From Our Neighbors.

The average stranger who visits Union City these days has a rather a hard time of it. Under suspicion of being a detective he is shunned by all, and thus barely decent treatment is accorded unknown parties. Our people used to have the reputation of extending open handed hospitality to strangers but just at present unknown parties are treated with dire suspicion. —Union City Local.

Lucius Tubbs, the well know drayman, had an exceedingly narrow escape from a horrible death by the cars last Thursday evening. He was at the station, sitting on a baggage truck, waiting for the arrival of the Grand Rapids express and just as that train pulled into the station on the north track, he arose and started across the south track to meet it and get the mail sacks. His back was toward the west and owing to the noise made by the Rapids he did not hear the approach of the east-bound express which struck him just as he stepped upon the track. This train was moving only about six miles an hour and this saved him from instant death. He was thrown several feet to the south of the track from where he was picked up unconscious. He soon partially recovered and insisted upon driving his team up town but the moment he attempted to move he discovered his injuries to be serious. He was placed in the 'bus and taken home. Physicians were at once summoned and an examination showed both bones in the right leg to be broken just above the ankle, a broken collar bone, a bad bruise above one eye and a very rough shaking up generally. Drs. Ritter, Lee and Chase reduced the fractures and at this writing he is doing as well as could be expected though he feels pretty sore. His escape from death was miraculous and although he is getting well along in years he has a strong constitution and plenty of grit and there is but little doubt but a few months will find him as strong and well as ever. —Dexter News.

A short time ago an agent of a Milwaukee company appeared here and sold to three or four of our dealers a barrel each of kerosene oil. For some reason the only consignment that came promptly to hand was that of Walker & Son, druggists. They at once drew the oil off in their tank and in a day or two after sold the barrel containing it together with other empty kerosene barrels to parties dealing in oil at Jackson. The latter when they came to the Milwaukee barrel saw it bore no brand of inspection. They entered complaint and D. B. Walker was summoned to answer for selling oil contrary to law. He had as yet sold only 10 or 15 gallons and was wholly ignorant that he had violated any statute regulating oil sales. He went to Jackson to answer last Tuesday but as the complainant had gone to Lansing the case was put over one week. We hope the case will be dismissed. The firm did not violate the law intentionally. The dealers here who ordered the uninspected oil from the same firm, say that if their consignments had reached them they would be in the same boat with Walker & Son. They would have sold the oil innocent of any intent to violate the law. Two Chelsea dealers were caught up for a like delinquency, being ignorant of the provisions of the statute in the premises, it being the policy of the idiots who frame our laws to not have their enactments published but to keep the public in ignorance of their provisions as much as possible. As we say above, it would be unjust to hold Walker & Son accountable under the circumstances and they should be promptly discharged. The report that they had sold one barrel and after being cautioned begun sales of a second barrel is wholly without foundation. The firm had only one barrel of the oil and from that sold only ten to fifteen gallons. The balance will not be sold until inspected. It costs 13 cents per barrel, we are informed, to inspect oil. The penalty for selling uninspected oil ranges from $25 to $300 fine, with imprisonment at the discretion of the court. —Grass Lake News.

The collision was between Lake Shore and Flint and Pere Marquette trains on the former's road, and an effort was made to divide responsibility. The court held the Lake Shore alone responsible.

At Denver the badly decomposed body of O. I. Prescott, a prominent Democratic politician and contractor, was found in his room in the Revere House Friday morning.

Mr. Prescott had been missed by his friends for several days and it was thought that he was out of the city on business, but it is now evident that he had been dead for over a week. As the hotel is near the business portion of the city much surprise is expressed that the discovery was not made sooner. The cause of death is unknown.

In the matter of the adjustment of the grant under the acts of June 3, 1856, and March 3, 1865, to aid in the construction of the railroad from Lit-the Bay de Noque to Marquette, in the State of Michigan, Secretary Noble has instructed the Commissioner of the General Land Office to direct the publication of a notice preliminary to the opening to settlement of the 12,000 acres found to have been erroneously patented to the State for the purpose named. The Secretary further directs that the lands be opened to entry at the earliest day possible.

Indianapolis dispatch: A remarkable concession was made by the trustees of Butler University to the Brick-makers' Union. Several days ago a contract was let for the erection of an addition to the university building and the work was begun with union bricklayers. The workmen discovered that a boiler foundation had been laid some time ago by non-union men, and they declared that they would not work on the building unless the foundation was torn down and rebuilt by union men. After a parley of several hours the trustees conceded the point. The foundation was torn out and the union men went to work. The trustees were anxious to get the building done before cold weather, and in order to do this had to make the concession.

Fire destroyed the Metropolitan Hotel Block at Pine Bluff, Ark., the loss reaching $35,000.

General Weaver, Mr. Field, and Mrs. Lease, who were to have addressed a People's party mass-meeting at Richmond, Va., on Monday night, were pelted with rotten eggs and obliged to desist. Similar treatment was accorded Governor Buchanan of Tennessee at Blountsville.

At Rome, Georgia, Lord Walter S. Beresford, alias Sidney Lascelles, the English forger, was sentenced Friday to six years' hard labor in the penitentiary. Beresford pleaded with the court for clemency if he could not consistently grant him a week to endeavor to appeal his case. He spoke in broken sentences, and at times broke down completely, crying like a child. Judge Henry assured Beresford that he had sympathy for him as a fellow-man, but, in justice to the laws of the State, he could not grant him any further time, as his case had been thoroughly tried, and the same affirmed by the Supreme Court. After sentence had been passed on him Beresford stood like a statue, with head drooped.

At the opening of the Union Theological Seminary the directors, in announcing the course of instruction for the coming term, declared that they would persist in the lines of biblical criticism for which Dr. Briggs is now undergoing trial for heresy.

President Harrison and Mr. Cleveland may be brought together in Chicago when the World's Fair buildings are dedicated. The President has promised to review the great parade. G. de Brún and W. R. Garrison, directors general of the Japan exhibit at the World's Fair, arrived at San Francisco on the steamer Peru. They go to Chicago at once to prepare for their exhibit. This will include forty native houses, which will be arranged like a Japanese village, and there will be 160 people living in it. The exhibit will also include a theater, in which will be given the dances that proved the most striking features in Paris. The materials and people will reach here next March.

R. G. Dux & Co. say in their weekly review of trade: Business continues larger than ever at this time of the year, and the commercial sky is without a cloud. Money is everywhere in ample supply, and collections have very rarely been more generally satisfactory. The outflow of money from Western centers for purchases in the country is larger than usual, and yet there is no embarrassment. Crop reports are uniformly favorable, and the promise is distinctly better than it was a few weeks ago. Generally business is not only large and healthy, but the outlook for the coming month is everywhere regarded with the utmost confidence.

The British steamer North Flint had a collision with a passenger steamer in the Bosphorus. The passenger steamer was stove in, and had to be beached near Constantinople.

At the opening of the Union Theological Seminary the directors, in announcing the course of instruction for the coming term, declared that they would persist in the lines of biblical criticism for which Dr. Briggs is now undergoing trial for heresy.

President Harrison and Mr. Cleveland may be brought together in Chicago when the World's Fair buildings are dedicated. The President has promised to review the great parade. Mr. Cleveland made up his mind to accept the invitation from the committee. He and Mr. Harrison will both go to Chicago Oct. 21.

G. de Brún and W. R. Garrison, directors general of the Japan exhibit at the World's Fair, arrived at San Francisco on the steamer Peru. They go to Chicago at once to prepare for their exhibit. This will include forty native houses, which will be arranged like a Japanese village, and there will be 160 people living in it. The exhibit will also include a theater, in which will be given the dances that proved the most striking features in Paris. The materials and people will reach here next March.

R. G. Dux & Co. say in their weekly review of trade: Business continues larger than ever at this time of the year, and the commercial sky is without a cloud. Money is everywhere in ample supply, and collections have very rarely been more generally satisfactory. The outflow of money from Western centers for purchases in the country is larger than usual, and yet there is no embarrassment. Crop reports are uniformly favorable, and the promise is distinctly better than it was a few weeks ago. Generally business is not only large and healthy, but the outlook for the coming month is everywhere regarded with the utmost confidence.

PROGRAM FOR SCHOOLS.

ARRANGEMENT OF EXERCISES FOR COLUMBUS DAY.

Prepared by the National Executive Committee of the Educational Superintendents for the Columbian Public School observance on October 21.

The Official Programme.

Following the recommendations in President Harrison's proclamation, that public schools of the country observe Columbus day, the executive committee to prepare an official programme of exercises to be used in every school in America on Columbus day, simultaneously with the dedicatory exercises in Chicago.

The following is the programme proposed:

At 9:30 the detail of veterans is expected to arrive. It is to be met at the entrance of the yard by the color guard of the school, escorted with dignity to the building presented to the principal. The principal then gives the signal and the several color guards take places by the flag.

At 10:00 the principal, the veterans and the color guard take places by the flag. The master of ceremonies then gives the command, "Attention!" and begins the exercises by reading the President's proclamation. At the close of the reading he announces, "In the name of the United States, and as a sign of devotion to our country, let the flag of our nation be unfurled above this school."

At 10:15 the principal, the veterans and the color guard take places by the flag. The master of ceremonies then gives the command, "Attention!" and begins the exercises by reading the President's proclamation. At the close of the reading he announces, "In the name of the United States, and as a sign of devotion to our country, let the flag of our nation be unfurled above this school."

COLUMBUS DAY ADDRESS.

To-day America's fifth century begins. The world's twentieth century will soon be here. To the thirteen millions now in the American schools the command of the coming years belongs.

Deliver by the Youth's Companion for Delivery in the Schools.

The following is the address, "The meaning of the Four Centuries," prepared by the Youth's Companion for use in connection with the above programme.

The spectacle America presents this day is without precedent in history. From ocean to ocean—in city, village, countryside—the children of the nation are marshaled and marching under the banner of the nation, and in the people are gathering and the school house.

As we recognize to-day the most massive anniversary since Rome celebrated her thousandth year—the anniversary of the stepping of a sphere into the world's life; four complete centuries of a new social order; celebration of liberty and enlightenment organized into a civilization.

And while during these hours the great Government of these United States strikes the keynote of this great American day that gives honor to the most American institution which we possess, we assemble here that we may exalt the free school that embodies the American principle of universal enlightenment and equality, the characteristic product of the four centuries of American life.

Our hundred years ago this morning Pinta's gun broke the silence and announced the discovery of this hemisphere.

It was a virgin world. Human life upon it had been without significance. In the old world for thousands of years civilized men had been doing experiments in social order. They had been found wanting. But now was an untouched soil that lay ready for a new experiment in civilization.

All things were ready. New life had come to light full of over-riding power in the old world. In the world they were to work together as a mighty harness.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

AN INTERESTING AND INSTRUCTIVE LESSON.

Reflections of an Elevating Character—Wholesome Food for Thought—Studying the Scriptures Lesson Intelligently and Profitably.

Peter's Version. The lesson for Sunday, Oct. 16, may be found in Acts 10: 1-29.

INTRODUCTION. The proper introduction to this lesson is the closing verse of the preceding chapter, a verse indeed that might well have been paraphrased with the lesson of to-day.

WHAT THE LESSON SAYS. Caesarea. About seventy miles from Jerusalem, on the seacoast.—Band, The word originally meant anything twisted, as into a band. (Spiral). Our word spiral is probably from this.

Devoted. Literally, well reverencing.—Much aims. The word in the singular means compassion. In the plural, acts of compassion.—Prayed to God. He gave alms to the people and prayed to God.

When the angel. Or, as the angel. He lost no time but obeyed at once.—A devout soldier. Sailing the messenger to the errand.—Of those that waited on him continually. One word in the Greek, body-servants.

Declared. Better, related.—He sent them. From this verb comes our word apostle, i. e. sent ones. Such were they, in a sense.

On the morrow, i. e. they were still going on the next day, the place being about thirty miles distant.—So they went. More accurately and luminously, as they were proceeding.—Peter went up. The word anabasi, again, (verse four). As they were approaching Peter was led by the Spirit to the house-top.—Sixth hour. Noon.

Hungry. It was dinner time.—Would have eaten. Or, wished to eat; better still, was going to eat.—He fell into a trance. More accurately, a trance fell upon him. Greek: ecstasy. The English word comes directly from this, (ekstasis). Literally it means out of place.

While Peter doubted. The verb signifies to be utterly without a way.—Vision. Same word as in v. 3.—Had made inquiry.—More expressively, having made inquiry (participial form).—Stood before the gate, or, made a stand, halted. How fortunate that they came just at that moment, and that they strictly kept the Lord's schedule of time!

WHAT THE LESSON TEACHES. A certain man in Caesarea called Cornelius. And now let us not lay too much emphasis on the man. He was a good man, but not a saved man. His prayers and alms prepared him for the recognition of the great salvation, but they do not save him.

When Peter at last speaks to him he tells him (v. 45) that he is a sinner just like any one else, and that if he is saved it is by coming to Christ as the Savior of the lost. He is the first in the procession of Gentile converts who are washed in the blood of the Lamb; that is his distinction. Yet let us learn this subsidiary lesson that alms and prayer, while they do not redeem, are seen of God. They come up to him; and wherein they are sincerely given they are born of him, whose Spirit prepares the way as well as leads into the light.

Call for one Simon. It makes little matter who the man is, only find him. There is a lad down there at the gateway. It is a matter of little consequence who it is, so he swing the gate open for the coach and all it contains to pass through. Peter opens the gate to the Gentiles. It is no great credit to him, though the honor is not small. God has called him to it, and to God be the glory. Just now this gate has been ajar, and God's angel has just in time to thrust the rude bars aside and swing the heavy gate for the coming in of God's elect. He is not yet fully awake, though God has long been preparing him for this. He rubs his eyes a little, but there it is clear before his face. The Gentiles, too, have entered into the grace of God and into the gift of his Spirit.

Doubting nothing. It is the way we always climb to new apprehensions of the God-head, the way of no doubt. The word is a particularly interesting one. It signifies disputing, discriminating, judging. Peter had as it were suspended judgment. Not seeing clearly how or why it should be, he was going forward in simple faith and obedience to God's command. Thus do we rise to every new plane of Christian life and doctrine. It is the secret of the prayer for wisdom. For this is the same world that is rendered at Jas. 1: 6, "nothing wavering." The man who expects wisdom must ask in faith, nothing wavering, i. e. having no dispute with God as to the how of it or the why of it, not judging his own poor and half-blind intelligence. More suggestively still it is the identical expression used of Abraham. Rom. 4: 20, where being promised a son and not seeing in himself how the word could be fulfilled, he staggered not (wavered not, doubted not), through unbelief, giving glory to God.—Of course, because only God knew how it could be brought about, and so in his own blindness he trusted God. Thus does Peter here. He is going, like Saul, led with sightless eyes into Damascus. Go forward, Peter, in faith. You are on the right path. With thee, too, when thou hast gone into the city, "it shall be told what thou must do."

Next Lesson.—"Peter at Caesarea," Acts 10: 34-48.

WEATHER FORECASTS.

WHAT PROPHET FOSTER HAS TO SAY.

Warm Weather to Extend Far into November—Real Winter Will Begin About the Middle of December—Severe Weather in January and February.

Our Weather Letter.

My last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm waves that cross the continent from the 12th to the 16th and 17th to 22d, and the next will reach the Pacific coast about the 23d, cross the Western mountains by the close of the 24th, the great central valleys from the 25th to 27th, and the Eastern States about the 29th.

This disturbance will inaugurate a warm period, that will extend far into November, and the weather will average much warmer than usual.

The cool wave will cross the Western mountains about the 26th, the great Central Valleys about the 28th and the Eastern States about the 30th. We will not have much wintry weather in the Northern States before the middle of November, and no real winter until after the middle of December. The winter will be very severe in January and February.

Local Forecasts.

Weather changes move from west to east across the continent, and each local forecast is made for within 250 miles east and west of the magnetic meridian mentioned, and for all the country between 25 and 50 degrees of north latitude. These local weather changes will occur within twenty-four hours before or after sunset of the dates given:

SANTA FE, DENVER AND BLACK HILLS MERIDIAN.

October— 23—Moderating. 24—Warmer. 25—Storm wave on this meridian. 26—Wind changing. 27—Cooler and clearing. 28—Fair and cool. 29—Moderating.

GALVESTON, KANSAS CITY AND MINNEAPOLIS MERIDIAN.

October— 23—Fair and cool. 24—Moderating. 25—Warmer. 26—Storm wave on this meridian. 27—Wind changing. 28—Cooler and clearing. 29—Fair and cool.

ATLANTA, CINCINNATI AND LANSING MERIDIAN.

October— 23—Cooler and clearing. 24—Fair and cool. 25—Moderating. 26—Warmer. 27—Storm wave on this meridian. 28—Wind changing. 29—Cooler and clearing.

BULLETIN FOR LAST WEEK.

General Excess of Precipitation Throughout the Mississippi Valley.

The weather crop bulletin for last week says: The crop season of 1892, from March 1 to Oct. 3, closes with a general excess of precipitation throughout the Mississippi valley and generally all over northern districts eastward of the Missouri valley. In Central and Eastern Texas, Eastern Maine, and in the States bordering on the Atlantic and Maryland southward, the seasonal rainfall has been below the average, the deficiency in Florida and along the Texas coast ranging at some stations from 10 to 15 inches.

New England—An excellent season for all crops except potato; harvesting done; high winds damaged fruit trees in North on Oct. 1; cranberries ready, an average crop; apples average in North, below in South.

New York—Conditions favorable for securing late crops; corn and buckwheat mostly safe; potatoes rotting very badly; killing frosts Oct. 1; damage not yet ascertained.

Pennsylvania—Light frosts general on Oct. 2, killing in some places; early sown wheat looks very fine.

Maryland and Delaware—Light frosts; but no injury reported; wheat seeding mostly finished; tobacco nearly housed.

Arkansas—Cotton improved, opening rapidly and picking general; crop from two to three weeks late; an early frost would greatly reduce the prospective yield.

Missouri—Plowing and seeding nearing completion; corn generally safe from frost and promises fair crop; pastures poor.

Illinois—All corn practically safe; wheat seeding nearly completed except in southern counties, where work was retarded by continued drought; rain badly needed; much corn cut.

Indiana—Wheat is up and looking well, but some damage is being done by flies; late corn is about all ripe and all crops are free from danger.

Ohio—Corn matured, being rapidly cut and mostly in shock; wheat seeding nearly completed, coming up looking well; potatoes yielding poorly; buckwheat and grapes yielding well; frost Sept. 27; no damage.

Michigan—All crops about harvested; some late corn and potatoes still out and a little fall sowing yet to be done.

Wisconsin—Winter wheat and rye doing well, but rain is now needed; crops all yield below average, except tobacco, which is excellent; fall pasturage good. Minnesota—Corn safe; thrashing three-quarters done north, and progressing slowly south; rain badly needed for plowing.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

OCCURRENCES DURING THE PAST WEEK.

From Far and Near.

REV. B. HUNTER, for many years in charge of the Saginaw City Mission, has accepted a call from the Taymouth Presbyterian Church.

OTTO SASTREW, aged 12 years, was struck by lightning on the premises of Karl Schmidt, at Hemlock, Saginaw County, and instantly killed.

A BARN on the farm of William Coyle, near Hemlock, Saginaw County, was totally destroyed by fire, involving a loss of several hundred dollars.

AGENTS for the fruit driers, who have been making contracts throughout the State, report that while the apple crop of Michigan is far below the average, it is much larger than they anticipated.

SAMUEL HENRY, a wealthy farmer, and his wife were thrown from a buggy at Bay City, while returning from the county fair, a dray running into their vehicle. Mrs. Henry was badly hurt.

FIRE at Beech destroyed the house of George A. Creaser, the Detroit, Lansing & Northern depot and freight building. Tower's milk depot and ice-house, and a number of neighboring dwellings. The total loss is $12,000; insurance, $5,000.

MISS FLORENCE STEWART was brought to her home in Saginaw from Chicago quite severely injured through being struck by a stone thrown through one of the windows of the train in which she was traveling and which struck her upon the forehead.

THREE of Oxford's youths of tender age arrived in Pontiac and applied to Sheriff Bloomberg for a position on the detective force. The youths had been reading up in nickel library literature and were locked up by the Sheriff and their parents notified.

AT Monroe Judge Kinney sentenced George Weldon to two years in State prison at Jackson, for larceny from a dwelling in the day time, and Emil Karut to five years at the State House of Correction at Ionia, for breaking and entering a dwelling in the day time. The men are both tramps.

THE conductor on the Cincinnati, Jackson, and Mackinaw Railway put Alexander Zagelmeyer off the train between Saginaw and Bay City because he had neglected to buy a ticket and refused to pay 10 cents in addition to the regular rate. Zagelmeyer brought suit and a circuit court jury awarded him $500 damages. It is the first case of the kind ever tried in Michigan.

BURT WEBB, the young man who was recently arrested near Mason for wholesale thieving, pleaded guilty in the Circuit Court and was sentenced by Judge Person to three years' imprisonment in the State prison at Jackson. Webb's peculations have been the cause of considerable newspaper comment, and it is thought that his conviction will break up the gang of thieves which have for years been operating in the vicinity of Mason.

JUDGE PERSON, of the Ingham Circuit, read a lecture to the law-breaking sloop-keepers of Lansing which they will not soon forget. B. M. Osgood, W. D. Perrigo and Fidele Kinzel had each pleaded guilty to violating the liquor laws by disposing of beverages on Sundays and legal holidays. The Judge fined the first two offenders $10 each, and the latter $100. On imposing these heavy fines Judge Person took occasion to say that the liquor laws were made to be enforced, and that he is on the bench to enforce them.

THE State Convention of the People's party met at Lansing with 350 delegates. Judge William Newton of Flint was nominated for Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. Thomas Munn of Bay City was nominated for Alternate Elector-at-large for the Eastern District, and Elisha Pangborn of Traverse City for the Western District. Resolutions expressing indignation at the treatment accorded Gen. Weaver and Mrs. Lease in Georgia, because of the former's record during the war, were adopted, and the State Central Committee was authorized to fill all vacancies which may occur on State or Congressional tickets.

THE frequent misquoting from the game and fish laws by many of the State papers has led State Warden Hampton to furnish the following for publication:

Deer may only be killed in the lower peninsula from the fifth day of November to the twenty-fifth day of November. (The Attorney general rules that this does not permit killing on Nov. 5.) In the upper peninsula between the twenty-fifth day of September and the twenty-fifth day of October. (This does not permit killing on Sept. 25 or Oct. 25.) Deer must not be taken or killed in the water, or by trap or pitfall, or by artificial light (commonly called "shining"), or by the use of dogs. Any person may kill a dog following a deer or deer tracks.

Wild turkey, open season Nov. 1 to Dec. 15 inclusive; Partridge from Nov. 1 to Dec. 15 inclusive in the lower peninsula, and Oct. 1 to Jan. 1 inclusive in the upper peninsula. Woodcock, from Aug. 15 to Dec. 15. Water fowl—Jack-snipe, red-head, blue-bill, canvas-back, widezone and pin-tail ducks and wild geese may be killed between Sept. 1 and May 1. Other wild water fowl and snipe between Sept. 1 and Jan. 1. (This does not permit killing Sept. 1. Prairie chicken are not to be killed until Sept. 1, 1894.)

Speckled trout and grayling may be caught with hook and line only, and from May 1 to Sept. 1. Trout, grayling and salmon less than six inches in length must be put back in the water. Brook trout and grayling must not be caught or shipped for sale. Nothing but hook and line can be used in any inland lake. Even set lines or night lines are prohibited, and to be found on any lake with spear, jack, net, set lines, artificial light, explosives, etc., is prima facie evidence of guilt. In streams where there is no local act to the contrary, red-sides, grass pike, mullet and suckers may be taken with dip net or spear at any time, and other fish with the exception of bass, trout, salmon and grayling, may be speared at any time except during March, April, May and June. With the exception of dip nets as above stated, no nets of any kind can be used except in the great lakes and in the St. Mary's, Saginaw, St. Clair and Detroit Rivers.

JONAS WEED, of Royalton, died of cholera morbus on Friday, being ill but a few hours. It came so near being a case of cholera that the people were much alarmed.

THE CHELSEA STANDARD.

CHELSEA, FRIDAY, OCT. 14, 1892.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

"Chalk Talk," Monday evening at the Town Hall. Admission, free.

Jay Wood's laundry will be moved to the Davison house, on Jackson street, Monday next.

Saturday last Samuel Seney had the misfortune to break his right leg while jumping on a hay rack.

The members of St. Mary's church celebrated the 400th anniversary of the landing of Columbus Wednesday.

Merchants who wish to get their advertisements changed in next week's issue will have to get their copy in by Tuesday noon. Otherwise it will have to go over one week.

A crowded house listened to Governor Winans and Hon. Jas. O'Donnell discuss the political questions of the day from their points of view, Thursday evening at the Town Hall.

There are a number of subscriptions on our books that are past due and we would esteem it a favor if the parties who are in arrears would call at this office and settle as we are in need of a little cash.

Edward Taylor, a colored man generally known as "Buff Taylor" Sunday afternoon refused to pay his fare on an electric car. When he was put off he threw a large stone at the motor man. It narrowly escaped a lady's head. He was arrested.—Ann Arbor Register.

Rev. E. C. Hulbert will speak on Christian Unity at the M. E. Church, Monday evening next. Mr. Hulbert is pastor of the Unity Church, Detroit, also field secretary for Committee on Christian Unity, Chicago, and will present the subject from a practical standpoint.

The Michigan Central will give a rate of one and one-third fare for the round trip to those wishing to attend dedicatory ceremonies of the World's Columbian Exposition, at Chicago. Dates of Sales, October 19th to 22nd inclusive. Limited to return not later than October 24th.

October 15 the new return postal card will be placed on sale at all post offices. The two designs, one for the domestic and the other for the international postal union service, have been approved by Postmaster-General Wanamaker, and the work of printing the cards will be pushed with vigor.

The boy who has the freedom of the streets after nightfall without business or permission of his parents, is cultivating a dangerous habit. A boy who is right will prefer his home friends, books and newspapers to the uncertain class found upon the streets. Business men of all kinds look upon the boy loafers as dead beats of the future.—Ex.

Students are pouring into Ann Arbor from ever corner of the world, old and new. Thrifty housewives have raised the windows of stuffy rooms; have ordered daily relays of round roasts, soup bones and shanks; have double beds in single attics, and have hung out signs until the entire city looks like one vast "rooms for rent."—Ann Arbor Register.

The market this week has been dull and arrivals generally small. Wheat stands 69 cts for red and 68 for white. barley 1.10 to 1.22, oats 32 cts, beans 1.60 for the best, onions 70 cts, potatoes 60 cts, apples 50 to 75 cts, grapes 4 cts per pound, pears $1 per bushel, eggs 17 cts, butter 19 cts, chickens 8 cts per pound, dressed pork 6 cts per pound, clover seed $6 per bushel. Everything but wheat brings a fair price, and everything will move freely this fall but wheat.

In an age of big things, Chicago is playing a leading role. The Colosseum at Rome accommodating 80,000 people, was in its day the wonder of the world. The board of managers of the world's fair have provided seats for 90,000 people under the roof of the manufacturers' building, while an additional 35,000 will find standing room. Over 2,000 people will sit on the platform, a chorus of 5,000 voices will fill the hall, and 750 newspaper men will sit in front of the platform.

The suit of Calvin Lucas vs. the Michigan Central railroad company, for damages of the plaintiff being put off a train between here and Ann Arbor, after his ticket had been taken up, was decided in the Circuit Court Tuesday, the jury awarding Mr. Lucas $1,200 damages. The case has been hanging fire a long time and it is a matter of rejoicing among Calvin's friends that he won, although the award of damages was certainly none to large.—Dexter News.

Three burglaries in three consecutive weeks is a new and significant record for Dexter and it looks as though something must be done in the line of investigation if our citizens would enjoy the possession of their hard earned silver coin in peace. That it is the work of local talent seems quite evident and, such being the case, it ought not to be very hard work to locate them. If there are any suspicious characters who have no visible means of support loafing around, it might be a good thing to keep tal on them on general principles and if possible find out how they get the lucre that pays for their bread and cheese.—Dexter News.

A VERY SUCCESSFUL FAIR

A LARGE CROWD AND DELIGHTFUL WEATHER.

About 4,000 People Were Present and Gate Receipts $1,000—Good Races—Balloon Ascension—Other Attractions.

Chelsea never had fairer weather for a fair than that enjoyed this week, in fact, were the sunshine the only attraction, 'twas well worth the price of admission, and, of course, everybody was there.

Tuesday was taken up in placing exhibits, putting up stands, merry-go-rounds, etc., and the attendance was light. The entries up to Monday evening were the largest ever booked by the association, all shed room being taken.

Wednesday morning opened with weather as welcome as oranges in summer and people took advantage of it, coming in town as early as 7 o'clock.

ON THEIR WAY TO THE FAIR.

they filled the streets by 10, and ran over on residence streets for standing room. They came on foot, bicycles, in carriages and wagons, and every way to get there.

The fakirs were well represented, the season being so late that counter attractions were not many. It was noticed that the sand bag and lead pipe privileges were not rented this year.

Wednesday was Republican day, and addresses were delivered by A. W. Hamilton, of Ann Arbor, Wm. Ball, of Hamburg, and J. W. Donovan, of Detroit.

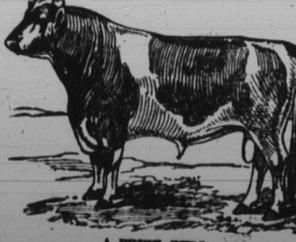

"ONE TICKET, PLEASE."

Thursday was Democratic day, but the speakers failed to materialize, much to the disappointment of many.

During the afternoons of both days fine music was discoursed by the Chelsea Cornet Band. The boys were not stingy with their numbers, and they looked very gay in their new uniforms.

STOCK.

The cattle were well represented, all the stalls allotted to this department being full. A fine herd of Holstein-

A PRIZE BULL.

Fresens, thirteen in number, headed by the 2,400 lb bull, Ykema, were exhibited by H. S. Day, of Milan. S. O. Tubbs was on hand with a fine herd of hornless Galloways. The Jersey herds of Chas. E. Letts and Geo. P. Glazier, of this place, were slightly represented, Letts having his bull, Broque, on exhibition. Glazier's full herd was along the street leading to the fair, and attracted a great deal of attention.

The exhibit of horses was the best ever had here, the sheds being crowded with the best in the county.

The sheep department was up to the standard and entries very large. Whitaker Bros. showing the only flock of black-topped Spanish Merinos owned in this county. They are larger than the American Merinos, and their wool is said to contain less grease. Paey & Smith had a fine exhibit of fine wools, and E. W. Daniels represented the Shropshire line with a fine flock.

The entries in the swine department were not up to the usual quantity there being some surplus room.

IN MAIN HALL.

H. S. Holmes & Co. had a very fine display of carpets, curtains, cloaks, overcoats.

The Ann Arbor Organ Co. had on exhibition an organ and a piano.

W. P. Schenk & Co. had a very neat display of boots shoes and gents' furnishings. Geo. H. Kemp's dry goods store was represented by a display of dress goods, cloaks, handkerchiefs and shoes.

Hummel and Whitaker had a fine display of Standard sewing machines and work and done on these machines. This department was presided over by their gentlemanly salesman, Mr. Arthur Pierce.

Chas. Steinbach had a fine display of harnesses, blankets, etc.

E. B. Tichenor had an elegant display of Kimball pianos.

R. A. Snyder had a large dressed beef in this hall.

Sparks & Lane were represented by a fine display of the products of their mills.

E. E. Shaver had a large number of very fine photographs on exhibition.

In needle and fancy work there was a fine display.

In the vegetable, fruit and seed line there was not much of an exhibit.

The entries in the household department were very fine, especially in the line of bread, cakes, pies, and canned and pickled fruits.

THE RACES.

The races were far the best held in Washtenaw county this season, the track being in fair condition and good time being made.

Wednesday's races resulted as follows:

| STALLION RACE. | |
|-------------------------|-------|
| Capt. Wagstaff | 2 2 2 |
| Judge Hatch | 1 1 1 |
| Richard Abdallah | 3 3 3 |
| Time: 2:48, 2:44, 2:50. | |

THE FINISH.

| 2:45 TROT. | |
|-------------------------|-------|
| Texas Jim | 2 2 2 |
| Tom Palmer | 4 4 4 |
| Dou M. Dickinson | 1 1 1 |
| Time: 2:44, 2:42, 2:44. | |

The races Thursday resulted as follows:

| GREEN RACE. | |
|------------------------|-------|
| Fred | 1 1 1 |
| Fannie Gillette | 2 2 2 |
| Geo Whiz | 3 3 3 |
| Mollie | 4 4 4 |
| Time 2:56, 2:50, 2:58. | |

| FREE-FOR-ALL TROT. | |
|-------------------------|-------|
| Tom Palmer | 6 6 6 |
| Texas Jim | 4 4 4 |
| Judge Hatch | 3 3 3 |
| Dick Sterling | 2 2 2 |
| Don M. Dickinson | 1 1 1 |
| Zero | 2 3 3 |
| Time: 2:42, 2:38, 2:40. | |

While scoring for the second heat Zero broke his bit and the result was an overturned sulkey and fast time once around the track. No one hurt, however.

THE BALLOON ASCENSION.

Wednesday, owing to the fact that the balloon caught fire and a large hole being burned in the top of the balloon no ascension was made, but Thursday afternoon the great bag was filled rapidly and the last of the Hogans, at 3:30 o'clock, went almost straight up in the heavens to an altitude of 3,500 feet. He made a beautiful drop and came down on the fair grounds within 25 rods of the starting point, in the midst of a delighted crowd.

The fair was a social and financial success, crowd large, every one pleased. Mr. Sherry, the president, and Orrin Burkhardt, the secretary, together with the other officers, deserve a great deal of praise, and the merchants of Chelsea are indebted to them for the best week of trade they have ever had.

CHELSEA, FRIDAY, OCT. 14, 1892.

Program for Columbus Day, October 21st

The following program for Columbus Day was handed us by Prof. Hall. Procession will form at 8:30 a. m., in the centre of town, composed of the G. A. R., K. O. T. M., A. O. U. W., and A. M. W. R. C. and others, led by the band will march to the School House when the band will play for the pupils to march out of their several rooms to the north side of the school yard, when the flag will be hoisted over the school house and the pupils together with the G. A. R. and others will salute it. After which America will be sung, then all will march to the Town Hall where we shall be entertained by short addresses, essays and music.

A literary program will be given in the evening by the school composed of addresses, essays, declamations, flag drills, character songs, etc.

It is hoped that every one will take an interest in this matter, and that all will decorate their homes and places of business with bunting and flags.

Communication.

Mr. Editor:—The ladies of Chelsea and vicinity wish to record through the columns of your paper their indignant protest against the exhibit allowed on our fair grounds during the past week purporting to be a "petrified woman"—to be seen by "men only."

Oh! the shame of it, that on the grounds where all the wives, and mothers and sisters of the community were to be congregated there should be an exhibit allowed that was an open insult to every one of them. Without reference to what the exhibit may have been the allowing of such a sign to be put up on the fair grounds was a disgrace to any civilized community.

Not one woman, who considered the matter at all, but herself publicly insulted and the motherhood of the whole place rises in indignation in behalf of the morality of their young sons against an exhibit in regard to women which these sons were invited to see but which was not open to them.

In the name of all that is just and manly, we call upon whoever shall be the president and directors of the "Fair Association" another year to see to it that this or anything like it is not repeated.

Lost, on fair ground a new tan-colored kid glove. Finder leave at this office.

Jan. S. Gorman speaks here Friday at which time a Democratic pole will be raised. There is also a People's party rally at Keoltz's Hall Thursday.

Ready for Business.

To be diligent in business is commendable, but surely one may err on the side of too great diligence by being ready for a trade at an unsuitable time. A map peddler in pursuance of his vocation chanced to stop at a hotel in a Long Island village. A friend whom he had known elsewhere seeing him at the hotel invited him to a party which he was to give the same evening.

The map peddler came, and when received by his host at the door was found with three maps in his hands.

"How do you do?" he said. "Got any nails? I thought as there was to be a good many folks here tonight I'd hang up some of my maps here and let 'em look at 'em. Good chance for business. Maybe some of 'em would like to buy 'em, and I could explain 'em just as well as not."

His host endeavored to persuade him that it would not be a suitable place to urge his business, much to the man's surprise.

"Now, you don't understand," urged the peddler. "I would amuse and interest 'em; they'd be pleased, and besides that, bein' visitors, they'd feel sort of 'bliged to buy."

But he was then spoken to so plainly that he was forced to abandon—greatly to his surprise as well as his regret—his project of mingling business with entertainment. —Youth's Companion.

The Sound of Bells.

Bells have always been regarded by the ignorant and superstitious as invested with miraculous powers, and even educated people are often extremely sensitive to their ringing. Although their deep sonorous peals, arousing imaginative effects formerly attributed to them, are no longer believed, there is a certain awe in the solemn peal of the tolling bell. A chime of sweet bells has a weirdly soothing power, and the joyful ringing of a troop of bells makes all who hear it jubilant.

One of the peculiar beliefs of early days was that bells drove away evil spirits, calmed the sea as far as they could be heard, and if rung during a thunderstorm saved the country from disaster. Strange tales have been told of bells that were rung by unseen hands, which circumstance was always followed by some public calamity.

The subject of bells has always been a most fascinating one. Poets have discoursed upon them in lyric rhymes. Our own Longfellow wrote no less than nine poems on bells, the most famous being his "Bells of Lynn."—Detroit Free Press.

The Smooth Man of Flora.

"There are many ways of turning a penny," soliloquized J. R. Morton. "Some time back a smoothspoken fellow turned up in Flora, Ills. He went to the bank and had an audience with the president and cashier. He had a little story all ready, and it wore the garb of plausibility. Several banks had been robbed recently, and the youngster pretended to possess the confidence of the gang that was doing the deviltry. The next descent, he said, would be made on the Flora bank.

"He, the good young man, would notify the officers of the exact time of the intended raid in order that the robbers might be appropriately rounded up. He was sent to Decatur, the alleged rendezvous of the robbers, and there lived in royal style, while the bank officers sat up nights to guard the treasure, and waited in vain for the note of warning. It did not come, and when the good young man had worked the game for all it was worth he folded his tent like the Arabs and made a sneak for green fields and pastures new."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

How One Fact Was Discovered.

In the early part of this century an English button maker became famous for the steel waistcoat buttons which he used to manufacture with lines cut upon them for ornament. He gradually put the lines nearer and nearer together, and observed that as he increased the number of lines the buttons became more and more iridescent. He explained his discovery to a scientist who began experimenting upon ruled plates of steel. The result was the wonderful "diffraction grating" which is now used in place of the glass prism upon all great telescopes to break the ordinary ray of light into its primary colors.—Youth's Companion.

The Return of Birds.

I am convinced that the same woodpecker occupies the same cavity in a tree winter after winter, and drums upon the same dry limb spring after spring. I like to think of all creatures as capable of local attachments and not insensible to the sentiment of home.—John Burroughs in Century.

Useless Shaving.

Southey, in that delightful storehouse of quaint and useless information called "The Doctor" from which so many modern essayists have helped themselves without acknowledgment—makes a computation to prove that if a man who regularly shaves lives until he has seen threescore years and ten he will find that he has wasted upon his face as much time as would suffice for the acquisition of seven languages. A hotel proprietor advertised yesterday for a porter able to speak English, French and German, and who must be "clean shaved."

Why this continual resort to the razor should be insisted on is one of the mysteries of the hotel business, and if Southey's calculation be right must prove a serious drawback to the successful applicant acquiring any more languages or even keeping up a good style in those he already possesses.—London Telegraph.

Some Police Statistics.

During one year in New York city lodgings were given at various station houses to 69,485 women and 78,137 men. The police helped 115 people who were overcome by the heat, 409 sufferers from alcoholism, 170 who attempted suicide, 3 who were kicked by horses, 7 who were bitten by dogs, 10 who were asphyxiated by gas and 2 who were suffering from electric shocks. They took to the hospitals over 9,000 people and took home 4,700 more.—New York Sun.

Carefulness in Eating.

Dr. Samuel Johnson said: "Some people have a foolish way of not minding, or pretending not to mind, what they eat. For my part, I mind my stomach very studiously and very carefully, and I look upon it that he who does not mind his stomach will hardly mind anything else."

Consumption of Pills in France.

The consumption of pills throughout the length and breadth of France is said to be enormous, and it was a happy thought of a certain successful pillmaker to have recourse to machinery. He made a handsome fortune and his descendants are no less prosperous. The hardness of the times has no effect upon the pill making industry.

Folks will have their pet luxury at any sacrifice, and whilst ready to retrench in dress, housekeeping and other matters they never forgo their pill. One middle class lady in delicate health used to spend annually a thousand francs—say $200—for this luxury.

Probate Order.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF WASHINGTON, s. s. At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Washington, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, on Tuesday, the 27th day of September in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two.

Present, J. Willard Babbitt, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Elizabeth Conaty deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of John Conaty praying that administration of said estate may be granted to himself or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 31st day of October next at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor in said county, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the CHELSEA STANDARD, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

A COMPLETE SET OF THE WORKS OF CHARLES DICKENS FREE!

The Most Valuable and Remarkable Premium Ever Offered Free with any Periodical.

A MARVEL IN BOOK-MAKING.

A Set of the Works of Charles Dickens, IN 12 LARGE VOLUMES, FREE.

There has just been published A Set of the Works of Charles Dickens, in Large and Handsome Volumes, printed on entirely new plates, with new type. By special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to offer to our patrons this splendid set of Dickens' Works, postpaid, free. Charles Dickens was the greatest novelist who ever lived. No author before or since his time has won the fame that he achieved, and his works are even more popular to-day than during his lifetime. They abound in humor, pathos, masterly delineation of character, vivid descriptions of places and incidents, thrilling and skillfully wrought plots. Each book is intensely interesting. No home should be without a set of these great and remarkable works. Not to have read them is to be far behind the age in which we live. The twelve volumes in this set contain the following world famous works, each one of which is published complete, unchanged and absolutely unabridged:

DAVID COPPERFIELD, MARTIN CHUZZLEWIT, NICHOLAS NICKLEBY, DOMNEY AND SON, BLEAK HOUSE, LITTLE DOBBY, OUR MUTUAL FRIEND, PICKWICK PAPERS, BARNABY RUDGE AND CHRISTMAS STORIES, OLIVER TWIST AND GREAT EXPECTATIONS, THE OLD CURIOUS SHOP AND THE UNCOMMERCIAL TRAVELLER.

TAKE OF TWO CITIES, HARD TIMES, AND THE HISTORY OF EDWIN DROOD.

THE PLAN.

We will send a complete set of these books FREE, by mail, postage paid, guaranteeing safe delivery, as follows: To any old subscriber, who sends one dollar, and renews their subscription to either of the following publications for one year:

THE PEOPLE'S LITERARY COMPANION, THE National Farmer and Home Magazine

To any new subscriber, who sends one dollar for either of the above periodicals for one year.

This is the grandest offer ever made, and the greatest bargain ever offered. Up to this time the price of a complete set of Dickens' Works has been ten dollars or more. The use of modern, improved printing, folding and stitching machinery, the present extremely low price of white paper, and the great competition in the book trade are the factors which made this wonderful offer possible. Bear in mind that we offer, not a single volume, but the entire set of twelve volumes all free to subscribers. Return now at once the money of your subscription, or money refunded. Do not neglect or put off this wonderful opportunity. Send at once, you will be delighted with the charming books, and, as a bonus, never cease to regard it as the best investment of a dollar you ever made. Address all communications to and write, and are possessed of fair intelligence, you are fully qualified to make a grand success of what we offer you. We have lately published at great expense and labor a perfect wonder in the way of an illustrated Gift Book, suitable to all classes, an ornament to any home, and at a price that brings it within the reach of all even those of moderate means. Heretofore only those who indulged in luxuries have felt that they could afford a book of this class, as they are sold in book stores at $5.00 and upwards. The book which we offer is not in any way inferior to those above referred to, but is far superior to hundreds of books of this nature that are sold at prices exceeding ours by an enormous per cent. It is selling with a rush wherever shown. Agents have only to show the book and mention the price, and it sells on its merits without further talking. No better Christmas, New Year's or Birthday present can be selected. It will sell, not only for holiday trade, but at all seasons of the year, for the reason that all will want it in their homes, and will have it as soon as they know the low prices at which we offer it. Refresh them. Reader, if you need profitable employment, and a business in which you can and will take pride, as well as make money rapidly, do not fail to send for circulars containing private terms to agents, and full information, which will be sent FREE upon application. Old and new agents alike are making handsome salaries—yes, fortunes. Many of those who are making the best records are new at the agency business, having had no previous experience. Make a start—the field is entirely new. No such terms have been offered agents as we now offer on this wonderful book. Special qualifications not necessary, for it sells everywhere at sight. Perhaps you have at some time been unsuccessful at the agency business, or, if you are, if you are why you should try this, the PRINCE of gift books, as failure is impossible if you make A START. Write us to-day, study our circulars and directions, then order an outfit and go to work with push and energy. You may make the greatest mistake of your life, if you allow this GOLDEN opportunity to pass unimproved.

A WOMAN'S INFLUENCE

"I suppose that is a rebuke to me," Margaret made answer to the Doctor. "You see, I am always ready to improve everything and everybody but myself."

"Which needs improving sadly," interposed Brian, entering at this moment. "I have a scolding for you, Margaret. I thought—"

"I know," answered Margaret, rather contritely. "I am really very sorry Doctor Wilson has excused me, and I have promised to do better for the future. So no more, please."

"No more. That is always your cry when you need a lecture. I see you and Wilson are friends already. I thought you would be. Effects of kindred tastes. Where did you walk this afternoon? To the end of creation?"

"Oh, no. Only within the bounds of New York. I was not gone so very long, really; but I decided to go so late that—"

"Another inopportune decision. I wonder when you are half way to heaven if you won't turn back and try the other place, just to differ from the rest of the world. Wilson, behold the very incarnation of self-will. Leaving out this little failing, she deserves Bertie's eulogies, and I am wonderfully proud of her."

"Very consoling. I thank you, sir. For reward I'll give you your dinner. I dare say you are ready for it."

"Decidedly, Margaret. I had a wretched lunch and my appetite is now in prime condition. I wish Wilson would make a like admission just to keep me in countenance. I don't expect much from you. Shall we progress?"

"I have been telling Mrs. Leigh how much I admire your charming home," remarked Wilson when they were comfortably seated about the table. "I have always had a prejudice against apartments, but this one has thoroughly converted me."

"I like them," said Brian, following Wilson's glance around the room. "Much more cozy than a house. This one was my choice, though Margaret gave me the cue. I must let her have the credit for all these fixings, however. This room was much more empty when we first moved in; now it seems real homelike. It is astonishing what a woman's hands can do."

"Astonishing," repeated Wilson, musingly. "Don't make me bewail my lonely estate more deeply, I beg of you. Think how these delightful rooms compare with my dull quarters. No wonder you don't care to show yourself there. You are such a stranger that I was wondering to-day what you do with yourself."

"What?" repeated Margaret in her own mind, while she gave Brian a rather searching glance.

He pretended not to see it, however. "Oh, I'm around generally," he answered rather unsatisfactorily. "I don't find any difficulty in occupying my time. I'll run in upon you some night. Though while Margaret is here—"

"You will be taking her about a great deal, of course. Under those circumstances don't consider me. I hope you like sight-seeing, Mrs. Leigh. Otherwise you must find it extremely tiresome. Or perhaps you are one of those fortunate individuals whose endurance is always equal to the emergency."

"Endurance," repeated Margaret, starting from her train of thought. "Do you know, Doctor, I think endurance is nothing more than determination or will. It is with me, at least. If I make up my mind to bear a thing I always bear it, and if I don't, I don't. You see, amused, Brian, but I'm sure you can say the same thing if you would. When I was a child I used to pinch my arm to see how long I could stand the pain without crying, but a reproving tap from my old nurse sent me into spasms of weeping. That was all will, you see."

"All will," repeated Brian. "I thank you for telling us, Margaret. I can imagine how you tried that poor old nurse. What are you intending to illustrate?"

"Simply that our wills have everything to do with our feelings. Dr. Wilson wants to know if I find sight-seeing tiresome. I am afraid I do. But I like it, and so I quite forget that the hard pavements fire my feet most dreadfully, and that when I ride I'm jostled almost to death. Really, Doctor, you may say what you please about your wonderful city, but I think its streets are an everlasting disgrace to any civilized town."

"I have nothing to say in your defense," admitted the Doctor, with a laugh. "They are bad. Does your idea of endurance extend to social duties also?"

"Yes, certainly. Why should they be called duties, I wonder? I have a special distaste for that word. It carries with it the sense of obligation, and obligation is always disagreeable."

"Always?" questioned Wilson, rather quizzically. "I dare say you are right, though. Duty can be most unpleasant. We are queerly constituted at best."

"I think we are rather natural," added Margaret. "It isn't to be expected that we women should like to do what we feel we ought. Just put must before a request and it grows disagreeable immediately for me. I might go to a ball and dance all night with a raging headache, but I wouldn't think of going to church in the same condition. I'd be much too ill. I'm giving you a dreadful example, am I not? Well, I can only advise you to do neither as I say nor as I do."

"I always thought you religious, Margaret."

"You have never thought anything of the kind," returned Margaret, meeting Brian's mischievous eyes. "Why should you think so? Simply because I'm a woman. What a reason. I believe the world does think religion was made for women rather than men, though it is the men who really need it. Poor women! They are obliged to walk stiff and straight in a certain beaten track. They mustn't do this, they mustn't do that, and they mustn't do the other, until they are so encompassed by a wall of musts and mustn'ts that I wonder they have any individuality left."

"Thank heaven you haven't lost your individuality yet, Margaret. Wilson, you were regretting your lonely estate awhile ago; after listening to such remarks from the mouth of one woman, beware of all others and rejoice at your escape."

"Come, Doctor," said Margaret, before Wilson could reply, "we will go to the parlor, and I promise to be very quiet and sedate for the rest of the evening. No doubt, you will find Brian's conversation much more instructive and entertaining."

When Wilson had taken his departure an hour or so later, Margaret turned to Brian with the remark:

"I am so glad you brought him, Brian. I like him so much."

"Then I don't believe I'll bring him again. I'm jealous of him. But, seriously, Margaret, he is quite a fine fellow. I wish I were half as fine. You should have heard the nice things he said about you. He is very anxious that you should see more of New York, and he mentioned several places that I had for, often about. He says you would like to see them, and so you shall. I've left you very much alone lately, but I intend to be more attentive hereafter."

He knew that Margaret was pleased, from the happy light that stole into her eyes.

"I believe that I shall be glad of the day I met Doctor Wilson," thought Margaret, as she crept into bed an hour later.

CHAPTER XVII.

A LIFTING OF THE CLOUDS.

To Brian, the knowledge that Margaret had not lost all feeling for him, and that her faith in him was strong, notwithstanding his many falls, brought new strength and courage.

With the power of strong determination he seemed to be gaining a victory over that old habit. Not an entire one, of course. Margaret could not expect so much. Sometimes a friend could lure him away, but this was seldom, and never since their talk in her room had he lost the entire command of himself.

Under these circumstances Margaret felt her heart considerably lightened. She could look forward more hopefully to the future, and her letters took on something of her own cheerful spirit.

Brian could not fail to see the change, and it was equally apparent to Wilson, in his few brief visits. He only dropped in upon rare occasions now, seldom staying long, and always claimed that he was too busy even to find time to see his friends.

"I suppose we must accept your excuses, Doctor," Margaret replied one evening to his usual plea. "Can't you teach your patients some idea of the fitness of things? Why should they all get sick together? I think a few might wait until the others are well."

"So they might, Mrs. Leigh, if they could see the matter from your point of view. Unfortunately, however, illness, like time and tide, waits for no man. We have had a very trying winter, and pneumonia is very prevalent. That has added considerably to my labors. I confess I am thoroughly tired out when night comes, and only too glad to creep into bed."

"And sleep in the comfortable sense that your rest is well earned."

"Yes," he laughed, "though that is no proof against its being broken. The only time my profession brings a regret is when I hear my night bell jingling and I am called from a delightful nap."

"Just as I've always said," observed Brian, with a side glance at Margaret. "A doctor's life is all work and no play."

"And you like the play best; don't you?" she rejoined, quickly. "Still, play or not, Brian, it is a very noble profession, and when I was a child I always declared I should be a doctor's wife."

There was a decided question in the eyes she fixed upon him.

"Poor Margaret," he replied, joining in Wilson's laugh. "What a miserable concern you managed to get. Only the beginning of one."

"Don't be so generous with your sympathy, please. A beginning is better than nothing. An acorn is only the beginning of an oak, but we don't despise the acorn because it is not an oak yet."

Wilson, as well as Brian, caught the delicate emphasis on the yet, and he answered with a half smile:

"Brian will become an honored member of the profession before his days are ended. I predict that, Mrs. Leigh."

"Ah, I have quite decided it," returned Margaret promptly. "Brian knows that as well as I do—I couldn't have all my childish calculations upset. I used to think Uncle Stephen the very personification of all things good and noble, and I wondered then if his son were anything like him. You see I had not met Brian."

"And now, Margaret, that you have met him?"

Brian came behind her chair with this question. She glanced back at him and smiled.

"I never form an opinion of a book after reading only its first page. I must go deeper to see if it will realize or disappoint my expectations. Besides, I don't air my views in public. Speaking of views," she continued more lightly. "I have some I want to show you, Doctor. You must promise to think them very beautiful, or I shall be disappointed. Brian, will you get them, please?"

At this request Brian got out a small folio of wood cuts and pen pictures of various scenes about Elmwood and the surrounding country. They were all excellent, and Wilson's appreciation was warm enough to satisfy even Margaret's enthusiasm.

"Do you wonder that I am proud of Elmwood?" she asked, after an animated description of several of its finest points. "Do you wonder that I should love it so dearly? My wonder is that Brian doesn't care for it as I do, for he was born there. I think he has the least bit of fondness for a Bohemian existence. I am sorry for him, because I do think it a most unsatisfactory sort of life. I agree with George Elliot that we all should have one home spot that shall stand clearly out in memory, and to which our minds and hearts may always return, no matter how far we may have wandered from it."

Margaret broke off with a sigh. "This," she added, taking up another picture in some haste, "is a side view of The Cedars, Colonel Barton's home. Brian and I were speaking of Bertie when you came in. He has finished his book and the publishers predict a great success for it."

"Yes, I read it in the manuscript some time ago. I thought it excellent. Bertie is full of puck and deserves success. By the way, I met him to-day. He was in cheerful spirits. He tells me he has a charming wife. You know her, of course, Mrs. Leigh."

"Almost like a sister, I may say. I hear from her quite frequently. She writes very delightful letters. She is constantly expressing the fear that I shall become so infatuated with New York and its pleasures that I shall forget what she calls their rural delights. I try to convince her that there is no danger of that."

"No, I fear you are too firm in your opinions ever to be converted, no matter how earnestly we may try."

As he spoke, Wilson left the table and drew a chair close beside her, and Brian busied himself in gathering up the scattered pictures.

"I acknowledge that I like your city the least bit better than I did," admitted Margaret, "but further than that I can not go. I forgot to tell you that I saw your little cripple to-day. I should think she was very ill."

"Her life is a matter of but a few weeks at most," was his answer. "I thank you for your interest in her."

"Please don't thank me. I'm wonderfully self-satisfied, and I may begin to think I've done something meritorious. Brian, do come from behind my chair. You make me think of Satan. Get in front of me, please."

"Thanks for your compliment. Your candor is really refreshing. I want to hear about the new unfortunate. I guessed from your face at dinner that you had been on some errand of mercy."

"I am sorry my face can not keep a secret better. Don't persuade Dr. Wilson that I am an indefatigable St. Elizabeth, ever bent on charitable missions, when I am merely a young woman who wants—who doesn't quite know what she wants."

"Doesn't she? I think she succeeds very well in getting it. If you will play St. Elizabeth, I suppose no words of mine will have any effect. I can only mildly hope that you will not quite kill yourself. But seriously, I do not like to think of you going around in all sorts of neighborhoods and meeting all kinds of characters. Of course, wherever Wilson recommends, is all right. Don't go entirely on your own judgment, though. I shudder at the thought."

His Weight in Gold.

The ancient annual ceremony of "Talabharan," or weighing the Maharajah of Travancore against an equivalent weight of gold, has come round again. It appears to have been conducted this year with great pomp and ceremony, for the present Maharajah is a Hindu of the orthodox type, who aspires to keep up the traditions of his house. Some months before the ceremony the Government purchased through its commercial agent at Alleppey about two thousand weight of pure gold, the greater part of which was converted into coins for this purpose. After presenting an elephant and offerings to the shrine, the Maharajah entered the building prepared for the occasion, and having completed the preliminary ceremonies, mounted one of the scales. The sword and shield were laid in his lap; in the other side of the scale gold coins, struck for the occasion, were placed by the first and second princes, till it touched the ground and the Maharajah rose in the air, the priest meanwhile chanting Wedic hymns. Volleys were fired, the band played, and the troops presented arms. The Maharajah worshipped at the shrine, and then went to the palace. Subsequently the Dewan and other officials distributed the coins from the fort gates to fifteen thousand Brahmins.

Black Eye.

There is nothing to compare with a tincture or a strong infusion of capsicum annuum, mixed with an equal bulk of mucilage or gum arabic, and with the addition of a few drops of glycerine. This should be painted all over the bruised surface with a camel's hair pencil, and allowed to dry on, a second or third coating being applied as soon as the first is dry. If done as soon as the injury is inflicted, the treatment will invariably prevent the blackening of the bruised tissue. The same remedy has no equal in rheumatic, sore or stiff neck. —Medical Times.

DALTON BANDITS DIE.

WIPED OUT WHILE ROBBING BANKS IN KANSAS.

They Ride Into Coffeyville, Attack the Banks, and Are Attacked—Four of Them Killed, and They Also Kill Five Citizens.

Fight to the Death.

The Dalton gang has been exterminated, wiped off the face of the earth. Caught like rats in a trap, they were shot down, but not until four citizens of Coffeyville, Kan., yielded up their lives in the work of extermination.

Six of the gang rode into the town Wednesday morning and robbed the two banks. Their raid had become known to the officers of the law, and when the bandits attempted to escape they were attacked by the Marshal's posse. In the battle which ensued four of the desperadoes were killed outright, and one was so badly wounded that he has since died. The other escaped, but he is being hotly pursued.

Of the attacking party four were killed, one was fatally and two seriously wounded. The dead are:

BOB DALTON, desperado, shot through the head.

GRANT DALTON, desperado, shot through the head.

EMMET DALTON, desperado, shot through the left side.

JOSEPH EVANS, desperado, shot through the head.

JOHN MOORE, alias "Texas Jack," desperado, shot through the head.

T. G. CONNELLY, City Marshal, shot through the body.

L. M. BALDWIN, bank clerk, shot through the head.

G. W. CUBINE, merchant, shot through the head.

C. J. BROWN, shoemaker, shot through the body.

Thomas G. Ayers, cashier of the First National Bank, was shot through the groin and cannot live.

T. A. Rennolds of the attacking party has a wound in the right breast, but it is not considered necessarily dangerous.

Lais Deiz, another of the attacking party, was shot in the right side. His wound is a serious one, but is not fatal.

It was 9 o'clock when the gang rode into town, in two squads of three each, passing through unfrequented streets and deserted alleys to the alley in the rear of the First National Bank. They quickly tied their horses, and without losing a moment's time proceeded to the attack upon the bank.

Robert Dalton, the notorious leader of the gang, and Emmet, his brother went to the First National bank, the other four under the leadership of "Texas Jack," or John Moore, going to the private bank of C. M. Congdon & Co.

In the meantime the alarm had already been given. The Dalton boys were born and bred in the vicinity, and were well known to nearly every man, woman and child. Almost before the bandits had entered the bank Marshal Connelly was collecting a posse. He ran first to the livery stable of Jim Spears, a dead shot with a Winchester and a valuable man in any fight. Then he summoned George Cubine, a merchant; Charles Brown, a shoemaker; John Cox, express agent, and other citizens who could be conveniently reached, stationing them about the square, which both of the banks faced.

Robbers Go Through the Banks.

While the marshal was collecting his forces the bandits, all ignorant of the trap that was being laid for them, were proceeding deliberately with their work of robbing the banks. "Texas Jack's" band had entered Congdon's bank, and with their Winchesters leveled at Cashier Ball and Teller Carpenter had ordered them to throw up their hands. Then "Texas Jack" searched them for weapons while the other three desperadoes kept them covered with their rifles. Finding them to be unarmed Cashier Ball was ordered to open the safe. The cashier explained that the safe's door was controlled by a time lock and that it could not by any means short of dynamite be opened before its time was up, which would be 10 o'clock, or in about twenty minutes. "Well wait," said the leader, and he sat down at the cashier's desk.

Bob and Emmet Dalton in the meanwhile were having better luck at the First National bank. When they entered the bank they found within Cashier Ayers, his son, Albert Ayers, and Teller W. H. Shepherd. None of them were armed, and with leveled revolvers the brother bandits easily intimidated them. Albert Ayers and Teller Shepherd were kept under the muzzles of Emmet Dalton's revolvers while Bob Dalton forced Cashier Ayers to strip the safe vault and cash drawers of all the money contained in them and place it in a sack which had been brought along for that purpose.

Bob Dalton Dies in His Boats.

Fearing to leave them behind, lest they should give the alarm before the bandits should be able to mount their horses and escape, the desperadoes marred the officers of the bank out of the door with the intention of keeping them under guard while they made their escape. The party made its appearance at the door of the bank just as Liveryman Spears and his companions of the Marshal's posse took their positions in the square. When the Dalton brothers saw the armed men in the square they appreciated their peril on the instant, and leaving the bank officers on the steps of the bank building, ran for their horses. As soon as they reached the sidewalk Spears' rifle quickly came to position. An instant later it spoke and Bob Dalton, the notorious leader of the notorious gang, fell in his tracks, dead. There was not a quiver of a muscle after he fell. The bullet had struck him in the right temple and ploughed through his brain and passed out just above the left eye. Emmet Dalton had the start of his brother, and before Spears could draw a bead on him he had dodged behind the corner of the bank and was making time in the direction of the alley where the bandits had tied their horses.

The shot which dropped Bob Dalton aroused "Texas Jack" and his men in Congdon's bank, where they were patiently waiting for the timelock of the safe to be sprung with the hour of 10,

Running to the windows of the bank they saw their leader prostrate on the ground. Raising their rifles to their shoulders they fired one volley out of the windows. Cashier Ayers fell on the steps of his bank, shot through the groin. Shoemaker Brown of the attacking party in the square was shot through the body. He was quickly removed to his shop, but died just as he was carried within.

Spears' Rifle Again Speaks.

The firing attracted the attention of Marshal Connelly, who, collecting more men for his posse and with the few that he had already gathered, ran hurriedly to the scene of the conflict.

After firing their volley from the windows of the bank the bandits, appreciating that their only safety lay in flight, attempted to escape. They ran from the door of the bank, firing as they fled. The Marshal's posse in the square, without organization of any kind, fired at the fleeing bandits, each man for himself. Spears' trusty Winchester spoke twice more in quick succession before the others of the posse could take aim, and Joseph Evans and "Texas Jack" fell dead, both shot through the head, making three dead bandits to his credit. In the general fusillade Grant E. Dalton, one of the two surviving members of "Texas Jack's" squad, Marshal Connelly, D. M. Baldwin, and George Cubine were mortally wounded and died on the field. Allie Ogee, the only survivor of the band, succeeded in escaping to the alley, where the horses were tied, and mounting the swiftest horse of the lot fled south in the direction of Indian Territory.

Emmet Dalton, who had escaped from the First National Bank, had already reached the alley in safety, but he had some trouble in getting mounted, and Allie Ogee had already made his escape before Emmet got fairly started. Several of the posse, anticipating that horses would be required, were already mounted, and quickly pursued the escaping bandits. Emmet Dalton's horse was no match for the fresher animals of his pursuers. As the pursuers closed on him, he turned suddenly in his saddle, and fired upon his would-be captors.

The latter answered with a volley and Emmet toppled from his horse hard hit. He was brought back to town, and died later. He made an ante-mortem statement, confessing to the various crimes committed by the gang of which he was a member. Allie Ogee had about ten minutes' start of his pursuers, and was mounted on a swift horse.

After the battle was over search was made for the money which the bandits had secured from the two banks. It was found in the sacks where it had been placed by the robbers. One sack was found under the body of Bob Dalton, who had fallen dead upon it while he was escaping from the First National Bank. The other was found tightly clinched in "Texas Jack's" hand. The money was restored to its rightful owners.

LORD TENNYSON IS DEAD.

An Attack of Influenza Complicated with Gout Results Fatally.

Lord Alfred Tennyson, poet-laureate of Great Britain, died at his residence, Aldworth, Surrey, at an early hour Thursday morning. A slight cold taken a week before developed into influenza, which caused death.

Alfred Tennyson was born at Somersby, Lincolnshire, England, in 1809. His father, the Rev. George Clayton Tennyson, was the rector of Somersby and vicar of Bennington and Grimsby, while his mother was the daughter of the Rev. Stephen Fytche, vicar of Louth. He was the third of a family of twelve children. The talent which gained for him the title of Poet Laureate of England began to develop itself in his early youth, for when 18 years old he, with his brother Charles, who afterward became vicar of Grimsby and assumed the name of Turner, published a small volume entitled "Poems by Two Brothers." The poems attracted some attention, those signed "A. T." receiving the highest praise, Coleridge declaring that they alone of the selections in the volume gave hopeful promise of a coming poet.

In 1850 there appeared anonymously what was probably the purest and truest poem of that period, Tennyson's "In Memoriam," a series of 129 brief poems all wrought together in grand pathetic tribute to the memory of the poet's college friend and companion, Arthur Hallam, who died in Vienna in 1833. For seventeen years Tennyson had borne the sacred grief of his friend's death, during which time he composed the elegies contained in the volume "In Memoriam." November 21, 1850, Tennyson was appointed to the honorary place of Poet Laureate of England, succeeding Wordsworth. Of the poems written in that capacity there have been few that have been considered by critics as works which are to take rank with others of his poems, notably the "Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington," and the "Charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava." Both of these were included in his volume entitled "Maud and Other Poems," published in 1855.

The creating of Tennyson a peer was not conducive to lowering his dignity and reducing his vanity. He was created a peer by Queen Victoria early in 1884, in consideration of his distinguished services. March 11 of that year he took his seat in the House of Lords. Tennyson turned his attention toward the dramatic art first in 1870, when he wrote "The Window, or the Songs of the Wrens," which was set to music by Sir Arthur Sullivan. In 1875 he wrote "Queen Mary," a drama, and his last effort in the dramatic line was "The Foresters," which was first presented in London a few months ago.

The residence of Lord Tennyson has been on the Isle of Wight for several years, near Freshwater Gate. He owned there a commodious stone house, with a pleasant library, where he spent the most of his hours of literary work, surrounded by his books.

The twenty-fourth anniversary of the establishment of the A. O. U. W. was celebrated at Emporia, Kan.

INDIANS ON A RAMPAGE

MANY DEPREDEATIONS COMMITTED BY THE UTES.

The Redskins Have Left Their Reservations and Are Slaughtering Game and Raiding Ranches in Colorado—Collision with Stockmen Probable.

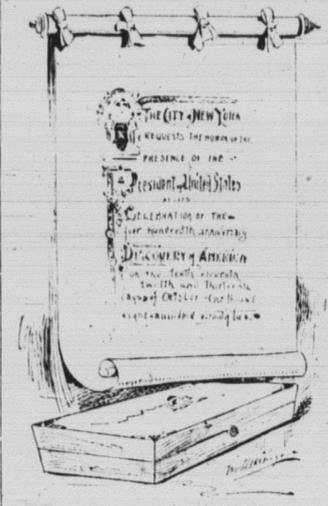

Gov. Routt, of Colorado, has received intelligence from the Yampah River country that the Utes had crossed the Colorado State line and were committing depredations. The telegram which conveyed this intelligence also stated that the settlers had become impatient and bloodshed might be expected at any time, inasmuch as great damage was being done and much game was being destroyed. Gov. Routt at once wired the department at Washington and also the department at Salt Lake City, and the Indians were returned to their reservation. It would not be responsible for their safety.

These Indians are from the Uintah Reservation in Utah, and they have been on a marauding tour through the northern portion of Routt County for several days. A short time since they were taken back to their reservation by the aid of couriers, but two weeks ago they returned and have been slaughtering and destroying game, leaving the carcasses of deer and elk where they dropped, taking the hides only.

For the past two years the stockmen in Routt County have been organized in anticipation of a raid, and their ability to cope with the regicides has just been proved. The Indians are in bunches of forty and fifty, and, as was their custom of old, tear down fences and turn their stock upon the fields of the ranchmen. Word of their coming was passed on up the Yampah and Snake Rivers, and as a result an armed force is opposing their advance. Lilly Park, Willow Creek, and the Maybell and Loy countries are well represented. No collision has yet occurred.

THE PRESIDENT'S INVITATION
A Handsome Specimen of Richly Illuminated Scroll Work.

The invitation sent to President Harrison by the committee of one hundred to be present at New York's celebration of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, is a handsome specimen of richly illuminated scroll work. It is illuminated on parchment, size 18x12 inches, and is much after the character of the fine illuminations produced by the monks of the middle ages.

There are a number of leaves to the parchment containing the names of the committee of one hundred; they are tied with ribbons on an ivory bar, and rolled up in the ancient form in which parchments were put up. In this instance the parchment is incased in a handsome box of American ash, mounted with solid gold corners, hinges and lock; on the cover are mounted a raised gold head of Columbus and the figures 1492-1892.

ROBBERS SCARED OFF.
Four Men Attempt to Loot a Pennsylvania Bank, and Are Captured.

Erie, Pa., special: An attempt was made to rob the Keystone National Bank here by four men. One of the bank officers was wounded and the prisoners were all captured. It was about 12:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and no customers were in the bank. Assistant Cashier Frank Kepler and Clerk Charles Liebel were busy balancing their books and counting money and checks when suddenly a quartette of tough-looking strangers burst into the room, revolvers in hand. The strangers took positions at each of the windows, around the desks within, and, pointing their revolvers at the heads of the two clerks, told them to throw up their hands.

Instead of doing as directed the cashier snatched up a paper weight and was about dealing the fellow nearest him a blow when two shots were fired by the intruders. One of the bullets struck Kepler in the left cheek, inflicting a serious but not dangerous wound. The young man fell fainting to the floor, and the robbers becoming frightened ran from the bank and fled up Eighth street.

Special Officer William Doehrel run out and joined the crowd of pursuers. Hailing the driver of a passing wagon he jumped in and had the driver pursue the robbers, and finally got ahead of the fugitives. The officer then jumped out and with drawn revolver commanded the men to throw up their hands. The men were a shot from a revolver by answer of the desperadoes. As the officer was in the act of returning the fire the men thought better of it and surrendered. They were handcuffed together and marched to the police station and locked up in separate cells. The prisoners gave their names as John Courtney and C. H. Hawley, of New York City, and Dan P. Evans and Charles W. Smith, of Syracuse.

Why Russians Do Not Eat Potatoes.
The Muscovite is the most doggedly conservative human being on God's earth," said Clifton R. Sanders, a Boston globe-trotter now domiciled at the Southern. "No wonder he dies of the cholera like the sheep with the rot; he not only won't learn anything new, but he doesn't want to. Here it is now going on nearly 400 years since that greatest of all peculiarly American products, the Irish potato, was introduced into Europe, and though it has added brawn to the jaded masses of every other nation of the old world, the Russian stubbornly refuses to incorporate it in his diet."

"I prefer, of course, to the great bulk of the hundred millions of the Czar's subjects. They don't stop at refusing to eat the potato, but they look on one who does cultivate it as in league with the devil, and in fact always speak of the potato as 'devil's fruit.' They have a legend which runs something like this: The devil complained to God once that he had no fruit, whereupon the poor devil fell to digging in the earth and found potatoes growing therein."—St. Louis Chronicle.

Keep Off the Enemy.
A foe who lurks in ambush is a more dangerous antagonist than one who attacks us in the open field, and for those assaults we are, in a measure, prepared. That dangerous enemy to health, malaria, must be encountered fully armed. Its thrusts are sudden, unexpected and deadly, and can only be guarded against with certainty by fortifying the system by a course of defensive medication. The surest defense against chills and fever, bilious remittent, dumb ague, and ague cake is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is also an eradicator of the most obstinate forms of malaria which resist the action of ordinary specifics, and the virus of which remains in the system even when the more violent symptoms are subdued. Constipation, liver complaint, dyspepsia, and kidney troubles are always relieved by this genial remedy.

Flogging Native Australians.
In Western Australia the magistrates may sentence native wrongdoers in certain cases to be flogged, but the Government is very particular as to the instrument used for the purpose. A circular issued for the instruction of the magistrates contains the following injunction: Under no circumstances whatever should any other instrument than a cat-o'-nine-tails be used, unless it be some description of a whip (other than a stock whip) or birch rod. A rope or stick of any sort must not on any account be used.

The use of Ely's Cream Balm, a sure cure for Catarrh and Cold in head, is attended with no pain, inconvenience or dread, which can be said of no other remedy. I FEEL it my duty to say a few words in regard to Ely's Cream Balm, and I do so entirely without solicitation. I have used it half a year, and have found it to be most admirable. I have suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since I was a little boy and I never hoped for cure, but Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many of my acquaintances have used it with excellent results.—Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

Apply Balm into each nostril. It is Quickly Absorbed. GIVES RELIEF AT ONCE. Price 50 cents at Druggists or by mail.

Lawsuit Over Bogus Gold Coins.
A lawsuit pending as to the ownership of a number of coins believed to be $5 gold pieces found in a store at Methuen, Mass., has been quashed from an odd cause. One of the parties interested visited the sub-treasury in Boston recently and had the coins tested. They were found to be composed of copper, with a plating of gold.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Ducks as Dispatch Carriers.
An officer in the British army thinks that ducks would be preferable to pigeons for carrying naval dispatches over the sea, because they would drop down and sit on the water when tired and resume their flight after resting.

A KINDLY feeling cannot fail to touch the heart.

I SINCERELY BELIEVE that I should have been dead long ago if it had not been for Hood's Sarsaparilla. I had a bad humor that would not yield to any treatment, and my stomach was very weak. I was hardly able to get around when I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. I began to improve slowly until after I had taken some 10 or 12 bottles. I considered myself well once more. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA did me so much good that it seems as if it must do others good. MRS. CHRISTINA TEMPLE, Bangor, Me.

The Asthma.

An exchange gives an account of the death of an aged citizen who lived until the age of 82, but who had been a sufferer from asthma for many years. It is generally supposed that this is a malady from which old people in particular suffer, but this is not so, for many young people contract it. It can be cured even in its worst stages. We have tried it thousands of cases and have never known it to fail to give instant relief when REID'S GERMAN COUGH AND KIDNEY CURE was administered in small and frequent doses. It acts at once as a stimulant, relaxing the muscles. It contains nothing deleterious, neither opiate nor narcotic; it can be given again and again without any danger of evil results. No other cough remedy on the market can be given without danger; most of them contain opium in some form, or some other drug which, if taken in excessive quantities, is likely to prove fatal. REID'S GERMAN COUGH AND KIDNEY CURE contains no poison. The small bottles are 25 cents, the large ones 50 cents. Get it of any dealer.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

An Interesting Budget from the Nation's Capital.
WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The democratic congressional committee are making very little use of any issue except the "force" bill in the south, and they are now congratulating themselves that their documents on the subject are very effective in the close districts. They find great difficulty in their efforts to discover what the republicans are doing in the south, but they have come to the conclusion that the republican congressional committee are not trying to do much in the way of electing southern republicans to the House, but are trying to trade with the independent candidates, giving votes for Congress in exchange for votes for electors. Having come to this conclusion as to the republican plan they are talking very confidently of a large majority in the next House, but are correspondingly anxious about the electoral vote in certain of the southern states. The republicans may not be very hopeful in the south, but the democrats are certainly very anxious. As to the congressional situation the democrats say that Secretary McPherson had an idea that the republicans could elect a large number of republicans to the House from the south, but that the national managers of the party regarded it as more important to devote all energies to the presidential election and to sacrifice Congressmen wherever anything could be gained for the presidential ticket by so doing. Those who can speak with authority as to the work of the democratic congressional committee say that the expectation of course, to fall short in the next House of the large majority they have in this, but that the loss will not be as heavy as might naturally be expected.

The course of the market for silver bullion is an enigma to the Treasury officials. Said one of them "We can't understand it, and have given up trying to. One would naturally imagine that where a fixed demand was created, as was done by the act of July, 1890, for 4,500,000 ounces a month, the draft upon the source of supply would tend to stiffen up prices. And especially would this be expected when, as was the case in the United States, the stock was diminished by strikes and others. But the price at which silver bullion is offered to the Treasury has gone steadily down since the purchase of 4,500,000 ounces a month was begun, until yesterday, when it reached 8345 cents a ounce. And this decline has been concurrent with decreased totals of the offerings to the Department. The smaller the quantity the less the price?" "Do you buy any foreign bullions? Are foreign coins imported, melted and then sold?" was asked. "No; we buy nothing but American silver. We can tell from the reports of imports that no foreign coins are coming in. 'I suppose,'" said the official in conclusion, "that the most probable explanation of the apparent phenomenon is that, whereas the United States has increased its demands for silver, some other countries have decreased theirs, and and bullion which formerly went out of the country must now be disposed of here.

Representative O'Neil of Massachusetts is in the city. He says there will be a hard pull in Massachusetts and the vote will be close, with great uncertainty at this time, which way it would go. "The republicans now," he said, "have a majority, but the gains are steadily for the democrats, with a prospect that between now and the election those gains will be enough to give Cleveland the state. We are sure to re-elect Russel governor and to elect five congressmen. "Our success with the electoral ticket depends on the registration. We are doing all we can to whoop it up and get a full registration. Through the efforts of the democratic party the constitution was amended so as to abolish the $2 poll tax. This, I think, will be to the benefit of the democrats. If we can get a full registration I think the state will go into the Cleveland column." Speaking of New York he said that the management of the democratic campaign was practically in the hands of Mr. Shehan and Mr. Hill' friends that they were taking the responsibility for it, and that they were going to do their best. This led him to believe that the democrats would surely be successful.

Will the four European governments of Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy coerce the republic of San Domingo into abrogating its commercial treaty with this country? The question is one that the officials of the State Department cannot answer. They realize that the little black republic is between two fires. Whether it abrogates its treaty with us or not, it is likely to suffer from one side or the other. It is an embarrassing position for President Henreaux, and one from which he would gladly extricate himself. Thus far he has not succeeded. There is the highest authority for the statement that no foundation exists for the current rumor that Germany has offered President Henreaux a yearly bribe of $50,000 to abrogate his treaty with the United States. And equally untrue is the still more ridiculous statement that the latter had sent a manager to Secretary Foster to learn if the United States would not "see" Germany's fifty thousand and go her twenty-five thousand better.

Hon. Benjamin Butterworth having had his tariff views renovated in conformity with the Republican platform, is now prepared to mount the stump.
