AL BLIXT of Blixt Associates, the advertising company hired by the Chelsea Downtown Development Authority to develop a marketing strategy for the downtown, conducted his first "Market Smart Seminar" June 30 at the Chelsea Depot. One of his first exercises he did with the participants who represented 20 businesses was "How Not To Succeed in the Retail Business."

Carson City Man Named Community Ed. Director, Comeau Again President

Jeffrey W. Rohrer of Carson City has been named the new community education director for the Chelsea School District. The action was taken by the Chelsea Board of Education Monday night.

Rohrer, who established the community education program in Carson City/Crystal Area Schools, will begin here Aug. 4 at an annual salary of $52,800. He will take the place of Dr. Jaclynn Tracy, who's leaving to take a teaching position at Eastern Michigan University.

Rohrer has been affiliated with the Carson City/Crystal schools, a class C district, since 1983. The program there, said Chelsea superintendent Joe Plasecki, is very similar in scope to Chelsea's program. It includes an adult education program, an active senior citizens group, pre-school, enrichment classes, and other programs.

"He was the top candidate on most every [interviewer's list] all the way through the process," Plasecki said.

"He's experienced, personable, and very interested in adult education. Everything we heard about him is what we wanted for Chelsea."

Rohrer earned his bachelor's degree in recreation and physical education from Central Michigan University in 1980 and his master's degree in educational administration, with a minor in psychology, from CMU in 1984. He taught for a year in Gaylord and served as assistant community education director in Swartz Creek for two years before going to Carson City.

JEFFREY ROHRER

Rohrer was interviewed by a committee with representatives from the various areas of community education.

In other board business, Anne Comeau was re-elected president of the board, Ron Satterthwaite was re-elected vice-president, and Dick McCalla was re-elected treasurer. Jane Diesing was elected secretary and will take the place of John Eisenbeler.

The board hired a physics teacher for Chelsea High school, Eric Swager of Kalamazoo. It's a new position due to growth in the high school.

High school business teacher and coach Mike Bohlender resigned. He plans to move to Colorado.

The board took care of a host of annual routine business as well.

Regular meetings for 1992-93 will be held on the first and third Mondays of each month at 7:30 p.m.

Chelsea State Bank was named the district's depository for the district's various accounts.

The legal firms of Keusch & Flintoff and Thrun, Maatsch & Nordberg were re-appointed to represent the district. Curtis, Bailey, Exelby, and Spisito firm was retained as auditors.

Satterthwaite will represent Chelsea in the Washtenaw Association of School Boards.

Conrad Knutson will be Chelsea's liaison to the Michigan Association of School Boards.

First Agency of Kalamazoo will provide student insurance for 1992-93.

State Decides To Keep Camp Waterloo as Prison

Camp Waterloo minimum security prison near Chelsea will apparently not be closed anytime soon.

Michigan Department of Corrections announced in December that the prison would be closed by May, saving the state about $1.7 million in fiscal year 1992 and $2.5 million in fiscal year 1993, part of an $11.6 million cost-cutting measure. The department also said Camp Waterloo is one of the oldest camps and is in need of extensive remodeling and repairs.

However, according to Marie Howe in State Sen. Lana Pollack's office, the state has decided to keep the prison open because community-based "diversion programs" are not taking prisoners out of the corrections system fast enough. More beds are needed for assaultive criminals. Camp Waterloo has 272 beds.

"I am told that there is a 75 percent chance the camp will stay open through the 1992-93 fiscal year," Howe said.

"However, if any facilities can be closed, Waterloo along with Camp Pugsley (210 beds near Kingsley) will be the first to be closed."

Howe said the department's initial attempt to close the prison was part of the "slash and burn" mentality of the budget-cutting process.

"They said they would get the money, but I don't know where it's coming from," Howe said.

Howe described the prison's funding status as "year-to-year."

In other prison news of local interest, the state has changed its policy on prisoners awaiting assignment. All those prisoners are now being shipped to Marquette.

Three prisoners awaiting permanent assignment at Cassidy Lake Boot Camp recently escaped. They broke into a house, stole guns, stole a car, and led police on a chase to Jackson county. They shot out the window of a pursuing police car, injuring a county sheriff's deputy. One prisoner quickly surrendered and the other two were eventually captured on the other side of the state, which they reached by stealing a pick-up truck.

"Those prisoners shouldn't have been there," Howe said.

"Cassidy Lake wasn't equipped to deal with them. Marquette will be a more secure place."

William Curtis Gets Life Term Without Parole in Stabbing Death

Dexter township resident William H. Curtis, Sr. was ordered last Tuesday to spend the rest of his life in prison without the possibility of parole in connection with the stabbing death of his wife, Sue Ellen Curtis at their home on April 1, 1991.

Curtis, who was convicted on seven of nine counts connected with the slaying, still insisted before Washtenaw Circuit Judge Donald Shelton that "I am not guilty."

Curtis, 54, was found not guilty on charges that he planned the murder of his wife with his homosexual lover, Todd Plamondon of Ypsilanti. However, he was convicted of first degree felony murder for planning a robbery in which the stabbing occurred. Conviction mandates a life sentence without parole.

Plamondon pleaded guilty to second-degree murder charges for carrying out the robbery and the stabbing. He also received a life sentence but could become eligible for parole.

Stereo, Detector Stolen from Car At Restaurant

Stereo equipment and a radar detector were stolen from a car parked at Chelsea Taco Bell on Saturday, June 27.

Owner of the vehicle said he parked at the restaurant then went to Jackson. When he returned a radio, amplifier, speakers, and a radar detector were missing. He said the car was locked.

Value of the items was estimated at $863.

Defense attorney Thomas Stringer also insisted that Curtis is not guilty and that the killer is receiving the lesser sentence.

Shelton, after listing Curtis' convictions, said he was convinced that Curtis is a liar and that the sentence was appropriate "because of the terrifying nature of the crime."

Curtis was also sentenced to two years in prison on each of two felony firearms convictions, to be served before any of the other terms. He was sentenced to 15-40 years in prison on all the other charges and was ordered to pay to his wife's estate the $94,000 he collected in life insurance.

William Curtis, Jr. filed a lawsuit against his father over the life insurance. The ruling could allow the younger Curtis to collect the money.

Chelsea's D & C Store To Close Doors in July

Downtown Chelsea's D & C Store, which sells a little of everything from toys to napkins to candy, plans to close for good by the end of July.

D & C Inc. of Stockbridge, which operates 46 similar dime stores throughout the state, will also close nine other stores, said comptroller Bob German.

"Business just kept declining," German said.

"Part of the demise was due to the development of the south of town. We regret leaving but it is tough in retailing."

All five Chelsea employees will lose their jobs, which German called one of the hardest parts of ceasing operations.

News of the closing comes, ironically, just as Chelsea's Downtown Development Authority is winding up its year-long streetscape plan, designed to be a drawing card to downtown. It will be the second business to close this year, following Casual Sports.

Items Stolen from Car in Driveway

A Railroad St. resident told Chelsea police that someone stole a radar detector, gold-colored necklace, and a crystal egg from car parked in her driveway on Thursday, June 25.

However, the former clothing business is scheduled to be replaced by a branch of Ann Arbor's Moveable Feast later this month.

"I don't think they'll have any problems finding someone to move in," German said.

DDA consultant Franz Mogdis said he has been talking to prospects, among them another dime store business. However, there is no firm news as to the future of the building, owned by Doris Perry. A petition in support of keeping the business in town appeared at the Village Bakery last Thursday.

The store is operating a 30-percent off sale as part of the closing. Further markdowns may come later this month, depending on how sales go, German said. Some fixtures will be sold and some will be in other stores.

The Chelsea D & C Store, at about 3,000 square feet, is one of the smallest in the chain, German said. Most other stores are between 6,000 and 8,000 square feet. Limited floor space also hurt business.

The store has been operated as D & C since 1984, but a dime store has been located in the building for many years. Previously it was the Groves store.

Rain Fails To Dampen Fourth of July Activities

Although the weather tried to dampen Chelsea's Fourth of July festivities last Saturday, big crowds still turned out for most of the major events and activities.

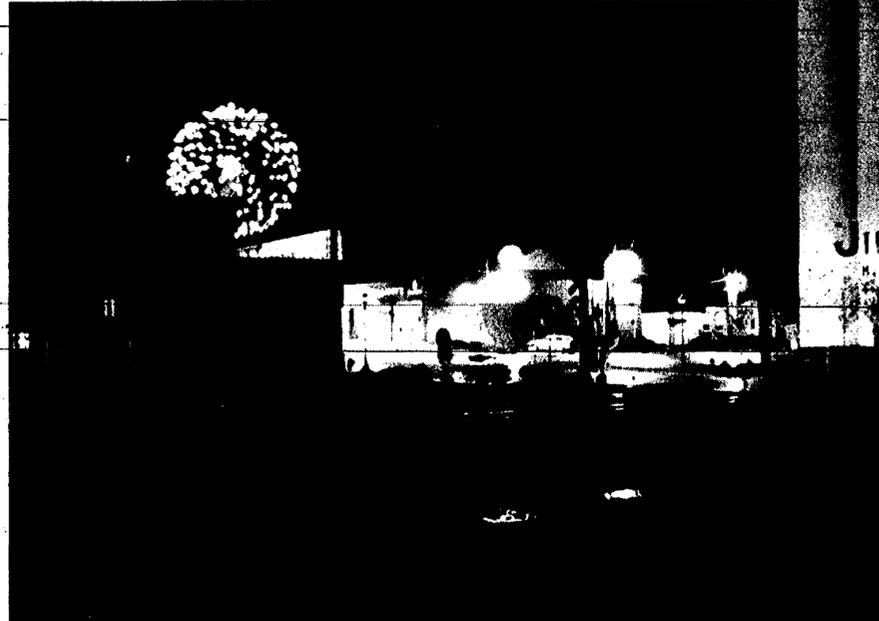

Heavy rains interrupted the first Concert in the Park in Pierce Park (6-8 p.m.), yet Ann Arbor's "Wishing Field" played to an enthusiastic, although perhaps younger-than-usual audience.

Light rain also fell during the evening fireworks show at the Chelsea Fairgrounds sponsored by the Chelsea 1995 and the Chelsea Jaycees. Yet area parking lots were packed for one of the few fireworks displays in the area.

Chelsea Rotary Club's second annual Ice Cream Social at Chelsea Shopping Center also drew a large crowd.

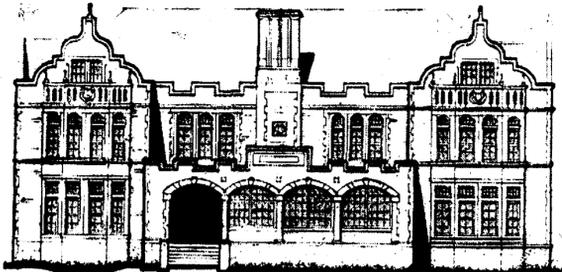

Chelsea American Legion's annual Chicken Barbecue at the post home on Cavanaugh Lake was sold out by early afternoon.

EVEN THE NEW BRIGHT LIGHTS of downtown display was organized by Chelsea 1995 and the Chelsea Jaycees. display couldn't overwhelm Saturday night's annual Fourth of July fireworks display at the Chelsea Fairgrounds. The

Marketing, Better Roads Key to Tourism Survival

House Republicans declared recently that aggressive marketing, highway improvements and a swifter response to inquiries by potential travelers will determine the state's ability to survive in the competitive travel and tourism industry.

Pointing to a $6.4 billion industry which supported 113,500 jobs in 1990, Minority Leader Paul Hillegeons (R-Holland) said the state has too much at stake to ignore self-promotion and the need to improve transportation as has been proposed by Governor John Engler in his "Build Michigan" program.

"Yet the state's advertising budget has dropped in the last five years," he said, referring to a $14.5 million to $6.3 million drop. "Good highways, access roads and airports, combined with signs of a uniform shape and size, will contribute to Michigan's positive image."

The constraints have meant the Travel Bureau, even while being able to process over a half-million requests for information a year, let about 400,000 other calls go unanswered, said Rep. Frank Fitzgerald (R-Grand Ledge), Republican Policy Committee chair.

"Because the economic consequences are too massive for this situation to continue, the task force supports efforts to privatize the bureau's toll-free information lines," he said.

Specifics of the report included the following:

- design and construction of facilities at tourist sites with minimal impact on the environment.
- design of new license plates with a logo featuring Michigan as a tourist center.
- a partnership between school districts and the Travel Bureau to review the start of the school year prior to Labor Day.
- replenishing by the Department of Natural Resources of fish stocks as needed and guarding of water quality of the Great Lakes.
- encouraging the Travel Bureau and the private sector to develop international marketing strategies.

MESC Urged To Improve Unemployment Collections

About 40 percent of the $1.1 billion that employers are required to pay each year for the unemployment trust fund were not collected by the end of the last fiscal year due to ineffective collection methods of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, Auditor General Thomas H. McTavish reported.

The $416 million in overdue payments, penalties, interest and reimbursements left a cash shortage that had to be covered by contributions and repayments from other employers, the auditors said.

The audit of the Unemployment Insurance Program showed $307 million in delinquent payments, $41 million due from reimbursing employers, $17 million owed by other states and $51 million in delinquent repayment of excess benefits, the report said.

Additionally, in the audit period of Oct. 1, 1989 through Dec. 31, 1991, the MESC wrote off $13 million in overpayments as uncollectible.

"Ineffective collection . . . results in the reduction of cash available to the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Fund," the auditors said.

The commission agreed that its collection program could be improved through the addition of resources and improvement in management information systems.

The audit also found continuing backlogs at some branch offices while others determined non-monetary benefits on a timely basis, indicating the managers of certain districts are not effectively allocating staff to obtain and process the information.

"We considered delays of 90 days or more for benefit determinations to be excessive in relation to the 10 days provided for employers to respond to requests for wage information," the auditors said.

The commission has appointed a taskforce to review the determinations workflow, identify reasons for backlogs and recommend production and quality enhancements.

Auditors also recommended a statutory change to allow use of employers' quarterly wage reports in determining unemployment benefit entitlements.

Michigan is one of three states that do not use the quarterly reports, which the auditors said would help reduce time and the reporting burden on employers because they would not need to respond to the commission unless they disagreed with the commission's determinations or needed to provide information pertaining to a disqualifying separation.

Uncle Lew from Lima Says:

DEAR MISTER EDITOR:

Education reform is like Seattle weather. Clem Webster declared Saturday night at the country store, if you don't like it wait five minutes and it'll change. He told the fellows ideas on what's got to be done to set education right onct and for all are limited only by the number of grants give to education administrators.

Everybody knows, Clem said, that what administrators of all kind do mostly is prove the Peter principle by rising to their level of uselessness. So Clem said what he read recent makes more sense than any education reform notion that's come down the pike in the last 30 year. Atlanta, Ga. wanted citizens to know where their tax money goes, so the city Government ask plain taxpayers to serve on an advisory board to make the new budget.

The board come to understand that city services ain't free, and that citizens get the level of services they're willing to pay for. Members of the advisory group found a few places to suggest cuts, but mostly they got educated. And what they learned most about was education. The advisory board saw that of all the administrators, the school system had more at all levels.

The board saw that ever new program comes with its own staff of administrators. While administrators fill ever office filled with forms to fill out and send to other administrators the classroom teachers fight to keep up with teaching.

So, the advisory group advised that all school administrators go back to the classroom. Require ever education administrator to teach at least one class. This would ease the teacher load and put administrators back in touch with education. It ain't been that long since teachers were called on to do other jobs, like being principals, Clem said, so it's no more than fair to let principals leave their duties to two of their assistant principals and double as teachers.

Practical speaking, Zeke Grubb allowed, it won't work because it makes to much sense. It's already been done and done away with, which means it's not innovative, as the administrators say everthing has to be. Zeke said all the innovating reminds him that scientists say matter can't be recreated or destroyed and all we can do is change its form. For sure, Zeke said, administrators never run out of ways to change forms.

General, Zeke went on, most reform is like his double breasted, wide lapels, padded shoulders Sunday suit. It has come in and gone out of style four times since he bought it and it looks like it's coming in fashion again. Usual, he said, the best ideas are the old ideas because they're the ones that stayed around.

The fact is, Bug Hookum said, marketing still is everthing. He had saw in the paper recent about why pickles are put up in jars, never cans. Pickle people know nobody plans to buy pickles when they go in the grocery store. They see the pritty rows of jars and buy on impulse. Marketing experts know wimmen like the number nine. They won't buy a item marked 25 cent, but at 29 cent they got to have it, because it's less than 30, not more than 20.

Farthermore, Bug said, there's no end to marketing ideas. He saw where ads in toilet stalls now are going fast at $50 a month. Talk about a captive audience.

Yours truly,
Uncle Lew.

Funds Sought To Obtain Playground Equipment

Donations are being sought from Chelsea citizens to purchase safe, durable playground equipment in Pierce Park. The $15,000 goal is accumulating and would allow the building of a playground which meets U. S. Consumer Product Safety Commission Guidelines.

Each year 250,000 children under age 15 need hospital treatment for playground injuries, ranging from bad cuts to broken bones to head injuries and even death.

While not all of these accidents are preventable, risk can be decreased by following guidelines set forth by the American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons which addresses issues of age groups, safety spaces, and safety surfaces. In nearly 60% of cases, children got hurt falling to the playground surface, so the Chelsea park will have a full 12-inch protective base. Currently none of the village parks or school playgrounds meet these criteria.

The village group requesting funds was motivated by a number of injuries in Chelsea parks which may have been avoided with newer, safer equipment. The swings in Pierce Park needed to be taken down because of deteriorating metal poles.

Pierce Park was chosen as a site because of the lack of current equipment, the protection of the tree canopy from ultraviolet light, and the potential to contribute to Chelsea's community spirit. Part of the equipment will be usable by children with special needs complying with the American Disability Act of 1992.

Equipment will be blended into the surrounding beauty of Pierce Park. Planned activities include a number of safe slides, suspension bridge, climbing poles and ladders all linked by decks. Swings for pre-schoolers and older children are also planned. The 12-inch protective base will support wheelchairs.

Equipment could arrive within three weeks if funds are donated now. Special help over the holiday week-end came from the Rotary donation of their ice cream sales at the fireworks and a percent of Cottage Inn's food sales at the concert. Any contribution from private citizens or businesses is welcomed.

Contributions should be sent to "Pierce Park Playground Project," P.O. Box 475, Chelsea 48118.

Summer Musical Being Prepared For July 17 Opening Performance

Steven P. Hinz and Michael D. Pilon are creating the vocal and dance numbers for Chelsea Area Players summer production of "The Pajama Game." Many of you may recall their most recent collaboration on the Washington Street Show Choir Concert performances this year.

These talented people under the direction of Ward Beauchamp are coming together to create this summer's rollicking musical romp set in the 1950's. It centers around employees of a pajama factory and their struggle to obtain a 7 1/2 cent raise! The local hot spot which the employees frequent is the well-known Hernando's Hideaway!

"The Pajama Game" is written by George Abbott and Richard Bissell with music and lyrics by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross.

Performances are scheduled for 8 p.m. July 17, 18, 24 and 25 with a 2 p.m. matinee on Saturday, July 18, at Chelsea High School Auditorium, 500 Washington St.

Tickets are on sale now at the Chelsea Pharmacy.

Questions regarding this production may be directed to co-producer Clara Smith at 475-8713 or 475-9800.

YOU & YOUR PET

By Linda Reider
Education Department
Humane Society of Huron Valley

* The Classroom Pet ...

When a teacher takes on a classroom pet, the experience can either be educational and enjoyable or a real disaster. A pet in the classroom can increase children's understanding of and empathy for other living creatures. A pet can be a stimulus for lessons in math, art, English, and other areas. Members of the class can learn first-hand the meaning of commitment, responsibility, and humane care of animals. For many children who do not have pets at home, the classroom pet could help overcome fears or misunderstandings about animals.

Yet having an animal in the schoolroom brings with it some dangers too. An ill pet or one who dies can be a very negative experience for children. Mishandling and neglect are also common, resulting in injuries to both pets and students.

How can a teacher choose a classroom pet which will be an asset to the class and adjust well to life at school? Here are a few suggestions for success.

Check the rules: Does the principal look kindly on animals in the classroom? Are there school rules about which you should know?

Think ahead: How much time and money are you willing to spend on the pet? Although the students will help with the care, the ultimate responsibility for the animal lies with the teacher. Costs of pet care include the adoption fee, cage or container, bedding, food, grooming equipment, toys, and veterinary care.

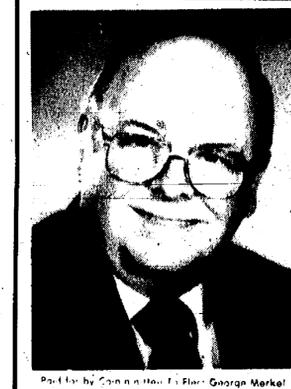

Choose wisely: A quiet animal well suited to confinement is the best choice. Avoid unhealthy, timid, and aggressive animals. Choose a pet that you like, as you will probably be taking the animal home over the summer. The most recommended classroom pets are fish, birds, or small mammals such as rabbits, guinea pigs, hamsters, gerbils, rats and mice. Pet supply stores, private breeders, and your local humane society are sources for such animals. A class trip to the humane society to acquire a pet can be educational as well. Avoid dogs, cats, and wild animals at all cost!

Care and handling: Teach every child in the class how to handle the pet properly. Supervise initial child-pet interactions. Assign the regular cage cleaning, feeding/watering, socialization tasks to students and make sure the duties are completed each day. Locate the pet in a quiet spot, out of direct sun and drafts, but in clear sight of the teacher. Read up on the care of the specific pet and make sure that you are meeting the nutritional and living condition requirements of the animal. Take a sick pet to the vet.

School's out: Is the temperature sufficient for the animal over the week-end and at night? Who feeds the pet on the week-end? Where will the pet spend the summer? It is not recommended to send the pet home with different students due to the stress involved for the animal.

For a free brochure about classroom pets that includes a list of activities that include the animal in classroom learning, send a self-addressed stamped legal envelope to "The Classroom Pet," Humane Society of Huron Valley Education Dept., 3100 Cherry Hill Rd., Ann Arbor 48105.

Social Service Seeks Clothing For Kids

Chelsea Social Service has begun to think fall and the beginnings of another school year for Chelsea students.

Last year their successful program, "Fall Friends," provided 22 students with new back-to-school clothing and shoes. Boys and girls ages 5-17 were the proud recipients of the program.

This year "Fall Friends" is again collecting new clothing—shirts, pants, jeans, skirts, socks and other items to be distributed by the agency. Chelsea Social Service will add shoes for students if needed.

Individuals or group organizations may adopt a child or family.

To obtain the necessary information—boy or girl—age—size to purchase clothing call Chelsea Social Service or consider a cash donation that may be used in the "Fall Friends" program.

The "Fall Friends" program will run from July 8 to Aug. 8 so students will be ready on the opening day of school with new clothes.

Call for information on how you can contribute, Chelsea Social Service, 475-1581, Thursday 10 to 4, or 475-1925.

Non-Alcoholic Drinks for Hot Weather Summer Entertaining

By Debbie Barrow, Extension Home Economist

When summer weather hits Michigan, people tend to eat and entertain outdoors. When planning summer entertainments, give some thought to the fact that people will probably drive to and from your house. Always have non-alcoholic beverages available for those who choose not to drink. Grocery stores offer a wide variety of carbonated and non-carbonated sodas. And the number of flavored mineral waters on the market is increasing. Fruit juice companies are offering some interesting juice combinations, such as white grape and raspberry. These are available in ready-to-drink cartons and as frozen concentrate. The following drink recipes are offered by the Louisiana Co-operative Extension Service as creative, tasty, non-alcoholic alternatives. You might want to prepare a large batch and serve them in pitchers or from punch bowls with lots of ice.

Almost Wine Fizz (one serving)
 1/2 cup white grape juice
 1/2 cup lemon-lime soda
 1/2 tsp. lemon juice
 Combine ingredients in a tall glass, stir to blend. Add ice.

Sangria Spritzer (one serving)
 1/2 cup grape juice
 1/2 cup ginger ale
 1 tablespoon grenadine syrup
 Combine ingredients in a tall glass or shaker. Stir or shake to blend.

Mild-eye Margarita (two servings)
 2 cups bitter lemon or lime soda
 1 tablespoon sugar
 juice of 1/2 lime
 salt
 crushed ice
 Pour soda into ice cube tray or shallow pan; freeze thoroughly. Place frozen soda in blender container; add lime juice and sugar. Blend until well mixed. To serve, rub lime around rims of glasses, dip rims in salt. Pour mixture over crushed ice in salted glasses. Garnish with lime slices.

Salty Dog Zinger (one serving)
 1/2 cup grapefruit juice
 1/2 cup lemon-lime soda
 Combine ingredients in tall glass or shaker. Stir or shake to blend. Add crushed ice. Serve in glass with rim dipped in coarse salt.

Mock Mai Tai (one serving)
 1/2 cup pineapple juice
 1/4 cup orange juice
 1/4 cup soda
 1 tablespoon cream of coconut
 1 tablespoon grenadine syrup
 Combine ingredients in a tall glass or shaker. Stir or shake to blend. Add crushed ice.

Pina Colada Perfecta (one serving)
 1 jigger (1 1/2 ounces) canned creme of coconut
 2 jiggers (3 ounces) pineapple juice
 1 1/2 jiggers (2 1/4 ounces) club soda
 Pour ingredients over ice in glass; mix.

Peach Fizz

"Perfection does not exist. To understand it is the triumph of human intelligence. To expect to possess it is the most dangerous kind of madness."
 —Alfred de Musset

Oh... to be perfect, or to do things to perfection! Some people make this their lifetime goal. But who is to say that something is perfect... that there is absolutely no higher peak that could have been reached?
 De Musset explains that if you accept the fact that perfection does not exist, this in itself is a triumph. He also warns us that those that feel they are the exception and can be a perfectionist, are heading down a dangerous path. Always doing your very best is surely a more satisfying objective.
 We are proud of always doing our best with our uncompromising standards for personal integrity in the field of funeral services.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,
 This note was found at the Antiques Market on Sunday, July 5, 1992:

"Dealers:
 We ask that you NOT patronize the Shopping Center businesses, especially Gina's Restaurant. These people have made a fuss over parking in their lot, and Gina has discouraged our business."

We believe that it was fair of us to ask that parking for the Antiques Show be limited to the Fairgrounds, and that priority be given to Chelsea Shopping Center patrons so that they may park as close as possible to the businesses they are patronizing.
 Chelsea Shopping Center Merchants

Dear Editor,
 A few weeks ago, The Chelsea Standard printed an article relating how some 80 members of a rifle and drum corps from Germany will soon be coming to Chelsea to perform. This international exchange, which is being organized by Bill Gourley, director of music at CHS, would be impossible were it not for the generosity of families here in Chelsea willing to open their homes to them and serve as host families.

I would like to thank The Chelsea Standard and all of the people who have volunteered to host these musicians and help make this event possible. It promises to be an exciting opportunity for both the host families and the musicians alike.

We still have a need for more host families and would appreciate anyone interested to contact Norma Huschke (475-3792).

Their arrival date is Aug. 16 and they leave on Aug. 20 and as their schedule is fairly full, the demands on the host families are minimal. Still, because they speak English fairly well, this is a wonderful opportunity to hear and learn more about Germany.

Please consider helping us and treating yourself to this experience.
 Thank you.

Norma Huschke.

To the Editor:
 Governor Engler is persisting in his attempt to steal $9.8 million from boat owners to help reduce the state's budget deficit.

When he issued an executive order to divert $9.8 million in boat registration fees to the General Fund, the Michigan United Conservation Clubs filed suit in Ingham County Circuit Court against the Governor to prevent what MUCC called an illegal transfer of funds. MUCC contended not only that this was a breach of promise to Michigan's boaters but that the Governor acted unconstitutionally when he ordered fees paid exclusively by boat owners to be used for purposes unrelated to boating.

The Governor apparently realized that this was an illegal action and withdrew his executive order after the suit was filed. However, he is now trying to achieve the same unjust goal through legislative action. Senate Bill 1033 calls for transferring the $9.8 million earmarked for developing harbors for recreational boating to the General Fund.

MUCC urges every sportsman and sportswoman to call upon his or her state senator and representative to vote against this bill. If the Governor succeeds in raiding the Harbor Development Fund, none of the user and license fees paid by Michigan sportsmen and women will be safe in the future.

Dear Editor,
 Since my letter to you about the toxic waste incinerator and landfill projected to be built in Augusta township, I spoke with Rolle Kusler, the builder of the model to which Margaret O'Connor made a donation. The model demonstrates underground water routes which makes it totally unfeasible to build a toxic waste landfill in this area without groundwater contamination.

I received six responses out of Lansing and the DNR. Public mail will make a difference! We are fighting for the health and welfare not only for ourselves but for our children and our children's children thereafter.

To the Editor,
 People of Chelsea:
 About a year ago, 6/29/91, I was involved in an accident in your area: I was seriously injured, and I believe I almost died.

Your Fire Department's Emergency people saved my life. Thru your support of these people, seeing that they had the training, and necessary equipment to help me, it was the same as if the whole community was there helping me.

My family and I thank you. God bless you.

The rapidly growing services industry will add 13 million jobs over the 1990-2006 period. Health, business, education, and engineering and management services will account for about two-thirds of the growth, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Occupational Outlook Quarterly, Fall 1991.

Supreme Court Decision Cheers Private Property Rights Advocates

Farm Bureau said this week's U.S. Supreme Court ruling on a South Carolina private property rights case strengthens the foundation of our free-enterprise system and bolsters the continued success of American agriculture. The Supreme Court overturned a South Carolina Supreme Court decision and ordered compensation paid to a private landowner for "regulatory taking" of his two beachfront lots.

"The Supreme Court's declaration of a compensable taking in this case delivers a message to regulators that they have gone too far in taking private property without awarding just compensation to landowners," said Al Almy, director of public affairs for Michigan Farm Bureau.

"Just as owners receive compensation when their property is taken through eminent domain, now compensation will be mandated when private property is taken through regulatory action. Whether a farmer loses his field to a new highway or to restrictive wetlands regulations, we believe the result is the same in each case—a taking is a taking. When compensation is not paid, the landowner's constitutional rights have been violated."

Almy said that wetland regulations are one example of how the use of private land resources are being restricted. "In some cases, the value of land has plummeted at the stroke of a regulator's pen, leaving a farmer without the resources necessary to earn a living and without the assets earned over a lifetime. The bottom line is that if the public benefits from the regulation of private property, then the public, not just the individual landowner, must pay the price," he said.

Exposing Congress' 'Slush Funds'

As if the House Bank and Post Office scandals were not enough, researchers have now uncovered some highly unusual practices in the way Congress spends money on itself.

By Phillip C. Clarke
According to a Heritage Foundation Study, the "scandals and public outrage of recent years have not deterred Congress from finding new ways to tap the federal Treasury for its own perks and expenses. A close look at how funding to run Congress is approved shows that money for operating the legislative branch has been turned into a shadowy slush fund under the control of congressional leaders."

The Heritage study, authored by congressional analyst Steven Schwalm, explains the inner workings. In 1988, the House of Representatives changed the way funds are transferred among House accounts, making it easier to use money for new purposes after the money has been appropriated—and more difficult to track. Then in the Fiscal Year 1991, Congress changed the bookkeeping for both House and Senate operations from annual accounts to so-called "no-year" accounts. This means that instead of having to return any unspent funds to the Treasury at the end of the year, this unspent money remains available indefinitely in a special account, or what the Heritage study calls a "slush fund" of unused money for Congress' use. This fund now totals an estimated $45 million.

Small potatoes by today's Washington standards. But as the Wall Street Journal says: It's "another telling display of legislative arrogance. One more time, Congress has arranged special treatment for itself and shielded its operations from public scrutiny." Indeed, as Democratic Congressman Vic Fazio, who heads the House Subcommittee on the legislative budget, has admitted, this special fund is used "to do quietly what cannot be done openly."

At the same time, the over-all cost of operating Congress has increased by 500% since 1970, and now totals $2.4 billion. And as the Heritage study found, the increases did not stop during the recession. The House, for example, saw its over-all spending increase by 9.5% this year over last. And where the money went is interesting, to say the least. For instance, leaders in the House—Speaker Tom Foley for the Democrats and Minority Leader Bob Michel for the Republicans—saw increases of 10% in their leadership office budgets this year. The Speaker's office alone now spends nearly $1.5 million a year. Also, the office of the House sergeant-at-arms—though "directly responsible for the House Bank and, indirectly, for the check-kiting scandal—received a 7.3% increase." Meantime, the Office of the Postmaster, which oversees the House Post Office now under investigation for embezzlement and drug-dealing, saw its budget increase more than 33%.

The House is not alone in its self-indulgence. Says the Heritage study: "While the stagnant economy grew a meager 3% last year, the budget for salaries for Senate employees shot up 18%, from $80 million to nearly $70 million. The office of the Senate majority and minority leaders grew 15% each, from $1.7 million to more than $2 million . . . While bemoaning the hardships of the recession publicly, Congress continues to prosper privately. Vows to reduce wasteful spending can hardly be taken seriously while the congressional gravy train continues full steam ahead."

As the study concludes, "Strong steps are needed immediately to restore accountability to congressional finances." These include elimination of the "no-year" funding; a truly independent audit of all congressional accounts; full disclosure of legislative funding; and honest budgeting.

Ironically, one of the few congressional committees to experience an actual reduction in its budget last year was the House Committee on Standards and Official Conduct, otherwise known as the Ethics Committee. The way things are going in Washington, however, it may be the one committee that should get a raise. (America's Future, Inc., Milford, Pa.)

Classic Car Expo Returning for July St. Joseph Festival

The St. Joseph church annual Summer Festival is Saturday, July 18 and Sunday, July 19 this year and everyone is looking forward to it with great anticipation. Two of the favorite events are the Classic Car Expo and the Braun & Helmer Auction.

Last year was the first time for the Classic Car Expo and it is coming back again by popular demand. This year's co-ordinator, Tony Jurewicz, has selected 25-30 entrants from classic car shows in the area and invited them to exhibit at the Festival. Last year Fr. Dick selected a '58 Buick Special from Toledo as winner of the show. His job of selecting his favorite this year will be a little more difficult. In addition to the classic original cars; which include a 1965 Chevrolet Impala convertible, a 1956 Jaguar and a 1964 Ford Victoria, the popular "street rods" and the low riding, chopped up "lead sleds" will be among the participants. So don't miss this exhibition of fabulous cars from the past.

No one will want to miss the Braun & Helmer Auction at 8:30 on Saturday night. The variety of items donated include everyone's interests from A-Z. Bidders will be able to buy services for their cars or week-end use of a van. There are Tiger tickets for the sports enthusiast as well as a golf outing, sports accessories, golf lessons and a canoe rental. Items and services for the home range from trees for the outside to housecleaning service. For those with a sweet tooth there will be Christmas cookies and a pie every month for a year. Also along the gastronomical line are a dinner for two and a pizza a month. Some of the not so ordinary offerings are a private party boat tour, a simple will for husband and wife, plus dry cleaning services and gift certificates from local establishments.

So mark your calendar and plan to attend the special events at the St. Joseph Summer Festival.

International Summit in Washtenaw

By Janet Nagele, 4-H Youth Agent
The solution to global issues and world peace can be achieved only through cultural understanding. Though maybe not the caliber or as well known as the Earth Summit in Brazil or the Presidential Trade Negotiations with Japan, this summer's 4-H International Exchange Program in Washtenaw county will most certainly advance cultural awareness and understanding.

Six Washtenaw county families will participate in the 4-H International Exchange Program by hosting guests from Belize and Japan. They are the Wood family, Ypsilanti; Dieterle family, Saline; Satlowski family, Belleville; Baker family, Ann Arbor; Freitag family, Ann Arbor; and Wright family of Salem township.

The program promotes cultural awareness and understanding and global co-operation through the sharing of everyday family life. While in Washtenaw county, our international guests will experience U.S. culture, and share their cultures with their host families and 4-H clubs.

Belizeans, Dorla Foreman and Helen Rock (both 4-H club leaders in Belize) will be visiting June 26 through July 21.

Belize, formerly British Honduras, is a developing country located in Central America. It is known for its lush tropical forests, ancient Mayan heritage, and the second largest coral reef in the world. It boasts of many ethnic peoples including: Mayan Indian, Creole, Mestizo, and Garifuna.

Our Japanese visitors from July 25 through Aug. 20. Kunitatsu Ishiwata, Yoko Yamamura and Kenji Maeda are members of the Japanese LABO Youth Program. LABO exposes Japanese youth to U.S. culture and the English language.

Members of the host families will have the opportunity to travel to Belize and Japan next year to reciprocate the exchange and further cultural understanding.

For more information on these and other 4-H International Programs, call Janet Nagele at the Co-operative Extension Service, (313) 971-0079.

Washtenaw Honored for Program

By Nancy D. Thelen, County Extension Director

Educating urban and rural third grade students about local agriculture and natural resources is the goal of Project RED (Rural Education Days). This event, and its co-organizer, the Washtenaw County Farm Bureau, was honored by Michigan 4-H Youth Programs as an outstanding 1992 county program. RED is a two-day program held at the Washtenaw Farm Council grounds. Students participate in learning stations focusing on farm equipment, wool production, soil conservation, groundwater education, and farm and dairy animals. The second annual program, held this year, had 1,200 third graders registered for the activity. The event, sponsored jointly by Washtenaw County Farm Bureau and the Washtenaw County 4-H Youth Program, was developed in answer to requests from urban teachers and principals for activities to educate youngsters about the local agricultural community, represented by 1,222 farms located on the outskirts of urban areas in the county. Harold Trinkle, president of the Washtenaw County Farm Bureau, and his wife, Lois, represented the county at the annual state awards program and received a plaque recognizing the success of the program. Project RED was one of four programs recognized at the State 4-H Recognition Banquet held recently in Flint, sponsored by STF, Inc., of Elkhart, Ind. Selection of outstanding county programs is based on volunteer leadership in starting and conducting the program, the originality and uniqueness of the program, the potential for replication in other counties, audience diversity and size, impact on participants, and community visibility and networking. Michigan 4-H Youth Programs is a division of the Co-operative Extension Service of Michigan State University.

Steve Olmsted Seeks Drain Commission Office

Steve Olmsted of Warner Road, Pittsfield township, has declared his candidacy for Washtenaw County Drain Commissioner. Olmsted will seek the Republican nomination in the Aug. 4 primary.

A community planner with a nationally known engineering and planning firm, Olmsted serves as a planning consultant and project manager to several Michigan communities. Olmsted graduated from the University of Michigan in 1980 and earned a master's degree in urban planning from the U-M in 1983.

Married and the father of three children, the 35-year-old Olmsted is a member of the American Institute of Certified Planners and also serves on the Pittsfield Township Zoning Board of Appeals.

In a prepared statement, Olmsted declared, "Safety of our county's drinking water isn't a sure thing. There are some households in Washtenaw county where residents have been warned about drinking their tap water. It will take a Drain Commissioner with my kind of fight to see that our drinking water is safe to drink again."

He also pointed out that "cleanup of toxic substances is a top priority. The need to contain the long-reaching effects of harmful toxic substances is overdue. As your representative, I will work to see that new practices are adopted to avoid dangerous levels of chemical substances in our environment."

In addition, Olmsted said, "Toxic waste facilities should be carefully considered. Construction of an underground toxic waste storage facility and incinerator in Washtenaw county could impair our quality of life. As your elected Drain Commissioner, I will represent your interests in opposing any potentially harmful facilities."

Olmsted continued, "Soil erosion means economic losses for all of us. Prevention of soil erosion requires effective methods of stormwater management. Erosion of precious topsoil from our county's farmland reduces the farmers' crop yield. It will take a Drain commissioner with my type of experience to protect Washtenaw county's topsoil from being eroded."

Finally, Olmsted concluded, "Maintenance of county drains is imperative. The control of property flooding requires adequate maintenance of our county drains. As your elected official, I will make prompt restoration and maintenance of Washtenaw county's drains a priority."

Chelsea Internal Medicine Plans Ice Cream Social at New Offices

Chelsea Internal Medicine Consultants, the practice of Drs. Steven Yarows, Martin Gleespen, and Thomas O'Brien, has moved to their new custom-built office at 128 Van Buren St., adjacent to their current location off Main St. in downtown Chelsea.

Designed by architect Bill Farrand, the new facility has 12 examination rooms, a treatment room for minor surgeries and procedures, and 4,000 square feet for patient care on the first floor, including a laboratory suite and space for an x-ray area.

"We wanted our offices to be open and friendly, and we incorporated this concept, from convenient parking to a waiting room filled with windows and a conference area where patients and their families can meet in private," Yarows said.

Ypsilanti-based R.D. Holley Construction began work on the Cape Cod-style building in November, and completed the finishing touches in time for a June 19 move-in date.

"A house on the property was moved rather than torn down. Its eventual destination is Leslie but as of early this week it was still adjacent to Vogel's Party Store on the edge of town, waiting for further transport."

Yarows says he and his partners decided to construct a new building both to accommodate their growing practice and to demonstrate their commitment to the Chelsea community. With the move, physician's assistant Karen Cummings will join the practice, and plans are to offer space to several specialists as well. The practice will continue to offer evening appointments for the convenience of patients who cannot take time from work during the day.

"We believe very strongly in the continuity of care, and co-ordinate our schedules so at least one of the partners is on call at all times," Yarows said.

"Having one physician co-ordinate your care—whether it's a routine check-up or a hospital stay—leads to better, more personal care. And the better we know our patients, the more we are able to get them involved in a preventive program that keeps them healthy and active."

All three physicians are certified in internal medicine, and Yarows and Gleespen are certified in geriatric medicine.

The public is invited to see the new building on Sunday, July 12 from 1-3 p.m. at an ice cream social (actually yogurt). The doctors will be on hand to greet the public.

Chelsea Summer Baseball Team Wins and Loses Against Tecumseh

Chelsea summer baseball team split a pair of games with Tecumseh last week, losing the first 5-4 and winning the second, 10-7. A third game was rained out.

In the first game on Tuesday, June 30, in the first inning with two outs, Gary White singled, moved to second on a walk, and scored on a base hit by Chris White to give Chelsea a 1-0 lead.

However, in the bottom of the inning, Chelsea gave up five hits and committed two errors to give the Indians a 3-1 lead. Tecumseh added two more runs on three hits in the second inning to take a 5-1 lead.

From there on Chelsea pitching tightened up and gave up just one hit the remainder of the game.

In the fourth inning, Chelsea picked up a run as Casey Schiller singled, went to second on a walk and to third on a wild pitch, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Gabe Bernhard.

Chelsea entered the seventh inning down 5-2. Matt Powell walked and Ken Slane singled him to third. A sacrifice fly by Steve Grau and a single by Schiller plated two runs. The Bulldogs had the tying run on second but a strikeout ended the game.

The Bulldogs collected seven hits, two by Schiller, a double by Don Poppenger, and singles from Slane, Gary White, Chris White and Jay Westcott. Of Chelsea's 21 outs, 14 were fly balls or pop-ups.

Slane started on the mound and Chris White pitched final two innings. Neither pitcher gave up a walk. They struck out six and allowed nine hits, eight in the first two innings. White struck out the side in the sixth.

On Thursday, July 7 the teams met again in Ann Arbor's Veterans Park. Tecumseh jumped out to a 2-0 lead with a two-run homer in the first inning, but Chelsea rallied for four runs in the bottom of the inning. Powell singled, Gary White and Grau both walked, and Chris White hit a grand slam to left-center.

Chelsea added two more in the second inning as Slane and Jason McVitie crossed the plate to give the Bulldogs a 6-2 lead.

Tecumseh narrowed the gap to 6-4 in the third, but Chelsea responded again with a big inning, this time three runs. Highlight was a double by Gabe Bernhard.

The Indians added a three-run homer in the fifth to come within 9-7. But Gary White's RBI-single gave Chelsea their final lead at 10-7.

Chris White led the hitting attack with a homer and a single, Gary White added a pair of singles, Bernhard doubled, and Powell and Schiller singled.

Grau picked up the complete-game victory on the mound as he gave up 11 hits, walked two, and struck out four.

Chelsea plays at Dexter on Thursday at 6:15 p.m. The Bulldogs have a 4-10 record.

OPEN LETTER

Dear Editor,

I would like to take this opportunity to respond to the Village Council meeting May 26, 1992. This concerns the way Mr. Steele felt necessary to address my father and humiliate him publicly for attempting to ask a valid question concerning himself and a gentleman by the name of Mr. Cashman. My father asked those familiar with the situation to write to the Editor, as I choose rather to address my father.

Dear Dad,

In response to your letter addressed to the Editor dated June 3, 1992. I too experienced the pain and hurt you felt at the May 26, meeting as did Mom, Ted, Jerry, Linda, Ishmael, Jr., Sam and James. I have some very serious questions regarding Mr. Steele's behavior in the manner in which you were treated publicly, and the decision he made appointing Mr. Cashman. I want to encourage you to remain steadfast in what you know to be true, realizing you do not have to be accountable for others' actions, only your own. I am offering you my love and unlimited financial support to pursue this matter in whatever way you feel necessary. I look forward to visiting with you and the family soon.

With Love and Prayers,

Q: Teenage drivers are:
 a. Among Michigan's safest drivers.
 b. Not required to wear their safety belts.
 c. On probationary driving status for at least three years.
 d. Can drink a beer before driving as long as they are not legally drunk.

Receiving your first driver license signals adulthood. It promises freedom, as well as responsibility.

As important as laws are in promoting safe driving, the most critical factor in turning new drivers into good drivers is their parents, who should begin by being role models. As old-fashioned as that sounds, prom and graduation time present the opportunity for young adults to stretch their independence. Obeying speed limits and always driving courteously and carefully should, by this time, be ingrained habits of the responsible driver.

Michigan requires new drivers to be at least 16, pass an approved driver education course, and have their parent or guardian's signature prior to taking the knowledge and skills test at any Secretary of State branch office. It is the parent or guardian's responsibility to assure the teenager is ready to drive. Parents should observe their new driver's skills, especially during the time they have a Temporary Instruction (or learner's) Permit.

After a teen gets their license, parents should not hesitate to place restrictions on driving, especially during the first few months. Parents must take an active role with their teenage drivers.

All new Michigan drivers are probationary for a minimum of three years, and remain on probation until they have had at least 10 months of accident and point-free driving. During this period, if there is evidence the individual is not driving responsibly, they may be called before a Michigan Department of State Driver Improvement Examiner, who will decide if additional license restrictions are required. One restriction might be: No driving between midnight and 5 a.m. without a licensed adult in the car.

A bad driving record will undoubtedly lead to higher family insurance rates, and can limit job opportunities. Often an employer will consider the driver record as evidence of maturity and dependability.

Tragically, traffic crash injury and death are the greatest threat to the lives of teen-agers and young adults in Michigan and America. During the 1980s, 2,453 Michigan teen-agers (ages 15 to 19) were killed in crashes, more than the number who died from all diseases combined. Nation-wide, on average every two or three weeks the equivalent of a senior class at a typical high school is wiped out on our streets and highways. The National Safety Council estimates that the financial toll is at least $10 billion annually for medical and insurance costs, property damage and lost wages resulting from crashes involving teen-age drivers.

Certainly, not all teen-agers are bad drivers. Still, although teen drivers accounted for only 6.7 percent of Michigan's driving population in 1990, they represented 11 percent of drivers involved in fatal crashes and 11.2 percent of those in fatal crashes where alcohol was a contributing factor.

Why is this the case? New, young drivers tend to be risk takers. One way to lower the risk is for parents and guardians to "practice" driving with them, even though they now have a license. Limit driving after dark, on busy highways or during rush hour. Make sure a teen-ager is comfortable with the vehicle and the route. Limit the number of friends, and for what reasons friends are riding along.

Always wearing a safety belt, and never drinking and driving, are also important ways to reduce the risks.

Alcohol is a factor in almost half the motor vehicle fatalities in Michigan. Even one drink of alcohol can impair an individual's ability to drive safely.

Under age 21 drivers, especially males, seem to think their chances of being in a traffic crash are one in a million. In fact, a nation-wide survey of nearly 47,000 high school students found that more than 40 percent who were licensed for at least two years had already had one or more crashes.

Don't be a sad statistic on prom night. Enjoy the freedom, accept the responsibility, and always buckle up!

Answer: c. On probationary driving status for at least three years.

Farmers Appointed to State Farm Bureau Policy Development Committee

Twenty farmers have been appointed to the 1992 Michigan Farm Bureau Policy Development Committee. The committee is chaired by Wayne Wood of Marlette, vice-president of the Michigan Farm Bureau. Other members appointed to the committee were Diane Horning of Manchester and Joshua Wunsch of Traverse City.

Appointed to the committee to represent MFB districts were Ron Bodtke of Grand Junction, Keith Brown of Jonesville, Carmen Cousino of Temperance, Lorna Wilson of Nashville, Duane Tirrell of Charlotte, Charlene Delisi of Capac, Judy Emmons of Sheridan, Don Sutto of Saginaw, John Bull of Arcadia, Willis Walker of Johannesburg and Robert Desjarlais of Daggett.

Representing MFB Young Farmers were Ray Baker of Burr Oak, Fred Pritchard of Ewart and Pam Brighton of Adrian. At-large members appointed were Judy Birmelster of Shelby, Ivan Top of Hamilton and Mike Tulgestke of Hawks.

The committee will meet for the first time July 23 in Lansing to begin gathering information on probable issues of interest to Farm Bureau members. They'll meet again on Sept. 15 and Nov. 9-11. After reviewing an anticipated 1,300 county Farm Bureau policy recommendations, the committee will craft a slate of suggested policies to be presented to voting delegates at the MFB Annual Meeting Dec. 1-4.

Ag Expo Provides Common Focus for Farmer, Exhibitor

Ag Expo, July 14-16 at Michigan State University is a cost and time saver for farmers and farm equipment or supply representatives alike. "It's about the only place in Michigan where we can showcase as much of the line of equipment that we handle," says Jack O'Dell, of Holt, a representative for the Hiniker Co., of Mankato, Minn. "We have a marketing focus on the farm show because it's an opportunity to reach more people at a single time in one location."

For a variety of reasons—including cost and liability—farm equipment dealers do not maintain the inventories commonly seen even five years ago. Consequently, farmers generally do not have the opportunity to see first-hand most of a company's lineup.

"Shows like Ag Expo also give us an opportunity to be compared with our competition, and that's something we want the farmer to see," O'Dell says. "It also enables us to have a technical representative on the grounds so that the farmer has most, if not all, of his or her questions answered."

"Over-all, this saves all of us interested in the equipment—and, naturally, potential sales—a lot of time because we and the farmer attending the show have a common purpose," O'Dell says.

Bill Bickert, director of Ag Expo, says there is no place in Michigan where farm families can see as broad an array of farm equipment and supplies.

"Companies from 22 states and Canada will have exhibits at Ag Expo, and that will enable farm families to see more in one day than they could during many hours of travel between dealerships," Bickert says.

"We look on Ag Expo as a partnership between the university, the farm family and the manufacturer for the exchange of information, and quite possibly, the development of new plans for the farm business," Bickert says. "In fact, I'd be very surprised if a farmer went away from Ag Expo without at least one new idea to use back on the farm."

Ag Expo's 35-acre main exhibition site will be open each day beginning at 9 a.m.

Ag Expo's 30 acres of field demonstration, focusing on row crop cultivation of corn and soybeans, will begin each day at 10 a.m. About a dozen manufacturers will demonstrate tillage equipment and automatic guidance systems in fields with moderate to heavy residue cover.

All of Ag Expo's events and parking are free. The parking area is at Park Lane and Mt. Hope Rd.

Because of freeway construction, the best way to reach Ag Expo from I-69/US-127 is to use the Jolly Rd. exit. Ag Expo signs will point the way to the parking area. Free shuttles will operate between the main site and the parking area every few minutes, as well as to and from the field demonstrations.

An NAIC Service
Today's Investor

By Ralph L. Seger, Jr.
 CFA
 President
 NAIC Investor
 Advisory Service

Q. I have a friend who has been a successful investor. He keeps urging me to buy stock. He says Biogen and Amgen are in a completely new kind of medicine and are sure to grow a great deal. What do you think of these two companies for a new investor?

A. Both Biogen and Amgen utilize biotechnology to develop new pharmaceutical products. They spend a lot of money on research and development in the hopes of developing a new medicine which will cure diseases which are currently resistant to medication.

The combination of biology and chemistry employed by the companies is very complex. While Amgen's annual sales total $682 million, Biogen's total only $61 million.

Both are high risk bets that the expensive research and development programs will have a major payoff. The price-earnings ratios are very high.

If successful in their research and development programs, the return to the shareholders could be substantial. However, there is no assurance of success, that's why the risk is high. A new investor would probably be advised to buy tried-and-true high quality growth stocks. There was quite a sell-off in biotechnology stocks earlier this year as the prices reached unrealistically high levels. Even biotechnology mutual funds suffered severe declines.

Investment Idea for Today's Investor
 The decline in the prices of some healthcare stocks has brought Abbott Laboratories (ABT), NYSE, to a price of about 28 where it appears to be attractive for the long-term patient investor.

Abbott Labs earnings per share are growing at about 15% a year. The company has three basic businesses. These are pharmaceutical, nutritional, as well as hospital and laboratory.

Earnings per share were $2.55 in 1991. For 1992 the estimate is $2.91 and perhaps $3.43 for 1993.

Mr. Seger welcomes your questions and comments, but will answer them only through this column. ## St. Jacob Church Welcomes New Pastor

Members of St. Jacob Evangelical Lutheran church will welcome their new pastor, Paul Stratman, in a special service on Sunday, July 12. Stratman comes from Kendall, Wisc. (about 50 miles east of LaCrosse), where he grew up on a dairy farm. His father, Curtis Stratman, continues to farm, while his mother, Patricia, is a kindergarten teacher at an area Christian Day school.

He graduated from Martin Luther Preparatory School, Prairie du Chien, Wisc. in 1984, and from Northwestern College, Watertown, Wisc., in 1988. On May 29 of this year he graduated from Wisconsin Lutheran Seminary with a Master of Divinity degree. All three schools are owned and operated by the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod.

He brings with him his wife, Corinne. She grew up in West Bend, Wisc. (about 30 miles north of Milwaukee), graduated from Kettle Moraine Lutheran High school, Jackson, Wisc., in 1986, and from Wisconsin Lutheran College, Milwaukee, Wisc., this year. Both of these schools are associated with the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod. In college, she majored in theology, with minors in art and psychology.

St. Jacob congregation is located at 12501 Riethmiller Rd., Grass Lake (Waterloo township). The congregation is one of the oldest Lutheran congregations in the state. It celebrated its 150th anniversary last year. It is associated with the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod.

RAYMOND WEINER III, a sophomore at Chelsea High school and a member of the Washington Street Show Choir, completed an intensive one-week camp of Show Choir Camps of America at Millikin University in Decatur, Ill. The camp, attended by more than 450 students from 36 states and five countries, consisted of singing, dancing, special concerts, and professional workshops, culminating with performances by the students with assistance to one of the choirs. There were also talent shows and a performance by the 36-member Advanced Jazz Dance Ensemble. Weiner was one of 12 boys in the ensemble. It was the 13th year of the camp. Weiner is the son of Jan and Ray Weiner of Chelsea.

Phone Customers Alerted to Hidden Charges on 800 Calls

Be careful calling 800 numbers. They are not always free anymore! Some advertisers are promoting a service and listing an 800 number for consumers to call. Once the company gets your call, they may tell you to stay on the phone. Or, they may ask you to press certain numbers on your phone if you want more information. Sometimes there is a charge from that point on.

It is possible the service provider has switched the call to a long-distance number or to a number outside the United States. In that case you may get long-distance or international long-distance charges on your telephone bill.

Another possibility is that the call is referred to a 900 number. Customers can call 900 numbers to receive a service or get information on a variety of things. These may include the weather, the stock market, or car values. A call to a 900 number always costs money. The charges, ranging from 75¢ to $50 or more, may appear on your phone bill. If not, you will receive a direct billing from the provider of the service.

For your protection, the Federal Communications Commission has some rules on 900 numbers.

- Companies must tell customers up front there is a charge for a 900 call.
- Calls costing more than $2 must have a short introductory message stating how much the call could cost. Callers get a chance to hang up and not pay for the call after hearing the message.
- If you don't want 900 numbers called from your telephone, call your local telephone company about a free "blocking" service. Most companies have it. You can still make other long-distance calls even though you block 900 calls.
- Local or long-distance service cannot be shut off if you do not pay disputed charges from 900 calls.
- Contact your local telephone company for more information.

Between 1990 and 2005, the occupations with the greatest projected declines in employment are concentrated in declining industries or affected by technological change. Some occupations are affected by both factors. About half the declining occupations are concentrated in manufacturing, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Occupational Outlook Quarterly, Fall 1991.

YOU MAY HAVE THOUGHT those stop lines and other street markers were painted on, but last week workers for the Michigan Department of Transportation showed just how it's really done as they worked on M-52 through town. A glue is applied to the road and a film is cut and put into place.

Beach Student Dan McMurray Attends National History Day

Dan McMurray, a Beach Middle school eighth grader, attended the National History Day Contest June 14-18 at the University of Maryland. His mother, Ellen, and teacher Judy Ward also attended.

Theme of the contest was "Discovery, Encounter, Exchange: Seeds of Change" and was based on the 500th anniversary of Columbus' voyage to the New World. Dan won a third place award in Michigan for his paper on "Food Exchange Between the Old and New World."

About 1,800 students from 48 states attended the contest, which consisted of a junior division of 6-8 grade students, and a senior division of 9-12 grade students.

Several categories in each division focused on individual student papers, individual and group projects, and media and performance presentations. First prize in each category was $1,000 and the grand prize was a full, four-year scholarship to Case Western Reserve in Ohio.

Ward acted as a contest judge and said the experience was very challenging. All three Chelsea residents said they were impressed with the quality and depth of the students' work.

One of the most beneficial aspects of the meeting for students was the opportunity to meet students from other states, discuss history projects, and exchange conference buttons with their peers.

The McMurrays and Ward also took the opportunity to visit many historical sites. They also had personal meetings with Senators Carl Levin and Donald Riegle.

Theme for 1993 History Day Program is "Communication and Its Impact on History."

"I'd like to encourage all eligible students to participate in next year's program," Ward said.

A Minnesota company is ready to announce plans to market low-cholesterol whole eggs. The eggs would be in liquid form and ultrapasteurized to improve shelf life.

THE GARDEN CORNER

Control Woodchucks In Early Spring

Spring is the best time to control woodchucks and prevent damage to structures and gardens.
 "Whether you choose to trap or shoot woodchucks, or use poisonous gases in their burrows, spring is the best time," says Glenn Dudderar, Extension wildlife specialist.

In the spring, before vegetation begins to grow, both woodchucks and their burrows are easier to see. This makes shooting (in rural areas), trapping or gassing easier. Lack of succulent new vegetation also means food is scarce for woodchucks just coming out of their winter sleep, so it is relatively easier to lure them into traps baited with whole kernel corn, apple slices, lettuce, potatoes, carrots or similar foods, Dudderar explains.

"Another reason to focus on spring control efforts is that the woodchucks alive then are the breeding population that will produce many young woodchucks in June and July," Dudderar adds. "You can eliminate one female now, fairly easily, or her and her two young later, when it's more difficult."

March and April in the Lower Peninsula and April and May in the U.P. are the months when woodchuck control efforts can be most effective.

Damage by woodchucks takes two forms: damage by feeding on crops, flowers or vegetable gardens, and damage by burrowing.

Woodchucks feeding on newly emerged field crops, such as soybeans, can clear large areas of plants, Dudderar observes. They can munch off whole rows of snap beans and other vegetables or garden flowers in an evening's feeding.

Woodchucks burrowing under barns, sheds, porches and other structures can undermine them and cause serious and expensive structural damage. Woodchuck burrows in cropland or pasture can result in damage to farm equipment or injury to animals that crash down into holes.

To trap woodchucks, you must first obtain permit from the local DNR conservation officer. Then you can use wire box traps (also called live traps) or leg-hold or body-gripping killer traps, Dudderar says. Woodchucks caught in live traps can be transported and released elsewhere, provided releasing them does not cause them to become someone else's problem. Or they can be humanely destroyed. Woodchucks that remain in such traps for more than a few hours invariably injure themselves, so check traps frequently to prevent unnecessary suffering.

Body-gripping killing traps pose hazards to children, household pets and non-target wildlife. Some of the larger ones require special permits from the Department of Natural Resources. Place killing traps directly around the burrow opening so that the woodchuck will be killed as it enters or leaves the burrow.

Leg-hold traps should also be used with caution. Place one directly in front of the burrow and stake it down away from the burrow so that the woodchuck can't retreat into its den. If it can get any part of its body into the burrow, it will be able to pull free of the trap. Check traps frequently. Dudderar urges, and deal with trapped woodchucks by shooting or clubbing.

"Persons unfamiliar with handling animals in leg-hold traps should not use this method," he advises. "Animals caught unintentionally can usually be released unharmed if traps are checked frequently."

A couple of products are available to gas woodchucks in their burrows. The gas-producing compounds are enclosed in cartridges that are ignited and inserted into the burrow. The burrow entrance is then sealed.

"Most woodchuck burrows have at least two entrances," Dudderar points out. "After placing the first cartridge, watch for a plume of smoke emerging from a second entrance. Treat and seal that and any other entrance."

In the spring, fumigate woodchuck burrows during the coolest part of the day; in the summer, during the hottest part of the day. Inspect treated burrows within a week of treatment and re-treat any burrows that woodchucks have reopened.

In rural areas, persistent shooting can be an effective way to control woodchucks. Shooting woodchucks can become a challenge in long-distance marksmanship, Dudderar observes.

"Woodchucks aren't as stupid as they look," he notes. "They learn to associate slowly cruising pickup trucks with subsequent rifle shots and hit their burrows at the first threat, so shooters find themselves shooting from greater and greater distances as the summer goes on."

With a little encouragement, large farm dogs may become proficient woodchuck killers, Dudderar says.

"A cornered woodchuck can put up quite a fight, using both teeth and claws to defend itself," he points out. "Dog owners may want to keep that in mind as they decide whether to encourage their dogs to hunt 'chucks.'"

Dexter Couple Hit By Lightning Bolt

A Dexter-area couple is lucky to be alive after they and their dog were hit by lightning last Thursday near Traverse City.

Debbie and Kim Sexton, and their black Lab, Oscar, had just taken cover under a pavilion they had built on their wilderness land as a cloud-burst hit. Two friends, Ed and Mary Ellen Oldaini, and their dog were with them.

Suddenly a lightning bolt came through the center of the roof and struck the Sextons and their dog.

Kim's heart stopped, but he was revived by Ed, who had only seen CPR practiced on television. Kim began breathing again as he was being taken by car to the nearest telephone, where an ambulance could be called. Kim was taken by ambulance, then helicopter, to the hospital. Debbie was also taken to the hospital.

Kim and Debbie each suffered burns and as of Tuesday were still very sore, Debbie said.

The bolt went down the back of Kim's head, then down his chest and leg.

Kim and Oscar each had the hair burned off his chest.

The Oldainis and their dog escaped unharmed, although Mary Ellen was knocked unconscious.

Debbie said that neither she or Kim remembers when the bolt hit or what it felt like because they were thrown to the ground and knocked out.

"There was a lot of lightning around us and we had seen bolts hit close by," Debbie says.

"We were just joking about one of them when we were hit. I don't know why it hit the pavilion because there are tall trees right next to it."

Senior Health Notes

★ H-Hyperthermia

"It's Toooo Darn Hot!" "We're Having a Heat Wave!" "Some Like It Hot!" Hollywood's great movies show energetic stars who are cool enough in the heat of the summer to swing around the dance floor. But, that's Hollywood! In everyday life, it's often hard to stay cool during the hot, steamy August weather.

Summer heat waves bring weather hot enough to make one ill. The 1980 temperatures in Memphis, Tenn. soared to 108 degrees Fahrenheit during an extended heat wave. In four days alone, ten people died due to heat-related illness.

The health problems caused by too much heat are called hyperthermia. Older persons are particularly susceptible. Human temperature is carefully regulated by the body to maintain an average normal temperature of 98.6 degrees F. A constant temperature is important for the body's well-being. As one ages, the body's ability to regulate temperature decreases. Changes due to normal aging and diseases common in older age combine to impair optimal heat regulation.

Hyperthermia occurs when the body temperature becomes too high. The most likely cause is overexposure to the sun or heat in a hot or humid environment. Three common forms are heat cramps, heat exhaustion and heat stroke.

Heat cramps are muscle cramps and usually result from doing too much physical labor in the hot sun. Heat cramps are common in younger adults.

Heat exhaustion is extreme fatigue caused by overexposure to heat, sometimes resulting in collapse. The main causes are loss of water and loss of salt.

Symptoms include fatigue, faintness, dizziness, heavy sweating, restlessness, nausea, headache and vomiting. The skin is pale and clammy; breathing is fast and shallow; the pulse is rapid and weak.

Treatment is to replace lost water and salt. The person should lie down and be given weak doses of salt water. Consult a physician for details of treatment. If untreated, heat exhaustion may advance to the more severe heat stroke.

Heat Stroke is a life threatening condition. It occurs when the body becomes overheated to a dangerous degree. Body temperature rises between 104 degrees F. and 107 degrees F. Early symptoms resemble heat exhaustion: faintness, dizziness, fatigue, headache, weakness, profuse sweating. Then, the body stops perspiring. The skin becomes flushed, dry and hot. Breathing is shallow; the pulse is rapid.

Heat stroke is a medical emergency and requires immediate professional attention to bring the temperature down. Without such help, the person may lose consciousness and die. Call 911 or a physician. While waiting for help to arrive, keep the person as cool as possible.

Medications contribute to the potential problems of hyperthermia. Some drugs, namely diuretics, cause loss of body water and electrolytes. Other medications affect the body's ability to regulate temperature. If you are taking medications during a heat wave or planning a vacation to an area that has a much hotter or more humid climate, check with your physician to make sure your medicine and its dosage are appropriate for hot weather.

Lawrence of Arabia may have cool and calm while fighting furious battles in the desert, but he had the help of Hollywood makeup artists. The rest of us must protect ourselves during hot weather.

To prevent hyperthermia during hot weather:

—Stay in cool or air-conditioned environments

—Use room fans to cool your immediate work or leisure area

—Drink lots of fluids

—Don't overeat

—Don't drink too much alcohol

—Wear light-colored, lightweight, cotton clothing

—Change clothing that becomes soaked with perspiration

—Take cool showers

—Limit physical work requiring long exposure to the sun

—If you are physically active, take frequent rest periods

—Be sensible about recreational activities (sitting in the sun too long at a ball game or playing that extra set of tennis just to win the match)

—Check medication dosages with your physician.

Ideal room temperature for older persons is 75 degrees Fahrenheit or 24 degrees Celsius. Place a room thermometer in a central location, and check for variations. In all weather, protect your health by paying attention to your body. If you feel too hot or too cold, change your environment to keep your surroundings and your body at normal temperature. If external changes don't help, call your doctor for advice.

Hospital, Staff Provide Van for Handicapped Fellow Employee

Phil Harris, a 17-year employee at Chelsea Community Hospital, is the owner of a new van designed to meet his needs as a quadriplegic with limited use of hands, thanks to a fundraising campaign organized by his fellow employees at the hospital.

The campaign, spearheaded by Rob Stofer of the Maintenance Department, received over $10,000 in contributions from employees at the hospital, as well as from former hospital employees, school alumni, and friends from as far away as California.

Gifts were also received from service clubs, business and other organizations in Chelsea and Harris' native Stockbridge.

In total, $19,000 was raised, and this amount was supplemented by Michigan Rehabilitation Services in the amount of $12,000 and the Physical Therapy Department of Chelsea Community Hospital, in order to meet the requirements imposed by Harris' special needs.

"Phil is a special person," Stofer said. "When it became clear that his former van was ready for the junkyard, we thought we could raise some money to replace it. We received fine support from Will Johnson, hospital president, and Susan Cischke of Chrysler Corp. A committee was formed and the campaign just grew and grew. The response from hospital employees was terrific, and we received fine support from the Stockbridge Lions Club and American Legion, among others."

Other members of the committee were hospital employees Judy Arnett, Madonna Bury, Cindy Harrison and Donna Murphy.

A reception featuring the presentation of the keys to the van was held in the main dining room at the hospital on June 30.

Upon receiving the keys, Harris said, "Chelsea Community Hospital is a special place. One of the strong points about the hospital is that it attracts good people, nice people and I have been very fortunate to have met a number of them."

PHIL HARRIS is shown here with the new van during the presentation ceremony at Chelsea Community Hospital on Tuesday, June 30. $19,000 was raised from donors and an additional $12,000 was contributed by Michigan Rehabilitation Services and the Physical Therapy Department at the Hospital to bring the vehicle up to the requirements imposed by Harris' special needs.

ROB STOFER, a Chelsea Community Hospital employee on the Maintenance Staff, presented the keys to a new van to Phil Harris. Stofer spearheaded the campaign with the assistance of a committee composed of hospital employees Judy Arnett, Madonna Bury, Cindy Harrison, and Donna Murphy.

The people who transport grain to American exporters say they are running out of railcars. Railroad officials blame a large harvest, stronger export demand and slow return of railcars from seaports.
