★ Coin of the Realm in Short Supply . . .

The coin shortage continues with us and, in view of its basic causes, is likely to get worse rather than better. It will surely call for some radical revision of our system of subsidiary coinage — there is no easy way out. But the public psychology produced by the mere contemplation of such measures is likely to make the shortage even more severe.

The underlying problem is that silver production is insufficient to meet the growing demand for silver in industry. The difference is made up from the U. S. Treasury hoard accumulated during the years when the Treasury was buying silver and issuing silver certificates against it.

Vicious Circle

But this same hoard is now the source which the Treasury uses to make its dimes, quarters and half dollars. They are working day and night to relieve the coin shortage and the hoard can't last forever. Estimates vary, but it seems more and more likely that it will be all gone in two or three years.

When that happens the market price of silver will rise. It wouldn't have to rise much before it became worthwhile to melt silver coins down. Thus the more coins we make the closer we get to exhaustion of government silver stocks and the more incentive people have to keep silver coins in the bureau drawer rather than in circulation.

The Costly Quarter

More than one-quarter of Michigan's 8 million population are children of elementary and high school age this fall, according to Superintendent of Public Instruction Lynn M. Bartlett.

With about 2,275,000 students

Bartlett notes that the share of school costs paid from local taxes is on the rise. Last year local districts paid 55.4 percent of their costs as compared with 48.5 percent in 1950-51.

Die Is Cast

Wisdom of the choice for the No. 2 spot on the Republican state ticket will not be known until after Nov. 3, but there was no decline with the end of the "War Baby" influx.

The social crises of the past year have presented grave and challenging problems to our schools," he said. "The coming year promises even more."

Changing social patterns, the national struggle over civil rights, and rapid shifts in job opportunities all affect the school situation.

This year's public school enrollment of 1,915,000 was an increase of 60,000 or 3.7 percent over the Fall 1963 roster, Bartlett noted.

Officially, Romney made no personal choice known at the GOP state convention contest between the two men. Unofficially, however, his aides made it apparent he preferred Milliken.

Leakage of his preference occurred only after the September primary when Romney felt his strong showing indicated he did not need the balance of philosophy which Green would have provided to the ticket.

Officially, Romney made no personal choice known at the GOP state convention contest between the two men. Unofficially, however, his aides made it apparent he preferred Milliken.

Public colleges and universities alone saw registrations soar to near 128,000. This was 9.5 percent higher than enrollments last year. Private colleges took in about 6,700 more students, with total enrollment of about 45,000.

The end result of this and future years' increases in student numbers lies largely in the taxpayer's pocketbook.

Michigan elementary and secondary public schools this year are employing 2,700 more teachers than last year at salaries averaging $200 more than in 1963.

Taxpayers also are paying for 3,200 more classrooms, largely through bond issues which are up 20.9 percent from the 1962-63 school year.

State aid for education is up almost $30 million this year, but wisdom." That's getting too high up on the ladder, Mister Editor, for me. For instant I always drive around till I find a parking meter with some time left on it. I know its wisdom, but is it moral? It looks to me like my preacher could stick to the Bible and leave the dictionary out of it. I aim to put this item on the agenda at the country store Saturday night.

Clem Weiser, that finished the 8th grade and is our outstanding scholastic can probably throw some light on the matter.

I'm 50 years old with plenty to spare and I'm trying ever day to be worth my salt. I got crab grass chickens that ain't laying, milk cows that was behind in production, notes at the bank, arthritis in big toe, but I ain't shore about this filosphy salt.

Gittin' over to matters I can handle a little better, I see where one of them Washington column writers says Goldwater didn't decide to run for President a year ago until his old lady give the go-ahead signal. I wouldn't doubt it none. I been married a long time and I've found it's mighty hard to git around a woman. And this is special true if she's double parking. Incidental, the papers this week was so full of politics they was beginning to look like the Congressional Record. Ed Doolittle, that claims nothing but Republicans will git by St. Peter, is telling around the community he found a hen egg in his barn with BG on it fer Burry Goldwater. But I recollect back in 1948 Ed found a egg with TD on it fer Tom Dewey, so I don't put no faith in Ed's hon.

Personal, Mister Editor, my hens has about quit laying. They slowed up in July when the Rep. publican convention started, quite when the Democrats gathered. I reckon they was too worried about the future of the country to set still.

From the best I could git out of Eds dictionary, filosphy is, "moral

THE CHELSEA STANDARD, CHELSEA, MICHIGAN

Personal Notes

Miss Dorothea Pielemeyer was honored at a family party Sunday evening in observance of her birthday.

Among those from the Chelsea area who attended an open house reception Sunday for Mr. and Mrs. Albert Norman, parents of Mrs. Stanley Dyer, Sr., were Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Paul, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Schneider and Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Luck. The open house was held at the home of the Normans' son, Ernest and family, at Lake LeAnn, near Somerset Center. The couple's 50th wedding anniversary occurred in April, but the reception was planned for this later date for the family's convenience.

Girl Scouts Need More Adult Leaders

Mrs. Wilber Worden is again serving as chairman of the Chelsea Girl Scout Neighborhood Association which held its first meeting of the current season Monday evening at the Chelsea Junior High school home economics room. Mrs. Paul Mann is secretary.

Stressed at the meeting was the fact that there is an urgent need for troop sponsors, troop leaders and organizers. Also needed are meeting places for the troops.

Noted particularly was the information that 27 Brownies of Troop 88 and 26 Brownies of Troop 87 are without leaders.

Troop 247, with 11 Brownies enrolled, is led by Mrs. William L. White and Mrs. Duane Crouch while Brownie Troop 146, with 14 girls, is led by Mrs. Vern Hiltz and Mrs. Sylvester Parker.

Other groups and their leaders were listed as follows:

Junior Troop 82, Mrs. Robert Jacobs, leader, with 15 girls.

Junior Troop 47, Mrs. Carmel Slocum and Mrs. Melvin Leach, leaders; 24 girls enrolled.

Junior Troop 84, Donna Sherman and Mrs. Ralph Frisch, leaders; 20 girls.

Cadette Troop 88, Mrs. Louis DeLoy and Mrs. E. J. Sutter, leaders; 14 girls.

Cadettes, Mrs. Warren Eisenbeiser, advisor, 25 girls.

Senior Girl Scouts, advisors, Mrs. Wilber Worden and Mrs. Leslie Eisenbeiser, 20 girls.

During the business session it was announced that Mrs. E. J. Sutter will be the District III delegate to the Regional Girl Scout Conference in Chicago, Nov. 11-13, and that Mrs. Louis DeLoy and Donna Sherman also will attend.

Mrs. Carmel Slocum and Mrs. Melvin Leach were elected delegates to the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council for three years and Mrs. Sutter and Mrs. Robert Jacobs were named alternates.

It was announced that Girl Scout calendars will be sold beginning next week and continuing until Oct. 21.

Also announced were standard first aid and advanced first aid courses which are now being offered for Girl Scout leaders to be held in Civil Defense headquarters in the Municipal Building. Donna Sherman is in charge of registrations.

It was mentioned that the courses will be repeated after the first of the year for those who cannot take them at this time.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Leslie Eisenbeiser.

HOME DESTROYED: This was the scene at the rear of the Dorf and Edson Whitaker farm home Saturday afternoon after firemen had succeeded in extinguishing a blaze which started from electric wiring.

Wiring from the house to a tool shed was red hot and had burned into the partitions when it was discovered shortly after noon. The arrow at the left end of the porch section shows where the wiring under the outside of the eaves had burned through the aluminum siding. Before the

ON TV VIOLENCE
Senator Thomas J. Dodd (D., Conn.) has said that prime television time is permeated with programs featuring excessive crime, violence and debased moral standards. In a statement prepared yesterday, he said a study of current programs had been made to assess whether network officials in 1961 and 1962 had actually occurred.

Nearly 200,000 permits are being offered for antlerless deer hunting in these 67 areas during Michigan's November firearm season. Highlighting this year's any-deer program, which is expected to produce a fall harvest of 66,400 surplus antlerless animals, is the addition of twelve areas in the southern third of the state where whitetails have caused greatest damage to farm crops and private nursery stock. Before applying for permits in these areas and Areas 23 of the northern Lower Peninsula, sportsmen should make sure they will have places to hunt. These areas consist largely of privately-owned lands. Those applying for areas 64-67 are reminded that Livingston country is closed to Sunday hunting. Permit applications are now available with the purchase of firearms and archery license at local dealers and the Department's Publications Room in Lansing. They must be postmarked by Oct. 9 for return mailing to the Department. Later that month, a machine drawing will be held to select successful applicants for areas where entries outnumber hunter quotas.

IN THE OPEN

By Lee Smits

When an outdoor writer approaches the prime of life is saddened by a backward look to the "good old days," what about an old-timer who recalls the last of pine logging? Who knew a Michigan man with northern counties that had never been penetrated by automobile?

Lakes and trout water that were visited only by bold spirits prepared to buck-nightmare roads in a lumber wagon, back-pack camp a long day's journey from a grocery? A Michigan where the farmer insisted that the strange hunter come in and sit himself down for a meal of vittles?

The question comes sharply to mind, reading a nostalgic column in the publication of Michigan United Conservation Club, Michigan Out-Of-Doors. Pete Baker compares conditions as they now are with what he remembers, in a piece about a family outing at a Lake Michigan port.

Pete reports perch fishing close to zero. Polluted water swarming with alewives, a non-edible alien. Wooded hills cleared of timber for ski runs, what depressed Pete Baker most was the absence of seagulls, which had given living beauty to the big lake and the beaches in his boyhood. (Last summer there was a heavy die-off of gulls along the southern shores of Lake Michigan caused by incibear were a rarity when they were legally killed at any time, by any means. Now there is concern for the preservation of the black bear in Michigan and a fair chance that there will be more bear in Michigan in decades to come than there are now.

Only yesterday, on a short drive through farming country roads to Detroit, I sighted four covies of young pheasants, in territory that wasn't particularly good for pheasants. There were no pheasants in Michigan when I was a kid. Quail, yes, and there is a good possibility that quail will be hunted in Michigan farmlands within a few years. Cottontails and squirrels were abundant in places, as they still are, where there is suitable habitat.

Ducks? Ah, well, the duck producing ponds, sloughs, marshlands of Michigan—an North America—have been tragically reduced since World War I, and probably there never again will be the kind of duck shooting enjoyed by a generation that saw the advent of smokeless powder and the pump gun.

There are no more simple-minded brook trout waiting to grab anything that looks like food. Few small mouths left in rivers. Panfish are no longer taken by the bushel by hook-and-line fishermen and peddled from door to door. Ruffed grouse that flushed only to light in the nearest tree and sit there, waiting patiently to be potted, are a thing of the past.

However, hoping that my friend Pete Baker won't think I'm smug, I give him this message: The right now days in outdoor Michigan are the best we've ever had; all things considered. We lost the vast areas of pine, but had the pine remained, our game cover would be much less than it is now.

Grayling, passenger pigeon are gone—yet there will be legal elk hunting in Michigan this year.

Hunting and fishing pressure has greatly increased, of course, and there is a lot to be said about Michigan outdoors. Also a lot to enjoy.

Pete Baker says, "Things have changed."

They sure have, and a lot of the changes are great improvements over the "good old days."

Mr. Smits' column is presented through the courtesy of the Michigan Consolidated Gas Company. Mr. Smits will be pleased to answer any questions sent in.

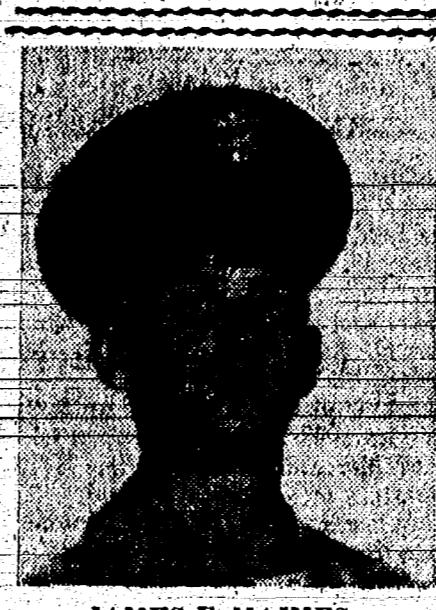

Michigan 4-H clubs boast over 40 project areas in home economics, agriculture and related areas for their 74,500 members. Join during National 4-H Club Week, Sept. 26 through Oct. 3.
