IMMORAL CARDS.

Postoffice Department After the Senders of Them.

Postmaster Hoover has received notice from the department at Washington regarding the use of the mails for sending obscene, lewd, or lascivious pictures, pamphlets, letters, writing or print matter, or other publications of an indecent character, and from now on a vigorous effort will be made to detect and prosecute the offenders, who are subject to arrest under the postal laws and regulations. It is not so much in sending obscene literature through the Creditors Will Elect the Trustee at mails that concerns the office, as it is the sending of obscene and immoral postcards bearing pictures of a highly immoral character, some of which have obscene verses subjoined.

First Shipment of Wool.

The first bunch of wool this season shipped from Chelsea, consisted of 57,000 pounds, and was bought by O. C. Burkhart for Walter Mack, of Ann Arbor, and sold to eastern manufacturers, graded 93 per cent. delaine. This shows a great advance in the grade of wool in this section of Michigan, due to the introduction of the Black Top and Rambouillet breeds of sheep, and the improved methods of caring for same.

One feature that is worthy of mention and a credit to the producer as well as the buyer, is the fact that not one fleece of this lot was rejected by the mills' grader.

Mr. Burkhart still has a bunch of market for the balance of the season.

Italy is not usually supposed to furnish favorable soil for the suffragette movement. It is therefore a little surprising to find how strong that movement has already become. The congress of Italian women that has just been held in Rome is not so much the inauguration as the continuation and consolidation of a feminist effort that has already met with marked success. Although isolated groups had been working for the amelioration of woman's lot in Italy ever since its political regeneration, it was not till 1898 that a real feminist movement made itself apparent. YOUNG MAN TRYING TO WORK IN DETROIT IS VICTIM OF AN IMPERSONATOR

A FUGITIVE ATTORNEY

Things Said and Done in Various Parts of the State of More or Less Import ance Briefly Told.

Howard Nesbit, the 21-year-old prother of Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, is in Detroit and it would seem that he was pursued by some malicious shadow, for a double whose actions are causing the young Pittsburger much annoyance and embarrassment, is impersonating him about town. Nesbit is clearly weary of the limelight in which he has stood so conspicuously because of the Thaw affair. Small doubt exists in his mind and that of his friends in the city that some one who wants to attract attenton to himself and is hard pressed for means to accomplish that end is impersonating him, strutting around town in a lordly manner, fre quenting cafes, flourishing fat bank rolls for the edification of all who come within range, and boastfully proclaiming himself the brother of the most talked-of-girl in America. Meanwhile, the real Nesbit, with no funds except what he is earning in a very modest position, is bending all his best efforts toward making good, dodging the spotlight at every turn and asking for nothing but a fighting chance.

A Fugitive From Justice.

Robert Campbell, the Jackson attorney charged with embezzlement, is a fugitive from justice, with a reward of $400 offered for his arrest, and Pinkerton detectives are on his trail. Saturday morning, when the examination was called in Justice Jenks's court Campbell did not appear. After a wilt of 45 minutes his bondsmen were summoned and his bail forfeited. There's plenty of evidence that Campbell received assistance in his flight, and it s possible that he came to the city last night, as a suit of clothes, which had been hanging in his office Friday night at closing time, was gone this morning. Some one must have furnished Campbell with money, as he was penniless when arrested on Thurspractically all that was stolen, inch ing the tools, Leonard implicated Ne son and insisted that the latter stole the tools. An officer went to arrest Nelson, who declared he could not stand the disgrace, and in the presence of the officers swallowed a quantity of poison, dying a few hours later.

Granted Union An Injunction.

Members of Metal Polishers, Buffers & Platers' union, No. 1, of Detroit, re versed the usual order of things Monday morning, when they secured temporary injunction from Judge Hos mer, of the circuit court, restraining the police department from interferin with them on the street in their solic ation of men to become members of their organization. The injunction applies to the vicinity about the Art Stove Co., where the polishers, buffers and platers are on strike.

The strikers set up in their petition for injunction that Commission Smith, Capt. Krug and patrolmen prevent them from soliciting any perso to become a member of the organita tion and that unless this interference on the part of the police is restrained by injunction that the ruin of the union is threatened. They declare that the police are attempting to destroy the effect of the union. Judge Hosmer, in granting the injunction, said that the union was not to understand that he was authorizing any picketing contrary to law, but that he was merely giving the union men a chance to peaceably attempt to make non-union men members of the union.

THE BLUFF WORKED

SHREWD TRICK BY WHICH MER-

Church Established His Credit As a Good Man to Tie To.

There is a prosperous merchant in Chicago to-day who owes his success to his donation of a $5,000 organ to a church at a time when he didn't have money enough to buy a hand organ. This donation was a case of bluff, pure and simple, but the bluff worked and resulted in the subsequent wealth of the lucky bluffer.

John Smith was seeking capital to start in business for himself, but as he had no security worth speaking of he could not borrow the money he

When he had tried every person he could think of who would be likely to have the necessary cash and the inclination to lend it and had been turned down, he conceived the idea of presenting his church with an organ.

Young 'apoleon John Smith therefore ordered his organ and allowed the future to look out for fixelf. The manufacturers of the organ never thought of questioning the financial standing of the philanthropist who was handing out $5,000 organs, and agreed to have the instrument set up in the church on time.

Of course J. Smith was not a bud that was born to blush unseen, nor did ie hide his beneficence under a bushel. He managed to bring in at least the flute stops no matter what the subject of conversation. Not only did the young Napoleon advertise himself by means of the church organ, but the pleased minister and the equally pleased congregation spread the news

During this time John did not allow any alfalfa to grow under his feet. On the pretense of consulting some wealthy member of the congregation about some minor detail of the organ he would drop into an office, and before he left casually would mention the subject of the company he was forming. Most of the men that he thus aw thought it would be a good thing to be associated with a man who was making so much money that he was able to hand out $5,000 without missing it, so that all were anxious to take stock in J Smith's company.

Long before the time came for the first payment on the organ Smith had gathered enough money to start his business and was doing so well he had no difficulty in borrowing the amount needed to make the payment. From that time he has made money so fast that now he could give away several $5,000 organs and pay for them as John Mitchell, the labor leader, was discussing in Pittsburg a labor struggle of the past.

"You see, they didn't give us a fair deal," he said. "It looked fair on its face, but really it was like the deal of Harvey Barr of Braidwood.

"Harvey Barr, a successful lawyer, had a wonderful talent for getting the best of people. Even at home he kept his talent in play. His wife said to him one morning:

"'Harvey, dear, this is the fifteenth anniversary of our wedding. What are you going to give me?"

""This what I am going to give you,' Harvey answered, affectionately, and he handed his wife $15 in crisp, fresh bills.

"Oh, thank you! And what shall I give you?' the gratified wife asked "That meerschaum pipe I've been admiring so long, Harvey promptly announced

"In the evening, on his return home, the pipe awaited him. It had cost just $15. He lit up and began to color

"But 'as the evening wore on his wife seemed ill at ease!

"'Where is my present, Harvey?" she said at last, fretfully "'Why, my dear,' Harvey explained,

'you gave me a pipe. I gave you $15. Don't you see? We're both even.'

A ROMANCE OF A PENNSYLVANIA FARM

JOHN LUTHER LONG Illustrations by Don Wilson

SYNOPSIS.

The rowning desire in the life of old Baumgarther a Pennsylvania German, is to obtain possession of the beautiful meadow which lies just between Baumgarther's property and the railroad station. The property in quest on was inherited by Sarah Pressel, very pretty and athletic young girl, and belonged solely to her. At length Baumgarther came to realize that his only hope of obtaining the property would be through the marriage of his son Sephenijah to Sarah Pressel. In a mock auction "Seffy," as Sephenijah P. Baumgarther, Jr., is popularly known, is raffled off by his father to Sarah for $1. He appears utterly incapicitated to win in any contest of lové or life. Sarah Pressel is quite the opposite of Seffy, She is all life and animation. Her one fault is a very high temper. Baumgartner gives Seffy some lessons in courtship. Baumgarther has caused himself to be appointed guardian of Sally. Seffy is unable to resist the fascinating witcheries of Sally and he kisses her. She promises him, however, that she will, rever kiss any man but him. Sam Fritz, a drunken grocery clerk—old Baumgartner calls him a "molasses tapper"—calls on Sally and interrupts the kissing. They go into the parlor and begin he "sitting up" contest. In accordance with the customs of the place, and the time, the one who is defeated in such a contest is unworthy the hand and the time, the one who is defeated in such a contest is unworthy the hand of the girl. Seffy go s to sleep and be-gins snaring. Sally leaves the room in a enactment of the romance and a awaits without. Seffy takes up h it. Sally appears, radiant in her ex-ectancy. She walks down the steps one, and on down the walk alone. Still iffy hesitates. Alone she walks nearly to e gate while her face burns with the imiliation. Then Sam takes Sally's arm, he says. "I am satisfied." and Sefty is humiliation. Then Sam takes Sam and humiliation. Then Sam takes Sam and Selfy is She says. "I am satisfied," and Selfy is left in disgrace to be held up to the ridicule and scorn of the vicinage. Sam constitutes his drinking and Sally begins to acquire the habit. Old Baumgartner is stair to the garret—he had become stair to the garret—he had become stair to the garret—he had become "Yes," she says. "I am satisfied," and Selfy is said of Selfy's mother.
