New Election Law.

Electors and aspirants for political honors should be familiar with the amendments to the election laws passed by the last legislature. The following sections are worthy of careful reading:

Section 1 of act 202 provides that no person shall act as an inspector of election who is a candidate for any office to be elected by ballot at said election.

Section 14 of the law is amended so as to regulate the order in which the tickets of the various parties shall appear on the ballot. It provides that the party having the greatest number of votes at the last general election shall place its ticket in the first column, and the others shall be placed in order according to the size of their vote at last general election.

Section 17 provides that the cross stamp used in marking ballots, shall be of metal.

Section 22 provides that two challengers shall be allowed in each voting place, and that a table shall be provided for them. Challengers must have credentials signed by the chairman of the city or township committee.

Section 26 gives instructions to voters and tells how ballots must be marked. There is no important change in fact, though the language of the amendment is clearer than in the original law.

When the new system of voting went into effect it was necessary to place a cross at the head of the party ticket. If it was to be voted straight nothing further was to be done except folding it. If the desire was to scratch a particular candidate and vote for a candidate on another ticket, it was necessary to place a cross in the square opposite the name of the candidate voted for and mark out the name of the candidate scratched on the regular ticket. This was seldom done and as a result many ballots were lost.

This spring the voter takes his ballot and if a Republican, places a cross in the circle at the head. If he desires to vote for a candidate on another ticket he places a cross in the little square opposite the name and that is enough to show the inspectors that the candidate for the same office on the regular ticket is scratched. It is not necessary to mark out the name of the Republican candidate against whom it is desired to vote, and vice versa.

Another important feature is that if a voter writes or pastes the name of a man not nominated, and whose name does not appear on the ticket, under the name of a candidate that does appear, the vote is counted for the written or pasted name. When there are several candidates for the same office, as for instance where each party nominates four candidates for constables, the names of the candidates on the regular ticket against whom the votes are cast must be scratched, and a cross placed in the little square opposite the name of the candidates for whom the vote is cast.

Splendid.

A number of women were talking together the other day, on the subject of exercise. One of the number spoke up at length. "My experience has been varied," she said, "and it is to the effect that there is no exercise to compare with general housework. I was predisposed to consumption as a child. I had all my life to engage in the active management of a house from my girlhood days onward. And I think myself well as compared with most of my acquaintances. I can stand more and do more than almost any woman I know. I attribute this, almost entirely, to the work I have done and do now."

Location of Farm Buildings.

One of the most important farm economies consists in having buildings for stock and other purposes within reasonable distance of the house and with a clean plank walk from one to the other. The number of times a day that the distance between the house and barn is traveled make it desirable that they should not be very far from each other. On the other hand, house and barn should not be so near that the destruction of one by fire must necessarily involve the burning of the other.

Excursions.

Excursion fares have been granted, on the certificate plan, as follows: Women's Foreign Missionary Society, Kalamazoo, Mich., April 17-19, 1894.

AN EDITORIAL TRAGEDY.

The editor sat in his easy chair
And wrote: "The winter is hard;
And we need wood!"—Ere the ink was dry
The wood was pitched in his yard!

Amazed, he blotted the lines and wrote:
"Our groceries soon will go."
When a loud voice cried from the door outside:
"Here's a barrel of flour below!"

With fear and wonder and joy he still
Wrote on: "Our clothes are gone."
When he heard a call from the outer hall:
"Try this suit from the tailor's on!"

Stumbling again, he essayed to write:
"But little cash we hold."
When over the door of his office floor
Came hundreds of dollars in gold!

Too much, too much: from the place he ran
And boarded a flying train:
And some time later a raving man
Was labeled: "Gone case. Insane!"

A MEXICAN ADVENTURE.

Story of an Encounter with a
Gentlemanly Bandit.

Some secrets are well kept. Among this number is surely to be reckoned the reason why a certain New York mining company, which several years ago secured rich gold prospects in the foothills of the Sierra Madre, in the state of Durango, Mexico, suddenly discontinued their active plans to develop those prospects, and after a lapse of about a year as suddenly resumed operations. There was, at the time, a mystery about this fickleness of procedure which baffled the assayers who assayed the samples from the prospects and found them to be of remarkable richness; and when, after this interval of a year, the mines were fully developed and operated with immense profit, the general mining public was at a loss to understand just why this intermission of inactivity had been allowed to elapse. Certainly it was not for lack of capital, for the company had millions at its command, nor was it from any desire to speculate, for it resolutely refused the most tempting offers for its prospects.

Not long since, at his solitary camp fire in the black hills, I spent a night in company with the mining engineer who had been sent to Mexico in charge of the initiatory operations for this New York company.

He was habitually as uncommunicative as a chunk of quartz, but I had overtaken him when his supply of tobacco had been out for the space of a day, and I was fortunately able to supply him with his favorite cut; therefore his lips were unsealed, and as he puffed the soothing leaf he related the history of his apparently futile Mexican expedition, which I give, as nearly as may be, in his own words:

"My first business, after arriving in Mexico, was to secure a competent guide and servant and animals, proceed to the prospects, secure extensive specimens of the mineral, and forward them, along with my report, to the company at New York. If my findings were favorable, I was promised that the word would be speedily sent back to push extensive developments, of which I was to have full charge.

"I was fortunate enough to secure as a guide a gruff, hardy old chap, who went by the name of 'Sassy Sam.' Almost his whole life had been spent on the plains as a United States government scout.

"We made the journey to the prospects without accident or incident worth mentioning. The prospects were far more flattering than I had anticipated, and we started back to the outskirts of civilization with pockets and pack saddles full of fine specimens.

"Just before crossing the Sierra de la Candela range my horse stumbled on a sharp stone and bruised itself sufficiently to cause a severe lameness.

"This necessitated my walking much of the way over the range, which was rough and precipitous. Whenever I was compelled to dismount in order to spell my disabled horse 'Sassy Sam' followed suit and kept me company on foot.

"We had scaled the ridge of the range and were beginning to descend the homeward side of the decline, having fallen probably about a mile behind the mounted Mexican servants.

"Our rifles were balanced over the knobs of our saddles, and we were plodding along in silence, drinking in the magnificent view of scenery which stretched away on every hand, when suddenly my guide gave a low exclamation of surprise.

"I glanced up in time to see a couple of uniformed Mexicans step into the trail a few rods in front of us, and cover us with their rifles.

"It was with poor grace that Sam recognized that they had the drop on us, for his hand seemed instinctively to reach for the trigger of his rifle.

"Their uniforms at once suggested to me a hopeful possibility. Were they not the revenue patrols of the Mexican government, who suspected us of being smugglers?

"I whispered in English my hopes to Sam, but he shook his head with a hang-dog, defeated air, and sentimentally replied:

"They're Contreras' men. He's the biggest bandit in the range. But I've a powerful notion to try a fling at 'em. I'd rather be shot in an uneven fight than to be stripped, tied to a tree and left to be chewed up piece-meal by mountain lions and coyotes."

"He was on the point of opening a spirited conversation with the 'Greaser,' in verification of his nickname, when I summarily silenced him, and asked him to remain passive and trust to me to see ourselves out of the scrape by stratagem—of what sort I had not the slightest idea.

"However, as our interceptors, keeping us under cover of their carbines, conducted us down the trail, I still cherished the hope that 'Sassy Sam' was in error, and that we were in the hands of government agents instead of Contreras, the bandit.

"But a sharp turn in the trail, which brought us in view of a ravine below, speedily dispelled that illusion, for there were our Mexican servants, stripped to the skin, while their clothing was being rummaged by a group of highwaymen.

"In marching the intervening distance I did more double-distilled thinking than I had done in the whole journey before—I might say in my whole life—but to no avail; for, think as I might, all plausible plans of escape eluded me with fatal perversity, and as we were marched up to the group of men I was about giving up all hope of concocting a scheme of escape, and wished that we had followed Sam's reckless impulse and made a bold break for liberty while we had only a couple of captors to deal with, instead of a score of them.

"We halted, and a tall, athletic, handsome young fellow stepped from the posse and called out:

"Strip!"

"I confess that the fellow's imperious, but almost indifferent manner, as he gave the brief command, crossed his legs, leaned the tip of his elbow against the perpendicular face of the mountain, and rested his left hand on the knot of his rich saltillo serape, while his right hand toyed with the jeweled hilt of his cuchillo, inspired me with a desire to accommodate him as quickly as possible, and my hands sought my vest buttons with spontaneous obedience, knocking my knuckles soundly against the specimens of quartz, with which my every pocket was bulging.

"My guide, however, was in quite a different mood. First muttering under his breath something in English about not allowing any 'dog of a Greaser' to talk to him in that way, he broke out into Spanish, in which he cursed the chief of the banditti roundly, and refused to stir a finger toward undressing.

"Contreras laughed quietly at this spirited rebellion against his commands, and remarked:

"I like to hear a man talk that way. He might prove quite a companionable fellow."

"But he did not descend to argument. At a nod of his handsome head a trio of his lieutenants seized the guide and made short work of the stripping process.

"Meantime the rap of my knuckles against the samples in my pocket started my ideas in a new line.

"Senor," said I, "will you allow me to make a statement to you?"

"Certainly, proceed," he answered.

"Taking the samples from my pocket I said:

"I am the engineer of a New York mining company and am returning from their prospects just beyond this range. These samples and those in the saddle bags, yonder, will satisfy you of the truth of this statement. I had already decided to make a favorable report upon the property, and it strikes me that it would be many times more to your profit to permit me to go on my way and make a report which will result in the operation of the mine and the hauling of gold bullion through your stronghold, than to leave us to the cougars and coyotes."

"I was surprised at his answer, which was no answer at all, but simply an evasion in the form of another question.

"What do you think your company would pay for a good prospect in this section?"

"I could answer that only after seeing the prospect, and then only approximately," I replied.

"He pulled his long, heavy, black mustache reflectively for a few minutes, and then said:

"I have a prospect up here in the hills which is simply being worked in a crude way. It has never been examined by an expert, so far as I know. The fact is, that my intercourse with gentlemen of your profession has been confined strictly to passing interviews."

"I smiled my appreciation of his joke. This seemed to please him. Perceiving that he was on his good nature, I determined to risk my chances on a bold, frank proposition.

"Senor, I make you this proposition: Set my men and myself free, make us your guests instead of your captives, and I will make a thorough examination and candid report upon your proposition. If I find it equal or superior to that which I have already examined I will recommend the company to purchase and operate it, in which case you are to guarantee them immunity and protection from all depredations. And in any event you pledge your honor as a gentleman to allow us to go our way in peace after I have made the examination and written the report, irrespective of what the latter may be."

"Again he relapsed into meditation, and in his posture of elegant repose I was forced to the inward acknowledgment that he looked, every inch of him, to be a caballero, a perfect gentleman!

"Then, with the positiveness of the man of real decision of character he said:

"Senor, I accept your proposition, and enforced his words by stepping forward and giving me the embrace and handshake—the customary friendly greeting of a Mexican gentleman.

"My guide and servants were immediately released and their clothes were restored to them.

"We were then conducted through the mountains to where several pens were engaged in working his prospects, in a very crude way. During the nine days in which we remained his guests we were as hospitably entertained as the rude conveniences of a mountain camp would permit, for, of course, he was too shrewd and cautious to introduce us to any of the secrets of his stronghold, save that of the mine—and I must confess that I could not keep from liking and even admiring the man, who was not only a born leader of men, but a thoroughly cultured gentleman, who had fallen into high-handed ways through the doubtful practice of 'proclaiming' towns in periods of high political excitement and upheaval. His active followers numbered no less than one hundred, and probably most of the nearest rancheros were in league with him, as a matter of self preservation, if for no other reason.

"When my investigations were completed I made out my report to the company, recommending that they pay him eight thousand dollars for his claims and guarantee of protection.

"He was satisfied with this and we bade each other farewell with hearty embrace and hand-shakes.

"The conservative stockholders in New York debated long over the unique problem of faith in a gentleman's word of honor, but at last concluded that if the mine was rich enough to tempt them to risk their capital in its development, the output, in bullion, would be sufficient to tempt Senor Contreras to forget his fair promise of protection and swoop down upon the pack trains and appropriate the bulk of the profits of the enterprise.

"Therefore we decided to hold on to their property, but discontinue all efforts at development and wait for something to turn up.

"About a year later something did turn up, much to the discomfort of our genial host, Senor Contreras, in the shape of a formidable company of government scouts, who finally succeeded in routing the famous bandit from his stronghold and sending a bullet through his handsome body.

"Then the company resumed operations under charge of a new superintendent, and have developed the mine into a finely paying property.

"That is the secret of their long delay, which has perplexed many well-posted mining men. So far as I am concerned I believe Contreras would have kept his word to the last. He was just that kind of a man—a perfect gentleman."—Forrest Crissey, in Banner of Gold.

A GOOD VOICE.

The Marked Eloquence of a Gentle and Caressing Inflection.

A good voice has a charm which enchains attention. No matter what may be the topic of the speech or the theme of the song, there is a physical advantage in a well-toned voice. Shakespeare hinted at that influence in "King Lear!"

Her voice was ever soft,
Gentle, and low, an excellent thing in woman.
In his essay on "Eloquence," Mr. Emerson says that "the voice, like the face, betrays the nature and disposition, and soon indicates what is the range of the speaker's mind." He illustrates his opinion by an anecdote from the Persian poet Saadi.

One day a person with a disagreeable voice was reading the Koran aloud, when a holy man, passing by, asked what was his monthly stipend.

"Nothing at all," answered the reader.

"But why then," asked the holy man, "do you take so much trouble?"

"I read for the sake of God," answered the person.

"For God's sake," rejoined the holy man, "do not read; for if you read the Koran in this manner you will destroy the splendor of Islamism."

Louis XI. of France managed men "by his accent and the caresses of his speech." St. Bernard had such persuasive tones that mothers hid their sons, lest he should lead them to a monastic life. Robert Burns had a voice that caressed, and Henry Clay's accents and tones almost persuaded political opponents. The present writer, when a boy, heard the great Kentucky orator speak at Newburgh, in front of Washington's headquarters. Not a word which the orator said remains in his memory; but though it was fifty-three years ago, the voice and the gestures of the orator are photographed.—Youth's Companion.

—Frankish women had only one pomade, a grease proceeding from the skin of sheep and clinging to its wool. It had a nauseous odor, but was singularly efficacious in giving smoothness to the skin.

—More to the Purpose.—Caller—"How do you like your new cook?" Hostess—"I don't know. What I am trying to find out is how the new cook likes me."—Detroit Free Press.

—Diggs—"That man we just passed was the first one to extend to me a helping hand when I was in debt." "Was it work?" "No, play; it was a flush."—Inter Ocean.

"Mulligan's always spoiling for a row. He wants to upset everything." "No doubt. He comes from Tipperary."—Harper's Bazar.

THE MARCH BEGUN.

Coxey's Army Is On the Way to Washington.

Nearly Two Hundred Men Fall Into Line
Under Discouraging Circumstances
—Scenes and Incidents Along the Way.

IN MOTION AT LAST.

CANTON, O., March 27.—The much-heralded commonwealers are at last a moving reality. The motley procession left Massillon Sunday morning nearly 200 strong and wormed its way between solid lines of spectators 5 miles long, leaving Canton in the midst of a blinding snowstorm. The spectacle was indescribably grotesque.

They began gathering at Massillon early Saturday morning. Almost as soon as Quartermaster General Her had dumped the worn and moth-eaten tents on the grounds of the gun club recruits for the army began to appear one by one.

The Great Unknown was promptly made marshal of the day. Under his directions the big canvas was finally pitched and the ground inside littered with Coxey straw. The headquarters of the commonweal were established in a smaller tent, on the sides of which were inscriptions calculated to strike terror to the heart of the boldest recruit. The commissary wagons, filled to the tops of their white canvas covers, were trundled upon the ground and a crew of men set to work unloading them.

All day long the crowds around the tents had been steadily growing. Every freight train that came in had its load of individuals, and scores of them came down the towpath of the canal or up from Canton on the turnpike. Some of them had come from Kansas, Chicago and Indiana, but the majority came from places nearer Massillon.

All of the intended recruits did not come in at once. A few camped on the hills outside of Massillon, a little in doubt as to Coxey's plans, and the campfires of others gleamed along the river. Indeed a pitenfork used on any of the straw stacks within miles of the city would have set a tramp to swearing. It was a cold night, and the men tumbled out early Sunday morning and ate their breakfast. Each man received a huge slice of ham, cooked on a spit, a cup of coffee and a big piece of bread. The tents were then taken down and loaded into the wagons ready for the march.

At 11 o'clock the "Commonwealth of Christ brass band," J. J. Thayer, conductor, began to play a march from its position in the red, yellow and black band wagon. The "Humble Carl Browne," who had added a delicate white lace necktie to his buckskin jacket and sombrero costume, pranced out upon Coxey's huge white stallion Carrier. After much preliminary squabbling between the enthusiastic recruits over the positions of banner-bearer, the Great Unknown shouted in a voice that could be heard a full half-mile: "Everybody march!" The column moved and Coxey's army was on its way to Washington.

Mr. Coxey rode in a phaeton and bowed right and left as he passed through the crowds. Hugh O'Donnell, who was the leader of the Homestead strikers, was another prominent member of the cavalcade. Behind the band wagon marched the rank and file of the army. Banners to the number of twenty-five or thirty, with all sorts of mottoes and allegorical pictures, were borne by the group of marshals. Pictures of Browne painted as Christ, with the words: "Peace on earth, good will toward men, but death to interest on bonds," attracted more attention than anything else. One of the new banners is a portrait of Coxey with the words: "Cerebrum of the Commonwealth of Christ," and another of Browne with the words: "Cerebellum of the Commonwealth of Christ."

When the column marched up the main street of Massillon, banners flying and band playing, it was cheered by thousands of people who had been coming into the city from all directions since early morning. There was some jeering, but the crowd seemed much too surprised for fun-making. A large number of horsemen, carriages and marchers followed the procession. All the small boys were tremendously excited. As the army passed people in the houses stood at the windows and waved their handkerchiefs.

Before arriving in Canton snow began to fall, but it did not drive away the great crowds of spectators who had gathered to watch the commonwealers' triumphant entry. The tents were pitched near the fair grounds and the men built campfires and cooked supper, after which they found a bed in the big tent. They lay "spoon fashion" under the straw to keep warm.

Following is an itinerary for the current week:

Monday, March 26, reach Louisville, O.; Tuesday, March 27, reach Alliance, O.; Wednesday, March 28, reach Salem, O.; Thursday, March 29, reach Columbiana, O.; Friday, March 30, reach East Palestine, O.; Saturday, March 31, reach New Gallilee, O.

"Not 1 per cent. of the people think I will ever get back to Massillon alive," said Gen. Coxey Sunday, "but I have no fear. I shall go forward and do my duty regardless of consequences."

A day with a temperature such as prevailed Sunday was enough to take the spunk out of old soldiers, but Coxey feels no fear for his army. "They are traveling for a principle," he declares, "and nothing will daunt them."

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS.

She Thought It No Harm.

Some months ago Frank Keeler, a Salvation Army officer in Detroit, was nearly scared out of a year's growth by a man who charged him with living with his wife. Keeler had just been married to the woman and promptly denied that she was the wife of any other man than himself. On investigation, however, he found that his informant was correct, and when he asked his wife to explain she said that she did not think there was any harm in getting married as often as she pleased.

Has Had Twenty-Eight Wives.

James Wellington Brown, a polygamist with the phenomenal record of twenty-six wives in six years in the state of Michigan alone, and with other wives being heard from at times in other parts of the United States, has again come into public notice through the inquiries of two of his hitherto unreported Mesdames Brown. Brown has served a term of four years in Jackson prison for polygamy. Nothing is known of his present whereabouts.

The Governor Sustained.

Gov. Rich was sustained in removing state officials by a unanimous opinion of the supreme court and he made the following appointments to fill vacancies: Secretary of state, Washington Gardner, of Albion; state treasurer, James M. Wilkinson, of Marquette; land commissioner, William A. French, of Bell. All of the appointees took the oath of office and the incumbents gracefully retired.

State Board of Health.

From various portions of the state the reports of fifty-seven observers for the week ended March 17 show that inflammation of the kidneys increased and that consumption decreased in area of prevalence. Scarlet fever was reported at fifty-one places, measles at eighteen, diphtheria at thirty-seven, typhoid fever at thirteen places and smallpox at Crystal Falls, Ishpeming and Menominee.

Doubtful Titles.

Commissioner Lamoreux, of the general land office in Washington, after examining into the question of approvals of land grants in the upper peninsula of Michigan to the Portage & Lake Superior Ship Canal company has decided that nearly 69,000 acres of land were erroneously approved to that company in 1868. The company will resist the decision.

From the Adrian Press.

S. G. Noble, of Unadilla, steeped some herbs in a can, and drank thereof and sent for a doctor, to drag him from the jaws of death. The herbs were good, of themselves, but the rough on rats—that was in the can, materially injured their medicinal properties.

Congressman Gorman has remembered each of the Ann Arbor candidates for the post-office. Those who have not received an appointment have received garden seeds and can plant it in hopes in the ground. An Adrian college theologian asserts that once when plowing he saw, on looking up, the letters "P. C." blazoned in the sky, and was uncertain whether they meant "preach Christ" or "plant corn." A less doubtful meaning goes with Gorman's garden seeds.

The turnip headed dude loafers of Frontier, with goseling-down on the upper lip, go to church, Sunday evenings, and sit in their seats and fire puddles of tobacco juice that would kill a toad, into the aisles. The sight is enough to make a hog's stomach rebel; and to think of the sister's dresses having to pass through it! It is the duty of the church committee to answer the next offense by striking the offender twice with a club. The first blow will surprise him, but he will know why he was hit and the next crack will benefit him. The church committee owes this little chore to heaven, to the ladies and to decency.

Grocers everywhere assert that there is little or no profit in retailing sugars, and housekeepers confirm this by saying that there is small economy in buying sugar by the barrel. The tradition touching the small profit in handling sugars at retail is certainly more than 100 years old, for a writer in the middle of the last century affirmed that London grocers of that day were often out £60 or £70 a year for paper and pack thread used in wrapping up sugar, and some grocers would not sell sugar to a customer who did not at the same time purchase some other article.

In Memoriam.

Departed this life at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Buehler, in Lyndon, March 8, 1894, Miss Louise Buehler, aged 24 years, after a long and painful illness of many weary months which she bore with Christian patience unto the end.

Louise's illness was induced by a severe attack of la grippe from which she never recovered and consumption marked her as its victim and when she realized that she could not recover she set her earthly house in order for she said she should die and not live. She died in the triumph of faith and a firm confidence in her Redeemer.

Her funeral was largely attended from the Lutheran church in this village. Louise was beloved by a large circle of friends and many days will pass before her place will be filled with one so genial and kind. Her parents have the sympathy of the community in their affliction, but what is their loss is greatly her gain.

A Lady.

A writer in the New York Press undertakes to answer the question: "What is a lady?" This is the result:

A lady is a woman who is honorable, truthful and refined; who regards the comfort of others first; who never forgets how important are little courtesies to the happiness of life; who is loyal to her friends, and never betrays a trust; who seems to think a mean thought or speak a mean word or perform a mean act; who reverences age, protects weakness and maintains her own womanly self respect.

In European countries the title is generally confined to women who belong to the nobility and gentry. In this republic it justly belongs to every woman, young or old, rich or poor, beautiful or plain, who possesses the qualifications we have named and the term should not be made meaningless by indiscriminate or unthinking use.

THE Massachusetts legislature has abolished the venerable institution of fast day, and instead has made the anniversary of the battle of Lexington a public holiday.

YACHTING rather than racing bids fair to become the "sport of kings," now that Emperor William, the prince of Wales, the czar and a number of German princelings have taken seriously to it. The three English royal yachts cost taxpayers in repairs alone $90,000 last year.

THE state of New York has a brand new statute designed to restrain the pernicious activity of cats. Owners of cats are now required to take out license to permit the animals to live, and a cat which is not worth the license fee is adjudged unworthy of life by the New York legislature.

EXHAUSTIVE experiments in the cultivation of tea are soon to be made in Russia. The czar is personally interested in the plan, and experts are arranging for the cultivation of the plant in the western limits of the Caucasus, where the temperature is much the same as that in which the plant grows in China.

A RECENT book on South America describes great storms of dragon flies, which may be seen on the pampas and in Patagonia during the summer and the autumn. The dragon flies are of a large, light blue variety, and fly at these times in enormous flocks, moving with a speed of from seventy to eighty miles an hour.

THE smallest screw in the world is that used in the movement of a watch; these are so minute that a box of them appears to be filled with fine black sand. With a strong glass, however, they are seen to be perfect in every part, though only 1/1000 of an inch in diameter. A thimble will hold over 100,000 of them.

THOSE who took the trouble to kiss the alleged "Blarney stone," in the walls of the reproduction of Blarney castle, in the Midway plaisance, will be delighted to learn from an official report of Deputy Customs Collector J. F. Ralph that the object of their osculations was a limestone paving block, dug out of the streets of Chicago.

ORANGES are absurdly cheap in Florida now and part of the crop was not picked for the market because of the small demand. The mechanics of northern cities are, in good times, large consumers of oranges, but this season hard times have made the fruit a luxury, and the rigid economy of workmen has been disastrously felt all over the orange-growing regions of this country.

SOME idea of the number of New York men who get their clothes from London may be gathered from the fact that there are twenty-three agents of English tailoring houses now in that town. Most of the goods are brought into this country free of duty, and cost the wearer a little less than the same clothes made here. All the big London houses have places in New York city where necessary alterations are made free.

THERE was a pathetic scene in the Cleveland criminal court, the other day, when Mrs. John Theu, a German, came from Ashtabula to receive the sentence intended for her husband, who had pleaded guilty to petit larceny. The wife said John was hard at work now at good pay and she could best be spared to serve out the time. She was much disappointed that the court did not agree to the arrangement.

THERE was a singular boom in the matrimonial market in England last year, whether because of or despite the hard times is an interesting point for speculation. There were more people married there in the third quarter of last year than in any similar quarter of the last ten years, with the exception of 1891. The marriage rate was highest in London where hard times were generally reported to be most felt.

OBSERVANT doctors have been taking measurements of the height of women in France, England and America, and announce that the English woman is the tallest and the American next. The average height of the French women is 5 feet 1 inch. The American woman is nearly two inches taller, and the women of Great Britain half an inch taller than they. But American women weigh slightly more than either of the others, and it is said that their average weight is about 117 pounds.

DONALD MURRY, a newspaper man of Sydney, New South Wales, has invented and patented a device by means of which an operator in New York, with a keyboard before him like that of an ordinary typewriter, can not only produce type-written copy in New Orleans, but it is claimed can operate a typesetting machine here and deliver his matter thus in lead, ready for the forms. Not only that, but the same operator, by using a number of telegraph lines can set up the same copy simultaneously in a dozen places.

TEXT OF THE TREATY.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—The following is a copy of the treaty which has been negotiated with China. It was sent to the Senate March 19, with a simple note of transmission, saying it had been concluded at Washington March 17. It is accompanied by nothing in the way of communication from Secretary Gresham. The treaty is as follows:

Whereas, On the 17th day of November, A. D. 1893, and of Kwanghai the sixth year, the tenth moon, fifteenth day, a treaty was concluded between the United States and China for the purpose of regulating, limiting or suspending the coming of Chinese laborers to and their residence in the United States; and

Whereas, The government of China, in view of the antagonism and much deprecated and serious disorders to which the presence of Chinese laborers has given rise in certain parts of the United States, desires to prohibit the emigration of such laborers from China to the United States; and

Whereas, The two countries are desirous of adopting reciprocal measures for the better protection of the citizens or subjects of each within the jurisdiction of the other; now, therefore, the president of the United States has appointed Walter Q. Gresham, secretary of state, the emperor of China, has appointed Yang Yu, officer of the second rank, sub-director of the court of sacrificial worship and envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary, and the said plenipotentiaries having exhibited their full powers, found to be in due form and good form, have agreed upon the following articles:

Art. 1. The high contracting parties agree that for a period of ten years, beginning with the date of exchange of ratification of this convention, the coming, except under conditions hereinafter specified, of Chinese laborers shall be absolutely prohibited.

Art. 2. The preceding articles shall not apply to the return to the United States of any registered Chinese laborer who has a lawful wife, child or parent in the United States or property therein of the value of $1,000 or debts of like amount due him and pending settlement.

And such right of return to the United States shall be exercised within one year from the date of leaving the United States, but such right of return to the United States may be extended for an additional period, not to exceed one year, in cases where, by reason of sickness or other cause of disability beyond his control, such Chinese laborer shall be rendered unable sooner to return, which facts shall be fully reported to the Chinese consul at the port of departure, and by him certified to the satisfaction of the collector of the port at which such Chinese subject shall land in the United States, and no such Chinese laborer shall be permitted to enter the United States by land or sea without producing to the proper officers of the customs the return certificate herein required.

Art. 3. The provisions of this convention shall not affect the right at present enjoyed of Chinese subjects being officials, teachers, students, merchants or travelers for curiosity or pleasure, not laborers, of coming to the United States and residing therein.

Art. 4. In pursuance of article 3 of the immigration treaty between the United States and China, signed at Peking on the 17th day of November, 1890, it is hereby understood and agreed that Chinese laborers, or Chinese of any other class, either permanently or temporarily residing in the United States, shall have for the protection of their persons and property all rights that are given by the laws of the United States to citizens of the most favored nation, excepting the right to become naturalized citizens.

Art. 5. The government of the United States having by act of congress approved May 1, 1892, as amended by act approved May 5, 1893, required all Chinese laborers lawfully within the limits of the United States by the first named act to be registered as in said acts provided, with a view to affording them better protection the Chinese government will not object to the enforcement of such acts, and, reciprocally, the government of the United States recognized the right of the government of China to enact and enforce similar laws or regulations for the registration, free of charge, of laborers, skilled or unskilled (not merchants as defined by said acts of congress), citizens of the United States in China.

Art. 6. This convention shall remain in force for a period of ten years, beginning with the date of the exchange of the ratifications, and if six months before the expiration of the said period of ten years, neither government shall formally have given notice of its termination to the other, it shall remain in full force for another like period of ten years.

Signed in duplicate this 17th day of March, 1894, the signatures of Walter Q. Gresham, secretary of state, and of Yang Yu, Chinese minister, following.

Every Hebrew in Troy, Ala., Ordered to Leave Town by White Caps.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 26.—A white cap outrage at Troy, a city of 4,000 inhabitants, has caused great excitement. Saturday morning every Jew in the place, on opening his mail, found a notice from white caps ordering him to wind up his business at once and get out of the city by May 15.

In the afternoon a mass meeting of citizens of all creeds was held and great indignation was expressed. It was agreed that the Jews should be protected and any lawlessness would not be tolerated. The authorities propose to do all in their power for the safety of the Hebrews.

Texas Man Spends His Fortune in an Effort to Escape Punishment.

DALLAS, Tex., March 27.—The Randle murder trial terminated Saturday night by the jury returning a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree, and assessing the penalty at twenty years' confinement in the state penitentiary. In December, 1892, Maj. Irving G. Randle, one of Dallas' wealthiest men, shot and killed B. S. Randall in a saloon. The widow of the murdered man was paid $5,000 to cease prosecuting Randle, and all that money, legal talent and influence could do was resorted to. Maj. Randle has spent $120,000 and it is said that his fortune has been frittered away.

WAITE WAS WRONG.

The Colorado Governor Had No Right to Call Out Troops.

DENVER, Col., March 27.—There was a large attendance at the rooms of the supreme court Saturday to hear the opinion of the court on the question propounded by Gov. Waite involving the validity of his acts growing out of his removal of Orr and Martin as members of the fire and police board and the appointment of Barnes and Mullins in their stead. It was to seat the latter that the governor called out the militia.

The unanimous opinion of the court was adverse to the action of the governor in all things except that the court recognized his right to remove and appoint members of the board. It was declared that his power ended there, and that he could not induct his appointees into office, and his employment of the militia for this purpose was greatly in error and unauthorized by law.

A subcommittee of the committee of safety, headed by Joel F. Vaile, waited upon the governor in the evening and discussed the situation with him fully. Neither the governor nor the committeemen would divulge the results of the interview, but it is known that the committee advised the governor to abide by the decision of the courts, advising him that another resort to arms would not be tolerated. They assured him that Orr and Martin would not attempt to delay a decision by the courts in a suit brought to decide who are entitled to the offices. The governor would not promise that he would not again attempt forcibly to seat the new commissioners, but told the committee he would carefully consider their suggestions.

The governor's chief counsel, Platte Rogers, said proceedings would now be brought in court to compel Orr and Martin to show by what right they hold seats in the fire and police board. The committee of safety, already a formidable organization, is, in effect, a vigilance committee whose business it will be to attend to any individual or faction responsible for any riotous proceedings calculated to bring disgrace upon the state.

DENVER, Col., March 27.—Judge Platt Rogers, counsel for Gov. Waite in the fire and police board controversy, announced positively Sunday night the governor had given his promise not to call out the militia again to unseat the removed commissioners, Orr and Martin. The governor refuses to be interviewed. The lawyers have hit upon a new scheme for installing Mullins and Barnes as fire and police commissioners without waiting for a decision of the courts in quo warrant proceedings. What their plan is they would not divulge, but it is proposed to carry it into effect early this week. As a preliminary, Mullins and Barnes will make a written demand upon Orr and Martin to vacate under the opinion of the supreme court that the case as presented the former are legally entitled to the office.

FELL FROM THE CLOUDS.

A Balloon Ascension at Cannes Ends with a Fatal Accident.

CANNES, March 27.—An immense crowd gathered here Sunday to witness a balloon ascension by the aeronaut Wilton, who is well known in America. No car was attached to the balloon and Wilton ascended hanging to a rope.

When 1,500 feet high the balloon was caught in a current of air that carried it rapidly seaward. It was apparent that Wilton could not control the valve at the top of the balloon, which, had it been opened, would have allowed the gas to escape and the balloon to gradually descend.

For some unexplained reason the aeronaut let go his hold of the rope from which he was dangling, and his body shot down into the sea with frightful velocity. The accident occurred in full view of the spectators, and a number of women in the crowd fainted away.

A number of pleasure boats hurriedly made their way to the place where Wilton had fallen, and after a short search his body was recovered. His death must have been almost instantaneous.

Affairs in the Brazilian Capital Resuming Their Normal Aspect.

RIO JANEIRO, March 27.—Affairs here are rapidly resuming their normal aspect and, aside from the damage done to the forts and along the waterfront by the fire from the insurgents' warships, all traces of warfare have disappeared.

The government entertains no fear of much further trouble in the south. The insurgents' sympathizers claim that the placing of Admiral de Mello at the head of the provisional government will attract many persons to the rebel standard, but the government here believe that the insurgent forces will gradually melt away until nothing remains.

INDIANS CLAIM TEXAS LANDS.

Large and Valuable Tract Granted the Channeaus by Sam Houston.

AUSTIN, Tex., March 27.—Three Indians of the Channeaus tribe, formerly of Texas, but now living in the Indian territory, appeared at the governor's office in the capitol building. They are here for the purpose of demanding of the state several hundred thousand acres of land that they claim was deeded to them by Sam Houston when this state was a republic. The land the Indians claim is some of the most valuable on the Neches river.

The lady whose portrait heads this article is Mrs. Mary F. Covell, of Scotland, Bon Homme Co., S. Dak. She writes to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., as follows: "I was sick two years with 'falling of the womb' and leucorrhoea previous to taking your medicine. I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and was entirely cured of both in six months; it is four years this month, since I was entirely well of both those diseases and have never had any signs of their reappearance since and I am satisfied the 'Favorite Prescription' saved my life, for I could hardly walk around when I commenced taking that medicine and I think it is a God's blessing to me that I took it."

I was pronounced incurable by the best doctors here in the West. I gave up all hopes and made up my mind that I was to be taken away from my husband and baby of two years old. I was sick all of the time—could not eat anything at all. In one week, after beginning the use of the 'Favorite Prescription' my stomach was so much better that I could eat anything; I could see that I was gaining all over, and my husband then went and got me six bottles; I took three of them and my stomach did not bother me any more.

We sent to you and got the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, and found my case described just as I was: we did what the book told us, in every way; in one month's time I could see I was much better than I had been; we still kept on just as the book told us, and in three months I stopped taking medicine, and to-day, I can proudly say I am a well woman, yes, am well, strong and healthy.

When I began to take your medicine my face was poor and eyes looked dead. I could not enjoy myself anywhere, I was tired and sick all the time. I could hardly do my house-work, but now I do that and tend a big garden, help my husband and take in sewing."

The following will prove interesting to feeble women generally, and especially so to those about to become mothers. Mrs. Dora A. Guthrie, of Oakley, Overton Co., Tenn., writes: "I never can thank you enough for what your treatment has done for me; I am stronger now than I have been for six years. When I began your treatment I was not able to do anything. I could not stand on my feet long enough to wash my dishes without suffering almost death; now I do all my house-work, washing, cooking, sewing and everything for my family of eight. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best medicine to take before confinement that can be found; or at least it proved so with me. I never suffered so little with any of my children as I did with my last and she is the healthiest we have. I recommend your medicines to all of my neighbors and especially 'Favorite Prescription' to all women who are suffering. Have induced several to try it, and it has proved good for them." Yours truly,

Dora A. Guthrie

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate leucorrhoea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions and irregularities, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness of the ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning sickness or nausea, due to pregnancy, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use will prove very beneficial.

Dr. Pierce's Book, "Woman and Her Diseases," (168 pages, illustrated), giving successful means of home treatment, can be had (sealed in plain envelope) by enclosing 10 cts., in one cent stamps, to pay postage, to the Doctor, at his address, as given at the beginning of this article.

Here and There.

If angels had to live with some men there would probably be more fallen ones.

One of the greatest troubles mankind experiences is how not to say what it desires to say.

A good many men are like cheap theatrical bills. A very little money causes them to be stuck up.

A new form of postal card has just been issued by the post office department in compliance with the treaty between the United States and foreign countries as to this feature of the postal service. The new card is in size between the largest and smallest now in use, and will take the place of the former, which will now be abolished and by affixing a one-cent stamp, it can be sent to any part of Europe.

The meanest man on record has now been discovered. He sold his son-in-law half a cow and then refused to divide the milk, maintaining that he only sold the front half. The son-in-law must provide the food the cow consumed and carry water to her three times a day. Recently the cow hooked the old man, and now he talks of suing his son-in-law, the owner of the front half, for damages. He asserts that he can maintain his claim.

On March 20th, 1894, Gen. Neal Dow, the "Father of Prohibition," or the "Grand Old Man in the Temperance Cause," as Miss Willard calls him, completed his ninety-third year. Neal Dow still lives in Portland, Me., in the comfortable mansion which he built and to which he took his bride in 1830. It is just across the street from the house in which he was born, in 1804. He was converted by that celebrated temperance missionary, Rev. Justin Edward, and was one of the first to preach—not temperance, but abstinence; not regulation of the liquor traffic, but extermination.

Leaving sentiment out of the question, Jenkin Lloyd Jones' denunciation of "mourning by the yard" is justified from a practical standpoint. The living are robbed on the foolish plea of showing respect to the dead. The practice is unfortunately commoner among the very poor than among people better off. Respect for the dead is proper enough, but respect which takes the form of a modified circus parade and a convocation of milliners and dressmakers is as barbarous as the funeral customs of some of the Indian tribes, where all the possessions of the dead man are buried with him or burned upon his grave.

The terrible mortality which characterizes attacks of pneumonia in New York has called forth the information that among the Catskill woodchoppers pneumonia rarely proves fatal and the opinion of a New Yorker who has been on an investigating tour that the cause of the New York mortality may be found in overheated houses and stores and vehicles and consequent bad ventilation. This investigator is not particularly original when he says that foul air slays like a sword, but he is particularly truthful, and what is true about the overheated and foul air of New York houses and homes and vehicles is true of the same kind of air in houses, stores, etc., all over the country.

The editor of an exchange who is the father of two mischievous little boys says in a recent issue of his paper: "Lift your hat reverently when you meet the teacher of the primary school. She is the great angel of the republic. She takes the banishing fresh from the home nest, full of pouts and passions—an ungovernable little wretch whose own mother honestly admits she is glad to part with her pet for a whole day. The lady who knows her business takes a whole car load of these anarchists, any one of whom, single handed and alone is more than a match for the parents, and at once put them in a way of being useful and upright young men and eventually good citizens. But, my dear parents, did you ever stop to think at what expense or toil, patience or soul weariness to the gentle and painstaking primary teacher? Lift your hat to her."

Be a man—foolish spending is the father of poverty. Do not be ashamed of hard work. First make yourself master of your trade or occupation. Work for the best wages or salary you can get, but work at and for something—don't be idle. Be your own master, and do not let society and fashion swallow up your individuality—hat, coat and boots. Do not eat up or wear all that you earn. Compel your selfish body to spare something for profit saved. Be stingy to your own appetite, but merciful to other necessities. Help others, and ask no help for yourself, and by so doing, if ever in need, help will come without asking for it. See that you are proud but let your pride be one of the right kind. Be too proud to be lazy (a lazy man ought to die—easy)—too proud to give up without conquering difficulty, too proud to wear a coat you cannot afford to buy; too proud to be in company that you cannot keep up with in expenses; too proud to be stingy. But, young man, don't be a loafer.—Ex.

Agricultural Notes.

Whoever can produce good bacon or good sausage can sell the product at a good price in any reasonably sized town.

Don't be contented if the farm is gradually decreasing in fertility. By proper rotation, manuring, etc., it can be built up.

Sugar beets, turnips, rutabagas and turnips are all of considerable value to the flock and should be used for winter use in season if diseases are to be avoided.

Unless farm machinery is taken care of, it will be found that a large portion of what is made on the farm will be required to keep good machinery. Farm implements like all other machinery, will rust out quicker than it will wear out.

The best way to keep manure is on a freshly plowed field. If rain soaks it in, the valuable substance will go down into the soil, and the work of spreading may be done in the winter. The saving of labor and the exposing of manure on the ground will be advantageous next season.

A specialty in stock keeping is all right after you have thoroughly learned the business of keeping them. But until you have done that, it is wise to keep stock as an adjunct to the business of general farming, and to keep as much of a variety as you can, so as to utilize in the best way the products of your land.

An exchange names the following important points in farming: First, raise all the feed you can, all the stock you can, improve your farm all you can, vote for all the improvements you can, elect all the honest men you can to office, breed to the best stock you can and send your children to the best neighborhood school.

Washing Gowns.

In washing black and white gowns, which are apt to turn a dingy brown or gray, the chief point to remember is to put a little salt in the water, and not on any account to let the articles lay about damp. Begin by making a lather of white soap in lukewarm water, wash the dress out quickly and then rinse in clear, cold water and dry off at once. Take care not to put in with other wet things and never on any account rub the soap on. Some delicate colors are set by steeping them in a bucket of water in which one ounce of sugar of lead has been dissolved and allow it to remain for twenty-four hours, but this requires care and caution.

Odds and Ends.

A child will remember all his life the time he was to wait until the company had eaten, and forget in a day or two the occasion when his mother rescued him from drowning.

An imported pickpocket thrusting his hands into receptacle where reposed the purse of a lady, was detected by her, caught held, slapped, lost the spoils, and is now in jail. The way of the transgressor who cannot read human nature a little bit is likely to produce stone bruises on the erring heel.

One of the Midwinter fair guards, having behaved in a disorderly manner down town was arrested and fainted from the shock. The tender hearted guard seems to have mistaken his calling. There is something painfully incongruous in the spectacle of such a gentle nature harnessed to a sword. He should be a flower girl.

The way to set about securing foreign legacies, when they exist, is to put the case in the hands of a reputable home lawyer. He will charge a fee for his trouble, but will at least prevent the client from falling into the hands of professional scoundrels and crooks. The English consul can also ascertain the truth or falsity of the so called windfall.

By the aid of electricity a Gatling gun can be made to hurl thirty missiles of death at every tick of the watch or fully 3,000 a minute. To fight against such an engine of death is about as vain as to contend with a volcanic eruption or earthquake or a cataclysm. Dr. Gatling has probably contributed more to the era of universal peace than could a thousand peace societies.

A fellow in New York is sending out circulars stating how he can make people rich in a short time. He claims to have plates from the United States Treasury Mint and is printing money. He offers $3,000 worth of greenbacks for $300, and wants the thing kept strictly confidential. If any of our readers receive such circulars they should burn them and pay no attention to the swindle whatever.

The Chicago police are evidently wrong in saying that Mullany, the man who robbed the poor box in St. Patrick's cathedral, is one of the cleverest "crooks" in the town. No self-respecting "crook" would be guilty of such petty meanness; it is a depth to which he would not descend. The soul of a poor box thief would rattle around in a mustard seed like a parched pea in a bladder, and his intellect would be lost on the point of a cambric needle.
