Spearing Season Will Open On October 1

The three-month season for spearing ciscoes, whitefish and carp in certain designated inland waters of Michigan opens Thursday, Oct. 1.

Ciscoes or herring are found near the surface in shoal waters of inland lakes in the late fall months when the best cisco spearing usually is experienced. At that time the species approaches its spawning season any may be taken easily with a spear. The flesh is of fine quality and good catches are made under favorable conditions.

To spear either ciscoes, whitefish or carp during the coming open season for that type of fishing it is necessary to have a permit costing $1. The permit can be obtained from a conservation officer or directly from the department of conservation at Lansing.

State law permits the use of artificial light with the spear when used in taking ciscoes, whitefish and carp in season and on the waters open for the purpose.

Spearing of the fish mentioned is not legal in all inland waters, but only in certain lakes and streams designated open for the purpose by the director of conservation and under regulations set up by the department of conservation. Lakes and streams designated by the director in 31 counties, four of which are in the upper peninsula, are open to spearing for ciscoes, whitefish and carp this fall.

Permits are issued by conservation officers only in counties which have waters open for cisco spearing and will go only to individuals whom the officers feel will not abuse the privilege of using the spear with artificial light.

Conservation officers in each of the following counties have a list of the waters in their areas which have been designated open to spearing for these fish:

Alcona, Alpena, Allegan, Antrim, Barry, Benzie, Branch, Cass, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Chippewa, Emmet, Gogebic, Grand Traverse, Hillsdale, Iron, Isabella, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lenawee, Livingston, Mackinac, Macomb, Monroe, Newaygo, Oakland, Presque Isle, Roscommon, St. Joseph and Washtenaw.

ATTEND CONVENTION

About thirty-five members of the local Knights of Pythias Lodge and a number of Pythian Sisters were in Jackson on Wednesday evening to attend the annual Grand Lodge conventions of their respective lodges. Work in the Rank of Page was conferred by the Supreme Officers on Wednesday evening, with ten candidates from the Chelsea K. of P. Lodge. D. A. Riker was delegate from the local lodge, and O. D. Luick, a member of the finance committee of the Grand Lodge attended a meeting of that committee Wednesday morning.

SUPERVISORS WILL MEET

The annual meeting of the county board of supervisors will open Monday, October 12, continuing for two weeks. Reports will be received from the various county officers and a budget adopted for the coming year. Welfare financing is likely to be discussed at these meetings.

Grant Is Approved for Construction of Local Sewage Plant

Word was received by village officials on Monday to the effect that a PWA grant of $27,000.00 to be used in the construction of a sewage disposal plant here had been approved by the federal government.

This information came from I. D. Brent of Detroit, State Director for the Administrator, Federal Emergency Administration, in a telegram to James Munro, village clerk. The telegram follows:

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 21, 1936.

James Munro, Village Clerk, Chelsea, Mich.: This Administration has allotted, subject to approval of the Comptroller General, to Village of Chelsea docket Michigan 1107 RA grant of twenty-seven thousand dollars for construction of a disposal plant, subject to the terms and conditions of formal government offer and letter enclosing same to follow.

I. D. Brent, State Director Michigan for the Administrator Federal Emergency Adm.

When the letter mentioned in the telegram is received, which will no doubt give instructions to the village, it is expected that the procedure will be to advertise for bids on the general obligation bonds of the village to cover their share of the construction cost of the disposal plant, which portion is estimated at $29,700.00. It will then be necessary to advertise for construction bids, and it is estimated that two or three months' time will be required to complete all details leading to the starting of actual construction work on the project.

The request for the federal grant was sent to Washington more than a year ago and the proposition was approved by the Federal Emergency Administration early in July. A special election was held on July 27 when the voters of the village approved the issuance of bonds to the amount of $29,700.00 for the portion of the cost to be paid by the village.

George Champe and Associates of Toledo, Ohio have been retained by the village as engineers for the project, and proposed plans for the plant are on file in the office of the village clerk.

Several acres of land located east of McKinley street along Mill Creek have been optioned of Martin Merkel by the village for the site of the disposal plant.

Pure Bred Rams To Be Sold at Fair Grounds

Members of the Michigan Sheep Breeders Association are cooperating with the Extension Division of Michigan State College in promoting the use of pure bred rams this fall on farm flocks. Through the cooperation of these agencies a truck load of rams, consisting of prominent Michigan breeds, and consigned by Michigan breeders, are being offered for sale and demonstration purposes in the different counties of the state.

This truck load of rams, says H. S. Osler, county agricultural agent, will be at the Washtenaw county fair grounds, Ann Arbor, next Thursday, October 1, at 1:30 p. m. A similar meeting will be held at Jackson county fair grounds on Thursday morning. Mr. LaVol, sheep specialist from the college, has charge of this project and will accompany the truck.

The rams are outstanding individuals, representing the different breeds and are for sale to farmers interested in purchasing a ram this fall. They will also be used for demonstration and discussion on selecting rams for their flocks. Farmers having pure bred rams for sale or exchange may bring them to the fair grounds on Thursday afternoon.

During the afternoon, Mr. LaVol will discuss and demonstrate some of the timely flock practices followed by the best sheep breeders in the state. Any farmer interested in improving his flock of sheep, either by the purchase or exchange of rams, or in obtaining timely information regarding the best flock practices, are urged to attend this meeting at the Washtenaw county fair grounds, Thursday afternoon at 1:30.

WAYNE—Citizens of the town who are accustomed to gaze skyward on occasion, especially Tuesday morning, were flabbergasted to see a strange flag flying from the topmost tip of the water tower beside the village hall. It was a deep scarlet in hue and that, as everyone knows, is the symbol of Communism. Floyd Reiser was one of those who happened to be up and about early Tuesday morning and who also happened to lift his eyes heavenward at that time. He lost no time in ascertaining from Mr. Goudy, D. P. W. superintendent, whether or not the Communists had taken over the town. Assured that they had not, he wanted to know, as any curious citizen would, the meaning of the red flag flying from the water tower. Goudy lost no time in having the flag removed from its high perch and opened an investigation to find who had the effrontery to put it there. So far he has been unable to find a single clue as to the culprit. Close scrutiny disclosed that the flag staff was but a dead limb from a tree while the flag itself was a fold of blood-red tissue paper, the kind that some people wrap Christmas presents in.—County Review.

MANCHESTER—John Miller, 94 years old, Manchester's oldest resident, and one of the two remaining Civil War veterans, died on Friday.—Enterprise.

PLYMOUTH—With the completion of the grade separation at Ann Arbor trail and Canton Center road, the former highway was opened Tuesday to through traffic on US-12. The road had been closed since March when work on the grade separation was started, and all automobiles and trucks traveling from Detroit to Ann Arbor, or vice versa, had been detoured through Plymouth on the Plymouth road. Now that it is open once more, traffic on Main street is expected to be considerably less.—Mail.

TECUMSEH—One of the most severe electrical storms in Tecumseh's history swept this trading area about 1:20 Monday morning and continued for two hours. The storm moved south and eastward and at Erie and Toledo, Ohio it spent its fury, but only after thousands of dollars in damage had been done by lightning, fire and water. The Michigan Associated Telephone Company estimated that 35 telephones were burned out during the storm and the Citizens Light & Power Company reported considerable damage.—Herald.

SALINE—Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sugden moved on Saturday to Adrian, where he is employed. On Monday evening he attended a special meeting of the city council, at which he presented his resignation as mayor, an office which he has filled very satisfactorily for a number of years.—Observer.

MASON—C. L. Sowers bought "a pig in a poke." However, he has no complaint. Last January when the roads were packed with drifts of snow and the mercury was far below zero, Orla Sowers, clerk in the Lansing postoffice, purchased a shipment of White Rock chicks. Orla Sowers took the chicks to the farm of his father, C. L. Sowers, who bled them through the winter. The chicks developed into fancy birds. Mr. Sowers took several prizes at the Ingham fair and then sent a pen to the state fair in Detroit. The orphan chicks won second prize in Detroit against entries from Michigan, Ohio and Pennsylvania.—County News.

Clean Fresh Air Aids Dairy Cows and Hens

Dairy cows and laying pullets and hens are neither fresh air "fiends" nor warm corner spongers in winter time, in the opinion of C. H. Jefferson, research assistant in agricultural engineering at Michigan State College.

He finds, however, that in the approach of winter weather, dairymen and poultrymen can find usually a more profitable combination of ventilation, insulation and maintenance of comfortable temperatures in barns and poultry houses. In the dairy barn, for instance, a temperature ranging around 45 degrees is indicated as a desirable one, to maintain without excessive use of insulation or lack of ventilation.

Where insulation is too costly, he recommends some sacrifice of fresh air, as a uniform temperature is considered more desirable than an abundant supply of fresh air in the dairy barn. Even in poultry coops in winter he suggests a damper in the outlet flue to combat excessively cold weather.

Most important to watch in winter time is the frost and damp air which are considered favorable to poor production and disease when walls, floors and litter become damp. Moisture rots the building and rusts the equipment. Closed buildings retain heat better, but cause moisture condensation.

In the poultry house, two intake flues between the windows in a 20x20 foot house permit fresh air to enter, rise between the studs and come out near the ceiling. Rear intake flues admit air near the ground floor with an adjustable opening just in front of the roosts. Plans for ventilation construction may be obtained from county agricultural agents or from the agricultural engineering department at the college.

Predicts Buying of Thousands of Horses

More than $1,000,000 will go out of Michigan during the coming year for the purchase of more than ten thousand horses largely for replacement purposes because horses are dying faster than they are being raised in the state, according to R. S. Hudson, horseman at Michigan State College.

Important factors which have operated during the present season to reduce the horse population of Michigan have been the abnormal weather conditions, the prevalence of distemper and heavy mortality in foals, says Hudson.

Even though there is a reasonable increase in colts foaled during the coming year, Hudson anticipates that it will be three to five years before Michigan may not have to import so heavily. The estimated average age of work stock in the state is ten years. Horsemen consider an animal's peak of value is from the sixth to eighth year.

"Every farmer need not go into the business of raising colts for sale," explains Hudson. "But the average farmer can well afford to raise colts for the replacement of his own supply. Raising horses on a large scale requires a combination of technical ability, equipment, and pastures as well as an aptitude for the business."

"A good brood mare should be regarded not only as a power unit but as a good cash crop producer replenishing the farm power needs and also a source of extra cash. It is fortunate under prevailing conditions that medium priced tractors are available to supplement the scarcity of horse power."

An important factor in the improvement of Michigan's position as a horse producing state lies in need for more equal distribution of good stallions, says Hudson. In various sections of the state, it is exceedingly difficult to find good stock. The present supply of stallions is inadequate to meet the demands made upon them in these sections.

The type of horse most desired by the Michigan farmer weighs from 1400 to 1600 pounds, is sixteen hands high, with short back and deep middle, stands on well built clean limbs and has feet which wear well at farm work without being shod. Even tempered, quick and active with ability to stand heat are other qualifications.

Twice Gave Up His Sword

When Lord Cornwallis surrendered Yorktown, ending the Revolutionary war, the general himself pleaded illness and had his second-in-command, Brigadier General O'Hara, lend out the garland and yield his sword. This General O'Hara, unique in British annals, 12 years later, commanding the British defending Toulon, had, again, to give up his sword, this time to a colonel named Napoleon Bonaparte.

Monasteries in Armenia

Monasteries as large as entire cities abound in Armenia. At Gerant, four churches have been hollowed out of the cliff. There are also cave-dwellings, passages, secret paths and holes evidently made as refuges. Going from Delishan to Akstafa, to the right and left are the ancient monasteries of Agartsi and Goshavank.

Five Wars Began in Spring

Five of America's big wars began in the pleasant spring month of April.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Will you kindly tell me who was the author of "The Descent of the Human Race"?

Ans.—We never heard of a book, pamphlet or other writings under that title. The nearest we can find to it, however, is that Charles Darwin is the author of "The Descent of Man." Probably that is what you mean.

Ques.—Did the United States and Canada ever have a free trade agreement?

Ans.—Yes. Between 1854 and 1896 free trade existed between the United States and Canada.

Ques.—Who holds the world's record for a one-mile speed on a bicycle? Also was it made in competition?

Ans.—Charles M. Murphy holds the speed record for a mile on a bicycle. He did the mile in fifty-seven and three-quarters seconds on June 30, 1896. It was not by a locomotive. This record has never been broken or equaled by anybody riding a bicycle.

Ques.—Did any President, besides Franklin D. Roosevelt, veto the soldiers' bonus? If so, what was the political complexion of the Congress that passed the bill?

Ans.—Yes. Harding, Coolidge and Hoover vetoed the soldiers' bonus bill. In each case the veto was sustained by Republican congresses. President Roosevelt vetoed the bill, but the veto was overridden by a Democratic Congress.

Ques.—Can you tell me if the elephants we see with circuses are native to Asia or Africa?

Ans.—All elephants found with circuses are native to India in Asia. The Asiatic elephants have a higher order of intelligence and are more easily trained than African elephants, and they are not so vicious. This is the reason trainers in circuses select the Asiatics.

Ques.—What material is used for polishing diamonds?

Ans.—Diamonds are polished with diamond dust, which is the product obtained from cutting diamonds or diamonds of little value being crushed.

Ques.—Is it true that the Bible prohibits the trimming of beards?

Ans.—In Leviticus 19:27 the Bible says in part: "Neither shalt thou make the corners of thy beard." All Bible students are not agreed on the interpretation. Hence an answer would be just an opinion.

Ques.—Where is Hollywood located in the State of California?

Ans.—Hollywood is part of Los Angeles, situated in the northwest section of the city.

Ques.—What has become of Father Coughlin? I don't hear him on the air any more.

Ans.—Father Coughlin's contract for 26 speeches was completed last April. His next regular contract for speeches each Sunday over the radio will begin the first Sunday in October.

Ques.—Can you inform me, if you please, why plants need water?

Ans.—As the body of a living plant is mostly water, the same as other living things are, water is being evaporated all the time from the stocks, stems and leaves. New water to replace this evaporation has to be absorbed out of the soil by the root hairs. That's why plants need water.

Ques.—How many eggs does a pigeon cover when it begins the hatching process?

Ans.—Pigeons usually lay two eggs to one setting. About 90 per cent of the settings one egg is female and the other is male.

Ques.—Is the Irish potato so named because it is a native of Ireland?

Ans.—No. The Irish potato is a native of South America. When it was taken to Ireland it was found that the climate and soil was highly suitable for its propagation. Hence the name "Irish potato."

Spider Called Biggest Eater

The spider is the world's biggest eater, according to entomologists in South Germany who have been investigating. Munich reports they discovered that it eats four times its own weight for breakfast, nine times its weight for luncheon, and 13 times its weight for dinner. To equal this ration the average man would have to devour about one and one-half tons of food every 24 hours, the scientists declare.

Only Pure White Cockatoo

The Umbrella cockatoo, sometimes referred to as the Great White-Crested cockatoo, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times, is the only pure white cockatoo existing. Faint lemon markings are found on the under part of the tail and wings. Found on Halmahera Island, one of the small group of Dutch East Indies lying close to the equator, they are from the same genus as the salmon-colored Moluccans.

First Stomach Operation

The earliest stomach operation on record was successfully performed on a Seventeenth century laborer in Prussia, to extract a dagger the unfortunate man had swallowed.

MY AUTUMN FLOWER

O Marigold, my Autumn Flower, That typifies my life so true, I too can see life's autumn hour, I too the autumn sunset view, Through many a drouth and scorching sun, We've sorrowed sometimes to despair For fear that winter's chill and dirth Would find us without leaf or flower. But Angel eyes were watching well Each petal as it slowly opened, While Angel hands and Angel hearts Watered each night with Heavenly dew.

We sorrowed many times that soil Were not a richer, mellow loam, But somehow, tho' we may not know, We find our petals all in bloom. Though on no arbor trellis fine Has been your lot to live and grow, Beside a path where children play, And lowly people come and go, You've done your bit to cheer the heart.

Of weary, toiling, passersby, I prize you, little golden flower, Just now a love tear dims my eye— And when I reach that Heavenly clime Where flowers grow, both rich and rare, I'll look for you in golden bloom— My Marigold, my Autumn Flower.

—Arthur Carlton.

House, Field Mice Differ

House mice which are found in houses and hotels are more common than the same species found in fields in the sense that they present more variations in color, length of tail, size of skull, odor and standardization, according to an authority. Field mice, on the other hand, have a cleaner appearance, their odor is sweeter and more pungent, their skulls appear more blunt, and the specimens smaller, with shorter tails. The difference in color is due to the vegetable matter field mice eat—as compared with meat, cheese and odds and ends the house specimens live on.

Derelicts of the Sea

Derelicts of the sea often drift enormous distances and are a constant menace to shipping, says the Hartford Courant. It has been estimated that the hulks of 20 abandoned vessels are constantly drifting about the North Atlantic. Most are "timber" vessels, but they are large enough to damage and sometimes sink any ship that strikes them at full speed. The average life of a ship that has been disabled and abandoned by her crew is 30 days, but some derelicts float for months.

Chelsea Defeats Clinton In Gridiron Battle

The Chelsea eleven repeated their victory over Clinton this year by winning Friday, 13-0, but found their opponents a mite tougher than in their 20-0 victory last year. Clinton surpassed Chelsea in punting, averaging 31 yards in 6 boots.

At the kickoff Chelsea began a drive down the field, which finally ended in a touchdown, the ball carried by Prudden, left half. The second touchdown was made by Spaulding in the second quarter. The point after the touchdown was made by Tish, who place-kicked the ball. The punting was almost entirely done by Bahnmiller who lifted off three good punts.

During the second half, however, Clinton tightened her defense and no scoring was done by Chelsea. Both teams played a clean game and the Chelsea squad was supported by the entire student body and a host of local fans.

Two intercepted passes by Prinzing and Schneider were highlights in the game.

The squad wishes to thank their loyal supporters. It helps a lot. Next week the squad journeys to Belleville. The squad hopes that a large group of Chelsea fans will turn out and support their team.

Resolutions

I will give some of my 8,760 hours during the year to good reading.
I will meet every book with an open mind.
I will not read the last page first.
I will hate the villain and love the heroine.
I will renew friendships with odd books.
I will try to be patient when the author draws a moral.
I will come to a sad ending with a dry eye—or I will try.
I will not finish a stupid book simply because I have started to read it.
I will refuse to pay any attention to strange noises and cracking sounds when I read a detective story after twelve o'clock.
I will try not to use violence when anyone tells me how a story ends.
I will be wary of those books which are written to be very funny.
I will never get too old to enjoy stories for children.
I will always believe in fairies whether they are true or not.
I will read in bed and prove to the doctor that it doesn't matter.
I will not skip description for conversation.
I will remember that authors of books are merely men and women and not gods.
I will not irritate my friends by reading aloud to them.
I will not forget sometimes to read the Bible.
I will use good books as food for the mind.
I will try not to be provoked by a mere author's power over me.
I will reflect on the power of new ideas and of their source in books.
I will read a helpful practical book as often as every other week.
I will lead myself as fast as possible away from trash—Readers' Ink Indianapolis Library Service, v. 3, No. 4, December, 1924.

Two Better Than One

Because of the absence of our last year's cheer leader, we were sorely in need of another.
The pep meeting at eleven-thirty brought forth three candidates: Donald Cook, Eleanor Slane, and last but not least, Gene Roebach and Merle Barr, acting as a team. After each had demonstrated his ability, all were voted upon by the entire student body. The Roebach-Barr team won by a large majority.

Editorial

Of course everyone knows school started this year with a large number of pupils present. This ought to make our school spirit better than it has ever been before. It is the students who make the school spirit. How? By attending the activities which are given and cooperating with the teachers. These are a few of the things which will make good school spirit. There are also many more. Everyone ought to be able to attend our activities this year because everyone has an activity ticket which will admit you to activities without further charges. I am sure you will find that you'll like your school and classes and will enjoy your school much more with school spirit than you did without. Because after all that is part of your school life.

So let us all cooperate and make our school spirit better than it has ever been before.

Elementary News

First Grade

We have 31 children in our room. There are 19 boys and 12 girls. We have been very busy reading stories—we have made up. The stories are about Pal—the black and white dog that came in to visit us one afternoon, the first day of school, a walk to see the traffic lights work, and a carrot which Earl Buku brought to school. We are making a vegetable book too.

We went for a walk to the Public Library. We saw many interesting things there. Some of us brought orange crates to school. We are making furniture for a library corner in our room. We plan to build many things with orange crates this year. Our furniture will be stuffed and covered with cretonne.

Clare Knickerbocker brought us a frog that has a tail. We feed him every day. His tail is growing short. We also have two crickets. It is fun to watch them eat pulpy fruit. We shall learn many things about the frog and the cricket.

Did you know that a baby kangaroo is only one inch long? We learned many interesting things about a kangaroo in a story Miss Bollore read to us last week.

Second Grade

Sweet chestnut pods are being collected. They have such prickles that we have to be careful.

We have our new number books. They are so fine and we are working hard on them.

Paul G. loaned to us three books which tell about "Boats". We have been making pictures of them. Jack Winans and Alice Cushman have theirs up on the board.

Ray Knickerbocker was sick and out of school on Friday. We missed him.

Frances Hale brought us a cocoon. We are in hopes to see a butterfly come from it some day.

Many lovely leaves are being collected. The prettiest ones we are going to use to make a border for our room.

The little papers, "My Weekly Readers", came this week. They are very nice and part of them we are going to put in our scrap book.

Betty Ruth Platt gave us a beautiful bouquet of water lilies. Some of the children had never seen a lily so close up and they found it especially beautiful.

Dale Collins came Tuesday morning with three bumble bees for us to watch. They are very busy.

Third Grade

We made a book chart. The name of it is "Books I Have Read." There is an envelope for each one of us posted on the chart. On each envelope is printed a name. When we have finished reading a library book we write the name of it on a slip of paper and put it in our envelopes. On Friday each week we have read about the books we have read.

We are learning to read the Roman numerals on the clock. Most of us can tell time on a clock that has Roman numerals on it.

Edwin Lantis brought the first cocoon for our cocoon cage.

Barbara Eaton, Edward Koch, Doris Nogy, Myra Townsend and June Vail are our perfect spellers.

Fourth Grade

Last Tuesday we became quite excited when a humming bird flew into our room. Our language work was forgotten for the time, and we learned a little about this tiny bird. Mr. Wallis cleverly made a net with which he caught our little guest.

Our sand table project showing a scene along the Congo River has been started. We have several models of airplanes and boats that the children brought. Marjorie Gilson brought a rug made of a leopard skin. It came directly from Africa. She also brought a diamond which has been used in cutting here in the Screw factory.

Many boys and girls brought costumes for the Amateur Hour this afternoon. Nancy Every and Ruth Ann Schenk were appointed as chairmen. We are anxiously waiting for the next Amateur Hour.

Fifth Grade

The Girls' and Boys' Council held their election of officers for the first semester on Thursday. The voting was by ballot and Mary Christwell was chairman of the meeting. The results of the election were as follows:

President—Robert Eaton.
Vice-President—Mary Woods.
Secretary—Eather Riemenachneider.
Treasurer—Elaine Schmidt.
Adviser—Mrs. Steiner.

The object of the Council is to give each girl and boy an opportunity to discuss and help decide problems concerning citizenship; also room and playground difficulties which may arise from time to time.

In Current Events we have been discussing the different qualities of the candidates for President. By November 8 we hope to be prepared to vote intelligently in our room where we will have a voting booth erected.

Our Weekly Readers are furnishing us much valuable information concerning this election.

Our new history text books are wonderful. They belong to the series of histories known as "The Westward March of Man".

Our new health books belong to the "Health and Happiness Series," and they are very fine and up-to-date also.

Eleanor Harper, Joyce Foster, Mary Christwell, Dorothy Knickerbocker and Ruth Slane constructed a map of the Roman World which we have used this week in History class. The work was very well done. We understand the early Roman World better now.

Our Amateur Hour for Friday's Music Period is in charge of Eleanor Harper and Eather Riemenachneider. Many girls and boys have already qualified to "go on the air."

Sixth Grade

Miss Boomgaard let the sixth grade have an Amateur program Thursday afternoon. Helen G. was chairman. We enjoyed it very much. We had a very good dance by Dorothy B. and Donna Mae M. Other people who took part in it were Jeanette M., Helen G., Delores S., Rowena F., Doris P., Wilma S., Betty R., Caroline B., Edith Mc., Margaret K., Donald K., Clayton M., Earl H., Gormely H., Russell S., Daniel S. and K. R. P. Evidently no one got the gong.

Donald K. brought a bouquet of flowers and Pearl A. brought a plant. Thank you.

We have been studying the zones and their boundary lines.

We have a collection of larvae (worms). There are tomato worms, carrot worms, a rose worm and other larvae. We have one larvae that has already spun his cocoon. It belongs to Jeanette May.

Mutiny Grave Crime and

Penalty Is Sure Death
Mutiny is the only crime the inevitable penalty of which is death. A murderer may get a reprieve, but the mutineer, once proved guilty, pays the ultimate penalty. There is no count of appeal, no recommendation to mercy, asserts a writer in Pearson's Weekly.

For years, both in the army and navy, mutiny has been held as the worst possible crime. Dice have been the punishments in the past. In the navy, hanging at the yard-arm was the most usual form of dealing with the mutineer, and as many as thirty men have been so dealt with on one ship.

Hanging at the yard-arm has long been abolished, but even today mutiny is the only offense for which a sailor or soldier can be sentenced to death during peace time. In local terms, mutiny is "collective insubordination."

It is an offense for which the culprit may be tried as long as three years after the commission of the crime.

Even people remotely connected with mutiny are liable to the death sentence. For instance, if a sailor is present at a mutiny and does not endeavor to suppress it, or if he fails to inform a superior officer of a plot to mutiny, he may be sentenced to death. So strict and severe is the law on mutiny, that the combination of only two pedants to resist authority is regarded as mutiny.

Deer Hunters Must Guard Tags Carefully

The attitude of the department of conservation toward deer hunters who lose their identification tags while in the woods this fall is going to be "stiff-bitted." H. R. Sayre, chief of field administration, said that problems will arise from the new license-tag regulations which will necessarily require strict interpretation and application of the law.

"The hunter who loses his tag will be one of these problems," Sayre stated. "No doubt there will be many of them, unless the tag is securely sewed on so that brush can't take it off. But many hunters will want to change garments; they won't be sewing the tags on the backs of their coats."

"When the license tag is lost in the woods, there is only one thing the hunter can do to avoid embarrassment and that is to unload his rifle and quit hunting until a new tag can be obtained. He will be able to get a new tag from the nearest license agent for a fee of 50 cents by surrendering his old deer license and antler tag for new ones. It will not be legal for a hunter to improvise a new tag, even though he uses the correct numbers."

"The conservation officer who finds a hunter in the woods without a tag cannot know whether the tag has been removed purposely or accidentally; he is not supposed to know. He is obliged to make an arrest."

Ohio Farmer's Pig Show

Love for Old Homestead
When David Brownlee in the first decade of the last century moved from his farm near Washington City, Pa., to Trumbull county, Ohio, he, of course, brought with him his herd of swine—six pigs, about that many months old. As the pigs took up their life of eating and wallowing just where they had left off in their old quarters, no one ever thought that the animals were harboring any secret longing for the old mud puddles back in Pennsylvania.

But one day when Brownlee went out to the sty, the six pigs were gone. A search of the immediate vicinity and later a more thorough search through the surrounding countryside failed to reveal any trace of the pigs.

A month or two later Brownlee returned to his former farm near Washington City, Pa., to harvest some wheat he had left growing there, and upon arriving saw not only the six pigs but seven or eight younger ones that had been born in the meantime. The swine of their own volition had apparently made up their minds suddenly to go back to their old home.

After finishing his harvesting of the wheat, Brownlee started the twelve pigs on a trek to his farm in Trumbull county, the older porkers leading the way as though they knew it by heart.

Upon arriving this time the pigs settled down permanently. Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Dog Paddle Was Called

The First Swim Stroke
The dog paddle, such as children adopt when left to themselves to learn to swim, was probably the first swimming stroke, says J. W. McVicar, director of physical activities at the Central Y. M. C. A. in Toronto, Can., in the Research Quarterly. Next in the evolution of swimming, he says, came the breast stroke, in imitation of the frog.

So popular was this stroke that in 1863 in London a machine was invented upon which a person could spread himself in the breast-swimming position, placing his hands and feet into loops mechanically arranged on plates so that when the swimmer moved his hands and feet they were guided into the proper movements.

Until the latter part of the Nineteenth century the breast stroke prevailed as the racing stroke. Then the side stroke was adopted for races, followed by the overarm stroke. The trudgen, first cousin to the crawl, came next. This stroke was named after John Trudgen, who learned it on a trip to South America.

American Agriculture Old

American agriculture is far older than that of Europe. As this involves corn culture, one might quote O. F. Cook, United States Department of Agriculture, writing in the Journal of Heredity—"History shows that the system of agriculture was indigenous in America, since American plants were used, and all sorts of indications of the great antiquity of agriculture in America. Such evidence comes from comparing the cultivated species of plants with their nearest wild relatives. Such comparisons in America show many cases of wide divergence, so wide, in fact, that it has not been possible to identify with certainty the wild type of several of the most important species, as corn, tobacco, beans, peanuts, potatoes and tomatoes."

Audible Voices of the Past

In books lies the soul of the whole past time; the articulate audible voices of the past, when the body and the material substance of it has altogether vanished like a dream.

All that mankind has done, thought, gained, or been—it is lying, as in magic preservation in the pages of books.

Find Pieces of Eight

Pieces of eight are found from time to time on the sands of Grand Isle, La., where the Latites had their pirate headquarters.

Royal Palace of Whitehall

Until the Eighteenth century the royal palace of Whitehall occupied most of the land between Charing Cross and Westminster, London. It was known as York place when Cardinal Wolsey owned it, and it was not until it passed into the hands of Henry VIII that it became known as Whitehall. Wolsey fell from his eminence in 1529 and Henry seized his property and converted it into a palace. For more than 150 years after that it was the chief residence of the court of London. King Henry married Anne Boleyn there in 1533. In later years Queen Elizabeth maintained the grandeur established by her father. Charles I was executed in front of the palace in 1649. Charles II made it the scene of revelry and intrigue. James II fled from it in 1688. The only part saved from the fire of 1805 was the banqueting hall, which is now the museum of the United Service Institution. After the destruction the court moved to St. James' palace.

College of Colonial Times

The colleges established in Colonial times were primarily for the training of the clergy. In New England the Puritans founded Harvard in 1636 and Yale in 1701. In New York, King's college (now Columbia) was founded by the Church of England in 1754. The College of New Jersey (1746), which later developed into Princeton university, was a Presbyterian institution. At Williamsburg, Va., the College of William and Mary (1693), the second college to be established in the English colonies, represented the Church of England.

American Corn

To Americans corn means but one thing, Indian maize or its improved counterpart, which is native to this country. This is quite different from the meaning of corn in ancient Rome which, according to several Bible passages, referred variously to wheat, barley and other grains. Even today, says Pathefinder Magazine, corn in Scotland usually means oats, and what Americans would refer to as a rye field would be termed corn field in most of northern Europe. Likewise, many Englishmen speak of a head of wheat as an ear of corn.

The Merchant Flag

A merchant flag denotes the flag of a country ordinarily used by merchant vessels as opposed to the standard flown by vessels of war. In some countries the two are the same, though in some cases the man-of-war has the national coat of arms displayed in the center or on the union of the flag.

One-Second Start To Be Announced In S. O. Ads

Chicago—Space in newspapers having a combined circulation of more than 12,500,000 will be used by Standard Oil Company of Indiana in its fall campaign to promote the interests of some 23,000 dealers who are operating service stations and garages in 13 north-central states.

A feature of the campaign will be the announcement of a forward step in the company's work to improve its gasoline. Ads will tell how the starting time of an engine has been reduced to one second or less, even in bitter winter weather.

The company will also announce the winners of the road test it conducted through the summer months, with participation by more than a million motorists acting as "test car drivers." It is estimated that the participants covered more than 20,000,000 miles to ascertain how driving costs can be reduced. Their findings are not likely to be known for several months, however, owing to the amount of work involved in tabulating and summarizing the thousands of reports turned in.

One phase of the campaign will be devoted to motor oil, which is soon to be available in cans, as well as in bottles.

Announcement is to be made also of a plan for Standard dealers to put cars in condition for winter driving as part of their service to customers.

VOGEL & WURSTER

Fashion in Shoes First

Started by Queen Anne

Queen Anne, England's lovely seventeenth century ruler, started the vogue for really beautiful shoes, declares a writer in the Washington Post. The shoemaker of her time was called a "cordwainer," a word which originated in the term "cordwainer," applied to early workers in cordovan leather. This "cordwainer" or shoe-maker, was the first to make shoes approximating those worn by smart women of the present. Although he was a highly skilled artisan, it is a well-known fact that Queen Anne's footwear was not comfortable.

The toes of these seventeenth century shoes were extremely pointed and extended beyond the foot, making it necessary to pad the points with wool to keep them in shape. Some had heels as high as 3 inches and their length was from 7 to 10 inches.

When a woman of that period wished to walk in the streets she donned a pair of "clogs" which fitted over her dainty shoes and protected them from wear and the elements. As the clogs had heavy, flat leather soles and were designed for utilitarian purposes only they were very ungainly looking objects.

Sky-blue satin with a chaste silver buckle as the medium of decoration was one "high fashion" note in the shoe world of the seventeenth century. Another was crimson velvet embroidered with gold. A third, white satin with a broad band of gold lace covering the foot from toe to instep, and the sides covered with narrow white silk braid neatly arranged in parallel lines, was one of the most elaborate shoes of the day. It was lined with a rich blue silk. Other materials employed by shoemakers of that time were moccasin, damask, silk and many exotic fabrics.

White Held Best Light

Reflector, Tests Show

In all lighting tests white is far ahead of other colors in reflecting value. According to scientific experiments white's reflecting power is between 82 and 85 per cent. Cream comes at 73 and 75 per cent while ivory comes next in the scale with a percentage of 62 to 80. Then comes light pink at around 60 per cent yellow at 57 per cent and flesh color at 51 per cent.

Buff and light gray also test at 51 per cent while light green and aluminum gray rate at 43 and 41 per cent, respectively. Lower in the scale come light blue and sage green with a percentage of 36.

Dark red reflects only 13 per cent of the light that strikes its surface.

while dark green and dark blue soak up all but 8 and 8 per cent of the light that hits them. Black, at the bottom of the list, is rated close to zero in its reflecting qualities.

Rough Pearls

The pearl may be of various shapes, the best being perfectly round, pear-shaped or drop-shaped or like buttons; others are irregular in shape and called baroque. The color also varies, the most being white, creamy or a delicate rose-pink; there are also the uncommon black pearls. The perfect pearl has a surface free from flaw and of a delicate color and orient, and is almost translucent. Round pearls are formed in the muscles or soft tissues and are not attached to the shell. The button pearls are flat where attached to the shell. Bilateral pearls form around a parasite which bores through the shell, while the irregular or baroque pearls form around an odd-shaped piece of stone or other substance.

Famous St. Mark's

According to the ancient laws of Venice, every merchant trading in the East was required to bring back material for decorating St. Mark's, and every successful general or admiral returning from an eastern campaign was expected to carry some offering for it. "Not one of the hundreds of columns and capitals within or without the church was originally built or constructed for St. Mark's," writes Arnold Lunn in "Venice." "Yet though the materials were brought together haphazardly, the building as a whole," he continues, "has acquired throughout the centuries a unity and personality of its own."

Respiratory Disease

While the early history of respiratory diseases remains confused on some points, there is some evidence that tuberculosis of the lung existed along with other forms of the disease. What must have been laryngeal diphtheria, says Hygiene, the Health Magazine, was described in 1570 as follows: "If the sore throat begins with smothering, great pain and fever, and the inflammation or swelling is not seen either inside or outside the throat, it is a sign that it will kill the patient on the first or second day."

Jewish Months

The names of Jewish months are: 1-Tishri, 2-Cheshvan, 3-Kislev, 4-Tebet, 5-Sabat, 6-Adar, 7-Adar Sheni, 7-Nisan, 8-Iyar, 9-Sivan, 10-Tammuz, 11-Av, 12-Elu. Adar Sheni is an extra month, occurring only in leap years.

The Faithful Crutches

MOST people know about the loyalty of dogs and other dumb animals that serve mankind, but they do not realize that inanimate things are frequently just as faithful. So says Herbert Sharples of Montreal, Que., who tells this touching story of the faithful crutches.

One day he saw a traveling doctor in the market place offering for sale a marvelous salve which, he claimed, would cure all ills. One of the first purchasers was a man whose legs were so shriveled and twisted that he had to use crutches to get along. One minute and eight seconds after he had rubbed some of the salve on his legs they were so straight and strong that he cast away his crutches and started to walk home without them.

The doctor, having no use for the salve left in the box by the man, and noticing that the crutches were very dingy from long use, began rubbing some of the ointment on them to see if it would brighten them up. At once the crutches began to dance and caper around him, stopping now and then to admire each other's bright, shiny appearance.

Suddenly they paused in their antics and the next moment they were trotting gaily down the street until they caught up with their former master. After that they walked sedately at his heels, ready to come to his assistance if need be, even though he had cast them off without a single thought.

Early Africa

Native Africans, before they were influenced by the immigration of or conquest by Arabs and Europeans, created strange kingdoms of their own, some purely negro. They wielded provinces, developed armies, laws, social and political systems. Under their sway flourished as indigenous arts the smelting of iron, the manufacture of iron implements, and the work in cast bronze and carved ivory for which Benin was famous. The Congo kingdom spread from the Zambesi river to the Kasai.

The Phrase "Touch Wood"

The phrase "Touch wood" is the symbol of a strong superstition. Various explanations, logical and otherwise, have been suggested, but the most likely one is that the phrase is a corruption of "ouch wood," the church roof being in a place of sanctuary where a poor hunted fellow was safe from his enemies. And seemingly it was during Cromwell's time that it became "ouch wood" instead of "ouch wood," the change itself doubtless being for safety in view of the religious feelings of Oliver and his followers.

"Corpus Delicti"

The phrase "corpus delicti" does not refer to the body, but to the essence of the crime, the facts necessary to its commission. In the case of a murder charge, this would include proof of the victim's death and of criminal agency as cause. The body might be burned or mutilated beyond recognition, but scraps of cloth, teeth, or belongings, might establish its identity.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

TAKE YOUR CAMERA ON VACATION TRIPS

Pictorial beauty and scenes of human interest may be captured almost anywhere by the vacationist who keeps his camera ready, as shown in these pictures taken on an automobile tour. The picture-taker stopped the car, instead of whizzing by.

AS EVERYBODY knows, one of the important pleasures of a vacation trip is talking about it afterwards. It is a rare person who has no desire to tell his friends what a "grand" time he had, of the places he visited, the beautiful scenery, the interesting people he met, and various entertaining experiences. If he is a good raconteur with the ability to make words pictures, his friends are likely to listen for quite a while, but, on the other hand, if he doesn't know how to tell his story interestingly, he may have to give in to bored "Yeah's," or a counter attack from his listener who, the chances are, has been on a vacation trip himself, and wants to tell his story.

However marvelous and interesting a trip is, and however well one is able to describe it, in the course of time the memory of it becomes dim, too vague to be inspiring any longer even to oneself. How much are you now able to tell about scenes, people and places on your first auto tour, say fifteen years ago?

There is only one sure way to keep these memories from fading and that is to take a camera with you on your trip and take pictures. With a camera, at least a half dozen rolls of film and a determination to take advantage of all picture-taking opportunities, you can create a picture-story of your trip that no words, written or spoken, can tell so vividly, and it will live. You always will enjoy looking at these pictures—and, as to telling the story to your friends—be sure they will always be ready to look when they won't listen!

Too often it happens that when starting on a vacation trip, he who has a camera neglects to take it along, or, if he does, too often fails to take advantage of picture opportunities. For example, it is easy, when one is rolling along the road in an automobile to let an interesting or beautiful scene go by without stopping the car.

Make up your mind before you start on a vacation tour, whether by automobile or otherwise, that you are going to bring back a picture record of the principal and most interesting things you see; and tell any traveling companions without a camera that when you see a good picture they must give you the chance to get it. Remind them that this is a pleasure trip, and, especially if you go by auto, that this business of whizzing by the scenery just to get to the next place in the quickest time is silly. Impress upon them that stopping to record an interesting picture will be worth incomparably more in permanent value than the few minutes gained at the end of a day's journey. Get the pictures as you go.

The Archimedes Principle
The loss of weight of a body submerged in a liquid is the weight of the displaced liquid. It is supposed that this principle was discovered by the Greek philosopher Archimedes (287-212 B. C.) who had been ordered by Hiero, king of Syracuse, to find whether a goldsmith had mixed silver with the gold used in making a crown. To do this without destroying the crown was a perplexing problem. But one day while Archimedes was at the public bath, he noticed that his body was buoyed up by the water in which it was submerged. Seeing in this the solution of his problem, he is said to have rushed home shouting, "Eureka!" (I have found it).

No one in the home could be missed more than Mrs. Cook will be. It was said of her "No one ever heard her say an unkind word or a bitter word."

"The angels time before the day And bore a radiant soul away; She's gone from us to meet her Lord And there receive her rich reward." (E. Leeman)

Gunpowder
Gunpowder used in the Middle Ages was made as now, except that the processes were not so refined, and the product cruder and weaker. Gunpowder is a mixture consisting of potassium nitrate, sulphur and charcoal. The origin of it is involved in considerable uncertainty, but it is believed to have been discovered in the ancient East. So far as Europe is concerned, Roger Bacon, the Thirteenth century alchemist and philosopher, is sometimes spoken of as its inventor. At any rate he set down the formula in this fashion in 1270: "Mix together saltpetre with sulphur, and you will make thunder and lightning. If you know the mode of mixing." The four seemingly meaningless words in the middle are simply a transposition of the letters of carbonum pulvere, or charcoal.
