Chelsea's Mothers' March, held annually in connection with the March of Dimes campaign, will be held Tuesday, Jan. 26, beginning at 7 p.m. Leo Bishop, Mothers' March chairman, is asking that, for the 10th year, the community's volunteer canvassers will stop at every home, regardless of residence, to keep their pledges on from 7 until 8 p.m.

Jack Merkel, president of Chelsea Friends of the Library, said yesterday that six people of the community have already committed themselves to participate in the eight-week reading efficiency course being promoted under sponsorship of the Friends of the Library. ### Firemen Ask State for Help In Legislation

Representatives of Scio, Lima and Sylvan townships of Washtenaw county, Grass Lakes and Leoni township in Jackson county, and the villages of Chelsea and Dexter were in Chelsea Friday evening to attend a meeting called by the Southern Michigan Association of Five Chiefs and Firemen for the purpose of discussing the problem caused by frequent grass fires along the New York Central railroad tracks in this area.

Included among those present were township supervisors, village presidents and fire chiefs.

George Atkinson of the Chelsea Fire Department, who is a vice-president of the Association, acted as chairman at the meeting which was held in Chelsea's new fire station on W. Middle St.

Following extended discussion of the situation, a resolution was drafted and adopted for presentation to the State Association of Supervisors meeting held yesterday and today (Jan. 22 and 23) in Lansing.

The resolution calls for strict enforcement of present laws regarding precautionary measures to prevent fires along the railroad tracks and requests that the State Legislature be asked to pass any new laws that may be needed to put an end to these fires.

Related subjects regarding Citizens Band Radio matters will also be discussed, Beach stated.

Alva Nichols of Jackson, was a Sunday afternoon visitor of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Vicary and Mrs. Annabelle Woolley.

March of Dimes Collections Total $1,105 To Date

Mrs. William Adams and Mrs. William Marsh, co-chairmen of the March of Dimes campaign in Chelsea, report that, to date, a total of $1,105.88 has been contributed.

This amount includes $200 from the peanut sale conducted here Friday and Saturday by Boy Scouts of Troops 76 and 25, with Elmer Kiel as chairman. Proceeds of the peanut sale topped last year's by more than $80; Kiel pointed out, however, that last year's sale was held in extremely cold weather while the weather Friday and Saturday was mild and pleasant with many people in the downtown shopping area.

The total, as reported by Mrs. Marsh and Mrs. Adams, also includes money received to date from bowling, industry clubs, organizations and mailers.

Special features of the trip include a foreign policy briefing at the Department of State, a two-hour briefing at the Pentagon, a visit to Methodist-related American University and Wesley Seminary. American University recently added to its program a School of International Service, designed particularly to train people for government service.

EDITORIAL THOUGHTS

Research in School Drop-out Problem Is Good Investment

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare has come in for its share of criticism from time to time, and frequently with more than with a little justification, for the careless way in which it dispenses Uncle Sam's money on seemingly frivolous or needless projects and programs.

We cannot quarrel, however, with a number of modest grants it recently announced to finance research in the problem of school drop-outs.

There is ample evidence in the files of employment agencies, welfare institutions and police departments to suggest that delinquency, social maladjustment and poverty are linked intimately with lack of education.

Someone has said that life for the average boy of today is a high-stakes poker game requiring a college degree for openers. That may be stretching things a little, for there are those not qualified of able to attend college who can still make a success of themselves in the manual arts.

But anything less than a high school education poses an almost insurmountable handicap in these days and it's not strange that the misfit ratio is high among those without it. Thus any study aimed at trying to prevent elementary and high school drop-outs is a very much worthwhile undertaking.

Lose A Minute, Save A Life

The grim week-end headlines tell the gruesome story of the annual highway holocaust for us each week without any seeming impression upon us in our regard for traffic safety.

But the shocking figures must be indelibly imprinted in the minds and hearts of sorrowing friends, families and relatives of those killed or maimed—some for life—in the rash of wrecks which are always most numerous at the very times when halting is supposed to be the order of the day.

And the worst of it all is that so many of the mishaps need never have happened. It's true that winter weather and mechanical failures are contributing factors in some accidents but carelessness must often share the blame. A bit of precautionary maintenance, replacement of a smooth tire while there's still time, or a lighter foot on the accelerator when the roads are icy, can prevent tragedy or spell the difference between a major mishap and a mere dented fender.

For some that lesson comes, unfortunately, too late. But there's still time for the rest of us to take stock of our driving habits and attitudes which also contribute to trouble.

The slogan "lose a minute and save a life" may be trite and time-worn, but it's still valid.

EMERGENCY CALL FROM MOM

MICHIGAN MIRROR

By Elmer E. White, Secretary, Michigan Press Association

Faster-Better Less duplication is another term for efficiency in government, according to Auditor General Billie S. Parham.

Efficiency is what each department head in state government is now asked to re-evaluate. True efficiency could bring about considerable savings in operational costs. This would leave more money for programs which benefit the people.

In Farnum's office studies have been under way to find more effective, faster ways of processing the tons of paper work involved in audit procedures.

Previously, the auditor general's office required, for example, five different forms for various steps in the veterans homestead tax exemption program. Last fall, Farnum announced the forms were combined into a single report which also would provide a carbon for the taxpayer.

"Usually," said Farnum, "efforts at tighter control of expenditures result in increased paper work, or so-called red tape." By application of work simplification principles to our procedures and forms, we have actually reduced effort and cost.

Initiation of work efficiency studies came shortly after Farnum was appointed as auditor general, when Otis M. Smith became a Supreme Court justice.

The use of business machine procedures and simplified reports, such as the 5-in-1 veterans homestead exemption report, will also result in more effective audit procedures to carry out the intent of the law.

"The homestead exemption procedure is but one example of the work simplification program which has achieved excellent results and reduced administrative costs," the auditor general said.

A similar look at operations, this one in the state treasurer's office, has resulted in complete conversion from the use of paper checks to punch-card checks.

Treasurer Stanford A. Brown noted that the change resulted in a savings of 18 employees, or about $80,000 annually to the taxpayers, with no corresponding increase in cost. The employees were transferred to other departments.

In addition the change will provide more efficient processing and quicker payment of state bills," Brown said.

More Deaths

Carelessness combined with many other factors, such as weather and physical conditions, snuffed out lives of nearly 1,900 people on Michigan highways last year.

The impact of the high death toll, fourth highest on record since the count was started in 1933, greatly concerns state officials and police agencies which deal with the statistics.

Very few others, however, could even guess at the number killed in one state in a single year. Most take the "it couldn't happen to me" attitude.

The 1963 report showed 47 boat operators and 40 boat passengers died in accidents as compared with 36 and 20, respectively, the previous year.

Accidents where the individual is on his own, such as swimming, wading, walking on ice, or attempting a rescue, recorded a decline in fatalities.

A slight increase, 50 as compared with 49, was noted in deaths when persons fell from bridges, banks, docks or piers. The accidents in which boats and other people were involved marked the increases.

Catholic Social Services of Washington county held its first annual dinner meeting Thursday at Newman Hall, Ann Arbor. Speakers were Msgr. Wilbur E. Stuedemann, Rev. Fr. John A. Treese and Miss Marquette Parrish.

Fire discovered at 2 a.m. Thursday completely destroyed a large barn and milk shed, together with 24 head of livestock and a quantity of hay and equipment on the Nelson Prentiss farm on Mt. Hope Rd.

Deaths this week: Mrs. C. C. Lane, mother of Dr. Wilfred Lane, DVM, and Chelsea High School Principal Charles Lane; and George Lehman, retired Royal Oak banker.

In the 24 Years Ago column (Jan. 23, 1930): The village has furnished lights to illuminate the coasting hill on Mrs. Palmer's Washington St. property and many children are now enjoying the splendid sliding at this point.

In the 34 Years Ago column (Jan. 28, 1920): American radio stations are remaining off the air from 11 p.m. and midnight this week in order to give listeners an opportunity to try their luck at tuning in European stations. To date, no one has heard anything but squawks and squeals.

Chelsea High school's football squad members were guests of the Kiwanis club at the annual football banquet Monday. Speakers included Coach Ned Stuts, Assistant Coach John Magiera, Earle Edwards, end coach at Michigan State College, Chelsea Captain Robert Vogel and Captain-Elect Donald Schrader.

Mrs. Cors Beissel called The Standard office yesterday to report seeing a robin perched in a tree in front of her home on McKinley St.

Miss Alam J. Pierce died Thursday at her home on Pierce St. She was the sole surviving member of a family of 11 children, all of whom were born on the Pierce farm, immediately south of the village, which had been owned by the Pierce family since 1832.

Conveyed to the screen are touching and intimate scenes in this family's daily lives. Great shock hits the family when word comes that the father has been killed in an auto crash. Mama (Jean Simmons) does an excellent job portraying the sorrowing widow and mother of a heart-broken seven-year-old.

Aunt Hannah (Aline MacMahon) is very helpful in her usual soft, sweet ways. But the brother of the deceased is crude and annoying to the grieving family, it clearly shows the impact it has on a young child—especially when the father is the child's idol.

THE LETTERBOX

★ Always Behind

Dear Editor:

The U.S. government, like a cat's tail—is always behind—and consequently there is always a sneaky dog or dogs hovering around ready to snap at the tail and engage a skirmish or some such brawl.

We were behind in the sneak attack way the Soviets fooled us in the seizure of Cuba, and we are being paid up for it, being hoodwinked by the elusive Khrushchev and bullied by a swaggering like Castro.

We were the cat's tail in the Panama Troubles, and now we are behind in the Zanzibar uprising where Yanks have been forced to flee, and numerous dead bodies scattered along the roadside.

Why are we always behind in matters of uprisings and seizures? Do we lack being informed, or do we fail to accept such, when it is proffered to us? There is need for greater alertness and more tenacity. Britain years ago, when she was leader of the nations, would not have tolerated what we have been subjected to.

S. Danby.

DIMES BOARD FILLED — Molly Minick, waitress at the Wolverine Tavern on Old US-12, is shown above with the March of Dimes Board containing a total of $474.00 contributed by tavern patrons to be added to Chelsea's total for the current campaign. The first dimes board at the tavern was completely filled by Saturday, Jan. 11, and another was put up. The dimes board is an annual project at the tavern through co-operation of the owners, Donald Siegmund and Carl Dredge. Money contributed in this way, as well as all contributions of the January campaign, is designated for research on birth defects, arthritis and other crippling diseases and for assistance to polio patients.

School Board Briefs

At the meeting of the Chelsea School Board Tuesday evening, bills for payment amounted to $11,670.58.

Representatives of the teaching staff were present for discussion of salaries for the 1964-65 school year. The Board granted an annual increase of $150 for all teachers holding BA degrees, and an annual increase of $200 for all teachers holding master's degrees, together with the increase will bring the total to $6,050 for those with master's degrees, and $1,50 to $6,050 for those with master's degrees.

The Board also increased by $100 the merit pay available.

Process reports were given at the meeting by Wesley Cowell, coordinator of the science and mathematics department, and by James LaFave, co-ordinator of the English department.

Resolution passed to recall by Feb. 1, 1964, all bonds of the $3 North school debt retirement and be paid.

Also passed was a resolution to substitute the tax sheltered annuity program for teachers who did not participate.

Authorization approved for the purchase of three calculators and a mimeograph machine at a total cost of $865.

April 6, 1964 was set as the date for the operational milling election.

The Board's finance committee should present a tentative operating budget for 1964-65 before the February meeting.

For a six-month period, W. J. Exnessman, who is in charge of transportation for the Chelsea School District, will receive an increase of $800 for 1963-64 trans-s, if less than 100 miles per month. The increase is for extra work necessitated because of the fact that additional mechanic is no longer employed by the school district.

All of us want to be popular, but the price that one must pay is often exorbitant.

A complete transportation report is being prepared for release.

A motion was passed to present to the Selectors of the Chelsea School District a building and site fund millage proposal—three mills for 10 years—and to begin implementing preliminary action to determine the cost of construction of additional classrooms at Chelsea High school. An architect is to attend the February meeting of the School Board to present tentative figures.

Six members of the Board voted in support of the motion. One Board member refrained from voting on the motion.

Representatives of Suburban Child Study Club of North Lake attended Tuesday's meeting and entered a request to have representatives of the School Board speak at a community meeting scheduled to be held at Inverness Country club Feb. 13.

Members of the Board decided to the request and announced that they will be happy to meet with any groups or clubs to explain the building and site fund proposal or any other matters pertaining to the school system.

The February meeting of the School Board will be held Feb. 11, a week earlier than the regular date, because of the meeting in Atlantic City of the American Association of School Administrators. School Superintendent Charles Cameron and some of the board members are to attend.

Complacent Attitude Feared As Enemy In Disease Eradication Program

Heating Hay Helps Fumigation in Restricted Areas

Two costly cattle diseases, bovine tuberculosis and brucellosis, that have cost Michigan residents millions of dollars over the years have reached their lowest incidence in history. This is the result of a co-operative program between state and federal departments of agriculture. Lenders now fear that a feeling of complacency may develop that may erase gains already made and lead to an increase in disease. This occurred once before.

In brucellosis only 142 herds are now under quarantine, with reactors for the past three months averaging only 64 each month. In 1954 when an accelerated program was initiated, more than 7,000 herds were under quarantine, with between 1,500 and 2,000 reactors disclosed each month, it is recalled by Agricultural Director G. S. McIntyre.

Today Michigan has 28 certified brucellosis free counties, and the goal for complete certification of the state has been set for July 1, 1965. Together with this reduction of brucellosis has come a parallel reduction in undulant fever in humans which stems from the disease in cattle. There were only six undulant fever cases reported last year.

But with this victory comes the danger of calling the troops home and forgetting all about the war against these two cattle diseases. This can be costly. It happened once before.

In the 1920's many millions of dollars were spent in eradicating bovine tuberculosis, but Michigan became an accredited state in 1931. Complacency set in with the livestock industry feeling nothing further need be done. Follow up work lagged. In the next decade testing was not vigorously pursued. Month-by-month, year-by-year, the number of reactors mounted. By the 1950's disease had gained another foothold. When the accelerated program was resumed, as many as 6,000 reactors were condemned in a single year.

This drive had the cooperation of State and Federal men working with the Cooperative Extension Service, livestock owners, veterinarians and others all in the program. A special Livestock Health Study Committee, made up of all segments of the industry, was set up and for months held frequent meetings to implement the program.

Much more money was spent in reducing the infection than would have been required if funds had been actively utilized for an adequate control program over those years of complacency.

AID BATTLE A SETBACK

Since becoming Chief Executive on Capitol Hill, President Johnson received his first setback when the House upheld an $800,000,000 cut in foreign aid appropriations and added an amendment prohibiting the Government from guaranteeing private financing of wheat sales to the Communist bloc.

But with this victory comes the danger of calling the troops home and forgetting all about the war against these two cattle diseases. This can be costly. It happened once before.

GOVERNOR ROMNEY REPORTS

If some tragedy should wipe out the entire population—every man, woman and child—in a town the size of Utica or Kalkaska or Grand Blanc or Frankfort, public shock and reaction would be understandable.

Or if a gang of thieves somehow managed to steal three out of every four cents paid each year in Michigan state sales tax, public officials couldn't move fast enough to see that it didn't happen again.

Yet this is what happened on our highways last year. And early reports from 1964 are even more ominous.

Traffic accidents killed 1,859 individuals on Michigan highways during 1963. That's almost 200 more than were killed in 1962. In addition, 123,000 were injured, and of this group 50,000 received serious injuries which may cripple them for life.

Although not as meaningful as the human statistics, the economic impact of traffic accidents is staggering. The cost of accidents on our highways in 1963 totals $335 million, an increase of $35 million over 1962. If the present trend continues, the cost will be $400 million this year.

What makes it even more tragic is that it isn't necessary. We have the resources and ability to cut this shameful toll.

We have more cars on the highway; they're traveling more miles; we have more drivers. But death and sorrow need not increase aspace.

Many local law enforcement agencies and safety organizations have done outstanding jobs in Michigan. Many have won national citations for their work. There is no telling what the death toll might be if our existing efforts on both state and local levels had not been as effective as they have been.

But we can do more.

I have placed before the legislature a comprehensive and extensive program for traffic safety. One focal point is more state police troopers. We need at least 200 more troopers with 130 troopers assigned to our freeway system.

Certainly our freeway system is a safer way to cover more miles than non-freeways. But this does not rule out the need for adequate and persistent patrol and enforcement. Without police patrol, drivers develop bad habits on expressways and carry these habits over into non-freeway driving. We need more troopers, for traffic enforcement, for enforcement of other laws, for citizen protection, and to help motorists in need. In my opinion, highway patrol is a distinct highway purpose.

Another point is reactivation of the Traffic Safety Center at Michigan State University. This needed service was a victim of Michigan's hard financial times a few years ago, and should be restored to provide research and information in some of our basic traffic problems.

Other points in my special message cover:

Creation of a police training academy to train local police in both traffic law enforcement and crime prevention.

Putting photographs on driver licenses to prevent fraudulent transfer of driving privileges.

Applying the point system for traffic violators to all drivers, including those under age 17.

Requiring that new drivers under 18 drive only with an experienced adult driver for 90 days.

Outlaw drag racing and other speed contests on our public highways.

Bring Michigan under the uniform chemical test law in drunk driving cases.

Strengthen the State Safety Commission for more effective educational work and more extensive contact with local safety organizations.

Require more information on applications for driver licenses and a more adequate re-examination when drivers renew their licenses.

Require everyone operating any motor vehicle on the highways—including farm vehicles and machinery—to have a driving license.

With reactivation of the Traffic Safety Center, we can undertake research on other problem areas, including the complicated question of how best to administer a system of periodic mechanical inspections of all motor vehicles.

Adoption of a concerted traffic safety program along the lines I have submitted will go a long way to ease human misery by reducing our traffic death tolls.

D. Keezer Represents Oakland University at Automotive Exposition

Daryl Keezer, of Chelsea, represented Oakland University Rochester, in the National Society of Automotive Engineers' exposition Jan. 13-17 at Cobo Hall in Detroit.

A junior at Oakland University, Keezer is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Keezer, 410 McKinley St. He graduated from Chelsea High school in 1961.

He is one of eight engineering students at Oakland who designed and entered an electron beam welder for display at the show.

The welder, according to the designers, can be used in aerospace components and other intricate welding and is unique in that it can weld aluminum foil to steel.

The students began the project eight months ago with a $500 special projects budget from the university, but after six months of purchasing army surplus materials which they adapted to their needs for the welder, their fund was still needed to complete the welder.

Unmounted, the students set out to raise the money and their efforts were rewarded with the help of an engineering firm and the Student Activities Council.

Washtenaw March of Dimes Poster Child Learns To Walk

"Little Miss March of Dimes" is the affectionate nickname many March of Dimes volunteers have given to Amanda Rich, 1963 Poster child for Washtenaw county.

One year ago Amanda was chosen to represent the March of Dimes because of her triumph over the almost insurmountable odds of hydrocephalus and myelomeningocele (spina bifida and canal).

After repeated surgeries and four years of treatment by a battery of orthopedic surgeons, urologists, pediatricians, neuro-surgical residents, nurses, and physical therapists, Amanda was given her first pair of crutches.

In the minds of all who know her was the question, "Can a child paralyzed from the hips down possibly learn to walk?" It seemed unlikely, but those who thought it so did not reckon with the determination of an irrepressible five-year-old.

At first, it was a matter of learning just to stand up alone on the crutches, and last July she took her first unaided steps. Today she is making many public appearances for the March of Dimes and making a host of fans wherever she goes.

Mother, Mrs. Robert Rich, 2425 Durrow, Ann Arbor, says that she has daily walking practice. It is this constant exercising that will build up her strength in her arms and shoulders. It is these muscles that must do all of the work of moving her body forward. One of the greatest problems now is learning to cope with the slightest irregularity of the walking surface. Small rises in the sidewalk or even ridges in the carpeting require many hours of practice to learn to negotiate.

Like all little girls doing the same thing over and over, it sometimes becomes tiresome and mothers have to be ready with a few tricks. One such trick that almost never fails is to coax Amanda to walk the length of the hallway in order to have a little "glamorous" eye shadow applied. . . perhaps today it will be green. Then, of course, we have to walk back down the hall to find the mirror to see how it looks.

Amanda now attends school full days at the Rockham School-for-Special Education in Ypsilanti. She is in kindergarten and has learned to print her name, all of her letters, and all of her numbers. During her school day, a therapist works with her sometimes during the day in the use of her crutches to give her as much practice as possible. At home her constant companion is her dachshund, Emily, and she has dozens of friends among the neighborhood children, many of whom seem to make the Rich home the center of their childhood activity.

Amanda is a happy, calm, well-adjusted little girl who takes her handicap in her stride. Because of the great advancements that have been made in the treatment of myelomeningocele, and the pa-

THE MILITARY BUDGET

The Johnson Administration may file its military aid request next year to the lowest level since the "global" program began fourteen years ago, it has been reported.

Key United States officials indicate they expect a new budget request for military aid to be limited to a little more than $1,000,000,000.

LINK MEETINGS?

President Johnson has stated that he would meet with Soviet Premier Krushchev or any other world leader "at any time there is any indication a meeting would be fruitful and productive."

Meetings have been scheduled with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, the president of Italy, the prime minister of Canada, the president of Mexico and others if meetings would be mutually desirable.

Farmers whose projects were approved under the program were eligible to receive several kinds of assistance. For example, these farmers could receive adjustment payments for converting land from production of crops to "non-use." These payments were based on such things as land productivity, type of conversion used, which the land was being converted to, and increase in value under new use.

Farmers were also eligible to receive conservation cost-share payments to help meet the conservation measures needed under the new use.

Conservation practices and types of payment are similar to those already approved under the Agricultural Conservation Program in each state and county.

Practices most commonly proved include tree planting, establishing and improving contour strip-cropping, constructing dams, developing waterways, farm protection and wildlife conservation practices.

Adjustment and cost-share payments made to farmers under Cropland Conversion Program are not "income" payments, but rather are designed to provide limited income in shifting cropland alternate income-producing uses.

Cost of installing such facilities as boat docks, bath houses, picnic tables, and similar items needed in the development of recreation projects are included under the program and must be borne by the farmer using his own financial resources.

Farmers who have agreed to take part in the program will receive about $4.4 million in adjustment payments and $2.4 million in cost-sharing payments. Total expenditure under the test program will be about $6.8 million.

In Michigan, a total of farms were approved for assistance under the recreation phase of the Cropland Conversion Program according to Shumway.

Following is a list of these farms along with the type of recreation project to which conversion is being made:

Calhoun county—Bernard Marshall, campsite, water sports, fishing, athletic area.

Genesee county—Robert Sackett, flushing, hunting, picnicking, swimming, boating, picnicking, skiing, and similar year-around outdoor activities.

Farmers who agreed to take part in the program signed conversion agreements for periods of either 5 or 10 years, depending upon the type of cropland being converted and the type of project to which conversion was being made. Projects aimed at converting cropland to long-time enterprises such as forests or recreation areas for 10-year period. Conversions to grass and to wildlife cover and food plots are for 5 years.

Farmers whose projects were approved under the program were eligible to receive several kinds of Final reports show that more than 2,800 farmers in 128 counties in 37 states signed agreements to convert more than 129,000 acres of cropland to other uses under the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Cropland Conversion Program, according to Carl Shumway, chairman, Michigan Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation State Committee.

Mechanics Course Starts Next Tuesday

Alan Conklin, program director for the Chelsea Recreation Commission, announced yesterday that the first meeting of the auto mechanics course, sponsored by the Commission in its program of adult education, will be held Tuesday, Jan. 28, at 7 p.m., in the Junior High school gymnasium. All who are registered will be asked to pay the $8 registration fee at this first session. A total of 37 had indicated they wished to take this course, Conklin said.

Instructor for the course is Matt Villemure.

Beginning Jan. 30, the auto mechanics classes will be held at the Chelsea High school Industrial arts buildings. Sessions are scheduled for two hours each Thursday, 7:30-9:30 p.m.

A sketching class, with Jack Cull as instructor, will begin Wednesday, Jan. 29, in the high school art room; all sessions to take place Wednesdays from 7:30 until 9:30 p.m.

Early this week seven persons had already signed up for this class. Fee for the class, including materials, is $8 for adults and $5 for high school students.

The beginning knitting class, announced last week, has proved popular beyond all expectations. The instructor will be Mrs. Ronald Lentz of Ann Arbor, formerly of Chelsea. Conklin said he was accepting reservations for the class on a "first come-first served" basis and indications early this week seemed to point to more than enough registrants for one class.

The beginning knitting class, to be held Thursday evenings from 7:30 until 9:30 in the high school home economics room, will begin Thursday, Jan. 30. This is a 10-week course and registration fees are $8 for adults and $5 for high school students.

Those interested in registering for either the art class or the knitting class may enroll by payment of the fees to Recreation Director Alan Conklin at the Junior High school from 9 until 11:30 a.m. and from 1 until 4 p.m., until Friday, Jan. 24, tomorrow.

Although a date has not yet been set, the next roundtable meeting is scheduled to be held in Chelsea, it was announced.

EDUCATION BILL

President Johnson signed legislation setting up a $1.2 billion program to help colleges build classrooms, laboratories and libraries. The measure authorized $65 million in grants and $800 million in low-interest loans over three years. President Johnson called it the most significant education bill in history.

FEWER LIMOUSINES

As a part of President Johnson's economy drive there will be fewer chauffeured limousines and other "status" cars used by federal officials. Limousines and heavy sedans created by federal agencies in Washington will be reduced from 131,200. Worldwide, the number of luxury vehicles for U.S. officials will be cut from 401 to 136.

NATIONAL OUTLOOK

By GEORGE HAGEDORN

President Johnson Endorses the Puritan Ethic

the most heartening aspect of State of the Union Message is rejection of the philosophy of government spending and deficits should be used actively to stimulate the economy, his words, and his actions in spending proposals, indicating the President is not buying this approach.

is reassuring to learn this, willing to admit it or not, this amounts to saying that the benefit to the economy will come not from the tax cut itself but from the resulting deficit.

We have received similar advice from abroad. The economists of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, an international body of which the United States is a member, have urged us to pursue a more "expansionary" fiscal policy. By this they mean, simply, larger deficits.

The President's heroic efforts to reduce the spending total and the deficit fly directly in the face of this kind of economic thinking. He would be to undo with one hand what we were doing with the other since the alleged purpose of the tax cut is to expand aggregate demand. Whether they are commitment is not enough. We could drift into a period of rising Appalachia, etc. Apparently the theory that this would be good for the economy. Although there is no reason to doubt the President's desire to achieve economic success in the war on poverty and unemployment will depend chiefly on the growth and vigor of our private enterprise economy.

President Johnson, being a realistic man, must surely recognize this. A responsible government fiscal policy is an essential element in an economic climate which would encourage business growth.

No one will want to enlist in the defense of poverty and unemployment, but there are sure to be differences of opinion on how best to conduct the war against them. The President's Message proposes a mixed-bag of government welfare measures, work projects for unemployed youth, a domestic peace corps, an expanded food stamp program, road-building in SQUEEZE ON SHIPPING

A tighter squeeze on Castro is expected next year if foreign shipping firms promise to end all trade with Cuba as contracts expire.

Foreign ships made 911 calls in Cuba in the first 11 months of 1963, while the same period in 1962 showed only 346 such calls made.
