

Valuable Time
lost by farmers on account of their horses having sore necks and shoulders. This can easily be avoided by using Cole's Veterinary Carbolisalve. It prevents inflammation, cures collar and saddle galls quickly, while the horse is being used, and invariably brings the hair in its original color. W. W. Preston, St. Orloff, Minn., says "For bad collar galls, fresh cuts or old sores, there is nothing equal to Cole's Veterinary Carbolisalve. It is a big thing for horses and can not be too highly recommended. I would not be without it for many times its cost." Pound cans, $1; small cans, 50 cents. 51

Handy Slate Cleaner!

The time has past when can be seen in the public schools, generally, dirty and ragged children. On the contrary, when one enters a school, it is to see bright eyes, clean face, hair combed, and clothes neat and tidy.

But there is one filthy habit left, in fact, is the most disgusting of any ever acquired by children; and, though sanctioned by long usage, if possible it should be eradicated. It is that of spitting on their slates, spreading it around with their hands and drying it with their sleeves, handkerchief or apron, the slate becoming in a short time so greasy that a pencil mark can hardly be seen. What should we think if we were to see a child spit on a board and play in it with its fingers? Ugh!

The Cleaner is neat, and can be used a day or more by filling it once.

If it falls on the floor it makes little or no noise.

If the drying pad wears through, any mother can replace it.

If the sponge wears out, another can be put into it.

It will do away with a filthy practice, and teach habits of cleanliness.

HOW WATCHES ARE MADE

In a SOLID GOLD WATCH, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus gold is actually needless. In James Bos' Patent Gold Watch Cases this WASTE is saved, and SOLIDITY and STRENGTH increased by a simple process, at one-half the cost. A plate of SOLID GOLD is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this the cases, backs, centers, bezels, etc., are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving and engine turning. These cases have been worn perfectly smooth by use without removing the gold. This is the only case made under this process. Each case is accompanied with a valid guarantee signed by the manufacturers warranting it to wear 20 years. 150,000 of these Cases now carried in the United States and Canada. Largest and Oldest Factory. Established 1854. Ask your Jeweler.

GATHERINGS.

Manchesterites have been talking "excursion" all summer, but as yet have had none.

Our colored population don't fall much short of 500. In 1880 it was 446 to Arbor 300.—Commercial.

On going to his pasture one morning last week, L. Lamborn found his horse with a broken back and dead.—Democrat.

On certificates of Drs. Breakey and Kapp, Judge Harriman on Monday committed Barbary Neithammer aged 18 of lower town, to Pontiac asylum.—Argus.

The Ypsilanti Paper Co. have contracted for an Edison electric light plant for their Superior mill. It will take a 60-light machine, costing $2,000.—Ypsilantian.

Geo. Hudson, a brakeman on the Toledo road fell from the cars at Ann Arbor last Saturday morning. He was run over and his right leg was badly crushed but may be saved.

It was fifty years ago last Sunday that Rev. F. Schmid preached the first sermon at Ann Arbor, having been sent out as a missionary. The day was appropriately observed by a number of clergymen.

The barns of W. H. Willings, on section 35 of Ypsi. township, were destroyed by fire Wednesday evening. The loss is thought to be about $2,500 with an insurance in the Wash-tenaw Mutual for $1,500.—Ypsilantian.

A little 5-year-old son of Perrin, of Sharon, and a 3-year-old daughter of Mrs. Armstrong, of Detroit, were playing with an axe this afternoon, when the little fellow cut off three fingers for the little girl.—Enterprise.

Sheldon, the dentist, received 100 set of teeth from the manufactory a few days ago. That makes a pretty good assortment for a small town, but he is doing a good business and is bound to keep up with the times.—Manchester Enterprise.

Suit has been commenced against A. M. Bodwell by Hiram Willis, who wants $10,000 to pay him for the alienation of his wife's affections. By the way it may incidentally be mentioned that Hiram and his wife are not so badly alienated but that they were around together getting out the papers.—Courier.

During the heavy storm Wednesday afternoon, Peter and John Connell had as narrow an escape as they cared for. They were in a wagon driving up from Ypsilanti when the lightning struck a tree by the side of the road and threw it down so that it lodged between the wagon box and the axle. It was a large one and came with such force as to wedge it in so tightly that they could scarcely remove it.—Courier.

Another example of the utility of the telephone. Last Saturday, Oliver Bostwick, telegraph operator at the depot, was suddenly taken with a severe chill and fever, and not feeling able to walk up town, and there being no one around the depot just then within calling distance, he telegraphed to Ann Arbor, they telephoned to the central office, and they telephoned to the office here, and in less time than it has taken us to write this, a doctor was on his way to the depot. The message went eighteen miles to reach a doctor eighty rods away, but the result was reached in about the same time.—Dexter Leader.

FARM AND HOUSEHOLD.

Facts for Farmers

Every day an animal is kept after being prime, there is loss, exclusive of manure.

Young chicks should be fed as often as four times a day until they are about three weeks old.

One of the most encouraging hopes for our country is the prospective improvement of its live stock.

A dying Scotch squire said to his son: "Be a stickler in a tree, Jock—they'll be growin' while you're sleepin'."

A writer in the New York Tribune gives this good advice in two words, how to cure an egg eating hen—"eat her."

At a sale of Jersey cattle in New York, recently, "King of Ashantee" was sold to C. Easthope, of Niles, O., for $5,600.

Corn alone is not a sufficient food for fowls, wheat, bran in the form of a thick mush and some vegetables should be given.

Prof. Cook says: "I've experimented with salt upon the cut worm, to know that you can kill your plants before you can kill the worms."

Intelligent breeders contend that cross bred animals, whether cattle, horses or sheep, mature earlier and are better feeders than any common stock.

The sick animal is usually dainty about his feed, and should be allowed only light, easily digested food, trying various kinds and allowing as a rule what he likes best.

Galls and bruises are more readily prevented by properly adjusting the harness, than they are cured by the best remedies, besides the loss of the animal's work at a busy season.

An Indiana farmer rids his sheep of ticks by feeding a half pound of sulphur to every fifty sheep, mixing it with the salt which is fed. Two or three doses, a week apart, are enough.

California wheat is so dry when harvested that when taken to the damper air of the sea coast it gains seven per cent or more in weight. The gain is sufficient to pay for transportation.

Potatoes are made scabby by wire worms. The best preventive is to grow the crop on fallow ground without manures or with fertilizers. The worms are encouraged or brought in by the manure.

Plums, pigs and poultry seem a trio which thrive in company. Plum trees in a poultry or pig yard thrive and bear abundantly when trees in other locations shed their fruit, which bears the "trade mark" of the "little Turk."

Cleanliness and careful bedding of animals, so as to keep the stalls dry and fresh, often prevents grave disorders of the general system, and also the irritating effects of the ammonia on the eyes causing inflammation of them and blindness.

N. Ritter, a successful strawberry culturist of Syracuse, says in the New York Tribune, that he considers straw worth $8 per ton for use on his strawberry patch. He uses it as a protection to the beds in winter, as a mulch, and says it keeps the fruit clean. He uses about one ton to the acre.

Put a teaspoonful of sulphur in the nest as soon as hens or turkeys are set. The heat of the fowls causes the fumes of the sulphur to penetrate every part of their bodies; every louse is killed, and as nits are hatched within ten days, when the mother leaves the nest with her brood she is perfectly free from nits or lice.

Reports from California state that a severe distemper has been prevailing among the horse stock of that section during the past winter, which has proved fatal in many cases, and left many of those which survive in very bad condition. The noted filly Wildflower was among the sufferers and is now covered with scars resulting from ugly sores with which she has been afflicted.

The old fashioned pear trees, that grew to the size of oaks and bore fruit only fit for preserving, have been superseded by a greatly improved fruit, but the trees do not possess the hardiness of the old sort. The forcing of trees to rapid growth is probably the cause, more than anything else, of pear blight, as the disease was quite unknown to the old, slow growing trees.

The Massachusetts Agricultural Society concludes that salt as a manure for the property of hastening the maturing of all grain crops; that wheat on salted land will ripen six to ten days earlier than on unsalted land, all other crops being equal; that it increases yield from 25 to 50 per cent; that it keeps the straw and prevents rust and that it checks, if it does not entirely prevent, the ravages of the chinch bug.

It is highly hygroscopic material; it has the power of absorbing moisture from the air. When in piles it absorbs much water and becomes heavier. When taken to market a wagon, however, thus being freed from drying currents of air, it readily loses weight, and the man who hatters about all day for the increase of a cent or two a pound will really lose more than that amount in weight.

The Cook Book.

Good Apples.—Pare and core one dozen apples; fill with sugar mixed with a little butter and cinnamon; bake in a pan. Cool, and, if possible, break up the apples on a plate; if not possible, pour off the juice, and have some thing prepared of white of egg and sugar, lay it on the top and sides, and set into the oven a few minutes to brown slightly. Serve with cream.

Peach Cake.—Line a deep dish with pastry, place upon this halves of peaches close together; sprinkle plentifully with sugar and a little cinnamon; put in the oven and bake until cooked; eat with cream.

Delicious Layer Cake.—Make white cake, as for strawberry cake, but omit the red sugar and add one cup of desiccated coconut, and use no flavoring. Make icing, and into one-half put blanched and shopped sweet almonds. Put the first and second layers together with the almond icing; on the next spread plain icing, and lay on that a layer of halved figs, then another coat of icing; for the next use almonds, and so on. Frost the top of the cake and stick almonds over it.

Raisin Cake.—Three-quarters of a cup of butter, one-half cup of sweet milk, one and three-quarter cups of flour, yolks of eight eggs, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in jelly tins. To put together, spread a thin coat of frosting on each layer, then one of chopped raisins, seeded, and another of frosting.

Hickory or Walnut-layer Cake.—One cup of butter, two cups of sugar, five eggs, one cup of milk, four cups of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Put layers together with icing mixed with finely chopped hickory or walnut meats. Use plain icing for top and lay on it unbroken meats.

Artificial Oysters.—Take young green corn, grate it in a dish; to one pint of this add one egg well beaten; a small teaspoon of flour, half cup of butter, some salt and pepper and mix all well together. A tablespoonful of the batter will make the size of an oyster. Fry them a light brown and when done butter them; cream if it can be procured is better than butter.

To Bottle Fruits.—Burn a match in a bottle to exhaust all air, then place in the fruit to be preserved quite dry and without blemish, sprinkle sugar between each layer, cork and tie a bladder over, setting bottles, cork downwards, in a large vessel of cold water with hay between to prevent breaking. When the skin is just cracking take them out, immerse thin paper in gum water and while wet press it over and around the top of the bottle; as it dries it will become quite firm and tight.

Sweet Pear Pickles.—To two quarts of good vinegar take four pounds of brown sugar, a quarter of a pound of cinnamon stick, and a quarter pound of cloves. Tie the spices up in small bags, and boil with the sugar and vinegar until a good syrup is formed. Put in the Bartlett or Sickle pears, place on the back of the stove, cover closely, and cook very slowly until they can be pierced with a straw.

Grape Catsup.—Five cupfuls of pulp or juice, one cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of vinegar, one teaspoonful each of black pepper, cloves, cinnamon and salt. Boil half away.

Prince Bismark has become suspicious and jaded in his disposition to a degree that makes it impossible for any public official but the most obsequious to serve under him. It is said that the Crown Prince of Germany, while appreciating fully the great work which Bismark has done for his country, has very little sympathy for his domestic policy, and hence, upon his accession to the throne, will have no scruples in disavowing them.

In Mexico nearly every one is a smoker. The school children who have done well in their studies are rewarded by being allowed to smoke a cigar as they stand or sit at their lessons. The schoolmaster is seldom without a cigar in his mouth. In the law courts all persons commonly enjoy their tobacco freely, and even the accused in a criminal trial is not denied his indulgence, but is allowed, if his cigarette goes out in the heat of an argument, to light it again by borrowing that of the officer who stands at his side to guard him.

Sir Henry Thompson, the London surgeon, recognizes in fish a combination of all the elements of food that the human body requires in almost every phase of life, more especially by those who follow sedentary employment. To women he considers fish to be an invaluable article of diet, but he scolds as a complete fallacy the notion that fish eating increases the brain power. "The only action fish had on the brain was to put a man's body into proper relations with the work he had to do."

The Meadows of Maryland. SPRINGFIELD, PRINCE GEORGE'S CO., Md. Mr. Chas. G. Addison, of the above place states: "I sprained my right knee causing intense suffering, and the use of crutches for several weeks. I found no relief in other remedies and finally tried the miracle of cure, St. Jacobs Oil. In a short time I could bend my knee—which had been stiff as an iron rod,—laying aside my crutches and was able to walk as well as ever."

DR. FENGELL: Dear Sir—Overwork has done for me what it does for many. Desiring to benefit suffering women, I add my testimony to the value of Zoa-Phora. For five years I suffered greatly with Prolapsus, being obliged to use a supporter during all these painful, weary years; but thanks to your medicine, I wear it no more. I laid it off after using one and a half bottles. I am not well, but I work all the time and am better than I ever expected to be. You may use my letter, and if any one wished to write me for more information, give them my full address. Miss C. G.

Since the introduction of spelling match es, many words have come prominently in to notice—words that were previously comparatively unknown. For instance we find Antiseptic, meaning: preventing and stopping all fermentation and decomposition, and Analgesic: Painkiller. Then there is Antipyretic: cooling down inflammation and fever heat. These three words so often mis-spelled, are three of the cardinal virtues of something that will cure many a bad spell, and that is Salicylic acid, pronounced sal-i-syl-i-ca. Warranted to afford immediate relief, and guaranteed to cure Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia.

Waterloo Gleanings.

Miss Minnie Beeman is visiting her brother and sister in Dansville.

West Bros. threshed 3165 bushels of grain in five days last week and quit early each night.

Mr. Clement Barber is having all the threshing he can do with his horse power machine.

Thomas Standfield threshed for O. Gorton in one-half day, 326 bushels of oats, and 286 bushels of wheat cleaned ready for the market.

Corn is promising a better yield than was expected a few weeks ago, and will probably be two-thirds of an average crop. Oats are averaging from 35 to 50 bushels per acre.

The roof of the M. E. church has been repaired, and an effort should be made to repair the towers and spire before cold weather comes, as they are in bad shape for storms.

Mr. & Mrs. A. Keltz lost their only child last Friday morning, a boy aged two years and one month, of membranous croup. The parents have the sympathy of many friends. It is the third child they have buried.

Now it did come to pass that on the seventh day of the past week, Henry came down from the land of his master, to the barn of his master's neighbor to do threshing, and behold the correspondent was there also. And when Henry saw him he was wroth, and used words of abuse, and presented himself before the correspondent and did commit battery, whereupon the correspondent stretched forth his arm and Henry reclined toward the floor.

An Extraordinary Case.

Austin, Texas, Feb'y 20, 1880.
To Mr J. W. Graham, Druggist:
Dear Sir:—My case was an acute form of bronchitis, and was of one and one-half years duration. I employed the best medical aid possible, but failed rapidly, until the doctor said I would die—that my case was incurable. Thrown upon upon my own resources, I got a bottle of Dr. Wm. HALL'S BALSAM for the Lungs and in six hours felt a decided relief. In three days the cough almost disappeared. Now that my chances of life are good for many years I earnestly recommend the above to every sufferer of lung or throat disease.

The wind storm of last week caus-much damage by blowing down ces trees, etc. It badly wrenched for S. J. Siegfried. Geo. had run his top buggy out to barn to put in a loaded wagon
a tree was blown on it making wreck. The spire and brick tow-was blown off the M. E. church, ch, striking on the roof, broke a hole through it and the ceiling aging the church about $400.

T. Standfield is doing his "level best" to thresh out grain and do good work. The West Bros. are hard after him doing equally good work, cleaning the wheat ready for market.
Up to Saturday night the two machines had threshed nearly 10,800 bushels of grain, and one machine only about 156 bushels ahead of the other.
French Judges.
To begin with the lowest rung of the ladder: It is pretty generally known that the departments of France are divided into arrondissements, which again are subdivided into cantons, each consisting of a certain number of communes.
At the chief town of each canton is stationed a juge de paix, whose duties are judicial, extra-judicial, and administrative. He corresponds only in name to our justice of the peace; and his first duty, which is known as "conciliation," is to try and put a stop to litigation at its origin by making "peace" between disputants. He also adjudicates in civil causes up to £4, or, subject to appeal, up to £60. No costs are incurred in his court. He is ex-officio president of all councils which deal with the affairs of minors, affixes and removes the seals upon property in case of death or bankruptcy, and from time to time conducts local administrative inquiries arising out of proposed legislative measures.
He is assisted by a registrar.
The courts next above the juges de paix are the tribunals of the arrondissements or of first instance, of which there are 369. The strength of these tribunals varies according to the importance of the locality—from one court in 203 places to four in Lyons, Marseilles, and Bordeaux, and eleven in Paris. The smallest tribunals have a president and two judges; the number of judges gradually increasing until in the tribunal of the Seine, with its eleven courts, there are a president, eleven vice-presidents, seventy-two judges, and fifteen deputies (suppléants) ready to take their places.
Elsewhere each tribunal has three sup-pléants. There are besides a number of registrars and clerks. One or more of the judges of each tribunal are charged with the duties of juge d'in-struction in criminal cases—that is to say, with the preliminary investigation which takes place in England before a magistrate. There are twenty of these judges in Paris. The State is represented at each tribunal by a procureur (now called "de la République") who has one or several deputies (substitués). There are as many as twenty-six of these deputies in Paris. The procureurs discharge the duties of our Public Prosecutor and Counsel for the Crown, and the word answers to "attorney" in our title of Attorney-General. Indeed the French avoués or attorneys were formerly called procureurs. These representatives of the State are technically called the "parquet"—a term which is a diminutive of the word parc, and was at first applied to the place where they sit—the little park, enclosure, or reserve.
Higher up in the organization are the courts of appeal, of which there are twenty-six. Each court has a first president and at least twenty councillors, and the judges of appeal are called; and is divided into three separate chambers—the civil court, the court of criminal appeal, and a third which deals with cases raised by the Procureur-General as public prosecutor. The latter is assisted in his functions by several advocate-generals and substitutes.
At the apex of the French judicial system is the Cour de Cassation—which we might, perhaps, call the Court of Reversal—sitting in Paris at the Palais de Justice. Its first duty is to deal with the vices of procedure in lower courts, and to remedy errors by remitting cases for trial to the same court that first tried them or to another, as it sees fit.
It never goes into the merits of a case or tries one itself. It is divided into three separate courts—that of requests,
a civil and a criminal court—and consists of a first president, three presidents and forty-five councillors appointed by the Minister of Justice.
Eleven is the quorum. The Cour de Cas-sation has also hitherto had disciplinary power over the judges of all other courts, even to suspension or dismissal; but the measure now before the Chambers, and which is certain to be carried, creates a "Superior Council," which will take over all such powers, and will also deal with the removal of judges. This change has been rendered necessary by the law last year. Previously first presidents, presidents, councillors, and even judges of first instance, when once appointed were irremovable; but the Republican Government found the old traditions of the noblesse de robe too independent for them. The judges were not compliant enough; and they will now, without exception, be removable by the Superior Council on the application of the Minister of Justice. This council will be formed of the first president of the Cour de Cassation, four of its councillors elected among themselves, and ten more of that body chosen half by the Senate and half by the Chamber of Deputies.
The salaries of the judges are also revised, and they are divided into three classes. Presidents and procureurs will will receive from £220 to £400 a year;
vice-presidents, £180 to £280; judges d'instruction, £160 to £260; judges £144
to £240; the procureur's substitutes, £120 to £200; and registrars and their clerks, £80 to £120. These amounts are an increase upon the present scale;
and perhaps the peculiarities in this system which most strike an English observer are the extraordinary number of judges and the extreme smallness of their salaries.—St. James' Gazette.

SECRET.
THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE
POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EX-ISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMAT-IC AND GOUTY PATIENTS.
SALICYLICA is known as a common-
sense remedy because it strikes directly at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects.
It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as
rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments, and
soothing lotions will not eradicate these diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.
SALICYLICA works with marvelous
effect on this acid, and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all the celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy reports 95 per cent. cures in three days.

ONLY A WORD.

Word, do you tell me? Yes; believe it or not, a word is a word. Yet you cannot guess what a word is, or how deep a word may reach. "Oh! I know it well—excuse for a thoughtless speech! You remember you cannot tell how deep a word may reach. "Only a word," for all we know, is a word; but a word may harm as much as a sin, or may save a soul, as the words we utter, they live and grow, though they pass in a breath beyond control. "Only a word," for all we know, is a word; but a word may harm as much as a sin, or may save a soul, as the words we utter, they live and grow, though they pass in a breath beyond control.

RIPE GRAIN.

White face of perfect peace! touched by passion, freed from pain—who ordered that work should cease? Look to himself the ripened grain. "Ripe face! your beauty bears the story that is wrung from pain; the celestial beauty wears the finished work of ripened grain. "Human care you left no trace, the lightest trace of grief or pain—earth, an empty form and face! In Heaven stands the ripened grain. —Dora Read Goodale.

AN AMUSING CHARACTER.

There is a charming old-time flavor about the following Tennessee character described in the Editor's Drawer of Harper's Magazine for September: Colonel W— was one of those old characters who become conspicuous for humor and eccentricity, and who kept in remembrance long after they are dead by the many anecdotes and concerning them. He lived in one of the counties in Middle Tennessee, where for many years he traded in horses, a vocation which was not regarded as a shrewd trader, but as a droll and fun-loving, though rather important man, who was always ready to turn an easy penny, and who told a capital story. On one occasion he was approached by Major H— one of the most prominent citizens of M—, who wished to have a smart, good-looking young negro to service about his stables and kitchen. (It may be well to remark here that these ante-bellum days of militia men's military titles were nearly as common as they are at the present time.) Major H— was one of the "first families," prided himself upon his high position in society, and was very dainty and delicate in his tastes, and was popular in drawing nice social distinctions. Colonel W— at an appointment brought up for inspection a very mulatto boy, who was tactically physically sound, but who stammered distressingly. As the boy was not suited in the matter, he had only to submit to an examination very much to which a horse is subjected when offered on the market. After haggling upon the part of the two Major H— paid a good round sum for the boy, and took his newly acquired property home. The next morning, as the Colonel was in front of the town tavern, with his heels elevated against the balusters, Major H— advanced toward him in pleasant frame of mind, and without salutation, exclaimed, "Colonel W—, you have cheated me, sir!" Without altering his position, the Colonel looked up calmly, and said in bland tones, made more provocative by his tantalizing lisp: "Good-morning, Major. You seem to be somewhat perturbed. If your remark addressed to me, I hope you will excuse me if I inquire to what you are referring."

"You know very well, sir," replied Major, with growing indignation. "I deceived me about that negro I bought yesterday. Why, confound it! stutters so badly he can hardly make himself understood. It is absolutely impossible to try to talk with him."

"My dear sir," responded the Colonel, with an air of injured innocence, "with a sly glance at the by-standers who were enjoying the scene, 'you do not blame me in the matter. I thought you wanted a servant to wait for you. If you had told me you wanted a nigger to convert with, I could have taken pains to select you a more conversationalist."

This reply raised a laugh at the Major's expense, and so exasperated him that he turned abruptly on his heel and left Colonel master of the situation.

Colonel W— was not much of a preacher, but he occasionally dropped into one of the churches, and took a back seat, paid marked attention to the services. One Sunday morning he took his seat in a church just as the worshippers were taking up a collection. From his purse a half-dollar to contribute, but his good intention was frustrated when he saw approaching him a man who had gotten the better of some sharp trading, and of the pious he had no very exalted opinion. To make matters worse, the deacon, knowing that the Colonel was of this world's goods, endeavored to stimulate him to liberality by saying, "You can give several dollars out of your abundance, Colonel. It will never miss it."

"What do you propose to do with the money?" inquired the Colonel.

"Give it to the Lord," unctuously responded the deacon.

"Well, sir," said the Colonel, "ath-

I think my chantheth of theseing the Lord are about ath good ath youth, I prefer to wait and hand it to him in perthion, and he put his half dollar back in his pocket.

Before the Colonel became comfortably settled in life he had many ups and downs of fortune. Once he carried a number of slaves to New Orleans, and made a very successful sale. He undertook, however, to increase his supply of money by methods that involved more elements of chance than were connected with his regular business. It was an unlucky venture, and in a very short time he found himself with only money enough to pay his passage on a boat as far up the river as Natchez. Although he had not a dollar in his pocket, when he reached Natchez he put up at the best public house. He wore a broadcloth suit and a silk hat, and sported a gold-headed cane with which he would not have parted for many times its value. He bore himself with an easy dignity, calculated to impress all who saw him with the belief that he was a capitalist with abundant resources, who might be induced to invest some thousands in the property of the town. A week had nearly passed, and he had not succeeded in putting enough money in his purse to pay his landlord. One Sunday afternoon, when he was seriously thinking of making a stealthy exit at night, he learned that the roughs and gamblers, who at that time formed a considerable part of the population of Natchez, had assembled on a public road not far from the town to witness some foot-races. He at once started hitherward, and reached the place just as an athletic and fierce-looking fellow, who was exulting over his victories, offered in a loud voice to bet fifty dollars that he could beat anybody on the ground in a race of one hundred yards. The Colonel remembered that he had himself been fleet of foot in his younger days, and, pressed by dire necessity, he resolved to try his luck on this occasion. So in the pause which followed the champion's challenge he stepped forward, and making a stately bow, said, quietly, "I will take your bet, sir."

The bully looked at him a few moments in contemptuous surprise, and said, "Well, put up your money."

With a courtly wave of the hand the Colonel replied, deprecatingly, "There is no need, sir, of that formality between gentlemen. I am a gentleman and I take you to be one. If I loathe the rathe I will pay you the fifty dollar; if you loathe it, I do not doubt that you will act with equal honor. The word of a gentleman is his bond."

The rough and desperate men present seemed to regard this as a very remarkable proposition, and for a time the challenger was nonplussed. He steadily and suspiciously eyed the polite and well-dressed stranger, and finally said, with significant emphasis, "All right, old boy; but if there's any flikerin' in this thing, you may know what to expect."

Without further parley the Colonel divested himself of coat, vest and hat, and placing them with his cane upon the grass, stepped out upon the road, and put himself in position by the side of the champion. The spectators evinced the liveliest interest in the race, and ranged themselves along each side of the road. Bets were freely offered at enormous odds against the rash stranger, who certainly did not look a match for his stalwart competitor. But there were few of these bets taken. At a given signal the men darted off amid the yells of the delighted crowd. For nearly the whole distance the two contestants, who seemed to be straining every nerve, kept side by side, but when within about twenty yards of the goal the Colonel, by dint of extraordinary effort, shot ahead and won the race. He was now the hero of the hour, and as he walked back to the starting point, exhausted and almost breathless, he was heartily cheered by the excited spectators. His opponent came up promptly and paid him the fifty dollars, and at the same time challenged him for another trial.

"No, thank you, sir," said the Colonel, as he pocketed the money. "I make it a rule never to run more than one rathe in a day."

He then carefully put on his vest, coat and hat, placed his cane under his arm, made one of his profoundest bows, and with a pleasant "Good afternoon, gentlemen," strutted complacently away. That evening he paid his bill at the hotel and took a boat for Nashville.

Colonel W— used to relate this incident with a relish, and when asked what he intended to do in case he lost the race, he would say, "Well, to tell you the truth, it wath a dethperate cathe; but I had made up my mind that if I didn't win, I would keep on running, and never look behind until I reached Tenneththee."

PROVERBS TO SUIT THE TIMES.—"If you want a thing done, do it yourself." Musty and stale seems that ancient philosophy. The corner-stone of modern civilization is a maxim that exactly reverses the ancient apothegm. "If you want a thing done, get somebody else to do it." This is the law of the large system of industry, the foundation of all the great fortunes. The power of commanding the services of others, of laying tribute on the farms and factories, the brain and the sinew of your neighbors, was never more covertly and never more effectually employed than at this day.—Century.

Another crank comes to the front, and not only proposes to pass through the rapids above, but over the cataract at Niagara Falls in a rubber ball. No doubt of his being able to do it, but he won't live to see it written up in the papers.

Women's Actions.

Lady Palliser, the widow of the inventor of the Palliser gun, has been granted a pension of $750.

Mrs. Anna Whitney has made a model for a statue of Theodore Parker. The figure is in a sitting position.

Mrs. L. H. Plum, of Streator, Ill., has been elected a member of the Board of Trustees of Wheaton College.

The Princess of Wales has roused the indignation of the English milliners by the extreme plainness of her hats.

A lady at Saratoga has become blind from using something to make her eyes brilliant. She sees her folly, though.

At the White Mountains the girls all comb their back hair from the forehead. That is why it is called a bang-up place.

A New Jersey lady waded out and pulled in her husband who was drowning. As usual, she grabbed him by the hair.

Mrs. Laura Sanderson, of Nassau, N. H., has accepted the position of principal of Drury College at Springfield, Missouri.

Miss Catharine L. Wolfe, the "American Baroness Biddett-Coutts," is building a half-million dollar residence at Newport.

The Supreme Court of Kentucky has decided that a wife may recover money lost by her husband gambling. That is more than the husband can do for himself.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe is always to be seen in her seat on Sunday morning at the Channing Church, Newport, driving in from her country house, some miles distant.

An exchange says that in Tennessee recently a rattlesnake was killed by a young woman eight feet long. That young woman would make a fortune in a dime museum.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the American Women Suffrage Association will be held in Brooklyn, N. Y., on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 9 and 10, in the Academy of Music.

A young woman in an Ohio town has married her brother's wife's father. When last seen she was busy with a compass and a dictionary trying to study out what relation she was to herself.

An exchange relates that because Miss Ida Bussels, a Baltimore belle of 18 summers, had a quarrel with her lover she blew her brains out. "Her what?" is the pertinent inquiry of the Buffalo Express.

In Rome a duke's daughter has eloped with a poet. She will doubtless find in the course of time that if she had taken fifty cents and bought a cheap book of rhymes she would have made a much more profitable venture.

The Princess Beatrice of England is troubled with rheumatism, said to be caused by the low-necked and "short sleeve" dresses which the Queen insists on at dinner every evening. The Princess has gone to Aix-les-Bains to drink the water.

One of the tables at the Zoological Station at Naples is occupied the present season by appointment of the University of Cambridge, England, by an American, Miss Emily A. Nunn, formerly Professor of Biology at Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass.

Mary Strachan, who lives in London, enjoys the distinction of having been the wife of Simon Cochrane, a sergeant who fell on the field of Waterloo, and of having been present herself on the field at the time he fell. She has received since 1822 a pension of $70 a year.

A Connecticut railroad has an order that dogs shall be carried only in the baggage cars; a beautiful young lady the other day, refused to be separated from her pet, rode in a broken down chair among the trunks. The dog was satisfied and so was the baggage man, but the woman was mad.

Upon the occasion of a yachting party recently at Brighton, England, Miss Chamberlain, the graceful and pretty American, wore a costume composed of wide panels of dark green, huntsman's green, edged with several rows of red braid, falling over a skirt of red serge, a green sailor blouse with a marine collar in red.

A woman at a White Mountain hotel is the owner of a very handsomely painted black satin parasol which she keeps open, not only out of doors, but in the house. She has it spread over her head when sitting on the piazza, when crossing the hall, and even when ascending the stairs, probably from absent mindedness.

"I wish I had a drink," said Mrs. Fogg, "but I don't like to go to the fountain, there are so many men there."

"You've just as good a right there as they have," said Fogg, "don't you see the motto, 'For man and beast?'"

"Oh, it is well enough for you to say 'come along,'" replied Mrs. Fogg, "but you know I'm not a man."

Brave Mary Trainer was a Pittsburg servant girl who saw a little child belonging to the family for which she worked playing on the track in front of an express train, ran and picked it up, was herself struck by the engine, but at the instant threw the child so that it was picked up unhurt. The girl was frightfully mangled, and died after two hours of agony.

The Princess Mary, Duchess of Teck, commonly known in England as Fat Mary, has set the example of riding the tricycle. Now Victoria has ordered two machines for her youngest granddaughters, the Princesses of Hesse; the Princess of Wales gave her eldest daughter one for her birthday present; the Princess Louise rides, and hundreds of ladies have followed the fashion.

An aged lady who appealed for financial aid at the Wheeling, W. Va., police headquarters a couple of weeks ago declared herself to be a daughter of ex-Vice-President King, and widow of Gen. Hunter, President Jackson's Minister to Russia. W. W. Corcoran was one of her playmates in childhood. Her story was found to be authentic, and she was given the necessary assistance.

A country newspaper reporter visited Vassar College for the purpose of getting the views of the young ladies on the tariff question. To the very first one he encountered he opened the subject without circumlocution by remarking: "I suppose you girls go in for protection?" "We did," she said with a low sweet gurgle, "but if they're going to increase the tax on chewing-gum we're all free traders."

Twenty-years ago Miss Christine Roberts, the belle of Hartford, Conn., was engaged to marry a promising young man of that city, but he died on the eve of their wedding day. She was desolate and never appeared to care for the company of gentlemen until she recently met David Dawson, of Morrisonville, aged seventy-three years, in whom she saw a resemblance to her former lover, and she married him.

Praying Against Time.

Harper's Magazine for September. Talking against time is common in Congress, but praying against time is the device of a clever Brooklyn child, who will know how to get her rights when she comes in sight of them.

The fire burned low in the Franklin stove, the cat was asleep on the rug, and not a mouse stirred behind the wainscot as the mother wrote by a shaded lamp with a noiseless pen. All the house put on slippers of velvet when little Rose went to bed, for sleep and she were enemies, and she fought him to the last eyelash. Her voice came from the bedroom now with no sound of surrender in it. It was better to be at prayer than to be asleep, and of course no one could reprove her for praying.

"O Lord," said she, "make me good, and let me go in the omnibus to see Aunt Margaret and all the aunts and nieces and mothers. Keep me safe, for I want to go and see Aunt Margaret, and see what I can see. Don't let it hail, or snow, or rain, for I want to go in the omnibus to see Aunt Margaret very much indeed, and all the aunts and nieces and mothers. Make me well so that I can go in the omnibus; please do. Bless Grandpa and Grandma, Aunt Kate and Aunt Sophia and Mr. Charles Swan. Bless papa and mamma, and make us all good, so that we can go to heaven at last, for Jesus' sake. Amen."

There was a short pause, and then the wide-awake, defiant voice went on: "Keep grandma from dying before she gets here. Don't let anything happen to her. Don't let any bears or wild beasts eat me up. Bless grandpa and grandma and Mr. Charles Swan, and Aunt Kate and Aunt Sophie."

Another pause, a little longer than the first, and the unconquered began again:

"I long for apples. I long for milk. I long for pie. I long to be good. I wish I had not that cold. I long for some water. I long for some wine. I long for some brown bread. I long for some molasses. I long for some white bread. I long to be a woman. I thank Thee that it did not rain or snow. Give me a clean spirit. Let me be good when papa is here, for it grieves him to have me naughty, and he buys me things—playthings. I have prayed that I should go to sleep. That makes three prayers."

A yawn, a long-drawn breath, and then silence presently announced that the last prayer was answered, and sleep reigned.

Curious Restriction in a Deed.

Boston Post.

Recently Mr. Jonathan Mann, of Milton, presented to the First Baptist Church in East Dedham a piece of land upon which to build a parsonage. The deed of the land contains the following restrictions, to wit: "The minister or ministers who shall occupy the parsonage erected on this land shall not preach or teach in Christ's temple any matters pertaining to this world except such as were taught by Christ. His preachings and teachings shall be to the praise and glory of Christ and that which pertains to the eternal happiness of the souls of the children of men, and only this. Should he fail to do this he shall be warned to leave the premises. Should there be a complaint brought against the minister of this church for having broken this covenant, his judges shall be three-fourths of all the members of his church, and their decision shall be final. By the giving of this land, Jonathan Mann, the giver, his heirs assigns, executors and administrators, shall have no claim whatever upon the said land, nor to bring suit for damages against the church or society on account thereof. Should the church or society ever break, or cause to be broken, the covenant they have entered into with the giver of the land whereon to build their parsonage, their trial and condemnation shall be before and by that Christ whom they have professed to worship: this is their penalty and only this."

Southern Italy seems to have a corner on earthquakes. Italy is welcome to her monopoly and it is one of the few monopolies no party will declare against, so long as it is not an interested party. Quinine is good for the shakes; why not try it on mother earth when she gets bilious and shakely?

The Best Bacon.

N. Y. Tribune. The best bacon is made from pigs which will not weigh more than 125 pounds when dressed. The rashers or strips for the bacon are cut lengthwise of the pig and about half of the sides are used. The portion next to the backbone is fatter and lacks in muscle, and is not so good on this account. When bacon is made from small pigs—those weighing less than 100 pound—the whole of the sides are used. Red and black Berkshire hogs make the best bacon, because they have the largest proportion of lean meat. Six pounds of salt and four ounces of saltpetre should be used for 100 pounds of meat. Five pounds of brown sugar may also be used, or two quarts of molasses. If the bacon is cured in a barrel, the salt, saltpetre and sweetening should be mixed and a portion sprinkled on the bottom of the barrel and some also between the layers of meat and on the top, and water enough, after the meat is packed closely, put on to cover it. In a month the meat will be ready to smoke. Too much smoke will color the meat and give it a rank taste. Another way to cure bacon is to rub the above mixture on the flesh side of the strips of bacon and then pile it up one piece above another, and let the mixture strike in. After three days rub again and pile up as before. A week after rub again and pile it up, putting the flesh side up every time. The mixture should be divided into three equal parts, to provide for the several rubbings. At the end of a month the meat will be ready for smoking, or before if the salt has all struck in and the surface has become comparatively dry, which is an indication. After smoking, the rashers should be sewed up in bags made of cotton cloth and hung up in a dry, dark place. If the bags are white-washed on the outside all the better, as this will keep the worms out.

Tools Used in Building the Pyramids.

During a residence of two winters in a tomb at Gizeh, Mr. W. M. Flinders Petrie collected evidence showing that the tools used in working stone 4,000 years ago were constructed with a jewel as the cutting edge. He stated his reason for coming to this conclusion in a paper read before the Anthropological Institute, a resume of which is published in a recent issue of Engineering, of London. Solid tubular drills, straight and circular disk saws and lathe tools were made with jewels set in metal. The lines of cutting on a granite core made by a tubular drill from a continuous spiral, the grooves being of a uniform depth and width throughout, showing that the cutting point was not worn as the word advanced. The regular taper of the core would indicate that jewels were also set upon the outside and inside of the drill, thereby facilitating its removal. In some specimens of granite drills sunk one-tenth of an inch at each revolution, and the pressure necessary to do this must have been from one to two tons. The skill of the workmen and the capacity of the tool are illustrated by the clean path through both soft and hard material—no difference in the groove being perceptible, although it passes from a soft substance into quartz, subjecting the tool to an enormous strain. In plane surfaces the depth and width of the cuts indicate the successive stroke of a saw, and the use of the circular saw is proved by the regularly curved lines. The forms of the tools were the same that experience has sanctioned at the present time.

The scarcity of the diamond and the lack of strength in the sapphire and beryl lead to the consideration of corundum. Nothing has been found about the metal of which the tool was made or the method of setting the jewel.

Experience of an Indian Agent.

The president likes a good story, especially if it is quaint. An Indian agent, who came east not long ago to get something better than his agency, got it just for the story he told. He said: "Mr. President when I got out to the agency I found that these Indians were just about to have their annual sun-dance. Of course they invited the agent, and of course the agent went. It was very exciting. I had never seen a sun-dance, and I thought it was immense." And then he described the wild ceremonies at length. "I watched them," he said, "as they jumped and yelled, and yelled and jumped, and cut themselves and marched and counter-marched, and cut up like so many painted devils. All this time I was a spectator. But presently they began to pass the firewater around. Of course they invited the agent to drink, and of course the agent drank. In fact, he drank a good deal—a good deal more than he ought to. It wasn't long before he found himself in the middle of the ring as wild as the rest of them, dancing, yelling and howling. Then he was a participant. He kept this up some time, Mr. President, and then, it is said, Mr. President, he got into a fight with a big buck and made so much trouble that they had to put him off the grounds. I don't know about that, Mr. President, but I know that very shortly after he became a traveler, and now he would like a little softer berth a little nearer civilization." He got it for the tale he told.

An evangelist began his discourse at Salem by asking, "Where are the nine," to which a small boy quickly replied, "Gone to play base-ball." That boy can't imagine why he was escorted home after the service and treated to a woodshed discussion on the depravity of youth.

Since the introduction of spelling matches, many words have come prominently into notice—words that were previously comparatively unknown. For instance we find Antiseptic, meaning: preventing and stopping all fermentation and decomposition, and Analgesic: Painkiller. Then there is Antipyretic: cooling down inflammation and fever heat. These three words so often mis-spelled, are three of the cardinal virtues of something that will cure many a bad spell, and that is Salicylic, pronounced Sal-i-cyl-i-ca. Warranted to afford immedi-

"Yes," Bertha returned wonderingly.
"I suppose Mr. Gerome is to be there?"
"I believe so."
"Then don't you go?"
"Why not?" Bertha asked, arranging the hyacinth bells in a rich blue cluster for the waist of her dress.
Mrs. Crawford closely watched the lowly-creeping cheeks.
"People say he is sweet on you, Bertha." Well, then, people had better mind their own business," Bertha flashed back.
"Bertha Demorest," Mrs. Crawford went on, "I have come to warn you.
Beware of that man—beware of him!"
"What do you mean?"
"Just this—Mr. Gerome is a married man!"
"That is nonsense!" Bertha cried, angrily and incredulously.
"It is not nonsense, and I know it," Mrs. Crawford said. "I have seen a letter from his wife—do you hear that,
ten to him!"
"Did he show it to you?"
"Slightly discomfited," Mrs. Crawford was yet not to be routed.
"No matter about that. It is enough Bertha said. "Good morning, Mrs.
Crawford! You will have to excuse me;
I am rather in a hurry."
And when Mrs. Crawford was gone she locked her door and sat down and cried until her sweet face looked like a drenched flower.
"And I thought he was so true, so grand, so good!" she sobbed. "Oh, how could he—how could he deceive me so wickedly?"
Miss Demorest was not at the picnic that day, and Frank Gerome searched about the grounds until it was quite too late for any possibility of her arrival, and then went to see what had changed her resolution of the night before, and found her looking very cold, and white, and lovely, as she sat alone on the terrace.
"Bertha!" he exclaimed reproachful-ly, "you promised me faithfully you would be at the picnic, and I find you here. Why did you—?"
"My name is Miss Demorest," she said haughtily.
Gerome bit his lip.
"Miss Demorest, if it pleases you better," he said with a half smile at what he believed to be a display of girlish dignity, "why did you deceive me so?"
"Why have I deceived you?" Bertha flashed; "why have you deceived me?"
"I don't understand what you mean."
"It strikes me," and what you mean," difficult of comprehension. However, but the question to you as plainly as possible. Mr. Gerome, why have you never spoken to me about your wife?"
"For a very good reason. I wouldn't be apt to speak about what I haven't got."
"You are telling me a deliberate falsehood. You are a married man, and you have been playing a treacherous part all this while."
"A married man!" he said, his voice thrilling with incredulity; "you are talking in conundrums. I am not a married man, and I have been playing no treacherous part—to you, least of all, Bertha, my little golden-haired darling."
And then what did Bertha do but begin to cry in the most undignified fashion.
"Then what did Mrs. Crawford mean?" she demanded.
Gerome set his lips tightly together.
"Ah! Mrs. Crawford has been talking, has she? What did she say?"
"That you were married."
"She must have been crazy between spite and ill-nature," Gerome exclaimed angrily; "I shall not allow her tongue to wag after this fashion. Bertha, will you walk down there with me?"
As a consequence of this invitation,
Mrs. Crawford was considerably startled by the appearance of Mr. Gerome and Miss Demorest, as she sat darning
the household linen in the dining room, and secretly bewailing that no one had invited her to the picnic.
"Mrs. Crawford," Gerome said abruptly, as he entered the room, "what is this story you have been telling Miss Demorest about me?"
"I told Miss Demorest no story; I told her only the truth."
"What is the truth then? Suppose you tell me?"
"That you're a married man, a villain, a deceiver! There now!"
"Yes! Show your proof, if you please," Gerome requested calmly.
"I can do it. A letter from your own wife upstairs, in your own room, on your table."
"A letter directed to me?"
"A letter addressed to Mr. Frank Ge-rome."
And then Mr. Gerome laughed heartily, while his lip curled with a sneering expression.
"Exactly. But there are more Frank Geromes than one in the world; for instance, my twin brother Frankfort, to whom that letter was written by his own wife."
"Possibly, if you had taken the trouble to read the whole, instead of a part of what was not intended for your eyes, you would have seen that the letter was sent on for me to read, solely because my sister-in-law, Julie, alludes plain-fully in its pages to the loss of 'Frankfort'."

lyn's heart to this young lady at my side. I will show you the letter, Bertha."
"But I would not read it," she said,
lifting her adoring blue eyes to his face;
"I don't deserve to read it. How could I be so wicked as to believe a syllable against you?"
"As for you, Mrs. Crawford," Ge-rome went on, "I can only recommend to you to follow out hereafter what might have been called the 'Diamond Rule'—mind your own business."
After all, Bertha went to the picnic, and in Mr. Gerome's buggy, behind his bay trotter, and best of all, far and away, as his betrothed wife.

Tell-Tale Lines and Shapes.
The principal lines of the hand are easily remembered. The life line, which runs around the base of the thumb; the line of the head, which begins alongside of the line of life (sometimes joining it), and crossing the middle of the palm; and the line of the heart, which goes from one side of the hand to the other at the base of the fingers. If the line of life is of a ruddy color, long and unbroken, extending nearly or quite down to the wrist line, it foretells good health and long life; if it be broken in any point it denotes severe sickness; if short, early death; if double, it shows considerable strength and vitality. The lines encircling the wrist number the years of life, one line marking thirty years.
If a character like the sun occurs on the line of life, it denotes loss of an eye or blindness; and each cross or knot means some misfortune or difficulty, great or small according to the size of the mark. The little lines are the lesser causes and troubles. Wavy lines in the ends of the fingers or elsewhere, foretell death by drowning. A cross-and mark below the little finger and below the line of the heart denotes insanity. A well-defined short line joining the line of the heart to the wrist line or line on the side of the hand below the little finger, as those also denote the number of times married. The lines extending down between the third or ring finger and the little finger to the line of the heart, number the loves of a lifetime. If but a single line is visible, and it is deep and clear, the person will love faithfully and warmly. A long, well-defined line of the head promise intellectual power, but it may be too long; as, if it extends quite to the edge of the hand it indicates too much calculation, craft, meanness. It should end under the third finger or thereabouts. If it is forked or double toward the end it denotes deception and double-dealing, though in a hand otherwise good, it may mean only extreme retic-ence or shyness. When this line is very short and faint it shows stupidity, foolishness.
If the line of the heart is long, extending from the edge of the hand below the little finger up between the first and second fingers, it indicates an affectionate disposition, and also, promises well for the happiness of the possessor. If it ends down short lines toward the head line, it shows that affection must be founded upon respect; but if these small lines go upward, love is more a passion. When the line of the heart is broken, it denotes inconsistency.
But judgment must not be formed from any one appearance or line of the hand, as there are many things to be considered.
We should look to the left hand chiefly for honors, riches, loves and misfortunes, and in the right for whatever pertains to health and length of days.
All lines, if pale and wide, tell the absence of the quality attributed to that line, or the existence of the opposite quality. For instance, a pale, wide line of the heart indicates coldness or even cruelty. When the lines of the left hand are clearest and radiest its possessor resembles his mother both mentally and physically.
In the practice of the art of palmistry some knowledge of physiognomy is of great advantage; indeed, the two sciences go hand in hand, on supplementing the other. This is why the shrewd fortune teller seems to face almost more closely than the hand of the patron. A few set rules in regard to the features and characteristics of the human face may well be added in this connection.
And first of all the soul dwells in the eyes; and the ability to understand its language is inborn in most people without having to study it; but few words in regard to it may not be amiss. Very quiet eyes that impress and impress one with their great repose, steady self-command, but also great confidence and conceit. Eyes that are blue and thither while their possessor speaks denote a deceitful, designing mind. Eyes in which the white has a yellowish tinge and is streaked with reddish veins denote strong passion. Very blue eyes bespeak a mind inclined to coquetry;
gray eyes signify intelligence; greenish,
black and looking for scornful;
black eyes, a passionate, lively temperament; and brown, a kind, happy disposition.
Of the nose a Roman nose denotes
an enterprising, business-like character;
a long nose a sign of good sense; a perfectly straight nose indicates a proprietor and noble soul, unless the eyes condict it; a nose that is straight and spiritual indicates a good mind and a generally indicates a good mind and a heart; a very small nose, good nature;
but a lack of energy.
The ears, waiter," the seaside hotel keeper says cheerfully, as he sits up to economical guest, "I guess you'll have to give this gentleman that nice room in the annex. Show him to 721 on the fifth floor, back."

The Squatter's Daughter.
"Light and look at yer saddle," said the squatter's daughter, as a man stopped at the fence. The man who had been several weeks in the neighborhood, and who had become so well acquainted with the girl that her handsome face was ever before him, advanced to where she was sitting, and lingeringly shook the hand which she extended him.
"How are you, Emily?"
"Just rate; never felt better nor had loss."
"Where's all the folks?"
"Scattered. Dad's gone to the still-house, mam's gone to a quiltin'. Bob's lyn' 'roun' loose, somewhar, and Dick's drunk, I speck."
"Emily," said the visitor, seating himself in the doorway, "don't you know that dressed in anything like a stylish way, you would be one of the handsomest girls I ever saw?"
"Wall, Lor', I hadn't thought about it."
"Wouldn't you like to wear fine dresses?"
"Now, you're shontin'!"
"And have a good education?"
"I don't care so much about the education, 'cause I'm sorter 'spicious
'bout book sense. Real old hoss sense is the kind to have, an' of a person's book larnin', an' ef he hain't got the hoss sense he can't take book larnin' to any great shakes."
"You are mistaken. Education accomplishes wonders, and without our great colleges and schools this entire country would soon be worse than it was when first discovered."
"I know jes' what I'm or talkin' about," she replied, "an' thar ain't no use tryin' ter talk book larnin' agin me, 'cause I've got the figgers. A mighty eddyedated feller come to see me fur a long time, an' folks loved we'd marry, an' I reckon we would ef it hadn't been that his eddyedation proved to be a failure. One day at a log rollin', Tony Diver, the runt of the neighborhood, arter hearin' my eddyedated man blow a powerful chance, went up to him an' said: 'Look a hear, cap'n, you've been talkin' 'bout your eddy-edation for some time, now I want to show you that it don't amount to nothin', an'
tellin' the smart man to cut his capers.
Tony grabbed him. They scuffled aroun' awhile, and finally Tony flung him. Tony don't know a letter in the book, an' when it was discovered that the fellow's eddyedation didn't amount to anythin', pap he come home an' sez
'Emily that smart man o' yours was flung down jes' now by Tony Diver. Ef yer marry him I'll drive yer from under my roof an' you shan't come back no mo'.' Pap, s'I, 'I ain't a goin' ter fling myself away.'"
"Emily do you think that you could live happily with me?"
"Look a here, if Gabe Johnson knowed that yer was er talkin' to me that er way, he'd chaw yer mane."
"What are you engaged to him?"
"It hits me that'er way."
"I must say that I don't think he's—"
"Hole on right thar. Didn't he whip the preacher at Dry Fork tother day, an' didn't he slap the jaw offen the county judge? Yec can't set here an'
talk about a man with such 'complishments. Get on that hoss an' moser."

Money Without Intellect.
The moral power money wields, apart
from character, liberality, intelligence, and the other qualities essential to true manhood, is of but relative value, and is insignificant except when true worth and high traits of character accompany it. We have instances of this fact in our own time, which show that almost unconsciously the popular opinion measures a man by some higher and more durable standard than the money he may possess or may have accumulated. This is the case where the reputation of those who are held in high esteem is also based upon wealth. The man in which it is gained, the use to which it is put, stamp themselves upon the public judgment and make an impression which cannot well be obliterated.
Take for instance such men as Gould and Vanderbilt in comparison with George Peck or Peter Cooper.
Great wealth is the use to which they put it have, and them their fame. Intellectual life of them would ever have been known outside of his own immedi- sphere. The first two far surpass the others in wealth and the power life can exert in the business operation of the world. They can make or ruin the fortunes of thousands of fellow men, the caprices of speculation.
But how much moral power do they control in comparison with the last mentioned. Their acts and opinions are of no force in the community.
Their wealth contributes nothing to the fund of human greatness. Not so with wealth in the case of the other examples. The true fame thus earned is more lasting and more endurable. To the ambitions who seek wealth and fame, and to have their name live after them, the lessons of the true power of wealth are not to be unheeded. —Boston Courier.

A Polish for Fine Carved Work.
Half-pint of oil, half-pint of ale, the white of an egg, 1 oz. spirits of wine, 1 oz. spirits of salts, well shake before using. A little to be applied to the face of a soft linen pad, and gently rubbed for a minute or two, over the article to be restored, which must afterward be polished off with an old silk handkerchief. This will keep any length of time if well worked. This polish is useful for delicate cabinet work; it is also recommended for papier mache work.

Handy Slate Cleaner!

The time has past when can be seen in the public schools, generally, dirty and ragged children. On the contrary, when one enters a school, it is to see bright eyes, clean face, hair combed, and clothes neat and tidy. But there is one filthy habit left, in fact, is the most disgusting of any ever acquired by children, and, though sanctioned by long usage, if possible it should be eradicated. It is that of spitting on their slates; spreading it around with their hands and drying it with their sleeves, handkerchief or apron, the slate becoming in a short time so greasy that a pencil mark can hardly be seen. What should we think if we were to see a child spit on a board and play in it with its fingers? Ugh!

The Cleaner is neat, and can be used a day or more by filling it once. If it falls on the floor it makes little or no noise. If the drying pad wears through, any mother can replace it. If the sponge wears out, another can be put into it. It will do away with a filthy practice, and teach habits of cleanliness.

HOW WATCHES ARE MADE
 In a SOLID GOLD Watch, made from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus gold is actually needless. In James Doss' Patent Gold Watch Cases this waste is saved, and solidity and strength increased by a simple process, at one-half the cost. A plate of sorts gold is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this the cases, backs, centers, bezels, etc., are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving and engine turning. These cases have been worn perfectly smooth by use without removing the gold. This is the only case made under this process. Each case is accompanied with a valid guarantee signed by the manufacturers warranting it to wear 20 years. 150,000 of these Cases now carried in the United States and Canada. Largest and Oldest Factory. Established 1854. Ask your Jeweler

GATHERINGS.

Saline burglars smell so strong of whiskey that they are detected before they do any harm!

The nine-pound boy on Monday was matched by a girl of similar weight on Wednesday to Mr. & Mrs. Gakle.—Courier.

Geo. Harriet, of Saline township, lost a stack of wheat by fire a few days since. A spark from the threshing engine did the mischief.

Saline's wind-mill manufactory caught fire a few days ago, but the fire department had a stream playing on it inside of five minutes and saved it. Good for the boys!

Seymour Hammond says he has contracted to make 200 apple barrels for Jacob Braun of Freedom. He says that there are quite a good many apples in orchards south of Saline.—Enterprise.

Mr. F. Schilling, of Sebewaing, Huron county, is visiting old friends in the city. Mr. S. came to Arbor in 1829 when the surroundings thereof were a howling wilderness, and this is his first visit to his old home in many years.—Register.

Mr. J. H. Minor has returned from New Mexico, where he supervised the building of a fence 35 miles in length, enclosing a cattle ranch in which he holds an interest, and will remain with his family about two months. Mr. Minor holds 29 mail carrying contracts from the government.—Argus.

A few days ago we saw a young man who was in a bad condition, bleeding at the lungs. We advised him to take three or four thicknesses of linen, saturate in mineral water hot as he could bear it, cover his throat and lungs, and over this place a piece of flannel, changing every two or three hours. He now looks like another man.—Ypsilanti Commercial.

Dogs got among James Lucas' sheep last Sunday night, and raised the dickens. They killed and maimed about thirty-five. Mr. Lucas was obliged to kill some of the wounded ones, and they together with those which the dogs killed, made twenty dead sheep for one night's work. We understand two of the dogs were caught and killed, and that their owners propose to make the loss good as per request of Mr. Lucas. R. C. Reeve also had nineteen sheep killed by dogs last Friday night.—Dexter Leader.

On the 27th of August there was found in the woods skirting Marshall the body of a man shot through the heart. All the circumstances point to a murder. Nothing was found to aid identification except a M. C. R. R. lay-over check, dated Aug. 12, entitling the holder to a passage from Ann Arbor to Dexter, and a picture of a couple of young ladies. The deceased was a man between 30 and 40 years of age, 5 feet 9 or 10 inches in height, sandy hair, weight about 150 pounds, and was dressed in a dark checked suit, white shirt, calf skin boots, and black wool hat with a cord for a band. There was a small patch on the palm near the knee. The picture is a type of two ladies, evidently sisters, aged between 20 and 30 years, in a sitting posture, with hair "banged." The shorter of the two wore a dress with a heavy seated skirt. The officers at Marshall are desirous of obtaining a clue to identify the man and discover the murderer.

Much has been said and much written in one form and another relative to Florida, but for the most part the information thus obtained is of a desultory and unsatisfactory character, and not always to be relied on. It is a state, however, which occupies a great deal of public attention—deservedly so, beyond question—and about which the people of the North are always pleased to hear eager to be intelligently informed. We, therefore, esteem it a piece of peculiarly good fortune to have permitted an interview with a gentleman who is a resident of Florida, a close observer, and a man whose information on the subject in question is not only extensive, but in every respect to be accepted and believed. He has no interested motives to misserve, but has been in a position to judge fairly and comprehensively of the matters whereof he speaks, and what he says should command authoritative weight. The gentleman to whom we refer is Mr. John Mason, formerly of this city, and now one of the editors of the Jacksonville Times-Union, the most influential and widely circulated paper in the State. Being cornered by a representative of the Post yesterday, Mason was accosted as follows:

"Back on the old stamping ground must from the Land of Flowers, yes, I left Jacksonville on the morning of the 3d and made the trip thirty-six hours, over the Coast pretty hot there, I suppose?"

"I found it hotter and more uncomfortable here than it was in the day I left. The idea you run up here have that the peninsulas under a sweltering heat all over is absurd, as you will see. I remind you that the country is a comparatively narrow strip of land lying between the two great gulfs of salt water. These necessarily temper the air and give us cooler breezes. And the temperature is such even, people can adapt their clothing to the condition of the weather, while here you have to dress three times a day to be comfortable. Indeed, the even temperature of the air at all seasons is the charm of Florida. From June 1st it is simply a matter of degree. To exist, the air is so soft and pleasant you have become infatuated with the country."

"Well; I went there under the impression that there had been a change about the country, and was deceived again at the State. The police was strengthened by considerable stretches of sand, and pine, pine, pine, on every hand. The ugly streets of Jacksonville truly disgust. They are very fine in about the condition of class Northern villager's them but they are as a matter of fact, grain crops, magnolia trees, and water oaks and cypresses, and other things. I find after a while that there was nothing there to go with, or make with, some oyster shells, not even close to mix with the soil, instead being barren, unproductive, and with moderate fertilizing all kind of garden and field crop flourished. And so I have been obliged to give up my prejudices. I think the country is perfection. I expect to find this side—but I do believe the climate of Florida is the best on the earth. An old northern man I met down there was asked if he thought of the country," said he, "I'll tell ye—"

...and worth about fifty cents an acre, but the air's worth 'bout a hundred and fifty dollars an acre." He was right about the air but off on the land. A glance at the oaks and orange trees ought to satisfy anyone of that."

"About that orange business—isn't it overdone, or likely to be overdone?"

"Not at all. The market was kept bare all last winter by the sharp demand from Northern cities. The fruit is so superior to that brought in from Europe that it will eventually crowd it out altogether. It is sweeter, juicier, better in every way, and much so that last winter in New York imported oranges were assorted, and the best repacked and labelled 'Florid' oranges,' in order to get the advanced price our fruit commands. Nobody would care about the brand were it not that the buyers are disappointed, and real Florida fruit gets a set back in consequence. No, there is no danger of over-production. New groves are starting up all over the State, in every direction, but it will be some years yet before they come into full bearing, and the demand for the fruit, on account of its superior character, is increasing much more rapidly than the annual crop."

"How long does it take to get a grove in paying condition?"

"That depends on the character of the tree set. Budded or grafted trees bear earlier than seedlings. I should think that ten years growth and tending was necessary to produce a paying grove. After that it is as certain as pay as good a dividend as the best fields of the West."

"You have other fruits in Florida, do you?"

"Yes, lemons, limes, grape fruit, peaches, pine-apples, figs, bananas, all of which grow to perfection. Lemons and pine-apples are particularly nice and the figs are delicious. Cocoanuts are also being planted extensively in the south part of the State."

"What about the new industry—market gardening?"

"It is developing rapidly. The soil, the advantage of being so near the market by at least four or five weeks, and the great improvement in transportation facilities have combined to draw the attention of market gardeners to Florida. Before the orange crop is distributed strawberries come in and at enormous prices; crowding on them come peas, beans, cucumbers, potatoes and tomatoes, and before these are done watermelons and pumpkins are ripe, and so it goes. A constant succession of fruits and vegetables until the orange crop comes in—there is always something to grow."

"Do you think Florida presents an opening to live men even if they have but little capital?"

"In my judgement there is a wide opening field for you. There is no doubt about it. But living men or men having but little capital, in the United States. But it is no place for idlers unless they have their pockets full of money. There, as in the north, intelligence and industry and the man who would win success must merit it."—Washington Post.

It May Save Your Life.
The manufacturers have yet to hear of a single case of Dyspepsia or Billiousness, when ZEPESA was used as directed, where it was not more than satisfactory. Many testify that it is a wonderful remedy. We show where as high as 40 pounds were gained by its use in breaking up chronic Billiousness and Dyspepsia. Its friends increase very fast, and all who use as directed are surprised and gratified.

SECRET.
THE ONLY DISSOLVER OF THE
POISONOUS URIC ACID WHICH EX-ISTS IN THE BLOOD OF RHEUMAT-IC AND GOUTY PATIENTS.
SALICYLICA is known as a common-
sense remedy because it strikes directly
at the cause of Rheumatism, Gout and Neuralgia, while so many so-called specifics and supposed panaceas only treat locally the effects.
It has been conceded by eminent scientists that outward applications, such as
rubbing with oils, ointments, liniments and
soothing lotions will not eradicate these
diseases which are the result of the poisoning of the blood with Uric Acid.
SALICYLICA works with marvelous
effect on this acid, and so removes the disorder. It is now exclusively used by all
the celebrated physicians of America and Europe. Highest Medical Academy reports 95 per cent. cures in three days.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

HUNTING FOR STILLS.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has issued instructions to Revenue Agent Powell, of Raleigh, N. C., to investigate the report that several Lenoir officers in the upper part of South Carolina had been systematically swindling the government for some time. It is charged that the officers in question lure persons to opium stills in remote places, and then capture the material in the night time and obtain the government reward of $50 for each seizure. The same material is then put up in seizure. The same material is then put up in seizure. The same material is then put up in seizure.

CROOK'S LATEST.

G. B. Crook's latest communication has just been received by the War Department. In the report, Crook gives his idea of the future policy to be pursued by the government, as follows: "I believe firmly that exact acquiescence by our government in the terms upon which these Indians understood they are to be allowed to live upon the San Carlos Reservation appears the only possible means of protecting the lives and interests of the people of Sonora and Chihuahua, as well as our own country, and am firmly convinced that if the present prisoners are treated with good faith, not only will the renegades now in the mountains return, but also that neither country will hereafter have any reason to complain of depredations or outrages from them."

A NEW VAULT.

Plans are completed for the proposed new silver vault under the cash room of the Treasury Department. The storage capacity of the vault will be $23,000,000 in silver dollars. Until the return of Secretary Folger, the Assistant Secretary will act as Secretary.

THE GARFIELD HOSPITAL.

A statement has recently been published to the effect that the plan of establishing a Garfield memorial hospital in Washington had been abandoned for want of adequate support, and that the money thus far contributed for that purpose would be turned over to the Garfield monument fund. Thos. Fisher, of the Garfield Hospital Board, said in reply to inquiries that the report of the abandonment of the hospital scheme was entirely without foundation.

THE ARREARS ACT PROVES A TEMPTATION.

A person office official says that there is no reason to doubt that more money has been fraudulently abstracted from the treasury in one year on false pension claims than was obtained by the star-route ring in the same time, and about which the country has heard so much; $100,000,000 in a single year formed a tempting prize to the pension agent ring, and out of it this ring must have got upwards of $10,000,000, their particular portion being in fees and expenses. Claims by the hundreds and by the thousands are made up in Washington, and sent ready-made to the ex-soldiers for signature and oath. Many men are found too honest to perjure themselves thus, but the temptation offered by the arrears act, which offered several thousand dollars in a lump if the case went through, is too great in most cases to be resisted. The more squeamish are urged by circulars and letters to sign, and swear and forward. One, dated April 26, 1883, addressed "Friend and client," says it is some time since the claim was made up and urges that it be signed, sworn to, and returned immediately. "Millions of money," it says, "have been appropriated, and we can file your claim and secure to you the benefits of the recent enactment." Another circular says the cases of those who pay their fees in advance "will be made special" by the department. Every effort is made to get hold of that fee. This system of wholesale perjury is believed to have been carried on to a greater extent than has ever yet been stated.

NEWS NOTES.

A POISONED LUNCH.

The family of William Lunders, of Winsted, Minn., consisting of nine persons were poisoned a few days ago, and five have died and two more are not expected to live. The supposition is that some poison was mixed with the family lunch, but the name of the fiend and the motive for the terrible crime are unknown.

RANDIITI AFTER ARTHUR.

A story that reads like a dime novel tale comes all the way from Idaho, and is furnished to the world by the Wood River Times. The story is to the effect that a party of Texas cowboys have started for Yellowstone Park to kidnap President Arthur and his entire party, and to spirit them away into the mountains where they will be kept prisoners, while members of the party act as pickets to prevent being surprised and captured while negotiations for a ransom are being conducted. The captain or leader of the party has an idea that a heavy ransom will be offered by the United States, and personal friends of the president after search for the president's party shall be given up, and that $500,000 or more can thus be extorted from the secret service fund and divided among the party, on the principle adopted by the Italian banditti. There are sixty-five men in the gang some of whom were guerrillas in the late war. A grand council was held just before starting out on the expedition, when every man swore by his dagger to do his duty.

A HORRIBLE SIGHT.

Samuel Warrick, aged 55, cut his throat in Gloucester county, New Jersey, and then walked to his barn, holding his half-severed head in one hand. He met his wife, and she fainted. The husband lived 10 hours.

THE SUNCOOK MILL CASE.

In the reply of the state department just sent to the Swedish delegation on the Suncook (N. H.) mill case, the secretary, as was anticipated, takes the ground that he can do nothing for the enslaved Swedes. The report of the New Hampshire authorities is to the effect that the owners of the mill have a right to prevent the departure of the Swedes from the state under the statute, and that the men who have tried to make their way to Massachusetts to accept offers of better employment and higher wages are actually in debt to the storekeepers, one of whom is the mill's bookkeeper. It is believed that the arrest of the three men was for the purpose of intimidating the other Swedes and preventing their departure from the state. Mr. De Bilot, the Swedish charge d'affaires, will reply to the communication of the state department. He agrees that the United States can do nothing in the matter, because the mill people are acting in accordance with the laws of New Hampshire, but he will point out that in this case the law permits the company to hold their countrymen as slaves, and he will insist that the statute has been abused.

JUDGE LYNCH IN UTAH.

At a late hour the other night a number of masked men stopped Engineer Thomas, Roadmaster Hughes and a fireman in the employ of the Utah Eastern Railway, compelled them to return to the shops, and taking an engine and caboose run about thirty masked men to a coal village, about twenty miles distant. Leaving a number of men in charge of the train the vigilantes proceeded to the county jail. Bringing guns to bear on the officers they obtained control of the jail, and taking a man named Jack Murphy from his cell, returned to the train and ordered an immediate return to Park City. Upon arriving the vigilantes took Murphy and hung him to a telegraph pole near the station, the body being viewed by a number of passengers on the early trains. Murphy was arrested on suspicion of having shot a man named Brennan, and confined in jail awaiting trial.

TWO POOLS KILLED.

Fatal encounter occurred at Toulon City, near St. Louis, Mo., between Louis Phillips and Jacob Rosenberg, both residents of Bowling Green Township, in the former wounded was killed instantly and the latter wounded. The so badly that he died in a few hours after. The affair had its origin in a grudge long standing growing out of disrespectful remarks by Phillips concerning Rosenberg's sister. Each time they met they quarreled, and they decided to settle the matter in a duel with pistols. They chose as their seconds Mark Swank and Jack Wren, who were present and witnessed the shooting. Rosenberg fired the first shot, the ball entering Phillips' forehead. Phillips staggered, but before falling discharged his weapon, the ball taking effect on the side of Rosenberg's head, ranging upward through the forehead. Both duelists were young men, Phillips being about 22 years of age, and a school teacher.

AN AFFLICTED FAMILY.

Mr. Edward Knight, of Pittsburgh, N. C., has been bereft of his six children in a remarkable way—by such a succession of tragedies as makes truth, indeed, seem stranger than fiction. Three children died with diphtheria in quick succession. The day after the death of the last of these, two of the remaining children were playing in the yard, the mother being inside with the youngest child. A scream uttered caused her to rush out, to find that a rattlesnake had bitten both children. Soon they were in the agonies of death. The crowning horror then came upon the distracted mother when she discovered that a large pot of boiling soap had fallen from the fire and scalded the baby past recovery. The account is in all respects accurate and is vouched for.

MILWAUKEE'S FRIGHT.

Milwaukee is agitated over an alleged case of Asiatic cholera. A man named Wotchewski was taken sick and became torpid, and Zelowski, who has had experience in a Turkish hospital, pronounced the disease cholera. Dr. Richards, Assistant Health Commissioner, agrees with Zelowski, but other physicians call it cholera morbus.

INCREASED MAIL SERVICE.

Supt. Thompson of the railroad mail service, has ordered the establishment of a new line of postal cars on the Pennsylvania Railroad between New York, Pittsburgh, Indianapolis and St. Louis. The cars commenced running Saturday, September 1, leaving New York at 6 p. m. The postal car will arrive at St. Louis on the morning of the second day at 7:30 o'clock.

HURLED INTO ETERNITY.

Bursting of a Boiler on a Hudson River Steamer.

MANY KILLED AND OTHERS TERRIBLY INJURED.

The steamer Riverdale, on the North River, burst her boiler and sunk at Twenty-second street New York. In about five minutes the boat capsized. There were over 100 passengers on board at the time of the accident. Some of them were hurled into the air and then fell back into the water, and others were compelled to jump into the river to escape the scalding steam. The air was filled with flying debris and broken pieces of machinery. About 50 people lost their lives, some being blown into eternity, while others were drowned by being drawn down in the whirlpool caused by the sinking vessel. Those who were floating about in the river were rescued by tug-boats and taken to New York. Reports as to the number killed are conflicting, varying all the way from 10 to 50.

The engineer, Edward Tallman, who escaped with a few slight bruises, said he could not explain the cause of the accident by any theory whatever. The boilers were new four years old, when the boat was entirely rebuilt and refitted. He was about to enter the engine room to obey the pilot's signal to slacken speed, when he was suddenly hurled through the door and the next moment he found himself lying on the roof of the cabin directly under the shaft. The explosion occurred, he said, without the slightest warning, and was apparently the result of some hidden defect. A moment previous he had looked at the steam-gauge and found it to register twenty-three pounds. When the boat was inspected last June her allowance was fixed at fifty pounds to the square inch.

EFFECTS OF VOLCANIC ERUPTION.

Three Towns Destroyed—Terrible Loss of Life.

A dispatch from Batavia, Java, says the towns of Anjir, Tjiriting and Telokbeleng, were destroyed by tidal waves caused by the volcanic eruptions. All the lighthouses in Sunda Straits have disappeared, and where the mountain of Kramatan formerly stood the sea now flows. The aspect of Sunda Straits is much changed and navigation dangerous. The tidal wave completely destroyed Anjir. Many persons were killed. The loss of life among both Europeans and natives at North Bantam is enormous. The quarries at Merak disappeared, and all the people of the place perished. The floating dock at an island near Batavia is adrift and badly damaged.

POLITICAL.

NEBRASKA DEMOCRATS.

The Democratic State Convention at Omaha nominated Hon. J. W. Savage for Justice of the Supreme Court, and for Regents of the State University Dr. D. Davis, G. W. Johnson and Hon. J. M. Woolworth.

KEYSTONE GREENBACKERS.

The Pennsylvania state greenback convention in session at Williamsport nominated T. P. Rynder, of Altoona, for auditor general, and A. F. Marsh, of Erie, for state treasurer. The platform adopted sets forth that the history of the trade dollar proves that money is solely a creation of law without regard to the material used; that the $400,000,000 paid by the government to the national bank was so much money stolen from taxpayers, and the continued payment of $10,000,000 annually to the banks is a crime against labor; that monopolies ought to be restricted by state or national legislation, and all government held for actual settlers. The resolution also favors protective tariff, a national bureau of labor, and short sessions of congress and state legislatures.

CRIME.

A DOUBLE MURDER.

Henry Hertel and wife, German slopkeepers of Savannah, Ga., were found murdered in their store. Customers went to the store in the morning and found it closed. Peeping through the blinds they saw Hertel on the floor in a pool of blood. The door was burst in, and the man found lying in the middle of the room with a handkerchief tied over his eyes and skull crushed in. His wife was found in a calico wrapper lying on a sofa in the parlor, with her throat cut, and one arm nearly severed. An immense crowd collected, and the police were notified. Hertel was supposed to have a large sum of money. Hertel and wife were middle-aged and highly respected Germans.

SENSATIONAL MURDER AND SUICIDE.

A sensational tragedy was enacted at the Notting House, Elgin, Ill., recently. Edward F. Joslyn, a citizen of good standing, shot and killed Etta Buckingham, a young woman of pleasing address. Joslyn had been paying attentions to Miss Buckingham the past year, the nature of which displayed some comments, and he has latterly created evidences of fierce jealousy. He attempted to enter her room one morning, and being denied admission, forced his way into the apartment. There was a scuffle, two revolver shots, and the young woman fell dead. Joslyn immediately committed suicide with the same weapon.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

Sylvester F. Fuller, cashier, and Henry L. St. John, assistant cashier of the Second National bank of Jefferson, Ashland county, Ohio, are in the United States' marshal's hands in Cleveland, on charge of embezzling $50,000 of the bank's funds. The irregularity occurred Dec. 18, 1882, when the bank closed. Fuller skipped to Canada, but returned last May. St. John did not leave. The misfortune was caused by stock speculations. After losing his own money Fuller took $14,000 and St. John $30,000 from the bank funds. He says they will reach on other bank officials. Before they will reach on other bank officials. Before they will reach on other bank officials. Before they will reach on other bank officials.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

PARLIAMENT PROLOGUE. The British Parliament was prorogued on the afternoon of August 25. The queen's speech was read by the Royal Commissioner at the queen's close of the session. In her address the queen reviews in a lucid manner the government affairs. She expressed great satisfaction at the fair work done by parliament, and at the harmony existing between England and all other powerful nations in which her majesty handled all questions submitted to her, explodes the statements so often made concerning her mental weakness.

A FRENCH VICTORY.

A telegram was received in Paris a few days ago by the Minister of Marine from Saigon announcing that the French had been victorious in capturing the forts and batteries at the mouth of the Hue River after a brilliant land attack. The operations occurred on the 18th, 19th and 20th. Seven hundred Annames were killed during the engagement. The only casualties suffered by the French were several men slightly wounded. The gunboats Vipere and Lynx entered the Thuan passage. The French admiral granted a truce. A blockade has been declared.

KING LOUIS PHILIPPI II.

Great excitement prevails in Paris over placards posted in every section of the city, declaring the Count de Paris king of France. The police began to tear them down, as soon as they were discovered, but were greatly hindered in their efforts by the excited people. The Count de Paris is the eldest son of Ferdinand, Duke of Orleans, Louis Phillippi's eldest son, and is legally the head of the Orleans family. He is about 45 years of age, and a family favorite. He has traveled very extensively, and during the war of the rebellion in the United States he served on the staff of Gen. McClellan, and participated in the campaign against Richmond, in the siege of Yorktown, the battles of Williamsburg and Fair Oaks and in his retreat on the James river. He left the service in 1862 and retired to England, where he remained during the war of 1870-71. When the French republic arose from the ruins of the empire the Count de Paris was advised to renounce all ambitious projects which might tend to replace the house of Orleans on the throne of France. His private life after his return from America was singularly happy.

A TREATY OF PEACE.

A treaty of Peace between France and Annam has been signed, which provides for the complete recognition of a French protectorate over Annam and Tonquin; the definitive annexation of Dinthum to Cochinchina; the permanent military occupation by French of the Thuan and Vinhchua line; immediate recall of the Annamite troops from Tonkin and the garrisons there to be placed on a peace footing, and the return of the mandarins to their posts. France undertakes to expel the Black Flags from Tonquin, and thus insure safety to trade. The treaty further stipulates that France shall have the absolute control of the Annamite finances and customs, and that the French shall recognize Hiepheua as new King of Annam. The stipulation for a permanent military occupation by the French of the forts on the Thuan and Vinhchua line implies that a blockade of Tourane and Hue will be replaced by a minute inspection of all foreign arrivals.

A TERRIFIC GALE.

The fleet of United States fishing vessels, which arrived at St. Johns, N. B., a few nights ago, report a violent storm on the Great Banks. The gale rose from the eastward at 8 a. m., when hundreds of dories were away from the vessels overhauling the trawls. Capt. Hiller reports that scores of dories were turned upside down and wreckage strewn in every direction along his track coming westward. One French dory lost four dories and all their crews. It is computed from all sources of information that 100 dories and eighty men were lost in the storm. Most of the dories were swept by the waves from the schooner decks and the remainder collapsed in the sea.

A DETERMINED OFFICIAL.

Tieza, President of the Hungarian Council, in order to put a stop to outrages upon the Jews, has decided upon severe measures which are to be put in operation wherever anti Jewish riots occur. The measures provide that anyone who shall be executed within three hours after the sentence is imposed. The president has asked the government to either put a stop to the outbreak against the Jews or to accept his resignation.

Navigation in Strange Seas.

A well-known captain of a ship, residing in San Francisco, got home from a three months' voyage one night this week, and, as is his custom, surprised his wife and little family by letting himself in through the basement of his house with a latch key. The hour was ten of the night and the basement was dark. Unfortunately also, as a pleasant treat for his next trip, his better-half had been putting up preserved apricots, and had been putting up boxes. By a ship's chronometer, it took him thirteen seconds for that unhappy captain to kick against the boxes and get seventeen gallons of warm apricots in syrup all over his shirt front, vest, pants and down the back of his neck. Then he rushed dripping upstairs, dancing on the new carpets, and was met by his wife at the head of the stairs with: "O, Joe, my darling, back again home safe and sound!" He gave one yell that could have been heard by a man reefing the top-gallant sails of a full-rigged ship in a storm, and belloved: "Stand off, woman! stand off! I have fallen over a fruit canner in the blasted basement. I'm all treacle, molasses, bad jam and warm syrup. Unbend my new sails and let me get a hot bath," and he made a wild dive into the bathroom. —San Francisco News-Letter.

H. H. relates the following in the August Century, of the remnant of the Mission Indians of San Paequal, in California: "During the afternoon, the Indians were continually coming and going at the shop connected with the inn where we had stopped. Some four miles from the valley. The keeper of the shop and inn said he always trusted them. They were 'good pay.' 'Give them their time and they always pay, and if they die their relatives will pay the last cent.' Some of them he would 'trust any time as high as twenty dollars.'"

Some men are so anxious to deliver their impromptu remarks at public dinners that they commence talking before the eating begins. It is a mistake. A table speech should not be made until the hearers are in condition to receive everything said both witty and wise. —N. O. Picayune.

An Anti-Dualist.

There is a man in New Orleans who makes a good living as a compromiser of quarrels. He is a sharp lawyer, with a conciliatory temper and an oily tongue. While other men are stirring up strife he is turning away wrath—for a consideration. He made a great deal of money in the good old days, so fast, receding, when a duel before breakfast was as indispensable to the happiness of the Crescent City as fish on Friday. Hot with wine, two young bloods would quarrel. The lie would pass, and then a challenge. Now, you see things more clearly through the cool gray morning air than through the cigarette smoke of a cafe, and very often this clearness of vision comes while you look through the quivering blue atmosphere at the sparkling stars of the midnight sky. Hence it was that our friend the peace-maker was never out of a job. His title was "second," usually, but his business was to see that no necessity arose for his services as such. One case is a good sample. A young society man had called another society man a coward with the avowed purpose of making him fight a duel. Of course, both were well brandied when the insult was given. A challenge passed at once; but by the time it had been received Mr. Insulter had grown cool and cautious. He asked Mr. Compromise to act as his second.

"Now," said the latter, "to come to a point at once, do you want to fight?"

"Between ourselves," responded the young man, "I don't."

"Do you want to go on the field at all," asked the second; "because it will cost you more to get out of going on the field than to get out of the duel after you're once face to face."

"I don't want to go on the field at all," said the principal, "and I don't care what it costs to keep off."

"Very well," said the second; "now sit down and write just such an acceptance as I tell you to write."

"Acceptance?"

"Yes, certainly. Let me manage this affair," said the second, "in my own way. Now, write out an acceptance in the usual form, and put in for weapons rifles and for distance two paces."

"Why, that's muzzle to breast; murder outright!" exclaimed the principal.

"Write what I tell you," said the second.

When it was written the second carried it himself to the second of the challenger.

"Why, this is butchery," said the latter second; "butchery in cold blood. Neither man could possibly survive."

"Then do I understand that you wish to negotiate?" asked the other in a bland tone.

"Certainly do," said the challenger's second.

"Very well, very well; I'll see about it," said the challenged party's second.

Of course, that duel never came off. —Philadelphia Record.
