MURDERED WHILE ON DUTY.

Another Detroit Policeman Shot--A Cold Blooded Murder.

Detroit was the scene of another cold-blooded murder on the evening of November 28, when Patrolman Alonzo E. Bullard was shot by George Wilson, whom Bullard was trying to arrest. The murder was a most terrible one and is all the more horrible in its consequences when it is known that the murdered man leaves a wife and three little ones in destitute circum-

The crime for which Wilson was wanted was the theft of a barrel of oil, and the oil had been tracked to Wilson's house by Builard The facts were reported to headquarters, and Bul lard detailed by his chief to investigate and make arrests. It is probable Wilson knew that Bullard was wat him him and came out that Bullard was watching him, and came out of the house where he was secreted with a shot gun to frighten the officer away. Two men were with Wilson when he was seen by neighbors after the fatal shot had been fired.

Wilson succeeded in making his escape. The police board took speedy action in the matter. Officers were at once put on his track, and after searching for him all night, the next morning were enable to trace him to Petite Cote, Ont., where he was soon after arrested. He offered no resistance and voluntarily crossed the river to Detroit, and was lodged in the Central Station. Threats of lynching were freely made, and an extra guard was placed on duty. Wilson was interviewed by a re-porter, and denied any knowledge of the crime and when asked his defence he said he was under the influence of liquor, and did not know what he was doing.

This crime, following so quickly after the assassination of George C. Kimbali causes great excitement in the city.

Patrolman Builard was about 35 years of age. He was appointed on the police force on April 23 last and assigned to Trumble Avenue Precinct. His record during his short term in the department is a good one. His superior officers say that he was a trustworthy man who has given good satisfaction; never shirking duty and doing it conscientiously. The deceased lately joined the insurance society with in the department, from each of the members of which the widow will receive $5.

Beath of Ex-Governor Greenly.

Ex Governor Greenly died in Eaton Rapids Thanksgiving morning, aged 70 years. William L. Greenly was born at Hamilton, Madison Co., N. Y., September 18, 1813, and graduated from Union College at the early age of 18. Two years later he was admitted to the bar at Albany, N. Y., and practiced law in Eaton, Madison Co., until 1836, when he went to Adrian, and has ever since been a highly esteemed citizen of this state. In the fall of 1837 he was nominated for the legislature by the Democrats, but was defeated by James Fields. In the following year his party nominated him for state senator in the district composed of Monroe, Lenawee and Hillsdale counties, and elected him by a large majority. So faithfully did he represent his constituents that he was re-elected in 1841. In 1846 he was given the second place on the Democratic state. ticket, and with Aipheus Felch for governor, carried the party banner to victory. On the 1st of March, 1847, Gov. Felch was elected to the United States senate, and Lieut.-Gov. Greenly became acting governor of the state, a position he occupied until the following January. Subsequently, for twelve years, he held the office of a justice of the peace in Lenawee county, and in 1858 was mayor of Adrian. Gov. Greenly leaves but one child, Marshal H Green'r, of Elkhart, Ind.

"Brave Kate Shelley."

The presentation made, a few days ago, by a committee of the Iowa legislature, of a special gold medal to Kate Shelley, at Boone, in that state, was made the occasion of a mammoth celebration, comprising a procession, speeches, music and a banquet.

Kate Shelley is now 18. About dusk on the night of July 6, 1881, a terrible storm broke over that section of Iowa The Des Moines river rose six feet in an hour. The hurricane blew down houses and carried away every portable object. The window of Kate's home afforded a view of Honey creek railroad bridge, and looking out she saw a train go down into the abyss below. No one was at hands and wish she were a man to brave the storm. She knew the sufferers must need assistance, and that the next train must be warned. So she lighted a lantern, donned a waterproof cleak, and faced the pouring rain, the lurid lightening, and the unknown dangers of Leader says that in this nineteenth centhe storm, and painfully climbed the steep bluff to the track. Going out on the remaining portion of the bridge she waveg her lantern andcalled out loudly. and was answered by the engineer of the lost freight train, the sole survivor, who had managed to crawl upon some of the bridge timbers, He urged her to hasten to the nearest station and give suring to the philosoper than it is comwarning to the coming express train. Retracing her steps, Kate then proceeded to Moingona, about a mile distant. Before her journey's end lay the high about 500 feet long. Just as she reached it her lantern was blown out, But in pitchy darkness, save for the flashes of ightning, she crossed over on her hands and knees, crawling from tie to tie. Then rapidly running the short distance remaining she arrived in time. The express train and its passengers PROHIBITION has made great advances in Georgia within a few years. In order to ascertain just what the existing situation was in that respect The Atlanta Constitution recently addressed to country officers a circular which has elicited replies from 125 of the 137 counties in the state. From these responses it appears that total prohibition obtains in fifty-five counties and partial prohibition in thirty-six; while from twentyfive come reports that the prohibition movement has either been defeated or is regarded with indifference.

> F. C. Mason of Cleveland, Ohio, has in his possession a watch on whose dial twenty-four hours are marked instead of the usual-twelve. And the Leader of that city gives the following interesting account of its origin: "Mr. Mason's uncle, Colonel G. W. Mason, was in command of a regiment of soldiers stationed at Harper's Ferry in 1864. The commanding general ordered him to move at 4 o'clock on a certain day and attack the enemy. The order simply said 4 o'clock, and Colonel Mason, thinking it meant 4 o'clock in the afternoon, marched forward at that hour and began killing off the rebels. The Union soldiers, however, were defeated, and the commanding officer was courtmartialed for not ordering Mason and his men to the front at an earlier hour. Mason said the order read 4 o'clock and he moved accordingly. The commanding officer said he meant 4 a. m., instead of p m., and there being a clear misunderstanding, the charge was withdrawn. Colonel Mason afterward sent to an eastern factory and had made a twenty-four o'clock watch, which he said would do away with all mistakes. and which he carried during the remainder of the war."

The Government and the Tele-

Cincinnatti Times-Star.

Under the impulse of the strike last summer there arose a loud cry that the government should take charge of the telegraph system of the country, and operate it as a public institution. This cry at the time seemed to express public sentiment, but as it was an uninformed sentiment it was susceptible of change upon the presentation of arguments supported by facts apon the other side of the question; and this will undoubt edly be the result of the publication of an article by Dr. Nervin Gree in the November number of the North American Review.

Dr. Green undertakes to answer the questions, "Can the government acquire, own and operate a general system of telegraphy for commercial uses under the limited powers of the constitution? If so, is there any necessity for or probable advantage to be derived from such an undertaking by the government?" And are there not grave political reasons why the government should not assume and control this imand the wall of the fort, and the enemy portant medium of ready and rapid communication? and he answers them

The article opens with a statement that it does not necessarily follow that because European Governments have monopolized the telegraph within their behind the fort, but soon observed domains the United States may lawfully do so, a fact which many seem not to have thought of. This is a constitutional government, and the very of course of no use. I threw mine object of the constitution is to define away, and began to gain on him. The clauses of the Constitution which it is claimed give the Governkind of refuge from my pursuer. I did ment the power to assume and connot observe that only the tops of the trees | trol the telegraph are continued in appeared, nor reflect that there must Section 8 of Article 1, and read: "To be a steep descent on this side. When, establish post offices and post roads," I reached the spot I discovered that it and "To regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several States and with Indian tribes." Dr. Green clearly shows that under neither of these grants can the telegraph be operated by the Government. "If the power is assumed under the postal grant," he says, "then the hire the transmission of messages taken at and delivered from the post offices, as it hires the carrying of mails by contract on the best terms it can make. The government does not carry the mails. It hires others to cary them, and has always done so. It has never up even a stone or stick to throw or claimed the power to build or own railstrike with. We then began to make roads, or steamboats, or even stage selves from the mud. He, I observed, their operation to carry on the postal seemed to work to no effect, while I service. But it is now assumed that the felt my shoes loosen a little under my government may build or own a telefeet, and then I recollected that he was graph, equip it for operation, and embarefooted, and that my shoes light ploy a numerous staff of officers and now give me some advantage. But the telegraph the bank, where I was soon out of instead of being in any degree like the postal service, has been distinctly de-"I ran and walked till I was tired, clared by the Supreme Court of the then lay down and slept. Nor can the government possess the power to control the telegraph under the clause giving congress "power to merciai centers, more than half the business of any telegraph station is done with offices within a radius of 100 miles and within the state, and as to business of this class, the supreme court has held that it is not even "subject to the regulation of congress. The power to regulate does not mean, and never was intended to mean, the power to own the plant and carry on a commercial business between the states, and much less to conduct a local traffic within a state, out was intended to prevent the imposition of a tax or other hindrance, in order that trade between the states should be maintained free and without incumbrance. "If the government can appropriate the telegraph," says Dr Green, "and enter upon commercial traffic in this important branch of business, it may also assume to own the railroads shop also. For every one of the fiftytwo millions of people is personally interested in the supply and low price of bread. while there are not half a million in the whole population that ever did u-e the telegraph."

Dr. Green also shows that as a matchessboard on which the freshly-dissected heart of the Emperor was placed. George Vanderbilt has literary and George Vand an average of less than one mile of fact to some extent have the fever themline for each 1 000 of population in selves. Europe, the people of this country number of offices, rapidity of transmis-sion and delivery, accuracy and cost The average time of transmission, Trom minute of filing in one to re from twenty-five to seventy-five cents. Dr. Green believes that there is danger to the people in the Government controling the telegraph. It would not only double the power by way of patronage, of the Post Office Department, but would give the administration party immense advantages in warmly contested elections.

Sooner or later, too, there might be an espionage of telegrams instituted; and even were the service administered with the most sacred impartiality and inviolability of the privacy of the messages, the opposing party would never believe it was so administered, and would not venture to use it in the private arrangements for the prosecution as a specific disease which actually exof the contest.

A sickness among cattle answering to the description of what is now called fever, Spanish fever, splenic fever and try of the world. bloody murrain, appeared at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, as long ago as 1796. It was afterwards known in North Caralina and other states which brought cattle from the regions of the gulf, and local laws were made to prevent its spread as early as 1837, but it was not sufficiently prevalent to attract any general attention until the year 1853, when people were beginning to look to the grazing fields west of the Mississippi for a supply of beeves for the eastern market. At that time the disease ap peared in Missouri in the track of a herd of about 450 head of Texan cattle, or "Spanish cattle," as they were then called, they being descendants of the old Spanish stock that was brought into Mexico. The herd had been driven into the state from Texas in the fall of 1852 and wintered in one of the southern counties. In the early part of June following the drove were started for the market, apparently healthy and in good order, and they proceeded slowly, stopping at intervals for pasturage by the way. Early in July the fever broke out along the road traveled by this herd, and it prevailed with great malignity until checked by the autumnal frost. The disease reappeared the next year in the wake of other droves, and so continued to return annually with more or less severity until the war cut of all movements of cattle from the south. From 1860 to 1866 no Texas cattle went through Missouri, and there was no fever in that region, nor had it at any time been propagated from one northern herd to another. In 1866 and 1867 the Texan cattle were again passing through the state, and tke ravages of the fever in Missouri were something terrible, single counties losing in several instances stock valued at from $300,000 to $500,000. There was also some loss from the fever in Iowa and Kansas, but the disease did not cross the Mississippi till 1868, when cattle that had been brought up the river by steamboat were shipped northward by the Illinois Central railroad and so distributed through the state and especially concentrated at the Chicago stock yards. The shipments began about the first of June, and by the middle of July the fever scourge had become the greatest that ever was known. The loss in Illinois alone was estimated at $2,000,-000. Commissioners were appointed by that state and by Indiana, Ohio, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut who undertook seperate investigations and canie to widely different conclusions as to the origin of the disease, but were agreed as to the means to be taken to prevent its spread. The remedy was the exclusion or isolation of the southern herds

Captain Mayne Reid.

Captain Mayne Reid, the charming novelist, whose ta'es have afforded so much of pleasure and instruction to all, died at his residence in London, Eng., a few days ago, aged 65 years.

Captain Mayne Re'd was born in the North of Ireland in 1818. His father was a Presbyterian clergyman whose labors among the poor people of his native country have been highly spoken of. Captain Reid was educated for the ministry, but his love of adventure and desire for foreign travel soon led him to throw aside his theological studies and seek a more congenial occupation, From his youth he was fond of books. The stories which he read of America and its resources caused a desire to visit this country. When only twenty years of age he sailed for New Orleans, where he began life as a trader. His business interests were of such a nature that he was obliged to make long journeys into the interior of the country. He made friends with the Indians of the Red River territory, and spent many mouths in learning their customs and enjoying the scenery of their picturesque camping grounds. Night after night he sat with the braves about their blazing campfires, and listened to the legends and tales of the medicine men. It was from these Indians that he obtained the materials for those well-known stories, "The Scalp Hunters" and "The White

After spending five years upon the prairies and among the mountains of the western and southern States he set; tled in Philadelphia, where he began to contribute to the newspapers and mag-azines stories and sketches of travel. When the Mexican War broke out in 1845 he obtained a commission in the United States Army and served during the entire campaign. A few years later he sailed from New York at the head of a body of volunteers for the purpose of aiding the Hungarians in their struggle for independence. The party had hardly arrived in Paris when Captain Reid received intelligence that the Hungarians had been compelled to lay down their arms. The volunteers were dismissed and their leader took up his abode in London, where he soon began to attract public attention by his thrilling stories of Western adventure. Novel after novel came from his pen in rapid succession. : The Rifle Rangers; or Thrilling Adventures in Southern Mexico." his first work appeared in 1850. Following this came the "Scalp Hunters," "The English Family Robinson" and "The Deserted Home." His books found great favor among the boys and young men of England. Among his later stories are "The Young Voyageurs," "The White Chief" "The Wood Rangers," "The Tiger Hunter,"
"Cliff Climbers," "Boy Slaves," and
"Afloat in the Forest." Captain Rei started a daily paper in London called The Little Times, but the venture was a financial failure. In January, 1369, he started a monthly magazine bearing the title Onward. It was published for a few months and was then suspended. The last few years of his life were devoted to magazine writing. Among his most recent literary work was a series of sketches published in The New York Tribune under the general title of "Rural Life in England.

While returning to this place last Thursday evening, we were pleased to see the actions of two young men who, with a lady boarded the train at Ann Arbor. Both y. m. wanted to pay the lady's fare, and it took the conductor several minutes to decide which was the lady's escort. They attended the party at this place.

The Ypsilantian will, about Dec. 15th, issue about 50,000 copies of a monthly edition of that paper. The enormity of the undertaking will be better comprehended when it is understood that it will take a ton and a half of paper, and would take any office in Ann Arbor at least three days to do the printing. The Evening News as sociation will do the press work.

A Pleasant Re-Union.

Allow me a small space in your valuable paper, as one of its patrons, and knowing well that you enjoy a good time and desire all mortals to have the same, I am enboldened to give you in brief, an account of a good time a number of us had at the home of our townsman, C. H. Wines, esq., on the 24th ult. It was the "silver lining" to many who "Lang Syne" started with our host on the voyage of life and Oh! how many were the associations it brought besh to mind as each familiar face greeted our vision. Friends of our youth, manhood, and in the declining years doubly dear. How many have been spared these many years and have grown, as it were, into our very nature time with its remorseless tooth can not eat away. Some have passed beyond our kin, but are graven upon the tablets of our memory, and as our host gave us a few incidents of his life, we felt that that was indeed a sacred spot to him. Five generations have held the old homestead, or as he expressed it; "He thought at times as his days declined, he would seek a home somewhere else. But would it be home?" And our hearts voiced the feeling, No. Then our hostess, who came among us a few brief years ago, spoke her feelings of love and friendship for those among whom her lot had been all we felt that the feeling was reciprocal, and that friendships of true worth were like "apples of gold, set in pictures of silver." All were happy. The joke and repartee went round and no one would have supposed that with but-two or three ex-UTKEYS ceptions, we were all on the western slope of life. Silvered brows forgot they were no longer young, but were like an ancient people; "We sat down to eat and rose up to play." As the gathering darkness came down we bid our host and hostess goodbye with the wish that the setting sun of their lives might gild their home with beams as beautiful as those as the king of day left behind as he sank to rest behind

After an Exciting and Hothy Contest, ed Struggle.

The Democratic members elect of the Forty-ighth Congress assembled in the hall of the louse on the evening of Dee mber 1st, for the purpose of non-inating candinates to fill the various elective offices. The caucus was called to order by Gen. Rosencrans. Mr. Gedues, of Ohio, was chosen chairman of the caucus, and after the app inting of a secretary and tellers, the regular work of the caucus was at one entered upon. One hundred and eight members responded to the roll-call. The balloting was conducted on the rice roce plan. John G. Carisle, of Kentucky, was the first candidate before the caucus, and Samuel J. Randall and S. S. Cox following in the order named. Two ballots were taken, the first of which gave Carisle. 101 yours and on the second ballot. Cartisle 101 votes, and on the second ballot 107 votes were coni ted for him. His nomination was declared unanimous, and acknowledged amid dealeuing applause. The other contest-ants accepted their delest very gracefully. So-large and unanimous a vote makes the election of Carlisle an assured fact.

The candidates for the minor offices were then placed in nomination. John B. Clark of Missouri was chosen clerk; John B. Leedom of Onio, sergeant-at-arms; J. G . Wintersa ith of Texas, door-keeper; Lycurgus Da ton of Indiana, postmaster; Rev. George S. Lindsay, of Georgetown, D. C., chaplain. At 12:30 a. m., the cau, cus adjourned sine die.

ALBANY IN ASHES.

A fire completely destroyed Albany, situated near the eastern line of Green county, Wisconsin. The flames were first discovered at 1 o'clock in the morning and spread rapidly. sweeping away before them every business building in the place, including the postoffice and two newspaper offices. There were no adequate facilities for fighting the progress of the fire, and it made such rapid headway that a number of people barely escaped with their lives from burning buildings, and Will Roberts, Charles Roberts and Fred Roberts were severely burned in making their escape from the building occupied by them. Edward Dodge, a young man, was crushed by falling timbers, and Thomas Denman, John Samuel, Thos. Grosvenor, Chas. Mathele and Thos. Felloway were probably fatally injured from the same cause. The weather was at zero and the suffering of many of the town people is great. Fifty thousand hollars erry in the business part of the town was

THE FIRE FIEND.

The Farwell block, the largest business building of Chicago was seriously damaged by fire a few days ago. The flames were confined to the upper stories, and but for the heavy fire wall running through it, the building would have been entirely destroyed. The fire was confined to Nos. 168 and 170 Market street, the three lower floors of which were occupied by Metz er Bros. notion dealers., and the four up per floors by Beak & Bueher, furriers. The latter firm emoloyed nearly 200 girls, all but about seventy-five of whom had gone home when the fire was discovered. Those remaining in the building became aware of the approach of the flames by the smoke, seeking its way from the lower floores, where the fire orignated. A panic ensued among the young women and their terror increased by discovering the main doorway leading to the lower floors lock ed and barred. They made their way back to the fifth floor, and a number made their way along the window ledge on the outside of the building to a point beyond one of the protecting fire walls into an adjoining store. Two young women, Nettie Hilgert and Frances 'airweather, made their way to the fire escape, but through terror at viewing the flames bursting from the building immediately below, dropbed to the stone sidewalk, and were both instant wkilled. Great confusion reigned in and about the building for sometime, when a statement was made that all the remaining employes had escaped from the structure, but as the upper floors were filled with a dense volume of smoke, and as the firemen had been unable to make a search, fears were entertained that further loss of life had occurred. A few hours later the Evening Journal building on Dearborn street, was discovered to be on fire, and before the flames were gotten under control, the building was entirely gut ed The loss by the two fires aggregate nearly $400,000.

At a quarter past S the other evening she was abducted from the door yard of David Huff, at whose house she boarded, and was not found until 10 o'clock the next night. A few minutes after she was missed from the room members of the Huff family called her, and, not finding the girl, instituted search, which was kept up by the neighbors all night. Hundreds turned out and at last she was found, covered with straw, near a stack, 400 yards from the house. She was unconscious, but has partially re-covered, and says when she stepped out into the yard two men grabbed her, and choked her, and carried her off, saying they intended to ravish her, and also asked her for money. # NEW ENGLAND FIEND'S WORK

A Parallel to the Summit Murder Enacted in New Hampshire.

The inhabitants of Laconia, New Hamp shire, were startled the other morning by the story of a frightful tragedy enacted within their midst. About four o'clock in the morning S. S. Andrews was awakened by a woman's screams, and immediately aroused his son, with whom he hurried to the house of James Ruddy, a neighbor, from which the screams proceeded Here, lying on the ground under the front window of the house, they found Mrs. Ru'dy, her body terribly backed and bleeding profusely. After properly caring for the wounded woman and summoning additional aid, the door of Ruddy's house was forced open, when flames burst forth. An alarm of fire was sounded and the flames extinguished, when an examination of the premises led to the discovchild (aged 18 months) of Mrs. Ruddy lying on the kitchen floor, both cut in a terrible manner and covered with bedding that had been sa'urated with keros ne and fired. They were so badly disfigured by the fire as to be almost unrecognizable. Horrible as were the discoveries thus far made, the horror of the neighbors was still further intensified on further search. In a bed room they found the trunk of the lifeless body of a woman. Here another attempt to obliterate traces of the crime by fire had been made, the bed clothing having been saturated with oil and piled upon the body; but the match that was applied to it had failed to ignite it, thus leaving the horror exposed. One of her legs had been chopped off, and with the remaining leghad been bound to body with a clother-line. A Mr. Ford was among those who entered the house, and he at once recognized the remains as those of

The coroner was summoned and a jury impaneled, when Mrs. Ruddy was examined and made her statement of what she knew of the tragely. She testified that the family, including herself, husband and child, also Thomas Samon, an Englishman and acquaintance, retired about 9 o'clock the previous nigh.. Continuing she said: "At 11 o'clock Samon came into the front room and looked out of the window, saying he was nervous and could not sleep I got up and made him a cup of tea and went back to bed. At 4 o'clock Samon again came into the front room and acted queerly, then went back into the kitchen. My husband and I got up, and he also went into the kitchen. I soon heard a fall, and going out found my husband hanging over a chair, with his arms down. Samon started for me, and struck me with a hatchet on the head. grabbed his arm, but he then struck me and threw me to the floor. He went into the front room and killed the baby, who was crying. While he was there I tried to unlock the kitchen door, but he returned again and struck me on the head, knock ing me down. I laid perfectly quiet. He went back into the front room and got baby and then came back and poured feathers and straw over us and went out I got up and tried to open the front window, but could not. I then broke a pane of glass and jumped through. He was very nervous in the kitchen nearly all

THE VERDICT-ARREST OF SAMON.

The corroner's jury rendered a verdict that Mrs. Ford, Mr Ruddy and the latter's child came to their d aths at the hands of Thomas Samon, and the alleged murderer was arrested near Plymouth, about 22 miles from the scene of the tragedy. He did not resist arrest and was jailed at Plymouth. He denied all know edge of the affair. suspicion existing against Ford, the murdered woman's husband, he was also arrested and held at Laconia. At Ford's and Samon's there was no evidence of Mrs. Ford's murder, and it is thought her death was accidental at Sam m's hands; that wishing to conceal the body ne t ok it to Ruddy's, whence, perhaps, he thought he could carry it from the ouse during the night; that Ruday refused to assist hun, when a struggle ensued. The sup position is that Mrs Ford died either from trangulation or drugging, as she frequently indulged in strong drink.

THE VICTUMS

James Ruddy was an employe of the Laconia car works, about 40 years of age; his wife, is 36 years of age, and, as before stated, the r child was 18 months old. Mrs Ford was about the same age as Mrs. Ruddy. The hatchet with which the crime was probably committed was found in the river.

NEW JERSEY'S VICTIM. A special dispatch to the Chicago News from Newark, N. J., dated Noy 25 says: John a htman, a farmer living on the Eagle Rock road near West Orange, saw a trail of blood and traces of a severe struggle on the roadside this morning, while returning from church. He also noticed blood stains on the rocks and grass leading to the underbrush ir the fields on one side of the road, and closer scrutiny showed unmistakable evidence that the grass had been trampled upon, or that a heavy body had been dragged over it. Following the blood stains about sixty feet to a clump of bushes, he found the dead body of a young and comely gir. with a frightful gash in the left side of her neck and two wounds in her right side. He saw that the wound had been made by a very dull knife, as the cut was jagged on the edges. After the farmers and others, residents of the valley and on the magnitude, were aroused by Wachtman, the body was identified as that of Phobe Jane Paullin, daughter of David Paullin, a shoemaker, living at Roseland. Saturday after noon she vent to Orange to make some purchases. As she did not return home that evening her parents were not alarmed, as she had informed them if she was delayed after nightfall, she would remain at the residence of Anderson, who lived at the first mountain a short distance from Orange. It is believed that while on her way to Anderson's house, after being delayed in Orange longer than she expected, she was either followed by a ruffian searchers calling for the girl. Officers and men are now scouring the country for the filians. Miss Purviance describes the men. One is talk about 50 years old, and has a smooth face. The other is short and heavy-

She was a respectable, quiet and virtuous girl, and was a popular belle at harvest dances and social house parties. parties. Her parents never heard her speak of any person having annoyed her, and it is therefore thought that she was waylaid by a tramp who murdered her because she resented his attempt to assault her. RAL SCOTT'S DEED.

Ral Scott, of Eaton, Ind., about 12 miles from Nuncie, has been separated from his wife nearly two years. He returned the other day, and tried to persuade his wife to live with him. Unsuccessful in this, he stabled his wife, killed his little boy, and took a dose of morphine, from the effect of which he died.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

WAR INEVITABLE.

Indications multiply that Eugland is con-vinced that war between France and China is inevitable. Preparations to protect British interests in China during the expected hostilities are being made rapidly and openly. Orders have been is-ued to speedily refit and make ready for service several men of-war at Sheer ness, and the mechanics in the government shipyards there are working night and day.

O'DONNELL'S TRIAL.

The case against O'Donnell for the murder of Carev, the informer, was opened in London on the 30th of November Au immense crowd was pr. sent, yet the proceedings were remarkably quiet. The principal interest centered on the testimony of the wife and son of the murdered man The testimony of the son was very contradictory. Mrs. Carcy re-iterates the statements made by her at the preliminary examination that O'Donnell exclaimed, "I was sent to do it."

An accident occurred on a rai'road in course of construction near St. Meen, France, and 18 persons were instantly killed and 15 others seriously injured.

How To Fall Asleep.

Chamber's Journal.

A had often noticed that when engage ed in deep thought, particularly a night, there seemed to be something like a compression of the eyelids, the upper ones especially and the eyes themselves were apparently turned upward, as if looking in that direction. This invariably occurred; and the moment that. by an effort, I arrested the course o thought, and freed the mind from the subject with which it was engaged. the eyes resumed their mormal position and the compression of the lids ceased. Now it occurred to me one night that I would not allow the eyes to turn upward, but keep them determinedly in the opposite position, as if looking down; and havng done so for a short time, I found that the mind did not revert to the thoughts with which it had been occu pied, and I soon fell asleep. I tried the plan again with the same result; and after an experience of two years, I can truly say that, unless when something specially annoving or worrying occurred I have always been able to go to sleep very shortly after retiring to rest. There may occasionly be some difficulty in keeping the eyes in the position I havedecribed, but a determinded effort to do so is all that is required, and I am certain that if kept in the down-looking posttion it will be found that composure and steep will be the result.

It may be said that as the continued effort to keep the eyeballs in a certain position so diverts the attention as to tree the mind from a disagreeable subject with which it had been engaged, sleep will follow as a natural consequence. It is not improbable that this is to some extent correct; and if so, it well that by means so simple and so easily adopted, such a desirable result can be secured. But I think this is not the only nor the principle reason. The position in which the eyes should be kept is the natural ono; they are at ease in it; and when there is no compression of the lids or knitting of the brows, the musel - connecte I with and surrounding the eyes are retaxed. This is the condition is much more favorable for siee than for mental activity or neep thought

Peter Cooper's Sympathy with Women.

Mrs. Susan N. Carter, the head of the Woman's Art School of the Cooper Institute, contributes an anecdotal paper to the December Century, in which she says of Mr. Cooper's aims: "All I want," he said, "is, that these poor women shall earn decent and respectable livings, and especially that they shall be kept from marrying bad husbands " "This subject of unhappy marriages seemed to be a very prominent one in Mr. Cooper's mind. That women were often imposed upon, were ill-used and by the present plan, to about forty broken down, he had a Wvely conviction; and all his chivalry and sense of fatherly protection were enli-ted to save them, so far as he could, from these ordinary misfortunes. While the world is now occupied with the question of what women can be taught, their "higher education," and many kindred subjects, Mr. Cooper's acute genius discovered, as by int i ion, many years ago, the relation of woman of the middle class to society, to industries, and the family. He saw that many of them could not marry, and he realized what must be the forlorn position of a number of elderly daughters of a poor man. He had noted the dangerous likelthood of giddy, ignorant young girls marrying anybody for a home, even if the men they married were dissipated or inefficient; and he had the tenderest pity for poor widows or deserted wives. He talked many times, and at great length, on these subjects, and all circum-tances and any sort of incident brought up this desire of his heart, to help women to be happy, independent, and irtuous.

"One of the last times he was at the school, and while a celebrated New York clergyman was giving a course of Lenten lectures to women, Mr. Cooper, with his face all animated with his feeling about it said: 'Dr. --- is of the wealtny class, and he has been used to deal with wealthy women. The world does not look like the same place to him that it does to me. If he could be in my place for a month, and read the letters I get from poor and suffering women, he would think that it would be best to have them taught anything which they could learn to enable them to lessen all this trouble.""

Explanation of Standard Time as Applied to Railroads.

H. C. Townsend, general passenger agent of the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company has prepared the following explanation of the new standard time, which went into effect on all the roads in the United States and Canada, on Sunday, November 18:

The convention of railway managers, held in the city of St. Louis on the 11th of April last, followed up in a few days by one in New York City, witnessed the culmination of a reform in the adjustment of time to the railway interests of the country, which will stand in all future as a striking event of our progressive civilization. It is a signal proof as well, that the railways of the courtry are the most potent factors of that civilization. To the fact, that in their distributive forces and influences, in a quarter of a century, they have made the people of the country homogeneous, breaking through the peculiarities and provincialisms which marked, separated and unmingling sections, must now be added the additional and significant fact, that they have been instrumental in furnishing a uniform standard of time, which with ease and simplicity can be adapted to every portion of the The innovation, or as it might be properly termed, the revolution, was regarded at the outset as not only unnecessary but ridiculous. The thoughtful minds of the country, however, that were charged with the responsible business of rail transportation, moved by considerations of safety to the millions of lives committed to their charge, and warned by the confusion and disasters resulting from varying and conflicting standards, saw the necessity of a ch. nge, and have advanced their views to an intelligent conclusion. Those having the important matter in hand, departing from all previous points from which computations of time were made, ignor ing, for railway uses, even Washington and Greenwich time, adopted the simple idea of fixing the necessary divisions of standard time between longitudinal lines fifteen degrees, or in point of fact. almost exactly one hour apart. The meridians adopted are 60°, 75°, 90°, 105°, and 120°. west from Greenwich. The 75th, or eastern line, passes through Central New York, East Pennsylvania near Philadelphia, striking the ocean at Cape May. The 90th, or central line. passes through Wisconsin, Western Illinois, near St. Louis, West Tennessee, Mississippi, and near New Orleans to the gulf. The 105th, or mountain line, passes through the far western, and the 120th through the Pacific states and territories The difference of time extending through these sixty degrees of longitude is about five hours, and the stand ard time from terminal railway points in each upon which calculations and adjustments are made by the change adopted, are comprehended in the uniform space of 30 minutes, which will be. also the greatest difference between local and standard time. The value of the charge may be estimated from a consideration of the fact, that under the old system, standards, for east and west bound trains from the same cities, varied all the way from twenty-three to thirty-six minutes.

Again, by the former methods of time adjustments, the varying standards touched or crossed each other at about three hundred points; this is reduced. points. The central division, embraces nearly ninety per cent. of all the railways of the country, and while, through out the whole system, the standards are reduced from about fifty to five, in this limit, they are reduced from forty Comparison could be made for all cities, but for illustration, compared with the local time of St. Louis and Chicago, that of the new system will be one minute faster than the former, and nine minutes slower than the lat-

As the new system thus advantaeously affects the general railway interests of the country, it is scarcely necessary to add, that the officials of the great southwest system have been active and unceasing in their efforts to promote its adoption, all the roads embraced in it being represented in the various meetings hitherto held, and which are yet to be held for its perfec-

To Marry Into a Famous Family.

The princess Victoria, second daughter of the German crown prince and grand daughter of Queen Victoria, is about to marry into a famous house Prince Leopold of Anhalt, the bride groom elect, descends from Albert, the Bear, and less remotely from that "old Dessauer" with whom readers of Car lyle's Frederick are so well acquainted. Leopold, prince of Anhalt Dessau, and field marshal in the armies of Frederick William and Frederick II., was no common man. He invented the iron ramrod; he invented the equal step; in fach, he is the inventor of modern military tactics. The soldiery of every civilize country still receives from this mam of parade fields and battle fields, its word of comma.id; out of his rough head proceeded the essential of all that the innumerable drill sergeants, in various languages, daily repeat and enforce. The old Dessauer further distinguished derived the reigning line of Anhalt.

It's All a Mistake-About Women Liking to Shop.

Among the minor social beliefs long ago elevated to a point of orthodoxy is the notion that women enjoy shopping for itself, irrespective of utility or necessity. Yet had the time spent in joking over this armale penchant, if put into practical observation, might convince the average inale that this well-established belief covered a fallacy. The daily thronged shops need not be so very misleading if one considers that everything and everybody, from the oldest household article to the newest baby must come under oversight of the presiding woman, and that, by no means, are all women endowed in a manner to cope with and make easy the manifold duties they have to perform. Thousands of women know they must have something for this, that and the other thing or person, without knowing what they can have; and they haunt elties will suggest some compromise between their necessities and the limit of their expenditure. But they find this task anything but a pleasure. Even that type of woman which haunts the newly-furnished shops from idle, restless curiosity—a type, by the way, more rare than is generally supposed she who, when at home, is always overhauling, fussing and revamping, through sheer lack of concentrative and trained faculty, even she does not quite love it. Her rasped and harassed nerves, when she comes home, gainsay the supposition. Indeed, no other purely feminine work, except, perhaps, sewing, at all compares with shopping, for using up a woman's nervous force.

Virginia Mountaineers. . .

Unless my geography has gone back on me right smart. I am in the midst of the Apalachian range. That has a foreign sound and reads well. If I should say it was in the heart of the Alleghanies everybody would know it was only a couple of hundred miles away from home. It is nearly 3,000 feet above tide-water, this settlement. All around it are high peaks and towering hills. The valleys are deep, and the natives are free as air. They go and come when they please. None of the little hindrances of civilization interfere with their enjoyment. They toil not, neither do they spin! They hunt b'arseraise cattle, chew tobacco, and run their face at the grocery. There are no constraints, and there is no soap. Put one of these mountain natives in New York; where he would occasionally meet another man in the streets, and he would pine away and die. They never shave, never black their boots, never have their hair cut, | The Dr. S. A. Richmond Med. Co., Prop., St. Joseph, Mo. never let their left cheek grow lonesome for want of a quid, never refuse a drink, and I am dead certain they never wash. Yet only the other day I saw one of the most uncouth of them, in speaking to a woman unkempt as himself, take off his hat like a courtier. They are a queer mixture of bears and gentlemen, these Virginia mountaineers, and with their surroundings of wilderness and rocks and mountains, they not only have many good stories to tell, but are almost always able to tell them well.

The exposure of the utter worthlessness of the large packs of horse and cattle powders has saved our people a yast sum. There is only one kind now known that are strictly pure and these are Sheridan's. Dont throw away your

Blasting.

Through the kindness of Messrs. Wood & Campbell we had the pleasure last Saturday of witnessing the blasting with dynamite, of a stone in Dr. Champlin's yard, about the diameter of a wagon wheel and thirty inches through.

When we arrived, we found Mr. Campbell drilling a hole into the stone, and upon inquiring where the explosive was, were told, "It is now in Mr. C's pocket to keep it from freezing!" The powder (dynamite) has the appearance of pine saw dust intermingled with white specks, which are the explosives, the whole having a greasy appearance. Only a small charge was used, as it was too near residences for a large or common charge. The powder is put in a little at a time and firmly packed. When the cavity is about half filled, a percussian cap is attached to the fuse, placed in the aperture and the packing is continued until the charge is complete. About thirty seconds elapsed from the time the fuse was ignited until the explosion took place which shattered the rock which had been there for ages, into nice building stone, and threw fragments a hundred feet high. A bag filled with straw which was left on the stone was torn in shreds, showing what a terrible thing it would be for a man to be near it when the explosion took place, The gentlemen received two dollars for removing the stone which certainly increases the value of the lot ten dollars. We should think farmers would employ these men te blow out stumps and stones which are a nustance to them every year both in plewing and harvesting.

The Finest Dry Goods Store

CENTRAL MICHIGAN

Old Mammoth, at Jackson.

This store has been re-fitted at a large expense and is now being filled with NEW, FIRST-CLASS merchandise.

For many years it has been the rule of the former proprietors, Camp, Morrill & Camp, to sell nothing but first-class goods and under no circumstances allow any salesman to missrepresent. As it is my desire to continue the business, and wishing to increase the sales largely, I shall sell all goods at the lowest possible profit and at any time goods lief, think of Kemp's Balsam for the bought from my establishment that are not as represented, may be returned and I will cheerfully refund the money. I buy all my goods gor Cash and sell them for Cash, and as my store is the best lighted of any in the new lot of sewing machine needles, and State, the customer can see exactly what they are getting.
