celebrated the 38th anniversary of his ordination with a gala dinner given by his parishioners and attended by 365 people on Sunday, Dec. 14 at 1:30 p.m. Father Dupuis studied for the priesthood in Rome, Italy, and was ordained there on Dec. 8, 1951. His first mass was performed in Rome at the side chapel of St. John the Lateran. When people heard a first mass was being celebrated, they hurried to the church because it is considered an bonor to receive communion from a honor to receive communion from a ponor to receive communion from, a priest performing his first mass. In this way, Father Dupuis' first con-gregation was formed. Sunday's dinner was hosted by parish council president, Pat Zangara and her bushed All and

and her husband Al, and parish finance chair, Ed Comeau and his wife, Anne. Master of ceremonies was Francis Grotnert, vice-president of the parish council. The dinner started with a welcome by Pat Zangara who read a poem that she had composed for the occasion.

Three visiting, priests commented on Father Dupuis' career; the Rev. Fr. William Meyer of St. John's Provincial Seminary in Plymouth, the Rev. Fr. Robert Balser of Grand Rapids, and the Rev. Fr. Jerry Odbert of St. Ignatius High school in Cleveland, O. Two other priests sent cleveland, O. Two other priests sent letters of congratulations which were read; Bishop Kenneth Povish of the Lansing diocese, and Rev. Msgr. J. Warren Holleran of Menlo Park, Calif., who like the Rev. Entertainment was provided by B. J. and Kris Hohnke who sang five songs accompanied by LaVonne Harris on the piano. The Hohnkes sang "You Must Have Been a Beautiful Baby," "It Had To Be You," "Bells of St. Mary's," "I Belleve," and "Goodnight Sweetheart," altering many of the words to make them funny or pertinent. They ended the set by leading the whole group in singing to Father Dupuis, "We Wish You a Merry Christmas."

Guests at the event included members of the parish and their children, visiting dignitaries, and three area ministers, the Rev. and Mrs. Irwin Koch, the Rev. and Mrs. Hon Smeenge.

The dinner was held in the gymnasium of St. Mary's school on Congdon with one of the classrooms opened up to hold the overflow. The meal was catered by church parishioner, Micki Hurst and included roast beef, ham, turkey, buttered corn, mashed potatoes with two kinds of gravy, pistachio salad, and a giant decorated anniversary cake.

Strip Malls May Change Look of South Chelsea

A year from now, the intersection of Old US-12 and M-52 may look more like the North Campus area in Ann Ar-bor than Chelsea. If all plans come to fruition, two shopping malls will be located virtually correct the street from each wither shopping malls will be located virtually across the street from each other. Rene Papo, 27, of Ann Arbor, who first announced his plans for a strip mall between Chelsea State Bank and the community fairgrounds on Old US-12 almost exactly a year ago, said last week that there's "no doubt in my mind," that construction on the project will begin early next year. He said he hopes to have site plans ready for the Village Planning Commission's next meeting Jan. 13.

Mike Kennedy, manager of Polly's Market, said he is also on the verge of submitting his site plans for a mall to the commission. It would be located next to Polly's behind Great Lakes Federal Savings.

It's possible both men could have their plans on the planning commis-sion's agenda for January, although Kennedy said the February meeting is more likely for him.

Both parcels are zoned correctly for the projects.

A year ago, Papo secured approval from Chelsea's Economic Development Corp. to issue bonds for the project. Bonds issued through the EDC, but financed by a standard financial institution, are tax-exempt, making the projects of the control of the them more attractive for investors.

By financing through the EDC, Papo should also be able to get financ-

At the time of his announcement last year, Papo was planning a 60,000-square-foot strip mall. The project has since ballooned to 100,000 square feet and he said virtually every square inch of his property will be taken up by the mall. He said it will be approximately half the size of Westgate Mall on the west side of Ann Arbor.

"I have 70,000 square feet committed (to renters)," Papo said last

"My major tenant will use 55,000 square feet."

Papo said his major tenant is a business similar to a K-Mart, but smaller. He declined to name specifically any tenants until the agreements are all in writing.

Once construction begins, Chelsea Community Fair will lose its major parking area conveniently legaled.

Community Fair will lose its major parking area, conveniently located next to the east gate. People attending the fair will have to park elsewhere during the fair week.

"We have been letting them use the land this whole time," Papo said.
"I'm afraid, though, the tenants would scream if we allowed fair parking in the lot."

"We've had more inquiries than we know what to do with." Kennedy said.

"Now it's a matter of choosing who we want in there. I'm still committed to giving Chelsea businesses the first

Kennedy said that the only "outside" business interested in locating is Perry Drugs or Revco Drugs.

Kennedy said he has slowly been ironing out the problems that have prevented him from submitting his site plans earlier. He said the village has made him prove that he will adequately be able to take care of storm water run-off generated by the mall's roof and lot.

"I hired an independent engineer to ake care of that," Kennedy said.

He has also had to deal with the state highway department concerning curb cuts and driveways into the mall, since M-52 is a state road.

Kennedy said two construction com-panies are working on bids and that constructions costs shouldn't be an obstacle to completing the project.

The Standard has changed its for-

From now on our weekly newspaper will have six columns on each page rather than seven.

The change reflects a national trend. Advertisers are using what is called a Standard Advertising Unit to create their ads. That method is designed for a six-column format. Those national ads look a little out of place in a seven-column format.

For the average reader, the change won't mean much. Since the columns won't mean much since the columns are wider, many photographs will be larger. Regular features, such as "View from the Clocktower," and "Sports Notes" may seem a little shorter.

For advertisers, the change may seem like a big deal, but it really isn't.

Suppose, for example, an advertiser requests a two-column, 5-inch ad.

An ad that size will be slightly larger than a two-column, 5-inch ad in the old format because the columns are wider. And it will cost slightly more in the new format because we have just as much space to fill on each

However, the advertiser always has the option of running a slightly shorter ad for the same price. In this case an ad 4% inches high would cost about the same as a 5 inch ad in the old format. And the ad will cover approximately the same number of square inches, again because the columns

Treasury Report Shows
Low Increase in Property Taxes
The Department of Treasury has reported that the increase in property taxes from 1982 to 1985 was the smallest percentage increase since smalest percentage increase since 1945 although property taxes continue to be the largest source of government revenue, providing $5.59 billion to local governments.

Reports released indicate that property taxes made up 38.1 percent of total state and local taxes during fiscal year 1984. providing more fiscal year 1984. providing more fiscal year 1984, providing more revenue than state secome and sales taxes combined.

A report entitled "Property Taxes in Michigan: Rates, Revenues and Relief," also noted that 1985, ad valorem property taxes increased by 4.1 percent, or $219 million, over 1984, the fourth smallest percentage increase in property tax revenue since 1962.

The departmental report further noted that local governments' reliance on property taxes declined from 1975 through 1980, increased in 1981 through 1983 and declined again

The report declared the 1981-83 increased occurred because of a simultaneous decrease in federal intergovernmental aid and state school aid and the relatively large increase in property tax revenue in 1981 and 1982

The 1984 decline in school districts' reliance on property tax was due to an increase in state aid and stable property taxes, the report stated.

The property tax report indicated the 1985 average total property tax rate was 54.47 mills, compared to the 1984 rate of 53.66 mills.

1934 rate of 53.56 mills.

The latest rate exceeds the previous peak of 53.89 mills in 1977. Property values, meanwhile, reached $106.2 billion, an increase of 3.4 percent over 1985. The 1986 state equalized value of residential property increased by only 2.7 percent.

The report also showed senior citizens benefited most from property.

citizens benefited most from property tax rebates in 1984. Nearly 37 percent of all property tax credits, $233 million, was paid out to seniors. In total, 1.4 million Michigan homeowners, farmers and renters received property tax credits totaling $633 million.

The Treasury Department also released another report entitled "Income, Income Tax and Property Tax Credit Data by School District," presenting data from 1984 income tax returns showing income by district, average tax paid before and after credits, ratio of property tax credit claims to income tax returns and verage property tax credits.

The report showed an average 198income of $23,384, with a before and after credit average tax of $1,229 and $1,019, respectively. The average pro-perty tax credit for the year was $453.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Ever now and agin we country folks are reminded that the world ain't so much passing us by as it is staying much passing us by its it is staying more than a few jumps anear of us. Out here we are used to warming twict by firewood, onct when we cut it and agin when we burn it. And we figgered we were really up to date when we got stoves and fireplace inserts with blowers and dampers and air controls that keep the heat in the house and not up the chimley.

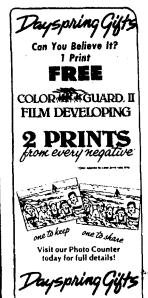

But Clem Webster told the fellers at

But Clem Webster told the fellers at But Clem webster told the reliefs at the store Saturday night that a big item this holiday season is the fireless fireplace fire. Fer folks that have other kinds of home heat, burning wood in fireplaces has been fer looks and sounds and smells. With electric and sounds and smells. With electric logs they can git all that without hauling wood to high rise apartments, without building fires, without smoke and without heat. They just buy a kit that fits real or fake logs, and it looks and rounds like a fire. One outfit in New York City has come out with fireless fire complete with a choice of wood smells, Clem said.

Clem's report got the fellers rolling, Bug Hookum said the fireless remind-ed him of tape recorder hunters. He had saw where a Texas outfit that makes more animal calls than anybody has gone electronic. It perduces taped sounds of everthing, so the hunters don't have to learn to use the callers. They jest flip on their tape players and wait fer the game to come check it out. Like the folks that likes to set around and watch red lights blink-ing in a fireplace, he figgers the taped callers are fer huntless hunters.

Actual, declared Zeke Grubb, not much in this old world can be took at face value. He said he has been foller-ing all the talk about doing away with ing all the talk about doing away with nuclear weapons, and now he reads where that's the last thing some folks in Western Europe want. They're the power linchpin, and they say if there's no risk of nuclear war there's a heap worst risk of regular war, and they're right where it will be. There's even a move in Swisserland to git rid of the standing army so they can't fight. As long as we and Russia have got enough nuclear power to blow up the world we won't, them folks reason. But if we take away the threat of But if we take away the threat of nuclear war we invite the other kind, in their thinking.

10015: Mos. Hou Pri., 9 s.m. 8:30 p.s Sel., 9 s.m. 5:39 p.m. Sus., 12:5 p.m

Farthermore, Zeke said, the same game is being played all over the country in choosing places to put nuclear waste. We know if we keep using nuclear energy we got to do somepun with nuclear garbage, but we want it done somewhere else. Right now, Zeke had saw where Nevada, Texas and Washington were Nevada, Texas and Washington were in top spots fer the dishonor of having the next Federal nuclear waste dump. All are arguing hard fer the others and agin theirselves, Zeke said, and the same thing is happening in other parts of the country where states have agreed to take turns building low-large nuclear waste dumps and then agreed to take turns smoothing low-level nuclear waste dumps and then can't agree on when their turns come. This is a new twist on the old game of building yourself up by tearing the other feller down, was Zeke's words.

Practical speaking, Ed Doolittle declared, he liked positive thinking. Like he had saw where Lincoln City, Ore. is calling itself the World Kite Capital, Metropolis, Ill, is gitting a lot of ink out of adopting Superman, and a country store in Vance County, N. C. is calling itself the Rook Capital of the South Inst decide what you want to South. Just decide what you want to be and be it, was Ed's thinking.

Some last minute gift suggestions

There is still time to give just a few more things in the real spirit of Christmas. And all they cost is a little of you. You can probably think of many more, but these are just a few suggestions to start with.

- ★ Ask someone who's far from home (or has no home to share your Christmas dinner
- ★ Use your mistletoe generously
- Say thank you a lot
- Take one of your favorite presents to that kid in your class you suspect Santa might miss
- Take a thermos of hot chocolate to your school crossing guard
- Pick someone up and take them with you to Christmas services
- Put out bread crumbs for the birds and nuts for the sauirrels -
- Pull out your mother's chair for her when she sits down to dinner
- Offer to say 'grace' yourself
- Invite someone who has no fireplace over to enjoy yours
- Help the little kids in your neighborhood build their first snowman (if there's snow)
- Tell someone you love them

A VIEW from the CLOCK TOWER

By Will Connelly

The popular enjoyment of wines by Americans has long been clouded by confusion and pretensions which are rooted in the aristocracy of French chateaus. For one thing, there is the notion that wine is consumed, by cultured people only in connection with food.

Thus we find that there are appetizer wines, table wines or dinner wines and dessert wines.

Strangely enough, the dessert wines are favored by winos who have no objection to getting drunk in ghetto alleys without food. Their preference for dessert wines is economic; there is more bang for the buck. Dessert wines such as muscatel, port or sherry are fortified with brandy so that the alcohol content is close to 20 percent compared to table wines averaging 12 percent.

We have no hang-ups about food when it comes to spirits or suds. It is perfectly okay to eat dill pickles with scotch or Miller Lite with minced clams, but red wines must be served with red meat and white wines with fish or fowl. What if you just want wine alone? Nothing doing unless you are willing to celebrate with spicey champagne or sparkling burgundy.

Millions of socially conscious Americans with a limited knowledge of wines are intimidated by oenophiles who are steeped in the art of wine tasting and wine selection. These connoisseurs can stroll familiarly past bat-talions of wines from the vineyards of France, Italy, Germany, California, New York—yes, even Michigan. They know the varieties of wine, the vint-ners who make them, the grapes which yield the juices, the climates and soils and prevailing weathers of the regions—all differentiated by the years soils and prevailing weathers of the regions—all differentiated by the years of the vintages.

Wine tasters live in a world of never, never nomenclature. A white 1982 Chablis is described by one writer as, "A quantum leap in delight with golden tones, and full, ripe pear bouquet. It is supple and rich with forward steeliness. If you like escargot (snails) try this wine with it." Sometimes the steel comparison includes, "flinty." This puzzle of two minerals evoked by a single beverage is completely cleared up by the Encyclopedia of Wine which says, "Flinty: Used to describe a dry, clean, hard, almost austere white wine which has a special bouquet recalling the smell of flint struck with steel."

The taster of a 1979 Zinfandel reports, "A weedy, slightly vegetative nose shows itself at first, followed by a pleasant Zin aftertaste." Another red wine has a "fruity, betry character in the bouquet." Wile a $19.95 bottle of Cabernet Sauvignon has, "a typical nose reminiscent of a great Bordeaux. Open the bottle at least two hours before serving."

Wines are described as big, bitter, chewy (not in the Encyclopedia), foxy, musky, sturdy, velvety and so many other appellations that hundreds of dinners can be burnt just doing the homework for Oenology 101.

Obviously to be able to mingle with the cognoscenti of the vin monde, a gal or guy is in for years of study, tastings and investment. I do not agree with those who designate wine specialists as wine snobs simply because they find pleasure in a chosen expertise. On the other hand, when these find pleasure in a chosen expertise. On the other hand, when these oenophiles take to writing articles for newspapers or magazines, many of them are wildly out of touch with at least 90 pecent of their readers. This majority includes a great many descriminating Americans with reputations as fine cooks and home winemakers. The same observation would prove true in France where at least half the people drink vin ordinaire, a satisfactory young wine which is first shipped from the wineries to bottlers in vast, glass

Ernest and Julio Gallo of California produce vins ordinaire in 250,000-gallon lots. The Gallo wines are sold in jugs as well as screw cap bottles and ng, money is wasted on the prestige of costly, troublesome corks. Yet these wines in their everyday containers are consumed at the rate of one million cases per week, and the Gallo laboratories are master-minded by a staff of 75 wine scientists.

In 1976 the Gallo brothers decided to have their wines tested in competition with the products of France. The tasting events were held, as usual in Paris with Frenchmen serving as judges. From these "blind" tests Galle wines emerged with a stunning list of honors and have been doing it ever

Other affordable American brands from California and New York have done the same. What's more, Michigan wineries are close on their heels.

American wines have a special advantage. The quality remains very much the same from one year to another while there are severe ups and downs in the vintages of Europe. Some U. S. wines are now being labelled with vintage years but observers predict these dated labels are simply a marketing affectation.

So how about selecting some delicious and teasonably priced American So now about selecting some deflictous and reasonably priced American wines for you and your neighbors? A good beginning is to buy one bottle of red wine such as a cose, burgundy or clarer and one bottle of white wine such as a chablis, sauterne or thine. You may choose any of many popular California brands including Gallo. Almaden, Paul Masson or Christian Brothers. Among a host of good Michigan brands are Chateau Grand Trayerse, Fenn Valley and St. Julian. Try the wines and see how you and your spouse like them. If they seem okay but not quite sweet enough, add a little sweetener until it suits your taste. Also try different wines at room temperature as well as refrigered. If you are satisfied with the room temperature as well as refrigerated. If you are satisfied with the room temperature you won't have to keep one or more bottles in the refrigerator

When you find some wines that are pleasing to you and yours, keep a bottle or two on hand and experiment with other varieties of wines and brandies. Also get the names of wines that delight you when you are served in a friend's home or in a restaurant.

As you gain confidence in your choices, serve them to good neighbors and see how they teact. If they ask for more, or pour an extra helping, you'll get the message—and vice versa. This patient and pragmatic way of choosing wines will positively work for you. Hopefully, it will please others as well.

Never hesitate to omit wine ftom a feast. Food is often a strategic way to get guests to stop drinking. This last is also a tactful decision when there are going to be children at the table.

If, in spite of everything that has been said, you simply can't resist the appeal of French vintage wines, Solokin's Wine Store in Manhattan will part with a case of 1955 Mouton Rothschild, a red Bordeaux, for $1,500 or a '61 Laftie for $3,600. He also has some '55 Pettus on which he refuses to publish a price hur it is known that some vintages from this chargen have publish a price but it is known that some vintages from this chateau have auctioned for $1,000 a bottle.

Farm Bureau Blasts ${f USDA}$ on PIK Rules

The Michigan Farm Bureau has ac-ised the U.S. Department of cused the U.S. Department of Agriculture of nullifying the success that the industry had with Congress in getting PIK assistance legislation passed, by issuing a regulation that will make many of the state's flood-stricken farmers ineligible for

Al Almy, director of public affairs for the state's largest farm organiza-tion, said that the USDA, in its interim regulation issued on Nov. 19, cir-cumvented the intent of Congress by placing the 50% per crop loss with a 50% total fr:m loss to determine

"We think it was clear in the language that Congress passed that a producer would be eligible for PIK assistance if he suffered a 50% or assistance in le suffered a 30% of more loss of any specific crop," Almy said. "USDA has now come out with this controversial regulation that completely nullifies that per crop intent. USDA says that unless a producer has suffered a 50% loss of all crops in all of his farming interests, he will not be eligible for PIK sistance.

"I think it was very unfair for USDA to put this provision in the regulation. Apparently, they feel somewhat concerned that the agricultural industry went around USDA and persuaded Congress to enact this legislation and congress to enact this registation and this is a way for the department to nullify the action and the success that the agricultural industry had with Congress. The fact is that agriculture first went to USDA asking for PIK assistance and were denied. Therefore, it was necessary to take the next step and secure congressional enact-ment," he said.

Almy said Farm Bureau has issued an "action request" letter to members throughout the state, asking them to contact USDA urging revision of the interim regulation.

"By using personal examples of how heavy losses of one or two specific crops can jeopardize the total farm operation, perhaps we can convince USDA to take the proper action," he said.

Tips To Help Prevent Lost, Strayed Cats Offered By Humane Society

Humane Society of Huron Valley is turging cat owners to take a few minutes and consider some lifesaving precautions in the tragic event that their feline friend gets lost!

HisHy community education direc-tor, Michelle Creek, reports that the stray cat population has risen by over 40% in the Washtenaw county area over the last five years. Ms. Creek ex-plained "more and more people ar-moving into the cities and living in apartments and condominiums. For apartments and condominiums. For the first time, cats have surpassed dogs as the household pet of choice. Cats are easier to care for and more convenient for apartment dwellers. From early Egyptian times to the present, we have been enchanted with cats. Judging from the 40% increase in the stray cat population, it seems we are losing some of that enchantment."

Humane Society of Huron Valley receives approximately 250 animals each week, aimost half of which are cats. The cats at the shelter come from a number of different sources. Some are found roaming the streets, others are brought in by their owners who find they can no longer keep them. A large percentage of the cats are strays: in good health and obviously someone's pet, but seemingly lost.

In an effort to help both cats and cat owners, the Humane Society offers the following advice to avoid future heartbreak. The first step is to take some precautions before your cat is lost. Remember it takes only a few seconds for a cat to escape outdoors, If you let your cat outdoors, make sure it wears an ID tag at all times. Identification tags are available at the Society for $1 that are traceable 24 hours a day.

Train your cat to walk on a leash—it can be done! Your pet will be happier and safer with you. A figure eight harness works the best for cats when taking a stroll. They do not feel restricted and cannot slip out of them. Always be sure to use a carrying case when traveling or taking your pet to the veterinarian. Make sure all of the windows and doors are secure in your the veterinarian. Make sure all of the windows and doors are secure in your house. Above all make sure your cat is spayed or neutered. It can curb their desire to roam, and keep your female, from having litters upon litters of kittens. Pet overpopulation is already a serious problem, don't let your pet add to it.

some advice to help retrace your lost cat's steps. "Notify your local humane society as soon as possible and file a lost report! Be sure and visit the humane society every three or four days. You know your cat much better than anyone else."

Here are some helpful ideas when looking for your lost feline friend. Look around your house. Most cats who live indoors will not stray far who live indoors will not stray far from home. Set up a temporary feed station and shelter outside on the porch or nearby. Your pet may come home when you are not around. Many cats come out during the dusk to dawn hours to search for food. This is the best time to look for your cat. Post lost signs all over the neighborhood right away to alert others that your cat is missing. You can even offer a reward, the size does not matter. It can help motivate people to look for your lost the size does not matter. It can help motivate people to look for your lost cat. Place lost ads in the newspaper. Check the found column in the newspaper every day. Many people find a cat and keep it until they can find the owner. Above all, don't give up hope. People have been known to find their cat after months of searching.

"Remember," said shelter manager Gates, "there are many reasons to keep your cat indoors. Your pet could fall victim to steel leghold traps, diseases, other cats, dogs or wild animals, chemicals in someone's garbage or lawn or become hit by a car. The Humane Society of Huron Valley is here to help you and your pet. If your pet should become lost, call us at 682-5568 and visit often. We are onen 7 days a week from 11

"There's something about our kids with Saline," said Chelsea coach

Rahn Rosentreter.
"They go out there thinking they HAVE to beat Satine and put too much pressure on themselves. It makes it very difficult to actually go out and win the game. I was at a loss in finding an answer. When you have seniors dominating the club, you don't expect to make the kinds of mistakes we made."
Despite the poor showing Chelsen

Despite the poor showing, Chelsea was in position to win the game, holding a 34-32 lead and the ball going into the fourth quarter. With 5:35 remaining, the game was tied at 36.

Shortly thereafter, Chelsea senior forward Jeff Harvey attempted to

It turned out to be a four-point play "That was probably the turning point of the game," Rosentreter said. "I can't blame Jeff. He was just frustrated with himself. I don't think a technical should have been called."

After senior guard Todd Starkey hit a free throw, the Hornets scored four more points to give Saline a seven-point lead with 1:46 to go.

The Bulldogs threw the ball away twice in the last 1:46 to seal their fate.

"I was really disappointed and frustrated," Rosentreter said.

Chelsea, on the other hand, hit six of eight free throws in the first half, four y Starkey. The Hornets had a 23-18 half-time lead.

"I think Saline is going to be lucky to finish third in our league," Rosentreter said.

"I expected a lot more from them." One of Rosentreter's chief concerns is Chelsea's failure to shoot a reasonable percentage in either of its first two games. Fridey night everyone was cold and shot selection wasn't the problem for the most part. One starter missed all 16 tries from the field.

Forward Mark Bareis, as usual, led the team in scoring with 14 points but took only 12 shots all night.

"Mark absolutely has to take more than 12 shots a game," Rosentreter said. "And Greg Haist has to score

Despite poor shooting from both the field and the free throw line, Chelsea's junior varsity basketball team nearly beat the Saline Hornets on the road last Friday night, losing 41-39.

The Bulldogs had three shots at the basket in the closing seconds after snagging a rebound on an errant Hornet free throw.

I'm not too concerned about our shooting because we are taking good shots but we're just not making them," said Chelsea coach Jeff Dils. "They're shots we make in practice. I think they just need to relax and make a couple in a row. Then we'll be all right."

For the night Chelsea took 69 shots but made just 15, for 22 percent. They also were just 9-20 from the foul line.

The Bulldogs jumped out to a 9-2 lead before the Hornets closed the gap to one point at the end of the first quarter, 11-10. The game was close the rest of the way, with Chelsea holding a two-point edge at half-time, 19-17, and a one-point lead at the end of the third quarter, 31-30. of the third quarter, 31-30.

Chelsea played well in other phases of the game. They held a 35-29 rebound-ing edge, with forward John Collins collecting 10. They also only turned the ball over 14 times compared to 18 errors for the Hornets.

errors for the Hornets.

"With a couple of breaks we would have won the game," Dils said.

"When I look at most of the statistics I think, 'we're where we want to be.' Unfortunately, we're just not chedrify wal!" not shooting well."

Jeff Marshall led Chelsea scorers

Jeff Marshall led Chelsea scorers with 11 points, followed by Collins, with nine, Tim Anderson, seven, Larry Nix and Junior Morseau, four each, and David White and Bryan Beard, two each.

Chelsea's record stands at 9-2, with both games being decided by a total of

SPORTS NOTES

Friday night's varsity basketball game at Saline was probably the most poorly played high school game I've ever seen. At least I sure can't remember any others that were more unfulfilling.

The only game I've ever seen on any level that might have been worse was a seventh grade girls game I officiated a number of years ago. That game took two and a half hours to play and ended up 5-2, with all the scoring on foul shots.

By the end of the first quarter, the painful flow of Friday's game had been established. Whichever team was the most error-prone was going to lose. At the end of the quarter it was difficult to guess which team that might be. At the end of the game there was no question.

Pick a play, any play. Chances are someone on one or both sides messed it

You like transition basketball you say?

Forget it. Chelsea couldn't make a loy-up or short jumper if the cheerleaders' depended on it.

How about a good, aggressive press?

Well, it may have been in some of the fans shirts, but it was nowhere to be seen on the court. Not that they didn't try, though

How about some good banging on the boards?

Nope. Chelsea had 17 rebounds for the night, including a measley three of-fensive rebounds in the tirst half. That last number is particularly nasty when you consider that they missed 40 shots.

Fortunately, Saline was nearly as bad, which kept the game close until the last couple of minutes.

Unfortunately, Saline's Grant Fanning, one of the school's ace athletes, put on the best show of the night and Chelsea had a hard time stopping him.

At the outset it looked as though every player had gotten out of bed five minutes before the start of the game and was still looking for the bathroom. There was no flow, no rhythm to either team. Everyone, except the coaches, seemed to have forgotten what they were supposed to do.

My guess is, the kids psyched themselves right out of the game.

For some reason, Chelsea's athletic mission in life is to beat Saline.

That probably stems from the football rivalry as much as anything. And each basketball team has a number of football players on it.

With signs and chants, Chelsea fans certainly reminded the Saline patrons what happened on the football field this season. If you've forgotten, the Bulldags won 7-6 in overtime.

Chances are, many of the players were thinking about the same thing Chelsea had to prove it was no fluke, that they had the better athletes. Saline was ready for revenge.

But together they might have had a tough time beating the Bullpups.

The guy I ended up feeling sorry for was Chelsea coach Rahn Rosentreter. He could have been Bob Knight, Red Auerbach, John Thompson and Jerry Tarkanian all rolled into one and the Bulldags still would have lost the same.

No amount of strategy, hollering, bribery, or chair-throwing would have affected the outcome. Friday night the kids were probably not coachable.

Chelsea shot an abysmal 25 percent from the field. They were out-rebounded

These kids know how to block out and they know how to shoot. We've seen most of them do it before. Maybe Rosentreter ought to try to sneak one of those under-sized airls basketballs into a game

If you're looking for successes -

Chelsea held Saline to 50 points and had a decent chance to win.

The Bulldags had their best free throw shooting night of the season, and maybe the last two seasons:

They only had 12 turnovers.

Nobody died.

This was written before Tuesday night's game with Milan. So, obviously I dan't know if the Bulldags got turned around or not. Let's hope they did. If not, let's hope they do Friday night against Lincoln at home. Otherwise, it's going to be a long, long Christmas break.

Frosh Cagers Split With Western, Lincoln

Chelsea freshman basketball squad defeated Jackson County Western, 48 to 40, last Monday at Western. Thurs-day the team lost to Ypsilanti Lincoln, 54 to 42, at Lincoln 54 to 42, at Lincoln.

Chad Starkey led seven Chelsea scorers with 29 points against Western. Kyle Plank tossed in six with Mark Chasteen adding four. Chad Raymond with three and Brian Burg, Brandon Murrell and Sinisia Janicevic with two each completed the scoring.

"For our first game we did some things I was pleased to see," said coach Dave Quilter.

coacn Dave Quilter.
"We played pretty good man-toman defense and our zone looked pretty good. On offense when we ran our plays we ended up with some very good shots."

Thursday was a different story as the freshmen evened their record at

The key factors in the loss were a defense and standing still on both of-fense and defense. Lincoln had a quick, big center who scored 22 of their 32 first half points. "We were caught out of position and flat footed the entire first half," Quilter noted. The second half Chelsea went back to man-to-man defense and played much more aggressively. "For us to be successful this season

we have to play four quarters of ag-gressive basketball since we are not gressive baskethall since we are not physically big enough to dominate teams," Quilter said.

Starkey led scorers with 15, while Raymond and Burg both helped with six each. Plank tossed in five, Byron Pratt, four, Murrell, Mark Chasteen and Janicevic, two each.

The Bulldogs were beaten badly on the boards by Lincoln, 36 to 24. Chasteen and Raymond led the squad with five rebounds each.

"A bright note was the play of the people who came off the bench, said Quilter."

Eighth Grade Cagers Win Two Games With Good 'D'

Beach Middle school's eighth grade Bullpup basketball team won two games last week, nipping Saline on Tuesday, 30-28, and whipping Milan,

The victories boost the Bullpup record to 3-1.

In the Saline game, Pup coach Jim Tallman credited tough defense, especially by guard Vince Dunn, for the win.

Chelsea was down by 13 points at half-time, 22-9, but used a full-court, man-to-man press to come back and trail by one point at the end of the third quarter.

"Our pressure in the second half, i by Vince Dunn, made the dif-rence," Tallman said. "The whole team did an excellent more than four points."

Rosentreter said that only Marty Poljan (two points), Harvey (six points), Jon Lane (seven points) and Matt Steinhauer (five points) played reasonably well."
"We would have lost to anybody the way we played—now we've got our work cut out for us," Rosentreter said.

"We've got two good teams ahead of us and we can't dwell on what happen-to be the winning field goal with 40 seconds remaining.

Quilter finished with six points for the game. Other Chelsea scorers included Dunn, with eight, Tucker Steele, with seven, and Kerry Plank, Matt Steinaway and Alex Hammerschmidt with two each.

Chelsea could have trounced Milan, according to Tallman, but the coach elected to give more boys more play

"We played a real good game and over-all we were a lot stronger than Milan," Tallman said.

Plank paced the offense with 12 points and Quilter added 10, Brian Bell, seven, Steele, five, and Chris Haugen and Steinaway, two each.

DRIVING FOR A SHOT against the Saline Hornets last Friday night is senior guard Todd Starkey. Starkey missed the shot but made two free throws. Chelsea lost the game, 50-40.

what I would like to know is do you think I will do as well in the next three years and do you sug-gest any changes in my portfolio? A. I'm not going to list your portfolio because commenting on 36 stocks takes more space than we have. But let's make remarks about some of them. As an about some of them. As an 83-year-old who has boosted the value of his stocks from $343,000 to $672,000 in the last three years, you obviously have had some ex-perience and I would not question most of your holdings.

You have $26,000 in Transco You have $20,000 in Transco Exploration Partners and Transco Energy. Transco Ex-ploration Partners is a spin-off from Transco Energy. The pay-ment you receive as a dividend is ment you receive as a dividend is actually a return of capital. With the present problem in the energy industry, there is a good chance the amount of the payment you are receiving could be cut substantially. If the dividends you are receiving are important in meeting your daily expenditures, I'd be inclined to switch that money into Mobil Oil. You would receive about the same that money into Mobil Uil. You would receive about the same amount of income, and I don't think there would be the same danger of a cut in the size of the payment. I'm sure the oil price situation will improve in time, but it might also get worse before it ret's better.

it gets better.
You have two stocks that you You have two stocks that you obviously received as spin-offs from General Mills. Those are Crystal Brands and Kinner Parker Toys. You are not receiving a dividend from either one and it is hard to judge from the available record whether or not there will be much growth. I'd put the money in DEI, Diversified Energies Incorporated. It will give you a dividend that is likely to get bigger each year and the company's new radio read utility meter gives an opportunity o enjoy growth from that new to enjoy growth from that new

You have funds in both Aetna Life and Casualty and Chese-brough-Pond's. The yield on both is the same, but my guess is you will see more appreciation in price and more increase in dividends in Chesebrough over the next few years. Yet put your Aetna money into Chesebrough.

You have done beautifully with Kroger and doubled your toger four times. However, $125,000 of your $572,000 is now in that one took I'd be inclined to take stock. I'd be inclined to take $25,000 from that holding and put it in Perry Drug Stores. The dividend will be quite a bit less, but the company is growing faster nd will probably be upping its dividend

CLTS Opens New Dorm For 80 'Honor' Prisoners

Cassidy Lake Technical School of ficials showed off their new 80-bed prisoner facility at an open house last Friday at the prison off Waterloo Rd. State prison officials, as well as interested local people, attended the event, which was orchestrated by Cassidy officials to show the muchmaligned minimum security prison in a favorable light. Some of the hors d'oeuvres were prepared by prisoners doeuvres were prepared by prisoners in a food technology class. Chelsea Greenhouse donated poinsettias. All parts of the building were open and Cassidy officials were eager to give

Warden John Staten was on hand to answer questions, as well as Director of Corrections Dennis Dyke and other officials.

The new 18,876-square-foot facility, completed at a cost of $4.6 million, feels more like a college dormitory, or perhaps a military school dormitory than prisoners' quarters.

Each prisoner's room is slightly larger than 8' by 10' and contains a bed, stand-up locker, desk and chair, flourescent wall light and modestized window which can only be oversized window which can only be opened a few inches.

In addition, each room contains two electrical outlets and a place to plug in a television antenna to take advantage of the roof antenna on the building. Dyke said plans have been scrapped to purchase a satellite dish from prisoner funds.

The rooms are arranged on three wings, which extend out from a cenreal location like spokes from a hub.
The hub area will have guard's desk, which will be positioned so that he can see each of the wings without moving.
There is also a central television and meeting room, and each wing has own bathroom and shower facilities.

The facility's hot water and heat is provided by a wood-fired boiler, which is projected to burn 1,000 pounds of wood each day in the middle of winter, according to Bill Frames, a prison facilities manager. The wood itself is cut in northern Michigan by prisoners in a state-run prisoner work program, Dyke said.

We want to make this an honor unit." Dyke said.

"We want to select individuals who have shown responsibility and have adjusted well to being here."

The block and steel building, situated virtually on the shoreline of Cassidy Lake, stands in stark contrast Cassiny Lake, stands in stark contrast to the small, run-down, brown wooden shacks that currently house the majority of the 240 prisoners. Many of the old buildings, constructed more than 50 years ago, sit up in the woods and the prisoners are forced to use what the prisoners to an outburger. The older the prisoners are forced to use what amounts to an outhouse. The older buildings are poorly insulated.

The new building was designed as "replacement housing," Dyke said, and the worst of the shacks will no longer be used. It has an appealing green, blue and white interior color scheme and has all new furniture made by prisoners elsewhere in the Michigan penal system.

One big advantage the new building has is that it will be considerably more difficult for prisoners to walk away. Doors, including emergency exits, are electronically monitored at the guard's station. Windows will open about three inches, although they can be broken by a prisoner bent on escaning on escaping.

"The security system gives the guard total control," said Paul Ricca, chief architect on the project and a project manager for SSOE, Inc., a Flint engineering firm.
"There are safety features huilt in so that if there is an emergency, the prisoners will be able to get out quickiv."

Prisoners were scheduled to move into the building this week, Dyke said,

A second building, virtually identical to the new building, is scheduled to be built just up a hill across the driveway. Ricca said construction

Variety of Wetlands Found in Michigan

What is a wetland? In simplest terms, a wetland is land where water is found, either on the surface or water may be present all year or for only a limited period of time. Poorly drained soils and waterlov-reporty drained soils and waternov-ing vegetation also identify wetlands. Wetlands provide important values, and in Michigan, these values have become increasingly significant as the state continues to lose thousands of wetland acres annually.

Michigan has begun to pay the cost for what wetlands used to provide for free.

These costs will continue to increase as more of the state's wetlands

Four Major Wetland Types
The four major types of wetlands in Michigan include marshes, swamps, bogs and fens. Each has its own unique set of characteristics, plants and widdlife

Marshes
Marshes are wetlands with standing or slow-moving water. Rushes, reeds and cattails are the primary plants found in a marsh.

Swamps are basically wooded wetlands.

The most common swamp in the northern portion of the state is the cedar swamp.

Bogs

Bogs are areas with peat soils, a high water table and surface carpet of mosses, especially sphagnum.

Unique vegetation, such as blueberranberries and orchids can be found in bogs.

Fens Fens are very similar to bogs, with one identifying exception. Fens have slow drainage and slightly richer soil, whereas bogs have no surface outlet. Water Quality

Michigan wetlands improve the water quality of lakes and streams by retaining polluting nutrients, such as phosphorus and nitrogen, that timulate algae and plant growth.

Toxic heavy metals and complex rganic chemicals are stored or degraded in wetlands.

Wetlands also retain sediments, slowing the rate at which lakes and streams are filled, thus helping to keep them clear and clean. Groundwater

Wetland sites are closely associated with high groundwater tables, and they often serve as sites of groundwater discharge or recharge.

Recharge sites are important for resupplying Michigan's valuable groundwater. groundwater.
Discharge sites provide high quality water for the state's lakes and

Wildlife

Wetlands support a healthy seg-ment of Michigan wildlife. Fish spawn, feed and hide in Michigan marshes and acquatic plant beds. Shoreline Protection

Ministers 'Invade' Cassidy Lake

This effort was part of the National Prision Invasion, an idea originated by Paul Carlin who shared it with Chaplain Ray of Dallas, Tex., who in turn shared it with the chaplains of several large southern prisons. Warren Paulson, co-ordinating chaplain of Michigan, explained the idea to the administrators of Cassidy Lake.

The Cassidy Lake invasion was co-ordinated by the Rev. Thode Thodeson of Manchester and Tom Skrag of Adrian. Local participants included, in addition to Pastor Thodeson and his wife Dorothy, Richard Bunney and Jerry Jahnke of Manchester, Don Fritz, Randy Harris and Steve Moss of Chelsea, and Mr. and Mrs. Dean Guenther of Gregory.

Chelsea Community Hospital

During the holidays, many families like to take the opportunity to travel or entertain relatives or friends. But for families with a home-bound loved one, caring for them or leaving them behind becomes a special concern. Especially when that person needs extra a special concern. Especially when that person needs extra attention due to an illness or disability. That's why Chelsea Community Hospital offers a 'Respite' guest program for usually home-bound individuals. For about the cost of a night's lodging, guests can be registered at Chelsea Community Hospital, allowing those who are normally re-sponsible for providing care, time to pursue other activities.

Maybe you never thought of a hospital as a place to stay unless you were ill. Well, we're out to change your mind. We'le provide basic, supportive care in the atmosphere for which we have become well.

We believe it is important for everyone's health for your loved one to be cared for in the best possible circumstances. Chelsea Community Hospital offers the care you so lovingly provide all year long as our special gift this holdiay season.

For more information about the 'Respite' guest program call Glenn Miller, R.N. at 475-1311 extension 356. Advance reservations are appreciated.

We're Chelsea, and we're different. We ofter a complete range of health services, including emergency treatment, inpatient and outpatient surgery, coronary care, physical therapy and rehabilitation, headache pain treatment, substance abuse treatment substance abuse treatment.

True Grist Theatre Presents 'Gift of the Magi'

By Russ Ogden

Free Lance Drama Critic

Not to see the True Grist Dinner Theatre in its holiday festoons of green and red trimmings (including a sleigh) would be missing a part of this glorious holiday season! The Grist's holiday entertainment package opened with a mixed bag of offerings, some welcome . . . some not so welcome.

O'Henry's "Gift of the Magi" is a Otherry's "Giff of the Mag!" is a simple, touching story in print bringing tears to anyone with an emotional heart and should have well been left alone by Peter Ekstom whose musical adaptation was a mistake.

Grist's second half of the program starts on a musical upbeat of holiday song neatly tied together in an in-

O'Henry's gift of writing presents a most heart rending story. But Mary Martin and Robert Preston and their steel teater would have twelved. total talent would have trouble resuscitating the life of a musical "Gift of the Magi" which never should have occurred in the first place.

Rita Hottois and Paul Kerr have great difficulty conjuring up the innocence of a much younger couple than themselves at holiday time and the presentation comes off as a somewhat 1922 movie. The sameness of the score by Ekstom and its simplistic singing and repetitive dialogue is just too much.

One improvement since opening night has been the addition of "Tomorrow Is Christmas" which gives the play an upbeat ending, lacking in the previous opening night presentation. The elimination of the a godsend. great difficulty conjuring up the in-nocence of a much younger couple

Between acts one observes the red tablecloths and candles on all of the tablecloths and candles on all of the theatre/dining area plus a special holiday drink called The Kris Kringle with its pepperminty ice cream drink topped with Schmapps! If you never believed before, you will with a couple of tantalizing Christmas wafs of this intermission delight. Change in serving at the True Grist sees you personally presented with soup and salad at your table with the main entrees still featured in buffet style.

The Grist Carolers open a sequential catalog of Christmas and Yuletide songs, each featuring the talents of Louisville residents: Eric Von

The Grist Carolers Quartet is an enormously talented musical four-some and prove this with group and individual solos throughout their green and red repertoire. Comedic and melancholic effects are combined in reflections of Christmases past and in reflections of Christmases past and present; the returning home at Christmastime with all of its traditions and emblems, the warmth of religon and its importance at the approaching birth of Christ . . . a most impressive array of talent expended on most memorable songs.
