FAST AUTO DRIVERS PAID THE PENALTY

One Machine Wrapped Around Tree—Another Ran Off Side of Bridge.

A couple of automobile accidents have occurred in this vicinity during the past week that were the direct results of fast driving, and in both instances the drivers can thank their lucky stars that they are alive.

Last Thursday afternoon Roy Miller, who resides in the western part of the township, was driving a speedster on West Middle street, and at the Grant street intersection he turned out to pass a horse drawn rig and his machine skidded on the wet road and when it stopped it was nearly tied in a double bowknot around a tree in front of Albert Guthrie's residence. The driver escaped serious injury, but was somewhat bruised.

Saturday afternoon a couple of Detroit men were on their way to Olivet and thought that they could make it in a few minutes. They made a mistake in their calculation and have not reached Olivet up to this time. In their haste they overlooked the bridge crossing the stream north of the home of O. A. Burgess, three miles west of Chelsea.

The heavy machine turned over and pinned the driver, Ben Abashane, down so that his face was under the water, and he would have drowned if Christ Kalmbach, who was working nearby, had not gone to his rescue. The men escaped serious injuries and returned to their homes, and the wrecked machine was left with Mr. Burgess.

"Robinson Crusoe, Jr."

"Robinson Crusoe, Jr.," the New York Winter Garden's greatest offering with Al Jolson and a great company, will be the attraction de luxe of the season at the Whitney Theatre, Ann Arbor, on Saturday, October 13. Jolson is too well known to theatre-goers to need special introduction. As usual, he will be surrounded by an excellent company. This time the Winter Garden management is sending to Ann Arbor the absolute original New York cast including Lawrence D'Orsay, Claude Flemming, Frank Carter, Bowers, Crooker & Walters, Frank Grace, Johnie Berkes, Kitty Doner, Mabel Withee, Isabel Rodriguez, Frank Holmes, George Thornton, Lee Phelps, Alexander Dagnan, Bert Dunlap, Clint Russell, Adolf Blime and others, not overlooking the far-famed beauty brigade.

"Robinson Crusoe, Jr." is described as an original musical extravaganza in two acts and ten scenes. The book is by Edgar Smith and Harold Atteridge, the latter author being responsible for the lyrics as well. The music is by Sigmund Romberg and James Hanley. J. C. Huffman has staged the production, while the musical numbers are the work of Allan K. Foster.

Mr. Jolson's opportunities are many, varied and rich and he takes advantage of them all. He is first seen as a chauffeur and the next Friday leading the wild goat. Unexpectedly he meets Crusoe. Crusoe immediately adopts Friday and changes his name to "Good Friday" and things begin to happen, and they keep right on happening until the fall of the curtain.

A QUARTER CENTURY

Happenings in Chelsea Twenty-five Years Ago This Week.

There were no "demon" auto drivers burning up our streets.

Market: Wheat, 69c; beans, $1.60; onions, 70c; eggs, 17c; butter, 18c; chickens, 8c; dressed pork, 6c.

Governor Winans and Hon. Jas. O'Donnell discussed the political questions of the day at the town hall Tuesday evening.

The Chelsea Union Agricultural Society held a very successful fair at Recreation Park, at the west end of Middle street, where the Old People's Home is now located. The weather was fine and monster crowds were present. Among the race horse entries appear the names of Texas Jim, Judge Hatch, Captain Wagstaff and Richard Abalallah. The balloon caught on fire, so there was no ascension the first day. Hugh Sherry was president of the association, and O. C. Burkhart was secretary.

Walsh-Farrell.

Dexter Leader: A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Joseph's church, Tuesday, October 2, when Miss Grace M. Walsh became the bride of Walter T. Farrell.

She was attended by her sister, Miss Gertrude Walsh, who wore a gray broadcloth suit. The groom was attended by John Sullivan, of Chelsea.

Following the ceremony a sumptuous wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home to about fifty friends and relatives.

After a short eastern trip Mr. and Mrs. Farrell will be at home at 326 Garfield street, Chelsea.

The young people are well known in this vicinity and have the best wishes of a host of friends here.

Georgia Farmer Says Tanlac Relieved His Rheumatism Entirely.

SUFFERED 45 YEARS

"I am a Well Man in Every Way and Feel as Strong and Healthy as I Ever Did," He Says.

"I wouldn't take five hundred dollars in cash for the good four bottles of Tanlac did me," said J. M. Mallory,
a well-known farmer of Stoneville,
Georgia, a short time ago.

"For forty-five years I suffered almost every day," he continued, "and was so crippled up with rheumatism
that I had to hobble around on crutches.
My knees were so stiff I could hardly bend them and often I have been so weak that I have had to take to my bed for weeks at a time. More than half the time I couldn't do any work. I had indigestion and stomach trouble, too, and my back hurt so bad that I couldn't lay on my left side at all. I tried every medicine I saw advised, and many prescriptions besides, but kept getting worse.

"My brother living in Atlanta told me what Tanlac had done for him and begged me to try it. Well, sir, I have taken four bottles in all and have thrown my crutches away for the rheumatism is entirely gone and I can jump two feet off the ground without it hurting me a bit. I am a well man in every way and feel as strong and healthy as I ever did in my life."

ADAM SPRUNG FIRST JOKE

Asked Eve if She Expected an Ichthyosaurus, When She Objected to Spider on Rose.

We believe that in the Garden of Eden, Adam gave Eve a rose to exchange for a kiss. And she shuddered and said, "Ugh! There's a spider on the rose!" and he answered, "Well,
what do you expect for one stingy little kiss—an ichthyosaurus?"

We believe that to be the oldest joke
in the world—older than the goat,
the mother-in-law, or any that are supposed to be included in the Original Seven. In varying forms one finds it in the Talmud, in Plautus, in Aesop, in Rabelais, in Joe Miller, in all the almanacs and comic papers.

When we were a boy, it was told in a minstrel show, thus: A man buys a suit of clothes at a second-hand store.
He comes back and complains that the coat is inhabited by unpleasant insects.
And the dealer says, "Well, what do you expect for $5—humming birds?"

Vaudeville knows it in this form:
Tennant—"Look here, you'll have to make some repairs in this house. The cellar is full of water." Landlord—
"Well, what do you expect for $15 a month—champagne?"

And just last week we ran across our old friend again in a weekly comic paper. This time a passenger on a street car calls down the conductor for not calling the names of the streets distinctly. And the conductor replies,
"Well, what do you expect for $14 a week—a tenor solo?"

Quite Sufficient.

ACHIEVEMENTS OF "WAR SESSION" OF CONGRESS

Leaders Declare Work Done Is Most Remarkable in Parliamentary History.

HARMONY MADE A FEATURE

Lack of Dissension Was Noticeable—Administration Was Defeated on Only One Important Bill During the Six Months.

IMPORTANT BILLS PASSED IN SESSION

Here are the most important measures passed by congress at the special war session:

Declaration of war against Germany on April 6.

War bond issues aggregating $15,538,000,000.

War appropriations and contract authorizations totaling $14,300,000,000.

War loans aggregating $7, 000,000,000 to the allies.

The selective draft bill, making 10,000,000 men liable to military service.

The espionage bill, including the embargo provision.

The $2,235,000,000 war revenue bill.

The food control bill.

The trading with the enemy act.

The soldiers' and sailors' insurance bill.

Washington.—"The most remarkable session in the parliamentary history of the world," was the way Democratic and Republican leaders characterized the first war session of the Sixty-fifth congress, which came to a close at three o'clock in the afternoon of October 6, exactly six months after the declaration of war against Germany.

The record of legislation enacted
and money appropriated has no parallel anywhere in the annals of all time.
Beginning with the declaration of war against Germany in April, congress has passed bill after bill of the most revolutionary character, including such measures as the draft bill and the food control bill. Appropriations and contract authorizations for the present fiscal year, totaling $21, 300,000,000, including $7,000,000,000
in loans to the allies, were voted without a single dissenting voice, a record equaled nowhere, not even in the kaiser-dominated German reichstag.

How Money Is Expended.

The following table shows how the money is to be spent:

Army	$3,311,000,000
Navy	1,675,000,000
Merchant shipping fleet	1,835,000,000
Loans to the allies	7,000,000,000
Defense fund for	100,000,000
Food and fuel control	113,000,000
Soldiers' and sailors' insurance	175,000,000
Interest on bonds and certifi- cates	200,000,000
Civil establishment of govern- ment	97,000,000
All other expenses	102,000,000

As a part of the scheme of meeting
these enormous expenditures congress
passed the $2,235,000,000 war revenue
bill, the largest taxation bill in American history, levying directly or indirectly upon every man, woman and child in the United States. Something more than a billion dollars of this amount will be taken from war profits.
All incomes more than $1,000 for single men and more than $2,000 for married men are made subject to taxation.

Where New Taxes Fall.

Here are some things upon which the average citizen will pay taxes under the new war tax bill:

Approximately 2 per cent increase on incomes of $5,000 or less.

Letter postage, except local letters,
increased to 3 cents and postcards to 2 cents, beginning November 3.

One cent for each 10 cents paid for admissions to amusements.

Five-cent shows and 10-cent outdoor amusement parks exempted.

Ten per cent on all club dues of $12
a year or more.

One cent for each 25 cents paid for parcel post.

One cent on each 25 cents express package charge.

Three per cent of all freight charges.

Eight per cent of passenger fares by rail or water, except trips of less than 30 miles.

Ten per cent of charges for seats,
berth and staterooms on parlor cars
or vessels.

Five cents on each telegraph, telephone or radio message costing 15 cents or more.

Three per cent on jewelry.

Eight cents on each $100 of life insurance. The tax on whisky is increased from $1.10 a gallon to $3.20.

The tax on beer is increased from $1
a barrel to $2.75.

Increased tax on cigars, cigarettes
and manufactured tobacco and snuff.

Little Dissension During Session.

Despite pacifist activities, the session was marked by comparatively little dissension, the fighting centering
about questions mainly affecting policy. The most stubborn contests were staged over the revenue bill, the draft

bill and the food control bill. In every case, except censorship of the newspapers and speech, the administration has received everything it asked of congress for the conduct of the war.

Congress was in session 188 days.
During that time more than 10,000
army, navy and marine corps nominations sent to the senate were confirmed; among them the advancement of Major General Pershing, commander in chief of the armies in France,
and Major General Bliss, chief of staff,
to the rank of full general, held only four times previously in American history. The only important appointment held up was that of Col. Carl Reich-mann, to be a brigadier general. Action was blocked until the December session because it was charged he attended pro-German sentiments.

An unprecedented feature of the session was the reception of the special missions sent to the United States by the allied governments, and the special representatives of Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Russia and Japan addressed both houses. Invitations of the British and French governments to have the United States
send a congressional mission across the Atlantic to see war conditions and co-operate with the interparliamentary
congress were rejected.

Important Measures Passed.

Following is a list of the most important measures passed by congress:

Resolution declaring a state of war
exists between the imperial German government and the government and the people of the United States and making provision to prosecute the same.

On April 2 the resolution for war against Germany was introduced in the house and on April 6, or four days after the assembling of congress, the president attached his signature to the measure. No delay was involved in the passage of this resolution, perhaps the most important ever offered either in this or any other congress.

General deficiency appropriation act,
appropriating $163,541,400.52, of which $100,000,000 was for the national security and defense and for each and every purpose connected with the war.

Act authorizing an issue of bonds to meet expenditures for the national security and defense and for the purpose of assisting in the prosecution of the war and to extend credit to foreign governments and for other purposes. This act appropriated $5,007, 033,945.99 for establishing credits in the United States for foreign governments by purchase of bonds of our allies and expenses incident to preparation and issue of bonds and certificates; authorizes the issue of bonds amounting to $5,003,945,450, of which $2,000,000,000 is for meeting the loans
authorized to foreign governments,
$2,000,000,000 to meet domestic expenditures, and $93,945,450 to redeem
the three per cent loan and also authorizes $2,000,000,000 of one year certificates of an indebtedness temporarily to provide revenue.

Huge Military Expansion.

Act authorizing one additional mid-shipman for each senator, representative and delegate in congress.

Act appropriating $273,040,332.50
for the support of the army for the fiscal year 1918.

Act authorizing the president to increase temporarily the military establishment of the United States. This act authorized a selective draft of 1,000,000 men and contains other important legislative features pertaining to the army.

Resolution authorizing the president to take over for the United States any vessel owned in whole or in part by any corporation, citizen or subject of any nation with which the United States may be at war.

Act to increase temporarily the commissioned and warrant and enlisted strength of the navy and Marine corps from 87,000 to 150,000 men, in the first instance, and from 17,400 to 30, 000, in the second.

Act appropriating $1,344,896.18 for the support of the military academy
for the fiscal year 1918 and for other purposes.

Largest Single Grant in History.

allegations against Belgium civilians
contained in the German white book of May, 1915, in which it was said
Belgian civilians savagely attacked
German troops in the early days of the war and that the measures adopted by the Germans were necessary in the interest of preservation of the German army. According to the gray book, between 40,000 and 50,000 houses were

GROWERS OF TUBERS DESERVE FAIR PRICE

Crop This Season Represents an Unusually Heavy Investment.

NEED CARE IN STORAGE

Potatoes Should Not Be Allowed to Freeze and Should Be Protected
From Light.

By C. W. WAID,
Potato Specialist, Michigan Agricultural College.

East Lansing, Mich.—The season of the year is at hand when potatoes
will be stored in quantity for consumption during the winter. No doubt many more people will buy potatoes in quantity this fall than heretofore, and the very high prices which prevailed last season, especially during the latter winter and spring, will induce the people to lay in a supply this fall when the prices are sure to be much lower than they were most of last year.

There is a large crop of potatoes in Michigan this year, but not as large as it would have been had the frost held off to a later date. However, there should be a sufficient supply for all,
and it is to the interest of the growers, dealers and consumers alike that a considerable proportion of this crop
be in the hands of the consumers before winter sets in.

The buying public should keep in mind the fact that the cost of growing potatoes this year has been very much greater than it normally is, and for this reason the consumers should be willing to pay a fair price for potatoes in order that the grower may receive just returns for his investment.
If the growers do not receive a fair
compensation this season, the planting
will be light in 1918, with a correspondingly small crop and extremely high prices again, especially if war
should continue until that time.

In storing potatoes in small quantities for winter use they may be put away under quite varying conditions of temperature and moisture. But they should not be allowed to freeze,
nor should the temperature be so high that they will dry out too much and become wilted. An ordinary house cellar, or even a room in the house
may be used for storing potatoes if the frost is not allowed to get into the cellar or room.

Potatoes should always be kept from the light. If the room or cellar cannot be darkened, the potatoes should be covered. Exposure to light causes them to turn green and become more or less unsuitable for table use. The ideal conditions for storage are those under which a temperature of from 33 to 40 degrees is maintained and where the atmosphere is quite moist.

Under such conditions potatoes will keep in a sound and firm condition
for a long period of time.

SUBSTITUTES REPLACE MILK

Can Be Used With Success in Feeding
the Growing Calf—Lessens
Cost.

By W. E. J. EDWARDS,
Department of Animal Husbandry,
Michigan Agricultural College.

East Lansing, Mich.—Whole milk is the natural feed for calves, for it contains nutrients in the proper proportions. It will produce larger gains in live weight than skim milk and others feeds, but these gains are made at a greater expense, owing to the high value of whole milk as a human food. Calves should, however, be given whole milk for the first two or three weeks, or perhaps somewhat longer.
This measures a good healthy start.

When high-class breeding stock is being produced, whole milk can be fed profitably until the calf is several months old, though skim milk may be fed at from two to four weeks of age,
depending upon the health and thriftiness of the calf, care being taken that the change from whole to skim milk is made very slowly.

But with the demand for whole milk
increasing yearly as a result of growing consumption of it in our large centers of population, skim milk is not readily available on many farms. Several milk substitutes, accordingly,
which have been used quite extensiv-ly for calf feeding, are on the market. A number of these have given very satisfactory results and have shown that they will successfully take the place of skim milk. A good milk substitute will produce practically as healthy and rapid growth in the calf
as will skim milk, and at a greatly reduced cost. Recent investigations have shown, however, that homemadmixtures which cost much less will give equally as good results. One of the best is made by thoroughly mixing
equal parts by weight of hominy feed, linseed meal, "red dog" flour and dried blood. A small amount of this mixture may be mixed with the whole milk when the calf is from seven to ten days old. Gradually increase the meal, mixing it with water in the proportion of one part to seven parts of water. As the mixture is increased, decrease the amount of whole milk so that when the calf has reached the age of five or six weeks the calf meal
will have replaced all of the skim milk.
At this time about 1 1/2 pounds of the calf meal should be fed daily. Gradually increase the amount to from 2 1/2

to 3 1/2 pounds per day at six months of age.

Good results may also be obtained by making a gruel of three-fourths of a pound of rolled oats to from six to eight pints of boiling water, letting the mixture stand until cool enough to feed. Substitute this for whole milk gradually after the calf is from ten to fourteen days old.

Calf meals, whether homemade or commercial, are used simply as substitutes for milk, and a good roughage with a liberal supply of good growing concentrates, such as oats and bran, with possibly some corn or barley, should be given if satisfactory development is to be obtained.

SEED CORN IS SCARCE

Must Be Well Stored to Insure Thorough Drying and Curing.

By J. F. COX,
Department of Farm Crops, Michigan
Agricultural College.

East Lansing, Mich.—"What will we do for seed corn next year?" is a question frequently asked even now, with this season's crop as yet unharvested.

It is particularly important that all corn fit for seed be carefully selected in the field and properly cured and stored for next season's planting. By selecting in the field, it is possible to make a study of conditions under which the plant grew and to select properly matured ears from vigorous stalks growing under average conditions. A man can select with care, 12 to 15 bushels a day or more. It is equally important that corn so selected be properly dried. If coming from the field containing 35 to 40 per cent of moisture, this must be dried down to 12 or 15 per cent or the vitality of the corn will be lowered.

Canada's Liberal Offer of Wheat Land to Settlers

is open to you—to every farmer or farmer's son who is anxious to establish for himself a happy home and prosperity. Canada's hearty invitation this year is more attractive than ever. Wheat is much higher but the fertile farm land just as cheap, and in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

160 Acres Available for Settlers
Other Land Sold at from $15 to $20 per Acre
The great demand for Canadian Wheat will keep up the price. Where a farmer can get near $2 for wheat and raise 20 to 45 bushels to the acre he is bound to make money—that's what you can expect in Western Canada. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed Farming in Western Canada is fully as profitable an industry as grain raising.

The excellent grasses, full of nutrition, are the only food required either for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools, churches, markets, convenient climate, excellent. There is an unusual demand for farm labor to raise the many young men who have volunteered for the war. ## What Well Dressed Women Will Wear

The Schoolgirls' Coat.

The schoolgirl's coat is an important consideration which cannot be deferred now, although the outfitting of the "dapper" is about the most difficult of a mother's problems. This young person is apt to have ideas of her own coupled with more determination than her limited experience warrants. When she is past sixteen the task of clothing her becomingly grows easier every day. Before that time it is best to select things designed for the "awkward age" by those who specialize in this line of work. They are artists that know how to make the most angular of younglings look attractive.

The schoolgirl's coat shown in the picture is of heavy wool velour in brown. It is a straight-line model with somewhat narrow shoulders, long waist line, narrow belt and ample, convertible collar. All of these good points will commend it as up-to-date; a chic example of the mode in coats. Its collar and actual pockets reflect the styles for grown-ups and it is of the same soft and comfortable material that is used for the most mature wearers. This is an item that will please the "dapper."

Some models, in heavy wool velours and other coatings, are banded with fur fabrics or the short-haired furs. For all-round wear the plain cloth model is most apt to please the discriminating mother and in the long run will force its good points on its youthful and impressionable wearer. She has to be educated in the selection of clothes as in everything else. It is important to dictate her choice in them sometimes as it is to choose the right books and the right music for her.

Breakfast Coats Made Their Debut.

And now a new luster is to be added to the wardrobe of women, for the "breakfast coat" has made its debut. The holidays are always preceded by pretty, gay conceits in breakfast jackets and this year the breakfast coat will present another allurement for the Christmas shopper. It is an enticing garment made of light-colored taffeta; a more or less straight coat, open down the front and reaching almost to the bottom of the petticoat.

The breakfast coat is an unpretentious but very pretty affair, easy to make and simply trimmed. Ruffles and ruckings of silk, like the coat, take the place of lace for finishing collar and sleeves. Narrow girdles are also made of the silk. By keeping to simplicity in trimming and in design this new claimant for favor may be made up in gay colors and still deserve to be called a coat.

The breakfast coat appears in company with fascinating new caps and hand-bands that take the place of caps, ribbons and laces. Little hand-made flowers of chiffon or satin and small, fancy braids are used for these bands. Sometimes a wide ribbon, with narrow field of lace on each edge, headed with bands of the tiniest flowers, is fastened at the ends with snap fasteners. Other bands are made of wider lace and narrower ribbon, like that one shown in the picture. The last word in head-dresses for bonnets or breakfast wear is a Chinese "collar" hat made of satin ribbon and lace. It is rather difficult to make and according-

HERMIT SCULPTOR IS FOUND

Spends Time Modeling Little Masterpieces Which He Promptly Destroys Upon Completion.

There has been discovered at Cape Scott, one of the most solitary points in Vancouver Island, by the chief engineer of the public works department of British Columbia, a sculptor who spends his time in modeling little masterpieces from lumps of clay and then destroying them, relates an exchange.

He is A. F. Whittier, and he calls himself a "prospector." Living entirely alone, he has for the past two years been carrying out lonely investigations of mineral claims in his neighborhood. His sculptor's tools are of the simplest kind, and it is his habit to work with the same piece of clay, which weighs scarcely five pounds, and with that he has modeled scores of objects.

The government engineer found him just as he had completed a bust of the martyred British nurse, Edith Cavell. Mr. Whittier was about to destroy the work in order that he might use the clay for a miniature statue of his son, who was recently killed. He was, however, persuaded to part with the bust, which is to be auctioned in aid of the Red Cross funds.

Some Satisfaction.
At a ball given by Lord Derby in Canada, writes Douglas Staden, I watched his A. D. C. taking an important politician, whom he should have known perfectly well, to introduce him to his (the politician's) own wife, a young and pretty woman, who considered herself one of the lions of Canadian society.

The situation struck me as a promising one, so I listened to hear what he would say.

"Mrs. Pm," he said, "may I introduce Mr. Um-un to you?"

She looked up at him with an amused smile, and he continued quite blissfully:

"It's a stupid old duffer, but I'll get him away from you as soon as I can."

Makes Shaving Easy

The wonderful skin food and "wrinkle chaser," Usit, is the finest thing to soften a wiry, stubborn beard. A few drops rubbed into the stiffest beard before lathering softens the hair and makes shaving a pleasure. Your face feels fine after you have finished, and there isn't the least bit of smarting and tenderness. Usit not only softens the beard but makes the skin smooth and firm. After shaving apply Usit Face Powder de Luxe.

A clergyman writes: "For years I tried in vain to get something to make shaving less painful to me. Accidently I struck upon 'Usit,' and have used it ever since. It seems to possess the properties to soften the beard, to make the skin firm, smooth, less sensitive, and thus the work is made easy." For further distribution a bargain. Once only. Charm of Crepes.
There is a prediction that crepes of many sorts will be decidedly fashionable next year. And for that we are thankful, says a fashion writer. We have all learned of the charm of crepes of various sorts in the last few seasons, when georgette and other crepe fabrics have been in such wide vogue. Perhaps one of the chief charms about crepe is that it clings and falls in such soft and attractive folds and lines. Moreover, it is eminently practical, for it does not show wrinkles.

Shirring by Machine.
An easy and quick way to make shirring on a sewing machine is to loosen the tension to make the thread draw easily, lengthen the stitch and sew across your material as many times as you desire rows of shirring. Then pull the under thread tighter and you will have as even shirring as if done by hand, and it will wear much better.

BREVITIES

Dexter—Alex Dancer, a pioneer resident, died last Thursday, aged 78.

Grass Lake—Because they didn't like their teacher two boys broke into the Coppernoll school, near Grass Lake, and destroyed the books. They were arrested.

Albion—A peculiar virulent disease of horses has broken out at Albion and vicinity and has become contagious. The horses become blind soon after becoming stricken and veterinary surgeons seem unable to master it.

Grass Lake—David Smith met with a serious accident while cutting ensilage at the home of Roy Heath north of Leoni. The wind blew his coat so that it caught in the machinery and wound him up. The engine was stopped as soon as possible, but it was necessary to cut his clothes from him to get him loose and he was unconscious for half an hour.—News.

Some Climate.

That corner of Asia where the Turks have been fighting the Russians and the British comprises within a short distance the most extraordinary changes of temperature. The Russians stormed Erzerum with the thermometer recording 54 degrees of frost; barely 800 miles south the base of the British Mesopotamia force on the Persian gulf was situated, where 150 degrees in the shade has been registered on British warships. The interior of the peninsula between the Persian gulf and the Red sea is one of the few regions of the earth which remain terra incognita, the terrific heat experienced there keeping the most intrepid explorer outside its 600,000 square miles. The severity of the winter in the neighborhood of Erzerum results from its situation on an elevated plateau, which is at an average height of 6,000 feet above sea level, and this makes all the difference between its climate and that of the south of Italy, which is in the same latitude. The French Riviera is 250 miles nearer the Arctic than Erzerum, and the Cornish "Riviera" at least 700 miles nearer the icy north, but Cornwall gets the full benefit of the Gulf stream, that marvelous hot water system of the North Atlantic which saves western Europe from the frigid temperatures of central Asia and Labrador, on the same parallels of latitude.

IMPORTANCE OF HEALTHY KIDNEYS

Chelsea Readers Should Learn to Keep the Kidneys Well.

The kidneys have a big work to do. All the blood in the body is coursing through the kidneys constantly to be freed of poisonous matter. It is a heavy enough task when the kidneys are well, but a cold, chill, fever or some thoughtless exposure is likely to irritate, inflame and congest the kidneys and interrupt the purifying work. Then the aching frequently begins and is often accompanied by some irregularity of the urine—too frequent passages, sediment or retention. Thousands testify to the wonderful merit of Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy for the kidneys only, that has been used in kidney troubles 50 years. You will make no mistake in following this Chelsea citizen's advice.

C. Lehman, 420 Garfield St., says: "I was bothered by weak kidneys and backache. Constant lameness across my back annoyed me and the kidney secretions were irregular in passage. At night I was restless and got up in the morning all tired out. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they put a stop to the trouble. My kidneys became normal and the lameness left my back." Price 60c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Lehman had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Adv.

We believe that in a short time real good woolen dress goods will be as scarce as linens now are. Buy now at present prices and get good Dress Goods.

STATE WILL CARE FOR ITS WOUNDED

WAR BOARD MAKING PLANS TO PROVIDE FOR MEN FROM MICHIGAN.

EXPENSE IS NOT CONSIDERED

Wounded and Sick Returning From France to Get Best of Care Regardless of Cost.

Lansing—Michigan is planning to take care of its wounded and sick soldiers, sailors and marines from the time they are landed at an Atlantic seaport until they have recovered and are taken to their homes. These soldiers will be met in the port at which their ship lands and a representative from this state, to be chosen by Governor Sleeper, will take personal charge of such men and accompany them to a hospital, or see that some one accompanies them to their homes if they are able to travel.

All the details have not been worked out as yet, but the state war preparedness board, with Governor Sleeper, are working on the problem.

Governor Hixon, S. Finckle established a plan along this line during the Spanish-American war.

"The state legislature gave the war preparedness board $5,000,000 to be used for the soldiers, sailors and marines, and it is in caring for the men after they have been wounded or taken sick that we will use a part of this money," says Colonel Roy C. Vandercook.

It will be when the wounded and sick reach the shores of this country, they will find Michigan has not forgotten them, for everything that can be done for them, no matter what the cost is, will be accomplished.

If they need medical attention in a hospital they will get it and the state will pay, but if they are able to stand the trip to their home towns they will be removed there, and the state will pay the bill.

It is more than probable that several men will be chosen to remain in eastern ports as soon as the Michigan men go into the trenches to meet the incoming hospital ships and look after Michigan's sick and wounded.

GUARDS TAUGHT HOW TO BOX

Learn How to Fight Kaiser's Men With Bare Fists.

Waco, Texas—Judging by the course of instruction being given here by Capt. Allan L. Briggs, assistant chief of staff and senior aide de camp to Gen. W. G. Haan, the American soldier will help defeat the Kaiser by using his bare fists.

In his lectures to officers of the 32d division, Capt. Briggs, who returned from France recently after extended observation, lays stress on a necessity of a knowledge of boxing. The reason he advances for this is that the German knows nothing of the use of fists, hence, instead of ducking a blow, he shuts his eyes and flinches. This flinch will give the American soldier a chance to close in, even though unarmed, and render ineffective the long bayonet of the Teuton.

The use of their fists is but one of the many tricks being taught the guardsmen, each one of the devices having two purposes. One, to save the life of the American, the other to take that of the opponent. It is explained in the lectures that these tricks, including stabbing a man with his own bayonet, breaking his arm or neck, are made necessary by the style of fighting used by the enemy.

POLICE DUTY CURES OBJECTOR

Kitchen Work Day After Day, Banishes Contentious Scruples.

Camp Custer, Battle Creek—Only one conscientious objector has made his appearance at Camp Custer thus far. He was an intelligent young fellow and stated his objections with clearness. He did not claim any religious connection, nor did he base his attitude on spiritual grounds. He simply said that he did not believe it right to take human life under any circumstances, and did not want to be placed in a position where he would have to do it. He hung back in the drill work and utterly balked at the rifle.

Instead of arguing with him the captain put him to work peeling potatoes. Morning after morning, he went down to the cook's kitchen and did manual labor. All through the day, he peeled mountains of potatoes that were always disappearing as fast as he peeled them.

After a week at this work his conscience underwent a change. He asked permission of the captain to become a soldier in the company. In due course he will probably be permitted to resume his place in the ranks.

WITH THE BOYS AT CAMPCUSTER

A school for horseshoers will be opened at the remount station and 278 men will be transferred to it.

With the receipt of rifles instruction in guard duty is under way. The work heretofore has been done by the Thirty-third regiment battalion. Each regiment is assigned to guard its own sector of the continent, in the barracks section and on the outside edges of the camp.

STAPLE FOODS TO BE UNDER U.S. CONTROL

GOVERNMENT HAS PREPARED REGULATIONS TO CURB PROFITEERS.

DEALERS MUST GET LICENSES

Food Administration Says Purpose Is to "Protect the Patriot Against the Slacker in Business."

Washington—Virtually all the staple foods consumed by the American people will be put under government control November 1.

The food administration has prepared regulations requiring manufacturers and distributors of some 20 fundamental foods to operate under license restrictions designed to prevent unreasonable profits and to stop speculation and hoarding.

Regulations are prescribed for meat packers, cold storage houses, millers, canners, elevator, grain dealers and wholesale dealers and retailers doing a business of more than $100,000 annually in the commodities to be named.

"The prime purpose of the food administration is to protect the patriot against the slacker in business," says the announcement regarding regulations. "It has generally been recognized that the enormous obligation imposed on the American people to feed our soldiers at the front and Allies creates a disturbing factor in trade which allows opportunity to a few to impose burdens upon the many, and that it is of vital national importance that such control should be exerted as will remedy, so far as may be, the economic disturbances incident to the war."

"Efforts have been made to secure the co-operation of all patriotic men in various trades to eliminate speculation, hoarding, unreasonably profits, wasteful practices, etc., in the great distribution system of the country."

"The licensing provision in the food bill is limited in operation to the channels of trade which lie between the farmer on the one hand and the retailer on the other, except as it extends to those few retailers who do an annual business of more than $100,000."

"The food administration has selected about 20 basic commodities, and their products as forming the prime basis of life and has limited its licensing control to these commodities, and also, insofar as practical eliminated the smallest units of business in these staples."

A proclamation soon to be issued by the President will require all of those handling the commodities concerned to apply for license before November 1, upon forms which will be supplied on application to the food administration.

The proclamation will name the 20 articles of food covered by the regulation order.

GOVERNOR ASKS FOOD SAVING

Requests Housewives to Do Their Part in Conserving Supply.

Lansing—Governor Sleeper Tuesday issued the following proclamation to the housewives of the state:

"Beginning October 21, duly accredited representatives of the United States food administration will visit every home in the United States with a view to obtaining the signature of housewives to cards, which will pledge the signer to co-operate in a nationwide food conservation endeavor."

"Michigan will be canvassed thoroughly, but it is the hope of every patriot that our state shall make a showing equal to the best. You are earnestly asked to give these canvassers a courteous reception and a moment of your time. They have a few days only in which to canvass your community, and they will be brief and to the point."

"They will explain that the object of the conservation campaign is to save foodstuffs that can be sent abroad for use of our soldiers, and to help feed the starving populations in countries which without our defensive co-operation in contributions of men, money and food will certainly be brought to our own doors."

"You will be asked to do your part by doing what you can to conserve food by making certain substitutions in the preparation of family meals. It is a patriotic duty and I feel sure that you will receive, with a willing mind, the suggestions of these agents of the food administration and do your best to follow the subsequent suggestions that will be made to you."

"Therefore, I, Albert E. Sleeper, governor of the state of Michigan do hereby earnestly request all housewives and others having supervision and control of the disposition of food for table use, to co-operate with the food conservation forces of this state to the best of their ability."

URUGUAY BREAKS OFF WITH KAISER

SOUTH AMERICAN REPUBLIC SEVERES DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS.

SENDS GERMAN OFFICIALS HOME

Enters War On Side of U. S. in Order to "Align Itself With the Cause of Liberty and Justice."

Montevideo—Uruguay has severed diplomatic relations with Germany. After an all-night session the senate and house, last Saturday, authorized President Viera of Uruguay:

To break diplomatic and commercial relations with the German empire.

To adopt measures to facilitate navigation in co-operation with the friendly nations and measures to assure imports and exports.

The president acted promptly on the first point and took immediate steps toward action on the second. In a speech to congress, he made it clear Uruguay enters the war on the side of the United States, not because of any particular grievance, but to "align itself with the cause of liberty and justice."

Passports were issued to the German diplomatic and consular officials. Uruguay gives guarantee for their personal safety until they are out of the country. At the same time, cable orders were despatched to Berlin ordering all Uruguayan officials in Germany to leave for home immediately.

It is expected that Montevideo will be converted into a base of operation for the allied fleets.

FIVE DROWN WHEN SHIP BREAKS

Barge Loaded With Coal Founders in Hail Storm.

Harbor Beach, Mich.—Five persons, including one woman, were drowned, and three others were rescued in a heroic manner when the barge Athena, loaded with 3,500 tons of soft coal broke in two and foundered in a gale and blinding hailstorm, 25 miles off Southampton, Ont., in Lake Huron, at 1 o'clock Sunday morning.

After circling about the wreckage of the barge for nearly two hours, and making five unsuccessful attempts, Captain Frank Sinnott, commanding the tug Lucknow, which had the barge in tow, rescued three members of the barge's crew, who were in the Athena's yawl.

Handicapped by darkness and storm, Captain Sinnott found it impossible to rescue the four men and woman who were lost. He kept close to the wreckage as long as possible, in fact of the danger of being rammed by the floating hull, but finally had to clear away. Those drowned were:

M. J. Starkey, captain, Tonawanda, N. Y.

Mark Starkey, his son, 16 years old, Jonah Elander, 23 years old, of Sweden.

Kenneth Smith, 19 years old, Ashtabula, O.

Mrs. Florence Stalker, a widow, 38 years old, of Sarnia, Ont.

FIRST LIBERTY TRUCK READY

Specially Designed Auto for U. S. Army Completed.

Lima, O.—The first specially designed motor truck for the United States army, the product of the greatest motor truck designers of the country and the combined genius of 12 motor truck plants and 62 automobile parts factories, was completed here Monday.

The standardized machine, of which 35,000 will be turned out in the first half of 1918 for the army, is said to represent the perfection of automobile truck development. Its motor power is derived from the new Liberty motor, recently perfected at Washington by war department experts.

The first special army truck was built in the greatest secrecy to protect it from enemy eyes. A building with no windows and lighted only by skylights housed the truck in the three weeks of its construction.

TEUTON LIBERALS WANT PEACE

Movement to Let Alsace Choose Government, Gains Ground.

London—Democracy's spirit is seizing Germany. There is no longer any doubt that the people are aroused.

From Holland comes the report of a movement within Germany to announce a willingness to declare independence for Alsace-Lorraine, for two years after the cessation of hostilities, followed by a plebiscite to determine whether the inhabitants prefer to come under German or French rule.

The German "moderates" declare Belgium is no longer a serious obstacle to peace, the real difficulty being the fate of the German provinces. They feel that Britain and probably America will support France so long as she will fight for Alsace-Lorraine and they see little hope of peace until the question is decided.

That the movement has considerable support seems certain, but thus far it has been carried on more or less surreptitiously. However, it has reached a stage where a discussion of tariffs and government exchanges has been taken up.

"LIBERTY LIGHTS" WILL BLAZE

All Schools in State to Lend Aid in Making Loan a Success.

Lansing—The windows of 8,000 Michigan school buildings, both city and suburban, will flash forth the light of liberty during the evening of Monday, October 15. Defiance of the country's enemies, the outward sign of a high and holy purpose and the signal of a solemn promise will be embodied in the illumination which will feature the closing of the state's Patriotic Day and the first step in a seven days' campaign to raise Michigan's $125,000,000 quota of the country's $3,000,000,000 war loan.

Arrangements for the celebration of the opening of the Liberty loan campaign are in the hands of the state publicity committee, composed of representatives of the state press, whose headquarters are in Detroit.

The committee has the backing of the state's chief executive, the Michigan advisory Liberty loan organization and the newspapers, and every effort is being made to have the occasion stand out as the greatest in the history of patriotic endeavors.

SAGINAW PLANS FLOOD WALLS

Estimates Place Cost of Big Project at Over Six Millions.

Saginaw—The bureau of drainage of the department of agriculture at Washington has made its report to the Saginaw supervisors on a system of alleviation for the spring floods, which would also reclaim thousands of acres in the Saginaw valley. The cost is estimated at $6,057,000, which covers a system of levees within the city of concrete walls along both sides of the river, and enlarging and elevating the bridges.

A special enabling act for the valley or a state conservancy act, such as Dayton got from the Ohio legislature in 1914 for flood relief, are the legislative plans proposed.

Sixty-three thousand square miles of territory is affected by the floods. The report estimates 90,000 acres would be reclaimed. Further detailed investigations will be made before the final plans are adopted.

ALLIES MAKE FURTHER GAINS

Successful Attacks Made On German Positions in Flanders.

British front in France and Belgium—Another big attack was begun at dawn Tuesday against the German positions to the east and north of Ypres by both the British and French armies, and has met with great success.

At many places the Allied forces battled their way forward to a depth of 1,200 yards or more. Reports all along a wide front indicated everything was in favor of the assaulting troops, notwithstanding exceedingly bad condition of the ground, due to the last few days' rain.

Stiff resistance was offered by the Germans and every yard of ground given up was stubbornly contested.

Plenty Game in Upper Peninsula.

Peterkey—Moose, deer, wolves and bear are reported to be numerous in the upper peninsula this year.

SNOW STORM HITS UPPER PENINSULA

WEEPS STATE ABOVE STRAITS—THREE TO FOUR INCHES OF SNOW FALL.

WEATHER BREAKS TWO RECORDS

As Previous Record of Such Heavy Snow and Low Temperature for Early October.

Marquette—When the people of Marquette woke up Monday morning they found the ground covered with snow. During the day the mercury dropped to 31 above.

This unseasonable weather produced two records here, one in amount of snow fall and the other for low temperature for this time of the year. The local weather bureau reports that 2.5 inches of snow fell, the heaviest fall ever reported here up to and including October 8. The nearest approach to this was October 8, 1891, when 2.2 inches fell.

The nearest approach to the low temperature registered up to and including October 8 in any year since the establishment of the weather bureau here was in October of 1878, when 35 degrees was recorded. The snow storm which hit Marquette around midnight swept over the entire upper peninsula. In some places snow to a depth of 3.5 to 4 inches was reported. In Ishpeming, a fall of 3.8 was reported.

CURB POLLUTION OF AU SABLE

Du Ponts Restrained From Dumping Refuse Fatal to Trout.

Lansing—Papers were sent Monday to Bay City to be served on the representatives in Michigan of the Du Pont Powder company, restraining them from dumping cressets and other refuse from their mill at Grayling into the Au Sable river.

Straight chemical refuse from the mills, as dumped into the Au Sable was brought to Lansing and used as a basis for experiments by the state chemist connected with the state board of health.

This stuff undiluted killed goldfish in six minutes; diluted one-half it killed goldfish in 15 minutes, and diluted two-thirds, the fish managed to survive almost an hour.

Saturday night game wardens with acetylene lamps searched the Au Sable for 10 miles below Grayling and could not find a single trout.

The Au Sable has been for years Michigan's greatest trout stream, and as such is known from one end of the country to the other. The killing of its trout is looked upon by the state officials as nothing short of a calamity.

According to the Du Pont chemists, there is no way by which their work can be carried on successfully without the dropping of this refuse which is so fatal to fish life.

LA FOLLETTE DEFENDS COURSE

Asserts That "War Party" is Trying to Suppress Peace Talk.

Washington—Senator La Follette, whose expulsion from the senate for disloyalty has been urged in various petitions just before adjournment last Saturday, spoke for three hours in reply to critics of his course in the war.

His was a carefully prepared speech. He asserted that the "war party" besides carrying on a campaign of "libel and character assassination" against members of congress who voted against the war, was attempting to suppress discussion of war issues and intimidate the people themselves by invading their homes and unlawfully throwing them into jail.

Characterizing the attacks upon him as a "general campaign of vilification and attempted intimidation," La Follette defiantly shouted:

"Neither the clamor of the mob nor the voice of power will ever turn me by the breadth of a hair from the course I mark out for myself, guided by such knowledge as I can obtain and controlled and directed by a solemn conviction of right and duty."

Whatever may be the opinion of members of the United States senate as to the recent utterances of Senator La Follette, and in spite of the fact that the subcommittee instructed to examine those utterances is composed of men unfavorable to the Wisconsin senator, it is unlikely that La Follette will be expelled from the senate.

TROLLEY WRECKED; 21 INJURED

Car Leaves Track at Curve When Air Brakes Fail to Hold.

Kalamazoo—Twenty-one passengers were injured, three seriously, Monday afternoon when an interurban car, westbound on the Michigan railway, was wrecked at Comstock.

The air brakes failed to work and Motorman Glenn Olmstead was unable to stop at Comstock, the car leaving its tracks as it hit a sharp curve just inside the village limits.

Most of the injured suffered from burns from the high voltage electricity, which short circuited through the car, although some were terribly cut and bruised and were pulled from the wreckage and rushed to Kalamazoo hospitals.

The KITCHEN CABINET

If there is any one point which in six thousand years of thinking about right or wrong, wise and good men have agreed upon, or successfully by experience discovered, it is that God dislikes idle and cruel people more than any others.—Huxlin.

PALATABLE COLD THINGS.

These are always favorites at all times under most circumstances and conditions.

Oatmeal Beverage.—This is a drink which is especially cooling, and a great favorite on the farm. Take a quart of water, add one cupful of sugar and the strained juice of two lemons. Add a half cupful of boiling water to the oatmeal, mix the other ingredients and pour into a gallon of boiling water, stir well, put through a sieve and chill before serving.

Apple Water.—Core, pare and cut four apples in small pieces, then put them into a pitcher, adding the lemon rind from a small lemon, a quarter of a cupful of sugar and four cupfuls of water, boiling hot; cover the pitcher and let it stand aside to cool.

A tablespoonful of ginger mixed with three of sugar stirred into a pint of iced water makes a fine drink.

Boston Cream.—Take three quarts of boiling water, one and a half pounds of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of lemon extract, two ounces of tartaric acid and the whites of two eggs. Boil the water and allow it to get cold, then stir in the other ingredients, heating the whites until stiff. Mix well and pour into bottles and keep in the ice chest. When serving, put a pinch of soda in a glass and half fill the tumbler with ice, pour in enough of the cream to fill the glass and drink immediately.

Chocolate Sirup.—Take three squares of chocolate, one ounce of cocoa, one and a half pounds of sugar and a pint of water, one and a half teaspoonfuls of vanilla. Boil the cocoa in a double boiler ten minutes with a half-cupful of water; grate the chocolate and mix it with one-third of its measure in sugar; add this to the boiling cocoa, stirring constantly, then add the remainder of the sugar and boil for ten minutes. Remove from the fire, strain, cool and add the vanilla. This will keep in the ice chest until it is used. A tablespoonful of the sirup added to cold milk or lemonade topped with a marshmallow or whipped cream makes a most inviting drink.

He is great who is what he is from nature, and who never reminds us of others.—Emerson.

LOW-COST DISHES.

While the corn season lasts there are many most appetizing dishes which may be made from it or in combination with other foods.

Fried Corn.—Cook bacon for the family, then into the hot bacon fat turn in corn cut from half a dozen ears, stir and mix well; then add a half-cupful of water, cover and cook slowly until tender. Season with pepper and more salt if needed.

Corn and Tomatoes.—Cut the corn from the cob and stew until nearly dry, add a third as much stewed tomatoes as corn, and season, using a teaspoonful of vinegar, a teaspoonful each of butter and sugar, and salt and pepper to taste, to one pint of tomatoes. Serve hot. This is a favorite combination with some cooks to put up in cans for winter.

Economical Cake.—Sift together one cupful of flour, two-thirds of a cupful of sugar, one teaspoonful of baking powder and a little salt. In a half pint measuring cup put a tablespoonful of melted butter, drop in one egg, and fill the cup with milk. Stir into the dry ingredients and beat rapidly two or three minutes. Flavor as desired. Bake in a loaf.

When baking cake, fruit juice may be used in place of milk, which will result in a moist, finely flavored cake.

Corn for the table, if cooked over steam is much better flavored than that allowed to cook in water.

A Story About an Experiment With Life

By E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM

THE PRINCE OF SEYRE AND CALAVERA, THE DANCER, CONSPIRE TO ENTICE JOHN STRANGEWEY FROM HIS HONORABLE LOVE OF DAINTY LOUISE MAUREL

Synopsis.—Louise Maurel, famous actress, making a motor tour of rural England, was obliged, when her car broke down, to spend the night at the ancestral home of Stephen and John Strangewey, bachelor woman-haters, in the Cumberland district. Before she left the next day she had captivated John. Three months later he went to London and looked her up. She introduced him to her friends, among them Gralliot, a playwright, and Sophy Gerard, a light-hearted little actress. John, puritanical in his views, entered the gay bohemian life of the city with enthusiasm. It was soon seen that John and the prince of Seyre were rivals for the heart and hand of Louise. Sophy also loved John secretly.

CHAPTER XII.

Seyre House was one of the few mansions in London which boasted a banquet hall as well as a picture gallery. Although the long table was laid for forty guests, it still seemed, with its shaded lights and its profusion of flowers, like an oasis of color in the middle of the huge, somberly lighted apartment. Some of the faces of the guests were well-known to John through their published photographs; to others he had been presented by the prince upon their arrival. He was seated between a young American star of musical comedy and a lady who had only recently dropped from the social firmament through the medium of the divorce court, to return to the theater of her earlier fame. Both showed every desire to converse with him between the intervals of eating and drinking, but were constantly brought to a pause by John's lack of knowledge of current topics. After her third glass of champagne, the lady who had recently been a countess announced her intention of taking him under her wing.

"Someone must tell you all about things," she insisted. "What you need is a guide and a chaperon. Won't I do?"

"Perfectly," he agreed. "Fair play!" protested the young lady on his left, whose name was Rosie Sharon. "I spoke to him first!"

"Jolly bad luck!" Lord Amerton drawled from the other side of the table. "Neither of you have an earthly. He's booked. Saw him out with her the other evening."

"I shan't eat any more supper," Rosie Sharon pouted, pushing away her plate.

"You ought to have told us about her at once," the lady who had been a countess declared severely.

John preserved his equanimity. "It is to be presumed," he murmured, "that you ladies are both free from any present attachment?"

"Got you there!" Amerton chuckled. "What about Billy?"

Rosie Sharon sighed. "We don't come to the prince's supper parties to remember our ties," she declared. "Let's all go on talking nonsense, please. Even if my heart is broken, I could never resist the prince's gaze!"

Apparently everyone was of the same mind. The hum of laughter steadily grew. Under shelter of the fire of conversation, the prince leaned toward his companion and reopened their previous discussion.

"Do you know," he began, "I am inclined to be somewhat disappointed by your lack of enthusiasm in a certain direction?"

"I have disappointed many men in my time," she replied. "Do you doubt my power, now that I have promised to exercise it?"

"Who could?" he replied courteously. "Yet this young man poses, I believe, as something of a St. Anthony. He may give you trouble."

"He is then, what you call a prig?"

"A most complete and perfect specimen, even in this nation of prigs!"

"All that you tell me," she sighed, "makes the enterprise seem easier. It is, after all, rather like the lioness and the mouse, isn't it?"

The prince made no reply, but upon his lips there lingered a faintly incredulous smile. The woman by his side leaned back in her place. She had the air of accepting the challenge.

"After supper," she said, "we will see!"

A single chord of music in a minor key floated across the room, soft at first, swelling later into a volume of sound, then dying away and ceasing altogether. Every light in the place was suddenly extinguished. There remained only the shaded lamps overhanging the pictures.

Not a whisper was heard in the room. John, looking around him in astonishment, was conscious only of the half-suppressed breathing of the men and women who lined the walls, or were still standing in little groups at the end of the long hall. Again there came the music, this time merged in a low but insistent clamor of other instruments. Then, suddenly, through the door at the farther end of the room came a dimly seen figure in white. The place seemed wrapped in a mystical twilight, with long black rays of deeper shadow lying across the floor. There was a little murmur of tense voices, and then again silence.

For a few moments the figure in white was motionless. Then, without any visible commencement, she seemed suddenly to blend into the waves of low, passionate music. The dance itself was without form or definite movement. She seemed at first like some white, limber spirit, floating here and there across the dark bars of shadow at the calling of the melody. There was no apparent effort of the body. She was merely a beautiful, unearthly shape. It was like the flitting of a white moth through the blackness of a moonless summer night.

But her motions grew more animated, more human. With feet which seemed never to meet the earth, she danced toward the corner where John was standing. He caught the smoldering fire in her eyes as she danced within a few feet of him. He felt a catch in his breath. Some subtle and only half-expressed emotion shook his whole being, seemed to tear at the locked chamber of his soul.

She had flung her arms forward, so near that they almost touched him. He could have sworn that her lips had called his name. He felt himself bewitched, filled with an insane longing to throw out his arms in response to her passionate, unspoken invitation, in obedience to the clamoring of his seething senses. He had forgotten, even that anyone else was in the room.

Then, suddenly, the music stopped. The lights flared out from the ceiling and from every corner of the apartment. Slender and erect, her arms hanging limply at her sides, without a touch of color in her cheeks or a coil of her black hair disarranged, without a sign of heat or disturbance or passion in her face, John found Aida Calavera standing within a few feet of him, her eyes seeking for his. She laid her fingers upon his arm. The room was ringing with shouts of applause, in which John unconsciously joined. Everyone was trying to press forward toward her. With her left hand she waved them back.

"If I have pleased you," she said, "I am so glad! I go now to rest for a little time."

She tightened her clasp upon her companion's arm, and they passed out of the picture gallery and down a long

"Go Quickly, and Come Back Quickly. I Wait for You."

corridor. John felt as if he were walking in a dream. Volition seemed to have left him. He only knew that the still, white hand upon his arm seemed like a vise burning into his flesh.

She led him to the end of the corridor, through another door, into a small room furnished in plain but comfortable fashion.

"We will invade the prince's own sanctum," she murmured. "Before I dance, I drink nothing but water. Now I want some champagne. Will you fetch me some, and bring it to me yourself?"

She sank back upon a divan as she spoke. John turned to leave the room, but she called him back.

"Come here," she invited, "close to my side! I can wait for so silent! And my dancing—that pleased you?"

He felt the words stick in his throat. "Your dancing was indeed wonderful," he stammered.

"It was for you!" she whispered, her voice growing softer and lower. "It was for you I danced. Did you not feel it?"

Her arms stole toward him. The unnatural calm with which she had finished her dance seemed suddenly to pass. Her bosom was rising and falling more quickly. There was a faint spot of color in her cheek.

"It was wonderful," he told her. "I will get you the champagne."

Her lips were parted. She smiled up at him.

"Go quickly," she whispered, "and come back quickly! I wait for you."

He left the room and passed out again into the picture gallery before he had the least idea where he was. The band was playing a waltz, and one or two couples were dancing. The people seemed suddenly to have become like puppets in some strange, unreal dream. He felt an almost feverish longing for the open air, for a long draft of the fresh sweetness of the night, far away from this overheated atmosphere charged with unnamable things.

As he passed through the farther doorway he came face to face with the prince.

"Where are you going?" the latter asked.

"Mademoiselle Calavera has asked me to get her some champagne," he answered.

The prince smiled.

"I will see that it is sent to her at once," he promised. "You are in my sanctum, are you not? You can pursue your tete-a-tete there without interruption. 'You are very much envied.'"

"Mademoiselle Calavera is there," John replied. "As for me, I am afraid I shall have to go now."

The smile faded from the prince's lips. His eyebrows came slowly together.

"You are leaving?" he repeated.

"I must," John insisted. "I can't help it. I forgive my behaving like a boor, but I must go. Good night!"

The prince stretched out his hand, but he was too late.

John found himself, after a few minutes' hurried walking, in Piccadilly. He turned abruptly down Duke Street and made his way to St. James' park. From here he walked slowly eastward. When he reached the Strand, however, the storm in his soul was still unabated. He turned away from the Strand. The turmoil of his passions drove him to the thoughts of flight. Half an hour later he entered St. Pancras station.

"What time is the next train north to Kendal or Carlisle?" he inquired.

The porter stared at him. John's evening clothes were spattered with mud, the raindrops were glistening on his coat and face, and his silk hat was ruined. It was not only his clothes, however, which attracted the man's attention. There was the strained look of a fugitive in John's face, a fugitive flying from some threatened fate.

"The newspaper train at five thirty is the earliest, sir," he said. "I don't know whether you can get to Kendal by it, but it stops at Carlisle."

John looked at the clock. There was an hour to wait. He wandered about the station, gloomy, chill, deserted. The place sickened him, and he strolled out into the streets again. By chance he left the station by the same exit as on the day of his arrival in London. He stopped short.

How could he have forgotten, even for a moment? This was not the world which he had come to discover. This was just some plague-spot upon which he had stumbled. Through the murky dawn and across the ugly streets he looked into Louise's drawing-room. She would be there waiting for him on the morrow!

Louise! The thought of her was like a sweet, purifying stimulant. He felt the throbbing of his nerves soothed. He felt himself growing calm. The terror of the last few hours was like a nightmare which had passed. He summoned a taxicab and was driven to the Strand. His wanderings for the night were over.

CHAPTER XIII.

Sophy Gerard sat in the little back room of Louise's house, which the latter called her den, but which she seldom entered. The little actress was looking very trim and neat in a simple blue serge costume which fitted her to perfection, her hair very primly arranged and tied up with a bow. She had a pen in her mouth, there was a sheaf of bills before her, and an open housekeeping book lay on her knee. She had been busy for the last half hour making calculations, the result of which had brought a frown to her face.

"There is no doubt about it," she decided. "Louise is extravagant!"

The door opened, and Louise herself, in a gray morning gown of some soft material, with a bunch of deep-red roses at her waist, looked into the room.

"Why, little girl," she exclaimed, "how long have you been here?"

"All the morning," Sophy replied. "I took the dogs out, and then I started on your housekeeping book and the bills. Your checks will have to be larger than ever this month, Louise, and I don't see how you can possibly draw them unless you go and see your bankers first."

Louise threw herself into an easy chair.

"Dear me!" she sighed. "I thought I had been so careful!"

"How can you talk about being careful?" Sophy protested, tapping the pile of bills with her forefinger. "You seem to be overdrawn already."

"I will see to that," Louise promised. "The bank manager is such a charming person. Besides, what are banks for but to oblige their clients? How pale you look, little girl! Were you out late last night?"

Sophy swung around in her place. "I am all right. I spent the evening in my rooms and went to bed at eleven o'clock. Who's lurching with you? I see the table is laid for two."

Louise glanced at the clock upon the mantelpiece.

"Mr. Strangewey," she replied. "I suppose he will be here in a minute or two."

Sophy dropped the housekeeping book and jumped up.

"Of course not," Louise answered. "You must stay to lunch. Ring the bell and tell them to lay a place for you. Afterward, if you like, you may come in here and finish brooding over those wretched bills while Mr. Strangewey talks to me."

Sophy came suddenly across the room and sank on the floor at Louise's feet.

"What are you going to do about Mr. Strangewey, Louise?" she asked wistfully.

"What am I going to do about him?" "He is in love with you," Sophy continued. "I am sure—I am almost sure of it."

Louise's laugh was unconvincing. "You foolish child!" she exclaimed. "I believe that you have been worrying. Why do you think so much about other people?"

"Please tell me," Sophy begged. "I wish to understand how things really are between you and John Strangewey. Are you in love with him?"

Louise's eyes were soft and dreamy. "I wish I knew," she answered. "If I am, then there are things in life more wonderful than I have ever dreamed of. He doesn't live in our world—and our world, as you know, has its grip. He knows nothing about my art, and you can guess what life would be to me without that. What future could there be for him and for me together? I cannot remake myself."

There was something in Sophy's face that was almost like wonder. "So this is the meaning of the change in you, Louise! I knew that something had happened. You have seemed so different for the last few months."

Louise nodded.

"London has never been the same place to me since I first met him in Cumberland," she admitted. "Sometimes I think I am—to use my own words—in love with John. Sometimes I feel it is just a queer, indistinct, but passionate appreciation of the abstract beauty of the life he seems to stand for."

"Is he really so good, I wonder?" Sophy asked pensively.

"I do not know," Louise sighed. "I only know that when I first talked to him, he seemed different from any man I have ever spoken with in my life. I suppose there are few temptations up there, and they keep nearer to the big things. Sometimes I wonder, Sophy, if it was not very wrong of me to draw him away from it all!"

"Rubbish!" Sophy declared. "If he is good, he can prove it and know it here. He will come to know the truth about himself. Besides, it isn't everything to possess the standard virtues. Louise, he will be here in a minute. You want to be left alone with him. What are you going to say when he asks you what you know he will ask you?"

Louise looked down at her.

"Dear," she said, "I wish I could tell you. I do not know. That is the strange, troublesome part of it—I do not know!"

"Will you promise me something?" Sophy begged. "Promise me that if I stay in here quietly until after he has gone, you will come and tell me!"

Louise leaned a little downward as if to look into her friend's face. Sophy suddenly dropped her eyes, and the color rose to the roots of her hair.

There was a knock at the door, and the parlor maid entered.

"Mr. Strangewey, madam," she announced.

Louise looked at John curiously as she greeted him. His face showed few signs of the struggle through which he had passed, but the grim setting of his lips reminded her a little of his brother. He had lost, too, something of the boyishness, the simple light-heartedness of the day before. Instinctively she felt that the battle had begun. She asked him nothing about the supper party, and Sophy, quick to follow her lead, also avoided the subject.

Luncheon was not a lengthy meal, and immediately its service was concluded, Sophy rose to her feet with a sigh.

"I must go and finish my work," she declared. "Let me have the den to myself for at least an hour, please, Louise. It will take me longer than that to muddle through your books."

Louise led the way upstairs into the cool, white drawing room, with its dower-perfumed atmosphere and its delicate, shadowy air of repose. She curled herself up in a corner of the divan and gave John his coffee. Then she leaned back and looked at him.

"So you have really come to London, Mr. Countryman?"

"I have followed you," he answered. "I think you knew that I would. I tried not to," he went on, after a moment's pause. "I fought against it as hard as I could; but in the end I had to give in. I came for you."

Louise's capacity for fencing seemed suddenly enfeebled. A frontal attack of such directness was irresistible.

"For me?" she repeated weakly.

"Of course," he replied. "None of your arguments would have brought me here. If I have desired to understand this world at all, it is because it dared not analyze. Perhaps, after all her self-dissection, there were still secret chambers. She thought almost with fear of what they might contain. Her sense of superiority was vanishing. She was, after all, like other women.

"Yes," she promised, "I will help. We will leave it at that. Some day you shall talk to me again, if you like. In the meantime, remember we are both free. You have not known many women, and you may change your mind when you have been longer in London. Perhaps it will be better for you if you do!"

"That is quite impossible," John said firmly. "You see," he went on, looking at her with shining eyes, "I know now that I half believed from the first moment that I saw you. I love you!"

Springing restlessly to her feet, she walked across the room and back again. Action of some sort seemed imperative. A curious hypnotic feeling seemed to be dulling all her powers of resistance. She looked into her life and she was terrified. Everything had grown insignificant. It couldn't really be possible that with her brains, her experience, this man who had dwelt all his life in the simple ways had yet the power to show her the path toward the greater things! She felt like a child again. She trembled a little as she sat down by his side. It was not in this fashion that she had intended to hear what he had to say.

"I don't know what is the matter with me today," she murmured distractedly. "I think I must send you away. You disturb my thoughts. I can't see life clearly. Don't hope for too much from me," she begged. "But don't go away," she added, with a sudden irresistible impulse of anxiety.

"Oh, I wish—I wish you understood me and everything about me, without my having to say a word!"

"I feel what you are," he answered, "and that is sufficient."

Once more she rose to her feet and walked across to the window. An automobile had stopped in the street below. She looked down upon it with a sudden frozen feeling of apprehension.

John moved to her side, and for him, too, the joy of those few moments was clouded. A little shiver of presentiment took its place. He recognized the footman whom he saw standing upon the pavement.

"It is the prince of Seyre," Louise faltered.

"Send him away," John begged. "We haven't finished yet. I won't say anything more to upset you. What I want now is some practical guidance."

"I cannot send him away!"

John glanced toward her and hated himself for his fierce jealousy. She was looking very white and very pathetic. The light had gone from her eyes. He felt suddenly dominant, and, with that feeling, there came all the generosity of the conqueror.

"Good-by!" he said. "Perhaps I can see you sometime tomorrow."

He raised her hand to his lips and kissed her fingers, one by one. Then he left the room. She listened to his footsteps descending the stairs, firm, resolute, deliberate. They paused, there was the sound of voices—the prince and he were exchanging greetings; then she heard other footsteps ascending, lighter, smoother, yet just as deliberate.

Her face grew paler as she listened. There was something which sounded to her almost like the beating of fate in the slow, inevitable approach of this unseen visitor.

CHAPTER XIV.

Henri Gralliot had made himself thoroughly comfortable. He was ensconced in the largest of John's easy chairs, his pipe in his mouth, a recently refilled teacup—Gralliot was English in nothing except his predilection for tea—on the small table by his side. Through a little cloud of tobacco smoke he was studying his host.

"So you call yourself a Londoner now, my young friend, I suppose," he remarked, taking pensive note of John's fashionable clothes. "It is a transformation, beyond a doubt! Is it, I wonder, upon the surface only, or have you indeed become heart and soul a son of this corrupt city?"

"Whatever I may have become," John grumbled, "it's meant three months of the hardest work I've ever done!"

Gralliot held out his pipe in front of him and blew away a dense cloud of smoke.

"Explain yourself," he insisted.

John stood on the hearth-rug, with his hands in his pockets. His morning clothes were exceedingly well cut, his tie and collar unexceptionable, his hat closely cropped according to the fashion of the moment. He had an extremely civilized air.

"Look here, Gralliot," he said, "I tell you what I've done, although I don't suppose you would understand what it means to me. I've visited practically every theater in London."

"Alone?"

"I have come to find out about yours," John explained. "That is why I am here. Perhaps I ought to have waited a little time before I spoke to you as I did just now. But I will serve my apprenticeship. I will try to get into sympathy with the things that please you. It will not take me long. As soon as you feel that we are drawing closer together, I will ask you again what I have asked you this afternoon. In the meantime, I may be your friend, may I not? You will let me see a great deal of you? You will help me just a little?"

Louise leaned back in her chair. She had been carried off her feet, brought face to face with emotions which she is your world. It is you I want—don't you understand that? I thought you would know it from the first moment you saw me!"

He was suddenly on his feet, leaning over her, a changed man, masterful, passionate. She opened her lips, but said nothing. She felt herself lifted up, clasped for a moment in his arms. Unresisting, she felt the fire of his kisses. The world seemed to have stopped. Then she tried to push him away, weakly, and against her own will. At her first movement he laid her tenderly back in her place.

"I am sorry," he said. "And yet I am not," he added, drawing his chair close up to her side. "I am glad! You knew that I loved you, Louise. You knew that it was for you I had come."

She was beginning to collect herself. Her brain was at work again; but she was conscious of a new confusion in her senses, a new element in her life. She was no longer sure of herself.

"Listen," she begged earnestly. "Be reasonable! How could I marry you? Do you think that I could live with you up there in the hills?"

"We will live," he promised, "anywhere you choose in the world."

"Ah, no!" she continued, patting his hand. "You know what your life is, the things you want in life. You don't know mine yet. There is my work. You cannot think how wonderful it is to me. You don't know the things that fill my brain from day to day, the thoughts that direct my life. I cannot marry you just because—because—"

"Because what?" he interrupted eagerly.

"Because you make me feel—something I don't understand, because you come and you turn the world, for a few minutes, topsy-turvy. But that is all foolishness, isn't it? Life isn't built up of emotions. What I want to understand, and what you please must understand, is that at present our lives are so far, so very far, apart. I do not feel I could be happy leading yours, and you do not understand mine."

"I have come to find out about yours," John explained. "That is why I am here. Perhaps I ought to have waited a little time before I spoke to you as I did just now. But I will serve my apprenticeship. I will try to get into sympathy with the things that please you. It will not take me long. As soon as you feel that we are drawing closer together, I will ask you again what I have asked you this afternoon. In the meantime, I may be your friend, may I not? You will let me see a great deal of you? You will help me just a little?"

Louise leaned back in her chair. She had been carried off her feet, brought face to face with emotions which she Louise comes to have a secret horror of the prince. Gralliot gives John some very sensible advice. The next installment brings important developments.

Baby Was Developing.

Johnny was a small boy of about five years, and he had a baby sister who was just learning to walk. One day Johnny saw his little sister stand alone and take a few steps for the first time. Johnny ran hurriedly to his mother and said, "Oh, mamma, come here quick! Baby's walkin' on her hind legs."

GOOD BUTTER-MAKING RULES

Best Churning Temperature is 58 Degrees on Ordinary Thermometer—Care for Cream.

(Clemson College Bulletin.)

Cream is made up of little fat globules floating in milk. In making butter the fat globules are brought together into a mass and the milk is removed as buttermilk. These fat globules will stick better when they are just the right temperature than they will if either too warm or too cold. A good temperature for churning is 58 degrees on an ordinary thermometer. When the cream is the right sourness it churns better than when sweet or too sour. The cream should be kept at 50 degrees or lower till the day before churning. Then warm it up to 70 degrees, or room heat, which will bring about the souring by the next day.

When the barrel churn is used, allow gas to escape every few minutes at first. When the butter begins to come keep a close watch and stop churning when the butter granules are the size of wheat kernels. Draw off the buttermilk and wash in the churn repeatedly with cold water till the buttermilk is all removed. Then remove the butter from churn and work it with a paddle. Add an ounce of salt per pound of butter.

MANNER OF HANDLING SILAGE

When Time for Feeding Top Layer Which Has Molded, Should Be Removed—Heap Top Level.

(Clemson College Bulletin.)

When the time comes for feeding silage the top layer, which will be found to be molded, should be removed. The molded part usually extends for several inches below the surface. At least two inches of silage should be fed each day in order to prevent the formation of the mold. The top of the silage should be kept level so as to expose the smallest surface possible to the air. Only enough silage for one feeding should be put out, as it soon dries out if not fed at once.
