SCIENTIST TELLS OF FINDS AT NIPPUR

LIGHT ON ANCIENT SYSTEMS OF LAW

Discoveries Made by Prof. Hilprecht Declared to Be Among the Most Valuable Ever Made—Work of Translation Going On at the University of Pennsylvania—The Hymn to Ellil.

PHILADELPHIA.—Recent evidence that the so-called Hilprecht-Peters controversy as to the results of the Nippur excavations was not killed but was merely "scotched" by the course in relation to it taken by the governing body of the University of Pennsylvania, may lead to further action of some kind on the part of the latter. There has been much disappointment among the friends of Prof. H. V. Hilprecht, the head of the Assyriological section at the university, that the mild verdict rendered by the investigating committee of the trustees in 1905 did not carry with it the weight of a vindication. The degree of contempt with which this verdict was received in archaeological circles, the freedom with which it was denounced in many scientific quarters as merely an application of what is figuratively known as "whitewash," are almost unprecedented in any similar case. It may as well be said that among the alumni of the university there still subsists a strong feeling of dissatisfaction that a more positive course was not taken by the trustees, and a movement has been begun to make a concerted representation in favor of again forcing the issue between Prof. Hilprecht and his scientific accusers.

May Publish Stenographic Report. It was intimated to a representative of the Philadelphia Ledger by a trustee of the university that the board might yet determine to give to the public the stenographic reports of the hearings in the Hilprecht matter, held by its special committee in 1905. In this connection the statement was made that the verdict of the committee exonerating Prof. Hilprecht was purposely couched in mild language in order that it might not wound the feelings of certain members of the university who had conscientiously believed that he should be compelled to answer formally the charges made by Rev. Dr. John P. Peters of New York and others.

There is said to be a disposition on the part of the trustees to rely upon the results of the examination of tablets brought from Nippur that has been in constant progress at the Museum of Archaeology during the last two years and a half to obliterate the unfortunate effect of the revelations of Dr. Peters, Prof. Prince of Columbia university, and Mrs. Haynes as to the real nature of the discoveries at Nippur. In their bearing upon Prof. Hilprecht's publications, it is declared that the translation of the tablets, which until the beginning of the controversy had remained for five years boxed up in the cellars of the museum, is yielding results of the most brilliant character, far exceeding the expectations to Babylonians.

The "Temple Library" Exists. Dr. A. T. Clay, assistant professor of Semitic philology and archeology, has done much very remarkable work as an interpreter of the cuneiform texts brought from Babylon. As to the identity of the supposed "Temple library" at Nippur, he said, when interviewed on the subject: "You ask if there was a Temple II library at Nippur? Most assuredly there was. Nearly 20 years ago Dr. Peters found tablets in the mounds at Nippur, which he designated as relics of a library. We have at the museum many religious texts of the early period in Babylonian history. But these are exactly what you would expect to find, for every Babylonian city had its temple and cultus, and in connection with them schools for scribes.

This subject, I believe, I have already treated sufficiently in my book, 'New Light on the Old Testament from Babel.' "The advanced state of the systems of law in those old cities, for instance, was remarkable. The now famous code of Hammurabi is based upon precedents, proving the existence of systems of law long prior to his time. There may also have been codes even earlier than his. There must surely have been in the time of Abraham extensive legal libraries. Think also of the wonderful Babylonian system of writing! We know that the Chinese have from 30,000 to 40,000 values for their written signs. One scholar has already collected about 14,000 values for the Babylonian written signs, and another list is being compiled, which will, in all probability, contain as many more. Given these premises, it stands to reason that there must have been immense collections of documents and books in all the Babylonian cities. Some of the books must have consisted of a thousand tablets each. Of course, there were vast storehouses or libraries to hold them.

Religious and Literary Texts. "There must have been a great mass of religious literature in existence. There must have been in use hymns to all the gods, in practically every cult, for in Nippur not only Ellil, but most of the other divinities of the middle east were worshipped. There must also have been large numbers of inscriptions, omen texts, etc., which are to be classed under the head of literature. Thousands of these texts have been found at Nippur, and we have many of them at the University of Pennsylvania. One of our staff is now working at the translation of religious texts. Other volumes embodying the results of study of the tablets have been projected and will be published in due order. I would not be surprised if a national epic should eventually be found in part or whole in Babylonian tablets.

Prayer on a Boundary Stone. The archeological publication last issued by the University of Pennsylvania is a volume of Series D, edited by Prof. Hilprecht and entitled "A New Boundary Stone of Nebuchadnezzar I. from Nippur." The author is Dr. William J. Hinke, assistant professor in the Auburn Theological Seminary. Boundary stones first appeared in Babylonia under the third, or Cas-site, dynasty and the date of this one in particular is about 1300 before Christ. In all royal grants of land two documents were used: one, a lake, documents were placed upon the conical block, to be used for the information field in question for the information of the people in general; the other, a private document or tablet, to be held by the owner as proof of his title. Curious inscribed upon certain stones which they were public. The monuments, which could be removed. The absence of curses in the inscriptions upon other stones shows that they were private documents. Boundaries were private documents. Boundaries and boundary marks were sacred to the god Nimb and were also under the protection of Nabu, the god of agriculture. "An interesting reference to boundary stones in the religious literature," says Dr. Hinke, "occurs in the Shurpu series, in a prayer which is remarkable for its ethical contents. The priest intercedes for the worshiper and implores the deity to forgive him, asking the following questions: 'Has he drawn a false boundary? Has he omitted to draw a true boundary? Has he removed the confines, the limits or the boundary stone?'"

Peculiar Features. There is an immense amount of very curious information about the formalities of land cessions in Dr. Hinke's book, but in view of the nature of the controversy regarding the "Temple library" at Nippur the literary features of the inscriptions are of most immediate interest. The boundary stone erected under Nebuchadnezzar I, which is under special consideration, contains a transcription of "a magnificent and typical Babylonian hymn." The stone was found at Nippur on the northwest side of the Ziggurat, within the temple area, by Dr. Haynes, in February, 1896, at the close of the third Babylonian expedition of the University of Pennsylvania. It is a conical block of black limestone, 49 centimeters in height and 73.2 centimeters in circumference at the middle. The inscription consists of a heading of two lines placed among symbols at the top, and 155 lines of text, arranged in five columns. The stone is slightly damaged, but the few lines which have been partly lost have been almost completely restored from the context. The stone has several features not found in other monuments of this kind. One is a drawing of the piece of land to which the inscription relates. The second is a beautiful hymn to Ellil at the beginning of the inscription. Dr.

From stone of Nebuchadnezzar I found opposite Bafdad

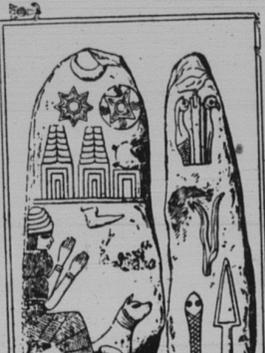

Hinke says that "it is the finest Ellil hymn which has been found thus far, fully celebrating the majesty and power of the god of Nippur. In some of its expressions it approaches the psalms of the Old Testament." The inscription recites the historical circumstances under which the land was given to Nusku-ibni, a high dignitary of Ekur, the temple of Ellil at Nippur, declares curses upon any official who appropriates the land or interferes with the rights of the owner, and offers an invocation to the gods and asks them to mete out certain punishments to an offender. The names of 14 witnesses of the grant are given. The symbols at the top of the stone are outlines of shrines, ornamented with a spearhead, a pointed shaft, a scepter, a tiara, the head of a lion, the head of a vulture, a scorpion, a five-pointed star, a crescent, a sun-disk, a lightning fork, serpents, a tortoise, etc.

Ellil—the lofty lord, the ruler of heaven and earth, the prince, the lord of all, the king of the great gods, whose equal as a god does not exist in heaven and on earth, upon the giving of whose command the [?] prostrate themselves, reverently pay homage, and upon whose decision the Anunnaki wait in submissive awe, stand in humble fear, the lord of lords, the word of whose mouth no god can set aside, the potentate of the Anunnaki, the lord of the black-headed, the sovereign of lands, the ruler of kingdoms. The god whose splendor is overwhelming and filled with brilliancy, with whose glory the whole extent of all habitations and all dwellings, are clothed, with whose majesty the lands are covered, whose rule cannot be rivaled, whose divinity cannot be equaled, whose decision is weighty, whose command is lofty, whose law is supreme, whose ways are wonderful, who rules heaven and earth, who sustains the lands, who calls the faithful shepherd, who appoints the governor of the earth, forever, with the light of his gracious countenance, with his shining face he looked faithfully upon Nebuchadnezzar, the prince, his favorite, who is devoted to his sanctuaries, and that he might shepherd Shunaru and Akhad, that he might renew the sanctuaries of the city of dwellings, and regulate the tithes of Ekur and Nippur, he broke the weapon of his enemy and the scepter of his enemy he placed in his hand, a life of eternal days he granted to him and above any preceding king he magnified his name. Because of the regulation of the tithes of Ekur, because of the magnificent sacrifices, because of the rich gifts and the treasures (paid) before Ellil, because of the prostrations, with which the lord and the son of the lord, with which to Ellil and Nimb he showed his respectful reverence, because of the utterance of supplications, because of the prayer of the king, the priest.

Curses Upon Offenders. Then follows the statement of the grant of land. Here is the curse directed against him who shall deny the legal giving of the land: May Anu, the king, the father of the gods, in anger overthrow him and annihilate his life, Ellil, the lofty god, who appoints the fate of gods, appoint for him an evil fate, so that calamity, misfortune and the commands of men may oppress him, Ea, the king of the ocean, the lord of wisdom, take away from him gladness of heart, happiness of mind, abundance and fullness, so that lamentation may seize him, Sin, the lord of the crown of splendor, darken his face, so that he may not have merriment (?), Shamash and Istar, powerful gods, the lofty judges, give him evil plans, and with a judgment of justice and righteousness may they not judge him, Nimb, the lord of confines and boundaries, tear out his boundary-stone, Gula, the great mistress, put lingering sickness, he may not escape misfortune, Nusku, the powerful lord, the mighty searcher, (the god), my creator, be his evil demon and may he burn his root. The inscription apparently establishes the fact, says Dr. Hinke, that Nebuchadnezzar was a usurper and that the first kings of his dynasty were contemporaneous with the Cassite kings. At first he battled in vain against the Elamite and Assyrian supremacy, but after repeated reverses and late in his reign he was able to throw off the foreign yoke, ascend the throne of Babylonia and even extend his conquests to the Lulubians in the east and the land Amuru in the west. This enabled him to assume the proud title of "King of the World." 21,424 TONS OF GOLD DUG. Since Columbus' Discovery Over $12,600,000,000 Has Been Mined.

Since Columbus found his new world, 21,424 tons of gold have been dug from the mines of the earth. This value is over $12,600,000,000. Of this vast total 19 per cent., or nearly one-fifth of the whole, has been mined in the last ten years; 30 per cent., or almost a third, in the last 20 years; 41 per cent in the last 30 years; 54 per cent. in the last 40 years, and 68 per cent. in the last two-thirds, in the last half century. Assuming that an increase occurs in the annual output, this amount will be doubled in 30 years, while if an annual increase of 5 per cent. is obtained, the doubling will take place in less than 20 years. H. F. Van Wageningen predicts that as a result of the creation in so short a time of so immense an amount of indestructible wealth as this, a general advance in the market price of all commodities may be expected. Interest rates will certainly decline. Wages should rise, for with this amount of new capital arising in the brief period every department of human activity is bound to be stimulated, and this will create an enormously increased demand not only for all those things that machinery and art can produce, but also for those that can only be brought into being by human hands and human service.

Accident Qualifications. "Run over by an automobile, was he?" said the city salesman. "I'll bet he was a big man—six feet high and weighed 200 pounds, or something like that." "Five feet 11 1/2 and weighed 180," corrected his informant. "I know it," said the city salesman. "In casualties of that kind you may generally figure on unusual physical proportions of the victim. In fact, if proof is needed that large bodies move slowly, it can be found in the statistics of street accidents. Barring the children, most persons who figure in such accidents are heavyweights. Of course, little people are by no means immune, but in the majority of cases where a pedestrian has got tangled up with an automobile, a horse car, or a street car, the description of his personal appearance brings out the fact that he was five feet 11 inches high or more, and was possessed of unusual avoirdupois."

LIVED ALONE IN WOODS 72 YEARS

AGED HERMIT DECIDES TO VISIT SCENES OF BOYHOOD BEFORE DEATH COMES.

Philadelphian.—Although betrothed to Elisabetta Concilio, when she was a baby in her cradle, Domenico Rossi did not really win the hand of his prospective bride until he defeated her father in a series of three games of "tre sette." The young woman, who is 17 years old, and has been nicknamed the "belle of Little Italy," was perfectly willing to carry out the contract made in her infancy, but her father, Giuseppe Concilio, thought that she was too young. Rossi was the usual impetuous suitor, and endeavored in every way to induce his sweetheart's father to give his consent to an early wedding. He met with no success, however, until the girl suggested that the question of the marriage date be settled over the card table, with tre sette, the favorite amusement of Little Italy, as the game. Concilio had met with much success in the past at tre sette, and his pride was touched at the thought of a rival in skill. He readily consented to let the cards decide whether his daughter should wed at once or a year hence.

He is in Deadly Awe of an Automobile. He was aroused suddenly some hours later, and loosing up, gazed into the faces of half a dozen Indians who were regarding him curiously. The boy was too hungry to be frightened and made signs that he wanted something to eat. The savages supplied him with food and then motioned that he might accompany them. Young Kellogg feared he was to be scalped, but the red men soon convinced him that their intentions were kindly, and he traveled with them for days and weeks. Where they went he doesn't know to this day, but as they provided him with food and with skins for clothing, he didn't care much. Finally, when the band reached what Mr. Kellogg now knows to have been Lake Gogebic the lad was so footsore that he could go no farther, and the Indians left him, after providing him with bows and arrows, some food and several skins to be used for blankets. He built himself a rude hut, trapped and hunted, and as time went on, settled down for life.

At the end of a year he met another trapper and was told of a trading post two days' journey distant. Here he exchanged his skins for firearms, food and clothing and then returned to his cabin. He had come to like the solitude and to care nothing for the march of civilization, so that in later years when others settled near him he avoided their company and lived the life of a recluse. He heard of wonderful inventions—the telegraph, locomotives and steamboats—but he refused to journey to the nearest city to see them. When he reached the age of 84 he began to rear dying alone in the woods and determined to visit the home of his childhood. The old gentleman is greatly amazed at modern inventions. He considers the telephone uncanny, and is in deadly awe of an automobile. He is fond of riding on railroad trains.

LOVER WINS A WIFE AT GAME OF CARDS

BETROTHED IN CRADLE, ITALIAN BEAUTY'S PARENT LOTH TO GIVE HER UP.

Philadelphia.—Although betrothed to Elisabetta Concilio, when she was a baby in her cradle, Domenico Rossi did not really win the hand of his prospective bride until he defeated her father in a series of three games of "tre sette." The young woman, who is 17 years old, and has been nicknamed the "belle of Little Italy," was perfectly willing to carry out the contract made in her infancy, but her father, Giuseppe Concilio, thought that she was too young. Concilio had met with much success in the past at tre sette, and his pride was touched at the thought of a rival in skill. He readily consented to let the cards decide whether his daughter should wed at once or a year hence.

Concilio won the first game without much effort. He was jubilant and both the girl and her suitor much worried. Rossi, however, met with equal success in the second inning. With the score a tie, the third game was played amid a breathless silence. Rossi won out by the narrowest margin, and Concilio gracefully acknowledged himself a loser. The parents then gave their consent to the early marriage and the young couple lost no time. Rossi is a well-known merchant of Little Italy.

"LADY HOBOS" STEAL RIDE. Millard, Neb.—Nineteen women who had lost their jobs and turned hobos boarded a Union Pacific freight train at Omaha to beat their way to Denver, and when they were discovered defied the trainmen to put them off. They had concealed themselves in box cars and were not found until the train pulled into Millard and took a siding to let a passenger train pass. Here the feminine hobos got into a noisy altercation that attracted the attention of one of the brakemen. He was rendered speechless with astonishment when he perceived that the hobos were women. Just as the train was about to pull out he summoned the conductor, who ordered the women to get off the train. They showed fight instantly, called the conductor names, and dared him to put them off. He summoned all the other trainmen and with their aid, after much biting, screaming and scratching on the part of the women, contrived to make the hobos "hit the grit." The women started walking back to Omaha, but declared that they would yet beat their way to Denver.

Baby Laughs at Death. Kalamazoo, Mich.—Running wildly for more than a mile and a half, turning sharp corners and winding about the busy part of the city, a horse hitched to a cutter escaped all who endeavored to stop him, so that two-year-old Lloyd Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Miller, farmers, could be rescued. The child sat straight up in the seat and only smiled at the efforts of people trying to stop the frightened horse. After leaving the business section of the city and when in front of the St. Augustine Catholic church, John Rupert managed to catch on behind the cutter. He grabbed the child and jumped. The horse ran two blocks farther on Kalamazoo avenue and stopped of its own accord.

IN WINDOW DRAPERY

MATERIAL FOR VARIOUS STYLES OF ORNAMENTATION.

Aberdeen Linen Suitcase in Many Respects—Directions for Preparing Stencil Pattern of the Design Best Liked. The small side windows where one does not wish to hang lace curtains should be covered with soft-shaded drapery, plainly hung and of a simple pattern. A very good material for this purpose is Aberdeen linen. It sells for about 90 cents a yard. Where diamond-shaped windows are to be decorated this material is well suited. Of course one can use the soft silks and a stencil pattern on soft linen colored silk is very handsome. In preparing a stencil pattern if you cannot afford a metal stencil, then get a good grade of manila paper and draw the design you wish on it. Flowers with hanging heads are very pretty and the way to get a perfect outline is to place a piece of carbon paper black side on the manila paper. Lay on this the pattern you wish and pin firmly in place. Outline with a very sharp lead pencil. This leaves a perfect outline on the manila paper. It is best to coat the cut-out paper with paraffin, which can be done by sprinkling small pieces of shaved paraffin over the pattern and running a hot iron over it. But a better way would be to get a soft brush, dip into the melted wax, and paint both sides of the pattern. This coating saves the sides of the pattern by preventing the moisture from ruining the edges of the openwork. Cut out the pattern with a very sharp knife on the manila paper, and if you make a wrong move there is nothing to do but make a new pattern. The brush must never be wet when applied to the material or the moisture and color will extend beyond the outlines and ruin the effect. A good color to use on linen-colored silk is dull green or brick red, with a touch of black, but a beginner should try using only a solid color for the first work. Get brushes Nos. 6 and 8 for the work. They are flat and made for the purpose. A round-end brush will be helpful in filling in the work and following edge lines.

Cream of Cucumber. Peel two or three cucumbers, cut them in quarters, remove the seeds and slice coarsely. Parboil in salted water and drain. Put in a saucepan with two tablespoonsful of butter and one large sliced onion; let all cook together for half an hour. Season well with sugar, salt, pepper and celery salt. Melt in another saucepan two tablespoonsful of butter; stir in one tablespoonful of flour; cook it without browning, add the cooked cucumber; one quart of the white stock, bull up, skim, add one pint of boiling milk. Cook slowly for 20 minutes, then rub through a fine sieve. Strain one gill of cream with two yolks of eggs well together, pour into the puree, return to heat but do not allow to boil, pour into the soup tureen and serve with croutons.

Apricot Tartlets. A novel way of preparing apricot tartlets is to line six tartlet molds with pastry, fill them with dried bread crumbs and bake them. When nicely browned remove the crumbs and on the bottom of each tartlet place a good-sized teaspoonful of apple marmalade. Use a can of apricots, cut in thin slices, to fill up the tartlet shells. Top each with a teaspoonful of powdered sugar. Bake 15 minutes in a moderate oven. Remove from the oven and let them become cold; then decorate the top of each with a teaspoonful of currant jelly, when they are ready to serve. A tiny circle of whipped cream around the currant jelly improves both the flavor and the appearance.

Kensington Cream. One-half box of gelatin, soaked an hour in one-half pint of milk. Put a pint of milk in a double boiler with four tablespoonfuls of sugar and beaten yolks of four eggs. When boiling add gelatin and milk. Take from stove, pour in a teaspoonful of vanilla and the beaten whites of the four eggs; turn into a mold. Serve with maraschino cherries and whipped cream. Preserved cherries and berries may be used instead.

Stag Parties. In planning a stag party for husband, brother or son remember that men prefer plain, substantial food rather than fancy salads, ices and cakes. A beefsteak supper is always appropriate, or, if the supper is to be given after cards or the theater, creamed oysters on toast, club sandwiches, Scotch woodcock or any of the simpler dishes is more acceptable to the masculine palate than the usual supper party menu.

To Remove Grease. One often spoils a painted wall back of a gas stove range trying to keep the grease off of it. If this is used you require no soap or heat. Take the cheapest vinegar you can find and with a large sponge you can remove grease, smoke and any dirt off of walls and woodwork, and make it look like new with a little labor.

Stuffed Celery. One bunch celery, one cream cheese or one small soft cheese; ten drops onion juice; two or three pounds cream; salt, cayenne; separate, wash, drain celery, and trim into six or eight lengths. With a silver fork work the sweet cream into the cheese, season and stuff into the hollow of each celery stalk. Serve cold.

The Cement Plant.

The cement plant at Four Mile Lake is about to be put in operation again. Wm J. White, of New York, is negotiating with Chicago parties, who are about to purchase the property but, who insist that the works must be insured before the purchase money is paid over and as the insurance companies will not take the risk until the plant is in operation. Mr. White has instructed Mr. Guerin, who has charge of the plant, to admit H. C. Millen, who will be the manager for the new company, and a force of men will commence work at once, assembling the engines. When this work is completed the insurance companies will take the risks and the negotiations will probably be carried out. Messrs. CUTICURA CURED FOUR Southern Woman Suffered with Itching, Burning Rash—Three Little Babies Had Skin Troubles.

"My baby had a running sore on his neck and nothing that I did for it took effect until I used Cuticura. My face was nearly full of letter or some similar skin disease. It would itch and burn so that I could hardly stand it. Two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment cured me. Two years after it broke out on my hands and wrist. Sometimes I would go nearly crazy for it itched so badly. I went back to my old stand-by, that had never failed me—one set of Cuticura Remedies did the work. One set also cured my uncle's baby whose head was a cake of sores, and another baby who was in the same fix. Mrs. Lillie Wilcher, 770 Eleventh St., Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 16, 1907."

COMPLAINTS MANY AND VARIED. Complete Harmony Had to Obtain in Organizations.

"All clubs," said the secretary, "keep complaint books, and some of the complaints set down in them are funny. In our book yesterday a member complained that the hot water was always cold, and moreover, there never was any."

"A novelist last week had the nerve to complain that his last new novel hadn't been added to the club library."

"Young swells sometimes complain about the club-wines and cigarettes and cigars in order to introduce brands that they are touting for on the sly."

"Sometimes anonymous scandalous complaints book the pages. Thus, last year, appeared this entry about a very popular member:

"Maj. Hawkins is flirting with too many of our wives. By the way, he still owes that tennor—he knows to whom."

The Ruling Passion.
Mammy Liza has lived with the "famby" long enough to acquire words and expressions, which, used at second hand, are sometimes fatal to the family gravity. Recently a member of the little circle had occasion to call for the horse and surrey from the livery stable. After waiting a long while the order was repeated, with no immediate result. Mammy, having heard the conversation, and knowing the impatience of her mistress, expressed herself thus:

"Huh! Dey's jes' no use countin' on dem livery stable folks, dey's so dilittant."

Neatly Put.
Homer Folks, the secretary of the State Charity Aid society of New York, referred in a recent address to the awkwardness that charity workers feel in making public appeals for funds.

"And few charity workers," Mr. Folks added, "can carry off that awkwardness with the neatness of the colored preacher who reminded his congregation that:

"'Budden, Ah kain't preach hyah an' board in heb'n.'"

SERIAL STORY

Mr. Barnes, American

By Archibald Clavering Genter—A Sequel to Mr. Barnes of New York. Author of "Mr. Barnes of New York," "Mr. Potter of Texas," "That Frenchman," Etc.

SYNOPSIS.

Burton B. Barnes, a wealthy American touring Corsica, rescues the young English lieutenant, Edward Gerard Anstruther, and his Corsican bride, Marina, daughter of the Paolis, from the murderous vendetta, understanding that his reward is to be the hand of the girl he loves. Enid Anstruther, sister of the English lieutenant, the four fly from Ajaccio to Marseilles on board the French steamer Constantine. The vendetta pursues and as the quartet are about to board the train for London at Marseilles, Marina is handed a mysterious note which causes her to collapse and necessitates a postponement of the journey. Barnes gets part of the mysterious note and receives letters which inform him that he is marked by the vendetta. He employs an American detective and plans to boat the vendetta at their own game. For the purpose of securing the safety of the women Barnes arranges to have Lady Chartris lease a secluded villa at Nice to which the party is to be taken in a yacht. Suspicion is created that Marina is in league with the Corsicans. A man, believed to be Corregio, a Corsican, is seen passing the house and Marina is thought to have given him a sign. Marina refuses to explain to Barnes which fact adds to his latent suspicions. Barnes plans for the safety of the party are learned by the Corsicans. The carriage carrying their party to the local landing is followed by two men. One of the horses is supposed to be Corregio. They try to murder the American. The cook on the yacht—a Frenchman—is suspected of complicity in the plot. The party anchors at St. Tropez. The yacht is followed by a small boat. The cook is detected giving signals to the boat. Barnes attempts to throw him overboard, but is prevented by Marina and Enid. The cook is found to be innocent of the plot. Lady Chartris, Barnes and Enid make arrangements for their marriage. The net tightens about Barnes. He receives a note from La Belle Blackwood, the American adventuress. Barnes learns that Elijah Emory, his detective, has been murdered by the Corsicans. He learns that the man supposed to be Corregio, who followed the party on their way to the boat, was Salicco, a nephew of the count and that Count Corregio had been in Nice for some time prior to the party's arrival. The count warns Barnes not to marry Enid unless he would have her also involved in the murderous feud. Barnes and Enid are married. Soon after their wedding Barnes' bride disappears. Barnes discovers she has been kidnapped and taken to Corsica.

This is scarce noted by the American, whose misery distracts him. A few moments later, Burton selects for himself a rough shooting costume that he has fortunately with him.

Then he hurriedly slings a field glass over his shoulder; puts one or two little trinkets, mementoes of his lost love, in his pocket; takes his valiant, jamming all open spaces full of cartridges for his revolvers, and brings it down stairs with him.

Marina stands in the hallway with her hand, she whispers: "Remember, a dead man cannot take Enid from that barbarous home of mine. Therefore, guard your own life."

They step out on the porch. Some moving lights are at the landing place and they hear the swash of sweeps and the cries of the Italian crew as they warp their fishing vessel up to the platform.

"Here! I'll go down with you and see you on board and your craft shipshape," remarks Anstruther. "Let me carry that rifle of yours."

"Come!" says Barnes, to whom every minute seems an hour, and hurries down the path; but as Edwin follows, Marina's white arms twine round him close, tight and clinging as if they couldn't let him go.

"Don't fear for me, you trembling dear," whispers her husband, kissing the excited face. "I'll be back soon."

At the landing, Barnes finds he has quite a little to do paying the Italian fishermen to remain on shore as Graham is getting their stores and water properly arranged on the craft. Of this Anstruther now takes charge, but though he works with a will, it is almost half an hour before the young naval officer pronounces the fishing vessel shipshape in case of heavy weather.

Then the young English officer leads the American aside and says, with the craft of a seaman: "Under this present breeze, if those devils you're in pursuit of want to make their island quickly, they'll be compelled to strike its northwest coast somewhere near Porto. Graham will know how to steer the course. I'd go with you, but—"

"But your first duty is here to protect your wife."

"You think these devils haven't all gone away," says the sailor hurriedly, and wringing Barnes' hand, strides up the path to Lady Chartris' villa.

Then Burton stepping on board the fishing lugger, which is big enough to make the run to Corsica, they would immediately throw off their moorings to the little landing stage, but the Italian padrone of the craft, noting Barnes' haste seems great and his need extreme, steps up and demands additional recompense from the American in reward for his vessel, declaring he will not let her go until he has threatened by the dagger of the vendetta, to a similar risk, would be hideous."

"I do not fear my kindred," answers Marina proudly. "My words, the rustics of my commune will believe. I should go."

"And have them murder you?" shudders her husband. "Never!"

"His young wife's only response is a plaintive sigh."

"Again you are right, Monsieur Anstruther. Of course, we know they loved Marina; still they might not believe," observes the count, his ardent eyes resting upon the excited girl, whose very enthusiasm renders her more lovely. "I am now returning to Nice, where Lady Chartris knows that I am at her command to do anything to aid her in this unfortunate matter. I shall drive out to-morrow. May you have good fortune, Signore Barnes, in your efforts. But remember one thing: in that barbaric island, they want your blood. You can only rescue your wife by risking it, but no suggestion from me is necessary to a brave and determined man!"

Danella would bow himself out, but Marina says eagerly: "Two words in private with you?"

"Certainly," answers the count, and Barnes notes as the beautiful woman whispers to him a look of astonishment enters his mobile face.

After he has answered her, the girl says curtly: "I thank you, Signore."

"You may trust me, Madam," is the count's reply, and courteously kisses the trembling fingers of Anstruther's beautiful wife, his eyes seemingly filled with a new and strange passion.

This is scarce noted by the American, whose misery distracts him.

A few moments later, Burton selects for himself a rough shooting costume that he has fortunately with him.

"But your first duty is here to protect your wife."

Then Burton stepping on board the fishing lugger, which is big enough to make the run to Corsica, they would immediately throw off their moorings to the little landing stage, but the Italian padrone of the craft, noting Barnes' haste seems great and his need extreme, steps up and demands additional recompense from the American in reward for his vessel, declaring he will not let her go until he has more money; that his ship may be wrecked at sea and he has no insurance.

"Pay him!" mutters Barnes impatiently, and hands his pocketbook to Graham.

But payment takes some time, the light of the lantern not being very good and the Italian inspecting every bill to see its value and again greedily imploring for more money, stating that his men will desert him if he gives them not speedy employment.

"Give him what he asks," cries Burton again; then pauses and mutters: "Good God!" and springs on shore! For a shout has rung out through the night air from Lady Chartris' villa and there is terror in it, and he knows it is the voice of the stout-nerved Anstruther, who would not give cry unless some sudden and uncanny despair had come upon him.

The American rushes up the path and a few steps from the door almost runs against Edwin. In the darkness the frenzied men seize each other, for Anstruther is now as frantic as himself. Recognizing him, Barnes asks: "What's the matter?"

"By heaven! Another blow in the dark! My wife has gone also!"

"Marina? Impossible! You have looked the grounds over? You have searched the house?"

"Here's a note from her, left in her chamber, begging me to forgive her, saying it is to save my life."

"My God, what horrible plot is it that has bereft you both in a moment?" asks Barnes. "If she had only told you the contents of that devilish letter."

The two are in the hall together, in their anguish, their voices ring out loudly. A frightened-eyed, short-skirted creature runs to them, and tremblingly asks: "Did you want Marina's knock-out letter very much, Barnes?"

The last part of it?"

"It was perhaps Enid's life, perhaps the life of Edwin's bride."

"Well, then, I—I—oh, forgive me! I lied to you. I've got the letter—the last part of it; I was going to sell it to you for maroons' pieces—I'll get it for you. It is tucked in my lucky stocking for fear I'll see it. It said something about murder! I'll—oh, don't look at me so awful!"

Maud flies upstairs and a moment later dashes back bringing the portion of the epistle.

As they try to decipher its cramped foreign hand, Lady Chartris, coming out wildly from her chamber, for now she fears she will be abducted herself, and is half crazy with fright, suddenly, looking over their shoulders, cries, half shrieking: "Oh, heavens, Cipriano's writing!"

"I fear, I fear! I've got three love notes from him—this looks quite like his hand."

And the astounded and dismayed widow wrings her hands, her face pallid with jealous chagrin.

"This is the most crafty, subtle and satanic plot against your married happiness, Edwin," whispers Barnes. "As near as I can make out, this devilish missive says that Marina must desert you, her accursed English husband; then they will spare your life. If she remains with you, your fate will be hers. Your safety from death is offered as a bribe to your young wife if she deserts your bed and leaves herself open to the stilettoes of these devils. If she stays with you and clings to you, you will be assassinated, even in her arms."

"The wife of my heart has left me fearing as the attack upon my sister's liberty has been successful their efforts against my life will be equally so," shudders Edwin; next cries out almost angrily: "She was mad to trust me."

"Marina knew you wouldn't let her go if she did," suggests Burton more calmly.

Berlin's Woman Chauffeur.
Berlin's woman chauffeur is making—as she always intended to do—a very good livelihood. Clad in a simple but becoming coat and skirt of serviceable material, Frau von Papp drives one of the Bedag company's electro droschkes with consummate skill. She is not, however, at the beck and call of the general public, but is in the employ of the Kaiserhof hotel, and drives its visitors alone. The woman's story is interesting. Her husband—an apparently well-to-do lawyer—died, leaving her and three young children penniless. Frau von Papp always had a fondness for automobiling, and quickly decided upon her profession. Having satisfied the police authorities as to her capabilities, she obtained her present post and is keeping herself and family in comfort.

Not Too Simple.
John Simple, 14 years old, of Dadsden, Ala., is not as simple as you might think from his name. He saw a fellow hanging around the barn and acting in a suspicious manner, and set a big bear trap where he thought it would do the most good; and then got up next morning to find that he had bagged his game. The man had entered the barn to steal one of the horses, but put his foot into it instead. He turned out to be a noted thief, for whom a reward of $500 had been offered, and John Simple is going to get the money. It's hot what a boy is named, but what he does, that counts.

To the Home-Maker.
To build up the power of our homes, for beauty, for companionship, for intelligence, for charity, for a constant acknowledgment and furtherance of the rights of others, is to build up a power greater, perhaps, than we ourselves shall ever realize. And its wither in the reach of every home, whether it's a big or a very little one.—Harper's Bazar.

Two Pretty Hats

Every season finds the matron a little more particular, a little more exacting, because she is a little better informed, when the time comes to select her millinery. She has discovered that the lines and colors in a hat may either add to, or decrease the attractions she possesses to an extent that was undreamed of, not so long ago; and she has generally possessed herself with the very wise conviction that her purchase must fulfill one requirement, that is, "I must look better in my hat than without it." Of course, this doesn't apply to the great beauty whose looks need no embellishing. She need only look to hat to add variety to her charms.

The woman approaching middle life should wear a youthful looking hat as long as she can do so without sacrificing harmony. When the time comes to forego the picturesque and the girlish in millinery, she will find innumerable hats, usually small or medium in size, that will suit her style and have a certain pulse and spirit, not to be found in other millinery. A pretty little round hat is shown in Fig. 1, which is made from a flat, prettily draped. It is soft, comfortable and charming, and will be found becoming to most faces. This hat is an excellent example of the sort which the matron may choose.

The very young girl is somewhat limited in her choice also, although each season finds greater attention paid to her needs. Her hats should be large, rather simple in construction, and not too heavily trimmed. Flowers and ribbons, wings and quills, are the wisest choice for decorations when one is to make up a hat for a young miss. Little girls are allowed greater elaboration, and are sometimes indulged in ostrich feathers, to produce quaint, "old-fashioned" effects. A very pretty and simple hat for a young miss is shown in Fig. 2. It is of felt with silk and velvet flowers and ribbon used in the trimming.

Well-Dressed Hair Is First Requisite of the Debutante

To be real smart the debutante must start on her career with hair well dressed. The all-over net is an absolute necessity. Flying locks and stray curls are fetchingly pretty, but fashion has set its stamp of approval on the neatly dressed hair with prim puffs and prim curls. The all-over net, matching the hair exactly, is not discoverable and keeps stray hairs in order from breakfast till midnight. They are real time-savers.

Veils were never in greater demand. The counters are piled with the most charming fancies in ruffled, frilled and bordered veils. The best for face wear is the genuine thread with a tiny ring. It is not so trying to the eyes. The big dot nets and extravagant styles are used for hat draperies, setting off any kind of a chapeau gracefully.

Stripes which make their bow for the first time in the summer gone reappear in linens and silks for service blouses. Just a bit striking, they are still to be liked as a novelty. One combination is brown, blue and white in quarter-inch stripes; another favorite blue, green and white; another red, black and white, the stripes clear and stunning when made up with some vertical, others horizontal and others bias.

Elastic belts, steel studded, take precedence in the belt world. Hand-some leather belts toned to suit cloths are brought in by French importers.

BARRETTE TO HOLD CURLS.

Jeweled Tassels.
Jeweled tassels are all the rage. They are made of pearl fringe with diamond stones, which generally have small stones surrounding them. They are used to finish the ends of long platinum and pearl chains that are worn twisted once around the neck, or may be seen hanging from brooches or pendants. The empire necklaces or diamond clasps threaded with black velvet-ribbon three-eighths of an inch wide are shown among the novelties. For a while women wore only the clusters of diamonds, though the very large ones are much sought and some of the largest ones are surrounded with smaller stones.

Finest Laces Used by Those Who Fancy the Dainty Jabot

The jabot of fine real lace so much affected by the Parisienne is nothing like so much worn here, even by women of fashion.

There is no end to the richness of the lace employed, and the rarest of the old point laces, as well as the point laces of the day, are used. In such cases, of course, great care is taken in the arrangement of the jabot so as not to tear or cut the lace in any way.

In many cases the jabots are narrow and come to the top of the girdle; others are shorter, and many are wider as well.

They are worn not only with lace collars attached to blouses but with the high, stiff linen collars attached to satin blouses, elaborately embroidered or cut with lace bands.

Of course, the stiff linen collar is death-dealing to the natural beauty of the neck, but so long as they are fashionable many will wear them. Fortunately, the society girl or woman changes her costume so many times a day that the linen collar is worn for a few hours only at a time.

One of the jabots in rare old rose point dull hued with age was gathered to a straight strip of satin ribbon. The latter did not show, of course, and down the center were four little cloth of silver covered button molds, with a three-quarter inch silver ribbon laid in a series of five tiny clusters, one on top of the other, each cluster flaring out a bit like a fan.

The different shades of blue, especially Nattier, now the really smart blue worn in Paris, or in pink, are effective, while pale shades carrying out the color scheme of the gown or the hat may be worn, and all set off the beauty of the lace.

For the woman with little to spend Valenciennes lace makes charming jabots, but this must be kept a pure white or else dipped to make it a true cream or pale yellow in order to be effective. The yellowish, soiled tones of real old lace have no beauty when carried out in Valenciennes.

Black satin buttons and little flat loops of black satin are effective, and Valenciennes collars of the shaped sort higher behind the ears may be made over a pattern and finished with a bebe ribbon of black velvet at the top and a smart little bow of inch-wide ribbon in the front at the base of the stock.

These stocks must, of course, be properly boned. No stock of any sort has even a shade of smartness unless it is boned.

Brown Decorations Used.
Brown paper is very much used for the dining-room, that part below the chair rail being darker than that above. The walls should be unadorned except for the pieces of china and red pottery, perhaps. In such a room yellow silk curtains, just to the sill, are very pretty. White woodwork adds much to the charm of the room, but darker wood is preferred by many.

WORN OUT WOMEN

Will Find Encouragement in Mrs. Merritt's Advice.

Mrs. W. L. Merritt, 207 S. First Ave., Anoka, Minn., says: "Last winter I began to suffer with my kidneys. I had pains in my back and hips and felt all worn out. Dizzy spells bothered me and the kidney secretions were irregular. The first box of Doan's Kidney Pills brought decided relief. I am sure they would do the same for any other woman suffering as I did."

It was announced on the ice. "But how on earth," said the girl in the white skating suit, "did you get him to propose, dear?"

The girl in sables smiled slightly. "Oh, easily enough," she retorted. "I told him that you were crazy about him and reminded him that it was leap year."

What Hubby Missed.
"I was telephoning the other night," said the girl, "and a voice crossed mine, a whispering voice. I couldn't help wondering what the game was. 'What are you whispering for?' I asked."

"Hush," she said, still in the whisper. "I'm trying to talk under my breath. I don't want my husband to hear. Please get off the wire. Won't you?"

"I got off the wire, but I couldn't sleep very well that night for wondering what it was she didn't want her husband to hear."

Collecting in New Hampshire.
A New Hampshire man tells of a tight-fisted man of affairs in a town of that state, who until recently had never been observed to take an interest in church matters. Suddenly, however, he became a regular attendant at divine service, greatly to the astonishment of his fellow townsmen.

"What do you think of the case of old Ketchum?" said one of the business men of the place to a friend. "Is it true that he has got religion?"

"Well, hardly," replied the other. "The fact is, it's entirely a matter of business with him. I am in a position to know that about a year ago he loaned the pastor $50, which the latter was unable to pay. So there remained nothing for Ketchum but to take it out in pew rent."—Sunday Magazine.

EXPLAINED.

"I have called," said the captious critic, "to find out what reason you can give for representing the New Year as a nude small boy."

"That is done," responded the art editor, "because the year does not get its close until the 31st of December."

CUBS' FOOD

They Thrive on Grape-Nuts.
Healthy babies don't cry and the well-nourished baby that is fed on Grape-Nuts is never a crying baby. Many babies who cannot take any other food relish the perfect food, Grape-Nuts, and get well.

"My little baby was given up by three doctors who said that the condensed milk on which I fed her had ruined the child's stomach. One of the doctors told me that the only thing to do would be to try Grape-Nuts, so I got some and prepared it as follows: I soaked 1 1/2 tablespoonsful in one pint of cold water for half an hour, then I strained off the liquid and mixed 12 teaspoonfuls of this strained Grape-Nuts juice with six teaspoonfuls of rich milk, put in a pinch of salt and a little sugar, warmed it and gave it to baby every two hours."

"In this simple, easy way I saved baby's life and have built her up to a strong healthy child, rosy and laughing. The food must certainly be perfect to have such a wonderful effect as this. I can truthfully say I think it is the best food in the world to raise delicate babies on, and is also a delicious healthful food for grown-ups as we have discovered in our family."

Grape-Nuts is equally valuable to the strong, healthy man or woman. It stands for the true theory of health. "There's a Reason. Read 'The Road to Wellville,' in pkgs.

Many people, who find articles lost by others think that by finding them they are entitled to the possession, should read the following from the state laws: "When any person shall find any money or lost goods; if the owner thereof be unknown, the finder shall within two days cause notice thereof to be posted in two public places within the township where the same were found—cause notice thereof to be advertised, in some newspaper in same county." MADE HIS LISTENERS SMILE.

Remarks of Reverend Gentleman Altogether Too Appropos.

Of all places, the most difficult in which to preserve one's gravity, when an absurd incident happens, is church. The worshippers in a certain chapel had some trouble to keep their faces straight a short time ago.

During the service some commotion was caused by a gentleman who accidentally ignited a box of wax matches in his pocket, and was trying to put them out, while his alarmed neighbors struggled equally hard to help him.

The minister, being short-sighted, could not make out the reason of the disturbance, and thinking to diplomatically cover the incident he innocently said:

"Brethren, there is a little noise going on. Until it is over, let us sing, 'Sometimes a Light Surprises.'"

Some of the congregation were unable to sing. Advice to mothers: "Don't let your children waste away. Keep them strong and healthy during the winter with Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea. COMFORTING WORDS. Many a Michigan Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed, to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Michigan readers.

Mrs. R. J. Cherry, 126 Litch street, Lansing, Mich., says: "Mr. Cherry, suffered severely for a long while from bladder and kidney trouble. His back was very weak and lame and he could not stoop or lift anything without suffering pains. The trouble was always aggravated if he took cold. His kidneys were very weak and the secretions were frequent and too profuse. He was also annoyed by headaches. Having read of many people who had been cured of this trouble, he procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. He was greatly relieved and he continued using them until cured."

STATE OF MICHIGAN. To the Circuit Court for the County of Washtenaw, in Chancery: The petition of James B. Bradley, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State, respectfully shows that the list of lands hereinafter set forth and marked "Schedule A," contains a description of all the lands in said County of Washtenaw, upon which taxes were assessed for the years mentioned therein, and which were returned as delinquent for non-payment of taxes, and which taxes have not been paid, together with the total amount of such taxes, with interest computed thereon to the time fixed for sale, and collection fee and expenses, as provided by law, extended against each of said parcels of land, and that said taxes remain unpaid; except that lands included in said "Schedule A" for taxes of 1890 or prior years were returned to the Auditor General as delinquent for said taxes under the provisions of the general tax laws in force prior to the passage of Act 200 of the Public Acts of 1891, and in all cases where lands are included in "Schedule A" as aforesaid for taxes of 1890 or of any prior year, said lands have not been sold for said taxes or have been heretofore sold for said delinquent taxes, and the sale by sales so made have been set aside by a Court of competent jurisdiction, or have been cancelled as provided by law.

Your petitioner further shows and avers that the taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as set forth in said "Schedule A," are a valid lien on the several parcels of lands described in said schedule.

Your petitioner further shows that the said taxes on said described lands have remained unpaid for more than one year after they were returned as delinquent; and the said taxes not having been paid, and the same being now due and owing; and the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and several amounts of taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the several parcels of land contained therein, extended in said schedule against the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid.

And your petitioner prays that the same be returned as delinquent, and that your petitioner pray a decree in favor of the State of Michigan, against each parcel of said lands, for the payment of the said taxes, interest, collection fee and expenses, as computed and extended in said schedule against the said several sums computed and extended against said lands, that each of said parcels of land may be sold for the amounts due thereon, as provided by law, to pay the lien aforesaid. Dated December 30th, 1907. JAMES B. BRADLEY, Auditor General of the State of Michigan, for and in behalf of said State.

A Cure for Misery. "I have found a cure for the misery malarial poison produces," says R. M. James, of Louellen, S. C. "It's called Electric Bitters, and comes in 50 cent bottles. This great tonic medicine and blood purifier gives quick relief in all stomach, liver and kidney complaints, and the misery of lame back. Sold under guarantee at Freeman & Cummings Co. drug store.
