PERCY BARTIG SHOT

His Father Finds His Dead Body Lying on Rifle Monday Afternoon.

The finding of the dead body of Percy Bartig, who resided with his father near Francisco, about one o'clock Monday afternoon, gave a shock to his family and the surrounding neighborhood.

After breakfast Monday morning Percy left the house to turn the cows into the pasture and did not return to the house before going to the field to work as was his usual custom, and while his grandmother, Mrs. Monagle, and the sister, Lillian, mentioned the fact, it was thought he had gone direct from the pasture to the corn field to join his father in cutting corn. About 9 o'clock a lunch was sent to the field for the father and Percy, but the latter was not with the father. As Percy was to help a neighbor in the afternoon it was thought he had gone to help the neighbor in the forenoon instead. When at noon the boy had not returned, the father, Wm. Bartig, drove to the home of the neighbor whom Percy was to have helped. As Percy had not been seen there, a search was started by Mr. Bartig on his return home, and he soon found the boy in the orchard lying, face down, over his rifle. How long life had been extinct is not known, and whether the wound that caused instant death was accidental or self-inflicted, is not known.

Of his immediate relatives he leaves his father, two sisters, Lillian and Neva, and a grandmother, Mrs. Wm. Monagle. The funeral was held at the home Thursday, October 14, 1915. Rev. Geo. C. Notthardt officiating. Interment at Mt. Hope cemetery, Waterloo, beside his mother.

Electric Railway Service, Jr.

About the first of August, 1915, Electric Railway Service, the weekly paper issued by the Publicity Department of the Detroit United Lines, announced that the engineers of the company had been given orders to draw plans and make estimates for a new station at Chelsea. A short time ago Village President Bacon received a bundle of plans which the company stated were the result of the work of the engineers, in compliance with those orders. The date on the plans reads "June, 1911," which, taken with all of the promises made by the company, shows that someone connected with it is given to prevarication. If it took from July, 1915, until June, 1911, to complete these plans the new depot will have been erected about the time of the Revolutionary War. In the meantime the traveling public is being entertained in the box car which has been doing duty for a depot.

President Bacon is circulating petitions to the Michigan Railway Commission praying that the village be given relief in this matter, and that the Company be ordered to proceed with the building of a new depot.

Mrs. Michael Icheldinger.

Mrs. Regina Icheldinger was born in Brant, Bruce County, Canada, January 6, 1861, and died at her home in Lima, Thursday, October 7, 1915, aged 54 years, 9 months and 1 day.

The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Schenk. She was united in marriage with Michael Icheldinger, in the township of Scio, October 5, 1881, and after spending one year in Michigan they moved to Canada, where they made their home for nine years. They returned to this state twenty-four years ago and for the past few years they have resided in Lima on the farm which they purchased of D. C. McLaren.

She is survived by her husband, three daughters, Mrs. Clara Middlebrook, of New Mexico; Misses Lucy and Mamie who reside at home; four sons, Alfred, of Webster, Edward, David and Herbert, of Lima; four grandchildren; five brothers and three sisters all residents of Canada.

The funeral was held at the home Sunday morning, Rev. A. A. Schoen, pastor of St. Paul's church, officiating. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Happenings in Chelsea Forty Years Ago This Week.

One day last week John Gregg dug a hill of potatoes containing 170 potatoes.

Supervisor Hatch went to Ann Arbor Monday to attend the meeting of the board of supervisors.

While Charles Downer was riding his horse in the running race last Saturday the horse became frightened and threw his rider to the ground, injuring him slightly.

Bells to be Installed.

At the inquest held on the death of Mrs. Albert Moeckel, who was injured at the west Guthrie crossing of the Michigan Central Railroad, it was suggested that a warning device be installed at that place.

The matter was taken up with the Michigan Railroad Commission, who sent inspecting Engineer Bice to make a survey of the premises. The officials of the railroad advised that they had no objections to mechanical device being installed at the crossing, and the Commission, after examining the report of the inspection, have determined that the safety of the public reasonably demands additional protection, have ordered that the Michigan Central Railroad Co. within thirty days install a track circuit crossing alarm bell; the circuits to be not less than 2,000 feet on each side of the crossing.

The same order should have included the east Guthrie crossing, which is as dangerous as the one which is to be protected.

John George Wagner.

Our citizens were shocked to learn Monday morning of the sudden death of John George Wagner, which occurred at his farm home near Bridgewater Station about midnight Sunday.

Mr. Wagner was in Chelsea Sunday and was apparently in his usual good health, and up to the time of his death gave no warning of any change.

He was born in Freedom township, Washtenaw county, March 3, 1852. January 11, 1885, he was married to Regina Barbara Kern, and for many years they made their home in Lima township. To this union nine children were born, eight of whom survive, Herman, Carl, Ernest, Paul, Reuben, Elizabeth, Julia and Frieda.

In 1904 Mr. Wagner sold his farm and moved to Chelsea, purchasing the Chelsea House, which he conducted until June 22, 1915, at which time he purchased a farm in Bridgewater township, and has spent a portion of his time there, and also maintained a home in Chelsea.

His body was brought to his late residence on Grant street Monday afternoon, and the funeral will be Thursday afternoon, at 1 o'clock at the house and at 2 o'clock from St. Paul's church, of which he has been a member for many years. Interment will be at Oak Grove cemetery.

Meeting of Supervisors.

The annual meeting of the board of supervisors was called to order Monday morning, and Supervisor Holmes of Ypsilanti was elected temporary chairman. The democratic members met in caucus and selected Martin A. Ryan, of Ann Arbor, for permanent chairman, and later he was unanimously elected to that position.

Chairman Ryan, at the morning session of the supervisors, Tuesday, announced the following committees: On equalization—Supervisors Gill, Koebbe, Kenny, Schlenker, Jedele.

To examine reports of county officers: Teacher—Staebler, Blaich, Haist. County clerk—Charles Kapp, Dresselhouse and Gross. Register of deeds—Every, Dawson, Roberts. Sheriff—Madden, VanRiper, C. A. Kapp.

Salaries of county officers—Holmes, Roberts, Gross, Kelsey, Staebler.

Apportionment of state and county taxes—Koebbe, Gaudy, Brooks.

Public buildings—Jedele, Krapf and Haist.

Rejected taxes—Young, Fiegel and Roberts.

To examine accounts of superintendents of poor—Kelsey, McCullough Young.

Finance—Krapf, Koebbe, Every. Drains—Grosshans, VanRiper and Gaudy.

Printing—Renap, Hatzel, Gross.

County roads and bridges—Kenny, Every and Madden.

District good roads—Schlenker, Fiegel, Gill, Charles Kapp, McCullough.

For diem—Charles A. Kapp, Grosshans Dawson.

NEW BUILDING

The Chelsea Screw Co. Will Erect New Building on South Main Street.

The Chelsea Screw Company is rapidly outgrowing its quarters in the Mack building, and has purchased of the M. J. Lehman estate the property lying between Main and Congdon streets, and facing the D., J. & C. railway, containing about three-quarters of an acre. The sale includes a right of way across the property of the Commonwealth Power Co. and also along the south side of the Lehman property on Congdon street.

The company expects to begin grading this week, but will not commence building operations until next spring. The new building will be 40x100 feet, one story high and constructed of concrete and glass, and will be as near fire proof as it will be possible to build.

The Chelsea Screw Company started in a modest way but a short time ago, and business has increased rapidly, new machinery being added all of the time, and the plant is now run day and night in an effort to keep up with the orders.

Mrs. Mary A. Bockres.

Mrs. Mary Augusta Bockres, was born in Indiana, Pennsylvania, June 22, 1849, and died at her home on Van Buren street, Thursday evening, October 7, 1915, aged 66 years, 3 months and 16 days.

Miss Mary A. Hoffman was united in marriage with Gabriel Bockres and a few years after their marriage they moved to Michigan, and for the last twenty-eight years have been residents of Chelsea. Three children were born to this union, two of whom died several years ago.

She is survived by her husband, one son, one grandchild, three sisters, Mrs. A. J. Snyder, of Ann Arbor, Mrs. A. Anderson, of Denton, Mrs. Nancy Everett, of Ohio, and two brothers, Frank Hoffman, of Franklin, Pa., and O. L. Hoffman of this place.

The funeral was held Saturday morning from the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, Rev. Father Considine celebrating the mass. Interment at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

The out of town friends who attended the funeral were: Mrs. J. A. Snyder and Mrs. J. F. Brighton, of Ann Arbor; Mrs. A. Anderson, of Denton; Lloyd Hoffman, of Jackson; Miss Katherine Conklin, of Howell; George Kratzmiller and family, of Dexter.

Ann Arbor Defeats Chelsea.

Unable to stop the smashing attack of the Ann Arbor high Reserves' backfield, the Chelsea high school football team went down to defeat by the score of 41 to 6 Saturday morning.

The Ann Arbor gained at will and the times that any of the backfield quartet were stopped without a gain were few and far between. The one thing that marred the game from the Reserves' viewpoint, was the fact that the boys from Chelsea were able to score against them. With but four minutes left to play in the last quarter Chelsea seemed to get a new life. They carried the ball to the seven-yard line by line backs and end runs. Here with only a minute left before play would be called, Hirth plunged over with the only Chelsea score. They missed the try at goal.

Freeman was the big star of the Chelsea team, and he was the lad who made the most of the visitors' gains. In the fourth quarter he ran 65 yards, only to fumble the ball, when tackled by an Ann Arbor player on the six-yard line.

THREE KILLED BY TRAIN AT MOSLEY

AUTOMOBILE IS STRUCK WHILE CROSSING TRACK BY P.
M. TRAIN.

DRIVER WAS SLIGHTLY DEAF

Only Occupant of Car to Escape
Death Loses Foot As Result of Accident Which Cost Lives of Three.

Lowell—An automobile containing four people was struck by passenger train 33 on the Pere Marquette railway Monday afternoon at Mosley, and Mrs. E. L. Gould, 60 years old, her daughter who was driving the machine. Mrs. Robert E. Johnson, 27 years old, and the latter's son, Robert Gould Johnson, 3 years old, were instantly killed, while the fourth occupant of the machine, Mrs. M. E. Somers, 77 years old, had both feet so badly crushed that it was necessary to amputate her left foot.

The four lived about three and one-half miles northeast of Mosley. Mrs. Johnson had recently purchased the automobile with the insurance money which she received at the death of her husband a short time ago, and the four went to Mosley on a trading trip. It was Mrs. Somers' first ride in an automobile.

As the party neared the Pere Marquette tracks just inside the village, the crossing operator came out to flag them. The party did not notice him, however, and Mrs. Johnson, being slightly deaf, did not hear the approaching train.

The machine was struck squarely by the train, which was going about 40 miles an hour. The body of Robert Johnson was picked up more than 100 feet from the scene of the accident. His neck was broken. In the boy's hand was still clasped a bag of candy which his mother had purchased for him at Mosley. The bodies of Mrs. Gould and Mrs. Johnson were picked up about 50 feet from the crossing.

NEW SCHOOL LAW OBSERVED

Declaration of Independence is Read in Schools Tuesday.

Lansing—Approximately 600,000 public school children in 8,743 school houses in Michigan got something in their daily studies Tuesday that they were not looking for, namely, the reading of the Declaration of Independence. This was done in pursuance of the bill passed by the legislature of 1915, known as the Koehler act, compelling the reading of the famous document on certain holidays. Columbus day is one of the holidays mentioned. In addition to Tuesday the declaration will have to be read on all other state and national holidays during the school year when schools are in session.

Forest Fire Loss is Small.

Lansing—According to figures given out by State Game Warden Oates, 1915 marked the lowest amount of forest fire losses in many years, the loss as reported by supervisors this year being only $20,000, and unless some serious fires result between now and the time snow flies a record will have been made.

Compared to a $2,500,000 forest fire loss in 1908, $580,811 in 1910; $3,470,000, 1911; $67,000, 1912; $23,000, 1913; $216,824, in 1914—the fire loss this year is considered low on two accounts, the extreme wet weather and the efficiency of the state forest fire wardens under the management of Warden Oates.

State Will Sell Fish.

Saginaw—Michigan is going into the fish business, according to Chief Deputy State Game and Fish Warden John Baird of Saginaw, who announced Tuesday that he will employ fishermen to take whitefish from Torch Lake in Antrim county, Hubbard Lake in Alcona county and other inland lakes for spawning purposes. The state will then sell the fish through local dealers direct to the consumers for 10 cents a pound, instead of 18c and 20c, present prices, he says.

WOULD BAR MUTUAL LIFE FROM LOAN

POLICY HOLDER BRINGS SUIT FOR INJUNCTION IN CHICAGO.

WOULD PRODUCE ILL WILL

It is Alleged That Antagonisms Will Result Which Would Threaten Life of the Company.

Chicago—Alleging that the Mutual Life Insurance company, of New York, contemplates investing $10,000,000 of its trust funds in the Anglo-French loan of $500,000,000, Olga H. S. Walsh, Chicago, holder of a $2,000 policy in the Mutual, began an injunction suit in federal court, Monday.

The insurance company, Charles A. Peabody, its president; the directors, members of the Anglo-French credit loan commission, J. P. Morgan individually, and J. P. Morgan & Co. were named as defendants.

Frank S. Monnet, former attorney general of Ohio, who prosecuted the anti-trust suits in Ohio against the Standard Oil company, is attorney for the plaintiff.

The petition, which was filed by Mrs. Walsh in person, sets forth that among the thousands of policyholders in the Mutual Life Insurance company are many persons of various nationalities, and that the investment of the trust funds of these policyholders in the Anglo-French loan would tend to produce antagonisms among the policyholders, which might lead to disrupting the company and thereby depreciate the value of her interest in the company.

In the language of the bill, the court is informed that "the solvency of the company and the conservation of the reserve fund depends on the good will of the policyholders, and no part of the assets of the company should be loaned or invested in the securities of any of the warring nations, or used for the purpose of abetting existing wars."

The bill asks that the officers of the company be restrained from directly or indirectly investing its trust funds in the loan, or from investing its trust funds or suffering any of its assets to be used for the purpose of aiding the manufacture of munitions of war, aeroplanes, submarines or any naval outfit or appliances to be used by the English or French nations for belligerent purposes. It further asks that J. P. Morgan, and J. P. Morgan & Co., be restrained from soliciting or conveying with the officers and directors of the Mutual Life Insurance company, for the purpose of procuring any of its funds to be invested in the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan.

A similar rule of court is petitioned against the members of the Anglo-French loan commission, Baron Reading, Sir Edward Hopkinson Holden, Sir Henry Babbington Smith, Basil B. Blackett, Octave Homberg and Ernest Mallet.

New Industry at Howell.

Howell—Howell business men announced the acquisition Tuesday of a new industry, the Howell General Electric Motors company. DECLARES HIS PARTY WILL CONTINUE THE STRUGGLE

M. DIAZ LOMBARDO.

Washington—Following the report that the Carranza government would be recognized by the United States, Lombardo, who is the representative of the Villa faction, announced that the struggle in Mexico would be continued. The embargo on arms to his party which will follow the recognition of Carranza will, however, materially weaken Villa's forces.

FIGURES IN STATE CROPS

Secretary of State in Report Comes Near to Giving Final Yield of Wheat in Michigan.

Lansing—While the final estimated total yield of wheat this year in Michigan will not be made public until November, the report to the secretary of state for September, made public Thursday morning, comes pretty close to what will be the final figures.

The average yield for the entire state is 20.18 bushels to the acre. The average for the southern counties is 21.17; the central counties, 21.16; the northern counties, 16.22, and the upper peninsula counties, 21.53.

During August and September, it is estimated that 1,750,000 bushels of wheat were marketed. No indication as to the condition of the wheat is given.

Estimates of the average yield of other products follow: Barley, 23.12 bushels; oats, 39.72 bushels; corn, 27.77 bushels; potatoes, 67.56 bushels; beans, 9.44 bushels, and sugar beets, 9.88 tons.

Regarding the damage to the crops the report says: "The estimated yield of beans, corn and potatoes is 26.15 and 22 per cent respectively below the ten years' average from 1905 to 1914 inclusive."

"Seventy-three per cent of our crop correspondents in the southern counties complain of severe damage to corn, beans, potatoes and sugar beets by cold weather, excessive moisture and blight; 80 per cent of correspondents in the central and northern counties and upper peninsula report corn, beans and potatoes badly injured by rain and frost."

Woman is Found Guilty.

St. Joseph—After a circuit court jury found Carrie May Cutler, of Benton Harbor, guilty of murder in the second degree, James O'Hara, assistant prosecuting attorney, made a plea to the court for clemency. The jury deliberated for eight hours before arriving at a verdict.

Mrs. Cutler, on April 30 last, shot down her husband when he came to the house where she was employed as a domestic to ask her to come back to live with him. The couple had been separated for several weeks. The trial lasted for a week.

Factory Fire at Bay City.

Bay City—The boiler shops, foundry and blacksmith shop of the Mackinac Boiler company were destroyed by flames late Tuesday afternoon, with an approximate loss of $50,000. The machine shop, power plant and general office building were saved. The loss includes four large boilers in the course of construction and several thousand dollars' worth of stock. It started from an overheated forge.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF.

The body of a woman, believed to be from the steamer Price, which went down November 9, 1913, was found on the beach near Lexington.

The laying of the corner stone of the new $200,000 Woman's Benefit association building at Port Huron will be under the auspices of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Michigan, October 22. George L. Lusk of Detroit will preside at the ceremonies.

Guy Gunkeller, 30, a lineman employed by the Michigan State Telephone company, was electrocuted Monday morning at Saginaw while at work on a pole carrying electric wires with a voltage of 2,300. He seized two of the electric wires and received the full current.

NO PEACE IN SIGHT SAY ORIENTALS

THAT WARS WILL CONTINUE
SO LONG AS TWO CODES OF LAW EXIST.

SPEAK TO PEACE CONGRESS

Chinese Editor Tells of Preparation for War by China to Defend Herself Against the Japanese.

San Francisco—Count Okuma, Japanese premier, and Dr. Ng Poon Chew, a Chinese editor of San Francisco, told delegates to the International Peace congress Tuesday that world peace was yet a fantasy and will be until the militaristic order of things is changed.

In a message to the congress, Count Okuma said there was no hope for peace so long as there exist nations or individuals who believe or exalt themselves as absolutely superior to others, and to assert their superiority to not hesitate to appeal to material forces.

On the floor of the congress to-night Dr. Ng Poon Chew added to Count Okuma's statement.

"There will be wars and wars are just so long as there are two codes of laws and two standards of morality, one governing nations, the other individuals," he said.

War, the doctor said, was going to keep right on in one place or another. Even China was preparing. He blamed western militarism, which he said had not only parcelled China, but had destroyed her ideals of peace, and he called Japan the disturber of peace of the Orient.

"She is essentially a military nation, and she has in herself the perfect compilation of the militarism of Germany and the navyism of England. Her ambition is boundless."

"With such neighbors what must China do but prepare for defense?"

"Before the European war broke out we imported a large number of men, the followers of the Prince of Peace, from Europe, the seat of Christendom, into 'heaven China,' if you are pleased to call us so, to instruct us to turn our plowshares into swords and our pruning hooks into spears."

"Selfishness, jingoism, yellow journalism and politicians are chiefly responsible for misunderstandings that have existed between the United States and Japan," said Kiyo Sue Inui, a lecturer of the Japan society of America.

WARNS AGAINST BAD SEED

M. A. C. Advises Farmers That Normal
Crop of Beans Can Only Be Restored By Proper Seed.

East Lansing—Michigan farmers, who this season suffered the loss of millions of dollars worth of beans through inroads made on the crop by anthracnose and blight, are being warned by the Michigan Agricultural college to exercise extreme care this fall in selecting seed for next spring's planting. The warning is in the form of a bulletin by Prof. V. M. Shoemaker, head of the farm crops department, who says:

"It is estimated from rather general observation that the state crop, after being hand picked, will not average more than 30 or 35 per cent of normal, and may be considerably less."

"Michigan bean growers may not, however, appreciate the serious condition in regard to a suitable source of seed beans for planting the 1916 crop. In most cases the home grown beans cannot be recommended for planting, but on account of the high market price of beans, there will no doubt be a tendency to plant badly diseased stock. The use of such beans will very materially reduce the yield and will greatly increase the percentage of cull beans."

"It is very much cheaper to buy good seed even much above the market price, rather than to grow a badly diseased crop and pay five to seven cents per pound for picking out by hand the diseased beans."

SYNOPSIS.

Confederate Sergeant Wyatt of the 1st Cavalry is sent as a spy to the Union army in the Green Briar by General Jackson. Wyatt meets a mountaineer named Jim Taylor, who is a neighbor of Wyatt's father and an old neighbor of Wyatt's mother. Wyatt becomes suspicious, and finds that Taylor has murdered Harwood and escaped.

CHAPTER IV.

Into the Enemies' Hands.

The major lay dead, with his blood-stained revolver—evidently the weapon which had struck the blow—lying beside him. Dawn would reveal the deed, and I would be discovered alone in the house. Only my wakefulness, my desire to investigate, had interfered with the complete success of this hideous plan. Taylor had prepared himself for this emergency, had deliberately taken the weapon for that very purpose. What had become of the negro?

I stood there, lamp in one hand and revolver in the other, staring down at the dead face of this man who had once been my father's friend. Out of the mist floated the face of the girl, the girl who had waved to me in the road. The vision brought back to me coolness and determination. I felt through the pockets of the dead man and found a knife, keys and a roll of bills untouched, but not a scrap of paper. On the floor, partially concealed by one arm, was a large envelope, unaddressed, roughly torn open. It was some document, then, the murderer sought, and he had fled with it in his possession.

Intent now on my one purpose of discovery, my mind active and alert, I began a rapid search of the house. The front door was fastened and barred, proving Taylor had not left that way. There was but one other room on that floor, a kitchen in considerable disorder, as though the servant had made no effort to complete his work; but its outer door stood unwatched. Sam must have gone with the mountaineer in his hasty flight—must be equally guilty. This was the only conclusion possible, and the knowledge that I was left there alone rendered my own position precarious. Harwood had surely never ventured into this doubtful region without having soldiers within call, no doubt in the village, who, if he failed to appear when expected, would search for him. Before they came, and made discovery of the dead body, I must be safely beyond reach. If found there, no defense, no asseveration of innocence, would ever save me from condemnation. Their vengeance would be swift and merciless.

Thinking now only of my own escape unobserved, I felt my way into the night with my bundle. This was the Federal territory; or if not, already, my night's ride would bring me well within their lines, before dawn. I slipped instantly out of the soiled suit of gray and donned the immaculate blue, buckling the belt about my waist, and securely hooking the saber. Then I scooped out a hole in the soft dirt and buried the old uniform, tearing my pass into shreds, scattering the fragments broadcast. It was so lonely and still all about that I felt a return of confidence, a renewed courage. The house behind me, and the stable before, were mere outlines, scarcely discernible through the gloom. Once safely in the saddle, I circled the gloom of the house silently, and followed the roadway to the gate.

Not a light gleamed in any direction and I could recall no other house near by. While it remained in view I could not remove my eyes from the mansion I had just left, or forget the dead body lying there in the dark. The shying of my horse at the gate caused me to note the black something lying against the post. At first I deemed it a mere shadow, but the animal would not respond even to the spur, and I dismounted better to ascertain the cause of his fright. The negro lay there, dead as his master, a knife thrust in his heart. Then it was Taylor alone who had done the foul deed. There was nothing I could do but flee swiftly through the night. My own position was now far too desperate to permit of my giving any alarm, or seeking to trace the murderer. To fall into Union hands would be my death warrant, irrespective of Harwood's fate, and my duty lay in carrying out the orders of "Old Jack." To allow myself to be captured would spoil everything.

I rode toward Hot Springs as rapidly as I dared, watchful of every deepening shadow, until I came to the first straggling houses. These were dark and silent, and not so much as a dog barked as I walked my horse cautiously forward toward the main street. I saw but one dim light streaming through an uncurtained window of what looked like a law office, and passed close enough to learn that a group of men within were playing cards. It was highly probable these belonged to the major's escort. I passed the place unobserved and rode on into the night, feeling I had escaped from immediate danger. At what I took to be the tavern corner I discovered the road leading to the left and turned in that direction, assured that it would lead directly into the heart of Green Briar. The road ran through thick woods, the darkness intense, and as the way was silent and seemed deserted I gave the animal the spur.

I must have loped along thus for ten minutes, all thought of pursuit already dismissed, and my mind occupied with plans for the future, when the woods suddenly ended in a bare ridge, the ribbon of road revealing itself under the soft glow of the stars. I know not why I heard no sound of warning, but at the instant, a half dozen shadows loomed up blocking the path. I barely had time to rein in my horse before we were intermingled, the surprise evidently mutual, although one of the newcomers was swift enough to seize my animal's bit, and hold him plunging in fright. I clung to the stirrups, aware of the flash of a weapon in my face, and an oath uttered in a gruff voice.

"In God's name! where did you come from? Here, Snow, see what this fellow looks like."

The speaker had a wide-brimmed hat, drawn low over his face, and a cape concealed his uniform. But Snow wore the cap of the Federal cavalry, and I knew I had fallen into Yankee hands.

"I have no objection to telling you my name and rank," I said coldly, "but lower that gun first; I am in uniform."

The rather contemptuous tone of voice employed had greater effect on the fellow than the evidence of his eyes. His arm fell to his side, although he still retained a grasp on my bridle.

"So I see," but with no cordiality in the words. "But that is hardly convincing. Federal officers are rare birds where these roads alone. Who are you, sir, and why are you here?"

"Perhaps I may be privileged to ask first by what authority you halt and question me?"

He laughed, and waved the weapon he still held toward the others of his party.

"Our force alone is sufficient authority I should suppose. However, I will set your mind at rest—I am Captain Fox, in command of a detachment of the Twelfth Pennsylvania Cavalry."

"Oh, yes," I responded more pleasantly, "of General Ramsay's command. You know Major Harwood, no doubt?"

"We are of his escort," both suspicion and command lost before my cool assurance. "You are in the service, sir?"

"Third United States Cavalry; on recruiting detail. I was to meet Harwood at Hot Springs, but was told he had gone to Green Briar."

"By whom?"

"A scout I met by chance; he gave the name Taylor."

The captain swore grimly, glancing across my horse into the face of the trooper opposite.

"Well, this stumps me!" his voice grew suddenly harder. "It doesn't sound straight, for we left him safely in Hot Springs an hour before sundown, and he had no purpose at that time except to wait there for Taylor. Do you carry any papers?"

I drew the official envelope from my pocket, and held it out to him calmly.

He opened the flap.

"A little light, Snow—yes, a match will do."

The flame lit up their faces—the officer a thin-faced man with mustache and imperial, his teeth oddly prominent; the trooper older in years, but smooth-shaven, with deep-set eyes and square chin. Their uniforms were dusty and well worn. The others, clustered behind, remained mere shadows of the document at a glance, and I marked a change in his expression before the match went out.

"Oh, I see—you are Lieutenant Raymond. Got to us earlier than you expected. Find many recruits north?"

"No," I answered, taken completely by surprise, but managing to control my voice. "That was why I thought I might accomplish more in this section. Those counties have been combed over." I hesitated an instant, and yet it was best for me to learn what I could. "I was not aware, captain, that my projected visit had been announced."

He laughed, and the second match went out, leaving us again in darkness.

"Nor was it, officially; merely a friendly letter from an officer on Hetselman's staff to our major asking for you a friendly reception. Camp gossip brought the news to me. You know Harwood?"

"No; only General Ramsay advised me to confer with him, because of his intimate knowledge of this section. He belonged, I believe, in Green Briar?"

"Yes, we were at his place yesterday; south of Lewisburg. What sort of a looking man was this fellow Taylor?"

I described him minutely, hoping for some recognition, but the captain did not appear to recall any such character.

"We have only been in this region a few months," he said, in explanation, "and I don't remember any such chap. He is none of Ramsay's scouts. What do you say, Snow?"

"Only man like that I've heard of, sir, is old Ned Cowan, and it ain't likely he's left the mountains to go into 'Old Jack's' camp."

Fox laughed, as though the idea amused him.

"Hardly. Cowan is too well known to take the risk. Either side would hang the hound on sight. Well, let's ride along into Hot Springs. You'll come with us, Lieutenant?"

There was no excuse left me, no reason that I could urge for riding on alone westward. Indeed, before I could clearly collect my thoughts, I was in the midst of the horsemen, slowly moving east once more over the dark road. Riding as rapidly as the darkness made possible, we elated into the deserted street at Hot Springs, and Fox cursed vigorously the negligent guard. The sergeant knew little of where Major Harwood had gone, as he had given no orders, and not even intimated the probable time of his return. When last seen he was riding out the south road accompanied only by his servant.

Fox swore again, and ordered the men into saddle, and we swung out at a sharp trot along the dirt pike. I rode next him, but the captain was in such rage I kept silent, knowing well the tragic discovery soon to be revealed. The gray dawn began to steal about us, making objects near at hand visible, and revealing the tired faces of the cavalymen. There was sufficient light to enable us to perceive the gloomy house in the oak grove, and the motionless form lying beside the gate. Fox drew up his horse with a jerk, and leaned forward staring.

"My God, men!" he exclaimed, choking. "That's Harwood's nigger."

"Not Robbery, for Here Is Money and a Watch."

Turn the body over, Green—ah! the poor devil was knifed. Here, a half dozen of you, unsling carbines and follow me—there's been dirty work done. Sergeant, don't let your men destroy those footprints in the road. Lively now, lads!"

I advanced with them up the driveway, fearful that if I held back it might later be commented upon. The front door refused admittance, but we entered from the rear. Everything within was exactly as I had left it, and in the parlor, still dark because of closed blinds, lay the lifeless body of Harwood. Fox fell upon his knees beside the motionless form, ordering the windows thrown open, his hands touching the lifeless flesh.

"Dead for hours," he exclaimed in a tone of horror, turning his gaze upon me. "Struck from behind—see, Raymond. What in God's name can this mean?"

He began searching the pockets.

"Not robbery—for here is money, and a watch. But the papers are gone, every scrap of them." He looked about at the men. "The major had his papers with him, did he not, Chambers?"

"Yes, sir," and the young, boyish soldier addressed straightened up. "I was with him when he put on citizen's clothes and he slipped a big buff pocket into his pocket."

Fox's bewildered glance met mine.

"Do you know what that packet contained, captain?" I questioned.

"I do not know. Harwood expected to meet Taylor here at Hot Springs, but I think there were others to be here also. The major kept his own counsel, but something I overheard caused me to believe his engagement with Taylor was of a more private nature. Chambers was his clerk, perhaps he knows."

The lad shook his head, his eyes on the dead man.

"I'm certain those papers were not meant for him, sir," he answered slowly. "They were to be given to a scout named Dalley. It was some other business that brought the major here all alone—but he never told me."

There was nothing further to be discovered, and Fox realized the necessity of haste. His orders were prompt. Four men were detailed to bury the body, and then to rejoin the column as soon as possible. The others were marched back to the gate, and remounted.

It was an hour later when we came suddenly to the fork, the south branch leading over a long clay hill, the west along a rocky ridge. Fox sprang to the ground and followed the faint prints of the horse we were pursuing for a hundred yards on foot. Some cattle had passed southward, but there was a defect in the shoe of the animal Taylor rode clearly revealed in the clay. The captain came back, a grim smile on his lips.

"The cuss was no Johnny Reb," he said shortly. "That was what I was afraid of, but now I know what to do. We'll save our horses, men, for this is going to be a long ride—that murdering devil is headed for the Green Briar. This is the lower Lewisburg road." He swung up into saddle.

"Green, take three men ahead with you, and keep half a mile in advance. Watch out carefully, for there may be graybacks along here. Going with us, Lieutenant?"

"About the best thing I can do," I replied readily, "my orders were for Green Briar and Fayette."

"All right, then, but they had small respect for your life when they sent you in there. From all I hear it is like a menagerie of wild animals broken loose—good fighting anywhere. Only trouble will be there is so much at home there will be no need for the boys to enlist. However, that's your affair, not mine." His eyes surveyed his men keenly. "Loosen carbines! Forward march! Trot!"

Silently, save for the jingle of accoutrements and the thud of horses' feet, we rode westward, sunlight flicking the dusty uniforms. The pike dipped down into a hollow and, climbing the hill beyond, appeared the figures of the four scouts. Far away was the haze of the mountains.

J. BARLEYCORN, BAD DRIVER

His Hands Shake, His Knees Wobble and His Conscience Is More Than Half Asleep.

John Barleycorn is a bad chauffeur. His hand shakes, his knees wobble, his eyesight is poor and his conscience half asleep. And anyone who permits this reckless driver to sit at the wheel of a motor car is a menace to life.

That is why little sympathy is felt for the Baltimore man just sentenced to two years in the penitentiary because, while intoxicated, he ran down and killed a woman. And if this convict fancies himself the victim of a great injustice, he should compare his fate with that of the woman whose neck his carelessness broke.

One does not have to be intoxicated to deserve prison for reckless driving. Nor does one have to be rich, as the Baltimore man is. Indeed, the plight of this man should have an equally sobering effect upon all careless drivers, tipplers, teetotalers, plutocrats and poor.

Russia's Trade Language.

Merchants doing business in Russia are advised by the Merchants' association of New York to use the Russian language in preference to the French in commercial letters to Russian correspondents. As the result of several inquiries on this matter the association a few days ago asked the advice of C. J. Medvedkovsky, commercial attaché of the Russian embassy in Washington. He stated that it would be better and more advantageous to use Russian rather than other languages, French included.

Before the beginning of the war German was more widely in use as a business language in Russia than the French language, but at present it is not advisable to use German in any correspondence with Russia. There are a number of firms in Russia with whom it is possible to correspond in the English language, and there are agencies for the translation of English into Russian at Petrograd, Warsaw and other large cities.—New York Times.

Concerning the Dolomites.

The fairyland about Cortina is familiar to thousands of English tourists as "the Dolomites." Dolomite, a rock compounded of carbonate of lime and carbonate of magnesia, takes its name from the French geologist "Dolomieu de Gratet, Marquis de Dolomieu," who spent his time in 1789 and the following year, while his countrymen were busy with revolution and war, in visiting this and other Alpine districts. He first mentions this kind of rock in 1791, and the word "Dolomite" first occurs in a pamphlet of 1802 describing a tour of his in the Alps about the St. Gothard and the Simplon. The curious point, noted by Mr. Coolidge, is that the marquis seems to have paid no attention to the dolomite rocks in the neighborhood of his own home, Dolomieu, near Grenoble.—London Chronicle.

Bird Wears Artificial Leg.

Strutting on the farm of John R. Lott, near Freshhold, N. J., is the only wild bird in the country that has an artificial leg. This handsome cock pheasant owes its life to the skill of Dr. August R. White, a dentist.

The pheasant, with one leg broken off just above the foot, and apparently injured in a battle with cats, was found on the farm several weeks ago and was taken to the Lott home.

Doctor White, a sportsman, heard of the bird and made an artificial brass leg, which he fixed to the injured stump with silver wires. After the wires broke, then Doctor White fashioned another leg to fit snugly about the remnant of broken bone, and this time procured a support upon which the bird could walk with apparent ease.

No Record Desired.

"The course you are pursuing," said the idealist, "will not cause you to be remembered by posterity."

"Thanks," replied the political boss. "I was afraid I might."

GETTING USED TO HIM

ANONYMOUS.

"We are always badly disappointed when people fail to justify the poor opinion we have formed of them," said the self-made man, who had not turned out such a bad job of it. "Now, there was Blodgett, for instance."

"Blodgett," continued the self-made man, "was a clerk in my office—a young fellow of about nineteen when he first went to work for me. I took a dislike to that boy just as soon as I saw him. He was so aggravatingly cocksure and self-possessed and so infallibly in the right. I don't know why I hired him, except that he had unimpeachable recommendations and answered all the questions I put to him with great intelligence—something of a 'that's easy' air. He wrote a good hand, had a fair knowledge of bookkeeping and expressed his satisfaction with the small salary I offered him to choke him off. So I took him."

"I sent out a column of estimates for him to copy the second morning. Five minutes later he was standing by my desk with the sheet in his hand."

"What is it now?" I snapped.

"These estimates, sir," he began.

"Copy 'em," I said. "Put the figures down in black and white on another sheet of paper—that's what 'copy' means. Do you think you can do that?"

"Yes, sir," said Blodgett.

"Well, do it, then," I said. "That's all."

"It was a good two-hours' job, but he finished it in an hour and a half—very neatly, too. When he laid it on my desk he remarked that there were two errors in the basic figures that he thought it better to call my attention to, as they falsified the entire business."

"He was everlastingly doing something like that. I sat for a year, as it were, with my finger on the buzzer, waiting for a good chance to fire him, but he never gave me the least excuse. As a matter of self-respect, I had to raise his salary twice."

"Well, it happened one day that I missed some small change that I remembered to have laid on my desk. Later I lost some more. Suspecting principally the scrub women, I waited till a week after the last theft and then laid my trap."

"I worked a little late that evening. I had not meant to, but I had a big contract on hand and it was a matter that nobody could attend to but I, so I stayed on after the office force had dispersed for the suburbs. I was busy for very nearly an hour and then I had to wait for a telephone call. While I was waiting I remembered that I had not attended to my detective work, and I looked in my pocketbook for a bill. The smallest I had was a ten. I took that, marked it with red ink in one corner and laid it on the desk. Just then the telephone bell rang in the outer office. I left my room and entered the booth, closing the door behind me from habit."

"I had got through with my man and was just hanging up the receiver when I heard a quick step in the corridor and Blodgett came in. He looked around quickly and then walked out of my range of vision, and in a moment or two I heard him go into my room. To say I was surprised is putting it mildly, but even then it never entered my head that he could be connected with anything like petty theft. He was actually leaving the office before I recovered myself sufficiently to open the door of the telephone booth and call to him."

"He was certainly surprised, but his nerve was good and he looked me in the eye as straight as he always did. 'I remembered that the mails went out tonight for South America,' he said in response to my look, 'so I came back to see if the Peruvian manifests weren't ready to inclose. Burton had finished them and I put them in the letter you gave me to send. By the way, I took the liberty of going to your desk for stamps. I noticed it was open, and I supposed you intended to return so I didn't shut it. I—'

"Come into my room with me for a minute," I said shortly. And when I had got him inside I said: 'Sit down.' The ten-dollar bill was gone."

"My first feeling was one of triumph. I had got him at last. I had proved how unerring had been my instinct of dislike."

"I felt almost remorseful when I thought of the inevitable result of my denunciation."

"Then I realized that my old dislike of the fellow was probably influencing me more than any feeling of obligation to society. I remembered that he had a mother."

"I must have sat there for ten minutes considering and all that time he sat, cool and silent. Suddenly I made up my mind."

"Blodgett," I said, 'did you see anything of a $10 bill on this desk when you were looking for stamps?' I fixed him with a steady eye."

"Yes, sir," he answered, serenely. "You'll see it tucked in the pigeonhole there to your right. It struck me—it you'll excuse me, sir—as rather a careless way to be leaving money around."

"It was the first time he had been really impertinent and I suppose there would have been my excuse for dismissing him. I overlooked it, though."

"Later he married my daughter. I didn't want him to, but he seemed determined to put me in the wrong if I refused my consent. I'm getting used to him now, however."—Chicago Daily News.

Not Here.

She was looking for an apartment. "It must be in a first class neighborhood," she said, "and it must have ten large rooms, three baths and all modern improvements, and I won't pay a cent over $40 a month."

"I know the very place you're looking for," replied the agent, "but if you want to find out how to get there you'll have to consult a clergyman."

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

THIS is the caution applied to the public announcement of Castoria that has been manufactured under the supervision of Chas. H. Fletcher for over 30 years—the genuine Castoria. We respectfully call the attention of fathers and mothers when purchasing Castoria to see that the wrapper bears his signature in black. When the wrapper is removed the same signature appears on both sides of the bottle in red. Parents who have used Castoria for their little ones in the past years need no warning against counterfeiters and imitations, but our present duty is to call the attention of the younger generation to the great danger of introducing into their families spurious medicines. It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in what nefarious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed counterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves, but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Period of Romance Ended.

"No more shall I hear his footsteps on yonder walk just as the clock strikes eight."

"Gracious, Jeannette!"

"And the old parlor light will never burn low for him again."

"You don't mean it?"

"I do; and, furthermore, he will never sit on this sofa three nights a week and call me pet names, as he has been doing for two years."

"I am astonished."

"And tonight I am going to burn all the old love letters in my chest of drawers."

"B-but why? Are you going to discard him?"

"Discard him! Why, you goose, I am going to marry him!"

Warrior of Today.

George Wharton Pepper said at a luncheon at the Pittsburgh training camp for officers:

"The methods of warfare have changed enormously in the past year. The sword, for example, is no longer carried. The sword has quite disappeared from war."

"A story comes from the Argonne about a French chasseur who took a German officer prisoner. The chasseur, a boy, a tyro, said to the officer:

"Give up your sword."

"But the officer shook his head and answered:

"I have no sword to give up. But won't my vitriol spray, my oil projector or my gas cylinder do as well?"

Enterprising White.

A writer gives a little sketch of black and white in Natal. He tells how he came across a white boy, some fourteen years old, and a group of raw natives playing a game. They were shooting with an old muzzle-loading shotgun at a bottle on the top of a case. When the youngster smashed a bottle he received a "ticky" (a threepenny bit) from the natives. When a native hit it he received three-pence from the boy.

"That seems a funny sort of game," remarked the witness to the boy.

"Oh, the game's all right, sir," replied the lad. "You see, I load the gun."

Why They Don't Go.

"How did it happen you didn't go away during the summer? I thought you were having an extensive outfit prepared for you?"

"That was the trouble. By the time I got the outfit paid for I didn't have any money left."

Weather forecast for the week beginning Wednesday, October 13th, issued by the U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C. For the region of the Great Lakes: Local rains are probable Wednesday and again about Friday in the upper Lake region; otherwise generally fair weather will prevail. It will be somewhat cooler in the upper Lake region but on the whole temperatures will be moderate.

LOCAL ITEMS.

The Maccabees have had the floor in their hall redressed and put in first-class shape.

Miss Pearl Maier, left Monday for Ypsilanti where she will take a course in the business college.

Claude Bartholomew has rented the Baldwin house, corner of McKinley and Elm streets, of A. W. Wilkinson.

The Dorcas Circle of the M. E. church met at the home of Mrs. Ford Axtell on Chandler street, Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Stephen Clark has had a new roof placed on her residence occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. C. Clark on south Main street.

The county convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union will be held in the Chelsea Congregational church, November 4 and 5.

The work of fitting up a tennis court at the school grounds is progressing slowly. The board is finding it a hard job to get someone to do the work.

Geo. Elsiele has accepted a position in the Hollier Eight factory. Mr. Elsiele will move his family from Jackson to his residence on Lincoln street in about three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Murry, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rand and daughter Alice and Elizabeth Chandler, of Charlotte, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Chandler Sunday.

The Jackson high school football team will play the Chelsea high school team at Ahnemiller's park Friday afternoon. Game called at 4 o'clock.

The Lewis Spring and Axle Co. has cut a large door in the south side of the tower building. This building is to be used for the Hollier Eight chassis assembly department. There are now about seventy-five men employed by the company in the plant here and more are being added daily.

Mrs. Wm. Lee died at her home in Munith, Sunday, October 10, 1915. She was a second cousin of Mrs. Geo. M. Seitz of this place. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Seitz, Mrs. Geo. Heydlauff and Mrs. Chas. Hartman attended the funeral.

The putting in of the new curbing along east Middle street, and the establishing of a grade for the same, raised the street in some places so that the sidewalk was considerably lower than the curb. O. J. Walworth, L. P. Vogel and H. S. Holmes have had their sidewalks raised to conform to the grade.

Rev. and Mrs. D. H. Campbell, Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Tree, Miss Emma Stonex, Mrs. Lois Vorheis, Mrs. Mary Steinbach, Mrs. Jay Kieth, Mrs. Clifton Green, Mrs. Helen Burr, Mrs. Anna L. Chelsea was without lights and fire protection from about 8:30 o'clock Tuesday evening until 8 o'clock Wednesday morning. The men at the power house had been working Tuesday cleaning the reserve boiler and the job had not been completed when the large feed pipe running from the heater to the boiler in use burst. This put the whole plant on the blink, but by dint of hard work the reserve boiler was placed in commission Wednesday morning.

Married, on Wednesday, October 13, 1915, at St. Mary's Rectory, Miss Margaretta Martin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Martin, of Chelsea, and Mr. James Reilly, of Detroit, Rev. W. P. Considine officiating. The attendants were Miss Beryl McNamara, of Chelsea, and Mr. Harmon Smith, of Detroit. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Reilly will make their home in Detroit, where the best wishes of a host of friends will follow them.

T. W. Watkins was called to Battle Creek this morning by the serious illness of his mother.

Mrs. J. R. Gates entertained a number of ladies Saturday afternoon in honor of Mrs. J. Hoover of Detroit.

The carpenters have commenced work on the new residence that A. G. Hindelang is having built on his Congdon street property.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Saunders are making arrangements to move to their farm on the North Lake road just north of the village limits.

Caspar Glenn has sold his interest in the garage in Stockbridge and will move to Chelsea, where he has a position in the Hollier Eight shops.

The Maccabees and their wives and Lady Maccabees and husbands or escorts are invited to a party at Maccabee hall Friday evening, October 22d. Scrub lunch.

Miss Elsa Maroney entertained fifteen of her young lady friends at her home on Railroad street Saturday afternoon. The ladies gave her a surprise kitchen shower.

Group nine of the Michigan Bankers' Association held a business meeting at Adrian Wednesday. The Chelsea banks were represented by John L. Fletcher, Howard S. Holmes, D. L. Rogers, Paul G. Schaible, John F. Waltrous, Peter Merkel and O. C. Burkhart.

Married, Saturday afternoon, October 9, 1915, in St. Paul's church, Miss Alice Ashfal of Grass Lake, and Mr. Frank Watkins of Detroit, Rev. A. A. Schoen officiating. The couple were attended by Miss Marie Grotzinger of Ypsilanti, and Mr. Emil Ashfal, a brother of the bride.

The next number of the Brotherhood entertainment course will be given in town hall by the Old Colonial Band on Thursday evening, October 28. The band consists of twelve pieces and an interesting program of excellent music will be rendered. This organization, according to the public press, will be one of the best that has ever appeared in Chelsea.

About thirty of the members of St. Paul's church were in Manchester Sunday where they attended the Sunday school convention of the Ann Arbor district of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod. The convention was held in Emmanuel church and the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Paul Hammer, of Lansing; vice president, Rev. C. H. Wittbracht, of Saline; secretary, John Pielmeyer, of Lima; treasurer, Miss Kirchofer, of Manchester.

In commenting on the report of County Clerk Beckwith to the board of supervisors, the Ann Arbor Times-News says: "These bare figures do not, of course, indicate anything with reference to the very courteous and efficient administration of Clerk Beckwith, and his very capable, and attentive deputy, Bradley Granger, and the Times-News feels it a duty to add that no more competent administration of the clerk's office, and its numerous intricate duties, has ever been had than is now in charge of that part of the county's business."

Education of Foreigners.

M. M. Slauson, superintendent of the Ann Arbor Public Schools, and W. B. Arbaugh, superintendent of the Ypsilanti Public Schools, have been in communication with the Bureau of Naturalization of the U. S. Department of Labor relative to the national movement inaugurated and now being carried on by the Bureau of Naturalization for the Americanization of the candidates for citizenship throughout the country. Both of these gentlemen have expressed their keen interest in the movement and have signified their desire cordially to co-operate with the Bureau in the furtherance of its educational plan.

Arrangements have been made to furnish Messrs. Slauson and Arbaugh with the names and addresses of aliens residing within their jurisdictions who file declarations of intention and petitions for naturalization. This will be done from month to month during the current scholastic year, thus enabling the school authorities to get into touch with such applicants and give them valuable assistance in preparing for citizenship. Last year there were 45 who applied for citizenship in Washtenaw county. Since July 1, 1910, 153 aliens of the county have declared their intention and 235 have filed final applications for citizenship.

The necessity for the education of aliens residing in Washtenaw county is clearly shown by the following figures taken from the latest statistics available: The foreign-born white population of the county in 1910 was 5,457, or 12.2 per cent of the total population. Of this number 2,578 were males who had attained their majority and only 1,573 were shown to have been naturalized.

In 1910 there were 197 males of voting age who were classified as illiterates. Of this number 99 were foreign-born whites and 79 were native whites, the percentages of illiteracy being 3.8 for the former and 0.7 for the latter.

NEWS and GOSSIP of WASHINGTON

Birds of the White House Enjoy Shower Baths

WASHINGTON.—The feathered tenants of the White House grounds have discovered the delights of the shower bath. And birds of many kinds are taking advantage of the excellent accommodations provided by the rotary lawn sprinkler. The blackbirds, most inquisitive and curious of all birds, first found out about it. It may have been accident that led the bird Columbus in this exploit under the spattering drops of water thrown off by the sprinkler. If so he found it good. Generous, or unable to keep his counsel, he spread the news. Other blackbirds tried it with resulting delight. Then the tale spread of this advance in bird civilization.

And still the wonder grew as bird after bird submitted itself to the pleasure of the bath. The sparrows, who inhabit two whole trees in the White House grounds when they are at home for a night's rest, found it so good that they quarreled for place and turn.

Then a few thrushes who live in the precincts acquired the shower-bath habit. And finally the pigeons and doves, slowest to adopt new customs, were converted. So the shower-bath cult has grown among the birds.

There are a half dozen such lawn sprinklers scattered over the White House grounds, with purpose or hope to make the grass grow. They are going all day, scattering drops of rain in an ever revolving circle. As is modest, the birds take their shower baths in secluded spots where the sprinklers are at work.

"Old Nick," the Champion Long-Distance Smoker

UNCLE SAM has the champion long-distance smoker of the world, consuming 1,000 cigars a day on an average. They call him "Old Nick," not because he is in any way diabolic, but because he can hold an amazing amount of nicotine. And it takes very little effort of the imagination to characterize "Old Nick" as a human being; for, in make-up, he performs all the functions of the flesh and blood lover of the weed, even to the action of the lungs. "Old Nick" is merely an ingenious apparatus for testing cigars.

Uncle Sam's mechanical man is no fastidious chooser of what he smokes. The most expensive imported brand and the humblest of the domestic are the same to him. In the lower left-hand corner of his mechanical anatomy is a jar, in the cork of which are inserted the tubes holding four cigars. The receptacle contains water which takes up the nicotine. So it is that none of it gets into the "lungs" of "Old Nick," and the smoke that goes out from his "mouth"—the exhaust—is wholly free from nicotine. The "lung" is at the extreme right and inhales and exhales the smoke of the cigars.

A tube leads into the "lung" from the jar into which four individual cigar tubes are placed. There is also an intermediate jar, which arrests whatever of the nicotine may have escaped from the direct repository.

Thus, you see that, while "Old Nick" may be literally soaked in nicotine and be a confirmed "inhaler," he has none of the vice of the inhaler, for the smoke that enters his "lungs" bears no deleterious elements.

One Woman Who Knows Secrets, and Keeps Them

THERE is only one woman in the United States who has knowledge of international events before they happen. Her name is Margaret M. Hanna. She is the confidential secretary and assistant of the second assistant secretary of state, Alvey A. Adee, who is the only permanent official of high rank in the department.

No matter who may be the executive head of the department, and regardless of whether the administration is Democratic or Republican, the course of the foreign office is steered by Mr. Adee. All of the diplomatic affairs are managed by him. The complex unwritten code called international law is to him familiar in its every paragraph, and he has all precedents at his fingers' ends. But it goes without saying that such business involves an immense amount of detail, which is where the peculiar and exceptional talent of Miss Hanna comes into play. She takes all that part of the work off Mr. Adee's hands. To him she is like a card catalogue to a librarian—and quite a bit more, in addition.

Incidentally to her duties she helps to prepare many state papers that are in the last degree confidential in character. She is the custodian of many an important secret affecting the welfare of the country; but, from her point of view, this is merely a part of the day's work. She forgets the secret automatically when she leaves the office and goes home.

It has often been said that a woman cannot keep a secret. Perhaps most women cannot. Holding that belief, wrongly or rightly, the department of state prefers not to employ them in confidential capacities. But the rule is broken in Miss Hanna's case. She knows how to keep a secret, and the government of the United States is willing to bank on her reliability in this regard.

Snake Bite Antidote for Forest Service Men

BEST pocket instruments for treating snake bites, always possibilities among the experiences that befall woodsmen, are to be furnished by the United States forest service to its field employees. The device when not in use is apparently a plain wooden cylinder, about the length of a cigarette and slightly larger in diameter, and has a screw cap on each end. When one of the caps is removed there is disclosed a small lancet, with which the bitten part may be quickly slit open. The other end of the cylinder is hollow and contains a supply of permanganate of potash crystals, one of the most effective antidotes for the poison of snakes' fangs. The crystals are placed in the open wound as soon as possible after the bite is received, and become effective by dissolving and entering the blood. Similar instruments have been used regularly by the field force of the geological survey for several years and have in many cases been the means of saving life.

The dangers to which forest workers are subjected of being bitten by poisonous reptiles are forcibly brought out in a recent report to forest service headquarters in Washington from the Shasta national forest in northern California. "Three men, sent across the path of a recent fire to fight flames, found themselves completely surrounded by scores of rattlesnakes that had been driven from their rocky lairs by the heat. It was necessary for the fire-fighters to turn snake-fighters, since they could neither advance nor retreat. After a six-hour battle all the reptiles were killed and it was possible for the forest employees to reach and extinguish the fire."

FALL PLOWING IN ORCHARDS IS FAVORED

Heavily-Loaded Apple Tree on Whitehall Farm, Owned by George Smith, Located Near Scottsville, Va.

If an apple orchard is in sod, especially if the sod is an old or stiff one, it should be plowed in the fall. Ordinarily, fall plowing is good practice in most orchards, but in cases where the soil is very loose and liable to wash and expose the roots to freezing, or where it is very heavy and apt to puddle when exposed to the weather, or in very cold climates where the snowfall is light, it is best to plow in spring. By turning under the grass, rubbish, etc., in the fall the process of decay and incorporation with the soil is hastened. A soil often becomes deadened or lifeless from long inertia, and when exposed to the action of moisture and frost its physical condition will be improved. A disk harrow may often be successfully used for the first breaking up of this sod preparatory to plowing.

It is never advisable to plow deeply in old orchards. Plowing should be only deep enough to turn under grass and other litter and cover it with soil. This depth will be from 3 to 5 inches, 4 being a good average and about right. It is always impossible to plow any old orchard which has long been down in sod without breaking a great many of the roots, which, of course, will be close to the surface, but it is desirable to break up a few of these roots as possible; hence the necessity for shallow plowing. However, the danger of breaking roots should discourage no one from plowing, as the benefits derived under such conditions are many times greater than the damage done.

After fall plowing a stiff sod, the best tool to use in the early spring to loosen up the surface soil and to work in any manure which may have been applied during the winter is the disk harrow. In very loose and open, deep soils the spring-tooth harrow will answer for this purpose, though not as well as the disk, which is the most effective implement, especially where there is a very stiff sod to be broken up or much coarse litter is on the surface. Still it will do very satisfactory work and on stony land is better than the disk harrow. The orchard should be gone over several times with one of these tools during the first month in which it is possible to get on the land, the sooner after growth starts the better.

After the soil has been worked into a fine mechanical condition, subsequent cultivation will be done largely in order to maintain a surface mulch to prevent the loss of moisture by evaporation and incidentally to kill and keep down weeds. For the purpose the spring-tooth harrow should be set more shallow or, better still, the spike-tooth harrow should be used. The orchard should be gone over once in ten days or two weeks or after hard rains which form a crust.

MARKETING OF FARM AND FRUIT PRODUCT

Packages Should Be New, Clean and Attractive—Carelessness Results in Loss.

(By E. P. SANDSTEN, Colorado Experiment Station.)

While quality is an essential requirement in the marketing of any farm and fruit product, it is by no means the only factor in selling at the highest price.

First of all, the package used should be new and clean. The nearer the package, the better the fruit will appear. While the products packed should be of uniform size and color throughout the package, the top layer should be arranged so as to attract the eye of the buyer. Further, the package should in every instance be well filled. The buyer is very quick to notice shortness in measure, or any deficiency in a well-topped or rounded finish. In small fruit, such as the strawberry, particular attention should be given to have every berry in perfect condition, with the calyx or hull attached. The individual fruits should not be arranged in layers in the box, nor should the top be arranged to show a uniform red color, but rather, the calyx should show in with the red. For the best effect, and for particular markets where the grower has steady customers, the berries should be graded into two sizes. This is to give uniformity to the fruit, and will make the package more attractive.

It is a well-known fact that the attractiveness of a package of fruit sells it. The customers are attracted through the eye, and everything that aids in making the package attractive will increase the value of the fruit and ease in selling. It does not pay to pack inferior fruit with good fruits, for it invariably works against the reputation of the grower. Too little attention to uniformity in pack and grading will often result in a loss to the grower.

BORERS SHOULD BE DESTROYED AT ONCE

Carefully Examine Peach and Plum Trees for Insects—Dig Them Out and Kill Them.

Peach and plum trees should be carefully examined for any indications of borers. Be certain to look for both kinds, the one boring into the trunks and working under the bark just at the collar of the tree at the surface of the ground and underground, also those which work into the wood at the crotches of the trees higher up. They should all be dug out and destroyed.

Neat Package Attracts. A neat butter package will attract a customer at once.

ROLL THE MEADOWS AND CLOVER FIELDS

Work Should Be Performed When Sod Is Moist—Pick Off All the Large Stones.

Meadows and grass and clover fields are greatly benefited by being rolled. Use a heavy two-horse roller. The rolling should be done when the sod is moist but not so wet as to cause the ground to cake when it dries out. The large stones should be picked off at the same time—rolling presses the grass and clover roots back into the ground, giving them a firmer hold on the ground. The rolling gives a level surface for the mower. Grain fields are much improved by rolling. If the wheat leaves are small and yellow, 250 pounds of some good fertilizer sown to the acre early in the morning when the ground is slightly frozen, will be a great help. When the frost comes out of the ground, the fertilizer will fall into the soft earth and be washed into the ground by the first spring rains.

Fine manure from the cattle pens may be used for the same purpose. One cartload of fine manure will cover one acre when evenly sown by hand. Pasture lands should be given a dressing of raw bone meal, sown 400 pounds to the acre. One acre of well-set grass, given a dressing of bone, will produce more and richer grass than two acres of grass in the same field which lacked the bone.

"RINGING" OF TREES NOT RECOMMENDED

Operation Considered Exceedingly Hazardous—Gains Do Not Offset the Losses.

In regard to the advice sometimes given in regard to "ringing" fruit trees to induce fruitfulness, the New York experiment station says: The results obtained from our experiments are not favorable to ringing fruit trees as a general practice.

Under some conditions, for a limited time, a more favorable outcome might be expected. Hardy, vigorous, young apple trees may readily undergo a single ringing and be benefited thereby, but subsequent operations are injurious. Trees lacking vigor are often seriously injured by the practice. The deleterious effects of the treatment have generally been so marked as to render the operation exceedingly hazardous. There seems to be no regular or systematic increase in fruit production. The gains do not offset the losses.

Raise Heifer Calves. Every up-to-date dairyman will raise his heifer calves. These calves should be sired by a purebred butter bull.

DAIRY

DETECTION OF DIRT IN MILK

Sediment Test Shows Dairyman Degree of Cleanliness of Milk—Covered Pail Is Favored.

The sediment test is the best method of detecting dirt in milk. This test should be used wherever milk is sold. It shows the dairyman the degree of cleanliness of his milk.

In order that as little dirt as possible may adhere to the cows, clip their udders, flanks and tails. All loose dust can be easily brushed off with the hands before milking. Do not allow anyone to milk wet, as this is a filthy practice.

The cows keep unsold on grass in a night pasture, while if they are kept in a dry barnyard the loose, dry manure will stick to their udders and bodies and drop into the pail. If kept in the barnyard in rainy weather it is almost impossible to milk them without first washing their udders.

A covered pail closed about two-thirds with a hood, will keep out at least 75 per cent of the dirt. These pails are just as convenient to use as the ordinary ones, and cost little more.

A strainer will not take out the fine sediment in milk, but is useful for taking out hair and other large foreign stuff and is good for detecting the dirty milk. One farmer uses a strainer made from an ordinary 14-quart tin dipper. A five-inch hole is cut in the center of the bottom. A ring two inches wide and of the same diameter as the hole is soldered on, over which another ring slips to hold the strainer cloth. Huck toweling makes a very good strainer cloth. Such a strainer covers a factory can, preventing the milk from becoming exposed every time the can is opened. All cans and utensils are washed and scalded every time used, and given their daily sun bath to keep them sweet.

FEW PRACTICAL DAIRY HINTS

Pure Food Laws Won't Worry If Only Clean, Wholesome Products Are Sent to the Markets.

When counting the by-products of the dairy, do not forget the skim milk allowed to clabber, of which the delicious Dutch or cottage cheese is made. When not all is needed on the home table, it can readily be disposed of at good prices.

Send out only clean, wholesome food products, then the pure food laws will have no worry for you.

Don't feed lice, get rid of them. If the stock has been cleanly kept, there will be no lice to get rid of. Very seldom is a cow or calf lousy when in good condition. Keep their stalls and premises clean, give wholesome feed and enough of it, and the cows will not raise lice.

A little corn or bran will not hurt the cows and will save many steps of getting up the cows to milk. Don't forget the salt at the regular time. Grass requires more salt than did the dry feed of winter.

Feed the calves enough to have them do well. Allow them the run of a grassy, shaded lot, and unless supplied naturally with water, be sure to keep some before them.

Too rich feed may give the young calf indigestion. Guard against this, as after once becoming out of fix, it is much harder to regulate. Keep them well and keep them growing. This is true of all young stock, the only way to make a profit of it is to keep it growing.

Ration for Dairy Cows.

The average grain ration for dairy cows should contain at least one pound of cottonseed meal, as feeding this material results in a firmer fat and harder butter. The greasy appearance in the butter is caused by the softness of the fat globules, and the addition of the cottonseed meal will remedy this matter.

Water for Calves.

Set a pail of water into the corner of your calves' pen. You will find they will drink when not more than two weeks old. They often get very thirsty during the long, hot days of summer.

Sick Women Attention

Is it possible there is a woman in this country who continues to suffer without giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial after all the evidence that is continually being published, which proves beyond contradiction that this grand old medicine has relieved more suffering among women than any other one medicine in the world?

We have published in the newspapers of the United States more genuine testimonial letters than have ever been published in the interest of any other medicine for women—and every year we publish many new testimonials, all genuine and true. Here are three never before published:

From Mrs. S. T. Richmond, Providence, R. I.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—"For the benefit of women who suffer as I have done I wish to state what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I did some heavy lifting and the doctor said it caused a displacement. I have always been weak and I overworked after my baby was born and inflammation set in, then nervous prostration, from which I did not recover until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The Compound is my best friend and when I hear of a woman with troubles like mine I try to induce her to take your medicine."—Mrs. S. T. RICHMOND, 84 Progress Avenue, Providence, R. I.

From Mrs. Maria Irwin, Peru, N.Y.

PERU, N.Y.—"Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was very irregular and had much pain. I had lost three children, and felt worn out all the time. This splendid medicine helped me as nothing else had done, and I am thankful every day that I took it."—Mrs. MARIA IRWIN, R.F.D. 1, Peru, N.Y.

From Mrs. Jane D. Duncan, W. Quincy, Mass.

SOUTH QUINCY, MASS.—"The doctor said that I had organic trouble and he doctored me for a long time and I did not get any relief. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and I tried it and found relief before I had finished the first bottle. I continued taking it all through middle life and am now a strong, healthy woman and earn my own living."—Mrs. JANE D. DUNCAN, Forest Avenue, West Quincy, Mass.

Just as He Had Said.
"You remember selling me some hair-restorer when I called the other day to get shaved, you hoary-headed old thief?" roared the indignant customer. "You sold it under false pretenses, sir. You said it would restore my hair to its original condition." "Well, didn't it work?" asked the barber.

"Work? No. It's taken off what little hair I used to have, and I am as bald as the pavement now."
"That's quite right, sir. No false pretense about that. I said it would restore your hair to its original condition, and you know, sir, most of us are born bald."

Too Much for Them.
It was a minstrel performance, and in the intervals between the songs the usual jokes were being perpetrated. "What am de difference between an old maid and a married woman?" asked Sambo.

EDUCATOR SHOE

An Invitation to the Dance

If one were seeking a name for this piquant party frock it might be appropriately called an "Invitation to the Dance." Merely to look at it is enough to put the youthful heart in a frolicsome mood. It is one of several new models in dance frocks so expressive of their purpose that to wear them and not be inspired to dance is quite inconceivable.

It is made of chiffon and taffeta in the simplest of simple designs, with a straight, full skirt and short-sleeved baby waist.

The bodice and upper part of the skirt are of chiffon, and the lower half is of corded taffeta. A group of five corded tucks above the hem and another of four tucks where the silk and chiffon are joined take the place of a hoop or wire used in some other models to give the desired bouffant effect. The baby waist has the regulation short, puffed sleeve and is finished with a wide frill of taffeta about the half low neck.

Made to Delight the Eye

"If eyes were made for seeing, then beauty is its own excuse for being," said a very wise man. And so these lovely new little coquettish of dress present themselves without excuses. They are small extravagances made to charm the eye, first of all, and to be a little useful also.

A corsage rose and a poppy are made of rich ribbon and mounted on velvet millinery foliage. They are on the corsage, at the belt, or on the muff. Both millinery flowers and those of ribbon and velvet are among the alluring trifles of this kind that captivate the fancy and add a bright charm to autumn finery.

Besides the rose, there are orchids and dahlias and velvet poppies with petals edged with fur. And in the heart of these flowers is a little secret. Hidden under stamens or petals is a lady's tiny box of French powder in a cake, and a diminutive powder puff of a very practical kind. Furthermore, a little mirror in a little bag is concealed by the foliage in some of the flowers which are to be worn upon the muff.

A wreath for a debutante's hair is shown below the corsage flowers in the picture. It is a wreath of daisies, simulated in narrow pink satin ribbon. They are set in velvet millinery centers. The petals of the flowers are knotted loops of ribbon, and they are set by their wire stems to a band of pink ribbon.

A girde of wide brocade ribbon is finished with a cluster of rosebuds made of satin ribbon in several light colors, set in small rose foliage. The ribbon is very wide and of a rich quality, making a superb girde to be worn with an evening gown. Any of the light colors are appropriate for it. These are a few of the beautiful things made of ribbon which have been designed for the coming season. With the coming of the holidays they will blossom out in all directions, to the delight of their wearers and everyone else. JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

NOT AS HE EXPRESSED THEM

Teamster's Words Would Have Required Adjustment Before Their Use in the Pulpit.

A man was brought before a police court charged with abusing his team and using loud and profane language on the street. One of the witnesses was a pious old dandy, who was submitted to a short cross-examination.

"Did the defendant use improper language while he was beating his horses?" asked the lawyer.
"Well, he talk mighty loud, suh."
"Did he indulge in profanity?"
The witness seemed puzzled. The lawyer put the question in another form:

"What I mean, Uncle Aus, is—did he use words that would be proper for your minister to use in a sermon?"
"Oh, yes suh," the old man replied with a grin that revealed the full width of his immense mouth; "but dey'd have to be 'ranged diff'unt."—Everybody's Magazine.

That's Different.

"When we want to say something that we don't dare say in English, we use French."

"And when the French want to say something they don't dare say in French?"
"Ah, you could make your fortune in Paris if you could only discover that something."

"Carrie is a long-headed girl."
"How so?"
"Instead of trusting to luck at the seaside she got engaged before coming down, and makes her dance come down to see her once a week."

One on Rufus Choate.

Judge Parry, in a recent article on "Rufus Choate, Advocate," says on occasion Choate would meet with his Sam Weller. Defending a prisoner for theft of money from a ship, a witness was called who had turned state's evidence and whose testimony went to prove that Choate's client had instigated the theft.

"Well," asked Choate, "what did he say? Tell us how and what he spoke to you."

"Why," said the witness, "he told us there was a man in Boston named Choate and he'd get us off if they caught us with the money in our boots."

BREVITIES

JACKSON—The night schools, conducted in connection with the public schools of this city, are proving most successful. The enrollment is greatly in excess of last year's.

HOWELL—Sheridan Drew was in the county clerk's office this morning to secure a hunter's license and when asked his age spoke up rather chipperly and replied eighty years old.

Tidings.

ANN ARBOR—Paul L. Proud, a clerk in an Ann Arbor drygoods store, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court, scheduling his assets at $550 and his liabilities at $5,763.62.

YPSILANTI—One hundred and seventy-five men of this city, lawyers, preachers, bankers and business men, worked with shovels Tuesday on the road between here and the Country Club. More than two miles of gravel road was built.

JACKSON—Instead of a ruddy faced awkward boy, a bedimpled, smiling girl will, undoubtedly, call on you in the future with a cheery, "Telegram, sir." The Jackson office of the Western Union telegraph company announced Friday it expected to give a thorough tryout to the messenger girl idea. Girls will be put into the service as carriers and collectors of telegrams, within a few days.

YPSILANTI—Forty-seven thousand dollars was turned over to the city of Ypsilanti Friday, being the amount of money bequeathed to the city by the late A. Beyer for the erection and maintenance of a hospital. The original bequest was $50,000, but the court allowed the Beyer estate $3,000 for expenses in making an adjustment with other alleged heirs of the estate. The money is now available for use by the city in the erection and maintenance of a hospital.

GRASS LAKE—Mrs. Wm. Taylor was very seriously injured Monday when a ladder on which she was standing broke and let her fall several feet to the ground, fracturing into splinters the bones of the right limb and tearing loose the ligaments of the other. Mrs. Taylor had come over from her home in Battle Creek to assist her father, Henry Ahling for a few days and thought she would pick some of the apples. Placing the ladder beside the tree she climbed into the top and the rung on which she was standing broke and let her fall striking on her knees. The accident was a very serious one and will probably confine her to her bed for many months.—News.

SATURDAY

Ty Cobb, the greatest baseball player the game has ever known, and the prettiest girl in Detroit, so adjudged in recent competitions conducted by the Detroit Journal and the Kunsky theatres, will be seen in a two-reel playlet written especially for them, showing an actual ball game between Detroit and St. Louis, and the great stars of the game in action. Two reels of fun and excitement.

"Woman and War" a special three reel feature is also on the bill, making 5 reels in all. Admission 5 and 10 cents.

MONDAY

Beginning next Monday night, big features will be shown every Monday with famous players, all features are from four to six reels, yet the price of admission to these shows will be but 5 and 10 cents without exception. Such well known actors as Mary Pickford, John Barrymore, Dustin Farnum, Hazel Dawn, Burr McIntosh, Robert Edison, etc., are featured in plays in many cases adapted from well-known books and all the successes from the Broadway theatres. The first of these, Monday night, will be "Soldiers of Fortune" by Richard Harding Davis produced under the personal direction of Mr. Thomas Farnum in the leading role. Six big parts, 255 thrilling scenes, made with the aid and co-operation of the U. S. navy and Cuban army. A play that has repeatedly featured in the Kunsky theatres, Detroit, and always to crowded houses. "Soldiers of Fortune" marks a new era in photo-play production. Adv.

Mrs. Charles A. Guerin.

Mrs. Charles A. Guerin died at the Jackson City hospital Monday, October 4, 1915, aged 74 years, five months and 15 days. Mrs. Guerin's maiden name was Henrietta Doud, and she was born in the township of Sylvan, April 18, 1841. When but a few weeks old, her mother was taken away, and the death of her father less than a year later left seven small children homeless. Henrietta was given a home in the family of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Scott of Lima, with whom she lived until her marriage to Charles A. Guerin, January 28, 1865. Mr. and Mrs. Guerin commenced housekeeping on the farm now occupied by Alvin Easton, in Lima, and to this union was born one daughter, Nona. In the fall of 1897, they went to State Center, Ia., where they remained about three years but were disappointed with conditions there, and returned again to the farm in Lima. After several years they came to Chelsea to reside, and in 1898 they moved to Illinois, living at Greenwood, Woodstock, Hebron, and finally when Mr. Guerin was obliged to retire from work on account of failing health, they went to live near the home of their daughter at West McHenry, Ill. Mr. Guerin died January 18, 1914, and a year later, January 17, 1915, her daughter, Mrs. Nona Whiting, passed away. Early in June Mrs. Guerin came to spend the summer with relatives and friends in Chelsea, and in August, while at the home of her sister-in-law at Francisco, she was stricken with pneumonia, from the effects of which she never recovered. The remains were sent Tuesday to her former home at West McHenry, where the funeral services were held, and she was laid to rest beside her husband in the McHenry cemetery. Mrs. Guerin is survived by three grandchildren, Norma, Charles and Eva Whiting of West McHenry, Ill.; one sister, Mrs. Angeline Hickey of Colorado, and one brother, DeWitt Doud, of California.

Pre-Festival Concerts.

An unusually attractive list of musical stars has been announced for the Pre-Festival series of concerts to be given in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor. For years the world's greatest artists have appeared in Ann Arbor, but never before in the history of the University city has a list of such uniformly high standards been offered.

The series will be opened October 19, when Pasquale Amato, the leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, will appear in full song recital. Signor Amato, who was brought to this country several years ago early in the regime of Gatti-Casazza, after having made a brilliant record in his native Italy, has been one of the greatest drawing-cards in New York since that time and represents in the world of baritones what his famous countryman, Caruso, does among the tenors. He has twice been heard in Ann Arbor as a festival star, but this will be his first appearance as a song interpreter, a field in which he is considered equally successful.

On November 23d, the Flonzaley Quartet, which for a decade and a half has loomed up as one of the greatest organizations of its kind, will be heard in Ann Arbor for the first time since the construction of Hill Auditorium. They were brought together years ago by Mr. deCoppet, a zealous art patron, and their success from the first was such as to warrant the formation of a permanent organization. Early in their career they solemnly pledged themselves to devote their musical activities entirely to the benefit of the city of Ann Arbor, and for years have kept inviolate with the result that they have attained a unique position in their own particular field.

The third number on the series will be a Violin Recital by Mischa Elman on December 13th. This distinguished Russian virtuoso, although still a young man, ranks as one of the foremost. He has toured probably more extensively than any other of the great artists, having crossed America and all the countries of Europe many times. His performances are clerical and of the highest order.

On January 20th, Ignace Paderewski, the world's dominant pianist, will be heard. Paderewski is a world character from several points of view. Not only is he a great musician with a record extending over a period of more than a quarter of a century, but his unceasing activities in behalf of his native Poland in her struggles for emancipation from her oppressors have also been sufficient to warrant him an unique position in history where his place not already established as a musician. He has given his immense fortune liberally, and for years has been one of the few Poles who has dared to speak openly since his position has been such as to make him immune from persecution. Since the outbreak of European hostilities his energies have been entirely devoted to relieving his suffering fellow-countrymen. During the coming year his concert activities will be confined to a limited number of musical centers and the entire proceeds, amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, will be devoted to this purpose.

The last number on the Pre-Festival series will bring to Ann Arbor, on March 17th, the New York Philharmonic Orchestra, under its distinguished conductor, Josef Strakosky. This organization has been in existence for nearly a century and is one that has set the standard for orchestral music in America. Conservative in a sense, it has been progressive along the lines of legitimate musical development and has done much in the cause of elevating American music. With its full quota of men its first appearance in Ann Arbor should be memorable.

Plans for the next May Festival are now in the making but are at this time too incomplete for formal announcement. The event, however, will be given on the same general lines as in the past and will maintain its previous high standards, not only from the point of view of choral and orchestral works, but from the point of view of an imposing list of participating stars.

Booklet announcements regarding the Pre-Festival concert series will be mailed to any address upon application to the Secretary, Charles A. Slink, Ann Arbor.

THE BEST PROOF

Given by a Chelsea Citizen.

Doan's Kidney Pills were used—they brought benefit.

The story was told to Chelsea residents.

Time has strengthened the evidence. Has proven the result lasting.

The testimony is home testimony—The proof convincing.

It can be investigated by Chelsea residents.

Mrs. W. D. Arnold, E. Middle St., Chelsea, says: "I suffered greatly from dull, nagging backaches and distressing pains in the region of my kidneys. My kidneys gave me a great deal of annoyance. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Fenn's drug store, and they helped me wonderfully. They removed the pains in my back and corrected the action of my kidneys." (Statement given July 7, 1909.)

Over three years later, Mrs. Arnold said: "My cure has been permanent and I give Doan's Kidney Pills the credit."
