Trial set in Chelsea Lumber dispute

By Art Aisner
Special Writer

A Washtenaw County judge recently set a September trial date in a revived case that questions business practices at Chelsea Lumber.

Circuit Judge Timothy Connors said he will let a jury decide whether officials with the company misrepresented their agreement with garage builder Lenard Kozma, and steered business to other contractors for kickbacks, court records show.

That was not the result when Kozma first brought the case in 2007, and Connors summarily dismissed all nine accusations shortly after the filing.

Without a written contract, Kozma failed to demonstrate a "meeting of the minds" between he and company officials, Connors ruled, according to court documents. Once the verbal agreement Kozma believed he had reached to become the company's exclusive garage builder was nullified, any of the remaining counts had no legal standing.

But Kozma appealed and hired an attorney, Lawrence

Bunting, after representing himself during the initial round. His persistence paid off in July, when the Michigan Court of Appeals reversed Connors' ruling.

Justices Alton Davis, Pat Donofrio and Cynthia Diane Stephens agreed that Connors correctly determined that neither party had a mutual understanding of how long the agreement was to last from the evidence provided. There also was no understanding of how the contract could be terminated by either party.

But those rulings alone should not have been reason for the entire case to be dismissed without further exploring the facts, they found.

"Although the trial court correctly included that the parties did not reach a mutual agreement relating to the length of the contract, the trial court erroneously concluded that the lack of mutuality regarding certain terms was fatal to the agreement as a whole," they wrote in their nine-page decision.

Kozma said the appellate court reinforced his belief that Connors dismissed the case too quickly and that he feels somewhat vindicated.

He said he was also ecstatic that Connors also reversed more than $18,000 in fines and legal fees assessed after the case was initially dismissed.

But Kozma said he wouldn't be satisfied until he has his day in court.

Kozma claimed the alleged misrepresentation cost him financially because he did not get every referral, and, due to the agreement, passed up other jobs so that he could always be

Forum on Islam set for Jan. 17

By Sheila Pufsglove
Special Writer

Despite being a majority religion in about 50 countries, the Islamic faith remains a mystery to many Americans.

A group of local residents hopes to change that by hosting a forum, "Differences without Divisions: Islam in America," set for 7 p.m. Jan. 17 at the Chelsea District Library 221 S. Main St., in Chelsea. The event helps to celebrate Martin Luther King Day.

"I think, on the whole, there's a lot of interest in the community in learning more about what it means to be Muslim in this area, and also an interest in a more balanced perspective on Islam and its practitioners," said organizer Micky Howe of Chelsea.

"We're hopeful that by having this forum, it will increase understanding and tolerance for people who believe and live differently than ourselves. I strongly believe that seeds of peace can be planted in our small towns and hopefully lead to a transformation in attitudes on a larger scale."

Last year, Howe's daughter made a number of Muslim friends at the University of Michigan and in her all-women student dorm. Howe and her husband, Ray, hosted about a dozen of these women for a "halla" Thanksgiving dinner, and later the Howes enjoyed the hospitality of a Muslim family in Dearborn.

"I realized these young people are hopeful and excited about their future, in their professions, creating their families and experiencing the opportunities offered in our country, and they consider themselves 100 percent American. The idea of this forum came out of that experience," Howe said.

She gathered a group of residents for an organizational meeting last August. The group numbers 15 and includes members of Chelsea's One World, One Family Task Force.

Three nationally known Islamic leaders will discuss contemporary issues for Muslims living in America; a place for Muslims in the world today; American media representations of Islam and its practitioners; Islam and youth; the role of women in Islam; Islam and humanitarian service; and the future of Islam and its role in America and the world.

Imam Sayid Hassan Al-Qazwini is a scholar and religious leader at the Islamic Center of America in Dearborn, and a past consultant to The White House, U.S. State Department and Defense Department on Muslim affairs.

Najah Bazy is a nurse specializing in trans-cultural health care and is the founding chair and president of Zaman International, providing food, food assistance and holiday food boxes to those in need.

Dawud Walid is executive director of the Michigan Chapter of the Council on American-Islamic Relations, a chapter of America's largest advocacy and civil liberties organization for Muslims.

Walid, who served in the U.S. Navy and earned two U.S. Navy and Marine Corps Achievement medals, serves as assistant imam at Masjid Wali Muhammad in Detroit, and as board trustee for the Metropolitan Detroit Interfaith Workers' Rights Committee. He has spoken at many institutions of higher learning about Islam and interfaith dialogue, presented on prominent panel discussions and, in 2008, delivered the closing benediction at the 52nd Michigan Electoral College in the Michigan State Senate chambers.

Walid, who has made the Islamic pilgrimage Hajj to Mecca twice and traveled to many nations, including Egypt, Israel, Turkey and the United Arab Emirates, has been interviewed, quoted, and published in such media outlets as Al-Jazeera, CNN, BBC World Service Radio, FOX, National Public Radio, the New York Times, Saudi TV 2, USA Today and the Wall Street Journal.

The forum, endorsed by the Chelsea Rotary Club and the Adult Learner's Institute, will be moderated by journalist David Crumm, who spent more than 20 years as the Detroit Free Press religion writer before leaving in 2007 to become editor of ReadTheSpirit.com, and ReadTheSpiritBooks.com.

Forget the Pop-Tarts and puddings. Bring on the fruit and veggies. Students at North Creek and South Meadows have challenged each other for the month of January to see which group of students can rack up the most servings of fruit and vegetables eaten during the school day.

Lisa Nickel, principal of South Meadows Elementary School, said that the goal is for students at each school to eat at least 7,500 servings, for a total of 15,000 between the two schools. Only food eaten at school can be counted, so classroom teachers are keeping track of the total numbers.

If the students meet the minimum goal, they will be rewarded with a fun assembly of Wacky Winter Olympics — the staff of North competing against the staff of South.

Firefighter resigns

By Art Aisner
Special Writer

A Chelsea firefighter resigned Thursday after police and department officials investigated an alleged incident involving a weapon.

Chief Jim Payeur said that Capt. Sam Norton was moving on and possibly into a new career after the eight-year veteran of the Chelsea Area Fire Authority formally resigned.

Norton was the subject of an investigation that lasted several weeks after a co-worker reported Norton for bringing a weapon into the station and possibly pointing it at them.

Payeur said the incident was not immediately reported but that police were notified when the allegations surfaced. He declined to discuss specifics.

"We were looking at some things that were brought to our attention, and he decided that he was going to change career paths," Payeur said, without elaborating.

Neither Toth nor Payeur would confirm or deny the weapon involved was a gun and/or rifle. Toth requested further inquiries be obtained through Michigan's Freedom of Information Act, which could take up to two weeks to process.

Attempts to reach Norton were unsuccessful Friday. Both Payeur and Chelsea

Police Chief Ed Toth were adamant that the incident was not criminal in nature.

"We were called to the fire department to look into something they brought to our attention and determined it was more of an internal situation than any crime," Toth said.

"We will not be forwarding the report to prosecutors," Payeur said Lt. Derek Klink was promoted to captain and that the lieutenant spot will likely be filled after officials review the position.

"We had an investigation into the matter, the police were involved, and the end result was that nothing was criminally done," Payeur said.

Sentence postponed for Saline man who violated court order

The sentencing hearing for a Saline man convicted of larceny and misdemeanor criminal sexual conduct charges was delayed last week.

Raymond Jewell, 49, will be sentenced Jan. 24 on one count of larceny from a person and one count of fourth-degree criminal sexual conduct, court records show.

He was to be sentenced last week in Washtenaw County

Circuit Court, but the hearing was delayed while prosecutors and court officials investigate reported violations of a court order.

Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Melinda Morris will also hear arguments that time for a bond determination that she ordered upon learning that Jewell called one of the victims after Morris granted his release last month. She specifically ordered him not to contact either victim as a condition of his release, court records show.

Police said Jewell also sent the same victim a letter, which likely will be considered another violation of Morris' order.

Jewell had been in custody since Saline police arrested him in July after a 33-year-old neighbor said he entered her apartment in the 200 block of North Maple Road unannounced twice in the same day.

During one of the encounters, he groped and kissed her before she kicked him out, police said.

Jewell pleaded no contest to the charges shortly before he was scheduled to stand trial. A no contest plea is not an admission of guilt, but is treated that way for sentencing purposes in Michigan courts.

Repeat arsonist convicted for Augusta Township blaze

An Ypsilanti man who was once sentenced as a serial arsonist will likely return to prison for burning down a home last year in Augusta Township.

Gregory Craig, 45, last week pleaded guilty as charged to one count of arson of a dwelling, Washtenaw County court records show. Prosecutors agreed to drop counts of breaking and entering with intent to commit arson, and being a habitual offender at sentencing Feb. 3.

Craig has been in custody since Michigan State Police troopers located him near the scene of a suspicious house fire in the 7000 block of Talladay Road last June. The home was vacant and no one was injured.

Fire officials deemed it a total loss and determined the cause was arson. Craig underwent a mental competency evaluation at the Center for Forensic Psychiatry and was deemed fit for trial in the fall. Attorneys requested an independent evaluation in November as both sides prepared for a trial date early this year.

It was unclear from court records whether a sentencing agreement in place.

Craig, who remains in custody without bond, has eight prior convictions for arson and arson-related crimes that date back to 1999. He was paroled in 2008 after serving nearly six years of a maximum 20-year prison sentence, prison records show.

Judge sends Chelsea man to prison on indecent exposure charges

The Chelsea man accused of exposing himself to shoppers at a local grocery store on more than one occasion is going to prison.

Washtenaw County court records show Stephen Groening, 37, was ordered to serve between 3 1/2 to 10 years in the Michigan Department of Corrections last week.

He pleaded guilty to one count of aggravated indecent exposure by a sexually delinquent person in December.

Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputies arrested Groening outside the Meijer store at 5645 Jackson Road, in Scio Township Sept. 18, 2010. Deputies were responding to a call from one of two women who saw him masturbating in his vehicle parked in the lot, officials said.

Further investigation revealed that Groening conducted similar activity on other occasions at the same store that was not reported to authorities, said Derrick Jackson, the department's director of community engagement.

Officials said Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Donald Shelton took Groening's prior history of sex-related offenses into consideration while implementing the sentencing agreement.

Court records show Groening was convicted of one count of attempted fourth-degree criminal sexual conduct in Lenawee County in 2009. He was placed on probation, but it was revoked in April because he did not attend a mandatory sex-offender treatment program.

Shelton credited him for 108 days already served in the Washtenaw County Jail since his arrest.

Motorist faces trial on charges stemming from friend's death

A Wayne County woman who was allegedly at fault in a crash with a truck that killed her teenage friend was recently ordered to stand trial on negligent homicide charges.

Court records show that Sapna Viridi, 18, formally waived her right to a preliminary hearing in Washtenaw County District Court last week and stood mute to the felony charge.

She was released on a personal recognizance bond and is scheduled to appear in Washtenaw County Circuit Court for a pre-trial hearing Feb. 28.

Viridi, of Canton Township, was reportedly driving her 2008 Toyota Corolla on North Territorial Road near Gotfredson Road in Superior Township Oct. 20, 2010, when the crash occurred. Police said she apparently stopped at a stop sign, but continued on and into the path of a box truck.

Arashdeep Cheema, a passenger in Viridi's vehicle, died in the crash. He was 18.

Fourth-grade teacher Carly Groves, who is leading the effort at South Meadows, said that she has noticed students in her class bringing more fruit and vegetables to eat at snack time since the challenge began.

"Fruit choices seem to be more popular with the kids, but there are a few who prefer veggies," she said. "Teachers and lunchroom staff are working together to educate the kids about healthy choices."

Kelly Baker, the second-grade teacher chairing the effort at North Creek, said that her students are adventurous about trying new foods. They reported eating vegetables in soup and salads, and some also like exotic fruits such as star fruit and quince.

North Creek Principal Marcus Kaemming said that January was selected for the challenge because it's a notoriously tough time of year to eat healthy and be physically active, and many parents may be more conscious of fitness following the holidays.

"When we ask our young children if they know what the word 'resolution' means, the number one answer they give is 'to lose weight,'" Kaemming said with a chuckle.

He said that it's known that obesity is a health problem, and that children should be eating more fruit and vegetables than they do. Success, however, requires a family effort.

"They're doing a wonderful job," Kaemming said. "Every indication is that they'll meet the goal. I'm shocked at how geeked up everyone is about it."

Baker added, "North teachers are going to win."

"They not only destroyed my relationship with Chelsea Lumber, which I had for 35 years, but they destroyed my ability to make a living," Kozma said. "I got my business ripped out from under me."

Dick McCalla, co-owner, vice president and general manager of the chain construction company and supplier, said the case is moving forward.

"It's too bad the case is going ahead and has taken place at all," he said when reached by phone Monday morning. "But we're going to go forward and do what we have to do."

Ann Arbor-based attorney Emily Palacios, who is representing Chelsea Lumber, declined comment on the case. The lawsuit also names four

How much and what should they be eating?

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, elementary-aged school children should generally be eating three to five servings of vegetables and two to four servings of fruit each day.

Children should also eat a variety of vegetables throughout the week: dark green (broccoli and spinach), yellow/orange (carrots and squash), beans and peas, starch (potatoes and corn) and other vegetables (cabbage and green beans.)

By visiting www.mypyramid.gov and choosing the interactive tool "My Pyramid Plan," parents can learn the specific number of servings a day their child should eat based on age, gender, weight and height. The website also lists many commonly eaten vegetables in each subgroup.

Maria Corneller, a University of Michigan dietitian, suggested ways to increase fruit and vegetable consumption:

Eat soups like squash, bean, split pea, and vegetable.

Eat dark green leafy salads and add purple cabbage.

Combine and build up — add vegetables to sandwiches, omelets and rice.

Wrap sweet potatoes in foil and grill for a caramelized taste treat.

Add dried fruit to hot or cold cereal.

current or former employees and contractors. It also names Creekside Construction and alleges the Stockbridge-based company was a key player in undercutting Kozma's business.

The justices found the evidence provided by Kozma could be viewed by a jury as proof of legal misrepresentation.

"If a fact-finder concluded that the Creekside defendants were aware of the agreement with Chelsea Lumber, it could further be concluded that those defendants approached Chelsea Lumber and its employees and provided gifts in exchange for referrals that would have otherwise gone to (Kozma)," the opinion states.

Company officials could not be reached for comment.

still have never had a personal conversation with one of our Muslim neighbors here in the United States," Crumm said. "This Chelsea event is a great opportunity to talk face to face and ask questions."

"Most Americans don't know anything about Islam except maybe that Muslims read the Quran, they bow to the ground when they pray and some terrorists have twisted the faith of Islam like a pretzel to justify their warped personal agendas. This public forum is a quick way to learn a lot about Islam in a helpful setting. We plan to share some really interesting facts and people can come to raise those questions that seem puzzling right now."

"The whole panel is made up of people who are respected across the U.S. for their wisdom and their community service."

Crumm said some people may be nervous about coming to an event that focuses on a completely different culture, and that many Americans feel real frustration and fear about cultures that seem so different from their own traditional American ways.

"But this forum in Chelsea won't be an experience that should make anyone nervous. It won't be a shouting match. We're all coming in a good spirit, donating our time for a good cause," he said.

As a moderator, Crumm has welcomed men and women from across Michigan to public events over many years.

"We always have a wonderful time and learn a lot," he said. "If people are curious about this event, I'd say, 'Come along and you'll probably enjoy the experience.'"

However, the appellate court was very clear in its ruling that Kozma's case still faces an uphill climb.

Where (Kozma) lacks knowledge regarding the terms of the contract, and where there is no documentary evidence or testimony in support of the plaintiff's argument, it would be improper to conclude (The Chelsea Lumber Co.) clearly and unequivocally offered the plaintiff the lifetime position of exclusive garage builder," the ruling stated.

Connors set a case schedule with several benchmarks, including deposition of all witnesses by April 21, records show. He will evaluate the case in July and already scheduled a settlement conference in August, in case of a possible agreement before the Sept. 12 trial.

Compiled by freelance journalist Art Aisner. He can be reached by e-mail at aaisner@comcast.net.

State Rep. Mark Ouimet, R-52nd District, will deliver the opening remarks for the forum. "I'll talk about the impact of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and how, through diversity, we have built strength," Ouimet said.

"This forum is a very positive opportunity for people to see and listen to the differences, and also the commonalities of what we are as Americans."

The presentations will be followed by questions and discussion with the speakers.

The library will also host a Young People's Forum from 1 to 3 p.m., with a film about being Muslim and a discussion over snacks, facilitated by students from U of M Muslim Student Association and local adults. Young adults and parents are welcome.

Washtenaw County commissioners sworn in

Four newest board members get acclimated

By Austen Smith
Heritage Media

Four new faces appeared at the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners meeting Jan. 5 as the newly elected officials attended their first meeting and were sworn in to their two-year terms by Judge Donald Shelton.

Commissioners Rob Turner, R-1st District; Dan Smith, R-2nd District; Alicia Ping, R-3rd District; and Yousef Rabhi, D-11th District, all introduced themselves to a large audience after attending a meet-and-greet with county administration and area community leaders.

The newly elected officials succeed Mark Ouimet, Ken Schwartz, Jessica Ping and Jeff Irwin, respectively. Ouimet and Irwin were elected to state-level seats, while Schwartz was recently appointed to the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

Many of the new commissioners' family and friends were in the audience and they briefly talked about their background and what had brought them to the county board.

Rabhi, who won by one vote over Ann Arbor resident Mike Fried, said his "heart was racing" and introduced some family and supporters.

"I want to thank you all for believing in me," he said.

Ping said many of her family members were in attendance including former county commissioner Alicia Ping, who is her sister.

Turner had served for many years on the Chelsea school board and brings the most experience of the four newly elected officials. He coaxed a laugh from the audience by offering a moment of levity

"I want to thank you all for believing in me."

"I represent the No. 1 district in the county," he joked.

Commissioner Conan Smith, D-10th District, was elected.

chairman of the board. He had previously served as chairman of Ways and Means Committee for the past two years, and Alicia Ping was named vice chairwoman of the board.

Rolland Sizemore, D-5th District, was elected chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and Dan Smith was elected as vice chairman.

Newcomer Rabhi was immediately thrust into a leadership role as he was elected chairman of the Working Session, while Turner was named vice chairman.

Smith's wife, Rebekah Warren, who was elected to the state Senate's 18th District in November, was also in attendance.

Commissioners tighten language on use of staff

Sizemore objects to adding another level of oversight

By Austen Smith
Heritage Media

A proposed clarification of rules and regulations adopted by the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners ruffled some collective feathers during an otherwise uneventful first meeting of 2011.

After four new board members were sworn in by Judge Donald Shelton, a proposal to tighten up language governing commissioners' use of county staff and resources caused some debate among board members who felt the change would hinder outside projects.

Conan Smith, D-10th District, who was elected to serve as board chairman, said the language was merely meant to clarify existing state laws regulating elected officials' reach of authority over county employees.

"It's not designed to prohibit anyone from asking questions of the staff or soliciting support," Smith stated in a memo.

Others on the board, however, did not see it as such.

"If I have a project that I'm working on, this means I have to come back to this board and present a work plan? And we have to get five other people to agree with this project?" said Rolland Sizemore, D-5th District.

Sizemore went on to say by essentially creating another level of oversight, a lot of the projects he works on representing the county wouldn't bear fruit.

"If you're telling me that I can't do Youth Summit because (the other commissioners) don't feel that Youth Summit is important, well I have a problem with that.

"There should be some controls on how much staff time you can use ... but good luck if you're telling me I can't do something. I have different interests (in my district) than these other commissioners."

Leah Gunn, D-9th District, said the change was directed more toward commissioners' behavior in an effort to make better use of countywide resources. She doubted that anybody on the board would ever vote down one of Sizemore's projects if it were beneficial to the county.

"(Sizemore) has had a lot of interesting projects that have been beneficial to this county. Nobody has ever said no ... and I don't see that changing," she said. "This is simply a rule of behavior that we already should be doing, and if we're not doing it than we should start doing it."

Gunn also said that the current budget year, as the county attempts to negotiate a more than $12 million deficit, is probably not the best time to bring forth new initiatives anyway.

There was also discussion about the relationship between county staff and elected officials. Smith addresses this in the memo stating that he has more than likely "overstepped his authority" on occasion. He added, "...by reiterating and clarifying our interpretation of state law, it reinforces the internal chain of command and reminds us all that we must be cognizant of 'who's the boss' of a staff member, especially in these times when staff are severely overworked and resources are at a minimum."

Barbara Levin-Bergman, D-8th District, said it's difficult for county employees to say no to a commissioner's request.

"As commissioners, we're pretty scary people," Bergman said. "We control the budget, so we basically control your job by policy or by budgeting."

Bergman said they need to make efforts to empower county staff to address issues with their department head or manager. With that, Kristin Judge, D-7th District, said she supported the language clarification and the idea of tightening the reins on commissioners' use of staff time.

"We need to have a countywide policy or attitude change that commissioners are not above reproach. Commissioners are not above the rules," Judge said.

Upon calling the question, the motion to adopt the rules clarification was passed unanimously.

Program draws attention to needs at shelter

By Jodie Mason
Heritage Media

The Humane Society of Huron Valley's new shelter has been open for a little over a year, and new programs have been created to draw attention to common adoption issues.

Programs such as Undiscovered Treasures and For Pit's Sake offer incentives for families to welcome a furry friend into their homes.

"One of the promotions we have going on right now is called Undiscovered Treasures, and any animal that's been with us longer than 60 days is an Undiscovered Treasure, and Lewis Jewelers in Ann Arbor is providing a $250 gift card for the program," said Deb Kern, marketing director for the Humane Society of Huron Valley.

"So if you adopt one of these animals, (your name gets) put into a drawing and on March 1 we'll pick out a winner, and that person gets the $250 gift card. It's a neat little promotion, but we probably have 70 animals that have been here longer than 60 days."

Another promotion being offered at the Humane Society is called For Pit's Sake, which offers families a reduced adoption rate for puppy and adult pit bulls and pit mixes.

"We really believe in the breed at the Humane Society," Kern said.

"Some places won't even put them up for adoption any longer. But, here, we really believe in them. They're so overpopulated and overbred in the Ypsilanti area and for the wrong reasons. But we're reducing their price for a couple of months, just to see if we can find them homes," she said.

Kern hopes these programs will bring potential pet parents into the shelter, which will in turn match the right pet with the right family and hopefully reduce the number of unwanted cats in the area.

"The Humane Society of Huron Valley is celebrating the 2011 Year of the Cat," Kern said. "Unfortunately, our feline friends still suffer huge overpopulation and continue to be devalued and misunderstood by society."

Kern hopes to educate local residents about the multitude of benefits that owning a cat can bring. She cited lower stress and anxiety, reduced blood pressure and helping children with autism improve their communication skills.

As a part of their Year of the Cat program, the Humane Society is offering a low-cost spay or neuter option until Feb. 15. The shelter also offers a Trap, Neuter and Return program that assists in lowering the number of stray cats in the area.

"Like most animal shelters, HSHV is still inundated with unwanted and homeless cats and kittens," Kern said.

"It's believed that 75 percent of homeless cats are euthanized in animal shelters each year. At HSHV, we are fortunate to be able to save 80 percent of those that come through our door, but this takes tremendous energy, commitment, creativity and resources."

For more information about the Humane Society of Huron Valley, visit www.hshv.org.

The Humane Society is located at 3100 Cherry Hill Road in Ann Arbor. It's open for adoptions seven days a week from noon to 6 p.m.

Historical society to hold antiques show

Event set Saturday at Farm Council Grounds

By Steven Howard
Heritage Media

The Saline Area Historical Society will host its annual antiques show at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds Saturday, with event organizers promising a vast assortment of vintage items available for purchase.

Though the show takes place in the middle of winter, event co-chairwoman Linda Greb said shopping will be dry and comfortable.

"It's all in one building and it's heated," she said. "In general, it's a big variety."

There will be something for most every collector's taste and style, Greb said.

"We have one dealer who has beautiful primitives, and another who will have sewing notions," she said. "One person does decoys and fishing lures, and there will be dealers that have furniture and jewelry. One dealer deals in prints."

In total, shoppers will be able to spend the day visiting well over 30 varying booths.

"We're around 34 or 35 (dealers)," Greb said. "That's all we can fit."

What really sets the historical society's show apart from the rest, organizers say, is the concerted effort to make the show appeal to as many attendees as possible.

"Some antique shows only deal in glass," Greb said. "When I walk into a show like that, I just turn right around and leave."

After not having many opportunities to shop for antiques over the past several cold weather months, Greb said people come from far and wide to attend the show at the farm council grounds, snow or shine.

"They just like to get out this time of year," she said. "We get a crowd."

Fairly consistent attendance numbers are a blessing to the historical society, as fellow event co-chairwoman Janet Swope told The Reporter in December.

"We just have the one (antiques) sale, and it's our biggest fundraiser of the year," she said. "It mostly goes into our general fund and most of it goes toward education."

Money raised help facilitate educational programs the historical society offers, Swope said, such as the various interpretative activities offered at Rentschler Farm beginning every May and lasting throughout the summer and fall.

There also will be plenty of food choices available made by a group of local Scouts to help fund their own activities.

"The Girl Scouts do all the food," Swope said. "They also make their famous apple pies that will be for sale."

The soups made by the Scouts are very tasty, and are the perfect thing to eat on a cold winter's day, Greb said.

Greb said quite a bit of work goes into orchestrating the annual antique show.

"We pretty much start at the end of August," she said.

There is only a small fee for admission. "It's $3 per person for admission and parking is free," Greb said.

Doors will open at 8 a.m. and the show will run until 5 p.m.

For more information, call 429-3164 or 944-0713.

Better Business Bureau lists top 10 scams of 2010

The Better Business Bureau recently released a list of the top 10 scams and rip-offs of 2010, and job hunters and those struggling to make money and get out of debt were common targets of fraudsters, hackers and deceptive businesses.

"With the economy still on the mend, scammers had a field day targeting struggling families who were looking for work and trying to make ends meet," said Melanie Duquesnel, president and CEO of the Better Business Bureau Serving Eastern Michigan and the Upper Peninsula, in a news release.

"While some of the most popular scams are perennial problems that have always plagued consumers, some new additions to the list are signs of our tough economic times."

Following, in no particular order, is the Better Business Bureau's list of top scams and rip-offs that took advantage of consumers and small business owners in 2010:

Job hunter scams

Scams targeting job hunters vary and include attempts to gain access to personal information such as bank account or social security numbers and requirements to pay a fee in order to even be considered for the job.

Debt relief and settlement services

BBB warned consumers in 2010 to seriously consider third-party assistance for getting out of debt. These companies often require upfront fees and potentially leave the consumer drowning in even more debt.

Complaints to BBB about debt relief and settlement services increased by approximately 30 percent in 2010, according to tentative year-end estimates.

Work from home schemes

Some work from home schemes promise to teach the secrets to making money online, while others claim you can make money assembling items at home or get paid to be a mystery shopper. Some victims even found that their opportunity to work from home was a job to fence stolen goods.

The end result is that instead of getting paid, you can end up losing hundreds — if not thousands — of dollars

Timeshare resellers

Complaints to the BBB about the timeshare industry — including deceptive resellers — increased by more than 40 percent according to 2010 estimates.

Timeshare owners who are desperate to get rid of their costly vacation property are being targeted by companies that claim they have an eager buyer.

The company tells the seller they just have to pay up to several thousand dollars to cover fees. After paying the fees, the seller never hears from the company again.

Not so "free" trial offers

Misleading free trial offers online for diet supplements, penny auctions and money making schemes blanket the internet resulting in thousands of complaints ever year. The free trial offers seem no-risk but complainants state they were repeatedly billed every month and found it extremely difficult to cancel.

Itinerant home repair/roofers

BBBs across the country received complaints from consumers who answered a knock from a door to door salesman or itinerant worker who eventually failed to deliver on promises to fix their roof or conduct other work to the home.

Complaints to BBB about roofing companies increased by roughly 40 percent in 2010, according to tentative estimates, due in part to one company that solicited door to door, American Shingle, which received nearly 1,000 complaints nationwide after going bankrupt and not providing new roofs to angry customers.

Lottery and sweepstakes scams

The victim — often a senior citizen — receives a letter in the mail or phone call from someone pretending to be with Reader's Digest, Publisher's Clearing House or a phony foreign lottery.

The scammer claims that the victim has won millions but must first wire hundreds or even thousands of dollars back to the scammers to cover taxes or some other bogus fee. The victim wires the money, but the prize never arrives.

Identity theft

There are any number of ways a person can become a victim of identity theft. Through low-tech theft, phishing emails, vishing phone calls, smishing text messages or even through no fault of your own as the result of a corporate data breach, millions fall victim to identity theft every year.

Advance fee loan scams

A perennial problem, advance fee loan scams prey on consumers and business owners who are struggling financially.

Follow us on Twitter and Facebook!

twitter.com/
HeritageNews
facebook.com (search for your hometown paper)

Victims are told they qualify for large loans but must pay upfront fees — often more than a thousand dollars. The victim wires money to the scammers, but never receives the loan.

Over-payment scams

Over-payment scams typically target small business owners, landlords or individuals with rooms to rent and sellers on classifieds or sites like Craigslist.

The scammers overpay the amount for the services or products and then ask the victim to wire the extra amount back to them or to another fraudulent entity. Ultimately though, the check is forged, and the victim is out the money wired back to the scammers.

The BBB cautions consumers to research a business before signing contracts or handing over money.

Consumers and business owners victimized by a scam can file a complaint with the Better Business Bureau at bbb.org.

Lansing needs to put words into action

Gov. Rick Snyder's inaugural address on New Year's Day was a powerful call for bipartisanship at a time in Michigan's history when elected officials desperately need to work together.

Although the address was only about 10 minutes long, it should serve as a blueprint for effective government for the coming legislative session.

Like you, I'm tired of the petty partisan politics that have held sway in Lansing, and in Washington, for that matter, over the last few years. As a member of the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners, I always understood that nothing will get accomplished if elected officials get mired in party rancor.

That's why the inaugural address gave me such great hope for the future. Quoting President Abraham Lincoln, Snyder said: "The dogmas of the quiet past are inadequate to stormy present."

GUEST COLUMN

MARK QUIMET

The occasion is piled high with difficulty, and we must rise to the occasion. As our case is new, so we must think anew and act anew."

All elected officials have a choice. They can rise to the challenges facing this great state or continue with the politics as usual. There are signs that positive change is coming. Many elected leaders, both Republican and Democrat, are calling for less animosity and more understanding in state government.

I have always strived for the bipartisan approach, even before I entered politics. It's easy to find common ground with other elected officials if the time is taken time to try. We all want to do what is best for our communities, make our neighborhoods even better places to live and leave our areas better than we found them. Party labels must never get in the way of doing right by our constituents.

We must now put words into action. I truly believe we are starting a new bipartisan era in Michigan. Rick Snyder talked about cooperation, courage and innovation. These strong sentiments need to be fulfilled by legislators and the administration alike to ensure our success.

If we focus on achieving positive outcomes, instead of who gets the credit, we can move Michigan forward and help the many families who are struggling right now. I, for one, will take the road currently less traveled in Lansing and work with all my legislative colleagues to do what is right for Michigan and Washtenaw County. It is my sincere hope that I will not walk alone.

If you have an issue or topic you would like to discuss with me or to see written about in my column, please let me know. I look forward to hearing comments and concerns from you on how we can work together to improve Michigan.

Mark Quimet is the state representative for the 52nd House District. He can be reached at 1-517-373-0828 or markouimet@house.mi.gov.

OUR TAKE: Editorial Protecting the environment is essential, but to what extreme?

The price of oil has climbed to well over $3 a gallon and appears to be only headed up. Experts are blaming falling supplies and increased demand in the United States.

One oil executive, John Hofmeister, an ex-president of Shell Oil Co., has predicted the cost of a gallon of gas could hit $6 by 2012. That's not a pleasant thought for most people. It won't affect the wealthy and may only pinch a few upper middle class people. But, for most of us, it will be a huge bite out of our already tight family budgets.

We hope the prediction doesn't come true. The climbing prices do cry out for some immediate action, but before we do anything, we have to decide who we believe. Are the oil companies giving us accurate facts about production and demand? Is this an effort to merely blackmail Americans and force President Obama to lift the ban on offshore oil drilling?

We're not sure, but it's ironic that just a few months ago, various groups — most, if not all supported by the major oil companies — were running media advertisements urging people to write their Congressmen and oppose the proposed "cap and trade" legislation. The ads claimed the environmentally-related proposals would push the cost of gas up at least $1 a gallon. Now, with cap and trade pretty much dead, the price is predicted to skyrocket more than $2 a gallon.

Does that mean cap and trade wasn't so bad? Maybe. We're not trying to paint the oil companies as bad guys. They're out to make a profit and that's the name of the game. But as consumers, we have a choice, and it's not an easy one. Do we believe the oil companies or the environmentalists? Both groups are admittedly biased in their views.

Who is giving us the most accurate information? We don't know. The only thing that is obvious is the rising price of gasoline, which is not a luxury but a staple for most people. The alternatives, at this point, are few. Pay the skyrocketing price of gas and still try to save the environment? Take a chance the oil drillers will truly try to protect the environment and so open up drilling along our coast lines? It's a judgment call.

But it appears we can't get from point A (dependence on oil — much of it imported from countries that are not friendly to the United States) to point C (energy independence) without going through step B.

This latter step could be elusive and convoluted, but it probably is a transitional phase that involves increased drilling in the near future along with increased use of our available natural resources — coal and nuclear energy. Also, for those who can afford one, the auto companies are coming out with various versions of the electric car.

Protecting the environment is essential, but to what extreme or at what cost?

We wish we had the answers but based on commonsense and logic, we need Step B, with oversight by the public, i.e. the government, to produce the energy that we need now at a reasonable cost and not harm the environment.

Is it possible? We hope so.

Your Voice: Letters to the Editor

Outdoor column was balanced

Thank you for Rick Taylor's opinion article in the Dec. 23 editions of Heritage Newspapers. Though rushing through a set of things before leaving town on a business trip, I saw the article and stopped to read it.

Taylor's words were balanced, sympathetic to others' perspectives, but with some teeth. That is to say, he took the time and made the effort to research the "data" he refuted, a practice which is all too often ignored.

Yes, I have been known to harvest an animal or two over the last 44 years as my father first took me hunting when I was 10 years old. Hunting was one of those things that provided very formative and memorable times with my dad and my brothers, taught me certain things about being a man, and gave me a great respect and appreciation for nature.

Though I have been a member of a religious order for more than 25 years and didn't have the great blessing of having children of my own, I have been sure to take time to teach young men how to hunt, hoping that I might pass on to them some of what my dad gave me through such experiences. The character traits, knowledge and skills that hunting require — patience, fortitude, observation, understanding animal behavior, safe gun handling and use — as well as the aspects of hunting that are "less fun" but necessary — processing one's own and others' animals — help others be successful in their hunt, helping young men traverse the ground from boyhood to manhood.

It has been a great experience to be able to pass on and teach young men what my father taught me.

It is good to have people out there who can compellingly argue and defend, in the balanced way that you did, the value of hunting.

Stop focusing on the past, look at the future for a diverse America

I'd like to respond to the recent letter titled "Our nation has forgotten its religious beginning." The letter reviews some of the early history of America, focusing on the dominant Christian beliefs at the time, with the ultimate point being that America has in some way declined recently due to our movement away from these beliefs.

There are a couple of things wrong with this thesis. First, early America had many different branches of Christianity, often in violent disagreement with each other. Saying that we used to be a Christian nation really paints things with an overly broad brush.

In the earliest days of the colonies, most colonists were, of course, from England, which was at that time undergoing violent turmoil due to the movement from Catholicism to Protestantism. This conflict crossed the ocean and there are numerous recorded incidents of repression and violence between the two branches of Christianity in the early days of our country, with Catholics often taking the brunt of it.

Beyond that conflict, Protestant groups like the Puritans were deeply threatened by other new Protestant groups like the Quakers, and there are numerous examples of Quakers being whipped and hung, simply for disagreeing with standard Puritan beliefs.

So the first question I have is: When we look back fondly at the early Christian days, exactly which branch of Christianity are we talking about? It's obvious that even in the early days of our country, there was no single Christian identity that the entire country embraced.

Of course, factual details like that really aren't as important as the overall message of the letter. The main message in the letter was that since our country was founded by primarily Christian people, we should respect that and continue to cherish those beliefs.

Well, the country was also founded by slave owners. The white men who ran things in the early days of our country universally considered black people to be less than human. Slave owners felt justified by the Bible to torture and murder slaves whenever they wished. Since this was such a strong belief of the founders, and one that was held until the mid-1800s, should we also respect and honor this belief?

Obviously not. Many things have changed since the early days of our country. We don't burn women at the stake because they might be witches. We don't lynch black men who look the wrong way at a white woman. We don't deny women the right to vote. It's obvious most of us consider these to be positive changes, and yet every one of these beliefs were held dear by the founders.

Yes, America was originally almost totally Christian, but it's not now. Things change. Our country is now made up of people from every corner of the world, with dozens of different religious beliefs, and we're stronger because of it. Fondly looking back 200 years and wishing things were still like they were is really a waste of time, as well as being insulting to the newest members of our country.

I understand that it's threatening to see so many new Americans who don't act or look or sound like they used to, but that's not going to change. The best solution is to stop looking to the past, and focus on contributing to a positive future as part of a diverse America.

Your silence could be deadly

Until recently, there was a subject floating around that was so taboo that some felt the mere mention of it in a public forum would provoke others to consider attempting the heart-wrenching act.

I must admit that up until a year ago, around this time, I would have never guessed my life would be touched by such an event, but sadly enough it has been.

GUEST COLUMN

BOBBIE JONES

On a cold December morning in 2009, I learned of some devastatingly sad news. Two people close to me felt that life was no longer worth living and decided to take their own lives. One of those individuals was so close to me that the pain is still so unbearable I can't bring myself to speak of it.

Yes, I am talking about suicide — the subject that everyone tries to avoid and sweep under the rug.

This year, however, with the rash of gay teen and celebrity suicides, the subject matter came blaring into the forefront. In my circles, I couldn't find a single person whose heart didn't break when they heard of the young children being bullied to death at the hands of their very own classmates.

It's so incredibly sad to see someone so lost and at their wits end that they feel the only way out is that dreadful act called suicide. It's also twice as sad that sick, pathetic, twisted bullies walk this Earth and spread their poison. It has been my experience, however, that they are battling some deep hurts themselves. They should seek help as opposed to hurting their fellow man.

But on this day, my heart and voice goes out to those tender lost souls contemplating ending their precious lives. I say to you, please stop and think about what you are doing and please give life another chance.

I know, as well as we all do, that life gets incredibly hard, but no matter how hard this life gets I think of what my mom always told me: "There is nothing too hard for God." And that precious life God has given you is not to be taken lightly.

I also say to parents and caregivers of teens and young adults: Please talk to them and get to know their hearts. That young person needs you, your love and uninterrupted attention — your constant, stable presence in required if you are ever going to reach them.

If you are a teacher or educator and you happen to spot a young person exhibiting the signs of depression or talks or has an unhealthy fascination with death, take them aside and speak with them. Let them know you are available if they ever need to talk to someone and please have the numbers to professionals handy.

The Chelsea Area Historical Society is proudly sponsoring an evening of historic entertainment on Saturday, Jan. 15 at Silver Maples. The event will include a silent auction, dinner with wine, and a presentation by the charismatic Bob Daniels.

According to George Till, CAHS board member and chairman of the Dinner Gala, a number of unique and local items will be available at the auction, including an autographed playbill from "Gods and Generals," the 2003 Civil War epic starring Jeff Daniels.

Bob Daniels, lifelong Chelsea resident and president of Chelsea Lumber Company, will provide the keynote address.

"I expect it to be entertaining as I recount some of the memories of things that went on in the Chelsea area when I was young," said the 81-year-old Daniels.

The dinner menu has not been finalized, but both a meat choice and a vegetarian choice will be available for the seated meal.

Till said that the annual event's purpose is both to highlight people who have been significant to Chelsea's history and to raise funds for ongoing projects.

The society exists to preserve Chelsea's history, collect and maintain artifacts and provide historical education through events, presentations and the museum. Presently, the society is working on moving its artifacts and collections from temporary

LOSING 55 LBS!

DOUG BEFORE

Doug's Success Story:

My sales job had me traveling a ton as well as entertaining customers. I was constantly eating out and snacking on the road at convenience stores. I had 4 kids at home with the oldest only being 14. I had no time to exercise and had no energy to do it if I had wanted. My body was totally "toxic" from all the eating out and snacking. After a period of time my weight shot up to 315 lbs. and I was miserable. I researched on the internet and found The HCG Diet. Further investigating led me to the Metabolic Weightloss Clinic. Since I had graduated from The University of Findlay 16 years earlier I knew Findlay well and called the clinic. I started the 6 week program and the weight started coming off quickly. I also noticed the swelling in my legs was gone as well as the constant sweating I was accustomed to doing. Well after the 6 weeks I had lost around 50 lbs. My life is totally different and I feel like my old self again. All my medical problems are gone as well as my bad eating habits. Thank you Metabolic Weightloss Clinic.

Pilot program helps local single parents

Higher education might seem impossible for young, single parents, but, thanks to a pilot program sponsored by the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, that goal soon will be within reach at Eastern Michigan University.

A program, called "Keys to Degrees," will offer young parents the opportunity to earn a bachelor's degree in three years. The program will provide assistance in balancing academics, work and family obligations.

The program begins in summer 2011. It is designed to have the students live on campus in university apartments, attend classes year-round and, depending on the major selected, be eligible to graduate in three years.

In addition, participants will have mentors with experience in their chosen career path, along with structured internship opportunities and ongoing guidance and instruction from university staff and community members.

Children of these students will attend the EMU Children's Institute on campus.

"Single parents have been historically marginalized and shut out of higher education, due, in large measure, to the expense of high-quality, licensed childcare," said Lynette Findley, assistant vice president of retention and student success at EMU, in a news release.

"This program is an outstanding opportunity to serve the large number of single parents in the greater metro Detroit area in order to improve quality of life for them and for their children." The Keys to Degrees program is open to low-income men and women, ages 18-24, each with only one child age 18 months or older when the program begins. The program will initially be limited to 10 student-parents entering their freshman year.

Interested students must first be admitted to EMU and then apply for the Keys to Degrees program. Qualifying applicants will be interviewed and judged on their commitment to the program.

Once accepted, students will receive academic and personal support; connections to campus and community resources; skill development through workshops and the tools to excel and balance their demands. Enrichment sessions will address the students' unique needs and interests.

"This is a residential program focused on reducing distractions and barriers that often hinder students from earning a college degree," said Elise Buggs, program director.

"Participants will explore EMU and engage in academic and personal activities to expand themselves and positively affect the community."

"We plan to host workshops and semi-annual retreats focused on their unique needs and interests. In addition, Keys to Degrees will coordinate services with various departments that offer tutoring and coaching to all EMU students."

EMU will recruit alumni, staff and community residents with specific experience to mentor the students, Buggs said. "We're looking for internships and hope to create alliances with nonprofit organizations. We're also looking at hosting fundraising events for the program," Findley said.

Funded through a $400,000 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, the project is a joint initiative with Endicott College in Beverly, Mass. EMU's program will replicate Endicott's, which was established in 1992.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Although I am originally from Michigan, I now live in Oregon and teach in the graduate program in urban planning at Portland State University. Last week I advised some students interested in a planning studio project focused on historic preservation/main street redevelopment in a rural Oregon town to look to Chelsea for an example of how a small town has preserved its buildings and character to great economic benefit.

I know Chelsea well having attended the University of Michigan, as well as teaching urban planning at Michigan State University until 2007. Imagine my chagrin when it was brought to my attention that Chelsea's leaders, rather than creatively working to maintain and enhance its historic character, have decided to demolish buildings of historic significance.

In reading the accounts of this decision I've learned that the buildings are on the "gateway" to Chelsea and that "they don't look very good." For me, having driven to Chelsea from East Lansing many times, the funky entry to Chelsea — those buildings, the Jiffy Mix Factory, the railroad tracks are an explicit part of its — charm.

The entry into downtown from the north, in fact, is much more interesting and distinctive than the entry from I-94. As you must know, cities across the U.S., and certainly in Michigan, are struggling economically; tourism-based on heritage is part of a smart economic development strategy. Chelsea has a beautiful town center, a unique agricultural/industrial heritage, a knockout destination restaurant (that we love to see have an outpost in Portland, Ore.) and a great location with its close proximity to Ann Arbor, Detroit and high accessibility due to I-94. I urge city leaders to save those buildings and integrate them into a larger vision of economic development based on heritage resources. Ellen Bassett, Portland, Ore.

Reporter bids farewell to news

By Daye Merchant
Heritage Media

When you start writing news, it is similar to starting to ride a bike. Or maybe I should say remembering how to ride it.

When I started out in this business some 18 years ago, I was a cub news reporter in a small weekly paper up north in Standish. I enjoyed the job, and the people were interesting. I think what I liked most was telling people's stories and about their opinions.

I went from there to a small daily in Kansas where I really sunk my teeth into journalism and learned about news, crime and education writing before hitting sports.

After being with Heritage Media for more than 10 years, I had been given an opportunity to go back into the life of a news reporter — something that was very different from my schedule of writing about sports and the lives of coaches and players. It was interesting and in some regards an, in others, rather difficult.

I had to cover the death of a student who perished in a boating accident during the Labor Day weekend. It was hard, especially as it was the first story I was given when I took over the beat.

Sure, I expected something a little less difficult. But as life happens, it becomes a reporter's job to chronicle it and really be the first person to make today's news into tomorrow's history.

I also had the misfortune of covering a suicide of a young man in Dexter. That was tough for me because the young man was nearly the same age as my eldest child at home.

I like writing news, and I like the pace, but I really must admit I am looking forward to getting back into the swing of things. I like high school sports, and I love that fact that kids will clip out the articles that I write and look at them years from now in scrapbooks. It is almost like a part of the game, or even a part of me, is left in each article I write.

Obviously, the kids don't keep everything that I write, but I know the feature stories and the stories that talk about how good they have done get kept.

It is a living part of history. Whether it is on the Internet or in a regular newspaper, I like to believe someone or someone's grandmother looks at it.

People in both Chelsea and Dexter show a strong sense of community and an even stronger sense of supporting education and their children. I could not have asked for any nicer communities to be a reporter in.

Sure, not everything was easy, and I know I made some mistakes — but you know what? We all lived through it, and now it is my chance to move back to where I feel more comfortable and where I have a better understanding of things.

I may have have started in news, and I may be able to fill in from time to time, but my home is out on the field or in the gym.

I love covering games, talking to coaches and interviewing players.

Thank you Chelsea and Dexter for allowing me to share my experiences and be a small part of these two beautiful communities for a few months. Give me a call or drop me a line. I still want to keep track of what goes on these communities.

Curves adds Zumba class

Hold on to your sports bras — Curves Circuit with Zumba Fitness is here. Millions have lost weight and shaped up with Curves and Zumba, the dance-fitness experts. Now, the two have created the only 30-minute class that mixes the moves of Zumba with the proven strength training of Curves for one wildly effective workout. It's definitely not your mother's workout — but even your mother can do it.

Curves gyms in the Chelsea area will let you try it free for a week to find out for yourself.

"Curves Circuit with Zumba Fitness is an amazing workout that will really help people stick to their New Year's resolutions," Curves Director of Exercise and Research Katie Mitchell said. "It combines Curves' proven strength-training program, where you can burn up to 500 calories in just 30 minutes, with the Latin and international inspired music and exhilarating, simple dance moves that have made Zumba so popular."

The benefits of Curves Circuit with Zumba classes are numerous, according to Mitchell. "This is definitely a boredom-busting workout," Mitchell said. "There's a lot going on to keep your attention and keep you motivated. You're listening to high-energy music that just makes you want to move, watching to make sure you're meeting your goals on the strength machines, and training your body and your brain by learning new dance moves."

All ages, fitness levels and dance abilities can participate in and benefit from Curves Circuit with Zumba Fitness classes. During the 30-minute class, participants work out on each Curves strength machine for one minute, alternating upper, lower and core muscles. After one minute, the music cues the participant to change stations on the circuit, and she moves to an area between machines to do Zumba moves, which tone and sculpt the body while burning fat. A licensed Zumba instructor from the Zumba Instructor Network teaches simple, modified Zumba moves from the center of the circuit.

At the end of 30 minutes, participants have completed one trip around the entire circuit, worked every major muscle group, and achieved a cardio workout ending with a group stretch led by the Zumba instructor.

Local artists' work appears on billboards

While driving down US-23 or I-94 in the Ann Arbor-area, commuters may be surprised to see a work of art on a billboard that normally carries advertising.

Adams Outdoor Advertising has launched an "Art in the Sky" program that transforms traditional public service space into a public art gallery.

Adams has an initiative to invest back into the community by providing public service advertisements to nonprofit organizations. The "Art in the Sky" program is an extension of this service. Adams Real Estate Manager Shannon Bellers, in partnership with artist Elizabeth Schwartz, launched the initiative to bring art to the masses via the medium of outdoor advertising.

The project debuted in December in multiple locations around Washtenaw County and western Wayne, including Chelsea, Milan and Belleville.

To date, Adams Outdoor Advertising has provided donated space to local artists Elizabeth Schwartz, Connie Cronenwett and Lynda Cole. All three artists are affiliated with the WSG Gallery located in Ann Arbor (www.wsg-art.com).

"We would like to potentially expand the program throughout our Ann Arbor market counties and even further into our other Michigan markets," said Bellers in a news release.

"The feedback we have received from artists and the Ann Arbor community at large has been overwhelmingly positive."

"I was both surprised and delighted," said Robert Beckley, professor and dean emeritus Taubman College of Architecture and Urban Planning at the University of Michigan.

"This effort by your company has made me see the potential for combining public art and commerce in a new way. I hope this initiative will carry on."

The project's goals are two-fold. First, project coordinators seek to bring art to those who may not have the opportunity to visit a traditional art gallery, in a new and unexpected way. Second, the project provides a showcase for Ann Arbor's artists and thriving cultural community. Should the project expand as desired, AOA hopes to host a juried "mobile art show" later in 2011.

"Seeing my work on such a large scale, and knowing that others will see it as well, is quite a thrill," said artist Elizabeth Schwartz.

"We're looking to see billboard art by local artists wherever we drive in Michigan," said artist Connie

Cronenwett. "We hope it catches on all over the state."

Artists in the Washtenaw County area interested in being considered for this program are invited to send an e-mail to Shannon Bellers at sbellers@adamsoutdoor.com.

Include full contact information along with a digital photo of your original art. Adams Outdoor Advertising is headquartered in Atlanta, Ga. and operates in 17 markets with more than 12,000. To learn more about AOA, visit www.adamsoutdoor.com.

MONEY MATTERS

Should you consider long-term care insurance?

On Nov. 11, insurance giant MetLife said it would sell no new long-term care insurance policies after Dec. 30, though it would continue to serve its 600,000 insured customers.

The reason? "Financial challenges" in the long-term care insurance industry, MetLife said.

What does that mean? In short, it means that long-term care costs have proven unpredictable in the insurance industry, a world that definitely likes predictability.

According to Genworth Financial, a marketer of LTC insurance, the cost of assisted living has climbed at an annual rate of 6.7 percent over the past five years, and the price for a private room in a nursing home jumped 4.5 percent annually over that timeframe.

Insurers have been increasing LTC premiums to combat this cost rise, making recession-battered 2009 one of the worst years for policy sales.

It's unclear whether other major carriers might join MetLife, but their decision adds some uncertainty to the picture for long-term care planning, one of the most important ways to protect retirement funds.

For some needed perspective, it makes sense to visit a qualified financial planning expert who can look at your complete financial picture and make a recommendation.

Here are some of the questions you need to answer before investing in long-term care insurance or other options:

What resources do you have? We're not just talking about money here.

While caregiving puts a strain on family, it's important to consider whether family and friends are truly willing and able to help with your care, which can provide a considerable financial and emotional benefit.

Also, if you live in a community with reliable volunteer resources to help, that's something to note, though today's services may not be there tomorrow.

How old are you and your spouse, and what's your health history? People in good health purchasing long-term care insurance at the age of 55 usually get the most affordable deal in LTC insurance.

But an individual's family health history and current health status are the real determinants of what your LTC insurance policy will cost — or if you'll qualify for coverage at all.

Also, it's important to note that 40 percent of long-term care is provided to individuals between the ages of 19 and 65, so the need for care can strike at any time.

Are you a single female? Again, personal and family resources come into play here, but since women typically live longer than men — and they still earn less on average than men — women should take a heightened interest in providing for their long-term care safety net.

Long-term care insurance might be a good solution given their other investments and their health history.

What types of services are covered? Over the course of time, long-term care policies have evolved to place more emphasis on home-based care or assisted living, since most people would choose to recover or live out their last days in a familiar environment.

A basic LTC insurance policy pays for assistance with activities of daily living including eating, dressing, bathing, toileting, incontinence, and transferring (bed to chair, etc.).

Each policy lists the types of services that are covered under nursing home care and under home health care. Homemaker services are generally covered and other services as listed in the policy.

What triggers coverage? A qualified LTC policy won't go into effect until the covered individual can't perform two tasks of daily living for a period, typically 90 days, or when that person needs substantial supervision related to cognitive impairment.

This is where you have to read the fine print since some policies are more restrictive than others. More affordable policies generally take longer to kick in.

See if coverage for other physical ailments is available as part of the policy and what per-diem or monthly allowances are offered.

How healthy is the insurance company? While it's impossible to tell the future — or when a major carrier wants out of a particular line of business — it's generally better to go with a larger, higher-rated company.

How affordable will the policy be if your premium increases? If you can barely afford LTC coverage now, it's going to be much tougher to afford premiums if they go up over time.

Talk with a planner about other options if that's the case.

What about an annuity? There are hybrid annuities that also carry long-term care coverage.

These products allow policyholders to use the proceeds for LTC coverage, for income or for both. The proceeds that go to pay for long-term care costs for the policyholder would not be subject to federal tax.

These long-term care annuities can generate tax-deferred gains, which works particularly well for those in high tax brackets who believe they will be in a lower bracket by the time they would need to draw on

Ord in Monterey, California and Squaw Valley, California for the 1960 Winter Olympics. Thomas ultimately settled in Merced, California where he and his wife raised their eight children. He vigorously defended his Catholic faith and spread the Message of the Chaplet of Divine Mercy to all. In his spare time he loved to fish anywhere and everywhere from the Gulf of Mexico to Northern Alaska. He fished alone, with friends and with family. In the last six years of his life, he and his wife moved to Tucson, Arizona, where he celebrated and shared the lives of his children and grandchildren. He was a parishioner of St. Francis de Sales Roman Catholic Church, and later St. Cyrils Catholic Church. # 2011 Jeep model line has something for everyone

By Al Vinikour
Journal Register News Service

Jeep is one of the most iconic brands in the auto industry. Everyone knows its history, from its indoctrination under fire in World War II to its modern-day versatility. While its parent company Chrysler Group has been going through economic gyrations to go into — and eventually come out of — bankruptcy, Jeep designers and engineers have been busy developing products to strengthen the brand's customer base and increase sales.

This year marks the 70th anniversary of the Jeep brand name, and to celebrate it, there are five distinct entries.

Jeep Grand Cherokee

The Grand Cherokee is the "Big Daddy" of the Jeep Brand. Since its beginning nearly two decades ago, Jeep's sold more than four million of them.

A Selec-Terrain control dial allows the driver to select from five driving conditions — Sand/Mud, Sport, Auto, Snow and Rocks — and there are three 4x4 systems (Quadra-Trac I, Quadra-Trac II and Quadra-Drive II).

The Grand Cherokee's every surface is new and aerodynamic.

The coefficient of drag is 0.37, compared to the previous model's Cd of 0.404. Like all Jeeps, it sports the signature 7-slot grille. Taillamps wrap around the rear quarter to the back, creating a balanced look. Standard 17- and 18-inch wheels assist in off-roading and optional 20-inchers are available as well.

Two powertrains are available: the standard 3.6-liter DOHC V6 that produces 290 hp and 260 lb-ft of torque and the 5.7-liter MDS V8 that produces 360 hp and 390 lb-ft of torque.

A 5-speed automatic transmission with overdrive is mated to the V6, while the V8 comes with an automatic multi-speed transmission. Maximum towing for the V6 is 5,000 lbs.; it's 7,200 lbs. for the V8.

Grand Cherokee is available in 2WD or 4WD and is comes in four trim levels. Pricing begins in the low $30 thousands for the base model and around $46 grand for the top-of-the-line model.

Jeep Compass

What was once a low-end member of the club has been redesigned with styling cues and increased capability to make it more akin to a smaller Jeep Grand Cherokee.

The Compass now offers Trail Rated 4x4 capability with the Freedom Drive II Off-Road Package. It has upgraded materials throughout, and sports a new hood, front fenders, fascia and headlamps as well as a new grille.

Off-road, it'll do everything its larger sibling can do. It offers two different DOHC 16-Valve I-4 with Dual VVT engines — a 2.0-liter rated at 158 hp and 141 lb-ft of torque and a 2.4-liter rated at 172 hp and 165 lb-ft of torque. Two transmissions are available; a five-speed automatic overdrive is standard and a CVT is optional. The Compass now claims more than 30 safety and security features, too, and comes in three trim levels and FWD or 4x4. Pricing start at $19,995 for the base model and goes up to $26,695 for the high-end model.

Jeep Liberty

The Jeep Liberty, a mid-size sport utility vehicle introduced in 2002, continues its 4x4 heritage by offering two Jeep Trail Rated 4WD systems.

The exterior has taken on a rugged, classic Jeep look. Its Jeep Sky Slider full-length open-canvass is an industry exclusive.

Liberty comes in three trim levels that offer a choice of 2WD or 4WD (except Renegade, which only offers a 4x4 version). A 2011 appearance package — 2011 Jeep Liberty Jet — is available on Liberty's Sport and Limited models.

Powertrain is a 3.7-liter SOHC V6 that puts out 210 hp and 235 lb-ft of torque. It's mated to a 4-speed automatic transmission with overdrive. When installed with the Trailer-tow package, it can tow 5,000 pounds.

Base price is $23,995 for a 2WD Sport and ranges up to $28,995 for a 4WD Limited.

Jeep Patriot

I think of the 2011 Jeep Patriot as "the affordable compact sport-utility vehicle." It sports new, aggressive exterior styling, its ride and handling characteristics have been improved and it boasts class-leading 4x4 capability and fuel economy.

Patriot is unmistakably a Jeep; its new exterior designs complement the brand's rugged off-road capabilities. Patriot is built for maximum cargo volume, too.

Patriot comes in three trim configurations, each available with FWD or 4x4. Like the Compass, it's available with a 2.0-liter or 2.4-liter I-4. Choices in a transmission are a 5-speed manual or CVT-Automatic. It seats 5, four of them comfortably.

Prices range from $16,695 for a Sport FWD to $24,595 for a Latitude X 4x4.

Jeep Wrangler/Jeep Wrangler Limited

Long known as a "Jeep's Jeep" and the benchmark off-road vehicle, Jeep Wrangler continues to hold its place in off-road ability.

The 2011 model year changes include all-new steering-wheel controls, standard electronic stability control, hill-start assist and trailer-sway control. Wrangler is a two-door model; Wrangler Limited is a four-door.

Jeep designers finally figured out how to significantly reduce interior noise, something Wrangler was known for. There are five new colors, including Detonator Yellow.

Power for Wrangler comes from a 3.8-liter OHV 12-Valve SMPI V6 producing 202 hp and 237 lb-ft of torque. It's mated to a 6-speed manual overdrive transmission or an optional 4-speed automatic overdrive. Wrangler seats four; Wrangler Limited seats five.

Wrangler has four trim levels and Wrangler Unlimited has five. Prices begin at $22,795 for the base Wrangler and go up to $33,495 for the Wrangler Unlimited Rubicon.

For all the models, there are volumes of available equipment and packages buyers can custom-design a Jeep that's just right for their needs. Each of the five Jeep models offers dual driving characteristics: on-road luxury and comfort and off-road ruggedness and ability.

The only thing that hasn't changed for Jeep in the last 70 years is the ability to get you in and out of any driving situation. And that's a good thing.

Michigan eLibrary to offer new service

LearningExpress LLC, a provider of online resume creation and job search tools, and the Library of Michigan's eLibrary are offering a new web resource for job seekers called the Job and Career Accelerator.

The Job and Career Accelerator joins LearningExpress Library, a test and tutorial resource, already available through Michigan's eLibrary. This new resource in the Michigan eLibrary is made possible by a grant from the federal government's American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 and through round two of the Broadband Technology Opportunities Program Public Computer Center Grant.

The $6 million grant, awarded to Michigan State University in August 2010, will give residents in Michigan tools and training for broadband use, increase the number of computers in Michigan libraries and provide additional resources to all libraries, schools, businesses and residents in the state.

As a result of the grant, Michigan State University will also receive access to Job and Career Accelerator.

Job and Career Accelerator's job guidance and search platform arrives as the unemployment in Michigan has risen from 6.9 percent in 2007 to 12.9 percent in 2010.

This data comes from the current recessionary period as defined by the U.S. Bureau of Economic Research and places Michigan state residents in one of the eight hardest hit job markets in the U.S.

Public libraries have seen an increasing demand for job search assistance, and librarians have stepped up to assist the unemployed with their job searches.

"We are well aware of how public library users are turning to their libraries for job search assistance," said Nancy Robertson, state librarian of Michigan, in a news release.

"Job and Career Accelerator will be an excellent resource for librarians to use with their job seeking public."

The easy-to-use learning path in Job and Career Accelerator provides users with a personalized job search experience and will help librarians and workforce development professionals simplify the job search process.

Without Internet access or a method to respond electronically to job advertisements in today's standard web-based job application process, it's difficult for the long-term unemployed to get back on their feet. MeL enables job seekers to access the tools and information in Job and Career Accelerator to achieve employment success.

Through the Michigan agreement, MeL will provide access to both LearningExpress Library and Job and Career Accelerator to state residents who are job seeking or career changing.

"We are pleased to continue working with the state of Michigan and the Michigan eLibrary to provide essential workforce services that help the millions of library patrons prepare for success in their job search and careers," said Barry Lippman, president and CEO of LearningExpress.

In addition to access to millions of active job and internship postings, Job and Career Accelerator provides a wide array of valuable information including predicted job growth by field, a review of today's hottest careers, model resumes based on job titles and experience levels, interactive computer training courses and eBooks for further skill-building and study.

Job and Career Accelerator is accessible free to all Michigan residents from any computer with an Internet connection.

Reduce birth defects with folic acid intake

twins, have particular medical conditions (such as sickle-cell disease) or take some forms of medication (such as anti-seizure medication) require 10 times the amount of folic acid recommended for most women.

A daily 4,000 microgram (4 milligram) folic acid supplement can be prescribed. Women should not consume large amounts of folic acid through regular multivitamins because the quantities of other vitamins and minerals included may be harmful.

Dr. Randa Lathbert

Approximately 2,500 children each year in the United States are born with defects of the neural tube — the part of a growing fetus that will become the brain and spinal cord — which can cause severe mental and physical disability or death.

Spina bifida, the most common form of neural tube defect, occurs when the bones of the spine do not completely form around the spinal cord. Anencephaly, another defect, is a fatal condition in which an infant is born missing parts of the brain.

Folic acid — an essential B vitamin necessary for proper cell growth and vital to the development of a baby's neural tube and central nervous system — is an integral component in preventing birth defects.

Women who get enough folic acid have a 50 to 70 percent reduced risk of having a baby with neural tube and other defects, such as cleft lip and palate.

Folic acid is most effective when it is abundant in a woman's body before she gets pregnant and during the first three months of pregnancy, around the time when the neural tube begins to develop.

Neural tube defects occur in the first weeks of fetal development, often before a woman even knows she is pregnant.

But because nearly half of all pregnancies in the United States are unplanned, many women are at risk of beginning a pregnancy with a folic acid deficiency.

Therefore, it is recommended by health professionals that all women of childbearing age take a daily multivitamin that contains 400 micrograms (4 milligrams) of folic acid, regardless of whether they are currently planning a pregnancy or not.

Taking folic acid before pregnancy ensures that the nutrient is present, even if an unplanned pregnancy occurs or if a pregnancy is not discovered for several weeks.

It's also a good idea to eat a diet rich in natural sources of folic acid including leafy green vegetables, citrus fruits, bean, and folic acid-enriched grain products, such as breads, cereals, flours, pastas and rice.

Most women will still need a supplement because it can be difficult to meet the daily requirement through food sources alone.

Women who have had a child with a neural tube defect or certain other birth defects, are pregnant with

Chelsea Hospital to start transformation project in the spring

Starting this spring, the Chelsea Community Hospital will begin a two-year transformation with a major construction project.

Though the hospital has expanded, renovated and improved upon its facilities several times since it opened in 1970, nothing of this caliber has been undertaken – until now.

The hospital's transformation will be completed in two phases.

The first phase, a two-story addition, will include a new 54-bed addition making all the hospital's rooms private, as well as a new emergency room, X-ray and imaging areas, outpatient rehabilitation, front entrance and lobby.

As part of this project, much of the parking and driveways will be improved and redesigned.

The second phase will renovate and improve the existing areas. After that is complete, a comprehensive cancer center will be built, which will include radiation oncology.

The hospital opened its new Infusion Center last fall, and the cancer center will allow expansion on those services and provide a full spectrum of cancer care, close to home.

Completion of the addition is expected in late 2012.

Renovation of existing facilities will follow. The funds for the construction are a result of Chelsea's 2009 merger with Saint Joseph Mercy Health System.

"We are so excited to begin this new chapter in the history of Chelsea Community Hospital," President and CEO Kathleen Griffiths said. "I think the community will be very pleased with the new facility and the comfort and convenience it will bring to our patients and visitors. It will enable us to continue our goal to provide the highest quality care to our patients."

The hospital's theme for the new project is "Growing for You," featuring a photo of the trees on its scenic wooded campus. The public may see this theme around the hospital, and in an upcoming media campaign.

"We felt the 'Growing for You' theme was appropriate because we are, quite simply, growing to meet the needs of our community," Griffiths said. "The tree image was used because our beautiful campus is part of our identity and will remain so with the new building. The growth and changes we will see will only enhance our patient care and enable us to do what we do best, in a state-of-the-art building."

Public invited to attend forum and Q & A session

The public is invited to attend a free community forum to learn more about the upcoming construction at Chelsea Community Hospital.

The forum will take place 7 to 8 p.m. Thursday, January 27, in the main dining room at the hospital.

Presenters will include: a representative from the Architectural Firm Albert Kahn, and hospital President and CEO Kathleen Griffiths. Architectural drawings and floor plans will be presented to the audience.

A community question and answer session will follow the presentation. Light refreshments will be provided.

Theater seeks original scripts

Ann Arbor Civic Theatre will host a playwriting and play reading festival Feb. 18 through 20.

"The Play's the Thing" is an opportunity for playwrights to have their works read, discussed and reworked. It's also an opportunity for the audience to hear new works and to give feedback to the playwrights.

Each performance features a different type of play — "Show Me Your Shorts," a series of 10-minute plays; "One is the Loneliest Number," one-act plays; and "I Can't Believe I Read the Whole Thing," a full-length play.

Ann Arbor Civic Theatre is looking for submissions of new works or original adaptations. Plays may be a series of 10-minute vignettes, one-act plays or full-length plays.

There is no fee to enter scripts, but writers are limited to submitting one full-length play, two one-acts or six 10-minute plays.

The deadline for submissions is 3 p.m. Jan. 24. Selections for the readings will be chosen by Jan. 31.

Those submitting scripts need to be available the weekend of Feb. 18 through 20 to attend the reading of his or her work.

Playwrights whose scripts are chosen for "The Play's the Thing" will have the opportunity to meet with the facilitator of their reading the week of Feb. 1.

For complete guidelines and application, visit the Ann Arbor Civic Theatre T website at www.a2ct.org or call the office at 971-2228.

'Embarrassed' Wolverines had no choice but to ax Rodriguez

I knew Rich Rodriguez had to go a few months ago when I was on vacation in California. The family was heading to Universal Studios and I was riffling through the suitcase looking for a shirt to wear when I came across my favorite "Go Blue" Michigan jersey.

I grabbed it and began to put it on when stopped and thought: "Do I really want to be seen in public wearing a Michigan football jersey?"

The answer was no. I was embarrassed to be a Michigan football fan. I stuffed the shirt back into the suitcase and grabbed a pink tank-top that read "Miley Cyrus Rocks" and headed out the door.

Michigan football fans are not supposed to be embarrassed. We are proud of the Maize and Blue. Best all-time record. Best stadium. Best campus. Best school song. The block "M" doesn't stand for mediocre. The pride was gone. So Rodriguez is now gone.

Bulldogs knock off Flint Powers Catholic Central

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

It was revenge week for the Chelsea varsity hockey team as the Bulldogs took a bite out of a couple of teams that knocked them off last year. What's the saying, revenge is best served cold?

Well it was certainly cold Saturday night inside the Arctic Coliseum in Chelsea where the Bulldogs have been hot lately, despite playing through some big injuries. Chelsea welcomed Flint Powers Catholic Central to town for a non-league game.

Everyone remembers Flint Powers. They knocked Chelsea out of the state playoffs last year in the semi-finals at Compuware Arena in Plymouth. It was payback time and the Bulldogs showed them the money skating to an impressive 3-2 win.

Chelsea improved to 7-5 on the season.

The Bulldogs had to overcome even more injuries and a penalty-box filled of players to put this game into the win column.

"It was a tough game and they are always a very good team," Chelsea coach Don Wright said. "We had some injuries to deal with coming into the game and then had some injuries during the game. We only had seven forwards at the end of the game. We also had penalties that didn't help

Saline's James Telfer.

Saline's Telfer skates off to Turkey to play in Winter World University Games

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

Saline's James Telfer will be joining his former college coach as a member of the 2011 United States University Select Team, which will compete at the Winter World University Games, to be held Jan. 27-Feb. 6, 2011 in Erzurum, Turkey.

The team will be coached by U-M-Dearborn coach Dave Debol. Telfer, a 22-year-old Western Michigan University student and hockey player, is the son of Don and Elizabeth Telfer of Saline. He plays right wing and is studying Food and Consumer Marketing at WMU.

Try-outs for the team were by invitation only and held in August for the top 80 players in the country. The roster features 22 players, including Telfer. "I am very excited about this opportunity to represent my country in Turkey," he said. "It will be a great life experience. I am going over there to compete at the highest level, but at the same time this is my first trip overseas and that's pretty exciting. It will be something I will never forget. It is a privilege to be a part of this team."

While this is his first trip overseas, he has seen plenty of North America. Telfer said he started skating when he was only 3 years old and played travel hockey in Ann Arbor until he was 10. He then played AAA for Compuware, Michigan Ice Dogs and Victory Honda, travelling all over the U.S. and Canada.

"My dad grew up in Canada playing hockey and ever since I was really little, it was my favorite sport and it stuck with me," he said. "I caught on real quick and was an elite player at a young age."

Telfer had an impressive high school career, finding success as a player and helping the Hornets reach the state finals. A three-time all-area and all-conference player, Telfer was all-state honorable mention as a junior and senior. During his senior year in 2006, Telfer helped lead Saline to the state finals where the Hornets lost 2-1 to Traverse City Central.

"I spent two years after high school, away from studies and played Junior A hockey, mostly for the Bridgewater Bandits," he said. "I had a handful of NCAA Division 1 opportunities, but none that I wanted to pursue. I wanted to just go to school and be done with trying to follow the hockey dream. I was actually enrolled at WMU directly out of high school, and was planning to go there until the August before school, when I decided to play junior hockey instead. When I came back to school, Western was just an easy choice and I knew many friends still there."

Telfer says the "hockey dream" has been put on ice. "I do not really have any more hockey goals," he said. "I am just enjoying my time playing at Western and have become much more concerned with my studies and business world future. Obviously, I want to represent my country the right way and I am going to go overseas and give it my best."

"I will look into any additional hockey opportunities that might be offered to me, but that is not something I am worried about."

Saline's Debol takes over head coaching job for Team USA

Dave Debol

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

David Debol has coached and played at all levels of hockey, including as a player for four years in the National Hockey League. And later this month, the Saline resident will take part in a very special event. Wearing "Red Wings" or "Whalers" or "Wolverines" or "Spartans" on your jersey carries with it a certain special feeling.

But putting on the sweater with "USA" stitched on front is something totally different.

Debol has been named head coach of the 2011 United States University Select Team, which will compete at the Winter World University Games, to be held Jan. 27-Feb. 6, 2011 in Erzurum, Turkey. The U.S. University Select Team is comprised of players from collegiate ice hockey teams affiliated with the American Collegiate Hockey Association (ACHA).

Debol is returning to the U.S. University Select Team coaching ranks for the third consecutive time, having served as an assistant coach for Team USA at the Winter World University Games in 2007 in Turin, Italy, and in 2009 in Harbin, China.

"It is a once in a lifetime experience for these players to travel to Europe and play some of the best university teams in the world," said Debol. "It's also something we have worked hard to put together and I'm looking forward to it. The tournament is very competitive. Our best finish was seventh place. Our goal is to get to the medal round and win the gold."

Debol is currently in his sixth season as head coach at the University of Michigan-Dearborn. And he is well known all over the area, especially in Washtenaw County.

The 54-year-old St Clair Shores native is raising his daughter Alexis (19) and son Myles (17) in Saline. He was the hockey coach at Dexter High School for four years and also coached a season at Ann Arbor Huron High School. He is in his seventh year as head coach at U-M Dearborn.

Debol also is co-owner of Hockey Masters, a year-round comprehensive hockey skills and training development program for both on and off the ice.

He got the USA gig through hard work and his varied qualifications.

"I got involved with USA Hockey through coaching, running adult clinics and speaking at different coaching level clinics," said Debol, a USA Hockey Level 3 certified coach.

MICHIGAN FOOTBALL: THE FIRING OF RICH RODRIGUEZ

Firing Rodriguez is a win-win

Firings are always uncomfortable and it is no different with the Rich Rodriguez situation at the University of Michigan.

Whether you like or dislike or don't even care about the former U-M football coach, it is never fun to watch a guy twist in the wind and finally be axed in a public manner.

Hank Minckiewicz

All the same, U-M just couldn't have hung onto the guy any longer. The blowout losses, the terrible defense, the overall losing record; this guy could not have lasted at Wayne State, let alone Michigan.

But when you sit back and add it all up, there are few losers in this whole thing.

For example:

- Despite some gruesome losses, a ridiculously bad defense and laughable special teams, Rich Rodriguez walked away from Ann Arbor with $10 million dollars in his pocket.

- In case you are wondering, that's more than $650,000 for each of his 15 wins.

- In addition to the money, Rodriguez seems to be walking away from the steaming pile he left in Ann Arbor with his reputation nearly intact.

- I cannot count the number of television talking heads that I have heard say: "I think RichRod is a good coach."

- Former NFL all-pro Mark May, who was a standout with the Washington Redskins has publicly challenged his alma mater, Pittsburgh, to make up for its ham-handed firing of Coach Dave Wannstedt by hiring Rodriguez.

- It makes some sense in that Rodriguez's greatest success came in the Big East Conference while he was at West Virginia. He has shown he can win in that league and he certainly must still have recruiting contacts in the area.

File photo
Michigan coach Rich Rodriguez was fired last Wednesday after three forgettable seasons.

Rodriguez suffered much in Michigan, but he made a boatload of money and it looks like he is heading for a soft, cushy landing.

It's hard not to count this as a win for the deposed coach.

- Rodriguez was a polarizing figure from the moment he set foot on campus.

- There were some who were not about to give him the benefit of any doubt.

- Had RichRod come in and won 10 or 11 games and beaten Ohio State and Michigan State, he would have won over the fans.

- Because he did not do any of that, he lost what fan backing he had.

- The chorus has been long and loud.

- Rodriguez firing is a clear win for the fan base, which clamors for one thing: A winner.

- Although it is not a clear win for him yet, AD Dave Brandon has put himself in a good position.

- Brandon is a no-nonsense guy. He recognizes the value of the football program to the whole Michigan brand.

He also is an ambitious guy and he knows the position he is in.

The late Don Canham is recognized as one of Michigan all-time great athletic directors. He did a lot of great things for the university, but his greatest accomplishment was hiring a guy named Bo Schembechler to run the football program.

That was 42 years ago. Brandon finds himself in the same position Canham was: With a proud and historic football program floundering and looking for an identity.

With the right hire, Brandon can elevate himself to pantheon of U-M athletics along side the likes of Canham.

This is a win waiting to happen.

- That brings us to the biggest winner of all.

- I can't believe no one has brought this up, but if Michigan hires a more traditional coach and if he stays in Ann Arbor quarterback Denard Robinson goes from a quirky college side-show attraction to a legitimate challenger for a job as a quarterback in the NFL.

Look, like it or hate it, Rich Rodriguez's offense does not prepare a quarterback for the next level.

Rodriguez's greatest quarterback, Pat White, who played for four years at West Virginia and won four bowl games in his college career, washed out of the NFL after two seasons. He is now trying to make it as a professional baseball player.

White is the former Rodriguez player Robinson is most often compared to.

A year ago, few would have given Robinson much of a shot at a career as an NFL quarterback, but he has improved his throwing so much that it is almost one of his strengths.

Given two years in system with a real quarterbacks coach teaching him footwork and fundamentals, Robson could develop from an iffy NFLer to a potential first-round pick.

It is not that much of a stretch to see Robinson playing a role similar to the one being played by Michael Vick in Philadelphia.

Bulldogs open SEC with easy 62-40 win over Tecumseh

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

The Chelsea boys' basketball team turned over an easy win on Friday night in the Bulldogs' Southeastern Conference opener against visiting Tecumseh. Chelsea created 26 turnovers and ran away with a 60-42 victory to improve to 5-0 overall and 1-0 in the SEC.

"They were without their starting point guard and had trouble bringing the ball up the court," Chelsea coach Robin Raymond said.

Of course it didn't help that the Bulldogs turned up the intensity and used their aggressiveness, quickness and depth to put the pressure on the Indians. Even teams with all their starters have trouble against Chelsea's press and defensive pressure. Being a man down only makes things that much more difficult.

"We played aggressive on defense," Raymond said. "And created some easy shots off the turnovers. We came out strong and started rotating guys in and out. We played well."

The Bulldogs turned many of those turnovers into points as they jumped out to a 10-7 lead after one quarter and then got rolling in the second quarter. Chelsea outscored the visitors 20-9 in the second to take a 30-16 lead into half-time. The Bulldogs led 46-28 after three quarters and held Tecumseh to 30 percent shooting for the game.

While Chelsea was creating turnovers on the defensive end, the Bulldogs were taking care of the ball at the other end of the floor.

"We only had 11 turnovers and that's what we are averaging this season," Raymond said. "We've done a very good job all year of taking care of the basketball. I will take 11 turnovers every game."

Patrick Roberts led a balanced scoring attack with 13 points as every player for Chelsea scored in the game. Spencer Mykala had nine points, Jake Steinhauer scored seven, Mason Borders six and Jack McDougall and Jake Fischhaber each had five.

After playing for Notre Dame High School (1970-74), Debol played for years at the University of Michigan. He was a key player and multi-time All-Star, as well as earning berths on the All-American Team and the NCAA Championship All-Tournament Team.

In 1996, Debol was inducted into the Michigan Athletic Hall of Honor for his outstanding efforts on the ice during his four-season stay, highlighted by his 99 points in just 45 games in 1976-77 and the fastest hat trick in NCAA history with three goals in 59 seconds.

Debol played six years of professional hockey, including three seasons with the Hartford Whalers where he played on a line with Gordie Howe. Debol was a three-time member of the U.S. National Team, competing in the World Championships in 1977, 1978 and 1981.

He retired as a player following the 1982-83 season.

Scott Balboni, head men's ice hockey coach at Penn State University, and Dan Phelps, head men's ice hockey coach at Adrian College, will serve as assistant coaches for the World University Games. Team USA will play in a pool featuring teams from Kazakhstan, Slovakia and Spain.

The 2011 Winter World University Games is a biannual multi-sport event organized for university athletes by the International University Sports Federation (FISU). The international competition is staged in both the summer and the winter, similar to the Olympic Games.

Debol also conducts private lessons. For more information, see hockeymasters.net.

FIRE

At a school like Michigan, expectations always wins.

No matter how long you stay or what you accomplish, the expectations and history of a program as big and borderless as Michigan will always beat you down.

Rodriguez never came close to meeting those expectations. He never approached the level that lives, breathes and resonates in the Michigan record books and in the hearts of their fans. Where the names of "Bo" and "Lloyd" were affectionately thought of, "Richrod" carried a negative connotation. Fans thought of Bo as their favorite uncle while "Richrod" was looked at as your sister's third husband who no one wants to sit next to at Thanksgiving dinner.

Michigan football comes down to history, tradition and family. "Richrod" wasn't part of the family. And it's not easy breaking bread with the maize and blue - not with those expectations sitting out there in the middle of the table.

Rodriguez was fired on Wednesday, ending a disappointing three-year run of losses, NCAA violations and the demise of a once proud program.

U-M Athletic Director Dave Brandon announced the decision after meeting with Rodriguez on Tuesday and again Wednesday morning in Ann Arbor.

"I believe this is the best decision for the future of Michigan football," Brandon said.

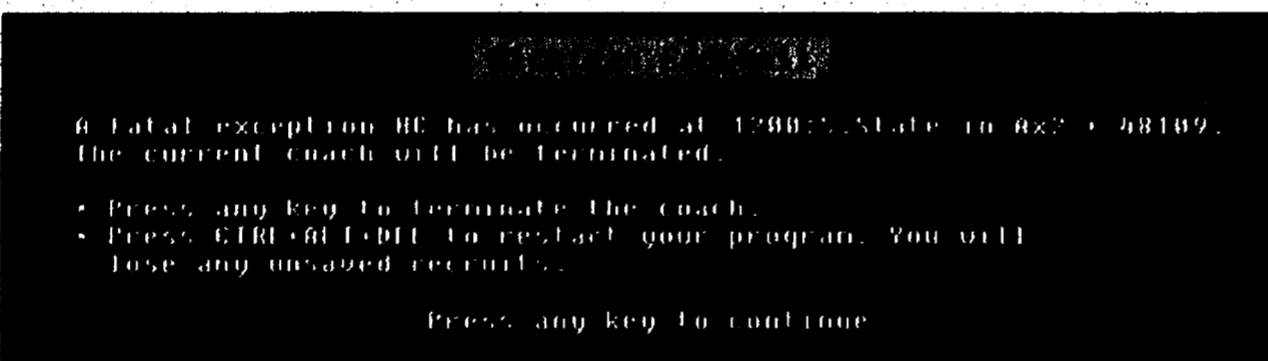

It's not the best decision. It was the only decision.

Just imagine the opposite announcement.

What if Brandon said Rodriguez was coming back for another year?

What would that statement say to the players, students, alumni, fans and college football?

It would say that losing at Michigan is acceptable.

Chelsea's Burrill Strong created this unique way of expressing his displeasure with U-M football.

And it's not. Never has been. Never will be.

The last thing anyone wants is for Michigan football to turn into Notre Dame football - or Michigan basketball.

The numbers and "achievements" in the Rodriguez era are as painful as watching the U-M defense take the field.

Nine losses in one season. Consecutive losing seasons. Not getting to a bowl game - twice. Then, getting to a bowl game and getting destroyed.

A 42-7 loss to Ohio State in 2008. Losing to MSU in the Big House - twice. Toledo. A Big Ten record of 6-18.

MAKE IT STOP!
It finally stopped on Wednesday.

That was the easy part. Finding the right person to make it "go" again will not be easy.

Some big names are out there and it would be nice to find someone who has sat at the dinner table. But that might not happen.

It really limits the choices. Find the best man - even if it's not a Michigan man. But make sure he feels comfortable and knows what he's getting into when he takes a seat at the table.

And make sure he is someone who will again make me proud and won't make me hesitate when I go looking for a shirt to wear.

Rodriguez simply wore out his welcome.

THIS WEEK'S CONDITIONS

Chelsea wrestlers pin down tourney title

Bulldogs run away with Parma-Western Invitational

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

After losing a couple of tough dual-meets during the week, the Chelsea varsity wrestling team took out its frustration at the Parma-Western Invitational on Saturday. The Bulldogs topped the field to finish in first place with 296 points, dominating the event from start to finish.

Parma-Western was a distant second with 269 points with Three Rivers in third (221 points), Penfield fourth (146), East Jackson fifth (135) and Lincoln sixth (109). The event featured 10 wrestling teams.

"This is a unique event," Chelsea wrestling coach Kerry Kargel said. "It's a round-robin tournament which allowed us to bring some extra kids. We can wrestle more than one kid had a weight class but only one can carry points."

Chelsea not only had quality depth but plenty of quality up-front as the Bulldogs sent seven wrestlers into the championship round with four bringing home first-place points.

Senior Andrew Nold continues his outstanding career, taking first at 140 pounds. Nold defeated last year's regional qualifier from Lincoln 5-3 in the championship match.

Chelsea's Travis Preston finished first at 135 pounds. The sophomore defeated a wrestler from East Jackson in the finals.

Senior Chris Shoemaker defeated a wrestler from Three Rivers to take first place at 189 pounds.

Senior Charlie Kempf took first at 285 pounds. He beat the wrestler from Jackson Parma Western in the championship match.

Sophomore Avery Osentoski was second at 130 pounds, senior Matt Lindauer was runner-up at 160 pounds and sophomore Mike Hovater was second at 171 pounds.

The Bulldogs had three wrestlers finish in third place at the tournament: junior Ben Doll at 112 pounds, senior Chris Millen at 145 pounds and senior Conor Tait at 215 pounds.

Sophomore Trevor Nold went 4-0 at 135 pounds, sophomore Nate Miller went 3-1 at 125 pounds, and sophomore Jay Szcdronski was 3-1 at 189 pounds.

Other strong showings were turned in by Mike Purdy at 103 pounds, Travis Nichols at 119, Marco Rviz-Acosta at 125, Brennan Kurth at 140, Simon Cone at 145, Trevor Branham at 215 and Dean Kempf at heavyweight.

Last Thursday, the Bulldogs ran into a couple of tough wrestling programs at Ann Arbor Huron. Chelsea lost 57-6 to Tecumseh and 47-27 to Saline in a couple of Southeastern Conference matches.

Chelsea seniors Charlie Kempf (above) and Chris Shoemaker (right) both took first place at the Jackson Parma Western Invitational on Saturday.

"We had an injury early in the match against Saline and just lost our intensity after that," Kargel said.

Charlie Kempf at heavyweight was the Bulldogs' only winner against Tecumseh.

Kempf, Lindauer, Hovater, Shoemaker and Andrew Nold were the winners against the Hornets.

The Bulldogs welcome rival Dexter, along with Monroe and Huron, to town today for a match starting at 5:30 p.m. Chelsea will wrestle on Saturday at the South Lyon Invitational.

us. But the guys showed a lot of heart. I was very proud of their effort."

One of those injuries was to Tyler Fullerton. The sophomore forward broke his leg during the game.

"He actually got himself off the ice and then went back out for another shift," Wright said. "But when he came off the ice he was in a lot of pain. He's a tough young man."

Yeah, you can say that again. And speaking of tough, the Bulldogs were already playing without standout Jacob Ryan, who broke his wrist earlier in the year and isn't expected back for another three to four weeks.

After Flint Powers scored a power-play goal at 10:05 of the first period, the Bulldogs bounced right back. Dylan Laidlaw scored at 13:19 of the first period on a four-on-three power play to tie the game at 1-1. Assists went to Kody Johnson and Joe Hewitt.

In the second period, Chelsea took a 2-1 lead on a goal by Hewitt at the 8:21 mark. Brad Hepler earned the assist on the goal.

Flint Powers tied the game at 2-2 with just 28 seconds left in the period.

"We were two men short for a minute and a half and then we had another 3½ minutes to kill off," Wright said. "They scored with just three seconds left on the power play. But we did a great job there. Our penalty-killing came up big."

And Johnson came up big in the third period. The junior took a pass from Hepler and scored at 13:33 of the third period for the game winner.

Chelsea goalie Chris Boyd played another strong game in goal. He had 23 saves in the win.

On Thursday, the Bulldogs hit the road and knocked off Davison 2-1. Davison beat Chelsea twice last season.

"They are always a good team and it's always nice to get a win against them," Wright said.

After a scoreless first period, the Bulldogs caught Davison on a line change. Steve Lesko got the puck up ahead to Austin Sullens who found Johnson heading toward the net. Johnson came in alone and beat the Davison goalie at 5:32 to give Chelsea a 1-0 lead.

Davison tied the game with a goal at 15:16 of the second period.

At the 2:06 mark of the third period, Chelsea's Taylor Athley intercepted a pass in the neutral zone and scored what turned out to be the game-winner with an unassisted goal.

Boyd made 21 saves, including two from close range in the final five minutes to preserve the victory.

Chelsea remains perfect

The Chelsea girls' varsity basketball team went down to Tecumseh Friday night and took care of business with an easy 52-16 victory over the Indians.

The Bulldogs are now 7-0 overall and 3-0 in the Southeastern Conference White Division.

"We played pretty well," Chelsea coach Todd Blomquist said. "Our defense created easy scoring opportunities for us."

The Bulldogs led 14-2 after the first quarter and 24-8 at halftime in the blowout win.

Chelsea made 15 of 36 attempts (42 percent) while holding Tecumseh to 21 percent shooting. The Bulldogs scored 21 points from the free-throw line and out-rebounded their hosts 33-15.

Seniors Emily Cottrell and Rachel Cooperrider each scored eight points to lead Chelsea. Sophomore Riley Singleton had seven points, Megan Hall, Bailey Darwin and Mackenzie Cole all scored six points apiece for Chelsea.

Guest Writer

Thomas E. Leonard, 22, of Dexter, was accepted into the Peace Corps and departed for Niger in July 2009 to begin pre-service training as a community and youth education Peace Corps volunteer. Upon graduation from volunteer training in September 2009, Leonard's work will include raising awareness about girls' education, running after-school clubs and working with out-of-school youth.

Leonard is the son of Peggy and Carl Leonard and a graduate of Dexter High School. He attended Hillsdale College, where he earned a bachelor's degree in French, graduating in 2009. Leonard previously worked as an adult basic education tutor, a teaching assistant in Taiwan, and a discussion class leader at Access International in Ann Arbor.

Leonard writes articles exclusively for the Dexter Leader on his activities with the Peace Corps.

It will have been more than a half-year since my last article by the time you read this. For the most part, no news is good news.

Two new training groups have been sworn in, work has been picking up since the end of harvest and a new school year has begun. On the downside, my computer was broken on a bush taxi (now there's a clash of cultures and technology). With limited computer access I have resigned myself to handwriting this and retyping it a few weeks later with a newly-installed screen brought by my visiting brother. He just finished a whirlwind week full of new sights and sounds in trips to and around my village and the capital.

Listening to the radio the other night — as I do almost every night before bed — I heard one of the more curious stories of recent memory.

Recently, a Western-European government decided to return the head of a West African king beheaded by traders in the 1830s. They had discovered it in a university's archives and decided it belonged back in its homeland. A delegation comprising descendants of the king and government officials were invited in from West Africa. The private ceremony at the foreign ministry came around to the part when a glass box was uncovered with one must imagine great solemnity and a bit of a flourish, but all went terribly awry.

Unbeknownst to the Africans, the severed head was no barren, dry, skull but was instead preserved, bobbing in formaldehyde, the skin turned ashen by the years of exposure to the chemical.

Many of the Africans left the room; others broke down in sobs — they did not want the head back; they did not want to be reminded of the ugliness of the past. I forget all the details of the tale's end but I can remember the words of one of the king's descendants particularly distraught by the whole affair.

After hearing what he took to be defamatory remarks about the king and his fellow countrymen on local radio he went so far as to tell the interviewer that not only was this particular country wicked, but that all white people are wicked.

What struck me was his use of the present tense to describe their wickedness. It did not seem to matter that the aforesaid execution took place nearly two centuries ago; he could see his own face in that of his long-dead ancestor.

Nigeriens lower a cement mount for a flywheel and motor for a water pump.

Similarities could be drawn with the anti-colonialist screed passed off as campaign rhetoric by presidents of some neighboring countries. In a recent stand-off, two presidents declared themselves leader of a nearby country, one standing despite repeated calls from regional and international organizations to step down.

Even neighboring states were lumped under the title: pawn of the colonial aggressors. The past becomes the present as old wounds are reopened to be used as bait once more.

Up here in Niger things are nearly as dramatic as along the populous, resource-rich coastal states. In part because of their lack of resources and distance from the coast, Nigeriens tend to treat Westerners with more of an even keel. This does not mean, however, that friendships or working relationships are easily wrought. I cannot count the number of times — probably in the thousands by now — when I have been offered a random girl to marry and take away to America, and then there are the times people ask for gifts instead of offering to work together on something.

A common term for white people, "anassara," means conqueror in Hausa and it often feels like I am put on such a pedestal that villagers cannot take any initiative in which I help instigate.

The Peace Corps has three goals, two of which promote cross-cultural dialogue between America and host countries. On this count, Peace Corps Niger has been performing admirably. Started in 1962, the year after Peace Corps began, we have never left the country.

Almost everywhere I go I meet people who were taught by Peace Corps Volunteers, worked with them, remember their names and ask me if I know them personally.

I will always remember the old man in my first village who would say, "Americans are our friends because they were the only ones to stay with us: the Canadians mine gold down our road but their trucks always pass by without stopping, the French ruled us for 60 years without bothering to say 'hi'."

On the grimmer side, I remember wondering before getting here how Niger could still be last, dead last, in development compared to the rest of the world's sovereign states after nearly 50 years of development assistance from Peace Corps and nearly every aid agency created. The other Peace Corps goal is to provide specialized skills to improve the lives of people in need.

Sundance festival returns to Ann Arbor

By Jana Miller
Heritage Media

The Michigan Theater will join a select group of cinemas when the Sundance Film Festival returns for its second year in Ann Arbor. As part of the Sundance Film Festival USA program, nine theaters throughout the country will host world premieres of festival films Jan. 27.

The Michigan Theater has the opportunity to premiere two films, a world premiere Jan. 27 and a second full-length feature Jan. 28.

The world premiere film Jan. 27 will be "Win Win," a film directed and written by Tom McCarthy. It stars Paul Giamatti as an attorney moonlighting as a high school wrestling coach who stumbles across a star athlete. Things appear to look up for Giamatti's character until the athlete's mother shows up fresh out of rehab, broke, and threatening to derail everything.

McCarthy and Giamatti are both scheduled to attend and introduce the film. They also will field questions about the film after its screening. The film will be preceded by an introduction video featuring festival highlights.

Ann Arbor is in good company for the Sundance USA program that evening as it's joined by theaters in Brookline, Mass.; Brooklyn, N.Y.; Chicago; Los Angeles; Madison, Wis.; Nashville; San Francisco; and Seattle.

Ann Arbor was a part of the same program last year when the Michigan Theater premiered "Cyrus," featuring Jonah Hill and John C. Reilly, to a sold-out audience.

The second film the Michigan Theater will screen this month, "Cedar Rapids," will be showing Jan. 28. The film was shot locally and stars Ed Helms, John-C. Reilly, Anne Heche and Sigourney Weaver.

The decision to venture away from Park City, Utah, is motivated by the desire to engage more moviegoers in the film festival conversation. Last year's Sundance USA experience was reportedly well received in Ann Arbor, which is known nationally for its appreciation of independent films.

"A major component of the Sundance Institute mission is to expand and engage audiences for independent storytelling," said Keri Putnam, executive director of the Sundance Institute, in a recent press release. "Sundance Film Festival USA is an extension of the institute's year-round support of independent theaters across the country designed both to provide people with access to films premiering at the festival, and to encourage interaction between artists and audiences."

The 2011 Sundance Film Festival opens Jan. 20 and continues through Jan. 30 in Utah. The Sundance USA event will coincide with the beginning of the festival's awards weekend in Utah.

"The concept behind Sundance Film Festival USA is to ignite dialogue as people across the country engage in a collective film experience," said actor Robert Redford, Sundance Institute president and founder of the Sundance Film Festival, in a press release. "It's an extension, really, of the work we have done for decades supporting the independent voice, bringing artists to the table and inserting art more and more into the social context of how we live."

"We hope by speaking with artists about their work and experiencing the festival as it is happening, audiences will be inspired to share opinions, discuss key issues of our day and reflect on the role art plays in social change."

The Michigan Theater also will be screening Sundance Festival short films between Jan. 23 and Jan. 26. Tickets for the shorts, "Win Win" Jan. 27, and "Cedar Rapids" Jan. 28 are available for purchase through Ticketmaster outlets, including the Michigan Union Ticket Office. Visit www.michtheater.org for more ticket information and package options.

The Michigan Theater in Ann Arbor will premiere "Win Win," Jan. 27. The film stars Paul Giamatti, Amy Ryan, Bobby Cannavale, Jeffrey Tambor, Lori Keitt Douglas and Tom Heller. Edmond Reynolds, Heather Wing, Brodie Brockie, Matthew Steward, Adele Roy, El Berg and Kim Angotti are in Ann Arbor Civic Theatre's production of "Kurt Vonnegut's God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater" Jan. 27 through 30 at the University of Michigan's Arthur Miller Theatre.

Theater to produce comedy

"God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater" tells the story of Eliot Rosewater, the son of a powerful senator who is married to an international beauty and is president of the multi-million-dollar Rosewater Foundation.

Ann Arbor Civic Theatre will present the musical comedy "Kurt Vonnegut's God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater" Jan. 27 through 30 at the University of Michigan's Arthur Miller Theatre.

"God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater" tells the story of Eliot Rosewater, the son of a powerful senator who is married to an international beauty and is president of the multi-million-dollar Rosewater Foundation. Haunted by post-traumatic stress disorder and guilt, he runs away from his charmed life; but, his erratic behavior and large fortune attract the attention of a young shyster lawyer who plots to prove that Eliot's insane and take it all away.

Based on the Kurt Vonnegut book of the same name, it features music and lyrics by the powerful team of Howard Ashman and Alan Menken. This musical is Howard Ashman and Alan Menken's first collaboration; they are the creative team behind "Little Shop of Horrors" and Disney's "Beauty and the Beast."

The "lost classic" is based on one of Vonnegut's greatest and most moving works about greed, despair and a man who dares to care about the forgotten and unloved people of the world, according to director Rob Roy.

"In this age of foreclosure, financial despair, and our nation's warriors returning with invisible wounds, Rosewater is as relevant and poignant as it was when Vonnegut wrote it in 1963, and when Ashman and Menken adapted it in 1979," Roy said.

"I love Ann Arbor and am so excited that people there can experience this early work of mine," Alan Menken said in a news release.

Musical direction for "God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater" is by Naki Kripfgans, with musical staging by John Luther.

The cast features Brodie Brockie as Eliot, Edmond Reynolds as Senator Rosewater, Heather Wing

as Eliot's wife Sylvia and Matthew Antonini as Mushari.

The ensemble also includes Sanders Hamson, Bob Skon, Kathleen Beardmore, Adele Roy, Andrew Hoag, Matthew Steward, Kim Angotti, Douglas Harris, El Berg, and Thom Johnson.

U of M's Arthur Miller Theatre is located at 1226 Murfin Ave. in Ann Arbor.

Performances are 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday with a 2 p.m. matinee on Sunday.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday tickets are $22, with tickets at $20 for seniors and $12 for students. On Thursday only, all seats are $17.

Tickets and information are available online at www.a2ct.org, through the A2CT office at 971-2228 or at the door of the theater before each performance.

"God Bless You, Mr. Rosewater" contains adult themes and language.

Release party set to celebrate book

If you could write a letter to first lady Michelle Obama, what would you say? Would you ask her about her dog, her clothes, her children, her husband, or her feelings on hydrogen fusion?

The nonprofit 826michigan, a local writing and tutoring facility, invites area residents to ponder these questions and celebrate some of southeast Michigan's promising young writers at a release party for 826 national's newest publication,

"I Live Real Close to Where You Used to Live: Kids' Letters to Michelle Obama (and to Sasha, Malia and Bo)."

The free, family-friendly event will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday at 826michigan's downtown Ann Arbor location, Liberty Street Robot Supply and Repair, and will include a reading by several students featured in the publication, as well as the opportunity for guests to craft their own letter to the first lady.

"I Live Real Close to Where

You Used to Live" represents a collaboration between all eight 826 centers nationally.

Students in Ann Arbor, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, New York, San Francisco, Washington, D.C., and Seattle participated in workshops designed to teach the art of writing a good letter. The results were compiled in the book, which is a companion to 826 national's 2009 publication.

"I think a lot of people find Michelle Obama very inspiring," Amanda Uhle, 826michigan's executive director, said in a news release. "These letters really show the appeal she and her family have to children around the country. They are alternately smart, funny, off-beat, and incredibly poignant. I am so proud that 826michigan students are featured in this beautiful book."

For more information on 826michigan, its programs, or this event, call 761-3463 or visit www.826michigan.org.

unfavorable to cash crops, lack of minable resources, lack of coastline for shipping — are out of human hands. On the other hand, such boons can turn into crutches of dependency, defining nations by what they produce (banana republics, blood diamonds, "oligarchs") or their largest port. Most of my villagers refer to the country of Benin as Cotonou, its largest city and port, not aware that its political capital is Porto Novo. Nigerien men often spend years working the ports, unable to earn a dime back home. But back in Niger people scrape on by, living from day to day, hand to mouth, pressed thin and dry by the dusty Harmattan winds or the crushing midday sun.

While development theories change, projects come and go. Pumps break and are left to rust away; schools and medical clinics are left half-finished, weeds growing in hulking cement flowerbeds; women's groups are created and just as quickly disintegrate into hallow titles and talk, sometimes without a purchase made or sale completed.

I have been telling myself to appreciate the little victories, to refrain from a very American, "results, now!" frame of mind. While things do take longer to complete on "African time," it is their village and their lives — if people have the will, they will find a way.

But in fact, some of the best tools of development are not even strived for, they just happen. Most Nigeriens had never seen a phone, let alone used one before the last five years or so. Now, almost the entire country has at least some kind of cell reception, no matter the kilometers walked to catch it or the gas consumed by generator to charge the battery.

Quality of life is much harder to measure; some of the world's poorest are also its happiest. People can improve and change but neither in quantitative nor qualitative terms is development a uniform process.

The real work has been done by a small team from my departmental capital along with a generous set of helping hands from my fellow villagers. A day or two-day operation stretched to a week as pipes have been thrown off their screws, rocketing down the well, only to be pulled up and reinstalled, twice.

One team member was lowered down the well by rope tied around the waist to recover items five times! The head mechanic traveled three times on trips of 10, 60 and over 100 miles for repairs or replacement parts. All of this was done without complaint or demands for reimbursement. While this operation may hard to picture, for me it was the image of that fabled "African ingenuity."

Making do with what you have and going to great lengths to get the job done, and done right — this cannot be said about many projects I have witnessed or helped carry out.

Too often do I feel that I am the only one truly invested in a project and that as soon as I leave things will return to the way they were before. At the same time, I have seen in one year my neighbor start a now bustling tea and coffee shack, a tailor, friend spend months getting a generator-powered sewing machine to make complicated embroidery, my newly-elected village chief invest his body-soul and mind into innumerable infrastructure improvements to Lido — from bringing electricity to a proper Friday mosque — all while directing a primary school miles away. Just watching him operate — when I get a chance — makes me breathless. As I watch gray hairs multiply on his head, his veins pop and hands gesticulate while adjudicating the village's legal affairs with unmatched purpose and drive, I worry he'll give himself a heart attack.

No one pays these generators of development to improve their village or orders them to budget who's contributing what to which projects. Like elsewhere, it is will and intellect that paces their work.

As I watch three motorcycles plow through deep sand, carrying seven 25-liter jugs of gas up from Nigeria, and listen to the well mechanic carry on about cheap Chinese parts and racist French people, I am plunged back into the seat-of-your-pants development being lived out in Lido, Niger like it has been since time immemorial.

Orchestra board adds members

The Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra has added five new members to its board of directors and has hired two new staff members.

Mary Margaret Cornish is employed as an English as a Second Language teacher in the Ann Arbor Public Schools. Because of her affiliations with The Ann Arbor Education Foundation, the Neutral Zone and the National MS Society, she brings a wide array of community service experiences to the board, according to a news release from the board.

Paloma Jalife, retiring after 17 years as assistant dean of the School of Business at SUNY Oswego in Oswego, N.Y., has relocated with her husband to Ann Arbor, bringing with her many years of business, education and administrative experience. Jalife received an MBA from Syracuse University where she also participated in the Higher Education Administration Program.

Priyanka (Priya) Menon is the latest Youth-on-Board member. Menon is the president of the Skyline High School Orchestra Council, has received "superior" ratings at district and state Solo and Ensemble competitions, is a member of the Skyline Student Action Senate and maintains a 4.0 GPA.

"I am extremely pleased to be at the helm of such a creative and competent board," Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra Board President Kim Eagle said.

"The added strength and wisdom of these new members will certainly prove invaluable to the symphony's success as well as to the larger Ann Arbor arts community. We thank them for their commitment of service to the Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra."

Other officers include First Vice President William Maxbauer, Secretary Joan Singer and Treasurer Richard Hendricks.

The Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra also recently added two staff members.

Yellow Room Gang to perform

Group celebrates third release at The Ark

A Michigan songwriting collective, The Yellow Room Gang, will perform its annual concert Friday at The Ark in Ann Arbor.

This year, the concert will also celebrate the release of its third CD, titled "Live at Big Sky."

The CD was recorded over two nights last August at Ann Arbor's Big Sky studio, in front of a live audience.

The idea, brainchild of one of the members of the Gang,

Annie Capps, was to combine the legendary performances of the gang, the opportunity for fans to be in a recording studio to see how a record is made and the experience of being at one of the gang's monthly meetings.

Those meetings, which have been going on since December 2004, are held in the yellow living room of fellow gang member David Tamulevich, and consist of a potluck and song critique session for the members' newest songs.

Toward that end, each YRG member prepared a dish for the 40 or so people who attended each night's concert and recording, and Jackson-based Sandhill

Crane Winery donated a selection of their wines.

Both nights sold out, with people coming in from as far away as New York and Connecticut.

The new release features two songs by each of the gang, some classic material from their repertoire and some material never recorded before.

The new material includes new songs by Jan Krist and David Tamulevich that made their debuts at these sessions.

The Yellow Room Gang consists of David Barrett, Jim Bizer, Annie Capps, Kitty Donohoe, Michael Hough, Jan Krist, David Tamulevich and Matt Watroba.

Their first two recordings have been widely praised and have received extensive air play.

Their concerts have become events, where audiences come expecting not only songs that have become favorites but the debut of new songs and insights to the creative process the gang goes through.

The annual concert is set for 8 p.m. Jan. 24, and tickets are $15.

For more ticket information, visit www.theark.org.

For more information about The Yellow Room Gang, contact Tamulevich at 622-8337 or David@mustardsretreat.com or visit www.yellowroomgang.com.

Why Infrared Heat?

Safe, Comfortable, Therapeutic, and Energy Efficient Heat

Are you tired of feeling cold and paying high heating bills? Don't settle for inefficient heating systems that do not provide enough warmth. Far infrared heat has been a successful technology for years, but now it is available for residential heating in a handsome, sturdy cabinet providing safe, comfortable, therapeutic, and energy efficient heat.

Finally, a way to control how much you can save on your next heating bill!

Far infrared heaters are the most efficient way to convert electrical energy into heat energy. Far Infrared heat provides even heat to a room through the floor, walls and ceiling receiving equal energy distribution. Also, 80% of the energy generated by a far infrared heater is absorbed by the objects in the room, which then radiate the heat back into the room, regardless of where the heater is placed in the room. You experience comfortable heat at all levels in the room. Your body is able to absorb far infrared heat just as though you received an infrared therapy treatment by increasing your blood flow and relaxing your muscles. Far infrared heat does not remove the humidity from the air, so you feel much more comfortable and do not experience the dry skin and sinuses that occur with conventional heat.

Far Infrared Heater Features:

Thermostatic control and display with accuracy to within 1 degree

Automatic restart feature should you lose power

Remote control – credit card size with a large button face

Delayed start function for up to 24 hours

Silent scroll fan that provides the quietest heat/air flow available on the market

Heat Chamber - 3 Copper-ion generation panels with additional negative ion generator for maximum efficiency

Four quartz far infrared elements with a life expectancy of 30,000 hours

Patented air filtration technology - Optional BioSmart™ 5-stage air filtration*

Safety cut-off

3 Year Warranty - Designed so that the customer may easily replace any of the parts with the use of a screwdriver – “plug and play”

LIFETIME ELEMENT WARRANTY - When you purchase your far infrared heater at a Factory Direct Sale, you will receive an industry leading LIFETIME warranty on the heating elements.

Red Tag (Advertised Feature) Promotions are on items we receive special allowances from the manufacturer. These discounts are so deep that the manufacturer requires Country Markets to advertise these items to qualify for the allowance. We feature these items in our weekly ad at very low prices, most often well below our cost. Yes these ad features are used to entice new customers to come check out our stores, but more importantly we feature these items below cost for our loyal customers as a way of saying Thank You for making us your #1 place to save on your overall grocery bill!

Green Tag (Temporary Price Reductions) Promotions are similar to yellow tags in that we receive allowances from the manufacturer on these items. These allowances are generally larger discounts and for a shorter period of time. We not only pass the entire allowance on to you but we take it one step further and double the savings to you. An example of this would be if we received a 25¢ allowance on Hunt's Manwich, we would take that 25¢ and double it and reduce our retail by 50¢. These Green Tags are numerous thru out our store and this is where you can really lower your everyday grocery bill!

Yellow Tag (Every Day Value) Promotions are long-term price reductions (12 - 26 wks) on grocery items you buy everyday. We receive long term allowances on products from the manufacturer everyday. We take these allowances and reduce our everyday retail by that amount. (ex: If we receive a 20¢ allowance on Del Monte Canned Vegetables than we reduce our everyday retail by 20¢). These price reductions are long term and can be continuous as long as we receive the allowance from the manufacturer you receive an even lower everyday price!
