Frank P. Buss.

Frank Philip Buss was born in the township of Scio, and died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Yager, on McKinley street, early Saturday morning, November 6, 1915, aged 36 years, 8 months and 12 days.

He was the son of J. W. and Caroline Buss. On November 16, 1904, he was united in marriage to Miss Mabel Yager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Yager. Mr. and Mrs. Buss resided in Chelsea, Lima and Dexter during their married life, and about four years ago, following a short illness, he was stricken with paralysis, from which he has been a sufferer ever since.

There are left to mourn his loss his wife, father, mother, six brothers and three sisters.

The funeral services were held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Yager on Monday afternoon, conducted by Rev. A. A. Schoen, assisted by Rev. C. J. Dole. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery.

Corn, Apples and Potatoes Short.

Corn, apples and potatoes are the three short crops in Michigan this year, according to the supplementary report which was issued Tuesday by the government in conjunction with the secretary of state's statistics.

A comparative statement shows that the yield of corn this year is 8,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. The figures for 1915 are 55,100,000 bushels, as against 63,000,000 in 1914. In spite of the shortage prices are not as high as a year ago, when 73 cents was being paid. The average this year is 69 cents.

The potato yield this year is given at 21,800,000 bushels against 44,014,000 bushels last year. The price this year is 52 cents, against 31 cents in 1914.

Apples show a total of 3,150,000 barrels this year, with the price around $1.90 to producers. A year ago the quotation was $1.20.

The figures for three other crops follow:

Wheat, estimate this year, 20,490,000; final estimate last year 17,316,000 bushels. Price November 1 to producers, $1 per bushel; year ago, $1.03.

Oats, 64,260,000 bushels this year; 50,752,000 bushels a year ago. Price this year 34 cents; last year 44 cents.

Barley, 2,549,000 bushels this year; 2,340,000 bushels last year. Price 64 cents in 1915; 63 cents a year ago.

Indoor Circus.

Beginning November 20th and continuing for an entire week the greatest indoor circus that was ever presented any place, with the possible exception of in Madison Square Garden and the Coliseum in Chicago, will be given under the auspices of Zal-Gaz Grotto, No. 34, Mystic Order Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm, at Weinberg's coliseum, Ann Arbor.

Admission to the big show is but 25 cents, and for every penny you pay you will draw down 50 cents worth of amusement. Monarch Hensel is determined that this event will make a name for the Grotto as a purveyor of amusements that will last for years, and he wants everybody in the county to take advantage of the opportunity. There will be something doing every minute of the time, and nobody can afford to miss it.

"The Lure" what is it?

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO.

Happenings in Chelsea Twenty-five Years Ago This Week.

The democrats held a ratification meeting at the town hall Monday evening.

Four overcoats were stolen from the churches in this place Sunday evening.

About fifty relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wood helped them celebrate the tenth anniversary of their marriage Monday afternoon.

For the first time in a number of years, cranberries have been shipped from this place. Geo. Blach shipped fifty bushels one day this week.

CAN'T HANDLE FREIGHT

Embargo On Freight Is Declared By the D. U. R.

Generosity on the part of relatives living in the rural communities, who have sent potatoes, apples, cider, eggs, butter and other farm products to their kin in Detroit, has caused such a clutter in the D. U. R. freight houses in Detroit that an embargo has been placed on freight for that city for the balance of this week.

The remainder of the week will be spent in endeavoring to deliver freight shipments to the consignees, and the freight houses will be placed in readiness to receive the shipments that will begin pouring in again next week, when the embargo will be raised.

Mrs. Aletta Stedman.

Mrs. Aletta Stedman died at her home in Ann Arbor, Monday, November 8, 1915, aged 72 years. Mrs. Stedman, whose maiden name was Boynton, was twice married, her first husband being Norman Cummings, who died while a young man, and her second marriage was to Chauncey Stedman, who died a few years ago. Mrs. Stedman was a resident of Lima until about 26 years ago when she moved to Ann Arbor. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at her late home. Interment at Oak Grove cemetery, Chelsea.

Thanksgiving Banquet.

The grand annual banquet given by the ladies of the Church of Our Lady of the Sacred Heart, will be held this year on Thanksgiving evening, Thursday, November 25, in St. Mary's auditorium. The ladies have a splendid reputation for their banquets, and the one this year will be up to the standard. There will be a fine musical and literary entertainment. Rev. P. J. Howard, professor of English in Assumption college, Sandwich, will be the principal speaker. Full arrangements are now being made, and everything promises a most successful banquet for the benefit of St. Mary's Academy.

Flag Day November 13th.

Saturday, November 13th, will be flag day in Chelsea for the benefit of the Starr Commonwealth for Boys. The object of the Starr Commonwealth for Boys is to maintain a real home for the homeless, friendless and dependent boy; to give to the wild, wayward child of the streets, the so-called "bad boy," a chance to make good; to direct, wisely and lovingly, the misunderstood, badgered and beaten child of ignorant or immoral parents; and to provide for the incorrigible sons of even well-to-do parents, a normal, healthful environment, where the lads will be taught the meaning of responsibility and the purpose of law.

Mrs. G. A. Runciman and Mrs. Mary Boyd have charge of the local branch, and the headquarters will be at L. P. Vogel's store.

Twenty-fifth Anniversary.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Salem German M. E. church, of Sylvan, celebrated their 25th anniversary last Sunday. A large crowd attended the celebration. The Ladies' Aid Society of St. John's church, Francisco, with their pastor, Rev. A. A. Schoen, attended. A very interesting program was given which consisted of a complete history of the society since its organization. Addressed by Rev. Schoen, Mrs. H. J. Kruse, Mrs. Miller the organizer of the society, the pastor's wife at that time, musical selections by the choir and girl's choruses, besides other interesting numbers. The Aid Society thanks the audience for a very liberal collection.

Dexter Gets Park.

A parcel of wood land between Warner's property and Scio township line has reverted to the village of Dexter through the death of Nancy B. Smith, widow of Richard Smith, and Mary J. Mains, a sister-in-law.

When Richard Smith died on May 14, 1904, he left among other property a parcel of land the life interest of which was given to his widow and sister-in-law, the property to go to Dexter village upon their death. The common council of Dexter accepted the land and upon the death of the last of the two heirs, about a month ago, the land became the property of Dexter. The council has appointed a park board of three members, and has named the gift Dexter Park.

Will Dig Up Old Cases.

Ann Arbor Times News: In order to separate the dead from the living all the old cases in every circuit court in Michigan must be dug up and a docket made of the same so that they may be disposed of and wiped from the records.

Under the new ruling of the last legislature, couched in the Judiciary act, requirement was made that at the first of the year all the old cases in every circuit in Michigan must be presented before the court at the spring term.

County Clerk George W. Beckwith, with an augmented force, will have to unearth hundreds of cases which date back to the early eighties. In many of the cases both parties to the suit, and the attorneys concerned, have long been dead. The cases however, have not been legally buried and are yet alive in the sight of the law.

It will mean weeks of work for the clerk's office to get a list of all the cases. Work will not be begun to find them until the first of the year.

The World Film Corporation presents the Wm. A. Brady Picture Play Co. feature, "Mother," in four acts, featuring Emma Dunn. Patience, kindness, tenderness, love and forgiveness are all combined in that noble word Mother. Jules Eckert Goodman's play "Mother" is the vehicle that Emma Dunn will use to make her debut into the motion-picture world.

She was the star in the play when it was seen on the stage, and with "Mother" her name has always been associated. So ideal is the visualization that Miss Dunn gives of Mrs. Witherell that she has become known as the finest interpreter of mothers visible on the current stage. In "Mother" Miss Dunn has given the stage and the screen a most memorial characterization.

SYNOPSIS.

Confederate Sergeant Wyatt is sent as a spy to his native county on the Green River. He meets a mountaineer named Jim Taylor. They ride together to a house beyond Hot Springs and meet Major Harwood, father of Noreen and an old neighbor of Wyatt, who is sent to bed while the two other men talk. Wyatt becomes suspicious, and finds that Taylor has murdered Harwood and escaped. Wyatt changes to the U. S. cavalry uniform he has with him, and rides away in the night, running into a detachment of Federal cavalry, to whom he identifies himself as Lieutenant Raymond. Third U. S. cavalry, by means of papers with which he has been provided, Captain Fox finds Harwood's body and follows Taylor's trail. Fox and Wyatt believe Taylor to be old Noreen's brother. The detachment is ambushed. Wyatt escapes to the Green River country and goes to Harwood's apparently deserted home, where he finds Noreen Harwood alone. She does not recognize him, and he introduces himself as Lieutenant Raymond. Noreen comes to the house and tells Noreen of her father's death. Wyatt forces Noreen to confess that he has been sent in advance of Anne Cowan, who proposes to marry Noreen at once, and so quiet title to the land in dispute between the Cowans and Noreen's dead father.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued.

He was so slow, that I thrust him roughly through the opening, and closed and locked the door. The girl had placed the lamp on a table, and as I turned, her eyes met mine.

"Suppose they—fall to come?" she questioned. "He could not get out; he might die in there."

"Little danger of their not coming. Anyway I prefer risking that fellow's life rather than yours. Is he really a preacher?"

"Yes; he has a church at the Cross-roads. I heard him preach at a camp meeting. He was here before when Tom's wife died, and conducted the funeral."

"Tom? One of the servants?"

"Yes, my father's body servant. He accompanied him to the army." The tears rushed to her eyes, dimming them, and her hand touched my sleeve.

"Oh, lieutenant, do you really suppose he has been killed?"

"We can only hope," I answered, catching my breath quickly. "Nichols may have told that for a purpose—a desire to make you feel helpless and alone. But we cannot stand here and talk. You know the way and can guide us in the dark, can you not? It will be safer not to leave the lamp burning."

I blew the light out without waiting for an answer, and took her hand in mine.

"Now you must lead," I said softly. "We will go down the back stairs."

We slipped out into the hall together, her grasp on my fingers warm and confident, and I closed the door of the room behind us. My hand encountered the baluster rail, and she had taken a single step downward, when we heard a voice below, and the crash of what was probably the stock of a rifle on the outer door. A second blow fell, followed by the sound of splintering wood. The voice came sharper, clearer; I could distinguish the words.

"Now, once more, Kelly! There's nothing to be afraid of, man. Break it a foot lower down, so I can reach the key. Where is Anne? Do you know, Jake?"

"He an' Bill are 'round front," some fellow answered hoarsely. "Thar's a busted window thar. Yer saw that light up stairs didn't yer?"

"Sure—the girl's yer all right; but it don't look as if the preacher was. I reckon he got afeard, an' was waitin' fer us ter show up furst. Here, you, Kelly, giv' me abolt on that chub."

She shrank back against me, with a little startled cry, and I held her close. We were in the trap, caught between the closing jaws.

CHAPTER IX.

What We Overheard.

I could feel the trembling of her body, and for an instant my brain seemed to reel with dizziness. The danger confronting us was not so much mine as hers. These men were not soldiers but desperadoes, the scum of the hills, and they had come actuated by one object only—the possession of Major Harwood's daughter. What the real purpose of the Cowans might be I could not even conjecture, but this night raid was, beyond all doubt, a part of that same foul plot which had involved the cowardly murder of the father. That had been the work of the elder Cowan, and now had come the turn of the son. Here was the culmination of the feud between the two families, the blood-anger which had smoldered for years, finally to find its expression in this outrage under the guise of war. With the major dead, and his only child married to Anne Cowan—whether by force, or otherwise—the account would be closed. Once legally this villain's wife all her inheritance would be in his control. Death, even, was far preferable to falling alive into their hands. I felt instinctively that it would be her choice. She had uttered no sound, no cry after that first startled exclamation. Suddenly her hands grasped mine in which I gripped the revolver.

"Do not shoot—no yet!" she whispered, the sound of her words barely audible. "Wait; there is one chance still that we may deceive them."

"A way leading out? You mean a secret passage?"

"No, but a spot where we might hide, and be overlooked. I am sure none of these men know this house; Anne Cowan has never been inside of it, and most of the ruffians with him are from beyond the mountains. If they do not find us here when they search, they will believe we have escaped."

"They will discover the preacher," I protested, yet with a faint throb of hope. "He will be heard from presently, and they will learn the truth from him."

"All he knows—yes; but that is not much. He cannot be sure that we have not had time in which to get safely away."

She drew me back, and I yielded to the grasp of her hand. The darkness was intense, but she moved swiftly and surely, as though knowing intimately every inch of the way; her fingers touching mine were warm and firm, no longer trembling. The door in front crashed, and an oath rumbled upward; to the rear a light flashed, its reflection reddening the stair. Aided by its distant flicker we raced back down the upper hall to where it narrowed. A ladder stood there leading upward to a small scuttle above. Instantly my mind grasped her plan—the attic! If we could attain the attic unseen, drawing the ladder up after us, and lowering the cover over the hole, our presence in the house might remain unsuspected.

"I see what you mean," I said swiftly. "Go up first, Miss Noreen—hurry!"

She crept through the narrow scuttlehole, her supple, slender body finding easy passage. With two blows of my boot I loosened the supports, freeing them from the floor, and mounted recklessly. Already men were on the stairs, the gleam of an approaching light reflecting along the side-walls. There was light flooring above, and sufficient space in which to move freely, although I could see nothing, not even the breathless girl at my side. Together we grasped the upper rungs, and drew up on the floor. The scuttle cover was on hinges, and it slipped over the edge of the hole noiselessly. We lay there pressed closely together in silent suspense. We could distinguish the opening and closing of doors, and the sound of voices calling to others on the floor below. Once some fellow, apparently just beneath us, ripped out an oath.

I Could Feel the Trembling of Her Body.

"Well, by God, Jack, do you suppose Nichols has dared play such a durned trick on me and squealed to the girl?"

"Hanged if I know," was the sullen reply. "But it don't look like thar was a soul in the house."

I felt her hand touch mine softly, and bent my head until her lips were at my ear.

"That was Anne Cowan," she whispered. "I recognize that voice. What do you suppose they will do now?"

My fingers tightened their grip; the men below had moved on, their voices grumbling along the hall.

"They will discover the preacher presently," I said, endeavoring to make my words as reassuring as possible. "I have faith they have overlooked him only wonder they have overlooked him so long; I supposed he would make an outcry."

She drew in her breath sharply, and sat up. The movement was noiseless, but in the instant of intense silence which followed, we heard below us the sudden sound of struggle, a muffled voice calling for mercy, the shuffling of a body being hauled forward across the floor. Then someone ran along the hall, passing just beneath us.

"What have you found, Kelly?" it was Anne's voice roaring out of the question. "Ah! the old fox dug out of his hole, hey! Now see here, you cackling old Baptist hypocrite, what kind of a trick is it you are playing on me? Stand him up there boys, against that rail. Stop your howling, or I'll smash you one in the face. Where did you find the fool, Jack?"

"Locked in a closet yonder; looks like it might be the girl's room. The darn fool is too skeered ter talk yet."

"Well, I'll make him, or else thar'll be a dead preacher in 'bout a minute. I reckon as how I'll do as much skeering as anyone. Now, Nichols, ye see thet! What the devil was yer doing in thet closet?"

"They—they done put me thar, Anne."

"Go on. Who was yer beside the girl when yer cum?"

"A Yankee lieutenant, a cavalryman I reckon from the yellow stripes on his legs."

"A Yank! Did yer hear the tellar's name?"

"Damn if I'm sure; he's a right good sized man, an' not bad lookin'. Pears to me, now I think of it, she called him Raymond."

There was a gasping sound as though Anne's hand had closed again heavily on the fellow's throat.

"Raymond! I reckon yer lyin' ter me, parson. Yer heard tell of thet fellow over in camp, an' ther name stuck. 'Twant be healthy fer yer ter play no game yere."

"I ain't, Anne. Quit a chokin' me. I never heard tell of no Yank named Raymond afore. Be thar one 'round yere?"

"Wall, thar was, but I don't reckon thar is now," doubtfully. "Last I heard tell of him he was over in Fayette a ridin' like hell fer Charleston. Monte's hand picked him up, an' he didn't find this kentry none too healthy fer his line o' business, which was recruiting—whut's that, Kelly?"

"Better let ther preacher tell his story, Anne. We're losin' a lot o' time; I reckon thar must a bin some kind o' male critter yere; 'tain't likely ther girl locked him up alone, an' it don't make no odds whut the Yank's name was, nobow."

"Go on, Nichols; whut happened? Tell us the whole of it, but make it short."

The preacher drew in a long breath, evidently relieved to have the pressure of Anne's murderous fingers removed from his throat. He sputtered a bit as he began to tell his story and there were muffled words we could not distinguish. Occasionally someone of his auditors interrupted with an oath, or exclamation. He spoke faster as he proceeded, as though feeling less fear, and eager to have the task over. Finally Cowan interjected a brief question.

"You damn coward! Did you tell?"

"Honest, Anne, I don't jest know; but I reckon I did spit it most out, fer he'd a killed me if I hadn't."

"Do you mean to say you told them I was comin' yere tonight, an' goin' fer ther make the girl marry me—you whinin' cur?"

"How could I help it, Anne? I reckon if thet feller had a pistol at yer head you'd a did some talkin'. Maybe he's a recruitin' officer, but he ain't no sorter man ter fool with onct he gets mad."

"Well, I'd sure like fer ter know who he is. He can't be ther feller whut got away from Monte, fer he lit out fer Charleston. How did this yere feller git yere—on horseback?"

"I didn't git sight o' no hoss; thar was only one four-legged critter in ther barn, an' I reckon as how the girl must hev rode thet."

"Say, Anne," broke in the voice of Kelly, "I'll bet this Yank is the one thet was with Fox, an' got away. He'd hed time 'nough fer ter git this fer on fut."

"But whut does he call hisself Raymond fer?"

"Damn if I know—maybe he jest heerd tell of the other feller, an' thought as how he'd git 'long easier under thet name."

"Well, I reckon it won't make much difference whut the cuss' name is if ever I git my hands on him," growled Anne savagely. "Go on, Nichols. Whut became of them?"

"Skipped out, I reckon. I never seen nothing more o' em."

Anse must have completely lost his temper, for there was the sound of a blow, and the noise of a falling body, feet shuffling as the others drew back. Then a moment of silence.

"Pick the ol' fool up," said a voice. "Throw him back into the room thar. Maybe he'll hev sum sense when he wakes up. Kelly, take Jim with yer. An' see if thet hoss is in ther stable yet. If them two left on fut, they ain't gone fur in this storm. Enyhow thar's one thing sure—they ain't a hidin' up yere. Cum on, boys, let's take a 'nother look 'round down below."

We heard their feet on the stairs, and the light, which had streamed up through the crack in the scuttle, faded away, leaving us in utter darkness.

CHAPTER X.

The Recognition.

I began to understand the state of affairs now, placing this and that together, lying there in the darkness, listening for some sound of guidance from below. I could hear the soft breathing of the girl at my side, but she did not speak or move. She must have realized fully the object of these men, and the desperation of our position. Would she continue to trust him? To believe in my purpose, or had the words of betrayal spoken by Anne Cowan and Kelly left a sting of suspicion behind? If they had, would I dare to confess the truth, fully reveal my identity, and thus leave the fate of my secret mission in her hands? Her sympathies must naturally be with the Union forces; she would see the issues from the viewpoint of her father. That would have nothing to do with these banditti, but later might greatly interfere with the work to which I had been assigned. I had two duties to perform—to the army, and to this helpless girl; which was paramount if by any chance they clashed? I could not answer, but I did comprehend which came first—I must save Noreen Harwood from the merciless clutch of Anne Cowan. I must remain with her loyalty, until she was safe in the protection of friends. Possibly I could accomplish this, and still retain my secret.

"Is there any other way out of here, Miss Noreen?" I asked, scarcely above a whisper, "any opening leading to the roof?"

"I have never seen one, though often up here when I was a child."

"Then our only means of escape is by the ladder, and we dare not venture

"You Damn Coward! What Did You Tell?"

that until assured those fellows have really left. Do you hear any sound below?"

We both listened in breathless silence, but no noise reached us with any distinctness. I thought I caught the echo of a voice, but it sounded from outside the house—possibly someone yelling a report from the stable.

"Shall I risk exploring?" I asked doubtfully. "There is surely no one on this floor except Nichols, and I judge he has been knocked out for some time. We can hardly wait here for him to recover, and give us free passage. What action do you think we ought to take?"

"I certainly have no desire to remain here longer than is necessary," she answered calmly, "but I do not believe those men have all left the house. Some may be outside in the storm searching for trace of us, but there are others surely on guard below. Did you hear that? A knife fell on the floor; someone is eating in the dining room."

"I am going to lift the scuttle; possibly some light may filter up the stairs."

QUEEN GREET'S VILLAGE BRIDE

Bulgarian Ruler, in Company With California Girl, Attends Humble Wedding.

The hearts of a pretty village bride and her family were filled with gratitude by the presence of Queen Eleanor of Bulgaria and Miss Helen Scott Hay, formerly of Pasadena, Cal., at the marriage ceremony in a small village near Sofia recently, according to a letter received by members of Miss Hay's family here.

The queen and Miss Hay were out motoring together when they saw a great crowd of folk in holiday attire at the village home. They went in and congratulated the young bridegroom and wished for the little bride a life of wedded happiness and thereby won her love and everlasting gratitude.

Miss Hay, with the personal assistance of Queen Eleanor, will soon establish a nurses' training school in Sofia. In company with the queen she has visited practically all the big hospitals in Bulgaria.

According to the charming Pasadena girl, Queen Eleanor is graciously democratic and greatly beloved. Miss Hay is busy studying the Bulgarian language preparatory to beginning her new life work.

Family of Hymn Writers. The Wesley family all wrote hymns, including the father, three sons and a daughter, though the two brothers, John and Charles, wrote the most of all. The first volume of hymns by John Wesley was published in 1738, and the first one by Charles Wesley in 1739. Following these at intervals, John Wesley published five more volumes separately. Charles Wesley published 38 volumes separately, and the two brothers published several volumes together. Most of the volumes were small, some of them containing less than twenty hymns, but 20 of them contained more than one hundred hymns each, and one of Charles Wesley's volumes contained 455. Charles Wesley is said to have written altogether 6,500 hymns. His volume of hymns for children, published in 1763, contained 2,030. The sister, Mehitabel Wesley, who, by an unhappy marriage, became Mrs. Wright, wrote some hymns, but did not publish any.

Gathered Smiles

CHAT BY THE WAYSIDE.

"People take life much easier than they used to."

"Yep," replied Farmer Crotwell. "There seems to be a growin' fear that the boys'll study too hard an' that the men'll work too hard."

"Still, there is every reason to believe that popular interest in a progressive civilization was never stronger than now."

"Yes. But I'm kind of afraid that civilization will have to watch itself so's not to be like Lem Carruthers after he got talked into spendin' all his money for a fancy wagon. His outfit was all driver an' no hoss."

Always Humorous. Art Editor—I'm afraid your work is too comic for general illustrating.

Artist—I suppose that means I will have to spend the rest of my life doing comic supplements.

"Not necessarily. You might design women's fashions."—Life.

A Wrong Reading. "Ma, did the men in the old times do the housework?"

"Of course not. What makes you think so?"

"Well, in our Sunday school, the teacher was reading about the husbandman sewing tears."

JUST LIKE SOME PEOPLE.

"Rowell is a hard worker."

"Yes—he'd make hard work of any thing."

The Kicker. And still the kicker sings his song. A melancholy elf. It's easier to show what's wrong Than do what's right yourself.

This Didn't Really Happen. "I won't wear my new dresses at Atlantic City, after all."

"And after all the money you spent?"

"Yes; but you see they're packed so nicely that I hate to take them out of the trunk."

Good Reason. "My husband fairly choked with anger the other day."

"Why?"

"Because I wanted him to cough up the price of a diamond ring."

A Suggestion. Young Widow—After all, I cannot wholly grieve that my poor, dear, old husband is gone.

Resourceful Friend—Then why not put on half mourning?

Filling the Bill. "I want to study, for my hero, a man of fine tendencies."

"Then why not try a police magistrate?"

Letter for Letter. "Why does a poet begin so many of his sentences with 'O'?" said the politician.

"There's no answer," replied Mr. Penwidge. "Why does a speech-maker begin so many of his sentences with 'I'?"

Not at That Price. Mrs. Eke—I bought these goldfish for a quarter—think of it!

Mrs. Wye—Really? They can't be any more than plated.

Same Denomination. Lady (Interviewing girl)—I may tell you that we are vegetarians.

Girl (Anxious to be hired)—That's my church, too, mum.

His Failing. "That young surgeon carries his profession even into his social hours."

"How so?"

"He's such a cut-up."

Malapropos Invitation. Mrs. Jigger declined very coldly my proposal to her to join our Shut-in society.

"No wonder. Her husband's in jail."

Getting Back. "My cook left this morning merely because I asked her to get dinner for a few friends of mine."

"I hired her, my dear, and I don't mind giving you a chance to get back at her. Bring your friends over to my house for dinner."

His Portion. "Will you share my portion?" asked the poor young man.

"I fear yours is only a half portion," said the girl gently. "You will need it all for yourself."

LAZY THING.

"Are you opposed to child labor?"

"Yes; especially when the child grows up."

The Curtain Lecture. Most wives are inconsistent. When husbands drive them to it; they say: "It's no use talking." Then so right on and do it.

Naturally. "That young speeder's car has been very much admired."

"Certainly, it has. I know a number of people have been struck with it."

Making Headway. "Making any progress toward getting acquainted with those fashionable people next door?"

"Just a little. Their cat invited our cat over for a musicale last night."

Just the Man for Her. "So you think Katherine made a very suitable match?"

"Yes, indeed. You know what a nervous, excitable girl she was! Well, she married a composer."

Accommodating. "That rude fellow told poor little Miss Flite that he didn't like her face."

"What did she do?"

"She changed countenance."

A Reversed Compliment. "That was a splendid paper you read at the club yesterday afternoon."

"Did you like it?"

"Very much. I wish my husband could write one as good for me."

AN INSTANCE.

"She said I was a perfect gentleman."

"She is always calling people names."

Advice From Crimson Gulch. "Let not your angry passions rise. It's better to act slow an' tame. Fur feelin' rad affects the eyes. An' likes as not will spoil your aim."

The Right Place. "Does the law consider a man's home where he sleeps?"

"Yes."

"Then my husband ought to register from the church."

Not for the Ear. "Is the music for your new production meritorious?"

"I don't know," replied the manager. "I haven't seen the chorus try to dance it, yet."

Changes. "James got down at one time to hard pan."

"But he got up again, didn't he?"

"Oh, yes; up to a Panhard."

The Uncertain Following. A leader marched along and found himself alone one day.

For his procession had turned 'round and marched the other way.

Filmsy Finance. "I started in life on borrowed capital," said Mr. Cassius Chex.

"And now you have no debts what ever?"

"On the contrary, I expanded my credit so that I could go on borrowing more and more."

Specifications. "Isn't that a fine line of the poet's about women being human nature's daily food?"

"Yes, especially when they're peaches and chickens."

Stop That Backache!

There's nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. You are lame when you awake. Pains plague you when you bend or lift. It's hard to rest and next day it's the same old story. Pain in the back is nature's warning of kidney ill. Neglect may pave the way to dropsy, gravel, or other serious kidney sickness. Don't delay—begin using Doan's Kidney Pills—the remedy that has been curing backache and kidney trouble for over fifty years.

A Michigan Case

Mrs. George Kessler, W. Main St., Paw Paw, Mich., says: "I was in such bad shape with kidney trouble that I could only rest by my only relief. My whole body was filled with pain and for three months I was sick and bed-ridden. Doctors failed and no hope was held out for my recovery. Doan's Kidney Pills put me on the road to recovery. Before long I was in good health."

HIS SILENCE A COMPLIMENT

Too Many Men Are Apt to Make the Mistake That is Recorded of This Husband.

The coffee was weak, the bread underdone, and the fowl tough, or at least he said so. His wife's long patience gave way.

"John Henry," said she, "I've tried faithfully to cook to suit you for twelve long years. No one in the town has better-cooked food, yet you are always finding fault. Why can't you praise me once in a while, I'd like to know!"

He looked up in astonishment.

"Well, if you ain't the most unreasonable woman I ever saw," he ejaculated.

"Why, many and many is the time I've sat down to a meal and never said a word about it. Anybody would know there wasn't any fault to be found, or I'd a found it, and yet you want a better compliment than that! That's just like a woman—they can't tell a compliment when they get one!"

NEW TREATMENT FOR ASTHMA

To quickly ease the struggle for breath, stop the wheezing and bring blessed relief, ask your druggist for an original yellow box of true Mustangine which costs about 25 cents.

Apply plentifully night and morning, and remember to rub up and down the only, over the entire chest from the throat to the stomach

This is the Stove Polish YOU Should Use

It's different from others because more care is taken in the making and the materials used are of higher grade.

Black Silk Stove Polish

Makes a brilliant, silky polish that does not rub off or dust off, and the shine lasts four times as long as ordinary stove polish. Used on sample stoves and sold by hardware and grocery dealers. All we ask is that you try it on your own stove, your parlor stove or your range. If you don't find it the best stove polish you ever used, your dealer is authorized to refund your money. Insist on Black Silk Stove Polish. Made in liquid or paste—one quality.

SIDELIGHTS

Have you seen those placards in the D. J. & C. Cars that reads something like this: "We are willing to do what the people want." One Chelsea resident read it and came up town proclaiming the glad tidings that Chelsea was to have a new station. Investigation, however, proved that the old freight car had been buried a little deeper in the cinders. Nothing doing.

Why is it that the same young lady who could scarcely wait until she could don long skirts, now wears a skirt so short that it can never hope to have even a speaking acquaintance with her shoe tops?

After looking at the picture of Miss Dorothy Newell, the girl who had the "Votes for Women" sign painted on her bare back, and paraded around the streets of New York, we do not wonder that suffrage was defeated. The voters probably thought if they voted "No" that she would exhibit that back in another campaign.

"If you want to succeed, save. This is true, not so much because of the value of the money which a saving person accumulates, but because of the infinitely greater value of the system and organization which the practice of saving introduces into his or her life."

Better take the advice of a man who has made such a tremendous success of his life, and start some systematic scheme for saving your money.

And, by the way, there is no better place for depositing your savings than in this strong bank which has stood the test of years.

Gabriel Bockres is confined to his home by injuries received Saturday by being struck by an automobile. Mr. Bockres was at work at his duties as street cleaner, almost directly in front of Hindelang & Fahrner's store, on north Main street, when he was hit by an automobile driven by Dr. Cora Stitt, of Stockbridge. He was knocked down and the machine passed over him. He was badly bruised but luckily no bones were broken, but it will be some time before he will be able to resume his duties.

Avian tuberculosis has been found to affect chickens, according to Professor C. H. Burgess, of the Michigan Agricultural College poultry department. "The disease is communicable to man and chickens suffering from it are unfit for food," said Prof. Burgess. "We have been trying to get owners of diseased flocks to kill them, but as the disease has only recently been discovered, there is no law by which we can compel them to do so. The disease should be stamped out before it obtains a foothold."

Governor Ferris has issued a proclamation designating Thursday, November 25th, as Thanksgiving Day.

Mrs. Campbell's class in music and expression will give a recital at the town hall this, Thursday, evening at 7:30 o'clock.

James Dann left on Tuesday for Mackinaw City, where he will visit relatives. He also expects to make a deer hunting trip while away.

Mrs. A. R. Welch of Pontiac, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Watkins and daughter of Grass Lake, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hans of Ann Arbor spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Gilbert.

N. S. Potter, sr., of Jackson, mixed up with some fresh gravel on the road at Sylvan Center Saturday, and narrowly escaped a serious accident. His auto was put out of business and had to be towed into town.

Hubert Maze, Herbert Vogel, Robert Lawrence, Louis Faber, Henry Glazer, Austin Palmer and Leonard Shepard will attend the thirteenth State Boys' Conference at Kalamazoo November 26-28. They will be accompanied by E. P. Steiner.

Hon. H. W. Newkirk, of Ann Arbor, who has been for the past four years with Senator Townsend in Washington, has decided not to return to the capital city, and Saturday sent his resignation to the Senator. Mr. Newkirk will open an office in Ann Arbor in the near future.

SOUTH AFRICA Drying Up

CONCERNING a specific instance of the continuous decrease of surface water from the earth, especially in Asia and Africa, the "dry continents," Advocate Eugene N. Marais, R. J. P., writes from Rietfontein, Waterberg, South Africa, an astonishing article recently published in a report of the Smithsonian Institution.

After mentioning some of the general facts relative to the drying up of the whole earth, which, according to the French astronomer Flammarion, will ultimately cause the end of the world, the author cites a number of appalling instances of the increasing dryness of Africa. N'gami, a real lake less than fifty years ago, is now no more than a marsh threatened with speedy extinction, and Lake Rudolph is rapidly shrinking, which fact is alarming when it is realized that this body of water feeds the Nile and waters Egypt. Mr. Marais believes false the old doctrine regarding the perfect cycle of moisture—evaporation and precipitation being equal—and thinks that the earth is sucking up moisture like a gigantic sponge.

them; movements in all directions follow, so animal-like as to leave one in doubt whether they are really seeds or insects. First each seed disentangles itself, then the seedhead is lifted clear of the ground, following which a bend of the supporting stalk turns the torpedo head earthward, and the needle point with its bristles is thrust into the damp soil by a continuous pressure of the stalk. This latter movement is continued until the seed is embedded in the soil, the whole operation occupying 15 minutes. If the soil is only slightly damp, the seed penetrates just beyond the line of moisture and remains without germinating until enough rain insures the safe sprouting of the future seedling. Thus equipped, the sour grass exists despite the severe drought against which the sweet grass is helpless.

All Animal Life Fied. The effects of the drought were so far-reaching on the animal world that those animals capable of escape fled early from the stricken area—man with his live stock among the first—and now the entire middle void is without human inhabitant, and the

PRIMITIVE IRRIGATION

The name Waterberg was given originally when this country was very fertile, watered by lakes, streams, springs and dotted with marshes. According to the writer, its name was synonymous with a sort of lotus land of fertility; it literally overflowed with milk, honey and fruits. It was also the last stronghold of the big game of the northern Transvaal. Today, after the culminating drought of 1913, it is practically a desert, with dried up water courses and springs, dead orange groves, some of them over fifty years old, trees three centuries old now lifeless, desolate pasture lands devoid of cattle and other life. There is no game, either birds or animals, and the fields where fine crops once grew are now parched and dead.

No Running Water There. It is hard to believe, but true, that in the entire district of Waterberg, which is larger than the Free State, there was last year no running water, and in the north of the district there is a tract over 4,000 square miles in extent where there is no single drop of water, running or stagnant, above the surface of the ground. The great Limpopo itself is dry for all the distance that its course covers in this district and only by digging deep in its sandy bed can drinking water be found. Even after a very heavy rain in the neighborhood of its source, which flooded its tributaries at the time, the stream reached but a little way down the water which fell in the upper regions reached the sea; all lost in the burning sands of the river's bed. Only the fairly numerous thermal springs of the district remain unaffected by the drought, and on them the dwellers depend for drinking and irrigation. The famous sweet grass of this region is nearly gone, though in its place has come a coarser "sour" grass with peculiar drought-resisting qualities.

The life history of this "sour" grass is truly a fairy tale of botany. Its seeds are highly specialized, having a body shaped like a torpedo with a long, tapering tail.

north practically a desert. Over everything lies the silence of absolute lifelessness. It seems as if the desert had reached out an arm and taken into itself for all time this great extent of once fertile country, where for four and a half hours daily in no spot is the temperature less than 100 degrees Fahrenheit.

The terrible heat and the absence of all moisture cause singular effects; the hair is so electrified that when stroked lightly a crackling shower of sparks is evoked, and the finger nails become so brittle they break constantly; both hair and nails seem to have lost all power of growth. All celluloid substances break up, and rubber becomes a useless spongy mass. The horses' swishing tails crackle incessantly and stand out in disheveled bushes, each individual hair as if wired, and in the night their flanks seem to be surrounded by miniature auroras of electric discharges.

The big game have nearly all disappeared, most of them having trekked to more fertile country. Some of the remaining animals have had to change their natural habits; the nocturnal ant-bear is forced to search its food in broad daylight on account of the fact that the ants in the hard ground cannot be dug out during a night. Most nocturnal beasts of prey also hunt during the day as well as by night; some leopards raided a nearby camp in the early afternoon, and the baboons usually so afraid of the dark, seem never to sleep, but walk about both day and night in search of food in any form. A crocodile was unearthed by the author's party when digging for water in the bed of a stream, four and a half feet beneath the surface. This specimen was limp and fresh, although apparently lifeless, and together with some fish which were found near by, was revived in a short time by the application of water. Animals not well equipped to dig to the water follow those more fortunate and use their water holes; some of the warthogs are followed all day long by a retinue of other animals awaiting an opportunity to slake their thirsts. The wild dogs of the district, known as the terrible hunting dogs, drive day and night, attacking all animals, and are credited with having caught and killed an ostrich, previously an unheard of thing.

DAIRY FACTS

RULES FOR FILLING A SILO

Iowa Agricultural Experiment Station Offers Some Excellent Suggestions on the Work.

To farmers who are filling silos this year for the first time, the Iowa agricultural experiment station offers these suggestions:

The corn should be cut when the kernels are dented, or when about a fourth of the husks and lower leaves are turning brown. It should be as near maturity as possible and yet contain enough moisture to insure fermentation.

Either a half-inch of three-quarter-inch cut is best because that length insures less waste and a larger pack of corn in the silo.

Slow filling makes it possible to pack the corn more thoroughly and get in a larger tonnage. With rapid filling the cost is less, but to fill to capacity the silage should be allowed to settle and then refill.

Corn should be uniformly packed in the silo and with good distribution of stalks and ears. If the sides are kept about two feet higher than the center, the silage wedges against the sides, keeps in the heat of fermentation and kills molds.

Water needs to be added when filling if the corn in the silo is not moist. Water must always be added when the corn is very ripe, when the corn is severely frozen before it is properly matured, or when filling late in the fall with shocked corn.

Keep the sides of the silo airtight by filling cracks with soft clay. If the silo is wooden, or with cement if of masonry.

USEFUL MILK BOTTLE HOLDER

Corrugated Strips Riveted to Intermediate Frame Hold Narrow-Necked Vessels in Position.

There are upper and lower rectangular frames to a milk bottle case, recently patented by a young San Francisco inventor. Corner angles unite the two frames, and intermediate frame is secured to the corner angles. A longitudinal bar is riveted to the middle frame near the center. Corrugated strips are riveted to the intermediate frame and the longitudinal bar, these holding the milk bottles in place by acting as side supports. Various deviations of the main idea are covered with three other patents.

SERIOUS DISEASE OF CALF

White Scours Usually Appear Within Two or Three Days After—and Are Often Fatal.

White scours, or calf cholera, come on so soon after birth that often the calves are dead before they are considered to be seriously sick.

This disease usually appears within two or three days after the calf is dropped. Seldom do any cases develop after the calf is two or three months old.

The symptoms are usually failure to eat, the calf lying down much of the time, the eyes grow dull, and a peculiar pasty white excretion is noticeable. The calf often dies within 24 hours. Only immediate attention will save it.

The disease is usually contracted by infection through the navel cord. Prevention is better than cure.

HORSE LABOR IS NECESSARY

Many Important Factors Can Be Controlled by Manager in Making Dairy Farming Successful.

Horse labor is a necessary item on the dairy farm and should command much attention from the manager. If its efficiency drops the profits of the farm are decreased, and the profits from the cows must bear a loss in the horse-labor item. It is seen then that successful dairying is not making a success with cows alone, but profitably combining a number of factors. Man, labor and crop yields per acre are other important factors that can be controlled to a considerable extent by the manager.

Flavor of Milk Affected. The odor and flavor of milk are very readily affected by rape, cabbage, turnips, and other foods having strong odors, and if these are used they should be given after milking, in which case there is little danger of imparting an unpleasant flavor or odor to the milk.

Demand for Dairy Butter.

There is always a good local demand for really good farm dairy butter. There is a sentiment connected with homemade butter, which is not attached to that made in butter factories, which impels people to buy it at something above the going price.

RASPBERRY BUSH TOO OFTEN NEGLECTED

Thorough Cultivation Throughout Season Will Materially Aid in Securing Fine Results.

(By W. R. GILBERT.) The raspberry is too often left alone or prepared by rule-of-thumb methods only.

When this is the case it is useless to look for good crops. The canes that have borne fruit should always be got rid of as soon as they have performed this duty.

Choose fine weather for this operation, and leave three or four young shoots to each stool. Manure, and let them grow until spring. Then if they appear very crowded, let the side shoots be shortened back before mid-summer down to about six or eight leaves from the ground.

By doing this the light and air will have free play, and without their beneficial agency no good results can be had.

The canes of the bushes must never be allowed to press one another. When this is the case good fruit is impossible. Overcrowding is fatal to either fruit or flowers.

The great object in pruning is to open the heart of a tree or bush so as to admit the sunshine and air. The thickest of young suckers should also be removed.

To form a raspberry hedge, plant the canes a foot apart, and train on wires. Cut out those that have borne, and train the young canes so that they are six inches asunder.

In regard to varieties, the very large kinds I consider very undesirable, except, as the dealer said, when asked: "What are the utterly worthless, razors you have to offer for?" "To sell."

These mammoth varieties look well, but they lack the juice and the peculiar acid flavor of the raspberry.

EXPERIMENTS WITH MILK FOR POULTRY

Not Only Used as Ration in Laying Contests, but Also Given to Growing Chicks.

In the Connecticut egg laying contest there are five experimental groups, in each group two pens. In each case the pen having the odd number is fed the regular contest ration, the pens with the even numbers receiving exactly the same rations with the single exception that thick, sour, lapped or clabbered skim milk is substituted for the meat part of the mash. The milk pens have water just as the others do, and in addition to this, all the thickened milk they care to consume. It is found that each ten birds will eat on an average from one to two quarts a day.

Storrs station has not only been trying the use of milk as a ration on its experimental pens in the laying contest, but has also been using milk for growing chicks for the past three years. The data thus collected, with results of work done at other experiment stations, point to the fact that milk as a ration for chicks and for laying hens has a very definite feeding value.

The following table indicates fairly closely the price the poultryman can afford to pay for milk for the purposes mentioned:

Value of Milk Substitute.	Quart 100 lbs.
Baby chicks, first week.....	cts 2.00
Chickens, first six weeks.....	cts 1.00
Chickens, first six months.....	cts 0.50
Laying hens or pullets.....	cts 0.50
Breeding stock.....	cts 1.00

BARNYARD MANURE IS OF MUCH VALUE

Liquid Excrement From Farm Animals Should Be Carefully Preserved for Crops.

The liquid excrement from farm animals contains nearly half the nitrogen and potassium voided by them and should be carefully preserved.

When steers are fed on cement floors the value of the manure produced is more than $4.00 per year greater for each animal than when fed on earth floors.

Open barnyard manure is about one-half as valuable as stall manure.

The least amount of manure will be lost from stored manure if animals are kept on it or it is kept in a moist, well packed condition.

Manure used in connection with continuous cropping will not maintain the maximum yield but when used in connection with crop rotation it increases the yield of all crops grown in that rotation.

Manure used in conjunction with a complete fertilizer high in phosphorus will give better returns than when either is used alone.

CONVENIENCES FOR MOVING BEEHIVES

Difficulties in Transferring Insects Nearer Residence Overcome by New Yorker.

In the cold climates where bees are wintered out of doors, it is sometimes advisable to cover several colonies with one shed and to move them nearer the residence. Difficulties naturally arise in doing this, but these may be solved by the plan conducted by G. C. Greiner of Niagara county, New York. Mr. Greiner has used a sled somewhat resembling a combined stone boat and sleigh. The runners are made of 3 by 8 scantlings and the platform of one-inch stuff. To the runners is fastened a chain by means of clevises. A carpenter's horse 12 inches high is placed at one end of the little sled containing the bees. A jack, shown at the opposite end, is used to raise the house until the horse can be placed under it. When so placed, the jack is removed to the other end and the house raised there. Then the sled is pushed beneath the house, the jack and the horse are removed and the whole thing dragged over the snow wherever desired. In unloading the reverse process is practiced. By means of these tools Mr. Greiner is able to handle his bees without serious jarring. Preferably the work should not be done until after snowfall.—Orange Judd Farmer.

ORCHARD MAP VERY HANDY FOR FARMER

Before Name Tags Are Removed From Trees Chart Should Be Made Showing Location.

It frequently happens that after the name tags are removed from the trees in a young orchard the farmer is dependent upon his memory alone to distinguish the different varieties.

Before removing the tags from his trees the farmer should prepare a map of the orchard. The trees on this map should be accurately located and numbered. A separate sheet of paper should be kept on which the name of the tree should appear after the number. Of course, if the orchard is a very small one, the name of the tree could appear on the face of the map opposite the number.

Handy. "I've started a ten-cent box for Christmas, dear," said the better half. "You won't forget it, dear, will you?" "No forget it!" replied the other fraction. "Why, how can you say such a thing? Of course I won't forget it." And he didn't. The very next day he shook four dimes out of the box to meet a deficiency in his car-fare allowance.

Its Sort. "Military courtship must be trying." "Naturally. It is a sort of court-martial."

Nothing Doing. "Can I sell you a copy of the latest edition of the unabridged dictionary? It is a work that should be in every home." "Does it contain any words that are not in the older editions?" "Thousands of them." "Then I don't want it in my home. My wife has quite enough words as her command as it is."

Out of Sorts

THAT IS, something is wrong with baby, but we can't tell just what it is. All mothers recognize the term by the lassitude, weakness, loss of appetite, inclination to sleep, heavy breathing, and lack of interest shown by baby. These are the symptoms of sickness. It may be fever, congestion, worms, croup, diphtheria, or scarlatina. Do not lose a minute. Give the child Castoria. It will start the digestive organs into operation, open the pores of the skin, carry off the fecal matter, and drive away the threatened sickness.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Dr. J. C. Williams

Thought Umbrellas Unmilitary. Umbrellas and khaki seem a most unlikely combination; yet one instance is recorded of British soldiers taking their umbrellas into action, according to the London Chronicle. On December 10, 1913, during the battle of the Nile, the Grenadier guards captured a redoubt outside Bayona. While they were in possession of this Wellington passed by and noticed that the officers had umbrellas up to protect themselves from the heavy rain. He sent back his aide-de-camp, Lord Arthur Hill, to tell them that "the duke does not approve of the use of umbrellas in action. The guards officers may, if they please, carry umbrellas even in uniform when on duty at St. James; but in the field it is not only ridiculous, but unmilitary."

Bugs. "Isn't this awful!" exclaimed Mrs. Gabb as she looked up from her newspaper. "Isn't what awful?" demanded Mr. Gabb. "Why, here's a woman who complains that the insane asylum is filled with bugs," replied Mrs. Gabb. "Well," growled Mr. Gabb, "what's the blame place for, anyway?"

Salmon Thrive in Maine. Success has been met by the bureau of fisheries in establishing herring back salmon on the Maine coast, according to reports from that territory. The fish were planted in February, 1914. Many fish weighing up to seven and a half pounds have been taken or seen in Penobscot river, and twenty were captured alive by agents of the bureau near Bangor, held in an effort to obtain ripe eggs. From two of these fish 3,000 eggs were taken September 6, and, after fertilization, sent to the Craig Brook hatchery for incubation. Local fishermen caught and ate large numbers, and an employee of the Green Lake hatchery took fifteen fish last week. These had passed through the fishways in dam in Dennys river and were dropping down stream in a spent condition; at the same time both live and dead fish were observed below the dams.

Pantalette Undoubtedly Here

Diversity of detail is a striking characteristic in the new models. In the morning blouse to wear with the tailored suit it is the brilliant coloring and odd fastening that is the great style change from the preceding season. Made of velvet, satin, faille, georgette crepe or taffeta, it matches the petticoat or its new rival, pantalettes, of the same material, generally a kidlike finished satin. The blouse and pantalettes are now attached to each other. The pantalettes, which are made on masculine trouser line as to width and general shape, are no longer than the short skirt worn over them. The hem of the skirt, undulating or falling in points, partially conceals the pantalettes or delusively gives them the appearance of a tight drop skirt. Sometimes the pantalettes are drawn in like bloomers. More frequently they are edged by bands of fur. The lacy pantalettes of last season of the old-fashioned kind and longer than the skirt are almost never seen now. In the evening gowns the pantalette is confined to the chamoise drop skirt, which is almost lost to view under the diaphanous outer skirts, long and short, that hang over it. This pantalette drop skirt is pretty because it indicates the long, slender lines of the limbs more than a mere drop skirt would and gives the same appearance without shackling the wearer's movements.

Party Frock of Taffeta

Party gowns may be fashioned in a froth of lace and net, in layers of chiffon or net, or both over a silk foundation. Or they are made of the new and beautiful taffetas. And no matter how airy and unsubstantial they may be, bands of fur are very likely to appear on them. Embroideries of silver thread, the introduction of silver laces, and a use of spangled trimming lends them life and sparkle. When designed for youthful wearers trimmings are to be sparingly used.

A lovely model appears in the picture above, made of taffeta. This silk is shown in a new and substantial-looking weave, in all the light colors and in fascinating opalescent effects. And in this will be suited for development into a gown like that shown here.

The bodice is simplicity itself, so far as shape is concerned. It is merely a broad band and fastened at one side about the figure and an embroidered band of silver and blue threads and spangles are wrought into the pattern. It is supported by suspenders of black velvet ribbon over the shoulders, edged with scant ruffles of maline in black.

The skirt is moderately wide and finished with a heavy cord at the bottom which weights it and preserves a little flare. It is cut so that a bit of draping is introduced at the right side, where a pretty spray of little chiffon roses, set on a long wire (wound with gray-green ribbon), is tucked to the skirt in several places. These roses are in pastel colorings and add a youthful touch that looks as if it might have sprung from the mind of the young wearer.

Slippers or high-laced boots of satin are worn with dancing frocks, to match them in color. Those made of silver or gold tissue have the advantage of looking well with a frock of any color. Silk hose matching the slippers complete the details of the costume properly.

Julia Bottomley

Pansies on Hats.

Bright-hued pansies have found a place on many hats in satin, blue, black, cerise and white, as well as the rich pansy shades, and they also figure on evening bodices and sometimes on morning ones.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Accustom children to elegant objects as far as one's means permit. I think one might manage so that every common jug and basin in the house were well molded with such curves as would not offend the Athenian. There is so much in the form of things.—Mary Howitt.

MORE ABOUT CHILD FEEDING.

Simple dessert should be given rarely until after the eighteenth month and then only as a treat and for variety. Pastry should not be given to a child until it is ten years of age, says one of our famous child physicians. Candy should never be allowed until after the second year and then but one piece twice a week after the midday dinner. Often children of two do not gain in weight because of too much sameness. Not a lack of quantity in the diet. Children should never be allowed to hurry or slight the breakfast, but the noon meal is the one which should be the heartiest and a simple supper of bread and milk, milk toast or some light and easily digested food.

Too much excitement and play will often take away the child's appetite. They should not then be forced to eat, but put to bed earlier as sleep is the best of tonics for an appetite. For a child from two to three the following foods may be served, at various times, not all at one meal.

Fruits, orange juice, prune juice, pulp of stewed prunes, baked apple, apple juice, apple sauce, stewed apricots, figs, soaked and stewed, scraped raw apple.

Oatmeal, cream of wheat, rice, farina, hominy, all slightly salted, well cooked and served with the top of the milk or thin cream. Eggs coddled, that is dropped in the shell into boiling water and removed at once from the heat, standing five or six minutes or longer; soft poached eggs.

Meat.—Scraped beef of rare roast, white meat of chicken, center of lamb chop, roast lamb, broiled beef steak, or broiled or broiled fresh fish, all minced fine.

I need not enlarge upon the advantage of money; everything we see and everything we hear puts us in remembrance of it. As the world is, it is sort of duty to be rich, that it may be in one's power to do good.—Lady Montagu.

HOW TO PREPARE RABBITS.

A rabbit should not be hung longer than two or three days unless kept in cold storage. The age of a rabbit may be told by the paw. If there is a little put in the paw which is easily broken with the thumb and finger, the rabbit is young; if it has disappeared and the paw resists pressure, the rabbit is too old for anything but a stew.

In dressing a rabbit there is a little secret that will remove the gamy odor which is so objectionable to some. It is to remove the thin membrane which extends from the flanks over the intestines. The strong flavor will be removed and the flesh delightfully sweet. The gall bladder must, of course, be carefully removed.

Roast Rabbit.—Put the rabbit, carefully dressed but whole, into a kettle. Add a quart of water and a pinch of soda and stew until tender. Take from the broth. Mix with the broth to moisten, well-seasoned bread crumbs, stuff the rabbit, lay in a pan, spread with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake a rich brown. Serve with a brown gravy made from the broth, adding a little browned onion for seasoning.

Barbecued Rabbit.—Open plump young rabbits all the way down the under side, wash and lay flat in a pan of salt and water with a weight to hold them under the water. Wipe dry and slash across the backbone in eight or ten places, brush with olive oil and broil on a clear fire, turning often. Lay on a hot dish, season with salt, pepper and plenty of butter, then set in the oven for the butter to soak in. Heat in a small pan two tablespoonfuls of vinegar, with one of made mustard; brush this over the rabbit while boiling hot. Garnish with parsley or watercress and serve with a currant-jelly sauce. Cook a tablespoonful of onion in a tablespoonful of butter, add one teaspoonful of the flour and a half cupful of rabbit stock, season with salt, a teaspoonful of vinegar, a bay leaf, a clove and a tablespoonful of currant jelly. Simmer five minutes and serve.

Ring Weighed a Pound. One of the largest rings is the one which was presented to President Franklin Pierce in 1853 by some citizens of San Francisco. It weighed one pound. The hoop of the ring is cut into squares, on each of which was shown some scene in the history of California. The bezel, bearing the seal, has engraved upon it the arms of the state of California, surrounded by the stars and stripes of the United States, and the name of Franklin Pierce. This ring was valued at $2,900.—Washington Post.

SCORE ONE UP FOR JONES

Sarcastic Comment Will Be Appreciated by Those Who Favor Old-Time Methods of Travel.

Down in the crimson clover zone there were two farmers named Jones and Smith, respectively. Jones was old-fashioned and stuck to old-fashioned ways, but Smith, who was more modern, bought a fine new automobile. One day he was proudly exhibiting it to some friends when Jones came along. "Um," remarked Jones, as he thoughtfully sized up the handsome machine. "What's that thing there on the side?" "That's a spare rim and a tire," answered the proud Smith. "We always carry an extra one in case one of the wheels goes wrong." "Jes' as I allers said," was the disdainful response of Jones. "I've dived hosses fer 'nigh on 50 years, and I never had to carry a spare leg for one o' them yet."—Philadelphia Press.

"Matrimony seemed largely incidental to Henry VIII's career." "I should call it more axidental."

Not Guilty.

There had been a railway collision near a country town in Virginia, and a shrewd lawyer had hurried from Richmond to the scene of the disaster. He noticed an old colored man with a badly injured head, and hurried up to him where he lay moaning on the ground. "How about damages?" began the lawyer.

But the sufferer waved him off. "G'way, bos, g'way," he said. "I never hit de train. I never done sth a thing in all mah life, so help me Gawd! Yo' can't git no damages outen me."

A New Remedy for Kidney, Bladder and all Uric Acid Troubles

Dr. Eberle and Dr. Braithwaite as well as Dr. Simon—all distinguished Authors—agree that whatever may be the disease, the urine seldom fails in furnishing us with a clue to the principles upon which it is to be treated, and accurate knowledge concerning the nature of disease can thus be obtained. If backache, scalding urine or frequent urination bother or distress you, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, gout or acidosis or you suspect kidney or bladder trouble just write Dr. Pierce at the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.; send a sample of urine and describe symptoms. You will receive free medical advice after Dr. Pierce's chemist has examined the urine—this will be carefully done without charge, and you will be under no obligation. Dr. Pierce

For the Family Medicine Chest

Green Bay, Wis., Mrs. Wm. F. Bubolz says: "I always use Foley's Honey and Tar for our children as it quickly breaks up their colds with no bad after effects, and they like to take it."

In this season of coughs, colds and croup, every family medicine chest should be supplied with a good cough medicine that can be relied upon when needed.

Such a family cough syrup is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. This standard medicine has been on the market for years and in many sections was found in every home in the days when doctors were not so handy and when money was scarce.

Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is an excellent medicine for coughs, colds, raw or inflamed throat, hoarseness, tightness and soreness of the chest, croup and whooping cough. It is an absolutely safe remedy, containing only healing ingredients, and free from any harmful drugs.

BREVITIES

YPSILANTI—Walter and Florence Tookie of this city did not get along very well and last week Florence took a divorce from Walter, Judge Kline granting the decree.

JACKSON—Thrown from his wagon when his team ran away, Burt Burch of Leslie was instantly killed Friday in Sandstone township, ten miles northwest of Jackson. His neck was broken.

JACKSON—Margaret Stevens, 71, was burned so badly Friday afternoon at her home that she died at the city hospital the same night. How the accident occurred is unknown, as she was alone at the time.

DEXTER—Elmer Reason has purchased a piece of land east of the Dexter House with a 36-foot frontage, upon which he will erect a garage for Reason Bros. The new building will be erected as early in the spring as possible.

YPSILANTI—John Walters discovered two things recently that surprised him. He found that his horse had been stolen and after he had driven to Ypsilanti to notify the officers, he remembered that he had a telephone in his house.

JACKSON—Because some of the male members of his congregation complained that the bright lights made them sleepy, Rev. D. N. Lacey, pastor of the first M. E. church, ordered all lights under the balcony turned off before he began his sermon Sunday night.

ANN ARBOR—Passengers leaving the Ann Arbor railway station Wednesday afternoon on the 4:37 o'clock train were treated to a generous sprinkling of whisky which was bestowed upon them by one Eli Verneet, of Milan, who had been imbibing too freely during the day.

JACKSON—Frank Williams, a Michigan Central trainman, was appointed to the police force Thursday night, and at once assigned to duty. At daybreak handed his resignation to the police captain, with the remark that "one night on a beat" had convinced him that a policeman's lot was not a happy one.

BRIGHTON—Eight young men each paid $3.75 for the fun they had Halloween, when they entered a school house in the eastern part of the township and mugged things up considerably. The school board refused to accept it as a joke, and started out to find the guilty parties, and met with remarkable luck.

YPSILANTI—When Carl Smith, a farmer, three miles north of here, noticed a flashlight on the window of his barn Sunday evening, he got his rifle and went to investigate. He saw two men running away and found his survey had been drawn out into the barnyard and a fine team of black horses fully harnessed ready to hitch to it. He followed the men up the road and saw them jump into an auto and drive away.

ANN ARBOR—A freight car which was being deadheaded by another car on the D. U. R. lines at the city limits on Jackson avenue caught fire Wednesday night about 8:10 o'clock and for a time people in that vicinity were treated to a spectacular blaze. If they need a car to take the place of the burned one they can find it along side of the track at the Main street crossing of the D. U. R. here.

ANN ARBOR—As a city car on the Huron street branch of D. U. R. & C. Ry., with but one passenger in it, was backing into a switch, a freight car, coming swiftly over the hill, hit and split it completely in two. The one passenger was Mrs. Lillian Hungerford, who was sitting directly opposite the stove. The force of the collision tore the stove from its fastenings and it fell upon her, severely burning her and breaking several ribs. She also suffered a puncture wound in her right arm.

HILLSDALE—Thomas J. King of Jackson has sold his 340-acre farm in Wright township, this county, to Alfred Young and sons, who have been his tenants, for $34,450, taking a mortgage for $30,000. Twelve years ago Mr. King experienced difficulty in getting help. He went to England and brought back the Young family, which included five boys. About five years ago Mr. King rented the farm to the Young family and moved to Jackson. The Youngs have managed to pay the rent, buy all horses, sheep, cattle and tools on the big farm, and save $4,500 with which to make the next payment on the farm. They expect to own the farm free of incumbrances, inside of five or six years.

MOTHER ALMOST DEAD

Daughter Held by Men of the Underworld.

Going home one evening, Sylvia, a department store clerk, finds her mother very sick, necessitating the aid of a physician. Sylvia asks her employer for a raise in her salary, and a short time later is discharged. With the approach of her mother's death, Sylvia remembers being offered work in her spare time by a nice young woman and she calls on her in search of work and once inside the house she is made an inmate and kept there. She is saved by a detective, whose life she saved some time previous, and restored to her sick mother.
