Punishment Without Anger.

We need hardly emphasize the importance of guarding jealousy against all displays of temper while inflicting punishment. No doubt this is difficult with refractory children, but such a degree of self government as will enable parents or teachers to avoid the angry moment is nevertheless requisite for success. A case which illustrates this point was that of a boy who was beaten about the back and had the day following a school misdemeanor. Singularly enough, he injured his head next day, and being at the time in poor health, though believed to be well, died in a week from tubercular meningitis.

At once his teacher was blamed, but proof being brought that the chastisement inflicted was deliberate, orderly and proportionate, though the means employed were not quite regular, he was entirely exonerated at a subsequent inquest. It would indeed in many cases render the duties of a schoolmaster as barren as difficult if he were not allowed a reasonable freedom in physical correction. The possible occurrence of such incidents as the above must, however, impress what we have said as to method in its application.—London Lancet.

Variations of the Compass of Columbus.

As the astute Genoese well divined the dread which the ever increasing distance was certain to arouse, he kept two logbooks, one for himself and the other for the crew. In the former he recorded the actual run, in the latter a lesser distance, by which device he diminished the fears and restrained the impatience of his susceptible shipmates. But in doing this an unforeseen complication arose. Their sure guide, the compass, that ever had pointed fixedly to the north, began to waver. Although this phenomenon had been known for two centuries—though many say it had never been observed until then—the crew gave themselves up for lost and imagined that for them even the fixed point was shifting, as though God had cast them off. Columbus recognized the necessity of explaining this phenomenon as he had explained volcanoes. But the explanation was not easy, for while the volcanoes were like others already known it was impossible to understand or explain the variation of the needle by any familiar fact or experience.—Emilio Castelar in Century.

On the Best Authority.

A story is told of a trial for burglary in which one of the jurymen seemed to be so certain of the prisoner's innocence, and pleaded for him so eloquently and so convincingly, that the eleven others (who had no particular bias either way) allowed themselves to be argued into returning a verdict of "not guilty." A few days later fresh facts came to light which proved the accused man's innocence beyond a doubt, and one of the eleven wavering jurymen happened to meet with the man who had so powerfully influenced them all thanked him warmly for having saved them from the commission of a great injustice.

"And yet, now I think of it," he added, "you could not have known then anything about these new facts, so how could you be so sure the man was innocent?"

"Well," replied the other, "my chief reason for thinking that he did not commit the crime was that I committed it myself."

Such authority was certainly not to be disputed.—Harper's.

Changes in Boston.

What a strange turnabout it would be if the magnificent houses on Commonwealth avenue and thereabout should in course of time be abandoned by the aristocratic portion of society and should degenerate by successive stages, as the once elegant residences at the north end have done, until they became rookeries for the swarming poor! The north end aristocrats as little dreamed of the degradation of their mansions as do the Back Bay householders today. The Charles, as it smells to heaven at low tide, is enough to discourage fashion from dwelling on those borders; but she has a good firm footing there at present, with no notion of folding her tent.—Boston Commonwealth.

$20.00 Suits For $15.00.

$16.00 Suits For $11.00.

$15.00 suits for $10.00.

WE have just opened these Handsome Suits made up stylish for this season's trade, lined throughout with the best of linings. Every suit will fit to perfection. You have never seen their equal for the money. We bought them for spot cash from an overstocked manufacturing concern at our own prices which were less than the goods cost to manufacture. We are going to close them out with a rush, at less than regular wholesale prices. Every time a man walks out with one of these, it means that that man is $5.00 richer than he would be had he bought a suit of any other concern in the county. If you are going to need a suit within the next six months, it will pay you to look after these bargains at once. Remember when we advertise special bargains, it means something. There is no humbug or Jew business about it. We have the stuff and the prices just as given here. If it takes you all day to get here, it will still pay you to come. Don't forget that we show a stock of overcoats and ulsters equal in assortment to any stock shown in Ann Arbor or Jackson. Prices at least 25 per cent. lower.

BLOCKED THE TRACKS.

STREET RAILWAY STRIKERS RESORT TO FORCE.

One Car Manned by Non-Union Men Run Over the Line—New York Board of Trade Wants Immigration Stopped—Minor News.

Police Clear the Way.

COLUMBUS special: The war between the street railroad company and its employes is now on in full force, and promises to be one of the bitterest labor wars this city has seen for a long time. The men remain immovable, and the company is no less firm in its position. Since the failure of Mayor Korb to bring about a settlement affairs have steadily become worse and worse, until the whole trouble has resolved itself into a question of which is the more powerful, the company or Union No. 5-29, United Order of Street Railway Employes. The directors of the Columbus Consolidated Street Railway Company met and decided by formal vote to attempt to run cars under police protection. At 6 o'clock in the morning 100 policemen were taken to the Long street line and distributed at various points. At 7 o'clock everything was in readiness, and manned by a non-union motor man and conductor and a dozen policemen a car slowly pulled out of the barn. The strikers surged about the car and refused to get off the track. Another squad of police was called into service. After considerable trouble the track was cleared, and it took but a moment for the car to be beyond any interference from the strikers at the barn. Public sympathy seems to be with the strikers and serious trouble is expected.

Cabinet-makers at Work.

THE result of the election being positively settled politicians are turning their attention to the possible make-up of President Cleveland's next Cabinet. The Cabinet slate generally figured out by politicians is as follows:

- Secretary of State—Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware. Secretary of the Treasury—John L. Mitchell or ex-Postmaster General William F. Vilas, of Wisconsin. Secretary of the Navy—William C. Whitney, of New York. Secretary of War—W. B. Franklin, of New Hampshire. Secretary of the Interior—Isaac P. Gray, of Indiana. Attorney General—Congressman William L. Wilson, of West Virginia, or Congressman Culbertson, of Texas. Postmaster General—Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan.

It has been the generally accepted belief in political circles at Washington that ex-Secretary Whitney, who has done so much to achieve the sweeping victory for Cleveland, would be offered the place of Secretary of State by the President-elect, but those who appear to know something about it say that Mr. Whitney would prefer to be Secretary of the Navy if he enters the Cabinet at all.

Hanged for Two Years.

THE body of Thomas Borland, of Pittsburg, Pa., who disappeared Jan. 31, 1891, was found Thursday swinging from a post in an abandoned coal mine at Bradlock. Borland was suffering with the grip at the time of his disappearance, and it had evidently weakened his mind. The body was shriveled; the skin on the face had dried close to the bones, and the peculiar phenomena of the hair growing on the face and head of the dead body had taken place. The rope around Borland's neck was rotted with mildew. It had evidently been hanging there nearly two years.

For the Souvenir Coins.

THE Treasury Department will shortly ship to the Philadelphia Mint $1,000,000 in half-dollars to be coined into the Columbian Exposition souvenir half-dollar pieces. There have been shipped for this purpose thus far $600,000 from the Subtreasury at New York City and $201,000 from Baltimore. New York will send $1,300,000 for this purpose and Baltimore $20,000. The work of coining will begin shortly.

THE steamer City of Belfast reached New York on Monday night in a terrible condition, after battling with the storms for two weeks. The steamship left Colombo Aug. 26 with a cargo of sugar. It had favorable winds and weather and reached Port Said Sept. 29th, and Gibraltar Oct. 12th. After leaving Gibraltar it encountered terrific storms. This heavy weather continued with but short intermissions of fair weather for two weeks, and the coal ran low as it got within five or six days' sail from this port. The coal finally gave out entirely four days ago and the boat was stripped of everything in the shape of wood about its decks for fuel. The crew's quarters were torn out and burned. The fore and main top masts were next sent down and thrown into the furnaces. The bowsprit and the derricks next went, and with this the steamship was finally able to get into port.

EL PASO, Tex., dispatch: The drought in Northwestern Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, and Northern Mexico has been broken, rain falling almost steadily for twenty-four hours. It has come too late to be of benefit to grass, unless a warm spell follows, as the grass has already cured and water will rot it. It has served another purpose, however, in filling all the water holes. New Mexico stock has been and is being shipped and driven into Utah and Nevada in great numbers. The loss has been great from the want of rain.

SINCE Gov. Brown of Kentucky called in question the constitutionality of the bill appropriating $100,000 for Kentucky's exhibit at the World's Fair the State Commissioners have dilly-dallied and refused to take any steps to test the question. It has looked very much as if Kentucky would not be represented at Chicago, but the weak-kneed commissioners have braced up and submitted an agreed case to Judge Montfort of the Circuit Court. He will decide the case at once. It will then go to the Court of Appeals, and the matter will be settled in a few weeks. It is believed that the appropriation will be sustained.

A CORONER'S jury at Portland, Ore., has decided that Lieutenant Schwatka came to his death from an overdose of morphine taken accidentally.

SMALL-POX epidemic has broken out in Seattle and Tacoma, Wash. Three cases have been reported. A rigid quarantine has been established.

Jesse W. Elliott, a lawyer of Vinita, I. T., was killed at Catosa, fifty miles southwest of Vinita, last night by T. J. Thornton. The two men had several fights before the fatal encounter. Finally Elliott mounted Thornton's horse and rode up and down the street. He was followed by Thornton and taken off the horse and his head nearly cut from his body with a knife.

THE remains of Lieut. Schwatka were taken to Salem, Ore., and consigned to their last resting place Friday. The funeral services were of a simple and unostentatious character. Many residents of Salem and a large number of people from Portland, together with the immediate friends and relatives of the dead explorer, surrounded the grave as the casket was lowered into it.

A CINCINNATI horse doctor undertook to cure a girl of consumption after the family physician had given her up. He first boiled all the flesh off her legs by steaming them over a tubful of hot water and timothy seed. Then he wrapped the maimed limbs with bandages, which he soaked with horse liniment. The poor girl died in agony, and the father is hunting for the ignorant brute with a gun.

In a tunnel under King's highway, just east of Forest Park, St. Louis, a construction train and a freight train, both of the Wabash system, met, demolishing twelve cars at a loss of $45,000, tearing up the track and injuring Bob Carmody, fireman, ribs broken with internal injuries, fatal; E. J. Hill, brakeman, numerous cuts and bruises; John Murphy, engineer, badly cut on the head. Carmody died at the hospital.

A HORRIBLE story is reported from Deep Fork, Oklahoma, in the Potawatomi country. Two weeks ago the wife and baby of a settler mysteriously disappeared. The other day the head of the child and portions of the body of the mother were discovered in the lair of a panther in the woods several miles from the house. The woman and child had been carried off and devoured by the ferocious beast. Fifty armed men are hunting for the panther.

MISS ULLIE AKERSTROM will play an engagement at McVicker's Chicago Theater during Thanksgiving week. She will begin with her new comedy, "Miss Rover," and during the latter part of the week will present "A Little Busy Body," a favorite four-act comedy drama. Joseph Jefferson will open a limited engagement at this theater on Monday evening, Nov. 28, in his famous comedy, "Rip Van Winkle," and Miss Pauline Hall, who is now presenting her new opera, "Puritana" at Miner's Fifth Avenue Theater, New York, will be seen at this theater in the near future.

WASHINGTON.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY A. B. NETTLETON announces that he will resign.

PRESIDENT HARRISON has issued the annual Thanksgiving Day proclamation. It follows:

The gifts of God to our people during the last year have been so abundant and so special that the spirit of devout thanksgiving awaits not a call, but only the appointment of a day when it may have a common expression. He has stayed the pestilence at our doors; He has given us more love for the free civil institutions in the creation of which His directing providence was so conspicuous; He has awakened a deeper reverence for law; He has widened our philanthropy by a call to succor the distress in other lands; He has blessed our schools and is bringing forward a patriotic and God-fearing generation to execute His great and benevolent designs for our country; He has given us great increase in material wealth, and a wide diffusion of contentment and comfort in the homes of our people; He has given His grace to the sorrowing.

Wherefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States, do call upon all our people to observe, as we have been wont, Thursday, the 24th day of this month of November, as a day of thanksgiving to God for His mercies and of supplication for His continued care and grace.

In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 4th day of November, 1892, and of the Independence of the United States the one hundred and seventeenth.

BENJAMIN HARRISON, By the President. JOHN W. FOSTER, Secretary of State.

THE Secretary of the Interior has approved the allotment of lands to the Indians on the Devil's Lake Reservation in North Dakota to the number of 894. By the terms of the general allotment act these Indians are thereby declared to be citizens of the United States and entitled to all the rights, privileges, and immunities of such citizens.

FOREIGN.

OSIAN DIGNA, who has been reported dead dozens of times, has reappeared in the Soudan and raided close to Suakim.

CATHERINE BOOTH and Mrs. Clibborn, daughter of General Booth of the Salvation Army, have been arrested at Geneva.

A DISPATCH from Paris says that two policemen found on the Avenue Opera, outside of the office of the Carmaux Mining Company, an iron vessel which had a suspicious appearance. Thinking it might contain dynamite and that the intention was to blow up the Carmaux Company's office on account of the recent trouble with their miners, the policemen took the vessel up carefully and carried it to the police station. On arrival there they proceeded to examine it, whereupon it exploded with terrible effect. The two policemen examining the machine were instantly killed and another was severely wounded. The interior of the station is a wreck. The woodwork is demolished and the windows shattered, and fragments were blown out into the street. The explosion was produced by dynamite. A large force of police immediately started to investigate the origin of the outrage, which is believed to have been committed by some anarchists who wished to injure officials of the Carmaux Company, on account of their course during the recent strike.

IN GENERAL.

ANOTHER revolution has broken out in Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil.

News comes from the Arctic Ocean that the steam whaler Helen Mar has been crushed in an ice floe and thirty-four of her crew drowned.

A MASS of forest growth resembling a large island, and supposed to have broken off the American continent, is reported floating in the Atlantic.

H. R. IVES, a foundry man of Montreal, has called a meeting of creditors. He owes about $100,000, but his assets are expected to exceed that amount.

A DISPATCH from Santiago says that the Chilean Cabinet has resigned as a result of the troubles that have been for some time brewing between the clericals and the liberals.

THE National Line steamer England is five days overdue at New York, and fears are felt for her safety. The steamer was sighted off Cape Race on Thursday in a disabled condition.

THE steamship Ontario, nine days out from Montreal to Liverpool, cattle laden, put in at St. Johns, N. F., to repair its disabled machinery. It encountered severe weather, and was for some time on its beam ends. Its decks were swept and fifty head of cattle drowned.

It is understood that the Dominion Government has decided to ask the British Government to send out experts to investigate the condition of Canadian cattle and quarantine and report to the Dominion Government, in the hope of awakening the British authorities to repeal the embargo recently imposed on cattle from Canada arriving in England.

R. G. DUN & Co. say in their weekly review of trade:

Even in the last week before a Presidential election business continued active; indeed the volume is far beyond any precedent for a similar period. The election has plainly diminished business in two ways; multitudes have been diverted from trade to political activity, and many more have chosen to postpone transactions until the political uncertainty has been removed. The fact that even under such circumstances trade has been of enormous volume shows how powerful is the impetus toward activity and expansion. The people are clearly buying more goods than ever before, and in some branches manufacturers are realizing a slight advance in prices. Money is closer at some Western points, but nowhere is stringency seen, and there is no apprehension as to the immediate future.

END OF A PROFLIGATE.

DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH DIES IN BED.

A Career of Profligacy Almost Without Parallel Among England's Nobility—How the President Received the News of His Defeat, Etc.

Heard at the White House.

ACCORDING to a Washington correspondent the President spent election evening in his library accompanied by the members of his family. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Harrison, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Dimmick, Judge Scott, and Lieut. and Mrs. Parker. Secretary John W. Foster and Attorney General Miller came in after dinner. Secretary Tracy got back from New York about 9 o'clock and went at once to the White House. Dr. Hamline, the President's pastor, dropped in for a few minutes. The President's information consisted of the press bulletins. He got no private dispatches, at least none of any account. He gave up New York early in the evening. The very meager dispatches which the President received from his own State were moderately encouraging to him. He figured that if he gained fifteen votes in a precinct all over the State, as he did in the twelve precincts first reported, he would get the State by a small majority, for the comparison was made with two years ago, when the Democrats got the State by a large majority. He got no news from the Pacific coast and was quite prepared for the announcement that Nebraska had gone for Weaver. He got no news from Wisconsin except a few bulletins indicating no material change. The President looked the bulletins over and discussed the comparative statistics in a nonchalant way and left most of the talking to the members of his personal and official families. Up to the time his secretaries bade him good-night he had learned nothing that he deemed decisive. He recognized Illinois as doubtful, and when the returns from Chicago and other important points in the State came in he gave up the election, remarking: "If Illinois has gone Democratic that settles it," and requesting that no further returns be sent to him, went to bed. Mr. Tibbott, his stenographer, was in the morning still figuring upon some possible combination which might snatch victory from defeat, but with very indifferent success, even in his own mind. The President arose at his usual hour, glanced over some of the latest returns which had been prepared for him, and then calmly devoted himself to legislative business, saying nothing. Attorney General Miller and Secretary J. W. Foster, of the State Department, are the only two members of the Cabinet in the city. Attorney General Miller was somewhat prepared for defeat by the forecast of doubt brought back with him from his hasty visit to Indiana, but he was far from anticipating so complete a "slump." Secretary of State Foster is not an active politician. He was paired with Col. Dick Bright, of Indiana. Ex-Secretary Blaine declines to be interviewed on the result, and has had the telephone removed from his residence in Lafayette Square so as to avoid the annoyance of perpetual calls.

Death of a Duke.

A LONDON cablegram says: George Charles Spencer Churchill, ninth Duke of Marlborough, was found dead in his room in Blenheim Palace. There was great excitement in club and society circles when the fact was made known. Although the Duke had not been in good health for some time, his sudden death caused great surprise and shared public interest almost equally with the American election. He retired as usual, and when a servant went to his apartment in the morning to assist in his toilet he made no response. The servant approached the bed and at once saw that the Duke was dead. A physician was promptly summoned and an examination showed that the Duke had been dead for several hours. The Duke was the ninth to wear his historic title and is chiefly distinguished as having outdone a long line of dissipated predecessors in extravagance and profligacy. To Americans the announcement of his death will be of interest on account of his marriage a few years ago to Mrs. Hamersley, of New York. The newly made widow, before she became a Duchess, was the wife of Louis C. Hamersley, who died, leaving her a fortune of many millions. After the usual period of mourning Mrs. Hamersley reappeared in society, and then it was she met the Duke of Marlborough and a wedding followed. The Duke was a profligate by instinct, and even when a boy his escapades were such that he was sent abroad, where he continued his dissipation.

Corbett and Fitz Meet Without Bloodshed.

CHAMPION JIM CORBETT and Bob Fitzsimmons have not been on good terms for some time. They met at the Imperial music hall in New York for the first time since the big fight in New Orleans. Corbett shot a withering glance at the long Australian and Fitz returned the compliment. Some of the people in the place expected a row, but Corbett turned on his heel and started for Broadway.

WINTER WHEAT is reported by the Farmers' Review to be in fair condition in Illinois, Ohio, and Kentucky. In Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, and Wisconsin it is reported good. Rye is doing much better than previous reports indicated. Drought has prevented the growth of grass in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky, Kansas, Nebraska, Iowa, Minnesota, and Missouri, and pastures in those States are reported as generally poor.

THIRTY-TWO horses belonging to the Riverside stables, 305 and 307 West 128th street, New York, were burned to death. The building, a four-story brick structure, was gutted. The two upper floors of the structure were filled with furniture, the place being known as the Rivers de Furniture Storehouse.

RESULTS IN DETAIL.

INTERESTING FIGURES FROM THE POLITICAL BATTLE.

A Summary of the States So Far as It Possible to Give— Astonishing Returns from Illinois, Wisconsin and Ohio— Weaver in the West.

Mixed in Wisconsin.

Cleveland has undoubtedly carried Wisconsin by a plurality probably exceeding 10,000, and Peck, Dem., is elected Governor, though by a decreased figure. Republicans gain three, and the Democrats lose two, Congressmen in the State, the Republicans electing four and the Democrats six of the ten. In the last Congress the Wisconsin delegation stood eight Democrats and one Republican. Under the apportionment law of 1890 Wisconsin increased its Congressional representation from nine to ten. The Congressmen-elect by districts are as follows: First, H. A. Cooper, Rep., by 3,000; Second, Charles Barwig, Dem.; Third, John W. Babcock, Rep.; Fourth, John H. Mitchell, Dem.; Fifth, George H. L. Bricker, Dem.; Sixth, Owen A. Wells, Dem.; Seventh, Geo. B. Shaw, Rep., by 2,755; Eighth, Lyman E. Barnes, Dem., by 1,800; Ninth, Thomas Lynch, Dem.; Tenth, Nils B. Haugen, Rep., by 4,500. The Legislature is Democratic in both the Senate and Assembly. With their fifteen hold-over Senators the Democrats will have twenty-five of the thirty-three members of the State Senate, and they will have a majority of thirty-one on joint ballot.

The Surprise in Illinois.

Illinois gives Cleveland a plurality of over 25,000, and elects a Democratic Governor, Altgeld, by several thousand. There is little doubt that the next Congressional delegation from Illinois will be composed of the following: First District, J. Frank Aldrich, Republican; Second District, L. E. McGann, Democrat; Third District, A. C. Durbin, Democrat; Fourth District, Julius Goldzier, Democrat; Fifth District, A. J. Hopkins, Republican; Sixth District, R. B. Hitt, Republican; Seventh District, T. J. Henderson, Republican; Eighth District, Lewis Steward, Democrat; Ninth District, H. K. Wheeler, Republican; Tenth District, P. S. Post, Republican; Eleventh District, R. F. Marsh, Republican; Twelfth District, J. J. McDannold, Democrat; Thirteenth District, W. M. Springer, Democrat; Fourteenth District, Owen S. Ott, Democrat; Fifteenth District, J. G. Cannon, Republican; Sixteenth District, G. W. Fithian, Democrat; Seventeenth District, Edward Lane, Democrat; Eighteenth District, W. S. Forman, Republican; Nineteenth District, J. R. Williams, Democrat; Twentieth District, G. W. Smith, Republican.

Indiana Is Democratic.

Indiana gives a safe plurality for the Democratic electors, and from the latest returns it is figured that eleven Democratic Congressmen are chosen, with the first still doubtful. The delegation will probably be made up as follows: First District, A. H. Taylor, Dem.; Second, John L. Bretz, Dem.; Third, Jason R. Brown, Dem.; Fourth, William S. Holman, Dem.; Fifth, George W. Cooper, Dem.; Sixth, Henry U. Johnson, Rep.; Seventh, William D. Bynum, Dem.; Eighth, E. V. Brookshire, Dem.; Ninth, Daniel Waugh, Rep.; Tenth, Thomas Hammond, Dem.; Eleventh, A. N. Martin, Dem.; Twelfth, William F. McNagney, Dem.; Thirteenth, C. G. Cook, Dem. The Legislature will be Democratic by about 33 majority on joint ballot, insuring the re-election of Turpie to the United States Senate.

How Michigan Split Things.

The following are the Congressmen-elect in Michigan and their approximate majorities: First District, J. Logan Chipman (Dem.), 2,500; Second, S. Gorman (Dem.), 750; Third, Julius C. Burrows (Rep.), 5,000; Fourth, Dr. H. F. Thomas (Rep.), 250; Fifth, George F. Richardson (Dem.), 670; Sixth, D. D. Aitkin (Rep.), 500; Seventh, Justin R. Whiting (Dem.), 1,000; Eighth, W. S. Linton (Rep.), 1,200; Ninth, John W. Moon (Rep.), 200; Tenth, Thomas A. E. Woodcock (Dem.), 700; Eleventh, Dr. John Avery (Rep.), 800; Twelfth, S. M. Stephenson (Rep.), 2,000. The Democrats have elected Presidential Electors in the eastern district and in the First, Second, Seventh, and Tenth Congressional Districts. They hope yet for the Eighth District.

Weaver Ahead in Nebraska.

It is too early to give the exact vote of Nebraska. If the ratio keeps up, Weaver will carry the State by a small plurality. The entire Republican State ticket is undoubtedly elected by pluralities ranging from 1,000 to 2,100. It is barely possible Bryan is defeated in the First District by Field, Rep. Bryan claims 270 plurality, Mercer, Rep., defeats Doane, Dem., in the Second. In the Third, Micklejohn, Rep., defeats Keiper, Dem. Haines, Rep., is elected in the Fourth. McKelghan, Pop. Dem., is elected in the Fifth over Andrews, Rep. The Sixth District is doubtful, with the chances favoring Kem. Ind. The Legislature will stand: 54 Populists, 33 Democrats, and 46 Republicans.

Iowa for Harrison.

Harrison's plurality in Iowa will reach about 22,000. The entire Republican State ticket is elected by about the same plurality. The Congressional delegation will stand ten Republicans and one Democrat, as follows: First District, John H. Gear, majority, 500; Second, Walter I. Hayes (Dem.), majority, 8,000; Third, D. B. Henderson, majority, 1,500; Fourth, Updegraff, majority, 1,300; Fifth, R. B. Cousins, majority, 400; Sixth, J. F. Laera, majority, 1,300; Seventh, J. A. T. Hull, majority, 4,500; Eighth, W. P. Hepburn, majority, 1,100; Tenth, J. P. Dolliver, majority, 2,500; Eleventh, G. D. Perkins, majority, 1,500.

But Look at Ohio.

The greatest surprise to the Republicans of Ohio is the miscarriage of the gerrymander which has met the fate of all former efforts of previous Legislatures, Republican and Democratic, except that by the latter party, when the districts were changed in 1894. The bill of last winter was designed to give the Republicans fifteen and the Democrats six Congressmen. The Democrats have certainly gained three, and probably four of the districts, and claim eleven members. It is believed the delegation will stand as follows: Republicans, Bellamy Storer in the First District, John A. Caldwell in the Second, George W. Hulick in the Sixth, George W. Wilson in the Seventh, Luther M. Strong in the Eighth, W. H. Enos in the Tenth, Charles H. Grosvenor in the Eleventh, H. C. Van Voorhis in the Fifteenth, S. A. Northway in the Nineteenth, W. J. White in the Twentieth. Democrats: George W. Houk in the Third, F. C. Layton in the Fourth, D. D. Donovan in the Fifth, Byron Ritchie in the Ninth, Hare in the Twelfth, A. J. Pearson in the Sixteenth, James Richards in the Seventeenth, George P. Ikert in the Eighteenth, and Thomas L. Johnson in the Twenty-first.

Harrison sold in Minnesota. Harrison has undoubtedly carried Minnesota. Nelson, Rep., is elected Governor by a plurality of 12,000 to 13,000. The following seem to have been elected to Congress: First District—Tawney, Rep.; Second—McCleary, Rep.; Third—Hall, Dem.; Fourth—Kiefer, Rep.; Fifth—Fletcher, Rep.; Sixth—Searle, Rep.; Seventh—Feig, Rep. Sufficient returns have been received to show that the Republicans will have a majority of twenty-eight in the Legislature on joint ballot, thus insuring the re-election of C. K. Davis to the United States Senate.

Both Dakotas Probably Republican.

Harrison has carried North Dakota by 2,500. Johnson, Rep., is elected to Congress by 3,900. The Republican State ticket receives average pluralities of 2,500, while the Legislature is in doubt. Scattering returns at hand indicate that Harrison Electors have carried South Dakota. The Republican State ticket is certain. Pickler and Lucas, Reps., are elected to Congress. The Legislature is probably Republican. Chairman Peemiller, of the Democratic State Committee, still claims the State for the Weaver Electors.

Returns from Many States.

Pennsylvania—The Republicans made a clean sweep, by 85,000 majority. Wyoming—The Weaver electors and the Democratic State ticket have been elected. Vermont—Returns received from fifty Vermont towns give Harrison 12,765; Cleveland, 5,606.

Oregon—The Democratic State Committee concedes the electoral vote to Harrison, except one.

Maine—Harrison's plurality in Maine will be less than 1,000, a Republican loss of 8,000 since 1888.

Montana—Has chosen Harrison Electors and the Republicans elect a majority of their State ticket.

Rhode Island—Harrison's majority in Rhode Island is less than 3,000. Capron (Rep.) is elected to Congress.

New Jersey—Cleveland's majority will fall little short of 12,000. Werts, Dem., for Governor, is chosen.

Virginia—Virginia is Democratic by nearly 30,000. A solid Democratic delegation has been returned to Congress.

Idaho—This state has elected Weaver electors, but the Republicans have elected Sweet and McConnell to Congress.

New Hampshire—The majority for Harrison in New Hampshire is about 3,000. The Legislature will probably elect the governor.

Missouri—The entire Democratic ticket has been elected by a plurality of 17,000, and the Democrats have carried thirteen out of the fifteen districts.

Washington—Harrison has at least 5,900 plurality. McGraw, Rep., for Governor, leads, while the vote on the two Congressmen is close, favoring the Republicans. No estimates on the Legislature.

Connecticut—Cleveland's plurality, 5,417. Four years ago it was 336. The entire Democratic ticket is probably elected. The State Senate is a tie, and the Republicans have about 20 majority in the House.

Colorado—Weaver has carried the State. Both the fusion candidates for Congress have been elected by safe majorities. The Legislature is in the hands of the Populists and Democrats, which insures the election of a Democratic Senator.

Texas—Cleveland has carried the State, but the race between Hogg, Dem., and Clark for Governor is very close, with indications favoring the former. The Populists have probably captured two and the Republicans one Congressman out of thirteen.

Kansas—The Democratic State Committee says the Weaver electors will have a majority in the State of 22,000; that Lewelling, for Governor, will have 17,000 majority, and that the Democrats and Populists will get seven out of the ten Congressmen.

California—The Democratic State Committee announces that the State has gone for Cleveland about 7,000 majority. Chairman Myers, of the Republican Committee, concurs. The Congressional delegation is probably five Republicans and four Democrats.

Massachusetts—The Republican ticket was completely successful by pluralities from 2,000 down, except Russell, Dem., who has 2,000. The Legislature is heavily Republican in both branches. Of the thirteen Congressmen the Republicans carried ten.

Nevada—It is conceded by all that Weaver has carried Nevada by 1,500. Weaver has carried Nevada by 1,500. Weaver has carried Nevada by 1,500. Weaver has carried Nevada by 1,500.

Wisconsin—Cleveland's plurality in New York State is about 45,000. In New York City it is 75,800, and in Kings County about 25,000. The New York State Legislature will be Democratic by 14 or 15 on joint ballot, thus insuring the election of a Democrat to succeed the election of Senator Frank Hiscock. United States Senator Frank Hiscock. The Assembly will probably be made up of 70 Democrats and 58 Republicans.

SAW DEATH COMING.

AWFUL COLLISION OF FREIGHT TRAINS IN IOWA.

Criminal Carelessness on the Part of a Crew Said to Be the Cause—Four Persons Crushed and Cremated, Three Injured.

A Tale of Horror.

A fearful accident occurred on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Road Wednesday night at Highland Center, a small station north of Ottumwa, Iowa. A fast freight train dashed into the caboose of the local freight, which was standing on the track, telescoping the caboose and four cars. The caboose caught fire and with several cars was burned. The scene was heart-rending. Four people perished in the flames, and a number of others had narrow escapes. The caboose was split in two by a car of grain, wedging in four people on the right side. The most pitiful sight was that of Miss Lizzie Butler, of Ottumwa, who got her head out of the window, and piteously pleaded with those about the wreck to save her, but her body was pinioned by the freight car and it was impossible to extricate her. Mrs. Samuel Jones, also of Ottumwa, tried to escape through a window, but she was an unusually large woman and could not get through. The other victims were an unknown woman and man. The latter is thought to be a butcher of

MISE BUTLER'S FATE.

Oskalossa. The injured are Mrs. Clyde Millisack and Mrs. C. D. Pickett of Ottumwa, and Miss Lizzie Corey of Sigourney, who are badly burned, but not fatally. A curious incident of the accident was that one of the passengers was disguised, and, in the crash, his disguise came off, revealing a noted crook. He quickly disappeared in the excitement. The cause of the accident seems to have been due entirely to criminal carelessness on the part of the crew of the fast train. The local train was standing at the standing unloading freight. For four miles away the track is perfectly level and straight, so that the danger lights of the standing train could easily be seen by the engineer and fireman of the fast train, and everybody saw it approaching but never dreamed of a collision. In fact, the company's rules are so strict that when trains enter station yards if they are not under such absolute control as to be brought to a stop before striking another train, even through accident to switches or anything else, heavy penalty attaches to the employees guilty of violating them. The conduct of Engineer Richardson and Conductor Wood, who had charge of the fast train, in this instance, cannot be accounted for by the officials of the road. No report has been made as to whether they were placed under arrest, but an investigation is being made. In the fire one car load of barley and two car loads of merchandise were burned.

Liberalist Gathering Dispersed.

At Brussels there was a big Liberalist demonstration Wednesday night, 3,500 being present. M. Janson and other Liberal deputies made speeches, violently attacking the government. At the conclusion of the meeting the Liberalists, 2,000 strong, marched to the King's palace, preceded by a man carrying a red flag. The procession was charged by a detachment of gendarmes, and the artillery and civic guards were summoned to protect the palace and ministerial department buildings. The paraders were separated into two portions and were finally dispersed about midnight.

Col. Dodds Captures Cana.

An official dispatch says that the French forces have captured Cana, a short distance from Abomey, the capital of Dahomey, after a vigorous resistance. The French loss was eleven killed and forty-two wounded. The capture of Cana is practically the end of the campaign against King Behanzin. Shortly after the receipt of the news that Cana had fallen into the hands of the French was received the promotion of Col. Dodds, the commander of the French forces, to be a general, was gazetted.

Will Ship Twenty-four Chinamen Home.

There are twenty-four Chinamen at the Detroit jail under sentence of deportation. Six were arrested in Port Huron, two in Bay City, two in Flint, and fourteen in Detroit for trying to evade the Chinese exclusion act. They will soon be taken to San Francisco and placed on board steamers bound for China.

The Gallows Cheated.

A message from Allentown, Pa., says that William F. Keck, the murderer who was to have been hanged Thursday at noon, was found dead in his cell that morning. Whether his death is due to heart failure over the approach of his dreadful punishment or poison is not known.

CLEVELAND GETS IT.

Elected President of the United States.

ELECTORAL VOTE 299.

NEW YORK GIVES GROVER 42,000 PLURALITY.

INDIANA DEMOCRATIC.

THE OFFICIAL COUNT WILL BE NECESSARY IN OHIO.

Iowa Solid for Harrison—Illinois Breaks Its Mooring—How the Election Has Gone—In the Fifty-third Congress the House Stands 217 Democratic, 128 Republican and 9 Populists; the Senate 44, 39 and 5, Respectively.

Verdict of the Voters.

Grover Cleveland has been elected President of the United States. He has carried New York, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, and even California, by large majorities, and at the time this is written the indications are that Ohio has also swung into the Democratic column.

Electoral Vote.

The total electoral vote of the States is distributed, as near as can be ascertained, in the following manner:

Table with 3 columns: State, Har- Cleve- Wea- rison. land. ver. Lists states from Alabama to Wyoming with their respective electoral votes.

Party Strength in Congress.

The complexion of the House of Representatives will be materially changed, all three parties having made important gains and losses. The returns of Congressional districts, while not absolutely complete, are sufficient to indicate that the Democrats will have a large majority in the House, but probably not as large as in the present one, which is divided among the parties as follows: Democrats, 235; Republicans, 88; Alliance, 9; total, 332. The next House will contain 354 members, of whom the Democrats will have, as now appears, 217, the Republicans 128, and the populists 9.

The political divisions by States are as follows:

Table with 3 columns: State, Rep. Dem. Pop. Lists states from Alabama to Wyoming with their respective party counts.

Total

The Senate, which is now controlled by the Republicans, will pass into the hands of the Democrats next March.

The present political complexion is: Republicans, 47; Democrats, 39; Independents, 2; total, 88. The new Senate will consist of: Republicans, 39; Democrats, 44; Populists, 5. When this table is compiled, there is yet some uncertainty as to the result on Legislature in some of the States, principally as between Republicans and Populists, but there is little doubt that the above division will be substantially maintained, in which case the Populists will hold the balance of power if they choose to exercise it.

WHILE out hunting Saturday, Frank Debo, of Cheboygan, slipped on a log. His gun was discharged, the bullet going into the jaw and coming out near the top of his head, exposing the brain. Debo walked two miles and went thirty more by rail before the wound was dressed. It is expected that he will die.

THE entire family of James Bradley, living three miles from Bad Axe, are in a critical condition from poison taken into their systems through well water. Father, mother, three sons, a daughter and two farm hands are prostrated and at least two of them, the attending physician says, will die. An examination of the water shows the presence of large quantities of paris green. No clew is had to the poisoner.

TWO PORT HURON boys by the name of Parish Fraser and Geo. Young went out hunting quail. They separated. Shortly after Young thought he saw a quail and blazed away. A howl of agony went up in the vicinity of the quail. An investigation showed that young Fraser had been shot in the right eye, entirely destroying the sight. His left eye was destroyed some years ago. The boy is now stone blind.

A HORRIBLE murder was committed at Forestville Friday night. Miss Hulda Geyer, aged 15 years, living with her parents about eighty rods west of Forestville, called at the postoffice about 7 o'clock, and got a letter. That was the last seen of her alive. She was found in the morning a few rods away from the house lying in the ditch. A part of her clothing was found a few rods from where she lay. A little farther on there was a pool of blood. There is every appearance that an outrage was committed.

THE Supreme Court has declared unconstitutional an important act which has been on the statute books of Michigan for nearly thirty-two years. It was the law of 1861 empowering courts under certain circumstances to discharge jurors and proceed with the trial, provided, however, that not more than three of a jury of twelve or two of a jury of six were so discharged. The Supreme Court said the question raised was one of great importance to the jurisprudence of the State. The Chief Justice and Justice Montgomery dissented from the opinion of the majority of the court.

Those of our readers who have enjoyed the serial "A Woman's Influence" will be pleased to learn that next week we commence the publication of another serial, entitled "True as Steel." This story is one of absorbing interest, and fully sustains the reputation that the STANDARD has for publishing first-class stories.

Supervisor Gilbert informs us that the total tax this fall is $17.50 on $1,000. The county tax this year is higher than last year, the state tax is the same as last year, while the town tax is lower, the school tax is nearly $5.00 on $1,000 higher than last year, owing to losing the tax on $50,000 of bank stock and $220,000 of mortgages in this district.

It is our desire to enroll 1,000 names on our subscription book by January 1, 1893, and in order to do this we will send the STANDARD to all new subscribers from now to 1893 for ten cents, or for $1.00 will send it until January 1, 1894. All those in arrears can take advantage of this offer by paying up to the present time and renewing.

Every year, says the New York Times, brings us one step nearer the expected epoch when the meteors in November will fall like the raindrops in a tropical storm and the heavens will seem to be on fire. The year 1899 is set for this grand celestial illumination, and 'tis not so very far away. Each succeeding year between now and then may show us an increasing pyrotechnic display.

Thursday afternoon, November 3d, Amasa Gilbert, of this place, a lineman for the Telephone company at Battle Creek, received so severe a shock in his left arm as to paralyze that member for some time. With considerable presence of mind he held to the pole with his other arm and was assisted to the ground by fellow workmen. He has not wholly recovered from the effects of the shock yet but is gradually improving.

The wheat market advanced some the latter part of last week, but has lost most of it since. It now stands at 68 cts for red or white, rye 50 cts, oats 32 cts, barley $1.20, beans $1.50 for the best, potatoes 60 cts, apples 75 cts to $1, turnips 25cts, cabbages 3 to 5cts, clover seed $6, onions 70c. Large quantities of poultry have been brought in here this week for Thanksgiving trade. Chickens brought 7c, turkeys 10c, eggs 19c, butter 20c. Dressed pork $6.50, hogs on foot 5c, cattle 3 to 4c. Trade is dull yet, but will doubtless improve later.

CHURCH CORNER.

The C. E. missionary meeting Sunday evening was excellent, those taking part doing themselves and the society credit.

The Epworth League at this place, has just purchased a piano, which will find a place in their pleasant room in the M. E. church.

Thursday next is Thanksgiving, and services will be held in the Congregational church, at 11 o'clock, Rev. W. W. Whitcomb officiating.

The College Day entertainment given by the Epworth League Wednesday evening was witnessed by a large crowd, and all present enjoyed themselves to the utmost.

Rev. and Mrs. W. W. Whitcomb will give a reception to the members and friends of the Baptist church at the parsonage from 7 to 11 o'clock, Friday evening, November 25th.

At last week's Thursday evening prayermeeting of the Congregational church, the subject was "The One Drawback." The temperance question was the great question of the hour in the minds of those present.

One feature of the C. E. prayer meetings of late has been the presence of so many young, young people. We are glad to see them and hope they will take part, too.

President Clute, of the Agricultural college, says: "The smut of wheat and oats is attracting a great deal of attention among the farmers in this and other states. It has become very serious, especially in oats, frequently destroying more than one-fifth of the crop. At a very low estimate, based on actual counts made in the field in various parts of the state, the loss this year from the two smuts exceeds $1,300,000. It is not generally known by the farmers that both wheat and oat smut can be entirely prevented by the Jensen or hot water treatment. All that is necessary is to soak the seed grain, placed in a gunny sack, in a kettle of hot water, heated to about 135 degrees, allowing the grain to remain in the water five minutes.

SCHOOL NOTES.

The Y. L. S. R. U. P. has several daylight members, but the midnight members do not seem to increase.

It has become quite a fad for some of our young gentlemen students to wander in dreamland during school hours.

There are rumors afloat that we are in danger of losing our principal. We most sincerely hope it is nothing but a rumor.

The A algebra class have been bemoaning their fate this week over having to learn a rule which covered a whole page.

The vocalists have nearly all disappeared from the school. Will some one explain the cause of this strange phenomena.

A proclamation was issued, which states that each high school student shall on Friday morning give at least two verses or be marked down.

The whispering list still continues to grow in size—also the one for asking questions during class hours. The penalty for the latter is the same as the one for the former—a decrease in department.

The members of the rhetoric class think of writing to Mr. Kellogg, the author of the rhetoric, and asking him to make another one leaving out the figures of speech entirely. This will be done out of sympathy for the future rhetoric classes.

The first year German class is eclipsing all other first year German classes that the teachers have ever had.

The total number of children of school age in Washtenaw county, according to the official report, is 12,456, and the county will receive $10,424.60 from the primary school fund.

M. J. Cavanaugh, county commissioner of schools, has been appointed by State Superintendent Fitch, as one of the board of visitors to Detroit college for the academic year 1892-3.

The democrats of this place held a ratification Thursday evening. The weather was bad and not as many came out as was expected. The fireworks were let loose and the people stood around in the rain to watch them. After the exercises at the Hall a number attended a banquet at the McKune House.

Speaking of Blind Boone Concert at the Town Hall, Wednesday, November 23rd the Toronto World says:

The remarkable pianist, Blind Boone, completed his engagement at the Auditorium last night. The audience was enthusiastic as ever. Each sat as if spell-bound when the music sank to a scarcely perceptible whisper, but as the thundering crescendo filled the hall the applause shook the building, and as the merry waltz vibrated in the air a hundred toes lightly beat the floor. Blind Boone's houses have been growing steadily through the engagement, and when returns to Toronto he will find a host of friends glad to hear him again.

squirrels that sport all the day long in the grove near the corner of Main and Summit streets, affording so much pleasure to passers by, especially to the school boys and girls? Are they not pretty? Did you ever see anything so sprightly? Their motions are sometimes too quick for the eye to follow them. How they chase one another through the tree tops! up or down the tree with equal ease and rapidity. They can beat the best of you at that. See them leap from limb to limb, clearing a space of three or four feet at a bound. If you had nothing else to do, you would never tire of looking at them. Do you think anything could persuade you to hurt one of them? I hope not. Life is just as precious to them as it is to you. They have just as good a right to enjoy it, too. They are perfectly innocent of any harm to anybody. They like to eat nuts just as well as you do; and did it never occur to you that God made the nuts just as much for them as he did for you? So you need not grudge them the nuts they eat. Yet, pretty as they are, a naughty boy came along the other day and killed one of them. Little Bunny did all he could to amuse that naughty boy. He ran about the treetop, and leaped from limb to limb. His very actions seem to say, See how spry I am. Do you not wish you could do that? Then he sat still on a limb and looked kindly at the boy with his beautiful eye, saying in his little confiding heart, I do not believe he will hurt me. I have done all I could to amuse and please him. Just then the boy let fly the shot from his cruel gun with fatal aim, and poor, confiding Bunny fell dead at that boy's feet. He was beautiful no longer. He could never amuse that boy again with his cunning capers; never enjoy sweet life again. Dead! Good for nothing now! Throw him on the ground. No, throw him into the street. Let the horses trample him under their unfeeling hoofs. Let the ironbound wheels crush him into the ground. O, naughty, cruel boy! Can it be you did not feel ashamed, condemned for that wanton act? Reflect one moment. You took from that poor, innocent squirrel a life that you can never restore; robbed yourself of pleasure that can never come to you now, and did a wrong for which you must answer at the bar of God. Boys, life is a very sacred thing. Never destroy a life intentionally, unless there is a necessity for it. T. H.

CORRESPONDENCE PLAYERS, please take notice: THE CHELSEA STANDARD will start a Correspondence Club, for which entries can be made by subscribers only. Entries received not later than November 24, 1892. The prizes to be made up of the entrance fees, and will consist of books, badges, or whatever may be chosen by the contestants. The following are the rules which will govern the Tournament, and any suggestions on the same will be cheerfully received:
1-As many players can enter as desire.
2-The fee for entrance is $1.00.
3-Six games must be played between each and every player.

4-Each player must play with the black men on three games and with the white men three with each other player.
5-A possible move must stand, an impossible one must be corrected.
6-The cards received by each player are the only evidences of the play, and that must stand unless it be an impossible move.
7-An impossible move is when a square is occupied corresponding with the move sent or no piece being on the square indicated by the first number.
8-Any player who drops out cannot return he shall also forfeit his entry fee.
9-When sending fee state any additional rule we have overlooked and oblige.
Come, boys, don't wait but send in your entry fee with your subscription.

Famous Diamonds of India.

The Kohinoor, Nizam, Great Mogul, Regent, Great Table and Austrian Yellow are historic gems of Indian origin. Worthy of ranking with these we have only the Matan, from Borneo; Star of the South, from Brazil, and Porter-Rhodes, from the Cape. That the Indian mines still produce stones of large size and of the purest water we have evidence in the fine gem known as the Gordon-Door (Gordon Orr), recently brought to London by a Madras firm of jewelers. This stone weighs 213 1/4 grains, and is remarkable for its brilliancy and fine limpid color. It is said to have been discovered in the Kistna diamond fields.—Mining and Engineering.

The Death Rate of Suicide.

We are accustomed to consider the late war as a bloody one, and it was. Yet all the men killed in action during those four awful years were 70,000 less than the annual death rate of the world from suicides.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Care of Pet Dogs.

The pet dog is passing through a trying time. What with his long coat of hair, the dog catcher and the fleas, life is indeed a burden. It is an odd bit of information, which may be news to some, that the reason dogs suffer so from the heat and pant so is because they never perspire. In fact, no other animal than man does perspire save the horse, and the cow does a tiny bit just above her nose.

The long haired canine pet is a thing of much attention. The watchful and wary can avoid the dog catcher, but no one can guard against the flea. The best way to abate the nuisance is to each morning rub thoroughly into the hair of the dog a goodly quantity of Persian insect powder. The dog should first be laid on a large white cloth amply strewn with the powder, then comb industriously, and the fleas will every one drop off, being stupefied by the powder.

This course is advised in preference to too much washing with dog soap, as the soap only partially does away with the fleas and makes the coat too dry and harsh. To cut the hair makes it grow out coarser and heavier—in fact, ruins the texture, as the soap does the gloss and smoothness.—New York Herald.

Coy.

Drowning Maiden (preparing to sink for the third time)—Oh, Mr. Manley, this is so sudden! so unexpected! You will have to ask mamma.—Life.

Take Things Easier.

It is generally agreed among naturalists that the tortoise is the longest lived of all animals. The moral is plain. Don't break your neck running after something you are not sure of and not worth the breath after being captured. In other words, don't run at all if you can get along better on a slow, sure walk. It is not work which kills men so much as the hard way they go about doing it.—Lancaster Examiner.

The Comforting Fan Motor.

Among the various contrivances of later years tending to render life worth living during the heated term the ubiquitous little electric fan motor certainly holds no inconsiderable place. A few dollars expended for the plant and one cent per hour more or less for the electric power to operate it is surely not an extravagant outlay for the amount of solid comfort one receives as a quid pro quo as he toils at his desk during the breathless midsummer days. The latest improvement in this line is a motor which has an additional slow horizontal rotation upon its standard, whereby the breeze of the fan is impartially distributed to every part of the room.—Engineering Magazine.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF WASHTENAW, s. s.

Notice is hereby given, that by an order of the Probate Court for the County of Washtenaw, made on the 12th day of Nov. A. D. 1892, six months from that date were allowed for creditors to present their claims against the estate of Elizabeth Conaty late of said county deceased, and that all creditors of said deceased are required to present their claims to said Probate Court, at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, for examination and allowance, on or before the 12th day of May next, and that such claims will be heard before said court, on the 13th day of February and on the 12th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days.
Dated, Ann Arbor, Nov. 12, A. D. 1892.
J. WILLARD BABBITT, Judge of Probate

Probate Order.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, COUNTY OF WASHTENAW, s. s. At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Washtenaw, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor, on Thursday, the 3d day of November in the year one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two.
Present, J. Willard Babbitt, Judge of Probate.
In the matter of the estate of Abi Spaulding deceased. On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Emily M. Parker praying that a certain instrument now on file in this court, purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased may be admitted to probate and that administration with the will annexed of said estate may be granted to Dennis A. Spaulding, the executor in said will named having died, or to some other suitable person.
Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday, the 12th day of December next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the devisees, legatees and heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be held at the Probate Office in the city of Ann Arbor and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of the petitioner should not be granted. And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate, of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the CHELSEA STANDARD, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county, three successive weeks previous to said day of Dec. 12, 1892.
J. WILLARD BABBITT, Judge of Probate.
Wm. G. Dorr, Probate Register.

A COMPLETE SET OF THE WORKS OF CHARLES DICKENS FREE!

The Most Valuable and Remarkable Premium Ever Offered Free with any Periodical.
A MARVEL IN BOOK-MAKING.
A Set of the Works of Charles Dickens, IN 12 LARGE VOLUMES, FREE.

There has just been published a Set of the Works of Charles Dickens, in Large and Handsome Volumes, printed from entirely new plates, with new type. By special arrangement with the publishers we are enabled to offer to our patrons this splendid set of Dickens' Works, postpaid, free. Charles Dickens was the greatest novelist who ever lived. No author before or since his time has won the fame that he achieved, and his works are ever more popular to day than during his lifetime. They abound in wit, humor, pathos, masterly delineation of character, vivid descriptions of places and incidents, thrilling and skilfully wrought plots. Each novel is a masterpiece of art. No home should be without a set of these great and remarkable works. Not to have read them is to be far behind the age in which we live. The twelve volumes in one of which is published complete, unchanged and absolutely unabridged:

- DAVID COPPERFIELD,
- BARTLEY CRUZZLEWIT,
- NICHOLAS NICKLEBY,
- DOMBY AND SON,
- BLEAK HOUSE,
- LITTLE DORRIT,
- OUR MUTUAL FRIEND,
- PIERRE PAPERS,
- HARMA RUDOLPH AND CHRISTMAS STORIES,
- OLIVER TWIST AND GREAT EXPECTATIONS,
- THE OLD CURIOUS SHOP AND THE UNCOMMERCIAL TRAVELER,
- A TALE OF TWO CITIES, HARD TIMES, AND THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD.

THE PLAN.

We will send a complete set of these books FREE by mail, postage paid, guaranteeing safe delivery, as follows: To any old subscriber, who sends one dollar, and renews their subscription to either of the following publications for one year:

THE PEOPLE'S LITERARY COMPANION,

The National Farmer and Home Magazine

To any new subscriber, who sends one dollar for either of the above periodicals for one year.
This is the greatest offer ever made, and the greatest bargain ever offered. Up to this time the price of a complete set of Dickens' Works has been ten dollars or more. The use of modern, improved printing, folding and stitching machinery, the present extraordinary low price of paper, and the great competition in the book trade are the factors which made this wonderful offer possible. Bear in mind that we offer, not a single volume, but the entire set of twelve volumes, all FREE to subscribers. All new subscribers will receive the complete set of Dickens' works. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded. Do not neglect or miss this wonderful opportunity. Send at once, you will be delighted with the charming books, and, as long as you live, never cease to regard it as the best investment of a dollar you ever made. Address all communications to:

IF YOU CAN READ

and write, and are possessed of fair intelligence, you are fully qualified to make a grand success of what we offer you. We have lately published at great expense and labor a perfect wonder in the way of an illustrated Gift Book, suitable to all classes, an ornament to any home, and at a price that brings it within the reach of all, even those of moderate means. Heretofore only those who indulged in luxuries have felt that they could afford a book of this class, as they are sold in book stores at $5.00 and upwards. The book which we offer is not in any way inferior to those above referred to, but is far superior to hundreds of books of this nature that are sold at prices exceeding ours by an enormous percent. It is selling with a rush wherever shown. Agents have only to show the book and mention the price. No better Christmas, New Year's or Birthday present can be selected. It will sell, not only for holiday trade, but all seasons of the year, for the reason that all will want it in their homes, and will have it as soon as they know the low price at which our agents can furnish them. Reader, if you need profitable employment, and a business in which you can and will take pride, as well as make money rapidly, do not fail to send for circulars containing private terms to agents, and full information, which will be sent FREE upon application. Old and new agents alike are making handsome salaries—yes, fortunes. Many of those who are making the best records are now at the agency business, having had no previous experience. Make a start—the field is entirely new. No such terms have been offered agents as we now offer on this wonderful book. Special qualifications not necessary, for it sells everywhere at sight. Perhaps you have at some time been unsuccessful at the agency business. If so, there is every reason why you should try this. The PRINCIPLE of gift books, as failure is impossible if you make A START. Write us to-day, study our circulars and directions, then order an outfit and go to work with push and energy. You may make the greatest mistake of your life, if you allow this GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY to pass unimproved.

CHAPTER XXIV.
RACHEL'S CONFESSION.

Brian at first was content to lie still and watch Margaret, but as he grew stronger he would ask her to sing or talk to him, and then would she tell him again and again of the bitter regret and remorse which had filled those three long miserable weeks.

"How cruel I was," he whispered. "I did not know what I was saying. I could never reproach you. You have done more for me than I can ever speak of. Always my true, loyal wife. It was such a dear, tender heart that I longed for just a tender spot in it."

"A very proud heart," she corrected gently.

"Only sometimes. And had it been a thousand times more proud I should forget it all in the joy of possessing it at last."

"You have possessed it all the time," she confessed, burying her face from his glance. "It has been yours since we were together at S'couset, Brian. I did not realize it myself, but now I know, and am glad of the suffering that taught me."

"Ah, darling, that I have been so blind. When you married me I thought—"

"Yes, Brian, so did I think. My sense of justice felt outraged by uncle Stephen's will, and I persuaded myself that I was marrying you to make amends for that, and all the while my love for you was pleading so much more eloquently than my love of justice. I have kept it back so long I wish you to know all the truth now."

His eyes filled with an inexpressible joy, as he lovingly stroked her bowed head.

"Rachel has made her confession at last," he said, softly, "and Jacob would willingly live over his sufferings again for the pleasure of hearing such sweet words. He is very happy now, for he feels that this is his true wedding day, and his life lies before him."

August was nearly gone, and he was only able to sit in his chair and allow her to wait upon him.

They were together so one morning when a messenger arrived from The Cedars with a note for Margaret. She read it hastily, and, with a radiant face and the words "I am so glad," handed it to Brian.

"Good news," he said, taking it from her hand and reading the words aloud: "Another Bertie came somewhat unexpectedly with the sun this morning. Alice hopes you will pay your immediate respects to his lordship."

"Bertie is evidently in the fifth heaven of delight," commented Brian. "Carry my congratulations, Margaret. I suppose you are going."

Margaret, of course, fell in love with the tiny bit of humanity, and fully agreed with Alice that Cuthbert Barton junior was a very fine-looking young man. She even fancied she discovered a likeness to Bertie, though not a particularly striking one, as she told Brian a terward.

September came in very cool and the invigorating air seemed to infuse new life into Brian's veins.

"You will not be able to impose upon me much longer," he said to Margaret, one morning. "I'll be strong enough to rebel against your tyranny soon."

"As soon as you like, Brian," she answered, looking up from the roses she had placed on the table beside him. "I think I've played nurse long enough. If you do not get well very soon you will grow so fat and lazy that I'll never be able to get you out of that chair."

He looked up into the face, which had never seemed more sweet and lovable, and catching her hand held it a prisoner within his own.

"Never mind," he said, "wait until I am out of this for good. Then I mean to take my dear little nurse in hand and make her fat and lazy, too. I want to see some roses in her white cheeks."

"I don't think you will ever be able to coax them there, Brian. It is not their element, but the nurse feels that she desires some petting and coddling; she has given you so much. What can she do for you now? Read?"

"No, my dear; talk. I am a great trial, am I not?"

"Oh, yes, a dreadful trial," she returned with a half smile. "But," she added softly, "I could never do without my trial."

He caught her hand as she uttered the last words and drew her unresistingly to his knee.

Then came a sharp and unexpected interruption, in Bertie's voice:

"Hello, there! I don't want to disturb such interesting proceedings, but I would like to know how soon the public may be admitted. Such civilities—"

"You are extremely impudent," cried Margaret, starting to her feet with a brilliant blush. "If you do not learn better manners I shall drop your acquaintance."

"Please don't, ma'am, I need your protection sadly. My respected father has just sent me from his presence with a parting injunction to visit a certain gentleman who is credited with warm quarters. I preferred coming here. And, by the way, Brian, I've been commissioned to inform you that you have been indulging your laziness long enough, and, therefore, you are expected to pay your respects at The Cedars to-night."

"Tell Margaret to come and bring her husband along," were the words of my venerable father. So, Margaret, please do as you are bid."

"I wish you could be more dignified, Bertie. For a husband and a father you are sadly wanting in that quality."

For answer, Bertie laughed. "How are you, old fellow?" he asked, taking Brian's hand. "Able to assert your authority?"

"Not quite. I've just been warning Margaret that the time is not far distant when I shall assume the reins of government."

"She looks quite miserable over the prospect," returned Bertie, with his eyes on Margaret's laughing face. "I saw Wilson when I was in the city a day or two ago. He inquired very particularly about you, and Margaret also. I told him you were doing finely, and that Margaret was as unmanageable as ever."

"I shall be revenged for that, sir. Was Dr. Wilson well?"

"I can't say he looked very well," answered Bertie, with some hesitation. "He works too hard, I think. He is certainly very pale and thin."

"Why not write and invite him here for awhile?" said Brian, turning to Margaret. "This air would infuse new life in his veins."

"He needs it certainly," observed Bertie. "He has not seemed quite natural for some time. I'm afraid he is losing his old happy spirits."

"We will ask him to come," said Margaret, quickly, "though I fear he cannot give us any of his valuable time. When I think of what he has done for you, Brian, I do feel so grateful to him, and I should like nothing so well as to find him such a true, good wife as he deserves."

"Margaret turned match-maker," mused Bertie. "She comes more interesting and original every day. I will tell Wilson to get himself in readiness, and meantime, my dear, I hope you will search diligently for the particular woman destined to become his blessing and torment at the same time. Now I must be off. I suddenly remember that Alice sent me for some mixture for that young hopeful of ours, and if I don't hurry, he may bawl his head off."

"You outrageously unfeeling man. If I had known you were on any such errand, you shouldn't have staid here a second. That poor little innocent may be actually suffering for his medicine."

"No more than you, my dear," laughed Bertie. "It is simply the Barton temper asserting itself. Even father recognizes it, and while he accepts retributive justice in a meek and lowly spirit, it sometimes gives way to a mild ejaculation, such as 'hunder' when Bertie grows particularly demonstrative. However, I'll get the decoction and say good-by to you until to-night."

A day or so later, Margaret sent to Dr. Wilson a warm and pressing invitation to spend at least a few days at Elmwood. Wilson found the letter awaiting him when he reached his rooms after a long day's work, and, though his face brightened at the sight of it, he did not accept the tempting pleasure offered, and his regrets, not himself, found their way to Elmwood.

The letter found a place in a corner of his desk, and it was still there when time had whitened his hair and his eyes were dim from something more than sweet old memories.

CHAPTER XXV.
AFTER TWO YEARS.

Two years have passed, and brought their inevitable changes. The seasons have come and gone. The flowers have bloomed and died and bloomed again, and once more Elmwood is crowned in the full beauty of the month of roses.

It is late in the afternoon, and for some time Margaret has been waiting Brian's coming. Her eyes are fixed alternately upon the long drive and upon the little face sleeping peacefully in her arms.

Maternity, that perfect completion of woman's nature, has given her a new grace and dignity, and left upon her life the impress of a happiness that even the shadow of old sorrows cannot lessen.

Indeed, the sorrows are never remembered, except in a philosophical sort of way, and in the realization of all that she hoped and expected she feels that they have brought an ample reward.

Brian has fully redeemed his pledge, and, with a life full of higher and nobler purpose, is walking faithfully in his father's footsteps, and winning the same honor and respect.

He comes home with a light heart this evening, and seeing Margaret, leaps from his carriage to take her in his arms and kiss the two faces with warm and tender love.

"Are you very tired?" she asks, looking into his eyes.

"So, so. It has been warm in the village, but here it is quite delightful. Poor Mrs. Ellis is down again for good, I fear, this time, and Brown has an attack of influenza. He is more frightened than hurt, I think, and more troublesome than either. He fancies I am not giving him sufficient medicine, and insists on taking a double dose. His wife has quite a time with him."

"What have you been doing with yourself, Margaret? Not trying any of yesterday's experiments, I hope. Give me Marguerite; she is growing quite heavy. You must not try to carry her any more, dear. I will take her to Milly and we will walk to that hill to see the sun set. It is really superb."

When the baby had been given into the care of his nurse, Margaret linked her arm in Brian's, and they walked toward the place he had pointed out.

"I have a piece of news which will please you, I know. Wilson has at last made up his mind to come to us for a week. We may expect him about the 21st, he says."

"I am so glad," Margaret answered, with genuine feeling. "We must make it such a delightful week that he will want to repeat it. It is really quite curious, I think. But, do you know, I never had such a strong desire to see any one married as I have to see him? I know it would make such a happy difference in his life."

"I suppose you think that the only happy state for man?"

"I hope you do," she replied, meeting his laughing glance.

"It should be, and, as a rule, I think it is; the exceptions are individual cases. To my mind a poor, lonely old bachelor trying to persuade himself that he is fortunate in having escaped the evil of matrimony is a most deplorable and pitiable spectacle. Ah, how glorious!"

The last words were uttered as they reached the summit of the hill and the full splendor of the sunset burst upon them.

They stood for a few seconds in silence, watching the globe of fire sinking in a sea of gold. Then Margaret stole more closely to his side with the words:

"It seems to hold the peace of benediction, Brian."

"A benediction," he repeated, slipping his arm about her waist and holding her to his heart. "Ah, may we always feel the peace of such a benediction, darling. May we always stand together as we are standing now, through better and through worse; ever firm in each other's trust; ever strong in each other's love. And when our suns shall set, may our skies be as calm and as tranquil as this glorious one before us."

"Oh, tranquil sunset of the soul. When a l the jar of earth is past: When storms no longer round us roll. And heaven is near at last: We know, though fall and faint we may, Calm sunset ends the longest day."

[THE END.]

She Was Grateful.

We were nearing Jacksonville, Fla., after the long trip from New York. The porter had finished brushing off a mother and her four children, each one of whom had demanded attention every fifteen minutes, when the woman turned and said:

"You have been very attentive to us during the trip, and I wish to reward you."

"Yes, um."

"What is your name?" she asked, as she took out pencil and notebook.

"William White, mum."

She wrote for a minute on one of the leaves of her book and then tore it out and handed it to him with the remark:

"A colored man who is ambitious to get along well will always find friends."

I caught him in the vestibule two minutes later and asked to see the paper. It read:

"Mr. Pullman—Your man, William White, has been very attentive to me and my children, and I would recommend that you raise his salary and let him know that you fully appreciate his efforts. Mrs. S. B."

I read it aloud to the porter and then looked at him. He gasped for breath, and it was a long minute before he could ejaculate:

"Befo' de Lawd! but I dun thought dat was a fifteen-dollar check on some bank in Jacksonville. Hu! Shoo! Wall, of all de deleterious obnoxiousness I ever did dun meet up wid in all my life dis captivates de pinnacle!"—New York Sun.

Beautiful, but a Recluse.

The Empress of Austria has been, since the death of Prince Rudolf, a complete mental wreck, subject to most pathetic delusions about her son, and requiring the greatest care. She still preserves much of her stately beauty, for which she has been always famous among the royal women of Europe, for it is a beauty of contour which neither time nor trouble can destroy; but she is a constant recluse. The Emperor, in spite of domestic worry, adheres to his habit of accessibility to his people, granting personal audiences and listening to every plea or story of real or fancied wrong, a blending of patriarchal habit with magnificence of court ceremonial which has not its counterpart in Europe.

Scotch Thrift.

An event which caused much stir in the little community was the introduction of gas. Previously oil of a coarse kind, or candle coal placed on the front of the grate, had been used for lighting purposes. Candles were expensive and their light feeble, and so to a great extent the Squair was in a state of darkness, for necessity or thrift reduced the use of artificial light to the minimum. An old woman of frugal habits, who had means and appliances superior to her neighbors, and who rejoiced in the possession of a servant, used to say to that domestic, as the shades of evening began to descend: "Noo, Nannie, ye may pit the lamp on the table, an' if onybody o' consequence ca's ye can licht it."—The Scotsman.

A Dining-Room Motto.

In the dining-room of a quaint old house seen lately was the inscription over the fireplace in flowing, illuminated text:

Work the jaws,
A silent pause,
Frequent ha-w-haws.

Which was an exceedingly apt reminder of the value of slow eating and cheerfulness at table.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

THOUGHTS WORTHY OF CALM REFLECTION.

A Pleasant, Interesting, and Instructive Lesson and Where It May Be found—A Learned and Concise Review of the Same.

Paul's First Missionary Sermon.

The lesson for Sunday, Nov. 20, may be found in Acts 13: 26-43.

INTRODUCTORY.

Here is a sermon worth reading, worth studying, aye, worth preaching again. In fact, it is the one clear instance in the Bible of a repeated sermon, and it teaches us incidentally that it is wise to occasionally re-deliver a gospel message which has been found fruitful under God. In the 42d verse of the lesson it is said that when the Jews were gone out of the synagogue (perhaps they had packed it full and crowded out their no less needy neighbors) the Gentiles besought that these words might be preached to them the next Sabbath. Very good. Let us have them preached again before ourselves and our friends to-day.

WHAT THE LESSON SAYS.

Men and brethren. Greek, men, brethren, i. e., brother men. A fraternal address.—Children. Literally, sons.—And whosoever, or, and who. The relative clause parallels the adjective phrase, sons of Abraham. They were at the same time sons of Abraham and fearers of God. cf. v. 16, closely rendered: Men of Israel and fearing God.—Among you. Probably with allusion to the Gentiles present.—To you. Emphatic. Above all men, Israel ought to accept the great salvation.

Because they knew him not. Particular construction: not knowing. From the Greek word used here comes our term, Agnostic.—Voices of the prophets. Hearing the sound but not recognizing the voice.—Condemning him. Condemning him they had unwittingly condemned themselves.

And though they found no cause, etc. A marked case of interpretative translation. Greek: And having found no cause of death, they besought Pilate that he should be slain.

Fulfilled all. The wicked working the righteous will of heaven.—They took him down * * * and laid him. Man's part.

But God raised him. God's part. After man had done all he could against God, but, after all, for God.

Many days. Greek: Upon many days, i. e., at various times.—Which came up with him. His disciples, Galileans.—Who are his witnesses. Kept with him for this especial purpose; see John 15: 27 ("Ye also shall bear witness, because ye have been with me from the beginning").

We declare unto you glad tidings. Thus witnessing: The word for "glad tidings" is our word evangel or gospel.—How that the promise. A form of the same word as glad tidings above. With which it is constructively in apposition, i. e., what was a promise to them is glad tidings to us.

Raised up Jesus. The resurrection was the center of apostolic witnessing. It may be well to note that the Revision following Tischendorf's reading here translates our children, i. e., to the generations of to-day.—Second Psalm. Tischendorf: First Psalm. So original y, the First Psalm being regarded as introductory.

As concerning that he raised him up. The literal is more luminous and expressive: In that he raised him up from the dead, never again to return to corruption, by so much he was saying, I will give you the sure mercies of David. Or since the prophecy is here being fulfilled he was saying in that transcendent act of the resurrection, I am giving you. I here give you the true mercies of David (promised in David; fulfilled in Christ).

The holy one. Same word rendered sure mercies in the verse before. Then it meant pledged things, here it means pledged person.

WHAT THE LESSON TEACHES.

To you is the word of this salvation sent. It was a special message, a close, direct personal appeal. Who are the objects of it? The stock of Abraham, those who feared God. A similar appeal is made above at v. 16. "Men of Israel and fearers of God." The call is especially to those who believe in God." In other words it is a particular appeal to the church. If you believe in God says Paul, I have a new message from God for you—a message of love. The church hears the same reiterative appeal to-day. God is ever coming to his people with new stores of grace. Just because they are his own, he awakes them to apprehension of good.

Though they found no cause of death in him. Rather, "because they found no cause, therefore entreated they Pilate that he should be slain." What they could not get by right they begged as a favor. Having no case, they put it on the score of grace. So also at Acts 13: 11, where Peter says to the Jews: "Ye denied the Holy One and the Just, and desired a murderer to be granted (graced) unto you." Fearful reproach. Praying for the death of God's Son as a favor, their account of grace the privilege of slaying their Savior. Man's willful maliciousness can go no further. He prays and stays. And now, heart of man, I know thee, at thy best and at thy worst.

Continue in the grace of God. We are all children of grace, almoners of God's goodness. Every breath we breathe, every crumb of bread we eat is by the mercy of God. Now what is it to accept of Jesus Christ? It is to do a very reasonable thing, it is simply to go on in the grace of God. Continue therein. Let the goodness of past days, the mercies of the lower spheres of existence, prompt us to reach forward to the enjoyment of God's higher blessings, for which indeed these other things are but the preparation. Be wise; be sensible. Why frustrate the grace of God? Kiss the Son, lest he be angry, and ye perish from the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little. Blessed are all they that put their trust in him."

CHELSEA, FRIDAY, NOV. 18, 1892.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

An Interesting Budget from the Nation's Capital.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—It is more than likely that the fifty-third congress convened in extraordinary session immediately after the inauguration of President Cleveland. The senate will, of course, be assembled to act upon the nominations and messages of the new Executive, while the presence of the House will be needed to begin work at once upon the legislation to which the democratic party stands pledged, and which its control of all the branches of the legislature will enable it to put into effect. The consideration of the tariff, upon which the new congress will at once enter, will require an immense amount of time, labor and knowledge. The plan adopted by the democrats in the present congress, will hardly be followed in the next congress. A new bill will be prepared, and its preparation will take all summer. Even after the passage of the tariff bill through the house considerable time will be occupied by the senate in its discussion and amendment. Altogether it is not difficult to see that if the keel of the new tariff measure is not laid next spring, the ship will not be ready to launch until the congress expires by limitation. But the tariff is not the only important legislation which the democratic house and senate will be called upon to enact. The party platform pledged the repeal of the prohibitive 10 per cent tax on state bank issues, and although the present house rejected last spring a bill accomplishing this repeal it is reasonable to believe that it will now be passed. The democrats will also repeal the Federal election laws, but this will not consume a great amount of time, unless a large number of campaign speeches can be made with "Federal control of election as a text. Trusts and combinations, which have hitherto been attacked without effect, will doubtless receive attention. Another important matter to which the next congress will give its early attention will be the admission of New Mexico, Arizona and Utah as new states. This legislation would have the political value of adding nine votes to the democratic electoral column and increasing by six votes the democratic majority in the United States senate. It is an interesting fact that if it had not been for the admission of republican states by a republican congress the United States senate to-day would be democratic. The democratic senators, therefore, will have little compunction of conscience in admitting a trio of states known to be safely democratic.

The result of the election does not lead to any great hilarity on the part of employes in the government, but still, at the same time, there is not that feeling of depression which in former times fell upon the departments when the employes were brought face to face with a change that meant a possible loss of their positions. Under the influence of the civil service law as well as in accordance with the strict letter of the law government employes know that political changes will not affect them in their official positions. No doubt a large majority preferred the success of the republican party, but they have lived and prospered under a democratic administration and there is a general impression that they can do it again. So while everything is serene and peaceful in the departments there is a natural disappointment, which is not deep enough to be very lasting. The greatest alarm is felt by the unclassified employes of the bureau of engraving and printing and the government printing office, many thousands in number, who are paid by the day and only hold on from month to month. They feel that many of their number are probably destined to be displaced by new employes as soon as the new government printer and chief of the bureau of engraving and printing are appointed.

Mrs. Cleveland will return to Washington with as happy anticipations as those in which the president elect has such good reasons to indulge. The hold she has upon the admiration and affection of the women of this broad land has probably never been equaled, and the satisfaction that they will feel in seeing her again mistress of the White House is unbounded. She has achieved distinction in the social world of New York city, but is not spoiled by the flattering attentions that have been showered upon her in every direction. She has mingled in society there much more extensive than she did here, and she will come back to this White House equipped with experience which will be most valuable to her in the enlarged sphere of action in which she will be the moving spirit.

The election to congress from the tenth district of New York of Gen. Daniel E. Sickles has revived the question as to the right of an officer on the retired list of the army to a seat in congress, in view of the constitutional provision that "no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either house of congress during his continuance in office." There is not even a probability, however, that any official of the executive branch of the government will attempt to interfere in any way with the seating of Gen. Sickles. Therefore unless some member of the legislature without the necessity of relinquishing his standing and emoluments as a retired army officer.

The democrats appear to have employed crowbars and jimmies. At least they have taken several things which were supposed to be securely nailed down.

Sighting a Cannon.

A clever utilization of photography, for the purpose of correctly sighting a cannon, is due to the ingenuity of Marquis de Frayssix-Bonin, a naval captain. He calls it the tir optique. The object to be aimed at being reflected on a plate, the marksman has only to bring the sight of his cannon on to the object reflected on the plate. This is done by a small, delicately arranged mechanical apparatus. The moment the pointer of this instrument touches the object on the plate the cannon is fired.—New York Journal.

THE BIG MAN IN A LITTLE TOWN.

The czar of all the Russias is declared to be an autocrat. Who as a real harsh monarch has his ruling business down quite pat; And there are other mighty men who govern with an iron hand, And who insist on being praised by every subject in the land. But king nor emperor nor czar nor any other potentate, It matters not how vast his realm, how glorious his pomp and state; It matters not how many gems may sparkle in his royal crown, Is half so great a being as the big man in a little town.

The big man in a little town may never boast a royal name Nor noble blood, but what of that? Why should he care from whence he came, Since all the earth is his to sell or trade or give away or rent? No wonder that this hollow life to him seems rounded with content. All classes and all ages know that he is wonderfully wise, And people come from far away to seek his valuable advice. 'Tis said that in the "over there" they save for him the brightest crown, For nothing else would satisfy the big man from a little town. —Chicago Times.

The Wagon of the Canadian Half Breed.

By preference and from lack of other timber the half breed of the northwestern plains constructs his cart of poplar, the characteristic vehicle for all purposes in summer and his sledge or jumper for winter use. With his ax, an auger and his buffalo knife for tools, in a short time he builds a light, stout cart singularly well adapted to his circumstances. As ordinarily constructed it contains, like the harness with which it is attached to the draft animal, not a particle of iron. The wheels are well framed together and are about five feet in diameter. The spokes are well driven into the nave, the pieces of the felly are doweled together and the structure dishes after the most approved fashion.

The pony or the bullock which is to supply the motive power is harnessed between two large, light shafts, and upon the axle of the cart a light framework is built to contain the packages which are to form the load. It is lined and floored with thin boards wrought out of trees with the ax, or, more recently, the whip-saw. On such a cart a load of 800 pounds can be carried with safety, as its strength is such that repairs are rarely necessary.—C. A. Kenaston in Century.

The Evil Eye Among Egyptians.

The modern Egyptian is a believer in the evil eye, to avert which he hangs around the neck charms supposed to possess a magic power. These are usually worn by children and consist of little tin or leather cases, which inclose words either from the Scriptures or Koran, if the children are of Moslem parents.—Detroit Free-Press.

HOW I EARNED AN ISLAND.

Enterprising Young Man: True & Co. instructed and started me. I worked steadily and made money faster than I expected to. I became able to buy an island and build a small summer hotel. If I don't succeed at that, I will go to work again at the business in which I made my money. True & Co. Shall we instruct and start you, reader? If we do, and if you work industriously, you will in due time be able to buy an island and build a hotel. If you wish to work again at the business in which I made my money, you can do the work. Easy to learn. We furnish everything. No risk. You can devote your spare moments, or all your time to the work. This entirely new lead brings wonderful success to every worker. Beginners are earning from $25 to $50 per week and upwards, and more after a little experience. We can furnish you the employment—teach you FIVE. This is an age of marvelous things, and here is another great, useful, wealth-giving wonder. Great gains will reward every industrious worker. Wherever you are, and whatever you are doing, you want to know about this wonderful work at once. Delay means much money lost to you. No space to explain here, but if you will write to us, we will make all plain to you FREE. Address, TRUE & CO., Box 400, Augusta, Maine.
