bit of basketball and practice with some of my teammates on the weekends," he says. "We are trying to get some players together for a league in Brighton just to help us prepare for the upcoming season."

"During the summer I try to keep my focus on all the sports. I don't really prefer one over the other. Whatever season I am in at the time I just try and channel all my energy into that sport."

Basketball coach Robin Raymond has thought about how good his star guard would be if he dedicated himself to just basketball. He could see Roberts shooting 500 jump shots a day in the summer and going to every open gym he could find. Playing basketball year-round would have made Roberts a very special player heading into his senior year.

The thing is though, he already is a very special player. He's a special

Cross Country Bulldogs off and running

By Terry Jacoby

The Chelsea boys' cross country team coasted to a second-place finish last Wednesday at the nine-team Springport Invitational. The Bulldogs finished with 72 points, 11 behind first-place finisher Napoleon and 11 points ahead of Milan.

"A very much improved performance from a week ago," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager. "In the varsity race, our one through five runners all earned medals and competed hard. The surprise of the day was Austin Horn, who took 2 plus minutes off his best ever. It was encouraging to watch all the first-year guys improve."

August Pappas took first overall with a time of 16 minutes, 05 seconds. Bryce Bradley took third overall with a time of 16:39.

"August and Bryce ran well up front, pushing hard by themselves in spite of the wind," Swager said.

Horn was 20th with a time of 18:43. Avery Osentoski was 23rd (18:55). Charlie Miller was 25th (18:56) and Sean Owsley 41st (19:53).

Osentoski and Miller had life-time bests.

"We worked as a team with moving up during the second mile," Swager said. "With few exceptions, we took it to the competition in the middle mile. A second-place trophy is a fine accomplishment for us this early. I do believe we will continue to see improvement throughout the ranks as the season progresses."

Speaking of improvement, 12 members of the JV team recorded season-best times.

Austin Gray led the way with an eighth-place finish in 19:43.

Earlier in the month, the Bulldogs took fifth at the competitive 10-team Northville Mustang Invitational. Chelsea finished with 142 points. Northville took first with 48 points with Livonia Stevenson second (57), Dearborn Divine Child third (99) and Livonia Churchill fourth (95).

Pappas took first overall with a time of 16:26, almost a minute better than the second-place finisher. Bradley was fourth (17:29). Owsley 53rd (21:11). Mark Gilbert 73rd (24:47). Rob Everard 79th (26:33) and Sam Porter 83rd (32:04).

"This is our first year on a very tough and slow course," Swager said. "The heat sapped any chance of a fast effort. Still, a few guys ran solid efforts."

Osentoski earned the lone medal in the freshman-sophomore race.

Athletes of the Week

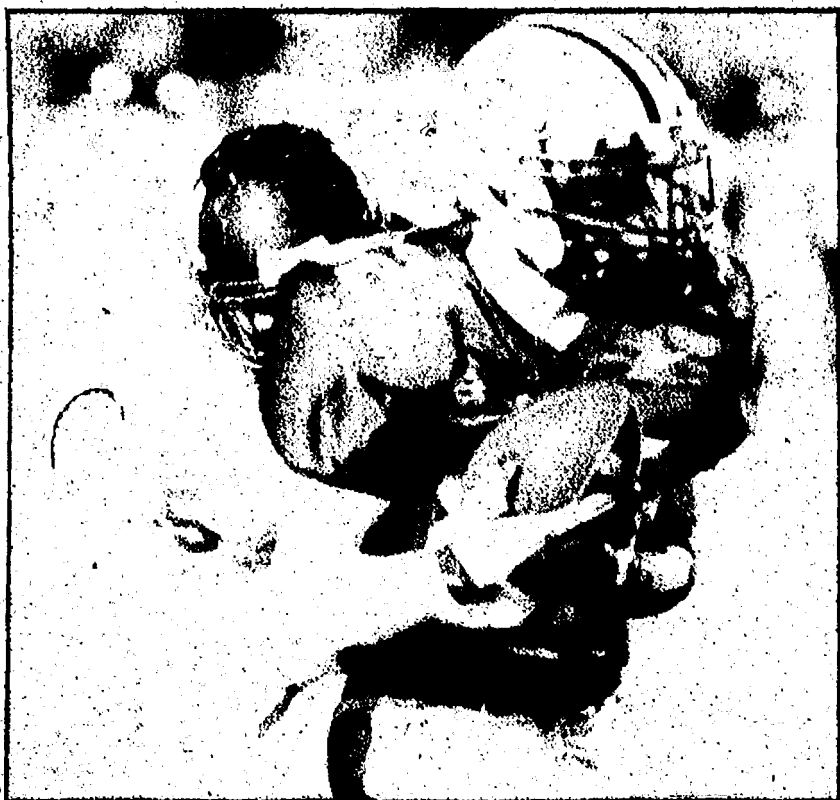

Austin Daugherty, Dexter

Co-captain Austin Daugherty (right) set a Dexter school record when he scored nine goals in the Dreadnaughts' game against Saline at the Saline-Meijer Invitational Tournament on Saturday. He is the first Dexter player to score nine goals in one game. Daugherty scored a personal-best 19 goals in the tournament in which Dexter finished second.

McKenna Erkfriz, Manchester

The sophomore was a leader in the front row for the Manchester varsity volleyball team last week. Erkfriz delivered a team-high six kills for the Flying Dutch in the Cascades Conference opener Sept. 8 against Michigan Center. She followed by blasting 26 kills and 12 blocks Sept. 11 in helping the Dutch advance to the semifinals of the Clinton Tournament.

Nick Ostrander, Saline

Saline senior wide receiver Nick Ostrander caught two passes for a team-high 58 yards, including a 50-yard touchdown catch in the Hornets' 17-7 win over Southeastern Conference Red Division rival Ann Arbor Pioneer last Friday.

Marquez Gollman, Ypsilanti

Ypsilanti's Marquez Gollman had three receptions for 71 yards and a touchdown in the 14-13 loss to Chelsea on Friday night.

Denard Robinson led the Wolverines on a game-winning touchdown drive at South Bend.

U-M formula: 4 downs + 4 minutes = success

During our Journal-Register's Live Michigan Football Chat (feel free to join us every Saturday), I suggested that if Notre Dame scored in the fourth quarter that it wouldn't be over for the Wolverines. OK. I more than just suggested it.

With Michigan leading 21-17 and the Fighting Irish getting the ball back, I stated at 6:45 of the chat: "If Notre Dame goes down and scores and Michigan gets the ball back with 4 minutes to play, I like the Wolverines' chances. Just give Denard Robinson four downs and four minutes."

FROM THE BIG HOUSE

BY TERRY JACOBY

Those on the bandwagon of disbelievers after the Connecticut win had plenty of company. Let's face it, the last three years have left a lot of bad tastes in the mouths of Wolverine fans. A win over UConn wasn't exactly like spitting out a sour piece of gum. It was going to take more than that to flush out the bitterness.

But a win against Notre Dame in South Bend is impressive no matter helmet you're wearing. And to march down the field in the final minutes and stick it in the end zone shows something this team hasn't shown in years - guts. We all know they beat Notre Dame last year in the final minutes, but that was at home.

I think we can all agree that Robinson is a keeper. He might not have earned the cape some are throwing around his shoulders, but let's face it - he's on the launching pad to stardom. The countdown has already begun.

The sophomore quarterback accounted for 502 of the team's 532 yards of total offense. He finished with 258 yards rushing on 28 carries and 244 yards passing (24 for 40) and one touchdown. He scored on an 87-yard touchdown run in the second quarter, the longest rushing touchdown in the history of Notre Dame Stadium. And he broke his own U-M record from last Saturday and the Big Ten record for rushing yards by a quarterback.

But the number that matters most right now is two. As in two wins and no losses. They started 4-0 last year so we've been here before.

And this win was far from perfect. A ball through the hands of Roy Roundtree in the end zone. A few bad penalties. A few more missed tackles that several times turned losses into big plays. And the entire kicking game was one step short of brutal, two steps short of pathetic.

Game Day: Michigan (2-0) vs. Massachusetts (2-0)

Where: Michigan Stadium

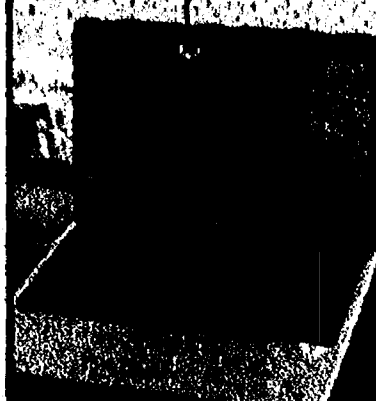

When: Saturday, noon

UMass at a glance: The UMass football team rolled over in-state rival Holy Cross, beating the Crusaders 31-7 on Saturday night at McGuirk Stadium in front of 16,352. The Minutemen (2-0) will be playing on Saturday before slightly more than 16,352 fans when they travel to Michigan.

Stadium: QB Kyle Havens has 516 yards passing in two games while receiver Anthony Nelson has 181 yards on 13 catches. The Michigan secondary will be put to the test by the Minutemen. UMass has thrown the ball 62 times in its first two games.

Michigan at a glance: The Wolverines are coming off their come-from-behind victory Saturday at Notre Dame. Denard Robinson had 502 of the team's 532 yards of total offense and finished with 258 yards rushing on 28 carries and 244 yards passing in the win over the Irish.

U-M Live Chat

www.heritage.com

Fans can now watch the Wolverines and CHAT with hundreds of fellow U-M fans without leaving the living room. Join other Wolverine fans in the Journal-Register Michigan Football Chat Room. JRC sports columnist Terry Jacoby will host the live chat this Saturday when the Wolverines battle the Fighting Irish. So before kickoff, log onto www.heritage.com and click on the link to the U-M Live Chat.

We have all week to break down the mistakes and analyze the game. But the game ended up in the win column and let's give this club a few pat on the backs before we backup the game film and break it all down. Let's also take a brief moment to get ahead of ourselves and look big picture for a moment.

The next big road challenge doesn't come around until Oct. 30 at Penn State. I think we can safely say that the Oct. 2 road game against Indiana is certainly a game the Wolverines will be favored to win. And should win. And will win - are you seeing the confidence here.

So if Michigan can take care of home-field advantage (that would include wins over Iowa and MSU) and knock off the Hoosiers, the Wolverines could roll into Happy Valley quite happy indeed.

While Robinson's numbers were impressive, the way he led this team is what really stands out. He doesn't get rattled. He shows not only great poise, but tremendous confidence in his own ability to make things happen. And what I love most about him is his attitude. He looks like he's having a blast out there. He looks like he's in the school yard playing with a bunch of friends. - I swear I saw him draw up a play on the palm of his hand one time.

Robinson won the game for the Wolverines. But the defense stepped up too when it had to. Remember, Michigan only scored one TD in the second half. The defense kept them in the game so Robinson could win the game.

That sounds like a pretty good formula for success. I think we'll accept the premise that if the defense can keep it close, we'll take our chances with the ball in Robinson's hands with the game on the line.

Four downs and four minutes equals a victory. The formula worked on Saturday.

player in all three sports. And if he loves playing all of them, how can anyone find fault in his approach. Chelsea encourages athletes to play multiple sports and Roberts is just following the playbook.

"Yeah, I think the fact that I'm good in all three does have something to do with it," Roberts said.

While he clearly stands out in soccer and basketball, baseball might be the sport he ends up playing in college. All three are still in the running as he heads for the finish line of his high school career.

"Baseball might end up being the sport I end up pursuing," he says. "My dad really likes that sport for me and my grandpa used to play in the major leagues so I have that unique connection to the sport. Baseball is definitely an option for me at this point."

As he kicks off his senior year in soccer, he is leaving all of his options open when it comes to sports. But he has zeroed in on what he wants to study when he turns the corner and heads off to college.

"I'm still thinking about things (when it comes to sports)," says Patrick, whose brother Mike is a sophomore at Indiana University. "These senior seasons should help me decide a little better what I want to do. I am planning on going into the pre-med field and an Ivy League school would be a great place for me. The first priority is the academics, but if I can go to an Ivy League school and play a sport, that's what I want to do."

While Roberts is an exceptional athlete and an even better student, the trait most people bring up first when talking about him is his personality. "He's very quiet and very polite," Chelsea basketball coach Robin Raymond said. "They just don't come much better than Patrick Roberts. He comes from a great family. I think he is happiest when he's sitting at home with his friends and family."

"He has big goals academically and wants to get into medicine. He's a special young man," Raymond brought Roberts up to the varsity team midway through his freshman season.

"He was 5-foot-6 and weighed one-hundred and nothing," Raymond said. "He's gotten bigger and stronger as the years have gone by. He has big hands for a guard and that helps him control the basketball and he has excellent balance and great footwork."

Roberts also has a textbook jump shot. Think Oscar Robertson or Jerry West. Roberts is old school in that he is fundamentally solid on the basketball court. He rarely makes bad decisions. His only fault?

"I don't think he realizes just how good he could be," Raymond said.

The longtime Chelsea coach has had a few conversations with Roberts over the years about becoming more aggressive and taking over games. It's just not in his DNA. He wants to win playing within the team concept, and how can you argue with that thinking.

When asked if he plans on taking charge more often, especially late in a game, the smile returns. He looks down and then away. He's heard the question before but he considers how to best answer it.

"This could be my last season for basketball so I want to make it everything I can," he says.

That's the Patrick Roberts version of trash talking.

Still, he admits he's excited about the upcoming season. Last year as a junior, Roberts was named to the first-team All-SEC team after averaging 11 points and 4.2 assists per game. The Bulldogs were upset by Milan in a district final game at Chelsea and the disappointment still lingers.

"A goal for basketball will be to definitely make it out of districts," said Roberts, who is now about 6-foot-1. "We will have a strong team coming back. Everyone is excited about the coming season."

Roberts expects an up-tempo offense once he trades in his cleats for sneakers.

"We don't have a lot of height, but we will make up for it with speed," said Roberts, whose own speed and quickness make him difficult to defend on the basketball court. "Charlie (McCalla) is a great shooter and Jack (McDougall) is a great guard who can step in. And Jake (Steinhauer) gives us a good big man down low."

McCalla, a teammate of Roberts in basketball and soccer, certainly isn't afraid of talking. He thinks this basketball season will be special and knows the team will be ready to go once the whistle blows. One of the reasons for that optimism will be the Roberts-McCalla backcourt.

"I grew up playing soccer with (Roberts) and that kind of transitioned to the basketball court," he says. "We can communicate with each other on the court, whether it's verbally or with just a look. We kind of feed off each other."

"He's a really good teammate. He always has a positive attitude and is a good leader."

He also has the potential to be an outstanding ball player. Did someone say baseball?

"The hidden piece of the puzzle with Patrick is that baseball could very well be the sport that takes him where he wants to go," said Wayne Welton, the longtime and successful Chelsea baseball coach. "He is a raw talent in baseball and all he lacks is experience."

Roberts has all the tools on a baseball field. He was the starting centerfielder for the Bulldogs and ended up hitting third in the lineup. He led the team in batting average (.340) and stolen bases.

He can run, hit, throw and field his position. The tools are all in the box - they just need to be sharpened.

"He's really only scratched the surface of how good he can be," Welton said. "We have 18 players coming back and we expect big things from Patrick in his senior year."

Welton, who also is the school's athletic director, is even more impressed with Roberts off the field.

"He is a model student-athlete, and as good as an athlete as he is, he's even a better person," Welton said.

Chelsea soccer coach Sean Hayes has a unique perspective on his star center midfielder. He was actually Roberts' babysitter before he was his coach.

"Yeah, I used to baby-sit him and his older brother, Mike, back when I was in the eighth and ninth grade," Hayes said. "The Roberts are an amazing family. Pat is a family man and very much values his family, which says a lot about his character. Integrity and loyalty - all traits he carries with him through life."

That sense of family has carried over to the soccer team this year. It's a pretty close-knit team.

"All of our boys value their families," Hayes said. "We have a fantastic group of kids and families that are all very supportive of each other, which helps us with our team game."

It doesn't take long to notice No. 10 on the soccer field. His special skills stand out right away but he uses them in a team approach to soccer. There is no showboating and he doesn't try to do everything himself. In fact, he goes out of his way to get his teammates involved.

"Pat is a very humble young man," Hayes says. "He possesses a lot of soccer skills, moves, and tricks, but typically plays a much more simple and safe style of soccer. He catches you off guard and surprises you from time to time with his creativity and he's very possessive with the ball and is usually able to draw defenders to him which creates great passing lanes for his teammates to get into."

Roberts makes it difficult on his opponents. His great skills with the ball requires at least two defenders to pay attention to him and that opens things up for his teammates.

"It helps that we have plenty of young talent surrounding Pat to take advantage of the mismatches Pat causes," Hayes said.

Roberts is a positive role model for his peers and teammates. He's always pushing his teammates to work harder by using positive reinforcement and motivation.

"Pat leads by example," Hayes said. "The team knows that while we have many great athletes, Pat is our best; which automatically gives the rest of our players someone to look up to and aspire to play like."

There also is another side of Roberts that his family and close friends get to see.

"Pat also has a very funny sense of humor, very sly and witty," Hayes said. "Of course, he does have his goofy and silly side too, as most teenage boys do. Pat is typically one of our best, if not our best, student on the team."

Before the basketballs start bouncing and before Welton tosses out the balls and bats, Roberts is focused on soccer. The Bulldogs have struggled out of the gate but there is hope.

"We're a young team that's coming along, but I think we have yet to hit our peak," Roberts says. "The young players on our team are playing really well right now and I think we have a bright future ahead."

The humble, quiet, polite, smart and athletically gifted kid from Chelsea also has a bright future ahead - no matter what game he decides to play.

Whippets fall to Edsel Ford, rival Dexter

The Washtenaw Whippets suffered a 7-0 loss Wednesday evening to Dearborn Edsel Ford.

The Whippets' shots on goal and penalty corners matched Edsel Ford's, but inexperience on the defensive line and in goal proved to be the difference against Edsel Ford's veteran forwards.

"I was very impressed with the skill of our midfield diamond tonight," said Whippets coach Leslie Fry. "Maddie Inglis (sophomore from Manchester) did a fantastic job of feeding the ball to side midfielders Maggie and Meghan Cole (Chelsea) who flanked Casey Fry (senior, Chelsea). With their support, Casey was able to carry the ball impressively for six 75-yard runs resulting in shots on goal."

Overall, Fry called this her team's best game this season.

"We have a very young inexperienced team," she said.

"Tonight we did a great job of moving together as a unit and controlling a lot of the ball movement. When this team has some more playing time on fast turf fields (our home field is grass) and our young players get a little stronger, we will be quite the force."

On Monday, the Whippets lost 2-1 to Dexter.

"This was a hard fought match for both teams, since up until this year the Dexter players had been part of the Whippets squad," Fry said.

Captain Casey Fry had many long dribbles and hard shots that were defended well by her former teammate, Dexter goalie Sarah Prielipp.

In the first half, Dexter players Megan Cansfield and Hannah Schrock scored on the Whippets.

In the second half, the Whippets picked up the attack. Casey Fry was able to put two goals in the Dexter cage, but one was recalled by the official. The Whippets will host Cranbrook today.

Chelsea golf team chipping away at big year

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea golf team is on a roll.

The Bulldogs won two matches this week, including a victory Wednesday over Tecumseh. Chelsea fired a team score of 185 on their home course at Reddeman Farms to beat Tecumseh (205).

Sophomore Gabby Trivelino fired a 43 to lead the Bulldogs over Tecumseh. Senior Emily Shrobsbree had two birdies and a chip-in birdie to finish with a 46 for Chelsea. Other low shooters for the Bulldogs included Sarah Schultz and Mackenzie Cole, both with a 52, and Judy Kim and Taylor Hansen, both with a 48.

On Tuesday, Chelsea defeated Greenhills with a team score of 198. Host Greenhills finished with a 224.

"For the Chelsea tournament it was a very windy day which was really affecting everyone's games," Chelsea coach Trisha McKim said. "But after the day before match at Greenhills and playing in the wind there, the girls really learned a lot and took their knowledge into the second day at Chelsea playing in the wind."

Trivelino led Chelsea with a 43. Shrobsbree shot a 45. Allie Smith and Kim each fired a 55. Samantha French shot a 58 and Hansen carded a 60 in the win over Greenhills.

Greenhills was led by Allie Bunch (49), Michael Doherty (59), Caroline Aplay (48), Liz Baker (72) and Suranna Miesel (68).

CC team cleans up at Bath Invite

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea girls' cross-country team competed in the Bath Invitational on Saturday and considering the number of teams and the level of competition, the Bulldogs cleaned up. That pun was a sifter at the net.

Chelsea finished seventh out of 19 teams. Dewitt took first with 113 points while Lansing Catholic was second with 129 and Marshall third with 138.

The Bulldogs finished with 185.

"We placed seventh in a very strong field at Bath," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke. "Five of the teams in the field were at last year's Division 2 state meet."

Junior Jessi Battaglia had an outstanding race running a personal best time of 20 minutes, 09 seconds to earn a medal. Junior Danielle Dahl ran a fine time of 20:19 to also earn a medal.

"We ran as a team and improved our times by an average of over 1 minute per girl," Clarke said. "We continue to improve and we are getting stronger with each meet. Hopefully, this trend will continue as the season progresses."

Other top finishers for Chelsea included Corinne Carpenter (49th place, 21:33), Elaine Johnson (51st place, 21:35), Ella Fritzmeier (56th, 21:44), Samantha Newbound (62nd, 22:02) and Madison Nelson (65th, 22:03).

In the junior varsity race, sophomore Kennedy Aldrich ran a fine time of 22:24 to place 13th and earn a medal. This was Kennedy's first race back after recovering from a severe injury.

Gwen Hubbard finished in 23:10 and Lauren O'Toole finished in 23:35.

Overall, 10 girls ran and six girls set career personal records with their times.

The Bulldogs will compete Saturday at the New Boston Huron Invitational.

Tennis

The Chelsea tennis team had an easy time with Ypsilanti last week, defeating the Phoenix 8-0.

Spencer Gines won at No. 1 singles, 6-0, 6-2; Dylan Schepers won at No. 2 singles, 6-0, 6-0; Henry Rutherford won at No. 3 singles, 6-0, 6-0; and Drew Johnson won at No. 4 singles, 6-0, 6-1.

The No. 1 doubles team of TJ De Rosa and Henry Mountain won 6-2, 6-1; the No. 2 doubles team of Garrett Livernois and Zach Schepers won 6-3, 6-1; the No. 3 doubles team (Aaron Zynda and Jake Ripberger) and No. 4 doubles (Nick Young and Nate England) both won 6-0, 6-0.

The Bulldogs hosted Dexter yesterday and will play Saturday in the DeWitt Invitational.

Volleyball

It was an impressive run for the Chelsea girls' volleyball team.

The Bulldogs raced up the ladder all the way to the championship match before losing to Adrian in the finals of the Jackson Community College Invitational on Saturday.

The day started with a sweep through pool play. The Bulldogs knocked off Napoleon (25-17, 25-18), Vandercook Lake (25-5, 25-10), Jackson (25-21, 25-13) and Jonesville (25-12, 25-22).

Chelsea then met Concord in the quarterfinals, winning close matches, 25-21 and 25-22. The Bulldogs advanced to the finals by beating Northwest 25-14 and 25-19.

Adrian took the crown with wins of 25-14 and 25-9 in the final.

Statistic leaders for the Bulldogs included Tessa Ewert (19 kills), Michelle Wellman (17 kills and 13 solo blocks), Megan Brockett (23 kills and 20 digs), Ellie Stoffer (20 kills and 26 digs) and Briana Carden (110 assists).

Soccer

Bulldogs show improvement, blank Milan 4-0

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

One of the keys for a young soccer team is showing improvement every time they step on the field. And for the Chelsea Bulldogs that has been the case so far during this young season. Of course, winning the game also is nice.

Chelsea was able to accomplish both things with a convincing 4-0 victory Thursday at Milan. The Bulldogs dominated much of the play especially after establishing a 3-0 lead in the first half.

"Every game we have gotten better," Chelsea coach Shawn Hayes said. "The guys have been playing really hard in practice and are coming out and grinding things out and overcoming a few injuries. We are still learning about the game, but you can see them growing and getting better every game."

The big lead going into the second half allowed the Bulldogs to get everyone into the action.

"We were able to get some guys off the bench and into the game and get them some quality minutes," Hayes said. "It's always a good thing to get players experience out on the field. We worked on moving the ball a little bit quicker and changing the field a little bit more."

In the second half of the game we focused on three-touch soccer instead of holding on to the ball for too long. Overall, it was a good game for us."

Milan coach Simon Evans was a little disappointed in the way his team performed. He thought Chelsea would be a good test, one he felt his Big Reds were ready for coming into the game.

"I think we actually stepped back a little bit today," he said.

One on One: With Charlie McCalla

On the soccer season: "We are starting out pretty positive, considering we lost 12 seniors. So starting out 5-6-1 isn't bad. We can't be too disappointed with any of the losses."

On the team's strengths: "We have a lot of good scorers. We lost a lot on defense with the seniors being gone so we have been rebuilding in the back. But we have some young guys who can really put the ball in the net."

Goals for the upcoming basketball season: "We definitely want to win districts. It was disappointing last year losing to Milan. We just want to build off of that and get back to the point. It should be a good year."

interview at
www.heritage.com

"We went back to individual player's games. We have a lot of technically talented players but they are not playing as a team. We just have too many guys trying to do it themselves."

Just 7:25 into the game, Chelsea's Bourke Lodewyk delivered a perfect through-ball to Robert Hughes who slipped past the defense and delivered the ball into the back of the net to give the Bulldogs a 1-0 lead.

A short time later, Lodewyk was fouled inside the box and awarded a penalty kick. The shot was right at the Milan goalkeeper but too hard for him to hold onto and the ball rolled into the goal to make it 2-0.

front the Milan goalie when he knocked the ball in at the 36-minute mark of the first half. Hilbert scored his second of the game on an assist from Craig Keyes at the 14-minute mark of the second half to finish the scoring.

One on One: With Conor Tait

A popular movie last year was "The Blind Side" about NFL offensive tackle Michael Oher and his upbringing in Memphis, Tenn. In football terms, the blind side is the area unseen by a quarterback when dropping back to pass. It's the backside or blind side of the quarterback. A lot of quarterbacks are right-handed, so their blind side is to the left. In football, oftentimes the best offensive lineman is the left tackle, especially if the quarterback being protected is right-handed. Left tackles, more often than not, protect a quarterback's blind side. For Chelsea, protecting the blind side of QB Brian Paulsen is left tackle Conor Tait (6-foot-6, 220 pounds).

When did you start playing football? "I started in seventh grade and I didn't play my eighth-grade year," said Tait. "I came back in the ninth-grade and have been playing ever since. I played tight end my freshman year and was awful."

What is your most memorable moment in football player? "I guess it would have to be coming back against Carleton Airport last year (in state playoffs)," said Tait. "That was a big win for us."

Do you plan to play college football? If so, who is recruiting you? "I'm not sure right now if I want to play college football," said Tait. "But Heidelberg, Harvard and Dartmouth have been in contact with me."

JV football team gets offensive with Ypsilanti

Offense ruled the day as two junior varsity teams combined for 10 touchdowns in Chelsea's 47-22 win over host Ypsilanti. Chelsea scored on its opening five offensive possessions on the way to a 35-14 halftime lead.

After an Ypsilanti punt, Chelsea drove 50 yards on eight plays to take a 7-0 lead. Alex Bielecki scored the TD on an eight-yard run. The Phoenix answered with an 80-yard TD run to cut Chelsea's lead to 7-6.

Chelsea marched 68 yards on its next possession, scoring on an eight-yard pass from Alex Maloney to Kyle Koseck. Craig Centofanti had a 24-yard reception on the drive.

Ypsilanti answered again, scoring on a long TD pass to make the score 14-1.

Chelsea's second offensive unit came into the game for the next possession and continued the offensive success. It took only six plays for Chelsea to score off a four-yard TD run by Tommy Olsen. Logan Brown had the big play of the drive turning a short pass into a 19-yard gain. The Chelsea defense started to toughen up at this point stopping Ypsilanti on its next possession.

Chelsea then went on a 12 play 80 yard drive. Logan Platt had catches of 23 and 26 yards on the drive before scoring on a five-yard run. Zach Rabbitt intercepted an Ypsilanti pass on the next series and two plays later, Platt had his second TD run. This one covered 17 yards.

After a Caleb Bentley interception, the Bulldogs led 35-14 at halftime.

In the second half, Chelsea sealed the victory by scoring on its opening drive. Koseck caught a 21-yard pass on the drive and Maloney scored on a five-yard TD run. Two drives later, Rabbitt finished the scoring with a three-yard TD run.

"Offensively, we were consistent throughout the evening," said Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi. "Our offensive line blocked well and our pace wore Ypsilanti out. While our defense struggled early, the guys kept playing hard and eventually settled in. "I thought we were very good on offense, defense and special teams. Everyone got into the game and had a lot of fun."

Freshmen

The Chelsea freshmen football team defeated Ypsilanti 26-0 on Thursday. Chelsea scored on a four-yard run from Ethan Whitaker, a 25-yard pass from Matt Caffrey to Tim Mantel, a 40-yard run by Alex McDougal, and a 50-yard screen pass from Scott Crews to Taylor Waggoner. Hunter Phillips and Kyle Ford led the defense in tackles.

Chelsea 14, Ypsilanti 13

Bulldogs hold on Defense keys SEC victory over improved Ypsilanti

By Don Richter

Heritage Newspapers

Clinging to a 14-13 lead, Chelsea's defense needed a big play. Visiting Ypsilanti was driving for what appeared to be a possible game-winning score in the waning minutes of last Friday's Southeastern Conference White Division contest.

On a fourth down and five play from the 50-yard line, the Phoenix dropped back to pass. A quick throw over the middle on a slant pattern looked to be open, but the ball hit a finger and caromed up into the air and into the waiting arms of Bulldog line-backer Logan Yordanich. The 6-foot-3, 220-pound senior ran the ball back to the Ypsilanti 10-yard line before being tackled out of bounds.

Yordanich said he happened to be in the right spot at the right time to make the play.

"I can't catch, so I had to tip the ball to myself," he said. "It just felt really good. It was nice to be able to make that play."

With Yordanich's interception, Chelsea (3-0, 3-0 SEC) held on to defeat the Phoenix (1-2, 1-1 SEC) 14-13.

Bulldog coach Brad Bush said his defense was the difference against Ypsilanti.

"Obviously our defense made some plays to win the game," he said. "We were playing without (Andrew) Koch and (Cal) Bauer in the second half, two of our best players, but other guys stepped up. I'm proud of the way our defense played."

Also proud was Ypsilanti coach Jason Malloy.

"I'm smiling now, but I'm hurting inside," he said. "Our kids played their butts off. We had some penalties tonight and some missed assignments and those are things that come back to haunt you. One of the things I talked about early in the week was we knew Chelsea would play well. We knew they would do the right things. We had to stay mentally tough. And we did."

The contest started favorably enough for the Phoenix as junior Mark Miles recovered a Chelsea fumble on the fourth play of the game. With the turnover, Ypsilanti started its first drive at its own 25-yard line. A 12-play drive ended in a punt attempt by the Phoenix. The snap, however, was high and the Bulldogs pounced on the ball at the Ypsilanti 39-yard line.

Six plays later, Bulldog sophomore running back Berkley Edwards darted up the middle for a 6-yard touchdown run. Senior Charlie Hess kicked the extra point giving Chelsea a 7-0 lead with 2:58 left in the first quarter.

After a three and out punt by the Phoenix, the Bulldogs drove all the way down inside the Ypsilanti 10-yard line on their next possession. The Phoenix buckled down, however, stopping Chelsea on a fourth and goal pass play.

On Ypsilanti's first play from scrimmage following its key defensive stop, the Phoenix fumbled in their own end zone. Bulldog senior cornerback Zak Karschnik recovered the football for a touchdown. With the point after touchdown kick by Hess, Chelsea increased its advantage to 14-0 with 9:31 remaining in the second quarter.

Malloy said his club might have been a bit nervous playing on the road in front of a big Bulldog crowd.

"We were a little shell-shocked at first," he said. "But we settled down and began playing football."

Indeed.

On its next possession, Ypsilanti took to the air. On their third play from scrimmage, Phoenix senior quarterback Kevin Clark hit fellow senior Marquez Gollman for a 46-yard pass play down to the Chelsea 39-yard line. Four plays later, senior quarterback Aeron Allen, in for Clark, found Gollman open for an 18-yard touchdown pass. The extra point, though partially blocked, sailed over the crossbar bringing Ypsilanti closer at 14-7 with 5:53 left in the second quarter.

On the Bulldogs' ensuing drive, Phoenix senior defensive back Ryan Griffen intercepted a pass giving Ypsilanti the ball at its own 40-yard line.

With momentum on its side, the Phoenix turned up the pressure. On the fourth play of its drive, Ypsilanti junior running back Austin Sanders took a pitch and sprinted around left end 45 yards for a touchdown. The extra point was no good as the Phoenix trimmed Chelsea's lead to 14-13 with 2:15 remaining in the first half.

In the third quarter, the Bulldogs had the ball for one series and only seven plays. The Phoenix dominated time of possession in the frame keeping the ball for approximately 10 of the quarter's 12 minutes. The Phoenix drove down to Chelsea's 9-yard line, but on a fourth a seven play, the Bulldogs clamped down and stopped Ypsilanti's pass play.

In the fourth quarter, both teams struggled to make any headway as Chelsea picked off two passes to secure its victory. Besides Yordanich's interception, junior Tyler Frank also picked off a pass for the Bulldogs on a long, last second desperation heave by the Phoenix.

Edwards finished with 55 yards rushing on 15 carries to lead the Bulldogs on the ground. Senior quarterback Brian Paulsen ended up 5-of-13 for 52 yards with one interception.

Senior Chris Ballow had two catches for 31 yards, while senior Mason Borders had two catches for 10 yards for Chelsea.

Defensively, junior Truman Hadley led the way with 7.5 tackles, while senior Conner Townsend had seven stops and senior Spencer Mykala 5.5 tackles for the Bulldogs.

Sanders paced Ypsilanti with 136 yards rushing on 24 carries.

Bush, a former standout quarterback at Ypsilanti back in the late 1980s when the program was at its peak, said deep inside he was pleased to see how well the Phoenix played Friday night.

"There was a small part of me that stood there and watched and was proud of watching Ypsi play the way they used to play," he said. "I think the way they played on defense and the way they ran the ball and hit, that's the Ypsi football I remember. Coach Malloy and his whole staff they deserve a lot of credit. We kind of snuck out of here with one."

Game Day

Chelsea (3-0) at Adrian (3-0)

When: Friday 7 p.m.

Where: Adrian's Maple Field

Chelsea last week: The Bulldogs defeated Southeastern Conference

White Division foe Ypsilanti 14-13.

Defensively, Chelsea picked off two passes and recovered a fumble in the end zone for a touchdown.

Player to watch: Senior linebacker Logan Yordanich had an interception, which he returned 47 yards, and three tackles, including two for losses in last Friday's close win over Ypsilanti.

Adrian last week: The Maples beat Dexter 44-14 improving their record to 3-0.

Player to watch: Junior quarterback Sebastian Johnson. The 6-foot-3, 185-pound signal-caller is a cool customer who rarely commits turnovers and who consistently makes clutch plays for

Game Notes

Player of the Game: The entire Chelsea defense. The Bulldogs intercepted two passes, made a goal line stand and recovered a fumble in the end zone for a touchdown against Ypsilanti.

Turning Point: Bulldog senior linebacker Logan Yordanich's interception late in the fourth quarter stopping what appeared to be a Phoenix go-ahead drive.

Key Stat: Ypsilanti had three turnovers and missed one extra point. Despite outgaining Chelsea 315 yards to 179 yards and

overcome their mistakes.

Bulldog leader: Truman Hadley with 7.5 tackles and two tackles for losses. Berkley Edwards with 55 yards rushing and one touchdown.

Up next: Friday 7 p.m. at Adrian. The Maples are 3-0. Adrian defeated Dexter 44-14 last Friday.

Two cents: While Chelsea is known for its high-scoring offense, it should please Bulldog fans to see the defense pull out a victory.

Chelsea Coach Brad Bush said after the win in week one over Huron that defense would be the team's identity. He was right on

Three secrets to creating your dream wedding

Wedding season is here and millions of couples are finalizing plans for their big day. But what many couples don't know is that there are easy ways to avoid stress while planning a wedding.

By following these tips, you can focus on all that is special about your wedding and reception, and avoid the headaches that sometimes come along with them.

Turn your dream into reality

Your wedding day is one of the most important days of your life, and is most likely one you've spent hours, days or even years dreaming about. When the time finally comes to start planning the big day, you don't want to cut corners or settle for a run-of-the-mill, impersonal event. With the help of the American Rental Association (ARA) and your local rental store, you can be sure your wedding day will be one that will be remembered by all.

Rental opens the doors to options you may have never even considered due to time or budget constraints. A romantic outdoor wedding is possible any time of the year with large tents and elegant canopies, equipped with heating or cooling equipment. Make a statement by skipping the traditional tiered cake and going with something more unique, like an impressive chocolate fountain with brownie or cheesecake bites or an ice cream cart complete with all the fixings. You can even create dramatic scenery on the walls and ceiling of your venue with a variety of accent lighting options.

Don't break the bank

While your wedding day may be the most important day of your life, there is no reason why it has to be the most expensive. You can save money on seating, centerpieces and more by renting. Why buy all your wedding supplies when you are only going to use them once? Why bother paying for their storage and upkeep after the big day is over? Simplify your wedding and your budget by letting the rental store take care of the cleanup, maintenance and storage of all your decorations and supplies.

And forget about running all over town, wasting time, energy and money - make one stop at your local rental store and get everything you need. ARA members, which include more than 7,000 rental businesses and 1,000 manufacturers and suppliers, are located in every state, so you can get all the supplies you need in one stop. To make finding the rental store nearest you even easier, ARA offers RentalHQ.com, the world's largest and most comprehensive rental store locator. Here, people planning their wedding and reception can find the rental store nearest them, read how-to tips and get ideas and inspiration for their event.

Enlist the experts

To make planning your big day even easier, some ARA member rental businesses offer Certified Event Rental Professionals (CERPs). And most offer on-site support, relieving much of the stress associated with planning a wedding. These professionals are ready and willing to share their knowledge and experience with you, from pre-wedding set-up all the way through the day of the event.

Deadlines, budgets, decor - these are all aspects of a wedding that need to be managed and sometimes are better left to the professionals. CERPs know what needs to be organized right away, and what can wait until later. They will think of that one detail that never would have crossed your mind and keep your budget in check.

Enlisting the help of a CERP from your local rental store will not only ease the stress and tension of planning an entire wedding, but it will also ensure that the wedding you always envisioned is the one you will remember for years to come. From the latest trends and themes, to innovative budget saving strategies, CERPs know the ins and outs of planning a wedding.

Don't let the burden of planning your wedding overwhelm you as you approach one of the most memorable days of your life. Make it an enjoyable experience with the help of ARA and your local rental store.

Food and wine: How to create a perfect marriage

Weddings are one of life's most celebrated occasions. For brides-and grooms-to-be and their families, an incredible amount of creativity and planning is poured into this all-important day: from the wedding gown to the ceremony, from the invitations and flowers to the wedding cake itself. One of the most-remembered details is what guests are served, so the wedding menu should reflect the couple-to-be's unique style and personality.

Aida Mollenkamp, host of the popular Food Network show "Ask Aida" says, "The food you serve should be like your dress - reflect you and fit you like a glove - so, if you prefer a cupcake tower to a cake, go for it!"

Tips for a memorable wedding menu

- Find your inspiration. Couples should think back on their relationship, and choose a meaningful place or a time that will inspire their food and wine choices.

- Indulge. This is a celebration so forget about calories and choose the food and wine that truly reflects the couple.

- But don't lose yourself. Remember, the wedding day is supposed to reflect who the bride and groom are. If they aren't fans of foie gras and caviar, now is not the time to serve it.

- Personalize. Consider displaying menus at each place setting that describe the couple's food and wine pairings - and include anecdotes for why they were chosen.

- Last all night. It's a marathon to make it from the ceremony to the reception for the bride and groom and their guests. Make sure the food is substantial enough to keep everyone filled, yet light enough that they don't slip into a groggy fog.

- Ah, dessert. It might be your guests' favorite course, and for a wedding, it can truly be a showpiece. Let the dessert reflect the couple's sweet tooth, and remember Riesling is a lovely accompaniment to most wedding desserts.

David Mirassou, sixth-generation of America's oldest winemaking family agrees. "Riesling is a delicious wine-pairing option for wedding desserts. It may also help a couple's budget too, because it can be paired with both the first and main courses, as well as dessert."

For more wedding inspiration, as well as video tips, Aida's recipes and David's food and wine pairings, visit Mirassou.com.

How to say 'thank you'

It is customary for the bride and groom-to-be to show their gratitude to all of the people who will make their wedding day special.

Thank-you gifts should be something thoughtful and enduring. Avoid fad or gag gifts. These gifts should be presented at a pre-wedding occasion. It's customarily done at the rehearsal dinner.

Groomsmen

When selecting gifts for groomsmen, think about a gift they would like but probably wouldn't buy themselves. This can be cuff links, a fine watch, money clip, or a high-quality wallet. Feel free to splurge a little more on the best man.

Bridesmaids

Traditional gifts for bridesmaids are different types of jewelry.

Monogrammed stationery, a spa treatment, or another pampering session. As you have with the best man, feel free to bestow a little more thanks on the maid of honor with a more lavish gift.

Clergy

Many couples choose to make a financial donation to their house of worship. Additional tipping or monetary gifts for musicians, altar boys/girls, etc. can also be a thoughtful gesture. A donation toward an officiant's vestments may also be appreciated.

Others

Readers, soloists, ushers, etc. can be given a small token of your appreciation, like a gift card or a personalized memento.

Fall in love with these fall wedding ideas

Spring and summer may be the seasons that first come to mind when you begin planning a wedding, but autumn has a lot to offer brides too. From cooler, dryer weather and the glorious backdrop of fall colors to the opportunity to land a great deal on a reception venue, fall delivers many rewards for couples on the road to wedded bliss.

"We're seeing increased interest in fall weddings," says Raymond Miller of My Wedding Reception Ideas.com, a leading online resource for brides seeking unique wedding favors and other items. "Brides love the natural colorfulness of the season and the weather tends to be more reliable and comfortable for outdoor weddings. In fact, autumn may soon surpass spring as a preferred month to hold a wedding."

If you're planning your nuptials for harvest season, Miller offers some advice for incorporating the best elements of the season in your big day.

Cash in on color

"Vibrant reds, dazzling oranges, glittering golds and bold browns - fall's palate is a glorious profusion of colors unique to the season. Autumn brides should revel in the season's colors, drawing the hues of fall into all aspects of their weddings, from bridesmaid gowns to table linens, floral arrangements and fall wedding favors."

"Fall colors offer many advantages when it comes to planning a wedding," Miller says. For example, it's easy to mix and match more than one fall color because they tend to naturally complement each other. For a spring wedding, it might be difficult to find just the right floral colors to enhance a particular shade of lavender bridesmaid gown. But pair bronze gowns with flowers that sport autumnal reds and golds, and you'll have a sure win.

Favor the fall

Brides looking for truly unique wedding favors will find that the variety of fall wedding favors available makes it easy to put their personal stamp on their wedding. "Favors are an important part of any wedding," Miller says. "After all, they're the keepsakes that will hopefully remind your guests for years to come of how much they enjoyed your special day."

Whether they're whimsical (pear-shaped scented soaps), practical (oak leaf keychains) or sophisticated (bronze metal fall leaf wine bottle stoppers), fall wedding favors are a great way to underscore a wedding's autumnal theme. Choosing favors that allow for optimum personalization - like personalized candy apple boxes that you fill with a homemade version of the classic autumn treat - will also help guests remember your wedding with warmth and fondness. You can find ample fall wedding favor ideas at My Wedding Reception Ideas.com.

Accessorizing with autumn

Don't forget to continue your autumn theme throughout your wedding with fall-themed wedding accessories. You can find leaf-motif unity candles, napkins and guest towels in fall colors, autumn-themed invitations and save-the-date cards, cake serving sets with maple leaf details, and a host of other items that all play to a fall theme.

Floral arrangements also offer a chance to convey an autumn theme and do something unique at the same time. Whether you opt for arrangements that feature fall flowers, like mums or gardenias, or out-of-season flowers that sport fall colors, you can accent arrangements with brightly hued leaves, branches, berries, cornstalks, hay and other natural or nature-inspired touches that are special to the season.

ENCHANTED FLORIST

Every bride can make her wedding unique

Every bride-to-be dreams of putting her unique stamp on her wedding day. Blending her chosen wedding colors into many of the occasion's elements is just the first step toward a creative and beautiful event. Brides in gorgeous gowns, bridesmaids and groomsmen decked out in the wedding party's colors and striking flowers are the perfect accompaniment to the colorful landscape of the summer and fall wedding seasons.

Selecting the perfect ways to feature wedding colors is a very personal representation of the bride and groom. If you're a bride-to-be, picture homemade jewelry embellishing your wedding dress, table decorations that match your wedding theme and colors perfectly, or all your guests looking over unique programs that you made at your kitchen table.

"Making wedding decorations or even gifts for the wedding party allows you to put a lot of creativity and personality into the project. And, because you made it yourself, you'll have a customized, one-of-a-kind item that perfectly matches your wedding and its decor," says Courtney Talkington, manager of education and inspiration for Jo-Ann Fabric and Craft Stores. "Another idea for your DIY wedding is to involve your family, friends and wedding party in making the projects, allowing everyone to be included in the fun and creativity."

Using a centuries-old technique of quilling is one way to create a homemade necklace with a unique look in beautiful colors. Not only does the rolled paper look beautiful in decorative flower shapes, it's also a great way to incorporate keepsakes such as ticket stubs or love letters from the dating and engagement years into meaningful, wearable art. Are you new to quilling? Quilling classes will be offered at Jo-Ann Fabric and Craft Stores starting in September.

Quilled memory necklace

Thin paper strips for quilling: scrapbook papers, ticket stubs, old love letters and other paper mementos

Quilling tool

X-Acto knife and cutting mat

Tacky glue

1 spool tiger tail

1 package each of 3 mm and 4 mm

Blue Moon glass pearl beads

1 clasp set

Crimp beads

Crimp tool

Bent-nose pliers

Wire cutter

2 6 mm jump rings

1/4 yard Tulle

1/4 yard of 1/4 inch wide Organdy ribbon

Hand sewing needle

Thread

Optional book: "The Art of Paper Quilling, Designing Handcrafted Gifts and Cards"

Directions:

1. Using paper strips for quilling, make several flower shapes in various sizes and colors. Set aside.

2. Cut two pieces of tiger tail about 12 inches long.

3. Attach one end of one tiger tail strand to clasp using crimp bead and crimp tool. Trim excess wire.

4. String glass pearl beads for about 8 to 9 inches.

5. Attach one jump ring to opposite end using a crimp bead and crimp tool. Trim excess wire. Set aside.

6. Repeat steps three to five for second tiger tail strand.

7. Cut two pieces of tiger tail - one 8 inches long and another 10 inches long.

8. Attach tiger tail strands to jump ring. Adjust the 8 inch strand to measure approximately 6 inches and the 10 inch strand to measure approximately 8 inches.

9. Lay paper flowers out on work surface so they fit nicely between the two pearl strands and on top of the two tiger tail strands.

10. Cut two pieces of tulle slightly larger than your flower layout, following the outline of the flower shapes. Cut two large strips of tulle - about 3/4 inches wide and 3 inches long - to tie onto necklace at the sides.

11. Sandwich the two tiger tail wires between the tulle. Hand stitch the tulle together close to the tiger tail wire.

12. Tie the tulle onto the necklace at jump rings. Trim tulle to desired length.

Don't let scams, identity theft ruin your honeymoon

The excitement of getting married doesn't end after the rice has been thrown, the cake has been cut and the presents opened.

For most couples, the next stop is the adventure of a honeymoon.

Whether you head for a beachy destination to get a little rest and relaxation or fly off to a far-flung adventure destination, the last thing you want is for your special trip to be interrupted by problems. While no one can guarantee that you won't quibble over which restaurant you want to go to, you can take steps to protect yourself from other common travel mishaps.

Identity theft is a threat that we all face, even at home. But when you travel somewhere new -- particularly to foreign destinations -- you need to be extra vigilant to safeguard against it. You can take steps to lessen the threat. First, before you leave, make copies of your passport and credit cards -- take a set of copies with you, and leave a set with a trusted person at home. If your passport or cards should be stolen, this will help you in the sometimes long process of replacing them.

To give yourself the highest level of protection, consider a program like ID Patrol, from Equifax. The service monitors your credit file for suspicious changes, alerts you if your personal information has been found in suspected underground Internet trading sites and gives you 24/7 access to trained ID theft resolution specialists.

Remember to be vigilant when using your credit or debit cards. Always make sure that vendors swipe your card where you can see them, and avoid using suspicious-looking ATMs. One tip-off that an ATM has been tampered with is that the card swiping mechanism has been bolted or screwed on. It's also a good idea to purchase a money belt or pouch that can be discreetly worn under clothing and to carry your passport and cards with you.

It's important to remember that problems can arise even before you've left for your destination. Flights can be cancelled or circumstances might arise that make it impossible for you to travel. That's just one reason that it's a good idea to have travel insurance. It can protect you from losing the money you've put into your trip, but it can also be invaluable if you lose your luggage or are injured on your trip. When purchasing insurance, you should make sure that it covers stolen wallets and passports as well.

One of the easiest things you can do before you leave is to simply research your destination -- but make sure that you go beyond which sights you want to see or which hotel you want to stay in. The Internet makes it easier than ever to delve deep into your destination -- travelers post trip reviews on a number of sites like www.tripadvisor.com and www.lonelyplanet.com. There you can find everything from activity recommendations to place-specific travel scams to watch out for.

Knowledge is the first commandment of safe travel, but it helps to have back-up like ID theft prevention and travel insurance for situations beyond your control. And when you've taken steps to ensure that your trip will be safe, your honeymoon will be sweeter than ever.

Did you know?

According to the United States Census Bureau (USCB), more than 2 million couples get married each year in the United States. The average bride is a shade over 25 years of age, while the average groom is nearly 27-years-old. In a nod to the changing nature of society, one-third of those getting married each year have been married before. That's especially notable to those who make a living providing wedding services, be it reception halls, videographers, photographers, or others who make their living in the wedding industry. That's because the average wedding budget is roughly $20,000, meaning weddings, even for brides and grooms who have been down the aisle before, remain a costly expense for the participants and a lucrative venture for those in the industry. In fact, $72 billion is spent on weddings each year. To put that in better perspective, consider that only $8 billion per year is spent on honeymoons, meaning brides and grooms are liable to spend nine times more on their wedding than they are on their honeymoon. June and August remain the months of choice for ceremonies, as more weddings occur in June and August than any other month. However, while July is the third most popular month to walk down the aisle, September and even October are becoming increasingly popular according to the Association for Wedding Professionals International.

Personal style and preference aren't the only things that dictate certain wedding day decisions.

For example, while a man might have a specific tuxedo style in mind for his wedding day, something such as the time of the ceremony can dictate which styles are appropriate. A morning ceremony, for instance, typically calls for a cutaway, or morning coat, with the ushers in matching strollers. For early afternoon ceremonies, however, it's typical for men in the wedding party to wear tuxedos without tails. Grooms who really want to wear tails should only do so for ceremonies that begin after 4 p.m., as tails are considered too formal for ceremonies beginning earlier in the day. When wearing tails, a white vest and bow tie, but no cummerbund, is the traditional style. When planning a wedding, it's best to keep in mind that tradition as well as personal style should dictate certain decisions. To learn of any additional norms and traditions, consult a wedding planner.

Domestic wedding destinations offer beauty, value

Every wedding is as special as the bride who takes her vows that day, no matter if the setting is a centuries-old church, a hotel ballroom or the bride's own backyard. But if you dream of saying your "I do's" beside the gentle tide, or greeting your guests from the top of a staircase that looks like it's straight out of "Gone With the Wind," then a destination wedding might be right for you.

Destination weddings are becoming more and more popular, but dragging your wedding dress, favors and all the guests overseas can be pricey for brides and grooms on a budget. However, many domestic destinations right here within the continental U.S. can offer the same breath-taking scenery, diverse settings and luxurious amenities you would expect to find - and pay more for - if you go abroad.

What kind of domestic destination should you seek? Here are a few popular, cost-effective options that don't require a long trip for your guests or you to spend a lot of money:

Beauty at the beach

When it comes to versatility in a natural setting, it's hard to beat the beauty of the beach. A beach wedding can capture the romance of the sea, evoke the party atmosphere of an island escape, and tap the depth and power of Mother Nature in all her glory.

With miles of beautiful beaches on both coasts, the good old U.S. of A. offers plenty of locales for your beach wedding. On the East Coast, Myrtle Beach, S.C. is a popular spot that offers a wide range of versatile venues and accommodating lodging for you and your guests. The region is a reasonable drive from just about anywhere along the eastern seaboard. Plus, you can find affordable direct flights to the nearby Myrtle Beach International Airport.

For a pure beach wedding, check out Myrtle Beach State Park, which offers pristine white beaches and breathtaking views of the Atlantic Ocean. Or, to marry the beauty of the beach with elegant style, check out Atalaya Castle at Huntington Beach State Park in nearby Murrells Inlet, S.C.

Keep in mind if you're holding your wedding on a public beach or park, you'll likely need to obtain permits from the appropriate city or county agency.

The charm of the Old South

She might have had trouble staying happily married, but "Gone with the Wind" heroine Scarlett O'Hara sure knew how to throw a romantic wedding. You can recapture the grace, elegance and romance of Scarlett's bygone era with a plantation destination wedding. Throughout the south, you'll find representations of the gracious architecture that personified the classic southern plantation, with grand staircases, sweeping front porches and sprawling green gardens.

You can build an entire wedding theme around the locale, with attire that evokes the elegance of the Old South and southern colors like peach and lavender. A simple online search will yield numerous plantation-style venues, like Litchfield Plantation and Pawley's Plantation, both in Pawley's Island, S.C., or Brookgreen Gardens in Murrells Inlet, S.C.

To the sea, to the sea

If you relish in the beauty of the sea but not the idea of the sand that comes with it, holding your wedding at an oceanfront hotel may be the perfect way to enjoy the beauty and majesty of the beach. Many oceanfront hotels and resorts offer event venues with great views of the beach and ocean.

Plan to hold your wedding in one of Myrtle Beach's many oceanfront hotels, and you can savor the benefits of a beach destination with all the comforts, conveniences and luxuries of top hotels. These resorts cater to brides with comprehensive wedding packages, creative menus and breath-taking views.

By looking for a domestic destination, you can have a dream wedding without a nightmare price tag - or the inconveniences of traveling abroad with your wedding party and guests.

FALL PET APPEAL

Pets can be a great source of comfort for their owners.

A wag is worth a thousand words

Ever get the feeling that your dog knows what you're thinking, without saying a word?

Many canine parents report that they've had an entire conversation with their dogs despite the obvious language barrier.

From "can I have a treat" to "let's go for a walk," dogs have a special way of sharing their feelings. According to a new survey, it's the wags, not words that tell the story when it comes to canine communication.

The survey, conducted by Kelton Research for Pup-Peroni dog snacks, revealed that most canine pet parents believe that they can communicate with their dogs even though they don't speak the same language - giving a new twist to the old adage, "silence is golden."

Pet owners feel confident that they know what's on their pups' minds, even without the benefit of words.

Almost three in four (74 percent) respondents believe their dog's body language or facial expressions better indicate how their pet is truly feeling than barks or other sounds.

They also estimate that they know what their dog is thinking nearly half (49 percent) of the time.

Seven in 10 (70 percent) respondents say there have been times when they shared a meaningful look with their canine companions.

"Dogs have an uncanny ability to pick up on even the subtlest cues from their owners, enabling them to 'read' humans like few other animals can," said body language expert Patti Wood. "Even something as minute as a glance from their owner has meaning for a dog."

Wood also points out that our modern dogs' ability to communicate with us seems to be a product of millennia of interaction. "Research shows that, over time, there has been a deliberate selection of dogs with the ability to pick up on cues from humans," she said. "It shows just how important nonverbal communication between dogs and people has always been."

For many pet parents, the special bond they share with their pooch is one of the most important relationships in their lives.

Without ever having to say a word, their pups are there for them through the good times and the bad, acting as confidants, therapists and most importantly, their best friends.

Maybe it's because of that unspoken connection between canines and humans that people feel their dogs are just as good a source of comfort and companionship as their human friends - or maybe even more so.

With a smile and a wag, dogs just know - how many people can say that about their best friend or significant other?

Conquer your canine cleaning challenges for a pet-friendly home

Pet owners understand extra cleaning is part of the deal when bringing a puppy into their homes and lives. Cleaning up after a dog is enough work in itself, so the last thing any owner wants is a pooch that is agitated by the sights and sounds of cleaning. There are several techniques that can help your dog stay calm when you reach for your sponge and Swiffer.

"Your attitude and approach to cleaning up after and around your pet is critical," says Cesar Millan, renowned dog behavior specialist and host of the Emmy-nominated series, Dog Whisperer. "If you are stressed or frustrated when you pick up a cleaning tool, your dog can pick up on this negative energy and associate the cleaning tool with negativity. This can create instability and can result in problematic behaviors."

Millan offers his top tips to create a pet-friendly environment, from combating pet hair to preparing for a new puppy at home:

- If you feel yourself getting frustrated, take a step back and recharge for five minutes before starting, and reconsider your cleaning tools. Tools that can do two things at once can make you more relaxed about the process - and dogs pick up on that.

- Cleaning introduces new smells into the environment, and a dog's sense of smell is its strongest sense. If your dog gets tense or upset when you clean, pay attention to the scents you are using. Try cleaning products that are available in a Lavender and Vanilla scent, which can be soothing to your dog.

- Focusing on efficiency and multitasking can make cleaning chores easier and more expedient. Supplies that accomplish more than one task can save time and avoid agitation, especially tools that handle all kinds of pet messes. Try the newly redesigned 2-in-1 Swiffer SweeperVac, which tackles all messes, vacuuming pet food and clumps of hair, while trapping crumbs, dirt and dust to get floors thoroughly clean in one quick and easy step.

- When you first bring home a puppy, involve the entire family in the process. Even younger children can participate in the various responsibilities by making sure there is fresh water in the dog's bowl or accompanying a parent on the puppy's walks.

- One important part of the house-breaking process is cleaning up after your dog has an accident. If he's had an accident in an area once, he's more likely to go there again because of the odor. The best cleaning methods eliminate both the mess and the smell.

why we put dog poop in plastic baggies

- Our neighbors like us to.
- It makes our dogs feel important.
- It keeps the poop from being washed into the storm drains.

Select them all, and it's "two paws up" for you!

It's not just about picking up after your dog as a courtesy to our neighbors. It's about making that backyard barbecue the most enjoyable.

But there's another important reason to pick up after your pet. When pet waste washes into local waterways, it causes pollution. It's not just about the dog's health, it's about the health of our water.

Help protect water quality. Stoop, scoop, and drop those little baggies in the trash. Don't let your dog's waste pollute our water.

All states require a credentialing exam following completion of a veterinary technician program. Depending on individual state regulations, candidates may become registered, licensed or certified.

What you need to know to become a veterinary technician

Ask pet owners about their dogs and watch their eyes light up because of the bond they share. After all, Discovery News reports in an August 2009 article that dogs have been man's best friend for some 10,000 years.

The American Veterinary Medical Association's 2007 U.S. Pet Ownership and Demographics Sourcebook states that nearly 40 percent of all U.S. households include at least one dog and 32.8 percent own two cats.

This amounts to 153 million four-legged friends in the nation. That's a lot of patients receiving care from the veterinary community.

A professional alternative

If you have ever thought of working with animals as a career, you can follow a well-defined professional path. "Individuals interested in the veterinary profession may want to enroll in a two-year veterinary technician associate degree program, which prepares candidates to test for professional credentialing to enter the field.

All states require a credentialing exam following completion of a veterinary technician program. Depending on individual state regulations, candidates may become registered, licensed or certified.

"Veterinary technicians work as support staff, similar to nurses working with doctors," says Dr. Joshua Peterson, doctor of veterinary medicine (DVM), and veterinary technology department chair at Brown Mackie College - Kansas City. "There are only three tasks delegated specifically to veterinarians: diagnosing diseases, prescribing medications and performing surgery. "Technicians monitor patients and follow protocol procedures to administer vet-prescribed anesthesia during surgery. Vet techs also take X-rays, draw lab samples and run tests. X-ray and test results are then interpreted by the veterinarian."

Greg Harvey, Registered Veterinary Technician (RVT), is a lead instructor of veterinary technology at Brown Mackie College - Kansas City, with 17 years of veterinary technician experience, and a colleague of Dr. Peterson. "A technician's main goal is to do things that free the vet to do diagnostics, exams and surgery. A good tech can record a thorough patient history, take vitals and give the vet appropriate background on the patient," Harvey says.

Do you have what it takes to become a vet tech?

"Many come into the program because of a strong love of animals," says Harvey. "But it's important to remember that a dog is an extension of a human being, and their owners do the talking. Candidates must have excellent people skills." Peterson summarizes the traits necessary to become a vet technician. "We like to see strong scientific-minded people with good critical thinking and reasoning skills." Core science classes in the vet tech program include biology, chemistry and mathematics.

"Candidates must also multi-task well," Peterson continues. "No day is completely laid out. Emergency cases come in, and it's not always pleasant.

A certain amount of squeamishness in the beginning is normal. I can't tell you how many times I've seen people faint in surgery. It's something that needs to be overcome."

Harvey adds good observation skills to the list of traits. "Animals can't tell us where it hurts. Students have an opportunity to develop an understanding of how different animals exhibit pain. Cats will often stop grooming, and dogs can become withdrawn or more aggressive," he says. "Confidence is also an important trait. Lack of confidence makes those around you nervous."

Both Harvey and Peterson agree that veterinary technician is not a position for people who love daily routines. "You never know what will be thrown at you," says Harvey.

A good opportunity for career satisfaction

"Being a veterinary technician is the most gratifying career I could have. I've worked with vets who have encountered new things after 20 or 30 years in practice," Harvey says.

"I've always derived gratification from being an advocate for those who can't speak for themselves," Peterson says. "There is satisfaction in treating an animal that is hurt and scared, and restoring it to health. I get to see how happy it makes their owners as well."

Keeping your pet safe from fleas and ticks

Protecting your pet from harmful fleas and ticks is a vital part of pet care. And since this summer is projected to be unusually rainy and warm, extra caution is needed.

Fleas and ticks not only irritate your pet, but are capable of transmitting serious diseases like Lyme disease and flea allergy dermatitis.

There are about 20,000 reported cases of Lyme disease annually in the U.S. Furthermore, the likelihood of being exposed to ticks, and subsequently to diseases transmitted by ticks, is about 10 to 20 times greater than it was 10 years ago, according to the Companion Animal Parasite Council.

Dr. Melinda Fernyhough, veterinarian and manager of scientific affairs at Hartz, offers tips on how to help your pet avoid the dangers of fleas and ticks, and considerations when purchasing and applying flea and tick treatments to ensure best results.

"Health and safety is the number-one priority for pet parents, and there are several reliable products available at your veterinarian, local retail or pet specialty store that can help keep pets free from fleas and ticks all year round," says Fernyhough.

- Choose the appropriate flea and tick

Several types of products exist that can help prevent fleas and ticks - shampoos, collars, and the most popular form of protection: topicals, or spot-ons.

These monthly applications go on the back of your pet's neck or are striped down the back, depending on the manufacturer, and keep your pet pest-free for 30 days.

A great example is Hartz UltraGuard Pro Flea & Tick Drops, designed to kill fleas and ticks on your pet and prevent new fleas from developing.

All EPA-registered flea and tick products, whether sold in vets' offices or through retail channels, are held to the same safety and efficacy testing standards.

- Carefully follow label directions when applying topical flea and tick treatments.

Make sure to follow the manufacturer's weight recommendation - you don't want to put too much product (or too little) on your dog by misjudging the weight.

Use the entire tube on one animal - don't split one dose between several animals.

Never use a dog product on a cat, and if you have both animals, you need to keep them separated for 48 hours after applying treatments.

Read the label carefully and don't be afraid to call the manufacturer if you have questions.

- Regularly check your pet for ticks to prevent permanent damage. If ticks are found on a pet, remove them with tweezers while avoiding squeezing them since that could cause disease carrying bacteria to enter your pet.

- Avoid hot and humid areas for your pets. The ideal climate for fleas and ticks is approximately 55-89 degrees Fahrenheit and 50-92 percent humidity. Keep your pet away from hot, damp and wooded areas.

Fleas like to hide in shady areas of the yard, so treat these areas with a product designed to kill them outdoors.

- Consider a year-round flea and tick treatment for your home and pet.

The best way to solve a flea and tick problem is to prevent it in the first place. Use topical drops or collars on your pet year round, regularly treat your yard, and vacuum to remove any potential flea eggs in your carpeting.

Also, consider products such as Hartz Ultra-Guard Carpet Powder and Hartz Ultra-Guard Plus Flea & Tick Home Spray, formulated to kill fleas around your home and prevent new ones from developing.

Recognizing black dog syndrome

Dogs living in shelters await the chance to be adopted by loving families. Black dogs in general tend to be harder to place because of people's misperceptions about them. These dogs are often the last to find homes, if they do at all. The problem is so common, adoption professionals have dubbed it "black dog syndrome."

There are a few reasons people may pass up on owning a black dog.

- Dog breeds, such as dobermans and rottweilers, are dark in color. People may assume that all black dogs tend to be aggressive or protective. In fact, it is often the way a dog is raised that dictates its disposition, regardless of the dog's color or breed.

- Another possible explanation for black dog syndrome is that black dogs do not photograph well. When individuals search print advertisements for shelter dogs or browse online placement sites, black dogs do not show up as expressive as lighter-colored ones.

- Because they do not show up well in film and in photos, Hollywood often chooses lighter dogs over black dogs. This can make people believe that black dogs are unpopular.

- Black dogs have often been condemned in folklore. People may have visions of lurking, hulking black dogs preying on livestock or haunting shadowy corners. Like black cats, black dogs can seem ominous.

- Black is a depressive color, and individuals may transfer their thoughts of the color onto the animal.

- Human nature is to look at bright, sparkly things. A light dog next to a black dog may appear more attractive.

- In warmer climates or sporting competitions, black dogs tend to overheat faster than lighter counterparts. Individuals who are active may ignore a black dog for this reason.

There are people who do not believe in black dog syndrome.

Because black and brown tend to be dominant colors in many breeds and because many shelter dogs are mixes of breeds, it makes some sense that there are more black dogs in shelters for this reason alone. Others say that Labradors, which are often black, are the most popular breed, and this is another reason for the abundance of black dogs in shelters.

However, shelter workers contradict that black dogs often are the last to be adopted and the first to be euthanized. People are urged to remember that coat color does not dictate the temperament of a dog.

Individuals shopping around for a new pet should look carefully at all the dogs available because black dogs are often overlooked. Who knows, an ebony pup may become a child or adult's new best friend.

Black cat folklore

Black cats have long been associated with Halloween, and frequently found in myths and folklore.

Some people believe that black cats are witches' familiars, or close companions.

In the Middle Ages, black cats were regarded as evil. Perhaps because cats are largely nocturnal, and beings of the night are often feared.

Today, Halloween and black cats go hand-in-hand, primarily because decorating often involves pictures of witches and their feline companions. Depending on geography, black cats are thought to bring bad or good luck. Here is some of the common folklore and beliefs:

- Finding a white hair on a black cat brings good luck.
- To dream of a black cat is lucky.
- In Asia, a black cat is considered lucky.

- It is unlucky to have a black cat cross your path.

- A funeral procession that comes across a black cat indicates another death in the family will be imminent.

- Some believe if a black cat lay on the bed of a sick person, he or she would die.

- A black cat seen from behind brings a bad omen.

You've seen the posters decorating mailboxes, telephone poles and trees in your neighborhood.

The picture of a cat - usually curled up in the sun or giving a curious look to the camera - with "LOST" in bold, capital letters and a contact number underneath. Sadly, less than 5 percent of lost cats make it home.

Many of these lost cats end up in animal shelters, some are adopted by new families and others unfortunately aren't so lucky.

An estimated 70 percent of all animals euthanized each year are cats who enter shelters without identification tags, according to the North Shore Animal League America (NSALA), the world's largest no-kill animal rescue and adoption organization. Many shelters are full, and can only hold cats for a few days or less, giving grieving owners limited time to locate their lost pet.

Cat owner and author of "Oh My Dog," Beth Ostrosky Stern is passionate about saving the lives of animals and providing them to loving families. "Through my work with North Shore Animal League America, I have seen firsthand how many cats enter the shelters. I'm a firm supporter of cat tagging to help ensure a safe return home. I would be completely devastated if my cat, Apple, were lost. Having her wear an identification tag is a simple step, but gives me peace of mind that if she were to be lost she can be identified and returned home."

Whether your cat stays inside or roams the outdoors, tagging is the best way to keep him safe.

Even indoor cats may sometimes slip through an open door or window for some fresh air so it's important to remember they need identification tags as well.

Special cat collars are available also, so that your cat won't get caught on any objects when he's playing inside the home or exploring the great outdoors.

Many cat owners may not know how simple it is to get a tag for their cat.

The maker of ARM & HAMMER Super Scoop and Multi-Cat litter products is even offering cat owners the opportunity to receive customized identification tags via mail with the purchase of two ARM & HAMMER cat litters. Visit www.pettagoffer.com for more information.

Tagging cats is just one safety tip. Other tips from NSALA to keep cats healthy, especially during the summer months include:

- Never leave a cat in a car - cats can quickly overheat and die from heat stroke.
- Keep cats inside during a thunderstorm - cats are easily frightened by loud noises and are more at risk of being struck by lightning.
- Check cats daily for fleas and ticks.

An estimated 70 percent of all animals euthanized each year are cats who enter shelters without identification tags, according to the North Shore Animal League America (NSALA), the world's largest no-kill animal rescue and adoption organization.

and talk with a veterinarian about prevention products to keep cats safe.

- Change litter regularly to maintain a fresh and healthy litter box for cats.
- Watch for signs of heat stress, including glazed eyes, a rapid heart beat, excessive thirst, restlessness, lack of coordination, unconsciousness, deep red or purple tongue and vomiting.

Dogs need more love during mosquito season

As a parent, you would never consider sending your child to school without the proper vaccinations.

But did you know that according to the American Animal Hospital Association, about 50 percent of dogs in the United States go without preventative treatment for one of the most common diseases among canines?

Many people consider their dogs to be part of the family.

And with mosquito season in full swing, dog owners should consider the best way to protect dogs against heartworm disease.

Mosquito bites may be just a simple nuisance to humans, but they can spread heartworm disease without pet owners knowing, and dogs are most at risk of becoming seriously ill from the disease.

Heartworm used to be relatively contained in the American southeast, where warm, humid temperatures create good breeding grounds for mosquitoes.

However, longer warm seasons in northern states and increased pet travel throughout the country have led to dramatic growth in the spread of heartworm over the past decade. Veterinarians in regions that were once considered low-risk now report heartworm outbreaks in their clinics, and the parasite can now be found in all 50 states.

Recognizing heartworm infection can be tricky. Symptoms include chronic cough and fatigue, but often the disease does not show any signs until it reaches an advanced stage.

Eventually, heartworm can lead to lung, heart, liver and kidney failure.

Fortunately, heartworm prevention is simple, cost effective, and the best way to save dogs from the long, difficult and expensive treatment required once infection takes hold.

Here are a few ways to keep dogs safe:

- The American Heartworm Society recommends getting your dog tested annually for heartworm. During these visits, talk to your veterinarian about the best method of prevention against the disease.

- Protect your dog with a monthly application of a heartworm preventative medication. Some topicals, like Advantage Multi for Dogs (imidacloprid + moxidectin) Topical Solution, also kill fleas and treat intestinal parasites, such as hookworms, roundworms and whipworms.

- During warmer months, keep your dog inside as much as possible during early morning and dusk when mosquitoes are most active.

Through annual testing and use of monthly preventatives, you can protect your dog from heartworm disease and help keep your dog healthy. If you haven't thought about prevention before, now is the time in the peak of mosquito season. For more information on heartworm prevention, visit advantagemulti.petparents.com.
