A CRIMINAL'S BRAND

Deleware King, of Quincy, Mass., has offered $200 for the most biting epithet, corresponding to "scab" and "slacker" in other fields, which shall brand him who violates prohibition laws. Words like patriot, bootocrat, and wet-dog aren't strong enough, he finds.

The desire to appropriately and publicly brand the man guilty of endangering still further our entire social and legal systems, is widespread and increasing. Yet it is evident, from futile past experience, mere words of calumny cannot disturb the alcoholic complacency or brazen defiance of such people. They are not beyond reach, but brands, sermons and slight opposition have but increased their dubious activities. After a man sells or drinks freewater, even a term like drunkard or bootlegger fails to daunt him.

For results, let us suggest such a scornful epithet be coined for those sworn and paid to enforce laws when they wink at violations. Popular contempt for such criminals isn't nearly as frank as it should be. The bootlegger, and of course the imbibitor of rum, has some excuse. He is, in a way, in business and takes risks for his profits. But so is he a spy. The crooked official, however, which means every official who is not exceedingly zealous in duty, is by far the bigger crook. He bleeds his victims and betrays a nation which employs him. The bootlegger may be honorable, the man who feels he must have rum and pays big money for it; these are immaterial compared to him who sells his soul and throws in our country's honor to boot.

REMOVING OUR BONDS

Professor Archard, noted French surgeon, who can tell the sex of babies several months before birth, says in a few years parents can control the sex of their children. No more disappointment that Johnnie was not a girl, or the converse. Many will protest the solving of this great hoping-fearing enigma. The choice of Providence has not always pleased, but a baby is not like a hat which can be exchanged, so parents usually make the best of it.

One by one we are removing fetters which bind us to destiny. Shall we ever be able to say, "I can and will do as I wish?" Do we really want to eliminate chance, to dictate our every step, to choose our day and manner of death, to say our children shall be boys, or girls. Think of the mistakes we should make, revealed too late, to torment us with remorse. The solace that things were inevitable and our destiny, would be denied us. We should worry ourselves sick with choosing, change our minds frequently, ask advice, disregard it, perhaps follow it and wish we hadn't—and such things.

What will man do when he has no bonds? When he can say truly, "I am the master of my fate; I am the captain of my soul?"

Without something to blame for his life and something to hope for from fate, will he not find absolute freedom from supervision a very mixed and diluted pleasure?

AMERICA THE JUDGE

France and England found they couldn't agree on German reparations and America, represented by General Dawes and his commission, is now tackling the problem. Apparently we still have some influence over there, despite our erratic and vague foreign policy. Both France and England seem willing that we decide, while Germany, the invalid, would welcome most any prescription from the wrangling physicians to get immediate relief.

Getting the impasse—and mark on some sound basis is the first job; and the latter necessitates a loan to Germany by America. Dawes thinks France agrees but wants most of the loan paid to her on Germany's debt. She wants immediate estimation, and payment by a Germany which is in much the same condition as America just before the Civil war—only much worse. Poincare will applaud Dawes so long as he decides for France, and England will sit on the fence ready to cheer or deride. The two nations could never agree on European policy toward Germany; the only hope seems to lie in the Dawes commission. America is to be the judge. The verdict will not be binding; it may be a feeble compromise. But the spirit in which the estimation and investigation is carried out, and the real facts dug out of the mountain of selfish opinions will weigh greatly with the on-looking world. France will have to do some explaining and arguing in support of her attitude toward Germany, if America decides the Fatherland must have time and money to rebuild herself before beginning to pay her debt. As in 1917, making the world safe may lie in the power and be the duty of this hemisphere.

WHEN POLITICS ENTER

Congress is still wrangling over the tax-cut-or-bonus dilemma, and apparently a compromise looms. New rules just enacted permit amendments when either bill is brought on the floor, and when the solution goes through with Secretary Mellon's plan, he won't recognize most of his proposals.

A few representatives of both parties see their stay in Washington threatened unless they insist on a bonus, which some service men demand. On the other side are equally self-interested legislators who believe there are more harassed taxpayers than needy veterans, and fight for a big slash in assessments.

The new rules were mere politics, and politics govern the discussion as they shall determine the result. Their entrance invariably turns the key on legislative logic and initiates self-centered scrambling.

Obviously, every representative wants to do what the majority of his constituents want him to do. He feels them out and they wire him their opinions. That is legitimate and desirable. His job is to fulfill popular desire. The tragic part is that often he gets incomplete, misleading, or minority expressions from home. A lodge with seventeen members wires "a unanimous petition" for a measure. If he gets no other opinion, what can he do? Politics should mean people; they must decide. Every Congressman in Washington has his ear cupped in the direction of home. Until he hears definitely—he plays politics.

Most of us live casually. We vaguely know there is misery in the world; that heroes labor and die; that heroes bear burdens and are not; and noble folks die unrepent. Yet it would do us good to come closer to numbing agony, if only to make us better appreciate our lot, or see real happiness if only to seek it for ourselves.

Life offers no mirror for life; to see ourselves, we must go through the looking glass as Alice did. As likely as not, we're living too lightly to know what life is. The soul, man's spiritual furnace, is too often left banked with the dampers of Acute misery or transforming. Acute misery justifies, sanctifies, revivifies. It takes a great experience, sometimes prolonged, perhaps me to get man out of the animal clasp. So we say Mrs. Schall really lives because of her trials and service a great love for her husband. We, he, too, lives because of his suffering, triumph over obstacles and courage. Such big emotions bring nobility; man is an ox if he suffers or enjoys no more.

Naturally, a lot of folks were pained at the Bok Peace Plan Award. That $100,000 is enough to raise a row over. The judges are called unfair, and worse. They'll think three times before taking such an office again.

Henry Ford indulges in sentiment again and buys the old red schoolhouse where he got his "book learning." Many another great man has cherished and blessed the memory of such days. On one point they agree, one agree early school days are the most formative period of one's life. Yet we pay teachers of such schools barely enough to keep them alive. We need some logic with our sentiment.

What Would You Give For Health?

You are inclined to make extravagant statements when you discuss this vital question. How often you have heard one who is suffering from some disease say "he would give anything he possesses in this world to be restored to health." If you are so unfortunate as to be afflicted in any way, haven't you, too, indulged in just such statements?

And if you did, were you expressing your real convictions? And yet you can be restored to health as easily as hundreds of thousands of your fellow humans have, with no more inconvenience to yourself than it has been to them. If you are really sincere in your desire, what a contrast in the sacrifice you will really have to make with the sacrifice you professed to be willing to make.

Chiropractic Vertebral Adjustments will restore your health and vitality and allow you to revel in the exhilaration that comes with normal function. The adjustments will remove the nerve pressure at points along the spine, allowing an unhindered flow of the nerve energy that travels over the nerves. Consultation and Spinal Analysis will be given without any obligation to you.

Power is Pioneering Today

HOW many ages passed while rains poured upon the hills of Michigan—and her mighty rivers gathered these inexhaustible waters and carried them down—ever down—to the Great Lakes! What power! What countless millions of horsepower passed on, unused.

Came the early pioneers and opened the land to crops—founded the spots that thrived and grew, blazing the way for a great commonwealth.

But cities cannot come into being—cannot develop—without industries and commerce; without the means that bring men work.

Power!—there must be power! Electricity that moves industry and turns night to day.

So with confidence in Michigan and her future, pioneers explored the field of power and began the harnessing of these mighty rivers—transformed this great power into Electric Energy and brought it over forest and field to Michigan's cities and towns—that it might bring the means to grow and prosper, and serve with power—light—and home comforts.

This is "Consumers Power Service."

And today—this pioneering still goes forward. New power resources are being developed—more waterpower backed by steampower—to invite and help build up the great industries which bring more work and more homes.

Michigan goes forward as a leader among the states of the Union—and Consumers Power Company, with its ever-growing family of Michigan partners, goes forward, hand in hand, backing up job and home with ample, reliable Power and Light.

For "Power is Pioneering Today!"

Legendary City.
Camelot is a legendary city in Great Britain, famous in the time of King Arthur. Brewer, in his Reader's Handbook, says that there are two Camelots—the one referred to in King Lear being in Cornwall, and the one of Arthurian renown in Winchester, where visitors are still shown certain large intrenchments once belonging to King Arthur's palace. In some places, even in Arthurian romance, Camelot seems the city on the Camel, in Cornwall. Thus, when Sir Tristram left Tintagel to go to Ireland, a tempest "drove him back to Camelot."

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Socialist Government Is Installed in Britain and Has Strike to Settle.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

GREAT BRITAIN is now ruled by the first Socialist government in its history. Before the great war such a condition would have been almost unthinkable. Today the British people contemplate it without fear, almost with complete equanimity. The program of change went through swiftly and smoothly. The Labor party's resolution of "no confidence" in the Tory government was adopted Monday night by a vote of 328 to 256, the Liberals flocking with the Laborites on the division and being greeted with loud cheers by the latter. In the gallery the prince of Wales and the duke of York watched the proceedings with intense interest. Next day Prime Minister Baldwin and his cabinet presented their resignations to the king. Ramsay MacDonald was summoned to Buckingham Palace and asked to form a new ministry, and promptly accepted. His cabinet, as announced and approved by the king, was about as had been forecast, the only surprise being the appointment of Viscount Chelmsford, a Tory peer and former viceroy of India, as first lord of the admiralty. MacDonald, in addition to the premiership, holds the post of minister for foreign affairs; Philip Snowden is chancellor of the exchequer; Arthur Henderson is home secretary; J. H. Thomas is secretary for the colonies; Thomas Shaw is minister of labor; Viscount Haldine is lord chancellor; Sydney Webb is president of the board of trade, and J. R. Clynes is lord of the privy seal and deputy leader of the house of commons. Two of MacDonald's ministers who probably will be made peers are Sir Sydney Olivier, secretary for India, and Brig. Gen. C. B. Thompson, secretary for air.

There was little or no adverse criticism of the new prime minister's selections for government positions, even the rabid Tory press commending them. The ministers got busy with their jobs at once, and parliament was adjourned for a few weeks to permit them to familiarize themselves with their duties. The first serious matter that confronts the Labor government is the strike of railway engineers and firemen, which began at midnight Sunday, despite the efforts of the party leaders to stop it. Within a few days the strike had reduced the railway efficiency of the United Kingdom 60 per cent and industry was gravely affected. The trades union congress, whose president is Margaret Bonfield, who also is undersecretary for labor, appointed an emergency committee to intervene when the moment is considered opportune. Foodstuffs for London and the other large cities are being brought in by motor trucks, and many manufacturers organized fleets of trucks to carry their employees.

NICOLAI LENIN, creator of the Russian soviet government, died on Monday after an illness that had kept him from his official work for many months. The Red followers of the premier mourned him deeply, passed by tens of thousands before his body where it lay in state in the House of Unions in Moscow, and laid him to rest in the Kremlin. At this writing it is not known who will succeed the arch Communist who is abandoning Communist principles in his rule of Russia because, as he bluntly admitted, they would not work. Probably the new premier will be Stalin, minister of nationalities, but the plan may go to Zhipovsk or Kamenev. However, there is said to be a serious split in the ranks of the bolsheviks, one group wishing to continue the modified policies of Lenin and the other favoring a return to the old plan of Communist propaganda and efforts to bring about a revolution. It is noted, too, that Trotsky, Lenin's co-leader, is opposed to the plan of holding the Communist London to be in the Communist languages; it caus, either exiled by the Stalin-Krasna faction or ill, or both. Some believe he will make a fight for the control of the soviets, but the general opinion is that his political strength is gone.

SENATOR KING of Utah, who recently visited Russia, told the senate Tuesday that he believed the resumption of trade relations with that country under proper guarantees would help the Russian people in their efforts to oust the bolshevik regime. The conditions he suggested were that American claims of $767,000,000 against Russia be validated and that the United States be protected against hostile propaganda by the bolshevik government and its agents and the Third Internationale. The reality of such propaganda was further established by quantities of documents submitted by the state department last week to the senate subcommittee. According to some of these papers, the aim was an "armed uprising" in this country designed to "destroy the bourgeois government."

TEAPOT DOME was the center of great excitement all last week. The senate investigation into the issue of the naval oil reserve there by Albert B. Fall, then secretary of the interior, to Harry Sinclair brought out sensational testimony and the end is not yet for President Coolidge directed the department of justice to watch the proceedings and to take such action as seemed desirable. Archie Roosevelt, son of the late president, started the week out well by telling the committee of the suspicious circumstances that caused him to resign from the Sinclair company. He said G. D. Wahlberg, Sinclair's private secretary, told him $68,000 had been paid to the foreman of Fall's ranch in New Mexico. Wahlberg said Roosevelt misunderstood him, but he gave other damaging testimony. The committee summoned Fall from the south and also called to Sinclair, now in Europe, to come back and produce his private books and papers. This the oil man said he would do when his business abroad was finished. Meanwhile Edward Doheny, another oil magnate, who is the lessee of a naval oil reserve in California, volunteered to tell the committee all he could about the transactions. He said that he was the man who loaned Fall the $100,000 which he used in enlarging and improving his ranch, that he did it because he and Fall were old friends, and that he was innocent of wrongdoing. In December Fall told the committee he had not received money from either Doheny or Sinclair.

Senator Walsh informed the senate that he would propose a resolution authorizing the President to institute suit to annul the leases and to secure an accounting of all oil taken from the reserves. He declared that he would seek to have such proceedings conducted independently of Attorney General Daugherty. He asserted that there were some features of the Teapot Dome affair "in connection with which the attorney general himself is under some degree of suspicion and criticism."

Interviewed in Paris, Harry Sinclair said the whole affair was bunk and politics, that he got the Teapot Dome lease honestly and squarely and that the government received more than its full due for it.

IN THE list of congressional investigations we now come to that conducted by the senate committee on propaganda which is trying to find out whether or not the Bok peace plan contest was designed to influence the senate to vote in favor of American participation in the League of Nations. The world court, Edward Bok himself was the week's chief witness, and he fairly refused to disclose the amount of money he had contributed to further the contest, holding that the financing of his plan was a wholly personal matter. He did say that he alone had paid the expenses of the contest, that Billie Bok was the only member of the jury of award whom he nominated, and that he had left all the details of the affair to Miss Katherine Bok. That lady also was a witness, but gave the committee little satisfaction. It is feared the American public attaches small importance to this particular investigation.

HEADING the firm admonitions of the Washington government, the Mexican rebels decided to abandon their contemplated blockade of the port of Tampico, and also they began the removal of the floating mines they had placed in the Vera Cruz-Estero and Puerto Mexico harbors. The revolutionists claim the occupation of numerous towns, but in the main operations it seems the federal forces are scoring successes. They have so far prevented the capture of the oil fields and they are reported to be advancing steadily on Guadalajara, whose occupation is expected soon. In an address in New York Secretary of State Hughes defended the administration's policy in the matter of the Mexican rebellion, declaring it to be "the greatest contribution directly within our power, and in accord with our established traditions and manifest interest, to the cause of world peace."

SECRETARY HUGHES and Ambassador Geddes signed on Wednesday the treaty concerning liquor search and ship liquor stores, and it will go into effect without waiting for the formal exchange of ratifications. Under the agreement suspected liquor smuggling craft flying the British flag are subject to search and seizure anywhere within one hour's sailing distance from shore. Vessels improperly detained will be compensated for loss of damage. The United States grants to British ships the right to carry sealed stores of ship liquors into American ports.

WITH the opening of the annual convention of the United Mine Workers in Indianapolis the old struggle between the conservatives led by President John L. Lewis and the radicals was renewed, and again the radicals' met defeat. The test came on their proposal to renege the deposited district officials of Nova Scotia, which was rejected. Mr. Lewis contended that all the officers of the Nova Scotia body had given adherence to "red internationalism of Russia," rather than to the United Mine Workers of America. Again the radicals were beaten in the matter of recognition of Russia, the convention voting to recognize in accordance with the policies announced by Secretary of State Hughes.

IN THE wheat states of the Northwest and especially in South Dakota the financial situation is becoming so serious that government agencies are moving to the rescue. A number of banks have closed their doors. Eugene Meyer, jr., managing director of the War Finance Corporation, went to Minneapolis to confer with Twin Cities bankers, and the corporation prepared to open a branch immediately in Sioux Falls. Mr. Meyer said "fundamentally, the economic situation in South Dakota warrants absolute confidence in the future of the state."

President Coolidge, in a special message to congress, presented his program for relief for the wheat farmers. His recommendations include: Passage of pending legislation embodying the so-called Capper plan for a $50,000,000 fund for loans to assist wheat farmers to diversify their activities.

Extension of the War Finance Corporation, which under present law can make no loans after March 31, until December 31.

Refunding of the pressing past due indebtedness of farmers in the territories most severely affected through co-operation of creditors.

Restoration wherever helpful of impaired capital of banking institutions in the distressed sections.

Creation by private capital of a substantial financing corporation to assist in the plan of reorganization.

GEN. LEE CHRISTMAS, one of the western continent's most picturesque characters, died last week in New Orleans of pernicious anemia. An engineer on a fruit company's road in Honduras, he was forced to take part in a revolution there in 1907, and died of typhoid fever in 1909. He thereafter lived the frequent upheavals in Central America. He was wounded seven times and escaped assassins a score of times.

STATE NEWS IN BRIEF

Lansing—The American Legion has been given an appropriation of $25,000 by the state administrative board to complete its building at Otter Lake.

Alpena—Alpena has been made the headquarters of the latest grouping by the State Highway Department. The Alpena group to include the counties of Alpena, Presque Isle, Montcalm, Oscoda and Alcona.

Traverse City—Dr. E. H. Campbell, of the Newberry State Hospital, will succeed Dr. James D. Munson who tendered his resignation, effective July 1, as superintendent of the Traverse City State Hospital where he has served 35 years.

Grand Rapids—Mrs. Robert Morris, 41 years old, Grand Rapids' oldest resident, died here last week. She was born in Birmingham, England, in 1822 and until a short time ago had been able to read, walk and tell stories about her childhood.

Plainwell—Funeral services were held last week for Dr. Peter Ononitoh, a veteran Indian doctor of Allegan, who died suddenly at his home here. Dr. Ononitoh was descended from a line of Mohawk Indian chiefs and was educated as a physician in Toronto, coming to Plainwell 35 years ago.

Holland—Congressman Mapes, of Grand Rapids, has introduced in the house a bill calling for a survey by the department of war of Black Lake with a view to widening and deepening the channel for purposes of navigation between the docks at Holland and the present channel in Black Lake from Lake Michigan.

Lansing—Dog licenses paid $310,000 in the state treasury, figures compiled by the auditor general's office here show. At only $45,000 had to be paid out by counties to refund for damage to stock and property done by dogs. It is estimated that licensing of the genus canis proved profitable to the extent of 474 per cent.

Lansing—A definite policy regarding pensions for aged state employees is to be adopted soon, the state administrative board indicated, having referred a request for a $50 a month pension for a retired employee to a committee with instructions to submit a complete list of old employees and recommendations regarding pensions.

Escanaba—His dog and a radio wire recently saved Julius Flath from a fire which destroyed his home here with a loss of $7,000. The dog awakened Flath, whose wife and children were visiting in Minneapolis, and the former escaped from his bed room on the third floor by letting himself down the radio wire, carrying the dog with him.

Grand Rapids—Eugene A. McCarthy, Robert Bogs and John Szaydowski, all of Grand Rapids; William Flannery, of Saginaw; and Edward Beck, of Beal City, students at Cincinnati seminaries, and Celsus Lipinski, of Cheboygan, attending a seminary at Montreal, will be ordained into the Catholic priesthood in Grand Rapids early in February.

Sault Ste. Marie—H. W. Gowdy, of Union Pier, took his place as a member of the state board of agriculture at its January meeting here. Gowdy, who has named a member of the board April, succeeds Jason Woodman, of Hawthorne. The new member is a fruit grower of Berrien county and was a member of the Michigan House in the 1913-21 session.

Ann Arbor—Detroiters will have an opportunity to study astronomy under tutelage of a University of Michigan professor, starting in February, it has been announced here. Professor Ralph H. Curtis, assistant director of the university observatory, will offer a course in elementary astronomy at Detroit Central High school. This is the first time the extension division of the university has included astronomy on its list of subjects.

Lansing—The Ingham county road commission has approved the relocation of M-16, a Grand River road on the line planned by the state highway department survey. The highway passes through Okemos, but the new route will take it north of the village, eliminating sharp turns and shortening the road about 800 feet. There was opposition against the change, but the measure has been passed by a two to one vote.

Detroit—Five Michigan men are included in recent list of acceptors of commissions in the officers' reserve corps, as announced by the war department. They are Samuel C. Crow, Detroit, captain, medical corps; Floyd B. Clark, Grand Rapids, second lieutenant, infantry; Roy B. White, Detroit, first lieutenant, infantry; Nelson H. Mosher, Mount Pleasant, second lieutenant, infantry; and William A. Bergin, Ypsilanti, captain, signal corps.

Monroe—Fire of undetermined origin caused damage estimated at $10,000 to the rear of St. Michael's Catholic school building here last week.

East Lansing—Members of the Michigan Press association will hold their regular annual meeting here during Farmers' week at M. A. C. February 5-6 and 7.

Marcellus—John D. Bent, a farmer living near this village, was blinded in one eye recently when a chip from the wood he was splitting flew up and struck him in the face.

Owosso—For more than a half century H. W. Martin, pioneer business man, now retired, has lived on the same plot of ground in Owosso, settling here 60 years ago.

Grosse Pointe—After an illness of two weeks, State Senator Walter J. Hayes, president of the American State Bank of Detroit, died at his home in Grosse Pointe last week.

Benoni—Harbor wife Henrietta Avery, one of Benton Harbor's pioneers, has paved the way for modern Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. buildings in the twin cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph, by donating a building site and $200,000 in cash.

Sturgis—The old Detroit-Chicago turnpike, known as M-23, has put forth its claim to being one of the famous roads of the world. It claims to be the longest continuous road in the world. From Detroit to Chicago, for 300 miles, this road winds but never turns.

Lansing—The state expects to spend about $75,000 to mark highways with direction signs this year, according to U. G. Dillman, deputy highway commissioner. At a recent conference of highway engineers, it was decided to place the roads so thoroughly that no motorist can "get lost."

Lansing—A complete tabulation showing the collection of state taxes for the year 1928 and the number and amount of delinquents by various counties has just been prepared by the auditor general's office. It shows that there still is $1,382,932.41 in taxes to be collected by the state from the counties.

Saginaw—Park Commissioner George Phoenix has announced his desire to place $100,000 in his budget for the equipment of a first-class tourist camp in Saginaw. A section of Rust park has been set aside and the Saginaw Automobile club, sponsor of the plan, is cooperating with Commissioner Phoenix.

Lansing—Eight thousand five hundred men and women were inscribed on the list of Michigan notaries public with the close of 1928, a review of the notarial commissions for the year shows. That number does not represent all new commissions. Michigan today has an army of notaries that runs far into the five figures.

Iron Mountain—James J. Corcoran, of Escanaba, the oldest employee in point of continuous service on the Peninsula division of the Northwestern railway, has been placed on the company's pension list after 40 years of service.

Washington—Three railroad lines in Michigan will be equipped with devices which will automatically bring trains to a stop, or within a speed subject to control when they enter blocks where danger is positive and even when the trains are not being properly controlled by the engineer. This work is to be done in compliance with an order issued by the Interstate commerce commission.

Ann Arbor—Robert Hedges, post laureate of England, will visit for America March 22. The attorney general, according to the attorney of the university to assist his residence at the University Center for three months. Mr. Hedges is coming to Ann Arbor on the same calling fellowship that was held for two years by Robert Frost, New England poet. A change of plans had been made; the delay in his coming was due to the fact that he was unable to leave England until after the war.

MINE BLASTS KILL MANY

Relative of Dead Wait in Sitter Cold for News of Loved One—Gas Explosion Causes.

Shunktown, Pa.—The bodies of 31 men who lost their lives in an explosion of gas in the Lancashire mine of the Barnes and Tucker Coal company here, have been recovered. The bodies of five other miners have been located by rescue crews and four more men are believed entombed.

Rescue workers who explored the main heading to the face of the mine experienced considerable trouble in reaching the bodies of the victims because of water in the mine.

The women and children stood in the bitter cold and blinding snow, waiting vainly for some news from the workings of the fate of their husbands or fathers. Red Cross nurses and the Salvation Army workers, under Colonel Arthur Hopkins, general secretary for western Pennsylvania, hastened here from Johnstown when news of the tragedy reached this city.

Johnson City, Ill.—Thirty-seven are dead, six were seriously injured and eight others badly burned about the head and body as a result of an explosion in the McIntock mine of the Cramer-Clinch Coal company here.

The disaster occurred on the mine's main working level, 250 feet below the ground. At the time, 390 miners were engaged in work in a section of the level which was not affected.

The clothing of 15 of them was all torn or and their hair singed but they were not seriously hurt.

The men near the entrances escaped easily but entries number 8, 10, 11 and 12, located in the depths of the colliery where the actual explosion took place, were farthest from a means of escape and the men there suffered the full terror of the terrific blast.

ITALIAN ARMY CUT PLANNED

Premier Mussolini's Reduction of Forces Due to Neutrality Pact.

Rome—Premier Benito Mussolini has decided to reduce the Italian army.

The deficit of 2,500,000,000 lire, which prevailed when the Fascist came into power, is rapidly disappearing under the economies originated by Mussolini.

Mussolini said he had fully contemplated that the neutrality pact with Yugoslavia and Greece, a probable agreement with Greece for neutralization of Corfu channel, and the surrender of the Dodecanese islands to Greece will make the eastward frontier of Italy safe from attack.

The northern border is protected by Swiss neutrality, while French frontier is the only one open to attack.

The safety of the other borders makes it possible to cut down the army and save military expenses.

The premier is prepared to announce that he intends to use the voluntary militia for garrison forces, making this organization a national instead of a Fascist force.

EUROPE GETS BULK OF EXPORTS

Only Eighty Per Cent Sent to Other Countries From U. S.

Washington—The department of commerce has made public preliminary figures in the investigation of marketing of United States agricultural exports, showing that upwards of 80 per cent of the exports go to Europe and 10 per cent of the balance to North America, leaving only 10 per cent to be distributed to the rest of the world.

Twenty Years of Successful Automobile Building

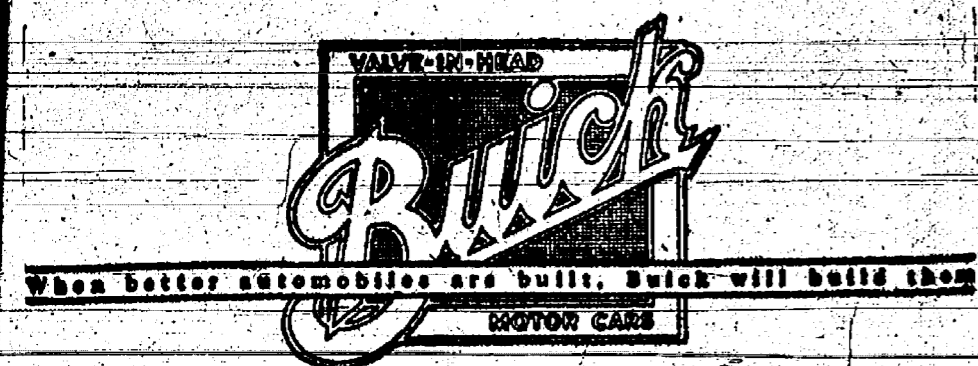

January 28, Buick celebrates its twentieth birthday. Proud as Buick is of its growth within the short space of two decades, it is not in its vast organization that Buick takes its greatest pride. Rather it is in what these attainments indicate. Buick's position of leadership has been achieved solely by the accomplishments of Buick cars in the hands of more than a million owners. In their dependable performance, in their satisfying comfort, and in their year-by-year fulfillment of every demand of motoring, Buick cars have won the place they occupy. From the rich background of experience—with all of its unequalled manufacturing facilities—and inspired by a deep sense of personal obligation to Buick friends, owners and the general public—Buick will seek ever to maintain on an even higher level the confidence of the public which it now enjoys.

TIPS FOR TAXPAYERS

In the making of his 1923 income tax return the business man, professional man, and farmer may deduct from gross income all items properly attributable to business expenses. In the case of a storekeeper they include amounts spent for rent of his place of business, advertising, premiums for insurance against fire or other losses, the cost of water, light, and heat used in his place of business, drayage and freight bills, the cost of repairs and maintenance to delivery wagons and trucks, and a reasonable allowance for salaries of employees. A professional man, lawyer, doctor, dentist may deduct the cost of supplies used in his profession, expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile used in making professional calls, dues to professional societies, subscriptions to professional journals, office rent, cost of light, heat, and water used in his office, and the hire of office assistants. The farmer may deduct amounts paid in the production and harvesting of his crops, cost of seed and fertilizer used, cost of minor repairs to farm buildings (other than the dwelling), and cost of small tools used up in the course of a year or two.

Babcock, grocer, was held up Saturday morning by two armed bandits. One of the men took from the safe $496 in cash.

BREVITIES.

Stockbridge—Charles Fink sold his fall catch of furs for $371, one day last week. He had 11 mink, 27 skunks, 71 rats and 14 coon pelts.—Brier-Sun.

Milan—The fiftieth anniversary of the organization of Milan Lodge, No. 232, F. & A. M. was celebrated at the Masonic Temple on Wednesday evening, January 30th.

Howell—The Howell Farmers Club are planning an all day rally at their next meeting, February 7th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Merle Crandall. A special program of interest is being prepared.—Republican.

Ypsilanti—State trunk line M-17, from Ypsilanti east to the Wayne county line had the largest daily traffic count of any road in the county during 1923, according to statistics compiled by the Washtenaw county road commission.

Dexter—Fred Henes, who is suffering from blood poisoning in his left hand and was taken to St. Joseph's Mercy hospital at Ann Arbor last Monday for treatment, has had to have one finger amputated. At last reports his condition was improving.—Leader.

Ann Arbor—Bid of the Wilder Strong Implement Co. of Monroe was accepted by officials of the six counties, including Washtenaw, which are ordering cast-iron caution signs to be placed on county roads. The bid of this company was the lowest received.

Brooklyn—Zero temperatures did not prevent a fine celebration of the 50th anniversary of Brooklyn Chapter No. 90 Royal Arch Masons on Monday evening. But a temporary illness did prevent the presence of Austin Palmer, the only living charter member of the lodge.—Exponent.

Ann Arbor—Robert Christman, who for many years has been a carrier on the local postoffice force, started Monday morning as a clerk having been transferred into that department Thursday, January 24. Fred Foster has been promoted from senior substitute to carrier, filling the position left vacant by Mr. Christman.

Clinton—Among the list of postmasters nominated by President Coolidge and sent to the senate for ratification, according to the Detroit Free Press yesterday, was that of Harry E. McClure for postmaster of Clinton. Mr. McClure has not yet received his official appointment, but will without doubt in the near future, which is greatly to the satisfaction of his many friends in this community.—Local.

Ypsilanti—Friday forenoon a strange woman was seen wandering up and down the streets, hailing trucks for a ride. Chief Connors was notified and on picking her up it was learned that she had wandered away from Eloise and had been picked up and brought as far as Ypsilanti. She was thinly clad and was suffering with the cold. She was taken to the police station and later attendants from Eloise came after her.—Record.

Ann Arbor—Found at the Michigan Central depot at 2:45 Sunday morning, Mrs. Maggie Taylor, Negro, 616 Fuller street, was arrested on suspicion and taken to headquarters for questioning. She was carrying a black bag which she declared contained clothes. Asked to open it at the station she did so, and officers claim disclosed three one gallon jugs of liquor. She was taken to the county jail and will be arraigned on a charge of violating the prohibition law.

Pineckney—Sunday night the home of former Governor Winans burned to the ground. A chimney burned out during the day and it was supposed there was no further danger, but at night neighbors discovered the house again in flames. Mrs. Winans and her sister occupied the home, a nurse also being in attendance on Mrs. Winans, who was helpless. The aged invalid was carried to the home of her son, George Winans, nearby. Although the night was bitter cold, with the thermometer below zero, she came through the removal as well as could be expected.

Fowlerville—The Methodist church reopened last Sunday, January 20. This church has been closed for some weeks while extensive reconstruction was in progress under the direction of a building committee composed of Willard Hoyt, chairman, who has taken personal oversight of the actual construction, and H. R. Gillette and H. A. Ludwig. Some work still remains to be done, and owing to delays at the Estey organ factory the new pipe organ has not yet been installed. It is under construction and may come at any time now. The formal reopening and dedication of the church will take place February 3. On that Sunday Bishop Theodore S. Henderson will preach and officiate at the dedication.—Review.

MARY ANDERSON in

"BLUEBIRD JR."

A modern comedy based on the high rent question. A mile-a-minute farce of a husband and wife who run amuck.

The Gumps in "UNCLE BIM'S GIFT"

Adapted from the famous cartoon by Sydney Smith. Featuring Joe Murphy, Fay Tincher, Jackie Morgan and Slim Hamilton.

Wednesday and Thursday, February 6 and 7

"The Drivin' Fool"

With Wally Van, Patsy Ruth Miller and Alec B. Francis.

This is without a doubt the fastest comedy ever presented on the screen. If you will surely want to see this episode of thrills, action and comedy, and if you do not drive you'll want to experience some of the emotions which "speeding" creates.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Forecasting A Tremendous Spring Demand

739,626

more Ford cars and trucks were produced last year than the previous year, an increase of over 50 per cent.

In spite of this tremendous increase in production, it was impossible to meet delivery requirements during the spring and summer months when orders for 350,000 Ford Cars and Trucks could not be filled.

This year winter buying for immediate delivery has been more active than ever before—and in addition 200,000 orders have already been booked through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan for spring delivery.

These facts clearly indicate that the demand during this spring and summer will be far greater than ever, and that orders should be placed immediately with Ford Dealers as a means of protection against delay in securing your Ford Car or Truck or Fordson Tractor.

A small deposit down, with easy payments of the balance arranged, or your enrollment under the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan will put your order on the preferred list for spring delivery.

MRS. G. SHUTES COMPLIMENTED AT DINNER PARTY

Complimentary to Mrs. Glen Shutes, who is leaving the city soon to live in Akron, Ohio, the young women of the city officers gave a dinner Thursday evening at half past six, in the private dining room of the Otsego hotel.

Spring blossoms in pastel shades, grouped in a low bowl centered the table, with two composites similar to the centerpieces gracing either end of the table. Covers were marked for 12 guests. The dinner hours were spent in a pleasant social manner. The honoree was presented a lovely gift from the guests.

Wednesday evening the members of the Golden Rule Sunday school class of which Mrs. Shutes is a member entertained in her honor at the home of Mrs. D. E. Murray, 530 North Blackstone street.

Games and music made the hours pass merrily. The hostess served a dainty lunch to the guests. Mrs. Shutes was the recipient of a pretty gift.

Mr. and Mrs. Shutes leave February 1 for Akron, Ohio, where Mrs. Shutes will take a position as assistant manager of the Kresge 25c to $1 store. — Jackson News.

Mr. Shutes is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Shutes of Lima and his many friends here congratulate him upon his promotion.

GEORGE ELIOT wrote "As our thought follows close in the slow wake of the dawn, we are impressed with the unusual sameness of the human lot which never alters in the main headings of its history—labor and hunger, need time and harvest, love and death."

It is entirely fitting that a profession should have developed to care for every detail that pertains and disturbs the family when the end comes to one of its members.

There is a funeral director in your community who merits your confidence and who has dedicated his life to a sympathetic and efficient service to his fellow beings. He realizes fully the desire of people in time of sorrow to be relieved of all necessary details, and their further desire for a character and quality of service that will leave the family with the assurance that everything humanly possible was done for the departed.

The oldest records of medical matters extant are those of Egypt. The most important remains of the history of medicine during antiquity come from Greece. Chiron, according to tradition, is the man who introduced the art of healing into Greece. The greatest of the ancient Greek students of medicine is Hippocrates.

A TRIBUTE TO "UNCLE" ROBERT FOSTER

In beautiful tribute to the oldest resident of Chelsea and Washtenaw County, Mrs. J. N. Dancer, West Middle street, Chelsea, read the following original poem at the banquet and party given Mr. Foster at Maccafee hall on last Friday evening. The poem was written by Mrs. Dancer especially for this occasion. It follows:

THE PICTURE

Uncle Robert Foster—If I were an artist,
I'd dip my brush into the tints of a butterfly's wing,
All blue-green, and golden, and everything,
And I'd paint a picture so fine and true
That all who looked, would know 'twas you.
For back through the years from age to youth
You never acted one untruth.

And on the canvas, with a master-hand,
I'd paint so all would understand
That beautiful faces are those that wear
Wholesome honesty printed there.
The only deeds you ever hid
Were acts of kindness that you did.

Then I would mix my colors and draw a line,
And paint beautiful eyes that sparkle and shine
Like crystal pans, when the north winds blow,
Showing beautiful thoughts that dwell below,
Eyes that shine with self-respect,
Meet every man with gaze direct.

And beautiful lips are those whose words,
Leap from the heart like songs of birds,
Yet whose utterance prudences girds.
Kind words are the music of the world, we know,
Well chosen, tender—and spoken low.

And beautiful shoulders are those that bear
Ceaseless burdens of homely care,
With patient grace, and daily prayer,
Shoulders that strengthen with every loss,
And withstand the weight of every cross.

And the most beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is honest, brave, and true,
Moment by moment, the long years through,
Beautiful hands, outstretched to help our pathways clear,
Stranger or friend, to you both dear.

I would paint the picture, full life size,
For the feet in life's race, have won the prize,
Going on missions of love, to and fro,
To answer a neighbor's call of woe,
Traveling paths that wind and wind,
Just for the sake of being kind.

That is the picture I would paint
If I were an artist, but you know I ain't.
But well you know, we love you true,
And these beautiful flowers are just for you.

AT THE CIRCUS

The following is one of the essays written by pupils of the local public schools which has received especial attention of teachers in the school.

The writer is a member of the Sophomore class, and the composition was written as a part of the regular English class work.

(By Donald Dancer.)
There was great excitement in the town of Dearborn, especially among the boys, "Barlowe's Great American Circus" in its triumph progress from state to state was close at hand, and immense yellow posters announcing its arrival were liberally displayed on fences and barns, while smaller bills were put in the post-office, the principal stores and the hotel.

Two boys paused to read one of these bills. They were John Matt and Kit Jones.
"Are you going to the circus, John?" asked Kit. "I would like to, but you know, Kit, I have no money to spare," was his answer. Kit, who came from a wealthy family, replied, "Don't let that interfere. Here is a half-dollar. That will take you in." John thanked him and the next night they planned to meet in this same place.

The following evening found the two boys on their way to the circus. First they visited the tent in which the most ferocious lion was caged. Then it was time for the circus to start. So they proceeded to the large tent.

At eight o'clock the performance commenced.
First there was a procession of elephants and horses, the latter carrying the bareback riders, who jumped through hoops, and performed somersaults, to the wondering delight of the boys. Then came the tumblers, and in preparation for another scene a gaudily dressed clown entered the ring.

Suddenly there was heard a deep baying sound, which struck terror into every heart. It was the lion, but seemed close at hand. In an instant, a dark, cat-like form, rushing down the aisle, sprang into the ring.

The great lion had broken his cage, and the life of everyone in the audience was in peril. Ladies shrieked, strong men grew pale, and all wildly looked about for some means of escape.

Striking down the clown, and standing with one foot on the prostrate form, the lion's cruel eyes wandered slowly over the vast assemblage.

Only ten feet from him, in front of seats, sat Kit and John.

Where are you going?" he cried. "I am going into the arena." "What? Are you out of your head?" asked John, and he took hold of Kit to detain him. Kit tore himself from the grasp of his friend, and in an instant he stood in the sawdust circle facing the angry monarch of the wilds.

The sudden movement of Kit created a sensation among the people, who called to him to come back, but he did not heed their calls.

Kit had stopped in town before coming to the circus to get some snuff for the cook at his home.

He drew from his pocket the paper parcel, while the lion, as if stirred by curiosity, eyed him attentively. He opened it carefully, and then, without an instant's delay, he flung a handful of snuff, which it contained, full in the eyes of the terrible animal.

No sooner had he done so than he gave a spring, and in a flash was over the railing and back in his seat. It was not a moment too soon!

The lion was blinded by the snuff, which caused him intense pain. He released the terrified clown, who lost no time in escaping from the arena, while the conquered beast rolled around on the sawdust in his agony, sending forth most terrible roars.

By this time the circus management had recovered its momentary panic. The trainer and several army men rushed into the circle and soon had obtained the mastery of the lion, whose pain had subdued his fury, and who was now moaning pitifully.

Then three cheers were given for Kit Jones by the townspeople.

The University of Michigan exceeded all other schools of the country during 1928 in the number of students enrolled in the medical school, college of dental surgery, and the engineering college, according to statistics received from the bureau of education at Washington, D. C.

For the first time in state accounting the total amount paid out by all the counties of the state for animals killed by dogs has been collected and computed. This work has been done by the auditor general's department, and with the exception of Wayne, and two small counties the amount for 1928 was $54,209.

Under the present law, counties are required to pay out of their general fund all legal claims for animals, including fowls, killed by dogs, regardless of whether or not the dog tax fund of the county is sufficient to pay all such claims or not. Under the old law counties paid only claims up to the point where the dog tax was exhausted. Now the dog tax is placed in the general fund and all claims are paid.—Ex.

WASHTENAW MEN WILL DELIVER ADDRESS

Several Washtenaw county speakers are scheduled to appear before the meetings of Michigan farmers held at East Lansing during Farmers Week, February 4-8. Dr. H. Cabot of the University of Michigan is to speak at the general meeting Thursday evening, February 7. The subject will be "What Gains Can Do for Us and To Us" and his address, it is said, will appeal especially to farmers.

Charles Burtless of Manchester, will address the meeting of the Michigan Sheep Breeders association "Buying Feeder Lambs Through the Central Market." M. H. Roberts of Ypsilanti will explain dairy cow distillates to the members of the Michigan Jersey Cattle club and A. A. Feldkamp of Manchester will speak before the Michigan Poland China Breeders' association, the subject of his talk being, "Let's Have Another Futurity."

Edward Smith of Salina, president of the Michigan State O. I. C. association, will preside at the meeting of that body, Monday afternoon, giving the address of welcome and making a report on the work of the Boys club at the fair.

Railroading in Winter

Especially in Michigan, Railroad transportation is subject to sudden periods of extreme cold and heavy snow. Such weather lowers the efficiency of steam-driven machinery, imposes severe hardships on men, and makes necessary abnormal expenditures for fuel, wages and special equipment.

To vanquish these obstacles—to accept and deliver freight and passengers in the teeth of a midwinter blizzard, when necessary—is an annual battle for each of Michigan's 24 steam Railroads.

Even in a comparatively open winter, the Railroads must always be equipped and ready. On certain northern runs, a snow plow precedes every train throughout the winter, regardless of weather.

Winter railroading in Michigan is seldom possible at a profit. Often it can be accomplished only by large financial loss. Yet, despite the handicaps of climate, the cars move, and Michigan continues warm, well fed and prosperous.

Do you appreciate the foresight, determination and fortitude which, year in and year out, make Railroad transportation so sound a reliance. The Railroads will be pleased and helped to know that you do.

EFFICIENT COOLING TANKS INEXPENSIVE

A cooling tank that will meet with general favor among cream producers must be simple in construction and yet durable and inexpensive both as to first cost and as to operation. It is generally agreed that the type of cooling tank which most nearly meets all of these requirements must use water as the cooling agent, because on all farms a certain quantity of water must be pumped every day, and because water is efficient as a conducting medium to facilitate absorption of heat from the cream.

The greatest efficiency is obtained by admitting the cooling water near the bottom of the tank and removing the warmest water by means of an overflow pipe near the top and at the opposite side of the tank. The pipe must be of such size that there will be no danger of water rising above the top of the cans.

Cross Section of a Round Cooling Tank.

Such tanks are so designed that the cooling water circulates around and under the cans. The water coming through the intake is admitted near the bottom of the tank. In this way the warmer water is being displaced constantly. The cans are raised sufficiently to permit complete circulation of the water. Strips of wood or metal in the bottom of the tank are provided for this purpose. These also protect the bottom of the tank. A swinging arm made of 1/2-inch steel holds the cans down, and a metal lug in the bottom of the tank engages the lower rim of the cans, preventing it from slipping outward when only partly filled.

Keeping Milk-Producing Cow in Best Condition

The original nutrients held in certain dairy feeding materials are not increased through the operation of converting such feeds into silage. It does, however, preserve the succulence of any material when it is made into silage, and this factor, as every dairyman knows, offers a means of keeping milk-producing animals in a healthy condition and aids in sustaining the flow of milk. It probably does more than this. The quantity of vitamins in milk appears to bear a close relation to the nature of a cow's food. It has been found that when cows are fed a ration of dry feeds, and one from which succulent materials are wholly lacking, the vitamins content of the milk which the animals produce is low. This would bear out the idea that vitamins come originally from plants and are not manufactured by the cow. It also bears out the idea that vitamins and succulences are closely related so far as milk, cows and dairy feeding are concerned.

Every Dairyman Should Weigh Milk and Test It

Every owner of dairy cows should know if his cows are giving enough milk or butterfat to make a profit over the cost of feed. A scale to weigh the milk in the barn can be bought for $4. It takes only a few minutes a day extra time to weigh the milk from each cow and write the weight on a milk sheet tacked up in the barn. Once a month a sample of milk can be tested. Any economy, ice cream factory, or cream station will usually be glad to do this testing.

Calves Under Year Old May Be Fed Whole Milk

Calves under a year old may be fed whole milk for grain. But for calves under a year old, it is best to feed whole milk for grain. But for calves under a year old, it is best to feed whole milk for grain. But for calves under a year old, it is best to feed whole milk for grain.

Italian Seed Is Not Satisfactory

Has Resulted in Poor Crop or Failure in Nearly Every Trial.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) In October, 1923, the United States Department of Agriculture called attention to the fact that the American red clover seed crop for 1923 appeared to be a short one and that, therefore, it was probable that considerable importations of foreign seed would be made. Present indications are that such importations will be heavy and from widely separated regions of production and therefore will include seed varying greatly in its adaptability to the climatic conditions of different portions of this country. This makes it important for the farmer to consider in the light of available information what kind of clover seed will be best for him to buy.

Points Well Settled. While the department has not yet accumulated sufficient information through its tests in co-operation with the state experiment stations to make possible a determination of the adaptability of red clover from all the foreign sources, the following points are regarded as fairly well settled:

1. Italian red clover seed is unsuitable for any part of the clover area except the Pacific Northwest. Italian seed has resulted in a poor crop or a failure in nearly every trial made by the department, both in its own tests and those made in co-operation with the state experiment stations except in the Pacific Northwest. How much Italian seed will be imported is not known and, unfortunately, it is not possible to tell how much Italian grown seed will be offered under some other name.

2. In the Central Northwest where winters are severe and the snow cover usually light, northern grown red clover seed only should be used. If that is not to be had, other domestic seed may be used, except that from Oregon, which produces a less hardy plant.

3. So far as trials have been made, the Chilean, French, and northern European seed has given good results in the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and in the North Atlantic coast states. However, where there is trouble from clover diseases, especially anthracnose, the foreign clovers are more likely to lose out on the second crop.

4. In Virginia and westward to Tennessee, where anthracnose is likely to be destructive, an effort should be made to develop local disease resistant strains. At present there is, practically no such seed on the market. Under these circumstances seed grown in the eastern United States is as good as possible to where the seed is to be used, or Chilean, or French seed sown in August rather than in the spring may be expected to give fair results.

On suitable land a good crop of hay may be commonly expected even though a second cutting may not be secured.

5. In Oregon, Washington and Idaho all strains have done well, the place of origin of the seed seems to make little difference for these regions.

6. Buyers should insist on knowing the origin of the seed offered and seed should be purchased from firms or organizations of known integrity and responsibility.

Use Only Domestic Seed.

7. It would probably be desirable for all American farmers to use only domestic red clover seed. That is at present impossible, however, and too great insistence on this might lead to an excessive increase in price together with the sale of much imported seed under domestic labels. Wherever imported seed of suitable kinds can be safely used, this course would seem advisable to follow rather than to reduce the acreage seeded because of difficulty in securing domestic seed.

Reasons for Failure to Obtain Stand of Clover

There may be several reasons for the failure to get a good stand of sweet clover. The soil may be slightly acid, the seed bed may have been too loose, the soil may not have been inoculated properly, and some of the seed may not have germinated yet. Sweet clover contains from 10 to 80 per cent of hard seed, which does not germinate until it has lain in the soil for considerable time. If certified seed is used this particular trouble may be avoided.

It is not necessary to work the land again if the seed is to be sown in February; it will be sufficiently covered by the alternate freezing and thawing. Now about 10 pounds of seed to the acre.

Winter seedlings will often produce one good cutting the first year and two the second. The first cutting should not be made until the crown buds begin to appear on top of the roots. The cuttings of the second year should be made just before the bloom buds appear.

Planting Clover in Spring

The best time to plant clover is in the spring. The soil should be well prepared and the seed should be sown in rows. The seed should be covered with a thin layer of soil and watered. The seedlings should be kept free from weeds and mowed when they are a foot high.

Making and Storing Ice for Summer Use

Method of Freezing in Cans or Paper Bags Outlined.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Furnishing the average farm with a sufficient supply of ice for use in the house and the dairy is a problem of considerable concern in many localities, especially where there are no ponds or streams from which a natural supply can be secured. A method of freezing ice in metal cans or special paper bags may be used, says the United States Department of Agriculture, in regions where cold weather prevails for several weeks at a time and where the supply of pure water is limited.

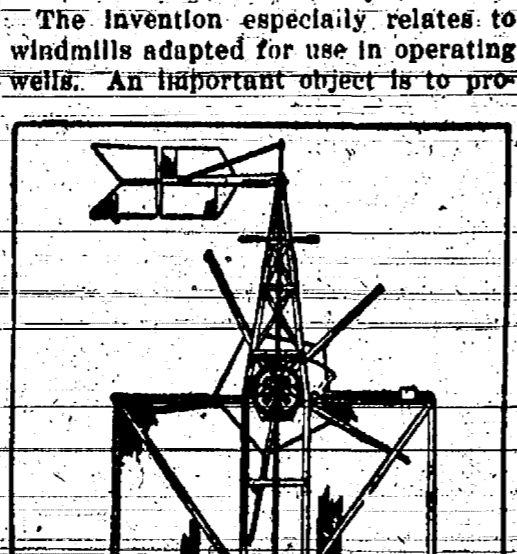

The cans may be made in any convenient size by a local tinmith and should be of galvanized iron reinforced at top and bottom with iron strips. The bottom is made slightly smaller than the top to make the removal of the ice easier. The cans are placed near the well or other source of water supply, filled with water and left exposed to the weather. A shell of ice soon freezes around the inner surface, and when this shell is from 1/4 to 2 inches thick, hot water is poured over the outside of the can and the shell removed. If left to freeze solid the cake would tend to burst or bulge. After the shell is removed from the can a hole is broken through at the top of the shell and most of the water inside then poured out. As the freezing progresses, water is poured into the shell a little at a time until a solid block of ice is produced. By this method only a few cans are required, quality enough to complete the freezing of one or two layers for the ice house at a time.

About the same method is employed when special paper bags are used, although they do not last so long as the cans. Another method that can be used in very cold sections of the United States is to run water into the ice house and let a layer freeze. This is done by first constructing a dam of snow around the floor of the house 10 or 12 inches from the wall in order to allow sawdust insulation next to the walls. The interior of the house is then flooded with a few inches of water, which soon freezes, the procedure being repeated until the house is filled with ice. It is then covered with sawdust and closed up until ice is needed. A great disadvantage of this method is that in order to remove ice, it must be cut or chopped out with an axe, which results in uneven and irregular pieces and considerable waste of ice.

New Invention Provides Adjustment on Windmill

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing an attachment for a windmill, the invention of L. E. Williams, Muleshoe, Texas, says:

The invention especially relates to windmills adapted for use in operating wells. An important object is to provide a windmill having means whereby the same is positioned with relation to the wind and whereby the same may be thrown out of gear during a storm or high wind. A further object is to provide a windmill having a pair of wooden or metal wheels which by a novel arrangement are operatively connected to a pitman rod or drive shaft.

vide a windmill having means whereby the same is positioned with relation to the wind and whereby the same may be thrown out of gear during a storm or high wind. Sweet Soil Is Necessary for Many Garden Crops

Your garden may not be acid, but if it has been kept pretty rich the chances are it is. When manure and green crops are plowed under they decay and make for acidity, and no soil is at its best for most crops when in this condition. Some crops do not object so much as others, but for a general high-producing soil it is necessary to keep it sweet. There is little danger of getting it too full of lime, and as lime will help to make all fertilizers produce better results, when using them it is advisable to first lime the soil. Lime and fertilizers should not be applied together, for the lime will often cause a loss of plant food by hasty chemical action.

Skim Milk Valuable for Feeding Young Animals

Skim milk is worth very much more for feeding to pigs and calves than to dairy cows, but when a surplus is at hand it is all right to use it. In the Connecticut station, when surplus skim milk was offered to the calves, only four would drink it, even though water was withheld. The calves drank water and grain was mixed with the milk. With the four cows, skim milk was substituted for concentrates in the ration at the rate of eight pounds of milk for one of concentrates. This substitution caused an increase in the yield of milk.

POULTRY FACTS

Right Feeding Vital to Get Eggs During Winter

The poultryman who wants to keep his pullets laying during the winter must give careful attention to feeding, say the chicken men at the State Agricultural college at Cornell.

The birds, they say, must be fat, as this gives them strength and endurance. Three-fourths of the food they eat should be hard grain. Mash is not as important during the latter part of their development as when they are ready to lay. If milk is fed, little mash is necessary. They should have plenty of green food at all times.

When the first eggs are found on the range at least one-third or one-half of the best-developed birds should be placed in their winter quarters, whether it be September 1 or November 1.

Good judgment must then be exercised in feeding the pullets after they are mature and are in their winter houses. Usually eight quarts of hard grain a day is fed to 100 birds. One-third, or one-fourth of this amount should be fed in the morning and the balance at night. When about half the birds are laying well they may require as much as twelve quarts a day.

Sometimes, however, eight quarts is too much and it is necessary to cut down on this amount until the birds can easily clean it up. Mash should always be kept before them in hoppers or feeders.

Pullets at Cornell have been found to lay best when fed three parts of hard grain to two parts of mash by weight. It is necessary to feed green food in some form, such as sprouted oats, or beets or cabbage. A small amount of milk is a valuable addition to the ration and helps to keep the birds in good condition. The birds should never be starved, but on the other hand they should be hungry at feeding time.

The secret of long and continuous laying with a pure-bred flock is to keep the birds always reasonably fat, the college concludes.

Chicken Mineral Mixture Superior for Laying Hens

A mixture of alfalfa, lime and bone meal added to soybean meal or other vegetable protein nearly doubled its value in the feed for laying hens or growing chicks, in recent tests at the Ohio experiment station.

These minerals though making up only 4 per cent of the mash and costing less than 4 cents a year per hen, proved as necessary as any other part of the feed.

Grains and seeds are deficient in protein and minerals. These are supplied by the addition of meat scrap, skim milk or other animal supplement to the feed of grain and mash. Soybean meal, peanut meal, cottonseed meal, and the like supply protein but are deficient in minerals.

When the mineral mixture was added to soybean meal at the rate of 4 pounds per hundred, its value was doubled, making it almost equal to meat scrap or milk for egg production and growth.

The station mineral mixture is made up of 60 parts of bone meal, 20 of limestone, and 20 of common salt.

Feeding Good Balanced Ration to Secure Eggs

Feed the chickens a good balanced ration. Feed scratch grain in the litter, mash in hoppers (available all the time). Green succulence is necessary for egg production and hatchable eggs during the breeding season. Have fresh water always available—oyster shell, charcoal and grit in hoppers. Provide milk in some form either as a beverage in addition to regular mash or to take place of part of protein element; it contains vitamins which are essential for laying hens.

The above in brief is the advice of poultry authorities on care of laying stock. Some formulas for mash for egg production are suggested below:

- | | |
|------------------------|--------------------|
| I. 1 part wheat bran | 1 part ground oats |
| 1 part wheat middlings | 1 part cornmeal |
| 1 part bran | 1 part meat scrap |
| 1 part cornmeal | 1 part middlings |
| 1 part bran | 1 part meat scrap |
| 1 part cornmeal | 1 part meat scrap |

Adult Geese Should Be Fed for Eggs Very Early

Adult geese should be fed for eggs about February 1, or so that the goslings will be hatched by the time there is good grass pasture. Feed a mash in the morning of equal parts by weight of corn meal, bran and middlings, or low-grade flour with 10 per cent of beef scrap, and give whole or cracked corn at night.

Corn for Fattening Geese

Cracked corn is good for fattening geese but should be fed sparingly to breeders. Goslings should have only fresh young geese for the first day or two; after that three small feeds daily of mash or scalded cracked corn with plenty of green stuff. After six weeks goslings being fattened for market may have cornmeal, one part and bran one part.

Old Hens Bolden Lay. Hens more than thirty months old seldom lay.

Most headaches due to lack of internal cleanliness

WHEN you are constipated, poisons form in the accumulated food waste. These poisons, absorbed by the blood, are carried throughout the body. Headaches follow. Biliousness, sleepless nights, lack of energy, all result from constipation. Each of these takes away piecemeal something of your health and strength. In time, intestinal poisoning due to lack of internal cleanliness may cause the breakdown of some vital organ.

In constipation, say intestinal specialists, lies the primary cause of more than three-quarters of all illness including the gravest diseases of life.

Laxatives Aggravate Constipation

Laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, says a noted authority, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition and often lead to permanent injury.

Medical science, through knowledge of the intestinal tract gained by X-ray observation, has found at last in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Physicians Favor Lubrication. Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative and cannot gripe. Like pure water it is harmless.

Get rid of constipation and avoid disease by adopting the habit of internal cleanliness. Take Nujol as regularly as you brush your teeth or wash your face. For sale by all druggists.

LYCEUM COURSE

The Jugo-Slav Tamburica Orchestra

The instruments used in this orchestra are a combination of the mandolin, guitar and harp. There is no other instrument quite like it. It produces more life and sweetness of tone than any of the above instruments. The range of music is almost limitless, varying from simple popular numbers to the most intricate of their native compositions and standard classics.

Appearing in the bright and novel costumes of their native country they render a program of instrumental, vocal and novelty features which is guaranteed to please.
