Chelsea Land Company To Build Eight New Residences At Once

The Chelsea Land Company have completed the plat of their Grantwood subdivision on the south side of Washington street. The subdivision is located on what is known as the Dr. Gates farm, and will make an ideal residence location as the property is on a high elevation and very level with a good drainage outlet.

Five streets have been laid out, three of them Flanders, Book and Brownson running south from Washington to the electric railway, and two, Wood and Wenley streets, running east and west.

The company Monday of this week started men and teams at work excavating the cellars for eight modern residences facing on Washington and Flanders streets. The new houses when completed will cost about $1,200 each, and represent an investment of nearly $10,000. The residences will be pushed forward to completion as rapidly as possible.

Farmers' Club Meeting.

There was a large turnout of the members of the Washtenaw Union Farmers' Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Mapes Friday. The ladies served one of their famous chicken pie dinners, which accounts for the large attendance.

After dinner President N. W. Laird called the gathering to order, and the first on the program was a piano solo by Miss Widmayer. Mrs. Emily Boynton, in the absence of Mrs. Howard Everett, presented the question "Have we as great reasons for thankfulness as our forefathers?" and in a very pleasing talk gave a number of reasons why she thought we had more reasons. Fred Everett, of Scitelle, Wash., was called upon, and thought that with the present trust-ridden conditions of our country, and the way that nearly every article that we use is adulterated that the reverse was true; and Mrs. Boynton announced that she was thoroughly converted.

Mrs. Earl Lowry gave a recitation which was well received by the ladies present.

Miss Widmayer rendered a vocal solo, after which Rev. J. W. Campbell gave an address upon "The Thanksgiving Turkey" which was filled with many thoughts that will prove profitable to all who heard them.

The program was closed by a reading by Mrs. Geo. Chapman. Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Campbell were made honorary members of the Club, by a unanimous vote.

Smallpox in Webster.

Smallpox in a very mild form has broken out in the family of Springfield L. Leach, living three miles east of Dexter, and the south Webster school, which the children of the family attended has been closed for two weeks. Mrs. Leach is the one sick with the disease, she was ailing for several days before a doctor was called. All this time the two children were in school, and they were not taken out until the day before it was discovered what the disease was. Mrs. Leach was in bed for two days but is now able to be about the house.

The community for miles around is greatly stirred up over the matter and there is wholesale vaccination going on.

RIPE OLD AGE.

Rev. Thomas Holmes, D. D., Will Celebrate 93d Birthday.

Rev. Thos. Holmes, D. D., will celebrate the ninety-third anniversary of his birth by delivering the annual Thanksgiving sermon at the union services, which will be held in the Methodist church on Thursday evening of this week.

Rev. Holmes was born at Royalton, Niagara county, New York. He had only moderate opportunities for an education in his youth, attending only winter school after he was twelve years of age. The winter of 1834-35 he attended a select school at Saratoga, N. Y., and studied Gibson's surveying. The following winter he taught school in Saratoga county. This was the first of fourteen years, winters of which were spent in teaching common ungraded schools, one winter in New York, six in Michigan, five of which were in Washtenaw county, and four of these in Ann Arbor.

REV. THOS. HOLMES, D. D., and seven in Ohio. During the summer of 1839, he was one of a corps of engineers employed in running a railway line from Saratoga Springs to Whitehall, and in November of the same year emigrated to Michigan, locating with an uncle, who resided near Northville. The following March he came to the farm of his father-in-law, Pittsfield, where he spent about four years on the farm, laboring there during the summer and teaching school winters.

July, 1841, Mr. Holmes went to Oberlin, Ohio, for the purpose of taking a course of classical and theological study. Nine years were spent in this undertaking; two in the preparatory department, four in college, and three in the study of theology. He received the degree A. B. in 1847, and that of A. M. in 1850.

Shortly after graduating from college, Mr. Holmes was united in marriage (October 14th) to Miss Lettice Smith, of Ann Arbor, who had also just received the degree of A. B., they having been classmates in college.

In 1853 Dr. Holmes was chosen professor of Greek in Antioch College, Ohio. From April, 1855, until August, 1857, he spent traveling and studying in Europe. A portion of this time was devoted to attending lectures in the universities at Bonn and Berlin.

Dr. Holmes' first attempts at preaching were made in the winter of 1843-44 while he was teaching in Ontario, Ohio. He received a license from a Christian church in Shemfield, Ohio, on June 1st, and was admitted into the Huron Christian Conference in October and was ordained November 3rd of the same year.

He was chosen president of Union Christian college, of Merion, Indiana, in June, 1865, and he remained in charge for ten years. He resigned on account of failing health and returned to this county where he has since resided. During his long career Mr. Holmes has delivered many sermons, and has charge as pastor of several of the most important churches of the Christian Church Society.

In April, 1877, he began supplying the pulpit of the Chelsea Congregational church. The society extended a formal call to him in July, and on the first of September of that year he took charge of the church, where he served for a number of years, when he resigned. Yet since his pastorate of the church has ceased he has supplied the pulpit on many occasions.

Dr. Holmes mentally is as bright today as when he was in the prime of life. October 18, 1908, he met with an accident which causes him to use crutches when he walks on the streets, but in the house he is able to dispense with them to some extent. The cut which we use was made from a photograph taken when he was 90 years of age. During the past summer Dr. Holmes has delivered a number of lectures out of town, and attended but a few weeks ago, the conference of the Christian Church Society, of which he is probably the eldest member in this state.

A collection will be taken at the close of the services this evening as a tribute to him.

20,000 Hunters Licensed.

According to Game Warden Pierce the army of deer hunters scattered through the upper sections of the state is the largest in years. He states that 127 permits to ship deer out of the state have been issued, which exceeds the demand last year, and he has received a report that a brigade of 3,320 hunters crossed the Straits of Mackinac to hunt in the upper Peninsula.

It is estimated that 20,000 hunting licenses will be issued this year. Several violators of the game laws have been fined heavily, among them being two non-resident hunters, who attempted to evade the regulations protecting Michigan deer. One was fined $25 and the other $50.

All Next Week.

The Rosar-Mason Comedy company will open a week's engagement next Monday night, at the Sylvan theatre November 28th, in a series of high class melo-dramas and good, wholesome comedies. Among the production seen during the week will be P. C. Rosar's dramatization of the well known novel, "Shadows of a Great City," in three acts, with a strong vein of comedy running all through the play, and is full of strong situations and sensational climaxes. Another one presented is Nelson Compton's great N. Y. success, "The Young Widow," pronounced by the popular theatrical managers association of America as being a howling success. This play has never failed to please. Next is Mark Swan's original three act comedy "A Runaway Match." This play holds the reputation of being the most satisfactory comedy production ever seen at the Star Theatre, Buffalo, N. Y. Another of Mark Swan's comedies is "A Good Fellow," pronounced by both press and public as being the invincible high class comedy in America. As a special number during the week the company will present the old standard farce comedy, "Peck's Bad Boy," a play that will live forever and is always a welcome visitor. Other plays will be announced from the stage during the performance. Prices, 10, 20 and 30 cents. Ladies free Monday night when accompanied by one paid 30 cent ticket.

"The Captain."

Mr. Nat Goodwin will be the attraction at the Whitney Theatre Ann Arbor, Monday, November 28. He is to give us a brand new comedy with the title of "The Captain," written for him by George Broadhurst and C. T. Dazey, two authors who have achieved considerable success.

It is not always easy or best to say that a piece, before it is seen, is a success and will undoubtedly please local theatregoers, but in the case of Mr. Goodwin in "The Captain," he has undoubtedly in every place where the comedy has been played, been most cordially greeted and the general opinion is that not in many years has he been so admirably fitted with a play in which his work could be in the nature of that in which theatregoers saw him a few years ago, and liked him so much.

We are told that "The Captain" succeeds in giving us back a fine comedian in one of the old, jolly, happy-go-lucky sort of parts, with which his name is most pleasantly associated. It is said of "The Captain" that it gives Mr. Goodwin a chance to be funny in a masterly way and that he is not slow to seize the opportunity afforded him to extract the best kind of humor out of the large number of extremely farcical situations that abound in the piece.

Klaw and Erlanger, who are Mr. Goodwin's managers, are responsible for the cast and production, which means that this reliable firm has been careful in every detail and have surrounded Mr. Goodwin with a most capable organization.

Mr. Goodwin plays the part of Captain Jefferson Lohrimer. The setting is in Manila.

Some of the members of the company are: Sidney Bracy, Ross Curry, Dodson Mitchell, Charles Lane, H. G. Lowmalo, Morgan Wallace, John F. MacGregor, Henry Weaver, Argyl Campbell, Margaret Moreland and Beatrice Norgan.

GIVEN CHANCE TO REFORM

"Colony of Mercy" in New Jersey Restores "Down-and-Outers" to Self-Respect.

Where the lost find themselves—where the outcasts of a great city are restored to self-respect—this describes the Keaswick Colony of Mercy at Keaswick Grove, N. J. More than that, now, it has become a monument to the nobility and self-sacrifice of the late William Rawls, who founded it thirteen years ago and who gave his life to its success.

Here is one place where the "down and outers" are made welcome, says the Philadelphia North American. Here is a beautiful spot in the Jersey plains they are privileged to call home.

Seven miles from a saloon, in a country that nature has done her best to adorn, the atmosphere of the colony is the very opposite of that of a bustling, bustling city, which has no room for those who cannot take care of themselves. That is why it has already saved 3,000 souls. Worthless loafers; hardened slaves to drink and dissipation, find not only physical strength, but moral incentive. They learn to like healthful work, they grow to love the little chapel in which they worship thrice a day. Before they realize it, they have been regenerated.

Natural remedies are always better than medicine, as modern doctors now agree. So it is that the cures wrought at this colony are permanent. Those it saves have learned to be grateful for a relief from bondage that amounted to living death.

All the buildings in the eight hundred acres that are the colony's were erected by the men who followed the example of Mr. Rawls and saved themselves. Even more, the farming and the industrial work that keep the colonists busy may soon make the institution self-supporting.

There is just one iron-clad rule that will exclude any man who is anxious to reform. If he is ever caught swearing he must leave the place forever.

Danger of Draughts.

That the so-called draught is only a concentrated dose of fresh air, and that millions suffer for want of fresh air, certainly represent profound truths. Nevertheless they leave us unimpressed for much the same statements might be said of so many other things.

Lead, for instance, when distributed through the substance of India rubber gloves is as useful to X-ray workers as fresh air to ordinary individuals; but when concentrated in the form of a bullet, exposure to its impact is not to prove inconvenient. But however these things be, we adhere to our belief that draughts are dangerous.

It is not commonly understood that the draught is merely the primum movens, the immediate cause of the ill results experienced being in some cases perhaps a microorganism, in others perhaps a toxin, with which the system would have been able to deal effectively but for the local depression of vitality brought about by exposure to a concentrated dose of fresh air.

Longevity of Birds.

An instance was recorded in a German paper recently of the shooting of a crow with a ring on its leg bearing a date of over 100 years ago. In the same week a resident in one of the English counties wrote to the ornithological press putting on record the coming of age of his skylark. That latter brought to light the fact that twenty-one years is not exactly a common age for a lark, it is by no means an unique one. The writer has owned canaries that exceeded the twenty-one years of the skylark, and one bullfinch he possessed reached the age of sixteen years. Exhibition or fancy bred birds, on the other hand, are comparatively short-lived, and the variety known as the "Scotch Fanny," the canary with the half-moon shaped body, is decrepit when two or three years old, and is becoming extinct.

Cigar Box Camera.

A fair camera can be made from two or three old cigar boxes by boys and girls who are reasonably expert in carpentry. The writer once saw one made in such a way by a boy of fourteen for a total cost of 60 cents.

It took excellent pictures and was fitted with a lens that consisted of a pin prick in a sheet of tin foil. I have even heard of using silver foil paper, such as is often wrapped around chocolates, instead of using sheet tin or brass.

In exposing interior subjects such as parlors, sitting rooms and play-rooms a much longer exposure must be given to the plate. I once took a dark interior with an exposure of three hours.—St. Nicholas.

Fame and Long Life.

"The Cross of the Legion is a wonderful thing for health."

"How's that?"

"There's nothing like it to encourage long promenades in the park."—Flegende Blaetter.

Always.

Agent—This speedometer will enable you to know how fast you are going.

Otto Freund—I don't need one. My bank balance tells me just as well—Life.

REVIEWS SMALLPOX SITUATION IN STATE

STATE HEALTH BOARD INDORSES ACTION OF DR. SHUMWAY IN CRISIS.

RIGID QUARANTINE IN SAGINAW WILL BE MAINTAINED; THREE SHIAWASSE SCHOOLS CLOSE.

Dr. Shumway Commended for the Manner in Which He is Handling the Situation.

The state board of health held a meeting in Secretary Shumway's office, in Lansing, reviewed the smallpox situation throughout the state, and by a resolution indorsed the action already taken by Dr. Shumway in dealing with the situation.

Dr. C. S. Kinsman, of the Saginaw board of health, appeared before the board and explained the state of affairs in that city.

The board coincided with Dr. Kinsman's belief in quarantining every person who refuses to submit to vaccination, and will ask the attorney-general for an opinion as to the legality of the proposed quarantine. The attorney-general will also be asked whether the freight and express from localities where smallpox has obtained a foothold can be barred by other communities.

The board also advised the cities of Charlotte and Petoskey that gathering of delegates in those cities should be postponed.

The board members were of the opinion that the situation in Saginaw is still critical and that every effort possible would be taken by the Saginaw board to continue the present rigid quarantine.

Lansing Acts to Prevent Spread.

At a special meeting of the Lansing board of health and the city school board in Mayor Bennett's office it was decided that owing to the outbreak of five new cases of smallpox in one family in the city, a general compulsory vaccination of all school children in the city should be ordered. The order was put into the form of a resolution and adopted.

Jackson Conflicts Are Vaccinated.

No visitors will be allowed in Jackson prison until further notice, according to an order issued by the board of health. Four hundred prisoners are being vaccinated by the prison physician.

Report of State Board of Health.

There were 3,422 deaths reported to the department of state as having occurred during the month of October. This number corresponds to an annual death rate of 13.9 per 1,000 estimated population. There was a decrease in the number of deaths as compared with September, for which month 3,412 deaths were reported. By ages there were 638 deaths of infants under one year of age; 199 deaths of children aged one to four years, inclusive; and 10 deaths of elderly persons aged 65 years and over.

Important causes of death were as follows: Pulmonary tuberculosis, 197; other forms of tuberculosis, 32; typhoid fever, 126; diphtheria and croup, 65; scarlet fever, 13; measles, 2; whooping cough, 20; pneumonia and broncho-pneumonia, 130; diarrhea and enteritis, under two years of age, 207; meningitis, 26; influenza, 6; cancer, 155; violence, 210.

There were 4,662 certificates of birth returned to the department as having occurred during the month of October. This number corresponds to an annual birth rate of 20.7 per 1,000 estimated population. A decrease of 111 is noted in the number of births reported as compared with the month of September.

Dear Slaughter Breaks Record.

The deer season of 1910 in the upper peninsula has but a few days yet to run, and it's impossible to estimate the amount of its game which the 20 days of the season finally will account for. Thus far this season a conservative estimate of the deer killed in Houghton and Baraga counties alone would put the number at 1,000. It is the worst slaughter of deer ever known in the upper peninsula. It seems that any man who has sense enough to pull a rifle to his shoulder can kill the two deer for which he is licensed. Charlie L., a Houghton Chinese laundryman, has killed his two, though he was taken into the woods for a joke.

Shot and Killed Before His Children.

Henry G. Knoop, aged 47 years, a prosperous farmer and thrasher, living near Oak Grove, Livingston county, was shot and almost instantly killed in his own home, and in the presence of his six children. The police say Sedgewick Line, aged 19, the son of well-known and well-to-do farmers, is the slayer. Line has not been captured. The police believe he made his escape by boarding a west-bound Grand Trunk railroad train at Durand and is now in Chicago.

The City Clerk of Flint Has Notified.

The city clerk of Flint has notified the Saginaw-Flint street railway company to substitute steel trolley poles for wooden ones.

Enraged because he was joked about his relations with a widow for whom he was working as a farm hand, near Bay City, Russell Conant, aged 20, shot and fatally wounded David Edwards, aged 38, and slightly wounded John Stolliker who was riding with Edwards on a wagon. The bullet traversed Edwards's abdomen from side to side and then struck Stolliker in the side but did not penetrate much below the skin.

MAY SEND MORE TROOPS.

Smallpox Situation Takes Turn for the Worse at Lapeer.

The smallpox situation in the state home for the feeble-minded, situated near Lapeer, which was believed well under control, took a decided turn for the worse Saturday and Sunday. It is possible that more soldiers will be ordered to report to make the quarantine even more strict than at the present time. More will be a precautionary measure against the possibility of a determined effort on the part of the inmates to break quarantine.

Two deaths have occurred, both in the boys' cottage. Four new cases have been reported in that house.

Col. J. M. Cox, of Lansing, who was there Sunday, stated that additional guardsmen would be ordered to the home if necessary.

Forty men from the Pontiac company have been ordered to join the Flint company at Lapeer.

One woman died of smallpox at Saginaw late Saturday night, bringing the death toll up to 46. A number of cases will be discharged as cured this week. The fumigation and vaccination of all people leaving the depots will be continued.

STATE BRIEFS.

The state retail grocers will meet at Port Huron Feb. 7, 8 and 9.

Enough signatures have been obtained to insure the submission of the question of a commission form of government for Lansing to the voters next spring.

Grand Trunk firemen have asked for an increase in wages and think it will be granted. The firemen average from $2.50 to $3.05, and want $3.10 per hundred miles.

Mayor Wilhelm, of Traverse City, instructed the police to remove all slot machines from saloons and cigar stores. An ordinance forbids slot machines, but many are in operation.

Over $200,000 was disbursed at the Carrollton plant of the Michigan Sugar Co. to the beet growers of Saginaw and surrounding counties, it being the first pay day of the season.

Fear being felt of contagion from smallpox, the annual meeting of the North Michigan Teachers' association, which was scheduled to convene in Petoskey, Nov. 25 and 26, has been called off.

George Gelsner, a bay and grain dealer of Grand Rapids, was accidentally shot and killed by a companion while hunting deer in Alger county. He was 48 years old and leaves a widow, son and daughter.

Mrs. Bronson, of Whitehall, saw a man peering through the window of her home and fired two shots at him. It is believed one or both shots took effect, as a trail of blood was followed two blocks from the house.

A special car in which 90 orphan children, all under three years of age, were being brought from New York city to be adopted in upper peninsula homes, passed through Menominee. The unique spectacle attracted great attention.

For the first time since Baton Rouge attracted attention as a mineral bath town, in the '70s, the Anderson house, at that time the principal hotel of the city, is closed. The house has had five different managements in the past three years. The new owners say it will be reopened December 1.

Though Mayor Gaffney and the city clerk of Cadillac patrolled the streets all day Sunday the rumored attempt of the G. H. & I. railroad to lay a track across Haring street was not made. The northern residents of the city and the railroad have been having a little unpleasantness over the proposed new track and the report spread that the company would steal a march Sunday. As a result the city officials were appealed to.

"I'm going to shoot you," said 11-year-old Opal Hill, of Traverse City, to her playmate, Mary Franklin, aged 9, as she picked up an old revolver and playfully pointed it at the younger girl. As she did so the weapon was discharged. Mary held her hands up to her face and the fact that she did so saved her life, at least for the time being. The bullet shattered her hand and entered her cheek. The removal of the bullet may prove fatal.

At the closing session of the Michigan Forestry association, at Kalamazoo, the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Charles W. Gaffney, Grand Rapids; vice-president, John H. Bissell, Detroit; secretary, Philbert Roth, Ann Arbor; assistant secretary, Henry G. Stevens, Detroit; treasurer, W. B. Merahon, Saginaw; board of directors, J. E. Beal, Ann Arbor; J. J. Hubbell, Manistee; Mrs. Lena E. Mautner, Saginaw; James Satterlee, Lansing; W. E. Williams, Pittsford; Mrs. L. Hubbard, Houghton; Mrs. John C. Sharp, Jackson; J. C. Knox, Cadillac.

That a blow on the head from a falling brick four years ago has made a criminal of 17-year-old John Wilson, of Grand Rapids, who served three years in the reform school and is now under arrest on a charge of burglarizing a residence, is the statement of local medical authorities. Young Wilson and William Powell, a companion, were passing a local theater when several loosened bricks fell on their heads. For a time it was thought they could not recover. Powell is now a simpleton and physicians say Wilson will have to be operated on to be reformed of his criminal tendencies.

The state board of auditors accepted the report of State Oil Inspector Neal for the quarter ending June 30. The report shows a balance for the quarter due the state after all expenses are paid of $2,176.43, and a grand total for the year of $9,440.76.

The public schools of Coldwater were opened after being closed two days undergoing a thorough fumigation. The action was taken because of the many cases of scarlet fever prevalent. Four physicians examined 1,100 school children on their return to school and only 20 were sent home. They being afflicted with colds or other slight ailments.

MICHIGAN MEN BEAT MINNESOTA

IN GREAT GAME OF FOOTBALL AT ANN ARBOR, WOLVERINES SCORE 6 TO 0.

BRILLIANT USE OF FORWARD PASS GIVE MICHIGAN VICTORY OVER MINNESOTA.

A Drawn and Scoreless Game Was Fought Out Between Yale and Harvard.

Final score—Michigan 6, Minnesota 0. (Made in final quarter.) Touchdown—Wells; goal from touchdown, Conklin.

Referee—H. H. Hackett. West Point—Umpire—F. Hinkley. Yale, field judge—Endsley, Purdue. Head linesman—R. Starbuck, Cornell. Time of quarters—Fifteen minutes.

Two perfectly executed forward passes, each swift and sure as a rapier's thrust, two plunges into the Minnesota line, and Michigan had beaten the Gophers, on Perry field at Ann Arbor, won the undisputed championship of the west, established her claim to be considered the country's best and proved the superiority of skill and cunning over mere strength. With less than five minutes to play in the final quarter of a desperate, punishing, but at the same time thrilling game, the Wolverines saw the opening for which they had been looking ever since the battle began. They were quick to seize it.

More than 55 minutes of the fiercest football ever seen on the new Perry field, football as gruelling and intense that nearly every other play rendered some athlete a candidate for the trainer's attentions, had produced no score for either side, and had left the ball in Michigan's possession on her own 53-yard line. With the watch rapidly ticking off the few precious moments that remained before the close of hostilities, it was up to Michigan to adopt some plan of action that would produce quick results if she wished to escape the misfortune of a drawn battle.

Forward Pass Decided On.

The forward pass was decided upon as the maneuver most likely to result in a change in the tide and it proved to be exactly what was expected. First the ball was shot to "Stan," Borleske, Michigan's left end, who caught it neatly and dashed to Minnesota's 30-yard line before they called him. Right here Michigan out-guessed Minnesota's defense completely. That the same play would be repeated never entered the heads of the Gophers. But it was, and with such success that Borleske lacked only three yards of the goal line when the desperate Maroon and Gold players dashed him to the turf.

Scoreless Battle on Yale Field.

A drawn and scoreless battle was fought out on Yale field Saturday at New Haven, Ct., between Harvard and Yale. To the adherents of the Blue it was a moral victory, for their team which came here to defeat Princeton, secured a strong for the all-powerful Crimson team which came confident of victory. When the game, which must be reckoned as among the greatest ever fought between these rival universities was over, the great throng of people quietly stepped down from the tiers and seats and took up their homeward journey with mingled emotions, the Yale men supremely happy over what their team had done and the Harvard adherents sad in having victory snatched from their grasp through lost opportunities.

Slayer in Jail.

Russell Conant, who shot and killed David Edwards, at Hillman, Montmorency county, was recaptured at his father's home, three miles from Atlanta. He is now in the Atlanta jail. Conant says he assumed responsibility for the shooting to protect his employer, Mrs. John Pope, widow, who is being held as an accessory. Mrs. Pope says she did not know her employee had shot anyone until the officers came for him.

The Rev. Riley C. Crawford, said to be the oldest Methodist preacher in Michigan, died at his home in Detroit Monday morning. He was 94 years old and had been in continuous service of his church for 69 years. For the past 20 years he has not held an active charge for the church, but previous to that time he had held many of the pastorates in the Michigan conference.

Adrian Churches Begin "Clean Up."

It concerted effort and plenty of it are of any use, Adrian is going to be a nearly perfect city, from a religious standpoint. The movement was launched at a meeting in local skating rink. MUST NOT RAISE RATES.

Interstate Commerce Commission Issues Suspension Order Favoring Kansas City.

The attempt of about 14 railroads operating between the Mississippi and Missouri rivers to resume advances in rates already condemned from Washington, was thwarted by a suspension order announced by the interstate commerce commission in what is known as the Burnham-Hanna-Munger case, of Kansas City.

The suspension involves a long-standing fight between St. Louis and Kansas City jobbing interests and affects an immense traffic from the east. The ultimate decision will be of vital importance not only to the immediate volume of business but as a precedent as to rate making by basic points.

Distinguished Men Visit Detroit.

Addressees by Ambassador Thomas J. O'Brien, United States representative in Japan, and by Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, and Congressmen Butler Ames, of Massachusetts, who shared honor with the distinguished guests for whom the occasion was originally arranged, made the luncheon of the Board of Commerce at the Cadillac in Detroit one of the most notable held recently in the city. The feature of Mr. O'Brien's speech was his discrediting of the oft-revived rumors of trouble between this country and Japan.

Leaps to Save Son and Is Killed.

William Musselman, living four miles northwest of St. Cloud, was fatally hurt, dying four hours later. His thrashing engine stopped on dead center. His son reversed the machine without disengaging the gears or closing the throttle and climbed upon the engine to turn the fly wheel, which threw him under the backing engine. The father jumped to save his son only to be crushed between the engine and separator. The son was not seriously injured. Mr. Musselman was 45 years old and leaves a widow and family.

The right of the state public service commission to alter a rate fixed by statute, has been upheld in New York by a unanimous decision of the court of appeals. The court decided against the Delaware & Hudson Co., which sued in protest against an order of the commission reducing a fare between two small up-state villages from 25 to 15 cents. The company contended that the commission could not alter a rate fixed by law.

Advance estimates of the population of the commonwealth of Australia made by the federal statisticians place the total number of people in the six states at 4,474,000, according to consular reports received at Washington. MEXICAN UPRISING; 400 DEAD IN BATTLE

FEDERAL TROOPS HAVE HOT ENGAGEMENT AT GUERRERO, GETTING UPPER HAND.

FOLLOWERS OF FRANCISCO MADERO FLY TO ARMS IN A HALF-DOZEN PLACES.

Four Hundred Killed in a Pitched Battle With Government Troops at Zacatecas.

Opposition to the re-election of President Diaz, who has been virtual dictator for 30 years, with only one break of four years, has at last caused the fires of revolution to burst forth in Mexico.

Diaz, who gained fame as a general before he rose to the chief executive office, is now confronted with a civil war, which he will not hesitate to suppress in rigorous fashion if his early career is any guide.

The agitation, led by Francisco Madero, the rival of Diaz for the presidency, has broken out into open rebellion. Starting near Puebla, where 130 rebels were killed, when they resisted the attempts of the police and troops to stop their meeting, the rebellion has made its appearance in half a dozen widely separated places within the republic.

400 Dead at Zacatecas.

Four hundred persons, mostly rebels, were killed at Zacatecas in a pitched battle between government troops and revolutionary forces.

The news comes direct from various sources on the Mexican side, but so well has the telegraph been censored that not a word leaked to the American side until railroad men brought information and a demand on the Mexican officials caused confirmation.

Revolutionists, following the plan adopted at Puebla last week, arose and began a fusillade on the soldiers. Zacatecas is the capital of the state of Zacatecas in Central Mexico, about 500 miles south of the border. News of the riots did not reach the outside world until late Sunday night. It is reported quiet has now been restored by placing the city under military rule. The latest reports are that the slain are still lying in the streets where they fell.

The American consul at Zacatecas telegraphed news of the riot to the Mexican consul at San Antonio, Tex., stating that town was in a state of terror and that the loss of life may reach 600. He said that a company of soldiers were ordered to fire upon a vast crowd of rebels who thronged the streets.

Fighting at Other Points.

It is reported that fierce fighting occurred at Guerrero, Mexico, Sunday. Reports reaching Laredo are that an outbreak took place in that village in the state of Coahuila and that the federal troops are in control, exercising martial law.

Guerrero is 50 miles west of Cotulla, Tex., and is in the district which Francisco I. Madero, the alleged revolutionary leader, was making his way when he was last seen in Texas. The Madero estates lie in that part of Mexico.

Gen. Reyes to Lead Rebels.

That General Bernardo Reyes, former vice-president of Mexico, who virtually was killed when his friends began to boom him for the presidential candidacy, is on his way to lead in the field, the revolutionary forces raised by Francisco I. Madero, in an attempt to depose the dictator, is the story which is being circulated among the rebels.

COUNTING NOSES in the UNITED STATES

DR. U. S. CENSUS, who has just completed the thirteenth diagnosis of the condition of Uncle Sam and his family, began it in 1790 and has been repeating it every ten years since. Uncle Sam has footed the bills, to date amounting to about $47,000,000. Our venerable dad has calculated that the present investigation will cost about $60,000,000, $60,000,000 has been spent this purpose since 1790.

The twelfth census cost about $13,000,000, and as Uncle Sam's landed possessions have increased since then and family gained about 15,000,000 more members than belonged to it in 1900, would be considered no more than a fair expenditure of about $19,000,000, which would be the sum if the rate of increase of expense at each census to the twelfth were to be maintained for the thirteenth.

A census expert has estimated that the thirteenth millions, the headquarters office force will earn $4,000,000, enumerators $4,000,000, the superintendents $800,000, and the special agents $600,000. The administrative cost will $300,000, the stationery $200,000, the printing $125,000, tabulating machines $250,000, cards for tabulation processes, $50,000, printing $800,000, Alaska $85,000, Porto Rico $100,000. Total, $12,000,000.

CARD PUNCHING MACHINE

It is that all the expense, it is cheap. The late Gen. Francis A. Walker, who was a census authority greater than any other, living or dead, once wrote that the people of the United States can well afford to pay for the very best census card puncher. He penned this remark in connection with a frank confession of his own shortsightedness in underestimating the cost of the tenth census.

It is the old story: When you are fit to be the best doctor you can afford. The comparative cheapness with which the thirteenth census has been taken was due to Director E. Dana Durand's economical methods, to the introduction of semi-automatic electrical card-punching, tabulating and sorting machines, and to the inheritance of wisdom from the experience gained by the permanent census bureau. During the term of the late methods of inquiry, tabulation and compilation have been greatly improved, both in accuracy and in economy. Millions will be saved.

Mr. Durand is responsible for many of the methods to increase statistical accuracy. Every step of the census taking and to determine the per capita cost of the enumeration, the card-punching, tabulating, and sorting machinery is the invention of a census mechanical expert and the patent rights belong to Uncle Sam. The machines are novel in plan and design, are of greater speed and efficiency than any ever superseded, and can be built and operated at a large saving of money as compared with previous expenditures for this purpose.

Other money-saving features are the elimination of the vital statistics inquiry from the work of the decennial census, as it belongs to the permanent branch of the United States census; the reduction in the number of schedules; the piece-price method of paying for machine work; the omission of the hand, household and neighborhood industries from the manufactures branch of the census, and the reduction of the size and number of copies of the final report.

Congress limited the thirteenth census to four general subjects—population, agriculture, manufactures, and mines and quarries. The director is authorized to determine the form and division of inquiries. The inquiry as to population relates to the date April 15, 1910; that as to agriculture concerns the farm operations during 1909 and calls for an inventory of farm equipment April 15, 1910; that relative to manufactures and quarries is for 1909.

The enumeration carried only the population and agriculture schedules April 15, 1910. Special agents were sent out with the schedules for the manufactures, mines and quarries. There were fully 65,000 enumerators, of whom about 45,000 carried both the population and agriculture schedules, as it is estimated that there are now fully 7,000,000 separate farms in America, with farmers numbering well up into a score of millions. In 1910 there were many more billions of dollars of fixed capital invested in agriculture than there were in manufactures, strange as it may seem. And the farmer is getting better off all the time;

Masterpiece of Glass Work

In the British museum, in London, on exhibition, is the Portland vase, the masterpiece of ancient glasswork. A chance discovery led to the rescue of this magnificent urn from the grave, where it had lain for hundreds of years, hidden and unknown. The vase was found in the seventeenth century by some laborer, who, digging on a hillside in the neighborhood of Rome, broke into a small vault.

On further examination it revealed a suite of three sepulchral chambers. In the largest of these was found a finely sculptured sarcophagus, which contained the beautiful vase. It was full of ashes, but it bore no inscription as to the remains it held, nor has the mystery been solved which shrouds its origin.

The vase was deposited in the Barberini palace, where it remained until 1770, when the regent, a representative of the Barberini family, a Roman nobleman, was forced to part with it to pay her gambling debts. The vase changed hands several times, then it was disposed of to the duchess of Portland, but with such secrecy that her own family was not aware of the transaction until after her death.

At the sale of the duchess of Portland's collection it was purchased by her son, the third duke of Portland, for the sum of $5,145, and it was deposited in the museum by his successor. The vase was wondrously smashed in pieces by a drunken visitor, but the fragments were, however, joined together, but the bottom, with its mysterious figure in Phrygian cap, was not replaced.

The material of this vase was long almost of Michigan, who, although only thirty-eight years old, is older than most of the generals commanding the forces in the Civil war, and who is, too, a statistically scarred hero, a veteran in government service, and likely to prove the most practical and efficient director connected with any of the past censuses. Then there is the assistant director, William H. Willoughby, of Washington, D. C., former secretary of state of Porto Rico. Next in rank are the five chief statisticians: William C. Hunt, in charge of the population division; Le Grand Powers, heading the agricultural division; William M. Stuart, overseeing the manufacturing division; Dr. Cressy L. Whitbur, the vital statistics work; and Dr. Joseph Adams Hill, the division of revision and results. Charles S. Sloane is the geographer; Albertus H. Baldwin is the chief clerk; Voler V. Brown is the chief of the publication division; Hugh M. Brown is private secretary to the director; Robert M. Findell, the appointment clerk; George Johnson is the disbursing officer, and C. W. Spicer is the mechanical expert. In addition to these are the chiefs of the divisions under the chief statisticians.

There are about 750 permanent clerks and 3,000 temporary clerks, etc. The supervisors numbered 330 and they employed and directed the 65,000 enumerators. About 1,000 chief special agents and assistant special agents. The supervisors also employed 1,000 clerks, 600 special agents and 4,000 interpreters to assist them in the direction of the enumerators.

The data relating to population is trans-

as great a puzzle as the story it illustrates. Brevat refers to it as "the famous vase of chalcidony"; Misson calls it an agate; Bartoli a sardonyx; while Caylus and others correctly decided that it was made of glass. The blue body was first formed, and while still red hot, coated over as far as the bas-reliefs were intended to reach with semitransparent white glass, the delicate figure being afterwards cut down to the blue ground in the same manner as with real cameos.

"No Openings Nowheres"

She is fortunate in having girl chums who draw roses from their friends now and then. The other afternoon one of her rosy friends pinned a bright red one on her and she walked forth into the street to make other women envious. She had not gone far when she felt a tug at the shoulder and turned to see a strange woman.

"Where'd you get that rose?" asked the stranger covetously.

"A friend of mine gave it to me," was the answer, produced with some chill.

"A friend of yours? In a store?"

"No, not in a store."

"Well, hain't there no openings nowheres?"

"Not that I know of."

"Humph! Just my luck. I'm just crazy for a rose, and when I saw you I just knowed there was a fall opening somewhere."

Count Tolstoi is Dead.

His illness fatal to the Great Russian Writer.

Count Leo Tolstoi died peacefully at Astapova on Saturday, Dr. Makovetsky and the other attending physicians and Countess Tolstoi were at his side when the end came.

Saturday the attacks of heart failure increased alarmingly, and many hours prior to the end the physicians had given up all hope.

Countess Tolstoi was admitted to the sick room, but her husband failed to recognize her. She had hastened to be beside him when she learned several days ago that his illness was serious, but the physicians had deemed it advisable that she be kept away from the count, fearing that her presence might cause the patient emotion.

Other members of the family were from time to time admitted to the presence of their father, and his daughter, Alexandra, has been in constant attendance.

Romance of Old Portugal

The recent deposition of King Manuel of Portugal and the events in the young king's life that led up to it will no doubt bring back to the minds of some of the older residents of the city the story of Elise Hensler, the Springfield girl who married a king and became the Countess Edla.

The king she married was Don Ferdinand II of Portugal, a great grandfather of King Manuel. Elise lived in Springfield about 60 years ago, probably for about 10 years.

The Henslers were, humble people and lived simply. The daughters, Elise and Louise, were well received here and were given a good musical education, especially Elise, who had quite a remarkable voice. Signor Guidi, an Italian, at the time a well known teacher of the voice, took an interest in Elise and it was when Signor Guidi went to Boston that the Henslers went there, largely through his influence.

He believed that Elise had a future as a singer and wished her to be where he could continue teaching her.

Elise Hensler after her removal with her family to Boston continued her studies. She was persevering in her work and progressed so well that she not only appeared in concerts in the large cities in this country, but also in Europe, where she sang before royalty. It was while singing in Lisbon several years after the death of Queen Maria that King Ferdinand heard her voice and felt the attraction that led him to marry her.

Ferdinand was the titular king of Portugal, having been the second husband of Queen Maria II of Portugal. Ferdinand married Maria in 1836, when he was 20. The queen died in 1853, and he was regent during the minority of his son, Pedro V, who was the father of the assassinated King Carlos, the grandfather of the deposed King Manuel. The regency ended in 1855, and on June 10, 1859, he married Miss Hensler.

When the European powers decided the time had come to restore Spain to a monarchy, following the overthrow of the short republic, which existed from 1873 to 1875, considerable pressure was brought to bear upon Ferdinand to induce him to accept the vacant throne. But his wife could never be queen of Spain, and it is possible that this fact alone induced him to refuse.

This absolute refusal on his part to accept the throne of Spain, with all the pomp and splendor of royalty in exchange for the romantic life that he was living with his morganatic wife, had far-reaching consequences. The complications and jealousies resultant on the attempt to find a king acceptable to all the powers helped to bring on the Franco-Prussian war, and Alsace and Lorraine went back to Germany, whence they had been wrested by Napoleon Bonaparte.

In consequence of these peculiar historical facts, which geographically practically changed all western Europe, Elise Hensler, Countess Edla, became famous throughout the world as "the woman who changed the map of Europe." During the life of the king they lived in the beautiful castle of Cintra. It is certain that their life was above reproach. In 1885 the king died, and after that the countess lived in retirement in a cottage near the castle.

AVIATOR KILLED

Ralph Johnston Falls 800 Feet to Death at Denver.

With one wing tip of his machine crumpled like a piece of paper, Ralph Johnston, the brilliant young aviator, holder of the world's altitude record, dropped at Denver like a plummet from a height of 800 feet into the inclosure at Overland park aviation field and was instantly killed.

When the spectators, crowded about the inclosure, reached him, his body lay beneath the biplane, with the white planes that had failed him wrapped about it like a shroud. Nearly every bone in his body was broken.

He had gambled with death once too often, but he played the game to the end, fighting coolly and grimly to the last second to regain control of his broken machine.

Fresh from his triumphs at Belmont park, where he had broken the world's record for altitude with a flight of 9,714 feet, Johnston attempted to give the thousands of spectators an extra thrill with his most daring feat, the spiral glide, which has made the Wright aviators famous. The spectators got their thrill, but it cost Johnston his life.

The Public Parks of San Antonio

surpass, in number and acreage, those of any city of similar size in the world. Something of the old Spanish love of fountains, rare foliage and flowers is expressed in these parks and in the garden squares, plazas and private grounds throughout the city.

But it is the climate that is by far the most attractive feature of San Antonio. Cloudless skies; dry, invigorating air, altitude and splendid natural drainage all combine to make a climate as nearly perfect as can be.

Most of each day in winter months can be spent outdoors in healthful recreation.

"On Sunny San Antonio"—a beautiful illustrated booklet about this city of a thousand delightful surprises will give you a new idea of San Antonio's attractiveness. Send for today—it's free.

GOOD WORK.

Done Daily in Chelsea. Many Citizens Tell of It.

Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work in Chelsea still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case.

Martin Howe, South St., Chelsea, Mich., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used in my family with beneficial results and consequently, I am in a position to recommend them."

I had a dull, heavy ache in my back and there were acute pains through my kidneys. The kidney secretions also passed irregularly and caused much annoyance. Doan's Kidney Pills soon relieved the pain and lameness and helped me in every way.

Our experience with this remedy has convinced us of its merits. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McMillan Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

IN THE SCENT OF THE LILAC

The Flower That Brings Back Thoughts of Home to the Exiled New Englander.

Back at the old home the lilacs are blooming now, the whole long green purple copse of them that were set out by the mother the year she first came to the house. It was only a small shrub that she set out, brought from her mother's home and planted with loving thought on the south side of the house by the fence. She picked a few blossoms even the first year and more and more each year thereafter. In later years you broke off for her great smelly bunches whose odor gave you a pang you couldn't understand, pulling down the tallest stems where somehow the finest plumes always grew. And this spring as you catch the breath of a bunch which some one brings you, or spy a long lavender hedge of them, the old home with the lane and the orchard, the boys and girls you played with, and the home folks, the big cheerful supper table, with father at one end and mother at the other, all come back to you. For the lilac is the home flower, the flower that breathes of New England lanes and farms, with the dear old simple homes, and their fond associations. The tulip is all that the lilac is not and nothing that it is. If not an alien at least it is but a naturalized citizen belonging to cities and prim convention. Mothers do not set out tulips for children to cherish when they are grown. Mostly the gardener sets them out and he takes them up again. They are gaudy and they catch the eye. As for fragrance, they have as little as the streets by which they grow.—Fall River News.

On the Senators.

The wit of Bishop Seth Ward amuses Nashville frequently.

Bishop Ward, in company with two senators, came forth from a Nashville reception the other day and entered a waiting motor car.

"Ah, bishop," said one of his companions, "you are not like your master. He was content to ride an ass."

Ward answered, "but there's no such animal to be got nowadays. They make them all senators."

Schurz Was Sure of Him.

Carl Schurz was dining one night with a man who had written a book of poems, so called, and who was pleased with himself.

The poet was discoursing on the time-worn topic of politics of the men who take office.

"I consider politics and politicians beneath my notice," he said. "I do not care for office. I wouldn't be a senator or cabinet officer, and I doubt if I could be tempted by the offer of the presidency. For the matter of that, I would rather be known as a third-rate poet than a first-rate statesman."

"Well, aren't you?" Schurz shouted at him.

At the One Horse.

Jere L. Sullivan, the head of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' International alliance, said in Cincinnati, apropos of Labor Day:

"Our American hotels are better than they used to be, and for this betterment my organization deserves no little credit."

"We have today no such hotels as the One Horse of Tin Can, where, if you asked for a bath, they used to give you a shovel and tell you to go down to the hollow and dam the creek."

An English earl once visited the One Horse hotel. The landlord without ceremony led him outside, pointed to a window on the fifth floor, and said:

"That's yer room."

SERIAL STORY

Archibald's Agatha

By EDITH HUNTINGTON MASON

Author of "The Real Agatha"

Copyright 1910, by W. G. Chapman, Copyrighted in Great Britain.

SYNOPSIS.

Archibald Terhune, a popular and intelligent young bachelor of London, receives news that he has been made heir to the estate of his Aunt Georgiana, with an income of $20,000 a year, on condition that he becomes engaged to be married within ten days. Failing to do so, the legacy will go to a third cousin in America. The story opens at Castle Wyckhoff, where Lord Vincent and his wife, friends of Terhune, are discussing plans to find him a wife within the prescribed time. It seems that Lady Vincent is one of seven persons named Agatha, all close girlhood chums. She decides to invite two of them to the castle and have Archie there as one of the guests. Agatha Sixth strikes Archie as a hand-painted beauty. Agatha First is a breezy American girl. Lady Vincent tells her husband that Agatha Sixth already cares for Archie. He gains from Agatha Sixth the admission that she cares for him, but will require a month's time fully to make up her mind. Agatha First, neglected by Terhune, receives attention from Leslie Freer. Four days of the precious time have passed when Terhune is called to London on business. Agatha First, on the plea of sickness, excuses herself from a motor trip planned by the Vincents. Later they see Agatha First picking flowers with a strange man. The Vincents discuss Agatha's seeming capriciousness. The following day the party visits the ruins of an old convent. Terhune continues his attentions to Agatha Sixth. Then suddenly he transfers his attentions to Agatha First. Vincent scores him for his apparent fickleness.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

He glanced at me in a half embarrassed, half triumphant way, much as he used to do in the first Castle Wyckhoff house party days, when he was about to tell me of his latest clue in regard to the identity of the real Agatha.

"Well, to be quite frank with you," he said, "the truth of the matter is that Agatha First won't let me alone!"

"Meaning?" I said, "that she's in love with you?"

"Well, of course," he replied, removing his eyeglasses and polishing them desperately as is his custom when he pretends to be embarrassed. "I wouldn't like to say that exactly. I couldn't say positively, that is, but to a man of my experience in such matters and knowledge of the fair sex, the indications are—"

"O rot!" interrupted rudely, I fear, but really the old boy is quite too insufferably conceited to encourage. It's an old falling of his.

"What makes you think so?" I asked after a moment's consideration. Although I couldn't quite believe that Agatha First was actually in love with him, still I wanted to hear his reasons for the conclusion. I didn't want to believe it, that was certain.

I thought we had trouble enough on our hands as it was, without having to reckon with a broken heart on the part of Miss Endicott. And as the contingency assumed an air of probability to my mind, I inwardly vowed again never to undertake another match-making project. Gad, no! Let people marry themselves hereafter without any interference from me. I had had all I wanted of the thing this time.

"What makes you think so?" I repeated. Arch shrugged his shoulders. "Can't help it. She's after me the whole time! I suppose she can't help fancying a man of my—er—if I may so—my attractions. I daresay I'm a revelation to her in comparison with the American college youths she has probably been used to. Experience and intellect does count, you know, Wilfred. Besides, the results show—"

But I cut him short again.

"The results show," I said sternly, "that you're just enough of a chump to heed her mania for amusing herself with you—for I can't think she is in earnest." I had to tell him that for his own good, though I could have wished I felt surer this was the fact.

"Her mania for flirting with you flatters you so much that you'd run the risk of losing the girl you care for, just for the sake of having that egregious vanity of yours pleasantly tickled, as her apparent fancy for your society undoubtedly tickles it! Your old falling again! For my word, old chap, I thought better of you! Better of your prudence and foresight! Why, I couldn't have had less of an eye out for when you and I were contending suitors for the hand of one of the Agathas, and you insisted that it should be the heiress and no other, and bullied me so because I didn't take the same view! And the Lord knows you made enough fuss about that!"

But when I reported the result of my remonstrance to Dearest, she said I hadn't been half severe enough with him, and it was with difficulty that I

CHAPTER IX.

It was the very last evening of the time that had been allotted Terhune in which to select a wife. The following day was to see Solicitor Barnes at luncheon with us at one o'clock precisely. Dearest having invited him in accordance with Mrs. James' request that he should be the referee present at the house when the last minute of Terhune's ten days of grace should expire, and his expected presence at the meal brought it home to us what a decisive one it must of necessity be. Decisive was indeed the right word to use in connection with that meal! For if old Arch was still free and unattached when he sat down to it, he might as well never have been nephew of his aunt as far as inheriting that aunt's property was concerned.

Dearest was mollified, being optimistic enough to hope for a consummation of his engagement to Agatha Sixth before that time—to make of the luncheon a sort of marriage-feast in honor of that event, and was already planning famous toasts and cakes of a hymeneal nature. But Arch seemed not to view the approach of the crucial day with such a light heart. His thoughts at dinner that night were so absent, in fact, as to force one to conclude that the spectre of his aunt's third cousin seated upon the veranda of the house in Australia with possessive feet on the railing had become his familiar spirit.

It was this apparent anxiety of his and his feverish devotion to Agatha Sixth that utterly unprepared me for the unfortunate denouement later.

The evening had ended at last, and Dearest and I had succeeded in starting a general move toward retiring for the night. We had been playing bridge—that is, the two Agathas had—with Terhune and the inevitable Frazer, while my wife and I stood by

We knew only too well this time who the man was, and without requiring any further proof such as we had had on the other occasion when we had waited until the discovery of the checked coat before we felt sure. In this instance we neither of us doubted for a moment the identity of Miss Endicott's companion in her equivocal position.

Freer had said good night and gone on down to the village at ten o'clock when the party had broken up. It could not be he. Then it must of necessity be Terhune. Indeed, what other man would have the opportunity for such a meeting? Who else was staying at the castle?"

Art Leads Language and Science.

The fact is that art is working far ahead of language as well as of science, realizing for us, by all manner of suggestions and exaggerations, effects for which as yet we have no name; nay, for which we may never perhaps have a direct name, for the reason that these effects do not enter very largely into the necessities of life. Hence alone is that suspicion of vagueness that often hangs about the purpose of a romance; it is clear enough to us in thought; but we are not used to consider anything clear until we are able to formulate it in words, and analytical language has not been sufficiently shaped to that end. It is not that there is anything blurred or indefinite in the impression left with us, it is just because the impression is so very definite after its own kind, that we find it hard to fit it exactly with the expressions of our philosophical speech.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

A Sparkling Novelist.

A New York editor, at the Century club, told a story about Robert W. Chambers, the well-known young novelist.

"Chambers went one summer," he said, "to Sunapee with his brother. At the Ben Mero Inn the aristocratic old ladies in rocking chairs, seated on the cool piazza that overlooks the lake, were very much stirred up by Mr. Chambers' arrival. Whenever he appeared they gathered about him and talked books.

"Chambers was always ready for them. He had always on his lips some witty saying to double them up.

"Oh, Mr. Chambers," cried an old lady one day, "I admire 'Lorraine' so much! I've read it eight times!"

"Madam," answered Chambers, with a bow, "I would rather hear you say you'd bought eight copies."

His Literal Answer.

In all policies of insurance there are, among a host of other questions, one: "Age of father, if living?" "Age of mother, if living?" A man in the country who filled up an application made his father's age, "if living," one hundred and twelve years, and his mother's one hundred and two. The agent was amazed at this, and fancied he had secured an excellent customer; but, feeling somewhat dubious, he remarked that the applicant came of a very long-lived family. "Oh, you see, sir," replied he, "my parents died many years ago, but, 'if living,' would be aged as there put down." "Exactly I understand," said the agent.

"Burglars nothing!" I answered. "It's one of the dogs, I say. Besides, if it were a burglar that's all the more reason why you should go back!"

"And leave you to be killed all alone? Never!"

Sometimes, I admit it with a sort of fond regret, my wife is unreasonable. "It wouldn't help any if you were killed, too!" I told her. "Besides, you'll catch cold. It's chilly down here, and I want you to go back."

She caught the tone of authority in my voice, and I seldom use toward her, and fell to pleading with me.

"O Freddy, don't stay!" she begged. "It's so exciting! See! I've brought you a pistol and here's an umbrella for me! She came close up to me as she spoke and the gleam of starlight from the hall windows fell upon her supplicating face and the old blunderbuss she had taken down from some wall and carried in her right hand, and the other weapon of defense she had mentioned in the other.

I laughed, if one may be said to laugh in a whisper, and hugged her for her spirit, armament and all. Then we turned to the folding doors again. Beneath them and through the crack between a faint light showed.

"Making himself pretty much at home for a burglar to light the lamp," I remember thinking. And I slowly and cautiously widened the aforesaid crack until a space of some two or three inches wide was obtained, the doors rolling back softly on each side without any noise at all. Then we looked in, my wife making it possible for us to do this at one and the same time by kneeling on the floor at my side, and thus obtaining a chink to look through all to herself.

It was lucky she was so near the floor, I thought afterward, or she would certainly have fallen upon it with surprise when she beheld the thing our eyes asked of us to believe.

For there at the far end of the drawing room dimly distinguishable by the light of a lamp on the table, turned low, was Agatha First. We recognized her even in that light without fail, dressed as she had been that evening for dinner, and standing with his back toward us and his arm around her was a man in an attitude unmistakably lover-like and possessive. And through the hush of that late hour the low murmur of their absorbed voices penetrated the inmost recess of our staggered consciousness. Agatha First and a man meeting in secret at that hour!

"What could it mean? Who could it be? The surprise of my discovery in the woods the day of our trip to Northbury was as nothing to this! But alas! We knew only too well this time who the man was, and without requiring any further proof such as we had had on the other occasion when we had waited until the discovery of the checked coat before we felt sure. We Turned to the Folding Doors Again.

and cut in now and then. We had observed with pleasure that the party of four had divided itself exactly as we would have arranged it ourselves; Terhune and Agatha Sixth were partners, as were Agatha First and Freer. Better still, Agatha Sixth seemed quite to have forgotten the unhappy episode of the waterfall, when Arch had so obviously missed his cue, and was openly basking in the return of her admirer's devotion. And Agatha First, too, seemed quite contented, not a whit disturbed by this attitude on my friend's part and mildly amused by the attempted gallantries of the recitor's son from Wye. It was, in fact, a thoroughly happy little foursome, and as a spectator of its content I felt particularly pleased when I thought of what Arch had confided to me just before dinner. That he intended to obtain a definite, and what he seemed to consider, a favorable answer, from Agatha Sixth on the morrow.

We had all gone to bed, and the night was well advanced, when I was awakened from the rippling kind of a sleep by the loudest kind of a bang you ever heard in your life. It came from the big drawing-room, which we did not often use, directly below my room, and woke me at once. It sounded for all the world as if some one or something had knocked over one of the endless number of statuettes, heavy vases or little tables that make a regular auction-shop of the place, and I struggled into my bath robe in a minute to go and see what it was.

Dearest's room adjoined mine and I listened at the door to find out if she had been awakened, and hearing nothing from her, went on my way down stairs.

I didn't much believe it could be a burglar; I had a hazy notion that it might be one of the dogs who had gotten in there somehow. There are no end of the big brutes about the place and sometimes one gets into the house for the night in spite of Dearest. So I wasn't in the least alarmed or apprehensive, and was just about to lay my hand on the drawing-room folding doors, which were at the foot of the stairs, when I heard the lightest possible tread on the stairs behind me and a soft hand clutched my arm.

It was Dearest, of course. "O Freddy!" she gasped, "what is it?"

"One of the dogs, I expect," I told her. "What made you come?"

"Why," she said in an indignant little whisper, "I came after you, of course! Do you think I'd let you go all alone?"

"Why not?" I whispered. "I'm a man. Besides, there's nothing to be afraid of!"

"O, but there is!" she assured me. "The burglars—I know it all! They've come to steal the Wyckhoff emeralds, I know they have!"

Chowders.

These are wholesome dishes that may be served in any season and are always well liked. They may be made from fish or vegetables, and may be served as a dinner, luncheon or supper dish.

When nothing else is forthcoming, a very tasty chowder may be made of fried salt pork, potatoes, onions and milk.

Corn Chowder.—Cut a one and a half-inch cube of salt pork into very small pieces and fry until brown. Add one sliced onion and cook it five minutes in the fat, stirring often that it may not burn. Parboil six potatoes, put in slices, drain and add to the fat with two cups of boiling water. Cook until the potatoes are soft, then add a can of corn and a quart of scalded milk. Season with salt and pepper, add six milk crackers, three table-spoonfuls of butter, if the pork has not made it rich enough in fat. Serve hot.

To prepare clam chowder, add the clams to the above recipe after cooking them in butter. Add the clam water just at the last, as it has a tendency to separate the milk.

Salt codfish makes a fine chowder. It may be cooked in water until soft, and then added to the chowder just before serving.

German Chowder.—Chop one and a half cups of haddock or any fresh fish, add eight common crackers, two table-spoonfuls of melted butter, onion juice, salt, pepper and a beaten egg. Shape into balls. Prepare the chowder, adding two slices of carrot, a bit of bay leaf, a sprig of parsley to the above chowder recipe, cook all together, balls, potatoes and seasonings. Serve with crackers, split and soaked in the hot milk.

Lobster Chowder.—Remove the meat from a two-pound lobster shell and cut in dice. Cream two table-spoonfuls of butter, and the liver of the lobster, and two milk crackers pounded fine. Scald a quart of milk with a slice of onion, remove the onion, add milk to mixture. Cook the bones ten minutes in cold water to cover; strain, and add with the lobster to the mixture. Season with salt and paprika and serve.

Chowders are nutritive enough to serve as the main dish at a meal. For a hot dish on a cold night they are especially good. Oysters may be added to a chowder and are similar to a clam chowder.

Thanksgiving Dishes.

At Thanksgiving time the old family recipes which have made those days red letter days, are looked up and prepared. The crisp, nutty-celery, the crimson cranberry, the apples, bears and nuts all contribute to the great feast. The following is a recipe for the old-fashioned pumpkin pie. Half the recipe will make a pie of the size ordinarily used today.

Pumpkin Pie.—Mix one and a half cups of stewed pumpkin with two-thirds of a cup of brown sugar, a tea-spoonful of cinnamon, a half tea-spoonful of ginger, the same of salt, two well-beaten eggs, one and a half cups of milk and half a cup of cream, and a half tea-spoonful of lemon-extract. Bake in one crust.

A very nice little tea cake may be made by using the crust left from ordinary pastry or the puff paste, which makes a daintier cake.

Roll the paste to one-fourth inch in thickness and cut in strips six inches long by three-fourths inch wide, brush over with beaten egg, and sprinkle with shredded coconut. Chill, and bake in a hot oven.

Thanksgiving Pudding.—Put a third of a cup of suet with three cups of bread crumbs through the meat chopper, add half a pound of chopped figs, three-fourths of a cup of milk, a cup of brown sugar, a tea-spoonful of salt, three-fourths of a tea-spoonful of cinnamon, half a tea-spoonful of grated nutmeg, half a cupful of walnut meats, half a cup of raisins cut in pieces, four eggs well beaten and two tea-spoonfuls of baking powder. Sprinkle carefully over the mixture. Beat thoroughly, turn into a buttered mold and steam three hours. Serve with an egg sauce.

Foamy Sauce.—Beat two eggs until light, add a cup of powdered sugar and a cup of hot milk; flavor with vanilla or grated orange peel.

When nothing else is forthcoming, a very tasty chowder may be made of fried salt pork, potatoes, onions and milk.

Corn Chowder.—Cut a one and a half-inch cube of salt pork into very small pieces and fry until brown. Add one sliced onion and cook it five minutes in the fat, stirring often that it may not burn. Parboil six potatoes, put in slices, drain and add to the fat with two cups of boiling water. Cook until the potatoes are soft, then add a can

Twin Extravagances. "I don't suppose there is anything gets out of date quicker than a woman's hat?" "Unless it is a battleship."

Trying to Console. "My son," remarked the stern parent, "when I was your age I had very little time for frivolous diversions." "Well," replied the young man, "you didn't miss much. Believe me, this gay life isn't what it looks to be."

Reason for Strange Names. A little colored girl appeared on one of the city playgrounds the other day, accompanied by two pickaninnies, who, she explained, were cousins of hers, visitors in Newark. "What are their names," asked the young woman in charge of the playground. "Aida Overture Johnson and Lucie Sextette Johnson," the girls answered. "You see their papa used to work for a opera man,"—Newark News.

HEALTH AND INCOME

Both Kept Up on Scientific Food.

Good sturdy health helps one a lot to make money. With the loss of health one's income is liable to shrink, if not entirely dwindle away.

When a young lady has to make her own living, good health is her best asset.

"I am alone in the world," writes a Chicago girl, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk, and about two years ago through close application to work and a boarding-house diet, I became a nervous invalid, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to stay in the office a half day at a time."

"A friend suggested to me the idea of trying Grape-Nuts food which I did, making it a large part of at least two meals a day."

"Today, I am free from brain-tire, dyspepsia, and all the ills of an over-worked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health, and the ability to retain my position and income."

TO SPEND XMAS IN PLAGUE CAMP

Fifteen Cases of Disease in the State Home.

SICK NOT EXPECTED TO DIE

Dr. Frazer Says He Will Ask That the Troops Be Kept on Quarantine Guard Duty as Long as Smallpox is Prevalent.

Lansing.—In a report received by Dr. Shumway, secretary of the state board of health, Dr. Frazer, health officer in Lapeer, states that there are now 15 cases of smallpox in the state home for the feeble-minded. To date there have been nine deaths. None of these now sick are expected to die. Supplementing the report, Dr. Frazer stated that he will ask that the troops be kept on quarantine guard duty as long as the disease is prevalent in the home, "even if it takes a year."

There are 43 members of the Flint company on duty in Lapeer. This includes officers and enlisted men, and their services are costing, it is estimated, the county of Lapeer about $100 a day.

There is not a possibility of the soldiers being ordered out of Lapeer before January 1, and the guardsmen are preparing to spend Christmas in camp.

At a special meeting of the board of health and the city school board in Mayor Bennett's office it was decided that, owing to the outbreak of five new cases of smallpox in one family in the city, a general compulsory vaccination of all school children in the city should be ordered. The order was put into the form of a resolution and adopted.

All school children will be vaccinated at the expense of the city in cases where the parents are unable to pay the required amount. Schools will not be closed unless the epidemic breaks out in other parts of the city. Strict enforcement of the quarantine and vaccination orders will be made, and it is thought that with the co-operation of the citizens of Lansing the disease will not obtain a greater foothold here.

The members of the Ingham County Medical society met to discuss the price for vaccination, the point being raised by Doctor Shumway of the state board of health. After an executive session the physicians said they had decided to leave the charge as before.

"We have always had a sliding scale," said Secretary Samuel Osborn, of the society. "Our regular price has always been one dollar, and this price will be maintained. If some one comes in who is unable to pay that amount we will not charge them for the operation, for we are willing to work for the city's welfare."

"It is not fair to say that the members of this society are trying to rob the public at this critical time."

Hot Race Is On in National Guard.

Who will be the next adjutant general of the Michigan National Guard? This question is being asked with a good deal of interest in every city where there is a National Guard company, and from appearances it is believed that Gen. William T. McGurkin of Grand Rapids will succeed himself.

The second infantry, which General McGurkin formerly commanded, has inducted him solidly, as has the Third Infantry, commanded by Col. George B. McCaughy of Owosso. Of the First Infantry, the two companies located in Jackson and the companies in Ann Arbor and Monroe, comprising the Second battalion, have also petitioned the governor-elect for the retention of the present adjutant general, so has battery A of Lansing and the signal corps located in Ypsilanti.

Gen. Robert J. Bates of Sault Ste. Marie, whose three-year term as commander of the Michigan brigade ends January 1, is still apparently confident that he will be the next adjutant general, and is said to be collecting endorsements, but these are mostly of a political and business character.

Smallpox Cases Still Increase.

The smallpox situation at Saginaw continues to be most favorable, reports of three new cases being given to the board of health. Two of these cases have been under quarantine, and in one instance the patient has practically recovered. In the other two the attack is very mild.

Local health officers declare that never in the history of the world has smallpox been combatted as strenuously as in this city, and in this claim they have the backing of President McLean of the state board of health and Dr. F. P. Shumway, its secretary.

Campaign for New Labor Law.

The new children's bureau of Detroit is preparing to inaugurate a vigorous campaign for a new child labor law in Michigan. At the meeting of the bureau at Detroit, Chairman Fred M. Butzel was empowered to appoint a committee to draft either a new law or an amendment to the present one so that it would be in line with the new federal law. The committee will be composed of representatives of the working paper proposition and the school system is very much desired for the safeguarding of children.

"Unquestionably the administration of the child labor law in Detroit today is better than the law itself," declared Fred M. Butzel. "A closer relation between the working paper proposition and the school system is very much desired for the safeguarding of children."

The improvement aimed at in the amendment of the child labor law of Michigan a year ago were not obtained for the reason that those pushing the amendment failed to work in harmony with the employers of labor in the state," said Rev. Myron Adams. "The result is that the amended law as it stands today is worse than the original enactment. The old law provided that the preliminary investigation on which working permits were to be issued should be conducted by the educational authorities. The new law is so worded that the preliminary investigation is now conducted by factory inspectors. That this is unwise and positively harmful is shown by the recent revelations of factory conditions in this city as regards child labor and sanitary regulations."

"One weakness of the law in Michigan lies in a clause which permits underage children to go to work if their work is necessary for the support of the family. Here is where much laxity creeps in."

It is likely that the findings of the special child labor law committee of the children's bureau, will be turned over to the special legislation commission of the Central Council of Churches of Detroit, which is soon to be created to "lobby" for up-to-date social legislation at Lansing.

In addition to overhauling the child labor law, the children's bureau is preparing to investigate the administration of the municipal ordinance relating to the age and condition of newsboys. Complaints have come into the bureau from many quarters that this ordinance is not being properly enforced.

Hundreds Bare Arms to Vaccines.

A rush for vaccination has set in at the board of health's office as a result of the smallpox epidemic in the state. For the past few days hundreds of persons have gone to the board's office in Antoine street and bared their arms for the inoculation. This rush will now increase since the health board has ordered a general vaccination and sent out notices to employers of labor asking their co-operation.

"I don't expect any serious trouble here, although the epidemic in the state is quite severe," said Health Officer Klefer. "In fact, I hope we will get away unscathed. I know that there is much fiction and popular fear about smallpox. The disease just now is very malignant and shows a very high mortality rate in Saginaw."

Vaccination is an absolute preventative. A general vaccination, as ordered by the board, will, therefore, place us in a good position, if carried out properly. "We have not had a general vaccination for eight years. The question has been asked as to how long a vaccination will give protection. I will not attempt to answer that question. Scientists disagree. In Germany the opinion prevails that vaccination gives immunity for ten years. In this country five years is believed to be the limit, and this theory seems to me to be the safest one to adopt."

Kazoo Officials Look for Clash.

There is going to be a hot clash when members of the state railroad commission come to Kalamazoo to meet with Kalamazoo city officials. City officials of Kalamazoo accuse the commission of attempting to shift the responsibility for not protecting the East Main street crossing. Press dispatches from Lansing say that members of the commission were told by the city officials to let the crossing alone.

Appointed Assistant Geologist.

The state geological survey has appointed Reginald E. Hore of the Michigan college of mines to the position of assistant geologist in charge of the Houghton office. Mr. Hore has had long experience in the Lake Superior region, both in Canada and the upper peninsula of Michigan. The appointment takes effect December 1.

Supreme Court.

The supreme court heard the following cases: Shepard vs. Shepard; Crawford vs. City of Detroit. Order to show cause was allowed in Olds Motor works vs. Murfin.

Livingstone Is Delegate.

Governor Warner appointed as delegates to represent Michigan at the convention of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterways association, to be held in St. Louis, November 25-28: F. M. J. Crowley, Monroe; Otto C. Davidson, Iron Mountain; W. C. Durant, Flint; Charles A. Floyd, Holland; William Forbes, Port Huron; E. B. Foss, Bay City; Fred W. Gage, Battle Creek; William Livingstone, Detroit; Stanley Morton, Benton Harbor; Ezra Rust, Saginaw; John Sherman, Ludington.

TIMELY SUGGESTIONS THAT WILL HELP THE HOSTESS

Some New, Old Games. Here are some very old games, but I am sure they will be brand-new to many of our young readers. The first is called "Catching the Snake's Tail" and comes to us from Japan, where it is a great favorite. The children form in line, each with hands resting upon the shoulders of the player in front. The one who is to act as "catcher" is left out. The first child in the line is called the "head" and the last one the "tail." When time to begin the "catcher" is placed about 15 feet from the "head," at a signal he tries to catch the "tail" or the last child in the "snake" without touching any one else. The others may defend the "tail" by moving about, keeping the line unbroken, for if the line should be broken it is equal to the "tail" being caught and that unlucky person must become the catcher while the last named goes to the head of the line.

Now for the second game, called "Feather Play." It is very amusing, although it sounds so simple. All the players are seated on the floor, having first counted "out" to see who will be "it." A hollow square is formed with a sheet held close up to the chins of the players on the floor. A feather is produced, a little downy thing, and blown back and forth by the players. The trick is for the child who is "it" to try to catch the feather on one of the children or directly in front of a child when that one becomes "it." The feather must not be touched by the hands of the children on the floor nor must they rise from the floor; their hands must be kept under the sheet, all manipulations of the feather being done by blowing.

Wedding Rings for Bridegrooms. Some new rings are being shown which on first appearance seem to be very handsome seals, but on closer examination show that they are to be divided when the "time" comes into two separate rings. They are made to order as is much of the jewelry worn nowadays by those who wish to have exclusive styles in their articles of personal adornment. It is a custom rather strictly observed in Germany, this exchange of rings on the wedding day, and it is a very pretty custom. "Why shouldn't a man have some outward symbol to show that he is married as well as a woman?" asked a little dark-eyed bride who had used this double ring ceremony? and why not? Very few brides now select a plain diamond solitaire that was for so long considered the only proper engagement token, the larger the stone the more the girl loved to flash it.

Now a diamond is used if the girl wishes it, but it is out and set in some individual manner and is made with the promise that no duplicates will be sold. MADAME MERRI.

Progressive Puzzle Party.

The requirements for this party are children to make four at a table, as many tally cards and pencils as guests, a box of stars for markers or a punch and a couple of prizes, more if the hostess wishes.

Often enough puzzles may be borrowed or they may be bought. For very small children—sliced animals and sliced birds—will be popular. There should be as many puzzles as children. Some times the puzzles are given as prizes, then each guest takes home one. All these arrangements each individual hostess must decide for herself. The tally cards may be made at home from colored cardboard cut in the shape of an interrogation mark. Number each one at the top and place corresponding numbers on the puzzles. For instance, the players who have number 1, 2, 3, 4 will take puzzles marked 1, 2, 3, 4, and go to head table, which will be marked number 1. Those who draw 5, 6, 7, 8 will take puzzles marked the same and go to table number 2. When a player finishes at the head table a bell is rung and each child moves a number

The touch of black is still a feature of fashion. Two-toned plumes—and enormous pink poppies trim some of the latest hats. Wide tulle scarfs are becoming accessories with dancing frocks and black sheer scarfs are much used. Girdles of soft folds of gold tissue or gold-beaded chiffon for light gowns are lovely and set off the figure of the wearer to the best advantage. Tailored models are mostly made of rough materials in chevrons and serges. A few hard-twisted mannish effects are included in the showing, but are not as popular as the roughly woven fabrics. The teen-teen, turned on the right side, is a favorite finish to the skirt. As a rule the skirt is slightly fuller than the hem which holds it in place, and sometimes the hem is of heavier material than the gown itself.

For Party Bag

Now that the season of parties, dances or sewing circles has begun its busy whirl, it is natural that our minds turn to the little accessories that make our life interesting, to say the least. Even if we have outgrown the fancy bag age—and more's the pity if that be the case—we can make this pretty thing for others.

Three suggestions are before you, designed in such a way that they should appeal to the painters, embroiderers or pyrographers, and each one promises success for easy work and much effect at little cost.

If you decide to make a square bag of four strips of white or eoru velvet attached to a square bottom, the aly design is the best. Cut your strips and follow the suggestion here given. Pyrographed velvet is extremely effective, giving rich brown tones, which you can deepen at the centers of the flowers and the stems. Touch up, if you wish, with yellow stencil dyes or all paint. Embroidery is equally effective, and you can, with a fairly good mother's magic needle, change the daisies to asters and work in pink, white or purple. You are really not taking them out of the family.

The wisteria is a charming combination of the natural and the conventional. Paint this design, using lavender and pale green, with brown for the stem. This can be used as a repeat around the lower portion of the regulation silk bag gathered on a cord at the top. The last suggestion is capable of any color treatment and therefore gives a wider field in which to work. Gray silk with two shades of purple, of yellow or green looks well for this design. The darker shade of any color is good, and so also is a contrasting bright color on a neutral ground. The great point is in the application of this handwork on velvet, silk or satin, and although it sounds like an unreasonable warning, Christmas is coming.

BREVITIES

SALINE—Justice A. J. Warren of Saline Thursday issued a warrant for the arrest of Alley Westfall on a charge of selling liquor on Sunday. A deputy sheriff was given the warrant and service will be made as quickly as possible.

BRIGHTON—The village council of Brighton has passed an ordinance to go into effect December 5, forbidding the shooting or discharge of any gun, rifle, pistol or revolver of powder or compressed air force within the corporate limits of the village.

HOWELL—The startling news was received by William Darrow a few days ago, that his son Clyde of Los Angeles, Cal., was wandering about in a demented condition. The telegram was signed by an unknown woman and the police have been asked to investigate, as Mr. Darrow has been hearing from his son regularly and thinks there must be something strange about it.

ANN ARBOR—The case of Nelson Imus, jr., against the Ann Arbor railroad for $10,000 damages for injuries received last winter by coasting into a switch engine, was begun before Judge Kinnel last week. The plaintiff claims that the railroad company disobeyed the city ordinance in not sending out a flagman to cover the crossing.

BROOKLYN—M. L. Hess of Napoleon has sold his 130 acre farm at $50 per acre to Gordon C. Daily who for two or three years has been publishing the Hanover Local which he has sold. He will take possession of the farm in March. After a sufficient experience Mr. Daily thus bets his printing office that he can make more money farming. Mr. Daily is undoubtedly right. Exponent.

ANN ARBOR—The jury in the case of Harry Vanfuren against the Michigan Central for damages for injuries received by falling through a shanty car step in January, 1908, returned a verdict late Thursday afternoon awarding the plaintiff $700. He had sued for $7,000 claiming that his leg had been broken so as to necessitate a painful and dangerous operation in which several bones of his foot had been removed. The jury was out about 20 hours.

SUPERIOR—An overheated stovepipe caused a fire which destroyed the house of Louis Faust of Superior at 9 o'clock last week Wednesday morning. Mrs. Faust was alone in the house when she smelled smoke and going upstairs found the upper rooms in flames. She could do nothing and by the time the neighbors reached the place the building was too far gone to allow them to save much of the contents. The loss is about $1,200 and the insurance which is carried in the Washtenaw Mutual is about $450 on the house and $220 on the contents.

ANN ARBOR—Ex-Gov. R. C. Powers, of Mississippi, aged 72 years, was Saturday granted a degree of bachelor of arts by the board of regents of the University of Michigan, although he never graduated from the institution. He was a member of the class of 1882, and left college to become a member of the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Ohio volunteers. When mustered out he was lieutenant-colonel of the regiment. Later he moved to the state which honored him as its executive. He now lives in Los Angeles, Cal.

CLINTON—Fred Shanteau and Jack Crighton, the alleged safe-blowers, before Justice Humphrey for examination last Friday, were discharged on motion of Earl Michener, assistant prosecutor, but Crighton was arrested at once by the sheriff of Ingham county, charging him with the burglary of the East Lansing postoffice. Shanteau left Friday evening for Toledo. The officers at Lansing have an apron found wrapped around Crighton's revolver that is said to have belonged to one of the clerks in the postoffice.

JACKSON—An example that should prove effective to hunters to carry no loaded guns on a street car occurred Sunday when a hunter boarded at Mason the Lansing Interurban which arrives here at 1:40 p. m., with a loaded gun, which he placed in the aisle beside his seat. During the journey in some manner, perhaps the jolting of the car, the gun exploded and sent a shell whizzing down the aisle, going under the motorman's stool and landing in the front of the car. The explosion caused an uproar among the passengers, and it is fortunate that the accident did not result more seriously. Patrol.

HOWELL—Henry G. Knoop, aged 47 years, a prosperous farmer and thrasher, living near Oak Grove, was shot and almost instantly killed in his own home, and in the presence of his six children, Saturday evening. The police say Sedgewick Line, aged 10, the son of well-known and well-to-do farmer, is the slayer. Line has not been captured. The police believe he made his escape by boarding a west bound Grand Trunk railroad train at Durand and is now in Chicago. Coroner H. H. Collins said the shooting occurred as the result of a longstanding dispute between Line and Knoop on wages claimed due him for work he performed for Knoop during the thrashing season. This belief is corroborated in a measure by a letter found in the victim's home from the law firm of Shields & Shields, of this city, demanding the payment of $20 in favor of their client, Line.

"Bright Eyes."

One of the important musical productions of the season, Jos. M. Galtes, new play "Bright Eyes," by the authors of "Three Twins," will be the attraction at the New Whitney Theatre for matinee and night, November 20th at Ann Arbor.

This new play which has enjoyed a long run in New York City and another in Boston, has been heralded by critics as one of the cleverest seen in this country in many years. It is American throughout—tells an American story and is the work of American authors; it is produced by an American manager and with a company composed entirely of Americans.

The story tells of a young actor who has written a play and of his troubles in getting it produced, troubles that are increased by the actions of his young wife who is anxious to secure an "angel" for the production. It is brim full of bright, clean American humor without a shadow of coarseness or vulgarity, for real laugh compelling fun has seldom been equaled on the stage.

The company that will be seen in this city in the play is headed by Cecil Lean and Lawrence Holbrook, two of the cleverest of the younger generation of fun makers on the American stage. Both Mr. Lean and Miss Holbrook are well known in that city and their appearance in this new play is sure to be a welcome one to the many friends they invariably make wherever they appear. Others in the company are Vera Finlay, a talented and very beautiful young western actress; Percy Lyndal, for many years known as one of the best legitimate character actors on the stage who in "Bright Eyes" makes his first appearance in musical comedy; Adelaide Sharp and Arthur Conrad, for the last year or so known as the cleverest dancing team in vaudeville where they appeared under the name of Sharp & Conrad, Herbert Sallinger, Frank Brownlee and several others.

Of his chorus Mr. Galtes is particularly proud. Each of the fifty girls was carefully selected for her ability to sing and dance, as well as for her beauty and hundreds were tried before the chorus as it now stands was finally selected. It is without doubt the best looking and the cleverest chorus ever seen in Ann Arbor.

A Christmas Present That Means Something.

There is one especially good thing about a Christmas present of The Youth's Companion. It shows that the giver thought enough of you to give you something worth while. It is easy to choose something costing a great deal more which is absolutely useless, but to choose a present costing only $1.75 that will provide a long year's entertainment, and the uplifting companionship of the wise and great, is another matter. There is one present, however, which does that. The Youth's Companion.

If you want to know whether it is appropriate or welcome, just visit the home of some Companion subscriber on Companion day. Do not choose any Christmas present until you have examined The Companion. We will send you free sample copies and the beautiful Prospectus for 1911, telling something of how The Companion has recently been enlarged and improved. The one to whom you give the subscription will receive free all the numbers of 1910 issued after the money is received; also The Companion's Art Calendar for 1911, lithographed in thirteen colors and gold. These will be sent to reach the subscriber Christmas morning, if desired. You, too, as giver of the subscription, will receive a copy of the calendar.

"Father and the Boys."

The attraction at the New Whitney Theatre Friday, December 2, will be William H. Crane in George Ade's breezy and laughing success, "Father and the Boys." The play is now in its fourth season, the 600th mark having been passed last year, and it is destined to live for many seasons to come.

Mr. Crane has not been so well fitted to a part since the days of "The Senator" and "The Henrietta" and even in those great successes he was not given the real opportunities afforded him in the Ade comedy. He is just a bright, breezy, lovable old gentleman, who, when it becomes necessary to cut loose, can set his boys a pace that takes away their breath.

In "Father and the Boys" Mr. Crane plays the part of Lemuel Moorewood, a hard-working, shrewd wool merchant, who has slaved and toiled that his boys might benefit by his money and carry on the business in his stead. One of the boys, however, is more interested in athletics than business, while the other is kept busy dancing attendance on a society leader who parts her name in the middle.

At the opening of the play father has just consummated a huge transaction—not a trust, as he explains, but an organization for mutual interests, by which the firm is to make a grand financial coup, but this falls to interest the boys. Father is too provincial to suit them. He likes to go to bed at 10 o'clock, have his dinner in the middle of the day, and he abhors social affairs. The boys begin to talk with their father and tell him he is eight miles behind the procession and that he ought to get out and circulate.

Then father takes the boys at their word and to prove that he hasn't lost his business shrewdness and can play any game to the limit, he makes his debut before the astonished boys, and the pace he sets for them makes an interesting story.

The supporting company is a strong one, including Mabel Freyner, Dan Collier, Percy Brooks, Arthur Holman, Jessie Glendinning, Sidney Blair, Mildred Beverly, Rebecca Ridgley, Adele Clarke and others.

A LIBERAL OFFER

We Guarantee to Cure Dyspepsia. If We Fail the Medicine Costs Nothing.

To unquestionably prove to the people that indigestion and dyspepsia can be permanently relieved and that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will bring about this result, we will furnish the medicine absolutely free if it fails to give satisfaction to any one using it.

The remarkable success of Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is due to the high degree of scientific skill used in devising their formula as well as to the care exercised in their manufacture, whereby the well known properties of Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin have been combined with Carminatives and other agents.

Bismuth-Subnitrate and Pepsin are constantly employed and are recognized by the entire medical profession as invaluable in the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia.

The Pepsin used in Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets is prepared by a process which develops its greatest efficiency. Pepsin supplies to the digestive apparatus one of the most important elements of the digestive fluid, and without it the digestion and assimilation of food are impossible.

The carminatives possess properties which aid in relieving the flatulencies and pain caused by indigestion. This perfect combination of these ingredients makes a remedy invaluable for the complete relief of indigestion and dyspepsia.

We are so certain of this that we urge you to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets on our own personal guarantee. Three sizes, 25 cents, 50 cents and $1.00. Remember you can obtain Rexall Remedies only at—The Rexall Store.

Lion Fondles a Child.

In Pittsburg a savage lion fondled the hand that a child thrust into his cage. Danger to a child is sometimes greater when least regarded. Often it comes through colds, croup, and whooping cough. They slay thousands that Dr. King's New Discovery could have saved. "A few doses cured our baby of a very bad case of croup," writes Mrs. George B. Davis, of Flat Rock, N. C. "We always give it to him when he takes cold. It is a wonderful medicine for babies." Best for coughs, colds, laryngitis, asthma, hemorrhages, weak lungs. 50c, $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by L. T. Freeman, H. H. Fenn Co. and L. P. Vogel.

CLOUDS AND THE WEATHER

Forecasts of Thunderstorms and Hail Are Daily Distinguished—Explained by Professor.

Cloud weather forecasts made by Dr. A. de Quervain of Zurich are of the utmost scientific and practical importance. His deductions are based on the familiar cumulus cloud of warm summer days.

When reaching heights of six or seven miles it becomes a thunder cloud. The high floating top assumes the shape of a feely ice needle cloud and extends sideways in any shape. The ordinary cumulus cloud undergoes similar transformation at a level of three to four miles, and so does not lead to the formation of thunder clouds but merely to the production of feely clouds.

This sort of cloud can be regarded as a presage of good weather. The veil shaped hooded clouds have not been sufficiently explained. Often they encompass the top of a quickly rising cumulus cloud and until recently were thought to be instrumental in the production of hail. They are always found to be intimately connected with existing feely clouds, and on the other hand presage bad weather, occurring previous to thunderstorms.

Even such reliable presages of thunderstorms are the remarkably delicate varieties of feely clouds which are mostly found floating about four miles high. On a darker layer they are superposed, delicate white heads. These lofty curly heads, generally in the morning, safely predict a thunderstorm within 24 hours. By balloon ascents it was found that the occurrence of these clouds coincides with a violent drop in the temperature.

DEATH RATE OF THE SEXES

Statistics Show That Women Have a Right to Expect a Longer Life Than Men.

As is well known, the term of life of women is slightly longer than that of men. The difference of the mortality rates during the first few years of life, however, is striking. During the first year the mortality among males is decidedly greater than among females. Although more boys are born than girls, the proportions are reduced to almost even terms at the end of the first year by the excessive male mortality. Even during the first four years the mortality among males exceeds that among females, notwithstanding the fact that there are practically no distinctions made in the management of the two sexes. Both are subject to the same conditions, are dressed virtually the same, and receive the same food. At the age of about five years the comparative death rate among girls begins to increase. This has been attributed to the fact that boys of this age are more in the open air. The mortality in both sexes diminishes from this time until the twelfth year, when it attains its lowest point. It then steadily rises, being larger in each successive year. Between the twelfth and sixteenth year, for several years, the rate of increase is more rapid on the male side. The explanations that have been offered for these peculiarities are not wholly satisfactory, but one fact is clear—that during early years females possess a greater tenacity of life than do males.—Sunday Magazine of the Pittsburg Dispatch.

Pool and Vandal.

It is said that an ancient oak, one of the blazed trees of the old Green Bay Indian trail, is to be marked by a commemorative tablet. If the persons, whose worthy intentions cannot be doubted, will give over their plan the probability is that the tree will live much longer without the tablet than with it, says the Chicago Post. The vandal relic hunters will get in their work when once they know what the oak is. Trees, like other things, may be saved from their final fates. In order to save the great elm on Boston, common from the chipping and chopping degenerates it was necessary to build an iron fence about it and put it under special protection of the police. There are a good many "Indian trees" still standing in the woods on the north shore. Some years ago attention was called to one of the trees by a newspaper article. Within a few days the trunk had been hacked and mutilated and "adorned" with the initials of men of the kind who, if given an opportunity, would paint their names on the pyramids and the Washington monument.

Progress of Medical Science.
Sir T. Lauder Brunton, speaking in Edinburgh on the advance in medical surgery and nursing, said he remembered that in one ward with 25 patients there was one night nurse whom he found asleep on the hearth, and when he reported the circumstance he was told "she was scrubbing all day; can you expect to be watching at night." Their methods of diagnosing diseases were different now. In those days, when he was senior president, there were only two clinical thermometers in Edinburgh, probably in the whole of Scotland, and these were used in the clinical wards in the infirmary. These he used to carry about like a gun case under his arm. They were two feet long, and took ten minutes to record the temperature.—Los Angeles Times.

Unsatisfactory.

"Have you seen the Washington monument?"
"Yes," replied the New Yorker. "It's a pretty tall building, but what's the good of it without any offices for rent?"
