Debit card fraud caught

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Media

Chelsea State Bank customers experienced a three-day period without use of debit cards after a sophisticated fraud scheme bested the bank's vendor for its automated teller system.

The bank is currently cooperating with the Federal Bureau of Investigations in a broader investigation of an incident that may have ensnared other banking institutions.

CEO John Mann said debit cards were functioning again Tuesday as ATM and PIN debit transactions as well as credit card-swiped transactions.

Mann said manual transactions including Internet and telephone purchases were still down Tuesday, and card numbers that were comprised were not functioning.

Mann said the bank was still working on getting those issues fixed.

The CEO said that he hadn't seen anything like the scheme that played out over the weekend. He promised customers that they would not take a personal financial hit in this situation.

"No customer is going to lose money," he said. "The bank has catastrophic loss from fraud insurance."

Mann said bank officials are leaning toward looking to Master Card and their

A long time coming

City breaks ground on police station, council chambers building

By Sean Dalton

Thursday's dedication for a new 6,600 square-foot police building was a long time coming for many within the city's staff.

"I think after as long as we've been at this, which is well over 20 years, it's about time," Council member Frank Hammer said.

Hammer, who has been on council for more than two decades, said he remembers the topic of a new police headquarters being one of the first discussion items he was involved in back when he was a newcomer to council.

In those days, the building had leaks, but now the dilapidation has advanced such that there is black mold and pests such as bees have been co-tenants with Chelsea's finest.

The groundbreaking comes less than one month after the Chelsea City Council approved the $2.5 million in bonds necessary to fund the project after some debate last year with residents. In turn, the city government scheduled public forums and tours of the current department in the old village offices at Main and Middle streets.

City Manager John Hanifan joked that talks regarding a new police facility probably predated his birth. He's turning 41 next January.

"The biggest thank you goes to our officers for enduring the conditions they've been in these 40 years," he said in his ceremony remarks. "This project is for them, as much as it is for the community."

"They do a fantastic job in sub-standard conditions, and I can only imagine the mission they're going to be able to accomplish in this new facility we're going to be able to build for them."

Police Chief Ed Toth said that he was grateful that his staff could achieve the case closure rates that the department and community enjoy despite the distracting current facility.

"When you have a deteriorating facility like this you spend a lot of time dealing with electrical and plumbing issues instead of doing the job you're supposed to," he said. "By removing all of that we're going to be a little bit more efficient."

Despite his fervor to move into the department's new home, Toth said that packing for the move is still six to eight months down the road.

"The fact remains that our property room has to be functional," he explained. "That's a thing that has to be operating, so therefore we're in the process of taking evidence and determining what's still necessary and what can still be disposed of through property disposition."

The department is currently determining what can be left behind for crews to throw in the landfill and sort out what equipment is going in the back of a moving truck.

"There's equipment that we have that's been sitting there for 60-some

Two ADs to replace retiring Welton

By Erica McClain
Heritage Media

After 33 years at Chelsea School District, Wayne Welton will retire from his position as an athletic director this year.

Though the district initially sought a replacement, administration soon realized a full-time athletic director might be an expense they didn't have.

"When the governor's budget came out, and what followed with both the State Senate and House, we really had no option," Superintendent Dave Killips said. "As the finances from Lansing diminish, we have to look at doing things different in Chelsea. One of the things we looked at was combining staff. So when Wayne had announced his retirement, we decided we would take the opportunity."

Taking over for Welton will be two Chelsea staffers who have several years of experience within the school district. Jason Morris will serve as the middle school athletic director in the afternoon and teach history in the morning. Mike Kapolka will continue as an assistant principal at the high school and take over the high school athletic duties.

The two are currently working on a game plan but won't officially start until July 1.

Kapolka, who has been shadowing Welton in preparation, said he feels his transition will be smooth considering he has a background in athletics.

"The daunting task I will have is to take over for Wayne who's done such a wonderful job for so long," Kapolka said.

Neither Kapolka nor Morris was sure how many hours they might have to commit their new job duties just yet.

An award-winning athletic director, coach and teacher, Welton, 57, said the decision was his own.

"It's a decision I made and wrestled with a year ago in June," Welton said. Killips added that Welton would be welcome to stay as long as he wanted.

"He's highly thought of in the community and throughout the state of Michigan," Killips said. "He's been a phenomenal athletic director. He's always been strictly about what he can do for the kids."

Welton said he hopes to pursue many passions he put aside during his busy years as an athletic director, in which his job duties included supervising coaches, schedules and everything that comes with coordinating games and events.

"It's really about dealing with people," Welton said.

"I have made more friends in this position and met so many really good people."

Within Welton's plans, he said he will continue on as the baseball coach.

Welton said he has every confidence in Kapolka and Morris as they make the transition to sharing athletic director duties.

"Mike is a very talented administrator with a coaching background, and Jason brings a real passion to Chelsea," Welton said.

Both Kapolka and Morris have known Welton a number of years.

"I see Wayne as a great mentor, not only in terms of this job, but just all of the help he's given," Morris said.

odd years that we're in the process of determining what has to be moved and what doesn't have to be moved," Toth said. "The plan is to have people from the landfill come out and load it up and take it to the landfill. That's probably end of summer or fall."

After discussing logistics of the move, Toth smiled and sighed slightly as he mulled over the finality of the ceremony as a commencement for the construction process.

"This is outstanding... we've been waiting to get the ground and dirt moving, and now that that's happened we're able to get moving forward," Toth said. "I wasn't sure that that was going to happen, but now I am."

Councilmember Cheri Albertson, who as the council's liaison to the planning commission had to witness some of the snags that held this project up along the way, was very pleased.

"We've worked long and hard to accomplish this and it's very wonderful and very gratifying to be able to break ground on this very important project," she said.

She recalled the analysis that was completed in 1990 when the council was considering turning the Buchanan Street property into a municipal center, and followed the recollection up with an even more emphatic statement of gratitude for today's groundbreaking ceremony.

Budding entrepreneurs pitch ideas at showcase

By Lori Maranville
Special Writer

Take a few "crazy ideas," some late-night power working sessions, a mix of talented college students and you could get the next big thing in business.

Attendees of the University of Michigan's Student Startup Showcase saw some of these ambitious, student-driven ideas take center stage April 21 in the basement of the McKinley Towne Centre in Ann Arbor.

In the spotlight were members of 17 TechArb companies who took turns pitching everything from an online baby clothes rental service to a business making toys for children with disabilities.

What started as an experiment in 2009, TechArb offers co-location space for technology-related business ventures associated with U of M. It's managed by the Center for Entrepreneurship and the Zell Lurie Institute and is quickly gaining traction as a viable student business incubator.

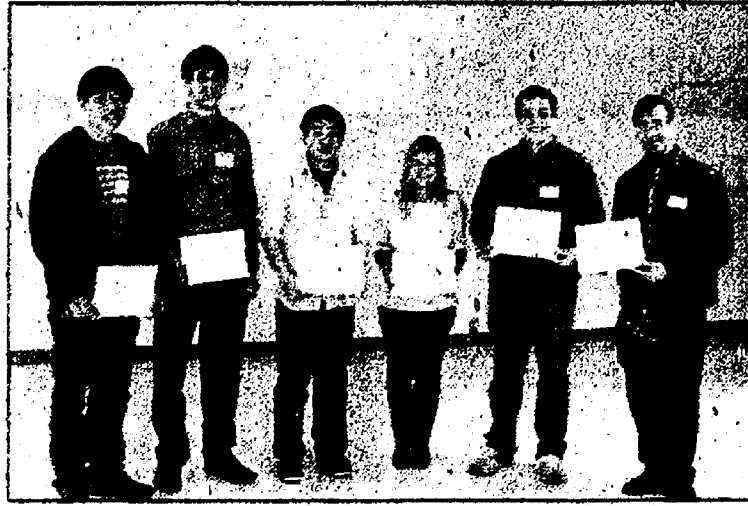

During his opening remarks at the event, Doug Neal, managing director of the Center for Entrepreneurship, said he is proud of the success of TechArb, so far, and wants to see the program grow.

"We see a tremendous trajectory and momentum," Neal said, "and our goal is to get to 100 startups per year in the next three to four years."

A new session starts in two weeks with 10 new startups and will run for six months.

TechArb companies were also joined by 23 other student ventures, which have been started within the last year. The companies participated in the Entrepreneurship Practicum, Social Venture Creation Practicum, Dare to Dream or Michigan Business Challenge. Those graduating from the Program in Entrepreneurship were honored during the program.

Graduates of that program include Haroon Afzal, Nicholas Clay, Larianna Dunn, Jermaine Jackson, Jonathon Kumar, Ian Margolis, Armando Munoz, Michael Scadron, David Sheng, John Sidhom, Xiaohu

Student entrepreneurs were given the opportunity to mingle and make connections with local venture capitalists and angel investors during the event.

U of M business student Tiffany Huang said TechArb has been an integral part of launching her team's toy design business, SpecializeDesigns.

"For us, it really grew into a community. It created not only great friends, but great contacts on a personal level who were there to give us advice during all those late nights," she said.

Huang said sharing the space with other startups gave her the ability to connect with students who have backgrounds in engineering, business and art.

"That kind of information-sharing is priceless," she said. "The network is just phenomenal."

Huang's business aims to develop toys for children with visual, mobile or hearing impairments. Her first prototype is an electronic toy for blind children. It uses sound and vibrations to produce a pattern. Those playing must work collaboratively to repeat the sequence.

In the coming months, Huang said she hopes to modify the product's appearance. Her team will also do extensive testing of their product in homes and schools.

TechArb company MoBlue also has its sights set on assistive technology for those with disabilities.

MoBlue Team member Jacob Steineman made his pitch for alternative communication applications for mobile devices.

Steineman said these applications would help children with autism communicate more easily and effectively.

Educating children while entertaining them is the aim of Dodact, a startup that builds educational games for mobile devices and the web.

There were other business ventures aimed at making a positive social or environmental impact.

Zahid Hasan, a U of M aerospace engineer and one of the developers of Medicron, said his business seeks to provide a laboratory information system for Tanzania and other developing countries.

Hasan said Tanzania has too few laboratories to service its population. The medical centers, he said, are overwhelmed.

Medicron would create an information system capable of assisting the laboratories process, share and disseminate information.

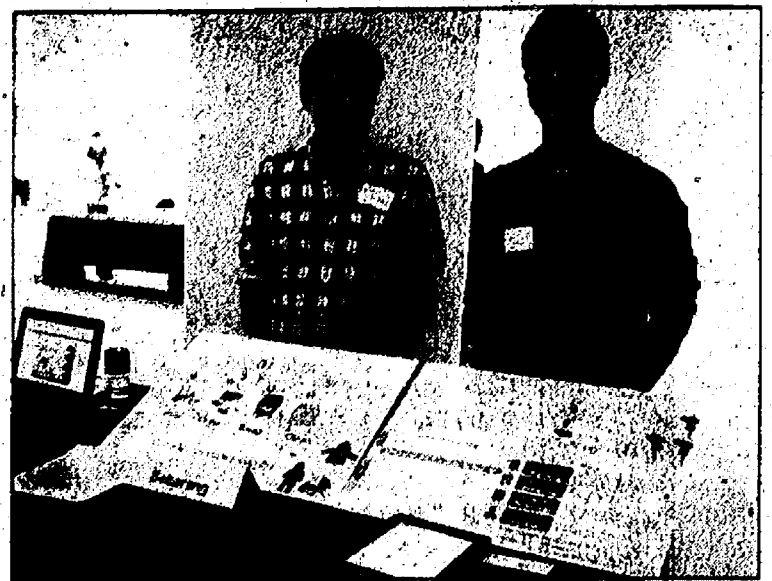

"One of the things you have to look at," Hassan said, "is if it really makes people's lives better and I believe this does."

Zach Martin of Get Fresh Detroit also talked of improving quality of life with his business. His goal is to increase access to fresh food in Detroit.

Martin did extensive research to determine what products would sell and which existing markets his business could partner with to sell fresher, healthier food choices.

University of Michigan student and TechArb participant Jacob Steineman presents his ideas for creating technology-based tools for special education. His company, MoBlue, was one of 17 TechArb Student Startup Accelerator businesses highlighted during an event April 21 at TechArb's future headquarters at the McKinley Towne Centre in Ann Arbor.

University of Michigan students Hung Truong and Allen Kim display information about their TechArb company, Bebarang, during the Student Startup Showcase April 21 in Ann Arbor. The company seeks to provide an online baby clothes rental service.

During their short presentations, all teams shared lessons learned in the evolution of their business startups.

Sara Jones of HeartGraffiti said one of the lessons she learned was that you've got to know what business you are in.

Jones did a lot of market research to determine there was a demand for specially-designed commemorative jewelry for women college students.

Most teams spoke of the amazing partnerships developed through TechArb.

"There was a nice sense of synergy with other companies," said Jacob Mendel, 21, of Giant Eel Productions. Mendel will graduate this year from U of M.

Most students were hoping the evening would yield more connections and investments to take their startups to the next level.

Neal said he has seen many TechArb alumni return to offer advice and assistance to current residents of the program and hopes this spirit of support continues for future participants.

Cooley professor writes 'Applying Laws'

Cooley Law School professor Bradley Charles has authored a book, "Applying Law," which was published April 1 by Carolina Academic Press.

"Applying Law" teaches students the skill of applying law to fact — the skill that determines law school grades and effective advocacy after law school.

With examples and exercises, the author explains nine reasoning techniques that the justices of the United States Supreme Court primarily use. These techniques come from classifying arguments in every sentence from an entire year's worth of their cases.

After studying this book, law students will have a tool belt full of specific reasoning techniques.

Before joining the full-time faculty at Cooley, Charles was a visiting professor teaching Research and Writing, and was a judicial law clerk for the 21st Circuit Court in Isabella County. He earned his juris doctorate from Cooley and his bachelor's degree in international law from Brigham Young University.

Touch-A-Truck set May 21

Have you ever wanted to sit behind the steering wheel of a fire engine? Slide into the driver's seat of a real police car? Climb aboard a cement mixer?

All these opportunities and more await children and their families at the third annual Touch-A-Truck event sponsored by Washtenaw Success by 6 and the Washtenaw Great Start Parent Coalition.

The free family event will be held from 9 a.m. to noon May 21 in the Briarwood Mall parking lot in Ann Arbor.

Touch-a-Truck is designed to provide a fun learning opportunity for the whole family.

In addition to the trucks, emergency response vehicles, race cars and more, local nonprofits and businesses will be there to share information about preschool opportunities, childcare, health services and a wide variety of other family services.

Last year more than 3,000 people attended.

For more information, call Melissa Pinsky at 994-8100, extension 2177 or visit www.washtenaw-successby6.org.

Green Fair set June 10

The 11th annual Ann Arbor Green Fair will be held from 6 to 9 p.m. June 10.

The city will close part of the Main Street area to accommodate an ever-expanding group of exhibitors. Participation in the fair is $25 for all Waste Knot Partners and Washtenaw County Environmental nonprofits.

Based on last year's evaluations, the city is planning to provide a 10-foot space for each table, allowing more space between exhibitors and the ability for participants to bring and use their own 10-foot by 10-foot canopy. Participants in the fair will be supplied with one table and two chairs.

The city is in the process of redesigning the three blocks of Main Street to different sections of the Green Fair to better accommodate exhibitors with canopies. Organizers hope this move will limit the need for many table exhibitors to set up on the side streets.

The city is also taking the initiative to practice what it preaches and is striving to make Green Fair a "zero waste" event. Exhibitors are urged to bring minimal and only recyclable handouts or packing materials for their booths.

Applications for this year's event will be sent out in March.

General event information is posted at www.a2gov.org/greenfair.

Ideation expanding offerings

Since 1964, Ann Arbor-based Ideation Inc. has provided catalog and marketing services to independent gift retailers nationwide, and this year, it's adding two new publications to its spring collection of catalogs.

iStyle, the newest catalog, will feature women's clothing and accessories with a slightly higher price point than the items in Ideation's other catalogs.

"After talking with some of our members, and a number of boutique store owners, we found a real need for this type of merchandise," said Tom Ungrodt, president of Ideation, in a news release.

Ungrodt said the response has been "very good" and the publication will be expanding later this year.

Just last fall Ideation produced a 28-page toy catalog for the first time. "Because the introduction of our toy catalog was so successful, we're producing a smaller catalog for spring 2011," Ungrodt said.

The spring publication will be 16 pages and will feature the same kind of toys, learning tools and games that appeal to the entire family.

Ungrodt said he believes the new catalogs will be effective and affordable marketing tools for independent retailers throughout the country. They can be distributed by mail, or they can be inserted in regional newspapers.

For more information, contact Ungrodt at 761-4360.

Frisinger wins award

Ann Arbor Mortgage, in conjunction with the Charles Reinhart Co., held its annual Awards Luncheon Feb. 10 at Barton Hills Country Club.

Ann Arbor Mortgage is a mortgage banker that established in 1996.

During the luncheon, Ann Arbor Mortgage President Bill Holmes presented Mary Frisinger, senior loan officer, with the Highest Production Award.

Frisinger has been with Ann Arbor Mortgage since 1999. Throughout her career, she has closed loans in excess of $100 million.

Frisinger is an active member of the Ann Arbor Area Board of Realtors and is involved with United Way, the American Cancer Society and Making Strides Against Breast Cancer.

"Mary has always exhibited a high degree of professionalism and salesmanship," said Bill Holmes, president of Ann Arbor Mortgage, in a news release.

"Her hard work, high ethical standards and great personality have contributed greatly to the well-being of our organization."

Recreation center posts losses; set to restructure

By Crystal Hayduk
Special Writer

A problematic economy has forced changes in many Chelsea businesses and agencies and now Chelsea Recreation, a fees-based chartered partnership with the schools and the city, can be added to the growing list.

"Chelsea Recreation is currently going through a restructuring process in order to ensure the longevity and quality of program offerings, and to address the fiscal pressures that are prevalent," according to a statement released by the Chelsea Recreation Council Board of Directors.

Financial issues faced by Chelsea Recreation include a reported loss of $17,000 for the 2009-10 fiscal year. The expense budget for 2010-11 is nearly $228,000.

President of the board, Chris Zarinnia, wants to assure the public that during the restructuring, programming will take place as planned, including the popular children's summer program Camp Cabogi.

"I'm confident that it will run smoothly and well," she said.

At this point, the board hopes that any loss for the year has been managed by reducing salaries and increasing fees.

According to Dan Aldrich, Chelsea Recreation Council's treasurer since January, their fiscal year runs from September to August, so this year's final numbers are not yet available.

"Spring and Cabogi programming is 54 percent of Chelsea Recreation income," Aldrich said. "Chelsea Recreation is forecasting a loss this fiscal year based on (low) spring enrollments, not including special items (for example, unemployment benefits)."

Financial losses are a result of increased expenses and decreased revenue. On the expense side, facility fees for the current year are over $11,000.

"This will double next year and increase another 33% the following year, assuming equal school facility usage," Aldrich said.

Members of the board believe that several factors have led to decreased enrollment and revenues, including the decrease in the number of school-age children in the Chelsea area, and "the migration of children to travel sports and other activities."

PRESS RELEASE FROM CHELSEA RECREATION COUNCIL BOARD OF DIRECTORS

John Hanifan, Chelsea city manager, said that the city budgets $10,000 to be given to Chelsea Recreation annually as part of their contract to provide services. It is expected that the city will continue to do so.

"Chelsea Recreation has studied successful recreational programs within the state and analyzed the program budget and determined that a restructuring of salaried staff is required to provide a fiscally responsible recreational organization to the community of Chelsea," the board's press release stated.

As a result, the board has already moved to change the two full-time director and assistant director positions to one full-time leadership position. The job posting for recreation director will be available beginning May 2 at www.mrpaonline.org. The board will consider all recreational professional candidates in their search to provide the best leadership for Chelsea Recreation's future.

The Chelsea Recreation Council Board of Directors announced in their statement that "Michelle Mitchell, Chelsea Recreation director, resigned from her position effective April 15. The Chelsea Recreation Board is appreciative of all that Michelle has done to lead and grow the recreation department during her tenure, and wishes her well in her future endeavors."

"Jeremy Hodges will continue to serve as the assistant director until the newly developed director position has been filled. The board is appreciative of the additional responsibilities Jeremy has taken on. He continues to oversee program operations and Camp Cabogi."

Departing Mitchell desired to share her thoughts with the Chelsea community.

"I want to thank the Chelsea Recreation Council for the opportunity to serve the residents of the Chelsea School District for nearly nine years," she said. "I am truly passionate about the recreation world and youth sports and I consider myself very fortunate that I love what I do. It has been very rewarding creating recreation opportunities for the entire community. I am honored to have served hundreds every season and thousands every year. As the years roll on and households turn into empty-nests, I am confident that parents, children and volunteer coaches will reflect fondly on their recreation times. These truly are experiences that will last a lifetime. I am grateful to have contributed to enhancing those memories and the quality of life for the residents of the Chelsea School District. The pleasure was all mine."

Waterloo initiative snags 'Pure Michigan' strategist

Since September 2010, a group of leaders from communities boarding the Waterloo Recreation Area and other local public lands including Chelsea, Dexter, Manchester, and eastern Jackson County have been meeting monthly, brainstorming ways to market the area locally and regionally for outdoor recreational tourism.

Known as the Gateway Communities Initiative, the group's collaborative efforts did not go unnoticed by two leaders of the destination marketing and branding world. Mark Lantz, marketing strategist who helped to create the award-winning Pure Michigan campaign, and Dave Lorenz, managing director with Travel Michigan, praised the accomplishments of the initiative and discussed the group's next steps at a design team meeting at the Waterloo Discovery Center April 27.

"We're absolutely delighted to know that Dave and Mark felt we had done a substantial amount of the preliminary planning, and have a solid base on which to launch a program to market our region," said Bob Pierce, executive director of the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce and meeting facilitator for the GCI design team.

After a brief presentation by Lantz highlighting previous marketing campaigns he did with Genesee County Parks, Colonial Williamsburg and Great Waters in

"At a time when we are challenged economically and otherwise, the Pure Michigan campaign ... has engendered a certain amount of pride in Michigan."

DAVE LORENZ,
Managing Director with Travel Michigan

the Upper Peninsula, Lantz and Lorenz discussed what's working in destination marketing and what's not.

Lorenz stressed that successful destination tourism marketing campaigns honestly answer the "who you are, what you are and why you are" questions.

"I think this group has done that," Lorenz said. "At a time when we are challenged economically and otherwise, the Pure Michigan campaign and what you are trying to do here has engendered a certain amount of pride in Michigan."

Moving forward, participating communities will continue to work on individual projects that will tie into GCI's regional marketing effort. The design team will also work to formalize in some fashion and develop a strategy to implement the marketing plan.

"This is probably one of the best examples of a grassroots effort to get something started for regional cooperation, but we do have to formalize the organization in order to move forward with the next phase of our plan," Pierce said.

Finally, Pierce said the GCI team is excited to have the opportunity to work with professionals such as Mark Lantz and Dave Lorenz.

"This collaboration should produce a marketing strategy that parallels the efforts of Pure Michigan and other regional tourism marketing and branding campaigns," Pierce said.

Different state plans leave board waiting

By Crystal Hayduk
Special Writer

Chelsea School District Superintendent Dave Killips reported to the board on Monday evening that the proposed budgets from Gov. Rick Snyder, the House and the Senate differ in the amount of anticipated student cuts. While the governor's plan would decrease revenue by $528 per student next year, the House would give each student a $484 cut and the Senate would decrease funding by $398 per student.

"These are revenue cuts," Killips clarified. "Each plan would also add expenses to districts, which explains the different numbers you may hear reported."

"We are on the heels of five to six difficult years," Killips said. "We're going to be hit next (school) year with increased retirement costs, decreased taxable values to homes, and the loss of EduJobs funding."

Killips said it is expected that the state will find it has anywhere from $300 million to $500 million more than it expected at the Revenue Sharing Consensus Conference on May 16, but there is presently no indication of what the state will plan to do with that money. The additional money is from taxes obtained through sales and increased employment over the last five months.

The district is continuing to explore the possibility of sharing transportation services with the Manchester School District, similar to Chelsea's relationship of shared food services with Dexter Schools.

In other board news: The school's technology team, headed by Scott Wooster, has been working for the last several days to restore phones and internet to the district's operations and transportation departments. The outage is due to damage to the fiber optic line from "rogue squirrels chewing insulation," Killips said.

Andrew Ingall, executive director of instruction, presented plans for updating resources and improving curriculum in English language arts, world languages, technology and family and consumer science courses. Curriculum improvement is part of the district's budget and the proposed changes are estimated to cost about $113,000. Information about curriculum is available on the district's website at www.chelsea.k12.mi.us under the curriculum and instruction department.

Steve Olsen, board president, took a moment to thank the community for the May 3 renewal of the Special Education millage, which won by a 77 percent to 23 percent vote county-wide.

"This will make a huge impact on the (general) budget and for children who need special services," he said.

Marcus Kaemming, principal of North Creek Elementary School, said that students in kindergarten through second grade read 27,401 books during "March is Reading Month." This topped the previous high number of 24,000, even with fewer students in the building.

The board voted to accept a donation of $3,000 to the Chelsea High School Scholarship Fund from Carole and Howdy Holmes.

FRAUD

vendor to shoulder some of the responsibility, since the thieves, who made their first purchase with fraudulent CSB debit account information, did not breach a bank system to commit the crime.

Mann's staff shut down the debit card system on Saturday, shortly after the first suspicious purchases were noticed in unlikely locations outside of the state and country.

CSB only has about 5,000 debit card customers, which contributed to the spending pattern being noticed so quickly. "When we first detected the fraud on Saturday morning, we contacted our vendors and were not getting the answers that we wanted from them so we made the decision to shut the system down to protect ourselves and our customers," Mann explained.

The fraudulent card numbers that were used were generated by randomly guessing and trying number variations branching out from a single or a small grouping of likely legitimate card numbers acquired via unknown means.

"We still don't understand how the criminals were able to perpetrate the account numbers,"

Mann said. "It looks like it was just blind attempts based on one good number from which they tried all types of sequential numbers until they hit on ones that worked."

Mann said that new precautions and procedures are already in place to protect against similar fraud attempts in the future, but as of Tuesday morning his best guess as to when debit card holders would have normal access again was later in the day at best.

"I'm proud of our customers and proud of the response that we've had from our customers, who have been very understanding," Mann said. "This was a huge inconvenience to customers, because people with good cards who weren't compromised were affected, but we've gotten a lot of good feedback and thanks from customers who indicate that we handled it the right way."

Mann said that he hopes that his cooperation with the FBI aids them in snuffing out what he understands as a new method of defrauding banks and bank customers that has recently been used against institutions and consumers in places other than Chelsea.

"They're anxious to get started on the case," Mann said, indicating that bank staff had had a meeting already with agents, who are casting a net much wider than Chelsea in their investigation.

"It's clear that we're not the only bank involved and that the perpetrators of this diabolical plan are not local," Mann said.

When asked how fraud in general can be avoided in the future, he added that "more accountability at the point of sale" could go a long way to protecting the public's private information.

"All that's needed to run a Master Card at a retailer is a signature ... most of the time ID isn't even required, and that's how a lot of criminals can perpetrate crimes like this," Mann said.

Bernero's words more 'pithy' than gov's

Every time Gov. Rick Snyder is tossed a question that might make some controversial news, he tosses it right back at reporters with some non-newsy pabulum like: "We need to dialogue about that," or "There again, this is the right thing to do."

And when that happens, as it always does, some scribes must dream about what it would be like to have the "Angriest Mayor in America" (Virg Bernero) fielding the questions instead of Snyder. Bernero lost to Snyder in the last general election.

Exhibit A took place the other day in the front of the state Capitol Building, where Bernero wanted to have an office instead of the one he still has across the street in Lansing City Hall.

He had just attended an American flag ceremony when correspondents pulled him aside for some questions about the guy who beat him.

"Will you join a lawsuit to challenge the governor's emergency manager bill?"

"That's bill allows the state to parachute into financially troubled schools and governments and take them over."

Bernero is not a big fan of

GUEST COLUMN

emergency managers.

"This is the kind of thing that happens in Russia," Bernero said. "I jokingly said he (Mr. Snyder) must have followed the advice of 'WWPD.'"

He paused for effect as reporters wondered what the heck that was before he cranked up the patented Bernero sound bite machine: "What Would Putin Do?"

(That "P" is for Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin, of course.)

It was vintage Bernero. It's a line he used once on national TV, but he trots it out again for the local media, which consumes it hook, line and sinker.

Can you imagine Snyder crafting a pithy sound bite such as that? Not in a million years.

Bernero disappeared after his not-so-shocking loss to Snyder. After a trip to Italy with his aging father, he returned to the Lansing mayor's office in a reflective and uncharacteristic toned-down mood.

He said he was willing to work with the new governor. And when he thought Snyder was wrong, he would say so. And he has.

Bernero doesn't much like the proposed cuts to state aid to the cities and at one point contemplated forming a bus tour along with other mayors to travel around the state griping about the governor's policies.

The Lansing mayor favors the governor's agenda of a consolidation of services but knows local governments are loathe to give up their turf. But he strongly disagrees on withholding revenue-sharing dollars at a time when local property tax collections, the life-blood of local government, have gone limp.

When a series of Capitol steps protests unfolded, there was Bernero, right in the thick of it all, blasting the anti-labor sentiment emerging from the GOP-controlled Legislature.

"Welcome to Lansing," he would shout out to the thousands of demonstrators. Then he'd launch into one sound bite after another that found its way onto the evening news.

Bernero never had much of a chance to beat Snyder because his opponent "ran a brilliant campaign" that was void of any hint of what Snyder might really do if he got elected.

You never heard a peep about taxing pensions, or cutting cities, education, etc.

Just after his WWPD line, the feisty mayor was asked, "If the voters had known all that stuff, would you have won?"

He paused for a second and reflected longingly, "Maybe."

One poll suggested the answer is "yes."

Tim Skubick is the host of the TV show Off the Record and blogs regularly at MiCentral.com and www.thenews-herald.com.

OUR TAKE: Editorial

College tuition must stabilize to help grads

Is college worth it considering rising tuition costs? The days of leaving high school and moving into an auto plant and making a living wage are pretty much gone.

So graduates are turning more to attending either a two-year or four-year college to earn a degree.

But rising costs for tuition, books and room and board are putting a real squeeze on middle-class families whose children hope to attend a university.

Costs at Oakland University are $9,280 for in-state resident tuition for freshmen and sophomores plus $1,362 in books, $7,966 for room and board and $2,340 for miscellaneous charges for an annual total of $20,968, according to Oakland University's website.

Out-of-state freshmen and sophomore students face yearly costs of $33,354.

Higher-level in-state undergraduates at OU can anticipate total annual costs of $24,956, while out-of-state juniors and seniors can get ready to pay $33,912.

Nonresidents at the University of Michigan will pay $48,331 for each of the first two years at current rates and $50,859 as juniors and seniors at the Ann Arbor institution, according to the U of M Office of Financial Aid.

That's a considerable chunk of change considering the U.S. Census Bureau reports the median annual household income is $52,209.

So, graduates are going to need to find jobs in this sluggish economy that net far more than the median income to justify the cost of college.

One census report stated that the average high school graduate earnings $25,900 a year and the average college graduate $45,400, and $1 million during a lifetime, according to the College Board, a New York advocacy group trying to find ways to make college more affordable.

But with tuition costs outpacing wage increases by double-digit levels some researchers are questioning the accuracy of such projections.

Students can borrow money for college and they are doing so. Some $154 billion in financial aid was awarded to undergraduate students in 2009-2010.

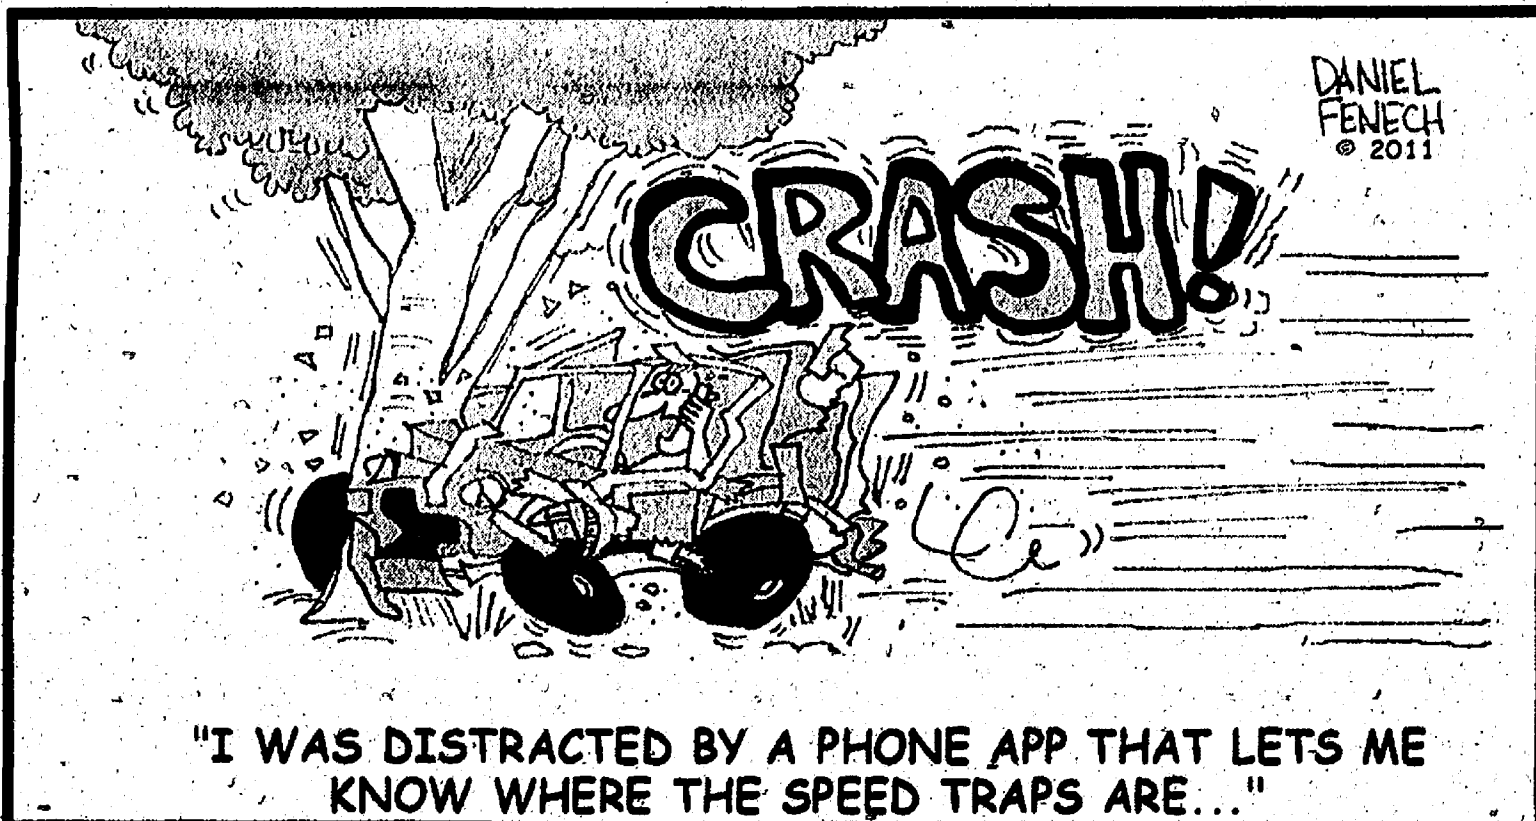

Mark Schneider of the American Institutes for Research, a nonprofit research organization, calls these lifetime earnings estimates "a million-dollar misunderstanding." He suggested the actual lifetime earnings advantage for college graduates is a mere $279,893 during a lifetime.

A recent report stated "many graduates have debt exceeding $40,000" and some students who earn pharmaceutical or medical degrees have debts higher than $50,000.

So, it is worth it? From a psychological point of view, the answer is yes because each person should try to maximize his or her potential. But one must be optimistic to rack up debt of $100,000 for a four-year college to some $200,000 for the higher-priced private universities.

College still is a good choice and remains affordable as a result of financial aid, but how long will a four-year degree be in reach of most, especially for those parents who have two or more students headed for college.

College costs have to stabilize because Americans simply can't afford to waste the potential of one mind. — Courtesy of The Oakland Press

Information on Planned Parenthood Invaluable

In the late 1950s, when my husband and I were living in University of Michigan student housing while he completed his graduate studies, I was offered a second part-time job as a Planned Parenthood clinic nurse. I gladly accepted because we needed the money.

I soon had another reason to appreciate this job. Planned Parenthood was open two evenings a week in an upstairs space in downtown Ann Arbor. The staff included a doctor, social worker, receptionist and nurse (me). Our clients were primarily young women in preparation for marriage.

For most of these clients, this was their first exposure to gynecological services, as well as family planning. I, myself, had been a client and obtained my first birth control information, as well as my first pelvic examination at the Planned Parenthood clinic years before.

For me, as well as for the majority of clients, the exam was normal and the information invaluable. For a critical minority, however, the exam was not normal and everything from hypertension, to pelvic abnormality to sexually transmitted disease was found and referral made for treatment. For all of us, the family planning advice was crucial and available in few other places.

Since that time, I have been a proud member and supporter of Planned Parenthood. I was pleased to see the informative article in Heritage Media March 3.

All women need to know of the availability of these low-cost services. Men also need to know about this very important service. Since they will never face the sometimes severe consequences of reproduction (physical and emotional), their role is to be supportive and educated.

Find solutions that don't penalize the country's poor

I am currently a bit puzzled and concerned with what is going on in Lansing. Yes, there are serious problems that must be addressed, and I certainly support any effort to solve them.

However, the new proposed budget seems to do nothing but redistribute money and resources from the poor and disadvantaged to the rich and powerful. I have carefully looked over the budget and, from what I understand, it is revenue neutral.

When you eliminate the Earned Income Tax Credit, you make being on welfare more profitable than having employment.

Or you just force big wage cuts on citizens who struggle to survive in a terrible economy.

When a financial manager takes over a city there seems to be no trigger to set this process in motion. The government decides to take control and no more needs be said.

Why was Benton Harbor picked to be one of the first cities taken over by the new law?

Was the trigger the fact that they had a valuable beach that Whirlpool wanted to use as a conference center? Why not take over Flint, Saginaw or Taylor? As I see it, the reason is that these cities didn't have something as beautiful as Klock Park.

Many of my friends in business tell me that the Michigan Business Tax is a real mess. It is full of loopholes and unreasonable rules.

Why, for example, aren't profits taxed rather than the number of employees? How does merely cutting the tax, rather than reforming it, help out our state?

When the sales tax was raised several years ago and the lottery instigated, we were told that all this money would go to pay for education. This has worked well, and there are currently enough funds to finance our educational needs.

This money is now being taken to fill the holes in the budget created by the lowering of the business tax.

I think this is disgraceful and creates problems like we have seen at Catherine Ferguson High School in Detroit. I couldn't believe it when I saw the students being dragged out of their school in handcuffs. Their only crime was trying to protect their high school.

It is now time to look at different solutions rather than just taking money from Michigan's poor and disadvantaged.

How about a graduated income tax?

How about looking at the money we spend to incarcerate so many citizens? Many are nonviolent and their only crime is being mentally ill or having a serious drug problem.

How about sharing the burden of our financial problems equally among all our citizens?

Paul Bjornstad Ann Arbor

Let's try a national sales tax this time

The income tax system is broken.

Since the last major tax overhaul, Congress has passed more than 17,000 changes to the tax code. That's almost two changes every day for the past 24 1/2 years.

So why aren't we rethinking the income tax?

One reason is that these changes are the life's blood of Washington lobbyists and the carrots used by both political parties to win support.

It's the reason we hear stories about billionaire Warren Buffet paying a lower tax rate than his secretary and giant companies like GE paying no tax on billions of dollars of income.

A broad-based flat tax would be a move in the right direction, but after some research, I think a national sales tax is a better answer.

This sales tax would replace the corporate tax and federal income tax.

Every worker in the country would keep 100 percent of his or her income and only pay taxes when purchasing something new.

It would ensure that every person, business and government office paid his or her fair share.

People who make less and therefore spend less would pay fewer taxes, and the wealthy or those who choose to live like they're wealthy would pay more.

There would be no tax forms to fill out, no tax credits, no loopholes and no deductions, and it wouldn't care if the money you spent came from wages, dividends, capital gains or an inheritance.

The sales tax would save individuals and businesses the millions of hours and billions of dollars they spend every year to comply with our complex tax code.

It would also eliminate the need for the IRS as all taxes would be recorded and collected at the point of sale.

What's more, it would do away with the onerous corporate tax that pushes companies and their jobs out of the country.

It would improve the global competitiveness of U.S. companies, promote domestic job growth and, as a result, raise wages.

As always, the devil is in the details. So, before you jump onboard or adamantly disagree, take a look for yourself.

Wellness Foundation offers the freedom to choose health

By Amy Heydlauf
Guest Writer

Americans have a long history of not wanting to be told what to do. The Pilgrims did not want anyone to tell them what to think about their God. Paul Revere's midnight ride was all about asking our founders would have a say in their governing. We don't generally subscribe to traditions like arranged marriage, and we definitely don't like the concept of dictatorship. Most of us can identify with the 4-year old who says "You can't make me!"

If you take a good look at the Chelsea-Area Wellness Foundation Vision you'll note the word "choices." People in our service area will choose to eat better, move more, avoid unhealthy substances & connect with others in healthy ways. Using the word choose was a deliberate decision.

We like the idea of people making their own decisions about the way they eat, move, consume and connect. Not everyone will make good decisions all of the time. Some of us rarely make them. Most of us will have good days and

Fashion should be practical

By Elaine Owsley
Staff Writer

I have never been a slave to fashion. Not as a teenager, not as a college student, not as a professional woman, not as a mother. Even when I wore a size 4 and had a 22-inch waist and before the three children, I was "into" what was in fashion.

Back when I was a teen, we all bought our clothes at Wilco's and the Junior Shop, because they carried our sizes and were reasonably priced. That's kind of how my youth through life - what fits and doesn't cost an arm and leg.

Because of my size, the woman who owned the Junior Shop, which unfortunately was between my work place, The Saginaw News, and the bank, had an uncanny way of knowing when payday was and would pop out of the door at me as I headed back to work with my money in my purse.

She didn't always scowl, but often enough to keep my closet pretty well filled. If I'd stayed that size, I wouldn't have had to buy another garment for decades.

Still, I don't recall that you would have called my wardrobe "fashionable," because I still went for fit, comfort and price.

In the years since, although I haven't been blessed by Junior Shop owners, I've avoided straying from that principle, especially when I went back to work when the kids were in school all day.

While I had eased out of the Junior Shop and even the Wilco's lines, I found the nation's Old Line do-I-must-Hudson's! They met my needs, especially their Echu Ray line. Now, I've moved up or out to Alfred Dunner clothes, but still, comfort, fit and price are the guiding forces.

There is no way on earth I would pay a fortune for some dumb purse, no matter whose name was on the silly thing. When you start paying more for a handbag than you usually have to put in it, it's time to rethink your priorities.

We are giving up a lot of cash in this country to support a bunch of Italian designers, whose work is obviously easily copied, if you talk to anyone who walks down the streets of New York. If it can be "knocked off," and every other woman is carrying the same purse, what is the point?

bad. We generally just want to have the opportunity to make our own choices. There is no denying that, from a community health point of view, making it more difficult to make unhealthy choices often pushes people to make healthier choices.

Twenty years ago 30 percent of the people in Michigan smoked. Now 19 percent smoke. It's likely some of the improvement is related to an increase in the tax on cigarettes forcing people to quit because they couldn't justify the cost. New laws banning smoking in many public places pushed those smokers who, hating standing outside in the winter winds of Michigan to quit. High-profile messages about the dark side of smoking also led to a cultural change that made some smokers embarrassed to be seen smoking. Some believe the interventions that worked to reduce tobacco should be applied to food and beverages that could harm you, if consumed in excess.

Others argue tobacco requires a zero tolerance, where no amount is safe, whereas moderate consumption of soda, baked goods, beer and wine is not unhealthy. One foreign country considers a school district that no longer allows children to bring unhealthy lunches from home an assault on our freedom. Others believe the long-term cost of caring for a population burdened with disease resulting from obesity demands action at every level.

While the nation debates the question of individual freedom versus the cost to care for a society in poor health, the Chelsea-Area Wellness Foundation believes this community will voluntarily increase opportunities for people to make healthy choices. The CWF and many people in Chelsea and Dexter are trying to use common interest and common sense to make it easier for us to eat better, move more, avoid unhealthy substances and connect with others in healthy ways. Let the pundits and policy-makers debate. In the mean time, together, we can choose to do the right things for ourselves and our kids.

Top 10 vehicles that use alternative energy

By David Schmidt
Journal Register News Service

Go ahead, argue. We're presenting a series of top-10 lists from our stable of writers. The only thing consistent about these lists is that they'll contain our opinions. If you disagree, good. Let us know why you think we're wrong. If you have a great idea for a top-ten article, let us know. If we wind up writing one you suggested, we'll give you a shoutout at the bottom of the article. Send your sage words to comment@AutoWritersInk.com

1. The Honda FCX Clarity - This is a hydrogen-powered car that drives just like a conventional car, but you won't see it for sale anytime soon. Why is it number one? Simple, it's the alternative vehicle of the future, and everything else is just a stopgap. The problem isn't the engine, it's the fuel. Here's the issue: electricity isn't power, it's a transporter of power - unlike hydrogen, oil and coal, which actually create power when they burn. But making hydrogen is too expensive, both in power and cost. Solve that and you solve the future.

2. 2011 Nissan Leaf - If you're going to be an alternative, go all out. The Leaf has no engine, making it quite clear that this isn't a mainstream vehicle. It's the first, and currently only true electric car on sale to consumers. There are some close, like the Tesla, but this one's for real people who do day-to-day driving. If you're a driver who drives the same miles every day to work and have another car for other activities, there's no reason not to be on the cutting edge of social transporting with this remarkable car.

3. 2011 Toyota Prius - It was the car that made alternative vehicles a category. While not the first gasoline-electric hybrid sold in America, it had been selling in Japan since 1997 so was the first in the world. It came here just after the two-seat Honda Insight. The 2001 Prius sold here was a bit more powerful than the earlier version so it could have air-conditioning and power steering and drive at highway speeds.

4. 2008 Chevrolet Silverado/GMC Sierra Hybrid - These were the first full-sized pickups with hybrid power systems. Is this a big deal? Well, they also were created as a part of the Global Hybrid Cooperation program, which resulted in hybrid powertrains for big vehicles. These include GM, Chrysler, BMW and Mercedes-Benz. Think about it, if a hybrid gives you a 20 percent fuel improvement, why not apply that to the vehicles that get the poorest gas mileage instead of those that get the best?

5. The 2003 Honda Civic Hybrid - This hybrid version of America's very popular compact car was a different type of hybrid, called a weak hybrid because the electric motor wouldn't independently drive the car. (That may not be the official definition, but it's how you tell quickly if a car is a weak or strong hybrid). Perhaps it's biggest accomplishment was getting people used to seeing cars on the roads that didn't brand their drivers philosophically.

6. The 2005 Ford Escape Hybrid (and its Mercury sister) - These little sports-utes brought a hybrid to an important, price-oriented segment of the sports-ute market and helped make hybrids become just another choice in the buying decision. It did a good job, was Green Car of the Year at one point, and just worked. Isn't that what any vehicle is supposed to do?

7. The 2011 Chevrolet Volt - This Chevrolet makes the list not because there was so much noise about it last year and most of us have short memories, but, because it does hybrid a different way. In a nutshell, the electric motor here is primary, and it's backed up by the gasoline engine. You can also plug it in and recharge it. Hopefully it (and the Nissan Leaf) will spawn a whole new industry of public recharging stations.

8. The 2006 Toyota Highlander Hybrid - I really like this hybrid. It had plenty of power and was fun to drive because the electric motor added performance rather than replacing performance. OK, if you drove carefully, it got better gas mileage. But it was so much fun that when they replaced it with the next generation, it was dumbed down by several adjustments, to make it "feel" more environmentally conscious.

9. The 2007 Lexus LS600h - any hybrid you can spend $100,000.00 on has to be on this list. Just you want to be socially responsible doesn't mean you have to be uncomfortable. In the case of this car, when it was launched it demonstrated that hybrid-powered cars weren't only for tree-huggers. It was the top of the Lexus lineup. The rear seats massaged you and reclined so you'd be really comfortable watching the fabulous entertainment system. It had plenty of performance for a huge luxury car, thanks to the added torque of the electric motor.

10. The 1900 Lohner Porsche Mixte Hybrid - And the first shall be last. This car makes the list because it was the first one, way back. It was developed in 1899 by Ferdinand Porsche. Yep, that Porsche. He was a young man, and designed the car for Viennese carmaker Jacob Lohner. The car was a series-hybrid using motors in each wheel. The electricity came from both batteries and a small gasoline generator. They actually sold a couple.

ROGERS, STEPHEN J.; Chelsea, Michigan; age 95; died on February 14, 2011. Steve was born in New York City in 1916 and moved as an infant with his parents to California, where his extended family was living. He attended schools in the San Francisco Bay Area, graduating from the University of California in 1937. He and several friends took a freighter to Hawaii where they worked until he was called to active military duty in March 1941, at the Presidio in San Francisco. During World War II, Steve served the US Army in the Third Infantry Division moving from Casablanca, through North Africa, up into Sicily, Anzio and Rome. By the time his division reached Rome, he had earned a Purple Heart. Later he was awarded the Bronze Star with oak leaf cluster. Eventually, he went up through southern France and into the Rhineland and Berchtesgaden. He was honorably discharged in 1946 as a lieutenant colonel and admitted to Harvard Business School, from which he graduated with an MBA, Summa Cum Laude, in 1947. During this time he met the love of his life, Sara (Sally) Stewart. They were married in 1948 at Marblehead, MA. Steve and Sally moved to Ann Arbor. Steve first worked for Kaiser-Fraser and then Ford Motor Company. They had three children, Margaret Cadman, David Stewart, and Dana Greenleaf Rogers, all of whom survive. In 1957, the family moved to northern California where Steve worked for Ampex Corporation until 1963, when the family returned to Michigan and Steve rejoined Ford Motor Company. In 1972, Ford sent Steve and Sally to England on assignment. They returned to Michigan from that adventure in 1974. Steve retired from Ford in 1980. Other survivors include son-in-law, Myron Guilford; and grandchildren, Anne Guilford and her husband, Robert Fisher, and James Guilford. Steve's retirement years were spent volunteering with the UM Museum of Art and the Kelsey Museum. He served as a deacon at First Presbyterian Church in Ann Arbor. He also enjoyed gardening, becoming especially fond of rhododendrons which reminded him of his beloved northern California.

Nissan Murano takes the top off the CrossCabriolet

By David Schmidt
Journal Register News Service

Palm Beach, Fla. — There was a certain joy in driving through Palm Beach in a car no resident could possibly own.

The Nissan Murano CrossCabriolet is the first crossover vehicle without a top.

Of the probably 20 Rolls Royces and Bentleys we shared the road with in our drive, not one of those owners could own this car — at least until the end of April when they go on sale. And the car was noted as we slowly drove among the mansions and chic shops of this affluent redoubt. Slowly is the key word here. In this environment, you drive like an eighty-year-old, but it just seems the right thing to do.

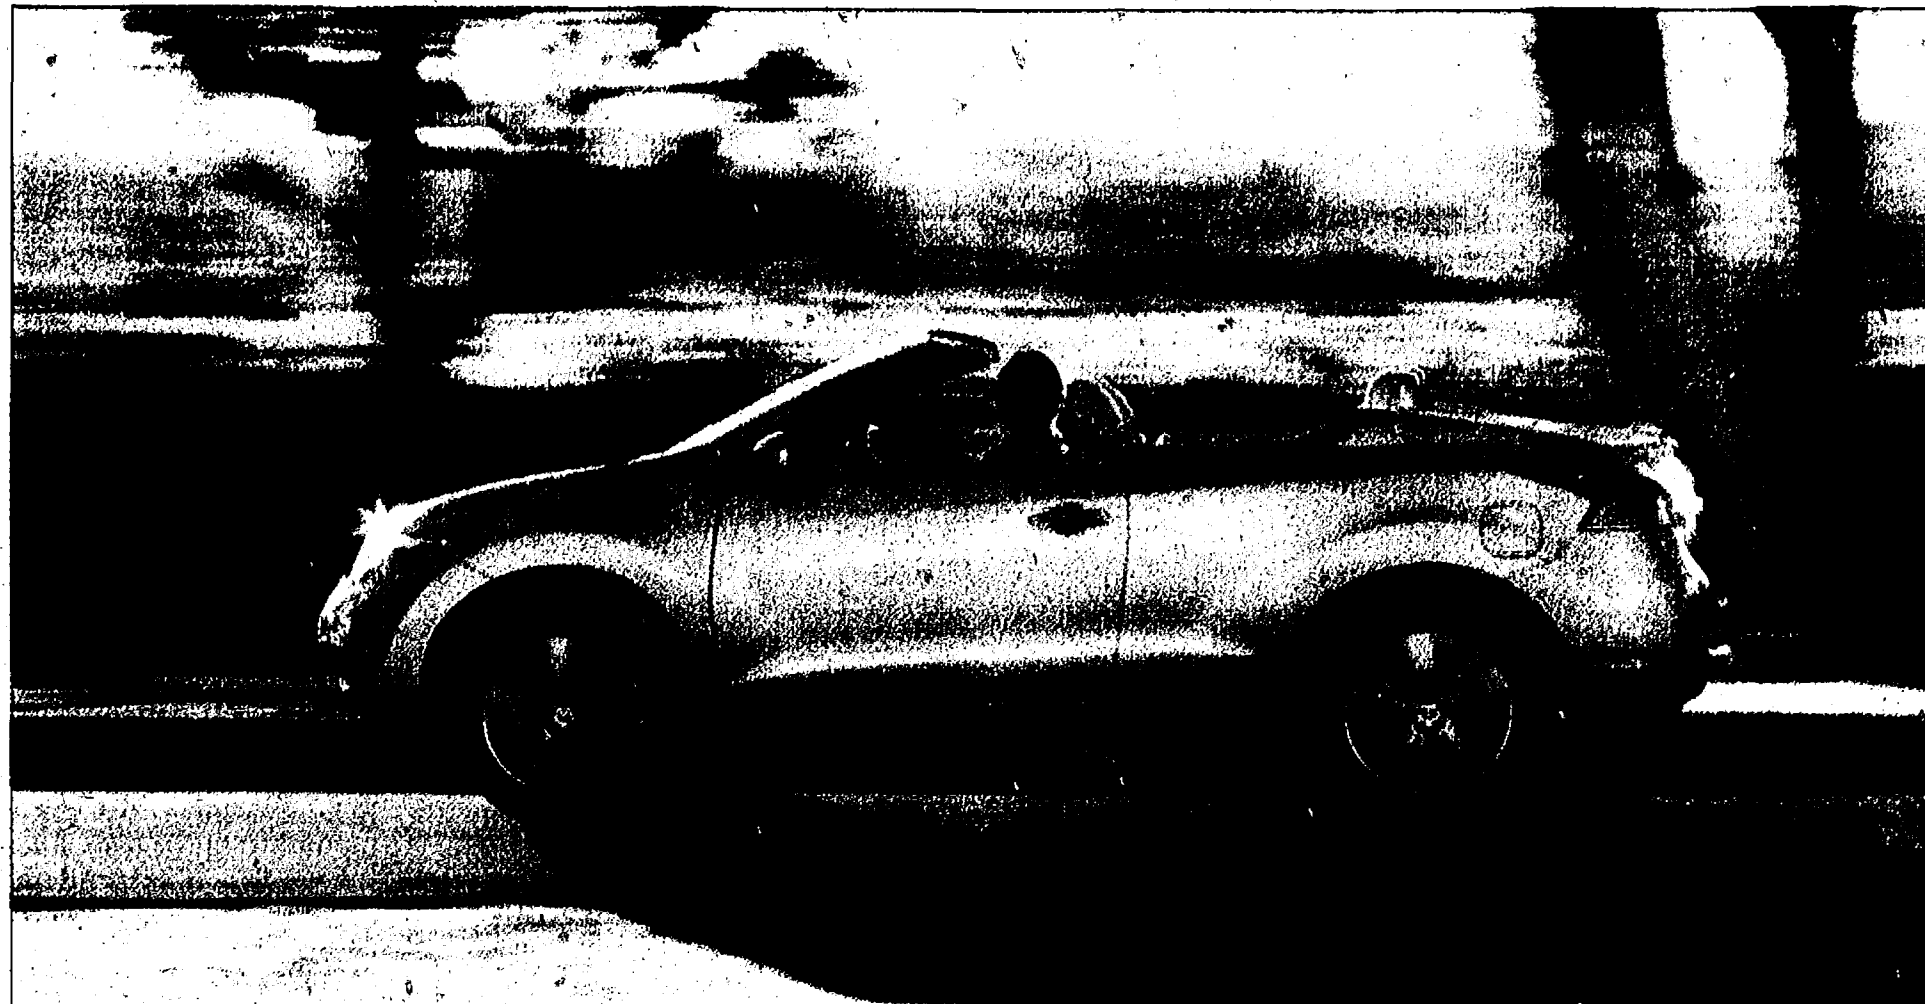

But the Murano CrossCabriolet took well to the environment. Kissed by the mild Florida spring sun, caressed by a warm sea breeze, it was definitely a moment.

That's what this rather unusual car is all about. As the first crossover convertible, it also only has two doors, although they're plenty big. In reducing the entryways by half, Nissan also made them 7.9 inches longer. This process also removed the B-pillar from the middle of the roofline, making it a true convertible.

When the top is down, there's nothing from the windshield to the trunk. That trunk, which was shaped out of the rear compartment of the crossover, still offers 7.6 cubic feet, which is good for a couple of suitcases. When the top's up, space jumps to 12.3 cubic feet. The space is a result of Nissan working very hard to make the top compact when stored. The top is cloth, with aluminum reinforcements within the structure. It's electrically raised and lowered and takes about 30 seconds to do the deed.

So does the design work? Actually it does, although I had my doubts before seeing it on the road in the midst of other cars and trucks. With the top raised, the roofline is lower, but reflects a similar line to the hardtop Murano. The most noticeable feature to me with the top down is the strength of the rear shoulders.

With no hatchback, the trunkline is completely different and it really draws your eye. The roof, when stored, is underneath a metal tonneau. From the side, the lines of the car are sleek. The heaviness you'd expect from being made from a sports ute just isn't there. Add that all of the CrossCabriolets are all-wheel drive, so they're higher off the ground, and it's amazing they aren't completely ungainly. But it works, especially in the lighter colors of the six offered.

It's based on the 2009 Murano, but is the same only from the windshield forward.

The powertrain is the same 3.5-liter 24-valve DOHC V6, which generates 265 hp, and 248 lbs-ft of torque. The power goes through a continuously variable automatic transmission to very nice 20-inch split five-spoke titanium finish aluminum-alloy wheels with Toyo all-season tires.

The Murano CrossCabriolet has independent suspension featuring MacPherson struts in front, a multi-link rear design, cradle-type front subframe and front and rear stabilizer bars. Dual flow-path shock absorbers add some extra smoothing out of the ride.

There's plenty of electric assistance working with the engine and the all-wheel vented disc brakes: Anti-lock Brake System, Brake Assist and Electronic Brake force Distribution.

The expected EPA mileage ratings are 17 mpg in city driving and 22 mpg on the highway.

One of the issues of taking a top off a car is it makes it less rigid. Rigidity is always a good thing in car design, so Nissan added some stressing to help with the situation. In all, the car weighs 400 lbs. more than the hardtop. The rear headrests will pop up and turn into mini roll bars in an accident.

There are dual floor-panel structural cross-members and strengthened under-floor sill cross members to do the same thing. There's a joint bar between the side member and the side sills, again to stiffen things up.

Taking the top and two of the doors off the car called for some interior changes. The seats, for instance, became a different shape to help with access to the rear seats. They slide fore and aft easily to get out of the way for easy enough entry to the rear. They're comfortable, too, and since the CrossCabriolet has only premium leather seats, they look good as well as improving the visibility from the rear seats. With the top up, there seems to be plenty of headroom in the rear, although with the front seats all the way back there's not so much legroom.

The looks of the interior are great, with three colors available, depending on which exterior color you choose. When you've done that, you're out of choices for your CrossCabriolet. That's it, no more options, everything else comes standard. That includes navigation, which has a 9.3GB hard drive and XM NavTraffic available with a subscription. You get Bluetooth, HomeLink connectivity for safety and a backup camera.

The stereo is a Bose system with eight speakers including a subwoofer. The volume is automatically adjusted when the top goes up or down. Naturally, you can hook up your iPod and control it through the car.

One omission for a car that's approaching the price of entry-level luxury crossovers is blind spot warning, something Nissan puts on several Infiniti models, and would "fit" with this car's demographics. While this isn't a feature that's noticeably missing, it's one of those nice touches that would separate the car a bit more from its competition.

Driving the car was enjoyable. As with all drop-tops, the Murano CrossCabriolet is noisier than the hardtop Murano, but that's to be expected: five dB louder inside at idle and four dB at highway speeds. With the top up on the interstate, it's quieter than you expect, but there's a "convertible" noise of the wind across the fabric. It's a small price to pay to be able to remove the top for "fun" times.

With the top down, you can carry on a conversation in the front seats, although there's a little more wind than is completely comfortable, but people who buy and drive convertibles are, at least to some degree, looking for that.

Other than the topless experience, there's little difference in how this Murano drives compared to any other Murano. All of the CrossCabriolets will be all-wheel drive models with everything on them. With a price of $46,300, the only options are the two lighter interiors, because it's better leather, but only adds $500 the price. So who's going to buy a convertible sports ute? Nissan thinks owners will be similar to existing Murano owners, but a little younger with a little more money. They won't have little kids at home. They probably want the size and carrying capability of the ute but will be intrigued with the topless capability. Nissan figures they'll have a household annual income of $125,000 and will be mostly couples. What other vehicles people will shop this car against is something that Nissan folks weren't sure about. One guesses other convertibles would be there, but maybe not. Nissan likes the idea that they're creating a new niche, or at least a product that doesn't fit in any other.

They aren't saying how many they expect to sell each year, but I'd expect it won't be a huge number and that's OK with them. Success for a product like this is much more than just how many you sell and how much money you make.

This is to be a halo car for at Nissan, making a statement. Hopefully people decide it says good things about the brand — that Nissan takes chances by creating something this different.

I'm betting they sell more than a few in Palm Beach.

Chelsea High School senior Matt Mills of Boy Scout Troop 476 created benches and encased signs for the new Chelsea Wellness Path for his Eagle Scout project.

Community comes together for Wellness Path creation

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

The Chelsea Wellness Paths opened May 12 at Silver Maples of Chelsea, 100 Silver Maples Drive. The paths include a loop around Silver Maples that connects Chelsea Community Hospital, St. Mary Church, and the Chelsea School District athletic fields, with short legs to the Chelsea Senior Center and to Main Street, along the historic interurban rail line.

"I'm proud of many things we've accomplished but I'm most proud of our work to create a Community Wellness Path for use by all members of the Chelsea area," said Jerry Wilczynski, president and CEO of Silver Maples of Chelsea. "We had an idea to add additional walking paths on the Silver Maples' campus but when we learned of the Chelsea Area Wellness Foundation's willingness to fund community wellness projects we took off our blinders and looked beyond our property boundaries and came up with the thought to create a walking path the whole Chelsea community could enjoy."

That meant involving others in this project, he said.

"The spirit of Chelsea came through again. Every single community leader I approached wholeheartedly endorsed and signed on supportive of the concept of a community wellness path that came from adjacent property and exited to other adjoining property - creating a walking path loop everyone could enjoy."

Rev. Bill Turner, pastor of St. Mary Church, was the first to say yes; joining him were Chelsea School District Superintendent Dave Killips, City Manager

John Hanifan, and Kathleen Griffiths, president and CEO of Chelsea Community Hospital.

"Each one of these community leaders chose to support a concept that others may search for reasons not to get involved," Wilczynski said. "I love this community. It radiates with a 'can do' spirit at every opportunity. I thank these leaders for their vision and support."

The Chelsea Wellness Center, senior center, and Chelsea Area Historical Society provided letters of support during the grant writing, undertaken by Shawn Personke, director of activities and PR at Silver Maples.

Silver Maples residents were an important part of the project and helped Personke to measure routes and create trail markers.

Chelsea High School senior Matt Mills undertook tasks for his Eagle Scout project, funding and constructing four benches and four encased signs - two large ones for maps, and two smaller ones for posters created by teacher Jeanne Caselli's class at South Meadows Elementary School.

"We've partnered with Jeanne's class for our Adopt a Grandparent program so it seemed natural to see if they wanted to take on this part of the project," Personke said. "The nice thing is that each year, new students can create a new set of posters."

Personke was excited to receive Mills' offer to help.

"This was a great Eagle Scout project," she said. "Projects like these need to be comprehensive and a chance for Scouts to work and plan through all the steps - submitting paperwork to the council, making a plan, finding, financing, and carrying out the plan. It's 'real life' kind of stuff."

"I've been impressed by Matt's planning and follow through. It's a big project and we need the benches and encased signs to last for many years. It's a huge contribution to the success and usability of the paths."

Matt, who plays football, used to wrestle, has done track, and was on the bowling team, is a member of the National Honor Society. He attends the First United Methodist church in Chelsea where he belongs to the youth group.

His favorite subjects are biology and history and he enjoys elective classes in advanced fitness (weightlifting) and TV production.

The son of Vaughn and Joanne Mills of Dexter Township, Matt will head to Michigan State University this fall to pursue a business or pre-med degree.

A member of Boy Scout Troop 476, Matt has been a Scout for 7 years.

"I really enjoy Scouts because I've been able to do many different things a lot of people don't get to experience," he said. "I've met a ton of great people and had a lot of fun. I've learned many outdoor skills, communication skills, leadership skills, first aid techniques, and many other things I'll be able to use for the rest of my life."

When he was younger, Matt used to cross country ski with his grandmother in the same area as the new paths, and remembers being tired and wanting to sit.

"I think it's kind of ironic that over 10 years later I'm putting in benches for people to sit on," he said.

Fellow Scouts helped with the projects and his family helped with many different aspects.

"The biggest help, and who I would like to thank the most, is my grandpa Fred Mills who works for Chelsea Lumber - who supplied all the lumber with a 10 percent discount. He has gotten all the supplies for me, been at every workday with me on the project and helped me design all the benches and signs."

"I'd also like to thank Jim Beck who designed the signs with me and helped us build them in his garage. And my brother Nathan's teacher Jeanne Caselli helped me find the project and has done a fundraiser and contributed a significant amount of money."

the right size for someone 5 feet tall. And, as I recall, the thing was on sale at Jacobson's. My granddaughter of a Coach bag she picked up while in college in New York City. It tickled me to pull out the "real thing" and give it to her - still looking as new as the day I bought it, before she was born - sturdy, serviceable and, for her, free.

An incredible amount of time and energy, not to mention airtime and print space, is given to "recognizing" the makers of women's clothing. Isn't there something better to do with a day, or evening, or event, than to ooze, "Oh, that's a Prada?"

Big deal. If something is so common that everyone knows what it is, how does that make it special? Or noteworthy? Or a "photo-op?"

One of my main tenets is that I would never pay more for a car than I would for the last house we bought, more for a pair of shoes or a purse than a new furnace.

And, while I'm at it - What the heck is a "fashionista?"

Area WWII vet selected as Milan parade marshal

By Gerald LaVaute
Heritage Media

Mel Simecek was a tail gunner on a B-17 who never actually fired his gun. On Memorial Day, he'll be the grand marshal in the Memorial Day Parade in Milan.

The primary danger Simecek and his flight team faced in World War II was flak from German anti-aircraft fire, thousands of feet below.

Referring to the flak, he said, "It was so thick, sometimes you felt as if you could walk on it."

But the World War II veteran successfully flew 26 missions over Nazi Germany in 1944 and 1945, and fought in the Battle of the Bulge, a critical juncture in the eventual Allied victory in 1945.

Simecek, who was with the 490th Bomb Group of the Eighth Air Force stationed in England, escaped serious injury several times during his service, at one point having to jump out of his disabled airplane while it was hurtling down the runway during an emergency landing.

The pilot visited him in the hospital a couple days later, and asked if he wished to return to his unit. The Belleville resident jumped at the chance.

"They were my buddies," he said, echoing a refrain of many citizen soldiers who defended the nation's freedom in World War II.

In another incident on Christmas Day 1944, excess ice on the airplane's wings caused it to crash as it was trying to take off for a bombing run.

"It was dark, rainy, snowing, icy," he said. "We had a full bomb load, and a full gas load," he added, outlining the danger inherent in such a crash.

The Nazis fought furiously to defend their homeland. To confuse the German radar, Simecek threw from an open window of the plane what he called "chaff," strips of aluminum to fool the German radar, which would fire at the chaff, away from the airplanes, themselves.

Simecek was responsible for switching on a flashing yellow light that would alert his brothers in arms that there were enemy planes in the area.

In a bombing run over a tank manufacturing plant in Kallse, Germany, the airplane was hit, caught on fire, and flew the 600 miles back to its base, landing safely.

Simecek reported that there were 82 bullet holes in the plane after the landing.

Simecek said that the runs in which he participated featured as many as 1,000 Allied planes. At one point, he said, the airplane had to fly so low, that he could clearly see a farmer chasing his cows through a field.

So, how low did they fly? At another point, Simecek said, they flew so low that the Germans were unable to train their anti-aircraft artillery at the plane. The bottom angle to which the guns descended was too high to hit the airplane.

At another point, the airplane passed just above a body of water, so close to the water, in fact, that the spray hit the windshield of the airplane.

The radio operator on the plane hollered urgently to the pilot that the plane's wheels should be down, and ready to land, unaware that the plane was actually over the water, and not land as he thought.

Fast forward to 2011: Simecek has been selected as the grand marshal for the annual Memorial Day parade in Milan, scheduled this year for 9 a.m. May 30. The parade will begin at the American Legion-Post on Wabash Street.

Staff Writer Gerald LaVaute can be reached at 429-7380 or glavaute@heritage.com. Check out his blog posts at <http://heritageweststaffblog.blogspot.com>.

Shanley named to U of M Med School post

The University of Michigan Board of Regents has approved the appointment of Dr. Thomas P. Shanley as associate dean for clinical and translational research at the U of M Medical School, and director of the Michigan Institute for Clinical and Health Research.

The National Institutes of Health also approved Shanley as principal investigator for U of M's Clinical and Translational Science Award.

"Dr. Shanley is an ideal choice to lead MICHCR and continue to pursue our vision for enabling and enhancing clinical and translational research at U of M," said Dr. Ora Pescovitz, chief executive officer of the U of M Health System and executive vice president for medical affairs for U of M, in a news release.

"His vast experience and proven leadership at Michigan are highly valued, and we look forward to his contributions to enhancing our clinical research enterprise," he said.

Shanley replaces Dr. Kenneth J. Pienta, who previously held both positions before he stepped down in

'Bee on Board for Literacy' set for June 3

The Family Learning Institute is hosting its fifth annual spelling bee fundraiser Bee on Board for Literacy 7 p.m. June 3 at the Morris Lawrence Building of Washtenaw Community College.

Since 2000, Family Learning Institute has provided one-on-one reading, writing and math tutoring at no cost to low-income children who are performing below grade level.

During the bee, up to 18 teams of three adults — sponsored by local companies, organizations and individuals — compete for the championship trophy while audience members cheer them on.

The evening will include drinks and appetizers and music by the Community High School Jazz Band.

Individual tickets are $35. To purchase tickets or enter a team, contact Family Learning Institute at 995-6816 or info@familylearninginstitute.org. More information is also available at www.familylearninginstitute.org.

April of this year.

Shanley is the Janette Ferrantino Professor of Pediatrics, Before being appointed associate dean, he was the director of Pediatric Critical Care Medicine and the director of Clinical and Translational Research for the Medical School's Department of Pediatrics and Communicable Diseases.

As a pediatric intensive care physician, his clinical interests include management of critically ill children, notably those afflicted with hypoxemic respiratory failure from severe lung diseases and severe sepsis and septic shock triggered by infections.

Shanley's research roots are at the University of Michigan, where he trained in the early to mid-1990s.

His research interests have spanned the translational spectrum from basic science investigation into the role of phosphatases in modulating inflammatory signal transduction pathways to translational research examining the genomics of pediatric sepsis.

His laboratory is currently examining the effect of tight glucose control on the immune response in children undergoing oxidant stress related to cardiopulmonary bypass for heart surgery.

Shanley is the site principle investigator for the C.S. Mott Children's Hospital Pediatric Intensive Care Unit's participation in the National Institute of Child Health and Human Development-sponsored Collaborative Pediatric Critical Care Research Network, which is studying a number of outcomes in critically ill children.

He is also the site PI for a National Heart Lung and Blood-sponsored clinical trial in sedation management for children needing prolonged mechanical ventilation.

He has been involved in the mentoring of a number of post-doctoral trainees from a variety of clinical subspecialties and research departments.

Chelsea Relay will have first Hope Day May 18

Chelsea's Relay for Life is being held a second time at Pierce Lake Elementary School this year on May 21 and 22 beginning at 10 a.m.

The 19 registered teams will be pounding the pavement around the school grounds to raise $83,000 for the American Cancer Society this year. Last year's relay offered many activities and items for sale that helped raise additional money for the cause.

"We are hoping to have at least 82 survivors come out and join us this year," said organizer Lauren Snyder.

The survivors will be honored during a dinner event from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. the Saturday of the scheduled event weekend.

Survivors and caregivers are not required to register to attend, according to Snyder.

Prior to the dinner survivors and caregivers will kick off the event by taking the first lap of the weekend around the event track.

The Luminaria ceremony will continue to be an integral part of the event. During the ceremony white bags with art and messages to those who have died of cancer are illuminated and placed along the track in a trail formation for a touching memorial of cancer victims and the loved ones they left behind.

"At dusk we light a candle in each luminaria as a way to light our way around the track," Snyder said. "We honor in silence during this ceremony as the names of survivors are read over the public announcement system."

As was the case last year, there will be a live DJ at the event and five bands playing as is becoming a staple of most popular events in Chelsea.

Stacey Fullerton will be donating her time to the event as its DJ and will also help MC the event for the second year.

"We currently have two bands booked but are looking for more," Snyder said. "If bands are interested in playing at the event they can contact me (at soccer.scott2017@yahoo.com)."

Activities on tap for the Relay include the Not So Newlywed Game, the King and Queen of Relay competition and the Relay prom.

Snyder said that there will also be a silent auction Saturday, for which Relay organizers are still seeking donated items to auction off.

Relay for Lifers walk the initial lap at last year's event.

The Kiwanis Club of Chelsea will bolster the Relay volunteer ranks with their membership again this year. Kiwanis members will operate their food stand as well as providing a hot dog dinner and a pancake breakfast on Sunday morning.

Nelson's will also be selling chicken dinners. Those proceeds will be donated to Relay as well.

Chelsea's Hope Day is scheduled for May 18. It is the community's first Hope Day celebration. Those who wish to show unity against cancer are being asked to wear purple or better yet a Hope shirt that Relay organizers are selling for a $6 donation.

The shirts will be available for pick up the day prior to Hope Day from 6 to 7 p.m.

Chelsea resident Pam Janisse is one of many area residents who recognize the importance of Relay for Life in Chelsea.

"I work in the medical field and see patients diagnosed with cancer and it breaks my heart when I find out that a patient has no insurance," Janisse said. "When a patient is diagnosed it should be about getting the best treatment and how to enjoy the quality of life with the time you have."

The burden that the ACS takes off of people who find themselves in these circumstances is "invaluable," which is why she recommends showing up and supporting Chelsea's Relay teams.

If anyone would like more information on the event they can send an email to lorim@tshore.com or Lhogan17@yahoo.com or max.brennen@cancer.org.

Group to show 100 quilts at church

By Elaine Owsley
Special Writer

From the 1800s to the present, a collection of 100 quilts will fill the sanctuary of St. Andrew's United Church of Christ, 7610 Ann Arbor St. in Dexter, on Saturday, May 14, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Admission will be $4. St. Andrew's "Piece-makers" quilting group is presenting its eighth annual Quilt Show, featuring not only quilts, but also vendors with items for quilters' "stashes," books, patterns and other fiber arts demonstrators.

This year's show will feature "Grandmother's Quilts," among many others. These are old, inherited quilts, quilts made by owners' grandmothers and quilts made by local quilters for their own grandchildren.

The Piece-makers have as their mission, making quilts for Mott Children's Hospital patients, especially boys.

They also make blankets and "coughing bears" for a pediatric team from Mott that conducts a medical mission to Guatemala each year.

Proceeds from the show support this work. Thus far, the Piece-makers have contributed over 400 quilts and their goal this year is another 100.

The group is open for new members who like to quilt, or would like to improve their skills.

A colorful child's quilt, appliquéd with transportation vehicles, made by members of the Piece-makers will be raffled during the show.

Luncheon will be served from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Quilt Café in the fellowship hall.

Public invited to share memories with woman turning 100

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Media

Betty Schultz has shared her perspectives and memories on local history over the years since turning 90.

Now that she's turning 100 years old her family is asking members of the public who know or knew Schultz to visit Sharon United Methodist Church on June 5 for a celebration from 1 to 5 p.m.

"She's seen a lot in her 100 years," said Schultz's daughter, Marie Newell - Betty's youngest who was born as her twin sons graduated from Dexter High School decades before the current high school was constructed on Parker Road.

These days Betty and Marie live in a quaint ranch home on Lime Center Road - a straight dirt path that cuts through a rural neighborhood.

It's a fitting home for the wife of a man who served as the first superintendent of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Park Authority back when that job was more landscaper and gardener than administrator.

She and her husband and some occasional workers literally tamed the parks in the northern and western area of the county and a little beyond to great success.

"The first year there were 600 people that attended the park, but the first year after we moved there it was more like 6,000," Betty said.

The Schultz family lived and raised their children in that lifestyle in primitive settings with few creature comforts even by standards four or five decades old.

Betty's lived in a lot of places in the area: "We lived in the cabin over by the bridge ... Skip's Canoe Rental used to be our garage," she joked.

The house has since been moved to Delhi. The Schultz family is originally Detroiters who moved to Washtenaw after Betty's husband, Brent Newell, returned from the military with a 75 percent disability. As her husband mended the land of the park spaces and raised their family, she likes to think he found some peace.

There was always something to do in those days, which is the closest thing that Schultz has to a "secret" to living a long and fulfilling life.

"You just have to keep yourself busy ... you have to keep moving and doing things," she said. "And never forget the man upstairs. Without him we're nothing."

Betty recalled the time that her family spent as farmers on land where the Detroit Metropolitan Airport is now near the Downriver area.

"Our house was only a mile and a half from where the airport is now ... we used to rent 60 acres over there because it was good ground for raising crops," she said.

Betty Schultz will turn 100 in October, but the family will celebrate her birthday at Sharon United Methodist Church on June 5 for a public celebration.

It was a good skill to carry to Washtenaw, because there was farmland at Hudson Mills where the family would raise crops for sustenance.

The Schultzes days in the parks, until her husband retired from the position in 1973, were some of her best memories.

"We used to have family reunions at Hudson Mills every year," Schultz recalled.

That's kind of the idea behind Schultz's 100th birthday celebration.

Folks are encouraged to bring a note addressed to Betty sharing a favorite time or moment with her and other details such as the length of time that they've known her.

"We're hoping people bring 12-by-12 scrapbook pages with pictures or a CD or DVD with dated pictures that we can all share," Marie said.

Even though the celebration is on June 5, Marie pointed out that her mom's actual birthday is on Oct. 22, just to keep the record straight. The family is also requesting that visitors not bring gifts other than their presence and participation in the celebration.

"I've had a lot of hard times, but when you sit back and remember those times you're thankful for the time you had and the people you had," Schultz said.

Cello student honored

James Alexander-Bui, a cello student from the Chelsea High School Symphony Orchestra, has been named a Michigan Youth Arts Distinguished Scholar and invited to participate in the 49th annual Michigan Youth Arts Festival May 12-14 in Kalamazoo.

Nearly 1,000 high school student artists in Michigan have been selected to attend this year's Michigan Youth Arts Festival, one of the most prestigious honors in the arts education community. The students, chosen from more than 250,000 across the state, are selected based solely on their artistic merit.

While some awards programs select students through a nomination process, festival invitations are only issued as the result of a rigorous adjudication process adhering to exacting standards. The invited scholars are involved in a wide range of artistic disciplines including creative writing, dance, media arts, instrumental and vocal music, music composition, theatre and visual arts.

James Alexander Bui

"It's an outstanding group of students with real dedication and a commitment to artistic excellence," said Kim Dabbs, Michigan Youth Arts executive director. "The Distinguished Scholars embody creativity and innovation and are ideal ambassadors for the Michigan arts education community."

Markets open season with bustling crowds

By Krista Gjestland
Special Writer

The Chelsea farmers market opened Saturday to sunshine and warm weather.

Stephanie Doll, one of the three market masters, said the market had seen a good amount of people.

"It's been a better opening day," Doll said. "People are buying for Mother's Day."

"It's a big Chelsea day," she said, referring to the other events going on in Downtown Chelsea Saturday morning.

Doll and her husband, Larry, are also vendors. Back Forty Acres has been a long-time vendor and sells locally-raised meat, eggs and poultry.

The market has been around since 1990 and features vegetables, fruit, meat, eggs, a variety of craft products and live entertainment.

The market also has monthly events for children in their Children's Booth. Saturday's event was decorating and planting flowerpots for Mother's Day. The Chelsea farmers market provided materials for the Children's Booth.

Jennifer Malley, a parent volunteer of Chelsea Brownie Troop No. 1095, was on site to help the children.

"It helps to gain interest and provides crafts for the kids," Malley said.

Vendor and owner of Mystical Rose Acres, Ramona Stockton, said the market was a little slow due to the time of the season.

"As the season wears on, it gets bigger," Stockton said. "It takes time to get the word out."

Stockton, who is a 48-year-old full-time nurse, sells yarn and crafts created from wool and mohair, a type of yarn made from the hair of Angora goats.

Her crafts include hats, handbags, coasters, scarves and pillows. Stockton also sells the fleece for those who prefer to spin their own yarn.

"There's a little bit of everything for artists or crafters," Stockton said.

For those looking to stay up to date on the vendors and entertainment featured at the market, Doll said patrons can sign up for the weekly email list at the market, or by sending an email to coordinator@chelseafarmersmkt.org.

The Chelsea farmers market is open 8 a.m. to noon every Saturday through October and is located in the library parking lot, on Park Street. The Chelsea Children's Choir will be the live entertainment next week, performing songs of spring at 11 a.m.

In Dexter, the farmers market, which is in its sixth season, was also bustling.

"We had a pretty full market today," Market Manager Brenda Tuscano said. "We've had people steady since 8 a.m."

Tuscano said this is one of the best opening days she'd seen in her five years with the Dexter Farmers Market.

"[It's a] great start to the season," she said. "We anticipate this year will be even busier."

The month of May is free for vendors, and about 22 of them were at the market Saturday, according to Assistant Village Manager Courtney Nicholls.

Nicholls and Tuscano also ran a craft booth for children, helping them paint and plant flower pots as gifts for Mother's Day.

The event was sponsored by Body Wisdom Massage Therapy in Dexter.

At least 30 kids came through the market to paint flower pots, Tuscano said.

Raleigh Mitzel, 7, painted a pot for his 5-year-old sister. Raleigh was at the market with his father, Rob, who was selling evergreen trees.

Mitzel said although he had a lot of interest, he had no sales.

"It's a little disappointing," he said, "but it generates interest."

Glen Heim of Heim Gardens also felt that sales were a little slow.

Heim Gardens sells flowers, herbs and vegetables at farmers markets in Dexter, Chelsea, Wixom, South Lyon and Plymouth. They also have a store in downtown Chelsea.

The late spring weather, however, has put a damper on annual planting and available produce.

"I haven't gotten anything planted, so right now I'm big on herbs," Heim said.

People have been asking for Heim's asparagus, which he usually has by this point in the season.

"Asparagus has been big in the last 20 years — over 400 pounds for Mother's Day," he said.

This year, they are at only 2-inches and not harvestable yet, he said.

Tuscano said interest is being generated in the market because of how shopper-friendly it is.

"It's easy in, easy out," she said. "We had a lot of people last year say they stopped going to Ann Arbor's [Farmers Market] because of parking."

The Dexter Farmers Market offers a wide variety of products including produce, handmade crafts, chocolate and baked goods.

The market is open 3 to 7 p.m. Tuesdays and 8 a.m. to noon Saturdays from now through October and is located on Alpine Street next to the library.

Township extends moratorium

By Krista Gjestland
Special Writer

The Lima Township Board of Trustees met Monday night and voted to extend a moratorium on a proposed medical marijuana ordinance.

The extension is for six months, which was the same as the previous moratorium. This means growing and dispensing marijuana for medical use is on hold, despite Michigan state law.

The Michigan Medical Marihuana Act was passed in 2008 and allows for the growing and dispensing of marijuana for medicinal use.

Township Supervisor Ken Unterbrink said the township could postpone enacting the state law for another three years, if necessary.

"Two years is an accepted time," Unterbrink said. "Three years is even an accepted time."

The moratorium was enacted so the planning commission has time to create an ordinance regulating the growing and distribution of marijuana.

"The planning commission is working diligently to get this done," Unterbrink said.

Lima Township is also working with neighboring townships to potentially create a viable ordinance, Unterbrink said.

The townships involved include Scio, Webster and Dexter townships as well as the Dexter Village.

Unterbrink said the goal of working with other townships is not to create a uniform law, but to "share views and ideas."

"Each municipality has its own set of unique characteristics that they might want to put in to the ordinance," he said. "They decided to work together but not necessarily have the same ordinance."

According to Unterbrink, the challenge comes from the changes occurring at the state level as to how to enact the law.

"Right now with the growing of that product and also dispensaries, there's quite a bit of controversy around the state," he said. "State legislature is even looking into changing it as we speak, in some way or another."

In other board news: The Board also scheduled two public hearings for 7 p.m. and 7:15 p.m. June 13.

The first hearing is to discuss the revised draft of the Truck Routes Ordinance.

The second is to discuss the Home-Based Business Ordinance as a special use. Both meetings will be held at the Lima Township Hall.

The next meeting will also be held June 13 at the Lima Township Hall, following the public hearings.

Craft show returns

By Crystal Hayduk
Special Writer

After a five-year absence, the Chelsea Craft Invitational returned last Saturday and Sunday, May 7 and 8 at the Chelsea Fairgrounds, sharing the grounds with the Western Washtenaw Home Show.

The event, where about 100 vendors and artists helped visitors with updating and beautifying their surroundings, was put on by Integrity Shows and free to the public.

Artisans displayed a wide variety of decorative pieces, such as paintings, stained glass, photographs and pottery. Wearable art, such as jewelry, clothing and scarves were popular gift items for Mother's Day weekend. Attractive and useful household items were also available in woodcrafts, metal works, woven baskets and soaps.

Visitors received information to update their home and improve their yard at the home show portion of the event, where vendors were happy to share their expertise in areas such as waterproofing, insulation, heating and cooling, alarm systems and landscaping.

A number of art and home show exhibitors were from the general area, including potters Joan Kelley and Hazel Schroen of Chelsea and Haley Mechanical of Dexter. Some exhibitors traveled from other parts of Michigan and from nearby states, as did some visitors to the show.

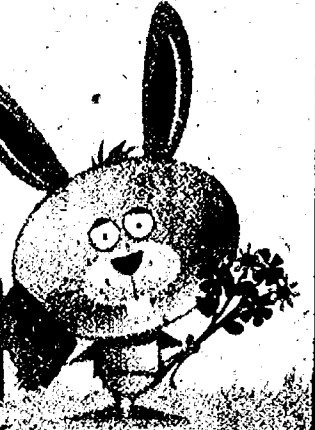

Troy Schiller of Hayley Mechanical, who lives in Chelsea, said he was pleased to be able to work a home show locally.

"With the tax credits available to update your heating system, this is the time to do it," he said.

Tony Catalano of Weathergard Windows in Oak Park said that he was happy to be in Chelsea for the weekend.

"This has been a great show and a pretty good turnout of nice people to talk to," he said. Catalano said that all of the vendors

Rachel's getting a ...

KICK OUT OF LIFE

Cooperrider will leave behind a smile of success and joy

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

During the second half of Chelsea's soccer match with visiting Saline on Thursday, the Bulldogs' Rachel Cooperrider cut off Emilee Kaminski as the Saline forward was racing through the 18-yard box toward the Chelsea goal. Rachel's aggressive play forced Kaminski off the ball as she kicked it over the end line giving the Hornets what appeared to be a corner kick.

But the referee, who didn't have the best angle, awarded the Bulldogs a goal kick instead. Rachel, who knew she got away with one, flashed that huge smile of hers and said to her goalie, "that's awesome."

And that's Rachel. If you can get a snapshot of a person based on 5 seconds, that play sums up the Chelsea senior fullback - tough to the ball, aggressive on the opponent and then a wink and a smile. To use her own adjective, those who know Rachel think she's pretty awesome.

Chelsea is known for many things, from the Common Grill to the Purple Rose to Jiffy Mix to music on Thursday nights in the summer to football on Friday nights in the fall. But what Chelsea is most known for - and proud of - inside town are the young men and women raised in this special community.

And while the candidate list is long, Rachel Cooperrider would be an ideal poster child for the Chelsea student-athlete. Forget for a moment her athletic skills and studious work inside the classroom and point the camera at her personality. Focus in on that smile.

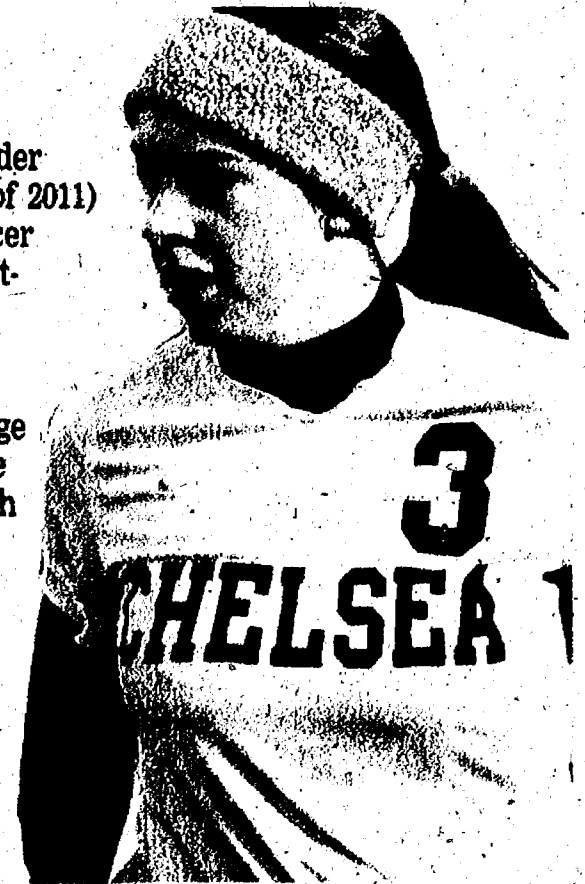

It's really the first thing that jumps off the page and stands out even in a crowd. Her simple love of life is obvious from the moment you see her. She is always smiling. Always beaming. And it's contagious. It does more than light up a room, it lightens up the moment even in the competitive arena of high school sports.

With a roster that has taken more than its fare share of hits - and season-ending injuries - Chelsea coach Shawn Hayes is glad to have the experienced and talented Cooperrider as the last line of defense. "She does an awesome job of cleaning everything up in the back for us and has been playing with a knee that's pretty banged up," Hayes said.

Bulldogs battle Hornets to scoreless tie

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

Let's be honest. It felt like it was just a matter of time.

The Saline Hornets weren't just buzzing in the second half of their soccer game Thursday afternoon at Chelsea. They were swarming and the Bulldogs were on their heels doing everything they could to keep the ball out of the net.

Every few minutes the girls in blue were busting it toward the Chelsea goal. They kept coming and coming and coming.

Meanwhile, the clock kept ticking and ticking and ticking. The only numbers that weren't changing were the zeroes under Chelsea and visitors. A charge and a miss. A shot and a save. The ball off the post one minute and over the crossbar the next.

The clock showed 20 minutes left. Then 15. Then 10.

Could Chelsea hold on? They weren't playing for a scoreless tie. They were just trying to survive a relentless attack that was doing everything but put the ball in the back of the net.

Another nice save. Another shot just wide. Another header just to off to the left. The 10 became 5 and then 3 - and just maybe time would win.

With 25 seconds to play, Saline's Emilee

Kaminski was knocked down to the ground just outside the penalty box and the Hornets were awarded a free kick. The Bulldogs put up their wall and the Hornets took one last shot but the ball went wide just before the horn went off. One team survived. The other simply ran out of time.

Saline coach Dana Restrict is still waiting for her team to put together a complete game similar to how they played the second half against Chelsea. "I think we took a nap in the first half and then we couldn't finish in the second half," she said. "The second half is how we need to play the whole game. We didn't come out strong in the first half, made some adjustments at halftime but couldn't finish."

"We thought it was just a matter of time (until they scored) which makes wasting the first half that much more frustrating."

The Hornets are 3-6-1 and 3-0-1 in the Southeastern Conference.

Chelsea coach Shawn Hayes said he liked the way his team started but credited Saline for taking over in the second half.

Corey Dymond fired a shot just over the Saline goalie's shoulder and into the back of the net to give Dexter a 13-12 double-overtime victory against Saline. Dymond finished with four goals and two assists in what coach Brian Callanan called his best game of the season.

Why does anyone want to become a high school referee or official?

And, more importantly, why do parents act the way they do during high school sporting events?

And, yes, the two are connected to the point of this column, which is to point out how parents would punish their children to no end if they acted the way they do out in public.

Do parents consider these simple facts when they take a seat on those cold steel bleachers - we will be using a recent soccer game for the scene of this outrage since a soccer game was the scene of why I decided to write this in the first place.

Fact No. 1: This was a high school girls' soccer game.

Fact No. 2: It was a nice, sunny and warm afternoon. Watching a high school game between two talented and rival schools is a pretty good way to spend the afternoon.

Fact No. 3: High school referees become referees because they either need some extra money to pay some bills or put toward a summer vacation or because of their love for that particular sport. More times than not, it's both.

Despite what some people think, only a few become refs to make your life miserable and make every call a personal attack on you and your family. Just a handful.

Fact No. 4: The behavior of the handful of fans in those steel bleachers between Chelsea and Saline was embarrassing. And I stress the phrase "handful of fans" because it certainly was not everyone and it certainly was not a majority.

And although this was a soccer game between Chelsea and Saline, these two schools are not alone to bad behavior in the stands, so you fine folks in Dexter and Milan and Manchester don't think this column doesn't apply to you.

This subject isn't just about soccer, either. It doesn't take long to hear complaints from the stands during a football game or basketball game or insert your favorite sport here.

Some parents, on both sides of the bleachers, spent more of the game complaining out loud about the officiating. If both sides are complaining, then they must be doing a pretty good job. This was one of the comments shouted out for all to hear during the game: "Don't you see pushing, you idiot?"

FROM THE SIDELINES

Idiot? Really? A parent calling a high school official an idiot. Out loud. For all to hear. If my son or daughter called an official or teacher or principal an idiot, they would be dragged by their ear off school property.

The shouting and complaining and whining kept coming. After almost every call. Everytime a player fell down or was knocked down.

Yes, knocked down. Soccer is a contact sport and can be quite a physical game especially between rival schools in a scoreless hard-fought game.

As a somewhat objective observer, I saw this as a physical game, but a clean game. There was no dirty play, no cheap shots. Nothing to describe the referee as an idiot.

By the way, both coaches after the game felt like the other team got a majority of the calls or at least benefited from the way the game was called.

If I were an official, I would conclude then that I must have done a good job. But we don't have to worry about me becoming an official. I am too thin skinned, too emotional and too sensitive to be an official.

I would have cleared the stands by halftime and that wouldn't have been fair to the majority of the fans rooting on their daughters or favorite team.

During halftime I asked the referees who is worse, the coaches, players or parents when it comes to complaining. All three knew where I was headed because it was difficult to ignore the screams from the bleachers.

But the referee, to his credit, said it's oftentimes

Photos by Burrill Strong

Grabbing the jersey (top photo) and playing aggressive soccer (above) are part of the game. And where to draw the line is up to the referee, not the fans in the stands.

an assistant coach. In fact, he said he wouldn't be surprised if some teams hire an assistant coach for the sole purpose of berating officials during a game.

He proves his point during the second half when he pointed to a Saline assistant coach and said: "One more word from you and you are gone."

If anyone had reason to be upset it might have been the parents of Haley Bunten. The young sophomore from Chelsea was one of the smallest players on the field and was taking her fair share of abuse. But Haley, to her credit, never complained. She popped right back up and kept coming back for more.

She didn't have to say anything - her toughness spoke volumes.

But the Hornets were not knocking her or any other Chelsea player down in a dirty manner. It was all, as far as I could see, part of the game.

And that's how the referees were seeing it. They get paid to see it and call it and officiate it.

They do the best they can and most of the time they do a great job. They at least try to be fair and keep the game fun and safe. They certainly don't deserve what they got from the stands on Thursday afternoon.

We tell our young children to respect game officials and keep their comments and opinions to themselves. So, parents, take a lesson from your kids and zip your lip.

High school athletics shouldn't teach arrogance

Last year I was at the Ann Arbor Ice Cube to see a hockey game between Ann Arbor Huron and, I think it was Saline. I could be wrong. To be honest I don't remember much about the game.

But there is one thing about the evening I remember vividly.

After the game, as I was trying to do a video interview with one of the River Rats, another Huron player came up and pushed the player I was interviewing out of the way and stuck his head in the shot.

I don't remember what he said. All I remember was that it was obnoxious. And it completely ruined the video and we had to start all over.

I watched the uninvited visitor walk away smiling and laughing with teammates like he had just done something really funny, rather than something really inconsiderate and rude.

That was my first and last interaction with Dillon Pearce.

But it wasn't the last time I saw him.

In fact, most of you reading this probably saw Pearce last week, as his mug shot was all over the local news.

Pearce was arrested after he allegedly ran over four ducklings with his Hummer in a McDonald's parking lot.

The details are fuzzy. Pearce's lawyer says that Pearce, along with some friends, were trying to help the ducks find a safer place to live.

The McDonald's employees who witnessed the incident say that the 19-year-old deliberately ran over the baby ducks. So one of the actions is stupid (picking up a wild animal in front of its mother, regardless of intention is just dumb) and the other is just plain sickening.

Either way, Pearce was arrested on one count of animal cruelty, a felony that could carry as much as four years in prison.

And this isn't Pearce's first brush with the law. Last year, he was arrested with three other teens for vandalizing a police car.

Those charges were dismissed. But Pearce probably won't get out of this situation without some heat. Even if the charges are dismissed in this case (he was due in court yesterday) a lot of damage has already been done.

This story has spread like a wildfire and thanks to the internet, people all over the world get to read about Pearce and his ducklings.

The UK's Daily Mail called him "The world's biggest jerk."

The story has made it into the pages of the New York Daily News and the Chicago Tribune.

Young athletes always dream of making a name for themselves in big media markets, but I doubt this is what Pearce had in mind.

High school athletics are supposed to teach kids discipline, humility and sportsmanship.

They are supposed to cultivate the abilities of young people and help them become well-rounded people.

Sports, along with good coaches, help kids prepare for the hardships that life brings. They can give you the abilities to cope when things get tough and help you become an upstanding member of the community.

Call it cliché if you want to, but I've worked in this business for a long time and met enough kids who turn into fine adults. Many of them have told me about the positive impacts that sports have had on their lives.

But I've also met a lot of kids that ignore those lessons.

Kids that stepped on to the field with a sense of entitlement and four years later walked off with nothing more than a few laughs and that same arrogant attitude.

I only spent about two minutes with Dillon Pearce, so I don't know him that well. But I feel confident that I know what group he would be a part of.

Bulldogs can't find their swing

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

The Bulldogs had a match against Lincoln at Pine View Golf Course last Wednesday.

"We have historically always played very well at Pine View and we had the first real golf weather of the season so I was expecting great scoring," Chelsea golf coach Joe Ewald said.

"Other than Bourke Lodewyk shooting his best nine-hole round of his career (38), we did the exact opposite and had some of the worst scoring of the season."

The result was a 169-174 loss to the host Railsplitters.

Also scoring for Chelsea were Mason Wagner (43), Taylor Redmond (46) and Neil Clapperton (47).

"Just another lesson and reminder, that if you ever think you have this game figured out, you better think again," Ewald said.

Last Monday, the Chelsea golf team traveled to Lenawee Country Club for a match with Adrian. Chelsea won the match with a score of 167-169.

The bright spot for Chelsea was Redmond, who fired a fine round of 39.

Lodewyk continued his solid play with a score of 41. Also scoring for the Bulldogs were Wagner (42) and Cole Mauti (45).

TENNIS

Bulldogs fall to Dreadnaughts

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

The Chelsea tennis team lost to a talented Dexter team 7-1 on Monday. The Dreads have lost only once this season, to state powerhouse Pioneer.

Winning for Chelsea was the No. 4 doubles team of Delaney Osbeck and Laurel Hall.

"The two of them played a great match, winning in the third set 6-3," Chelsea coach Matt Pedlow said. "After being down 4-0 in the first set, the girls battled back and played great tennis for the second two sets. Each set was close, but our girls closed out the important points and won when it mattered most."

"Laurel was very aggressive at the net, and once she began winning volleys. Dexter really struggled to lob or pass her. Delaney was hitting at the level I've known she was capable of all year. The two of them played a great match, probably the best tennis they've played all year."

At No. 3 doubles, the Chelsea team of Rachel Katz and Sarah Oberholtzer took the team of Hannah Kimball and Amanda Pickard to a third set before losing 4-6, 6-4, 6-1.

HOCKEY

Chelsea players to compete in States

Several Chelsea hockey players will be participating in the 2011 Meijer State Games of Michigan from June 24-26 in Grand Rapids. The Ann Arbor area's State Games high school age hockey team - "Team South" - has been announced and includes Spencer Peck (Ann Arbor Pioneer), Eric Domino (Ann Arbor Pioneer), Brad Hepler (Chelsea), Joseph Hewitt (Chelsea), Kyle Whipple (Chelsea), Jacob Ryan (Chelsea) and head coach Don Wright (Chelsea).

Last summer, the inaugural State Games of Michigan attracted more than 3,500 athletes from 62 Michigan counties. For 2011, 10 more sports have been added to a weekend that promotes fitness and health, participation, good sportsmanship and overall fun.

The more than two dozen sports featured are: Archery, Basketball, BMX, Bowling, Boxing, Cricket, Fencing, Figure Skating, Golf, Hockey (high school and youth), Judo, Karate, Lacrosse, Mountain Biking, Pickleball, Racquetball, Rowing, Rugby, Skateboarding, Softball, Swimming, Tae Kwon Do, Track & Field, Volleyball (outdoor) and Wrestling.

Opening ceremonies take place on Friday, June 24 at Fifth Third Ballpark. Call (616) 784-4131 to purchase tickets, or log on to www.ticketreturn.com.

Athletes interested in participating in the Meijer State Games of Michigan can visit the website at www.stategamesofmichigan.com. Information on all 25 sports and registration fees can be found on the website.

The Meijer State Games of Michigan is the signature event of the West Michigan Sports Commission. The sports festival is endorsed by the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports.

Field hockey honors

Corey Block (Chelsea) received Highest Honors last week at the Michigan State University "Spartan Academic Excellence Gala." While being a member of the MSU field hockey team she has the highest cumulative grade-point average on the team. Corey was also recognized for being a member of the 2010 Gladiator by SG/NFHCA Division I National Academic Squad; 2010, 2009, 2008 Academic All-Big Ten honoree. She is one of seven Spartans to play in and start all 21 2010 games. In high school, she was a founding member of the Washenaw Whippets.

FIRST-GRADE TEACHER DENNIE SCHILLER ON RACHEL COOPERRIDER

RACHEL

"She hadn't practiced all week and had to beg me to let her play. She's a competitor and wants to play every game considering this is her senior year."

"On the field she always competes and never gives up. And when someone else gets beat, Rachel has the speed and athleticism to take it off the foot of our opponents. She is a big reason for keeping the ball out of the back of our net."

Rachel is enjoying her final year of soccer as the final days of high school quickly slip away.

"We started out kind of shaky and have gone through a lot of injuries," she said. "Right now we have six people who are out but we are getting better the more we play together."

She's also enjoying her role on the team, as the key defender and one of the team leaders.

"I'm the last one back on defense except for the goalie so I need to talk to people and tell them where to go," she said.

In a few months, Rachel will begin a new chapter in her life. She will be attending Central Michigan University where she will continue her education.

She has not decided if she is going to play any sports, but it will more than likely be for a club team. But while she doesn't know what her athletic future looks like, she has a clear plan about life after school. And it all adds up to teaching.

"I am going to study elementary math," she says, flashing once again that infectious smile. "I've just always wanted to be a teacher. I even loved playing school when I was a kid. And math is my best subject."

Like many young people, Rachel was influenced by one of her teachers. It was an impact that she says certainly left its mark.

"My first-grade teacher at North Creek (Elementary School), Mrs. Schiller, she let me get up in front of the class and talk and help run the class and I thought that was pretty awesome," Rachel said. "I loved her and she loved me."

Dennie Schiller had hundreds of first-graders walk in her classroom during her more than 30 years of teaching first grade at North Creek. But Schiller, who just retired last year, remembers that enthusiastic young girl "with the most beautiful blue-eyes."

"Oh, I certainly remember Rachel. She was a treasure," said Schiller. "She was always exuberant and a real go-getter. She was just enthusiastic to do everything and anything. I could tell back then that she was going to be someone special."

Rachel says she wants to teach math not only because it's her best subject but it's one in which she can connect the dots for her students.

"I'm the kind of person who needs logic to figure things out," she says. "I have to show people my work and show how I reached my answer."

She reached her answer on where to go to college based on Central Michigan's generosity.

"They are giving me money," she says with a laugh. "I'm getting an academic scholarship which I'm really proud of. And she worked hard to earn that Chippewa discount."

"School has always been important to me," said Rachel, who expects to graduate with a grade-point average above 3.8. "It was hard juggling school and sports more in my junior year than it is this year. I had some advanced-placement courses and harder classes during my junior year."

She won't be alone when she heads up to Mt. Pleasant for the first time in August.

"My sister Leah also goes to Central," Rachel said. "It definitely influenced me on my decision. We are very close."

Leah played field hockey and tennis during her high school career at Chelsea. Rachel has enjoyed playing both soccer and basketball for the Bulldogs. And which sport is her favorite?

"That's so tough," she says. "I like basketball because you can just go out and shoot by yourself and get better by yourself. But I like soccer because it's more of a team game with so many more players on the field."

Rachel's basketball career at Chelsea High School bounced in several different directions but certainly finished in the win column.

"We certainly struggled last year with no seniors and not a lot of leadership," she said. "It was hard with not a lot of experience." This past season was a different story as the Bulldogs won the SEC White Division title and won a district title before falling in the first round of regionals.

"The difference was that we had players step up and become leaders," she said. "Last year we didn't have any big goals whereas this year we expected to win." Rachel says she gets her toughness on the field - and court - from her father. "Definitely my dad," she says. "He played college baseball at Michigan and always encouraged me to play sports."

Midway through the first half, Kaminski took a nice pass and headed toward the Chelsea goal. The space that seemed so wide open a few seconds earlier was now being covered by a hard-charging Cooperrider.

The senior moved the Hornet forward off the ball, sending it downfield to quickly deflate the threat. As she turned around to head back to her position, that all too familiar look was as clear as the blue skies above.

A wink. And a smile.

Player to watch: Chelsea's Haley Bunten

Chelsea's Haley Bunten showed the Saline Hornets that she is varsity-capable.

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

Some players stand out because they are the biggest or tallest players on the field. But Haley Bunten is neither. But she certainly stands out.

While Chelsea and Saline feature several highly skilled players, including some college-bound talent, it was the young sophomore defender from Chelsea who may have been the best player on the field Thursday afternoon at Chelsea.

"We are definitely glad we have her,"

Chelsea coach Shawn Hayes said. "She played on the JV team last year at Pioneer and since day one has been one of our top players."

Only a sophomore, Bunten moved to Chelsea this year from Ann Arbor. And while she may look up to most players on the field she doesn't back down from any of them. Several times during Thursday's game, Bunten was knocked hard to the turf only to spring back up as if nothing happened.

"She never gives up and fights through a lot of the pain and agony," Hayes said.

SOCCER

half," Hayes said. "The focus at the beginning of the game was to come out and set the tempo in the first 10 minutes and I thought we did a good job of that. I thought we controlled that first half."

The second half was a different story.

"We knew Saline would come out fired up in the second half and they certainly did," Hayes said. "They are a very strong and physical team and they outplayed us in the second half. But we were able to keep the ball from out of the back of the net. We did a good job of defending and backing each other up which has been a big focus of the team."

Earlier in the year we may have been playing more as individuals and I think we are now starting to play more as a team. We did a good job of defending their numerous attacks in the second half."

Both teams had a few chances in the first half. Just 5 minutes into the game, Anna Rode - who continues to play well for the Bulldogs - cut inside the Saline defense and fired a good, low hard shot that was saved. A few minutes later, Saline's Kristina Veal had a good scoring chance after a little bit of indecision by Chelsea goalie Katelyn Kingsley, who seemed to get stronger and more determined as the game moved along.

Midway through the first half, Saline's Emilee Kaminski stole the ball and set up Makenzie Crimmins but Kingsley aggressively came out of the net and grabbed the ball before Crimmins could get off a shot.

Both teams had a few more decent chances in the first half but the defense held serve.

The Hornets quickly established control in the second half. Melissa Stevens, who seemed to be around the ball all game, took a nice shot in the first 2 minutes that was saved by Kingsley.

Saline's closest chance at the back of the net came with 31 minutes left to play. After a throw-in near the corner post, Saline's Jori Bitter - who had a solid game for the Hornets - got control of the ball and made a nice pass back to Kayla Kouba. The sophomore one-timed a shot that hit the post and then bounced off Kingsley and, fortunately for the Bulldogs, went over the end line and not into the goal.

Just a few minutes later, Caitlin Ellis had a nice cross to Kalley McGregor, who headed the ball in the direction of the goal but again Kingsley made the save.

For the rest of the game, Saline kept coming. But the Bulldogs held their ground.

Bulldogs' JV soccer team making great strides

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

The Chelsea junior varsity soccer team bounced back from a tough loss the day before with an impressive 2-0 win Friday over visiting Carlson.

"Playing two games in a row is definitely a challenge, especially with all of our injuries," said Chelsea coach Kirsten Smart. "We played the whole game with only 10 players against Carlson who had a full roster and plenty of subs. The girls truly proved themselves in this game."

Michelle Flaughter earned the shutout in goal while Krista Pagliarini, Chelsea's other goalie, made a big impact on the field as a forward and outside midfielder. She had some great crosses and shots on goal.

"Even when playing down, our midfielders and forwards were able to make outstanding off-ball runs," Smart said.

Liz Boyce, a sophomore forward, Nikki Liedel, a freshmen forward, Sarah Scherb, a senior midfielder, Autumn Johnson, a sophomore midfielder, Anyssa Marsh, a sophomore midfielder and Krista Pagliarini, a sophomore midfielder and forward, had strong games for Chelsea.

Marsh assisted on Liedel's first-half goal to give Chelsea a 1-0 lead. The second goal was scored in the second half. The assist came from Johnson, who passed to Boyce who was able to place the ball perfectly at the lower right corner, around the keeper.

"Liz is having a great season," Smart said. "The last few games she has been a huge piece of our success up top. She has excellent placement for our running outside midfielders and a beautiful shot. Finesse is one of the most challenging things when approaching the goalie one-on-one. Realizing and applying placement over power is a difficult concept for any player. Liz was able to score because of her timing and her ability to hit a target. She is a smart player, which is one of the most important parts of the game."

On Thursday, the Bulldogs lost to SEC rival Saline 3-0. Chelsea kept the Hornets off the scoreboard in the first half.

"It was a bit messy at times and Saline had many scoring opportunities, but they weren't able to finish,"

Smart said. Flaughter started in goal and made several great saves right from the start of the game.

Pagliarini finished the first half and rest of the game in goal for the Bulldogs.

"Krista was also a huge help for us," Smart said. "I was very impressed with both keepers. Sarah Schultz, Molly Merkel, Autumn Johnson and Maddie Powell were on defense and kept Saline scoreless during the first half."

Saline came out and scored three goals in the second half but the Bulldogs never gave up.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

The Village of Dexter will hold a public hearing on the proposed improvements at the Wastewater Treatment Plant for the purpose of receiving comments from interested persons.

The hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, June 13, 2011 at the following location: Dexter Senior Center, 7720 Ann Arbor Street, Dexter, Michigan.

The purpose of the proposed project is to complete improvements at the Village's wastewater treatment plant (WWTP) to increase the capacity in the sludge handling process and sand filters. In addition, the project updates equipment at the WWTP that has outlived its useful life.

Project construction will involve the upgrades to the sludge handling system and replacement of the sand filters, instrumentation and controls, and the Heating, Ventilation, and Air Conditioning units. Improvements will also be completed to the sand filter room.

Impacts of the proposed project include work within the wastewater treatment plant property. All the improvements will be contained on the property.

The estimated cost to users for the proposed project will be $120.08 per year. The total project costs are estimated at $4,517,000.

Copies of the plan detailing the proposed project are available for inspection beginning on May 13, 2011 at the following location: Village of Dexter Offices at 8123 Main Street, Second Floor of the PNC Bank building in Dexter, Michigan.

Written comments received before the hearing record is closed on June 13, 2011 will receive responses in the final project plan. Written comments should be sent to: Village of Dexter 8140 Main Street Dexter, MI 48130

2010 Water Quality Report for City of Chelsea

Once again the City of Chelsea Water Department is pleased to submit the drinking water quality report for the 2010 calendar year. This information is a snapshot of the quality of the water that we provided to you in 2010. Included are details about where your water comes from, what it contains, and how it compares to Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) and state standards.

At present your tap water comes from five wells. The oldest two wells are approximately forty feet deep, and the newest ones well 6 and 7 drilled in January 2007 are approximately 50 feet deep. The oldest of the five wells, well number 1 was drilled in 1941, following that was well 1A in 1952, well 5 was drilled in 2000. These wells are what are commonly called "drift wells", meaning that they are terminated in the glacial drift as opposed to being a rock well, which is set in the bedrock below the drift. The wells are in a gravel formation with a screen to allow water to pass through while keeping the sand and gravel from entering the pump.

The water from the five wells is pumped to the treatment plant where it moves through the aerators to oxidize the iron and manganese. After some detention time the water passes through the iron/manganese removal filters where the iron and manganese is removed. Once the water has passed through the iron removal filters it enters the membrane softening units. A portion of the iron treated water is diverted past the membrane softening equipment and blended with the softened water to balance the hardness and achieve a goal of 125 to 150 ppm or 7.30 to 8.77 ppm of hardness. The water then travels to the 200,000-gallon concrete ground storage tank located at the facility.

On its way to the ground storage tank chlorine is applied. The chlorine is added as a disinfectant to prevent the presence of any bacteriological contamination in the ground storage tank and piping. As the water leaves the ground storage tank on its way to the elevated storage tower additional chlorine is added to maintain disinfection within the distribution system.

Approximately 0.80 ppm of fluoride is added with the naturally occurring fluoride of 0.20 ppm for healthier teeth and bones. Also added is an ortho-phosphate blend to help prevent the corrosion of residential plumbing and distribution system piping. The water is metered and the chemicals are weighed every-day to ensure proper chemical dosages.

Source Water Vulnerability Assessment:

Your water comes from 5 groundwater wells, each over 40 feet deep. The State performed an assessment of our source water to determine the susceptibility or the relative potential of contamination. The three categories of geologic sensitivity most often identified are low, moderate, and high with the order reflecting a decreasing level of protection. Production well #1 and #1A (North Street Well field) are completed in an aquifer described as "leaky-confined", while wells #6, #6 and #7 (Berkner Road Well field) obtain groundwater from an aquifer hydraulically characterized as "unconfined to leaky-confined". In the case of both the North and Berkner well fields, tenuous protection is provided to the aquifers by the overlying drift lithology and depth of the wells (35 to 60 feet). Accordingly, the aquifers in which these wells are completed should be considered as having a high geological sensitivity. This study is based on information completed August 6, 2010.

Potential sources of contamination include groundwater discharge permit sites; several small and large quantity hazardous waste generator sites; several Underground Storage Tank sites; and hazardous waste facilities. Abandoned wells provide a direct conduit for surface runoff and contaminants to easily reach the groundwater and may pose a potential problem. We are making efforts to protect our sources by conducting an active Wellhead Protection Program that supports management of existing or potential sources of contamination in the Wellhead Protection Program Area. Known sources of contamination within the WHPA are being regulated to prevent movement of contamination to the municipal wells. If you currently have or know of an abandoned well, please notify the Water Department or your local health department for guidelines on the procedure to cap the well head.

If you would like to know more about the report, please contact Ray Schmidt or Corey Davis at the City of Chelsea Water Department at 734-475-8298.

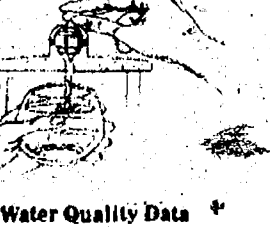

Contaminants and their presence in water: Drinking Water, including bottled water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information about contaminants and potential health effects can be obtained by calling the EPA's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

Sources of drinking water: The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. Our water comes from wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally-occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or from human activity.

- Contaminants that may be present in source water include:
  - Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations and wildlife.
  - Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally-occurring or result from urban storm water runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas, production, mining or farming.
  - Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban storm-water runoff, and residential uses.
  - Radioactive contaminants, which are naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities.
  - Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban storm water runoff and septic systems.

Vulnerability of sub-population: Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immune-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by drinking groundwater and other microbial contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, EPA prescribes regulations that limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. Food and Drug Administration regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water which provide the same protection for public health.

Water Quality Data

The table below lists all the drinking water contaminants that we detected during the 2010 calendar year. The presence of these contaminants in the water does not necessarily indicate that the water poses a health risk. Unless otherwise noted, the data presented in this table is from testing done January 1 - December 31, 2010. The State allows us to monitor for certain contaminants less than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants are not expected to vary significantly from year to year. All of the data is representative of the water quality, but some are more than one year old.

Terms and abbreviations used below:

- Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG): The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.
- Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL): The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.
- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL): means the highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.
- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG): means the level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.
- N/A: Not applicable. ND: not detectable at testing limit. ppb: parts per billion or micrograms per liter. ppm: parts per million or milligrams per liter. pCi/L: picocuries per liter (a measure of radioactivity). spg: grains per gallon.
- Action Level: The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements that a water system must follow.
- Treatment Technique (TT): A required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.

All results are in parts per million (ppm) unless otherwise noted *Unregulated contaminants are those for which EPA has not established drinking water standards. Monitoring helps EPA to determine where these contaminants occur and whether it needs to regulate those contaminants.

Lead in your drinking water: If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. The City of Chelsea is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in water testing methods and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater>.

Monitoring and Reporting Requirements: The State and EPA require us to test our water on a regular basis to ensure its safety. The City of Chelsea Water Department met all the monitoring and reporting requirements for 2010.

We will update this report annually. Copies are available at the City of Chelsea Offices or by contacting the City of Chelsea Water Department at 734-475-8298.

We invite public participation in decisions that affect drinking water quality. The Chelsea City Council meetings are held the second and fourth Tuesday of each month at 7:00 pm. Allie Smith and the Chelsea Bulldogs are scoring a ton of runs so far this season.

Bulldogs in cruise control

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

The Chelsea softball team rolled on Monday afternoon with a pair of rather easy wins over Ann Arbor Pioneer. It was barely worth the trip for visiting Pioneer.

The Bulldogs won the opener 15-0, led by pitcher Taylor Hansen. The senior flame-thrower fanned 10 of the 12 batters she faced, making for an easy day in the field for the Bulldogs. She allowed just two hits.

Offensively, Chelsea didn't waste any time lighting up the scoreboard. The Bulldogs put up a 12 spot - yes, 12 runs - in the opening inning. Taylor VanRiper had a home run, double and three RBI and Allie Smith had a triple, home run and four RBI.

Marie Zill, Paige Erickson and Taylor Cooley all had two hits in the win.

The second game was another day at the office for Chelsea. The Bulldogs scored a 15-5 victory over the Pioneers. Sophomore Olivia Steele was called up from the junior varsity team and took the hill in the nightcap and earned the victory.

Carley Wooster, who had doubles, and Jessie Fox each had three hits for Chelsea. Erickson had two doubles and two RBI and Madeline Day hit a two-run homer.

The Bulldogs improved to 17-3 overall and 6-1 in the Southeastern Conference.

Last Thursday, Chelsea took another doubleheader in easy fashion, this time against Adrian.

The Bulldogs won the opener 15-2. Hansen allowed just three hits and fanned eight to get the win. Ellie Stoffer had a triple and home run among her three hits. Zill and Bailey Darwin also had three hits and three RBI.

Darwin picked up the win in a 10-5 victory in the second game. She also had two hits.

Katlyn Brosnan led the offense with three hits. Zill and Erickson also had two hits apiece in the win.

Last Tuesday, Chelsea made quick work of Skyline.

The Bulldogs won the opener 15-0 as Hansen threw a no-hitter in the five-inning game. She had five strikeouts. Zill and Darwin each had three hits and three RBI. Brosnan, VanRiper and Stoffer each had two hits.

Darwin fanned six and allowed only three hits in a 14-2 win in the second game.

Brosnan had three hits and Day and Wooster each had a pair of hits.

Last Monday, the Bulldogs faced a tough test in Saline and split a pair with the Hornets.

Chelsea won the opener 10-5 behind some solid hitting, speed and Saline mistakes. Hansen, who picked up the win, had two hits and two RBI. Darwin had a double and two RBI and Stoffer drove in three runs.

The Bulldogs committed seven errors in the second game and lost 10-0.

"We threw the ball all over the field and didn't play well at all," Chelsea coach Bob Moffett said. "But we've been cruising lately and maybe this will wake us up a little bit."

Hard ball

Chelsea looking to improve

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

Chelsea coach Wayne Welton has seen a lot of good baseball over the years so he knows when his team is not hitting it and the Bulldogs are not hitting it - on the field or in the batter's box.

"The game is hard for us right now," Welton said. "We still are trying to figure it out and play like I know we can. We are still working hard."

The Bulldogs (2-13 overall) ran into the top team in the state on Monday and took their lumps, losing the first game 10-0 and the second game 15-0 to Ann Arbor Pioneer.

"We only got one hit in the two games and even that hit was questionable," Welton said. "They are a great team but we didn't play well. We are better than what we showed."

Charlie Hess had the only Chelsea hit.

Last Thursday, Chelsea lost 6-5 in eight innings to Adrian. Jarred Scheese started and got relief from Chris Boyd and Nate Udell.

Chelsea led the second game 8-7 after three innings when the game was called because of darkness.

Hess had four hits in the two games and Tyler Frank had three hits and four RBI in the two games.

"Alex Maloney made one of the best plays I've seen in a number of years at shortstop," Welton said.

"He went up the middle, dove and back-handed a ground ball and then flipped it to second for the force out."

Maloney also had a couple of hits for the Bulldogs.

Chelsea lost a tough 4-3 game last Tuesday to Ann Arbor Skyline. Maloney went seven innings on the hill and allowed three unearned runs and pitched a solid game.

"Our defense let us down," Welton said. "We should have won this game."

Chelsea scored all three runs in the first inning. Tyler Geiger led off with a triple and Maloney, Udell and Jake Fox all followed with singles.

Maloney had three hits on the day.

Last Monday, the Bulldogs dropped a pair to Saline. The Hornets took the opener 7-0 and dominated from the first inning, scoring two runs in the opening frame and never looked back. The Bulldogs could muster only three hits - singles by Maloney and Pat Roberts and a Fox double. Nate Udell suffered the loss. Fox pitched well in relief.

Saline won the second game 8-0. This game followed the first game script. Saline took an early 2-0 lead and then Brian Paulsen settled in to pitch very well for the Bulldogs.

Saline broke open a good game with a five run sixth inning, mostly supported by the Bulldogs misplaying of a sacrifice bunt. Again, Fox pitched well in relief.

Roberts had two hits and Fox had the only other hit for the Bulldogs.

"Saline's pitching was impressive and in control of both games," Welton said. "We simply could not muster up an offensive attack."

the momentum at the beginning of the match but seemed to lose focus midway through the second set," Pedlow said. "Dexter really picked up their game and then dominated the third set. Rachel and Sarah have been playing very good tennis recently, being much more consistent with their shot selection. They struggled today hitting away from the girl at net but overall played a great match."

The Bulldogs' No. 1 doubles team of Amanda Robertson and Brandi Alexander-Bui played a close match against Polly Washabaugh and Shea Holman but lost 7-5, 7-6 (7-3).

"Each set our girls had the lead - in the first set the girls were up 5-4 before Dexter won the next three games," Pedlow said. "In the second set, we were up 6-5 before dropping the next game and the tiebreaker. There were some great points. The Dexter girls played a great match. Each time our girls hit what seemed to be a winner, they were there to return the ball. It was a great doubles match for all four of the players. Dexter was just able to close out the points when it mattered most."

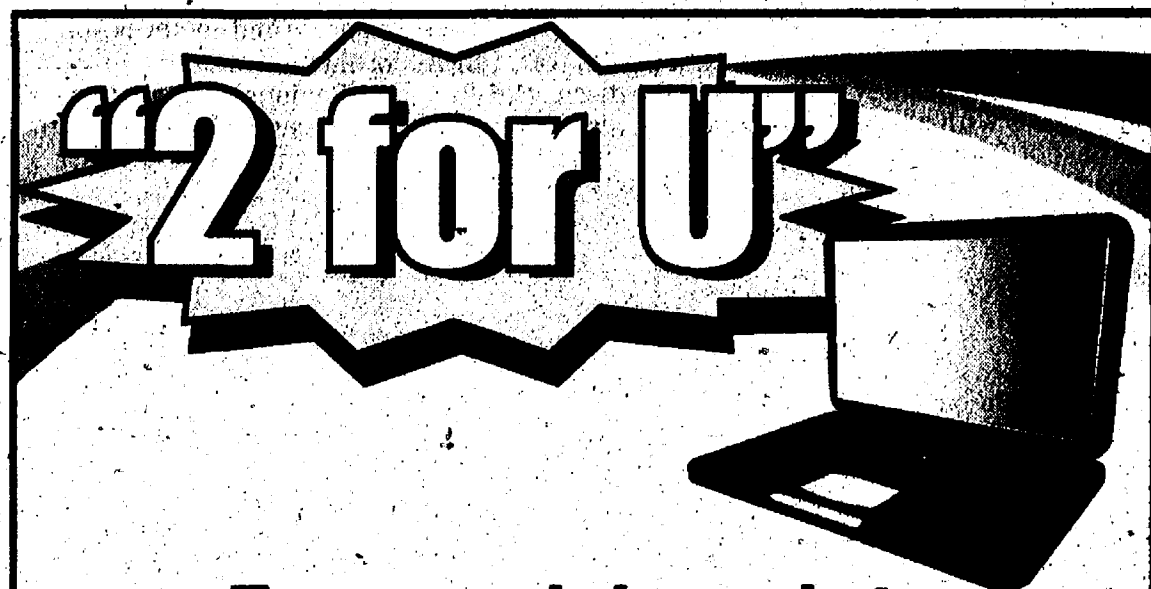

At No. 1 singles, Dexter swept all flights. Katherine Lange lost at 1 singles 6-1, 6-1. Lauren Schad lost to Kayla Harris at 3 singles, 6-1, 6-1. At 4 singles, Ellen Christie lost to Amy Appel

6-1, 6-0. The best singles match was at 2 singles, Chelsea's Lauren Barbour lost to Dexter's Carly Glahn 6-4, 6-4.

"Glahn was able to move Barbour all over the court, but Lauren kept chasing, down balls and had very few unforced errors," Pedlow said.

"Lauren has really improved this year, she just knows how to win points. It's been great to watch her grow as a player - she was a 4 doubles player last year and now battles for the top spot on our team."

Chelsea plays Skyline on Thursday, Jackson High on Monday, and Monroe on Tuesday. All of the varsity matches are home. Regionals begin on May 20 at Grosse Ile.

RECORD DAY AT THE TRACK

Boys, girls set CHS school records in relays

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

BOYS

Friday was a day that Chelsea track and field coach Eric Swager won't soon forget.

"It was a record-setting day in Saline," Swager said. "Many of our athletes performed magnificently, setting lifetime bests, and registering two school records."

Those records were set during the Golden Triangle meet at Saline. There are no team scores kept during the meet.

The meet started with the distance-medley relay. August Pappas led off with a crisp 3 minutes, 10 second 1200-meter leg, followed by a sub-51 second leg by Luke Oliver. Zach Rabbitt's 205.9 800-meter leg kept the Bulldogs in the lead and Bryce Bradley's 4:24 mile was his best effort ever. Although the 10:30 clocking smashed the Chelsea school record by 29 seconds, and would have been a new meet record, a very strong Bedford team caught the Bulldogs in the last 100 meters for the victory.

Mason Borders' 300-meter hurdle victory was a school record (39.01), breaking the mark set by Evan Carpenter just three years ago.

"I believe that Mason is capable of entering the 38 second barrier by the end of the season, which could contend him for the state title in that event," Swager said.

Oliver won the 400 meters with personal-best time of 50.8 and Bradley won the 3200 with a lifetime best of 9:34.

The 400 relay of Oliver,

Logan-Yordanich, James Rebeidula, and Christian Vosters ran their best time ever in winning the 400 relay with a time of 44.5.

Pappas' victory in the mile run was a good performance as he battled a head cold this week.

Borders and Shane McGrath had fine 110 hurdle efforts to each earn medals. Borders was second in 14.48 and McGrath was fifth in 16.2.

Austin Horn, Jack Abernethy, Ben Koch, Steven Shepherd, James Hansen, Jacob Stubbs, and James Biller all set lifetime bests in the distance events.

"In all, a fine showing," Swager said. "I continue to be impressed by the competitiveness and great attitude shown by the vast majority of this year's team."

Earlier in the week the Bulldogs defeated Ypsilanti 93-44.

"Ypsilanti has some of the best athletes in the state, but we were able to out-depth them in many events and sweep them in their weak events," Swager said. "Although it was windy and a little wet, many of our guys competed hard."

Borders had another set of good efforts, winning two events and finishing second in another. Oliver remains rock solid in his events and David Slusser is a nice guy to count on in the throws. Slusser won the shot put (41 feet, 4 inches) and the discus (125-9). Kirk Olsen also continues to improve in both the shot put and the discus, taking second in both events. Notable lifetime bests were Travis Weiss in the pole vault and Austin Horn in the 3200 run.

"Many of our non-placing kids (especially distance) continue to set huge lifetime bests as the season progresses," Swager said. "It is nice to watch them learn how to compete and get the best out of themselves."

"Regionals is only two weeks away, and we need to bring it all together as we approach that date."

GIRLS

The Chelsea girls' track and field team had an impressive showing at the 17-team Golden Triangle meet in Saline on Friday. While team scores are not kept, the Bulldogs were winners on many fronts, breaking three school records.

The first school record to fall was in the opening event as the distance medley relay (1200-400-800-1600) team of Elaine Johnson, Emily Cottrell, Ella Fritzmeyer and Jessi Battaglia clocked in at 13 minutes, 10.6 seconds to finish second to Ann Arbor Huron.

Grace Sauers set the next school record in the long jump going 16-5 to finish third.

The final school record was set by Danielle Dahl, winning the 800 and turning in a top five time in the state of 2:17.7.

Emily Cottrell won the 300 hurdles in a personal best of 46.9.

The 1600 relay of Sauers, Cottrell, Megan Hall and Dahl also turned in a top five state time of 4:06.4, again finishing second to Huron.

"It was a quality meet and we more than held our own," Chelsea coach Bert Kruse said. "We are now getting down to the season ending big meets and hope to be successful."

On a very cold day earlier in the week, Chelsea defeated Ypsilanti 88-44. Distance led the way, scoring 31 out of 32 possible points.

Lauren Dark and Cottrell were double winners on the track. Dark won both the pole vault and the high jump. Cottrell won both the 300 hurdles and 100 hurdles. Dahl won the 800 and Sophie Gonzalez won the long jump.

Zoe Sing won both the shot put and the discus.

"Times and distances suffered because of the cold," Kruse said. "It was a meet we needed to win and the girls did their respective jobs."

The Bulldogs are now 4-0 in dual meets.

Bulldogs give Dreadnaughts all they can handle

Jesse Hinderer scored five goals to lead Chelsea in an 11-7 district seed game loss against No. 5 state-ranked Dexter.

Using their swimming speed, Dexter jumped out to an early lead. But once the Chelsea team-defense adjusted to Dexter's speed as Chelsea began to control their own end of the court.

And Katlin Corinlin began to shut down Dexter's shooters, disrupting counter-attack shot attempts and getting a hand on every Dexter shot attempt during the fourth quarter when Chelsea outscored the Dreadnaughts 3-0.

"It took us a while to get use to their speed," said Chelsea coach Chris

WATER POLO

Keenan. "But we had been passing well on offense all game, getting the ball from teammate to teammate. And once we were able to control their counter-attack, we began to convert on our offensive opportunities. We got a big game from goalkeeper Katlin Corinlin, who eventually began to dominate in the goal."

For Chelsea, Claudia Bravo also scored two goals and Kaila Croskey, Shelby Collins, Lauren Jolly, Katie Eiseley and Talia Dyerly all played well making assists, making great passes and on defense.

Also, Hanna Newbound made her varsity debut, making several key passes, including an assist. Chelsea closed out the regular season on Tuesday at Pioneer.

Chelsea plays No. 1 district seed and No. 6 state-ranked Skyline in the first-round district play on Friday at Ann Arbor Huron. Game time is 4:45 p.m.

Junior varsity

Hanna Newbound scored two goals in Chelsea's 12-2 defeat. Both goals were

"lob" shots that looped over the top of the Dexter goalie, because of how far the Dexter goalie was coming out of the goal.

And, against Dexter's upperclassmen JV's, Chelsea had many plays and opportunities on offense. But Dexter's speed took over at times, and provided undefended opportunities against Chelsea's defense.

In spite of this, Chelsea's freshman goalkeeper Alex Duncan recorded eight saves, including several key saves at close range. Also playing well for Chelsea were Emily Simons, Kat Haroney, Maddie Doman and Shannon Bater.

Chelsea JV team wins Parma Invite

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Media

The Chelsea JV baseball team won the Parma Invitational on Saturday. Chelsea beat host Jackson Parma Western 20-3. As a team, the Bulldogs batted .621 (23-37). Michael Steinhauer was 4 for 4 with a homerun, a double, 6 RBI and 4 runs. Colton Platt was 4 for 5 with 2 doubles, 2 runs, and 4 RBI. Nick Burris was 4 for 5 with 3 runs. Logan Brown was 2 for 5 with a triple, 2 runs and 2 RBI. Sean Lungo had 2 hits and 3 RBI. Logan Marable pitched and earned the win for the Bulldogs.

In the second game, the Bulldogs beat Lumen Christi 6-2. Platt pitched six innings allowing just two runs on five hits. He had seven strikeouts and only one walk. He also had a hit and scored two runs. Luke Hollandsworth was 1 for 2 with 2 RBI and a run. Steinhauer was 1 for 2 with a run and an RBI.

Earlier in the week, Marable got the win in a 6-0 victory over Saline. Marable pitched a complete game seven-inning shut out, striking out seven and walking three. Hollandsworth was 2 for 4 with a run.

Tony Vermilye was 1 for 3 with a double and 2 runs. Eric Newman was 1 for 1 with an RBI and walk. "Logan pitched great and the team played well in all phases of the game," coach Brian Sayers said.

The two teams tied 9-9 in the other game. Burris started on the mound and pitched four solid innings.

Colton Platt also pitched well in relief. Hollandsworth was 2 for 4 with 2 RBI and a run. Colton Platt was 2 for 3 with an RBI and two runs. "We started off slow but competed and came back in the late innings to take the lead," Sayers said. "Then Saline tied it up before the game was called due to darkness."

The Bulldogs knocked off Skyline 12-4 as Lungo picked up the win pitching five scoreless innings of relief. Micheal Steinhauer was 2 for 4 with a double, 2 RBI and three runs and Platt was 2 for 4 with 2 runs.

"It was a good game for our team, Sean pitched well and everyone got to play," Sayers said. Chelsea split with Adrian last week, winning the first game 10-8 as Hollandsworth pitched five innings and was relieved by Marable and Platt. With the score tied at 8 in the bottom of the seventh inning, Lungo led off with a single before Marable hit his first homerun of the season giving the Bulldogs an exciting walk-off win. "It was the most exciting game I have had as a coach," Sayers said. Marable was 1-2 with 3 RBI and 2 runs; Caleb Bentley was 2 for 3 with a double, RBI and run; and Lungo was 1 for 2 with 3 runs. Lungo, Platt and Ben Doll all had hits in the 16-0 loss in the second game.

At a session of said Court held on the April 20, 2011, in the Washtenaw County Courthouse, City of Ann Arbor, State of Michigan.

PRESENT: THE HONORABLE TIMOTHY P. CONNORS,
Trial Court Judge

Upon reading the Motion of the Plaintiff for Substituted Service under MCR 2.105(J), and it appearing to the Court that Service of Process can not be reasonably made upon the following parties, DAVID H. STRIETER and CLARENCE E. VOGEL, now deceased, Trustees of the Oak Grove Cemetery Association Irrevocable Trust dated December 1, 1970, LEWIS HASELSWERDT, now deceased, former Trustee of the former "Oak Grove Cemetery Association Perpetual Care and Maintenance Fund," and its unknown settlors, former trustees, and owners or parties of interest and their known and unknown heirs, assigns, successors and personal representatives, that counsel furnished an affidavit of successors in interest, but that the names and current addresses of the owners of burial lots in said cemetery and all donors to the Perpetual Care Fund, their respective heirs, assigns, and personal representatives can not be determined, personal service can not be made upon all potential parties in interest, and that service of process under MCR 2.106 is appropriate, and the Court being advised in the premises;

NOW THEREFORE, IT IS ORDERED:

1. That notice is given to the named Defendants, LEWIS HASELSWERDT, CLARENCE E. VOGEL, and DAVID H. STRIETER, now deceased, Trustees of the Oak Grove Cemetery Association Irrevocable Trust dated December 1, 1970, Defendant, LEWIS HASELSWERDT, now deceased, former Trustee of the former "Oak Grove Cemetery Association Perpetual Care and Maintenance Fund," and its unknown settlors, trustees, and owners or parties of interest and their known and unknown heirs, assigns, successors and personal representatives, the owners of burial lots in said cemetery and to all donors to the Perpetual Care Funds of the Oak Grove Cemetery Association, Chelsea, Michigan, their heirs, assigns, and personal representatives that:

a. The name of this Court is the Washtenaw County Trial Court.

b. The names of the parties to this action are: OAK GROVE CEMETERY CORP. OF CHELSEA, Plaintiff, NANCY MYERS and GERALD WENZ, in their capacity as Trustees of the "Oak Grove Cemetery Association Irrevocable Trust," under the agreement dated December 1, 1970, and predecessor trustees to said Trust, DAVID H. STRIETER and CLARENCE E. VOGEL, now deceased, and LEWIS HASELSWERDT, now deceased, Trustee of the former "Oak Grove Cemetery Association Perpetual Care and Maintenance Fund," and its unknown settlors, trustees, and owners or parties of interest and their known and unknown heirs, assigns, successors and personal representatives; Defendants.

c. This action requests transfer of the assets held by the Oak Grove Cemetery Irrevocable Trust under agreement dated December 1, 1970 to Comerica Bank, a financial institution with trust powers, under the provisions a trust to be executed, known as the 2011 Trust and described in the Plaintiff's Complaint.

d. An Answer to the Complaint or other action permitted by law or court rule is permitted by a filing in writing with the Clerk of this Court at 101 East Huron Street, P.O. Box 8645, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48107, telephone number (734) 222-3001, and serving the copy upon Plaintiff's attorney.

e. Failure to Answer to take such other action shall permit the Plaintiff to request the relief sought in the Complaint; the transfer and assignment of assets of the Oak Grove Association Irrevocable Trust, dated December 1, 1970, to Comerica Bank, N.A., as Trustee for said Perpetual Care Funds under a 2011 Trust described in the Complaint.

2. The unknown Defendants, as set forth above, are best described as having a potential claim to monies which were donated, given or transferred, invested and reinvested, and held by the Trustees of said December 1, 1970 Trust, by Oak Grove Cemetery Association of Chelsea, Michigan, or managed in any way as part of the Perpetual Care Funds of the said Oak Grove Cemetery, Chelsea, Michigan.

3. Unless an Answer is filed or other action taken as permitted by law August 1, 2011, a default as to the party who has not answered or taken action, may be entered by the Plaintiff and the Plaintiff may proceed without further notice to such Defendant.

4. The within Order shall be:
(1) Published once in each week for three (3) consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in Washtenaw County, where this action is pending, and

(2) Sent a copy of the Order to the known heirs and personal representatives of the three named deceased Defendants to his or her last known address by registered mail, return receipt requested, before the date of the last publication.

(3) Posted in the Washtenaw County Courthouse and in two or more public places in the City of Chelsea for three consecutive weeks. Posting of the Order and Proof of Posting shall be done by the Washtenaw County Sheriff.

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE

BIRCHLER, FITZHUGH, PURTELL & SAROW, PLC IS A DEBT COLLECTOR ATTEMPTING TO COLLECT A DEBT. ANY INFORMATION OBTAINED WILL BE USED FOR THAT PURPOSE.

The mortgage described below is in default:

Mortgage made by CST Land, LLC, a Michigan limited liability company, to GreenStone Farm Credit Services, FLCA, mortgagee in a mortgage dated March 9, 2005, and recorded in the office of the Washtenaw County Register of Deeds on March 18, 2005, at Liber 4465, page 671, of Washtenaw County Records. The balance claimed owing on the mortgage at the time of this notice is Two Hundred Forty Thousand Three Hundred Sixty-eight and 52/100 ($240,368.52) Dollars. The mortgage contains a power of sale, and no suit or proceedings at law or in equity have been instituted to recover the debt secured by the mortgage or any part thereof.

NOW, THEREFORE, take notice that the mortgage will be foreclosed by sale of the property described in the mortgage at public auction on Thursday, June 16, 2011, at 10:00 a.m., at the main entrance of the Washtenaw County Courthouse, 101 E. Huron, Ann Arbor, Michigan (that being the place where the Washtenaw County Circuit Court is held). The mortgagee will apply the sale proceeds to the debt on the mortgage, as stated above, plus interest charges at the rate of 7.3%, and expenses, including the attorney fees allowed by law or contract, and also any amount which may be paid by the mortgagee to protect its interest in the property.

The property to be sold at foreclosure is described as follows: All that certain piece or parcel of land situated in the Township of Augusta, Washtenaw County, Michigan, and described as follows: to-wit:

An ACE of a day

Chelsea's South Meadows students, along with many other students across the state, celebrated All Children Exercise Simultaneously May 4. The one-day youth exercise program highlighted the importance and need of youth fitness across 50 states and 50 countries. This year, more than 1,000 Michigan schools participated. In Chelsea, Farm Bureau Insurance of Michigan once again supported the event for the 13th year. Insurance agent Rick Eder of Chelsea provided a check for $250 to South Meadows Elementary for the purchase of health and wellness items. "On behalf of the Michigan Fitness Foundation, I would like to extend our appreciation to Farm Bureau Insurance and Agent Rick Eder for their continued support of health and wellness initiatives in Michigan," said Marilyn R. Lieber, president and CEO of Michigan Fitness Foundation. "Through their support, we can work to improve the health of our children and our state."

Wild Swan Theater to perform 'Treasure Island'

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Long before actor Johnny Depp and his Captain Jack Sparrow character, there was Long John Silver, the infamous peg-legged pirate with a parrot on his shoulder created by Scottish author Robert Louis Stevenson in his 1883 classic swash-buckling novel "Treasure Island."

The performers of Wild Swan Theater in Ann Arbor will present "Treasure Island" May 12 through 15 at Washtenaw Community College Morris Lawrence Building Towsley Auditorium, 4800 E. Huron River Drive. Tickets for the performances, suitable for ages 7 through 14, cost $15, and $10 for children, in advance, and, if available, at the door.

The performance, adapted from Stevenson's classic by local playwright and actor Jeff Duncan, is interpreted in American Sign Language. Audio description and backstage "touch" tours are available by prearrangement for visually impaired audience members.

Duncan, a professor of English at Eastern Michigan University, has written original scripts for more than 15 Wild Swan productions, including "The Wind in the Willows," "The Nightingale," "The Firebird," "The Changeling," and "Wizard of Oz." He has played Malvolio in "Twelfth Night" and Old Shem in "Brothers of the Heart." He has also written plays for the Performance Network in Ann Arbor.

Actor Jeremy Salvatori, in his fifth season with Wild Swan Theater, will play Jim Hawkins, the young boy who signs on as a cabin boy on the "Hispaniola."

"The Jim Hawkins role in Treasure Island is without a doubt one of my favorites to play," Salvatori said. "Playing a 12-year-old kid who is brimming with desire to sail on a ship to the Caribbean to fight pirates off in order to find buried treasure is - what can I say - absolutely positively awesome."

"It's very refreshing and, in a sense, renewing, to play a kid role. You look out at the world with untainted, innocent, eager eyes. The world is a great big place that is all at once amazing, scary and exciting. I love being able to try and capture that spirit." A native of Plainwell, near Kalamazoo, Salvatori has lived in Ann Arbor for most of the past 15 years since coming here to Ann Arbor to earn a bachelor's degree at the University of Michigan.

"Acting is something I've long been interested in, but, being shy in nature, I always was too scared to try it. Then about five years ago, I finally worked up enough courage to give it a try," he said.

Duncan searched the Internet and the first audition he found happened to be taking place in two days.

"Nervously, I signed up. Two days later, I showed up, my heart in my throat. But right from the first minute, the three ladies behind the audition table made me feel so comfortable that I actually had a pretty good audition," he said.

"They called me back, I got the part, and now, five years and a dozen shows later, I still get to walk in the door and have those same three ladies smile at me and make me feel right at home. These are the ladies of Wild Swan Theater, and I feel so incredibly honored to have had the privilege of working with them all these years."

Salvatori, who also has acted with the Performance Network Children's Theatre Network and the Ann Arbor Civic Theatre, has appeared in Wild Swan Theater productions of "Along the Tracks," "Coming to America," "Twelfth Night" and "A Christmas Carol."

When he's not treading the boards in costume, he works for Mathematical Reviews, a nonprofit in Ann Arbor that helps promote mathematical research. Wild Swan Theater, co-founded in 1980 by Sandy Ryder and Hilary Cohen, aims to create the best theater possible and make it accessible to all. The theater, nationally known for its artistic, innovative audience accessibility program, and projects for participants with disabilities, takes its outreach programs to schools and museums around southeast Michigan.

Sponsors include the National Endowment for the Humanities, W.K. Kellogg Foundation, Newman's Own Foundation, Very Special Arts/Michigan and the Michigan Council for the Arts.

For more information or to purchase tickets, call 995-0530 or visit www.wildswantheater.org.

Melissa Morgan to perform at Kerrytown Concert House May 14

California-based Melissa Morgan will sing new tunes and some from her 2009 release from Telarc, "Until I Met You," at Kerrytown Concert House.

"Once in a great while... a project arrives from a fresh voice that is fully formed. From the first bars, you know it is something special - and far above the dozens of vocal discs you've sifted through recently... Such is the case here with Melissa Morgan," wrote Ken Franckling in Jazz Notes of Morgan, who was a 2004 Monk competition semi-finalist.

Other critics have compared the young singer to classic songstresses, including Billie Holiday, Nancy Wilson and Sarah Vaughn.

Morgan will appear at the Kerrytown Concert House in Ann Arbor on Saturday and at Nighttown in Cleveland on Sunday.

"You hear strong influences from Nancy Wilson and Dinah Washington, but Melissa is unique," said Randy Napoleon, the guitarist on "Until I Met You"

"She is more introverted, a quietly confident musical personality," Napoleon said.

Bassist Dave Rosin appears with them in Michigan; the Randy Napoleon Trio appears with Morgan at Nighttown.

Morgan, who has been a regular fixture in clubs along the California coast, has appeared at some of New York's top jazz rooms, including Cleopatra's Needle, Flute, G Bar, Smalls, Smalls, Smoke and St. Nick's Pub, appearing with her own trio as well as other artists including Harold Mabern, David Hazeltine and Sam Yahel.

She was featured in performances with Jon Faddis and the Dizzy Gillespie Alumni All-Stars at the Blue Note in New York, performed at the 2002 New York Women of Jazz Festival at Smoke Jazz club and was a guest on the Metro TV-NY program "Where to hear jazz in New York City."

Morgan studied with choir director Maredia Warren and soprano Katherine Harris of the Metropolitan Opera while still in high school. She continued training at the State University of New York Purchase Conservatory of Music with Yolande Bavan, Jon Faddis, Mark Murphy and Roseanna Vitro.

Napoleon has toured with Benny Green, the Clayton-Hamilton Jazz Orchestra and Michael Bublè and appears on recordings with them. Currently, he is a member of the Freddy Cole Quartet and leader of his own trio and sextet.

He is featured on Cole's 2009 album, "Live at Dizzy's Club: The Dreamer in Me" and on the Grammy-nominated "Freddy Cole Sings Mr. B," an August 2010 release from HighNote, for which he did the arrangements.

He is currently arranging music for Cole's forthcoming album.

HIV/AIDS Resource Center's Dining for Dollars fundraiser is May 18

The HIV/AIDS Resource Center will hold its 16th annual Dining for Dollars fundraising dinner at Zingerman's Roadhouse in Ann Arbor on Wednesday.

The public is invited to a night of festivities, food prepared by Chef Alex Young, a strolling raffle for a chance to win prizes, a silent auction and Zingerman's homemade donut sundae bar.

For the past 25 years, people affected by HIV/

AIDS have been able to go to HARC for HIV testing, assistance with access to medical care and treatment, housing services, and support and caring.

HARC has responded to the changing epidemic by offering innovative services and programs. For instance, earlier this year, HARC launched same-day rapid HIV testing, as well as Status Sexy, a community mobilization campaign developed in collaboration with AIDS Partnership Michigan in Detroit.

The Dining for Dollars event is HARC's largest fundraiser and raises money to support local HIV/AIDS prevention and care services.

The HIV/AIDS Resource Center (HARC) is a private nonprofit organization that provides a range of HIV prevention services, as well as case management and support services for people living with HIV/

AIDS.

HARC is the only comprehensive AIDS service organization in a four-county service area that includes Washtenaw, Jackson, Lenawee and Livingston Counties.

Event tickets are $125 per person or $100 for a group of four or more.

Tickets for Dining for Dollars may be purchased through HARC by visiting www.hivaidsresource.org or calling 572-9355.

Measure for Measure to present spring concert

Measure for Measure, a Men's Choral Society, will present its annual spring concert - featuring American folksongs, spirituals and a bit of silliness - on Sunday.

The choir will be joined by a guest high school choir, the Royal Oak Shrine High School Men's Chorus.

The concert will be held in Hill Auditorium, 825 N. University in Ann Arbor, beginning at 3 p.m.

The men of Measure for Measure come from as far as Lansing, Flint and Detroit, and the group has earned praise for their performances throughout America and Europe.

The cost is $15 for adults or $12 for seniors and students.

Tickets will be available at the door or by calling 649-7664. Special group rate tickets are available by calling 649-7664.

Learn more about Measure for Measure at www.measure4measure.org.
