Fourth of July Intended To Celebrate Declaration of Independence Signing

On the Fourth of July of every year, the people of this country take note of the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, which easily ranks as one of the most important documents of history.

In it, Thomas Jefferson, the author, set forth the inalienable rights of man and the theory that governments are instituted by men, not set up by God, and, therefore, derive their powers from the consent of the governed.

This was something of a revolutionary doctrine in 1776. Moreover, the Declaration makes plain the right of the people to alter or abolish their government and to institute a new government in such form as they may deem most likely to affect their safety and happiness.

The historic Fourth has become identified as a day of leisure, marked by deaths, accidents, games and amusement, but there are occasional programs which point out the significance of the Declaration and the principles that it expresses.

In 1962 we face the challenge of Communism, military and economic. In principle, the test we face has not changed. Once again America must rise to the challenge and meet the issue. It is a sobering thought as we look back on July 4, 1776. We cannot afford to fail!

Maybe Lawmakers Are Learning That Respect Must Be Earned, Not Bought

The Senate deserves a standing ovation from every U.S. taxpayer for its recent action in voting to suspend foreign aid to countries that appropriate U.S. property without making fair payment for same.

For too many give-away years now, Congress has approved handing out citizens' hard-earned dollars to countries that then turn around and take more billions out of our pockets by seizing American companies and property from American stockholders. That's like giving someone a handout at the front door and then letting him steal the car out of your garage and drive off without trying to stop him.

It may be hard for the millions of us taxpayers to believe but the theory behind our aid program—at least up until now—has been that if we don't keep lining the pockets of the thieves, they'll stop respecting us and put in with the Kremlin.

Why we have stood for it so long is now beside the point. And if the House of Representatives doesn't get the same message now that the Senate got, we're pretty sure they will get it belatedly—at the polls.

In case any of our legislators on Capitol Hill have any lingering doubts about this message here's the way we read it and the way we think every self-respecting American reads it:

You don't buy respect—not even with your constituent's hard-earned tax dollars or with the companies in which they have invested to provide income for their families. You have to earn respect. And you earn it by asserting your own self-respect and the self-respect of all American citizens.

'WHITE WATER' DERBY

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Candidates for the August primary are in. Are you?

Persons interested in gaining state or Congressional offices all made their filing deadline. The next deadline will determine who will select Michigan's elected officials.

With many state legislators facing primary opposition for the first time, much of it from individuals who were elected to the Constitutional Convention, the importance of casting a ballot in the primary is sharply increased.

Michigan voters traditionally vote heavy in the November general election, but the primary count is usually low.

This year, with the only statewide primary being run in the race for the Lieutenant Governor nomination, State Elections Director Robert M. Montgomery said he wouldn't be surprised if the tally in August is lower than usual.

The only way to have a voice in government is to insert your choice on the ballot.

Michigan's primary you must choose either a Republican or Democratic ballot on which to vote, but this choice is not binding in any way on your choice in the general election.

This year's deadline for primary registrations is July 9.

The choice of candidates is great. The 1962 elections would be a good time to give a careful look at the candidates, their platforms, and their individual qualifications to serve you.

It is all but announced, and may be by the time this is printed, that the voters will not consider the proposed Constitution until the April ballot next year.

Constitutional Convention President Stephen S. Nisbet filed suit which was taken to the Supreme Court to gain ballot placement in November. The Attorney General previously held that the Convention would have to complete its work earlier than it did if the proposed document were to come to a vote in November.

An August final adjournment session set by the Convention still could produce changes in the document, although the consensus is that no changes will be made.

A single-day session in August would put the document just barely over the 90 days required by law for a question to be proposed before it can be voted upon.

Preparing a ballot on a relatively simple 100-word question of public issue is a chore in the 90 days allowed. To prepare the ballot for the proposed new Constitution would be a "nightmare" to even the best expert, one state official said in considering the possibility of having only the minimum time.

Unfortunately, the question of when the Constitution will be put on the ballot has taken on political involvements because of personalities and the party structure of the Convention.

Ideally, to gain the maximum vote on the document, it would be placed on the November ballot this year, or held over until another year's general election. The vote in an off-year election is always much lower than the contest in which the top state officials are elected.

Practically, however, placing the document on the ballot this fall could well mean more people would vote on a question about which they knew very little. The significance of the changes might be "old hat" to people by the 1964 fall ballot, so a holdover of this length probably would not be beneficial.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

It looks like July Fourth don't mean much no more to this space age generation of Americans. I can recollect when I was a boy folks would get together on July Fourth to hear some public office holder read the Declaration of Independence and then cut loose with a brand of patriotic oratory that would singe the hair off'n a white face half two-mile down the road. He'd allow as how he was willing to die for his country, and a heap of the folks in the crowd was figuring it would be better if he'd die for it instead of living off it. They wasn't much sincerity to it and maybe it's better like we got it now. Today we measure the joy of July Fourth by the number that gets killed on the highways and ever year it gets more joyful.

I was reading a piece in the papers last week that is taking some of the joy out of Independence Day for me. The piece said a team of investigators for the House Foreign Affairs Committee was just back from a on-the-spot check of foreign aid in Korea and Turkey. Congressman Alexander of North Carolina was giving out the figgers and they was all very bad.

For instant, them investigators found they had $470,000 stored up in Korea since 1959 for soy beans just in case they might want to bring in some more soy beans. But the warehouses in Korea was already overflowing with soy beans that was going to rot on account of no place to use 'em. And they found $10 million stored there that had been earmarked in 1958 for a electric plant that has now been decided not to build.

In Turkey they found the military folks and the aid folks was trying to keep each other from knowing what they was doing, with the result they had duplicated $800,000 fer trucks and now trucks was rusting away in storage. They also found, incidental, that it was costing $7 more to recap a tire in Turkey than a new tire would cost back in the United States.

And while we are overloading warehouses in them foreign countries scattered around the world, things is getting higher and higher here at home. I was reading yesterday, for instant, where groceries was expected to reach a all-time high by the first of November. They is a old saying that fat folks don't live as long as skinny folks, but if food keeps going up, fat folks is going to live as long as they can afford to.

But I saw a style note in the Sunday paper where "There will be nothing new in corsets this fall." Come to think about it, Mister Editor, except fer price, has there ever been?

Yours truly,
 Uncle Lew.

Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie said nearly 2,000 changes were made in printing the 1962 edition of the map.

Of special note among the changes is the transfer of the city listing, indicating where a city may be found on the map proper, from the back of the sheet to the front. This facilitates use of the map in finding an unknown location.

FROM THE GOVERNOR'S CHAIR

By John B. Swainson

Lansing —The stated purpose of Michigan's unemployment insurance law is to protect the worker who loses a job through no fault of his own and thus, at the same time, protect the economy by cushioning the decline in purchasing power during a period of economic decline.

I returned House Bill 61 to the legislature without my approval because it weakens the law. Disqualification provisions, already the worst in the nation, are made even more restrictive to the end that the law would be self-defeating.

The bill made a feeble attempt at improvements in some sections of the law. But the additional disqualifications proposed in the bill to deprive the unemployed of legal benefits would make those meager improvements meaningless—many more people would be unjustly hurt than would be justly protected.

Advocates of this bill have again resorted to political blackmail by angling in distorted propaganda about the Ford-Canton decision and by refusing to allow it to be considered separately.

The bill seeks not only to destroy that decision which merely protects workers against unemployment through no fault of their own; it attempts to use nullification of that decision as a vehicle to sneak in even more unjustified disqualifications.

I wish to make this clear once again: the Ford-Canton decision does not—it cannot—compel employers to finance strikes against themselves. This is a false, dishonest charge. No striker in Michigan can receive unemployment compensation under the Ford-Canton decision or any other. The sponsors of this bill know this.

all segments of industry to engage in honest discussion on this issue—to stop fouling their own nests and besmirching the good name of a great state. The time is long past due for constructive action, for accepting the hand of cooperation that was offered even before I assumed office.

Michigan's unemployment insurance law needs revision to relate benefits more realistically to lost earnings, improve the duration of benefits, provide more income for the trust fund and correct inequities in the disqualification provisions. I offered legislation to accomplish this.

I would not insist on that legislation to the extent of rejecting reasonable compromises, but House Bill 61 was not such a compromise. It was a step backward and, as such, demanded rejection.

Michigan's total land area, 30,494,080 acres, is larger than Greece, larger than Switzerland and Portugal combined, and nearly five times the size of Belgium.

Don Knoll Wins 7th Award for Clean Station

Don Knoll is $45 richer this week as a result of good customer service.

Don, who operates the Ashland Oil service station at 500 N. Main St., was visited recently by one of Ashland-Oil's "Mystery Drivers," and as a result was awarded a cash prize this week for his good customer service and the cleanliness of his station by Peter D. Paisley, district manager for Ashland Oil.

Awards under this sales promotion program are based on salesmanship, driveway service, station cleanliness and appearance, and other key points in service station operation.

The Mystery Drivers, who remain unknown except to one or two company representatives, travel Ashland-Oil's entire 11-state marketing area visiting service stations. Driving unmarked cars, they at no time indicate to the service station dealer that they are checking station appearance and service.

Following each visit the Mystery Driver mails a report card to the company's headquarters in Ashland, Ky. Dealers who qualify promptly receive an award.

In the event a dealer fails to qualify, he is mailed a letter telling him that the Mystery Driver was in his station. This letter also indicates points of the program which caused him to miss an award.

Don is now a seven-time winner, and reports he is keeping on the alert for an opportunity to pick up another cash bonus.

Homemakers Preparing for State Fair

Michigan homemakers already are preparing for the Michigan State Fair, Aug. 31 entry deadline for the fair, which will be held through Sept. 8—one week earlier this year.

Laura, director of the fair, said that many women are preparing to enter wall hangings, crocheted and hand woven, crewel embroidered, an ancient dating back to the Tudor era, was revived last year at the Michigan State Fair and is so popular that entries this year will be judged in classes: hanging, chair back or seat mounted, footstool and hand. Prizes are listed for each class.

The Home Arts department is offering prizes for apparel and household accessories made in the fair.

City dwellers who don't use cotton bags frequently obtain the empty sacks from suburban feed dealers. The attractive floral prints, candy stripes, checks and plaids designed by leading textile designers are often made of fine 80-square percale, comparable to fabrics sold at yard goods counters.

Further information and entry blanks may be obtained from the Home Arts Department, Michigan State Fair, Detroit 8.

Freshmen Visit WMU During Summer

More than 2,000 freshmen who expect to enter Western Michigan University for the first time next fall are spending two days this summer in visiting the campus.

Among those visiting the campus are Richard G. Hais of Chelsea, and Jacqueline Packard and Thomas D. Urquhart, both of Dexter.

Dean Paul L. Griffith and his staff of instructors have arranged an intensive program of counseling, advance registration, including the payment of a part of their fall fees, and a bit of social life. They will thus clear up many of their early fall duties and know the campus a little better when they arrive.

When they return to the campus in September it will be to start classes almost immediately without the usual days of orientation and registration.

Active Move Underway To Restore Waterloo Area Historical Museum

Members of the Waterloo Historical Society, a recently-formed group of area people who are active in the promotion of founding a historical museum in the former Realy homestead just outside Waterloo on the Waterloo-Munich Rd., are busy with fund-raising plans as well as the volunteer work of restoring the old homestead.

Now impetus to the project was given by an offer of the Michigan State Historical Museum to furnish the house in authentic style of the pre-Civil War era when the house was constructed.

The Waterloo Historical Society aims to eventually make the old homestead a real working museum from June to October, similar to the museum at Greenfield Village. Its proximity to the entire Waterloo Recreation Area, the society feels, will make it an outstanding tourist attraction.

It is planned to display temporary loaned exhibits in upstairs rooms and to restore the inside and outside of the house, as well as the grounds to coincide with the style of the 1850's. The restoration is in the nature of a heritage program—a memorial to the early style of sturdy architecture and the fine solid construction work which permitted the building to stand for almost 125 years—the heritage of an 1850 farm home in Michigan. Few such outstanding examples of the homes of that day remain.

The Realy family who built the home came to the United States from Germany in 1840 and settled in the Waterloo area where other Germans had preceded them. The family name was spelled "Rehly" but during the Civil War it was Americanized to Realy when some of the men of the family served in the war and officials accidentally misspelled it.

The Jacob Realy family included three sons and two daughters who lived at the home. The youngest daughter, Mrs. Ida Schumacher, still lives in the Waterloo area and has been active in assisting the society in planning the restoration.

Members of the society have done such jobs as removing old wallpaper, Roy Russell, Waterloo Area park manager, superintended the clean-up of the grounds on authorization of the parks division of the Conservation Department. Mr. and Mrs. Max Cool of Stockbridge have identified and marked all flowers and shrubs from the old garden in order that they might be saved. Don Richards, educational consultant for the Conservation Department has given his assistance; and many others have shown active interest in the project.

Mrs. S. A. Beckwith of Stockbridge, president of the Waterloo Historical Society, says an urgent need at present is "a lot of volunteers." She said, people of all ages can make a valuable contribution to the society who can tell about the stories they heard as children as related to the customs and life of the early pioneers; middle-aged people who can help with plans; younger people who may be willing to do the heavier work—all are urgently needed, Mrs. Beckwith said.

More members of the society are also welcomed. Local individual membership is available at a cost of $2 while $6 gives a combination membership in the Waterloo Historical Society and the Michigan State Historical Society. There are now a total of 114 members.

In addition to Mrs. Beckwith, officers are Norman Topping of Stockbridge, vice-president; Erston Clarke of Unadilla, secretary; Louis Schumacher of Waterloo, treasurer; and Mrs. Edna Burkland of Unadilla, Mrs. Harold Harr of Munich, Mrs. Milton Barber of been cut in the woods on the farm. Because of vandalism, it had been necessary to order new windows. New doors are also being installed, keeping to the style of the original ones.

Mrs. Beckwith explained that the brick home has 14 rooms; that remains of an outside oven have been found and will be restored; and an old "Perkins" windmill is being restored to its original working condition.

A log house with a brick baking oven was another part of the early homestead; as well as an ice house, a smokehouse, and storage cellars. According to Conservation Department figures, more than 750,000 people visited the Waterloo Recreation Area during the past year, Mrs. Beckwith said. She believes the restored Realy homestead museum will be an added attraction for visitors to the area.

The annual association meeting was held June 18-21 and during the time the delegates were at the meeting, the women who accompanied them were entertained at special events planned for their pleasure.

These included a conducted tour of the White House; a trip to the Agricultural Research Center at Beltsville, Md., where they saw the Beltsville kitchen-workroom; a day at Annapolis touring the State House; and a visit to Government House where they were received by Mrs. Tawes, the governor's wife.

Tuesday evening the "President's Own" U. S. Marine Band gave a concert in the Cole Activities Building.

More than 2,000 delegates and guests were present for the annual association meeting.

At the conclusion of the sessions Thursday, Peter and Karen Spike, Miss Bird and Mrs. Sott, drove to Fort Bragg, N. C., where they visited Major Marjorie Sott before beginning the trip home.

Highway Dept. Completes 5-year Program on Schedule

Lansing — The Michigan State Highway Department today announced completion of the five-year highway program that began in 1957.

"We have substantially completed what we set out to do five years ago," State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie said. Mackie issued a status report to Gov. John B. Swainson to mark the fifth anniversary of the highway program which Mackie announced shortly after taking office in 1957.

The program called for 800 miles of new freeways to be opened to traffic or placed under construction, modernization of 2,900 miles of other state highways and paving of 814 miles of gravel roads that were on the state highway system at that time.

Cost of the five-year program was estimated at $1 1/2 billion.

"Since July 1, 1957, we have completed 702 miles of freeway and we now have 803 miles open to traffic," Mackie said. There were 101 miles of freeway open when the five-year program started.

In addition, there are 320 miles of freeway under construction and we hope to open our one-thousandth mile of freeway some time this fall.

"At the same time, we have awarded contracts during the last five years for the modernization of 3,944 miles of other state highways.

These routes have been widened, paved, relocated or otherwise improved and the more than 800 miles of gravel highways have been paved.

Mackie said the Highway Department has spent approximately $1 billion since 1957 for construction.

IN MICHIGAN, hearing of the gallant fighting of the 1st, 4th, 5th and 7th Michigan regiments against the Confederacy, folks all over the state toasted their troops' bravery with foaming steins of beer.

For then as now, beer was the traditional beverage of moderation. But beer means more than enjoyment to our state. The Brewing Industry pays more than 16 million dollars in taxes to Michigan each year, money that helps support our parks, hospitals and schools.

TODAY, in its centennial year, the United States Brewers Association still works constantly to assure maintenance of high standards of quality and propriety wherever beer and ale are served.
