Orchestras Plan Concert For Thursday

Chelsea High and Beach Middle school orchestras will present a concert at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 3 at the high school auditorium featuring the pieces students are preparing for festival competition later this month.

The middle school orchestra, which has its festival Saturday, March 19, will play "Andante and Allegro" by W. A. Mozart and "Salute to Handel," arranged by Phillip Gordon.

The high school symphony orchestra, which has its festival Saturday, March 12, will play two movements of "Sinfonietta," by J. S. Bach; "Academic Festival Overture," by Brahms; and "Capriccio Italien," by Tchaikovsky.

Both orchestras are directed by Carol Palms.

Bakery Still Talking With Insurance Co.

The owners of the burned-out Village Bakery at 103 W. Middle St. are, in effect, starting over in their effort to reach an agreement with their insurance company and reopen for business.

The interior of the bakery was destroyed by fire on Jan. 14, and owners John and Phyllis Muncer had hoped to be back in business by March 1. However, an insurance settlement has yet to be negotiated, and a new target date for reopening therefore cannot be set.

"We have asked our architect (Arthur L. Lindauer of 280 S. Fletcher Rd.) to prepare a new set of rebuilding plans that we hope will be acceptable to the insurance company and, if they are, will ask for bids," Mrs. Muncer said. "We are still determined to have the work done by a local contractor if at all possible."

"We're sorry and concerned that we haven't been able to move any faster, but we definitely will reopen just as quickly as we can."

Hearing Set On Revenue Sharing Fund

A public hearing has been set for 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, March 15, in the Village Council chambers on proposed allocation of unused federal revenue sharing funds accumulated over the past two fiscal years. The total amount of money involved is $35,863.

The hearing, the second of two, is required by federal law. Nobody showed up at the first one, held last month.

Village Administrator Frederick A. Weber said the revenue-sharing funds are normally spent for public safety (police) and parks and recreation purposes. They formerly made up a significant share of the village budget but have declined to a trickle the past two years.

At issue are $4,418 unallocated from the 1981-82 fiscal year and $31,445 from 1982-83.

Donald Doll Retires From Chrysler

Donald W. Doll of 17410 Heim Rd. retired from Chrysler Proving Grounds yesterday after more than 30 years of service.

He began his employment there as a patrolman with plant security Aug. 20, 1952. He was promoted to watchman and general janitorial duties in January of 1953.

At that time the only building to be cared for was the old Maroney farmhouse which was kept on the property as an office. Doll's watchman duties were done from the "main gate," an outhouse-sized shed at the edge of M-52 and what is now the main driveway. Since then the test oval and all the present buildings were constructed on the 4,000 acre site.

Doll became a test-driver and mechanic in April 1953, and transferred into the carburetor lab as a mechanic in product development in October 1967. He became supervisor of that department in October of 1973, and continued in that position until his retirement.

CAROL HOFFMAN has begun sewing her Easter suit, which she may enter in the Chelsea Community Fair in August. She won two ribbons on the basement wall above her machine for champion in senior clothing and one for home economics department grand champion in 1980. Mrs. Hoffman, also active in girl scouts, has entered fair needlework competition for 15 years. Just about the only garment she doesn't like making is pants.

Fair Champion Seamstress Sewing on Easter Suit Project

March isn't too early to start thinking about Easter suits or the needlework competition at the Chelsea Community Fair.

The weather is uncertain for outdoor sports, warm or cold, and gardening is a gamble.

Carol Hoffman, who was champion in senior clothing and home economics department grand champion at the 1980 fair, has already started her Easter suit, which may become a fair entry, too.

Rules on fair entries state the garment must have been finished since the last fair. So if someone has worked on a quilt for the last five years, and finishes it in July, that quilt could be a fair entry, but not one finished in 1979.

Mrs. Hoffman of 112 W. Summit says this time of year, when spring fashions are just starting to be shown in stores, she really gets in the mood for sewing.

It's also a lull between the Christmas hiccups and the beginning of canning season.

"I just can't get myself to buy an outfit," she said, "when I know I can make it myself for a quarter of the cost."

Making it herself is almost a guarantee her outfit will be unique, she said, but not an absolute.

Usually retail clothing is made of different fabrics than what is sold in fabric stores. One year she made a dress for herself. A friend came to visit wearing a store-bought skirt of the same material.

The suit Mrs. Hoffman won her champion ribbons with isn't a pattern for the "jiffy" or "overnight" set to try. It was very detailed with a lot of murderous fitting and tailoring.

But a challenge, such as a dress, suit or evening gown, is what motivates her, she said. She likes making things that are difficult.

She prefers a soft, feminine look with ruffles and lace and said she was glad that look is back in pattern books.

She didn't make her own wedding gown, ("It was much too hectic a time!"), but if her daughters Teresa or Cathy ever asked her to make theirs, she said she'd feel "honored."

She has also made the banners at the swimming pool, such as the one listing Chelsea Invitational championships, and the backstroke flags, which hang on ropes near the end of the pool so backstrokers know the wall is coming.

Her son Phil swam for Chelsea, her son John is now, and her daughter Cathy is on the middle school team.

She doesn't make jackets or skirts specifically to enter in the fair, she said, but makes things she or her daughters need. Then if she is particularly proud of it, she'll enter it.

Mrs. Hoffman grew up in Ann Arbor. When she and her husband, Fred, moved to Chelsea, where he had grown up, she started going to the fair.

"All the fairs I had ever been to were just carnivals," she said. "I wasn't used to a community event with livestock and hobby entries."

"You get a good feeling when your outfit wins a blue ribbon, and it's fun to look at all the winners and find out who made them."

"You really feel like a part of the community when you see

Three CHS Students Arrested for Break-in

Three Chelsea High school students have been arrested in connection with a burglary at the school which was reported to village police on Feb. 12, having apparently occurred the night before.

Police withheld news of the incident until an investigation could be completed and the suspects identified and caught, Chief Robert Aeillo said.

The suspects include two 17-year-olds who will be prosecuted as adults. Aeillo declined to release their names until they have been arraigned in court, tentatively scheduled later this month. The third is a 15-year-old juvenile.

According to the police investigation report, the three young persons broke into the school and then used vise-grip pliers to tear the knobs and locks off four inside office doors, doing an estimated $600 worth of damage in the process.

They took $200 in cash and some food from the school cafeteria and snack bar. A quantity of cookies was smashed on the gymnasium floor, causing "a big mess," according to Aeillo.

The youths remained in the building over-night and escaped the next morning, Aeillo said, adding that part of the money stolen has been recovered.

Aeillo credited patrolmen Rick Walters and Pete Graves for outstanding work during a lengthy investigation which ended with the three arrests.

Chelsea Players Mark 10th Year With 'Encore'

Plans are complete and the stage is set for "Encore," the 10th anniversary celebration of the Chelsea Players.

This year's winter event will be in the form of an hors d'oeuvres dance. Music for dancing will be provided by "Al Townsend and the Ambassadors," a 17-piece "big band" playing music from the 40's to the 80's.

Also featured will be encore performances from shows produced over the past 10 years by the Chelsea Players. Among those dancing and singing will be Joan Youcum, Dennis Bauer, Mark Taylor, Kathy Schneider, Beverly Slater, Joe Diederich, Rebecca Smouse, and Laurie Lancaster Smith. Accompanying them will be a musical combo headed by LaVonne Harris.

Producer for the March 5 event at the Dexter Knights of Columbus Hall is Ric Foytik. Reserved tickets for "Encore" are available at Merkel Furniture or from any Chelsea Players board member.

Burglars Hit Polly's Market Saturday Night

An estimated $5,000 in cash and lottery tickets was stolen from Polly's Market sometime after the last employee left the store at 10 o'clock Saturday night.

Chelsea police chief Robert Aeillo described the heist as "obviously a professional job by burglars who knew exactly what to do and had the tools to do it." He said at least two and possibly three persons were involved, according to shoe prints left at the store.

There are no suspects and no direct evidence pointing to anyone at this time, Aeillo said, adding that several items of potential evidence have been sent to the state crime laboratory for analysis.

The local investigation is being conducted by Sgt. Lenard McDougall and patrolman Pete Graves. From their reports Aeillo reconstructed the probable sequence of events as follows:

The market was "secured" at 10 p.m., no one was on the premises. Saturday is the only night of the week when someone is not there all night.

Sometime after that the burglars drove into the market, located at S. Main St. and Old US-12. Their first act was to cut the wires which connect a burglar alarm system to the village police station, rendering it inoperable.

They went around to the southeast corner of the building, which is hidden from view from any road or nearby house, and climbed onto the roof, using air conditioning units and an electrical transformer as stepping-stones.

They first pried the cover off an air conditioning duct but found the shaft too small to squeeze through. They then took the screen off an exhaust air duct and went down through that into a storage area of the building.

From there the burglars proceeded to the office in the front of the market and cracked open the safe, peeling off an outside metal shield to get at the combination lock, which they drilled and punched out.

They looted the safe of approximately $3,700 in cash which was on hand to begin the next day's business and an estimated $1,300 worth of lottery tickets.

Escape was made by cutting off a rear door padlock and leaving through the door.

The burglary was discovered at 8:45 a.m. Sunday by employees coming to work to get ready for the day's business. The market was closed part of Sunday while the police investigation was conducted.

"These people were real pros," Aeillo said. "I suspect they came from somewhere far outside the area, but they obviously had 'cased' the place beforehand and had a carefully worked out plan for getting in without tripping the alarm or being seen."

He said there was an "almost identical" burglary at a Grand Rapids supermarket a week ago and speculated the same group could have done both.

It was the largest theft in Chelsea since someone threw a cinder block through Winans Jewelry store on Main St. two years ago and grabbed $16,000 worth of gold.

Village Budget Stays At $1.016 Million Mark

A 1983-84 fiscal year general fund budget calling for revenues and expenditures of equal $1,016,000 amounts will be presented to the Chelsea Village Council tonight by Village Administrator Frederick A. Weber.

The new fiscal year began today, March 1.

"The new budget is very similar to last year's, in terms of both anticipated revenues and projected revenues," Weber said. "There are no major changes in any category."

During the fiscal year just ended the village government had general fund revenues of $1,055,500, including a holdover surplus of $136,000 from the 1981-82 fiscal year. Expenditures were $1,010,418, marking the first time they have topped a million dollars.

The cash balance shrunk to $55,000, which means the village spent $81,000 more than it actually took in during the past 12 months.

"Our local tax revenues did not quite meet our projections last year," Weber explained, "and both federal and state shared revenues were a bit lower than anticipated. I think those are results of current economic conditions."

On the expenditure side, there were substantial savings below estimates for fire protection and public works. Those allowed the village to end the year $55,000 in the black.

"All things considered, especially the state of the economy, I think we came out pretty well in 1982-83, and I don't see any major changes this coming year," Weber said. "If the economy picks up as I hope it will, we could be in better shape this time next year. Our revenue projections are deliberately conservative."

As sent to the council, the budget calls for $358,600 in revenue from property taxes, $165,000 in state-shared taxes, $245,600 in charges for services (fees, fire runs, refuse and landfill, etc.), $114,000 in cross-accounting "contributions" from village special (restricted) funds, $31,000 in rents and royalties, and numerous lesser sources.

Major proposed expenditures include $221,200 for the police department, $165,700 for public works, $117,785 for fire protection, $114,700 for solid waste disposal, and $210,355 lumped under "other functions."

In a sense, the general fund budget is only the tip of an iceberg. Actual costs of running the village will amount to about $2.5 million in 1983-84, Weber pointed out. The other $1.5 million is in restricted funds, primarily—electric, and water and sewer. Those funds are self-supporting, with expenditures equalled or exceeded by revenues from service charges.

Sheriff's Patrol Car Hits Deer Inside Chelsea Village Limits

A sheriff's department patrol car driven by Deputy Duane Murray, who works out of the Scio sub-station, hit a deer at N. Main St. and Maple Ct. inside the Chelsea village limits at about 6:30 a.m. last Sunday morning. Damage to the car was estimated in the $1,000 range. Murray was uninjured. The deer was killed.

An elderly Dexter ewe gave premature birth to quadruplets last week. Labor was induced a week early by veterinarian Dr. Arthur Tremper, because he feared the mother, who is partially paralyzed, would not live through a full-term birth. She is alive but weak. The lambs, although well-formed for their age, were small and all have died. Tremper said most lambs are born singly or as twins. He had delivered a set of triplet lambs this season, but had never delivered quadruplet lambs before. The ewe is owned by Gerald Straub of Madden Rd.

WHAT SHOULD I WEAR TO THE FUNERAL?

Black is no longer the only color appropriately worn for a visitation, wake, or funeral.

Today a visitor may wear colorful clothing which expresses good taste. Gloves and hats may be worn, if desired; but are being worn less and less.

The widow or widower will usually wear something basic or conservative in color and style.

All persons attending the visitation or funeral should wear clothing which will contribute to the atmosphere of dignity and respect for the family and other mourners. Some customs and local mores may suggest a small black veil, an armband or something similar.

Your attendance at the funeral or visitation is a simple, but meaningful way to let the family know that you share their loss, that you wish to be considered as one of those who care and will be around to help in the future. It's a one-time opportunity and postponed condolences become awkward for both parties.

If you have any further questions, please feel free to call us.

Tax Alternatives

Under Discussions

Discussions over alternatives to Governor James J. Blanchard's tax proposal, which include a possible three-phase income tax proposal, or a trade-off to an increased sales tax, have begun between the governor and House leaders.

Although no agreements were reached, both Speaker Gary Owen (D-Ypsilanti) and Minority Leader Michael Busch (R-Saginaw) said they were encouraged at the willingness of both sides to negotiate.

Busch said negotiations will continue but any agreement to any proposal still is contingent upon receiving administration revenue estimates for 1983-84 and implementing higher budget cuts than the $225 million recommended by the governor.

Owen said the governor is willing to look at any proposal so long as it eliminated not only the current budget deficit, but the accrued deficit.

The first alternative under consideration favored by both Owen and Busch, would increase the income tax in three parts over a period of 18 months.

Each portion of the proposal would be in place for six months.

In the first part, the income tax would be increased to 5.6 percent until July 1, then raised to 6.5 percent until Jan. 1, 1984, when the tax would revert to the current rate of 4.6 percent.

The tax increase would raise an estimated $1.2 billion over the 18 months—$308 million for the first six months, $589 million for the second and $327 million for the final six months.

The July, 1983, increase to 6.5 percent is designed to coincide with the 10 percent federal income tax cut.

The second proposal would enact Blanchard's raising the current 4.6 percent tax to 6.5 percent but calling for a special election on raising the sales tax to 5 percent.

If the sales tax increase were adopted, the income tax increase would expire on Oct. 1. If the sales tax increase were not adopted, the permanent income tax increase would remain in place.

Busch said the proposals so far are based on Blanchard's estimate of the $900 million deficit for the current year. There still is disagreement on that figure, he said, but both proposals will raise revenue sufficient to cover that deficit.

Owen said he did not think the June, 1984, elimination date would permit raising enough revenues to cover the 1983-84 expenditures.

Busch, however, said the good thing about the income tax is that it would be a true temporary tax.

"Going beyond that June, 1984, date gets more into a permanent thing," he said.

Busch added that though Republicans want more than the $225 million in cuts as proposed by Blanchard, he was not going to call for a minimum level above that. "I don't want to emasculate everything with cuts, but we can make more cuts without hurting essential services," he said.

Busch said eliminating the $800 million accrued deficit — not covered by either alternative—was still open to discussion.

"We've got the cigarette tax money, that's $100 million a year we're putting into that. If they want to pay it off faster than that, then we can talk about putting in extra money," he said.

The first collective bargaining agreement in the U.S. was obtained in 1795 by Philadelphia printers, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Just when you make up your mind that life is the same thing over and over and not one thing after another, somepun happens to mix you up all over again. Last month it final happened to a waitress in Rochester, N.Y. She drew a zero check for a week's work. The Government took out everything. After it withheld income tax, Social Security, unemployment insurance and the rest, she was left holding nothing.

This taxpayer was nailed by a new law that allows taxes to be withheld on the eight percent of her income she makes in tips. Except she works in one of them fast food places where nobody tips. She makes only $2.45 a hour because eating places are allowed to pay waiters and waitresses less than the minimum wage because they're supposed to make up the difference in tips. So this poor woman was squeezed dry by a Government that cut her income and then took a cut of what she got and didn't get. She couldn't take much comfort in word that if she didn't pay in more than everything she could wind up owing the IRS at the end of the year because of the tip tax.

Another thing that final happened was brung up Saturday night during the session at the country store. Bug Hookum had saw where the American Bar Association has said straight out that lawyers don't have to tell the truth and nothing but the truth. The ABA's new code of conduct, Bug reported, says that honesty ain't the best courtroom policy. The code says the lawyer's first duty is to his client, and the lawyer is not required to tell the truth when he knows his client is lying. Bug said he don't know nothing about law and it gits that mixed up, but what this code does is assumes the client is guilty and lets the lawyer become a partner to the crime in order to prove the client is innocent.

The feller that runs the store usual smokes his pipe between waiting on folks and pertends he ain't interested in the discussion. But after Bug's report he said he was not suprised at the ABA code. He was of the opinion that ever other branch of Government assumes the guilt of whoever it's dealing with, so the courts might as well. At the end of the last quarter, he said, he was told he hadn't paid enough sales tax. He said he had, but the revenueurs come down on him. They didn't tax his retail, he said, they taxed what he bought wholesale and assumed he sold. The truth is, the store feller said, about a forth of what he paid sales tax on went out on credit and he never got paid fer.

Personal, Mister Editor, I've learned you never learn all the angles. Public hospitals will ask to borrow, saying they can pay off the debt from patient fees. People turn em down and then their taxes go up to pay fer what the hospitals have got to have, so everybody winds up paying. I gits as mixed up as the feller away at convention that wrote his wife and said "honey, the beach is here, wish you were beautiful."

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Modern Mothers Enjoy Lesson on Floral Arranging

Modern Mothers met Tuesday, Feb. 22 at Judy Wahl's home for a very enjoyable and informative demonstration on floral arranging by Sandy Zeeb, guest speaker and co-owner of Chelsea Greenhouse.

She showed the 21 members and two guests how to create stunning arrangements from a variety of flowers and greens. The history and legends surrounding the oldest and most popular flower, the rose, were quite interesting as was the information on how to grow roses in one's backyard.

Mrs. Zeeb left a rose for each member as well as the three arrangements she completed during the demonstration. Mary Adams, Mitzi Lewis and Pat Whitesall won the arrangements in a drawing of name tags.

The evening ended with an ice cream dessert served by Mitzi Lewis and Janet Alford.

The club's next meeting will be held Tuesday, March 8 at Mickey Michaud's home. John O'Brien, physician with the University of Michigan Family Practice Center at Chelsea, will speak on first aid. Anyone interested may call 475-9856 for further information.

What's Cooking In Michigan . . .

By Margaret G. McCall
Michigan Dept. of Agriculture
"Celery raw develops the jaw, but celery stewed is more quietly chewed." Ogden Nash's familiar couplet insured that celery received fond attention often from the youngsters growing up in our household.

We tend to take for granted the virtues of celery, and we shouldn't do that in Michigan, which is the nation's third largest producer of celery.

Michigan was the birthplace of the nation's celery industry more than 100 years ago, when farmers near Kalamazoo first marketed the crop. For many years Kalamazoo was known as the world's "celery capital" and vendors sold fresh celery to passengers on trains stopping in the city enroute to Chicago and points west, New York and other eastern destinations.

It's interesting to remember, too, that in Victorian days, a special dish, the celery glass (usually of cut crystal) was used to present fresh celery at the dinner table.

Serve celery often, serve it raw — especially for calorie counters, serve it cooked. Here's a favorite cream of celery soup recipe, using curry powder for accent:

In heavy saucepan, combine 2 cups sliced celery (including the leaves), 1/2 cup chopped onion, 1/4 cup chopped chives, 2 diced potatoes, 1 chopped carrot, 1 teaspoon curry, 1/2 teaspoon garlic salt, 3 cups chicken broth. Simmer until vegetables are tender, then puree. Return to saucepan, heat to boiling, stir in one cup heavy cream. Heat, but do not boil, before serving.

Purse Robber Arrested After Citizen Pursuit

James Poulter is one of those good citizens who is not afraid to get involved.

Poulter, 52, who lives at 1317 Riker Rd., was in the parking lot at Polly's Market last Monday afternoon when he heard a woman scream and saw a car speed away east on Old US-12, according to a Chelsea police department report.

With his 14-year-old daughter, Cynthia, riding with him, Poulter gave chase in his pickup truck. The fleeing car turned south on Freer Rd., then east on Jerusalem Rd. The male driver dangled a woman's purse out the door. Poulter rammed the car from behind, the driver dropped the purse, turned his car around, was nudged again by Poulter's truck. He drove back west on Jerusalem, turned north on Freer, and was stopped at the intersection of Old US-12 by Chelsea police patrolman Pete Graves.

Arrested and charged with strong-arm robbery was Robert E. Whitsett, 28, of Ypsilanti.

Chelsea Police Chief Robert Aello said a woman, who asked that her name not be published, because she fears reprisal, was accosted in Polly's parking lot and her purse grabbed. She fell to the pavement during the scuffle and suffered knee and hand abrasions.

She got up and telephoned police, giving a description of the getaway car which Poulter was pursuing, and the direction of the chase. That enabled Graves to be in the right place at the right time to make the arrest.

"Mr. Poulter should be commended," Aello said. "He saw something wrong and did something about it. Without his prompt and effective action, the suspect probably would have gotten away."

Poulter declined to discuss the incident or to pose for a picture. He did verify the police department account, saying "that's what happened."

The victim of the purse-snatching positively identified both her assailant and her purse, Aello said.

Checkoff Offered For Child Abuse

A new Michigan income tax "checkoff" goes into effect this year to help prevent child abuse. Supporters can automatically donate $2 of their tax refunds to a special children's trust fund.

All the money collected will be allocated to community prevention programs on a matching basis.

Ray E. Helfer, an expert on child abuse prevention and a member of the faculty of MSU's College of Human Medicine, established the idea of a children's trust fund in the state.

"This major piece of legislation has the potential for preventing child abuse much as the 55 mph speed limit has reduced the number of car accidents," Helfer said.

More 36 percent of all adult pedestrian accidents are alcohol-related.

Judy Moison Designated ABWA Woman of Year

Judy Moison of 114 South St. has been elected Woman of the Year by the Chelsea Charter Chapter of the American Business Women's Association (ABWA). She is branch manager of the Wolverine Towers branch of Comerica Bank of Ann Arbor and has been employed by the bank since 1969.

Mrs. Moison is now eligible to compete for the 1983 Top Ten Business Women of ABWA and American Business Woman awards. Announcement of national awards will be made at the 1983 national convention Oct. 26-30 in Las Vegas, Nev.

BOYSCOUTS

TROOP 476

Last weekend, the scouts of Troop 476 went on a cabin campout. We went to Hilltop cabin in Camp Munhake (Bruin Lake). Even though the campout was supposed to help them achieve rank, it was still a blast.

We all worked on merit badges (safety and camping) and skill awards such as cooking. The guys will get these awards at the Court of Honor in two weeks.

At the campout, we had enough mud to last us awhile. Two cars got stuck.

Another campout is being planned to go to Kentucky Mammoth Cave. The boys who go up in rank will be able to go. We just can't wait to go cave exploring.

If you are interested, we meet every Monday at 7 p.m. in the South School gym.

Dr. McRae Named Representative to AAFP Committee

Dr. Thomas D. McRae of the Chelsea Family Practice Center was recently appointed resident representative to the Committee on Aging of the American Academy of Family Physicians (AAFP). The AAFP is the nation's second largest medical organization.

Dr. McRae is a third year Family Practice resident. He received his M.D. degree from the Medical University of South Carolina, Charleston.

The Committee on Aging was created to review and make recommendations concerning the role of the family physician in promoting the welfare of the public by addressing problems of aging and care of the aged. Areas to be examined include education in maintenance of health and care of the ill, as well as the physical and psychosocioeconomic aspects of the aging process. Abuse of the elderly was another area of concern that was considered by the committee at its first meeting of 1983, held Feb. 25-27 in Orlando, Fla., which Dr. McRae attended.

The 55,000 member AAFP, headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., was instrumental in establishing the Family Practice specialty in 1969. Family Practice, which evolved from classic general practice, now has more than 27,000 certified diplomates. It is supported by 388 residency training programs and by departments or divisions in more than 95 medical schools.

In-Service Session Slated for Teachers

Chelsea school children will have a short day Thursday, March 10 for in-service training of grades K-12 instructional staff.

Elementary students will be released at 11:20 a.m.; Beach Middle school students at 11:25 and Chelsea High school students at 11:30 a.m.

In-service training will begin after lunch with a keynote address by Curt Van Vorhees, a professor in educational administration at the University of Michigan. His general theme will be positive outlooks to one's job and personal life and how to maintain that attitude.

That topic goes along with the school board's goal this year to encourage creative thought and positive attitudes among students, said John Williams, high school principal.

After Van Vorhees' address, teachers will have five small group sessions to choose from. Classes are tentatively scheduled depending on instructors' releases from their school districts.

Courses are: beginning and intermediate computer-assisted instruction in the classroom, to be taught by Ann Dake, of Ann Arbor's Thurston Elementary school, and Alan Dake, of Edmondson Middle school in Willow Run; a follow-up by Van Vorhees on his speech; making materials to use in elementary classrooms by Kathy Erdlitz of the Washtenaw Intermediate School District; and four short films on positive attitudes, "Up with Teachers," "The Reality of Success," "The Confident Learner: Enhancing Self-concept," and "The Confident Learner: Self-esteem in Children."

Color Guard Competition Set Saturday With 10 Teams

Ten color guards from Michigan and Ontario will compete in three levels of competition with flags, rifles, swing flags, sabers and dancing to music at 7 p.m. Saturday, March 5 at the Chelsea High school gymnasium.

Chelsea's own Winter Guard, made up of Chelsea High school students, will perform in Class A for the first time. They were promoted to this higher level after an excellent showing at competition Feb. 5 near Saginaw.

"Excelling in this higher class will be 'a real challenge,'" said Phil Jones, guard director, instructor of the marching band's flag squad and high school English teacher.

Other units in Chelsea's class will be from West Bloomfield and Oxford high schools.

Chelsea's show, written by Jones' brother, Dan of Flint, features two selections from the movie, "Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band." "Got to Get You into My Life" and "Good Morning" were originally written and performed by the Beatles, but the music Chelsea uses was recorded by studio musicians, not from sound track versions by Earth, Wind and Fire and the Bee Gees.

Chelsea's guard sergeant is Julie Dunlap, a junior, who is assisted by Phoebe Strong, a sophomore. The squad consists of one senior, seven juniors, three sophomores and three freshmen.

The Winter Guard is in its second year of competition in the Michigan circuit. They plan to limit their travel to within the state, except for a possible trip to the national championships in Dayton, O.

The competition, sponsored by Chelsea Music Boosters, will begin with opening ceremonies.

Your Health Options

By Beverly Chethick
 Director of Health Education, Washtenaw County Health Dept.

A friend attended a presentation on rape prevention a couple of weeks ago. Can you tell me more about it?

Det. Jerry Wright of the Ann Arbor Police Department spoke to Washtenaw county employees last month. In his presentation he emphasized that rape is a violent crime — not a crime of passion.

According to Det. Wright, there's one fallacy many women believe. They think that only young, attractive women become rape victims. Not so, said Det. Wright. Any woman — of any age and appearance — can become a rape victim.

Det. Wright suggested there are many precautions women can take — even in their own homes. He suggested they not leave pass keys under doormats or on window ledges, and that peepholes be installed in front doors.

Det. Wright also advised that a woman who is traveling by car, always lock her car doors. And if — while she is driving home — she suspects she is being followed she should drive to a busy shopping center, not to her home. Even if a family is waiting at home, they will not be able to prevent an attack that occurs in the driveway — before the woman gets into the house.

Det. Wright suggested rape may occur on the street — day or night — and he recommended that women walk near the curb — not near hedges, bushes or buildings where an attacker may be waiting.

If an attack begins, Det. Wright suggested that a woman not use a weapon that might be turned against her — like a knife or a chemical spray. Instead, he noted, a woman can use her fingernails to scratch and gouge her attacker or she can use her leg to kick her attacker in the groin.

Some assailants have been frightened off from an actual rape after a victim told them she has herpes or cancer. Sometimes, when a woman yells "fire" — not "help" — neighbors or passersby are attracted to the scene and intervene.

Det. Wright emphasized it is the victim's main objective to get out of the situation alive — and with as little physical or emotional trauma as possible.

The odds favor the woman who is prepared to prevent an attack. While it is impossible to plan ahead what to do during an attack, it's a good idea at least to have thought about some actions that might be useful in a crisis.

Det. Wright is available to talk to groups of men and women in the community about how to prevent rape.

SIGNS OF TROUBLED FEET

If you're having a problem with your feet, you may think it's minor until the discomfort and foot fatigue get out of hand. Any limiting of activities on the job or at home can be a serious problem until your feet get the treatment they need.

There are many signs of troubled feet, and here are a few to watch for. CORNS AND CALLUSES are caused by friction and pressure that may be attributed to defects in the foot's bone structure. WARTS may be mistaken for calluses, but they are really quite different. A wart is a skin growth which has its own blood and nerve supply and tends to spread if left untreated. BUNIONS are caused by misaligned toe joints, usually the big toe, and can become swollen and tender. FUNGUS CONDITIONS, such as athlete's foot, tend to attack the feet in the warm, moist areas between the toes. TOENAIL INFECTIONS, sometimes caused by improperly trimmed nails, can also be caused by structural defects.

If you have any of these signs of troubled feet, see your foot specialist for examination and treatment.

Q. I really get interested as I read the newspapers and see how stock prices are making new highs. I would like to become a shareholder, but I don't have much money. I called a stock broker, and he told me I ought to have at least $1,000 to invest. I don't have that much, but if there was an installment plan of some kind available where I could invest about $25 a month, I would like to work that way. Can you tell me if there are any plans available in which I could invest just a small amount each month?

A. There are three ways that I know of in which you can start an investment account with a small amount of money at an affordable charge.

First, about 1,200 of the corporations listed on the New York and American Stock Exchanges have what are called DRIP's or Dividend Reinvestment Plans. To enter these plans, you first have to buy one share of stock from a broker. Once you own one share, you are eligible to join the company's DRIP. In most of these plans, the company not only pays the commission when you reinvest dividends, but allows you to invest additional money at no cost. Thus, after the commission expense of the first purchase, you can invest in the future at no cost. In some plans you can add as little as $10 to your dividends for reinvestment every three months. After the commission expense of the first purchase, you can invest, in the future, at no cost with the company picking up the charges.

This kind of plan is excellent because experience has shown that a set sum of money invested regularly over a long period of time, with earnings reinvested and the investment made in a growing company, is likely to give excellent results.

While most companies with these plans only accept additional investments every three months, you could start programs in three different companies, and thus have a monthly investment plan.

A second plan is offered by the National Association of Investment Clubs. It is similar to the above plan, but is less expensive to enter since NAIC has already bought the first share and introduces you to the plans without the requirement that you pay a commission to buy the first share. It does have one drawback and that is you may buy stock in only 25 companies at the present time through it.

A third plan is to form an Investment Club. This requires the work of getting a group of people together, but in addition to letting you invest a small amount of money each month, it provides an educational program where you are likely to learn considerable about stocks over a period of time.

We would be pleased to send any reader details of how these programs work.

SPOTTED LAMB: Champ, left, is an unusual Karakul lamb, born recently to a ewe owned by Mary Jane Coble, a Dexter splinter. Black is the dominant color gene in Karakuls, as shown by the lamb to the right. But instead of being all black or all fox-colored, the second most prevalent color like the lamb in the middle, he is spotted white and fox. Mrs. Coble's first breeding priority is softness of wool, followed by twinning and body type. Since his birth, she has read color studies done by the Soviets, major breeders of Karakuls. Although the meaning may have been distorted in translation, they have bred "lilac" and "rose" Karakuls.

Conservation District Offers Tree Seedlings

Washtenaw County Soil Conservation District announces its annual tree, shrub and ground cover program for 1983. Orders for planting stock will be accepted until April 4 on a first-come, first-serve basis. Seedlings will be distributed on a Saturday in April.

Planting stock available this spring includes: Austrian Pine, Red Pine, White Pine, Norway Spruce, White Spruce, Colorado Blue Spruce, Douglas Fir, Scotch Pine for Christmas tree plantings; Black Walnut, Autumn Olive, Silky Dogwood and Emerald Crownvetch seed. Also available will be Wildlife Packets of 50 assorted evergreens and shrubs for wildlife habitat plantings.

According to William Fishbeck, chairman of the Soil Conservation District, the main purpose of the District's tree program is to assist landowners in obtaining trees and shrubs at low cost for reforestation, windbreaks, erosion control and wildlife habitat improvement.

Order forms containing information on the species available, site preference, uses and prices may be obtained from the Soil Conservation District Office.

The number of adults seeking to update their professional knowledge, explore a new field, or just try a few courses increased 32 percent this winter on the Michigan State University campus over a year ago.

Sagging Enrollment Clouds Future for Agriculture Classes

Since only five students are now taking introductory agriculture for ninth and 10th graders, John Williams, Chelsea High school principal, recommended to the school board the course be dropped for the 1983-84 school year at the board meeting Feb. 21.

The board will be making a final decision on his recommendation at their March 7 meeting.

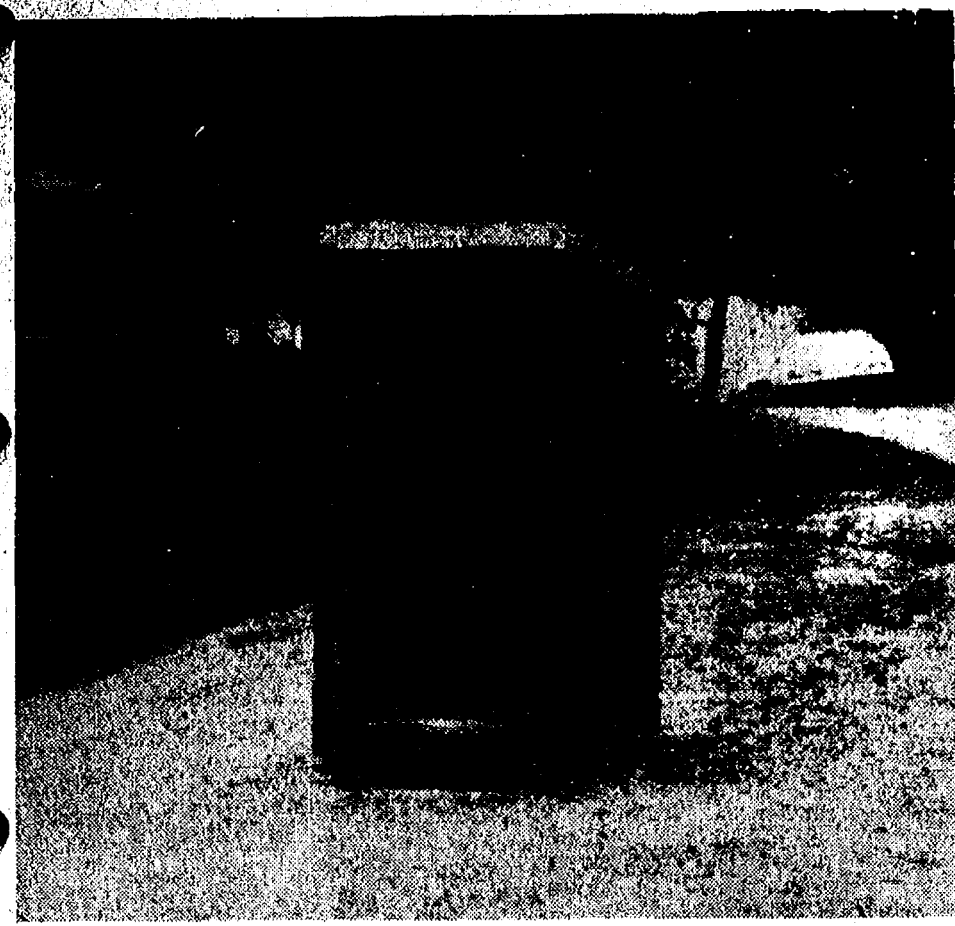

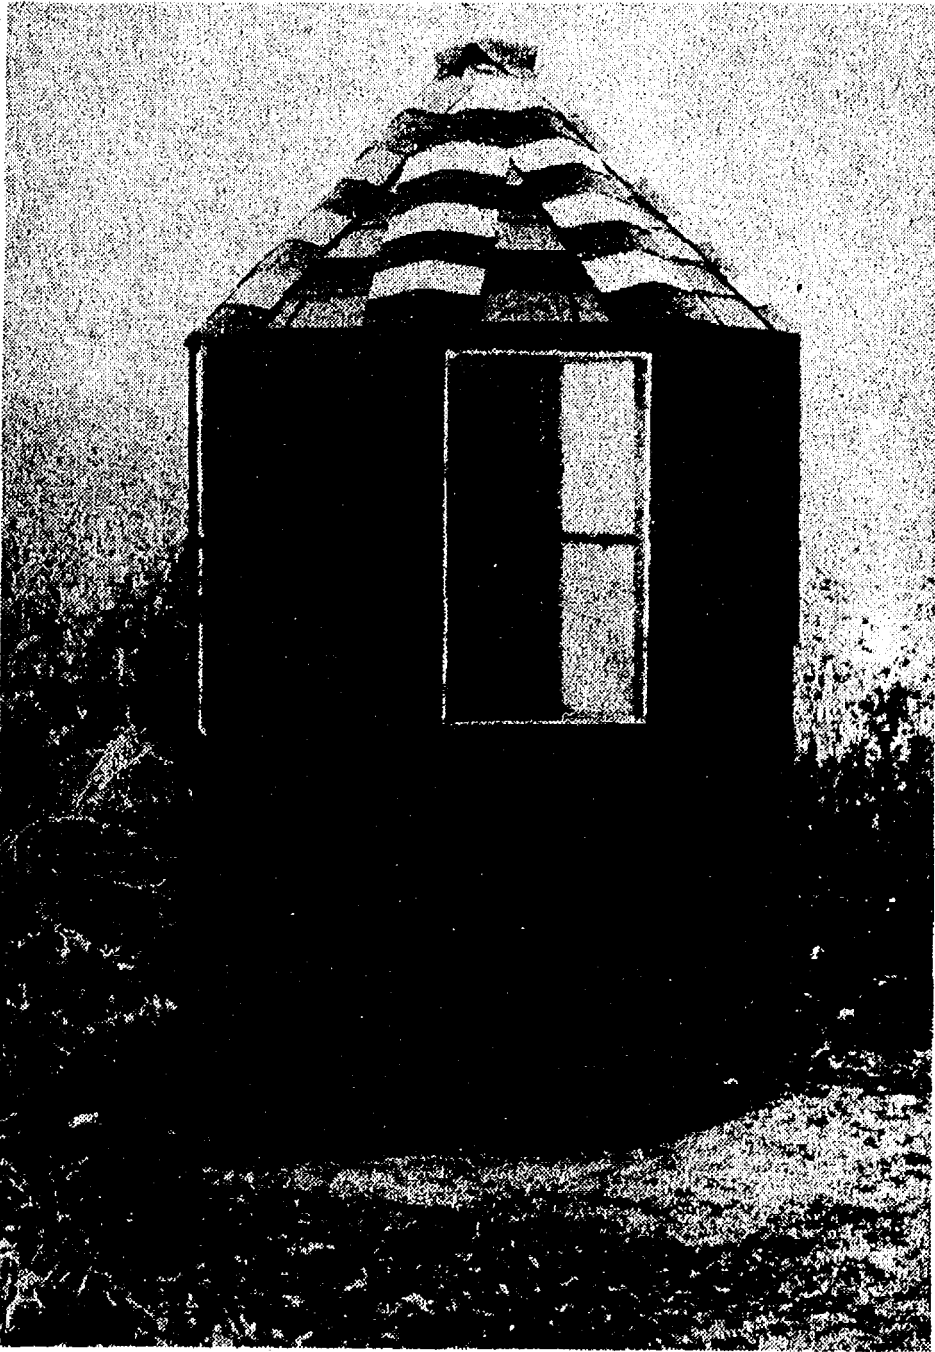

Enrollment in the introductory course has declined substantially in the past three years, said Williams. Although juniors and seniors have the option of taking a two-hour course in agribusiness through the county consortium, no Chelsea students are taking it this year.

Only 10 students in the county are taking advantage of that consortium course, taught by a Milan teacher in Saline.

Minimum enrollment to keep a Chelsea High school course is 15 students, said Williams. Agriculture is the only course at this time which "obviously" has low enrollment.

Students should receive their curriculum books for next year Monday, March 7. If a student chooses an elective which cannot meet minimum enrollment, he is informed of this by counselors before registration the week of May 23.

At the beginning of each term there is also a two-week grace period for class enrollments. Courses other than agriculture could be dropped prior to registration or after the beginning of either the fall or spring terms next year, he said.

Out-Houses Come in Many Styles, Sizes

Out-houses of a different sort are sprouting in front of homes along rural roads in west Washtenaw county.

Their function is not at all like that of their predecessors, which made-do for plumbing back in the "good old days."

Nor is their location the same. Privies were usually put somewhere "out back," in as inconspicuous a place as possible. While people weren't exactly ashamed of their outdoor toilets, because everybody had to have one, they didn't show them off.

Today's out-houses are placed in front of the home, close to the road. Their purpose is to provide shelter for children waiting for school buses.

It can get mighty windy and cold out there in the darkness of early morning while watching for the bus to come along. A place to be inside is comforting, especially if it's blowing, snowing, sleeting, raining or whatever else Michigan weather can serve up.

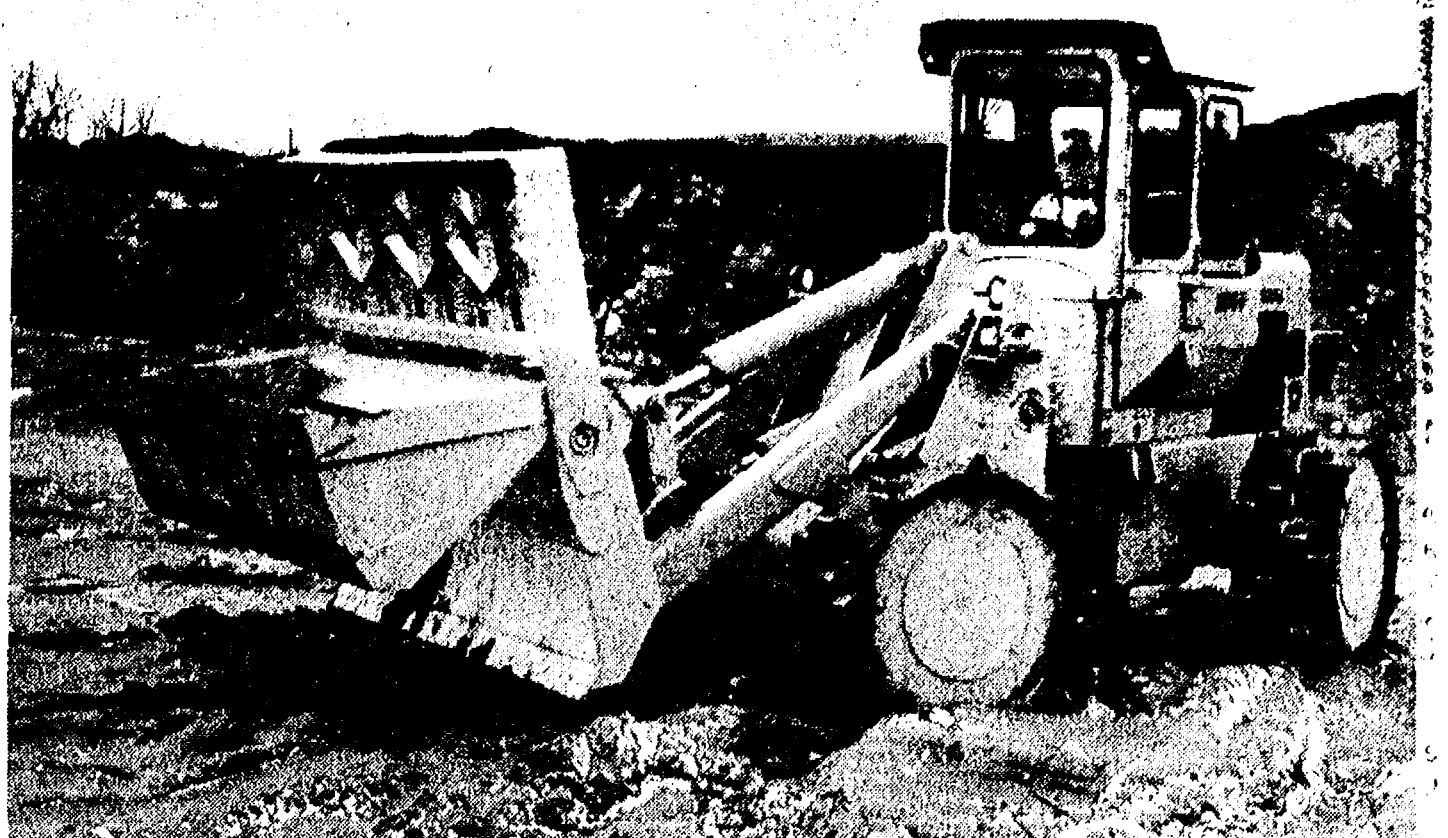

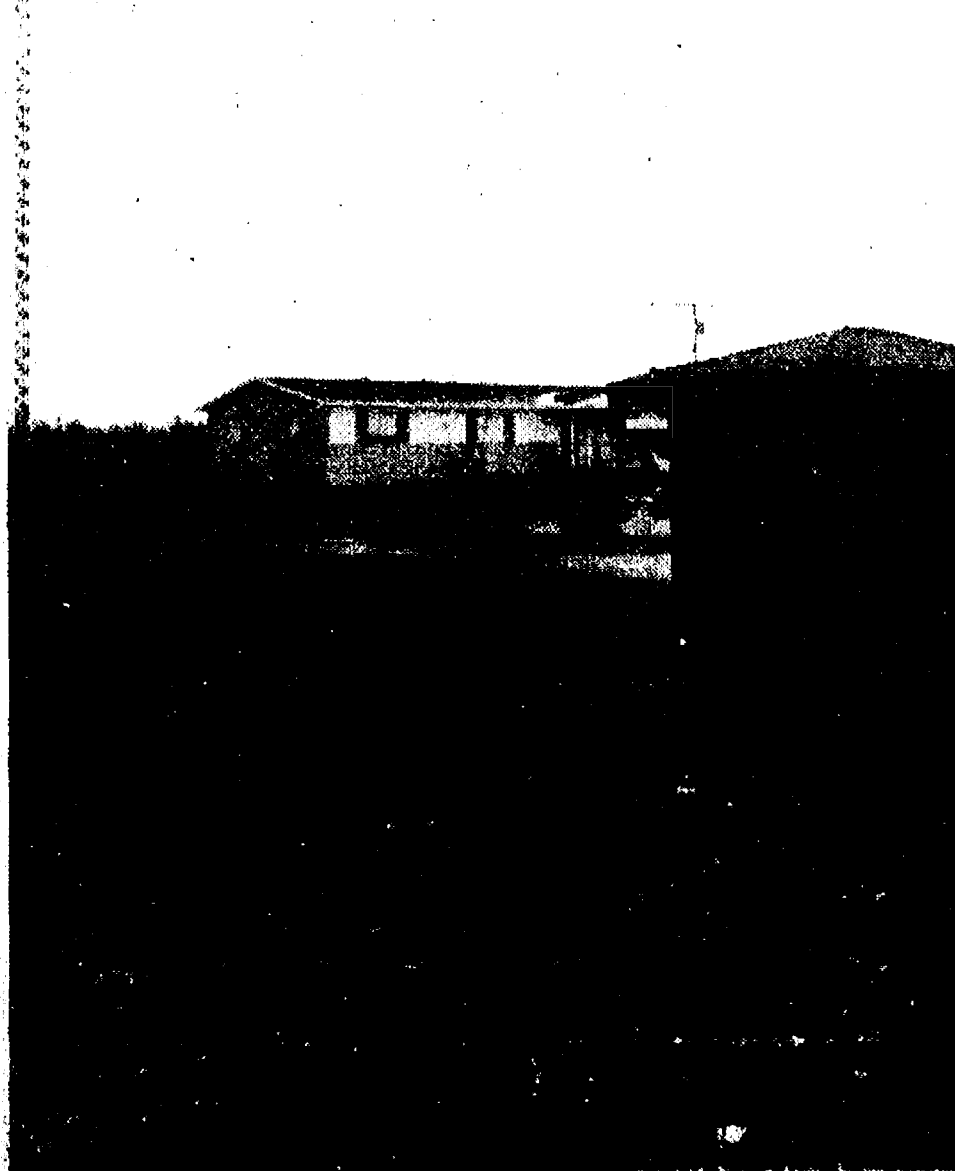

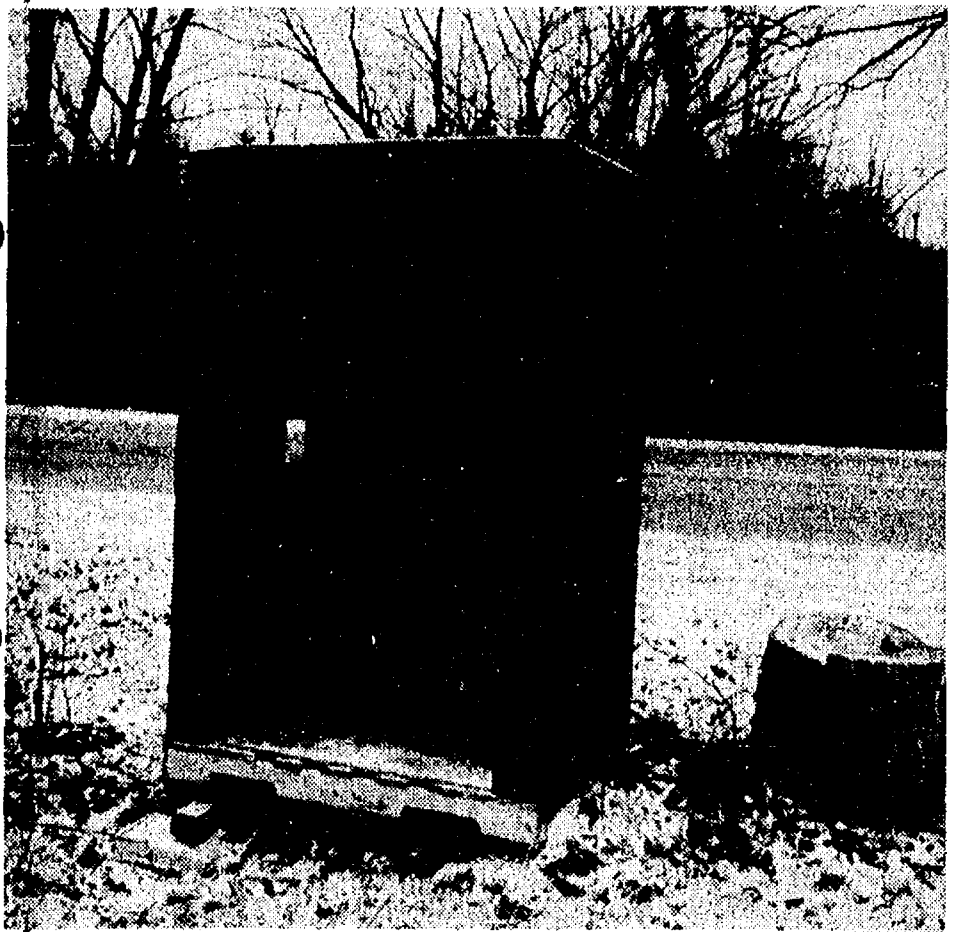

The old-fashioned out-houses were, for the most part, starkly functional in design and construction. They differed mostly in size.

There were one-holers, two-holers and, in the case of a large family, an occasional three-holer. A few show-offs put up two-story affairs, an extraordinary demonstration of one-upmanship (or perhaps two-upmanship depending on the capacity of the upper chamber).

Today's school bus huts show a remarkable variety of architectural ingenuity. Builders obviously seek to make them blend in with the surroundings and be an integral part of the property.

Many of them are downright handsome, a tribute to the imagination of their designers. That just may be because these new out-houses are the first thing that a passerby sees in walking or driving past a home on a country road.

Several examples are shown in the accompanying photographs.

BIGGER AND BETTER: The "new" compactor at the Chelsea landfill is on the job and working well. Actually, it is a second-hand machine that the village bought at a bargain price of $42,000, compared to the $140,000 cost of a new one. Driver Cecil Clouse says the compactor is much more efficient than the piece of equipment it replaced. It is specifically designed for a landfill operation, and therefore allows tighter packing of waste materials into the ground. "This machine will make our landfill site last longer," Clouse said. "We can put more material into less space."

NCA Evaluation Report Studied By Board, Staff

The visit and written evaluation of Chelsea High school made by 19 educators for the North Central Association, a 17-state accrediting body, were both very thorough and valuable, said John Williams, high school principal.

Yet some suggestions and comments in this seven year evaluation should be taken with a grain of salt, since they are based on incomplete information gathered in just two days, hearsay or would require money, money, money.

Copies of the written report on the visit made Nov. 30 - Dec. 2 were given to school board members at their Feb. 7 meeting. Two copies of the report are also available for the public to read or check out at the high school media center. (It's 40 pages long and tough reading.)

A passing reference was made to the proposed change in English requirements from 3 years to 3½ years—but there are no such changes planned, said John Williams, high school principal.

One team member commented on the school's "inconsistent discipline." All the 10 NCA evaluations Williams has been involved with, have mentioned that.

"On the staff we have discipline hawks, doves and middle of the roaders," he said, so any visitor talking with those different groups would come away with such an impression. The school does have a code of conduct published in the student handbook and offers a choice of punishment for many offenses.

Setting up an intramural program was also suggested. Williams, who had been employed at a school with a very strong intramural program, tried to start one when he came here in 1977 and asked about intramurals in a 1980 survey.

About 20 out of 800 students came to the organizational meeting. So many students ride buses and work; the lunch hours are short, gym time scarce, and Chelsea Recreation Council offers a wide selection of Saturday programs, that Chelsea High school couldn't support such a program, he said.

The team made valuable suggestions, such as having a vent to the outside for the kiln in the art room.

That improvement has been budgeted for this year, said Williams. He has asked a consultant from the department of labor to visit the school soon to assess other suggestions such as better storage for chemicals, an eye wash and shower in the chemistry lab, and a buzzer or some way to easily contact the office from the gymnasium, chem room and shop classrooms.

They also suggested re-evaluating supplemental salaries for teachers who are student activity advisors. That is done with salary negotiations with the teachers' union, said Williams. Advisors' roles have changed recently and some student groups have gotten much more active, requiring much more time from their advisors.

Video 'Addiction' May Lead Children Into Other Problems

Parents shouldn't worry about children who spend a small part of their time playing video games, says a Michigan State University psychologist. However, video "addiction" can cause problems, he says.

"There is no scientific evidence that video play increases violent or aggressive behavior in children," says Gary Stollak. "But if they're playing video games several hours a day, four or more days a week, I'd be concerned."

The shortage of textbooks in foreign language classes was noted. Enrollment had fluctuated, said Williams, and a new textbook order was made shortly before the review.

The curriculum reviewer suggested adding more cultural and ethnic diversity to courses. Topics related to that issue are covered in the elective current problems, said Williams, but Chelsea's population is not as diverse as Ann Arbor's is. There is less demand for courses such as black literature than a high school in Ann Arbor would have.

Security problems with library materials were mentioned. Annual replacements of books lifted are so discouraging, said Williams. That money should be going into expanding the collection instead.

An electronic security system, such as at the Ann Arbor public library and University of Michigan libraries would cost more than $10,000, he said, and would require personnel time to enforce it.

Other such nice but expensive improvements were constructing an addition to the music department, improving the auditorium's acoustics, more blackboards in mathematics classrooms and expansion of the girls locker room.

The report has been given to staff members to read. Williams will meet with staff by departments to decide how valid recommendations are and to make short and long-term priorities. He will have to make a progress report to the NCA at the end of the 1983-84 school year.

Elective Courses Fight To Survive

In these days of declining enrollments, teachers of high school electives are going to have to recruit students for their courses to keep their jobs.

"If there are only five students in your course," said John Williams, high school principal, "you aren't going to be teaching it very long."

Williams recommended dropping the introductory course in agriculture to the school board Feb. 21. It had five students.

In the days when teaching was a boom business, teachers could get by teaching whomever came through the door, he said. They didn't have to worry about making presentations to eighth graders and writing up flyers about the merits of drafting, calculus, advanced sewing or the Russian novel.

Promotion is not new to schools and teachers, he said, but in the baby boom days, it was just more subtle.

He remembers a popular teacher of a radio television course at his Lansing area high school asking him in the hall one day, "Going to take my course next year?"

Coaches often say to a promising athlete, "Come out for the team and give it a shot."

The written evaluation of the high school done by the North Central Association, a regional accrediting body, complimented several departments on their promotion efforts.

Some departments, such as music, do it almost too well. In these days of tight construction money, they need more storage, individual rehearsal rooms, and group rehearsal rooms. About 31 percent of the student body is taking either a vocal, band or orchestral course.

A course's future is also influenced by social trends a teacher cannot control. Enrollment in the South and West Washtenaw consortium course on agribusiness is only 10 students.

Yet other trends work for certain teachers and certain departments.

Foods I is a very popular course at Chelsea High school. Half the student body takes the course some time during their high school career, said Beverly Martin, home economics teacher. Many students taking the course are boys anticipating the trend towards later marriages.

Electives which students going on to college would take, such as higher level math and foreign languages, have strong enrollments too.

Each department makes a presentation to eighth graders at Beach Middle school prior to high school registration. That assembly is a chance for a department to give both basic information about courses and requirements, said Williams, but to also get students excited about the classes offered.

A course's best advertisement is still word of mouth, he said.

That is where a well-taught course pays off in a teacher's job security.

Business News Is Encouraging

Most economists are venturing cautious opinions that the American economy has turned the corner and is getting stronger. That forecast is borne out by business events in the Chelsea area during the past six months. There are a lot of upbeat signs and only a few worry spots locally.

As early as last September there were a couple of indicators that the local economy might be getting off a sluggish dead-center and that business people were starting to think of opening new enterprises or expanding old ones.

Tregets Tool & Engineering Co. announced that it wants to move into the former Riemenschneider two-cycle fuel plant on Old US-12 because it needs to grow. The move is still hung up in a zoning conflict, and may or may not happen.

The Begres family opened a new cider mill at Lakeview Farm on Island Lake Rd.

The event that triggered a more or less continuous stream of "good news" business stories into The Standard ever since was Chelsea Milling Company's announcement on Oct. 5 that it plans to build a new manufacturing plant on land bought from the Chelsea Lumber Co. on N. Main St. just north of the Conrail tracks.

The lumber company, in turn, has moved into brand new quarters on Old Barn Circle south of town, with a sales area twice the size of the old one and other facilities in proportion.

Since then, these things have happened, in no attempted order of importance or sequence:

The Faist-Morrow automobile agency obtained a Chevrolet franchise to go along with its Buick and Oldsmobile agencies. That put Chevrolet back into the local auto sales picture after a lapse following closing of the old Bob Silva agency. It had seemed kind of wrong that America's largest-selling line of automobiles couldn't be bought here.

Honegger's & Co. built a giant new silo at their Dexter Rd. site, adding to their existing grain storage facilities. The 100-foot tower will hold 125,000 bushels of corn.

The North American Exploration Co., an oil and gas prospecting firm, announced plans to build a new office building on S. Main St. across from Pierce Park. A site plan has been approved by village officials, but construction has not yet begun.

The local "doctors investment group" (Chelsea Medical Clinic Building Corp.) bought the old Chelsea Spring plant (more recently owned by Rockwell International), announced plans to try to lease it, and applied for tax abatement based on 50 percent or more remodeling. Nothing outwardly noticeable has happened since, but the group is not known for making bad investments. Nor is it known for revealing its intentions until it chooses to.

The Pump 'n' Pantry convenience store and gas station on S. Main St. wants to expand its operation and has threatened to sue the village if permission continues to be denied. The problems are space and traffic. The planning commission says the site isn't suited to what the Gallup-Silkworth Oil Co. would like to do.

The Chelsea Methodist Retirement Home announced an $8.6 million expansion program and awaits approval from the Michigan Department of Public Health before breaking ground on a complex of new buildings including a major addition to its nursing home capacity. A go-ahead is expected some time this month.

Two local firms of attorneys—Kusch & Flintoft, and Rademacher & Musbach—have carried out extensive office remodeling projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Eisele have announced plans to open a new convenience store on N. Main St. in a building formerly used by Chelsea Industries for storage.

Dial-A-Garden Topics Listed

Dial-A-Garden, the system of pre-recorded daily gardening tips, is sponsored by the Washtenaw County Co-operative Extension Service. The system is in operation 24 hours per day, seven days per week. Interested persons are invited to call 971-1122 at their convenience and receive timely, up-to-date gardening information.

Tuesday, March 1—"Supplies for Starting Seeds Indoors."

Wednesday, March 2—"Keep Your Seedlings Healthy and Growing."

Thursday, March 3—"Conserving Nutrients When Cooking Vegetables."

Friday, March 4—"Are Last Year's Seeds Still Good?"

Monday, March 7—"Bright Flowers for a Gray Month."

The green light awaits submission of an acceptable site plan.

Land owner and developer Marvin Salyer wants to construct a 42-unit multiple dwelling project on the southwest side of the village. The proposal is especially significant in view of the fact that no building permit for a new residence of any kind has been issued in Chelsea since 1980.

Milo Vogel has purchased what used to be Rick's Market on M-52 south of Werkner Rd. and plans to reopen it this spring, as soon as alcoholic beverage licenses are transferred. The business has been closed and the building vacant for two years.

A new market featuring fresh produce will open March 4 on Park St. on the lower level of the Chelsea Litho building. Mr. and Mrs. Keith Kental and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Koch will run the business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ike Kozminski, local dairy farmers and property owner-managers, have announced plans to build a 600,000-hen "egg factory" near Stockbridge. While the project will be of most benefit to Stockbridge, it will have some rub-off impact on Chelsea.

On the public works front, the Dana softball complex at Veterans Park on the north edge of the village has been completed and will be ready for play when weather allows.

A $250,000 plan to update Chelsea High school's athletic plant has been announced.

Bad news is also good news in the sense that the owners of the Village Bakery, which was gutted by fire in January, plan to reopen a new and better version of the place as soon as they and their insurers can agree on a settlement.

If you want to speculate on rumors, there is a persistent one floating around town that a new motel will be built at the M-52 interchange on I-94. The idea makes so much sense that it is difficult to discount. The wonder is that somebody didn't put up a motel there 20 years ago; the location midway between Ann Arbor and Jackson appears to be ideal.

There is never, of course, a flow of unmixed good news, and there are some negatives on the local business scene.

There are still some vacant store fronts on downtown Main St.

There is a major problem with the Chelsea sewage treatment plant, and it is serious enough that the proposed Salyer residential development, as one example, could be stymied because of it.

The plant can't handle the present loads sometimes imposed upon it, and does not provide a level of treatment which meets present-day state standards. The village is under state order to expand and modernize the plant and has the engineering blueprints in hand. All it needs is $4.5 million, which is beyond the village's financial capability and is not now in sight from any state or federal grant source.

The state Department of Natural Resources has authority to choke off growth in the village, by denying new sewer connections, until the shortcomings are remedied.

Village officials believe they may be able to solve the overload problem, which is caused by illegal connections that allow storm water to enter the sanitary sewer system, and hope to get at the task this summer.

As noted earlier, several of the proposed projects are being held up for one bureaucratic reason or another, and none of those can be assured as "go" until the problems are resolved.

And, if you want to consider rumors again, there are recurring reports—never acknowledged much less confirmed—that both Dana Corp. and Federal Screw Works are "in trouble" because of the depressed automobile market which is their basic support.

The former Central Fibre plant is operating at a fraction of capacity, including a lease of one large building to a small and struggling brewery.

Putting it all together, the outlook comes down firmly on the optimistic side. Most of the proposed new projects are either certain or all but certain, awaiting only completion of some negotiations or paper work.

What it will all eventually mean to the Chelsea area, especially in terms of future employment opportunities, is impossible to estimate closely at this point, but there seems no doubt some new jobs will be created.

The planners behind the proposed expansions and developments are reluctant to talk about specific numbers of new jobs. As Howard Holmes, president of Chelsea Milling, put it:

"If I were to announce today that we will hire 20 more people when we get our new plant built, we would have 500 applicants outside our door tomorrow. That isn't good for anybody. We don't plan to start construction until May or June, and the number of people we employ will depend on business conditions when we open it."

Obviously, the first group of workers to benefit from the local upturn will be those in the building trades, where unemployment is running about 30 percent.

There is one other factor which is impossible to measure, much less evaluate, but there undoubtedly is a significant amount of local sentiment against further growth of any kind. Such feelings are held by persons who sincerely want to see Chelsea stay "as is" while development goes on someplace else.

"It's a real issue, and you can't ignore it," said one long-time resident and prominent citizen who asked not to be named. "I admit to sharing some of that anti-development feeling. Chelsea is a very nice little town, a special place in many ways. The quality of life here is exceptional, something you just don't find in a large city."

"I think you are going to see every growth and development proposal challenged and questioned, and some are going to be turned down. It will be a gradual process. Don't look for anything to happen fast in Chelsea. It never has, and I don't think it ever will."

TASTE BUDS of Chelsea residents are in for a treat as Chelsea Girl Scouts distribute 13,032 boxes of scrumptious cookies. Those who did not order have an opportunity to do so. Junior Troop 719 will be awaiting purchases at Polly's, on Saturday, March 5, and possibly on Friday, March 11, after school. All other requests or comments should be directed to Roberta Hinz, Chelsea Cookie chairman, 475-8211.

Monte Carlo Night Planned Saturday at Legion Home

Thursday night six prominent Chelsea citizens met in the back room of a local bank to plan a multimillion dollar gambling scheme involving the use of counterfeit money. In addition, an undetermined number of well known Chelsea merchants have been linked to the affair.

The event, known as Monte Carlo Night, will take place on the evening of Saturday, March 5 at the American Legion Post 31 Home, 1700 Ridge Rd., Cavanaugh Lake. It will be jointly sponsored by the Legion and the Chelsea Rod and Gun Club. Planners of the event, who gathered at the bank office meeting, were Rolly Spaulding, Pat Merkel, Verne Salsburg, Al Keezer, Bob Bauer and Loren Heller.

The Monte Carlo gambling action is set to begin at the card and dice tables at 8 p.m. and will be climaxed early Sunday morning with an auction of prizes donated by local business people.

Each player will begin the evening with $1,000,000 in Monte Carlo money. Winnings may be used in a gift auction gavelled by Loren Heller. Among the gifts and services on the auction block will be:

A family airplane ride piloted by Senior Captain Jim Manning of United Airlines

Five dinners for two at the Chelsea Woodshed Eatery

One demolition derby car from Tom Dault and Bill Miller of Urban Motor Sales

Free rabies shot for your dog (or spouse) by Doctors Lane and Tremper

$20 gift certificate from Strieter's Men's Store

Black & Decker work bench from Chelsea Lumber

One case of choice wines from Stivers

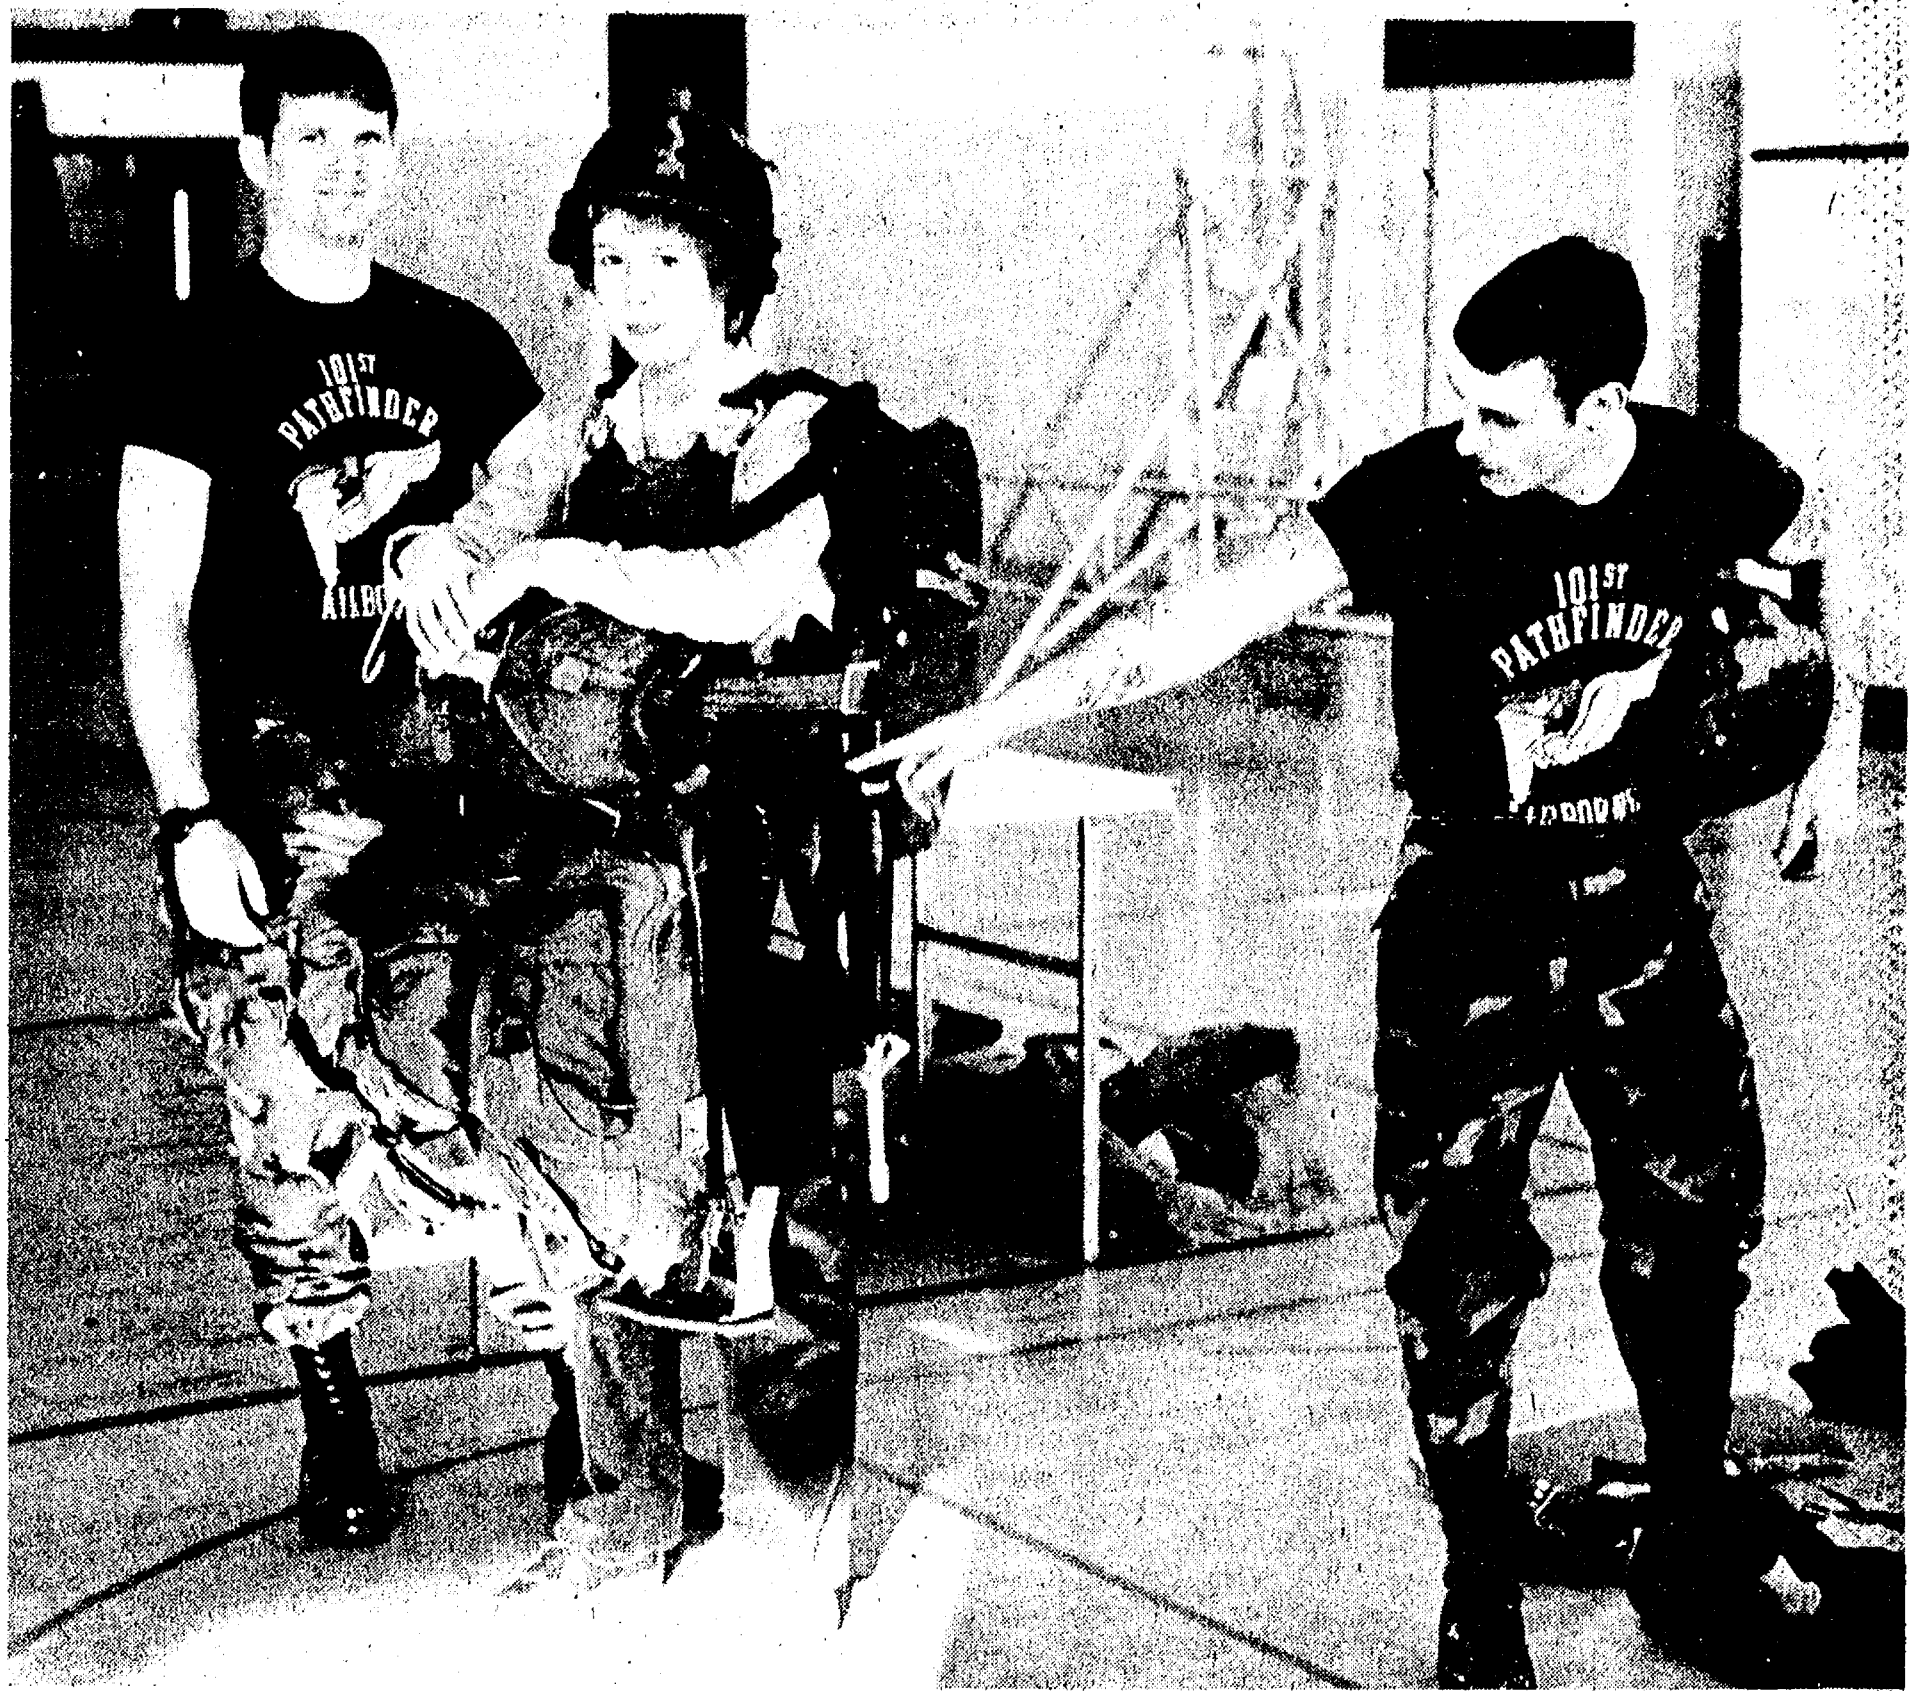

Four prime rib dinners at the Wolverine Bar

50-foot extension cord from Heller Electric.

There will also be additional prizes donated by merchants which will be awarded to lucky ticket stub holders.

Every adult man and woman in or around Chelsea is invited to enjoy Monte Carlo Night. Tickets may be bought at the door or purchased in advance from Strieter's Men's Store or the Chelsea office of Ann Arbor Trust.

The March 5 event will have the sanction of the Michigan Department of Lottery. Proceeds will be used by Rod and Gun Club members to support their conservation activities and by the Legion for its programs in patriotism and citizenship.

Sgt. Jim Thorton gave a paratrooper demonstration to physical education classes at the high school during their two-week tour of Michigan. Their demonstration was part of a school program on physical skills needed in careers and recreation. Other skills already demonstrated include the martial arts of karate and judo, weight lifting and body building.

Old Penny Uncovered in Excavating

Jerry Foley thought he might have struck gold when he picked up an 1888 Indian head penny while working on a gas line construction project in Chelsea late last fall.

Foley lives at 15900 Eusades Rd., Manchester, and works for Michigan Trenching Service, the firm which replaced leaky gas mains along N. Main St. last November under a contract with Michigan Consolidated Gas Co.

After one day's digging, there was a heavy rain overnight, and next morning Foley found the penny lying in the street gutter. He supposes it had been buried under the freshly excavated soil and was exposed by the rain which washed away the covering dirt.

"I spotted it and picked it up, saw that it was an Indian head penny, and was easily able to read the 1888 date," Foley said. "It's in real good condition. Copper doesn't rust easily."

"I took the penny home and didn't think anything more about it, but my wife got interested and wondered how long it might have been buried there. She thought the coin might possibly be as old as the village of Chelsea."

It isn't. Chelsea will celebrate its sesquicentennial (150 years) next year. The penny is less than 100 years old. How it got where it was will never be known. Somebody probably dropped it sometime before the lumber company set up shop there 60 years ago.

Foley asked a reporter for The Standard if he had any idea what the penny might be worth, and the reporter contacted a coin dealer in Ann Arbor.

"If it's in excellent condition, it has a catalog value of about a dollar," the dealer said. "There were a lot of 1888 Indian head pennies minted, and there are still a great many of them around, although in collections and not in circulation. He might better keep it as a souvenir than try to sell it."

Given the information, Foley said he intends to do just that.

RAPPELLING is used by paratroopers and recreational climbers alike to descend cliffs, but paratroopers also use the climbing technique to go down walls and descend from helicopters. Staff Sgt. Jim Thorton of the U.S. Army's 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky., demonstrated rappelling from the Chelsea High school gymnasium ceiling to the floor for physical education classes

INTRODUCING THE BEST IRA BONUS OFFER IN TOWN:

UP TO $80* IN CASH. UP FRONT.

There are several IRA bonus plans being offered right now. And some of them sound pretty good. But work them out on paper, and you'll discover that Ann Arbor Trust beats them all with a 2% up-front cash bonus PLUS 10% interest.**

Let's take an example:

Suppose you and your spouse both work, and that you each deposit $2000 into an IRA. In that case, we would automatically add $80 to your total deposit. Then we'd pay you high, tax-deferred, compounded interest on all that money. All year long. And with maturities ranging from 18 months to five years. (With other plans, you'd get higher short-term interest and no cash added to your deposit.)

If you open your IRA before the April 15th deadline, you can deduct the entire amount of your deposit from your 1982 taxable income.

So before you invest your hard-earned money in an IRA that just sounds good, call Ann Arbor Trust today at 994-5555. We'll show you—in black and white—how our cash bonus beats any other offer in town.

*Based on maximum initial contributions of $2000 for a married couple with two incomes. Offer applies to new IRA customers only and ends April 15, 1983. Withdrawal prior to age 59½ incurs substantial tax penalty except for death or disability. Early withdrawal from any certificate of deposit incurs substantial interest penalty.

**Applies to Fixed Rate Certificates.

Going into this week's windup games, Northwest was 6-12, Lumen Christi 6-13, Tecumseh 8-10, Dexter 9-10, and Chelsea 12-6.

The seventh graders lost to Saline, 1-5, 16-14, 3-15, Feb. 24 away. Peggy Hammerschmidt showed great improvement and was aggressive in going after the ball, said Miss Martin. Leah Enderle had a good serving net.

The Bullsups led by 10 at the half but ran into a cold spell at the foul line, missing a number of one-and-one attempts, which let Lincoln close the gap and eventually win on the last-second referee's whistle.

The state meet is a two-day affair stretching over Friday and Saturday. Kargel and his four pupils will leave for Big Rapids after school on Thursday.

The first federal legislation assuring a pension to workers in private industry was the Railroad Retirement Act. This provision was enacted in 1935, according to a publication of the U.S. Department of Labor, "Labor Firsts in America."

Boys Swim Team Wins Chelsea Invitational

Chelsea boys swimming team won the Chelsea Invitational Feb. 24 with 60 career best and several record times. Now 18 of 27 team members have qualified for the state meet March 11-12 at Grand Rapids Junior College.

Chelsea had 369 points; Monroe, who had beaten Chelsea in a dual meet earlier in the season, 298; Fordson, 207; River-view, 167; Dundee, 97; Lincoln, 50.

Ted Merkel broke the oldest varsity record, the 100 breaststroke, set by Dave Nicola in 1960. Sean Oxner broke the varsity record in the 500 free and also set a meet record in that event. The 400 free relay team of Brent Bauer, Don Skiff, John Drew and Oxner set a meet record.

Craig Miller broke the oldest freshman record, the 100 backstroke, set by John Robbins in 1979. Only the lead-off swimmer on a relay may set a record with his split time, since he is the only one starting with a gun. Miller set a freshman record with his 50 backstroke split on the medley relay.

Dan Degener set a freshman record in the 500 freestyle.

Team members recorded 12 state meet qualifying times, and 10 state meet consideration times. If fewer than 24 swimmers make the qualifying time, those with consideration times may get the chance to swim. Event length determines what the consideration time is.

Homefront Computers

A Michigan State University specialist who has been following the rapidly expanding computer industry says that by the 1990's there won't be a job that doesn't require at least some work with computers.

"Everybody doesn't need one yet, and there will never be a computer in every home," says Irene Hathaway, a specialist in MSU's Department of Family and Child Ecology, "but the growth of the industry is phenomenal and will ultimately affect the majority of families."

SWIMMERS OF THE WEEK are Randy Hampton, standing on pool edge, Garret Carlson, seated on the block, Tim Dmoch, standing in the water, and James Freyre. Hampton is a freshman in his first year of competitive swimming. He swims all strokes and has made much progress this season, according to the coaching staff. Carlson, a senior breaststroker and freestyler, has also improved a great deal since he joined the team in December. Dmoch, also a senior in his first year on the team, specializes in breaststroke and freestyle. He is "Mr. Enthusiasm," making him a valuable asset to the team. Freyre, a sophomore in his first year on the team, swims free, backstroke and butterfly, and definitely has a bright future in Bulldog swimming.

Swimmers Set 2 New Freshman Relay Records

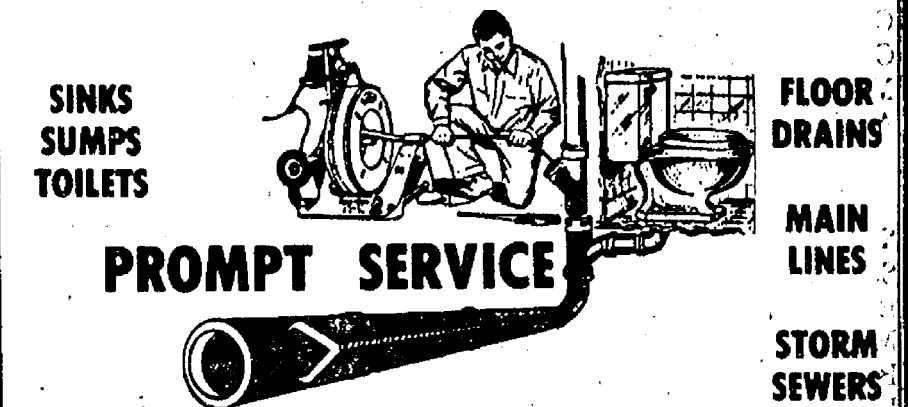

Bulldog boy swimmers set two new freshman relay records in time trials Feb. 23.

Craig Miller, Dan Degener, Scott Pryor and Mark Westhoven set a 200 medley relay record of 1:57.9. The old record of 1:58.1 was held by Mike Carignan, Mike Coffman, Brent Bauer and Don Skiff.

Scott Pryor, Paul Robbins, Craig Miller and Dan Degener set a 400 free relay record of 3:55.5. The old record of 3:57.4 was held by Brent Bauer, Bob Murray, Mike Coffman and Don Skiff.

OUT IN THE OPEN

By BILL MULLENDORE

English sparrows (house sparrows), European finches were the subject of last Tuesday's column, in the course of which I mentioned that starlings are the only other species of unprotected bird in Michigan. Because there is very little else happening "out in the open" in these parts right now, this week's essay is about starlings.

That somewhat negative approach is prompted by the fact that I don't know anything positive to write about starlings. If there is something good to say about them, I invite readers to tell me what it is.

Starlings, like sparrows, got into this country because a homesick Englishman imported them. Why any bird would ever yearn for starlings is beyond my comprehension. The birds have no redeeming virtue that I know of.

They are ugly, dirty, noisy, hysterical, cantankerous creatures with a remarkable capacity to reproduce and create a nuisance. They are highly competitive and drive out other bird species with more desirable characteristics.

Robins, for example, have a tough time co-existing with starlings, because both seek out much the same kind of habitat for nesting and rearing of young. Starlings prey on the eggs and hatchlings of robins and anything else that happens to get into the territory they choose to occupy. (Blue jays do that, too, but they compensate in some part by being pretty to look at.)

Starlings form large flocks in the late summer and fall, sometimes numbering into the tens of and even hundreds of thousands of birds. When such a drove descends upon a locality to feed and roost, it can create problems of dirt, noise and depredation which are kind of hard to believe unless you have experienced them. Mass killing attempts involving poisons, deterrent sprays (which penetrate feathers and cause fatal chilling), gunfire, alarm and distress calls, and some other tactics have been tried at various times and places, none with any notable success.

Starlings are about as indestructible as the Rock of Gibraltar, and that may be their greatest claim to fame. They can multiply and prosper faster than their numbers can be reduced by any method, legal or otherwise, known to human ingenuity and technology.

I write that from some experience, having tried to reduce the starling population in the vicinity of a northern Michigan cottage that I once owned, so that other birds might have a chance to exist there. No matter how many I shot—and I did in quite a few—there were always replacements. When shotgun shells got to costing about a quarter apiece, I gave up. Not only was I getting nowhere, I was going broke.

Many years ago I spent a long and fruitless day in a duck blind, during which I never saw a duck, much less fired a shot at one. As evening came on, flocks of starlings came flying overhead toward a grove of trees behind my blind, which they had picked out for a roost. Each new flock looked to be bigger than the last one.

It was still light enough to see when the legal shooting time for ducks expired. On an impulse born of frustration, I probed my shell vest and found some skeet loads left over from an earlier trip to the target range, put three of them into my 12-gauge pumpgun, twisted the variable choke to wide open, and waited.

Sure enough, another flock of starlings came along. I stood up and unloaded into the thick of them.

Flock shooting is not normally a profitable pursuit. The spaces between birds are much bigger than the birds. Fire into a flight of ducks or a covey of quail, without picking out a single bird as a target, and you most likely will hit nothing but empty air or, worse, scratch a cripple.

This instance proved the exception to that rule. Those starlings were so densely packed that there was no way to miss. For a few seconds after my three-shot salvo, the sky rained birds. I picked up 23 and probably failed to find a few more.

Believing in the ethic that a hunter should put to use whatever he shoots, I carried the starlings home and dressed them, saving the skinned-out breasts. The meat was as dark and unappetizing-looking as the live birds. Memories turned to a Cajun Creole recipe I had used with some success to prepare coots for the table, so I assembled a casserole filled with starling breasts, rice, tomato sauce, onions, file powder and assorted other seasonings.

The result was edible, but just barely, and the rest of the starling breasts went into the garbage can. The blooming things aren't even good to eat.

VOLLEYBALL PLAYERS OF THE WEEK are Leslie Koepf, left, Cindy Connell and Kathy Morris. Koepf, the only junior on the team, plays both front and back row. She has really improved this season and gained a lot of confidence, said coach Cathy Vleck. Connell, a senior setter, is in her first year on the varsity. Last year she helped coach the middle school team, and this year she is the one on the varsity who helps get everyone psyched to play. When she leads warm-ups, she has the team do unusual drills such as cartwheels and somersaults. Morris, a senior setter, is known for her "wicked serve," said Ms. Vleck. Opposing teams have ducked that "bullet," which barely clears the net, instead of trying to play it. She had 13 service points in the match against Dexter last week.

Area Students Earn Advanced Degrees at EMU

Ann G. O'Hagan of 17320 Roe Rd., Chelsea, master of science.

Catherine E. Dickman of 17900 Dexter Tr., Gregory, master of arts.

Psychologist Offers Happiness Tips

Most people are never taught how to live satisfying lives, says a Michigan State University psychologist who has written a new book, "Dynamics of Power: Building a Competent Self."

Gershen Kaufman, a professor in MSU's Counseling Center, says people are rarely taught to value themselves, feel competent and control their own lives.

"Our culture teaches us to look outside ourselves for our self-worth and adequacy—to friends, our jobs and material goods like houses, clothes and cars," says Kaufman.

In his book, Kaufman offers a framework for building self-worth and developing a sense of power in life. He says a crucial aspect of the process is learning which sources of powerlessness in our culture are within our control and which are beyond it.

Manchester Residents Team Will Meet Police Hockey Team

Former Detroit Red Wing hockey star Ted Lindsay will skate with a group from Manchester against the Washtenaw county police hockey team at 7 p.m. Friday, March 11, at Yost Arena in Ann Arbor. Optimistically named the Raisin River Flyers, the Manchester team is hoping to turn the tables after two consecutive losses in the annual contest.

The game is sponsored by the Manchester Athletic Boosters. Tickets may be purchased from Manchester Police Chief Wm. Zsenyuk or the Gambles store in Manchester, Washtenaw Sheriff's Department, or at the door.

No Extension for PIK Deadline

The March 11 PIK deadline will not be extended.

Farmers have only a few weeks left to sign up for the payment-in-kind program. The sign-up period ends March 11, and will not be extended, according to Lori Hunker, ASCS county executive director.

"Farmers will not have an opportunity to change their mind and sign up after this deadline. However, those who have already enrolled and those who enroll before March 11 will have the option of withdrawing or changing their enrollment without penalty provided it is done before enrollment ends," Hunker said.

Six Area Churches Will Honor Christian Educators
Christian educators from six of the churches in the Chelsea area will be honored at the St. Paul United Church of Christ on Thursday, March 3, at 7:30 p.m.

The activity, known as the Christian Educators Ecumenical Celebration, will bring the educators together for a time of fellowship, sharing and inspiration.

Invited as guests for this special evening will be church school teachers, youth counselors, pastors, and members of the boards of christian education of the participating churches.

The churches are First Congregational United Church of Christ, First United Methodist, North Lake United Methodist, St. Barnabas Episcopal, St. Paul United Church of Christ, and Zion Evangelical Lutheran church.

A highlight of the ecumenical celebration will be a talk by Mrs.

MRS. BEVERLY W. RICE

Beverly W. Rice, project director in Christian education for the Port Huron district and director/manager for the Skills on Wheels of the Detroit Conference of the United Methodist Church. She will speak on "... he loved them 'til the end."

In her position as project director, Mrs. Rice provides Christian Education training for church school teachers, consults with church education committees, and maintains a resource center of current materials for Christian education.

For more than 30 years she has taught church school, working with all ages from nursery through adult, including youth confirmation and counseling. She is presently working toward certification as an adult leader for lab schools and Christian education certification through Garrett-Evangelical Theological Seminary in Evanston, Ill.

She feels very strongly about the worth of Christian education and will share some of her personal experiences and joys with her audience.

The committee planning this ecumenical event is made up of Kathy Young of St. Paul church, Marge Shumaker of North Lake church, LuAnn Heller of Zion Lutheran church, and Jane Schairer of First United Methodist church.

More than 50 percent of all fatal highway crashes involving two or more cars are alcohol-related.

Zion Lutheran Choir Offering Choral Concert

Carl Loeffler and Robert Miller, both of Chelsea and tenor and bass, respectively, in the sanctuary choir of Zion Lutheran church of Ann Arbor, will be singing in the choir's performance of J.S. Bach's "Mass in B Minor" at 3 p.m. Sunday, March 6 at the church, 1501 W. Liberty, Ann Arbor.

The choir will be accompanied by orchestra and organ.

Several of the featured performers may be familiar to persons in this area, since many of them have been involved in organ and voice programs at the old Zion Lutheran church at Rogers Corners.

Donald Williams will conduct, and Carol Muehlig will play organ continuo. Soloists will include Jane Becker, soprano; Ann Nispel, soprano; Sonja Page, soprano; Mary Ellen Henkel, alto; Nancy Stevens, alto; Richard Ingram, tenor; David Hoegberg, baritone; and Ron Teigen, bass.

The concert is open to the public. Donation tickets are $2 and are available now at the church office (994-4455) or at the door prior to the performance.

Sesquicentennial Data Being Sought

Chelsea sesquicentennial committee is looking for historical tidbits for their commemorative book to honor Chelsea's 150th birthday, tentatively scheduled to be celebrated June 30 to July 7, 1984.

Community members who have information such as how local businesses started and changed through different owners, the founding families of Chelsea, histories of homes, who had the first baby and the first couple married are encouraged to write it down and mail it to Chelsea Sesquicentennial, 1984, Chelsea, MI 48118.

The committee is also interested in historical anecdotes, such as bad storms, how holidays were celebrated, changes in prices of goods, odd animals born and memories of parades, the fair, and how one learned to read 50 years ago.

Anyone submitting information is asked to include their name and telephone number, so the committee may get further information if they need it.

At the sesquicentennial meeting Feb. 23, those attending were asked to sign up for the following committees: revenue, commemorative book, exhibits, parade, entertainment, youth day, special events, senior citizen day, homes tour, hospitality, souvenirs, and social and neighborhood groups.

Anyone in the community would like to sign up for a committee, may contact Marci Stump at 475-3429.

Gilberto Trevino Dies in Auto Crash

Gilberto Trevino, 32, of 18596 W. Old US-12, Chelsea, was killed early yesterday morning when his pickup truck left Jackson Rd. and struck a bridge over Mill Creek two-tenths of a mile east of Steinbach Rd. in Lima township.

Sgt. Jim Abram of the sheriff's department's Zeeb Rd. station said, as reconstructed, the accident apparently occurred about 3 a.m., but was not discovered until four hours later when daylight made the wreckage visible.

The mangled truck was hidden in a deep ditch and could not have been seen from the road in darkness.

Abram said Trevino was found dead at the scene and probably had been killed instantly.

"It appears that he was driving west on Jackson Rd. at a high rate of speed, ran off the south side of the highway while attempting to round a curve, travelled 450 feet on the shoulder, and smashed into the concrete bridge," Abram said.

The fatality was the eighth in Washtenaw county traffic so far in 1983, as compared to six at this time last year.

Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home is handling funeral arrangements, which were incomplete yesterday.

Sheriff Seeking Warrants For Lyndon Area Thefts

Sheriff's deputies are investigating two Feb. 23 thefts in the area of Lyndon township which they believe may be related, and are seeking warrants against three suspects.

In the first incident, two drive shafts were stolen out of a four-wheel-drive pickup truck parked alongside Hadley Rd. near Wild Goose Lake. The vehicle had been left there by its owner, James A. Polenz of Kaiser Rd., Gregory, because of a flat tire. The shafts were valued at $400, and additional damage of $100 was done in breaking into the truck.

The same day the caretaker of the Shurley campground on Goodroad Rd. accosted three persons who had entered the premises. The camp is owned by the Detroit Board of Education.

The caretaker held the trio at gunpoint with an unloaded shotgun while he questioned them, and then allowed them to leave after getting a description of

A son, Daniel Robert, Feb. 15 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, to Dennis and Madonna Perkins of Saline. Paternal grandparents are Doris and Earl Perkins of Hamburg and formerly of Saline. Maternal grandparents are Joseph and Loretta Marzec of Hamburg and formerly of Chelsea.

Fire Destroys Large Lyndon Twp. Home

Fire destroyed a large one-story frame home at 10250 Joslin Lake Rd. in Lyndon township early Saturday morning with an as yet unestimated but large loss. The house, which was unoccupied at the time, is owned by James Boughton.

The Chelsea fire department received the alarm at 3:49 a.m. and arrived seven minutes later to find the house so far gone up in flames that a save was impossible.

Six units were dispatched from the Chelsea station, and the Dexter fire department was called upon for assistance in bringing additional water.

Cause of the fire is undetermined and remains under investigation. The loss is reported to be covered by insurance.

The 2,200-square-foot dwelling had been vacant since an earlier fire on Feb. 1 which caused heavy smoke but little structural damage. Cause of that blaze is likewise undetermined.

It was the third major house fire fought by the Chelsea department since the beginning of the year and, along with the Villa Bakery fire, brings to four the number of major blazes to which the department has responded so far in 1983. That total is about normal for six months.

Since 1967, MSU students have placed in the top five nationwide in the annual competition sponsored by the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. This is the best record of any participating university.
