It Might Have Been.

It might have been! When life is young
And hopes are bright, and hearts are strong
To battle with the heartless throng,
When youth and age are far between,
Who hears the words so sadly sung?
It might have been!

It might have been! When life is fair,
Youth stands beside the boundless sea,
That ebbs and flows unceasingly,
And dreams of name and golden fame;
And who shall limit the To Be
That's dawning there?

It might have been! When life is bright,
And love is in its golden prime,
Youth recks not of the coming night,
Nor dreams that there may be a time
When love will fail, or change, or die
Eternally!

It might have been! When time grows gray,
And spring-tide's hopes have passed away,
Old age looks back on by-gone years—
Their many wants and doubts and fears;
And through the mist a way is seen,
The might-have-been!

It might have been! When age so sad,
Weary of waiting for the fame
That, after all, is but a name,
When life has lost the charm it had,
True knowledge makes regret more keen,
It might have been!

It might have been! When youth is dead,
And love that was so false is fled,
When all the mockeries of the past
Have lost their tinsel rags at last,
The one true love is clearly seen,
That might have been!

It might have been! Ah me! Ah me!
And who shall tell the misery
Of knowing all that life has lost?
By thinking of the countless cost
Poor comfort can the sad heart glean!
It might have been!

It might have been! Nay, rather rest
Believing what has been is best!
The life whose sun has not yet set
Can find no room for vain regret,
And only folly crowns as queen
Its might-have-been.

OF ALL.

All the earth is filled with blessing
Which no sorrow can destroy,
And for every day of trouble
There shall come a day of joy.
There are moments full of silver
As the showers from Heaven which fall,
And the tenderness of loving
Is the blessing of them all.

Though the clouds may hang above us
Somewhere sunlight lingers still;
And the good of every moment
Shall surpass the moment's ill.
Love and trust are yet immortal,
Loving souls immortal, too;
And the glory of a jewel
Sparkles in a drop of dew.

Take the dew-drops as God gives them,
Be they moments, be they hours,
So the stream of life which bears you
Shall flow on through banks of flowers.
There are moments full of blessing
As the showers from Heaven which fall,
But the tenderness of loving
Is the blessedness of all.

Mutual Affection.

It would be vain to attempt to deny that one of the chief desires of our sex is to be well married, and it is a desire which none can blame; for, if matrimony has its cares, it has its pleasure, also; and much, very much of its unpleasantness has its rise in the want of conduct either in the wife or in the husband. There seems to be more importance in affection, as a means to matrimonial happiness, than in anything else. So long as there is a real and great affection existing between the parties, scarcely any evil—not even that terrible one—excessive poverty—can inflict upon either of them a pang more than he or she would feel if enduring the same evil in an unmarried state. It is, therefore, most important that those who marry from affection should keep it unimpaired. As to those who marry without feeling affection, and merely for gain or convenience, it is not to be wondered at, and is not at all to be regretted, that in perpetual broils and unavailing discontents, they receive the just punishment of their dissimulation and hypocrisy.

But those who have been affectionate, sometimes cease to be so. When the novelty of ardor and youthful love has passed away, and given place to domestic and every-day realities; when the faults, to which love was blind, become apparent and disagreeable in the husband, it is but too commonly the case that we throw off that affection, both in fact and in appearance, which is at once the best safeguard of our conjugal virtue, and the surest pledge of our conjugal happiness.

It is from this that much domestic unhappiness springs, and it is from an erroneous notion of our own rights. We think the affection of our husbands an arbitrary tribute due to us, forgetting all the while that the duty of affection is reciprocal. We cannot be deceived as to the reality of our feelings, and if he finds himself despised by us, or even indifferent to us, he will speedily entertain a like feeling for us; and from the moment that he does so, our sway over his heart is lost forever, and should circumstances prevent him venting his rage in violence still we shall become sensible of our error, when it is too late to repair it.

"How LONG HAVE I TO LIVE?"
It is not every one who asks himself this question, because, strangely enough, it is the belief of most persons that their lives will be exceptionally lengthy. However, life-assurance companies are aware of the credulous weaknesses of those whose lives they assure, and have therefore compiled numerous tables of expectancy of life for their own guidance, which are carefully referred to before a policy is granted. The following is one of these well-authenticated tables in use among London assurance companies, showing the average length of life at various ages. In the first column we have the present ages of persons of average health, and in the second column we are enabled to peep, as it were, behind the scenes of an assurance office, and gather from their table the number of years they will give us to live. This table has been the result of careful calculation, and seldom proves misleading. Of course, sudden and premature deaths, as well as lives unusually extended, occasionally occur, but this is a table of the average expectancy of life of an ordinary man or woman:

AGE.	MORE YEARS TO LIVE.
1.....	30
10.....	51
20.....	41
30.....	34
40.....	28
50.....	21
60.....	14
70.....	9
80.....	4

Our readers will easily gather from the above tabulated statement the number of years to which their lives, according to the law of averages, may reasonably be expected to extend.

POWER OF THE EYE ON ANIMALS.

Cooley has got a new dog, and I am sorry to say that he is exceedingly vicious; so vicious, indeed, that very few of the neighbors have courage enough to enter Cooley's yard. Judge Pitman, however, had to go in there the other day for the purpose of collecting a bill, and he told me that he wasn't a particle afraid, because he possessed the power of holding a wild animal with his eye. When he looked straight into the eyes of a dog the brute quailed before his glance, and slunk away. He said it proved the superiority of a human being with a soul and a resolute will to the mere brute creation. So he opened the gate and went in. Cooley's dog heard him coming, and immediately flew to meet him. The judge fixed his eye on the animal for the purpose of holding it, but the dog didn't seem to notice the circumstance. But still the judge looked, and still the dog came on. Then it seemed to occur to the judge that perhaps his kind of an eye might not hold this kind of a dog, and he suddenly moved toward the apple-tree, with the dog close behind him. He became panic-stricken, and made a furious effort to clamber up the trunk. He had just reached the first limb, when the dog arrived, and made a snap at him. The dog's teeth caught in the lower part of the judge's trouser-leg, and as it is a bulldog, he held on: While the judge lay across the limb on his stomach, and out of breath, frightened and uncertain what to do, if he dropped, the dog would certainly eat him; if he climbed further up, he would have to take the dog with him. He had just made up his mind to stay where he was while his strength lasted, when he thought he heard the limb cracking, and then he yelled for help. Then Cooley came out, and after making the judge promise to take 20 per cent. discount off of the bill, he pried open the dog's jaws with the kitchen poker, and dragged him into the stable. The judge came down, hot, breathless and mad; and he has said to me since, privately, that the next time he wants to hold a dog with his eye he will impale him on a bay fork first. That is a safe way, anyhow.

AN INDEX TO CHARACTER.—A great many wisecracks laugh at what is called graphomania, or the art of judging characters by handwriting; and yet all acknowledge that handwriting does indicate something. Everyone allows a difference between a man and a woman's hand. We hear people speak of a vulgar hand, a gentlemanly hand, and so forth. "I had once," said Arch-bishop Whately, "a remarkable proof that handwriting is sometimes, at least, an index to character. I had a pupil at Oxford, whom I liked in most respects greatly; there was but one thing about him which seriously dissatisfied me, and that, as I often told him, was his handwriting; it was not bad as writing, but it had a mean, shuffling character in it, which always inspired me with a feeling of suspicion. While he remained at Oxford I saw nothing to justify this suspicion; but a transaction in which he afterwards engaged, and in which I saw more of his character than I had done before, convinced me that the writing had spoken truly." A still more remarkable case was that of Mr. Dash, a celebrated graphomancer. While visiting the house of a friend he met a lady who very much pleased him. His hostess, knowing that he was mistaken in her character, procured a slip of this lady's writing (having ascertained he had never seen it), and gave it to him one evening as the handwriting of a friend of hers whose character she wished him to decipher. The next morning at breakfast the lady whose writing he had unconsciously been examining made some observation, which particularly struck Mr. Dash as seeming to betoken a very noticeable and truthful character. He expressed his admiration of her sentiment very warmly, adding at the same time to the lady of the house, "Not so, by the way, your friend," and he put into her hand the slip of writing of her guest which she had given him the evening before, over which he had written the words, "Fascinating, false, and hollow-hearted." The lady of the house kept the secret, and Mr. Dash never knew that the writing on which he had pronounced so severe a judgment was that of the friend he so greatly admired.

SOME FISH—SOME RING.—The The Mobile (Ala.) Register sympathizingly describes at length the woes of a youthful lover, who was jilted by his chosen one but a little while after she had accepted from him a diamond engagement ring. We quote: "He at last asked her about the matter, and she told him that she loved another better than she loved him, and, 'to cap the climax,' she returned him his ring. Without saying a word, he pocketed the ring and walked to the beach, where he found three negroes in a sailboat, and gave them ten dollars to land him in Mobile. During the trip he took the ring from his pocket several times, looked at it reluctantly, and made several efforts to throw it overboard, but always changed his mind before executing his intention. The negroes watched him closely, and being under the impression that he was crazy, they were terribly frightened. As he got to the Government street wharf, he pitched the ring in the river and exclaimed: 'Thus endeth the first lesson.' One of the negroes watched the ring sink, and suddenly rising, shouted, 'I, golly, a catfish done swallowed that ring!' It soon spread among the negroes that a very valuable diamond ring had been swallowed by a catfish, and in less than an hour the wharves were crowded with negroes fishing for catfish. The moment one was caught, it was then and there dissected in the presence of the excited crowd earnestly watching the result. They fished until long after dark, and dissected some two or three hundred catfish, but still no ring was found. As early as one o'clock, the next morning, an excited crowd of negroes were clamoring at the market-gate for admission. When the gate was opened a tremendous rush was made for the fish-stalls, and some twenty or thirty of the negroes exclaimed: 'I'll take all de catfish you got.' Others cried, 'I'll take all de market, and pay double price for 'em.' Of course, everything in the fish line resembling a cat was bought, and butchered in the twinkling of an eye, but still no ring was found. Cats are still caught, bought, stolen, begged and butchered by the negroes fruitlessly."

A witness in a case at Nashville was asked whether he had much experience in and knew the cost of feeding cattle, and to give his estimate of the cost of feeding a cow, to which he replied: "My father before me kept a dairy. I have had a great deal of experience in buying, and selling, and keeping cattle, as a man and boy, in the dairy business for fifty years. I think my long experience has qualified me to know as well as any man can the cost of keeping and feeding cattle." "Well," broke in the attorney, impatiently, "tell me the cost of keeping a cow." "Well, sir, my experience, after fifty years in the business, is that it costs—well it depends entirely on how much you feed the cow."

AYER'S

CHERRY

PECTORAL.

Best possible efficacy and uniformity of results, which enables physicians as well as invalids to use it with confidence. It is the most reliable remedy for diseases of the throat and lungs that science has produced. It strikes at the foundation of all pulmonary diseases, affording prompt and certain relief, and is adapted to patients of any age or either sex. Being very palatable, the youngest children take it without difficulty. In the treatment of ordinary Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Bronchitis, Influenza, Clergymen's Sore Throat, Asthma, Croup, and Catarrh, the effects of AYER'S Cherry Pectoral are magical, and multitudes are annually preserved from serious illness by its timely and faithful use. It should be kept at hand in every household, for the protection it affords in sudden attacks. In Whooping-cough and Consumption there is no other remedy so efficacious, soothing, and helpful.

The marvellous cures which AYER'S Cherry Pectoral has effected all over the world are a sufficient guaranty that it will continue to produce the best results. An impartial trial will convince the most sceptical of its wonderful curative powers, as well as of its superiority over all other preparations for pulmonary complaints.

Eminent physicians in all parts of the country, knowing its composition, recommend AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL to invalids, and prescribe it in their practice. The test of half a century has proved its absolute certainty to cure all pulmonary complaints not already beyond the reach of human aid.

OUR TELEPHONE.

LENT begins on February 11th.

The American line of telegraphy is now open for business.

TRAMPS are getting scarce. Has Jay's boarding-house busted?

The time for paying taxes has been extended to January 31st.

The poultry, dog and pet stock exhibition held at Ann Arbor, last week, was a success.

PERSONAL.—Rev. B. I. Ives, of Auburn, N. Y., was visiting his brother Hon. S. G. Ives, of this village.

INQUIRING of persons what the news is in their localities, the answers are invariably "plenty of mud."

SOME of the farmers commenced drawing manure last week, and talked of plowing if the weather remained favorable.

TRANSFER.—John C. Winans to George W. Richards, lot 4, block 11, Elmsa Congdon's first addition to Chelsea, $1,000.

THE "Bee Hive" are receiving daily a large supply of boots and shoes. Aaron is bound to keep good goods, and sell cheap for cash.

THE other day, out West, eight masked robbers stopped a train. The train only contained an excursion of editors, so the loss was only a loss of time to the robbers.

Look out for the grand opening of Wood Brothers about the end of January, 1890. Their goods will be all fresh, and their prices low.

We are having beautiful weather overhead; but how the ladies talk when they are crossing our streets, especially when they get those dainty little boots all over mud.

H. S. HOLMES wishes to say to his customers that he has a very large amount of all domestic goods, bought before the advance; and he will divide on the advance as long as they last. See large new advertisement on third page.

REV. H. PARKER Ross, of New York, will deliver a temperance lecture at the Reform Club Rooms, of this place, on next Friday evening. He will, also, exhibit some beautiful oil paintings. An invitation is extended to all. Admission free.

MR. JOHN M. LETTS wishes to state in the local columns that it was rumored that he had got funeral cards printed, and had sent them to a few of his select friends. The above is not true; there were no cards printed.

On Tuesday, Mr. C. D. Herrick gave to Mr. F. D. Cummings, of Chelsea, to whom he is said to owe $2,000, a bill of sale of his stock of groceries, and he has placed Mr. B. J. Billings in charge of the stock, who is now running the business. The stock will probably invoice about $1,400. —Ann Arbor Courier.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—On last Thursday afternoon a Mr. Thomas Welsh, who resides a few miles north of Chelsea, went to the house of Mr. James Savage, a neighbor, to pay him a visit. After he had rested an hour or so, he got up to go home and went to open the kitchen door, as he supposed; but he made a mistake, and opened the cellar door and fell down to the bottom, injuring his spine. He lingered on until Friday, when he expired. He was 75 years of age, and leaves a large family to mourn his loss. The funeral took place on last Monday, and was largely attended.

There will be a grand theatrical entertainment given at Tuttle & Thomas' Hall, on next Saturday evening, which will be produced by the Shakespearean Club, of Grass Lake, for the benefit of their Cornet Band. The entertainment will open with George Baker's great sensational play, in three acts, entitled, "Among the Breakers," and close with a laughable farce, entitled "Betsey Baker." This great play, "Among the Breakers," had a run of over fifty nights in New York City, and is pronounced by the press and public to be the very best production of the author. We wish to say a good word for the ladies and gentlemen who are to take their parts in this beautiful drama: They produced this play to an overwhelming house at Grass Lake, on last Friday evening, and those who were there say it was done to great perfection. Now we wish to say to the inhabitants of Chelsea to give them a full house, which will show that we appreciate good talent. Let everybody turn out.

The annual meeting of the State Pioneer Society will be held at Lansing, in Representative Hall commencing on Wednesday, Feb'y 4th, at two o'clock P. M., and continuing through the evening of the 5th. The programme will consist of vocal and instrumental music; address of the President; the usual reports of officers; interesting papers from C. D. Randall, Col. Walter, on "The Pottawatamies"; Hon. Ralph Ely, of Alma, "History of Genet County," continued; Col. Freeman Norvall, of Detroit, "Life and Times of John Norvall"; Col. M. Shoemaker, Jackson, "His Experience in Libby Prison"; Hon. H. G. Wells, of Kalamazoo, "Biographical Sketches of the Bench and Bar of Kalamazoo county"; Hon. N. N. Walker, of Detroit, "Bench and Bar of Detroit"; Wm. Bronson, of St. Johns, "Pioneer History of Clinton county"; O. S. Burgess, Richmond, "Early Settlement of Macon county"; also, from Judge A. C. Baldwin, Pontiac; Mr. Stuart, Kalamazoo, and Gen. B. F. Partridge, of Bay City, titles not yet received, and others. Time will also be set apart for five minute speeches, reminiscences, etc. Reduced rates have been secured at all the leading hotels in Lansing. Arrangements have been made with the principal railroads leading to Lansing, to sell tickets to Lansing and return for two cents per mile each way.

M. SHOEMAKER, President.
Geo. H. GREENE, Corresponding Sec'y.

UNHAPPY MARRIAGES.—The truth is that these too frequent "unhappy marriages" are the offspring of ignorance quite as much as of actual sin or wrongs. Fools, and especially vicious fools, have no right to get possession of an honest woman's life and soul which they cannot comprehend, and the elevating influence of which they throw away even more by stupidity than by wilfulness. A woman, by her sex and character, has a claim to many things besides shelter, food and clothing. She is not less a woman for being wedded; and the man who is fit to be trusted with a good wife reflects all which this implies, and shows himself perpetually chivalrous, sweet-spoken, considerate and deferential. The fools and brutes who abound among us may think such demands hard, but they are not nearly as hard as live the cat-and-dog life, missing the dearest possibilities of human intercourse.

What right has a man to accept happiness in a household who brings no sunshine into it? What right has he to look for the graces and refinements of early love when he violates them by rough speech, ill-manners, and the disregard of those little things upon which the self-respect of a life is built and maintained? The cynic who rails at marriage is generally one and the same with the thoughtless egotist who flies into the presence of his wife careless, stubborn and sour-tempered, though he never went to his mistress except on his best behavior. The fate is horrible which a poor and faithful girl may endure by encountering in him whom she weds, not merely actual cruelty or injury, but stupid incompetence to understand a woman's needs, dull forgetfulness of the daily graces of life and oblivion of the fact that while the men have the world, women have only their home. These grossnesses of masculine ingratitude do not, indeed, often lead, to visible catastrophes, nor grow into absolute tyranny, but they equally tend that way. They drag down a wife's soul to a point where she must despair; they change the sublime meaning of marriage to vulgarity and weariness; they spoil the chance of that best and finest education which each man obtains who wins a reasonably good woman for his companion, and they cost more to a million households than money or repentance can ever pay back.

Show This to Your Doctor.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1st, 1878.
Ets. "Waterman Bros., Cleveland, Ohio."
GENTLEMEN:—Allow me, as an old reader of your valued journal, herewith to send you a few lines, which please insert in your next issue. I will vouch for their truth, and know that by their publication a great deal of good will be accomplished. Having been a reader of your paper for many years, I hope you will kindly grant my request.

For twelve years I had suffered, from time to time, terribly with Rheumatism, to such an extent that I was unable to move about, and lost the use of my limbs. I tried everything recommended to effect a cure, consulted some of the most prominent physicians, and expended large sums of money, hoping to find relief, but without any success. Glancing over the columns of the "Watchman," I read about the St. Jacobs Oil, and the MANY cures this remedy had effected. Having been disappointed so many times, I lost all faith in any remedy, the St. Jacobs Oil included, until I saw one day that it had cured a well-known citizen with whom I am acquainted. Other parties fully endorsed the value and wonderful power of the Oil, telling me that it had cured them of different ailments in a very short time. This brought me to a conclusion. I said to myself, "Schweizer, fifty cents won't break you," so I went to my druggist, Mr. Book, bought a bottle of the Oil, and must now confess that the result was truly wonderful. I used it every two hours, and found relief immediately upon the first application, and the pain ceased entirely after a few more applications. Fearing a new attack, I remained in bed and continued to use the remedy every three hours. All pain having left me, I arose from my bed and walked down stairs without any trouble.

Since that time I have been able to follow my occupation, and feel no pains or inconvenience, however disagreeable the changes of the weather may be. Having thoroughly tested the St. Jacobs Oil, I can conscientiously recommend it to all afflicted with Rheumatism. Fifty cents is a small expense when the services for so trifling an outlay are considered. If I was one thousand miles away from all human habitation, I should, nevertheless, procure this remedy and keep it always in my house.

A GREAT SAYING TO FARMERS.—A SELF-SUPPORTING OR PORTABLE FENCE.—The patentee says: "Two hundred rods is enough to enclose 100 acres of land, and by the use of this fence you can do more pasturing on 10 acres than you can on 20 acres, where the stationary fence is used. Last year I had 20 acres, which I expected to use for pasture. I took enough of this fence to fence off 3 acres, and when that was fed off I enclosed 3 acres more; when that was fed off I placed it around 2 acres more; when that was gone I commenced back, and had fresh pasture; and that 8 acres furnished pasture for seven horses, four hogs and nine head of cattle, and a balance of 12 acres was left to mow for hay. I thus saved enough to pay for the fence. Two men and a team can move and set up four acres in one hour.

"When I am done grazing, in the fall, I place the fence on my wheat field, on the rolling portion of it, and if we have snow, I will warrant a good crop of wheat on any hill in the country that will grow wheat. Two years ago, last winter, I placed on my wheat fields 80 rods of this fence, and I believe I saved 100 bushels of wheat."

All orders can be addressed to the owner, S. R. Beam, Battle Creek, Mich., or to this office. Those wishing to put up a cheap and substantial fence, can call at this office and get a descriptive circular and other information.

The Crops in Europe.

Mr. DANA of the New York Sun, sends from London the following result of his observations of the crops in Great Britain and the continent of Europe:

This year nature is against the British farmer. The season has been disastrous from the beginning, and there is now no hope that it will end in anything but calamity. Rains have fallen incessantly. The crops, even the best of them, have nowhere attained more than a middling growth, and now the continued floods destroy all expectation of an average produce, in any part of the British islands.

Ireland is much better off; yet even there, in many parts, the people are likely to suffer severely for want of food during the coming winter.

On the continent the situation is much less gloomy; but in France, in Western Switzerland, in Southern Germany, and in Holland, it is still a bad season. The general state of the different crops may be summarily described as follows:

Hay—Inferior in Ireland, very bad indeed in England, poor in France, better in Switzerland, and in Southern Germany and Holland about the same as in France.

Oats—A wretched crop in every country where I have been. In Ireland and in England they are hardly worth harvesting; and in France and the other parts of the continent to which I have referred, perhaps good enough to pay the expenses of harvesting.

Lucerne and millet—Poor everywhere. Potatoes—Quite as poor as the oats; everywhere a bad crop. In Ireland especially, and in France, poorer than any other crop. A good potato will be a rarity in all these portions of Europe, for a year to come. The failure of the potato is, in fact, as nearly complete, as possible and leave any potatoes at all; and this is the case wherever my observations have extended.

Wheat—Poorest of all in England and Ireland, where I should say the yield cannot pay more than half its cost. In France there will be perhaps three-quarters of a good average, and that country will be able to furnish its own bread for the coming year. The same is true of Western Switzerland, Southern Germany and Holland. But the United Kingdom will have to seek for its supplies elsewhere.

The only crop that seems to me at all satisfactory is that of vetches, of which, so far as I can judge, the yield is likely to be tolerable.

In Russia, on the other hand, an immense wheat crop is reported, and heavy purchases have been made there on Western account.

Yet one wheat harvest, or a dozen of them, will not ruin England.

THE MARK LANE EXPRESS' REVIEW.

The Mark Lane Express, of London, in its last review of the British grain trade, says:

The few samples of new wheat exhibited in Mark Lane have been wretchedly poor, both in quality and condition. A great deal of barley is also so again as to be unavailable for malting. From two and one-half to three-quarters per acre seems to be the average yield of wheat, with, perhaps, some reservation in favor of oats. All spring crops are, to a great extent, failures, and peas most especially, while the root-crops are but little better.

Trade has been quiet. Sellers have shown little desire to press sales, being encouraged by the certainty that the home crop is lamentably deficient, while the visible supply in America is diminished. Though a rise is hoped for by sellers before long, it is impossible to ignore the fact that America must control the prices for the present cereal year, although it is more than probable that the continental requirements will absorb a large proportion of the available surplus which at present threatens to glut the United Kingdom markets.

There are now fourteen hundred and ten students enrolled at the University, in Ann Arbor; of these 490 are in the Library, 995 in the Law, 344 in the Medical, 80 in the Pharmacy, 80 in the Dental, and 69 in the Homoeopathy department.

THE FARM.

More Sheep Wanted.

Sheep were introduced into this country almost immediately after the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers on Plymouth Rock, and as a historical fact it is recorded that in 1640 there were 3,000 sheep in Massachusetts, and New York and Virginia each had about the same number. In 1708 broadcloths were manufactured on Long Island, but at this period, and for a long time afterwards, all the spinning and weaving of woolen fabrics was done by hand; no power looms in those days. Washington wore a suit of clothes made out of cloth made in this way in 1789 when he was inaugurated President. In 1810 there were twenty-four woolen factories in this country that produced nearly 10,000,000 yards of woolen cloth, all made by hand at that time, or rather the weaving was done by hand.

The Arkwright spinners having come into pretty general use, the production of woolen goods continued to increase rapidly from this time forward. In 1859 we had 1,820 woolen manufacturers, employing 45,000 operatives, and in 1890 the number of woolen establishments in the country was 2,020, employing 46,000 persons, male and female, and goods to the value of $67,300,000 were annually produced. This was about the beginning of the war of the rebellion; the war caused an enormous demand for woolen goods, and in 1870, 97,000 persons were employed in woolen factories, and the goods produced annually were valued at $177,000,000.

But the following statement by the Troy (N. Y.) Times certainly ought to arrest the attention of our whole country: "But what all the natural facilities for the raising of sheep and the manufacture of woolen goods, the demand for wool and woolen goods in this country is far ahead of the supply. In the past forty-six years, or since 1833, the United States have imported wool, either manufactured or unmanufactured to the value of $1,210,000,000. For the past four years this country has imported wool and woolen goods to the value (in the aggregate) of $170,000,000, while the export is but a trifle. In 1875 the total duties paid on wool and woolen textures amounted to $3,091,493."

Certainly, under such a showing as these statements make, it is easy to determine that there is no more inviting field in our country within which to enlarge and expand business operations than is now to be found in the business of sheep husbandry. No matter how the wool and woolen goods of the United States need and territories for other humane and commercial purposes.

Very Foster of Belfast has addressed a letter to Parnell, which is published in the Northern Whig. Foster offers to donate $15,000 to emigrate from Donegal, Clare, Kerry, Cork and Tipperary to Canada and the western States of America. He feels sure that the Americans will heartily co-operate in the plan he proposes for relieving distress.

An explosion occurred in the Lyceum colliery, Newcastle-under-Lyme, at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. There was little hope that any persons in the mine at the time of the calamity would be saved, and the explosion was estimated at seventy persons were killed. The explosion is attributed to the gaseous gas bodies were exploded. During the day thirty in the pit. Most of the corpses were found beyond recognition. One of the corpses was found in the head. Others were burned to cinders, while some appear to have been killed by concussion.

Up to Thursday evening over 50 bodies had been taken from Lyceum colliery at Newcastle-under-Lyme, where the explosion occurred. Of 12 persons got out alive 5 had died. Others were dying.

The intelligence is published at Lisbon that the exploring expedition under the lead of Henry Stanley has established a trading station at Congo, where the place is claimed by both England and Portugal.

The following official rulings and decisions have been made by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction:

1. A township superintendent is considered "qualified" for the meaning of the law, by virtue of his office, to teach only in the township which he holds office. If he engages in teaching in any other township, he must be examined and obtain a certificate from the superintendent of such other township before he can be considered a duly qualified teacher.

2. A township superintendent, while acting in such capacity, is entitled to $2 per day for his services; but when acting as a member of the board of school inspectors, he is entitled only to the pay of an inspector, which is $1.50 per day.

3. A township superintendent has no authority to issue to himself, just before passing out of office, or at any other time, a teacher's certificate, and such paper must be considered void.

4. Any woman of or above the age of 21 years, who has resided in this State three months, or in the township ten days next preceding any election, is eligible to the office of school inspector, or township superintendent of schools.

5. In primary school districts any district officer entitled to such pay for his services as the qualified voters at a district meeting agree to raise by taxation for such purpose (see 31, Gen. Sch. Laws of 1879) in graded school districts district officers may be paid such compensation as the board may decide upon, provided the district votes a tax for such purpose. A district board has no authority to pay officers for services in case the district has refused to raise money for such purpose.

6. When a district at its annual meeting decides that school shall be maintained a certain number of months (not less than the minimum required by sec. 36, Gen. Sch. Laws of 1879) it becomes obligatory upon the district board to provide for that number of months' school. Should the board fail to do so, its members are liable to the penalties prescribed for neglect of duty.

7. Whenever a board of school inspectors alter the boundaries or change the number of any school districts, it is the duty of the township clerk to deliver to the director of every district affected a notice in writing stating the alterations made and a diagram showing the boundary lines.

Very Hot Weather.—A Long Island Dutchman, in reading an account of a meeting in New York city, came to the words, "The meeting then dissolved." He could not define the meaning of the word, and he referred to his dictionary, and he was satisfied. In a few minutes a friend came in, when the Dutchman said, "I must have very hot weather in New York. I ret an aid melted away."

Fruit Drying.
At the recent meeting of the Ohio State Horticultural Society, at Canton, Mr. James Edgerton read a paper upon the modern methods of drying or evaporating fruits. Mr. S. B. Mann, of Adrian, Mich., responded to requests from the members, gave an account of a fruit-drying establishment in his town, in which five Alden machines were used. It had cost $10,000, and had paid for itself in five years. Its capacity was 400 bushels every twenty-four hours. It gave employment to fifty or sixty hands, chiefly girls, working in two sets, day and night, paring and cutting the fruit. The benefit to the community from the establishment was great, and the neighboring farmers would be sorry to lose it from among them. Mr. Mann said, for the benefit of the ladies, that if they would slice fruit across the ends, covered with a thin muslin cloth, they could dry fruit which would closely resemble that prepared by the Alden process. Mosquito netting was not so good for covering as this cloth. In the Alden process, the white color was obtained by driving the fumes of sulphur through the dryer.

Agricultural Inventions.
Mr. Herman E. Wisner, of Howell, Mich., has invented a combined joint and colter, constructed so that it may be attached to the plow beam with as much facility as an ordinary cutter, so that the edge of the furrow slice may be turned over and the roots, vines, etc., cut off in front of the plow at the same time.

An improvement in grain-drills has been patented by Mr. Mads G. Madison, of Oslo, Wisconsin. The invention consists in combining with the wheel a seed cup having a hinged part, and in combining with a chain beam and pinion on the shaft beam, a segmental ratchet lever fulcrumed on the side plate.

An improvement in sulky plows has been patented by Mr. William J. McHenry, of State Line, Indiana (Sheldon, Illinois, P. O.). The object of this invention is to furnish an improved sulky attachment for plows which shall be simple in construction, may be readily attached to any ordinary plow, will materially lighten the draught, and will allow the plow to be readily
