BUILDINGS SOLD.

Glazier Building and Blodgett Terrace Sold This Week.

On petition of the Security Trust Company, of Detroit, trustee in bankruptcy of the personal estate of Frank P. Glazier, Judge E. D. Kinne of the Washtenaw county circuit court Friday granted an order permitting the trust company to begin suit in the United States court to determine the validity of two mortgages aggregating $180,000, given by Glazier on the Blodgett terrace in Detroit, and the Glazier business block in Ann Arbor. The petition was presented by Keena, Lightner & Oxtoby, of Detroit, attorneys for the trustees.

An order was entered by Judge Kinne authorizing and ordering W. W. Wedemeyer, receiver, to sign a stipulation with the Security Trust Company, providing for the discharge of the $80,000 mortgage on the Ann Arbor building, on the trust company agreeing to hold the fund realized from the sale until the final determination of the rights of the receiver of the Chelsea Savings Bank and the general creditors to the fund. This stipulation also was authorized by H. P. Davock, referee in bankruptcy, on November 19.

The result of the order and stipulation was to transfer the litigation to a fund, and allowed a sale of the Ann Arbor building, free and clear of liens, Tuesday afternoon.

The Glazier office building, was sold at public auction Tuesday afternoon to the Ann Arbor Savings bank, the consideration being $67,000. The building was bid in by I. D. Carr, real estate agent, acting for the bank. Ralph Stone, of the Detroit Trust Co., started the bidding.

The sale in order to be legal must be confirmed by the court.

It was announced that Mrs. Glazier, wife of the ex-treasurer, had signed off her dower interest.

The sale of the Blodgett terrace was advertised to take place Wednesday, on the premises. It is said the building represented an investment by Col. Blodgett of $140,000 and Mr. Glazier paid about $90,000 for it. It contains 41 apartments, and rents for more than $12,000 a year. At one time it was the home of some of the "front" families of the city, and is still a very desirable piece of property.

The young couple left for a wedding trip to Buffalo and Detroit at the close of the reception, carrying with them the congratulations of their friends who wish them a prosperous and happy future.

Mr. and Mrs. Keusch were the recipients of many beautiful wedding presents. The young couple will make their home in Chelsea.

Haarer As Deputy Treasurer.

State Treasurer Sleeper announced Saturday that he will retain John W. Haarer, present deputy state treasurer, in the same capacity after January 1. He also said that there would be no changes of any kind in the office force for the present.

Mr. Haarer went into the treasurer's office when Frank P. Glazier became treasurer in 1905 and has remained since. He was of valuable aid to Gov. Rich in straightening out the affairs of the office after Glazier resigned and it is understood that Gov. Rich was one of those who appealed to Mr. Sleeper to keep Mr. Haarer in the office.

Five took the examination.

Michigan Cattle Quarantined.

Michigan not only has to deal with the worst foot and mouth disease situation in the country, but investigation so far discloses that in all probability New York state got its epidemic of foot and mouth disease from this state.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, shortly before 11 o'clock Tuesday night, issued a general live stock quarantine of the state of Michigan. No shipments of cattle will be permitted in or out of the state and all movements within its borders strictly prohibited. The quarantine order is to remain in effect until the last vestige of the foot and mouth disease has been stamped out.

This order hits the live stock dealers here a hard blow, as they have a large quantity of stock on hand ready for shipment, and are now putting in their time feeding the animals.

While there have been many cases of the disease found among the cattle of Wayne County, no cases are reported from Washtenaw.

Clark-Cady Nuptials.

The marriage of Miss I. Marie Clark to Aruna Cady, dispatcher for the D. J. & C. road, took place Wednesday evening November 18th, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Clark, on Congress street. The young couple were unattended. Rev. A. G. Beach performed the ring ceremony. The bride was charming in a dainty pink gown. The decorations were largely of ferns. A wedding supper was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Cady left for a wedding trip. They will be at home after December 15 at 107 Normal street, Ypsilanti. Out of town guests were Mrs. M. Hunter, Chelsea; Mr. and Mrs. Cady and daughter, of Plymouth, and Mr. and Mrs. E. Russell, of Detroit.—Ypsilanti Cor. Ann Arbor News.

Save the Old Models.

Economy of floor space and the demands of house-cleaning offer a far more reasonable explanation of the action of the reorganizing commission of the patent office in selling $157,000 old models than does the suggestion of Inventor O'Brien that this is one of a series of steps to give the corporations advantage in depriving inventors of their rights, says the Boston Herald. Nearly all the models sold were of inventions on which patent rights have expired, so that inventors' rights do not seem to have suffered. But the sweeping destruction of old models is not desirable. In many instances they still have value for study and research by inventors, and many of them possess a historic interest which should warrant their preservation. The economy of space is not so urgent in the scheme of government buildings at Washington that the necessary space for the preservation of important models need be begrudged.

The bump of locality is a good one for man to possess, and there's no question but Alpine guides not only inherit, but cultivate their "memory of place." Some people who are very stupid about the points of compass, showing singular lack of the power of observation, should set to work and rectify the weakness. An English writer recalls a remarkable feat of the great guide, Melchior Andereg of Melzingen. He had never seen a larger town than Berne when he visited London, and two famous climbers, Leslie Stephen and T. W. Hinchliff, met him at London Bridge station and walked with him thence to Lincoln's Inn Fields. There was a thick London fog. Nevertheless, when a day or two later, the three were at the same station again returning from some trip, Mr. Hinchliff confidently said: "Now, Melchior, you will lead us back home." And straight to Lincoln's Inn Fields Melchior guided them, pausing only once at the foot of Chancery lane to make sure of his landmarks.

International Maritime Conference.

The international maritime conference will assemble at London in December. This gathering will be for the purpose of completing arrangements for a permanent prize court and for other reforms in naval procedure suggested by the late peace congress at The Hague. The conference will be an important and dignified body, all the foremost maritime powers being represented by admirals and experts in international law, and the personnel will, says the Troy (N. Y.) Times be such as to command respect throughout the world. Rear Admiral Charles H. Stockton, who is the spokesman for the American navy, has had a long and distinguished career, filling many posts where bravery, ability and special professional knowledge were emphasized, and his colleague, Prof. George G. Wilson of Brown university, is high authority on international law. The American part of the conference is likely to be well looked after.

Saving the Game.

With the revision of sentiment has come scientific legislation for the protection of such game as remains, and in most states the more intelligent hunters have themselves been instrumental in promoting the legislation. But a great deal of educational work remains to be done. The improvement of guns and ammunition, above all the cheapening of their price, has placed weapons in the hands of thousands of undisciplined hunters, who just as did their predecessors of 30 years ago, for "records." The violation of the game laws is not considered a crime by them, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat. Their only care is to evade detection and prosecution—not a difficult task, because of the relative scarcity of game wardens and the trouble experienced in securing evidence to convict the violators of the law.

John L. Sullivan, the once famous pugilist, came forward in the role of a moralist and preached a telling temperance sermon. John was 59 years old the other day, and he indulged in some reflections suggested by the anniversary. Among other things he said: "Remember, in all cases, to let liquor alone." The advice, says the Troy (N. Y.) Times, is backed by an experience which makes the little talk particularly effective.

Dispatches telling of the doing of pirates in Chilean waters read something like the stories of the old buccaners and other rangers of the sea who used to ravage the South American and Caribbean region. But it is not at all likely that twentieth century resourcefulness will permit this sort of thing to continue for any length of time.

Taking part in a balloon race is like matrimony, as the contestants never know where they will finish.

SENATOR SMITH CHAMPIONS SUGAR

WILLIAM ALDEN FAVORS TARIFF REVISION IF IT REMAINS PROTECTIVE.

TREASURY SHY $500,000.

Anxious State Employees May Mandamus Auditor General—Bill to Force State to Reimburse Saloon-keepers.

Broke at Christmas. The holiday season won't bring much good cheer to the employees of the state this year, for the state is strapped for ready cash, and as a result no one of those engaged in its service will receive any pay before the middle of January according to the present outlook.

There is said to be but one way out of the dilemma. Auditor General Bradley doubts his authority to issue warrants against the general fund knowing it has no money to its credit. Some of the clerks who would like to see a decision of the court on the proposition.

It is said that the state will be shy nearly $2,000,000 by the middle of next January. The primary fund warrants are being sent out and this will increase the shortage by about $500,000, that being the amount required above the cash there is in the treasury belonging to that fund.

It is said that none of the state institutions will suffer, as the credit of the state is good and they can secure all the supplies needed on 30 days' time.

Smith Champions Michigan Sugar.

That the beet sugar interests of Michigan and other states, including thousands of farmers whose staple product is the sugar beet, have no great cause for worry about tariff tinkering at the hands of congress at the coming session, is the optimistic view of the situation taken by United States Senator William Alden Smith.

The senator takes the broad ground that while the tariff needs revision in spots, there is no public sentiment or clamor for a recession from the protective principle, and that all the people want or will stand for is a very conservative readjustment of certain details along the lines of fundamental principles of the present tariff law.

Saloons Go, State Pays.

To make the state liable for damages sustained by saloonkeepers and brewers whose places of business may be summarily closed by the adoption of county prohibition laws will be the purpose of a bill which is now planned to have introduced at the approaching session of the legislature. That the liquor dealers of Michigan have been greatly perturbed by the prohibition wave which is sweeping Michigan cannot be gainsaid. It is said at Lansing that they will exert every effort to secure a retaliatory measure at the next legislative session.

YEGGMEN GET $900

Quartet of Robbers Blow Safe at Blissfield and Escape.

The postoffice safe at Blissfield was wrecked at 1 o'clock this morning by four "yeggmen," who got away with $500 in stamps and $100 in cash.

The "yeggs" stole the horse and rig belonging to George Richter and escaped, leaving them near Riga, where they were later and returned to their owner. The robbers had driven south at a breakneck pace on leaving Blissfield.

The postoffice is on the main street of West Blissfield and is located in an old building which was easy of access. The town has no night watchman and an entrance was easily obtained by prying open the door. The safe, which is of old style Cincinnati make, was easily blown open by two explosions of nitroglycerine and completely wrecked, as was the postoffice interior. It was then an easy matter to secure the booty.

The donations awakened neighbors, who saw two men leave and go in the direction of the barn where the rural carriers keep their horses. It was a matter of three-quarters of an hour, however, before a searching party could be organized, as Deputy Sheriff H. J. Shaw, the resident officer, was in Toledo, working on another case. Sheriff Holt and Deputy Sheriff went down from Adrian about 4 o'clock, but no trace has yet been found of the robbers.

Kill Michigan Beet Sugar.

Free trade will kill the beet sugar industry in Michigan, admitted Claus A. Spreckles, president of the Federal Sugar Refining Co., who was arguing for the removal of the tariff on sugar before the ways and means committee at Washington. The admission was made under pressure of Rep. Fordney, of Michigan. Spreckles modified his statement by the declaration that Michigan was not the proper place to raise sugar beets and convert them into sugar.

A new bank has been organized by Twinning business men.

As a result of the drought which has continued since early last spring, it is feared that a large number of manufacturing institutions near Lake Michigan, which depend on water power, will be forced to close. All the rivers in the state are lower than they have been for many years before.

At a meeting held behind closed doors at the First Presbyterian church, at Battle Creek, an association was formed for the purpose of starting a local option campaign in Calhoun county. About 60 were present. All information regarding the organization regarding the organization was refused.

Authorities of Saginaw and the northern counties report that immigration into Michigan is larger this year than ever before. Most of the settlers come from Ohio and Indiana, where they have disposed of their higher-priced lands and are taking up larger and cheaper farms. Many of them seem to be attracted by the beet sugar industry of the Saginaw valley.

The government will establish a station in the weather bureau service in Cadillac on December 1. Director Schneider, of Grand Rapids, was in that city Wednesday and appointed Deputy Postmaster Harner to take charge of the station.

News Notes from Lansing

Interesting Happenings at the State Capital of Michigan.

Lansing.—Bay City sugar and chicory factories paid out to the farmers the greatest sums ever paid out in any month for beets and chicory since beet sugar was manufactured in Michigan. The payments were for October deliveries and aggregated slightly more than three-quarters of a million dollars, all of which was distributed in a limited area extending only a little beyond the borders of Bay county. November and December will also be full months, from present indications, pointing to a distribution of over $2,300,000 to farmers around Bay City.

The heavy payments are not so much due to the quantity of beets delivered as to the quality. Experience in raising beets and improvements in culture has raised the sugar content in five or six years from 12 to 14 per cent, to 16 to 18 per cent. When sugar manufacture began here, the price of beets was based upon a 12 per cent. sugar content. For each additional per cent 33-1/3 cents per ton is paid. As high as $800 gross receipts have accrued from four-acre plants of beets while many farmers have crops of beets worth $4,000 and $5,000 on comparatively small farms.

Michigan White Pine Men War.

The white pine lumbermen of Michigan will reopen the fight for the reduction of the two-dollar tariff on rough lumber and F. E. Parker of Bay City was chosen commissioner for the Michigan white pine men to represent them before the ways and means committee of congress at the preliminary hearings on the tariff revision. Mr. Parker left for Washington. The white pine men of the state met in Bay City to take action. The Michigan white pine men have practically nothing with which to run their mills except Canadian pine and over 100,000,000 feet is shipped into Bay City every year, while smaller quantities go to Saginaw, Grand Rapids and interior towns. With the tariff removed it is believed this amount would be tripled or quadrupled and the hemlock men, particularly, are afraid of it. Southern pine will be the bitterest opponent, as every foot brought from Canada supplants southern pine shipped to northern states. The white pine men, however, declare that the amount shipped from Canada, while vastly benefiting Michigan, would do no harm outside the state.

State Cases Will Be Taken Up.

It was definitely decided in the circuit court that the so-called state cases, resulting from the recent grand jury session, will be tried during the present term of court. The first one to be tried will be that of former State Treasurer Frank P. Glazier on the indictment charging fraud in office and containing 31 counts. This case will be called Monday, December 14. Former Prosecutor L. B. McArthur represented Glazier in court and declared that he was ready for trial. He said that while the date set by Prosecutor Foster was not entirely satisfactory, he had no desire to interfere with the plans of the court and that he would consent to have the case taken up on the day recommended by the prosecutor. The other cases will be taken up in the following order after the Glazier trial: Jerry H. Anderson, obtaining money under false pretenses; John W. Dunn, bribery; Charles J. Barnett, bribery.

Knappen Affirms Currie Ruling.

Judge Loquel E. Knappen of the United States court, western district of Michigan, in a decision, practically confirms the rulings and order of Harlow P. Davock, referee in bankruptcy, relative to the points of contention in the case of Cameron Currie & Co., the bankrupt brokerage firm. The suits began by Frederic G. Austin as receiver and intervening creditors against Hayden, Stone & Co. in the Wayne circuit court are to be continued in the court by Mr. Austin as trustee, and the $310,000 turned over to Mr. Austin as receiver is to be transferred by him to Mr. Austin as trustee, subject to the limitations imposed by the circuit court.

Neal Has $5,812 on Hand.

State Oil Inspector Neal, in the quarter ending September 30, collected $5,395.96 in fees. All of this amount except $937.02 was expended for salaries and expenses of the inspector and his deputies. There is, however, a balance in the hands of the state oil inspector of $5,812.01, which represents the difference between the fees collected during nine months and the expenses of the department during that time.

Truancy Law Is Dodged.

Because the present state truancy law is inadequate, County School Commissioner B. S. Tefft of Saginaw says the rural schools are being depleted and the authorities are powerless to enforce attendance. The truancy problem, Tefft declares, has baffled the school officers, owing to the fact that the law limits the number of assistants to the truancy officer, and they have much more than they can do. Recently more than 250 notices have been sent to parents of pupils enrolled who do not attend school.

Saloons Go, State Pays.

To make the state liable for damages sustained by saloonkeepers and brewers whose places of business may be summarily closed by the adoption of county prohibition laws will be the purpose of a bill which it is now planned to have introduced at the approaching session of the legislature.

This intelligence casts additional light on the unusual activity displayed by liquor dealers in the recent election. That the liquor dealers of Michigan have been greatly perturbed by the prohibition wave which is sweeping Michigan cannot be gainsaid. It is said here that they will exert every effort to secure a retaliatory measure at the next legislative session. Inasmuch as the saloonkeepers backed many of the men who were elected to the house and some of those who were chosen senators, it is believed here that they are in position to come very near, if not quite, to securing the passage of the bill which, it is said, they have tentatively framed.

Members of the Anti-Saloon league, which this winter will conduct campaigns in many counties for the purpose of making them "dry" next April, said they had understood the saloon men will try to secure a relief measure, but they were surprised to learn that it was to be in the nature of an indemnity.

Many Call on Warner.

Gov. Warner, besides holding conferences with State Treasurer-elect Sleeper, Auditor General-elect Fuller and Land Commissioner-elect Russell at the day, met the following: F. L. Edinborough, state senator from Bay City; A. L. Duell of Harbor Springs, a member of the constitutional convention; John M. C. Smith, also a delegate at the "Con-Con"; Dr. W. P. Rand of Charlotte; Robert Steele, Coleman C. Vaughan and W. Smith, all of St. Johns; E. V. Chilson, clerk of the senate committee; Insurance Commissioner Barry; Richard Fletcher, labor commissioner; John Murdock, ex-representative from Huron county; F. W. Knox, editor of the Soo News; Charles S. Pierce, game warden; Nathan Simpson of Paw Paw; Editor Sherman of Port Huron; J. G. Brown of Avoca, recently elected county clerk of St. Clair county; H. T. Barnaby, state senator-elect of Grand Rapids, and others.

Nate Simpson Gets Reward.

Nathan F. Simpson of Paw Paw will be deputy auditor general for the next two years. Auditor General-elect O. B. Fuller made a definite announcement on this after a conference, attended by Gov. Warner and a number of state politicians close to the administration. The appointment is a popular one, as it will swing into line all the southwestern part of the state and the number of personal friends of Mr. Simpson throughout the state. Mr. Simpson was a candidate for the Republican nomination as auditor general and went into the state convention at Detroit well backed for the place. It was arranged on the day of the convention that, if he could not win, he was to throw his strength to O. B. Fuller and in turn Mr. Fuller was to go to him if things did not break right.

Official Figures Given.

The Kent county board of canvassers finished and announced that the entire Kent county Republican ticket was elected. Taft received a plurality of 5,169 and Martindale for secretary of state, got 4,389, while Hemans was given 8,858 over Warner. Hemans was cut about 25 votes from the totals as first reported. The new constitution was given a majority of 5,550. On electors, the Socialists cast 958, Prohibitionists 859, Socialist Labor 67 and Independence parties 15 votes in the county. The Socialists show a nice increase, getting 825 in 1904, with 45 for the Socialist Labor ticket.

Salt Company Loses Decision.

Judge Knappen in the United States district court, ruled against the Stearns Salt & Lumber Company of Livingston, on its motion for the opening of the interstate commerce case against it in which it was fined $20,000 on 20 counts for accepting rebates from the Pere Marquette railroad. The court, however, made a proposition to suspend judgment on condition that the Stearns company would come into court and plead guilty on six counts. It was claimed by President Justus S. Stearns that the plea of guilty on the 20 counts entered last May was made under a misapprehension.

To Retain Hamilton.

Fred Z. Hamilton of Eaton Rapids will be retained by Auditor General Fuller as chief clerk. Auditor Fuller has found that one-third of the clerks in the department hail from only four counties, there being 11 from Ingham, 11 from Eaton, seven from Genesee and five from Calhoun, making a total of 40 of 120 employed. It is said the new auditor will provide for a more even distribution of employees among the counties of the state.

ANN ARBOR TRAINS CRASH

Head-On Collision Occurs in a Dense Fog—Two Killed.

Meeting head-on in a heavy fog on an almost straight stretch of track between Hamburg and Lakeland, two Ann Arbor line freight trains were piled in a heap and two men were killed, one undoubtedly fatally injured and two others less seriously injured.

The exact scene of the wreck was 40 rods south of the bridge over the Huron river. A south-bound extra freight had crossed the bridge when the north-bound regular freight loomed up through the mist. There evidently was no time for the crews of either train to jump, for the dead and injured were later taken out of the wreckage.

The trains met with a dull crash that was heard only by one or two farmer families nearest the tracks. The engines massed together in a single heap of scrap iron, the wreckage of the north-bound locomotive mounting that of the one south-bound.

$20,000 in Bogus $5 Bills.

United States officers have been warned to guard against a counterfeit $5 bill which has been circulating largely in Chicago and St. Louis. It is estimated by secret service experts that $20,000 in bogus "green goods" has been circulated in the former city alone. One hundred of the bills have been recovered in Chicago. None has been reported in Detroit so far. The bill is considered the best imitation largely circulated in many years. It is the despair of cashiers of small banks and shopkeepers.

Czar Walks Three Miles.

The body of Grand Duke Alexis, an uncle of the emperor of Russia, who died recently in Paris, was interred in the new mausoleum of the Romanoffs, within the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul, and Czar Nicholas followed the coffin on foot through the crowded and silent streets of his capital. His majesty walked thus from the railroad station to the fortress, a distance of three miles. In spite of the apprehensions for the safety of the emperor there was no untoward incident.

Army to Leave Cuba.

Now that it is definitely settled that Cuba has elected Gen. Gomez president and Senor Zayas vice-president, it is expected that the American troops will begin to start for home about the middle of December. They will leave in sections until the time named for evacuation, January 23, when the last batch will leave.

The legations stand ready to lend their physicians to attend his majesty, but in August of this year the dowager empress declined offers to this end made by the British and German legations and consequently no further proffers have been made.

Those who have visited Canada are always impressed with the strict observance that is given to the laws of the country, and the order that is preserved everywhere. The editor of the Gazette, of Fulton, Nev., recently paid a visit to Western Canada. He was so impressed with the conditions that he saw everywhere, that on his return home he was inspired to write as follows: "Reverence and respect for law is a dominant characteristic of the Canadian people. Wherever one goes in Canada, whether east or west, the law is supreme. The law is obeyed because it is law, seemingly, and not because violation carries a penalty. Canada enforces the law and makes every law effective. No country is more free than Canada. In name Canada is a dependency of the British Crown. In fact, it is almost a third republic. All its taxes are voted, collected and expended by the Dominion and the provinces. The nominal head of the Government is the Governor General, appointed by the English Crown. Practically his only authority is to veto the acts of parliament, which he scarcely ever exercises. Canada gives nothing to the support of the English government or the English king. She gives England the advantage in trade regulations and tariff laws, and in return receives the protection of the British army and navy. Canada enjoys the protection without sharing in the expense.

"The sale of liquor is strictly regulated. None but hotel-keepers may obtain license to vend the stuff, and before a license can be secured an applicant must prove good character and provide twenty rooms in his tavern for the accommodation of guests. The bar-rooms close at 7 o'clock Saturday evening and remain closed until Monday morning. The schools and churches in Western Canada excite admiration. Though new, Western Canada is not godless. The finest buildings in every town are the churches. Next come the school houses."

Turning to the wheat fields of Western Canada, the editor of the Laurel (Neb.) Advocate of Sept. 17th says: "I have often thought that the reason that the characters of Charles Dickens are so impressed upon the minds of his readers is because he dwells upon them so long and describes them so minutely that by the time one has waded through his long drawn out stories they are so burned into his brain that he can never forget them. It was this way with the Canadian wheat fields. Had we only seen a few the memory of them might have worn away in time, but a long drawn out experience such as we had is sure to leave an unfaceable impression. Never will we live shall we forget the Canadian wheat fields. They call it the granary of the British Empire, and we don't blame 'em. Nobody who has seen these wheat fields can wonder at their enthusiasm. It is worth while to record that these fields have now been harvested, and in many cases yields as high as forty and fifty bushels per acre have been marketed, while the general average has been away above 20 bushels per acre. Oats and barley have also done well, and the profits, the prices of grains being high, have paid the entire cost of the farms of many a farmer. There is now 160 acres of land given away, in addition to the 160 acres that the homesteader may purchase at $3.00 an acre. Particulars of this as well as the lowest railway rates will be given by the Canadian Government Agent.

SISTERS OF THE KAISER
BY MAX NORD

PRINCESS MARGARET

PRINCESS CHARLOTTE

PRINCESS VICTORIA

PRINCESS SOPHIE

The German kaiser has four sisters, all of whom are younger than himself. The first sister is Princess Charlotte of Saxe-Meinungen, who is married, and is now 48 years of age. The second is Princess Victoria, married to Prince Adolf of Schaumburg-Lippe, and is now in her forty-third year. The third is Princess Sophie, who made the best match of all, being married in her nineteenth year to Crown Prince Constantine of Greece. She is now 38 years of age. The fourth and youngest is Princess Margaret, who celebrated her thirty-sixth birthday in April last. She married Prince Frederick Charles of Hesse.

The princesses are all true Hohenzollerns, though they differ very much in their mental capacity and tastes. The eldest of them, Princess Charlotte, is a good deal like the kaiser himself. She blurs out whatever comes into her mind, and sometimes opposes her imperial brother in a very spirited sort of fashion, so that the kaiser is a little bit afraid of her. Crown Princess Sophie of Greece has a special grievance against her brother, because, when Greece last made war on Turkey, in 1897, the kaiser gave his sympathy entirely to the Turks. German army officers were present in the Turkish army, and Greece was beaten to her knees in a campaign of 31 days. Princess Sophie's husband, Constantine, is in Greece usually styled the duke of Sparta.

Princess Victoria, the wife of Prince Adolf, is the least clever of the four sisters. It was originally intended that she should marry Prince Alexander of Battenberg, but happily Bismarck interfered to prevent the match, and Alexander opportunely died. At a family meeting Crown Princess Sophie is said to have asked in a despairing mind: "What can our brother admire in that nasty old sultan?" To which Princess Victoria replied: "Ask my husband. He must know; for the kaiser tells him everything." Prince Adolf, being thus appealed to, explained in these words:

"William says that he likes the sultan because he is the embodiment of absolutism. He is a ruler who has resolved to reign even at the cost of seeing half his people killed so that the other half may learn to obey."

All these royal ladies combine in their personality a regal bearing and a handsome presence. They are far better favored in this respect than was their mother, Princess Victoria of England. She was the queen's oldest child, and was plain to a degree. In fact, she was keenly aware of this herself, though she was never sensitive about it, and used to speak about it with a touch of derision. She had the fortune to marry Crown Prince Frederick of Prussia (afterwards Emperor Frederick of Germany), who was the most superbly handsome prince in Europe.

It was about the time of her betrothal to him that she is said to have been found one day by Queen Victoria examining her face carefully in the mirror. The princess turned around slowly, and with a comical grimace, remarked with an air of intense conviction:

"Mother, I look exactly like a white nigger."

Therefore, such good looks as these Hohenzollern princesses have come to them wholly from their father. Princess Charlotte and Princess Sophie are the most attractive, and they have both kept their youth remarkably well. "The youngest of the four, Princess Margaret, resembles her mother more than do any of the others. All of them are expert at riding and open-air diversions. Princess Victoria is one of the best horsewomen in Europe." She is very fond of the sport. As said above, Princess Charlotte is

A MATTER OF HEREDITY.

Agnes Had Only Followed in the Footsteps of Her Mother.

Even if there had not been kernels of rice on her hat and a glad light of love in her eye any bachelor could have told that she was a bride. And the manner in which she spoke to her husband showed they had not been married long.

A man in the passing crowd spied the couple, and rushed over to greet the bride.

"Well, well, Agnes," he cried, extending his hand, "you don't mean to say that you're married?"

"Why—why, yes," the girl stammered, vivid color mounting to her cheeks, as she tried to defend her novel situation. "You—you know, it runs in the family. Mother was married, too."

NO SKIN LEFT ON BODY.

For Six Months the Baby Was Expected to Die with Eczema—Now Well—Doctor Said to Use Cuticura.

"Six months after birth my little girl broke out with eczema and I had two doctors in attendance. There was not a particle of skin left on her body, the blood oozed out just anywhere, and we had to wrap her in silk and carry her on a pillow for ten weeks. She was the most terrible sight I ever saw, and for six months I looked for her to die. I used every known remedy to alleviate her suffering, for it was terrible to witness. Dr. C. gave her up. Dr. B. recommended the Cuticura Remedies. She will soon be three years old and has never had a sign of the dread trouble since. We used about eight cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment. James J. Smith, Durmid, Va., Oct. 14 and 22, 1906."

One of the Three.

"Well, there were only three boys in school to-day who could answer one question that the teacher asked us," said a proud boy of eight.

"And I hope my boy was one of the three," said the proud mother.

"You bet I was," answered Young Hopeful, "and Sam Harris and Harry Stone were the other two."

"I am very glad you proved yourself so good a scholar, my son; it makes your mother proud of you. What question did the teacher ask, Johnnie?"

"Who broke the glass in the back window?"

Reached His Limit.

Little Henry had been very naughty and was shut up in a closet until he should express proper penitence for his misdeeds. Near by sat his mother, ready to extend pardon to the small offender at the first sign of sorrow. At last a faint sigh caught her ear. Creeping silently to the door, she discovered the child seated on the floor in a disconsolate attitude.

"Poor me!" he muttered, with another sigh. "Why can't I get out? I've done sorrier all I can sorry!"—Delineator.

A Terror to His Kind.

A certain congressman is the father of a bright lad of ten, who persists, despite the parental objection and decree, in reading literature of the "half-dime" variety.

"That's a nice way to be spending your time," said the father on one occasion. "What's your ambition, anyhow?"

"Dad," responded the youngster, with a smile, "I'd like to have people tremble like aspen leaves at the mere mention of my name."—Lippincott's.

Money Expended on Schools.

Last year New York city spent $33,000,000 on its public schools; Chicago, $23,000,000; Boston more than $10,000,000; Philadelphia a little more than $6,000,000. Though Philadelphia is the third city in population in the United States, it stood thirty-fourth in per capita expenditure on schools.

A Cheerful Guesser.

"What does an actor mean by a 'fat part'?"

"I don't know, but from the oleaginous sound I should judge it means the olio."—Kansas City Times.

NEW LIFE

Found In Change to Right Food.

After one suffers from acid dyspepsia, sour stomach, for months and then finds the remedy is in getting the right kind of food it is something to speak out about.

A N. Y. lady and her young son had such an experience and she wants others to know how to get relief. She writes:

"For about fifteen months my little boy and myself had suffered with sour stomach. We were unable to retain much of anything we ate.

"After suffering in this way for so long I decided to consult a specialist in stomach diseases. Instead of prescribing drugs, he put us both on Grape-Nuts and we began to improve immediately.

"It was the key to a new life. I found we had been eating too much heavy food which we could not digest. In a few weeks after commencing Grape-Nuts I was able to do my housework. I wake in the morning with a clear head and feel rested and have no sour stomach. My boy sleeps well and wakes with a laugh.

"We have regained our lost weight and continue to eat Grape-Nuts for both the morning and evening meals. We are well and happy and owe it to Grape-Nuts." "There's a Reason."

Division of Vanderbilt Fortune.

The Vanderbilt fortune, once the greatest financial power in the United States, probably amounts, at the present moment, to not far from $300,000,000. Of this, William Kissam Vanderbilt, who controls the majority of the family properties, holds in the neighborhood of $100,000,000, while 12 or 15 descendants of the commodore share among themselves the remaining $200,000,000.—McClure's Magazine.

Straight Lines for Figure Is Absolute Edict of Fashion.

As it was rumored in the summer, the padded waist line has come to pass. There is an oblong pillow worn down the center seam of skirt and princess frock to give a large waist line and a straight drop from bust to floor.

Extra thin women are padding the corset at the back, where the straight frock or coat is apt to fall into a curved waist line. This spoils the effect of the wide, straight back, which is the feature of good fashion to-day.

Women who have large waists are happily letting them out and having comfort for the first time in their lives. The only thing is that one must wear gowns and coats in straight lines, otherwise the effect is absurd.

Anything that tends to enlarge hips and bust is considered bad management in dressing, and even though the waist line is not only let out, but padded, the hips are laced in absolutely tight from the waist down.

Every woman does not know how to lace a corset, and if she is in error the result will be worse this year than for many seasons before.

It must always be unlaced its entire length every time it is removed. Otherwise bones break and steel snap and the corset lasts half its appointed time.

When it is put on it should be hooked up in front, then the hands put under it to draw up the flesh. Next the elastics are fastened to the stockings and the figure comfortably adjusted before the lacing begins.

The lacers, which have loops in the center, should be pulled a little at that line first, then they should be pulled hard at the extreme lower edge, bringing the edges of the corset together.

This should be done all the way up over the hips, the extra length of lacers pulled out at the center.

The same method of lacing should then begin at the top of the corset, only it is not necessary to lace so tightly above as below.

The strings in the center are pulled as tight as one wishes and tied in a loose knot. They should never be brought around the corset and tied in front, as this destroys the waist line by denting it and finally breaking the corset bones.

Old-Fashioned Braiding.

Some of the new coats have their entire surface covered with a close design of soutache braiding. This is the height of style years ago, and it has been revived in exactly its old form.

The soutache is put on as though it were cut out with a jig saw, and it is quite effective.

One model in green broadcloth has a seven-gored circular skirt, with high waistband, and fastens down the left front with buttons of green velvet covered with soutache.

The coat falls below the knees at back and to the knees in front. It is covered from shoulder to hem with these scrolls and turns made of soutache.

The fronts do not meet except by means of a heavy black satin waistcoat fastened with green velvet buttons.

When Hanging Curtains.

A house decorator gives this important advice to women who are arranging their homes. They should not hang curtains of one color against a wall paper of another color. They should not join carpets of opposite colors. They should not put different papers on the walls of adjoining rooms which have wide archways or folding doors between. These are simple suggestions, but they mean a great deal. The woman who is guided by them will arrive at much better results than she who ignores them. When it is not possible to have the carpets alike in rooms that are joined by wide openings, a rug should be laid over the long seam to hide it.

Opposite Materials.

In dress goods fabrics there is a merry war going on between the roughest of rough tweeds and the softest of satin weaves. Both are at the top of popularity, and each woman wants a suit of one and a gown of the other.

Velvet Roses.

The new thing of the moment is the immense rose with petals that are larger than an ordinary rose, made of helle velvet and worn on the front of a hat. Sometimes two smaller ones are placed at the sides, and between them is a festoon of helle tulle.

These roses are also worn at the front of bodice and just below the left hip on an evening gown made with a tunic that crosses over at left and is slashed to show an underskirt of tulle or chiffon.

American Beauty Waistcoat.

If you want to liven up a black coat suit, put in a waistcoat of American beauty satin or velvet. This is a smart touch and shows that you are quite in with the fashions. It may be fastened down center with black velvet or cut jet buttons.

Facial Distortion a Frequent Fault of the Younger Generation

Do you realize how rare it is to see a strong, quiet face? The next time you go down the street in the cars look for one.

If there were an epidemic of St. Vitus dance there might be some excuse for the distorted countenances you see. The girl who does not bite her lips and draw in her eyes toward her nose, arches her eyebrows (thinking it coquettish), or puckers her mouth till one thinks of persimmons or a gathering thread.

One would feel like laughing if it did not seem more to be cried over. For much of this distorting is needless and all is disfiguring. Oddly enough, lack of facial repose is more noticeable in women and girls than in men or boys. Is it because the former are more self-conscious?

There are some girls who think a quiet face must be a stupid one, so they smirk and jerk and shrug in the mistaken idea that they are animated.

Forced piquancy has but one ending—wrinkles for the piquant and sneering amusement for the looker-on. Many a woman spends a small fortune on electricity, cold packs and massage, when all she needs is to root out disfiguring habits. There is no wrinkle cure known that will conquer confirmed wrinkle-making.

Sometimes facial distortion comes from bad eyesight or lack of nervous control. Whatever the cause, whether silliness or physical ill, try to get rid of it.

Find out whether yours is a reposeful face. Your family will be only too glad to give you the information. Then ask their help in making it so.

You will not like that help. It grows deadly wearing to have friends say, just when you think yourself looking fine: "Milly, stop squinting;" "Margaret, get away from that frown;" "Don't be coy, Violet." But endure it as you would a bad medicine.

There is no remedy too severe in the interest of a restful face in this day of distortions. Plain features that are quiet as nature planned them have more real beauty than a Greek nose, a perfect mouth, and inspiring eyes that are always in motion.

Our sketch illustrates a very effective way of decorating the space immediately above the dado with a number of small pictures, all of the same size. This form of decoration is especially adaptable to a reading or smoking room, and may be carried out entirely round the room. Small oak frames, ready-made, can be purchased in many of the shops at a moderate cost, and are very suitable for framing photographs and engravings.

In the room from which our sketch was made, a number of photographs had been framed quite plainly in this manner, and they were arranged in a row resting on the beading at the head of the dado. Above them, and cut so as to slightly overlap the top of the frames, a second beading had been nailed, and held the pictures in their places. Beadings suitable for this purpose can be obtained very cheaply, and for a similar decoration, of a smaller kind, cabinet photographs look wonderfully well and make an interesting addition to a room. Pictures or photographs so arranged in no way interfere with larger pictures that may be hung above them.

Chelsea, Mich., Nov. 14, 1908.

Dear Friend:
I am anxious to help men in every possible way; but unless I know their thoughts concerning religion, I cannot act intelligently. I am sending this letter to more than a hundred men in this community, and when the replies are received, will discuss them in a series of Sunday evening sermons. You need not sign your name if you do not choose to do so; but if you will answer the questions and send to me it will be greatly appreciated.

1—Do you believe that the churches are a blessing to any community?

2—Do you believe that church attendance encourages a truer and nobler life?

3—If you are not a regular attendant, will you kindly give me your personal reasons for not doing so? If you are, give reasons of persons with whom you come in contact, who do stay away.

4—Do you think the church is at fault? If so, wherein does the fault lie?

Thanking you in advance for your favor, I am sincerely your friend,
D. H. GLASS.

Is Angeworm To Blame?

In view of the reported discovery that the cause of cancer is the common garden or earthworm, it is of interest to know that 5 per cent of the deaths in Michigan in October were caused by this disease, the number reported being 148 out of a total of 3,202 deaths in the state from other causes. Deaths from cancer have shown a steady increase for a long period of years.

The number of deaths from violence, which were 215, was increased by the fatal forest fires in northern Michigan, 24 deaths from this cause alone being reported from Presque Isle county.

The number of births reported for October was 4,278, which indicated that the work is more than distancing the man with the scythe.

Stop In Your Tracks!

If you haven't made arrangements to secure a copy of the next issue of the Standard, do so at once. If you don't you'll regret it, for in it will appear Dr. Furnival's Solution of the Colter Cabin Mystery.

Sleuth "X-Ray" Furnival is an Englishman, yet he can read guilt or innocence in any man's eye. Dr. George F. Butler and Herbert Halsey have created a wonderful detective in Dr. Furnival, who fundamentally is a man of science.

This story is the most all-absorbing tale which, we believe, ever appeared in these columns. Humor, a tinge of the mysterious, a taste of the supernatural and finally the wonderful solution to top off the most interesting tale of years.

Get our next issue. You'll be sorry if you don't. It's great. We know, but we want you to realize its quality.

The Essence of Simplicity.

Under all the forms in which life rests itself, in all social positions, at the top as at the bottom of the ladder, there are people who live simply and others who do not. We do not mean by this that simplicity betrays itself in no visible signs, has not its own habits, its distinguishing tastes and way; but this outward show, which may now and then be counterfeited, must not be confounded with its essence, and its deep and wholly inward source. Simplicity is a state of mind. It dwells in the main intention of our lives. A man is simple when his chief care is the wish to be what he ought to be, that is, honestly and naturally human.—Pastor Charles Wagner.

Shall We Be Afraid of Poverty?

Let us remember that Plato had but three servants, and that Zeno had none. Socrates, the reformer of his country, was maintained, as Menenius Agrippa, the arbiter of his country, was buried, by contribution. While Attilus Regulus beat the Carthaginians in Africa, the flight of his plowman reduced his family to distress at home, and the tillage of his little farm became the public care. Scipio died without leaving enough to marry his daughters, and their portions were paid out of the treasures of the state. After such examples, shall we be afraid of poverty?—Lord Bolingbroke.

Lightning Plucks a Bird.

Lightning did some queer stunts here during a storm, among them the knocking of all but a solitary feather from the body of a mouse hawk, which, strange to relate, still lives to bear mute evidence of the occurrence. The hawk was found under the tree which had been struck the following morning, when the hands on the I. D. Stone farm were inspecting the work of the storm. The bird was hardly alive, and stripped of all but the one feather, presented a sorry appearance. It was taken to the house and fed and bled fair to recover.—Col. lumbus Dispatch.

Modest Ambitions.

The interviewer met the great trust magnate face to face. "It is understood by the people that you do not believe in government ownership?" remarked the interviewer. The trust magnate smiled craftily. "Young man," he said, softly, "there could not be a greater error. On the contrary I do believe in government ownership. I hope to own the government myself some day."

GERMANY, AMERICA AND FRANCE WANT WRIGHT AEROPLANES.

BY WILLARD W. GARRISON

ORVILLE WRIGHT

ORVILLE AND WILBUR WRIGHT did fair to become millionaires within a decade. This Dayton, O., pair of brothers, who have been working their wonderful aeroplane in both America and France, are being trailed by Germany and several other European countries, which hope to perfect themselves in this—the latest mode of modern warfare.

But until their contracts with both America and France are fulfilled the Wright brothers will enter into no further agreements, they say.

The mishap at Fort Meyer in which Orville Wright was severely injured by falling with his aeroplane a distance of 75 feet, however, made no difference in the plans of the brothers. The machine was repaired and soon the American demonstrations are to be started from friends and strangers alike.

While they were experimenting in America, it was sometime before even the newspapers succeeded in unearthing the fact that a wonderful air ma-

A SUCCESSFUL FLIGHT

THE WRIGHT BROTHERS' MACHINE AT LE MANS

new. The death of Lieut. Selfridge was a blow to the cause, for it was hoped that congress would give appropriations towards the work. However the Wright brothers hoped to overcome the setback by brilliant feats later.

The aeroplanes which were recently tried at Fort Meyer in the United States and at Le Mans in France are of about the same variety and experts who have seen either of the contrivances declare that as aerial machines the devices are perhaps the height of present-day inventions in that line.

The French government's contract with the Wrights called for two flights of 50 kilometers each, carrying one passenger besides the operator. For this accomplishment with the invention the brothers were scheduled to receive $100,000, the device being turned over to France.

They learned to call Wright the "bird-man" over in France because of the grace with which his machine soared through the air and was able to land at the point from which he started. Just about the time that Wilbur in France was making a hit with his success at the Les Hunaudieres race course, his younger brother, Orville, started in to do things at Fort Meyer, selected as the airship experimental grounds by the United States government.

Wilbur Wright declared that he had more trouble in the course of making his contract and experimenting with his airship in France than he ever wants to experience again. It was in 1905 that Wilbur Wright asked the French government to purchase his machine for $200,000, the officials replying that after the machine had proved its worth it would be bought. One of the brothers went to France, but no understanding was arrived at during the time of his visit. The following year a committee was selected to act as mediator between the Wright brothers and the government.

A short time later Wilbur Wright was handed $5,000 as a guarantee, which aided in defraying expenses. Again communications were established with the minister of war, and Wilbur agreed to make a flight between two different points at a height of 20 meters and at a speed of 60 kilometers an hour. The machine was to return to the point from which it started. In case success crowned the efforts of the inventor, the firm was to receive $200,000 for the invention. That arrangement fell through a short time later, as set forth above.

It took five months for Wilbur Wright to set up his machine after it had been transported from Ohio to France. It was nearly two weeks after his arrival at Le Mans that the inventor was able to get his motor into working order. The motor is the invention of the Wrights themselves, hence the degree of delicacy of its mechanism can be imagined when the length of time taken to arrange it correctly is taken into consideration.

The machine is started from a sort of catapult and it has attained a level of 50 feet after leaving its stand which is raised a few feet from the ground in order that the delicate parts close to the ground may not be brought into contact with the earth.

Frenchmen and Frenchwomen and children in search of curiosities upon which to feast their eyes, bothered Wilbur Wright to a great extent in France, but his brother Orville at Fort Meyer where he made a number of successful tests declared that he had no trouble whatever with curious persons. The brothers were inclined to keep their machine as much of a secret as possible the shed which shielded his invention. It was a damp spot and the few friends he made among the French public declared that his health was being impaired by his method of guarding the precious secret.

The aeroplane with which Orville Wright experimented at Fort Meyer was an exact duplicate of that used in France. There was not a single variance except in a few of the parts, but to the untutored eye both devices were exactly the same, part for part.

Regarding the future the Wright brothers have said little, as is their wont on most occasions when the airship topic is brought into the conversation, but from their closest friends the fact has been learned that Germany is after the invention also and while the brothers, of course, realize that their first duty is with the United States government, they expect to demonstrate the efficiency of the air craft somewhere along the Rhine and hope to secure the prize which the German government has hung up for successful navigators of the ether.

The fact that the Wright brothers were approached by agents of the kaiser puts Germany in the front ranks regarding the study of aviation. It will be remembered that the emperor gave liberally to Count Zeppelin in order that he might construct a new machine after his first airship was destroyed and the authorities among the Germans believe that when they have secured a "copy" of the Wright device, they will be in a fair way towards taking a lead in affairs aerial.

Just what other countries are also desirous of getting into line with an aeroplane order is not known outside of the firm of Wright & Wright, but that there were a number of agents of other European kingdoms in France at the time that Wilbur Wright was engaged in making his experiments went to show or at least was a strong hint that the aeroplane inventors could derive a lot of the "root of all evil" by simply saying so to the agents, who were careful when visiting to drop a well-placed remark as to their identity.

But for this year, at least, it is declared the experiments are to be confined to the United States and France. Germany, of course, will be next in line and it is considered probable that England will take some share in the game. If the Britons decide to go in for aerial navigation in connection with their war department, it is probable that Orville Wright will be given the assignment of demonstrating the air device somewhere in the neighborhood of London.

One of Orville Wright's most successful flights at Fort Meyer, near Washington, occurred just a short time before the official tests. He encircled the field set apart for the experiments five times in addition to going its full length. Then he landed directly in front of the shelter tent, which had been provided for the aeroplane. The total time needed for that trip was four minutes and 15 seconds. Throughout the entire trip the machine was under perfect control, the engine not losing a single "kick," and Wright being able to send it hither and thither without any apparent effort.

The wind was blowing at a rate of three and three-fifths miles an hour and the average speed of the device was estimated at 35 miles an hour. Thirty feet from the ground was the greatest height attained throughout the aerial tour. As Orville continued to experiment with his machine he secured better control and when the time for the tests approached he was able to manipulate the aeroplane with as much ease as did his older brother far across the Atlantic in France.

The account of the trial trip at Fort Meyer points out the possibilities of the aeroplane. Wilbur Wright in France made trips which were much like those which his brother took at Fort Meyer. He made his best performance when he encircled the Les Hunaudieres race course over seven times and maintained a speed slightly over 30 miles an hour. Wilbur gained such superb control of his airship one day that he decided to try a bit of aerial tactics which previously had not entered into the regular daily routine.

He attempted to swoop down suddenly from a height of about 20 feet and the left wing of the invention struck the ground with much force, crippling the machine and making it necessary for him to take several days from his experimental work to repair the injured part.

However the work was soon accomplished and the routine proceeded as usual, except that Wright mastered that swoop until he accomplished it each day. Then the French gave him the title of the "bird-man," which has stuck to him at least in the foreign pictorial magazines and newspapers.

One of the beauties of the accomplishments of Wilbur Wright in France was the demonstration of the superiority of his machine over those which were promoted by the natives of France themselves. When Wright first operated in aeroplane in France, there were several Frenchmen who were able to outdo his feats. In fact one French aerial navigator set a world's record before Wright's eyes. But the mark could not stand for long.

A few days later the American ascended in his contrivance and remained in the air an hour and a half, an accomplishment which has not been touched since, and which probably will not be equaled in more than a decade by the French experts.

The wrecking of the Orville Wright aeroplane at Fort Meyer near Washington was a disaster which put a severe kink for a time at least in the work of the brothers.

It is only a few years since the brothers commenced experiments with the aeroplane, and they, themselves, admit that their device to-day is somewhat crude to what it will develop into within a few years. Readers of the newspapers remember how a few years ago the fact that the Wright brothers were destined to make their mark in the world of aeronautics was shielded from the eyes of possible trespassers on their invention. So secretly was the work carried on that it was impossible for even disinterested persons to get within several miles of the machine when it was in action. For several months, the brothers would allow no photographs to be taken of the machine. In this stand inventors say they were perfectly justified, for they claimed to have several points which, them of much of the credit which their great invention has since bestowed upon them.

FOR THE "NATIONAL ANTHEM."

Reasons Why the Popular Choice is for "Hail Columbia."

Though Americans are not all agreed as to what really is or ought to be our "national anthem," it is reasonably sure that the popular choice would not fall upon "Hail Columbia." Yet that was the song selected by the Japanese to welcome the American fleet, and the Japanese are generally a discriminating people. And in truth they only followed the European custom in this, for "Hail Columbia," is usually the tune played upon official occasions abroad when it is desired to compliment the United States.

It could hardly be otherwise, because of all our so-called national music, "Hail Columbia" is the only tune—excepting "Dixie" and the songs of the civil war—of American origin. The tune we call "America" is only "God Save the King," and that belongs to Great Britain. "The Star-Spangled Banner" is also an English tune, though we have made it our own, and it may well be that foreigners do not understand the uplift we feel on hearing it. Even "Yankee Doodle" is of doubtful lineage, as well as of questionable dignity. "The President's March," on the other hand, is wholly a Philadelphia product, composed there and given its popularity by a Philadelphia lawyer's stirring words, sung by a Philadelphia actor. "A poor thing, but mine own." Tawdry as it is, our title to it is clear—even clearer than that of the "Red, White and Blue"—and this is probably one reason why it is everywhere recognized as distinctly American.

"The Red, White and Blue" is in some respects a better tune, but "The Star-Spangled Banner" is by so much the best of the group that it has gradually gained acceptance to the exclusion of the others. It is hard to sing, but glorious for the band, and nothing is likely to drive it out. Certainly "national anthems" never can be made to order. If prizes would produce one, we should have plenty to choose from. But national music is a growth, not a manufacture, and having no body of "folk song" to draw upon, we have to depend upon the popular acceptance of some tune that may have had only an accidental association with any patriotic aspiration.

Balancing a Flying Machine.

The balancing of a flyer may seem, at first thought, to be a very simple matter, yet almost every experimenter had found in this the one point which he could not satisfactorily master. Many different methods were tried. Some experimenters placed the center of gravity far below the wings, in the belief that the weight would naturally seek to remain at the lowest point. It was true that, like the pendulum, it tended to seek the lowest point; but, also, like the pendulum, it tended to oscillate in a manner destructive to all stability.

A more satisfactory system, especially for lateral balance, was that of arranging the wings in the shape of a broad V, to form a dihedral angle, with the center low and the wing-tips elevated. In theory this was an automatic system, but in practice it had two serious defects: First, it tended to keep the machine oscillating; and second, its usefulness was restricted to calm air.—Century Magazine.

How He Registered.

A traveling salesman, finding himself in a strange territory, sought the only tavern in the small settlement to put up for the night. Much to his surprise and chagrin, the proprietor demanded five dollars.

"What?" ejaculated the salesman. "Why, that is robbery. I can stop at the largest hotels in Chicago for that sum."

"But you ain't in Shee-cago now, stranger," drawled the proprietor, "and, besides, we have some of the biggest people in this state as our guests. Take Isaac M. Bung, the great lumber man. He was here yesterday and there is his name on the register— I. M. Bung."

The salesman looked from the register to the coming darkness. Then he took the pen and wrote beneath the name: "I. M. Stung."

And forking over the five dollars in advance he ascended the creaking stairway to his room.

A Timely Air.

During one of the political tours of Mr. Cleveland, in which he was accompanied by Secretary Olney, he arrived during a severe storm at a town in which he was to speak. As he entered the carriage with his friends and was driven from the station the rain changed to hail, and immense stones battered and rattled against the vehicle. A brass band, rather demoralized by the storm, stuck bravely to its post and played.

"That is the most realistic music I have ever heard," remarked the president.

"What are they playing?" asked the secretary of state.

"Hail to the Chief—with real hail!" rejoined Mr. Cleveland.—Harper's Weekly.

No Watered Stock.

The "get-rich-quick" stock broker was worried.

"I fear it is only a matter of time when they will run me off the earth," he sighed.

"But cheer up," hastened the bosom friend. "If they run you off the earth why not open up an office on Mars?"

The bubble broker shook his head.

"What would be the use?" he sighed.

"There is no water on Mars."

This woman says she was saved from an operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lena V. Henry, of Norristown, Pa., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered untold misery from male troubles. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. One day I read how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it. Before I had taken the first bottle I was better, and now I am entirely cured."

"Every woman suffering with any female trouble should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

No Cremation.

"I was visiting Atlanta during the late wave of reform there," recently said a Philadelphian, "when I overheard an amusing conversation at a barber shop between a patron and the boy who shines shoes."

"I saw you playing craps this morning," said the patron, by way of a joke. "If the grand jury got at you, it would make you tell all about the gambling among the darkies."

"No, suh, dey wouldn't," protested the negro, warmly. "I knows enough about de law to know dat a man doan have t' tell nothin' dat cremates his self."

Spoils for Fashion's Followers.

SYNOPSIS.

Three girls—Elizabeth, Gabrielle and Elise—started for Canada to spend the summer there. On board steamer they were frightened by an apparently demented stranger, who finding a bag belonging to one of them, took enjoyment in scrutinizing a photo of the girl. Elise shared her stateroom with a Mrs. Graham, also bound for Canada. The young women on a sightseeing tour met Mrs. Graham, and she told them of her husband, who had a mania for sailing. They were introduced to Lord Wilfrid and Lady Edith, a couple who were returning from the village. They brought Lady Edith and Lord Wilfrid both home with them to dinner, and it was not difficult to persuade Mr. Bennett to stay also, so we had the first of some very merry repasts, where morning costumes were allowed, and where Mary Anne, to quote her own words, "dished up anything that came handy and prayed the Lord it would be enough."

CHAPTER VII.—Continued.

"I am glad it amuses you," I remarked, in my most frigid manner, which I have been told is extremely chilling. "Oh, I say," he said quickly, "don't look at it that way. Why, it was nothing after all. I had made two trips on that old boat this summer, and one of those dilapidated chairs broke down with me and nearly pitched me overboard. I complained, but the company would not get new ones, which put my back up a bit, so I got into the habit of examining them, and when I found one weak in the back or legs I just pitched it overboard. That wasn't so bad, was it? Of course I never thought how it looked, and I did 'mutter,' but I'm heartily glad you did not hear what I said."

It was a very simple explanation—so simple, in fact, that I felt provoked it had not occurred to me, and I hated to think how he would relate the incident to his friend Mr. Blake, and how they would laugh over it. So I merely looked out at the ocean and made a frosty, impersonal remark about the view.

But instead of the familiar landscape I found myself looking straight into two very blue eyes with a trace of anxiety in them, and a sunburned hand was extended toward me appealingly. "Let's shake and be friends," he said heartily. "I'm sorry I alarmed you, but I'm glad I found out my offense. I was determined I would know what it was. When the general wrote me his daughter was here, and I discovered who it was, I was delighted, for of course I saw you all on the boat, and I wanted awfully to know you. You don't mind my saying so? Then when I got snubbed so unmercifully I started all over again, and will you explain to your friends that I am in possession of all my senses and hope to keep them a while longer?"

Well, it was impossible not to smile also, and indeed I was very glad of a chance to descend gracefully from my high horse, so we shook hands gravely and started all over again, as he had suggested.

I inquired where he spent the night, and he mentioned the hotel we had deserted, so I told him about the robbery. He had heard nothing, having left very early in the morning, meaning to sail home in time for breakfast. I asked him if his boat suffered any ill effects from the storm, and his manner grew all at once constrained and ill at ease, so I changed the subject, fearing that it might have been irreparably damaged against our ship, and feeling somewhat responsible. I spoke of the cottage, and how we enjoyed life here, and the contrast it was to the hotel.

"Yes," he said absently, "it's a jolly little place. But, tell me, how did you hear of it, and how did you manage to get it? I understood it was not for rent."

I told him he was mistaken; that we had no trouble at all in securing it, and that the rent was ridiculously low, all things considered.

"I would like to know to whom it belongs," I remarked. "I understand it was some woman's whim, and she has tired of it. Perhaps we might get some of our relatives to buy it and come here every summer."

"Don't you know anything about it?" he was looking at me curiously now. "Not a thing," I said lightly, "do you?"

A dull red flush was distinctly visible beneath his coat of tan as he replied to my question.

"I'm not a native, you know. I was here for a bit last year, and I liked it, so when I had a chance to buy an island, house and all, I jumped at it. But I'm not wise about my neighbors. I do know that this cottage was occupied last summer, and I heard the people were very unsocial and never received a guest or entered the village while they were here; and, of course, there were stories. Gossip flourishes on a mystery, you know."

"Well," I returned, "I don't care how mysterious the former tenants were, but I'm glad they did not come back. Perhaps they were in mourning, or invalids, or something of that sort."

"No doubt," he agreed hastily, "no doubt."

And then we changed the subject and talked of other things till the sound of voices and laughter told me Elizabeth and Gabrielle were returning from the village. They brought Lady Edith and Lord Wilfrid both home with them to dinner, and it was not difficult to persuade Mr. Bennett to stay also, so we had the first of some very merry repasts, where morning costumes were allowed, and where Mary Anne, to quote her own words, "dished up anything that came handy and prayed the Lord it would be enough."

"We will ask for it the next time we see him," remarked Elizabeth. "I don't think it is very nice in him to have taken it out."

"Oh, no," I objected, "don't say anything about it. I don't want to give him the satisfaction of knowing we missed it."

And we all agreed that this was our most dignified course.

CHAPTER VII.

Elizabeth inspected the cellar next morning, and I went with her, by request.

"Not that I'm afraid," she explained elaborately, "but it is always nice to have some one to speak to, and, besides, one of you, at least, ought to take an interest in such things."

It looked very much like other cellars, with paved floor, coal bins, and so on, except that it ran far back, forming a sort of alleyway, which was very dark and unimpressive, and seemed to be a repository for old boxes, bits of paper, kindling wood, and the usual accumulated trash of a household. At the extreme end an empty packing case large enough to have contained a piano rested against the wall, which looked and smelled very damp and mouldy.

Elizabeth glanced about and curled her lip contemptuously; the zeal of the born housekeeper shone in her eye, and I knew she had visions of nicely whitewashed walls, with eminently proper receptacles for kindling and waste paper, and foresaw trouble ahead for Mary Anne.

We could hear the ocean outside, for the cellar was an excavation in the bluff, and it conveyed such an unpleasant impression of a vault-like cave that I was not sorry when Elizabeth proposed an adjournment.

"And here is the hanging shelf," I remarked, as I almost ran into it. "Mary Anne has lost no time in putting it up again—on chains this time, so I hope it is safe."

"How rusty they are!" said Elizabeth, pausing to examine them. "They look as though they had been here for years, but I suppose they are old ones she found somewhere. This place must be well aired; it is awfully musty."

She gathered up her skirts as she spoke, preparatory to going up the steps, and I was about to follow when something caught my eye, and mechanically I stooped and picked it up from a crack between two bricks.

"Have you lost anything?" called Elizabeth from the stairs.

"No," I replied, "I have found something. Look here."

Together we examined my discovery as it lay in the palm of my hand—a man's cuff link of dull, raised gold, the head of the Sphinx on one side and the under link shaped like a small key.

Elizabeth turned it over curiously. "It must have belonged to the people who were here last year," she conjectured. "It's very pretty, isn't it? I never saw one anything like it."

"Look, Mary Anne!" I exclaimed, as we entered the kitchen. "See what I have found."

Mary Anne advanced willingly, but as I raised the button by the little key and held it toward her, her jaw dropped suddenly and the color forsok her ruddy face.

"Where'd you find it, miss?" "In the cellar, right by the steps." "You've been—down in the cellar?"

"Certainly; why not?" "Mary Anne wiped her face with a corner of her gingham apron, and poked wood into the stove with reckless prodigality.

"It's entirely too foreboded you are, Miss Elizabeth," she grumbled—"the cellar lookin' like distraction and you goin' down there the first time! What kind of 'ousekeepin' do you think I do? This very day I laid out to put everything shipshape down there and take you around meself. And the cellar's damp-like, and no place for a lady any'ow, and you like to take cold and sneeze yer 'ead off!"

Elizabeth laughed and assured her that this catastrophe was not liable to happen to-day, and suggested that the cellar might be improved by the introduction of fresh air and sunlight.

"And how soon you got the shelf fixed!" she added, by way of soothing Mary Anne's ruffled feelings.

"Shel?" she repeated vaguely. "Oh, of course, miss. 'Ow could I git along without it? And what else did ye find in the cellar, Miss Elsie, besides the little button?"

I thought she watched me keenly as I replied I had not looked for anything more, and wondered she had not seen it on her trips up and down the steps.

"Me eyes are not so good as they once were, nor so bright as yours, Miss Elsie," she remarked. "It's a pretty thing, now isn't it? What will you be doin' with it?"

But I did not reply, for Gabrielle, who had been to the village for the mail, now appeared, and Elizabeth immediately lost interest in everything else.

I do not wish to arouse false suspicions, but Elizabeth certainly wrote a great many very long letters, and received volumes all in the same hand-writing, which always arrived on certain days of the week. She used to open them with an air of indifference and glance over them carelessly, then in a few minutes she would make some excuse to go off alone, and we would sometimes see her poring over them, dead to the world as she turned page after page, and smiling a smile which exasperated Gabrielle exceedingly, although she also did not a little corresponding on her own account that summer.

To-day, however, she handed Elizabeth her letter without comment, and only glanced casually at the cuff link when I displayed it in triumph, for she was eager to relate the news she had accumulated during her trip to the village.

"You know that smuggler?" she began, seating herself on the kitchen doorstep and removing her hat.

"No," I interrupted, "I'm happy to say I don't know him."

"You know about him, don't you? It's all the same thing. Well, I've been to the hotel, and I heard that he is suspected of having been on the island the night of the storm, and they think—she dropped her voice cautiously—"they think he took Mrs. Bundy's emeralds."

"Who thinks so?" "Oh, the detectives, of course. Lady Edith told me. And they say it was a very foolish thing for him to do, because he can now be arrested in Canada. And our government officials are perfectly wild, too, for a whole lot of things were smuggled in somehow right under their noses."

"Is he on the island now?" "Oh, no. As Lord Wilfrid said, it would be madness for him to stay here now. He must have been one of the men who left the hotel so early that morning—before Mrs. Bundy discovered her loss. They are following them up, of course, but it was easy enough to register a false name and address. I can forgive his smuggling, but I can't forgive his robbing that poor old woman—she's just scared to death, and expects to have her throat cut every night, they say—so I hope they will catch him."

Cynical Bachelor Criticizes Aims of Average Rich American Mother.

"Not only an English earl, but an Italian prince and a German count proposed to my daughter while we were abroad, but—"

"That is the sort of thing," said a cynical bachelor, "that we hear on all sides from the average rich mother on her return from Europe. What does it denote? Why, hang it, it denotes that the average American mother feels actually ashamed nowadays to be a foreigner's daughter. To marry into the foreign nobility is the correct thing to do, and the girl who doesn't land a duke or a count or something feels ashamed, and her mother feels more deeply ashamed still."

"I don't want to boast, but, considering the quality of us American men, I think it's terrible that American heiresses only marry us as a last resort when they are ashamed of their failure to get a duke or marquis."

"If you think I'm exaggerating, listen to the shamed mothers of marriageable daughters who have returned from Europe without a title in tow. Like parrots they say nothing but:—"

"Yes, Prince Petti and Lord Lacland and Count Sago all proposed to Mamie, but—"

ONE KIDNEY GONE

But Cured After Doctors Said There Was No Hope.

Sylvanus O. Verrill, Milford, Me., says: "Five years ago a bad injury paralyzed me and affected my kidneys. My back hurt me terribly, and the urine was badly disordered. Doctors said my right kidney was practically dead. They said I could never walk again. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. One box made me stronger and freer from pain. I kept on using them and in three months was able to get out on crutches, and the kidneys were acting better. I improved rapidly, discarded the crutches and to the wonder of my friends was soon completely cured."

MORE BIG CROPS IN 1908

Another 60,000 settlers from the United States. New districts opened for settlement. 320 acres of land to each settler. —160 free homestead and 160 at $3.00 per acre.

A vast rich country and a contented prosperous people. Extract from correspondence of a National Editor, whose visit to Western Canada, in August, 1908, was an inspiration.

Many have paid the entire cost of their farms and had a balance of from $10.00 to $20.00 per acre as a result of one crop. Spring wheat, winter wheat, oats, barley, and peas are the principal crops, while the wild grasses bring to perfection the best cattle that have ever been sold on the Chicago market.

Splendid climate, schools and churches in all localities. Railways touch most of the settled districts, and prices for produce are always good. Lands may also be purchased from railway and land companies. For pamphlets, maps and information regarding low railway rates, apply to Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada.

BREVITIES

Gov. Warner has appointed Nathan E. Bailey of Jackson, circuit court commissioner to succeed F. J. Blackman, who has been made assistant prosecuting attorney.

A kerosene lamp explosion last Thursday occurred at the home of L. Boyce. The table and wall paper was badly burned before the fire was put out.—Stockbridge Brief-Sun.

Rev. E. H. Lougher, former Free Will Baptist pastor in Hillsdale and missionary to China, has been appointed chaplain at the state prison to succeed Rev. Mr. Shank, who has gone to Maine.

According to the Jackson Patriot there is a probability that the Grand Trunk Ry. will be extended west from Jackson to Battle Creek, making the Air Line division of that road a main line.

Charles Bycraft, of Dexter, had an accident while out hunting Friday. The trigger of his gun caught in his sleeve and the gun went off, the shot entering his right foot. The accident was quite a serious one.

The Grass Lake village authorities have sold the old engine house on Lake street, and will put up a new building of a like nature next the corporation electric power house. The structure will be of cement.

Two men were killed, three probably fatally hurt and two others injured when two Ann Arbor road freight trains met head-on at 3:45 Saturday morning in a heavy fog, between Lakeland and Hamburg near the bridge over the Huron river, while going twenty mile an hour.

Stewart Steffe, six-year-old son of the Ann Arbor milk inspector, got curious regarding an old rifle, and, removing the cartridge, he set fire to it, with the result of an explosion immediately. The child's forehead was terribly cut, and his face burned. It is thought his eyesight will be saved.

The warm weather of the past few days has convinced a rose bush in Conrad Noll's yard on Secord street that spring has arrived and last week it began blossoming. One beautiful big rose came out, as large almost as a person's fist, and there is a bud which will open in a day or so if Jack Frost stays away.—Ann Arbor News.

Students at the University of Michigan are highly indignant at the action of the faculty in limiting the Thanksgiving vacation to the holiday alone. Every request for additional time has been turned down, and not only this, but a penalty of three cuts has been imposed for any student taking French leave during the Thanksgiving period.

Julius Weinberg of Ann Arbor is dead, aged 73 years. He is survived by a widow, a daughter and three sons. Mr. Weinberg had a history that reads like fiction. When he was 19 years old he spent a winter in Spitzbergen as a member of the German marine corps. On one of their cruises their boat was wrecked in the North Sea and all went down, and all were lost except Mr. Weinberg and five others who saved themselves by clinging to a spar. They were rescued by a passing vessel almost dead from hunger and exposure. When they were taken ashore they were personally welcomed by the emperor of Germany, who wept like a child as he grasped each man's hand.

Prosecuting Attorney Sawyer is preparing to try Thos. Ellis of Detroit, a motorman on the D. U. R. interurban, at the December term of the circuit court on the charge of manslaughter, the precise charge being that he caused the death of Bert Robinson, a motorman of a local car, in a collision September 15, 1907. Twenty-four witnesses have been subpoenaed. Numerous postponements of the case have occurred, but the prosecuting attorney is determined to dispose of the case before the close of his term of office. One bit of damaging testimony that the state is expected to bring out at the trial is that Ellis had been much vexed prior to the fatal collision, by being stopped by the local cars and that he had threatened to teach the local motormen "a thing or two."

Mary Hailey has commenced suit against the D. U. R. for herself and infant daughter, Margaret, claiming $2,000 damages in each instance, for injuries received when an Ann Arbor city car ran off the track and crashed into a tree.

The village of Willis, in Augusta township, is practically in a state of quarantine as the result of an outbreak of malignant diphtheria. One death has occurred and nearly all the residents have been exposed to the disease. Edward Pavelock, 18, a Polish boy employed by Albert Freeman, was the first to be taken with the disease. He was removed to his home but a physician was not called for several days. When one was summoned he found the boy dying and the house filled with visitors.

Frank Len, a Chinaman, who said that he was proprietor of a grocery store in Chicago, and Mrs. Maude Smith, an attractive young white woman, giving her residence as Battle Creek, and her occupation as a waitress, were married at Ann Arbor one day last week by Justice Doty. The couple arrived on a train from the west. They hurried to the court house, secured a license, and were ushered into Justice Doty's office, which is located in the same building. The ceremony performed, they hastened to the depot and caught a train for Chicago. The groom gave his age as 28, while the bride confessed to 23.

HAVE STRONG SENSE OF SMELL.

Horses Little Inferior to Dogs in That Respect.

The horse will leave musty hay untouched in his bin, however hungry. He will not drink of water objectionable to his questioning sniff, or from a bucket which some odor makes offensive, however thirsty. His intelligent nostrils will widen, quiver and query over the faintest bit offered by the fairest of hands, with coaxings that would make a mortal shut his eyes and allow a nauseous mouthful at a gulp. A mare is never satisfied by either sight or whinny that her colt is really her own until she has a certified nasal certificate to the fact. A blind horse, now living, will not allow the approach of any stranger without showing signs of anger, not safely to be disregarded. The distinction is evidently made by his sense of smell and at a considerable distance. Blind horses, as a rule, will gallop wildly about a pasture without striking the surrounding fences. The sense of smell informs them of its proximity.—Horse and Stable.

Antidote for Pneumonia.
I first satisfied myself of the efficacy of my serum by experiments on animals. Then trials were made last winter in the St. Elizabeth and Stuyvenburg hospitals in Antwerp. Several of the patients had pneumonia in an advanced stage, and were also habitual drunkards, which always increases the gravity of the danger. In every case the serious symptoms were completely arrested within 36 hours, while the temperature and pulse again became normal. These results, says Dr. Bertrand of Antwerp in the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times, were obtained with a total dose of serum not exceeding eight cubic centimeters, injected by doses of one or two cubic centimeters at a time. There is no known serum which takes effect with such small doses.

Doctors in the Future.
Perhaps the day will come when the world can do without the doctors, reaching that state of wisdom when it will not contract disease. If such a golden age ever arrives on earth, surely one of its inspiring traditions will be the lives of the physicians who did so much for humanity in these less happy times.—Detroit Free Press.

Wear Furs Continually.
Throughout the cold latitudes of China during the winter the Chinese of all classes wear fur, wool or hair-lined garments. Even the coolies have their sheep or goat skins, and people of the middle and official classes have many sets of garments lined with the richest furs. Their houses are rarely heated to a comfortable temperature, and in consequence they wear their furs both indoors and out.

After Washington's Laurels.
"I met an honest boy this morning," said a man who is fond of children. "He was a little round-faced, blue-eyed chap with a stack of books under his arm going to school as fast as his feet would carry him. 'Do you like to go to school, lad?' I asked him. 'No, sir,' he replied, giving me one brief, honest look and hurrying on past. Most children would have said yes, to make a hit with you; but this boy was not that kind."

Notice To Taxpayers.
The treasurer of Lima township will be at the town hall, Lima Center, December 4th, 11th, 18th and 24th and at Dexter Savings bank December 10, and Kempf bank Chelsea, December 26 to receive taxes.
W. H. BAHNMILLER, treasurer.

Why She Declined.
"Really," said the stylish lady, enthusiastically, to her friend. "It is worth while to see the wonderful display of rhododendrons." "Is it?" replied her friend, languidly. "I like to look at the great big clumsy beasts, too; but it always smells so unpleasant around the cages."—London News.

Cards of Thanks.
We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to those who so kindly assisted us during the sickness and death of our husband and father.

A light has from our household gone. A voice we loved is stilled, and leaves within a vacant chair that never can be filled.

MRS. JOHN GILBERT AND FAMILY.

In Memoriam.
The following is in memory of Mrs. Michael Hinderer, who died at her home in Freedom, Sunday, November 15, 1908: A precious one from us has gone, A voice we loved is stilled; A place is vacant in our home, Which never can be filled.

God in his wisdom has recalled, The boon His love had given; And though the body moulders here, The soul is safe in Heaven.

is imperative as a mark of respect and remembrance for the departed, and both are best conserved by the thoughtful care which secures not only beauty of design, but quality of material and workmanship.

While the impulse what leads to the erection of a monument is one of tender sentiment, there is no reason why business sense should not be used in its purchase.

The plan on which we operate is to give our customers the best in design, in quality, and in size, that the money available will secure.

We have two complete plants equipped with all modern machinery and we treat our work as a profession and as a business as well, one member of this firm has spent years in studying monumental designing.

Our collection of designs and the finished work in our yards at Manchester and Plymouth, Mich., are open for your inspection, or if you will give us a slight idea of your desires in the matter of design and cost, one of our firm will call with designs and estimates.

We do not urge the purchase of a monument—we merely try to get the facts about our facilities before you—then when you are ready we are at your service.
