School Levy Defeated, To Be Submitted Again On Monday, Sept. 11

Drastic Curtailments in Operation Outlined as Necessary Alternative

The Chelsea School District's board of education proposal for a three-year levy for a period of three years was defeated Tuesday's election.

At a special board meeting held Tuesday to determine future action, it was decided to hold a special election Monday, Sept. 11, regarding approval for a two-mill levy for a period of only one year.

The motion for the two-mill levy for one year was made by Stuart Foster and supported by Paul Mann, Luther Kusterer, and Arthur Kuhl casting the dissenting vote.

K-C Officers Installed at Tuesday Meet

Installation of officers of Chelsea Council No. 3092, Knights of Columbus, originally planned for a September meeting, was moved forward for the convenience of the installing officer and took place at the K. of C. Hall Tuesday evening.

James Gaken, grand knight of the Chelsea Council and his staff of officers were installed by District Deputy Richard Dunnigan of Jackson, assisted by Karl W. Meyer, a past grand knight of the Jackson Council, Knights of Columbus.

Meyer is known by area people as commander of the nationally famed Jackson drill team, the Zouaves.

Grand Knight Gaken appointed J. Vincent Burg, II, as lecturer and Jack Merkel as general chairman of the "Six-Point Program" of the Supreme Council, Knights of Columbus. This program includes the following: Catholic activities; Council activities; fraternal activities; membership and installation; publicity and youth activities.

A chicken barbecue will be held "rain or shine" on Labor Day afternoon by the Washtenaw County Democrats. It will be held at the Washtenaw Rural Activities Center on Saline-Ann Arbor Rd. from 3 to 5:30 p.m.

Guest of honor at the affair will be U.S. Senator Philip Hart of Michigan who will speak briefly, according to Peter Darrow, chairman of the Washtenaw County Democratic Committee.

"There's nothing to bring, plenty of parking, and lots of good food for only $1.50 per person," according to Darrow.

Mrs. Annette Hodes of Ann Arbor is general chairman of the barbecue and she said yesterday that Arthur Carpenter, Ann Arbor attorney, is heading the committee in charge of cooking the chicken.

Mrs. Annabelle Woolley and daughter, Judy, accompanied Fremont Boyer to the home of his parents near Charlotte on Sunday.

Annual 4-Day Event Promises To Be Best, Largest Ever Staged

John O'Connor Injured Sunday In Auto Crash

John O'Connor is a patient at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital recovering from head and neck injuries received at 8:30 p.m. Sunday when his car went out of control on loose gravel and struck a fence.

The accident occurred on Cassidy Rd. near his home, 17113 Roe Rd., in Lyndon township. His car was extensively damaged.

Good Fishing Reported in Deep Water

Conservation Officer Donkey Boyer reports that fish are biting in deep water lakes in the area.

"Really nice" bluegills being taken in the past 10 days from depths of 16 feet or lower.

Best bluegill response has come from the use of shrimp-and-crickets as bait, Boyer states.

Bass fishing is "not so good," Boyer said. In fact, Cavanaugh Lake is the only area lake where bass have been biting at all.

Boyer said fishing violators continue to be apprehended.

One of the most flagrant was that of Floyd Schultz, 23, of Garden City, who was fishing without a license on Little Portage Lake Sunday, Aug. 6. He told Boyer he had a license but had forgotten it and left it at home.

A few days later Boyer received verification that a license had been issued to Schultz in Livonia at 2:30 p.m. Aug. 5; however, further investigation revealed the fact that Schultz could not have been in Livonia at that time because he had left for the lake before then.

Suspecting a pre-dated license, purchased on his return home, Detroit officers were notified and the license agent admitted the charge and was assessed a fine of $10 and costs amounting to $8.

Schultz, in turn, was ordered to appear before Ann Arbor Municipal Judge Francis O'Brien on Friday, Aug. 18, pleading guilty to fishing without a license he was ordered to pay fine and costs of $12.30.

Two other violators appeared Thursday before Justice of the Peace Chandler Rogers here.

Princess Johnson, 32, was assessed $7.30 costs and a suspended fine of $5.00 for fishing on Winnebago pond without a license on Aug. 5, and Phillip Bayton, 28, of Dearborn, paid $12.30 fine and costs for fishing without a license Aug. 6 on Little Portage Lake.

Garage Building Underway at Road Commission Yards

At the Chelsea Yards of the Washtenaw County Road Commission, a new garage and repair shop is under construction.

Wilbert Breitenwischer, district foreman, said the new addition to the Chelsea plant will be 100 feet long and 50 feet wide.

Located approximately 100 feet from the street, it is being erected on the former Thomas Howe property which was acquired by the Road Commission several years ago.

A U-shaped driveway will lead to the garage from the street and the area from the driveway to the street is to be landscaped in keeping with the residential neighborhood. The yards are located on the north side of West Middle St., opposite the Wilkinson St. intersection. The new building is approximately 500 feet west of the intersection.

Of cement block construction, the building will be heated by means of overhead gas heaters.

In addition to the area for garage repair service, the building will provide office and storage space.

The construction contractor is Theodore Wolff, Jr., of Ann Arbor.

Grid Practice Will Begin Next Monday

Physical examinations for all boys in Senior and Junior high school who wish to play football will be given free of charge on Friday, Aug. 25, (tomorrow) at 1 p.m., at the high school locker room.

Any boy in Junior or Senior high school who does not take his physical at this time will have to pay for his own.

Equipment will be issued for varsity candidates on Saturday Aug. 26, at 8:30 a.m. Boys going out for the junior varsity will receive equipment on Friday Sept. 1, at 1 p.m.

Practice for Chelsea High school's football team will begin Monday, Aug. 28, the first week being only for those boys in grades 9-12 who want to try out for the varsity team.

Boys, usually younger, who do not want to try out for varsity football but wish to become candidates for the junior varsity team, will begin practice on Sept. 5.

Chelsea's first game of the season is scheduled for Sept. 16, with Milan being the opposition.

Conference rules require three weeks of practice before the first game of the season so varsity candidates who wish to play in the Milan-Chelsea game must report on Aug. 28. Coach Alan Conklin points out.

Accident insurance costs for football candidates should be paid and physical examination forms correctly filled out should be presented by each boy when he reports for equipment.

Polling Places Set for Wheat Referendum

Wheat producers eligible to vote in the 1962 wheat marketing quota referendum to be held Aug. 24 may cast their ballots at any one of eight polling places in Washtenaw county, according to Max M. Kalmbach, chairman, County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Growers eligible to vote in the referendum are those who produced more than 13.5 acres of wheat in any one of the years 1959, 1960, or 1961. Producers who signed applications under the feed wheat provisions permitting them to grow wheat for feed use only on their farms for 1961 will not be eligible to vote.

Results of the referendum will determine the kind of wheat program that will be in effect for next year's crop. For this reason, every wheat producer should make his wishes known by casting his ballot at his local polling place, the chairman declared.

Voters in Washtenaw county may vote in the wheat referendum on Thursday, Aug. 24, from 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m., at the following polling places:

Dexter, Webster, Scio Townships—Dexter Fire Hall in Dexter; Sylvan, Lima, Lyndon Townships—Sylvan Town Hall in Chelsea;

Manchester, Sharon, Freedom Townships—Sharon Town Hall, Pleasant Lake Rd.; Saline, Bridgewater Townships—Saline Township Hall, Braun Rd.;

Augusta, York, Ypsilanti Townships—Stoney Creek Grange Hall, Stoney Creek Rd.;

Ann Arbor, Superior Townships—Superior Township Hall, Cherry Hill and Prospect Rds.;

Salem, Northfield Townships—Emery Store, Earhart Rd.;

Pittsfield, Lodi Townships—Pittsfield Township Hall, State and Ellsworth Rds.;

SPECIAL NOTICE
Anyone planning to plant wheat on land where wheat has not been grown for the years 1959, 1960 or 1961 should consult the local ASCS office for information prior to wheat planting time. This land is ineligible to grow wheat in 1962.

Season Tickets Now Available From Merchants

People who attend the Chelsea Community Fair next week will have the opportunity of "eating out" at the new "French Cafe" an innovation at this year's fair.

Fritz Schumm, head chef, has planned the menus for the four-day project, including such items as Swiss steak, baked ham and Southern fried chicken as well as sandwiches and pastries.

The "French Cafe" is located at the west edge of the fairgrounds adjoining the former Red School building which houses the kitchen and other dining area.

Fair officials are urging that families who attend the fair have their meals together in the new cafe.

M. J. Anderson, daily events committee chairman, has announced some new attractions. One of these is featuring Shetland ponies in a pulling contest. These ponies are able to pull 3,500 pounds and have been known to pull up to 4,000 pounds.

The event will take place Saturday, Sept. 2, after the grand parade. Anderson also stated that there would be a drawing on Saturday night for two new bicycles to be given to some lucky boy and girl.

Tickets for this drawing are available from many of the downtown merchants.

Charles Lancaster, Fair Board president, announced that a $25 Savings Bond will be given away each night. The drawing will take place at 10:30 each night at the French Cafe. The name that is drawn will be announced and that person must be present to receive the bond. If he is not there for the drawing, the bond will be carried over to the next night. The person whose name is drawn on that night will receive both bonds, provided he is at the drawing. Tickets for this event will be available at either entrance to the fairgrounds.

Charles Cameron has stated that season tickets are now available. These are individual tickets and allow the person to enter the fairgrounds freely; otherwise, each person is charged 25 cents each time he or she enters the grounds. The season ticket sells for $1.00 and is available from any of the downtown merchants. There will also be parking stickers for 50 cents available upon request.

George Atkinson reports that the parade will undoubtedly be the largest Chelsea has seen at a Community Fair. Many new entries have been received and more are coming in, according to Atkinson's report.

Again, the public is urged to send in entry blanks at once.

A limited number of season tickets for the fair are still available and prospective purchasers are urged to get theirs as soon as possible.

This week's report of preparations, Fair officials point out, indicates that Chelsea's 1961 Community Fair will not only be "better-than-ever" but "better-than-best" and urge everyone to make every effort to attend the four-day event, Aug. 30-Sept. 2.

Paul Maroney Named to Legion State Commission

Paul Maroney, a member of Herbert J. McKune Post No. 31, has been appointed director of the Post Activities Commission of the Department of Michigan American Legion. The new state commander, Marshall "Mike" Taylor, served in the capacity of Post Activities Director the past year.

Maroney, as director, is in charge of four special committees—music and drill; ritual team; marksmanship; and Post activities. Each of the committees has a chairman.

Maroney served in his present capacity as director of the Post Activities Commission two years ago and at that time the present state commander served as chairman of the Post activities committee.

The appointment of Maroney as director is for a one-year term.

CUB SCOUTS of Pack 125 and Boy Scouts who accompanied them lined up to have their pictures taken just before leaving for the trip to Detroit to see Saturday's Detroit-Houston baseball game as guests of the Detroit Baseball Co. The group met at the Municipal parking lot at 11 a.m. Each Cub Scout was required to bring 50 cents, which he had earned himself, for transportation; another 50 cents for snacks; and a snack lunch from home. All reported having had "lots of fun." The Detroit Tigers won the game 3-2 on a pinch-hit in the last of the ninth inning.

Another restriction necessitated by the fact that only one school bus of the year could be permitted without payment of rental fee was the annual junior-senior reunion. All others would require payment of full rental fees.

The athletic board would be required to pay costs of $30 for each football game at home; $50 for each home basketball game; $40 for each night of the Midway Basketball Tournament.

Fees for summer band students would be raised to cover the entire cost of the band director's salary.

Appropriations for school services and supplies which the board decided would be necessary, also: School Library cut to $1,000 from the 1960-61 figure of $3,000; administrative supplies and expenses cut to $3,000 from the 1960-61 figure of $4,000; teaching supplies cut an additional $1,000, bringing the total amount to a net of $1,000 from the 1960-61 figure.

Two janitors will need to be dismissed; all capital outlay would be eliminated; and transportation cut from $47,716 in 1960-61 to $48,300 in 1961-62 and this in view of the fact that buses will be year older with expense of upkeep consequently higher.

The Chelsea District now has two buses that are less than two years old while two are more than 10 years old.

No money was set aside through the years for replacement of buses. Nothing is provided in the present budget for contingencies or emergencies and no new buses or furniture purchases would be made this year.

On the basis of present enrollment, kindergarten sections will be 31 or 32 children per section. School Board being without sufficient money to hire a needed full-time teacher.

All decisions made at yesterday's special School Board meeting regarding ways and means to deal with the situation should voters fail to approve the millage levy, are unanimous with the exception.

Open House Set for New Dairy Facilities at MSU

New facilities at the Dairy Cattle Research and Teaching Center at Michigan State University will be open for public inspection on Friday, Sept. 1.

Staff members of the MSU Department of Dairy will conduct a tour of the new facilities at 9:30 a.m. and will discuss the dairy research programs in progress. The buildings will be dedicated at 12:30 p.m., says C. A. Lassiter, department head.

Lassiter invites all interested dairy farmers and any others who would like to visit the new dairy setup to come to East Lansing on that date.

The new facilities are on College Road about one fourth mile south of the Michigan Artificial Breeders Co-operative on the Michigan State University campus. The old dairy barns on Shaw Lane will be torn down later to make way for other construction.

Four new barns, all of one-story pole construction, make up the center of the new Research Center, Lassiter says. They are fully insulated with corrugated, enameled aluminum siding and ceilings. Each

Township Officials Plan Annual Meet

George D. Jorjes, clerk of Summit township, Jackson county and John R. West, supervisor of Clayton township, Genesee county, and both members of the Board of Directors of Michigan Townships Association have announced that final plans are completed for the annual meeting of all township officials from the seven counties of the Second and Sixth Congressional Districts of Michigan, to be held at the American Legion Home in Ann Arbor on Tuesday, Aug. 29, starting at 10 a.m.

The meeting, designed to bring together those who make the laws and those who must carry them out, will feature a "face to face" discussion with the congressmen, state senators, state representatives, state officers, county officers and township officials. An added feature this year will be the presence of the candidates for delegate to the Constitutional Convention.

Among those invited to attend, in addition to several hundred township officials, are Congressmen Charles E. Chamberlain and George Meader; State Senators Garland Lane, Haskell Nichols, Elmer Porter, Paul C. Younger and Stanley Thayer; and State Representatives James Warner, Ralph Young, Roger Townsend, William Sterling, Gordon Rockwell, Albert Hager, James N. Folks, Lee Horgan, Harold Hungerford, Gerald Fitzgerald, Rollo G. Conlin, Gilbert Bursley and Wilfred G. Bassett.

County officers invited include the chairman of the Washtenaw County Board of Supervisors, E. A. Wolter; William Ager, prosecuting attorney; John Conlin, probate judge; George Peterson, sheriff; Luella M. Smith, clerk; Wm. Verner, treasurer; Patricia Hardy, register of deeds and John Flook, drain commissioner, all of Washtenaw county, the host county this year.

State Director of Elections Robert M. Montgomery will also be present to answer any questions on voting.

In making the announcement, Jones and West said, "Although the meeting is called primarily for township officials of member townships of the Association, all township officials and anyone interested in local township government are invited to attend."

Firearm Deer Season To Be Bucks Only

Lansing — Bucks-only hunting will be the format of Michigan's Nov. 15-30 firearm deer season this year, following action taken last week by the Conservation Commission.

Standing behind its policy statement of last December, the Commission set firearm regulations which rule out antlerless deer hunting except for two small crop-damage areas.

The two areas are in northeastern Oceana county, covering some 14 square miles, and in east-central Mason county, embracing nine square miles, where landowners requested special seasons to protect fruit orchards.

Last December, following a disappointing season for hunters, generally, the Commission recognized public concern and gave assurance that this year's hunting would be limited to bucks only except in crop damage areas, unless unforeseen factors developed.

This assurance was reaffirmed in last week's action following consideration of Department field studies which showed that the state's deer herd came through the 1960-61 winter in good shape; that hunters will probably take 50,000 to 70,000 bucks this fall; and that there will remain a surplus of 30,000 or more animals above the number needed to produce a normal fawn crop next spring.

For archers, the deer season will remain unchanged this fall. Bow hunters will again be permitted to take deer of either sex or any age throughout most of the state during an Oct. 1-Nov. 5 season. In Emmet, Chippewa (not including Drummond Island), and Menominee counties, their legal take will be limited to bucks with antlers at least three inches long. Archers will again have an Oct. 1-Dec. 15 any-deer season in Alcona county.

Past, Present Supervisors Gather for Annual Reunion

At the 23rd annual reunion of past and present supervisors of Washtenaw county, Mrs. Luella Smith, Washtenaw county clerk, was the principal speaker and gave an interesting sketch of the history of the annual gatherings.

She included mention of two former supervisors who gained renown—one in county affairs and the other on an international basis. The former was the late Probate Judge Jay G. Pray and the latter, Harold D. Smith, Ann Arbor supervisor, who was a member of the Michigan Municipal League and rose successively to the positions of budget director of the State of Michigan, budget director of the United States and at the time of his death, after suffering a heart attack, was head of the World Bank.

Smith was a supervisor during the early years the annual reunions were held and faithfully attended when ever possible. Others who have been regular attendants include a former Lodi township supervisor, Joseph Burkhardt who attended each reunion except the 1951 one. He is now 88 years old.

Other members active throughout their lifetime were the late John Hoey, Sr., of Dexter and Fred G. Broesamle of Chelsea, according to Mrs. Smith's history. Among prominent speakers at the reunions during the years were the late Congressman Earl C. Michener, whose topic at the 1943 reunion pertained to wartime

"rationing in Washington and here."

Weather for each reunion was noted in the reports of the meetings and this showed that each second Sunday in August, except two, was a pleasant day. The second Sunday in August is the traditional date for the reunion.

Until completion of the Rural Activities Center on Saline-Ann Arbor Rd., where the reunions are now held, the group met at Dexter-Huron Park. In Mrs. Smith's history, she mentioned that speakers unacquainted in the area were always startled when New York Central trains on the opposite side of the river passed through and supervisors and others all waved to the engineers and firemen; however, after the first surprise, the speakers found that the informal burst of activity created a happy, receptive atmosphere.

Mrs. Smith concluded her history by mentioning a number of supervisors who died in recent years including Fred G. Broesamle of Sylvan township; John Hoey of Webster township; Homer Stofor of Lyndon township; and John Sterling of Dexter township. Other deceased supervisors mentioned in the list included Gilbert Madden, Dexter township; Fred Blumhardt, Bridgewater; Donald Comstock, Ypsilanti; Albert Stein, Ann Arbor; John Lawson, Milan; George Osborn, Augusta; Albert Trinker, Secor; Charles Waltz, Manchester; John Miller, of Ypsilanti.

(later county auditor); Herman Oelke, York; Fitch Forsythe, Ann Arbor; Muri D. Underwood, Ann Arbor township; Matt Max, Ypsilanti, later postmaster and mayor.)

Among others on the list were George Backwith, Howard Boyd, Herman Dancer, and Theodore Bahnmiller of Sylvan; Fred Sott of Ann Arbor, (later under-sheriff); D. Edward Beach and Fred Haist, Lima; William H. Eiseman, Freedom; George S. Alber, Sharon; Bert Kinney, Webster; George L. Robins, Ypsilanti; Ellsworth Lindsley, Saline; George L. Ennen, Ypsilanti; and William Conlin, Ann Arbor, (father of Probate Judge John Conlin).

Following this reading of the list, a quartet from the Ann Arbor Community Center sang a special number, "My Lord, What A Morning!" This group had also entertained by presenting several selections earlier in the program.

Supervisor Herbert Ellis of Ann Arbor, had arranged for the group's appearance and was one of the singers.

His wife, Virginia, was the piano accompanist, and the remaining members of the quartet were Audrey Sweet and her brother, Charles and Bernadine Calvert.

In addition to past and present supervisors, and their families, county and township officials and their families are customarily invited to attend the reunions.

The 1961 reunion held Aug. 13, was attended by 270 persons. Sylvan Township Supervisor Maurice Hoffman was president for this year's gathering.

New officers elected to arrange for the 1962 reunion are Curt Willis of Ann Arbor, president; and Franklin Shepherd of Ypsilanti, vice-president.

Harry Cole of Lodi township was re-elected secretary-treasurer, a post he has held since the reunions were started 23 years ago.

Children under 14, and older adults are especially susceptible to falls from tractors, wagons and combines say Michigan State University farm safety specialists.

School Books Listed For Junior, Senior High

In announcing the list of books to be used in Chelsea High and Junior High schools, High School Principal Charles Lane said ninth graders should not purchase a biology book until they know in which class section they are to be placed. Some will use the old book while others will be required to buy a new physiology text book and work book. Price of these is $4.25 and $1.30 respectively, he said.

Principal Lane also stated that all freshmen will take geography for one semester.

Parents Urged To Relax, Play With Children

Learn to relax by playing with the children. Being able to thoroughly enjoy children lightens duties and gives a purpose and meaning to the chores of parenthood.

Mariella Aikman, instructor in the Spartan nursery school at Michigan State University, says playing with children helps parents to see the child as a source of enjoyment and not just as something to think about intellectually and to guide. A child knows when his parents are having fun and it is contagious. Spending time with a child shows that you love him.

The specific play and fun depends on the interests of parents and the age and interests of the child. A party can be made of daddy's coming home for dinner, finding ways to make him happy and even helping with the cooking. There can be a sharing of hobbies and skills. The child can have a shelf and tools in daddy's workshop and he can watch as dad uses the electrical machines.

Painting, playing musical instruments, listening to records and doing simple scientific experiments are things to be shared. There can be visits to the fire station, zoo, airport, building projects and walks in the country. Parents should not try to teach too much nor should they underestimate a child's ability to understand. His questions and observations are guides.

Parents and children can work together in creating and experimenting with salvage materials. Few ready-made toys are needed when there are such things as spools, boxes, string and bottle caps. Songs and stories can be created, too.

Commercial entertainment, particularly television, stimulates imaginative play. It is well if parents watch programs with children occasionally, both for companionship and to evaluate what is seen.

When games are played, competition can be subdued. The idea of having fun, testing skills and enjoying others should overshadow the idea of winning or losing.

Although parents should take time to play, they should not overdo it. The child needs time to be alone and with other children. At times, the adult role is to help an activity get started or to explain how to use new materials. Adults should never dominate play.

The University of Michigan Bureau of Appointments and Occupational Information received more than 17,000 requests for personnel to fill vacancies here and abroad in educational institutions last year.

Loch Alpine Plans 82-Lot Expansion

A block of 82 choice lots in the Loch Alpine Subdivision will be offered for sale by the Loch Alpine Improvement Association soon, it was revealed today by Ell Hartz, president of the Board of the Association.

The lots are completely serviced with a municipal type water and sewer system, said Hartz. These are the first lots to be offered for sale in more than 12 months and they will all be in choice locations according to Hartz.

"Persons purchasing lots may contract with the builder of their selection to construct their home, provided the plans meet the approval of the Architectural Control Committee," says Nelson Navarre, chairman of the committee.

Loch Alpine is a planned community which includes two lakes, an 18-hole golf course and year-round recreational facilities. The lakes are stocked with bass and trout and swimming facilities have been developed in one of the spring-fed lakes. The subdivision is located seven miles west of Ann Arbor on Huron River Dr.

At present, 64 families live in the subdivision. However, it is planned to accommodate more than 300 homes eventually. Children attend schools in Dexter and bus transportation is provided by the Dexter Community Schools.

Management of the affairs of Loch Alpine is accomplished by the Loch Alpine Improvement Association. It is a non-profit organization set up to control the maintenance of the roads, parks and recreational facilities.

Control of the water and sewerage system is the responsibility of the Scioto-Webster Water Authority under the direction of E. A. Walter, Scioto township supervisor.

Officers of the Association plan for an orderly development of the subdivision with careful attention being given to the architecture of each home, the establishment of additional youth and adult recreational facilities and parks.

"In this way," said Hartz, "we will be able to assure all homeowners that Loch Alpine will continue to be the type of community in which they are proud to live."

OAS REPORTS ON DOMINICA

An Organization of American States committee which spent nine days in the Dominican Republic and a month deliberating in Washington has concluded that it is premature to say whether or not the Dominican Government is taking the democratic road after 31 years of dictatorship and the death of Dictator Rafael L. Trujillo.

The committee, however, conceded that the Government of President Joaquin Balaguer appears to have taken "some steps" toward democratization, but insisted it is "premature to judge the degree of change."

SCHOOL AID BILL

President Kennedy's $8,100,000 package of aid to United States schools and colleges has been reduced to rubble.

The ambitious program was blown sky-high when the House Rules Committee voted, 8 to 7, to table all the education bills before it for the rest of the session.

The main casualty in the eyes of House Democratic leaders was a bill carrying $2,500,000 in grants to the states for public school construction and teachers' salaries.

Michigan Offers Facilities for Ideal Vacation Spot

"Michigan's rich advantages for year-around recreation make our State a wonderful vacation spot for visitors," Robert J. Furlong, director of the Michigan State Tourist Council, points out.

"The great opportunities for recreation and enjoyment that Michigan possesses provide the opportunity for our great tourist business. But, to Michigan residents, they help to make our State a place for pleasant living."

"Not only are our facilities for recreation an industry in themselves, but they can serve as an inducement for our present industry to expand here and to encourage new industry to locate here."

"Our facilities for pleasant living include outstanding educational systems, cultural advantages, excellent public service and year-around recreation. The industrialist and his employees who enjoy hunting, fishing, water and winter sports, professional, intercollegiate and other amateur sports, camping in parks and recreational areas will find in Michigan what they desire."

"All of our people can perform great service to their communities and be active in the campaign to strengthen Michigan's economic base. They can encourage their friends from other States to vacation in Michigan. They can be alert to industrial prospects among vacationers. They can assist industrial development by letting the whole nation know that Michigan is ideal for recreation, for relaxation and that it is truly a State of pleasant living."

★ Private Foreign Investment

It has just been announced by the U. S. Department of Commerce, the government agency which makes such official forecasts, that private foreign investment this year will be $4.5 billion, and will remain at this figure for next year. This is the highest total since 1957, and it is certain to renew the continuous controversy that surrounds this item.

Three main points are involved: It is charged that such investment increases our international deficit. This is true only when an exceptionally large outlay is made, such as the purchase by Ford of the British Automobile Company, and then the influence upon the deficit is temporary. Total foreign private investment amounts to roughly $50 billion, and the earnings upon this that are returned to the United States more than offset the outflow in any one year. Only by carefully picking dates can one get statistics which appear to show that private foreign investment increases our international deficit.

Another contention is that this investment is an export of American jobs. Overall, this is false. Much of the investment is made to get into new markets. Great progress has been accomplished in recent years in getting foreign nations to ease their restrictions on the importation of American goods, but the European common market and the so-called outer seven, still give a relative advantage to their own producers. To offset this our companies find it advantageous to set up producing units within these areas. This is not an export of American jobs; it is production that otherwise would not, or could not, take place.

Finally, it is maintained that foreign private investment is a means for avoiding taxes. Some such tax avoidance unquestionably takes place, but it is a minor factor. In the total, President Kennedy suggests that such avoidance should be eliminated by putting an end to the difference between foreign and domestic earnings in so far as taxes are concerned, except in under-developed nations. This is an unsound deal and the Congress has made clear that it will do no such thing. The only proper way for eliminating tax avoidance in foreign investment is to make a reduction of corporate tax rates.

It may be argued that for such tax reduction to be effective it would be necessary to lower the rate to zero. That definitely is not so, even though none of us likes to pay taxes. But business, just as everyone else, is willing to pay what it considers a fair levy. What it dislikes is to take all the risk and then have the government force it to hand over more than half—52 per cent—of any profits that are made. This is what leads to tax avoidance, and the searching for tax havens.

Is production more economical abroad than in the United States? There is no single general answer to that question. Straight time wages are lower in most foreign countries, but in many instances fringe benefits are substantially higher than here. In general, too, output per manhour is appreciably lower than in this nation. And frequently the raw materials cost more than here. Transportation also may be troublesome, and managerial operations can be less efficient and more costly.

When everything is put together, one gets the unsatisfactory answer that in some cases foreign costs of production are substantially below those in the United States, in other cases they are about the same—and in a few the costs definitely are higher.

Why, then, do the investments continue? Some are made, petroleum is a good example, because the raw material is in better supply and this particular industry makes up one-half of the total private foreign investment. Others, as mentioned above, are to gain entry to foreign markets.

But regardless of the motivation, all such investment is in the interest of the nation. It means the government can do that much less.

Con-Con Material Being Distributed To Most Libraries

To enable citizens to get a better background of the problems facing the Constitutional Convention the Secretary of State has sent all Michigan libraries copies of a compilation which contains pertinent Con-Con legislation, Attorney General's rulings, and interpretative material furnished by the election division technicians.

James M. Hare, Secretary of State, said, "We have issued 'Con-Con Law in Layman's Language' to try to bring Constitutional Convention facts together in one publication. To quickly give the material widespread circulation we have sent copies to all libraries, which also have printed editions of the amended 1908 Constitution."

"Librarians in most Michigan communities have been building up clipping files, pamphlets, and books in anticipation of a rush for information from candidates, voters, and students. I hope this compilation will help many readers and Con-Con candidates get a clearer view of the law behind the Constitutional Convention."

Ag Industry Has Selection Of Careers

Agriculture is a scientific, progressive ever-changing industry and if one is to be successful in it he must be prepared with the necessary technical and scientific knowledge, skills and abilities, says Richard M. Swenson, director of the Michigan State University College of Agriculture.

Agriculture, which is the inclusive term for both farming and agribusiness, offers positions in research, education, public relations, management, production, communications, administration, sales, processing, engineering and law, Swenson says.

To prepare for these opportunities, a person needs a foundation in the sciences in high school. Chemistry, biology, mathematics and physics should be taken along with agricultural courses.

After high school, it is essential to continue education if possible, he says.

For those interested in practical training for a career in agriculture, Michigan State University offers several short-course programs which will prepare them for farming and for certain jobs in agribusiness.

These include short courses in general agriculture, which young farmers will find useful immediately, Swenson says. Opportunity is given to specialize in general agriculture, commercial fruit production or commercial vegetable production.

Four specialized courses, offered to prepare the student for certain jobs in agricultural industries, are commercial floriculture, farm equipment service and sales, elevator and farm supply and nursery and landscape management.

Agriculture will continue to become more scientific, Swenson says. A college education in agriculture must, therefore, be based upon lasting principles in contrast to changing arts.

The MSU College of Agriculture offers 12 majors in 4 broad areas of study—agricultural sciences, agricultural business, general agriculture and conservation.

Specializations available in these four broad majors include: agricultural economics, agricultural engineering, animal husbandry, dairy, farm crops, food science, horticulture, poultry, soil science, forestry, forest products, fisheries and wildlife and resource development.

U.S. OUTPUT UP

Industry production has moved up to near record heights as the United States economy continues to snap back from the recession.

The Federal Reserve Board said recently output of the nation's mines, mills and utilities moved up 1.5 per cent during June, boosting the index of industrial production almost 2 points to 110. Industrial output set a record high in January, 1960, with the index reaching 111.

SENATE FARM BILL

The Senate has passed a heavily compromised version of President Kennedy's catch-all farm bill.

The bill had received many alterations before it reached the Senate floor.

Missing from the bill was the request of Secretary of Agriculture Freeman to let farm groups and the Secretary draft farm programs subject to congressional veto.

UNLAWFUL DRUG SALE
A bill aimed at an existing law to forbid under-the-counter sales of amphetamine (pep pills) and barbiturate drugs to teen-agers has been introduced.

Senator Dodd (D., Conn.), chairman of the Senate subcommittee to investigate Juvenile Delinquency, who introduced the bill, said the present food and drug law leaves a major portion of the underworld drug trade practically immune from Federal prosecution.

AGRICULTURE IS ACTION

by M. L. Webb

★ I Kid You Knot . . .

"Why be upset?—Kids will be kids." That was the opinion of some who heard about the teen-age riots and street-gang fights that raged among students in Miami and beatniks in Brooklyn.

"Kids will be kids?"—left to themselves without guidance or discipline, and kids will be animals. They will kick and maim, tear and gouge, mug and murder.

"Just youthful exuberance," some said when they viewed films of the student-riots in San Francisco during the hearings by the House Un-American Activities committee. "Just healthy protest gatherings," some "educators" said.

Yes—indeed, kids will be kids. What kind of "kids" is another matter.

One thing I know, that back of most teen-age shenanigans, be they mayhem or merely madcap, lie curious attitudes of parents.

I don't know about you, but had my late-teen daughter or son begin cavorting with placid and pink companions in a riotous rink around-the-rosy in front of that Federal Courthouse in San Francisco, he or she would have lost more civil liberties than they know existed.

That such actions are condoned, or even applauded is downright deplorable—and that parents in America would actually uphold such actions, is beyond belief.

So what's the answer? Let them dig ditches!

Most farmers would want them around it's true but rural America is loaded with manure for them to pitch, hay to move from one place to another, potatoes to dig, and sacks to load.

Idle hands are the devil's workshop. Yet, the very people who publicly deplore the juvenile delinquency problem, propose and vote for further regulations to keep young people from being employed. Small wonder that Farm Bureau is loudly protesting the latest proposals to prohibit work of minors in the 14 to 16 age bracket.

14 to 16 years? Good heavens . . . if they haven't learned to work by then, they never will.

MORE ASTROAULTS

In the next few weeks this country will start the process of selecting a new team of astronauts.

This second group to be picked by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will be different from the original seven-man unit in several respects.

First, there will be many more. A fair number of women have already volunteered their services. And it is possible that scientists may conclude that, since inevitably women must accompany man into space, they will have to learn what the special problems will be. Negroes will also be included in the list selected.

State-Wide Drive Underway for Tail Light Check-Up

You can't be in two places at the same time! That truth is why "Tail End Charlie" is running about on Michigan highways.

"Tail End Charlie" is the guy who got a crick in his neck trying to stand on the brake pedal and see his stop light was working. No matter how he craned and stretched, he couldn't see a thing . . . so he gave it up, and he hasn't tried it since.

"Tail End Charlie" is the car ahead of you on the expressway whose tail and stop lights didn't work when he suddenly stopped. He is responsible for many rear end collisions simply because he doesn't know his lights are faulty.

Right now, every motorist in the State of Michigan can get his lights checked—free. From Friday, Aug. 25, through the Labor Day week-end, as a part of Secretary of State James M. Hare's "Tail End Charlie" road safety campaign, every service station in the state will give all motorists a free tail light and stop light inspection. All major oil companies are participating.

Hare urged motorists to get their lights checked before Labor Day if possible, but during their trip too.

ON DRAFT DEFERMENT

Selective Service officials said they expect no tightening up on draft deferments at the present time. They do not expect the calls to be much heavier as indicated so far under President Kennedy's military build-up.

Deferments are now permitted for education, essential occupations, agricultural work and dependents.

Senator Philip A. Hart's

REPORT FROM WASHINGTON

★ Statuary Hall

Less frequently than you would think, I walk all the way through the Capitol from the side where the U. S. Senate meets to the House Chamber. Those of you who come to Washington and tour the Capitol have seen Statuary Hall, which is on the main floor between the Rotondo and the House Chamber.

There stand the men and women, two from each state, who represent exciting chapters in our State and national history.

Michigan's representatives are Lewis Cass and Zachariah Chandler, bitter political enemies. Cass (1792-1866) was a famous Indian fighter, Secretary of War in Jackson's Cabinet, Minister to France, and Senator from Michigan from 1845-1857. He made probably the earliest exposition of the doctrine of "popular sovereignty" allowing the people of the territories to decide themselves whether or not they should allow slavery. In 1848 he was Democratic nominee for the Presidency, being defeated by Zachary Taylor. In 1857 he became Secretary of State in President Buchanan's Cabinet, resigning in December, 1860, when Buchanan refused to take a firmer attitude toward secession.

Zachariah Chandler (1813-1879) was the Whig Mayor of Detroit in 1851 and actively furthered the work of the Underground Railroad of which Detroit was an important stop. He organized the Republican Party in Michigan and was elected to the Senate to succeed Cass when the Republicans took control of the State Legislature. He was among the most radical of the Republican opposition to Lincoln's reconstruction plan which Johnson tried to carry out. He later became Secretary of the Interior in Grant's Cabinet and was chairman of the National Republican Committee during the Hayes-Tilden election campaign.

The next time you or your children visit our nation's Capitol, hope you will come by my office in the Old Senate Office Building. I'd like to say hello. And I would recommend a tour of the Capitol including Statuary Hall.

tion of the one restricting bus use for athletics.

Vogel cast a dissenting vote saying he felt the athletic department should be permitted use of the school buses.

Commenting on the decisions made at the four-hour special meeting of the school board yesterday, Robert Foster said, "Electors interested in education should not permit those electors not interested in education to determine the educational program of 1961-62; therefore, the interested electors should and must support the issue on Sept. 11."

"Failure or success of the issue is the option of the electors and we, on the board, can only carry out the wishes of the electors as expressed by their vote," Foster concluded.

Con-Con Deadline Dates Listed by Secretary of State

Secretary of State James M. Hare today listed some of the significant dates leading to the Constitutional Convention delegate election.

"We often find that citizens and candidates miss statutory deadlines relating to the election process," Hare said. "There is no body as bewildered and frustrated as an office-seeker who finds that he is a few hours late in depositing necessary election documents, or a voter who tries to get an absentee voter ballot after the deadline is past."

"Those who fail to act in time remind me of persons who are still standing on the docks when the boat they should be on is far out in the harbor."

Constitutional Convention delegate election deadline dates listed by Hare include:

Aug. 22—Last date to appoint election board for Sept. 12 election.

Aug. 23—Last date for county clerks to deliver absent voters ballots to local clerks for Sept. 12 election.

Sept. 2—Last date for county clerks to deliver other ballots and supplies to local clerks for Sept. 12 election.

Sept. 2—First public notice of Sept. 12 election for Delegates to Constitutional Convention to be published by this date by local clerks.

Sept. 9—2:00 p.m. EST deadline for applications for absentee ballots for Sept. 12 election.

Sept. 12—Election for Delegates to Constitutional Convention.

"No one citizen will lose his right to vote by not remembering the deadlines he must meet," Hare said. "And I hope that all nominees and officials involved in the election don't get into difficulties by forgetting the legally established closing dates they must observe."

SAFETY FIRST GETS TICKET

Santa Monica, Cal. — Traffic officers here halted a motorist for speeding and asked his name.

The driver said "Safety First." A driver's license proved he was telling the truth. It was issued to Safety First, 67, of 1427 Camden Drive.

First was slated for a court appearance on a speeding charge.

NEVER TOO OLD

Denver — Records revealed that William Wyness and Mrs. Isabel Barker, both of Denver, recently applied for and obtained a marriage license.

They had known each other for 40 years and there is nothing unusual revealed yet. Except that Wyness is 90 and Mrs. Barker is 73.

4-H State Show Opens Next Monday

More than 2,000 4-H members from throughout Michigan will convene at Michigan State University, Aug. 28-31 for the 46th annual State 4-H Show. They will bring their demonstrations, musical talents, judging, skills and many of their projects to exhibit and be evaluated.

Michigan State University 4-H program specialist William Tedrick, states that many features are being initiated into the state show program for the first time.

In most project areas the exhibitors will meet individually with the judges to discuss their projects. The personal contact with the judges and other participants should improve the educational value of each agent.

Educational sessions, demonstrations, and exhibits are planned in more areas than in the past. Members, leaders, and parents will have the opportunity to ask questions and present discussion problems to those making the presentations.

This fits a long-term effort by Michigan's 4-H program to teach members the importance of asking "why" as well as "how."

Volunteer adult 4-H leaders will be honored for long service and several hundred members will win educational trips to various parts of this country and Canada, trophies, and blue ribbons.

The week's program will include the Horse Show on Monday, and all exhibits being brought in Tuesday will be 4-H Leader's Day with an Award Banquet in the evening. Wednesday is 4-H Parent's Day. All exhibits will be released on Thursday afternoon.

More than 100 Washtenaw county 4-H members with their leaders and parents, other than project exhibitors, will be participating in demonstrations, contests, share the fun acts, judging teams, state finals in the softball tournaments, dress revue, 4-H meeting demonstration contest and many other events are expected at the State 4-H Show.

Among Washtenaw county delegates will be the following:

General Mills Officials Visit New Feed Milling Plant

Officials of General Mills, Inc., were here Wednesday, Aug. 16, to make an inspection visit to the new installation at Blaess Elevator Co., known as Michigan Feed Milling Co., a Michigan corporation formed for the sole purpose of manufacturing General Mills Sure Feeds.

Officials present included E. E. "Gene" Woolley, GMI vice-president and general manager of the national feed division; Dick Schall, assistant to the executive vice-president; GMI, Hans Schmelen, GMI director of engineering; Lou Polk, General Mills comptroller; Len Kresova, feed division director of quality control; Howard Ross, feed division director of operations; and Bill Stokes, district sales manager.

They met with William and Julius Blaess, at whose Four-Mile Lake Blaess Elevator plant, the new feeds installation is located. The new, modern, "push-button" animal feed manufacturing plant is now in operation after three months of construction. It is the first national feed company to locate in Michigan.

GMI chose Michigan as the location for its plant because of the state's agricultural growth making needed feed grains easily available, according to Blaess.

The Chelsea-Dexter Rd. site was selected because of easy access from the new Interstate-94 two miles south of the plant. In turn, provides convenient access to all of the principal highways of the state, enabling farmers to purchase their feed requirements at the plant and deliver it directly to their farms at a minimum of transportation cost.

Easy access to the plant is also a convenience for farmers who sell grain to the firm.

A side track from the New York Central Railroad which passes the plant, affords further transportation convenience, particularly to more distant points.

Feeds manufactured at the plant are specially prepared for the production of beef, pork, milk, poultry and eggs. Approximately 25 employees are already engaged in the plant's operation.

The mill is equipped with new, modern facilities with a capacity of 100 tons of finished feeds during an eight-hour shift.

A total of 51 different types of feed are already being manufactured as well as special medicated and a variety of textured feeds including pellets and crumbled products.

Vice-President Woolley who is in charge of the General Mills feeds divisions throughout the United States, told the Blaess brothers, William and Julius, that he was impressed with the new facility here as well as with the quality of feeds now in production.

The inspection party made the trip here by plane, landing at Ann Arbor Airport.

WINS QUICK DIVORCE
Las Vegas, Nev. — Mrs. Gaile Rodriguez, mother of nine won a "quick" divorce from her husband Antonio.

Rodriguez, a television repairman, will have to pay for support of the five boys and four girls to the tune of $300 a month. He did not contest the divorce.

"We couldn't get along," was the testimony that won Mrs. Rodriguez the divorce.

EIGHT OFFICIALS of General Mills, Inc. were in Chelsea Wednesday, Aug. 16, to inspect progress of the expansion program at Blaess Elevator Co., at Four Mile Lake in preparation for handling the General Mills feeds production. This is the first national feed company to be manufacturing feeds in the state of Michigan. From left, are Hans Schmelen, GMI director of engineering; M. J. Kinster, feed division engineer; Bill Stokes, district sales manager; Howard Ross, director of operations, feed division; Gene Woolley, general manager; feeds division, and vice-president of GMI; Dick Schall, assistant to the GMI executive vice-president; William Blaess of Blaess Elevator Co.; Len Kresova, director of quality control, feeds division; and Lou Polk, General Mills comptroller. The party made the trip from Minneapolis in a DC-3 company-owned plane, landing at Ann Arbor Airport.

Property Owners Pay Most Of Local Government Cost

Michigan property owners now pay most of the cost of financing local governmental units and this burden is likely to increase in the future. The inequities of the present general property tax system should be corrected.

This is the opinion of Arley D. Waldo of the department of agricultural economics, Michigan State University, who has written an article entitled, "Property Tax Assessment Levels in Michigan." It appears in the May 1961 issue of the Quarterly Bulletin of the Michigan Agricultural Experiment Station, Michigan State University, East Lansing.

The major weakness, according to Waldo, is the inequitable treatment of property owners. Some are overtaxed and other taxes are far below the state average.

The main objective of Waldo's study was to discover how much certain classes of property are being either over- or undervalued by local assessors in Michigan.

Wide variations both within and between the assessment levels of various property classes in the individual local assessment districts have important implications for initial assessment, review of local assessments, and county equalization, Waldo said.

He says it is evident that county equalization boards must do more than adjust the total assessment valuations of each district within the county if all property owners are to be treated fairly.

Most local assessors try to assess properties at some level in the range of from one fifth to one third of their current market value. Local assessment valuations are, in most cases, increased in the process of county and state equalization, Waldo said.

equalization with state valuations now representing about one half of actual market values.

If all property within a given class were assessed at the same level, tax inequities would still exist if the property class is valued at a percentage of current market value which differs from that applied in the valuation of other property classes, Waldo commented.

Whether these inequities can be reduced most effectively by employing more trained appraisers within the local districts, conversion to a county-wide assessment system, increased scope of State Tax Commission activities, or in some other way will require further study. Several alternatives are needed along several lines if equitable treatment of all property owners is to be achieved, Waldo concluded.

DON TURNER is shown measuring and marking one of the trees in the woodlot on the tree farm owned by him and his uncle, Earl Whitney, preparation for a logging operation to be carried out for the fourth time since 1949. That year

Whitney-Turner Woodlot Ready for Selective Logging Operation

The farm owners, Don Turner and Earl Whitney, 14285 East Old 16, at the south edge of Chelsea, will soon be hearing signs of logging operation in their 75-acre woodlot, when selectively harvested for the fourth time in 1949.

Department's foresters since 1949. They have used the approved selective system of harvesting and the woodlot is in better condition now than it was 12 years ago.

At the completion of this logging operation, a total of 311,000 feet of timber will have been harvested from 82 acres, furnishing lumber to build 29 average homes.

The Whitney-Turner woodlot is one of 10 tree farms in Washtenaw County certified by the Michigan Forest Industries, sponsors of the tree farm program in recognition of good forest land management.

A Cincinnati driver caught speeding was fined $11.00. He swore off speeding. When a police cruiser followed him recently, he decided to play it safe and slowed down to 11 miles per hour. You guessed it. He got another ticket. This time for driving too slowly.

Both the University of Michigan General Library and Undergraduate Library provide students free access to most books on their shelves.

THE 19-year-old soldier is a 1960 graduate of Manchester High school.

But watch it!—More people are having more driving law violations in the past two years of accident increase, violation convictions have increased 12 percent. Protective driving pays!

NEW NUCLEAR WEAPONS

The Kennedy Administration does not preclude the possibility that atomic weapons might be used in limited wars, but its new mobilization program veers somewhat away from previous doctrine.

That doctrine, as adopted by the Eisenhower Administration, was predicated largely on the invoking of atomic firepower to offset the military manpower advantage of the Communist camp.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara explained that the program outlined by the President is for the purpose of providing great versatility to give the United States more choice in the arms it would use to cope with less-than-nuclear war.

Competition in creative ceramics is being offered for the first time in the Home Arts department of the 112th annual Michigan State Fair, which opens its 10-day run on Friday, Sept. 1, and continues through Sunday, Sept. 10. NEW NUCLEAR WEAPONS

The Kennedy Administration does not preclude the possibility that atomic weapons might be used in limited wars, but its new mobilization program veers somewhat away from previous doctrine.

That doctrine, as adopted by the Eisenhower Administration, was predicated largely on the invoking of atomic firepower to offset the military manpower advantage of the Communist camp.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara explained that the program outlined by the President is for the purpose of providing great versatility to give the United States more choice in the arms it would use to cope with less-than-nuclear war.

Competition in creative ceramics is being offered for the first time in the Home Arts department of the 112th annual Michigan State Fair, which opens its 10-day run on Friday, Sept. 1, and continues through Sunday, Sept. 10. It is the newest of the numerous contests sponsored by the department and all exhibits will be on display in the Clubhouse at the State Fair.

Last year University of Michigan atomic energy experts visited Formosa, Thailand, Turkey, Greece and Israel to help develop nuclear research programs under a contract with the International Cooperation Administration.

Safety Commission Plans Series of Regional Meetings

Lansing — Governor John B. Swainson, Secretary of State James M. Hare, State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie, Superintendent of Public Instruction Lynn Bartlett, State Police Commissioner Joseph Childs, and other top state officials and traffic experts will head the programs of the 1961 series of Governor's Regional Traffic Safety Conferences to be held at six locations in the state during August.

The dates and locations follow: Aug. 16, Birmingham; Aug. 18, Sturgis; Aug. 23, Muskegon; Aug. 25, Cadillac; Aug. 28, Alpena; Aug. 30, Houghton (UP).

This is the sixth of an annual series held under the joint sponsorship of local and state citizen safety groups and the official State Safety Commission. The purpose is the exchange of ideas and information between local citizen and officials and state leaders, responsible for various areas of official action.

Conferences are split into regions so more attention may be given to problems particular to the locality. There will be pointing with pride and viewing with alarm as the various preventive measures now in effect are reviewed and some of the tougher problems of accident prevention are threshed out by the participants.

Local officials and citizens share the platform with state officials and experts in order that a balanced view of the situation may be taken. Legislators as well as administrators will be heard.

One interesting feature will be an advanced report on a public opinion poll now being taken by the State Citizens Action Committee. Another will be a presentation entitled "Automobile Accidents and the Alcoholic Personality," by Dr. Melvin Selzer of the University of Michigan at the Birmingham meeting. At other meetings, the subject will be covered by Dr. C. W. Muehlberger, State Toxicologist, and a panel of experts from several fields.

A 25-year-old driver was arrested recently by Chicago police for reckless driving, failure to produce a driver's license, failure to display state license plates, failure to produce a city vehicle license, and other charges. They found 32 traffic tickets in his possession, and another 28 on file against him. His primary skill will be tested as he faces the court; he is a law student.

Mackinaw Island Retains Much of Its Historical Past

Mackinac Island—It is said that four peoples—French, British, Americans and those Early Indians, the Indians—congregated on bright moonlit nights on the high bluffs of Port Mackinac, to hear the stookade some-claim to hear spectral voices of ancient battles. A more realistic soul might hold that the island is a charming place for any tourist and a delight to the person who senses of history, says his P. Clever Bald, director of the University of Michigan Historical Collections.

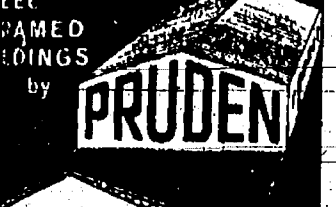

There is a portion of American history as it was in the early days of the settlement of the island. Professor Bald points out the old of horses hooves hanging on the wall of a carriage after a long trip that has cut him off from the island, the speed and hectic pace of modern life.

Professor Bald commends the work done in recent years by the Mackinac Island State Park Commission, under the direction of W. Woodruff Dr. Eugene T. Woodruff, U-M graduate appointment director in 1958, has done significant job with the collection of historical items, he says.

The 176,000 visitors last year saw the wooden stockade blockhouses where main-land British uniforms were kept. The Museum presents a long military heritage; it was built by the French in 1781, originally at Mackinac Island, near the approach to the Mackinac Bridge. It was moved seven miles to Mackinac Island in 1880-81.

It was in the War of 1812, the British captured the fort. Bald recalls, by moving cannon to a commanding position. Maj. Andrew Holmes, killed while leading a U. S. landing party against the fort in 1814, has for a memorial a nearby smaller fort bearing his name.

Other points of historical interest: The old fur trading store where Frenchman Alexis St. Martin, shot accidentally in the stomach, was saved by Dr. William Beaumont, who used the partially unhealed wound as an abdominal "window" to conduct pioneer research into digestive function; the headquarters of John Jacob Astor's American Fur Co., later the Astor House; and the John Hiddle house, oldest on Mackinac Island, preserved as an example of early architecture.

Men, Machinery Working for Waterfowl

Waterfowl Being Squeezed Out In Old Battle for Survival

Lansing—North America's waterfowl are in a tight spot in the middle of a long, hard, cold war which has hit home with Michigan's duck hunters in recent years.

In 1959, the state's duck hunting season was slashed to 40 days, a 30-day cut from the year before. The cutback was not eased during the 1960 season and odds are overwhelmingly against any liberal changes for this fall.

Bag limits were trimmed on canvasbacks and redheads in 1959 and last year these two diving ducks were placed off limits to hunters throughout the continent. Hope is all but dead that the two species will be returned to the duck hunting list this fall.

These are the facts. The reasons behind them are somewhat more complicated, but basically they can be traced to the steady decline of wetlands over the years in the continent's major nesting areas.

Waterfowl are literally losing ground in their ageless struggle for survival. Wetlands are being bulldozed away, drained, and generally choked out of the waterfowl picture by increased pressures on all sides: from industrial development, urban expansion, agriculture, pollution, and uses for recreation.

These pressures are being brought to bear on waterfowl habitat everywhere man works and lives—from the bayous of Louisiana where the birds winter, to the wheat fields in the prairies of the Dakotas and the Canadian provinces, the continent's most important breeding grounds.

The chief trouble spots are in prairie pothole country, particularly Canada's, where more than 70 percent of the ducks harvested each year in the United States are hatched.

Drought conditions, worse than those which triggered the cutback in the 1959 hunting season, are again haunting the Canadian prairies this year, as well as parts of the Dakotas.

The sad story of waning wetlands was not written overnight, nor is the situation beyond hope. In Michigan, Conservation Department game men saw the writing on the wall many years ago.

The Department started to do something about the situation in 1938 when money became available under the Pittman-Robertson program in which the state puts up $1 for every $3 in federal funds. Since that time, the P-R program has paid the shot-in-setting aside 22 areas of special value to waterfowl.

More thrust was thrown behind the Department's efforts to help waterfowl in 1948 when wildlife floodings received the go-ahead sign under the P-R program. To date, 44 major floodings have been completed in all sections of the state to create wet marsh and open water duck habitat.

In addition, nearly 400 small water impoundments have been constructed to boost brood production and hunting recreation. Together, the small and big floodings cover more than 20,000 acres.

On the whole, these projects have produced quite spectacular results. Waterfowl have made good use of the floodings, particularly the larger ones, and migrant birds have supplemented local ducks during the fall to increase hunting opportunities.

Several years ago, the Department launched a new type of project to develop choice waterfowl habitat in areas where waterfowl could enjoy adequate refuge.

In this work, men and heavy earth-moving equipment are teaming up to lay out intricate networks of dikes, ditches, and pumping stations over large tracts of land in a handful of key-wildlife areas.

As these projects are completed, water levels can be controlled for intensive management of waterfowl and shoreland farming. On many parcels blocked in by dikes and ditches, state land is being leased to local farmers on the basis that they do the work, harvest an agreed-upon portion of their grain crop, and leave the remainder for waterfowl food.

Most of the diked areas can be drained to grow large quantities of high quality food and then reflooded to attract migrants.

Controlled water level projects, embracing some 2,700 acres, have been completed at Crow Island and Maple River state game areas and Fish Point wildlife area. Others are well underway at the Penn-

Michigan's Abundant Forests Big Help to State Economy

Lansing—Trees, those silent sentinels of the outdoors—their wild life, lands and waters—carry a strong voice in Michigan's economy.

Just how strong is it? Ask a man or woman employed by one of the state's forest industries, or the landowner whose trees provide the raw material for these industries, or the merchant who rings up sales with dollars earned in the woods, mills, plants, or stores handling the finished products of trees.

When a new school goes up in your community, ask yourself if part of the taxes financing it came from trees in this state.

Michigan's trees and their products, to be spotlighted during National Forest Products Week (Oct. 16-22), "branch out" to touch, directly or indirectly, every phase of the state's financial structure.

They provide full-time employment for nearly 66,000 men and women in Michigan's various forest industries. Payrolls of these wood-using industries amount to more than $309,000,000 a year, much of which is spent within the state to buy food, automobiles, shoes, haircuts, television sets, etc.

From these industries come more than 5,000 articles—furniture, veneer, excelsior, lumber, pulp and paper, chemicals, and toys, to name a few—used every day by people in Michigan and the nation.

Nation-wide, Michigan ranks seventh in production of paper and paperboard and 13th in woodpulp output; pulpwood production led Michigan's forest harvest last year soaring to an all-time high of over 1,000,000 cords for the first time in the state's history. In lumber production, Michigan rates 21st; some 400,000,000 board feet of lumber were cut last year. It has placed sixth or better in maple syrup and sugar production since 1950; a large number of farmers gross from $2,700 to $5,500 each year from their sugar bushes. Among the Lakes states Michigan is the largest producer of wood for chemicals, their allied products, and charcoal.

All these ratings and figures sound impressive but what do they mean in terms of dollars and cents?

To landowners, cuttings for pulpwood, sawlogs, and veneer meant approximately $12,750,000 in 1959. By the time this timber had reached the mills, it brought about $3.50 in wages and income for every $1 it was worth before cutting. At this point, its total value had vaulted to more than $43,000,000.

This marked jump can be explained best by retracing the steps in the forest harvest.

About $8,000,000 was paid in wages to fell trees, remove limbs, and cut trunks into proper lengths. Mills using pulpwood required about 300,000 cords to be peeled before delivery. This meant another $1,500,000 to workers. Men manning tractors to skid trees through the woods for loading earned $5,200,000 for their costs and labor.

Hauling expenses entered the picture next. Nearly 400,000 truck loads went to railroad sidings or mills. Trucking costs totaled $11,333,000 in wages for drivers, truck wear and tear and repairs, gasoline and oil, and taxes. Some 3,784,000 gallons of gasoline were purchased locally. Most of the trucks were bought locally, too.

Loading and unloading of trucks and railroad cars, railroad transportation, salaries of buyers, and the like also added more to the original value of timber as it stood on the owners' lands.

Processing expenses at Michigan's 13 pulp and paper, excelsior,

One-Cent Sales Often Start with Fictitious Pricing

(Note—This is one in a series of articles by Paul L. Adams, State Attorney General, concerning frauds affecting the consumers of this state.)

By Paul L. Adams
State Attorney General

Consumer organizations in several communities have alerted my office to current widespread publicizing of the "two for one plus 1¢" marketing device. Some national advertisers in the home improvement field base their full marketing program on this device. "Buy one," they tell their customers, "and for a single cent, we'll give you another."

Sounds pretty good, doesn't it? But stop a moment and think before buying.

The federal government has recently taken legal action against certain enterprises using this sales pitch. They found that when the prices were compared and the sales scheme broken down to the solid basic facts, certain sellers were selling the first can for just about double the going market price for that particular commodity. On this basis, the customer was getting not two for the price of one (plus one red cent), but instead the customer was paying the going market price, for two cans, plus one red cent, to boot.

It all depends on where you start figuring.

"Fictitious pricing," the experts call it.

Whatever you call it, it's no bargain.

I suggest you watch out for it. If you really are getting two for the price of one, fine. Don't let me stop you. If not—let your budget be your guide.

Last year the University of Michigan School of Social Work received more than $400,000 for teaching, research, and student training from federal, state and local government units, foundations, and social welfare agencies.

Best time to add new life to lawns

Fall is nature's time to seed. The soil is warm, the weather is right, and there are months of good growing ahead.

The right seed is just as important as the right timing. Choose the Scotts blend that gives the kind of lawn you want (all Scotts blends are all-perennial, 99.91% weed-free, the finest money can buy).

Get the most good lawn per dollar by sowing Scotts seed at the economy spreader rate—and be sure to put down non-burning TURF BUILDER the same day. It gives new grass the protein-building diet it needs to thrive.

Ferris Wheel Invention Had Debut at First World's Fair

Not a midway in the land would be considered complete without two traditional rides—the ferris wheel and the merry-go-round. The ferris wheel dates back to 1893 when the promoters of the Columbian Exposition, otherwise known as the Chicago World's Fair, were looking for a really outstanding attraction-getter.

George Washington Ferris, an engineer, designed a vertical merry-go-round so huge it could carry 36 persons in each car, as large as a street car, for a total of 2,160 persons on one trip.

The axle or hub measured 38.5 inches in diameter and was 44.5 feet long. This was by far the largest single piece of steel ever to be forged in all history up to that time. It took nearly a year to build the ride.

The ride was an instant success. Later it was dismantled and was taken to the World's Fair in St. Louis celebrating the anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase.

Later it was sold for junk since there were no more large fairs in the immediate future.

A bridge building concern later developed a way to make the wheel portable. Today's model, like the one coming to Chelsea with the Gooding Amusement Company which will entertain patrons of the Chelsea Community Fair can be erected or dismantled in less than three hours.

The history of the merry-go-round is less easy to pinpoint. Supposedly hundreds of years ago, some children, finding a huge ox-driven cart tipped on its side, rode the oversized wheels round and round. Later the wheel was enlarged, hobby horses were used, and it was propelled by a horse.

When jumping horses first were used on the device, it was called a carousel, but later was renamed the familiar merry-go-round.

FOREIGN AID
Senate Republican leader Dirksen of Illinois may seek to amend President Kennedy's foreign aid bill to provide continuous on-the-spot congressional audits of the long-term development loan program.

Dirksen would like to add an agreement which would put a staff of congressional auditors in the foreign agency to keep check on how the funds are used after Congress provides them.
