Kiwanis Club Acts as Host To Farmers

"Communications and National Defense" was the title of the program given at Monday evening's Kiwanis club meeting in the social center of the Methodist church. It was the annual Kiwanis Farmers' Night meeting with area farmers attending as guests of Kiwanians. Approximately 160 members and guests were present. Also guests at the meeting were local Civil Defense officials; four representatives of Michigan Bell Telephone Co., originator of the evening's program; and Kiwanian J. B. Casey of Jackson. The telephone representatives included E. J. Fitzgerald, Charles Goodhead and Kiwanians Howard Jones of Ypsilanti and Nicholas Winkler of Ann Arbor. Floyd Fowler, agricultural committee chairman of the Chelsea club was in charge of the program. The program is described as "a frank and clear presentation of communications in our defense network." The informative program began with a 15-minute talk by E. J. Fitzgerald of the Ann Arbor office of the Telephone Co., in which he explained the role of communications in state and national defense systems. This was followed by an amplified telephone call direct to Colorado Springs, Colo., where the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) headquarters is located. A briefing officer, who identified himself as Major Dawson, responded from NORAD and gave a resume of the work done there. Reporting unidentified planes; the action taken to learn the identification of planes; the positions of ships, weather conditions affecting air defense, and other information—and answered questions asked by members of the audience.

At the Nov. 20 meeting of the Kiwanis club a debating team from the University of Michigan was featured during the program period. The three students—Kenneth Anderson, Stuart Breuer and Norma Winkler—debated the question of making labor unions subject of anti-trust legislation. Five of the Kiwanis club officers elected were at Willis that evening attending a training conference with Lt. Gov.-Elect J. D. Clark of Belleville.

There will be a lunch at the conclusion of the installation ceremonies.

Library Plans Children's Story Hour

At the monthly meeting of the McKim Memorial Library Board, held at the library Tuesday evening, plans were approved for a Christmas season story hour for children. The story hour is to take place Wednesday, Dec. 27, at 3 p.m., in the children's room of the library. Mrs. Raymond Schaefer, known to the children as "Miss Jane" of Chelsea Co-Operative Nursery, will be the "story lady."

Announcement was also made that Miss Lona May Burrows, a resident of the Methodist Home, donated a number of recordings of the religious publications, "The Upper Room" and "Christian Record," and these have been prepared and catalogued so they are now ready for distribution.

These recordings are of special interest to people who cannot see well enough to enjoy reading. They may be borrowed the same as a library book.

During the holiday season, the library schedule remains the same except that the library will be closed the Saturday before Christmas, Dec. 23, and the Saturday before New Year's Day, Dec. 30.

Customary holiday schedules will be followed on Christmas Day and New Year's Day, with the library closed both days.

Methodists Plan Annual Choir Concert

Choirs of the Methodist church are completing plans for their annual Christmas choir concert to be presented Sunday afternoon, Dec. 10 at 5 p.m. The traditional candlelight procession will precede the program of varied and appropriate seasonal anthems.

Guest soloist for the occasion will be Mrs. William Pollock of Ann Arbor. Mrs. Pollock, the former Joan Holmberg of Cass City, is a graduate of the University of Michigan School of Music where she majored in voice and vocal music education. During her undergraduate years, she was a member of Gilbert and Sullivan, Michigan Singers and Mu Phi Epsilon music honorary society. She also spent two summers as a cast member of the Flint Musical Tent. She will sing "The Birthday of a King" and "No Lullaby Need Mary Sing."

The senior choir, under the direction of David Lindsay, will present "Now Sing We Now Rejoice," "The Heavens Are Telling," "O Savior Sweet," and "The Christmas Song" with the violin obligato being played by Mrs. James Hoffmeyer. Featured soloists will be Mrs. Francis Smysor, Mrs. Clare Warren, Dr. Clare Warren and Donald Bussler. Claude Isham will serve as organist.

The youth choir, directed by Mrs. George Palmer, has selected "Lullaby," "Lovely Appearance," and "Break Forth O Beauteous Heavenly Light."

The junior choir will sing "Star of the East" and "Why Do Bells for Christmas Ring?" Mrs. S. D. Kinke is the director.

The closing number will combine the three choirs of 64 voices singing "Gesu Bambino" directed by Mr. Lindsay.

The public is cordially invited to attend the concert.

Blood Bank Clinic Needs Another RN

Mrs. Dudley Holmes, chairman of the Chelsea Community Blood Bank, said yesterday that she still lacks one volunteer, registered nurse to complete her staff for the Blood Bank clinic to be held here Dec. 13. She said she is hoping an area nurse who might be free that day will be willing to volunteer by calling her at her home, GR 9-2181.

Mrs. Holmes said also that she still needs volunteers who will contribute casserole dishes, salad or dessert for a noon-luncheon for the entire staff who will be working at the clinic. Staff members have only a half-hour lunch period and the luncheon on the scene is a great convenience.

Sandwich fillings are another item needed, Mrs. Holmes pointed out. Sandwiches are served to all donors.

The Blood Donor clinic is being held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. and from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 13, at Chelsea Junior High school, corner East and Harrison Sts.

Factory people are being registered in advance and given appointments.

Any other persons who wish to make an appointment to give blood at a certain time may call Mrs. Holmes who says she will make suitable arrangements.

Throughout the clinic, any others who wish to be donors may go directly to the clinic without appointment with the assurance that there will be no long wait to delay them.

SANTA GREETS KIDDIES—Assisted by Chelsea Chamber of Commerce committee, Santa Claus distributed a bag of treats—including a chocolate Santa Claus—to 965 youngsters who came to the Municipal parking lot to see him on his first official visit here Saturday afternoon. Part of the crowd is shown with him in the above photo. Santa Claus also picked up his first mail from his private mailbox—painted red and located in front of the Post Office steps—and said he will be here Saturday afternoon to get the letters mailed by Chelsea youngsters this week. He has promised to answer each letter so it is important for children to include their correct name and address when they write to him. He explained that he will try to stay in the downtown area most of the afternoon Saturday, beginning at about one o'clock. He will move about on the street in an effort to see as many youngsters as possible. If he has time, he might possibly be here some Friday nights, also. Extra shopping hours planned by Chelsea merchants begin with a gala event Saturday, Dec. 11. Merchants have announced they will have complete stocks of merchandise on display that evening for the convenience of Christmas shoppers.

Council Briefs

At the Nov. 21 Village Council meeting, Kellie Allen, superintendent of Public Works Department, and members of the Council discussed matters concerning a skating rink being prepared at the northwest end of Pierce Memorial Park. Allen explained that the water inlet to the area has already been lowered in anticipation of flooding the area as soon as the weather is favorable. The additional pond will be a convenience for skaters in the southern part of the village.

It was also reported that crews are beginning to put up the Christmas decorations in the downtown area, the huge "candy canes" already being in place on the light poles. A type of washer designed to eliminate electrical contact difficulties has been installed on each of the cane decorations. Some trouble on that score was encountered last year. It was explained that additional Christmas decorations ordered by the Chamber of Commerce for the downtown area had not yet arrived.

A new sewage gas meter has been installed at the sewage plant. The new meter will permit utilization of the gases generated by the sewage plant treatment as fuel to help heat the building. Commercial natural gas will augment the sewage treatment gas as needed.

The Rev. David Wood appeared at the meeting to request installation of a street light near the Chelsea Baptist church on Wilkinson St. In response to his request, installation of a street light at that point was approved by the Council.

Appointment of the following Civil Defense Department heads for the Village were confirmed as follows: Ted Balmer, fire chief; Kellie Allen, engineering and transportation; John Palmer, police; Robert Schroen, signal service; J. V. Burg, welfare; George Winans, administrative and manpower; Dr. James Shadown, health; William Hunter, radiological detection.

Official minutes of the Nov. 21 meeting will be published in The Standard following their approval at the Dec. 5 meeting.

Citizens are welcome to attend any of the Village Council meetings, held at 8 p.m. the first and third Tuesdays of the month in the Council room of the Municipal Building.

Airman Second Class Richard Laban spent Thanksgiving here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laban, returning Sunday to Lincoln, Neb., where he is stationed.

4-H Members Win Trip To Chicago

A group of Washtenaw county 4-H club members and leaders left Ann Arbor by train Friday morning, Nov. 24 for a three-day award trip to Chicago, Ill. The trip is sponsored by the Ann Arbor Kiwanis club. Delegates chosen are 15 years old or over and are outstanding in over-all 4-H achievement.

The 4-H members receiving this award trip are: Janice Haas and Dale Kapp of Ann Arbor; Charles Koenig and Gerald Schiller, Chelsea; Pat Murdoch, Dexter; and Sue Cort, South Lyon. The 4-H leader who will be chaperoning the trip is Mrs. Rene Feldkamp of Manchester. Robert McGrory, county extension agent, 4-H, and his wife will also accompany the group. They will stay at the Conrad-Hilton Hotel.

The group plans to visit the International Livestock Exposition and will see the horse show and rodeo there. The delegation will attend a stage play and will tour many of Chicago's tourist attractions including the Museum of Science and Industry. Before returning to Ann Arbor Sunday evening, the group will join the delegates to the International 4-H Club Congress for church services at the Conrad-Hilton Hotel.

New Scouting District To Be Organized

Portage Trails Boy Scout Council President Jack R. Doidge has announced a meeting to be held at Bates Elementary school library, in Dexter, at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 30, for the purpose of organizing a fourth district of Portage Trails Council with Fred Sundling, formerly of Marquette, as district executive.

To be known as District No. 4, it will include Dexter, Chelsea, Milan, Saline, Manchester and Whitmore Lake.

Men interested in Boy Scouting in each of the six communities have been invited to attend the organizational meeting and have a voice in nominating nine officials of the new district—a chairman and vice-chairman as administrative leaders; a commissioner who serves as liaison between officers and headquarters; and committee chairmen of camping, leadership, health and safety, advancement, organizational extension and finance.

Council President Doidge will preside at the Dexter meeting.

Formation of the new district, Doidge said, will serve the boys in each of the six communities by expanding the Scouting program of the Portage Trails Council to be more effective.

Thanksgiving day dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Moore were their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Gagnon and children, of East Detroit, and Mrs. Moore's mother, Mrs. B. H. Elden of Sylvan, O. Mrs. Elden, who had spent the past three weeks here, returned to Sylvan Saturday.

Ripe Strawberries Are Picked on Thanksgiving Day

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Armstrong picked ripe strawberries on Thanksgiving day in the garden at their home on Waterloo Rd. at Sugar Loaf Lake.

Their years of experience in raising plants, and flowers as former owners of Chelsea Greenhouses—may have something to do with the fact they can grow strawberries this time of year but they made no such claims, saying only that the weather has been unusually mild and that the berry patch is in a protected spot.

They picked eight large berries Thursday, one of them 4 1/2 inches in circumference.

Dana-UAW OK Contract

Chelsea Products' 120 workers are included in the 5,600 national employees of the Dana Corp., affected by the new three-year Dana-UAW contract agreement reached Friday at the Toledo plant.

Benefits are wage increases, expanded insurance benefits and new retirement regulations.

Free Blue Cross and Blue Shield health insurance and 50 percent paid life, accident and sickness benefit insurance will be provided for 5,600 national employees of the Dana Corp. under the new contract.

In the settlement the company also agreed to reduce its "normal" retirement age to 62 years and its compulsory retirement age to 65 years, with several added benefits for pensioned employees.

Richard Haist Is Delegate to 4-H Club Congress

Richard Haist is one of the 29 Michigan 4-H club members who are in Chicago this week as delegates to the National 4-H Club Congress, Nov. 26-30.

The Club Congress program recognizes outstanding achievement in several project areas. Trip awards were based on interviews during the annual State 4-H Club Show and the records of the members during their 4-H careers.

Haist, who is 16 years old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Haist of 1120 Haist Rd. He is a junior at Chelsea High school.

He won the trip to Chicago because of his prize-winning beef project at the State 4-H Show, in addition to his outstanding record in 4-H activities.

51 Eager Boys Working Hard for Varsity Berths

Fifty-one boys answered the call for basketball players, and with the Bulldogs' opener scheduled for Dec. 1, they are working hard in an all-out effort to be ready for it.

With the loss of lettermen the field is wide open for younger men to step in and take over their positions. Some nine juniors, 23 sophomores, and 19 freshmen compose the field from which this year's teams will be selected.

With all candidates less than six feet tall, the major problem facing this year's cagers will be rebounding against much taller foes. It's impossible to tell at this time just how strong the young Bulldogs will be or how much scoring punch they will have, but one thing is sure, and that is that they will be a hustling, interesting team that should not be sold short.

Skating Rink Being Built at Pierce Park

At an executive board meeting of the Jaycees Tuesday evening, Blaine Lyle, chairman of the JCC Pierce Park project, made arrangements for a work "bee" at the park Saturday, Dec. 9, in preparation for flooding an area in the northwest section for a skating rink.

Lyle explained that arrival of colder weather has been awaited for the work of brush removal and diseased elm trees.

Leonard Quigley has offered to cut the timber on a volunteer basis and Jaycee members will work at removal of the brush and wood.

Non-member volunteer workers "would be appreciated," Lyle said in announcing the work bee.

Also announced after the board meeting was another service project of the Jaycees—making available a supply of nuts and bolts suitable for attaching automobile license plate tabs. The nuts and bolts will be left at the local Secretary of State's branch office for the convenience of purchasers of 1962 license tabs. A supply will be on hand this week-end, it was announced.

Tuesday's meeting was held at the home of the Jaycee secretary, Richard Salonen.

General Is Making Great Sacrifice To Further Fight Against Communism

Major General Edwin C. Walker, ousted from his West Berlin command largely on the representations of as irresponsible, camp-follower type of publication, and subsequently offered a promotion to cover the Administration's confusion over the storm of protest that arose, has resigned from the U.S. Army.

In a statement sent at the same time to Chairman John C. Stennis of the Senate Armed Services subcommittee—that will conduct hearings on muzzling the military, he explained why. It has been made impossible, he said, for him to train his soldiers in matters he considered essential to morale and to their capacity to survive. He will, therefore, now try to do as a civilian what he couldn't do in uniform. In resigning, General Walker is giving up an earned retirement income variously estimated at from $12,000 to $20,000 a year.

General Eisenhower resigned from the Army to run for the Presidency, and is the only other general officer ever to do so. But he failed to make it stick, since President Kennedy restored his rank immediately after the inaugural.

It is recalled, however, that General Walker tendered his resignation once before—in protest over the use of Federal troops at Little Rock. As commander of the Arkansas Military District at the time, he tried to stop Washington from sending in the 101st Airborne, insisted that the National Guard could handle the situation effectively and considered Army interference an invasion of states' rights.

While the Pentagon refused to accept this first resignation, it will not be so easy to reject the present declaration. Since General Walker is now eligible for retirement, there would seem to be no way of forcing him to remain in the service.

It is a sad thing that he must purchase his freedom at such a financial sacrifice and sadder still that he must lay aside the uniform he has worn with pride for more than 30 years—in order to fight the most sinister enemy of all time.

But we desperately need the Walker type of leadership not just against Communism, but in the fight to make patriotism respectable once more.

In approving the Russian suggestion that the UN be moved to Berlin, a Nevada editor considers this "a major benefaction" to the West and winds up with this classic observation: "And it's only a fundamental sanitary precaution to get the rats off the premises before they die in the walls." But, should the UN be murdered by Russia, or starve because we got tired of paying the bills, we'd still have a problem. What would we do with Adlai?

Barry M. Goldwater, Senator (R., Ariz.): "The U. S. cannot have the greatest space and defense programs in history and the greatest welfare program at the same time. If we try it, we will be doing exactly what the communists want us to."

Hayato Ikeda, Prime Minister of Japan, in a message telling Khrushchev to stop meddling in Japan's affairs: "Japan pursues freedom and democracy as the highest political ideals. This is and will continue to be our immutable policy."

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I see by the papers where some science fellows at the University of Illinois has developed a contraption they call "Plato" that is liable to get the attention of them Congressmen when they come back in session.

The piece I was reading said professors could take Plato and keep all students honest. The students get prepared questions on a TV screen and feeds their answers into the machine. Plato will then ring a alarm bell if a student is trying to dodge a question or don't answer correct.

Now if the taxpayers ever get to using Plato on politicians, you can see, Mister Editor, that the end is in sight for about 90 percent of the fellows now holding public office. For instance, in all my days I ain't never met a office holder that didn't deny he ever had anything to do with hiking taxes. They all raise their right hand and allow as how they was just innocent bystanders when any tax-raising took place, standing way off watching the proceedings like a calf peeping over a pasture fence.

If Plato turns out pretty good with students, the movement could spread to Government officials, so you can look for the next Congress to outlaw Plato as unwise, unnecessary and un-American.

Speaking of students, I was reading where a organization of teachers is mighty upset about the word "ain't" getting put in the new dictionary and now being official. On account of me being such a good speller myself, I ain't never owned a dictionary and this is the first notice I've had that "ain't" ain't been official, legal and proper all the time. What I'd like to know is when it got took out of the dictionary in the first place.

I note in one of them little pamphlets I got from the Agriculture folks that the bad weather last Spring will keep us from having any surplus crops this year.

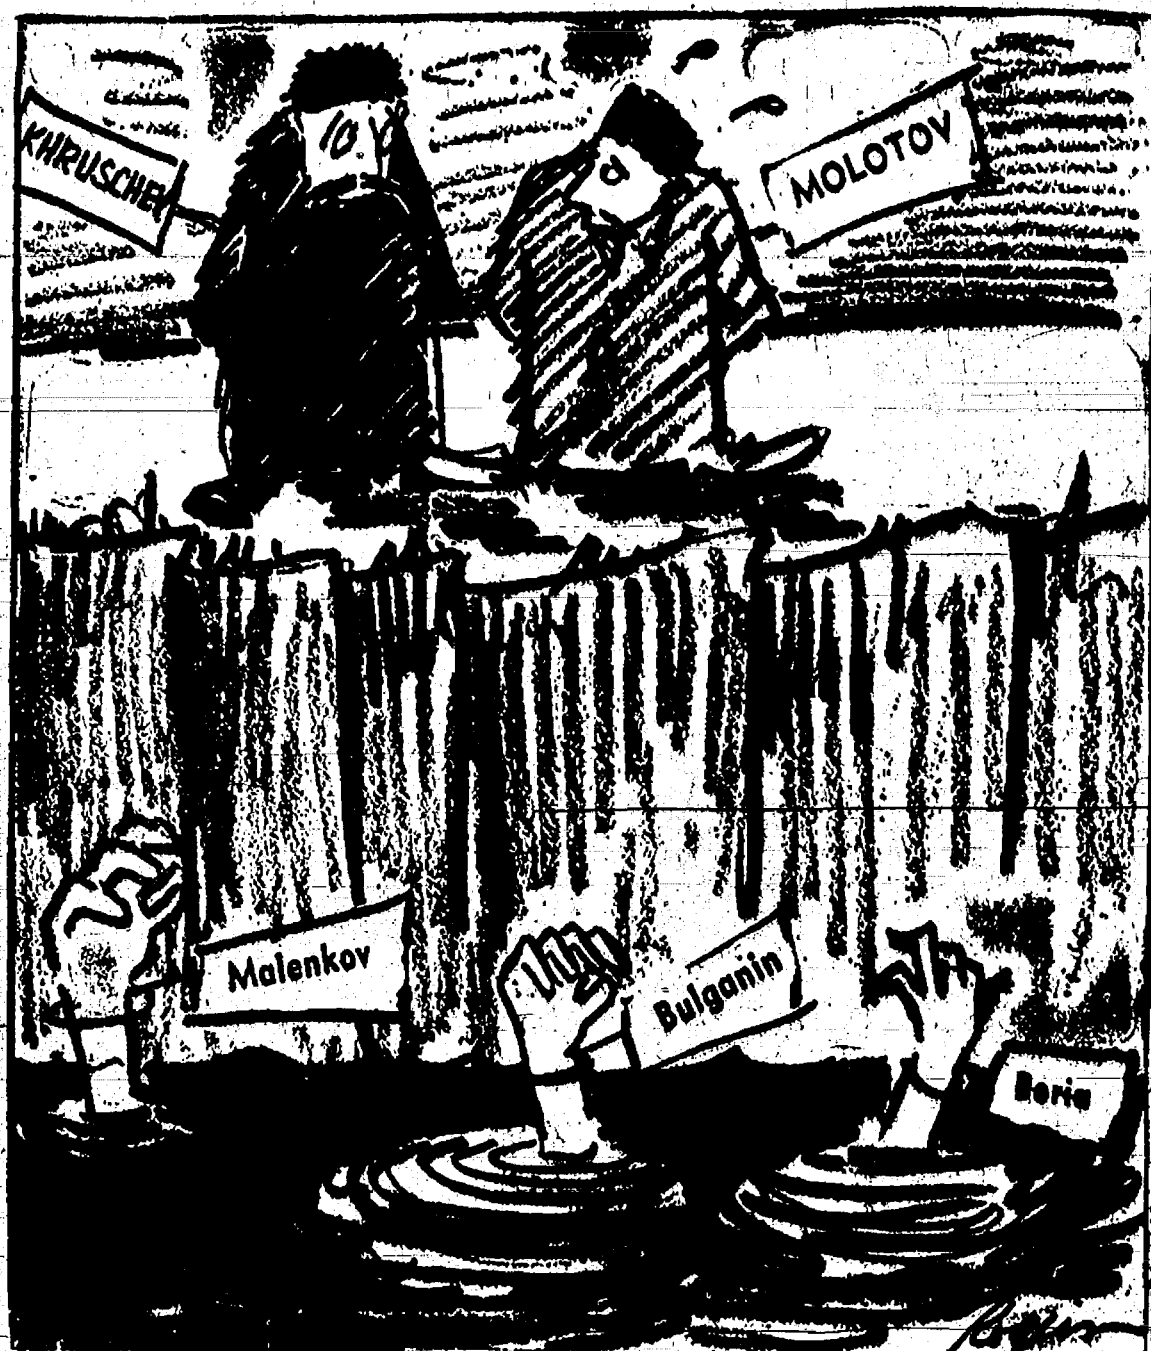

This surplus, which under the New Frontier is being called our "abundance," is costing the taxpayers about $2 million a day for storage. Maybe the farmers will come out about even on account of not having any extra taxes to pay for storage.

Well, the Census Bureau keeps putting out items they has compiled from the 1960 census. They had a couple last week that was mighty interesting. For instance, they say in 1960 we had 50 million Americans of driving age that can't drive a car. From my observation along the highways, about 40 million of 'em is behind the steering wheel anyhow. And they now estimate that the population of the world has doubled in the last 100 year. In the next 100 it'll either double or nothing.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

★ MICHIGAN MIRROR ★

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Housewives in America spend at least one-third of the nation's annual income.

For this reason, a group of Michigan people believe public school education should train women to be discriminating buyers from the time they are playing with dolls until they are ready to buy toys for their own children.

A recent consumer protection conference conducted by a division of the state attorney general's office spent a long day considering the problems facing the public in everyday buying.

"It is rather difficult to explain to a person with a minimum education the difference between the various size packages in relation to price and content," said Mrs. Maxine Virtue, assistant attorney general in charge of the consumer protection division.

"The conference participants suggested education in this area should start in the grade-school and be carried continuously in the curriculum through the university," she said.

It was also urged that people in responsible, leadership positions should educate the housewife-consumer regarding habits of discrimination as contrasted with economics.

"Industry interests play largely on motivational aspects of marketplace choice," Mrs. Virtue said. "If the consumer seriously wishes to be protected, she should develop a resistance to these practices."

Conference participants generally were agreed packaging habits of industry should be standardized by legislation.

"It seemed to be the consensus, however, that proper education and communication would bring about a great deal of voluntary self-regulation by both producers and retailers," said Mrs. Virtue.

Year-end holiday preparations in Michigan bring a sharp increase in both commercial and private mail traffic.

"Christmas seals" account for a large percentage of the commercial mailings in November and December.

The term "Christmas seals" started many years ago when tuberculosis was striking at its peak. Since then many organizations joined the bandwagon and distributed stamp-like seals during the holiday season.

Tuberculosis associations throughout the nation have continued pre-holiday mailings of seals as their single fund-raising campaign of the year.

In Michigan this year seals were mailed to nearly two million homes and business places. The Michigan TB and Respiratory Disease Association hopes to set a new record, by collecting a million dollars.

Impact of the disease has lessened considerably, officials report. Leaders in the battle against TB have set 1970 as a target date for eradication of the disease.

The happy holidays this year will be somewhat less than joyous for many Michigan residents, state statistics show.

November, December and January are traditionally the worst months on the highways. Holidays throughout the year generally bring an increase in the number of traffic accidents.

The three year-end holidays contribute to heavy traffic substantially and wintry weather gives cause to extra care behind the wheel.

Highway department officials marked the recent opening of additional high mileage with predictions the new, multi-lane divided highway through the north-central section of the state would result in a sharp drop in traffic accidents.

Department studies on other freeways in the state would tend to support this prediction. There are fewer accidents on divided highways than on the roads they replace. One reason for this, however, would seem to be that the old roads were not built to accommodate the current traffic loads and speeds.

State Police records tend to discount the highway department's rosy picture of the effect of multi-lane routes.

Over-all traffic accident records in Michigan have not substantially decreased. In the last two years fatalities have been as high or higher than previous years.

State Police Commissioner Joseph Childs placed emphasis on recent months on extra care on roads near home.

"People get off the high-speed routes and near their homes, where they have driven the side-roads year in and year out," he said. They often get careless because they aren't ready for the unpredictable."

194 Freeway Extended

Lansing—The nation's longest stretch of toll-free Interstate highway—203 miles of I-94 from Detroit to Stevensville—was extended another 11 miles recently with the opening of another section in Berrien County.

Selfishness wrecks nations, just as it wrecks individuals.

GOLF AND EXERCISE

San Diego, Calif.—A game of golf may be regarded as good exercise by some, but a physician describes it as "a good way to spoil a walk."

Dr. Thomas K. Cureton, a member of President Kennedy's Youth Fitness Council, says that physical exercise should be rigorous enough to cause perspiration.

A rhythmic exercise, such as walking, is the best tranquillizer he knows of and may be a key long life.

FROM THE GOVERNOR'S CHAIR

By John B. Swainson

Shocking disclosures by the Michigan Department of Agriculture of overcharging the housewife through short-weights in pre-packaged meat should put all of us on the alert.

More effective means to protect the housewives from unscrupulous dealers must be found, and I have called a meeting with Agriculture Director G. S. McIntyre to determine more effective action.

A recent survey in southeastern Michigan showed that, when inspectors weighed 1,580 packages of meat in 44 retail stores, they found 54 percent of them to be short weight. In one store, all the pre-packaged meat in its display case was short weight.

These overcharges ranged from 1 to 53 cents—and the consumer was cheated to that extent.

But this is only one form of cheating that is being uncovered. People who can afford meat least are being defrauded when meat and other bulk is added to hamburger.

The housewife is also subjected to other deceptive practices such as "butter" cookies with no butter, "egg" noodles with no eggs, "creamed" cottage cheese with no cream.

Deceptive labeling is cheating and deliberate overcharging is stealing. Neither is to be tolerated now to go unpunished. If our laws need to be made more stringent, so that the penalty for violators is more severe, this should be considered.

My office intends to see that sources we now have to provide the consumer are utilized to the fullest, and that additional sources are taken where needed.

Most of our merchants are honest and want to give their customers the best values they can. It is the fraudulent dealer who concerns us.

I urge all citizens, who may have questions or complaints, to contact the Foods and Standards Division of the Michigan Department of Agriculture in Lansing, or regional offices in Detroit, Benton Harbor, Grand Rapids, Flint and Escanaba.

Considerable activity may be seen daily in Michigan as business and industry continues to grow ahead, and more plans for long range area development are announced.

The Area Redevelopment Administration has approved projects involving 10 counties and the city of Detroit. The counties are: Monroe, St. Clair, Macomb, Oakland, Wayne, Bay, Dickinson, Schoecraft, Marquette and Ontonagon.

All of these programs will create more jobs through community spirited industrial development with only an assist from AR.

I am hopeful of favorable final action on these projects, as has occurred at Newberry where the Small Business Administration has approved loans of $500,000 for new industrial development.

CON-CON REPORT

Lansing—Delegates to the Michigan Constitutional Convention arrived swiftly today to meet a deadline for the introduction of proposals for revising the state's 53-year-old basic law.

Although more than 800 proposals have been introduced to date, Convention Secretary Fred Chase and his staff were braced themselves for a last-minute surge.

While there is no accurate way of predicting the situation, Chase explained, an 11th-hour rush was standard procedure in the legislature and it will probably be the same in Con-Con.

With all proposals in, convention leaders agreed that the nine committees, which are charged with the actual reviewing and revising of the present constitution, would step up both their intensity and pace of their deliberations.

"We're hopeful that committee reports will begin to flow out to the floor almost immediately," said Stephen S. Nisbet, convention president.

At this stage of the Constitutional Convention deliberations, it appears virtually certain that a completely new document will be presented to the registered voters of Michigan for their approval.

President Nisbet voted that any delegates have been thinking over the past few weeks when they reported that he thought was now generally accepted that the convention would see a complete rewrite rather than a patch job on the 1908 constitution.

After several weeks of intense committee study, leaders of both sides realize that Michigan's constitution leaves much to be desired as an ideal document.

The present constitution is basically more than 100 years old, and the 1907 convention made only minor changes in the 1850 document.

Nisbet made a procedural ruling in a recent general session that any changes to the constitution will come under scrutiny by the convention. Every delegate will have the opportunity to offer floor amendments, and a debate on every amendment whether it should be changed, discarded or kept as is, is assured.

Delegates will have an opportunity to keep pace with the multi-ton of printed material that flows their way each day, with an assistant Michigan State University, Adelaide J. Hart (D) of Detroit took one look at the mountain of journals, calendars, committee reports, etc. that had accumulated on her desk overnight and decided to have immediate neighbors.

John A. Hannah, President of the Michigan State University, said to ask if his school did not have a rapid reading course to the delegates.

Dr. Hannah called Dr. L. A. Doyle, assistant director of Continuing Education at MSU and as a result Dr. Doyle will conduct an organizational meeting this week to determine how many delegates will devote a couple of hours a day to a course in Rapid and Efficient Reading.

The general public has every right to be heard at the Constitutional Convention, Stephen S. Nisbet, president of the convention, said this clear by stating that committees of the convention welcome appearances by individuals and organizations, or communications from such groups, who have recommendations concerning the proposed document.

This matter was brought to the floor of the convention by Delegate Harold Norris (D) of Detroit, a professor at the Detroit College of Law. Norris told the delegates he thought it was important that the public be apprised of how and when they could become part of the deliberative process of the convention.

Persons or organizations requesting appearances before one or more of the convention's nine substantive committees will be accommodated between Dec. 1 and Dec. 15.

Communications should be directed to Fred J. Chase, secretary of the convention, who will channel them to the proper committee.

Each general session of the convention is opened with a prayer and in only two instances has a member of the clergy appeared more than once. The first 25 convention sessions saw 25 different individuals give the invocation.

Mrs. Billie Dowell of Secretary Fred J. Chase's office schedules the guest pastors through the cooperation of the Lansing Council of Churches.

To date, most clergymen have come from the Lansing area and all faiths have been represented. However, any delegate may request that his personal pastor, or one from his area, be invited by notifying Mrs. Dowell 10 days in advance of the requested appearance.

Two delegates have offered prayer this far, Arthur G. Elliott, Jr. (R) of Pleasant Ridge and The Rev. Malcolm G. Dade (D) of Detroit, pastor of St. Cyprian's Protestant Episcopal church, the one ordained minister elected as a delegate. However, five other delegates have offered their services in this respect.

Any minister who is interested in presenting the opening prayer at the convention should contact Mrs. Dowell in Secretary Chase's office, Constitution Hall, Civic Center, Lansing.

The taxpayers of Michigan are saving money—thus far. A fund of $5,000 was established in the convention budget listed under "Fees and Compensation." This amount was set aside to take care of mileage and subpoena fees for persons called before convention committees.

Though many witnesses have appeared thus far, some travelling considerable distance at personal sacrifice, to date there has been no claim filed for any amount, from this fund.

Junior Stock Show Awards Include MSU Scholarship

The charmed circle of the grand champion. That's the goal of more than 300 Michigan 4-H clubbers who will make entries in the annual Detroit Junior Livestock Show next month.

The 4-H members will bring nearly 100,000 in prize lambs, hogs and steers to the 32nd annual exposition to be held in the state fairgrounds arena Dec. 5-7.

The junior show which attracts exhibitors from more than 60 Michigan counties is jointly sponsored by the 4-H club department of Michigan State University and the Detroit Junior Livestock Society.

The Society offers more than $2,000 in prizes and provides the 4-Hers with the "red carpet" treatment when they arrive in Michigan's largest metropolis. The society is headed by a group of public-spirited businessmen in the Detroit area who are interested both in helping youth and promoting the livestock industry.

Douglas H. Mueller of the Greater Detroit Board of Commerce is president of the organization this year and will take an active part in welcoming the 4-H members to the annual show. Animals arrive Tuesday, the show follows Wednesday and the final day all entries, including champions, will go under the auctioneer's hammer to the highest bidder.

Russ Mawby, director of the state 4-H Club program believes the junior show has contributed greatly to 4-H livestock interests. "It provides an educational experience for all who participate and enables our many friends to see the accomplishments of some of the 70,000 boys and girls enrolled in hundreds of clubs throughout the state," Mawby said.

But it isn't all glory for the 4-H livestock exhibitor. The young stockmen put in countless hours of effort in feeding and grooming animals for the show. Then follow seemingly endless times of waiting, parading, showing and posing animals for the close scrutiny of a judge.

When the dust of the show ring has cleared, the show will have named another grand champion market hog, lamb and steer. Detroit area buyers, always staunch supporters of the sale, will be on hand to offer their bids in the show's final event.

In a special lamb carcass class, exhibitors will see their animals judged on foot and then compare notes with the judges when carcasses are placed at a Detroit packing plant. MSU 4-H leaders believe this is one of the show's most educational features.

All exhibitors will be guests of the Livestock Society at the annual Wednesday banquet in the Sheraton-Cadillac Hotel, headquarters for the three-day event. Special awards include showmanship trophies and a four-year scholarship to Michigan State University and the Detroit Junior Livestock Society.

Don't Gamble with Misrepresented Fire Extinguishers

(NOTE: This is one in a series of articles by Paul L. Adams, State Attorney General, concerning frauds affecting the consumers of this State.)

Many families are being pressured to buy automatic fire extinguishers misrepresented as approved by the State Fire Marshal and by "name" insurance and chemical companies. Some recent buyers of extinguishers have found them to be not approved as represented, and also to be loaded with chemicals found dangerously toxic when tested by the State Health Department.

The law requires certain standards of safe content for some fire extinguishers, but this law does not cover single family dwellings. Thus, the homeowner is on his own.

Don't play with fire or with hazardous fire extinguishers. Check sales claims before you buy. If in doubt, ask the State Health Department to analyze the extinguisher for safety of content.

Deer Kill by State's Hunters Expected To Equal Last Year

Lansing—Michigan deer hunters will take home at least as many bucks this fall as in 1980 when they harvested some 47,000, the Conservation Department estimates after checking field reports covering the first week of the firearm season.

Although hunter numbers did not measure up to last year's through this period, particularly in the Upper Peninsula, the mid-season kill picture pretty much reflects the one forecast by the Department last summer when deer hunting regulations were set.

Traffic counts at the Straits of Mackinac and reports from district game men indicate that hunting pressure and buck kill were fairly light in the Upper Peninsula. Hunting conditions were near ideal above the Straits with snow arriving in most areas early in the season.

Hunter success was described as better than last year in Traverse City, Mio, and Baldwin districts and about the same in Gaylord and Gladwin districts.

Hunting pressure appeared to match the 1980 level in three of these five districts. It was up in the Mio district but decidedly down in the Baldwin area. Outside of the second day when there was rainy weather reminiscent of the 1980 opener, hunters enjoyed good shooting conditions in the northern lower peninsula. Tracking snow

Deer Kill by State's Hunters Expected To Equal Last Year

Lansing—Michigan deer hunters will take home at least as many bucks this fall as in 1980 when they harvested some 47,000, the Conservation Department estimates after checking field reports covering the first week of the firearm season.

Although hunter numbers did not measure up to last year's through this period, particularly in the Upper Peninsula, the mid-season kill picture pretty much reflects the one forecast by the Department last summer when deer hunting regulations were set.

Traffic counts at the Straits of Mackinac and reports from district game men indicate that hunting pressure and buck kill were fairly light in the Upper Peninsula. Hunting conditions were near ideal above the Straits with snow arriving in most areas early in the season.

Hunter success was described as better than last year in Traverse City, Mio, and Baldwin districts and about the same in Gaylord and Gladwin districts.

Hunting pressure appeared to match the 1980 level in three of these five districts. It was up in the Mio district but decidedly down in the Baldwin area. ### National Junior Vegetable Growers Meet in Detroit

Michigan will be host to the National Junior Vegetable Growers' convention in Detroit, Dec. 3-7, when 500 will attend the sessions to be held at the Sheraton-Tenue Hotel.

Approximately 50 delegates will represent Michigan at the convention, according to J. Lee Taylor, Michigan horticulturist at Michigan State University, one of the permanent chairmen for the event.

State delegates include 11 members of judging and demonstration teams chosen at the 4-H show in August. These teams compete in national finals to be held Dec. 6 and 7.

Special evening programs will include an address by Merritt Hill, president of the Ford Tractor and Tractor Division, and a presentation of General Motors' "Preview Progress."

Careers in Horticulture will be the topic of a panel to be moderated by Vern Freeh of MSU's College of Agriculture on Wednesday.

The evening session will feature a musical program by the Junior Imperials.

The convention will conclude with a banquet Thursday, after for the dinner will be Dr. Mawby who heads the 4-H program for the state of Michigan.

Special tours have been arranged for the Ford Tractor and Implement plant and testing grounds as well as the Ford Museum and Ford Field Village. Other tours will include the GM Technical Center and the Detroit Produce Terminal.

In the Upper Peninsula, deer record about half of their buck kill during the first three days. Between two-thirds and three-fourths of the bucks killed each fall in the northern peninsula are taken during first three days.

Mrs. America, Mrs. Cleve B. Masson

Michigan Homemaker Named Mrs. America

After knocking at the door for two years, Michigan can claim the nation's top homemaker, Mrs. Cleve B. (Lila) Masson of Redford township. The Detroit suburban housewife was named "Mrs. America" in the annual contest in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., on Thanksgiving day.

Last year Mrs. John (Gerry) Scott of Traverse City was selected as one of the 10 top finalists in the contest. The year before Mrs. G. Edward (Buff) Stokes of Traverse City took second-place honors.

Mrs. Masson, auburn-haired and green-eyed, charmed the judges during two weeks of interviews and competitive events to win thousands of dollars in prizes including a trip with her husband to Europe and a family vacation in Fort Lauderdale.

Before arriving home Wednesday, Nov. 29, Mrs. Masson made television and public appearances in New York and Indianapolis, Ind. Her three children, Diane, 17; Tom, 12; and David, 9, and hundreds of friends from Redford township were on hand to meet her at Metropolitan Airport when she arrived.

For the next year Mrs. Masson will travel all over the country, representing the homemakers of America at all types of functions. It will not be exactly a new experience for her, since she has made a number of public appearances since she was crowned "Mrs. Michigan" last June in the state competition sponsored by Michigan Consolidated Gas Co.

★ Farmers Buy Bonds

Although the farm income balance-sheet needs improvement the ledger shows that farmers continue to place thrift at the top of their value-list. Evidence of this is found in figures from the U. S. Treasury department to show that the nation's farmers have been among the best customers for Savings Bonds since they were first offered for sale in 1941.

This month the Treasury Department is saluting farmers for their part in the bond program's success, pointing out as they do so that farm families currently own more than $5.2 billion worth of series E and H savings Bonds.

"Bonds owned by farmers have their work cut out for them," the Treasury statement said. "They replace machinery, pay for new land, and provide insurance against the risks of farming. They get personal assignments too, such as sending the youngsters to college."

Farmers are finding Savings Bonds an attractive method of building reserves. Series E and H bonds purchased since June 1, 1959, pay 3 1/2 percent interest when held to maturity. The same legislation which raised the rate on new purchases to this higher rate also provided for an increase of at least one-half of one percent in the interest rate on all then-outstanding E and H bonds, regardless of their age, for the period from June 1, 1959, to their maturity.

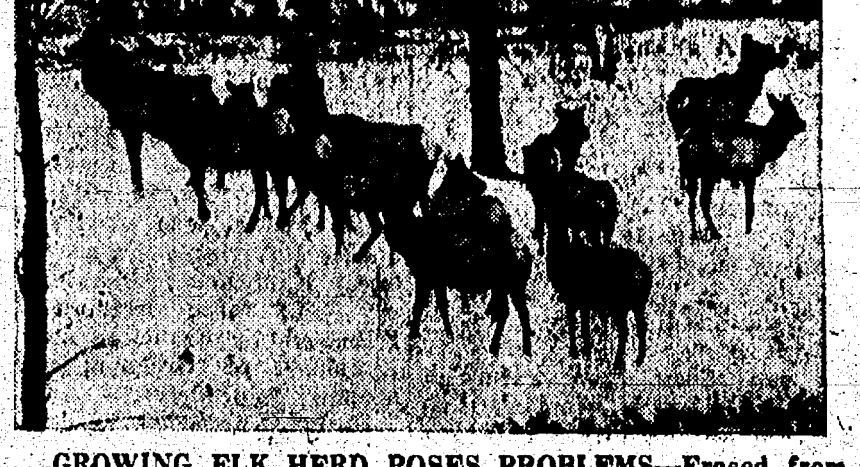

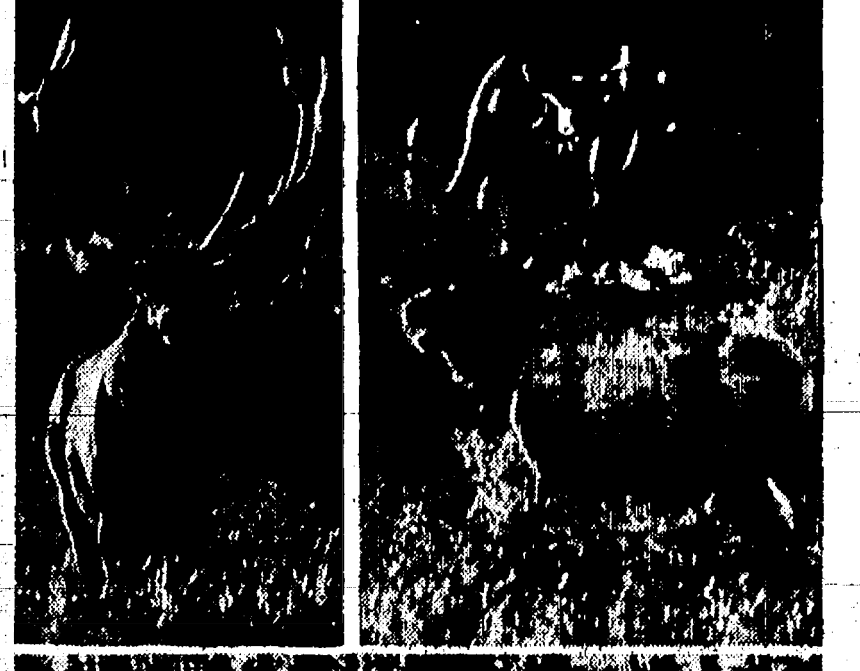

More and more Michigan farm families are setting aside small amounts in Savings Bonds each month or year to accumulate funds for major financial goals. The fact that one-third of the cash reserves of U. S. farmers and ranchers is invested in Savings Bonds indicates clearly the faith which many farm families have in these securities.

Small wonder that state and American Farm Bureau leaders call them "an investment in America itself" and describe them as "the best hired man in the business"—and the one crop that never fails.

GAS GETS THE SNAKE
—Rescue, Calif.—Fifteen rattlesnakes to a gallon of gasoline is pretty good so Halley Wing thinks.

Wing was chasing a large snake in a mining area in this community when the snake disappeared into a burrow.

Recalling advice that gasoline fumes would bring snake out, he poured in a gallon and out came a long snake and fourteen little rattlers. Wing killed them all.

GROWING ELK HERD POSES PROBLEMS—Farmed from Michigan in the wake of the early lumbering era, elk have regained part of their former niche in the state's wildlife picture. In 1918, about 20 of these big animals were released in the Pigeon River area which lies generally east of Vanderbilt. Today, the protected elk herd, estimated at 1,200-1,500 animals, has spread beyond this area. Massive and majestic, these animals have become strong drawing cards for tourists. Their steady growth in numbers has, however, been accompanied by rising damage complaints from foresters and farmers. It is possible that some form of control will be needed in the near future to cut down elk damage and keep the herd in better balance with all interests, including game.

State's Farm Records Show Need for Top Management

Modern farming is big business. But few farmers are in high income brackets. That's what a summary of records kept by nearly a thousand Michigan farm operators showed for 1960.

Each year farm management specialists at Michigan State University analyze records of farmers who co-operate in a state-wide accounting project, one of the leading programs of its kind in the nation.

With the help of electronic data processing, the economists get a good picture of business trends on Michigan farms. "Our record keepers aren't average farmers. They usually have larger farms and are better-than-average operators, but these accounts provide a wealth of information," according to Charles Beer, MSU farm management specialist.

The records are more than a mere service to account keepers, Beer says. "Actual accounts keep us abreast of business trends and provide guidelines for sound management," Beer observes. "Such information is of great help for us and our county extension agents in providing management assistance."

In 1960, records show that labor incomes for the 939 farmers whose records were summarized from all over the state averaged $2,359. That's a wage of about $200 a month for the skill management required to run today's farm. And, these are no small operations. Investment per farm averaged slightly over $75,000, a figure that has doubled since 1955.

The net income for both labor and the interest on investment was just over $6,000, Beer notes. "If this compares reasonably to the income of a city cousin, consider that this figure represents farm income and many times must be divided among several families or family workers."

Net farm income may look quite respectable even though labor incomes are low, the economist points out, but farmers like all business, must charge a reasonable interest rate on investment. "After all, most banks would pay four percent and many other investments would yield far greater rates of return," he said.

The 1960 business year showed a slight increase in net income over 1959. But as incomes rose, so did expenses. After making a very nominal labor charge, farms returned an average of 4.8 percent on total investment.

"We emphasize that these are average figures," Beer stressed. One-fourth of the record keepers actually went into the "red" on labor income. Eleven percent had net returns under $1,000 and only two-thirds of the group were above this mark. About a fourth of the farms, usually the larger units, had labor incomes above $5,000.

Both large and small farms must have top grade management to make ends meet, but larger units have the edge. The economist notes that the average acreage on the farms was 285. Cash receipts averaged nearly $24,000 with expenses totaling $13,389. Even with this volume, labor incomes were still under $2,500 per year.

Farming requires ever-increasing amounts of capital and outlays of $100,000 and up are becoming more common.

Is there still money in farming? For the good manager, yes, the economists believe, and the records support their position.

Michigan Issues New Winter Sports Guide

Michigan's 1961-62 statewide ski map and winter sports guide is just off the presses and is ready for distribution, according to the state tourist council.

This year's winter sports map—the seventh annual edition—is the largest ever produced, listing locations of 84 skiing, skating and tobogganing centers and the facilities offered by each.

Some 50,000 copies of the publication, "Fun in the Snow," will be distributed throughout the nation—primarily in the Midwest—during the winter season, council spokesmen said.

Single copies or quantity supplies of "Fun in the Snow" are available on request, without charge, from: Michigan Tourist Council, Lansing 26.

Area Resident To Represent U. S. at Pilots' Meeting

Captain William A. Barber of North Central Airlines, Willow Run, at one time the youngest airline captain and one of the nation's top aerobatic pilots, will represent the U. S. in meetings with pilots from the free world and Iron Curtain countries.

Barber makes his home at 8881 McGregor Rd., Portage Lake.

The meetings to be held in Paris, France, beginning Dec. 11, will establish requirements for international aerobatic flying competition to pick the world's championship aerobatic pilots. The contest will be supervised and sanctioned by the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, the worldwide aviation sanctioning authority since 1905. Countries participating will include the U. S., Great Britain, France, Italy, West Germany, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, Russia, Hungary and Poland.

These meetings will take on special significance in light of Russian state support of individuals engaged in any type of international competition. Aerobatics, or low altitude exhibition flying, is one of aviation's most colorful events and has been kept alive in this country by a small band of aviators of which Captain Barber is a member. Barber keeps his small aerobatic aircraft based in this area and put on batic demonstrations at Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti airports summer.

Barber started flying while in high school and has been a duster, charter pilot, Army instructor, and is currently at Willow Run as a captain at North Central Airlines.

Along with his duties as a captain, and his exhibition flying around the country, Barber has been an officer of the Aerobatic Pilots' Association and a pilot for his airline.

In addition to representing American aerobatic flying in Europe this winter, Captain Barber has assisted in the filming of a special CBS-TV show on aerobatic flying which is to be telecast to coast Feb. 18.

Search on for Homemaker Of Tomorrow

Fifteen Chelsea High school senior girls who are home economics students will be among the more than 400,400 in 12,700 of the nation's schools Tuesday, Dec. 5 who take a written examination to help determine the winner of the 1962 Betty Crocker Search for the American Homemaker of Tomorrow. At stake is $110,000 in college scholarships from General Mills, sponsor of the educational program designed to emphasize the importance of homemaking as a career.

Mrs. Barbara D. Straker, Chelsea High school homemaker teacher, says the test, prepared and then scored by Science Research Associates, Chicago, provides the basis for selection of local and state winners. Personal observation and interviews are added factors in selecting national winners. Mrs. Straker said the girl selected as Chelsea winner will receive a medal as an award.

The 1962 All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow will be named at Washington, D. C., May 3, at the culmination of an expense-paid educational tour of New York City, Colonial Williamsburg, Va., and the National Capital for winners from the 50 states and the District of Columbia and their advisors. Scholarships range from $1,500 for each state Homemaker of Tomorrow and $500 for each state runner-up to $5,000, $4,000, $3,000 and $2,000 respectively for the top four national places.

Including this year, more than two and a half million girls have participated in the search during its eight year duration, and scholarship grants have passed the $800,000 mark. The program, from its start, has been included on the approved list of national contests and activities of the National Association of Secondary School Principals.

Mrs. George W. Hart left Friday for Torrance, Calif., where she will visit Mrs. Anna Kleckum and other relatives. Prior to her departure her week-end guests were Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Lampe of Mogadore, O., and on Tuesday her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Laubenthal of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., spent the afternoon at her home here.

Richard Penhallegon, Olivet college junior, has been named house manager at his fraternity house, Kappa Sigma Alpha.

Nation Studying Effects of Water Fluoridation

Lansing—National attention is being focused on the bright smiles of 1,700 Grand Rapids-Central High school students Nov. 27-30 for a study being conducted to determine the effect of fluoridation on the appearance of teeth.

Grand Rapids was one of the first communities in the nation to fluoridate its water supply in 1945—the year that most of the high school seniors were born. Since the optimum effect of fluoridation occurs during the first eight years of a child's life, a demonstrable difference in the appearance of the teeth of life residents of Grand Rapids is expected. Representatives of the Michigan Department of Health, the Texas State Health Department, University of Michigan School of Public Health and the U. S. Public Health Service will examine each student's teeth during seven half-day sessions. A color photograph will also be taken of each individual's teeth.

Purpose of the study is to provide dental health personnel and the general public with a meaningful description of the effect of fluoridation on tooth appearance and to evaluate a new index for classifying the effect of fluoride on the appearance of teeth. Tooth defects such as cavities will not be included in the examination, since it has already been conclusively proven that fluoridation substantially reduces tooth decay.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rowe spent Thanksgiving at North Lake as guests of their daughter and family. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bury and children, The Rowses' granddaughters, Barbara and Ann Marie Bury, accompanied them home and spent Friday and Saturday with them. Mrs. Floyd Rowe spent all day Tuesday with her twin sister, Miss Sarah Benter, at her home at Francisco.

It is an interesting experience to watch a loud-talking brother find out that there are some matters which have escaped his attention.

The average size of Michigan farms is about 132 acres.

Farm Crop Production Is Increasing

The production of most Michigan fruit, vegetable and field crops has shown an increase during the last few years, says John Ferris, Michigan State University agricultural economist.

The combined total production of feed grains in Michigan has increased 50 percent in the past decade. Actually, says Ferris, corn production and acreage have increased and the production of the other feed grains has declined. The northern edge of the Corn Belt has moved up through southern Michigan with the development of earlier maturing varieties of corn. The new Feed Grain program, however, is expected to reduce the 1961 corn crop used for grain by about 12 percent below 1960.

Michigan has become a "feed surplus" state. Feed grain production has exceeded the requirements of our livestock industry by about a third, and most of the extra feed is shipped out of Michigan. Other crop production figures show the following trends in Michigan agriculture:

Although wheat acreage has not changed much in recent years because of government allotments, average yields have increased, says Ferris. Soybean acreage and production have almost tripled in the past decade and navy beans have also shown an increase. Sugar beet production and average yield have been increasing over the past decade, Ferris says. There has been no evident trend in price over the past decade.

Potato acreage has been cut in half but higher yields have offset this decline, keeping production fairly stable, Ferris says. There has been little trend upward or downward in price.

With the exception of peaches, the production of fruit has increased in the past decade. A decline in apple acreage and grape acreage has been offset by increased yields.

Acreage of fresh vegetables has increased and acreage of processing vegetables has decreased over the past decade, says Ferris. However, there have been substantial gains in yields. An example of this is the 64 percent increase in pickle production on 41 percent less acreage, he says.

Prices on fruits and vegetables fluctuate widely from year to year. But these prices have not declined since the Korean War as have prices on other farm products.

Strict Regulations Govern Storing Deer Hides, Skins

Dressed and cut up deer may be stored in commercial cold storage with other food supplies if skins and hides are not included under Michigan laws.

This is the word to successful deer hunters from the Michigan Department of Agriculture's foods and standards division headed by J. L. Littlefield. Each year the lucky hunter creates more than his share of problems for locker plant inspectors.

Strict regulations govern the storage of wild life. One of these prohibits the storage of hides and skins unless separate storage rooms with no open passages leading into locker rooms, chill rooms, aging rooms, or sharp freeze rooms are provided. Hides and skins must be stored elsewhere.

"Deer stored in other than locker plants, such as refrigerators or freezers in grocery stores and meat markets must be stored so there is no possible contamination of other foods from dust, vermin, animals or persons," Littlefield explained.

Deer still having the hide on must be stored in a separate room from all other provisions, under Michigan regulations.

A nation is as strong as its average citizen and no stronger.

Production Record Told for Macomber Herd of Holsteins

The Holstein-Friesian Association of America has announced a new lactation average for the registered Holstein herd of George Macomber, Ann Arbor, which has 16 completed production records averaging 13,072 lbs. of milk and 456 lbs. of butterfat.

Lactation averages are calculated on the commonly-employed two-milkings a day, 305 days, mature equivalent basis. This provides a uniform basis for comparison and selection in registered Holstein breeding programs.

Michigan State University supervised the weighing and testing of production as part of the official herd testing programs of the national Holstein organization.

AIRCRAFT CONTROLS

President Kennedy has directed the Federal Aviation Agency to begin working on the recommendations of a special group which studied the nation's aircraft control system.

Some of the recommendations are expected to stir controversy between the military facilities to control plane traffic.

However, the report recommended that only the radar portion of a military weapons control system known as Sage (Strategic Air Ground-Environment) be used.

New Programs Developed To Aid State's Wildlife

Michigan farmers have a new opportunity to increase farm income and help wildlife at the same time.

Under a new federal act, the United States Department of Agriculture will pay up to half the cost of installing land and water conserving practices of particular value to wildlife.

The cost-sharing provisions apply to three types of practices, points out Charles Shick, Michigan State University extension wildlife specialist.

First, shallow water areas can be developed or restored for wildlife. This may involve dikes, ditching, flooding, and other installations.

Second, a farmer can plant cover crops, grain, trees or shrubs to improve feed for wildlife.

Third, he can build a permanent pond or dam for fish and other wildlife.

"The practices should substantially improve wildlife habitat, especially waterfowl breeding areas and fishponds," Shick believes.

"Such developments are needed partly because many acres of marsh in the state have been drained in the past 50-75 years," he points out. "The new program seeks to aid wildlife without hindering agriculture."

The practices resemble those of the Soil Bank program, now being discontinued as contracts expire. But the current program has some new wrinkles.

Farmers must contribute a share of the cost. State agencies and private organizations cannot make total grants.

Second, wildlife ponds can go anywhere on a farm upon recommendation of the local Soil Conservation Service technician. They need not go on cropland as in the Soil Bank program.

Third, habitat and cover planting practices may differ within the state to meet local needs.

County Extension Service, ASC and SOS offices are now considering local adaptations of the new programs and can provide details to land owners.

DEFICIT MAY CONTINUE

The United States deficit in international payments which has climbed to an annual rate of $3,000,000,000 may grow worse next spring Government sources indicate.

Administration officials do not expect anything like last year's speculative assault on the dollar.

One major cause may be the rising prosperity of the United States, which comes at a time when a business slowdown in Germany, England and Japan may cause their purchases here to decline.

Michigan forests produce about 600 million dollars in forest products each year.

Hound Helping U-M Doctors Study Transplant Problems

Ann Arbor—A sad-eyed flopped-eared hound named Homer is helping doctors at the University of Michigan Medical Center flush out one of the baffling mysteries of human and animal nature.

Homer is a research dog—a prized one. He has his own private physician, veterinarian and registered nurse, but he looks and acts no different from any other canine.

And that is important. Because Homer is using another dog's lung. On May 26, 1961, Homer was operated on at the U-M Medical Center and his left lung was replaced with the lung of another dog. At the present state of medical knowledge, only rudimentary tissues from one body—such as blood and the corneas of eyes—can be transplanted successfully into another body.

More complex tissues like skin, kidneys or lungs are quickly rejected through the mechanism which protects the body from the invasion of any "foreign" objects.

Doctors throughout the world are striving to find ways to transplant body parts for its potential value in replacing diseased, damaged or worn out organs. They have had some success in transplanting tissues between identical twins. But in most other cases, the tissue has been soundly rejected within a few days or weeks.

That's why Homer has become a V.I.P. around the medical center. Very Important Pooch. He's kept his new lung five months, possibly a record time for non-rejection.

How and why he has managed this, the doctors at U-M would like to know.

For two weeks following the operation, Homer received daily injections of methotrexate, a drug originally developed to fight cancer. Other dogs who had received the drug had become ill immediately, then gradually improved and lived two or three months.

Homer, however, got sicker than any of the others. For a while only the intense efforts of the veterinarian, nurse and doctor kept him alive.

Then he took a turn for the better. Today, five months after the operation, he has gained weight and is going strong.

"We believe Homer will give us a big lead toward understanding the whole transplantation problem," says Homer's doctor. "But we know we are still a long way from finding the solution."

For his part, Homer is blissfully unaware that he is living on borrowed time. He submits with good grace to the tests, X-rays and tappings of the researchers as they seek clues to his remarkable survival.

Somewhere under his black furry hide lies an answer to the secret of how man can exchange parts of his body.

All the doctors have to do is find it.

About Your Social Security

Did you ever try to find someone in a crowd? Down at the social security office they're doing just this, except on a larger scale.

Because of a change in the law, about 1 million people could get retirement insurance checks this year for the first time even though they are still working. The Social Security Administration knows who most of these people are, and they are getting the benefits due them. But there are still a few people who are working but would be able to get checks for some months in the year under this change in the law if they would just go to a social security office and file a claim.

So that the Social Security Administration can find all of the 1 million people who are entitled to some benefits this year, Robert A. Kehoe, manager of the Ann Arbor office, suggests that any worker who is 65, come in and file his social security claim even though he is still working. Those who have not filed may be losing payments they are entitled to. He says that people who think they can't get any retirement insurance benefits because they're making more than $1,200 a year may be surprised to learn that they do have some social security dollars coming to them in 1961. The new retirement rule allows workers to earn considerably more than $1,200 and still get some retirement payments.

The new law is explained in a free pamphlet called "If You Work While You Get Social Security Payments." Kehoe says that, upon request, the Ann Arbor office will be glad to mail copies to interested area residents, particularly those who are already 65 or who will reach 65 this year. Send a letter or postcard to the social security office at 114 S. Fourth Avenue, Ann Arbor, or call NO 2-3275 for your copies.

Older farmers in Michigan tend to live on smaller farms, say Michigan State University agricultural economists.

SCENIC MICHIGAN FREEWAY—A 21-mile section of Interstate 75 Freeway in northern Michigan has been selected as one of America's most scenic new highways. The freeway, which extends from Indian River to Mackinaw City, was cited as an outstanding example of a highway designed to take advantage of the natural terrain and scenic beauty of the area. State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie will receive a plaque from Parade Magazine and Better Highways Information Foundation, sponsors of the national contest to pick the nation's finest new highways.

ANNIVERSARY OBSERVED

Tensions existing in various parts of the world, added to widespread apprehension over more than 20 nuclear explosions recently in the Soviet Union, cast their shadows over the global observance of the 16th anniversary of the United Nations on Oct. 24. Factors that helped to lighten the gloom were the announcement the preceding day of the award of the Nobel Peace Prize to the late Secretary Dag Hammarskjöld, and the concert in the General Assembly Hall, by the symphony orchestra of the Canadian Broadcasting Company.

Michigan is one of the largest producers of soft white winter wheat which is used in making cookies, pastries and breakfast foods.

Washington News Notes

TAYLOR'S PLANS ACCEPTED

The Kennedy administration is reported to have decided to go ahead with some of Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's recommendations for strengthening pro-Western South Vietnam against a growing Communist onslaught.

Secrecy still obscures details on what Taylor recommended to President Kennedy. However, there have been reports that the Air Force is assigning several hundred officers and men to give added instructions to the small Vietnamese air force.

BIG 4 PLAN MEETING

The Big Four Western foreign ministers have agreed to meet in Paris next month to talk about Berlin and other problems.

This December session will follow previous discussions between President Kennedy and West German Chancellor Adenauer and a session between French President Charles de Gaulle and British Prime Minister Macmillan.

U.S. SCULPTURE PRESENTED

At a ceremony in the rose garden of the United Nations on Oct. 30 Assembly President Mongi Slim of Tunisia accepted formally an abstract sculpture by a United States artist, Ezio Martinelli, ordered by the National Council for United States Art. The work, in gold and bronze-colored anodized aluminum, 30 by 17 feet in size, had already been placed on the east wall of the Assembly building.

"Astronaut" Professor at WSU Aids Space-Science Research

DETROIT . . . A "sled" that rockets up an eight-story elevator shaft on the Wayne State University medical campus is providing basic data that should help man in future space flights.

"Acceleration Studies" is a continuing project of Wayne's Bio-Mechanics Center, through which the WSU investigators hope to find the "acceleration threshold for fracture"—the point where human bones begin to crack.

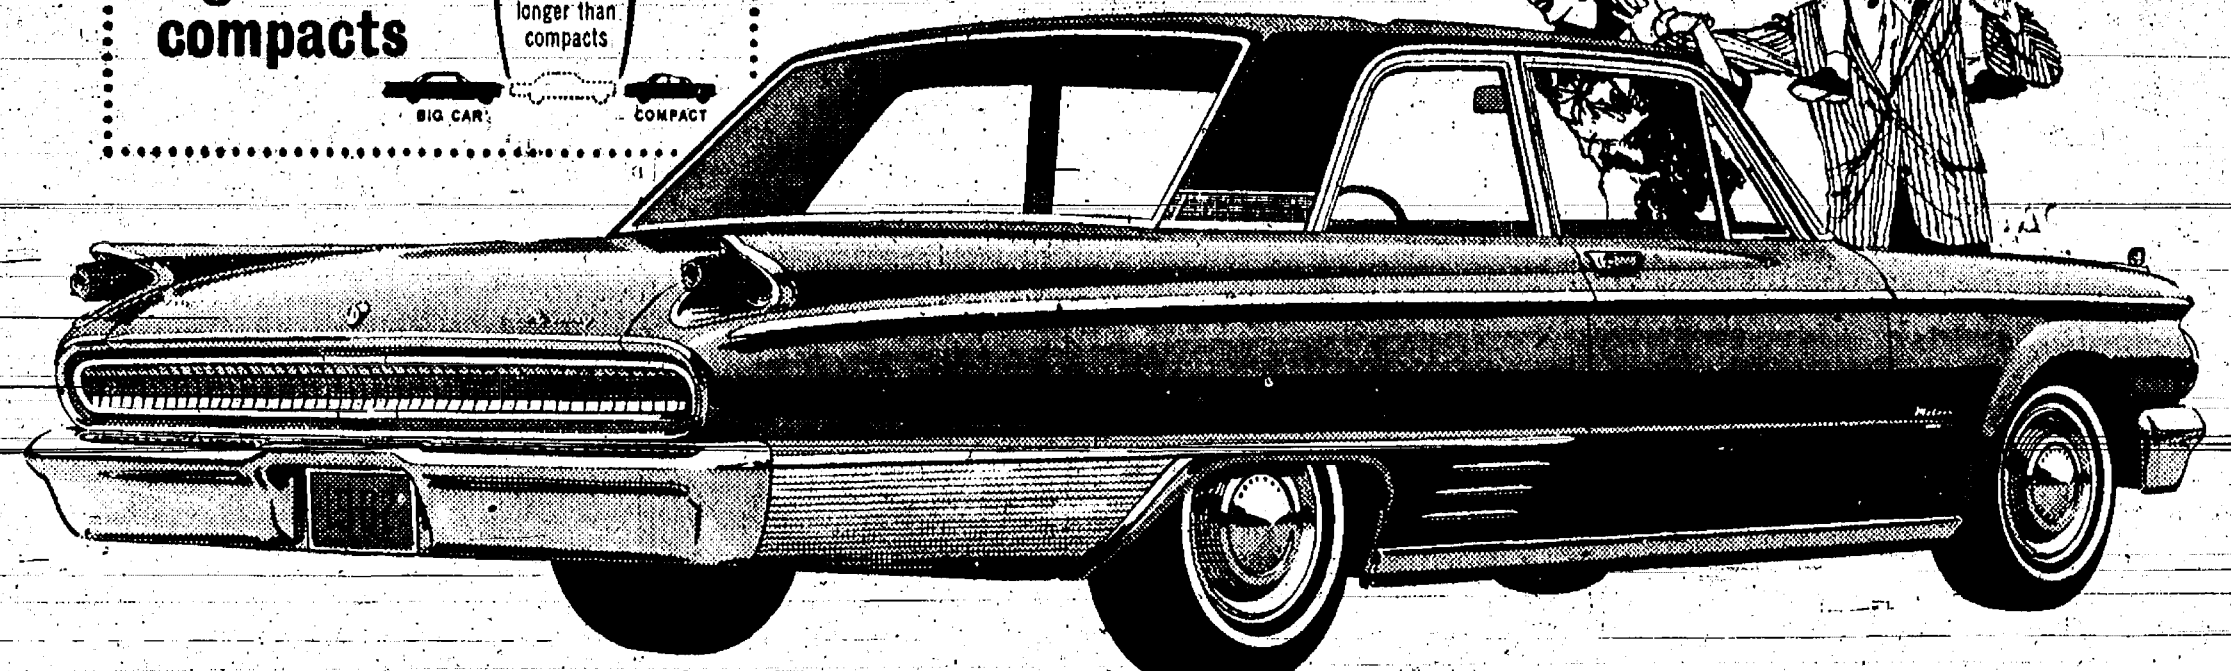

The shaft in which the experiments are proceeding is in the Medical Science Building on Wayne's "downtown" campus. This shaft and its accelerator sled, which catapults up 120 feet of steel rails and is stopped with eight pairs of friction brakes, is believed to be the only elevator-shaft laboratory in the United States.

Prof. Lawrence M. Patrick (above), of the engineering mechanics department, is using himself as a guinea pig, and in other experiments, at greater speeds, the tests are being conducted with an intact human skeleton.

Plastic-Coated Milk Carton Being Used By Some Dairies

Michigan families are beginning to be able to obtain milk in plastic-coated cartons instead of wax-coated containers, according to Al Rippen, food science extension specialist at Michigan State University.

Rippen says that many Michigan dairy plants are now changing milk processing machines to use with the new carton. Many plants are putting in larger machines, while other plants are modifying present equipment, he says.

The new carton has some advantages in filling operations as it eliminates the labor needed to handle glue, wax-coating and staples.

Sealing of the carton is done with heat and pressure. Considerable research was done in developing a sealing process where the seal could be opened easily for pouring, but yet was tight for sanitation purposes, Rippen says.

Some of the development work on the plastic-coated carton was started at MSU four years ago. Consumer survey results show that consumers feel the plastic-coated carton is superior to the wax-coated container in appearance, refrigerator storage, ease in opening and closing, and pouring.

Those who assisted with the hospital party are Mrs. Florence O'Hara, Mrs. Margaret Gilbert, Mrs. Betty Garvey, Mrs. Mary Burg, Mrs. Bernice Schneider, Miss Anna Juergens, Mrs. Ruth Walz, Mrs. Gerladine Klink, Mrs. Helen Harvey, Mrs. Iza Carly, Mrs. Dorothy Lentz, Mrs. Kenneth Platt and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Warywoda.

The Auxiliary's Americanism chairman, Mrs. Eulahlee Packard, reported that an American flag was presented to the fifth grade class room at St. Mary's school on Nov. 9 and that arrangements are being made to present one to St. Louis School for Exceptional Boys.

Sunday, Nov. 5, eight Chelsea Auxiliary members were at Jackson Auxiliary 9207 for a VFW Sixth District meeting, according to reports given. They are Mrs. Vera Heim, Mrs. Geraldine Klink, Mrs. JoAnne Warywoda, Mrs. Helen Harvey, Mrs. Eulahlee Packard, Mrs. Iza Carly, Mrs. Gertrude O'Dell and Mrs. Thekla Franklin.

During the business session Monday, the Chelsea Auxiliary voted to send $25 to the VFW Canner Aid and Research Fund at Bar Harbor, Me., and to send $2 for the VFW National Home Christmas Seal Fund at Eaton Rapids.

It was decided to hold a social and business meeting Dec. 11 at the K. of C. Hall for members only. Mrs. Bernice Schneider is chairman of the social meeting and will be assisted by Mrs. Vera Heim, Mrs. Ruth Perkins and Mrs. Dorothy Lentz.

PHYSICS

Mr. McGill's physics class has finished the study of vectors and vector quantities which is the study of force included in this unit were gravitational vectors and projectile problems.
The class is now studying forces in motion, Newton's three laws of motion are being studied. The first law of motion states that every body continues in a state of rest or of uniform motion in a straight line unless it is acted upon by some outside force. The second law of motion deals with the rate of change in velocity, or acceleration. The third law of motion states that any force in nature is always accompanied by a second force which acts in opposition to the first force and is equal in size to the first force. During this unit the class is doing projectile problems, problems dealing with falling bodies in motion, problems on frictional forces, and problems dealing with inclined planes.
Next the class will begin the study of matter and energy, and nuclear physics and radiation. The class will learn about the subatomic particles, alpha, beta, and gamma, radiation detection, and the physical effects of radiation. Some of the equipment that will be worked with during this unit are electroscopes, Geiger counters of various ranges, and the class will use radioactive isotopes as sources.

CHEMISTRY

Mr. Cowell's chemistry classes have finished Unit Three on water and some common gases, oxygen, hydrogen, and carbon dioxide. During this unit the classes studied the characteristics of these gases. Also in this unit was the study of water, the purification of water, characteristics of nitrogen peroxide and the laws of multiple proportions.

The class is now studying the gas law, which show how pressure changes and temperature changes affect gas volumes. The class learned that Charles developed a law concerning temperature and volume. The gas law formula that the class learned about is volume times pressure over temperature equals volume prime times pressure prime.

The experiments the class did on these units were with oxygen, observing the reaction of sodium and potassium in water, marble chips added to hydrochloric acid to collect carbon dioxide, testing carbon dioxide, and potassium chloride was heated to get rid of the oxygen. Then it was weighed on balances that are accurate to the fourth decimal.

Next the class will go into chemical composition, chemical equations, energy of chemical equations, energy of reactions, the activity series, and will do simple equations. The classes will also learn about weight relations in chemical reactions.

SOPHOMORE ENGLISH

Mrs. LaGoe's sophomore English classes just finished studying the mechanics used in writing and spelling. They are now studying the units on vocabulary in their grammar books. One class just finished writing argumentative essays on a topic of their choice. After the essays were written, each student read them aloud and criticized and graded them. Now along with the unit on vocabulary students are working on their next book review which is due Dec. 18. While the one class was doing this, the other class was having conferences with Mrs. LaGoe.

Mrs. Sharp's sophomore English classes are working in both the literature and the grammar books. They just finished writing themes on non-living objects. All sophomore English classes have been assigned the novel "Silas Marner" to read over Christmas vacation. After Christmas it will be discussed in class.

ART

Art I students have just finished working in water colors. They were allowed to draw anything they wanted to as long as it was done in water colors. Art I classes are now designing Christmas cards out of linoleum blocks and printing them with a printing press. After the cards are completed they will make envelopes for them and mail them. About Dec. 1 they will start making Christmas decorations for the art room.

Art II students have just completed paper-mache sculptures and are now beginning to design Christmas cards. Their Christmas card designs may be made from linoleum blocks, wood cuts or any of various other methods.

Although most people don't realize it, there also is an Art III class. This year only about three people are taking Art III and so they don't have any definite assignments—just projects.

GIRLS PHYS-ED

Mrs. Bach's physical education classes have been working out on the trampoline and stunts in tumbling. Each group of girls gave an exhibition on these stunts Monday and Tuesday in this week for Mrs. Bach. A total score of 60 points was given to each group according to how well they had perfected their 10 skills. The gym has been open after school every Tuesday for the past several weeks, in order to help the girls attain more GAA points.

JUNIOR ENGLISH

Mrs. LaGoe's class is reading biography stories. (1) Washington Attacks at Trenton, (2) Lincoln Speaks at Gettysburg, (3) First Trip Through the Grand Canyon. They will begin Modern Poetry next. One of the constant happy experiences of reading poetry is finding the perfect expression of some thought that has tantalized us, having just beyond our power to get it fixed in words. They had a book report due this six weeks on any type of book.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

TROOP 148—Business at Monday's meeting of Girl Scout Troop 148 included discussion of plans for a Christmas party. The girls drew names for a gift exchange and each girl is to make a gift for the one whose name she drew.
Also discussed was a pot-luck Christmas supper to be held at Penny Graham's home Dec. 11. Each girl will bring food for the supper which she has prepared herself. This fulfills one of the requirements for cooking badges.
The girls have received their membership cards.
The girls decided to have treats at each week's meeting.
