Prof. Schlesinger Gives Us Plenty of Reasons for Talking Back Now

Since it was published "for private circulation," among those gifted students of government who will define President-Elect Kennedy's "New Frontiers" for him, you may not have seen Harvard-Historian Arthur Schlesinger's pamphlet, "The Big Decision—Private Indulgence or National Power."

But you should very definitely know about it, since the National Associated Businessmen, America's voice of small business, sees in it the blueprint for the takeover of business by government.

Professor Schlesinger calmly regards "our national wealth and talent" as properly belonging, not to those who created the wealth, or to those who developed and employed the talents that God gave them, but to government. He complains that the Eisenhower Administration spends "a smaller share of our gross national product (a phony yardstick if there ever was one) on public services and facilities today than . . . a decade ago." We have failed, he says, in the Schlesinger view, to expand our "social overhead," under which he lists "education, medical care, housing, slum clearance, urban and suburban planning, social security, provision for the sick and the aging, roads, recreation, water, assistance to distressed classes and areas, resources and energy development."

To remedy the deplorable situation in which a timid Federal Government has failed to completely absorb state and local prerogatives and responsibilities and has allowed the misguided citizenry to retain some of its earnings only to spend them foolishly on tailfins and television," Schlesinger & Co. would simply revise the "allocation of resources." In plain English, since business and individuals are so stupid and selfish about handling their own money, the government will have to do it for them.

Throughout his pamphlet, the professor refers to the people of the U. S. not as citizens or taxpayers, but as "consumers." Obviously, he seeks to create the impression that we are all victims of a monster called "business." He overlooks completely the fact that ours is a business nation, that these consumers—unless they are doctors, lawyers, dentists or on a government payroll—themselves constitute the business community. It is therefore especially interesting that Dr. Schlesinger's initial suggestion for increasing Federal revenues is a tax on advertising. That his first suggestion should be to deaden the nerve that energizes the American economic system should be significant not only to the National Associated Businessmen, but to every last one of us who believes that government must be our servant, not our master. Dr. Schlesinger has since refuted his proposal for a tax on advertising—under pressure.

Nobody elected this Schlesinger to anything. But he speaks from on high, and we had better start talking back.

Michigan Is Everything for Industry

When we look at Michigan, as proud citizens, we admire its verdant forests, its myriad lakes, its miles of smooth highways, its ever-growing tourist attractions.

In our praise of the state, we naturally regard as the finest of them all, we sometimes forget, however, that natural resources have made Michigan economically great in the past and can make her even greater in the future.

These are the resources imperative in attracting industry here, the resources that assure industrial growth today; the vital ingredient that has made Michigan a dynamic industrial giant for so many years.

The resources are here—all we need to do is to make sure everyone knows it!

For instance, when you see the "Water Wonderland" that is a part of Michigan's natural beauty, remember that the water of which we boast is just one of industry's greatest needs. Water is indispensable, and Michigan has lots of it, as well as an abundance of other resources to fill the needs of industry.

Your newspaper, proud to be a Michigan citizen, will publish a series of public service advertisements, the first of which appears today. The series, telling the story of Michigan's advantages for industry, has been prepared as a co-operative effort of the Michigan Press Association and the Michigan Economic Development Department for state-wide use throughout 1966.

This is one of our contributions toward reminding our readers that "Michigan Is Everything for Industry"—that it has everything industry needs.

You can help, too, in telling the Michigan story to the nation by sending these advertisements to people in other states. This is one way to let them know that which we already know—that Michigan is the greatest!

Do it today. As our advertisement says: Together we can assure a greater future for all of us.

175 Miles Added to State's Freeway Network During Past Year

Lansing—Michigan added 175 miles to its growing network of freeways during 1960 and ended the year with 537 miles of freeway open to traffic.

It was the greatest amount of freeway mileage opened to traffic in any one year, the State Highway Department reported. Michigan now has five times as much freeway open to traffic as it had 3½ years ago.

Michigan built 101 miles of freeway during a 15-year period between 1942 and July 1, 1957, and opened 87 miles during the last half of 1957, 104 miles in 1958 and 100 miles in 1959.

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie said the Highway Department built or modernized a total of 1,600 miles of highway during 1960.

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Of all the challenges facing Michigan people, the crisis in higher education could be the most vital. Consider these points:

Most of the teachers for Michigan schools are trained in Michigan colleges.

The need for doctors is already pinching. It can easily become great that existing medical training facilities will fall short of handling enough first-year students by 1970.

Michigan's business needs well-trained leaders. Most of them will be educated in colleges and universities within the state.

Add to this the nation's critical need for more highly trained scientists and engineers and the simple fact that better educated people are needed every day to keep a complex society operating.

There is obviously ample reason for concern over higher education.

The challenge faces all the people, not just the leaders of state government or educators. Not only do taxpayers finance a major part of the cost of higher education, they also must want to improve educational facilities before action will be taken. It is their attitude on higher education which will be reflected to the legislature at the time decisions are made.

One indication of expected growth in higher education came recently when Michigan State University president John A. Hannah addressed a group of newsmen and their wives on the East Lansing campus. After explaining the plight of higher education in general, of which MSU is typical, he discussed specifics there.

"Our enrollment is increasing faster than we had expected. Though we are becoming more selective, Michigan State has an obligation to open its classrooms and laboratories to the qualified youth of this state," Hannah said. He predicted enrollment at MSU would hit 30,000 by 1966 or 1967.

The number of students at the school has topped 20,000 for the past few years, Hannah noted.

increase in students taking advanced study—working toward Master's or Doctoral degrees—as one of the more critical areas.

"Graduate enrollment has doubled in the last few years," he said.

Working from projections based on present enrollment trends, Hannah said the make-up of the MSU student body when its numbers reach 30,000 would be about one-third freshmen and sophomores, one-third juniors and seniors, and one-third graduate students.

Michigan's participation in federal medical care for the needy aged will get a close look from lawmakers during the 1961 session of the state legislature. Michigan was one of the first states to come under the program passed by the "bob-tail" or post-partum conventions session of Congress.

A special session met in late summer to spell out the qualifications and procedures by which those over 65 years old could come under the program if they wish. Sen. Lloyd A. Stephens, R-Scottville, chairman of a joint committee of both houses appointed to study Medicare said recently at least three changes will be recommended to the next legislature.

Expansion of the program was the major point of the committee's proposals.

They would add nursing care, skilled home nursing and liberalize the income test which is applied to couples wishing to come under the program.

Apparently there is bipartisan support for the changes.

State elections officials are looking for a long look at the practices of local people in change of voting. Election Director Robert M. Montgomery says that each of Michigan's 83 counties will be scrutinized as soon as experts from his division of the Secretary of State's office can get to it. They started in Oakland county. Montgomery says the purpose of the inspection is merely to make sure that local officials know how to comply with laws governing elections, and that they are putting the knowledge into use.

Planes Using I-94 Freeway as Guide

Kalamazoo—Even planes are "using" Interstate 94 Freeway. An airplane that swooped to 25 feet above the patrol car Deputy Richard Smith was driving along I-94 recently was found to have lost its way and was searching for landmarks, according to Battle Creek airport officials.

The officials said the twin-engine private plane was Detroit-bound and the unidentified pilot followed the freeway.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

On account of the fellows at the country store being all wore out by the hard political campaign, they was relaxing Saturday night on such subjects as preachers and items that don't call for much argument.

One fellow allowed as how folks was now picking a church with the most parking space and wasn't thinking about the preacher. Isaac Combs said he would go along with this up to a certain point, but he allowed that folks was also considering the shortness of the sermon along with the parking space advantage.

And I wouldn't be surprised, Mister Editor, if in the next generation these things won't be as important to a heap of folks as what the preacher says in his sermons.

Me and you was raised up, I reckon, in the old school where the main thing was what the preacher had to say ever Sunday. For instance, the preacher we got now gives us a hard time and I doubt if he'd be very popular with the new generation. He told us Sunday that about one-fifth of us wore out the knees of our pants praying and the other four-fifths wore off the seat of our pants backsliding. Just between you and me, Mister Editor, I figure he's a little too hopeful about the first one-fifth. But he give it to us straight from the shoulder and it's good for us. I'm afraid the next generation is going to have plenty of parking space, be long on air conditioning and the shortness of the sermon and also a little short on honest-to-goodness religion.

From what Ed Doolittle was telling us Saturday night, his preacher bears down even harder than mine. Ed said his preacher took a peek at the collection plate the other Sunday and remarked that when he first come to that church he announced the pore folks was especial welcome ever Sunday. "After looking at the collection plate," he said, "I see they are all present this morning."

The fellows got off the subject about our foreign policy. That's one thing can't nobody argue about on account of nobody knowing nothing about it. I was reading, for instance, where the English say our foreign policy toward Cuba has got them confused. That's the first time in several years that the American people and the English people has been 100 per cent together on something.

Clint Webster brung the session to a close with a observation that them Congressmen ought to taste in their hot. There ain't no excuse for them not getting together on our foreign policy toward Cuba on Washington will kill just as

THE LETTERBOX

Answer on Zoning . . .

TO THE EDITOR:

I will attempt to answer, in general way at least, some of the remarks and questions imposed on the letter entitled "regarding Lim Township Zoning," which was printed in the Dec. 15, 1960 issue of The Chelsea Standard, and is distinctly understood that I have no desire or intention of promoting a newspaper argument.

First of all, most of the questions have been discussed several times by members of the Township Board and Zoning Board with the writer of the article. Secondly, 19 of the 20 townships in Washtenaw county have zoning ordinances.

leaving Lima township in a vulnerable position, without one. These ordinances are very much alike, which I think is good, and all subject to amendment or revision, of which there are many. I would be wrong to adopt a ordinance that couldn't be changed.

I presume that none of the above mentioned ordinances are were satisfactory to all of the people involved but evidently the majority have accepted.

Regarding the Boards involved in the zoning problem in Lim township, which are the Township Board, the Zoning Board and the Appeal Board, it is my sincere belief that they have all acted in good faith and to the best interest of all township residents and future developments, knowing full well that there would be some dissatisfaction.

MICHIGAN IS EVERYTHING FOR INDUSTRY

The people of Michigan are proud of their state's industrial accomplishments. Its manufacturing plants produce everything from automobiles to xylophones. One reason is that Michigan has so much of what industry needs.

Michigan has abundant sources of both raw and semi-finished materials. Michigan possesses unmatched production know-how in both management and labor. Michigan has great market advantages. Michigan has livability! Water? Michigan is rightly named the Water Wonderland.

This is the first in a series of advertisements to be printed as a public service by this newspaper, each advertisement to describe one of Michigan's advantages for industry. The series will show the attractions our state offers, what it personifies for industry; in reality, what MICHIGAN IS.

Help carry Michigan's message to the nation. Clip these ads and mail them to people in other states with your own comment. Let's talk up Michigan and its advantages for industry. Together, we can assure a greater future for all of us.

This ad is one of a series published as a public service by this newspaper in cooperation with the Michigan Press Association and the Michigan Economic Development Department.

Conservation Work Shows Progress in 1960

The year 1960 added another fast-moving chapter to Michigan's conservation story. For Michigan's state parks, progress came in the form of a windfall. A requirement which would have provided the state with $100,000,000 in additional funds for the year was waived. Daily attendance topped 18,000,000 second highest in park history, and campers set a new record for the ninth year, with nearly 150,000 permits issued.

From another corner of the conservation scene there was marked progress in restoration plans for the Great Lakes fishery. The first round had ended in a fight to keep out the menhaden sea lamprey from Lake Superior streams. Although it may take until 1962 before biologists know how they succeed with their chemical treatment, preliminary post-treatment surveys indicate they may have jumped 50 per cent above 1959 to an estimated 15,650,000 barrels. By the end of December, oil wells were producing at a yearly level of 18,000,000 barrels. Natural gas production rose to almost 10 billion cubic feet, some 20 percent over the year before.

Michigan's new voluntary hunter safety program for youngsters got off to a flying start with upwards of 20,000 students completing the four-hour training course.

Michigan's public lands received another long-ranged boost for multiple use when the Department made its fourth largest state forest planting for a calendar year. Some 15,460,000 young trees were planted on 20,160 acres in the upper and northern lower peninsulas to foster optimum timber production, wildlife populations and recreational use.

Receipts from state forest timber sales totaled approximately $795,000 during the 1959-60 fiscal year to set a new second high. Michigan's hunting and fishing seasons found some 2,100,000 sportsmen taking to the fields, woods and waters.

Competition continued to grow between fishermen and water skiers and the Conservation Commission drafted plans to support a legislative proposal in 1961 aimed at calming the choppy waters.

Michigan's fall firearm-deer season failed to live up to its advance billing. Representing the first drop since 1954, kill totaled an estimated 73,88,000 deer, far below the 1959 harvest of 115,000.

Early in December, the Commission announced it felt antlerless kill should be limited to crop damage areas in 1961, unless a mild winter and large spring fawn crop were to again put the herd out of balance with its range.

An all-out effort was waged against hunting violations in northern Michigan by the Department during the deer season as biologists, foresters, parks managers, maintenance men, and others doubled the state's regular conservation officer ranks.

Pheasant hunters harvested slightly more than 1,000,000 birds to approximate their 28-year kill average.

A survey by the Department revealed that wild lands in Michigan's 49 northern-most counties were at an all-time premium for hunters, fishermen, and other outdoor recreationists. A 63 per cent increase was noted in fenced wild land acreage above the Straits since the last study was made in 1954. In the northern lower peninsula, there was a 32 per cent jump in fenced lands.

Regulation of Michigan's commercial fishing industry became a responsibility of the Conservation Commission in March. The shift in regulatory control from the State Legislature was made to create closer contact between the industry and its governing body.

Several changes, including the introduction of trawling in southern Lake Michigan, came to the fore shortly after the Commission assumed its new job.

Department leaders view the new arrangement as particularly important in setting uniform regulations with other Great Lakes states and Ontario. It will also dovetail with efforts toward controlling sea lamprey and rehabilitating lake trout in the Great Lakes.

A gradual and moderate realignment of the Department's fisheries program got underway at mid-year. Field management, research, public fishing site acquisition and development, and lake and stream improvement will be upgraded over the next seven fiscal years with a proportionate reduction in the hatchery program.

Wetland investigations and planning, a project pinpointed at preserving Michigan's wetlands for wildlife, was added to the Department's game division program.

The Conservation Department's information programs earned state and national recognition during the year. "Michigan White-tails," an 80-page review of the state's deer story, and "Michigan Conservation," the Department's weekly television show, received first place awards from the American Association of Conservation Information.

Second-place AACI honors for magazine excellence went to "Michigan Conservation." The Department also received certificate awards from the National Wildlife Federation and East Michigan Tourist Association honoring its support of their programs.

Conservation education moved ahead during the year. Drawing national attention were Menominee, Marquette, and Sault Ste. Marie public schools which gained awards of merit from the AACI for their pilot projects in this field. A record 231 teachers attended the 14th annual conservation scholarship school at Higgins Lake.

Although progress left its indelible mark in 1960, there were signs of lost conservation caused by Michigan's money-troubled Game and Fish Protection Fund.

The conservation officer-recruiting program remained tabled, vacated jobs were left unfilled, public fishing site and game land purchases were all but stopped, and equipment replacements, construction and new services were virtually halted.

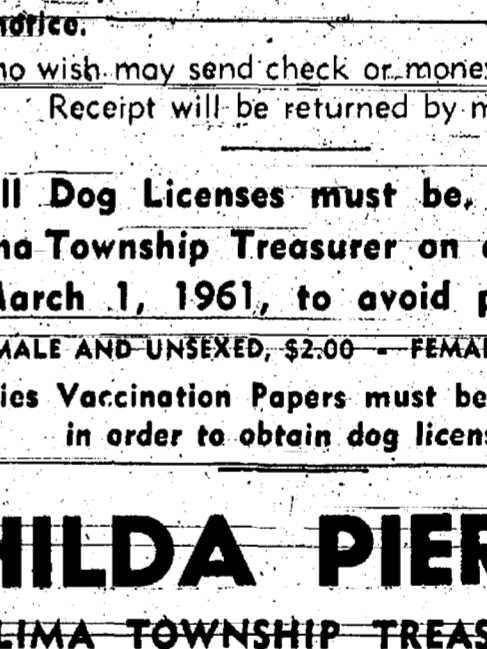

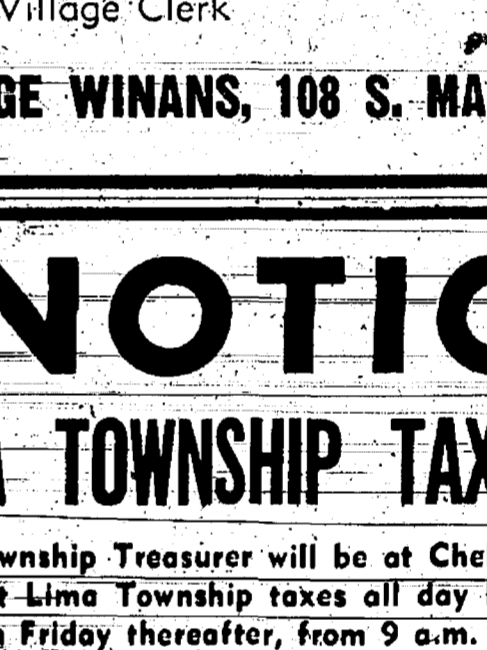

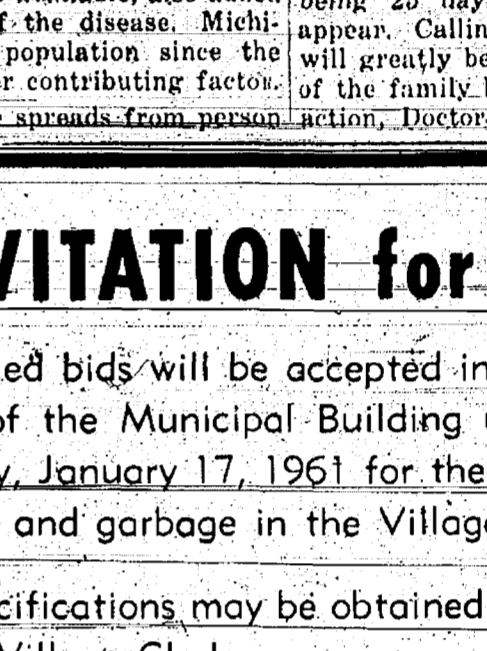

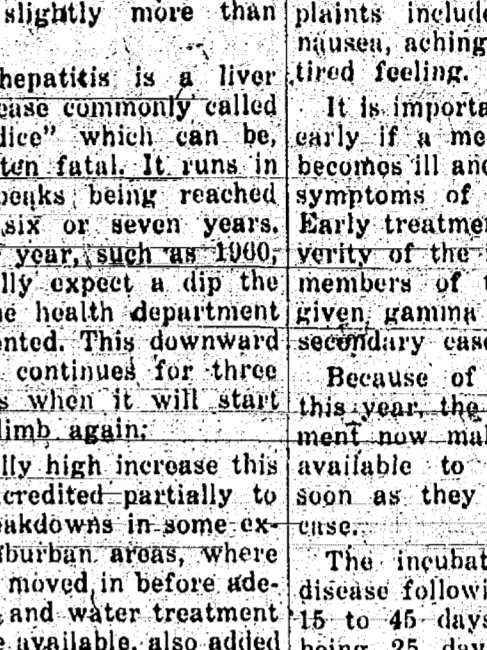

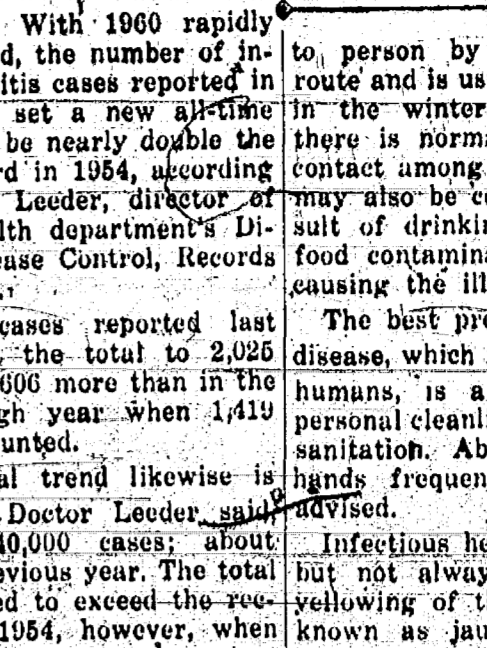

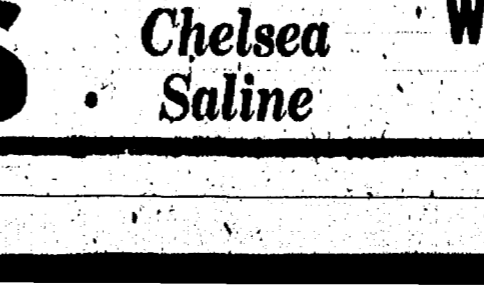

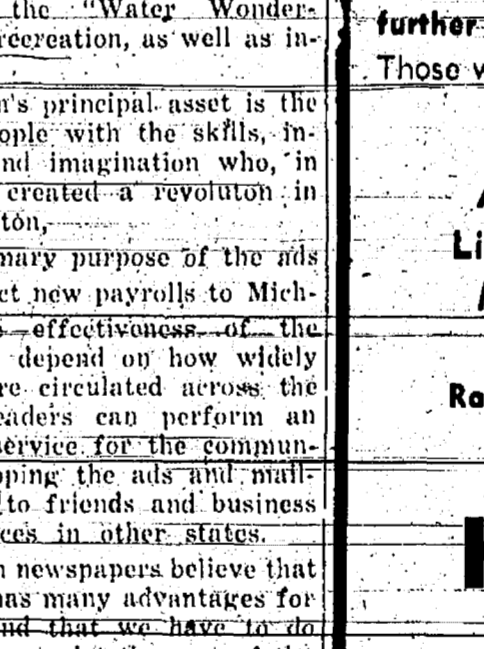

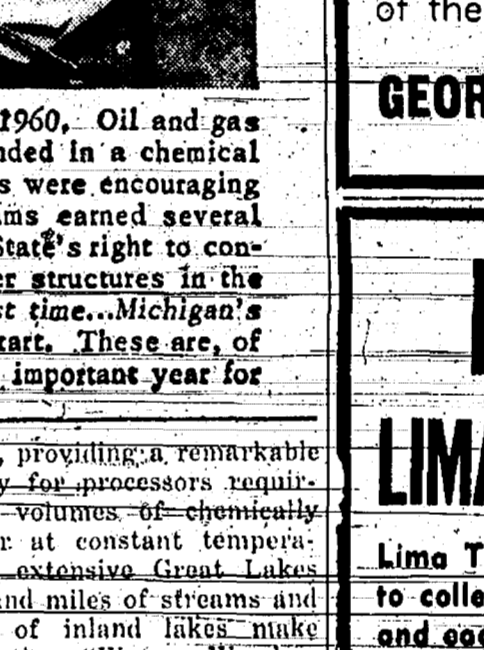

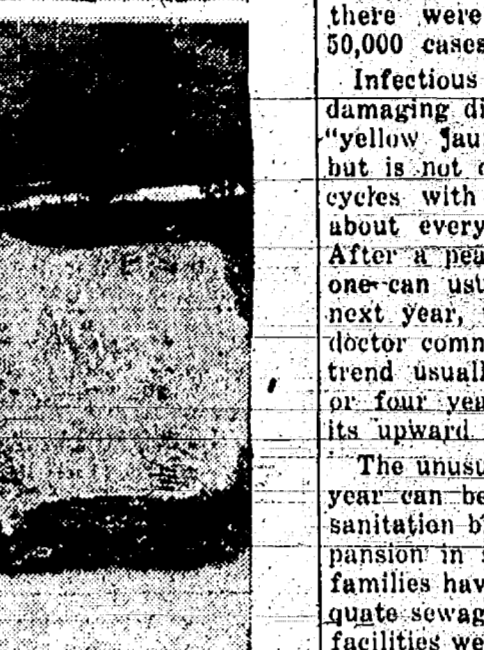

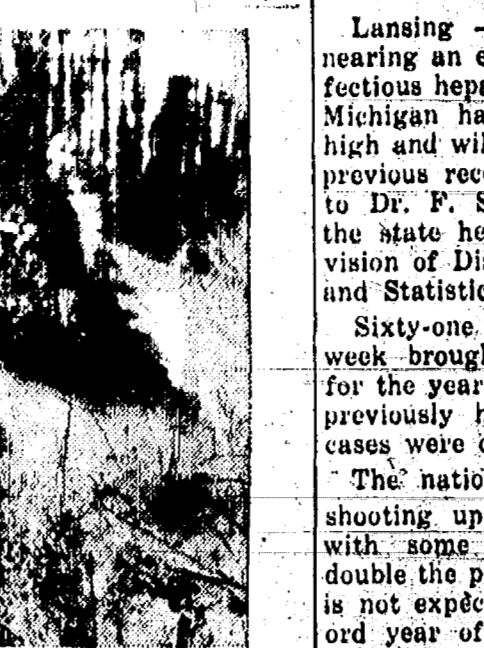

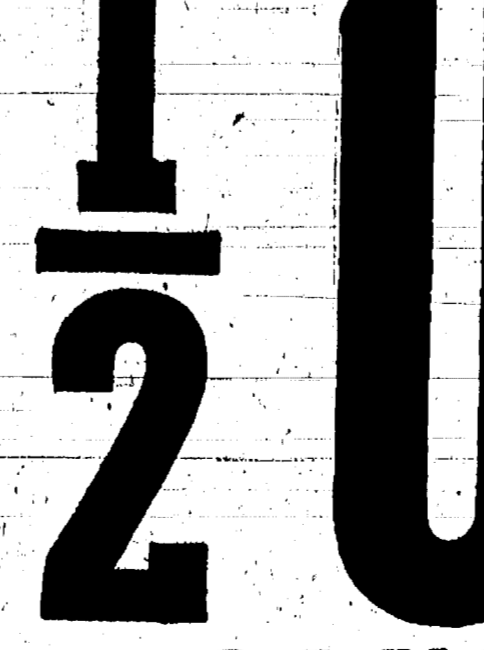

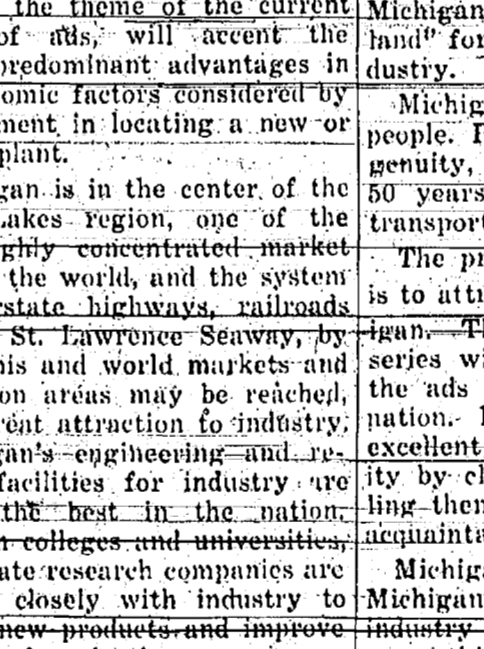

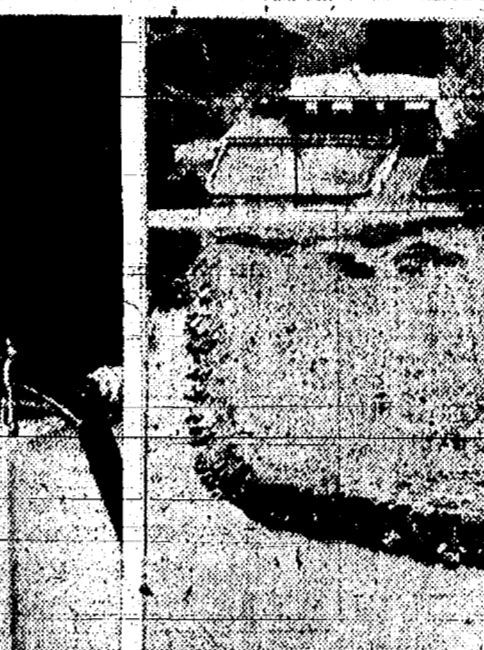

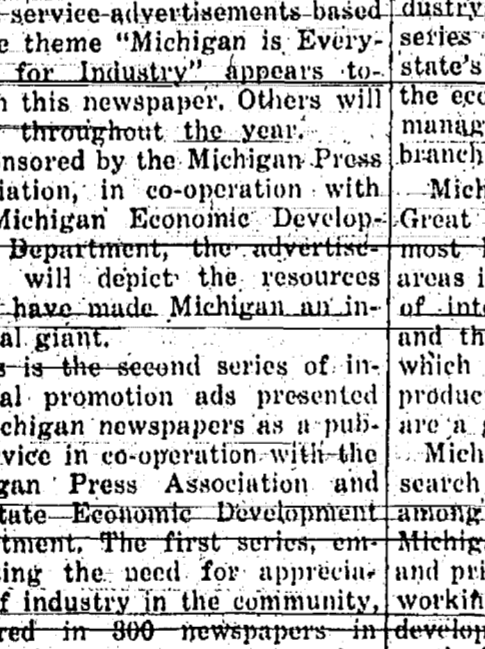

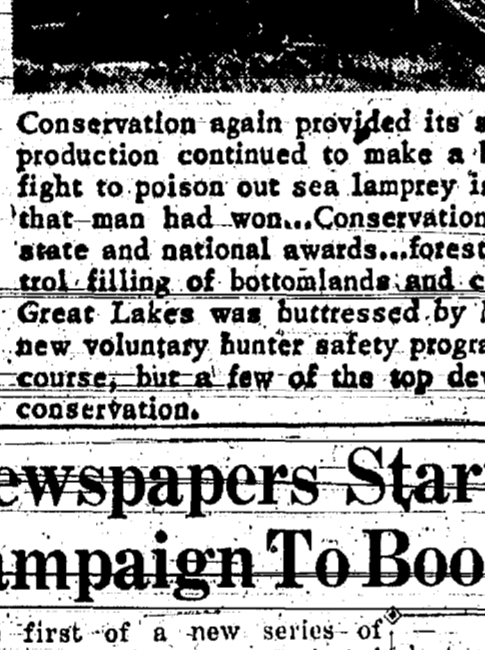

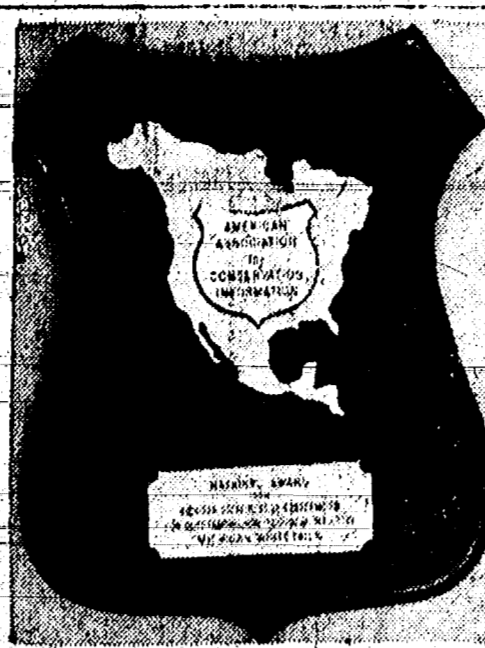

Department officials had one of their financial years confirmed in December when they learned that the Game and Fish Fund would have to absorb a near $250,000 drop in federal aid allotments during the 1960-61 fiscal year. In addition, almost $455,000 was held back from Michigan's wildlife restoration programs because of a so-called "duplication" in the state's certified number of paid hunting license holders for the last two fiscal years.

JANUARY UNEMPLOYMENT
Labor department officials have indicated they expect the nation's unemployment total to climb to more than 5,000,000 by January. This new unemployment figure is sure to receive attention from the eleven-member committee named by president-elect Kennedy to map a program of aid to areas of chronic unemployment.

RESTRICTS AID-SPENDING
Secretary of State Christian A. Herter has issued an order designed to force countries receiving United States aid to spend more of that money in the United States. It does not force the countries to buy American goods but it forbids them to spend the money in most of the other Western industrialized countries.

NEHRU'S WARNING
New Delhi—Prime Minister Nehru says India will shoot down Communist China planes crossing its borders "when we can."

Nehru made his threat to stop the violations with force under questioning in Parliament. It was the toughest stand he has taken on the long-simmering border dispute.

Hepatitis Cases Hit New High In State During Past Year

Lansing — With 1960 rapidly nearing an end, the number of infectious hepatitis cases reported in Michigan has set a new all-time high and will be nearly double the previous record in 1954, according to Dr. P. S. Leeder, director of the state health department's Division of Disease Control, Records and Statistics.

Sixty-one cases reported last week brought the total to 2,026 for the year, 606 more than in the previously high year when 1,419 cases were counted.

The national trend likewise is shooting up. Doctor Leeder said with some 40,000 cases, about double the previous year. The total is not expected to exceed the record year of 1954, however, when there were slightly more than 50,000 cases.

Infectious hepatitis is a liver-damaging disease commonly called "yellow jaundice" which can be, but is not often fatal. It runs in cycles with peaks being reached about every six or seven years. After a peak year, such as 1960, one can usually expect a dip the next year, the health department doctor commented. This downward trend usually continues for three or four years when it will start its upward climb again.

The unusually high increase this year can be credited partially to sanitation breakdowns in some expansion in suburban areas, where families have moved in before adequate sewage and water treatment facilities were available, also added to the rise of the disease. Michigan's rising population since the war is another contributing factor.

The disease spreads from person to person by the intestinal-oral route and is usually most prevalent in the winter and spring when there is normally closer personal contact among family members. It may also be contracted as the result of drinking water or eating food contaminated with the virus causing the illness.

The best prevention against the disease, which is found only among humans, is a high standard of personal cleanliness and community sanitation. Above all wash your hands frequently, Doctor Leeder advised.

Infectious hepatitis is generally, but not always, characterized by yellowing of the skin, a condition known as jaundice. Other complaints include loss of appetite, nausea, aching in the joints, and a tired feeling.

It is important to call the doctor early if a member of the family becomes ill and exhibits any of the symptoms of infectious hepatitis. Early treatment can lessen the severity of the illness and all other members of the family may be given gamma globulin to prevent secondary cases in the household.

Because of the sharp increase this year, the state health department now makes gamma globulin available to private doctors as soon as they report a suspected case.

The incubation period for the disease following exposure is from 15 to 45 days, with the average being 25 days for symptoms to appear. Calling the doctor early will greatly benefit other members of the family by earlier preventive action, Doctor Leeder pointed out.

Newspapers Start New Ad Campaign To Boost Michigan

The first of a new series of public-service advertisements based on the theme "Michigan is Everything for Industry" appears today in this newspaper. Others will follow throughout the year.

Sponsored by the Michigan Press Association, in co-operation with the Michigan Economic Development Department, the advertisements will depict the resources which have made Michigan an industrial giant.

This is the second series of industrial promotion ads presented by Michigan newspapers as a public service in co-operation with the Michigan Press Association and the state Economic Development Department. The first series, emphasizing the need for appreciation of industry in the community, appeared in 800 newspapers in 1959 and 1960.

"Michigan is Everything for Industry," the theme of the current series of ads, will accent the state's predominant advantages in the economic factors considered by management in locating a new or branch plant.

Michigan is in the center of the Great Lakes region, one of the most highly concentrated market areas in the world, and the system of interstate highways, railroads and the St. Lawrence Seaway, by which this and world markets and production areas may be reached, are a great attraction to industry.

Michigan's engineering and research facilities for industry are among the best in the nation. Michigan colleges and universities, and private research companies are working closely with industry to develop new products and improve methods of production.

unexcelled, providing a remarkable opportunity for processors requiring large volumes of chemically pure water at constant temperatures. Its extensive Great Lakes shoreline and miles of streams and thousands of inland lakes make Michigan the "Water Wonderland" for recreation, as well as industry.

Michigan's principal asset is the people. People with the skills, ingenuity, and imagination who, in 50 years, created a revolution in transportation.

The primary purpose of the ads is to attract new payrolls to Michigan. The effectiveness of the series will depend on how widely the ads are circulated across the nation. Readers can perform an excellent service for the community by clipping the ads and mailing them to friends and business acquaintances in other states.

Michigan newspapers believe that Michigan has many advantages for industry and that we have to do many things to let the rest of the country know it.

NEW DETROIT-CHICAGO ROUTE—The Automobile Club of Michigan has officially recommended a new route for motorists between Detroit and Chicago that saves one-third of the cost of the trip, plus at least a half-hour in time each way. It is the new Interstate 94 (I-94) freeway, which replaces US-12 as the Chicago Rd. since an 18-mile stretch of the new highway was officially opened to traffic between Ann Arbor and Jackson on Monday, Dec. 19. The new route recommended by the Auto Club utilizes I-94 from Detroit to Stevensville, where motorists will pick up the remnant of US-12. Stevensville lies seven miles south of St. Joseph, and leaves but 43 miles of Old US-12 to be traversed before picking up the Indiana Turnpike at the Michigan City, Ind., interchange. "The distance from downtown Detroit to downtown Chicago is now shaved to 291 miles, a saving of 30 miles over the previously recommended route that utilized the Detroit-Toledo Freeway and the Ohio and Indiana Turnpikes," Auto Club spokesmen say. Use of I-94 will also save a minimum of one-half hour in behind-the-wheel time between Detroit and Chicago. Auto Club surveys in the past have pegged driving time over the turnpike route at five hours and 27 minutes. Thus, the new I-94 route drops that time to below the five-hour mark for the first time in history.

Michigan Traffic Up 50 Per Cent in Past 10 Years

Lansing—The volume of traffic on Michigan highways has increased nearly 50 per cent during the last 10 years and will double again within 20 years.

State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie said Michigan motorists logged an estimated 32.8 billion vehicle miles during 1960.

"This represents an increase of 2.4 per cent over the 32 billion miles driven on Michigan highways in 1959 and a 49 per cent increase over the 22 billion miles driven in 1950," Mackie said.

Mackie said the increase in traffic volume during 1960 compared to the previous year "was slightly less than the average rate of increase in recent years."

"Unseasonably cool weather in June and July was the main reason our rate of increase was less this year than it has been in recent years," Mackie said.

Mackie said the increase in traffic volume during the last 10 years "is only the beginning."

"Our studies show the amount of traffic on Michigan highways will more than double in the next 20 years," Mackie said. "This makes it essential for us to make plans now to provide adequate highway facilities to meet the traffic volumes of the future."

Nearly six million barrels of cement was used in the construction of the 203-mile Detroit to St. Joseph freeway. A barrel of cement weighs 376 pounds.

Adult Swim Class Series Sponsored By Red Cross

The 1961 series of Red Cross adult swim classes will start Jan. 11, Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. at the Ann Arbor High school, Earle Ziegler, Water Safety Chairman announced today.

Red Cross water safety instructors will be teaching courses for non-swimmers through 8 on for life saving each Wednesday for the eight week period.

These co-educational classes are open to anyone in the county, at least 17 years of age, but registration will have to be limited to the first 60 persons signing up. Locker assignments will be made in Room C-104 and the first lessons will start as soon as everyone has been accommodated; so everyone bring along their suits, towels, and bathing caps.

Registration for any of the levels may be made by calling the Red Cross office at Normandy 2-5546 or by mail not later than Jan. 9.

Earle Ziegler noted that with the time for family outings in and around the water just around the corner, now is the time for every adult to learn to swim as well as their children and to learn the life saving methods which might save a member of their family.

Mrs. Annabelle Wadley was a Sunday-evening guest of Miss Jean LeVan of Ann Arbor. Miss LeVan was a dinner guest on Monday at the home of Mrs. Woolley and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vicary.

Why is it that when men or women act like children, they always imitate the worst traits of childhood?

Anti-Rabies Vaccination Clinics Set

Dr. Otto E. Engelke, Washtenaw county health officer, has announced that dog vaccination clinics will again be held throughout the county during the month of January for the convenience of dog owners.

The rabies vaccination clinics are part of a program of the Washtenaw County Veterinary Medical Association and the Health Department to keep rabies out of the county. Dr. Engelke pointed out. He said the practicing veterinarians in each community will serve in the clinics without pay this year. A $2 fee will be charged and Dr. Engelke said "We think that a $2.00 fee will approximately cover the cost of the clinics, but will not know until we have had the experience of conducting a few."

The new antigenized vaccine will protect dogs for a two-year period instead of the one-year protection obtained with vaccine used in the past.

Clinics similar to those planned this month have been conducted since 1948 when a county ordinance was passed requiring all dogs to be vaccinated prior to being licensed.

The clinics are not the only means of securing rabies vaccinations since veterinarians offer the vaccination the year-round at their offices for a regular fee; however, the clinics do offer low cost vaccination to dog owners who might find it difficult to comply with the regulation requiring vaccination for their dogs.

This year's clinics are under the direction of Dr. George E. Bowler, veterinarian-inspector on the Health Department staff.

The schedule, as submitted by Dr. Bowler indicates the following dates for clinics in this area: Lyndon Town Hall, Friday, Jan. 20, 7-8 p.m.; Dexter Fire Station, Saturday, Jan. 21, 2-5 p.m.; Manchester, at the Road Commission garage, Wednesday, Jan. 25, 7-9 p.m.; and Chelsea, at Sylvan Town Hall, Thursday, Jan. 26, 7-9 p.m.

According to Dr. Bowler, a representative of the township clerk's office will be present to issue a license to all dog owners who wish to purchase one at the time of the clinic. He reminded dog owners, also, that the deadline for purchasing a license without a penalty is March 1.

CAVIAR BOOTLEGGERS Tehran, Iran—Tehran's police with no sympathy for gourmets, are cracking down on a unique racket—the black market in caviar. A neighborhood on cut-rate caviar peddler was set up to two years in prison under the new law. Missionary Commissioning . . .

York, Jan. 17, and will have a six-day stop-over in Naples, Italy, before continuing the trip to Bombay, India.

According to present plans, the Schneiders will attend a language school for three months and then go to their assigned station Kodak canal, about 180 miles from Rauripur, which is a long-established mission of the Evangelical and Reformed Church.

A German Lutheran mission station in Orissa Province is approximately 70 miles from the place where the Schneiders will be located.

The work to which the Schneiders are assigned is the continuation of a program of agricultural extension begun 15 years ago by the Rev. Armin Meyer who is now retiring.

The agricultural extension program is described "as a means to witness for the Christian Church" by helping the people to grow more and better crops and generally raise their standard of living.

Schneider's work will include supervision of the program begun by Meyer. This includes three pastors serving approximately 40 small churches in the widely-scattered area and training Sunday school teachers, lay workers, etc., for the North India Church.

Schneider and his twin brother, Richard, graduated from Chelsea High school in 1953. Richard is now engaged in the Home Mission program of the Evangelical and Reformed Church as social director of the Winnebago Children's Home at Neillsville, Wis. He will be here Sunday to see his brother and sister-in-law commissioned for international mission work and will bring one of the Indian students with him. He will speak during the Sunday School hour at 9:30 a.m.

Douglas graduated from Michigan State University in 1958 after taking time off to earn money to complete his studies. Since then, he has been at Eden Seminary, Webster Groves, Mo., and expects to return there after his five years.

township board and remains in effect until voted out by qualified electors. The new regulation thus provides for zoning regulations to be in force during such time as the question is being decided; however the new ruling does not apply to the present situation since the permanent ordinance was passed before the law went into effect.

Tuesday's election will be held at the Lima Community Hall with polls open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. All qualified electors of the unincorporated area of the township are eligible to vote on the question. Property ownership is not a requirement.

Those people living in the eastern edge of the village of Chelsea (all the area east of McKinley St.) are not eligible to vote on the zoning question, since their property is under jurisdiction of the village zoning regulations.

The Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959 says that every employee, whether or not a union member, is entitled, on request, to receive a copy of each collective bargaining agreement made by the local union which directly affects his rights as an employee. For further information about this, contact the United States Department of Labor, Bureau of Labor-Management Reports, 1006 Washington Boulevard Building, Detroit, 26.

More Than 20 Persons Injured in New Year Week-End Crashes

The New Year week-end resulted in injury to more than 20 persons in 10 separate accidents in Washtenaw county, according to traffic reports.

One of the accidents, involving two cars occurred Sunday morning on I-94, four miles west of M-32.

Reports of the mishap state that a car being driven by Wayne Stanley of Chelsea, was unable to stop because of brake failure as it approached I-94 from a side road. It rolled into the path of a car being driven by Dennis E. Boos of Gregory.

Both drivers and passengers in the cars suffered lacerations and bruises and were taken to St. Joseph Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor.

The injured passengers were Darrell Stanley of Chelsea, Dennis Darlington of Gregory, and Larry Forsall of Stockbridge.

Personal Notes

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Miller and daughters, Nancy, Kay and Wanda of North Parma, were New Year dinner guests of the former's sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. George Knoll.

Janet Boylan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Boylan, returned home Friday from St. Joseph's Mercy hospital, Ann Arbor, where she underwent a tonsillectomy.

Airman Richard Laban, of Lincoln, Neb., spent the holidays here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laban.

Miss Judy Woolley spent the New Year's week-end with her grandmother, Mrs. Mabel Woolley at Manchester.

MYSTERY FARM NO. 131—This neatly landscaped farmstead is the property of Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Weber, 20790 Scio Church Rd. Their own farm home, a short distance west, does not appear in the photo. The house in the lower left front is arranged as two separate apartments. The Amos Curtises and William Browns live there.

Last Week's Mystery Farm Identified as Sylvester Weber Place on Scio Church Rd.

The Weber house is the family home of Sylvester Weber's parents which was originally located for many years on Burdick Rd., now a part of the Chrysler Proving Ground. When their Burdick Rd. farm was acquired by Chrysler in 1948, the house was moved east across the fields and across Manchester Rd. to be relocated on the present site.
The barn nearest the road was also moved there from the Burdick Rd. farm in Sylvan township.
The Weber farm on Scio Church Rd. formerly was known for many years as the Boynton farm and then as the Klingler place. The Webers bought it from the Ralph Klinglers in 1948.
Originally 100 acres in size, Ralph Klingler bought additional acreage from the neighboring farm known as the Jones or Zilke place. The farm is now 256 acres in size. Weber does general farming on the place and now specializes in raising sheep. He customarily has about 300 breeding ewes and fatten 300 lambs. He also keeps about 20 head of cattle.
The Klingler family who lived on the farm for many years included two brothers, Ralph and Wilbur and their families. Wilbur, whose wife is the former Ruth Lindemann, now lives on a farm near Leslie, and Ralph and his family are living in California.
According to ownership records, Weber said, the farm was secured from the U. S. Government in 1931 by Stephen J. Chase. The Chase family remained prominent in the area for the next 100 years.
In 1848 the land was sold to Lemuel S. Scott and three years later to Sheldon Ide.
In 1850 Joel B. Boynton became the owner, and it remained the property of the Boynton family and estate until 1914 when it was sold to Orin Burkhardt.
Mary A. Storms and Alletta J. Cummings, heirs of Joel Boynton had transferred a quit claim deed in 1864 to George W. Boynton who owned it until his death almost 40 years later, in 1903.
Burkhardt owned it for nine years before it was acquired by Christian Klingler, and later, by the latter's son Ralph who, with his brother, Wilbur, carried on an extensive dairy business.
The Webers related that about 50 years ago two large barns on the place were destroyed by fire. They also learned, they said, that Mrs. Warren Daniels made her home on the farm as a child. Her father, Frank Stofnis, who later was active in the lumber, grain and coal business in Chelsea for many years before his death, operated the farm for a number of years.
Those who called The Standard office soon after publication to correctly identify the Weber farm are the men at Bess' Elevator, also Charles Curtis, Mrs. Amos Curtises, Mrs. Harold Wall, Paul Rothfuss, Mrs. Walter Trinkle, Ernest Horning, Bill Curtis, Mrs. Donald Robbins and J. Dean Sedy.

U-M Grid Great Retires from Huron-Clinton Authority

Ernest Allmendinger, off-long Ann Arbor resident, known throughout this area because of his 30 years' connection with the Washtenaw County Road Commission, has announced his retirement, effective Jan. 1, from the staff of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority. He has been employed by the Authority the past six years. He worked out of the Detroit office of the five-county Authority concerned chiefly with parks.

Allmendinger began work with the Washtenaw County Road Commission as a foreman in 1921, with headquarters at Ann Arbor. During World War II he served as superintendent after being named acting manager.

Active in Washtenaw county civic affairs he served from 1949 until 1955 as volunteer veteran's re-employment rights committee man for the Washtenaw county area which was organized by the U. S. Department of Labor under the Selective Service and Training Act of 1940.

Prominent in football while a student at Ann Arbor High school and at the University of Michigan under Coach Fielding H. Yost he later, while serving in the Army, played on the Fort Sheridan team and was named All-American in 1917.

Before entering the Army Allmendinger served on several coaching assignments including acting as assistant coach at the University of Michigan.

He graduated from the University in 1916 with a bachelor's degree in forestry. Later he did some graduate work in engineering through extension courses at the University.

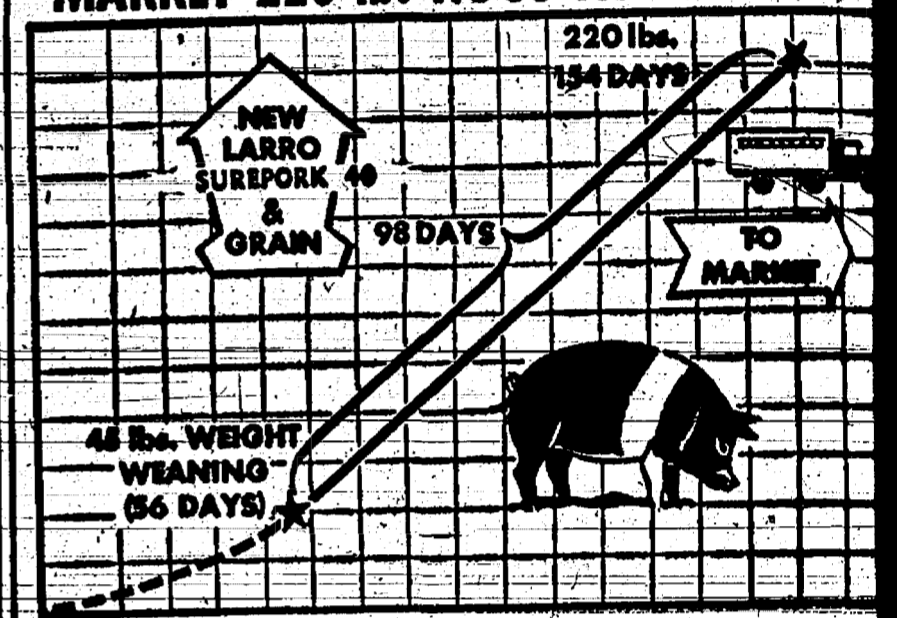

Prior to the holiday season Allmendinger was honored at a retirement banquet given in Detroit by employees of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

Milk Production Record Told for Macomber Holsteins

Baker Cavalier Copyright M 4801379 owned by George Macomber, Ann Arbor, produced 13,364 lbs. milk and 588 lbs. butterfat in 305 days on twice a day milking as a five-year-old, according to official production record announced by the Holstein-Friesian Association of America, with headquarters at Brattleboro, Vt.

Michigan State University supervised the weighing and testing of production as a part of official herd testing program the national Holstein organization. These programs provide excellent lactation and lifetime production records of every cow in more than 2,000 participating registered herds.

American Legion Auxiliary

At the regular monthly meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary, Tuesday evening, plans were discussed for a fund-raising event to be held this month. A committee appointed to arrange for the project includes Mrs. Charles Popovich, Mrs. Ruth Chiswell and Mrs. Leon Shutes. Announcement was made that the Auxiliary's monthly coffee hour for patients at the VA hospital, Ann Arbor, is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 14.

Reports were given at the meeting by chairmen of the various committees of the organization including the child welfare chairman, Mrs. Merle Burr, Sr., who reported that a needy veteran's family had been remembered with a Christmas gift.

Mrs. Popovich mentioned in her report as junior activities chairman that a Christmas party was given for junior members and was attended by 16 girls and three mothers. Mrs. Popovich also expressed appreciation to Mrs. William Blaess and Mrs. Eldon Gorton for their assistance in organizing and preparing for the party.

It was announced that a Second District meeting is to be held at Brooklyn, Sunday, Jan. 29.

The NATIONAL OUTLOOK

BY RALPH ROBEY

What Happened In Year of 1960

Most persons already have made their forecast for what is ahead for the next twelve months or longer. The number engaging in this annual exercise runs to many, many thousands. Businessmen have to do it as a basis for planning for the future. They may limit their predictions to their own markets and company, or they may cover the entire economic system. In addition there are hundreds and hundreds of others who attempt to look into the future because it is a part of their job.

We make such an annual forecast perhaps primarily because it is a habit—and to some extent as a result of it being expected—and we hope that it is of interest. This year the task is not easy. We have delayed beyond the usual date in order to have the benefit of what others had to say, and to get the latest possible statistics.

Majority opinion, especially among professional analysts, is that we have been in a mild recession for many months. Last April or May are the most commonly cited months for its beginning. It also is generally assumed by this group that the modest downturn will continue until the middle of 1961.

Now there is no question that recently business has not been moving upward and much unfavorable news has been published. But have we been having what properly may be termed a recession? That depends, of course, upon how one defines "recession." Let us look at the major factors which pretty well determined the business curve over the past year.

First was elimination of the fear of inflation. Since 1940 or before we have had an almost continuous increase of price. Almost everyone got in the habit of assuming that the rise would continue. Then in 1959 prices began to stabilize, and by early 1960 it was evident that it no longer made sense to count on higher and higher prices. To some extent this stability was the result of conscious policy on the part of the Federal Administration and the Federal Reserve Board, but it also was helped by the elimination of shortages and unsatisfied demands by the development of a surplus of almost all basic commodities, and by the public deciding that prices were as high as they should be and, in effect, letting it be known that they were not going to pay any more.

The second great influence on the business trend during 1960 was the change in inventories. In the first quarter of the year business added to its inventories at an annual rate of over $11 billion. That was a rate which could not be continued, but the rapidity of the change and its extent were much more extreme than usual. By the second quarter the rate of accumulation had been cut in half, by the third quarter it had been eliminated entirely, and in the fourth quarter apparently final estimates are not yet published, there was an actual decline.

Elimination of the fear of inflation unquestionably was important in bringing about this change of inventory policy. If goods are not going to cost any more there is no reason for holding unneeded supplies. Unused capacity in our major industries, and the assurance of quick delivery, also made a contribution to the lowering of the volume of goods held.

Such a reduction of inventories has a direct and enormous effect upon the economic trend. It curtails orders, reduces production, lifts unemployment, lowers profits, destroys the incentive to invest in new plant and equipment, lessens government revenues, undermines business confidence, and so forth and so on.

In the next column we shall spell out some of these results and give an indication of their magnitude.

ENGAGED — Mr. and Mrs. Newman-Begole, 685 Begole Rd., Milan, announce the engagement of their daughter, Jean Kay, to Ronald V. Satterthwaite, son of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Satterthwaite, 14075 Jerusalem Rd., The Bridge, Detroit, who is a graduate of Chelsea High school, attended Central Michigan University, and is employed by the University of Michigan. Her fiancé was graduated from Chelsea High school. He is employed by Blaess Elevator Co. No wedding date has been set.

He is Prof. Archie H. Easton, director of the Motor Vehicle Research Laboratory at the University of Wisconsin, who points to results of comprehensive tests by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards. He is chairman of the committee and is described as the outstanding authority on "inefficiencies of friction as related to winter road surfaces."

Prof. Easton's favorite subject, when he isn't teaching his engineering classes at the University, is to talk about the facts of safe winter driving. He points out that during snow-free months rural traffic death rates are three times higher than in urban areas.

Having risked his limbs and life time and again in winter test driving, Easton can tell about hundreds of test results with all types of vehicles—tire treads and chains to reduce dangers of skidding or stalling. He recommends that all snow-belt drivers, particularly those in rural communities, study the following facts:

WINTER STARTING—When it comes to starting and pulling ability on glare ice, snow tires are 28 per cent better than regular tires; regular tire chains are 33 per cent better, while reinforced tire chains are 400 per cent better. On loosely packed snow, the snow tires are 61 per cent better than regular tires, whereas reinforced tire chains provided 313 per cent better traction.

STOPPING ABILITY—On glare ice, at only 20 mph, braking distances for regular tires average 195 feet. Snow tires take 174 feet, regular tire chains 99 feet, and reinforced tire chains 77 feet. At 20 mph on loosely packed snow, regular tires stopped in 60 feet, snow tires 52 feet, regular tire chains 46 feet, and reinforced tire chains 38 feet.

BASIC CONCLUSIONS—Prof. Easton summarizes other basic conclusions from his winter driving tests, to aid drivers in 43 snow-belt states just before severe weather and road conditions set in, as follows:

1. The most hazardous winter surface condition is ice near or at the freezing temperature.

2. Braking distances on winter surfaces are 3 to 12 times as great as those on bare pavement.

3. Tires and traction devices listed in the approximate order of increasing effectiveness on winter surfaces are as follows:

A. Smooth tires—very poor in winter. Should not be used.

B. Regular tires—adequate under many winter conditions.

C. Winterized tire (tread treatment or breakout material)—provide better traction on ice, not much improvement in snow over regular tires.

D. Mud-snow modern design—provide better snow and ice traction than regular tires. Effective on wet ice.

E. Embedded metal coils, serpentine ribs—provide better snow and ice traction than regular tires. Effective on wet ice.

F. Sanders—performance outstanding in traction on ice only.

G. Regular round wire tire chains—Good stop-and-go performance on ice and snow. Side-skid resistance low compared to reinforced tire chains.

Winter Driving Tests Show Dangers in Smooth Tires

By Bob Foss

Madison—A University of Wisconsin research professor who has conducted winter driving tests on Wisconsin's ice and snow for the past dozen years has revealed that some winter-tire advertisers occasionally "get carried away" and present misleading information which is unfair to the majority of companies which stick to factual information.

He calls attention to a national safety committee resolution warning that "misleading advertising concerning non-skid properties of tires can become an indirect cause of costly traffic tie-ups and painful accidents by leading motorists into taking risks of which they are not fully aware."

He is Prof. Archie H. Easton, director of the Motor Vehicle Research Laboratory at the University of Wisconsin, who points to results of comprehensive tests by the National Safety Council's Committee on Winter Driving Hazards. He is chairman of the committee and is described as the outstanding authority on "inefficiencies of friction as related to winter road surfaces."

Series of Classes Scheduled for Expectant Parents

A new series of Expectant Parents' classes begins Jan. 5 in Room 1 in the basement of the County Building Thursday nights, and those present for the first session will hear Mrs. Audrey Negrelli, public health nurse, discuss how the baby grows before birth. Mrs. Negrelli's discussion will be designed to provide an preview of the entire program of Expectant Parents' classes as well as to help the parents to develop an understanding of how their baby grows before birth.

Included in Mrs. Negrelli's discussion will be a film titled "Human Reproduction" which will show the growth and development of the baby before birth and will also show diagrammatically how labor takes place. Mrs. Negrelli will also discuss the anatomy and the physiology of pregnancy and then will open the class to discussion and questions from the group assembled. This new series of classes will meet each Thursday night in the County Building for the next seven weeks.

Registration may be accomplished at the class meeting and the registration will be open at 7 p.m. to allow ample time for registration before the class begins at 7:30 p.m. The registration fee for the entire series is $2.50 per couple. This includes seven classes. A special class is held for the fathers only. In addition a tour of the maternity wards of the hospital in which the mother expects to deliver is planned.

Diabetes Test Kits Still Available

"Of the 55,000 diabetes test kits distributed during Diabetes Week in November only 5,700 have been returned so far," Henry D. Kaine, M.D., Detroit chairman of the Association's detection committee reported today.

Dr. Kaine pointed out that the test strips do not change color and cannot be interpreted by persons using them, but must be returned to the Association for laboratory analysis. He added that testing will continue and results will be reported to individuals sending them until June 1, if necessary.

However, there are probably 40 to 50 previously unknown diabetics among those who have not sent in their test kits," he warned, "and delay in discovery and treatment may result in serious complications or even death. Therefore we urge these persons to use and send in their test kits at once."

Dr. Kaine pointed out that test results are kept in confidence. Only the individual tested and the physician named by him are notified. Individuals or organizations desiring test kits may still obtain them by addressing a postcard to the Michigan Diabetes Association, 3919 John R, Detroit 1.

The Association, a Michigan United Fund Agency, also provides information regarding diabetes on request and maintains a summer camp for diabetic children.

State Tourist Income Equals 1959 Despite Fluctuations

Lansing—Despite marked "ups and downs" in tourist patronage throughout 1960, Michigan's vacation travel business apparently stayed about even with 1959 levels, according to the state tourist council.

This means some 10 million persons—about half of them Michigan residents—vacationed in Michigan. Preliminary estimates by the council indicate tourist spending for the year in Michigan may reach the $650 million total recorded in 1959.

Council director Robert J. Furlong said the $650 million figure was achieved in both 1958 and 1959.

"This keeps tourism among Michigan's top three income producers," he said, "but the fact that the state is not getting its share of the growing vacation travel market is cause for concern."

Furlong said while Michigan is "standing still" in its dollar income from tourism, other states and vacation areas are showing annual increases in the amount of money spent by vacationers.

In summarizing the 1960 tourist business year in Michigan, the council emphasized the great variations in individual vacation areas around the state.

"Our surveys show some communities reporting increases in tourist business ranging from 2 per cent to 15 per cent, while other localities estimate declines ranging up to 30 per cent," Furlong said.

Weather also played a major role in the state's over-all vacation business, according to the council. Summaries compiled from reports from vacation areas throughout the state:

Winter: Early in 1960 winter sports conditions were very good and the skiing season ran well in to March at northern resorts. There was a continued upswing in interest in winter vacations.

Spring-Summer: Cool weather in June and early July dropped tourist volume below 1959 levels, but this decline was partially offset by a sizeable increase in vacation travel during late July and August.

Autumn: Good weather helped stimulate travel during the fall color season and most vacation

Complete Retirement Not Necessary To Draw Social Security Benefits

You do not have to completely retire to draw social security benefits, and under recent changes in the social security law, many social security beneficiaries who work in 1961 and later years will have less of their benefits withheld than they do now.

A beneficiary who earns more than $1,200 loses only $1 of benefits for every $2 that he earns between $1,200 and $1,500. For every $1 of earnings above $1,500, he loses $1 of his benefits.

Under the rules in effect before 1961, a beneficiary who earned over $1,200 in a year would lose a whole month's benefit check for every $80, or fraction of $80 by which his earnings exceeded $1,200. So, if his earnings were over $2,080, he would lose all benefits for the year.

However, under both the old and the new rules, a beneficiary may be paid his full benefit check for any month in which he neither works for wages of more than $100 nor renders substantial services in self-employment. It does not matter how high his total earnings for the year may go, he will still be paid his checks for those months.

If you are a man age 65 or older, or a woman, age 62 or over, and are still working part-time, you may be eligible to social security benefits for some of the months in the calendar year. If you are already getting social security benefits, you will get full information through the mail about the new rules so that you may plan for the work you may want to do in 1961. If you are past retirement age, but have not yet applied for your social security benefits, because your earnings are too high to get in touch with your social security office, now. The new rule that goes into effect in 1961 may make it possible for you to collect some benefits even though you are working.

Freedom of speech is not valuable unless somebody will listen.

area reported brisk business. The trend toward more autumn recreational travel was evident again this year. However, the usual boost provided by the November 15-30 deer season was curtailed in many areas as rain and fog marred the season opening and many hunters apparently shortened their trips.

Some indicators of tourist business put 1960 ahead of the previous year. Michigan highway traffic was up 4 per cent over 1959, state park campgrounds reported all-time record use, and the growing popularity of boating and water skiing continued.

Meanwhile, Mackinac Bridge crossings were down some 5 per cent and fishing license sales showed a 3 per cent decrease.
