Music Man' Scores Big Hit With Audience

Three Performances Given Before Nearly Full, Enthusiastic House

After Chelsea High school's Saturday night performance of "The Music Man," every person involved in the production was gratified. A small reception to the Wednesday matinee, an inferior performance Friday night, and consequently a disappointed cast—were all overridden by the remarkable comeback of the Saturday night performance.

Audiences expressed their appreciation for the talent, costumes, and set, by giving a standing ovation for each of the three performances.

Members attributed part of the success to the leadership of Miss Ann L'Roy and student director Pam Wilson, who co-ordinated the students working together in the production.

Behind the stage after the Saturday night performance was a delighted cast member stating Miss L'Roy "We couldn't have it without you." These sentiments were also reflected by the production of roses to the director on stage that night. Steve Leach, lead male in "The Music Man," gave her the roses while muttering, "This is to say what I can't say in words."

Miss L'Roy, by her talent and vocal dedication, has earned the admiration of every student in the school production crew.

At the cast party after the Saturday night performance, student presented Miss L'Roy a battery-operated megaphone, a jack, a director's beret and a scrapbook about the production, signed by each student.

Pam Wilson, student director, gave a necklace with the engraving, "Thanks, Pam—Cast of 'The Music Man,' 1969."

Each of the leads in the musical had an outstanding job; audiences loved Steve Leach, as Professor Harold Hill, made up for lack of outstanding singing ability with his fine acting. Chris Ober, playing Marian Paroo, the character was taken to heart for her singing ability and delightful portrayal of the reserved young girl.

Loss Basketball Journey Underway

Winners of the first games of the annual class basketball tournament sponsored yesterday by the city club will meet Friday night for the championship.

Coached by members of their own class, the seniors were slated to challenge the sophomores last night and the freshmen challenged the juniors.

Chelsea High school students will be able to celebrate or console themselves at a dance following the game.

Rod & Gun Club Elects Officers For Coming Year

The annual election of officers for the Chelsea Rod & Gun Club was held Tuesday, March 11 at the Pineview clubhouse.

Chosen for the various positions were Fred Klink, president; Jerry Herick, first vice-president; Bill Robertson, second vice-president; Carl Benjamin, treasurer; Douglas Warren, secretary.

Elected to the Board of Directors were Elwood Keezer, Ron Sattorhwaite John Miller and Bill White.

District Court Building Plans Nearly Ready

Architect Linden C. Pettys said advertisement for bids for remodeling and renovating the future District Court building in Chelsea will begin directly after he has completed his working drawings of exact specifications for changes in the former Chelsea State Bank building slated for the end of next week.

Plans now include a two-to-three-week bidding period, according to the Ann Arbor architect, with construction to begin within a week or two following the close of bidding and awarding of the contract.

The remodeling will be largely confined to the first floor of the 1901-vintage building and the entire building will be updated.

The contract has a fixed limit which Pettys declines to name, and companies bidding above that figure will be unsuitable for receipt of the contract. The fixed limit was added to the architect's contract by the property committee of the board of supervisors as a safeguard.

Plums now include a two-to-three-week bidding period, according to the Ann Arbor architect, with construction to begin within a week or two following the close of bidding and awarding of the contract.

The barber-shop ballading of Mike Bassett, Randy Seitz, Keith Pfeifle and Tim Oetring, added a new and entertaining angle to the musical production.

Laurie Lancaster, Judy Sanderson, Doreen Kuhl, and Chris Barnes, in portrayals of River City ladies, were also delightful.

The musical represented much ambition in many areas since costumes, props and set design were difficult because of the nature of the play.

The GHS performances of "The Music Man" spoke well of the director, student director, cast members and production crews.

Officers Shift Positions Since Being Elected

President Weber Resigns To Accept Newly-Created Administrator Post

Shifts in village officers since the March 10 election have given Chelsea a new president, two new trustees and a newly-created position, Village Administrator, filled by Frederick Weber.

Hal Pennington, a village trustee for a two-year term, resigned from his trustee position to accept the presidential position at Thursday night's special council meeting.

The presidential spot had been vacated by newly-elected Frederick Weber, who resigned to accept the new position of administrator.

Weber, who had resigned from an unexpired trustee position to accept the Republican candidacy for president prior to the election. However, state law prohibits a candidate's withdrawal from the election after his name has been placed on the ballot.

Village officials have long wanted to create the new position, which will co-ordinate activities of village departments and the administrator will be a full-time, salaried position. The public works position was recently vacated by the death of Parker Brown, and the

Grass Fires Become Real Threat to All

No Permits Are Being Issued for Outside Fires Because of Dryness

Fire swept through 1,300 acres of state land and private property in Putnam and Unadilla townships in Livingston county Monday afternoon and evening, destroying wooded land, several pine plantations, barns and sheds.

Firefighters from Chelsea, six other departments and the Department of Natural Resources fought for more than six hours before bringing it under control.

The gigantic blaze was believed to have begun as a grass fire approximately two miles east and two miles south of Gregory and was out of control by the time firefighters arrived. Vegetation, buildings, swampland and abandoned gas trucks in the path of the fire were devoured as Department of Natural Resources plows attempted to halt it by plowing around the burning area and power wagons and pumps shot water into the area.

At the same time, two other fires in the conservation district, both over 1,000 acres, kept firemen hopping. Conservation equipment is being brought to this district from the Upper Peninsula and northern Michigan because of the extremely hazardous burning conditions, and two planes patrol the district for fires.

Two hours before the Livingston county fire, Chelsea firemen were called to the home of Norman Bott, 10526 Boyce Rd. The house was severely damaged by fire believed to have come from a rubbish barrel and spread to bales of hay around the house. The kitchen and a bedroom were considerably damaged.

Fire Chief Jim Gaken said that burning permits are still being withheld until precipitation reduces fire hazards somewhat. This means that all fires except domestic ones are illegal now.

A small amount of rain Wednesday morning did nothing to relieve the fire danger caused by extremely dry conditions, according to Fire Chief Jim Gaken. "With a little sun and wind that will be gone," he added that the rain could even increase the incidence of fires by causing people to become more careless in their burning.

Firemen were called out three times Saturday to put out fires. At 1:43 p.m., grass was ignited by burning rubbish at the home of Garland DeYoe, 15001 Old US-12 west.

Grass caught fire from burning rubbish at 4:30 p.m. at the home of Leon Koen, 14288 Old US-12 east. Less than two hours later a car crashed through a guard rail on I-94 near the railroad overpass and set grass on fire.

Sunday was comparatively peaceful for firemen, who put out one fire at the home of Gerald Curtis, 8661 Rentz Rd. The fire began at approximately 2 p.m. and was caused by burning rubbish.

Monday, Chelsea firemen were called out a total of seven times with calls coming as close together

Junior High Bands Earn High Ratings

Branch Junior High seventh and eighth grade bands received first and second division ratings at the District 12 Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association Junior High Band Festival Saturday.

The seventh grade band, directed by Keith Lawson, received a first division rating from each of the three judges for their concert performance at Willow Run High school.

Judges were Don Lupp, Henry Ford Junior College; Leonard Falcone, Michigan State University; and Joseph Lubata, Wayne State University.

The band received a second division rating in their first time through sight reading. Judging sight reading was Maurice Riley, Eastern Michigan University.

The band received an over-all rating of first division. One judge commented "I heard your group last week and now your seventh grade group—you have a fine program going—keep it up. You certainly generate a lot of interest in your program."

Suggestions for improvement included need for baritone and bass added to the seventh grade band. Judges said that intonation (playing in tune) was one of the group's main problems.

The eighth grade band received ratings of two all the way, including a final rating of two. Stuart Glazer was directing.

Parents of band students have been chaperoning each of the band trips, and were thanked by the music department for their interest with calls coming as close together

Coupon Drive for Kidney Machine Gains Momentum

The Chelsea Jaycee Auxiliary's Operation Purchase project, to "Save Coupons to Save Lives" is gathering momentum. The housewives of Chelsea and the surrounding area have contributed 10,500 Betty Crocker Coupons to date.

Watten Newton, from the Michigan Kidney Foundation, said they hope to reach their goal of 600,000 coupons by May 10, when the Jaycee State convention will be held in Lansing.

The coupons will still be collected until July, 1970, with hopes of obtaining another 600,000 for a second kidney machine. The St. Claire Shores Jaycee Auxiliary were given 55,000 Betty Crocker coupons by March 1 and many thousands of coupons have been sent to the Kidney Foundation Headquarters in Ann Arbor.

The girls made their instruments from aluminum pie plates, paper plates, coffee cans and other assorted objects. Washington Report
 by Congressman
MARVIN L. ESCH

One of the first major pieces of legislation which the Congress will consider this year will be the Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969. I introduced this legislation, incorporating President Nixon's recommendations, and it is receiving widespread support and attention.

The General Labor Subcommittee of the Education and Labor Committee, of which I am a member, has begun extensive hearings on my bill. Following an inspection of two Pennsylvania coal mines, we heard testimony from expert witnesses in support of the bill. It seems probable that this bill will be cleared by the committee during the next month and that it will receive the strong support of the Congress.

The coal mining industry has contributed greatly to the industrial might and economic well-being of our nation. But progress in the maintenance of the health and safety of the industry's greatest resource—the miner—has unfortunately lagged far behind the growth of the industry. Too long the sad toll of human lives has convinced the world of a safe and healthful working environment.

My bill, H.R. 7070, provides a multi-faceted attack upon the inseparable issues of mine safety conditions and occupationally-caused disease. It is designed to overcome the deficiencies of the Federal Coal Mine Safety Act of 1952 and to make other improvements long overdue. The Act would apply to all underground and surface coal mines, the products of which enter commerce, or the operations of which effect commerce; it would apply to the operators of such mines and the coal mine workers, and would require that both management and labor comply with the standards prescribed.

My bill would:

- 1) Modernize a wide range of mandatory health and safety standards, including new provisions for the control of dust, electrical equipment, roof support, ventilation, illumination, fire protection, and other operating practices in underground and surface coal mines engaged in commerce.
- 2) Authorize the Secretary of the Interior to develop and promulgate any additional or revised standards which he deems necessary for the health and safety of the miners.

3) Recruit and carefully train a highly motivated corps of coal mine inspectors to investigate the coal mines, and to enforce impartially and vigorously the broad new mandatory standards.

4) Substantially increase, by direct action, grants and contracts, the necessary research, training, and education for the prevention and control of occupational diseases; the improvement of State workers' compensation systems, and the reduction of mine accidents.

The need for legislative action in the fields of coal mine health and safety is urgent. The ravages of disability and death are daily penalties paid for inaction.

MSU Television Station 10th Anniversary Observed in March

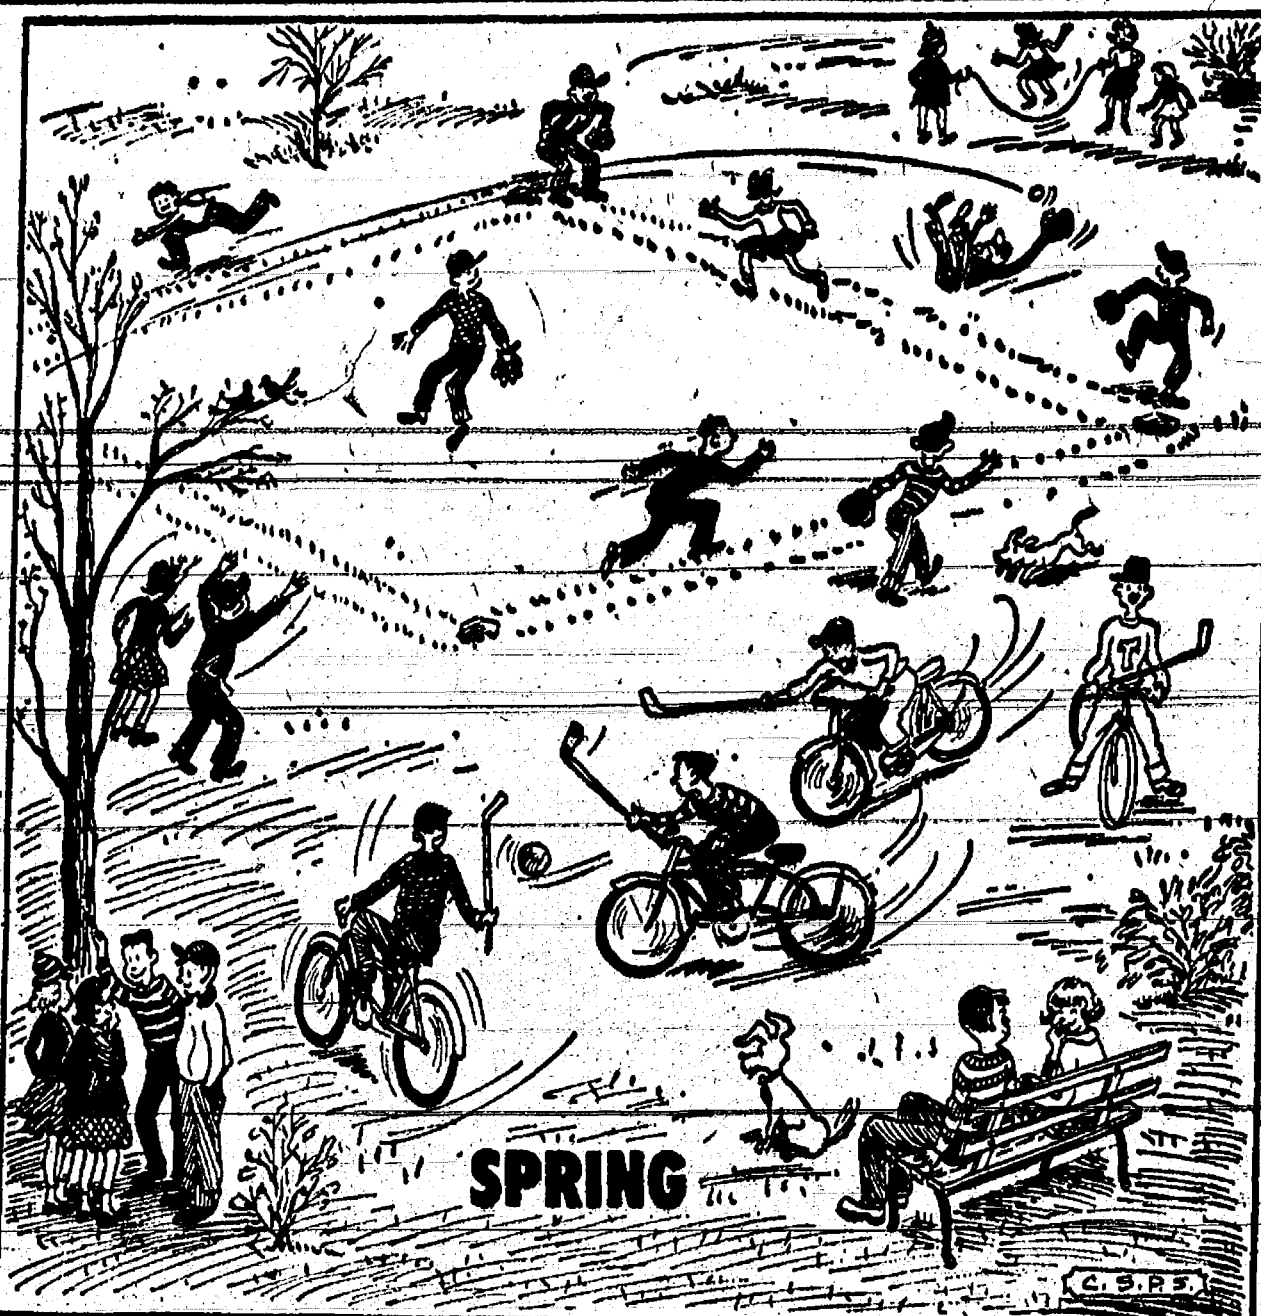

East Lansing—The 10th anniversary of WMSB (Channel 10) Michigan State University television station, will be celebrated this month, according to WMSB Station Manager Robert Page.

On March 15, 1953, the television station began broadcasting services on Channel 10 and initiated the shared-time operation of the channel with WILX-TV.

Beginning its 11th year of service, Mid-Michigan residents, WMSB looks back on 10 years of rapid change in educational television (ETV).

With the number of ETV stations across the United States expanding to more than 180, ETV has proven itself to be an established service to the people of this country, as exemplified by a vote of confidence from the U. S. Congress, which created the Corporation of Public Broadcasting through the Public Broadcasting Act of 1967.

Doctor Shortage

A Michigan State University economist says that even immediate expansion of all Michigan medical schools wouldn't provide enough doctors by 1980 to keep pace with the state's present inadequate number of physicians.

Dr. David I. Verway, a research associate at MSU, reports in the current issue of the "Economic Record" that Michigan has 4.08 percent of the nation's personal income, and 4.35 percent of the population, but only 4.15 percent of the physicians in private practice.

Michigan specialists account for only 3.88 percent of the national total, he added.

Dr. Verway cited several factors which have contributed to the doctor shortage in the state, including:

Michigan, with a higher birth rate and a greater share of its population in the younger age groups than the national average, has an above average need for services to treat diseases, particularly to children.

City dwellers, who utilize medical services more than rural residents, comprise a greater proportion of the state's population than are found in many other states.

In order to maintain the present relationship of doctors to population, Dr. Verway estimated the state will need 7,000 additional physicians by 1980.

Even immediate expansion of all of Michigan's medical schools would not produce that number of doctors by then, he said, adding that the state relies heavily on foreign manpower for its supply of physicians.

"It has been estimated that 14.3 percent of all Michigan medical doctors graduate from foreign medical schools," he said.

Poor Chance

Riot-control legislation much weaker than that vetoed by former Gov. George W. Romney last year was passed by the state Senate.

The measure would authorize local officials to declare a state of emergency when a riot appears imminent and the Governor is out of the state.

It now goes to the House, where Democratic leaders have vowed to kill it. The Democrats hold a 57-53 edge in the lower chamber.

Senate passage came after Gov. William G. Milliken lifted his objection to the bill. But the Governor had insisted on the provision giving him complete authority over riot prevention when he's in Michigan.

False Alarm

False alarm, that's what a state Supreme Court justice says State Natural Resources Director Ralph A. MacMullan sounded recently about the celebrated Martiny Lakos decision.

Justice Eugene F. Black of Port Huron says that contrary to MacMullan's statements, the court did not close 95 percent of Michigan's salmon and trout streams to public fishing.

"Martiny decided no new public right, and no new private right in any stream," said Black, who authored the opinion that triggered the fuss.

Concern stemmed from the court's definition of a navigable stream open to public fishing in a case involving state efforts to manage the water level of a lake created by the Martiny Lake Dam in Mecosta County.

MacMullan had said the ruling threw out the old criteria that a navigable stream was any body of water that could float logs.

He called for and got legislation to broaden the State and House to broaden the definition.

Black said if MacMullan was right, then "all of the participating justices, except for the dissenter, should be impeached as an immediate first order of legislative business . . . such is my complete confidence in the fact that you are dead wrong."

MacMullan was "grateful" Black issued his statement and conceded his fears were unfounded.

"Justice Black has cleared the air and at the same time reassured the hundreds of thousands of fishermen, boaters and other recreationists who enjoy the use of our inland waterways," MacMullan said.

SULLIVAN SCHOOL

Among the members of Zion Lutheran church who attended the 12th anniversary of the change over from "Ladies Aid" to "Women of the Church" were Mrs. R. W. Hodge, Mrs. Karl Geiger and daughter, Mrs. Mary Weber. The meeting was Monday evening, and the program was entitled, "New Forms of Mission."

Philosophy of Conservatism

To Be Studied on TV Program

East Lansing—"NET Journal" examines the philosophy of conservatism on "Conservative Profile," Friday, March 28, at 7 p.m. on WMSB (Channel 10) Michigan State University television. Conservatives generally prefer to effect social change through individual or local initiative, rather than through government action. NET visits one of America's most conservative cities—Indianapolis, Ind., and surveys the Voluntary Advisor Corps, a program for the hard-core unemployed which is backed by local business. In Scottsdale, Ariz., the program studies successful fire fighting for profit. The political aspects of the conservative philosophy are examined in the state of New York, where recent senatorial elections saw the party receive more than one million votes. The program also features interviews with William Buckley, Milton Friedman, Richard Cordell, Richard Lugar and Royce Free. Other WMSB highlights include: "Critique" reviews the New York Shakespeare Festival's first production this season, "Hui! Hui!" Sunday, March 23, at 3 p.m. Three scenes from the play are enacted by Barry Primus, David Congdon, Sharon Laughlin and Margaret Linn. Joseph Papp, director of the New York Shakespeare Festival, and Anne Burr, author of the play, are interviewed on the program. "Hui! Hui!" is also evaluated by a panel of prominent critics. "Recital Hall" presents three members of the MSU music department, Sunday, March 23, at 6 p.m. Pianist Joseph Evans, cellist Louis Potter and violinist Romeo Tata perform the Trio in C Minor, Op. 1, No. 3, by Ludwig van Beethoven. "DIALOGUE—" "NET Journal" studies the potentially explosive conflict between blacks and Jews on "Some of Our Best Friends," Sunday, March 23, at 12:30 p.m. NET organized an 11-hour session, an experiment in group dynamics on the floor of a Washington, D.C., television studio, involving moderates and radicals, organizational representatives and private citizens from both the Jewish and black communities, who explored their own feelings and beliefs concerning anti-Semitism and the black community. The moderators were a black and a white psychologist, P. Bertrand Phillips and Charles N. Seashore. The program, a two-hour excerpt from the session, attempts to use television as a medium through which dissident groups can commonly approach their problems, and probes the extent to which black anti-Semitism and Jewish racism are real or media-made issues. "TRAGIC DRAMA—" "NET Playhouse" offers Santa Rama Ray's dramatization of E. M. Forster's classic novel, "A Passage to India," Sunday, March 23, at 11:30 p.m. The setting is India of the 1920's with the British Empire controlling the country. Strict class lines are drawn between Indians and Englishmen. When two English ladies befriend a young Indian doctor, the unseen forces of the Establishment—prejudice, hate and bigotry—move to thwart the in-

The little five-year-old boy came home after playing with several of his friends. Speaking of one of his little playmates, he told his father that his small friend had used a bad word. "What did he say, son?" asked his father. The little boy replied: "He said nigger." You see, the small boy has been taught to say "nigger" and not "nigger." He had been taught that he should respect his fellowmen. Many times he had been corrected when he mispronounced the word. He had come to know that there was a proper way of pronouncing the word and a slurring method. Couldn't we all use a little more of what the little boy had? Respect, I mean. Wouldn't it be a better world if the white man would treat the colored man with more respect? And wouldn't our relationship be so much better if the colored man would treat the white man with that same respect? It doesn't cost anything to be nice, and it solves so many problems. There is so much hatred, and ugliness, and disrespect in our world that there just isn't room for any more. And certainly we don't need any more. We don't trust each other. We try to cheat each other. We show contempt for each other. It has become so very expensive to go this route. Saying "nigger" doesn't require any extra effort, just a little respect. And "whiskey" coming from the lips of a colored person doesn't make them any bigger or better. Respect means we have to be respectable. All of us could learn from that. Instead of trying to place the blame on another race, we could begin by making ourselves a little more respectable. I'm speaking about all of us, all races. If we want another race to respect us, it means that we are going to have to be respectable. It means that we must make ourselves so worthy of respect that people cannot keep from respecting us. Where there is hatred, we must replace it with love. Where there is prejudice, we must replace it with justice. Where there is disrespect, we must replace it with respectability. Now accomplishing this is no easy job. But He can help us do it. And we will never be able to accomplish it without His help. Burning cities isn't going to make our country any better, neither is relegating any group of people to a second-class role. But He can make our country better if we will allow Him to make us better. It is certain that our country will never be any better unless we are. The story about the five-year-old is true. The boy's father was real proud of the boy, too. I know. You see, he's my son.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By LOUIS BURGHARDT

"Uncle Sam" has been joked about, insulted, praised and condemned. Friends and foes picture him as charitable, friendly and lovable, as well as unfriendly, stingy and stern. It is all imaginary of course. Did you ever wonder how it all started?
About 150 years ago, a government meat inspector named Sam Wilson, stamped meat he inspected with the initials U. S. When asked what the initials meant, some one jokingly said, "Uncle Sam." The imaginary character and his nickname was born. Whether it is legend or fact, we have had Uncle Sam ever since.
The pointed nose, tall, thin, bearded gent with his red, white and blue garb was cartooned in a Portland, Maine, newspaper in 1829 for the first time. Cartoonists and artists kept his image alive ever since. Let's hope the old guy stays in sight forever.

If we want another race to respect us, it means that we are going to have to be respectable. It means that we must make ourselves so worthy of respect that people cannot keep from respecting us. Where there is hatred, we must replace it with love. Where there is prejudice, we must replace it with justice. Where there is disrespect, we must replace it with respectability. Now accomplishing this is no easy job. But He can help us do it. And we will never be able to accomplish it without His help. Burning cities isn't going to make our country any better, neither is relegating any group of people to a second-class role. But He can make our country better if we will allow Him to make us better. It is certain that our country will never be any better unless we are. The story about the five-year-old is true. The boy's father was real proud of the boy, too. I know. You see, he's my son.

Mrs. Larry Chapman was chairman of the affair. Mary K. Slocum did a fine job as mistress of ceremonies.

Also, a burst of applause was aimed at the leaders who have contributed so generously of their time. Cookies added mouth-watering enjoyment to the evening.

The parents planning to attend the Girl Scout training program are encouraged to bring their other children. Several older Girl Scouts volunteered their services as baby-sitters. The program will take place at the Congregational church, Saturday, March 22 between 10:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m.

Toys and games will be available for the youngsters.

Mrs. Richard M. Nixon has accepted the position of Honorary President of Girl Scouts of the United States of America, largest girls' organization of its kind in the world.

St. Patrick's Day Is Observed at St. Louis School

Everyone at St. Louis School was Irish, or at least an honorary Irishman, Monday.

Honored guest at a St. Patrick's Day party was Mrs. Bill Robbins, a genuine Irish woman who came to the U. S. 24 years ago. She joined fathers, sisters, teachers and boys in a non-time celebration. Sister Annacleta prepared a special lunch with trimmings and decorations all in green. Fr. Louis Frangi, director, treated all the boys to pop. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Nelson gave Mrs. Robbins a pot of shamrocks, three-leaved plants symbolizing Christianity and the trinity to Irishmen.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Guinan brought over a cake decorated with St. Patrick's Day theme, and a St. Louis teacher, John O'Kazmierowski, was named honorary Irishman of the day.

Mrs. Robbins said that she also received her customary pot of shamrocks from her sister, Mrs. Mary Curley, a resident of Ireland who visited the area last year. She also remarked that it was a great day for the Irish.

Co-Op Nursery School Plans Open House Sunday Afternoon

Chelsea Co-Op Nursery will sponsor an open house Sunday afternoon in an effort to acquaint parents, children and curious Chelsea-Dexter area residents with the school.

Parents are encouraged to bring their children when they visit. Equipment and toys will be available for youngsters to entertain themselves with while their elders meet parents of children presently attending, ask questions of hostesses and acquaint themselves with the operation of the nursery.

The open house will be from 2 to 4 p.m. on the nursery premises, in the Florence Howlett Memorial building. This building is the former Beach school, located on Chelsea-Dexter Rd. The 50-year-old brick building was purchased by the nursery, after it had occupied a rented room in the Municipal Building for several years.

The nursery is hoping to fill up their three-year-old session that meets weekday mornings. The two four-year-old sessions are completely full. The school now has 42 children in all sessions, and has a maximum capacity of 47 to 50.

This year the nursery is supported entirely through tuitions paid by parents of children attending. The unpopular mandatory fund-raising activities formerly held annually were dropped this year amid cheers from the membership. In the future members will be able to decide by vote when fund-raising activities are necessary.

A new session for mothers who cannot assist the teacher, Mrs. Fred Meyer, has been added to the schedule in the afternoons. Mothers compensate for not assisting by paying higher tuition. Mothers of children in the other two sessions come in periodically to help run the program. Three-year-olds' mothers come in only once a month since only one assistant is necessary. However, mothers of children in the four-year-old assist program help twice a month, since three assistants are needed. A permanent assistant, Mrs. Cathryn Bradbury, helps with the afternoon non-assist sessions.

Mrs. Meyer explained that the value of nursery school for three-year-olds was the opportunity to form peer relationships, a need that develops at approximately three years of age. Nursery school provides the chance for the children to meet others their own age under supervision but in an atmosphere where they are free to interact.

Mrs. Meyer said that many parents of children enrolled at that age have noticed improvement in the child's social behavior. Certain health problems, such as hearing difficulties, have been first noticed at the nursery, and the child has benefited by early treatment.

Four-year-old children enrolled in nursery school learn how to observe and discriminate visually and orally. Through the reading readiness activities the children learn to detect differences in shape, color, sound and other sensory stimuli that will "boost" ease in reading later.

The children also learn to cooperate with one another and adults and broaden their creative activities.

All school sessions will be open for observation by the public the week of March 24 to 28.

A PEST probably looks something like this, according to one young student at Chelsea Co-Op Nursery. He is completing an easel painting of his conception of a typical pest to illustrate a story to be presented in class. Other activities during project time include painting, coloring, pasteling, and various science projects.

QUIET TIME during a Chelsea Co-Op Nursery session is a time for singing, stories and discussions. Here four-year-olds act out the lyrics of "I'm a Little Teapot" with raised "spouts" and hands on hips for "handles." Mrs. Fred Meyer, center back, serves as songleader here.

Ex-Justice Chandler Rogers Reminisces About Career

JUDGE CHANDLER ROGERS

Former Sylvan Township Justice of the Peace Chandler A. Rogers, retired Jan. 1 from his justiceship duties, has hardly retired from his habit of taking long, recreational walks every day.

Rogers estimates that he has walked four miles a day for eight years and three miles a day for 17 years, to total a stroll equal to three and one-half times around the earth.

Rogers takes his long walks in the vicinity of his home by Cavanaugh Lake every day. "Weather hardly ever prevents my walks," he commented, adding that he enjoys the lengthy strolls and rarely skips them.

The former justice also enjoys baseball and, naturally, is a Detroit Tiger fan. During baseball season he often watches the games on television.

The lower court reorganization which became effective Jan. 1 ended the justiceship of Rogers. He was elected in April, 1959 on the Sylvan Township Republican ticket and served for nine and one-half years in this capacity. During that time, he held night court sessions in Chelsea one night a week to hear village cases for the convenience of those who could not appear during the day. This was evidently a much-used convenience, since Rogers estimated that during his justiceship he missed fewer than five nights.

Rogers tallied 131 chances to enjoy his favorite function—performing weddings. Several additional ceremonies were by order of the Probate Court and were not included in this figure. As might be imagined, a few of the weddings were a bit bizarre. Rogers recalls one marriage that got off to a damp start in an Ann Arbor park. "I finished in the rain," Rogers said.

Another time a couple appeared during Night Court in Ann Arbor to be married. Rogers enlisted the aid of two policemen to act as official witnesses in the impromptu ceremony at the end of the court session. Ringing wedding bells was not his only function, however, as persons nabbed committing minor offenses testified. Rogers recalls his most troublesome case, a series of incidents that began when a woman received a ticket from a state trooper charging her with making an improper turn and nearly causing an accident with the trooper.

Accompanied by her German Shepherd she pleaded not guilty at arraignment. While the case was pending, the determined woman contacted State Police at Jackson and Lansing and the Attorney General's office.

A humorous postlude to the case occurred approximately six months after it was finalized. Rogers received a dollar from the woman "to buy a hankerchief to dry your tears for the next case." Rogers mailed back the hanky money. However, he met her again while substituting in Ann Arbor. She began to leave after spotting him, but was prevailed upon to stay. Her case concerned her trusty dog, who had bitten a gas station attendant.

In another case, Rogers contacted a Detroit man who had not paid a State Trooper-administered ticket for speeding on I-94 within a reasonable time. The unfortunate man replied that he did not pay because his driver's license, together with his car, had been swiped when a man held him up. The thief was eventually apprehended by the FBI.

Rogers said most state cases were handled by correspondence. In some instances persons would enclose a note referring to the courteous conduct by the State Trooper—in which case Rogers forwarded the report to the post to go on his record.

One man was impressed enough to send $10 for a State Police affiliated charity. However, the police could not accept the contribution and returned it.

Rogers relied on the honesty of out-of-state drivers charged with moving violations if the driver could not submit cash bond or bond card to cover the amount. If he pleaded guilty during arraignment, he was released on his promise to pay the fine and cost after arriving home. "In every case, these promises were kept," according to Rogers.

The retired justice actually had retired in 1951 from his position as secretary-treasurer and director of Federal Motor Truck Manufacturing Co., Detroit after 37 years employment with that firm.

Rogers is the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Rogers of Chelsea and graduate of Chelsea High school. He and his wife, Ethel, returned to his home town in 1951. He had left Chelsea after graduation to pursue a law degree, which he earned at Detroit College of Law.

Although Rogers' son lives in Wausau, Wis., and their daughter is in New York City, he and his wife have lived in Michigan their entire lives with the exception of eight months in New York City.

Letters to the Editor

'Music Man' people:
Congratulations to each and every one of you for the splendid success of "Music Man" you know those of us in your right's (Thursday) audience, 25 years work in public I have never witnessed better performance by a high group.

I was impressed first of all by the physical facilities of your gym. Next we were greeted by a very pleasant, friendly, handed a very well-organized, and seated for what to be a very delightful hours.

of the crew did an outstanding job: set design and construction, unusually good; publicity obviously good—nearly full lighting, very professional props costumes, and make-ups that along with those listed above "made" the evening.

I and the entire cast did an outstanding job. I hesitate to single out the students. How grateful I feel obligated to single out a couple namely, Chris Alber (Karen Leach (Zaneeta) Perry Blackwell (Tommy) that these three did a par-outstanding job. Miss Al a beautiful voice as well as tremendous stage poise, etc. Leach and Mr. Blackwell carried their parts very well. I feel a bit of a remiss if I did not mention Leach and Matt Merkel. Tremendous experience this these youngsters.

I do not say enough in your praise the director (Miss Dis) as well as, of course, assistant and also student How fortunate the boys of the Chelsea schools, as Superintendent Camd are the people of the Chelsea to have someone of their parents working with them.

Again congratulations to one in any way connected "Music Man" for an outstanding job! It is people like you should be getting the publicity instead of the students and who are currently making headlines. It is an evening last night that keeps me the possibilities in public education today.

Sincerely,
James A. Forner, F
Miller Elementary
Brighton.

Dear Editor,
This is to Mr. and Mrs. Sibley who wrote in to me about the teacher of one English classes at Chelsea school.

Are you so sure that this teacher flunked almost one-half of the students? May I ask if it from a reliable source? Maybe these students deserve to be flunked.

You say you visited this teacher's classroom and was amazed. How is a teacher to welcome a mother who sits in, in order to be with the teacher's teaching you expected to be served and cake? And by one of could you tell the marking was unfair?

I myself am a student teacher and all through my senior High years I hadn't been doing better than a C average. I know why. The teachers make us work hard enough to be your child has to work to earn the grade she deserves and just doesn't want to not only speaking for myself for a majority of the body that have this teacher were quite upset to read a teacher we like very much (if he thinks different) held down by an unpleasant mother. I don't think knows her daughter.

NO SWEAT
When bathroom temperature is considerably higher than water in your closet tank, "sweating" often results. One solution involves use of a special valve which permits warm water to mix with the cold before it enters the tank. Another is a special liner that forms insulation between the incoming cold water and the warmer china tank. You can also buy water closets with insulation already built into them.

Organic, voile and chintz are fabrics in the picture for warmer weather.

For And About Teenagers

THE WEEK'S LETTER:

"I have been reading your articles and I've been wondering if you could help me with my problem. I'm fourteen, and so is my boyfriend. He has a 'Best' friend to whom he pays twice as much attention as he does to me. I've been going with him two months and still he won't do anything unless his friend does. Should I give him up? I hope you won't tell me to, because I like him a lot."

OUR REPLY: It may be that you are a bit more "serious" about things than your boyfriend. At fourteen, you should not expect a boy to give up his best friend, or any of his friends, for that matter. You have no right to expect to occupy all of his time and attention. You should get things than your boyfriend. At you do not, it is possible your jealousy will cause you to do or say something that will leave you without any boyfriend at all.

If you have a teen-age problem you want to have discussed or an observation to make, address your letter to "For and About Teen-Agers," Community and Suburban Press Service, in care of this newspaper.

"Provide Habitat—Places Where Wildlife Live" is the theme for National Wildlife Week, 1969. March 16-22 launches a conservation effort to tell all Americans of the need to protect and provide natural areas for animal population.

More than half of America's wetland acreage has been lost by draining, dredging, filling, and pollution. Marshes and estuaries are vital and valuable wildlife areas. Other important natural areas are disappearing at an equally rapid rate. During National Wildlife Week, March 16-22, all Americans will be asked to "Provide Habitat—Places Where Wildlife Live."

Pollution, land-fill projects, and fast-growing suburbs are destroying irreplaceable natural areas for wildlife. During Wildlife Week, the National Wildlife Federation is stressing that to have wildlife we must "Provide Habitat—Places Where Wildlife Live."

When a young man and a young woman sit close together and talk in low voices, they may not touch on anything new but what they have to say is vitally important.

Farmers' Week Program Hits Agricultural Practices, Policies

East Lansing—Good advice on better farming practices, terse comments about farm policy and honors to six Michigan agricultural leaders have set the pace for the first three days of Farmers' Week at Michigan State University.

The Wednesday program included reports on how to increase production, a cow "checkup" that could save $4,000 a year, and some keys to good crop growing.

Dr. Roy S. Emery, MSU dairy scientist, reported two methods for increasing milk protein. Both are uneconomical now, he said, but changes in milk pricing and improved techniques could make the cow a more profitable protein producer.

One method is to get the cow to produce more milk with less butterfat by feeding normal levels of grain but restricting the amount of hay in the ration. The other method involves putting amino acids, the building blocks of protein, into the blood supply of the cow.

Dr. Harold Hafs, another MSU dairy scientist, said most of the causes of infertility in dairy cows are caused by breeding at the "wrong time"—when the animal is unhealthy, too small, too early in her heat period or otherwise not ready to be bred.

He said Holstein heifers should be 48 to 50 inches high at the withers at breeding.

He added that cows are "invaluable, and some may settle better if they are bred at an earlier or later time than others. 'Averages do not always apply to an individual cow.'

Dr. David Morrow, a veterinarian at Michigan State, said that regular herd "checkups" by a veterinarian will prevent some of the cow reproductive problems that cost the average Michigan dairyman $1,000 to $4,000 a year. He recommended these checkups be given at monthly intervals.

Dr. John Shickluna, MSU soil scientist, had some advice for growing good crops. He said fertilized plants are more efficient, but indiscriminate application of fertilizer is neither good economics nor good soil management.

"Haphazard selection and application of fertilizer may lead to unbalanced fertility conditions that promote the uptake of excessive amounts of some elements and too little of others equally important for plant growth," he said.

During Tuesday's sessions, two Michigan farm leaders took rather dismal views of farm policy and agriculture's future.

Elton R. Smith charged that the federal government has unwisely spent "vast sums of federal tax money in various farm controlled programs." He said, "We have not solved the problems of the marginal farmer with 35 years of federal help and over $30 billion of tax money."

Smith suggested one new approach would be "a land retirement program with emphasis on whole farms, plus aggressive rural economic development."

The president of the Michigan Farmers Union, Chester Johnson, added that depression-era recession may be just around the corner. He said: "Farmers have been suffering a recession for some time now with low prices and high costs—and things are getting worse."

Johnson blamed the Federal Reserve Board and the big banks for high interest rates which he said are costing consumers billions of dollars in interest.

On a more optimistic note, Michigan paid tribute to six of its agricultural leaders during Farmers' Week.

On Tuesday, Distinguished Service to Agriculture awards were presented to Perc R. Schepers, Jackson; Felix Witt, Jasper; and Harry Burns, Millington.

Schepers is general farm service supervisor for Consumers Power Co., and is responsible for development and co-ordination of programs related to agriculture.

Witt is a producer of beef cattle and foundation seed who has played a prominent role in the initial increase of several important small grain and soybean varieties. And Burns is an outstanding poultry producer known to Michigan throughout Michigan. He operates a 40-acre farm with 40,000 laying and 18,000 pullets.

The Michigan Dairyman of the Year award was presented Monday to Representative Charles Davis who died Oct. 1, 1968.

operated a dairy farm in the county, held executive positions in dairy companies and was active in state government activities in agriculture.

Awards were presented Wednesday to two men who made outstanding contributions to the raising of Michigan milk crops.

Gregersen, manager of a major farm near Pigeon, was named Farmer of the Year. County agent, was named Master Farmer of the Year for his assistance to milk farmers in the Inlay City area.

Freedoms Foundation Award Received

The Trustees and Officers of the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, announce with pleasure the recent selection of the Michigan Farm Bureau to receive one of the Foundation's annual awards. Basis for the honor was an unusual "Citizenship Award" involving selected high school Juniors and Seniors invited to take part in almost a year of experience in citizenship training.

To assure lively participation, the youngsters are split into two "political" parties (the "Democrats" and the "Republicans") with one-third of the group designated to be "independent" and an equal target for vote-winning on both sides. Then the fun begins as the youngsters go through the complicated motions of an intense political campaign.

They have voter registration drives, hold rallies, select slogan, hold caucuses, designate candidates, organize political conventions (complete with resolutions, platform, posters, balloons and confetti)—and before the seminar is over, conduct a complete campaign from primary through general election.

They will have used paper ballots in their mock primary, and in voting machines in the general election. Much of the time will have been guided through a course in practical politics by local government expert, Dr. Le Brake, former State Treasurer and member of the State Senate.

In between will be course studies of our country's political and economic systems compared with other governments of the world.

This year, the five-day learning experience will be held July 23, on the campus of Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant. Student selection already underway in many Michigan communities. Service clubs, civic and patriotic organizations join local business and county Farm Bureaus in sponsoring scholarships, tuition and living costs for the estimated 200 youngsters expected to take part.

All of which adds up—in words of the Freedoms Foundation—to: "An outstanding achievement in helping to achieve better understanding of the American Way of Life."

Gelman Reports Sales Up 40%

Ann Arbor—Charles Gelman, president of the Gelman Instrument Co., has announced to shareholders that company sales for the first half of the current fiscal year totaled $2,605,000, a 40 percent increase over the comparable period for fiscal year 1968. Net earnings have increased more dramatically, Gelman reports, totaling $80,000 for the first six months of this year, a 20 percent increase over last year. Provision for pooling of interest and retroactively pro-rata accounting adjustments made "Price Waterhouse" at the end of fiscal year 1968. Adjusted net earnings for the first six months of 1969 were $25,000 on sales of $1,300,000.

Gelman also announced the acquisition on March 1 of Girompini Milan, Italy. The company manufactures controlled environmental chambers, heat treating equipment for the electronic industry and laboratory ovens. Girompini operates as a division of Gelman Instrument S.R.L. (Italy). This is Gelman's second overseas acquisition in recent months. In December, the company acquired Hawksley & Sons, Ltd. of London, England, which manufactures blood measuring instruments and hospital apparatus. Gelman is a manufacturer of analytical laboratory, air sampling, process filtration and clean room instrumentation.

Plymouth Scores Most Points in Three Tests

A Plymouth Fury I scored the highest number of points of all 60 cars that competed in fuel economy, acceleration and braking tests of the Union/Pure Oil Performance Trials at Daytona Beach, Fla.

The Plymouth Fury, competing in Class V for cars equipped with standard V-8 engines, scored a total of 98 performance points out of a possible 100.

Two other Plymouth entries finished first in their respective

Wagon Air Deflector

The 1969 Plymouth Fury station wagon models have a new and efficient air deflector, mounted at the rear of the roof to divert air around and across the big rear window, significantly reducing wind obstruction. By blowing clean air over the window, the deflector prevents rain, dust and grit from accumulating.

Methodist Church
The Methodist Church of Chelsea will have a unique hymn singing evening, featuring as soloists, the Rev. Daniel Keihl, pastor of the United Methodist Church of Commerce, and Mrs. Clara Warren, organist. The church will present a program of hymns, folk songs, spiritual songs, and all-interesting songs. All interested persons are invited to attend. The program is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, March 22.

Immanuel Church
A family picture, "The Family Man," featuring a present-day family, will be shown at 7 p.m. on Sunday, March 23, at Immanuel Church.

The film is one of the later ones written by Ken Anderson, and is a spiritual approach to the life of the day. The new film, "The Family Man," is a service, church members are invited to attend. The film is being shown at the Chelsea Club News. To GR 5-3581.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

Keep Your Faith

When health fails, the wise man seeks the services of a qualified physician. Very few of us care to tolerate the discomfort of an ailment that can be medically cured.

Why, then, do some of us allow our faith to slip away, without so much as a glance? We become busy with the affairs of life, engrossed in our work and our play. There comes a change in our sense of values.

And why, too, is it so often true that some sudden sickness or some upsetting of our normal affairs will make us quick to reach out and recapture the faith that has been slipping away?

Check your faith, as you would check your health. Whatever you believe in, hold firmly. Faith is strength. Faith is courage, and it is hope. Yet it needs refurbishing. It needs attention.

Faith should be a matter of practice, not a once-in-a-while recognition of a personal belief, or an individual sense of values.

WHOSE PANTS?

Many women today may be wearing pants instead of petticoats, but the fashion trend is just one more interesting reversal in the long history of clothing. The first female petticoat was an adaptation of the masculine "kirtle," an undergarment made of quilted cotton worn by soldiers in the Crusades.

REPORT from LANSING

State Representative

Thomas G. Sharpe

Under Republican leadership through 1967 and 1968, the last legislature won near-universal acclaim from the press by creating what former Governor George Romney termed "a record of accomplishment matched by few other legislatures in Michigan's history."

No aspect of that record is a matter of greater pride to me than the reversal of a Democratic trend toward financial disaster, the re-establishment of the fiscal integrity of our state, and the fact that our widely-hailed gains were made against a background of two years of balanced budgets.

No aspect of the present legislative session in Lansing, where the House of Representatives has once again fallen under Democratic control, is of greater concern to me than some existing and alarming indications that fiscal responsibility may once again be sacrificed for expediency and political gain.

By any comparative analysis, Michigan has practiced economy through the last two years. In relation to the income of our citizens, our state taxes are lower than those of 30 other states, and our general expenditures are lower than in 33 other states. In proportion to population, we have fewer state employees than all but one other state.

But this distinction could conceivably vanish in a single session, if the balanced budget proposed by Governor William Milliken is ignored. Our Governor has given us, in effect, a set of guidelines whereby Michigan moves ahead to the fullest extent possible while living within its means. Yet already, in the Democrat-controlled House, bills have been introduced that would boost state expenditures far beyond these guidelines, with no mention of new revenue sources to finance such spending.

Through the last session, under Republican leadership, the key Appropriations Committee was given a fair representation of 8 Republican and 5 Democrat members. Now, under Democrat control, the committee has been increased to 15 members—11 Democrats and just 4 Republicans. This ominous fact indicates some difficult times ahead, for those of us who believe in fiscal integrity.

Nothing is easier than to support new spending measures while opposing new taxes. It takes courage, and a sense of commitment and responsibility, for any representative to stand up in opposition to increased expenditures for education, for mental health, or other areas where more money is badly needed. But until increased revenue is in sight, this will have to be done.

To paraphrase an old saying about good intentions, the road to fiscal disaster is paved with worthy
