ROYALLY ENTERTAINED

Kiwanis Club Hosts To Boys And Girls Club Members Monday Night—Coach Yost The Speaker

There was a merry gathering at the M. E. church dining room on Monday evening when the Chelsea Kiwanis Club was host to the members of the 4-H Clubs in the Chelsea area. Some of the members, in fact most of them, were accompanied by either their mother or father, and it was about as fine a looking group as one would care to look upon. The dinner was served under the direction of the ladies of the church and they were assisted by a number of young ladies from the High School. As the guests stood at their places all joined in singing "America" and F. E. Storms offered the invocation.

Community singing was enjoyed under the leadership of P. H. Niehaus with Mrs. Niehaus at the piano and the room was made to echo and re-echo with the peppy songs in which all took part. During the songfest the club members joined in singing one of their songs to the delight of the banqueters.

What's the club we cherish
In old U. S. A.
Clubs that ne'er shall perish
In old U. S. A.
Always growing stronger
In old U. S. A.

List of members longer
In old U. S. A.
What's the club we love most?
It's the 4-H club;
What's the club they all toast?
It's the 4-H club;
What's the club you may taste?
It's the 4-H club;
What's the club that is best?
It's the 4-H club.

After all had partaken of the bountiful repast the assemblage was called to order by President Vogel, who in turn turned the meeting over to Dr. E. Beach, chairman of the program committee. Mr. Beach made some appropriate remarks and introduced Howard Boyd, who officiated as toastmaster of the evening in a very able manner. He outlined briefly the efforts that were put forth last season in behalf of the potato project in this section and expressed his gratification over the success of the year's work. He introduced Jack Gilbert who told the audience how the Kiwanis Club helped the 4-H Clubs. Jack spoke well and as the years pass we shall expect to see him addressing great audiences of farmers and town folk as to the advantage of proper potato culture.

More songs were enjoyed and a few lines were collected from some of the Kiwanians for their neglect in observing some of the established rules of the club. Mr. Boyd, during the course of his remarks, stated the Kiwanians had an objective and it was not the sole aim of the club to meet and eat and to make fun, but rather they had a definite purpose and that was to promote all good movements for the advancement of the community and to endeavor to create a friendly feeling between the townspeople and the people of the rural communities. To bridge the gulf, as he stated, which sometimes seemed to divide the community into two groups.

County Agent Hagen, with the assistance of two club members, presented an amusing "stunt" when the "ice cream cone" was led into the dining room. The animal had never been well trained to appear in good society, but with a great deal of patience Mr. Hagen was able to soothe the "unruly beast" with his honeyed words and after some effort he produced some ice cream cones from the "milk pail."

Of course, the big event of the evening was the address by Coach Fielding H. Yost of the University of Michigan, and Chelsea was most fortunate in having been able to secure his presence upon the occasion of this meeting of boys and girls, because of the better understanding and appreciation youth than does this beloved coach, who is devoting his life to the "building of men." As he was introduced by the toastmaster the audience rose and gave him a splendid ovation—a greeting that was deeply appreciated. He began his address by saying he was especially glad to be present because "I love youth and am always glad to share in any opportunity to inspire boys and girls into right paths for their proper development, physically, morally and mentally." Coach Yost spoke for an hour and his address was both an inspiration and a benediction and the members of the 4-H clubs present were given a mental treat they will not soon forget. At the conclusion of the inspiring talk the members of the 4-H Clubs dismissed the assemblage with the club oath: "I pledge my head to clearer thinking; my heart to greater loyalty; my hands to larger service and my health to better living for my club, my community and my country."

GIVEN A FAREWELL RECEPTION

Mrs. John Heller and son, Rudolph, were given a farewell reception at their home in Lima last Thursday evening. The family which they sold recently has been the family home for the past forty-eight years. About seventy-five neighbors and friends were present and the evening was a very enjoyable event.

Mrs. Heller was presented with a handsome gift as a remembrance. A lunch of ice cream was served. Mrs. Heller and son will move to Freedom where they will make their home for the present with Mrs. Heller's daughter, Mrs. Lydia Zahn.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Bacon entertained at their home on Mother's Day, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds Bacon and family of Perendale; Mrs. S. Schultz; Mrs. M. Schwartz; Mrs. S. Schults; Mrs. Phelps of Coldwater; Mrs. M. J. Emmett and Mrs. Foster of Highland Park.

THE CHELSEA GREENHOUSE

AN ATTRACTIVE PLACE
A Great Array Of Flowers And Plants Are Ready For Delivery—Ideal Location

We wonder if all of the people of this section know what an attractive and modern greenhouse Chelsea possesses. At any rate a visit out there among the hills will repay you. The plant is ideally situated and although located off the main traveled highway many people have found the place during the years of its existence and they return often for the products.

There are three glass covered houses there besides a more substantial building for office and packing purposes and every foot of space is filled to overflowing just now with plants and flowers ready for delivery. In flowers you can find about everything you desire from the graceful Easter lily to the more common very popular verbena, and for the vegetable garden you will find thrifty plants in tomatoes, peppers, cabbage and celery, the cold frames being filled with these.

A representative of The Standard made a brief call there Friday afternoon and spent a delightful half hour strolling about the premises. The display of Martha Washington geraniums was the largest and most attractive we have ever seen, dozens and dozens of them being in full bloom.

This enterprise was established twenty-five years ago by Miss Elvira Clark, who had been a school teacher for a number of years previous to embarking in business for herself. By careful and conservative management and fair dealing and courteous treatment of her customers she has witnessed the business grow and expand with each passing year. She richly deserves the success which has crowned her labors.

Shortly after the death of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Clark, she was united in marriage to Christ Visel and together they have conducted the business. In addition to the modern greenhouse equipment, Mr. and Mrs. Visel have a very attractive residence on a broad, velvet lawn, and it is one of the best rural homes in this section.

MEMORIAL DAY WILL BE

FITTINGLY OBSERVED HERE

Appropriate Exercises Will Be Held

At The High School Gym At 1:30—Good Speaker Engaged

A community service to properly observe Memorial Day, Wednesday, May 30th, will take place at the Chelsea High School auditorium at 1:30 in the afternoon. For this service an able speaker has been engaged in the person of Dean King of Olivet College, who comes highly recommended as a speaker and an educator. A program fitting the occasion will be given and the public is urged to keep the date open.

To properly observe Memorial Day is a duty the citizens of every community owe the memory of those who have offered themselves on the altar of their country.

ENTERTAINED AT LUNCHEON

Fifteen guests enjoyed the hospitality of Mrs. H. N. Beals at a three-course luncheon Tuesday afternoon. The affair which was given in honor of Mrs. August Rawberg of Jackson, took place at the Haunted Tavern, Ann Arbor. The affair was centered with an arrangement of tulips and lilies of the valley in crystal holders. Following the luncheon, the guests were entertained at the Michigan Theatre. Those from Chelsea attending the party were Mesdames Sidney Schnek, Paul Belsey, W. R. Daniels, R. E. Jolly, A. L. Steger, E. W. Conger, Charles Meserve, Harold Frimodig, Kent Walworth, W. F. Kanteleiner and Miss Margaret Miller.

GAVE BRIDGE DINNER

Mrs. Ernest R. Dancer and Mrs. Charles Lantieri were hostesses at a delightful bridge dinner Friday evening, at their home on South Street. Pink snapdragons formed the table decorations where covers were laid for forty guests. High honors in bridge were awarded Mrs. G. E. Saraf and Mrs. Harold Frimodig. Out of town guests were Mrs. Hollis W. Freeman and Mrs. F. W. Staffan of Ann Arbor.

STATE WILL RECEIVE BIDS

FOR M-92 VERY SOON

State Highway Commissioner Writes Of Progress Being Made on M-92—Soon To Receive Bids

Every little while some one asks "What is being done on the project to improve M-92, which was surveyed last fall and winter?" In order that Standard readers might know just what is being planned for the future, a letter was addressed to State Highway Commissioner Frank E. Rogers, making inquiry concerning the new highway. In reply Mr. Rogers wrote as follows:

Editor Standard,
Chelsea, Mich.
Dear sir:
Replying to your letter of May 7th I wish to say that the plans are nearly ready for taking bids on the Michigan and Jackson county portions of M-92 which portions are the worst part of the road at the present time. I am in hopes that we may get the whole road under contract before the close of the year but feel quite sure that the part in Lebanon and Jackson counties will be let before very long.

AGED RESIDENT FOUND DEAD

James L. Wade Died While Alone In His Home Monday—Discovered By Neighbor

James L. Wade, for forty years a resident of Chelsea, passed away about 1:00 o'clock Monday afternoon, May 14, 1928, at his home on Congdon Street. His neighbor, Charles Stapish, was with the deceased about noon in the yard at his home but he did not complain of feeling unwell. About 1:30 o'clock, Mrs. H. E. Canfield called at the home and found him on the ground. Mr. Wade had been subject to heart attacks for some years and had suffered a slight attack Saturday evening upon his return from Detroit, where he spent the past week at the home of his daughter, Mrs. John J. Upson and family.

James L. Wade was a son of Michael and Mary Wade and was born in Sharon, August 28, 1844, where he made his home until he became a resident of Chelsea. He was united in marriage with Miss Maggie Savage, May 6, 1863. Mrs. Wade passed away May 12, 1922. Mr. Wade was a member of St. Mary's church and had charge of Mt. Olivet cemetery ever since it was first laid out.

He is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary Howe, and Mrs. Bessie Upson, of Detroit, three grandsons, six granddaughters, five great grandchildren and one sister, Mrs. Michael Savage, of Jackson. The funeral will be held at 10 o'clock Friday morning in St. Mary church, Rev. Father VanDyke celebrating the mass. Interment in Mt. Olivet cemetery.

DR. C. S. CHADWICK DIES SUDDENLY THURSDAY AFTERNOON

Dr. C. S. Chadwick passed away suddenly Thursday afternoon at five o'clock, at his home at Flanders Lake. He had been in the yard and had returned to the house when the end came. He had not been good health for some time.

Dr. Chadwick was born in Manchester, June 22, 1862. He received his dental degree at the University of Michigan. For many years he had been a resident of Jackson, practicing his profession there, and was widely known. Dr. Chadwick was a member of the Masonic order and of the B. O. E. Before going to Jackson he resided at Grass Lake for a number of years.

There survive the wife; three daughters, Mrs. Dennis Barry of Jackson, Mrs. Herbert Atkins of Washington, D. C., and Miss Mildred Chadwick of Jackson; one grandchild, Patricia Atkins; one sister, Mrs. Andrew Sawyer of Chelsea, and one niece, Jackson Tribune.

Funeral services were held in the Wetherby funeral parlors at three o'clock Saturday afternoon. Burial at Woodland cemetery.

CHELSEA'S CEMETERIES ARE VERY ATTRACTIVE

Some one has said that you could determine the kind of citizens a town possesses by a casual inspection of its cemeteries were kept. If the stranger judges Chelsea by that standard they must form a very opinion of the citizens of the community, because few towns can lay claim to more attractive cities of the dead. Just now special attention is being given to the preparation for the approaching Memorial Day, but they are always kept in a very orderly and attractive condition. There are no neglected plots which are so noticeable in many cemeteries, every lot and grave giving evidence that "somebody cares" because beneath the lowly sod lies the remains of some one who was loved by somebody. Chelsea's citizens honor themselves in caring for their cemeteries and those who have the work in charge are to be commended for the care and thoughtfulness displayed.

RULE HOME ON WILKINSON STREET BURNED DOWN

The home of Mr. and Mrs. John Reute on Wilkinson street was burned down Friday afternoon. The blaze started on the roof and had gained considerable headway before it was discovered. The fire department was called but when the firemen arrived the blaze was so far advanced that it was impossible to save the building. When the alarm was turned in the roof was a solid mass of fire and the high wind helped to liven the flames. The village water main does not run south of the electric car track on Wilkinson street and there was no water to use trying to fight the flames. Most of the contents of the ground floor were saved but those of the second story were entirely burned up. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Electricity Saves Labor

IN its many uses on the farm, electricity saves labor, strength and energy, leaving more time for devotion to important duties in the home. Why should any woman give her strength to perform tasks which may be left to machinery now so easily within reach? Why should she pump and carry water by hand? Why should she do any of the numerous time taking tasks when electricity will do them for her at a cost so surprisingly small? Ask us for prices and details.

M. S. C. FARMERS DAY BOOKED FOR JULY 27

Annual Summer Conference Plans Announced—Expect Thousands to Attend

Summer Farmers Day at Michigan State College will be held on Friday, July 27th, this year, according to announcement this week at the college.
Inspection of the M. S. C. experimental plots and herds will form the major program for the morning, while a big general meeting with music and a speaker of national reputation will be held on the college campus after the noon picnic lunch.

While the plan of the Farmers Day will be much the same as in past years, many special features are being introduced by the committee in charge to add interest. Some special competition open to all farmers who attend will probably be listed among the events.

Since the first summer gathering of the kind at M. S. C. in 1918, the summer conference has grown until the crowds in recent years have reached the 10,000 mark.

GENERAL CONFERENCE MEETING AT KANSAS CITY, MO.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church is in session at Kansas City, Mo., and the following interesting account of the proceedings was taken from the Milan Leader, having been prepared by the local pastor, Rev. C. L. Adams:

The conference is composed of 825 delegates, one-half of whom are ministers elected by the 137 Annual Conferences all over the world. The other half are laymen elected by the laymen themselves. They come from different parts of the world. Europe sends 28, Asia 54, Africa 2, South America 4, Mexico 2, Philippine Islands 4. The rest are from the United States. Nationally there are to be found in this body Italians, Germans, Danes, Swedes, Norwegians, Finns, Chinese, Koreans, Liberians, Mexicans, Chileans, Argentines and Filipinos.

Among the laymen may be listed a variety of occupations. We noted 64 of these in a somewhat hasty count. There are 93 negro delegates, enough to give real color to this truly cosmopolitan body. Among the lay delegates may be seen the names of 60 women. Mrs. Nicholson, the wife of our bishop, Nicholson, of the Detroit area, being one of this number. Of the 825 delegates, 314 have been members of previous General Conferences or a little more than one-third of the whole number. Of the 426 ministerial delegates, 206 are pastors, 122 district superintendents, and 78 are engaged in other lines of ministerial work such as editors, teachers, evangelists, missionaries, etc. It is the great law-making body of the Methodist Episcopal church and has to deal with some very serious matters in connection with the affairs of this great church organization.

MICHIGAN EXHIBITED VACATION ASSETS

The East-Michigan Tourist Association had exhibits and a display reflecting the recreational appeals of Michigan at the Outdoor Life Exposition in Chicago last week-end. T. Marston was in charge of the exhibit. Michigan is dominating the exposition by reason of its unusual display of wild life, fish, game and recreational advantages. The State Conservation Department, The West Michigan Tourist & Resort Association, The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau and the East Michigan Tourist Association co-operated in a Michigan display which occupied both sides of an aisle running the entire length of the Coliseum and which is called Michigan Avenue. P. J. Hoffmaster, superintendent of state parks, was in charge of the state conservation department display which included 30 cages of wild game and 12 tanks of live fish. Pine and balsam were prominent in the decorations of the other Michigan facilities.

W. H. Loutit, executive chairman of the Conservation Commission broadened an invitation to the world to visit Michigan over station W. L. S. The Michigan Alumni sang "The Yellow and the Blue," and "The Victors" over W. L. S. Wednesday.
A huge map of Michigan, showing roads, camp sites, state parks, streams and lakes was one of the outstanding features of the show, occupying a position that could be seen by the eyes of everyone entering the Coliseum.

COUNTY CLUB NOTES

Julius Neihaus, Ann Arbor, attended the meeting of the Blue Ribbon Club Thursday evening, May 10th, at the home of Webb and Ralph Harwood, Pittsfield township. After the regular business meeting of the club, Mr. Neihaus spent the remainder of the evening practicing singing with the boys.

The 4-H club in Sharon township voted to name their club The Sharon 4-H Boosters at their meeting in the Sharon town hall Friday evening, May 11th. They also voted to purchase the music for the new 4-H club songs "Dreaming" and "The Plowing Song." Mr. Hagen, county club agent, gave a report on the first national 4-H club camp which he attended at Washington, D. C. last summer.

Several 4-H club members of Washtenaw county are planning to attend the state Holstein sale at East Lansing Tuesday, May 22nd. Some animals especially suitable for calf club work have been consigned and the boys are interested in trying to buy some of them.
The potato club of Sylvan township will meet at the home of Willis Heydlauff near Sylvan Center, Friday evening, May 18th. The boys of the club are giving any boy or girl in Sylvan township an opportunity to join the club that evening.

HINTS ON CURING MEATS

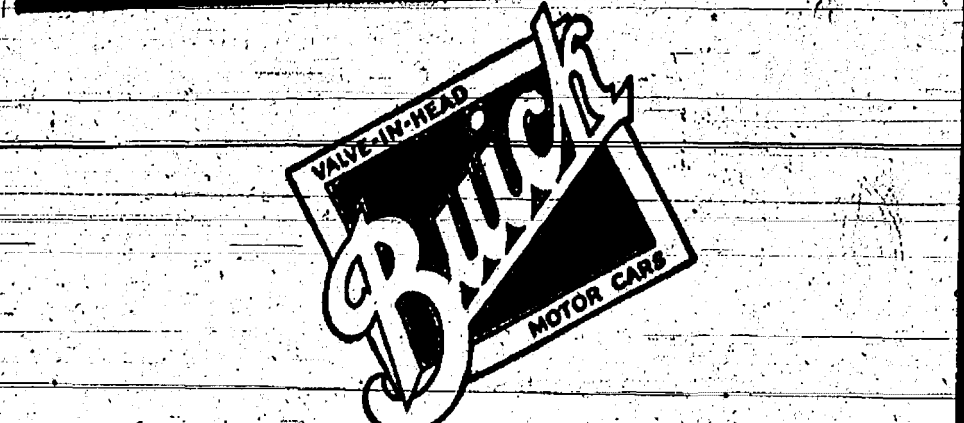

In localities where snow and continued dry cold weather are prevalent, meat may be frozen and kept all winter. This is true of fish as well.
Take a large clean box, cover the bottom with clean snow and when the meat is frozen solid pack it into the snow, so that no two pieces touch. Cover with snow and continue to pack until all the meat is placed. Put the box where sudden changes of temperature will not affect it. When packing the meat remember to leave the pieces in such sizes as will be convenient to use, as such meat when once thawed should be used, not frozen again.

In some places where sausage is made in abundance, it is partly cooked and packed in jars, then covered with hot lard. This will keep into winter, making a very convenient dish of meat to serve in a hurry. The sausage is made into small cakes and well seasoned over with heat. Pork chops are good packed in this manner.

Small pork chops may be partly cooked, then placed in a large jar and covered with hot lard. This makes a perfect seal. The fat may be used in various ways. In small families glass mason jars may be packed with cooked sausages and filled with hot fat. The convenience of these is that only small portions of amounts for a meal or two are opened and thus there is no danger of spoiling.

Meat for salting should never be prepared until the animal heat is out. The meat should be cool, but not frozen. A barrel which is tight and clean is the best of receptacles for quantities of meat; for small amounts, use a large firkin or stone jar.

It is best to avoid the patent preparations which are on the market for curing meat. Salt, sugar, molasses are safe and wholesome. Salt-peter is used to give the bright color and is also a preservative; it is considered harmful, though it is used almost universally in small quantities.

Clinging Vines Must Cling

By CORONA REMINGTON

BOB RAYMOND held up his best suit of clothes and looked at it critically. To press or not to press—that was the question. He could not afford even the price of a press if he did not actually need it; yet he must look his best tonight because Alene Summers dressed like a fashion plate. It would never do for her to feel ashamed of him. Yes, to press, he would run no risk. He would call at the dry cleaners on the way to the office.

As he walked along the busy street in the air of the cool spring morning his thoughts were gloomy and depressing. Where was he getting in life anyway? Twenty-six years old and had to debate whether he could afford to have his clothes pressed or not! And here was Alene, a mere slip of a girl—five years his junior—earning as much or maybe more. No, she didn't earn more, that was nonsense. Maybe not quite as much, but somehow it was damned embarrassing. Such she needed a man's support. She could beat him cards and spades at his own game. What was the world coming to anyway? His father didn't have to compete with this element of independence in his love-making. Heck, no. Bob was willing to bet his mother was damn glad to say yes when pop said, "Will you?" because she knew she'd have a roof over her head anyway, and something to eat—and maybe even a few luxuries. But today—

All the morning at his work and all the afternoon he struggled with the situation of modern woman. Girls didn't want to get married, that was the truth of the situation. And after all, why should they?

So on and so on, getting gloomier and gloomier with every dragging minute until by the time he did finally get his work done and his caffeine-supper eaten and his pressed suit donned he was in a mood that defied any mental proddings and refused to peek up at his bidding.

"Bob, Raymond," Alene greeted him. "If I didn't know you were so honest I'd declare you'd been stealing. You look—no—guilty! What's the matter?" she asked, dropping the bantering tone and slipping a friendly hand into his.

"I don't know, Alene. The world's all wrong," he declared. "But don't let's talk about it. It won't mend matters, and it might make me worse."

"You're as bad as you can be right now," she laughed, squeezing his hand. "Let's go to the kitchen and make some candy."

That was cruel of her but she didn't know it. It was always harder for him to keep his feelings to himself when she did the domestic stuff. He went away in the late evening physically fed and comforted, but mentally more on the rack than ever. He'd never go back to see her, he decided. It only made matters worse.

The situation was hopeless anyhow so why be continually tortured? It had never once occurred to him that Alene might wonder why he had suddenly ceased in his attentions. In fact, he did not bother himself that she would care—but as a matter of fact, for Alene the happiness had gone out of her life. She was no longer puzzled but hurt. Each evening she watched and waited hoping that he might drop in. At night she worried herself into a headache about him.

Then one morning she went down to the office all on edge and walked in half an hour late. Old Hudson looked up and snarled:

"You think I'm payin' you to loaf in bed while I do the work?" he roared. "If you're late another morning, I'll fire you."

"I don't care the snap of my finger what you do," she told him, still standing in the doorway. "I'm leaving."

She trembled a little as she walked rapidly down the street, her head in a whirl. At a drug store near by she called up Bob.

"I'm in trouble," she told him. "Can you come over this evening? Don't fail me, Bob." Then she hung up without waiting for his flood of questions.

That evening he did not stop to get supper, but hurried straight from the office to her tiny apartment.

"I—I've lost my job and can't even get a reference," she greeted him, melting into tears in his arms.

"That's all right, dear," he soothed tenderly. "I got a raise the other day and I think we can live on it."

"Oh, Bob, you're certain you're not doing this just because I'm in trouble? You're sure you love me?" she asked shyly.

"Good Lord!" he said uneasily. "Alene, if you only knew."

But she did know. After a while they cooked supper and sat down and ate together, deliciously self-conscious, and after another long while—a long, long one—he went away and Alene went to bed and turned on the light and whispered a little prayer of relief and thankfulness to her room and to her guardian angel and to her God.

"It worked! It worked! But just supposing it hadn't. What should I have done?—It didn't! It was his darling silly old pride all the time. Just think of it. Even in this age of modernism you still have to be a clinging vine and cling."

"A Penny Saved Is Tuppence Gained"

The wise housewife saves many a penny reading the newspapers.

She reads the advertisements, too. In buying the family's daily requirements, she studies and compares before she buys.

Those with observation readily testify that, had it not been for the resourcefulness and economic ability of the American housewife, numberless homes would not have survived the first stroke of ill fortune after the honeymoon.

Advertising is real. How else do foods and clothes attain to such sudden and wide preference? They don't except through publicity.

RETIREES AFTER A LONG AND HONORABLE SERVICE

Hon. C. S. Winans Has Retired From U. S. Consular Service After Twenty-eight Years

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Winans have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Winans and family during the past week. They will leave Friday for Chicago, where they will enjoy a family reunion, the first one in nine years. Miss Charissa Winans, who is with her parents, L. K. Winans of Chicago, and H. C. Winans, who has been in South America for the past two years, are the children.

Mr. Winans has voluntarily retired from the United States Consular Service after twenty-eight years of efficient and honorable service, and the many friends of the family sincerely trust they will find it to their liking to become permanent residents of Chelsea, where they have many friends and where they enjoy a large acquaintance.

From the Central European Observer we are permitted to take the following account of his activities, which will be read with great interest by the Standard family.

The Hon. Charles Sumner Winans, who has been American Consul-General in Prague since 1920 retired this week from the Foreign Service of the United States having reached the legal age for retirement. Born in the state of New York, Mr. Winans was educated in the public schools and at Albion College, Michigan.

After a business career spent largely in Chili, where he also served for ten years as president of the Iquique English College, he was appointed U. S. Consul at Iquique, and subsequently saw service in various countries, at Valencia and Seville in Spain, Nuremberg in Germany, Cienfuegos, Cuba, London and finally Prague where he was advanced to the rank of Consul-General.

During his stay in Prague Mr. Winans has made many friends and connections with the life of the Czechoslovak capital. He was one of the founders in 1923 of the Rotary Club at Prague, of which he is an honorary charter member.

Before returning to the States, Mr. Winans will spend a few months traveling in Europe. On Monday last he paid a farewell visit to the Rotary Club, where Dr. Sum of the Foreign Office, the past president of the Club, paid a warm tribute to Mr. Winans' work during his stay at Prague. Mr. Winans in his reply expressed his lasting appreciation of the kindness and consideration shown him by the Club, the public authorities and his many friends in Prague.

FIRST SERVICES FOR NEW PARISH ARE ANNOUNCED

Fr. Fallon of St. Jeremiah's Parish Announces Mass Schedule This Week

First services of the new St. Jeremiah's parish will be held Sunday morning in the temporary chapel building at Six Mile road and Strasburg street, the Rev. Thomas J. Fallon, pastor and organizer, announced this week. The services will consist of a low Mass at 8 a. m. and a high Mass at 10 a. m. Father Fallon also announced that Masses on Ascension Thursday, May 17th, will be said in the chapel at 5:30 and 8 a. m.

The temporary chapel was erected by Father Fallon to serve the parish until a permanent building is completed. It seats 450 persons. When the permanent structure is built the temporary building can be altered and sold for store room use.

St. Jeremiah's parish was organized three months ago. It has obtained a tract of ground at Annot and Rowe avenues for its permanent buildings. The tract consists of 622 feet on Rowe avenue and 320 feet on Annot avenue.

Father Fallon, who has established his parochial residence at 12655 Barlow street, was formerly pastor of St. Mary's church, Chelsea. Prior to his pastorate at Chelsea, he was for seven years at Williamston and Fowlerville. He also served as assistant priest at Our Lady of Help parish, Detroit; St. Joseph's parish, Kalamazoo, and St. Thomas parish, Ann Arbor.

As soon as a complete survey of the new parish can be made, work will start on the new combination church and school building. Father Fallon

HOPE TO HAVE THE BUILDING COMPLETED IN 1929.—DETROIT FREE PRESS.

A MERITED PROMOTION

Wesley C. Smith, who has been telegraph operator at the local Michigan Central station for twenty-one years, has been promoted to the responsible position of freight agent at the Chelsea office and has assumed his new duties and responsibilities the first of the week. Mr. Smith came to Chelsea from Grass Lake and during his residence here he has made many friends and won the esteem and respect of the patrons of the railway system by which he has been employed as well as with the public generally, and his advancement is a promotion well merited.

He has been the leader of the local band and orchestra and in other ways has rendered efficient service to the community. All will be pleased to learn of his good fortune, because the new position not only brings new responsibilities but it will also bring a more generous pay check each month.

OPENING SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

If the weather is pleasant the formal opening of Sylvan Estates Country Club which will occur on Saturday and Sunday, will be a very enjoyable affair. On Saturday evening, dinner will be served at 6:00 and dancing will follow from 8:00 to 11:00. D. F. THOMAS

Mr. D. F. Thomas, a leading real estate dealer of Ann Arbor, is probably located in one of the pleasantest and most easily reached offices of any sort in that vicinity. Right in the central business district on East Liberty street, with spacious offices on the ground floor, Mr. Thomas is so business-like and gentlemanly that it surely must be a pleasure to deal with him.
He is a native of Michigan, having lived at Sault Ste. Marie for thirty-five years, coming to Ann Arbor about ten years ago from Pontiac, where he was in business for a time.

At present Mr. Thomas employs two ladies and four men. He deals in all kinds of real estate, specializing just now in high-class lake property.
He is the sort of a man who is bound to succeed especially where a reputation for honesty and integrity must be built up carefully year after year.

PROCHNOW GARAGE

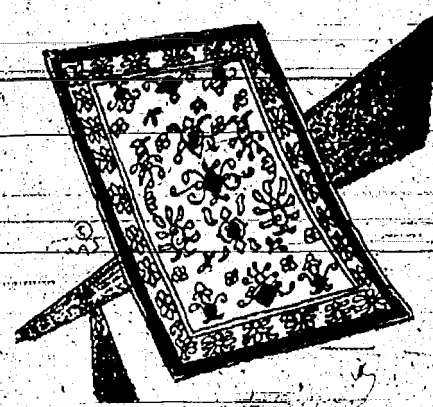

The Prochnow Garage at 312 South
Ashley street, Ann Arbor, is a small place as yet but aims to give first-class service on any and all cars. For many people there is much more satisfaction in taking their cars for repair work to one of the smaller concerns where they are looked after personally by the proprietor. Mr. Loren Reeves has been the owner of this garage since last July and it is his endeavor to give personal supervision to all repair work and to be certain that his patrons are absolutely satisfied with his service at all times. Mr.
Reeves is fast building up a successful business and he surely deserves a liberal patronage which he, undoubtedly, will have as people very soon learn where they will be most likely to obtain prompt and efficient service.

Thanks to Her Aunt Nancy

By H. LOUIS RAYBOLD

ANNE sat on her veranda reading her favorite column in a paper three days old.

By lifting her eyes she could have looked out across miles of lovely valley but not once did she cast a glance that way. Not so much because she was engrossed with the column's humor but because it was part of her attitude to shut her eyes to anything beautiful in connection with this farm which she had inherited under what she considered unfair conditions—that she must live on it a year before it was hers.

The unfairness of it, in Anne's eyes, lay in the fact that she was her aunt's sole heir and, unless the farm had been expressly willed otherwise, it would have been Anne's with no strings attached. Having to live on it a year before it would be hers to do, meant giving up her position with the Seaboard Advertising corporation and taking herself out of range of its president, Burley Lawrence, whose attractions were just beginning to seem perfect.

One month of the stipulated year had passed. It would be eleven more before she would be free.

A car swung round the curve and pulled up at the gate. Anne rose quickly, but it was no use. She was caught.

"At last she must meet this man who had called three times but whom she had always, through Agnes Bruce, excused herself from seeing."

"How do you do, Miss Anne?" Miss Agnes, indeed! "It is a great pleasure to meet you at last. Your aunt and I were great friends."

"Yes," said Anne politely. "I dare say you were one of her neighbors."

John Ogilvy settled himself comfortably in the chair opposite hers.

"Yes," he said. "I have lived here off and on ever since I gave up my business in New York."

Anne started. She hadn't supposed there was a soul living in Ralston who had ever been within fifty miles of New York.

"There are times when I get a bit homesick," continued her caller. "Then I run down to the old town for a little rest but, on the whole, I get a great deal of fun out of my farm. My specialty is Ayshires, you know. I'd like very much to show you my new barns, Miss Anne."

Anne was experiencing a novel sensation—one of shame that she had tried to snub this friendly sort of person to start with.

"I don't know a thing about barns," she said coldly.

His face lighted. "Ah, then, I should especially enjoy showing them to you. My former neighbors all know so much more than I do that I haven't the nerve to spring my crazy ideas on them. When could you come—tomorrow?"

After she had gone, Anne sat for some time wondering why she had allowed herself to be inveigled into visiting a perfect stranger's cow barns. And while she meditated, the soft, purple twilight settled over the valley.

It wasn't the trip through the barns, except as that was a preliminary, which changed Anne's life.

It was something that inadvertently happened as she sat in John Ogilvy's comfortable living room while his housekeeper prepared tea. Pussing out of the room with her tray, the old Scotch woman accidentally caught back a portiere in the doorway, disclosing what was evidently a sort of den beyond. In the brief instant it hung, Anne glimpsed a radio and desk. Then it dropped but not before Anne had seen on a corner of the desk the large framed photograph of herself she had sent Aunt Nancy a year ago.

A wave of color swept her face and then she realized that her host was aware of what had happened.

John Ogilvy squarred his shoulders and, coming over to Anne, stood looking down at her with an expression in his eyes that it was, perhaps, as well Anne did not see.

"I guess it's a case where only the truth will serve," he said quietly. "So here goes! Your aunt showed me that picture when it arrived and when she knew she would not live she asked me to keep it. You see, she suspected, as was the case, that I had fallen in love with the beautiful girl it portrayed. To tell the truth, I had really fallen in love with her some time ago. Your aunt was very fond of you. Liked to talk about you and read scraps of your letters aloud."

"One day, shortly before she died, she said to me, 'I wish Anne could know you.' I remember smiling and replying, 'I wish I could know Anne.'"

"I think very soon you may have the opportunity," she said quietly. At the time I did not understand what she meant, but when I heard the terms of her will, I understood. She had given me a year in which to court you. One month of that year—this year—already. I feel quite hopeless now—that I have seen you. What chance is there a girl like you could ever care for an old duffer like me?"

Anne looked up into the tender gray eyes above her. Why, it seemed as if she had known him always, as if they had been waiting for each other! Burley Lawrence, with his cynical manner and selfish ways, faded into the past forever.

"There are eleven months left," she said faintly.

Love's Tribute

To you who spent weary months in barren, gloomy training camps in remorseless drudgery.

To you who went over seas and under machine guns and sickening torturing gas, never faltering a mile.

To you who have defied submarines and a nameless grave in the ocean and landed your army in France.

To those who are still suffering from wounds and gas, shall cheer and cheer.

To those who died.

Our prayers, our love and our tears.

Memorials Call

Living to Duty

This is the season when God's acre, to use a name favored by the Pilgrim Fathers, is at its loveliest. Nature is kind to even the meager and most neglected burying place, carpeting the sunken grave with the softest green and glorifying the crumbling headstone with clinging vine and fragrant blossom. This is the season when the well-kept cemeteries are havens of beauty, and the Graceland, the Greenwood, the Woodmere, of the great cities, are visited by mourning multitudes who do not forget to remember.

All over this land of ours are neglected graves. The heroes of wars rest in the soil of the country for which they died. Linked together inseparably is the youngest who died in the World war with the oldest who gave his all in the War of the Revolution. Roses and lilacs, fuchsias and lilies; flags and insignia; songs of thrush and cardinal; bugles sounding taps; thin, wavering lines of the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic; strong, sturdy and youthful veterans of the last great conflict—what memories Memorial day brings, how costly is a nation's achievements in brain and brawn and blood!

It is a good and wise thing to muse amid the monuments and memorials where sleep those who loved the nation well enough to defend its principles and die for the preservation of its integrity. A journey to Mount Vernon just to stand five minutes before the tomb of Washington is worth all that it costs in time, money, even to those who live clear across the country. A pilgrimage to Springfield to dream by the hillside where the dust of Lincoln rests amidst the prairies that he loved and in the old town where his children used to play is an education for the heart. What lessons at the patriot's grave for those of us who live—lessons of loyalty, sacrifice and high service!

Visiting Graves of

Brave Men They Led

The American lads lying beneath the crosses in France received their measure of commemoration in the observance of Memorial day last year.

General Pershing, their commander, Marshal Foch, Ambassador Herrelick—high officials of the French government and representatives of the American, French and British veterans' societies joined in helping the hero dead.

A special service was held in the American cathedral in Paris and similar ceremonies in the American churches in other cities and towns.

The French joined with the Americans in decking with flowers all the American war cemeteries.

Photograph shows Marshal Foch and General Pershing inspecting graves of American heroes in the cemetery at Suresnes.

WEIRD RITUAL MARKS

PURIFICATION RITES

Conversion of Yankos Old Second of Its Kind.

Bombay.—Considerable interest has been aroused in the proposed "purification" of the American girl, Miss Miller, in preparation for her projected marriage to the ex-maharaja of Indore, since the ordeal is said to be sufficiently strenuous to prove an actual hardship to many.

Five years ago there was no recognized "purification" or conversion to Hinduism. However, owing to the Mogul riots in Malabar of 1921-22, in which thousands of Hindus were forcibly converted to Islam, the pride of the orthodox Hindu priests gave way to the exigencies of the times and, with the consent of the high priests throughout India, a newly recognized ceremony was settled upon and a definite ritual drawn up.

It is called the ceremonial of sacrifice for the soul, or Vratya-Homa-Vidhi, as explained in the old Vedic scriptures. If Miss Miller is converted, it will be the second case of this kind, the precedent having been established when Doctor Ketkar, P. D. of Poona, married an American girl a few years ago and later established what is commonly known as Neo-Hinduism.

In order to purify the vibrations of an impure nature due to the eating of beef and other sins of like description, Miss Miller will have to live on a fruit diet for three days previous to the actual ceremony. On the day of the ceremony she will submit to the first purification bath, when the holy water of the Ganges and Jumna are poured upon her head, accompanied by the chanting of Vedic hymns and prayers.

She will next be given the Paucha-Gayya, or the mixture of the products from the cow—milk, curds, clarified butter, honey, and sugar—the whole concoction being sprinkled over with the stems of the sacred kuska grass.

The Sacred Fire.

The neophyte is next taken to the nearby sacred fire, which has been specially lighted by the friction of two pieces of sacred wood. Here, seated on a wooden seat and dressed in pure silk, she will prepare small balls of rice cooked in cow's milk, place them in a spoonful of clarified butter, and give the offering to the sacred fire.

After this the candidate for purification approaches another wooden bench on which rows of betel nuts are arranged on rice mixed with red powder, representing the ancient Aryan sages. Here she will take the obligation of following the good path in the manner ordained by them. She will also be given a Hindu name, which she will write out with a diamond-tinged in the rice grain spread out on a golden plate. The priest performing the ritual next places the red kumkuma mark on her forehead, thus finally admitting her to the holy ranks of Indian womanhood.

The Hindu marriage ceremony begins with the invocation to the elephant-headed god, Ganesha, who blesses all auspicious ceremonies and events. The most important part of the ritual is sapta-padi, or walking around the fire in seven steps, the husband leading his wife, registering the sacred vow, after having invoked the seven sacred sages, symbolized by the seven stars of the Great Polar Bear.

The Wedding Ceremony.

Before his marriage can become legally solemnized, the high caste Hindu must solemnly promise: "I will not transgress in religion, in prosperity, and in passion." The bride and the bridegroom stand facing each other, with a veil between them, while priests chant Sanskrit verse, invoking the blessings of all the world on this union and throwing saffron colored rice upon the bowed head of each.

Both the bride and bridegroom are dressed in silk and both wear the mundavall, or chaplets of pearls, on their foreheads. When the veil is raised at the end of the chanting the newly wedded couple, garland each other, while the husband ties round the neck of his bride the sacred mangalsutra, a necklace of black beads with a golden leaf in the middle.

However rich the married couple may be, this necklace is of the simplest character, and can be bought for a couple of shillings in the market place. With this final gesture the couple are now declared man and wife in the eyes of God and the law. They then join the wedding guests to take part in the reception and the subsequent days of feasting, which are followed with a grand procession, fireworks, and similar festivities.

She Loved Birds and Beasts
By DOROTHY DOUGLAS
(Copyright)

COLEBROOK stretched his long legs comfortably and gazed fully at the assortment of birds and beasts scattered about his flat.

First came Tot and Totto, the sweet little love birds, then Blimbo the great sheep dog and Peps the tiny Pekinese and Rugs the disgraceful fox terrier that was always getting into trouble. Lastly there was the magnificent Johnny—supreme among cats.

Colebrook had been contemplating very seriously of late the idea of adding still another member to his family, but this time it would be a human being.

He knew that if he married Elsie Randolph there would have to be drastic sacrifices from his animal family on the altar of marriage. Elsie was not very keen on dogs.

Then there was Connie Deeda. She didn't mind the animals so much but she was frightfully fond of dancing and theaters and Colebrook wondered if the home would suffer neglect if he were to select her as a mate.

Colebrook knew that he owed it to his sister to marry, for she was eternally doing things for him that certainly a wife would do. She was a brick to mend his socks and shirts when she had a batch of growing children and a husband of her own to mend for.

Colebrook felt that he would like to wander clear-eyed and clear-headed through a room full of girls and question them all to see if they liked and disliked were in common with his own. But since that sort of thing was not done he felt the best thing was to take a chance on either Connie or Elsie.

Always on holidays he had been forced to send Blimbo, Peps and Rugs to a dog home and Johnny to a cat home. The birds, Tot and Totto, his sister took and cared for. Having dogs and cats of her own she chafed not bring such a variety together under one roof.

It was in his very darkest moment of despair regarding the kindly disposition of his loved animals during a three weeks' trip to Maine that his door bell rang somewhat faintly.

Colebrook went to the door with the three dogs in close pursuit.

The girl standing outside smiled when she saw the bodyguard and a matter of feet greeted the animals before she made known her mission to the man.

"This pulling of man in the back ground, in this particular case, some what nettled Colebrook.

"Are you Mr. Phillip Colebrook?" questioned the girl.

"I am," said that person.

"Well, I hope you will pardon my calling—but Mr. Avery sent me to you. He said you might just want me to look after your animals while you are away. I do a lot of this kind of care taking and I—love doing it."

Colebrook could only stand and gaze at this wonderful girl who seemed sent from out of the clear blue sky as if in answer to his needs.

"But there are birds and cats and dogs," he said for want of anything more brilliant coming to his brain.

"I wouldn't mind if there were cows too," laughed the girl, "except that I could hardly care for a cow in my apartment. I have had a lion cub but no elephants."

Colebrook laughed and asked her in so that she might become acquainted with his family.

The dogs had taken a sudden and violent fancy to this young lady and threatened to quarrel among themselves over her.

Johnny, too, greeted her in cat fashion by rubbing against her slim ankle and the love birds fluttered joyously on their perch.

"Then and there Colebrook knew that his quest for a wife was going to end with his either marrying this girl or none at all. He, of course, kept this knowledge, for the time being, to himself.

"If you want to go away and feel that your animals are in perfectly safe keeping and not in any way unhappy about being put in strange kennels, I could come here and live," said the girl—"that is, if you care to trust me. I have done this a good deal during the last five years and find that people appreciate having some one who can care for their pets and home at the same time. I have very good references," she added and looked up straight into Colebrook's eyes.

"You don't need any reference as far as I'm concerned," he said, "and I don't think any of the rest of the family will ask any. They have all deserted me shamefully since you came." He sighed heavily. "My dear young lady," he added, "you don't know the weight you have lifted from my mind. I can go away now and feel absolutely happy about my pets. You know," he said a bit boyishly, "I'm a bit of a fool over animals and birds."

"Not a bit more than I am," laughed the girl. "It was my love for them that led me into this somewhat curious business. But I had to earn a living without any business knowledge."

Tot and Totto drew nearer together on their perch—the two little love birds perhaps sensed that drawing together of two other mates and they weren't going to be outclassed in the love game.

Howell—At last Thursday's meeting of the State Administrative Board State Highway Commissioner Frank E. Loggans granted authority to replace the local post pavements at the east and west entrances to the city of Howell, and a further portion in the city, the total extent of the project being 1-1/2 miles. The paving on the east and west sides of the city will be 20-foot concrete and where pavement is to be laid in the city the width will be 30 feet, the additional 10 feet to be paid for by the city.

Grand Ledge—The passing of Comrade Robert Newton, whose funeral was held on Friday, reduces the number of survivors of the Earl Halbert Post G. A. R. to four. At one time this post boasted of a membership of over two hundred veterans of the civil war. In addition to the above four comrades, there are one or two veterans in the vicinity who never affiliated with the local post. Mack Harris who resides with his daughter on Pleasant street, is a charter member of the post and John Clark who resides at 206 West street, is a past post commander.—Independent.

Dr. Clarence Cook Little, president of the University of Michigan, and one of the most widely known educators in the country, will be the speaker of the evening.—Leader.

Brooklyn—The Lenawee county road commission will this week place a tar coating on the stretch of road from the intersection through Onsted to the intersection with M-80 at Rome Center. Last year a stretch through the village of Onsted was coated with this tar binder for the gravel top and was found so inexpensive and satisfactory that more of this black topping will be used on the stretch of road indicated. Travelers will not be long in learning that this connecting link between M-50 and M-80 represents the shortest route between Adrian and Jackson, and its use will eventually mean its replacement with more enduring cement.—Exponent.

Bridgewater—William Godd, pioneer resident past 80 years of age, one of the most well known stock buyers in this part of the country having purchased stock for years under the name of Godd and Hogan, has decided to retire and is remodeling his residence in Clinton. One of the older houses in Clinton, it was well built and in the early days was used to confiscate whisky, etc., the long hangars still being intact in the basement. Mr. Godd has three farms here in Bridgewater where he is found daily, consulting his men and assisting where necessary.—Argus.

good refrigerator
keep foods at their best

There is no other refrigerant like ICE. You can depend upon it. In a good refrigerator it maintains a constant cold enough to keep foods fresh, dry enough to prevent mold and moist enough to retard the drying out of meat, cheese, butter and fruit.

It is nature's way of preserving the delicious juices and precious, elusive flavors of food.
It is important to have a good refrigerator. This does not necessarily mean an expensive model. You can get a thoroughly good one, correctly designed, tightly constructed and well insulated, at moderate cost. If kept in good order and properly handled, it cannot fail to give the most satisfactory results.

APPEALS TO BIG BUSINESS

At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States held in Washington last week, Judge Edwin J. Parker, chairman of the board of directors, appealed to the business interests of the country to clean house and throw out those who flout the law and abuse their power before an aroused public conscience turns loose its thunderbolts of wrath, which will result in the enactment of legislation that will seriously hamper legitimate freedom and highest initiative.
"The times demand straight thinking and frank speaking," declared the speaker. "The recent conspicuous examples of individuals, prominent in big business, becoming intoxicated with power and involved in transactions, tainted with fraud and corruption, violating every principle of sound business conduct, holding themselves above the law, are not peculiar to this day nor to the profession of business. Every generation, every profession, has its unfaithful members."
But business, which has lately been defined as "the oldest and the newest of the professions, must, in order to maintain its professional status and to reap the unquestioned advantages of group action, scrupulously discharge its group responsibilities to the community. Among these responsibilities is to see to it that the profession of business is purged of those pirates whose acts stigmatize and bring business generally into disrepute. Ruthless and selfish initiative must be curbed in the public interest and in the interest of legitimate business."

SALVAGING THE OLD ROADS

An ever-present problem facing cities, counties and states, is how to improve gravel and broken-stone road surfacings now in use so that they will adequately serve traffic, with least possible expenditure.
To replace the gravel or rock worn away annually requires extremely high maintenance costs.
As an economic proposition, it is possible to improve these roads—by using their present value—by using them as a base for different types of permanent surfacings which when properly laid will give the most inexpensive surfacing possible.

KEEP TARIFF OUT OF POLITICS

Lowering the tariff would mean imperiling the financial security of industrial workers and farmers, who support our principal buying power. A sudden influx of goods made in low wage countries and sold here at a price lower than our manufacturers can produce them, would necessarily result in slowing up, and possibly closing our many important industries. Unemployment would follow, and almost overnight our satisfactory industrial conditions would change to a dangerous chaos.
If we value our prosperity, the tariff must be kept out of politics.

REMOVE THE SIGNBOARDS

Property owners along one of the main highways of Wisconsin have organized and are cleaning off the signs which recently adorned the road. Scenery is one of Michigan's resources and the people ought not to be robbed of its beauty by a never ending row of signs thrust between them and the natural beauty they wish to see.—Michigan Farmer.

DO YOU REMEMBER?

To those who feel that we have had a late spring and that cold weather has been hanging on pretty long, will you think back to May 9 and 10, 1923, when during the night between the two days, 15 inches of snow fell, and the highways were blocked. May 16, the following week came the heavy sleet storm which did so much damage.

There is some conflict of opinion concerning the observance of Memorial Day. Some desire to have the services in the morning while others feel that the afternoon should be given over to this sacred service. Are we so busy with other matters that we cannot give one whole day to the proper observance of this day? We have many other days during the year for visiting, for recreation, for merry-making, but we are asked to devote just one day to the memory of our soldiers, both living and dead, who gave the full measure of devotion for the establishment of our government and for its preservation. Let's be big enough and loyal enough to observe the day in the proper spirit this year.

OBSERVATIONS

On the lawn of the Public Garden in Boston, "Keep off the grass" signs have been placed by signs bearing the significant word "Please." Apparently the "Golden Rule policy" already being practiced on numerous city police forces, is broadening its scope.
With 80 per cent. of the United States taxpayer's dollar going to pay for past wars or preparing for future ones, it would seem good business to invest a few pennies in exploring the paths of peace.
Not only is "Cease firing" the command for Forestry Week, but it also brings a peaceful feeling to the person who has tended furnace all winter.—Christian Science Monitor.

THE WRONG WAY

Cop: "Hey, where are you going? Don't you know this is a one-way street?"
Abe (in new car): "Well, I'm going away, ain't I?"
With airplanes spanning the ocean and radio giving every set owner an "orchestra seat" for the performance, new meaning is given to Shakespeare's "All the world's a stage."

LIMITS ON BLACK BASS FISHING

Isaac Waltoners are to be curbed in their efforts to lure fish from Michigan streams and lakes according to the new orders promulgated from the department of conservation at Lansing. In one the taking of more than five large or small mouth black bass in any one day is made unlawful with ten the limit permitted to be in one's possession at any one time. In the other order published annually the number of brook trout permitted to be taken in one day is fixed at fifteen with twenty-five declared to be the limit held in possession at any one time. Certain streams are being designated where no fishing for trout is permitted and fishermen are advised to determine whether a stream is so posted before any are taken. The latter prohibition applies to many streams where nets have heretofore been used in the taking of small fish for bait. It is the content of the conservationists that there are fish for all but that none shall have more than his share.

KEEP THE HIGHWAYS CLEAN

The road commissioners of Ingham county ask the farmers of the county to assist in keeping highways clean and attractive. They suggest that the sides of the public highways are no place for the disposal of all kinds of rubbish and old fencing. Some of the highways in Ingham are becoming unsightly, caused by the use of the roadside as a dumping ground for all kinds of rubbish.

GOVERNMENT LOSES TAX-REFUND ACTION

The United States was made liable to refund $2,627,809.05 and to lose an additional $85,100,000 with interest to former owners of Ford Motor stock as corporation income when the United States Court of Appeals affirmed the United States District Court at Detroit in the suit of Mrs. Alice G. Kales against the government.
Eight plaintiffs pleaded they were illegally assessed amounts totaling more than $44,600,000.

FRUIT GROWERS PLAN ANNUAL TOUR

Dates for the midsummer tour of the Michigan State Horticultural society through the St. Catherine section.

Friends of Mrs. A. M. Bosworth will be pleased to learn that she is recovering from her recent illness.

tion of Ontario enroute to Niagara Falls, have been set for Aug. 8 and 9. Secretary H. D. Rootman announced. The tour will start from Windsor, Ont., according to present plans, and will follow the "southern route" through Ontario. This will take the visitors along the scenic north shore of Lake Erie and through the truck crop and tobacco region around Harrow. Canadian officials have suggested Simcoe or Hamilton as the first night stop.

The Canadian fruit belt would be entered at Ridgeway on the first day's junket between Hamilton and Niagara Falls, has been suggested as a good place to take lunch the second day. Director E. F. Palmer of the horticultural experiment station at Vineland, N. J., has invited the society to spend the entire second afternoon at the station. Niagara Falls would be reached late the second day. Sunday, the third day, would be spent at the Falls, and while the tour would officially end there, it is believed a majority would choose to visit the fruit belt in western New York and northern Ohio before returning to Michigan.

MERLIN was a great enchanter and worker of magic. He had some nifty tricks up his voluminous sleeves that could put the curse on a black cat, or protect Prince Charming from a rain of machine gun arrows.

For a while business was right good with Merlin. But one day he failed to perform an important stunt wherein the King was vitally interested, and then it was that Merlin faded from the silver screen.

There is a growing tendency today, on the part of new born insurance companies, to sell car owners on the idea that certain signs, emblems and insignia, tacked, tied, or otherwise displayed in some conspicuous place about the car will ward off approaching danger when, as, and if encountered.

In the meantime the thoroughly established Automobile Insurance Companies that have built up their business on a sound study of losses over a decade or more of years, at the same time setting up adequate reserves and a surplus, will go steadily forward.

Auto-Owners Insurance Company, by careful business management and a knowledge of insurance risks based upon actual experience, and compilation of data from the experience, is pledged, at all times, to offer the lowest rates consistent with safety.

A Silent And Beautiful Tribute!

FLOWERS

For Memorial Day

VIN the day when we feel duty-bound to revere the memory of a loved one whose presence we miss so much. Mayhap it's a son, a father or a grandfather who sadly laid his life on the altar of unselfishness and sacrifice that this great nation of ours might live in Peace and Security. And, mayhap, it's a sister or a mother whose smiling face was a joy to us in days gone by.

We owe them all a silent tribute on Memorial day—the beautiful tribute of God's own FLOWERS which so eloquently bespeak our innermost sentiments.

Trees in Constant

Fight for Existence

The highest known battle ground where the trees make their fight for life against the elements is on Mount Orizaba in Mexico. There, a living tree has been found 14,000 feet above sea level.

The charge of the tree troops goes on in every part of the world, but the most dramatic battle grounds are in the Arctic, the Alps, from western China to eastern France, and the Rocky mountains where they make their fiercest stand two miles above sea level.

Holding on to life is a problem which each tree must solve for itself. A tree in the front line often looks like a mingled bush with no limbs on its stormward side where sand and flying particles in the wind have ground away the bark, while on the lee side are a few little branches.

Desires wind and snow. The trees have to fight against the difficulty of finding water. They send roots into every crack and crevice within reach. Some of those no higher than a man's waist have been found to be 500 years old.

Among the trees which reach the front line in the Rockies, the conifers are the lumber pine and the Engelmann spruce. Others include the white bark pine, the quaking aspen and the Alpine and foxtail fir. In the Far North the timber line comes down to the shores of the sea. The tree line on Mount Rainier is 5,000 feet and in Colorado 10,000 to 12,000 feet.—St. Nicholas Magazine.

Christmas Cards

The earliest example of the art of making Christmas cards is attributed to J. C. Horsley, B. A., who in 1840 made designs of this character. Subsequently the demand for these tokens became enormous, and at present Christmas cards are often of much artistic merit in both design and coloring.

Ideal to Be Sought

We have committed the Golden Rule to memory; let us now commit it to life. We have preached brotherhood for centuries; we now need to find a material basis for brotherhood. Government must be made the organ of fraternity—a working-form for comradeship. Think on this—work for this.—Edwin Markham.

NORTHFIELD FARMERS OBJECT TO CORN BORDER ORDER

Questioning the validity of a certain part of the state law providing for control of the European corn borer and declaring that the rights of citizens and taxpayers in Northfield township are being threatened, 10 residents of that community, headed by George Gorlach, chairman of the board of supervisors on Monday filed a bill in Washtenaw circuit court seeking to restrain officials of the state department of agriculture from enforcing certain quarantine regulations.

The plaintiffs claim that there is no infection in the township that cannot be cured as well after they have had an opportunity to harvest the crops and that it is too late in the season to accomplish the purposes intended to be accomplished by the act, or orders made under its provisions. They do not, the bill asserts, resist quarantine of the corn borer but do violate their property rights.

The bill is the first of its nature in Washtenaw county since the placing of the quarantine regulations on the corn borer in this community.—Daily News.
