Three children who were riding in the boat with Cogan were safe in the boat and were taken from it as it drifted in the middle of the lake. Miss Enot, whose boat sank, was also rescued quickly.

Petersen, Palmer Win Sheriff Nominations In Tuesday's Primary

Kiwanis Club Plans Annual Picnic

Next week Monday, Aug. 13, is the date for the annual picnic and ladies' night of the Kiwanis club of Chelsea. The affair will take place at the Cavanaugh Lake home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Jones with supper scheduled for 6:30 p.m.

Announcement of the picnic was made at the regular club meeting held Monday evening in the social center of the Methodist church.

Raymond Steinbach was program chairman at the meeting and introduced James Merna of the Conservation Department's Institute of Fisheries Research division.

Merna gave an interesting account of the work he has done at the Washtenaw Lake project. His studies center chiefly on research related to the phenomenal size of fish taken from the lake; the food and soil conditions which promote the rapid growth of the fish; and other matters which have a bearing on the subject. Results of the study here, he said, will prove useful as applied to other waters in the state.

For purposes of comparison, Merna mentioned that bluegills which ordinarily reach a growth of four inches in size at one year, have been found to reach a growth of almost nine inches in the same time at Washtenaw.

Guests at Monday's Kiwanis meeting were Kiwanians Sylvester Leonard of Willis and Armand Hewett of Ann Arbor; also, Allen Jones of Richmond, Va., who attended with his father, Harold Jones.

Romney Pulls Large Vote in State Contest

Chelsea Police Chief John Palmer won the Democratic nomination as candidate for Washtenaw county sheriff in Tuesday's primary election by a vote of 2,028 to his opponent's 933. Elmer F. Klump was the losing Democratic candidate.

Sheriff George A. Petersen was re-nominated on the Republican ticket as candidate for his third successive term. He received a total of 6,187 votes.

George Sluach and John L. Tice, the other Republican candidates for nomination received 3,093 and 1,059 votes, respectively.

Yesterday, Palmer made the following statement:

"The hotly-contested race for sheriff has reached its final day for both the Democrats and the Republicans. This experience in politics, with its many meetings of party workers, civic groups, church organizations, farmers, businessmen—a cross-section of the voters of this county—has given me an opportunity to meet the voters and for them to meet me.

"I am more than ever committed, in view of this overwhelming victory, to campaign for the next three months on the issues facing the people insofar as the sheriff's department is concerned. The Republican nominee's campaign has convinced me that the people in the Republican party are not strongly behind him and during the weeks to come I shall point out the reasons for the need for a change in the office of sheriff of Washtenaw county."

Luella Smith, unopposed for the Republican nomination to succeed herself as county clerk received the largest number of votes of any county candidate—a total of 9,317.

Some Politicians Need To Learn Basic Rules of How Our Economy Grows

In suggesting that we, as a nation, are better informed on the phenomena of outer space than on our own business system, the head of one of our largest all-line insurance companies has said: "We have had our geophysical year. I propose that we in business call for a National Economic Understanding Year."

In addressing the annual meeting of his company's top producers recently, President J. Doyle DeWitt of The Travelers decried the national "confidence game," in which labor and industry and government have sought to pin the loss of public confidence on each other, and called on business to provide education in "the function of profit in our economic system."

"Unfortunately, among educators, professional men, labor leaders and politicians, there is too little understanding of how our economic system operates and, especially, of the role of profits in financing capital expansion. If the mechanism of business growth is not understood by those who make the laws or administer the regulations under which business operates, our competition is going to put produce, out-market and eventually outgrow us."

"We hear much about the doubling of Gross National Product but very little about the profit segment which is down one-third," declared DeWitt. "We read a great deal about the doubling of industrial sales in the past decade but there is silence on the fact that profit on sales is down 40 percent. We have seen headlines on stockholders' equities, which, at their highest, increased 107 percent since 1950. But we hear very little about the 40 percent drop in the rate of return."

Declaring that "The need to develop profits is not just a business myth," the speaker pointed out that by 1970 industry must replace $150 billion in obsolete plants "if it is to meet the rising challenge of new competition both at home and abroad"; that it will require $270 billion increase in net assets to tool up for the 13 million more workers in our labor force by that date.

"The facts," said DeWitt, "speak for themselves. Even the Soviet Union builds enough margin of profit into its price structure to satisfy the most unreconstructed 19th century capitalist."

Profits—and only profits, DeWitt emphasized, can create jobs in a free economy. The corollary that if we don't have profits we can't maintain our free enterprise system, seems almost too obvious to mention.

Evangelist Graham Has Answer to Cosmonaut's Remarks About 'No God'

Evangelist Billy Graham appeared at the Seattle World's Fair and, in his message, replied to Soviet Cosmonaut Gherman Titov's quip about God in space.

Most of our readers are familiar with the fact that the Communists are a godless society, believing in no supreme being. After Titov's space flight, he made the statement that he had "looked around during my 17 orbits of the earth and saw no God in space."

This statement would have great appeal to doubters.

Evangelist Graham made reference to Titov's remarks and said that the Russian's remarks were "... like a little earthworm sticking his head a fraction of an inch out of the ground and saying I don't see any Khrushchev, therefore there is no Khrushchev."

What Graham was saying so vividly was that Titov neither understood religion nor the insignificant role which each of us assumes as we go down life's path.

It is an amazing contradiction—how important we feel, and how really insignificant we are.

VEXATIONS ON A VACATION

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Community or junior colleges have been sharply increasing in number throughout the country, but Michigan Education Association officials report many people do not know the purpose or function of the institutions.

Generally the junior colleges, interchangeably called community colleges, are operated by local politics, school districts, special junior college districts, or as off-campus branches of four-year colleges or universities.

The offering at such an institution is a post-high school education, usually in a two-year program of technical nature, or in preparation for further study at a four-year college or university.

Students at a typical junior college will include high school graduates who want two years rather than four years of education; those eventually bound for a four-year college; housewives interested in homemaking, child care, general education, or preparation for re-employment.

Others will be workers who want to improve their skills, prepare for advancement, gain vocational experience, or expand their general education. Also studying at such institutions will be young adults who did not graduate from high school or study part-time to earn a college diploma; or senior citizens seeking new interests.

Advantages of a junior college, both from the standpoint of location and curriculum, are many, according to George F. Hancin, public relations director for the Michigan Education Association.

These include allowing a transition from secondary school to college, eliminating the emotional strain of leaving family and friends; lower costs of education; and good choice of courses for persons who want to enter one of the technical occupations.

Junior colleges also are attractive institutions for "late bloomers," Hancin said. These students with college-level abilities but low high school grades can prove themselves by doing well in a junior college and thereby win acceptance to a senior college.

Hancin said counseling facilities are usually more adequate than in senior colleges also. This is generally true because faculty members at junior colleges usually are more readily available for counsel and advice.

"Let the buyer beware." This rule of old was never more true than in the modern world, according to Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley.

A division of Kelley's office, the Consumer Protection Division, was formed about two years ago to watch consumers about irregular or fraudulent business practices being perpetrated in Michigan.

One of the most recent practices brought to the division's attention involves what officials have termed "the shell game" as applied to houses.

"Nothing down, nothing to pay until October," marks an oft-used sales gimmick in many fields today. To the Consumer Protection Division, this sales pitch is a warning in itself.

In the housing sales field, the tactic is particularly widespread when dealing with purchases of shell homes. The shell homes generally have a finished exterior but unfinished or semi-finished interior.

"Many buyers of this increasingly popular type of home have found that the last, or 'sudden death' payment, suddenly goes sky-high," Kelley warned.

One contract noted by the Consumer Protection Division called for a $5,300 contract to be financed by payments of $39. The final payment, however, came to $3,900 and brought the entire contract cost to $8,470, with $3,170 of it in interest charges.

Highway safety is a full-time job for many people in the state. Police officers, state and local safety officials and others, spend the better part of their lives trying to encourage public awareness of the need for safety.

Every year Secretary of State James M. Hare conducts a series of regional traffic safety conferences on behalf of the Governor to emphasize the need for citizen support of safety measures.

The current year death toll on Michigan's highways is down somewhat from the 1961 fatality count, but the number of auto accidents and injuries has increased.

Direct Distance Dialing

This booklet will be mailed next week to all telephone users in this community.

It tells WHERE and HOW to dial Long Distance station calls yourself—across the state and across the nation—starting Monday, August 20, at 8 a.m.

This wonderful new service will make it easier and faster for you to keep in touch with out-of-town friends, relatives and business associates. In the booklet, too, you can jot down their Area Codes and telephone numbers to help speed your future calls.

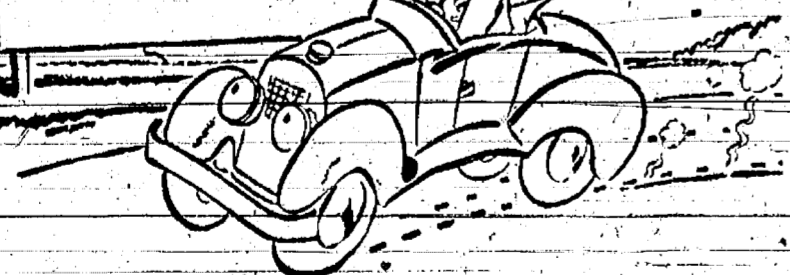

Each Area Code identifies a particular geographical area—either part of a state or an entire state. Area Codes are to be used only when they're different than your own Area Code, which is 313. That's easy to remember Michigan's four Area Codes. Other states have their own.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

I saw by the papers where Commerce Secretary Hodges says 10 per cent of the folks working in his department was getting paid to do jobs started 40 years ago and that don't exist no more. He said he couldn't do nothing about it on account of all of 'em belongs to the Civil Service and can't get fired. He told the Civil Service Commission that they was two and one-half million employees in the executive department of the Government and that 250,000 of them was dead wood, hired to do jobs that has now disappeared. He figured it would save the taxpayers nearly $2 billion dollars a year if we could get rid of this dead wood in Government jobs.

Secretary Hodges was wasting his time, Mister Editor, discussing these items with them Washington bureaucrats. Once they start a project in Washington, they aim to keep it going till eternity. Senator Byrd was telling not long ago about the feller that got kicked out the front door of the Treasury Department and had to go all the way around to the back door to get hired again. And I recollect Senator Smith of North Carolina telling about the time he called up the State Department to see if he could get a job for a constituent. The Department head ask Senator Smith what the feller could do. "Nothing," said the honest Senator. "Fine," said the Department head, "we won't have to break him in."

It's mighty hard, Mister Editor, to get the hogs off the corn, especially the Washington breed of the hog family.

Out our way, the news item of the week was about Bug Hookum getting one of them air conditioning gadgets, that you put in the window. The fellers at the country store Saturday night was a little upset over this item. Ed Doollittle allowed as how this was some more of that "status" business you read about in the papers. Ed said he could recollect when Clem Webster put up the first TV antenna in the neighborhood and it wasn't two months afore ever wife for miles around had to have a TV and one of them things sticking up over the roof. The fellers kept waiting for Bug to show up and offer an apology for such strange behavior. But Bug never showed up. Ed reckoned he was setting at home trying to get his money's worth out of the gad-burned thing.

Personal, I don't need one for my "status" on account of owing enough at the Bank to keep my "status" in good shape. Farther more, I git by pretty good without one. I try to stay in the shade in the daytime and at night I sleep plenty cool by sticking my feet out the window. Them new-fangled contraptions ain't for a old timer like me. I come along in a age when the moon was used for romance and not for space travel.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Underwater Recovery Team Performs Hazardous Duty

Serious business combined with leisure interests is not something many people find these days. A group of young men in the county find such a combination in their work, however, as members of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department underwater recovery team.

Their skin-diving "falcon" is the Sheriff's Department's need arises, they are called on to do a variety of jobs. The foremost of these, as members of the underwater recovery team, is to locate drowning victims, sometimes in shallow but deep areas and sometimes in very deep water.

Six or seven of the recovery team were called out to assist the Washtenaw county sheriff's department last Saturday afternoon at John A. Cogan, Jr., the 23-year-old son of a veteran Detroit officer went down in Zukey Lake following the collision of two boats.

There is a gentlemen's agreement between nearby counties that recovery groups will assist as needed and when needed, Sheriff George A. Jensen Monday morning when alerted about the activities of a branch of his department.

"We had good luck this year," added Jensen. "So far we have been on to help in both Jackson and Livingston counties, but have had to ask help from other counties."

On Saturday's work at Zukey Lake, the Washtenaw group, of which many are Dexterites, anchored a floatboat halfway between a sand bar in the lake and the location Cogan had last been seen. The diving group then worked about the special anchor in a circular pattern, guided by one of the divers who remained on the surface. They found the body in more than 30 feet of water. Evidence indicated that the young man had been hit by the boat's propeller following the collision, resulting in a broken arm and lacerations. "Visibility conditions were extremely poor working at that depth in Zukey," reported one of the team members.

Others working at the drowning scene were Leo J. Heatley, former Dexter resident, who is a Michigan State Police officer stationed at the Ypsilanti post, a second trooper from the Brighton post, Charlie Baker, diver for Livingston county who is well acquainted with the Washtenaw group, having worked with them in the past, and representatives of the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

The big compressor, which is pictured here, is jointly owned by a nine-member corporation. Some of the members are underwater recovery team members, some are not. At Zukey Lake, the compressor was used to fill 22 bottles of air for underwater diving; this included air for the Washtenaw group as well as some for Livingston and Michigan State Police divers.

How long does it take the compressor to pump a bottle of air? About 15 minutes for the first one, but as the compressor gets underway, succeeding bottles require only three to four minutes each. The compressor is approximately four years old now, but is kept in top condition and to date has required no appreciable amount of maintenance. It is mounted on a trailer secured for this purpose. The compressor was purchased from a Toledo surplus establishment for $1,000. "It's a real necessity in this business and it's a good one," explained the skin-divers.

If you were an insurance agent, would you shudder when these men descend to murky waters in their quest of drowning victims? Exactly—for this reason, any of the recovery team members' regular life insurance is valueless during their official diving duties. This was recently brought to the attention of Sheriff Petersen and paper work is in process to insure the recovery team from the time they leave on an official call until their return to home or place of employment. The team's employers have been very co-operative whenever a member's services were needed during regular working hours.

Earlier in the summer, the group assisted in recovering the body of a youth from Pleasant Lake in Jackson county. They also were called to recover the body of the teen-age son of an Ohio minister, who drowned in Bruin Lake in July.

In speaking of their diving duties, the recovery team stated that hope for saving a drowning victim, once they were called, was practically "nil" but that they were eager to encourage good water safety practices and would be very happy to attend any group gathering to demonstrate basic safety in and under the water. "All they need to do is ask—either part or all of us will come," the team assured county residents.

They encourage widespread use of such elementary water safety devices as a life preserver, inner tube and a length of sturdy, lightweight lumber or cane fishing pole, particularly on docks near swimming areas.

Few groups promote action which could conceivably "put them out of business," but the underwater recovery team is one of the exceptions. "Nothing could please us more than to have swimmers, boat-were part of a crew which helped in the preliminary work of raising a 73-ft. tug, owned by a steamship company executive; the tug had sunk in the Detroit River and the skin-divers helped close the holes in the craft so that it could be pumped out before bringing it to the surface. They watched the 73-ft. tug being shown on television not too long ago after it was transported to Toledo.

Equipment used by the recovery team members is their own, personal equipment including diving suits, tanks, fins, etc.

Any person, group or industrial corporation wishing to donate equipment, including a new compressor, to be used in recovery operations in the area is encouraged to inquire. To date Central Fibre Products of Chelsea is the only industry or organization which has volunteered to sponsor a diver by contributing to a fund for this purpose.

World Affairs To Be Featured at State 4-H Show

Michigan 4-H youths and leaders will get a "passport" around the world at a Tuesday morning session of the 47th annual state 4-H club show on the Michigan State University campus, Aug. 27-30.

Clubs and individual members will put up exhibits at MSU's main auditorium, telling 4-H's view of world understanding. Mary Woodward, assistant state 4-H leader, is planning for at least 10 to 15 exhibits. Several talks on world affairs will round out the program.

"Five International Farm Youth Exchange delegates from other countries will be on hand during the week," Miss Woodward states. "IFYE's success encourages the Peace Corps. About 20,000 families, including 330 in Michigan, have hosted delegates."

About 85 to 90 percent of all farm-reared youth will eventually take off-farm jobs. The state show in East Lansing mirrors this adjustment to a fast-changing society.

While prize livestock, grand champions and blue ribbons are still very much a part of the 4-H exhibition, there will also be dozens of other attractions. Many events are planned with instructional sessions to teach 4-Hers the "whys" as well as the "hows" of projects.

The more than 3,000 4-Hers on hand will participate in events dealing with automotive skill driving, rifle shooting, electrical work, handicraft, archery and training of dogs.

"There is little doubt in my mind that one of the major reasons for our declining fatality toll is our rapidly growing freeway system which avoids head-on and cross-traffic crashes," Hare said.

This year's regional conference, scheduled in Grand Haven, Pa.

Paw, Iron Mountain, Cheboygan, Mount Pleasant, and Birmingham, will emphasize the effect of modern highways on traffic accidents. "The highways of tomorrow can be even better and safer if we determine to make it so with an across-the-board action program," Hare said.

AGRICULTURE in ACTION

★ Country Concrete

Figures show that farmers are lifting themselves out of the mud through use of paved walks, feedlots and similar livestock areas. Farmers now use 12 to 18 percent of the current cement production, reports Philip Mielock, engineer for the Portland Cement Association.

The Association, which would like nothing more than to see rural America cemented solid, points out that the economics of a modern cattle feeding system calls for close confinement of animals and tight control of feed, something that paying best affords. But there are problems.

Chief among them is the old problem of getting people to "do as well as they already know." Why, for instance, don't farmers use more concrete?

"Largely because it is something that is easy to put off," Mielock says. "There are so many other work areas that demand attention that many people by-pass putting in the concrete slab that would make work easier."

Building material salesmen, he points out, should keep in mind that farmers are good customers and excellent prospects for concrete products. "I have no qualms," he adds, "about recommending a lot more concrete on most farms because I have the facts to show that it pays."

As for new uses of country concrete, Mielock told of the enthusiastic acceptance of wedge-shaped concrete "slabs" in swine-barn floors. Made of steel reinforced concrete and laid with one-inch cracks, the floor is designed to be self-cleaning with refuse forced through into a "lagoon" about three feet under the building. He told of an experimental building at the University of Illinois where a type of open septic tank is under the building and which in turn drains into a lagoon, several hundred feet away. There is no attempt made to use the resulting fertilizer in that case of handling are higher than fertility value received.

What about odor? "Well, a pig will always smell like a pig," Mielock concedes, but adds that usual animal odors seemed lessened by the lagoon idea where wind and sun combine with bacteria to break down odor-causing agents.

New Boat Control Law Now in Effect

Charged with the responsibility for bringing greater order and uniformity into the Water Wonderland's innumerable watercraft regulations and customs, the Boating Control Committee met in the Capitol this week to lay down basic rules of operation.

The three-man committee, which by law assumed authority Aug. 1, elected Harold Bradshaw as its chairman.

Bradshaw, who represents Secretary of State James M. Hare on the committee, is Director of Administrative Services for the Department of State. Representing the Waterways Commission is Charles E. Latimer and the Conservation Department is represented by Everett Tucker.

Promotes Safety
The new law, which was recently signed by the Governor, was enacted by the Legislature to "promote the safe use of the waters of this state; to provide for the numbering of motorboats; to establish regulations relative to the operation of vessels and motorboats on such waters; to establish regulations relative to the use of waters of this state for boating; to prescribe the duties and responsibilities of owners and operators of vessels and motorboats thereon; to facilitate state and county operations by establishing a boating control committee; to prescribe the powers and duties of the secretary of state, the Michigan state waterways commission; the commissioner of state police and the boating control committee; to provide for the disposition of revenue; and to provide for penalties for violations of this act."

No Appropriation
Secretary of State James M. Hare pointed out that the legislature passed the law without concurrently appropriating funds to staff the committee. "If money is available we cannot give these problems the across-the-board attention they require," Hare said.

However, Hare believes that the Board once it gets funds "can bring about the orderly growth, development, and use of Michigan's extensive water recreational resources. This step has long been needed and all of us who are interested in water safety and who recognize the help proper planning and control can give the tourist business, are working together to make Michigan an even greater and better water wonderland."

Right To Know
Secretary Hare said that the public's "right to know" would be upheld and that general meetings of the Boating Control Committee would be open to the public.

The Control Committee, when invited by city, township or county governing boards will be authorized to hold public hearings in the area to collect testimony and other information which appears necessary from local residents and users of local waters.

The Committee is then empowered, after due consideration of all evidence, to establish boat speed limits, to regulate the size and horsepower of boat motors, to prohibit motor boating if necessary, to establish restrictions on the use of motorboats by day and hour, to set speed zones, to authorize and direct the marking of navigational areas, public beaches, boating areas, fishing areas, and to establish whatever other regulations seem necessary to protect public safety.

Local Units Approve
Final approval of such regulations by local governing units are necessary before they may be effectuated.

Hare recalled the confusion which prevailed in safety regulations and road laws during the early days of the automobile. "Until now, any lakeside community could set up its own system of boating regulations. Sponsors of the new act hope it will gradually produce some kind of uniformity in boating regulations throughout Michigan."

At their first meeting the "control-trio" stressed their determination to work for the ultimate in "safe, pleasant, and compatible use of the waters with which our state is so amply endowed."

Compatible Use
Hare said that a sound plan of "compatible" use of Michigan's inland lakes and waterways would greatly help the tourist industry and the economy of Michigan.

Compatibility of water use need not be as difficult as some imagine it," Hare said. "Naturally swimmers, skiers, fishermen, skin divers, and power-boats cannot all occupy the same few square feet of water surface at the same time—yet all have the right to enjoy the water activity of their choice."

"Just as the State Safety Commission stimulated the co-operation of all agencies concerned with traffic safety, so this group can marshal the aid of our schools, the Coast Guard Auxiliary, the U. S. Power Squadrons, the Red Cross, and all similar groups in a combined co-operative and continuing program of water safety education," Hare said.

Groups To Meet
Representatives of these groups will be invited to plan a statewide program covering every area of the state.

"The Boating Committee believes that the problem can be solved. Our water area is extensive enough to provide space for all, if, even though there were no law, all would exercise care; regard for the rights of others, and simple good manners. Unfortunately, there are those who disregard all of these things."

"In spite of all the safety education that will ever be given, the Committee believes there will be recklessness. And right here, the provisions of the law must be invoked. The legislature has wisely provided teeth in this new law which will convince those who need the force of law to understand that we will have safety on our lakes as we do on our highways."

No one person "owns" fish and game in a state of nature in Michigan, but under license and in the proper season, anyone who "reduces game or fish to possession" does then own such meat. Further, Michigan's public lakes and rivers are available to the public and are not owned by individuals, and no legal hunter or fisherman may be prevented from hunting or fishing such waters.

The Michigan Department of Mental Health provided hospital services for more than 39,746 persons during May.

The nation's first regularly scheduled passenger air service was inaugurated in Michigan. In 1920 the Stout Air Service began daily flights between Detroit and Grand Rapids.

Water Accidents Continue Taking Heavy Death Toll

Michigan's 248 water accidents in the first seven months this year have taken 145 lives and injured at least 88 persons, State Police provisional records show.

The water deaths include 50 swimmers or waders, 23 who fell from bridges, docks, banks or piers, 14 boat operators, 13 boat passengers, seven who fell through ice, four who drowned trying to rescue others, two skin or scuba divers, and two who fell into open tanks or wells. Official descriptive reports on 30 other water deaths had not been received as of July 31.

Of those falling into the water from bridges, banks, etc., 11 were children in the 0-9 age group. The swimming or wading deaths include six teen-agers who were swimming in gravel pits and an

Granddaughter of The Rev. Stanford Serving with AID

A. Gail Stanford, granddaughter of the Rev. and Mrs. G. P. Stanford of the Methodist Home, is serving in the Agency for International Development this summer as one of 222 youths participating in the White House Summer Seminar program. Miss Stanford is assigned to the AID Budget Division as a clerk-typist.

The Summer Seminar was originated by President Kennedy for the purpose of acquainting talented young people with government service and operations. The President has expressed the hope that more youths will be attracted to public service careers. Those assigned to AID are performing a variety of clerical and other essential jobs to help the U. S. program of foreign assistance.

Miss Stanford was among the young people welcomed to the Seminar by the President, who said he hoped "some tired old myths" about Government service would be exploded for the students as a result of their work with the Government.

"You may have been told, for example, that Government workers are clock-watchers," said the President. "You will soon find that the vast majority of them are dedicated not to their pay checks but to the job to be done."

Miss Stanford is a student at the University of Michigan. Ann Arbor, and is a member of Phi Beta Phi sorority. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Stanford, 5802 Greenlawn Dr., Bethesda, Md.

WOOS U. S. TRADE

Japan is launching a campaign to win the support of the powerful American bloc in coming trade competition with the European Common Market.

The project is proposed to convince the American farmer that Japan has been the best foreign market for United States farm products and will continue to do so through the 1960's if Japan can sell its products to America.

TAX REVISION BILL

Unless the Senate Finance Committee reaches agreement by July 17—President Kennedy's tax revision bill will probably end up on a shelf.

A timetable for the bill was set up by Chairman Byrd (D., W. Va.) and since agreement is not likely in that period, the measure may be shelved when Congress pushes into its adjournment—crash.

Detroit Newspaper of 1935 Featured Antique Cartecar of Reily Brothers

In view of area interest in the efforts of the Waterloo Historical Society to restore the former Reily homestead at Waterloo as a museum attraction in the state park area, a news story published in a Detroit paper Nov. 10, 1935, and brought to The Standard office the past week is of special significance.

E. F. Stabler, of Ann Arbor brought the old Detroit paper to The Standard office.

With a Stockbridge date line, the story begins with the statement that "if all automobile users felt the same as the Reily brothers of Waterloo, Detroit would still be a middle-sized peaceful city and Pontiac and Flint would have remained the quiet country towns they were 25 years ago" in 1910.

The story went on to explain that the Reily brothers were the owners of a 23-year-old automobile—a Cartecar—which was no longer being manufactured; the Cartecar Co. had closed down 10 years earlier. The car, however, was still in excellent condition and the Reily brothers said they wouldn't part with it.

Checking into the information, The Standard learned that the car is still in existence at the present time. Fred Balmer, Cheltenham, Pa., chief and owner of Balmer's Brake Service, bought the car from the reluctant Reily brothers about 14 years ago. At that time parts were no longer available for it and it was not in running condition; however, Balmer's interest in antique cars (he has several) prompted him to buy it. He said it took several days of negotiation to get the Reilies to agree to the sale of the 1912 model Cartecar.

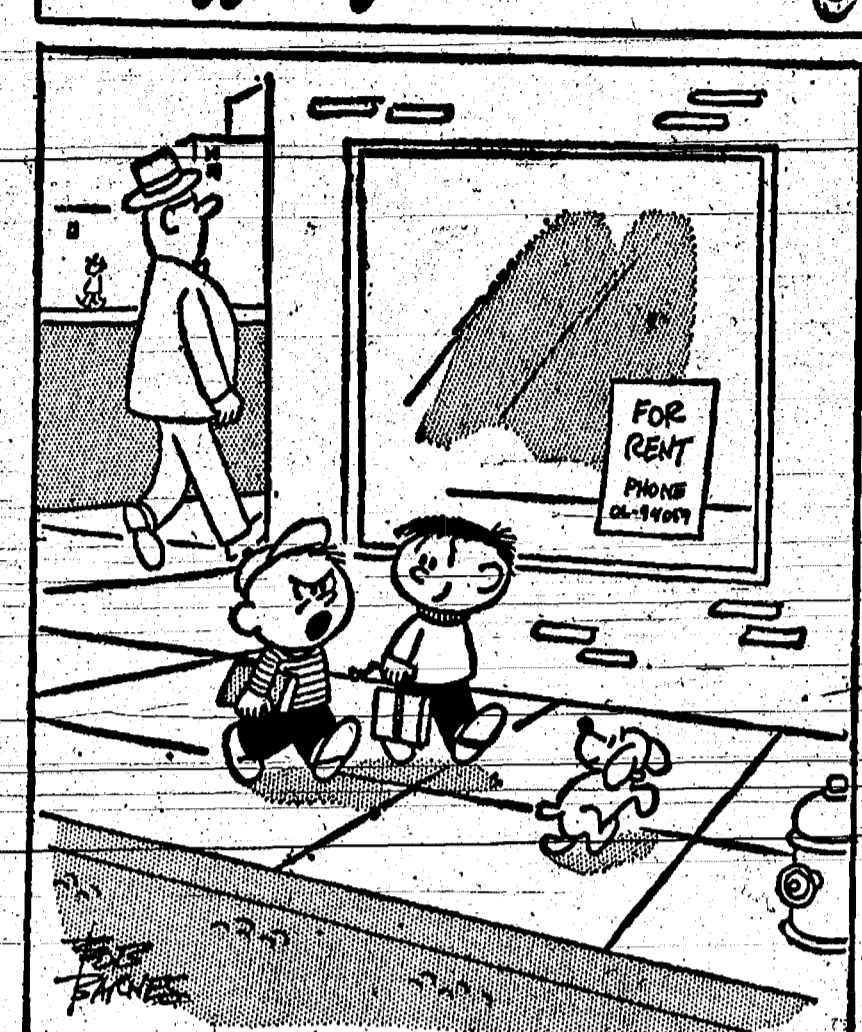

Balmer had taken James Daniels with him and the Reilies agreed to the sale. Balmer and Daniels "unearthed" the car from its storage place and brought it to Cheltenham.

Balmer later sold the car to George Wise of North Lake who machined parts for it and restored it to running condition; he had made no attempt to restore the body to its original pristine condition. The way antique car fanciers of today are doing with old models.

In the meantime, about a year later, Ralph Lewis, who at that time was the oldest Studebaker dealer in Jackson, had become interested in acquiring the Cartecar to add to his collection of antique vehicles. Balmer again bought the car—this time from Wise—loaded it on his truck and delivered it to Lewis.

Balmer said yesterday that so far as he knows, Lewis never did any further restoration on the car and it is still in storage along with the other antique cars Lewis has acquired. He is now retired, Lewis told Balmer that he had known the Carter who headed the Cartecar Co. and for that reason was especially interested in owning the Reily car; it had always had excellent care and was in surprisingly good condition, considering its age.

Robert Mackinder, Stockbridge village president, said he remembers as a child seeing the Reily car drive into town; it always created a sensation among the younger generation.

In 1935, when the story about the car appeared in the Detroit paper, the car was described in excellent condition "its motor running as quietly as that of many cars built 20 years later and not a dent to be seen in any of its fenders."

The brothers stated to the Detroit paper's representative, that "W. R. Daniels, an auto dealer at Cheltenham, offered to trade us a new $1,000 sedan even for our car but we didn't trade. Our car rides easier. The leather in the seats is better. It runs well and we are accustomed to it. We wouldn't want to trade it for any new car."

Dan Reily, one of the family of four brothers and a sister who owned the car, told the reporter "We like the car and haven't seen anything better. Of course we don't drive a lot. We have 20,000 miles on it now (in 1912) but we use it in going to town. It cost $1,200 when we bought it and it hasn't given us any trouble."

The car was described as having a friction drive and Prestolite gas

Top Hazard In Accidents Is Still Burns

Ann Arbor—Of all the personal accident hazards in the modern world, the unchallenged champs continue to be heat and fire.

Doctors at the University of Michigan Medical Center estimate that 70,000 persons are hospitalized each year with severe burns. About 6,000 are killed. And uncounted millions suffer various minor degrees of pain, discomfort and temporary incapacity.

U-M "Burn Team" specialists say 60 percent of burn injuries occur in or near the home. About 20 percent are incurred at work and the remainder in miscellaneous places.

Roughly half of all victims are children under 12.

The doctors report four major causes of burns in children: Ignition of the clothing... direct contact with flame of stoves, fireplaces, trash fires, etc., careless use of inflammable liquids, and hot liquids.

Under the last category they note that children often suffer extensive burns from pulling containers of hot water, coffee, tea or grease from stoves and tables.

Even the bathtub may prove hazardous, they say, because unattended children have a way of turning on the hot water and causing serious burns to their thin skin.

Although modern "Burn Teams" throughout the nation have made great progress in treatment, U-M doctors say much of the suffering and costs could be prevented entirely with increased attention to the hazards which exist in our daily lives.

They offer a six-point program whereby the average person may increase his odds against becoming a victim: (1) Constant awareness of the dangers of heat and fire; (2) Supervision and education of children on fire safety; (3) Supervision of the elderly and infirm; (4) Re-educate ourselves about combustible fluids, and the inherent dangers they present; (5) Attention to the major sources of home fires, including electrical wiring; (6) Knowing an escape route from every room in your home.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Trinkle of near Manchester, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trinkle left Friday morning for Grand Junction to spend the week-end as guests of the latter's daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Montgomery and children. They returned Sunday evening.

Con-Con Report

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is No. 10 in a series of articles by Frank Kelley, State Attorney General, concerning frauds affecting the consumers of this state.

While the state civil service system was the subject of detailed study and lengthy deliberation in committee and convention sessions, few changes were made in the original civil service amendment which was voted into the present constitution by the people of Michigan in 1940.

Considered by a majority of the delegates as improvements in the provisions governing civil service are proposed changes which would:

1. Allow administrative control of the creation or abolition of positions for reasons of efficiency and with the employee's right of appeal to the civil service commission clearly stated.

2. Give the legislature some control over the total level of state payroll by allowing legislative rejection or reduction of pay raises ordered by the commission, but only by an extraordinary (two-thirds) vote, and prohibiting legislative reductions below compensation rates then in effect.

The legislature is not empowered, however, to change pay differentials established by the commission.

The civil service section occupies the major part of Article XI which is concerned with Public Officers and Employment. The civil service provisions are designed to continue Michigan's national leadership among states in public personnel practice, and to foster and encourage a career service in state government.

The bipartisan civil service commission continues as at present. New language in the proposed revision, however, prevents the classification of the chief executive officer of boards and commissions and reserves these positions for political appointment without tenure.

Eight exempt positions among policy personnel are permitted in the governor's office. This simply gives constitutional sanction to a practice which has become customary. The revision also provides for additional exempt policy positions in other principal state departments.

Another revision provides that increases in compensation for civil service employees can be authorized by the commission only at the start of a fiscal year, and after prior notice to the governor so he can accommodate the increases in the budget he submits to the legislature. Power is given to the legislature, however, to waive such notice and permit increases at a time other than the beginning of the fiscal year.

The present legislative appropriation to the commission of one percent of the aggregate payroll of the classified service for the past year is continued. It is provided, however, that within six months after the end of each fiscal year the commission must return to the state treasury funds not spent during that year.

The commission is directed to report on its expenditures at least annually to the governor and the legislature and will be subject to audit procedures prescribed by the legislature.

A new section in Article XI permits the establishment of civil service merit systems in other political subdivisions of the state, providing a majority of the voters of the unit affected approve. Teachers under contract or tenure are excluded in the provision.

Out-of-State Real Estate Offers May Need Checking

(NOTE: This is one in a series of articles by Frank Kelley, State Attorney General, concerning frauds affecting the consumers of this state.)

A beautiful estate in Hawaii, on "palm-fringed beaches of white sand or glistening black, together with brilliant orchids and crystal clear water," minutes away from a golf course, free transportation to schools, excellent water supply for a few dollars a month. All this, and membership in a yacht club, too?

Sound too good to be true? It is.

When Michigan residents began to receive mailed offers to send for a purchase contract for an estate of more than an acre in this "sun-filled, fun-filled paradise," my consumer protection division investigated the corporation in Los Angeles which was sending the hand-some brochures. With the co-operation of the Attorney General of California and state agencies in both states, we have learned that the enterprise is a Nevada corporation which has not qualified to do business in Michigan, and is unauthorized to make sales or offers here. We also learned that the nearest golf course is more than 40 miles away; that the proposed site of the yet non-existent yacht club is 14 miles over a rather sorry road; that no transportation serves the one-room grammar school 12 miles away or the high school 23 miles away; that the "excellent water supply" is available in individual catchment—that is, you catch your water supply by trapping it on your roof.

Check real estate offers from outside the state carefully before obligating yourself. Many of these are fair and worthwhile; others are not. Your Chamber of Commerce, Better Business Bureau, prosecuting attorney, or state Corporation and Securities Commission are good sources of information.

In the first seven and a half months last year, the nearest comparable tabulation period, there were 372 accidents which resulted in 163 deaths and 175 injured.

WITHDRAWAL OF TROOPS
Informed sources said that the United States probably will withdraw about 7,500 troops from Europe this summer.

This would be the first reduction of United States strength there since the Berlin crisis military build-up last fall.

Troops recalled would be support troops—quartermaster, signal, ordinance and the like.

FROM THE GOVERNOR'S CHAIR

By John B. Swainson

Lansing — I have become increasingly disturbed—as a lawyer and as a citizen—over the nature and character of political discussion of decisions by our courts.

It has now become standard operating procedure for some politicians—when they disagree with or feel their political cause is disadvantaged by a decision of the court—not to address their criticism to the decision itself, but to start a campaign of character assassination against those who made the decision.

Since the decision of the Supreme Court that the present method of electing senators violated the constitutions of the state and the nation, we have witnessed a disgraceful campaign of invective and slander against those who made the ruling.

It is one thing to disagree with the conclusion reached by a judge—we all do that. But it is quite another to assail the character and integrity of the judge who made the decision.

Those who engage in such irresponsible attacks tamper with a very fragile commodity: the respect of the people for their courts. If respect for law and justice—the respect for the "orderly processes of the courts"—is weakened, then the whole fabric of government is weakened.

There have also been spread misconceptions about the law and the constitution . . . misconceptions cleverly designed as proposals for increasing citizen participation in government. The U. S. Constitution is not subject to amendment by a vote in one state—the constitution provides that this can be done only in a specific way through action by Congress and a sufficient number of states.

The constitution also is not subject to interpretation through referendum; interpretation is assigned to our courts.

I hope that those who engage in spreading fabrications will recognize the danger of their actions and promptly change their tactics.

Instead of assaulting the integrity of every judge whose decision displeases them, such critics should help elevate the level of political discussion. They should attempt to increase—not decrease—our understanding about the nature and nature of our form of government, its rules and its obligations.

INCREASED U.S. PAYROLL
The Government added 7,889 jobs to its civilian payroll in May, reported Senator Byrd (D., Va.). The increase brought the number of civilians working for Government to 2,461,534.

Byrd, as chairman of the Senate Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Government Expenses, said the increase was "a very fragile commodity."
