Celebrate Golden Wedding

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM DAVIDSON

The fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Davidson was celebrated on Tuesday with a family dinner at their home on East Middle St. Yellow roses and chrysanthemums and a wedding cake surmounted by a miniature bride and groom featured the table decorations. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Pielemeier and family of State College, Pa., Mr. and Mrs. Roy Davidson and son of Sharon township, Mrs. Edith Randall of Brown City, Misses Clyde and Irene Clark of Ypsilanti, Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth Fletcher, daughter Florence, and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Fletcher of Mason, Mrs. Ida Hilton, daughter Minnie, Mrs. Arthusa Updike, Mrs. Myrtle Everett, Nelson and Alonzo Updike of Grass Lake, Edward Warren, Misses Mantle and Bertha Spaulding of Sylvan.

In the afternoon a reception was held from 3:30 to 5:30, and many friends called to extend congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Davidson are life-long residents of this community. Both were born in Sylvan township, the former in 1861 and the latter in 1863. Mr. Davidson is the son of the late Henry and Ophelia Davidson, while Mrs. Davidson's parents were Dennis and Elizabeth Spaulding.

Following their marriage December 20, 1886, they resided in Sylvan township until 1914, when they moved to Chelsea. Mr. Davidson is a deacon of the First Congregational church, of which both are members.

They have two children, Mrs. W. H. Pielemeier of State College, Pa., and Roy Davidson of Sharon, and four grandchildren.

Regular and Extra Dividends Paid By Local Bank Today

Letters being mailed today the Board of Directors of Chelsea State Bank inform their stockholders that they have had a very successful year and that the bank shows a satisfactory earnings statement.

A regular dividend of $3.00 and a special dividend of $2.00 per share is being disbursed at this time. In addition to being financially able to pay this generous dividend at this time, the remaining $25,000.00 preferred stock has been retired by the bank this year. This leaves the bank again solely owned by the common stockholders.

The local bank has made an enviable record during the years of the depression. Complete banking facilities have been available at all times with the exception of the state and national banking holidays, and depositors have lost no money. Deposits have been insured according to the regulations of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation since this insurance was put into effect.

Dividends were resumed by the bank on January 1st, 1936, when $3.00 per share was paid on the common stock.

The annual meeting of the stockholders when directors will be named, will be held on Tuesday, January 12, 1937.

PLAYS SANTA FOR QUADS

Dr. H. T. Lawson of Chelsea, who is employed in the state sales tax division at Lansing, was one of the four Santa Clauses who visited the Lansing home of the Morlok quadruplets, when it was learned that the six-year-old sisters could not keep their appointment with Santa at a downtown store, because Edna, one of the girls, was ill. When they heard of the predicament, the Santas lost no time in getting to the Morlok home. Each was presented with a curly-headed doll, an ironing board and other presents. The quadruplets are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Morlok of Lansing. At the time of their arrival, the outlook was dark, as the father, a laborer, had no employment, but he was later appointed constable at a salary of $200.00 per month.

The "Goodwill Court" was the first performance presented, with Dave Strieter as announcer and George Weiss and Rolly White as judges. It was followed by "Vox Pop", the inquiring reporter being Stuart Dingle. This was a large group of Juniors gathered for an evening of fun. We played games such as "bring home the bacon" and "three deep". Then refreshments were served and soon afterwards everyone started, supposedly, for their homes.

Editorial

Tact is the art of controlling a situation so that both parties concerned are satisfied and think they are having their own way. Teachers can use tact in dealing with different types of pupils. In some cases where the pupils have always had their own way, the teacher may use tact and the pupil will probably be satisfied.

Tact and personality, you will find, go hand in hand. Not very often do you find a person without personality using tact.

The next time you have a problem facing you—try using tact.

Did you ever think on a cold winter night, How it would be to stay homeless against the night, Your body filled with cold and covered with chills, As you tried to keep warm in a barn on those bleak hills.

The wind would be whirling snow against the fragile shell, While before its fury you'd shrink and quail, Your feet become cold, colder, then numb, Then you have to move around until they warm up some.

You can't build a fire to help keep warm, Even though your numbing body does you warm, You have no matches and little fuel to burn, And there is no way for you to turn.

You would pull your ragged overcoat tight, And again try to keep warm through the cold night, The small pile of hay keeps you from being too cold, Even though it is damp and patched with mold.

As you try to sleep you hear a lonely dog howling, Above the rushing winds comes deep growling, You wish you had a home in which to stay, And you know you will have one some day.

You never think of that little thing, Which a little pity to you should bring, As in a nice, warm home you can stay, And in it you are happy and gay.

—Charles Winans.

We have received a letter from Dr. M. Dr. Prince at Kellogg's Bird Sanctuary, north of Battle Creek, telling about Miss Canfield's two other hawks that are there. The red shouldered hawk in our room is getting much tamer than he was. Last week Miss Canfield could touch the hawk's foot and play with him. If one is patient, he will sometimes take a mouse out of your hand. The hawk likes field mice better than the house mice. Miss Canfield said we could keep the hawk longer if we could get more mice. At the Kellogg Sanctuary, where the other two hawks are, they said that we could leave our red shouldered hawk there over Christmas vacation for two weeks.

Miss Allen brought a dish of bulbs last Thursday night. She is letting us keep the bulbs in our room. Thank you, Miss Allen.

MOTHER

Mother wrote you a letter the other day. She read it to me, and I then wished I could write like her, but I cannot do like that. We all have a gift. We do not use our personality alike but, if we are controlled by the one who can and will use our personality for good, we shall be inspired to live and work untidly for one purpose—to love, and live out that purpose which is pleasing to our great and loving Saviour.

Would you live for Jesus, And be always pure and good? Would you walk with Him Along the narrow road? Would you have Him bear your burden, Carry all your load? Let Him have His way with you.

—Arthur Carlin.

Question And Answer Dept.

Ques.—Can you tell me whether shooting stars are the same as falling stars? Where do these stars go?

Ans.—Yes, they are the same. But they are not "stars". Instead, they are meteors which are thrown off stars in flight through space. They are not seen unless they happen to be picked up by the earth's gravity. Their swiftness through millions of miles of space causes them to burn up by friction. In few instances some of them reach the earth before they are burned up and are buried deep in the earth's surface.

Ques.—What is the meaning of the word "moron"?

Ans.—"Moron" is a comparatively new word which means feeble-minded; depraved; an adult having the mind of the average child.

Ques.—I take a keen interest in some of your replies about plant life. Now I wish to ask you if there are any plants and lower animals that live somewhat alike?

Ans.—Yes. There are a few, among which are the "flagellata" that live in ponds, rivers and the sea. They are green and can make their own food by using sunlight as plants do, and feeding by absorbing dissolved nutriment. While they look like plants they can crawl about as lower animals do.

Ques.—How do they work the electric signs made up of moving lights?

Ans.—The signs contain a great number of electric lamps, each one connected separately with a switch. These switches are mounted on a revolving cylinder like a barrel. This cylinder is turned by a motor. As it revolves, the switches open and close the sign light-up and go-out in succession so as to form whatever moving design you want.

Ques.—Why is the sky blue instead of green, red or some other color?

Ans.—Because of one of the physical laws of light, reflected light is of a bluish color. Just why it is blue is not known. All through the air there are many millions of tiny particles of matter. Some are specks of dust, some are water particles, and some are molecules of air itself. All of them are infinitely too small to see, but they reflect a little light, the density of which appears blue.

Ques.—What was the maiden name of the wife of President Franklin D. Roosevelt?

Ans.—The maiden name of the President's wife was Eleanor Roosevelt. She was the daughter of one of the brothers of Theodore Roosevelt.

Ques.—In what part of Spain is Barcelona located?

Ans.—Barcelona, Spain is 100 miles northeast of Madrid (the center of Spain), and is a seaport city on the Mediterranean Sea.

Ques.—Why can't a person skate on glass if it is as smooth or smoother than ice?

Ans.—It is not the smoothness of ice which makes it slippery so that you can skate on it; it is something quite different. Pressure melts ice a little, no matter how little that pressure is. This pressure makes a microscopic film of water underneath your skate. In reality you are sliding along on this water film. This cannot be done with glass, and therefore you cannot skate on it.

Ques.—Are there any elephants at large in the United States?

Ans.—We do not know. But the election has disclosed there are some in Vermont and Maine.

Ques.—How fast does the earth travel in its journey around the sun? Also how far does it travel in 24 hours?

Ans.—The speed of the earth in its course around the sun is eighteen and one-half miles per second. In 24 hours the earth travels 1,600,000 miles.

Ques.—Is it true that man can make lightning?

Ans.—Yes. With a powerful electric apparatus you can pile up enough electrons on a metal plate hung up in the air, so that presently you will get too many electrons on it and cause a spark (a miniature lightning flash) to jump from the plate to the ground.

OUR NEIGHBORS

DEXTER—R. G. Sortor returned to his home here last Saturday, December 19, after an absence of three years. Mr. Sortor was a victim of amnesia, and communication with him by his family was effected through the agency of the Proctor & Gamble Bureau of Missing Persons.—Leader.

BROOKLYN—Joe Blanchard of Sharon was a brief caller in Brooklyn on Tuesday. He says the Ford force of employees under his direction has lately been in Manchester laying a water main extension of about 1100 feet to the site of the water power there owned by Henry Ford.—Exponent.

MILAN—The first Goodfellow newspaper sale conducted last Saturday by the members of the Milan Rotary club and their helpers netted a very fine sum of money for the aid of the needy and distressed in the community. The sale was conducted for four hours, and in spite of the fact that Guy Miller, chairman of the sales, thought he had over estimated the number of papers needed, the newspaper salesmen ran short of papers before the allotted time had expired. The Goodfellow Fund realized a profit of $134.50, which will be used entirely for the relief of the distressed and needy and to bring Christmas joy to the unfortunate children. The first paper was sold to The American Foundries and F. E. Ross, president of the companies. A check for a considerable sum boosted the fund to a very encouraging proportion.—Leader.

METHODIST HOME

Miss Leeman was well remembered by her cousins during the past week. On Wednesday, Mrs. Herman Hayes of Sylvan called; on Christmas day, Fred A. Lehman of Manchester was here; and on Saturday she welcomed Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lehman of Chelsea. The shower of gifts and sweetmeats brought to her shows that she selected her relatives with discrimination.

Mrs. Welles was rejoiced on Wednesday by a visit from her daughter, Mrs. Fay Wolfe from Albion.

On Wednesday, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Calkins of Ann Arbor, who are cousins of our Miss Bidwell, were our dinner guests.

On Wednesday evening the young helpers in the Home gave us an entertainment as enjoyable as it was original. After several Christmas songs had been rendered, Santa Claus and his twin two could not decide which was which—came hurrying in, bringing a large and evidently heavily laden sack from which they proceeded to distribute presents. No one was overlooked. The selections had been made with wisdom and there had been no extravagance. Even the new typewriter bestowed on the reporter had been removed with care from an advertising page.

Mrs. Danson's Thursday visitors were Mrs. Wade and Mrs. Barker of Detroit; on Sunday her heart was made glad by the coming of her two grandsons from Detroit—with their wives and also her great grandchild.

The Home has a beautiful fir balsam Christmas tree which just reaches the ceiling and is a joy to everyone who looks at it. The tree was sent us by Rev. Alvin Doten, the Sky Pilot of Newberry Parish on the Marquette District. He is a good judge of Christmas trees.

Nurse Koyle visited her children and grandson in Jackson on Wednesday to Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Chapin surely enjoyed her sons last week. Mr. B. Chapin came from Flint to visit her, and Wells C. Chapin from St. Louis, Mo., came three times for long satisfying talks.

Through the entire year Mr. Drake is the unfailing understudy of Uncle Sam in our Home. The mail always comes safely through his hands, so the family decided to show a little of its appreciation by making him a gift. We understand that Mr. Drake and Dr. Leeson are going out of town on one wild whirl of spending.

On Saturday, Jason E. Hammond of Ann Arbor and Lansing called on Dr. and Mrs. Brown.

On Christmas day Mrs. Mary E. Taylor of Detroit and the Misses Ella and Eva Campbell of Ann Arbor called on Miss Harris. On Saturday her callers were Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Osgood of Pontiac, and on Sunday, Miss Florence Cowen came and carried Miss Harris off to Stockbridge to dinner.

On Christmas afternoon Mrs. Elliott was visited by her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hiser from Dundee, with their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Hiser from Ann Arbor. Apparently the family Santa Claus came with them.

On Monday evening of last week the friends from Dearborn, who would have come on the previous Saturday, but for the bad weather and roads, came and gave us a very interesting program.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Danson of Detroit called on Mrs. Turnbull on Sunday.

On Saturday, Mrs. Minnie Minor's guests were Mrs. Clara Bucknell of Howell, Mrs. Sarah Mabbs of Ann Arbor, and Jason Hammond of Lansing. All seemed well pleased with our fine Home.

On Christmas evening Nurse Warner entertained her relatives, Mrs. Bertha Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Rinehart and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Damon, all from Adrian.

On Sunday afternoon a group from St. Paul's church in Highland Park visited the Home and gave a fine religious program. After singing of hymns, and an earnest prayer by the leader, Clyde Marshall, Miss Dora Chadwick from the Nardin Park church gave us a very inspiring talk. Mr. and Mrs. Henderson delighted us with their music on the cello and piano, followed by more singing in the assembly room and at the bedside of shut-ins. Gifts were brought for each member of the family, and it is not strange that the semi-annual visits of these young friends are anticipated with eagerness.

On Christmas day Mr. and Mrs. Renton and Mr. and Mrs. Morrow came from Detroit to visit Mrs. Girardin and brought her many gifts.

Sunday evening we had a Home gathering at which Mrs. Brown read the story of a town without Christmas or Christ, and Mrs. Westbrook recited Will Carleton's poem telling of an old man's Christmas party. All greatly enjoyed our Home talent.

Jays Reserved for Natives

Years ago the Dutch put on their statute books that no one but a native of Java—not even a Dutchman—may buy agricultural land in Java. The result is thousands of small land holdings. The government provides the best in roads, transportation and irrigation systems. When the native grows more rice or maize than he can use, the government buys it from him and ships it to the ports of the world. The result is a contented, prospering population, although Java has more people a square mile than any country on earth.—Detroit News.

SAVAGE SCHOOL NEWS

Savage school students very capably entertained approximately forty neighbors, friends, and relatives with their Christmas program December 22 at 8 o'clock.

The program symbolized a new type radio program which can be seen as well as heard. Frederick Weber, a beginner, excellently characterized the part of an elderly man sitting by the fire, and deciding to listen to a radio program. As he turned on the radio, Phyllis Weber appeared as an announcer and the program followed:

A Christmas Welcome—Paul Bollinger, Richard Butcher and Thomas Franklin.

A New Trick—Paul Bollinger.

Christmas Letters—A song by the school.

Phyllis Weber then announced the "tuning off" of Station S-A-V-A-G-E S-C-H-O-O-L. Frederick Weber turned off the radio, and with a pull of his artificial mustache, arrangement of his blackrimmed play glasses a bit higher, and with a limp steadied by a cane, he made a few remarks about the program, saying that he, too, used to recite poems about fifty years ago. He then spoke his recitation, "The Reason."

Following the program Santa Claus was joyfully received. With the assistance of the children he helped distribute the many lovely gifts, and boxes of Christmas nuts and candy to the children. Pop corn and candy were served to the guests.

The program was presented under the guidance of the teacher, Miss Loretta Gale.

The skidding season is here, so watch your step. When driving an automobile on slippery roads, no matter how good your brakes are, don't depend on them entirely. You should have your car under control at all times and adjust your driving to the prevailing conditions. Careful drivers seldom skid.

As a pedestrian, don't depend too much on the ability of the driver to stop or slow down, especially at arterials and regulated intersections. Many a pedestrian has been seriously injured because he placed too much confidence in the ability of a driver to stop his car on a slippery road. Play safe and you will be safe.

WHAT DOES THE WORLD OWE THIS WOMAN?

She feels that her rich friends could perfectly well help her mother and herself if only they would.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

THE world is full of men and women who won't solve their own problems. One of them came to see me yesterday. A bright-eyed, well-dressed, nicely-spoken woman, she took up forty-one minutes of my working time in pouring out a story that is so familiar to me that I could have poured it out even more rapidly to her. She is perhaps forty or forty-two years old, she never has conquered the difficulties life has presented to her, and she never will.

I could have told her that, too. Everybody with whom this woman has come in contact has failed her; she has apparently moved through the world trusting, fine, hardworking, honorable, only to meet deception and unkindness and trouble. She feels now that the world owes her a living. She knows hundreds of persons who could perfectly well support her and her aged mother. "But that's the way life is, isn't it? You give and give and give until you've nothing left to give, and you get nothing in return."

Her husband left her seven years after marriage to go to another woman. Alimony? But he's now been on relief for three years, and he says he can't pay it. He gave her, in parting, a house, which she describes as a wreck, plaster coming off the walls and, of course, no painting done for ages. Her son, now 26, on account of some federal regulation has gone away to another town because he couldn't hold his job while she had hers. She gets $75 a month as manager of a woman's club.

"And what can I do, with Mother on my hands, on THAT?" she demands pathetically. "It's a mere pittance. I have a room in the club, but I can't keep Mother there. I have to have an office. I go home tired at night, and have to start right in getting supper for mother and me. She gets her own lunch, I lunch at the club. Think of it for her, who used to have four house-servants. Well, that's just typical of the way in which our lives have been changed."

This woman, Jean Brown, wants me to use my influence to get her a post-office position that pays $200 a month. Even supposing me to have any powers in that direction, which I haven't, it might occur to her that I couldn't possibly recommend a person of whom I know nothing but her own story, told in a casual call.

These things never occur to the seekers of favors, and what thousands of them there are! A President's life, a high official's life must be made simply unendurable by them. They waste one's time telling one eagerly and specifically what they CAN'T do, they never mention anything they can. They review what they had in the past, how they lost it, how deceived they and failed them. Never having lived up to their opportunities they want wider and better ones.

Jean Brown yesterday spoke with deprecating regret of a mere pittance of $75 a month. She told me that she and her mother couldn't possibly live on it. Friends, she said, helped her with clothes and gifts, and her son sent an occasional check, otherwise she didn't know where she and her mother would be.

Her taxes are $84 a year, making her rent $7 a month. Menis at the outside oughtn't to cost these two women more than a dollar a day. Hundreds—thousands of women are feeding four, yes, and six and eight persons on that.

That leaves a monthly balance of $38. I mentioned this sum, and she looked at me with her bright unthinking eyes and said, "True," in a dubious tone that showed me that she actually never had thought it out on the terms of a budget.

"But telephone and magazines and light and shoes and hospitalities, oh, and a thousand things more!" she said cheerfully. "One can't quite vegetate, you know. Mother's always been accustomed to the nice little things that make all the difference, a few flowers, a telegram to a friend, a new book."

Now, the sublime stupidity of such a woman in coming to annoy another busy woman with this sort of a tale is the phase of the situation that interests me. Apparently such a person—and they are by no means confined to one sex—is mentally incapable of working out the real values of our respective services to the communities and the age in which we live. That honest, hard work, that making of themselves valuable to anyone, anywhere, in any capacity, in any business, is the ONLY way to promotion and success, never seems to occur to them. They think it is all luck and influence and social position, they tell you who their grandfathers were, and that streets in remote cities were named for their uncles, they mention a few very rich friends by their first names, and then they sit back and expect you to do the rest.

Jean Brown felt that she could speak with contempt of a salary that to nine-tenths of the women of Russia or Germany today would mean financial security, that to a Chinese woman would represent actual wealth. Thousands of Frenchwomen, Italian and Englishwomen are raising families in decency and comfort on $75 a month. With thrift and dignity and with the elimination of a great many useless things they think essential to their long-vanished and never-very-important "position" Jean and her mother could set their entire neighborhood an example of agreeable and successful living.

Instead she goes about putting the whole situation dramatically and appealingly to whosoever will listen, criticize the "pin-headed club women" who employ her, and retails to all and sundry a list of her rich friends who could perfectly well help her mother and herself, if only they would!

The successful women of this world know that until you solve your own problem, no matter what it is, completely and happily for all concerned, you never are going to deserve a chance to solve larger problems. You may get that chance, for influence does sometimes put strange persons into high places, but you won't hold it; you'll presently be out again, more aggrieved and bewildered than before.

Strange that some women should be born with complete delusions about themselves and life, and that in others, hardly out of childhood, there is planted a real grasp of the truth—that includes a position of humility and simplicity and honesty toward material things, like work, and a spiritual attitude that makes all these things supremely unimportant.

In the position of my recent caller another, wiser woman would have gotten that cottage into shape for renting long ago; it has seven rooms, it is much too large for a lonely old lady to inhabit all day long. She would have found some snug little corner for a home, she never would have plastered the house with the two thousand dollar mortgage that was put on it three years ago. She would live well on that $75 a month, and the sense of living well would put new vitality and satisfaction into her whole attitude toward her work.

On the face of it, it is easier to be rich than poor. And to those who are wrestling with real money trouble it seems to be the one real trial in the world. I know it, for there were many years in my life when a very little more money would have meant to me the difference between worry and peace of mind, the difference between dignity and embarrassment, the difference between taking favors or giving favors. I've not forgotten, nor would I belittle the anxiety that shadows the lives of much more than half the men and women of the world.

But one lesson I did learn from the hard years, and it is one that goes far to rob plenty as well as poverty of their real fear and their most constant pressure. I learned that it is better to live in two rooms, and on the simplest and plainest of food, it is better to forego all luxuries, even those that we Americans have come to regard as necessities, than to drag out the miserable pretensions of an existence that depends upon promises, the asking of favors, the wretched consciousness of unpaid bills and unbalanced expenses. It is better to get down under the income, to make a game of living on a little, and to have one's mind gloriously free of the fretting and shaming thoughts that shut the door to anything like escape or success.

Tall Tales

As told to: FRANK E. HAGAN and ELMO SCOTT WATSON

The Crazy Woman Wrangler

A RT QUIGLEY was a cow hand, temporarily, for Half Circle ranch near Buffalo, Wyo.; it was there he met the wrangler from Crazy Woman River and heard his story.

"I was a tenderfoot," acknowledges Quigley. "So much so I'd rise at day-break, saddle up and ride to Buffalo to eat mush, horse breakfast with the rest of the Chinamen."

"One morning another rider yelled at me, back trail, but I paid no attention. Figured he'd spotted me for a tenderfoot cause I wore the only stiff-brimmed Stetson of the county. "Catching up the stranger introduced himself as the Wrangler from Crazy Woman River. An old fellow, but plenty pert and capable. Pointing to a grove we passed, the wrangler said that there, after a night in Buffalo, he met a bear. Had only a rifle and just three 22 shorts—not much to use if you're loading for bear."

"He drew careful head and fired. The bear went down. Then he was up. It was like the radio report of a prize-fight. My friend aimed and fired. Again the bear fell, once more was up. Aliming carefully over his horse's neck, the man from Crazy Woman fired his last 22 and saw the bear fall. "Leaping down, howie knife in hand, he charged. And he was tremendously relieved to discover three bears, all dead in the trail."

"I believe the story implicitly," says Quigley. "You see, this Crazy Woman Wrangler never once regarded me as a tenderfoot, but he treated me like an old-timer on the range."

Beeswax for Candles

Beeswax is used for many purposes, a notable one being for the manufacture of candles for churches. Beeswax candles melt more evenly than tallow candles and do not give off any odor.

Copperhead Snakes Have

Hour-Glass Shaped Spots

The distinguishing features of the copperhead snake are its two tones of copper coloring, with patches of dark coloring in the shape of an hour-glass being imposed on the lighter copper, or almost tan, coloring of the snake. The patches of dark coloring run at right angles to the snake, with the narrow part of the hour-glass being on top of the snake's back and the broad portions spreading down the sides. The copperhead never gets to be more than three feet in length, and its fangs are on an average of one-quarter of an inch long. Like all of the venomous snakes, writes Otto Fuerbringer in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, it is a pit viper and has a distinguishing pit-mark on the side of the head between the eye and the nostril. This, however, can be seen only at a close distance.

The banded, or timber, rattlesnake is the largest and most poisonous one in this area. It will attain a length of six feet and its fangs get to be three-quarters of an inch long. It has a geometric arrangement of black chevrons on a gray background and its tail is all black. For this reason it is sometimes called the velvet-tailed rattlesnake.

FATHER TIME

By PHILANDER JOHNSON
in Washington Star

WE ALL know a fellow called Old Father Time.

He has taught us in prose; he has trivolted in rhyme.

One day he will give us a song or a laugh,
And the next he is writing a short epitaph.

The way he jogs on is so quietly queer
We seldom remember his presence so near.

But he measures our steps as we futter or climb.

He keeps tab on us all, does this Old
Father Time.

But his hand is so gentle, although it is strong,

That he helps us a lot as he leads us along.

And the ruins that rise on the hills 'of the past

He covers with toy and roses at last.

He teaches the smiles of the present to glow.

While the sorrows are left to the long,
long ago.

And the knell turns to joy in its merriest chime —

He's a pretty good fellow, is Old Father
Time.

Our Present Need

THAT mankind is urgently in need of something, all will admit. But people differ when they come to analyze this need and prescribe the remedy. Some say that the need is for money; others, for better management and government; and still others, for shorter working hours and more leisure. The invalid's need is for health; the sinner's for goodness and peace; those who appear to be passing on for more abundant life, Humanity's diversified wants and desires make us think of the reply Martha received from Jesus (Luke 10:41, 42): "Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things, but one thing is needful; and Mary hath chosen that good part, which shall not be taken away from her."

What is the one thing that is needful? Is it not Mary's spiritual adaptability and receptivity? Spiritual understanding is an absolute requisite if we are to escape the woes, injustices and ill of men.

On page 151 of "Solence and Health with Key to the Scriptures," Mary Baker Eddy has written, "Infinite Mind could not possibly create a remedy outside of itself, but erring, finite, human mind has an absolute east corner of said Lot Six; thence running east along the north line of

for their redemption and healing."

A childlike willingness to allow ourselves Love to control all our thoughts would be most to eliminate the errors which occur in human calculations. Sometimes we are afraid to let go, lest we suffer from the result; but Soul cares for us with an ability far exceeding our present apprehension. The forces and capacities of Immortal Love are always operating, and we should experience Love's benevolence more often if we would only exclude greed, envy, rivalry, and fear from our thought. We assume a sense of falsity and overburdening responsibility only to our own detriment; we self-immolate and a firm trust in God's order, concord, and success. Our first need is not so much for improved conditions as it is for a clear realization that Infinite Mind has absolute control over every function, activity, and expression of real being; that this control exists here and now; that the only estimate and real results of this divine government are harmony and good works, and that, therefore, if a condition claims to exist, but suppositions rather than actual facts are the result of this knowing, for spiritual understanding scientifically improves our human conditions and unfolds limitless expressions of goodness.

We need to cultivate spiritual sense, which lifts human consciousness above the errors of corporeal sense, and discerns the divine and unchangeable facts of being. We need to understand that evil is nothing and nobody; that it has no intelligence or power, no influence, no avenue or medium through which to reach and disturb or injure us. We need to keep in mind that error is not an entity, but that error is illusion, which has no influence or away through which to give it by our belief in it. Christian Science shows us conclusively that we are not the victims of so-called material laws, from which there is no escape, but rather that we are, in reality, the eternal children of the loving Father, who is the Universal, and who contains all that releases Him. The fact must be learned that the creation of eternal Truth, the only creation there is, is wholly good; that spiritual law controls all real action, attraction, and power, and that every effect of this law is harmonious and necessary; and that man is the eternal presence and actual manifestation of spiritual Life.

It may be summed up that our present need is to acknowledge God, eternal Life, more in our human affairs, to obey the injunction, "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding." (Proverbs 3:5.) There is another way to solve the problem of health and happiness, of production, of distribution, of economic equality. Only by acting in accordance with divine Principle can we maintain good works, overcome the false sense of overproduction and underproduction, and provide abundant and necessary sustenance for every individual. The recognition of Soul's presence and, likewise, the absence of the human fear of lack, disease, and disaster, by revealing the unlimited, indestructible nature of substance and reality—of health and harmony. God provides His Image, man, with all that is necessary for his sustenance and his exaltation; and our need is spiritually to apprehend this fact and apply it in solving our human problems.—The Christian Science Monitor.

Smallest Republic

The oldest and smallest republic in the world is San Marino, 14 miles from Rimini in Italy. It is inaccessible on its mountain plateau that tourists often go up in the clouds before they find it.

"WINTER," said Dora gayly, "is very becoming to your good looks." The man beside her looked down with pleased amusement. They were sking, these two, over snowy surfaces, and the man with his bright wide woolen sash and knitted cap to match, made a striking figure on the snow. "This was a grand idea sking to the New Year's party," cried Paul. "Otherwise we would not have made it."

"Andy thinks we're crazy. Says we're sure to get stuck, and maybe freeze to death on the way. He's so optimistic," Dora laughed.

"He would! Never saw such a darned cautious guy as Andy. He'll never get anywhere or do anything or have any fun."

"He is pretty solemn at times," admitted Dora a little soberly.

They went on, easily, lightly; curved slopes slid under them; dark, leafless trees slipped by. "A New Year's dance does not grow on every bush," remarked Paul. "Better take them in our stride."

The girl's cheeks glowed. Her fair hair tucked under her cap flew out behind in small ringlets. If the distance still seemed a long way, she did not speak of it. She was little tired, too, but that would pass. Soon they would pause for rest, and for bites of hard chocolate.

"It takes a little imagination, sometimes," said Paul, "to think out ways of doing things. Andy is good, solid dependable stuff, but slightly," he smiled, "dull."

"I like him, though," said Dora stoutly, "and it usually happens he's right." "Worse luck!"

"Not sorry you came with me?" "Heavens, no!"

"They went on and on and on. Roads were blocked. No cars could get through. A horse team would take one day and part of another. Sking across country was the only solution of reaching Dorset and the dance."

"You'll have trouble," Andy predicted, "mark my words." And it looked as if his prophecy were about to come true as they attempted the next hill. The wind grew colder. Dora was not as rested as she hoped she might be; not as quick or sure of balance. She struck a snag, tripped and fell. . . . not merely in the snow, but down and down into a surprise gully. A sharp pain shot up from one ankle to knee, and a cold and dreadful faintness crept over her. "Andy," she whispered involuntarily, "as one speaks of a safe harbor in time of storm."

Paul came after her. Somehow his picturesque good looks did not count for much now, though he tried valiantly to help her. "I've twisted my ankle, I'm afraid," gasped Dora. "What shall we do? Can you put your imagination to work?" she added.

"Just then, cold, truly fearful for what lay ahead, they heard a dim halloo in the distance. They waited and soon Andy's bulky and solid figure stood above the gully. He plunged down quickly and gave not a word of rebuke save "Thought you might have trouble, so I trailed you."

It was Andy who took Dora back to her home. He carried her all the way, first over one shoulder, then another. Paul feeling uncomfortable said he guessed he'd go on to the dance. "Happy New Year," was all Andy said.

An arduous, silent and painful experience. Dora could hear the breathing of the man who so bravely bore her over the weary miles.

"Why don't you scold me?" she demanded.

She could not see his face, but she felt him smiling.

At last Andrew deposited her on her own couch in her own home and telephoned for the doctor. The last bandage was patting into place on her plaster cast as midnight struck. "You know, Andy," remarked Dora slowly, "I'd honestly rather be here with you and a broken ankle, than at the New Year's dance at Dorset. Quaint of me, isn't it?"

Big, solid, unpicturesque Andy stooped over and kissed her. "Happy New Year, dear! I'm afraid it will be a long time till you dance again."

"And Paul's colorful ideas aren't so much . . . after all. He looks well on a winter landscape. And you look well in a rescue act. I think I prefer the latter."

"Which," grinned Andy, "is just as it should be."
