Paul Huscha Shot and Instantly Killed by a Companion.

A fatal shooting accident occurred on the grounds of the Michigan Portland Cement Co., Four Mile Lake, at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

FATAL ACCIDENT

Paul Huscha, aged 24 years, a Russian, received a charge of shot from a gun which was fired by Daniel Kolonski, a Russian Polander, who came here from Canada about three weeks ago, and had been stopping with the deceased while waiting to secure a position in the plant when it commenced operations for the season.

Huscha and a number of his countrymen lived in an old box freight car located near the lake front, and the party had entered into a friendly shooting match to ascertain which of them could shoot the most holes in their hats when thrown into the air as a target. Huscha was the first to shoot and Kolonski followed. Huscha with his finger on the trigger, seems of 59 years, 5 months and 18 days. from the location, throwing the gun Mrs. Howard A. Has Your Baby's Birth Been Recorded?

The department has recently inaugurated a system of notifying all parents, by means of an abbreviated certificate, when their baby's birth has been recorded in the department of state at Lansing. If you receive a certificate you will know that proper record has been made. It you do not receive a certificate you will know that no record has been made of the birth of your child, and you should at once communicate with the physician or midwife attending the birth and see to it that a proper certificate is filed with the local registrar.

The law requires physicians and midwives to file certificates within ten days after date of birth, and a severe penalty is prescribed for failure or neglect to do so.

Legal considerations of the highest importance enter into the registration of births. Communities are waking up to their obligations to restrict child laber. Without adequate registration of births such regulations is hampered and the law often nullified in its effect. In this way many children are deprived of education and are permitted to waste their limited energies in industrial pursuits, later to become the subjects of community relief. The transactions of life insurance companies frequently call for the legal proof of true age. Since the differences in premium charges vary with the age, it will be seen that the factor of age is essential to the determination of the amount of benefit which is to be paid at death. The establishment of personal identity often depends upon the validy of a birth record. Litigation in matters of property inheritance, the settlement of estates and the disposition of trusts, can in many instances be avoided when accurate birth records are at hand. Special problems in the morbid aspects of social life, such as the age of consent, the gravity of the offense in criminal cases, etc., depend upon efficient birth registration.

It was the first real battle of the session on the house side and the longest fight on a single bill thus far this session. The Smith bill provides that motor vehicles shall be exempt funds to secure signatures to initiafrom taxation except on the basis of horse power and weight and provides that the income from this tax shall be devoted exclusively to the promotion of good roads. Under this bill Wayne is the heaviest loser. Detroit losing some $378,000 from its tax rolls. Other cities lose proportionately and joined with the Detroiters, but the combined support of the representatives of big urban districts was futile against the solid phalanx of agricultural and small town members. Representatives Ashley, Jerome, Palmer and Culver led the fight against the bill and in turn quoted figures to support their contention that the bill was unjust. Representative Flowers of Wayne was the one member from that county who supported the measure. Representative Penney's one deer bill and his measure designed to establish a five cent bounty on rats caused a division and some little discussion in the house Tuesday afternoon, but both were passed by the house with a liberal margin of votes and sent to the senate.

Only one more change was suggested to the one-dear bill and that by the author at the suggestion of other members of the house. This amendment proposed to permit hunting parties of eight persons or less to take one deer for consumption in camp and parties of more than eight to take two deer for that purpose. It was argued however that this would so complicate the work of the game warden that it might defeat the purpose of the law and it was defeated. The measure then was passed by a vote of 61 to 30.

She met Warrington at luncheon, and she greeted him amiably. To her mind there was something pitiful in the way he had tried to improve his matter whom she might marry, she was convinced that never would the thought of this man fade completely from her memory. Neither the amazing likeness nor the romantic background had anything to do with this conviction. It was the man's utter

"Isn't he a sassy little beggar?" laughed the owner. "That's the way; his hand, or claw, rather, against all the world. I've had him half a dozen years, and he hates me just as thoroughly now as he did when I picked him up while I was at Jaipur."

"Have you carried him about all this time?" demanded the colonel. "He was one of the two friends I had, one of the two I trusted," quietly, with a look which rather disconcerted the Anglo-Indian.

"By the actions of him I should say that he was your bitterest enemy." "He is; yet I call him friend. There's a peculiar thing about friendship," said the kneeling man. "We make a man our friend; we take him on trust, frankly and loyally; we give him the best we have in us; but we never teally know. Rajah is frankly my enemy, and that's why I love him and trust him. I should have preferred a dog; but one takes what one can. Besides . . . Warrington paused. thrust the perch between the bars, and got up.

"Jah, jah, jah! Jah—jah—ja-a-ah!" the bird shrilled.

They think every bit of tinsel is gold, every bit of colored glass, ruby. Romance, adventure! Bah! So much twaddle has been written about the East that cads and scoundrels are mistaken for Galahads and D'Artagnans. Few men remain in this country who can with honor leave it. Who knows what manner of man I am?"

He picked up the parrot cage and strode away.

"Jah, jah!" began the bird. Not all the diplomacy which worldlyvise men have at their disposal could have drawn this girl's interest more surely than the abrupt, rude manner of his departure.

CHAPTER IV.

Two Days of Paradise.

At first Elsa did not know whether she was annoyed or amused. The man's action was absurd, or would have been in any other man. His advice to her to go home was downright impudence; and yet the sight of the parrot cage dangling at his side made it impossible for her to take lasting offense. Once upon a time there had been a little boy who played in her garden. When he was cross he would take his playthings and go home. The boy might easily have been this man Warrington, grown up.

Of course he would come and apologize to her for his rudeness. Perhaps he had resented her curiosity; perhaps her questions had been pressed too hard; and perhaps he had suddenly doubted her genuine interest. At any rate it was a novel experience. And that bewildering likeness!

She returned to her chair and opened the book again. And as she read her wonder grew. The diction was exquisite; there was style; but now as she read there was lacking the one thing that stood for life-blood. It did not pulsate in the veins of these people. Until now she had not recognized this fact, and she was half-way through the book. What had happened to her since yesterday? To what cause might be assigned this opposite angle of vision, so clearly defined?

The book fell upon her knees and dreamily she watched the perspective open and divaricate. The low banks with their golden haze of dust, the cloudless sky, the sad and lonely white pagodas, charmed her; and the languor of the East crept stealthily into her northern blood. She was not conscious of the subtle change; she only knew that the world of yesterday was unlike that of today.

Warrington, after depositing Rajah in the stateroom, sought the bench on the stern deck. He filled his cutty with purser-loaned tobacco and roundly damned himself as a blockhead. He had forgotten all the niceties of civilization; he no longer knew how to behave. > > ONLY ONE CREW LOSE LIVES

News of Disaster Comes to London Just As the Zone Blockade Was Beginning to Be Regarded As Failure.

London - Germany's submarines scored a victory Tuesday by torpedoing and sinking three British merchant steamers at three widely separated points on the English coast.

The crews of two of the vessels were saved but of the 38 men on the other steamer only one was rescued This news was announced officially by the admiralty late Tuesday night in a statement that indicated either a peculiar coincidence or concerted action on the part of three German submarines, and also that the Germans gave no warning before firing at the British ships.

The first steamer to be sunk, the Tangistan, which was attacked off Scarborough in the North sea, was sent to the bottom several hours before daylight when most of the men aboard were asleep. Only one of the 38 escaped by being picked up by a passing ship.

The news of the latest exploits of the German submarines came just as the British public was congratulating themselves that the threatened German sea blockade had been a failure. The admiralty report follows:

The Tangistan and Blackwood were cargo boats and the Princess Victoria was a coastwise passenger ship. Asthe vessels were torpedoed in a period of less than 9 hours it would seem that all three were sunk by different under-water boats.

Scarborough, off which port the Tangistan was sunk, is on the North sea, in Yorkshire; Hastings is on the English channel in Sussex, and Liverpool is virtually on the Irish sea.

The Tangistan, the largest of the vessels, was of 2,393 tons displacement. The Blackwood was built in 1907 and belonged to the Tyne-side line of North Shields. She was a 741-ton vessel. The Princess Victoria was a steamer of 616 tons.

Democrats Proclaim General Barreto As President of Republic.

Correia Barreto has been proclaimed "president of the Republic of Northern Portugal" by a congress of democrats, who have been in session at Lamego, according to a dispatch received here Saturday by the Fabra News agency from Madrid. This news

The course of the republic of Portugal, since its establishment, five years ago, following the assassination of King Carlos, has been marked by political dissension and strife. Reports of royalist agitation from Lisbon have been more or less frequent, and these latterly have been superseded by indications of another movement, the democratic or radical, which in the last few months has showed Itself strongly opposed to the existing

Five German Reservists Admit Part in

New York-Carl Ruroede, a German American, and four German reservists, brought to trial in the federal court here Monday on indictments charging them with conspiring against the United States by obtaining false American passports, unexpectedly withdrew the previous pleas of not guilty and threw themselves on the mercy of the court. All five pleaded guilty.

Ruroede, who was accused of operating a bureau for the issuance of false passports, was sentenced to serve three years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta. The others, Arthur Wilhelm Heinrich Sachsse, a reserve lieutenant in the German army, Walter Mueller, August Meyer and Herman Wegener, were let off with fines of $200 each.

COOKS MUCH RICE AT ONCE Housekeeper Recommends Her Way

as Time Saving and Making for Economy. In winter, owing to the low temperature, I cook a large supply of rice at one time, as much as four cupfuls. The wholesale cooking saves fuel and enables me to have a constant supply on hand, which I use in the following way: Some I use as a side dish with meat instead of potatoes, for I find it is cheaper and more nourishing, pound for pound, being in addition much easier to prepare. While the rice is still hot, I line a ring mold with about one cupful of it, and set away to shape and cool. At the same time. I set aside in a small pan enough for a small pudding on the following day and another portion I beat with eggs and at once shape as rice cakes for breakfast. Sometimes I save a portion to be used with croquettes. I serve the ring of rice with leftovers of any kind of meat, heated with a warm, rich gravy, filled into the center of the ring, which makes a substantial second meal. Sometimes I combine it with a cheese sauce.-Exchange.

Has Fish as Foundation, but the Other Ingredients Are Many and Varied.

Procure a head of salmon or bass and place in a saucepan with a sliced carrot, a sliced onion, two branches of celery, two branches of parsley, one bay leaf, a sprig of thyme and a clove. Moisten with three quarts of water. Season with two teaspoonfuls of salt, half a teaspoonful of pepper, one teaspoonful of curry powder and gently boil one and a half hours. Strain the soup through a cheesecloth into another saucepan, add three ounces of raw rice and gently boil 15 minutes. Finely chop one branch of parsley and one small onion. Add to the soup, lightly mix and boil five minutes longer. Remove the skin and bone from

Beans Spanish.

Soak overnight two cupfuls of pink beans, then boil them until tender. Boil three sweet red peppers and put them through a sieve. Fry three slices of bacon until brown, then add the pepper pulp and one green pepper that has been minced fine and one shredded onion. Then put in the beans, adding plenty of juice, a little salt and some grated cheese. Cook together thoroughly.

Poached Eggs.

Put some water in saucepan to boil, add a pinch of salt and a little vinegar; let it boil very hard. Break eggs on to a plate one at a time and drop them into the boiling water exactly where it bubbles. Take eggs out with a skimmer and trim them nicely, although there should be no trimming necessary if properly done. Place each egg on a piece of toast and serve while hot.

Judging Distance. Many people find it difficult to judge how far off a sound comes from, at of course, in regard to big guns fired on battleships at sea, it is almost impossible for an ordinary person to form an opinion; but the distance at which various sounds can be heard are both curious and remarkable. For instance, roughly speaking, the whistle of a locomotive is heard 3,300 yards through the air: the noise of a railway train, 2,800 yards; the report of a rifle and the bark of a dog. 1.800 yards; an orchestra or the roll of a drum; 1.600 yards: the human voice reaches to a distance of 1,000 yards; the croaking of frogs, 900 yards; the chirping of crickets, 800 yards.

Disappearing Island.

The most famous disappearing island in the middle ages was the island of St. Brendan. The saint for whom it was named was an Irish worthy, who is said to have sailed, with a number of monks, in search of a fabled paradise and to have landed on an island in midocean. St. Brendan's was believed to be visible at times from the west coast of Ireland, but it always disappeared when explorers were sent out in search of it. When one of the Portuguese kings ceded the Canary islands to the Castilian crown the treaty was reported to have included. St. Brendan's, which was described as the island that has not yet been found.

From present indications the flat Japanese types of parasols will play an unusually strong part in this season's parasol demand. Many novelties of this character are being offered. SOME SAYORY SOUPS.

Soups may be divided into two classes, soups with stock and soups without stock. Stock soups are chiefly valuable for their extrac tives and are mainly serviceable in the menu in getting the stomach ready for heartier foods. Soups without stock are so nutritious that they should be followed by a light meal as the soup is often a meal in itself, especially cream soups, purees and bisques. As an example of stock soups consomme is a good example, prepared as fol-

Plague's Awful Death Roll. In six months in the seventeenth entury 380,000 persons died in Naples

By ALFRED DENNISON

(Copyright, 1915, by W. G. Chapman.) The marvelous loyalty of India to Great Britain was the most significant thing in the whole of the great war. In one quarter only was there dissatisfaction. That was the little state of Bundapur, in central India. Bundapur was the birthplace of the ferocious worship of the goddess Kali, the murder-goddess. For centuries this fierce idolatry had been decaying, but of late years there had been an effort to re-

Now Bundapur had strong links of contact with other idolatrous states of India. If the rajah of Bundapur took advantage of England's need to throw off her yoke, he would be joined by other potentates, and the flame of revolt would spread all through the central provinces.

It was Mannering's task to preserve peace in Bundapur. He was the British resident there, and the power behind the throne. There were two other rulers in the turbulent little statethe Rajah Ferozeshah, whose ancestors had been Moslems and had become idolators in order to retain their hold upon the kingdom, and Muzzur, the chief priest, who officiated in the magnificent temple of the goddess, to which votaries came from all parts of Mannering and old Muzzur were good friends, for the British government scrupulously respects all faiths in its dominions, but when opportunity comes, friendship goes. And opportunity had come with the war to the old king Ferozeshah, who dreamed which was to embrace all central to marry him when the war began. That postponed matters, and Mannering, chafing under the delay, could only continue to administer the affairs of the kingdom, as the representative of the British raj. He had not a single white soldier to maintain his authority, for they had all been withdrawn. Meanwhile the annual festival of the goddess Kali was approaching.

Mannering had a shrewd idea of what was brewing in Bundapur. He a razor edge before him, incalculable had, in fact, had a frank talk with old ills must follow. Mannering saw it. Muzzer. He had shown him what it was no use showing the old king, because the priest's word alone could toward Mannering, motioning to him decide the issue. He had explained to to prostrate himself. Mannering waved him that England's might, temporarily withdrawn, would fall after the war with fearful force upon a rebellious Bundapur. The old priest watched him with a serene face. He knew the struggle that Mannering had gone through; he knew, too, that the rajah would not be overpleased at this dramatic ending of all his plans for carving out an idolatrous empire in the heart of conquered. The enthusiasm was indescribable. A huge mob gathered outside the residency and cheered itself hoarse. But inside Mannering was pacing up and down, and he paced all night, and none dared disturb him. At dawn he called the bearers of his palanquin, and, stepping inside, he allowed himself to be borne through the enthusiastic mobs that lined the streets toward Kali's temple. Bundapur was en fete. The opening of the great annual festival was the occasion for frenzies of fanatical delight, and the approaching conversion of Mannering was the cause of the wildest excitement. Through the streets rushed fanatics, slashing themselves with knives. The golden image of the goddess was borne back from the procession to the accompaniment of a

The palanquin stopped. The cur tains were drawn back. Mannering stepped out and entered the grotesque temple, walking on a path strewn with flowers. Inside he heard the throbbing of carving out for himself an empire of flutes and the sighs of a vast multitude of worshipers. Then he was be fore the altar, beside old Muzzur, who held the sacrificial knife, and staring into his eyes were the cruel eyes of Kall, the stone image with the many hands, each dripping with human

Upon his golden throne lolled the old rajah. He was calculating what streets wearing the following sandwich step he should take when Mannering sign: had accepted Kali. It upset the plan that he had built; yet he was shrewd enough to have others in view. With Mannering's aid he could yet carve out his empire.

Mannering, standing beside the priest, let his eyes roam over the huge interior of the temple. He saw the decorated walls, the breathless crowds, completely silent, waiting for the moment when he would fall before Kali's statue, to be anointed with the blood of the dreadful sacrifice, the drawn curtains behind which the rajah's wives were gazing curiously on

And at the last moment, while the sound of the tom-toms indicated that the goddess was awaiting the sacrifice, new thought took possession of Mannering. He could not carry out his

He perceived the hideous pit into which he had so nearly fallen. The world would ascribe his complaisance to fear: it would be said that an Englishman had accepted Kali to save his life. Was not the empire built upon faith and loyalty, and the courage of her servants? How could he serve it better than by remaining true to his faith, whatever happened?

It was the moment of judgment, when, unless he saw his duty clear as The blood of the sacrifice was

Must Have Healthful Sleep. Edison, the inventor, has been quoted as saying that little sleep is necessary, and that the time will come when mankind will not sleep at all, and therefore not waste a fourth or fifth of valuable time in the 24 hours of the day in a condition equivalent to death. At the moment, of course, Mr. Edison was breaking into the role of the professional humorist. APPLICATION OF LIME-SULPHUR MIXTURES

Timely Spraying Saves the First Crop.

Lime-sulphur wash is mainly a | the late-winter application of bor winter remedy, and the later in the winter the treatment is given the better, just so the work is finished before the buds open. It is injurious to young foliage and blossoms. If one the scale, if it should get started at is unavoidably delayed in using it and any time, and would entirely prevent finds that he must treat the trees after the buds have opened, the application should be directed merely to the trunk and branches, and care should be used to touch as little as possible of the flowers, foliage or young fruit with it. When this care is used, it may be used as a remedy for San Jose scale even in summer.

Lime-sulphur wash is now the material mostly relied upon for control- which come in contact with the mateling the scale, and it has proved so rial, of brass, as brass will withstand effectual that when one once finds that his trees are infested and knows are quickly destroyed by it. how to prepare this wash, there is no real necessity for another tree being lost from the scale. trees, so as to thoroughly treat all the branches and twigs, it is fatal to every scale that is wetted by it. It cannot, however, be relied upon to exis impracticable to make an application so thorough as to reach every one of the tiny scales. It is so effective. however, that one thorough treatment late each winter is sufficient to keep the trees in good condition. Trees that are very badly infested when the scale is first discovered might be treated in the fall after the leaves are off and again in late winter. But once the scale is subdued, one treatment each winter is sufficient. When trees have been sprayed with lime-sulphur wash in late winter there is no need to spray with bordeaux mixture until after the blossoms fall; deaux mixture. An excellent feature of the lime-sulphur wash is its gen eral effect on the trees in removing moss, dead bark, etc. This will check the scale from killing dozens or hundreds of valuable trees before it is discovered, as it often does.

Lime-sulphur has some disadvantages. It is somewhat troublesome to prepare and is destructive to spray pumps by reason of its corrosive action. This latter point should be provided against by purchasing pumps with all working parts, or all parts it quite well. Copper pumps or tanks Self-boiled lime-sulphur is practically the only satisfactory fungicide that is safe to use on peach, plum and cherry foliage. At the present time it is used for the control of peach scab and brown rot upon peaches, and leaf rot on cherry. .

Homemade lime-sulphur solution costs about one-half as much as the commercially prepared at current prices. It requires a little more care in its use, since it is usually not as constant in strength as the best commercial brands.

Boil the solution not less than fortyfive nor more than sixty minutes.

Unless used the day it is made, which is often the most practicable terminate the San Jose scale, for it method, concentrated lime-sulphur solution should be stored as soon as made in air-tight barrels. If open vessels are used for storage a thin film of oil on the surface will prevent deterioration.

If burned lime is used it should be slaked with hot water, and care must be taken to use enough water to prevent burning, and yet not enough to drown the lime and thus prevent slaking; slaking is more easily done with hot water. The sulphur may be mixed to a paste and then added to the lime solution, or it may be added dry and mixed afterward. Hydrated lime can be added after the sulphur, in other words, a late-winter appli- before the sulphur or with the sulcation of the wash takes the place of phur with equally good results.

VINTER FEED FOR THE COWS

mportant for Dairyman to Provide an Abundance of Different Feeds to Keep Up Milk Flow.

(By R. G. WEATHERSTONE.) During the winter months it is gen erally found difficult to provide such food as is necessary for the dairy cow to keep up the regular flow of milk. At this season of the year feed is generally scarce—the proper kind for the dairy cow-and that which we have on hand is often of an inferior quality.

After coming off the green fresh grass they do not relish such dry feed and being of an inferior quality one will soon notice a great decrease in the flow of milk.

For this reason it is very important for the farmer to try to provide an abundance of different feeds to make up for this dry or inferior feed. Of course the flow of milk cannot be kept up to what they give during the spring and summer when pastured. but with plenty of first-class hay, such as alfalfa and good clover, and fine feed of bran and corn meal kept on hand that it may be fed liberally two or three times a day as slops, there will not be so much decrease in the milk supply after all. That is, if it is given to them liberally and regularly. Do not think it is a waste to feed such feed when there isn't anything but dry hay of some kind to feed on. causes: lumpy sulphur, which should | On the latter, the cow can barely be run through a sieve, not enough | maintain her flesh, much less keep up

When we have good clover hay and alfalfa, not so much of the bran, fine feed or meal is required, as both, when cured properly, are very strong feeds and cattle thrive on them.

I am not going to attempt to give the amount that should be fed, as I leave that for the dairyman to decide for himself. What I wish to impress upon the reader's mind is this: The necessity of having on hand always a liberal supply of bran, meal, fine feed, etc., to go with the dry hay or corn fodder, which is generally of an inferior quality, fed at this season of the

Without the above feed mentioned, it is impossible for the dairyman to obtain good results during the season when cattle are not pastured.

TASK OF DEHORNING CATTLE

Operation Is Most Frequently Per formed to Prevent Animals From Injuring Each Other.

Cattle have been dehorned since about 1790. The operation sometimes is performed to remove horns that are broken or otherwise injured, but most frequently it is to prevent horned animals from injuring one another. Usually it is considered justifiable on ac ute ago. count of the benefits that are derived from the operation.

The growth of horns on calves may be prevented entirely by the liberal out ten minutes ago, Jenkins!" use of a strong solution of ordinary lye; or if the use of a solution is not desirable it can be purchased at drug stores in the form of sticks known as caustic potash. This should be applied immediately after birth to the place where the horn makes its ap heroes. pearance. Care should be exercised when using this remedy because the lye will eat away all the skin with which it comes in contact.

Various kinds of instruments are used for the removal of the horns of older animals. If an ordinary saw is used it should be sharp and fine, as this lessens the danger of splintering the bones of the head during the operation. If a large number of animal are dehorned, quicker and safer work can be done with a "dehorning instrument." This can be purchased of any veterinary supply company for $7.50 to $10.

It is best not to dehorn during the fly season. Sometimes, the horn is cut close to the head and cavities are opened which become filled with maggots if flies are prevalent. The ani mal suffers intensely, if this happens and there is a rapid loss in condition If cavities are accidentally exposed a small piece of cotton, smeared with tar, may be applied to the wound and held in place by means of a bandage around the head. This also is of great value if excessive bleeding follows the operation. If maggets gain entrance to the cavities of the head they should be washed out with a weak, water; ution of ordinary dip

TRACTS CLEARED OF MALARIA

Gratifying Progress Has Been Made by Those Interested in Conquering the Disease.

Malaria, to which children are susseptible, has been made largely a preventable disease by a study of the mosquito carrier, its breeding places and natural history, and by inoculation experiments on animals and man. It was proved by Italian observers that the mosquito disseminates bird malaria in the same manner as in the human subject.

The final upshot of these investigations has been that large tracts of hitherto waste and dangerous land have been rendered safe and productive. A widespread cause of debilitating sickness, and even of death, has thus been removed.

In such areas the saddest sight has been the stunted, anemic children. with enlarged livers and spleens, the evidences of chronic malarial poisoning, that can now be obviated by putting modern knowledge into effect.

Unchryalrous.

Two farmers, attired in corduroys and gaiters, were strolling through a picture gallery, where they looked, and apparently felt, decidedly out of place. But at last they brought up before a picture which really seemed to please them-a portrait of a lovely girl with a particularly ugly bulldog. "This is something nice, Dick," said

"What is it called?"

Dick referred to the catalogue. "'Beauty and the Beast,' " he said. The other man looked closer at the bulldog.

"Ah!" he sighed, appreciatively, "he is a beauty, too!"-London Tit-Bits.

DRINK LOTS OF WATER TO FLUSH THE KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat and Take Salts for Backache or Bladder Trouble-Neutralize Acids.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick-person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water; ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists. here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble .--
