Council inches toward office renovation

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Chelsea Village Council took a small, but potentially significant, step March 23 toward solving the decade-old debate over where to put the village offices. In a 6-1 vote, the council decided to contract with Dangerous Architects to come up with a cost estimate for renovating the village's Middle Street building, which now houses the police department.

Trustee Jim Myles, who has been a proponent of the renovation, said the vote reflected an agreement among council members that the renovation is the best option for the village.

"What we were doing here is a decision to do something with what we already have," Myles said. "That's the direction we need to go, and we've made a decision to go forward with this."

Myles said the council's action gives the OK for Scott McElrath of Dangerous Architects to act as a general contractor to determine the village's space needs, establish the scope of work necessary, and seek bids from subcontractors.

When the bidding is finished, Dangerous Architects will compile the cost and present another proposal to the council.

The cost of this stage of Dangerous Architects' work has not been agreed upon as of yet, according to Village President Richard Steele. He said it's possible that once the costs for the study are finalized, another vote will have to be made to give the final OK.

Dangerous Architects made a stab at estimating the cost of the renovation in a proposal to the council last June. Myles said the firm estimated the renovation could cost up to $1.3 million.

To fund the renovation, Steele said the village will likely go to the voters with a bond proposal, which would include a tax to pay for the cost. He said the bond vote would include an estimate of the cost and the amount of tax residents would have to pay.

Myles said that in addition to the contract vote, the council voted to set up a committee to discuss options for where to house the police department. He said

NEWS BRIEFS

Council tables drug store vote

Local residents will have to wait another two weeks to find out whether developer AARMAX will receive an exemption from the village's building moratorium to build a Rite Aid store.

On March 23, Chelsea Village Council tabled consideration of the exemption until the next meeting, scheduled for April 13.

Village President Richard Steele said the council tabled the measure to consider new information brought by the developer. The council received averages of water usage from other Rite Aid stores a few minutes before the council meeting, Steele said, which didn't leave enough time for trustees to consider the new information.

Easter egg hunt set for Saturday

The annual Easter Egg hunt for local children will be held Saturday, April 3, at Chelsea Retirement Community. Local kids can search for over 5,000 eggs.

Pictures with the Easter Bunny starts at 9:30 a.m. Children ages 3 and under will search at 10 a.m., ages 4 to 7 search at 10:20 a.m. and Children 8 and older search at 10:40 a.m.

The Easter Egg hunt is sponsored by Kiwanis Club of Chelsea with help from Chelsea Key Club, Cub and Boy Scouts, and Liberty Title Insurance.

Council may appoint clerk, treasurer

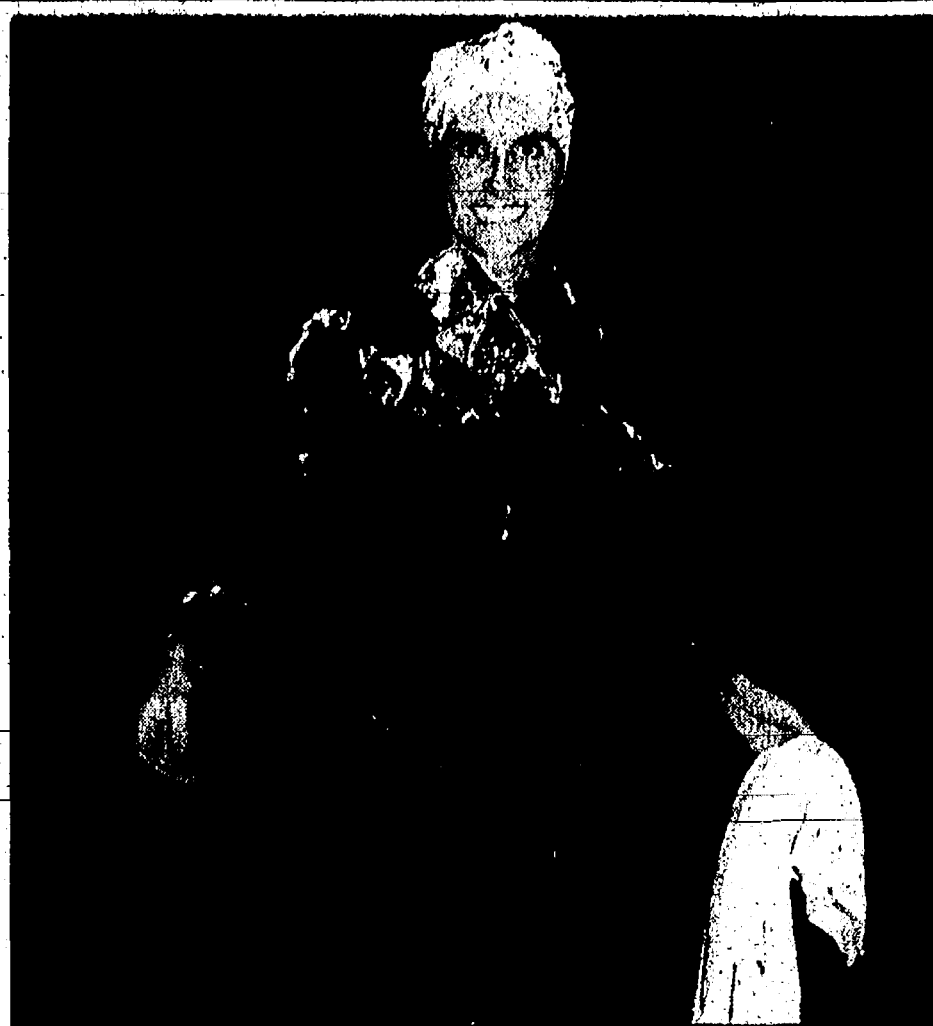

Chelsea Village Council chose an ordinance March 23 that could lead to the elimination of an elected clerk and treasurer in the village. The ordinance allows the village to appoint the clerk instead of having an elected position.

The ordinance became an option after a state law changed the requirements for the clerk and treasurer positions. The council could also combine the two duties.

Lost Bet

South Meadows Elementary Principal Lisa Nickel took a dive into a vat of gelatin Friday after losing a bet with her students. Nickel challenged the kids to read more than 3,000 hours during March is Reading Month, and the students topped out at 3,977 hours, 1,200 more than last year. The Jell-O plunge fit the school's theme of "Dive into Reading."

Area residents don't want to see road patrols cut

■ Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners see large turn out at meeting to discuss budget, jail needs.

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

Dexter schoolteacher Jami Bronson, who lives in rural Lyndon Township, says she waited nearly an hour for help after calling 911.

"That was scary for me," Bronson told the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners last week as the board discussed the sheriff's department budget and future of secondary road patrols funded through the county's general fund.

Lyndon Township currently does not contract for law enforcement coverage beyond what the county provides. Bronson is concerned that the limited amount of road patrol her township receives will be cut further as the County Board discusses the 2000-02 budget and possible funding sources to pay for jail improvements.

The discussion was prompted, in part, by the defeat last November of a $21.9 million bond proposal for jail expansion and upgrades.

More than 100 area residents, including township officials and sheriff's department employees, joined Bronson March 25 at the Washtenaw County Administration Building in downtown Ann Arbor. An overflow crowd stood in the aisles and in the hallway as the County Board discussed the issue.

The audience participation segment of the meeting brought similar tales like Bronson's and pleas from residents to either continue or increase law enforcement coverage, not cut back on funding.

"I am here to tell you there are no more deputies to cut," said Harry Valentine, president of the deputies' union.

Valentine said currently there are two deputies patrolling a total of 700 square miles with some 50,000 residents in areas that do not contract for law enforcement services.

"To take anything away from that would hamper what we have now," Valentine said.

County Administrator Robert Guenzel posed the funding dilemma to the County Board. He said $2.5 million in upgrades to the jail are needed now. Another $2 million is needed to cover increases in operational costs.

Guenzel stressed that operation of the jail is a mandated service and law enforcement is not. Decreased funding for secondary road patrols was among his suggestions of possible sources to find jail upgrades and to cover costs. Other suggestions included transferring funds from other departments or returning to voters with a millage request.

Washtenaw County Commissioner Joe Yekulis, who represents the Dexter-Chelsea area, says cutting back on law enforcement coverage is not an option he supports.

"I will not stand for any cut in these services," Yekulis, a retired sheriff's deputy, said Monday.

"In terms of it being a realistic option for public policy, I don't see it happening," he said.

During the meeting commissioners appeared divided between the urban and rural areas they represent. Commissioners representing areas in Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti said, despite paying for police through city tax dollars, their constituents pay to support sheriff patrols in rural

Sharon Twp. planners reject trailer park recommendation

■ Sharon Township cites finding of facts in rejecting mobile-home proposal that would have doubled population.

Staff Writer

Only a third of the crowd who attended the Sharon Township Planning Commission public hearing the previous week witnessed the commission's unanimous denial March 25 of a proposed mobile home development on the northeast corner of M-52 and Waldo Road.

In rejecting the rezoning application, the commission's report said:

• It was not justified by a change or an error in the original ordinance;

• It would establish an undesirable precedent for other developers;

• It would significantly increase environmental, fiscal and social costs for the township and other government agencies;

• It ran contrary to the adopted development policies of the township.

The report was ambivalent as to the development's impact on property value and concluded that not enough information was available to assess the proposal's effect on the water supply.

State Rep. Gene DeRossett was in attendance but left before the commission's vote.

"It's been a long day," DeRossett said outside the town hall. "It's apparent that things are going to go the way I hoped they would."

Village of Chelsea President Richard Steele and Sylvan Township Supervisor Gerald Dresselhouse were also on hand as the decision of their southern neighbor would have an impact on their own municipalpalities.

A flyer was distributed at the meeting encouraging the public to write to their representatives to support House Bill 4148. The bill is designed to limit the powers of the Michigan Mobile Home Commission.

In addition to DeRossett, representatives named as supportive of the measure included John Hansen, who represents the Chelsea/Dexter area.

areas through county taxes. In response, commissioners representing rural areas said city residents visit surrounding areas and occasionally need sheriff's department services, such as help during a car accident. In addition, sheriff's detective Dieter Heren said deputies and city police work on joint cases that cross jurisdictions. Yekulis added Monday that residents in urban areas far outnumber rural folks in the county jail, yet they pay equally for correctional services. "So, I think when you balance that out — the need for correctional services and the need for law enforcement services — it's kind of a wash," he said. Sheriff Ron Schebil spoke during the meeting and stressed that Washtenaw County is one community. "We're all one county — Washtenaw county — and the quality of life is second to none, and I want it to stay that way," he said. Schebil added that the board's scheduled discussion of the issue has been stressful on sheriff's department employees, who are worried about their jobs. While the board seemed divided during the meeting, Yekulis said that it appeared to him that two-thirds support continuing the current level of law enforcement coverage paid for by the county. However, he does not see it increasing at the county's expense as some audience members suggested. "Any increase would have to come from the townships picking up additional contracts or portions of contracts," Yekulis said. "The Board of Commissioners will support the existing level," he said. "It's going to come down to if people want more they're going to have to pay those additional costs." Currently in this area Dexter Village, Dexter Township and Selo Township have contracts with the sheriff's department. Lyndon, Lima and Webster townships do not. According to sheriff's department figures, the county funds 38.5 deputies, 44 support staff and five administration positions at a cost of $4.6 million. Area townships and villages contract for 68 additional deputies, but the county pays $2.9 million to support those positions. As part of the County Board's budget discussion, Yekulis said the board is interested in revisiting the formula used to calculate how much the sheriff's department charges local municipalities with contracts. Currently, the sheriff's department is charging $70,430 per deputy. But according to sheriff's department figures, the actual cost, including staff support, fringe benefits, training, insurance and other perks, is $115,633, with the county subsidizing over $45,000 for each deputy. Webster Township resident Jennifer Simonds, coordinator of her local Neighborhood Watch, presented the board with a stack of letters from residents asking that secondary road patrols not be eliminated. After hearing the county administrator's presentation, Simonds said she would be willing to return to the Webster Township Board and ask that the township enter into a contract with the sheriff's department for additional coverage. Yekulis said he expects a decision by May on whether the County Board will maintain current levels of secondary road patrol or cut back. The budget is slated for adoption in November. But as the Dexter-Chelsea area continues to grow, Yekulis said law enforcement coverage will continue to be an issue. "When people move out from the urban areas they expect the same level of service they received in the city," he said. "But they still want to pay township taxes. "The reality is you get what you pay for. If people want more services, it's probably going to cost more tax dollars. If they are content with how things are, the status quo will probably be maintained." Yekulis added that the County Board is considering whether to return to voters with a millage request for public safety and justice. Money would be used to add courtrooms and expand the jail. However, Yekulis said that if the proposal was introduced it would be after a needs assessment study and the involvement of citizens. He estimated that it would be at least a year before possibly presented.

Village to search for water on farmland south of I-94

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Chelsea Village Council will consider borrowing up to $9.9 million from the state for repairing the village's water lines and upgrading equipment at a public hearing April 13 in the council chambers. The low-interest loan would likely come from the state's revolving fund, which helps municipalities pay for needed repairs to public water services. Paying back the loan could cost residents $22 per month, which Village President Richard Steele said would likely be added to residents' water bills. "Since it's the current system we're looking at right now, you're looking at the increase in the water fees," Steele said. "There is certainly nowhere near that kind of (money for) expenditure in the fund balance." Steele said it's possible the village would not have to borrow the entire amount of money at once, which could reduce the payback from residents. He said the $9.9 million was an estimate of all of the needed repairs, and the village would have to decide how much of the plan they would need to fund.

keep going place to place, we're hopeful this will pan out for us. "I think if we had the site and we were sure we would get the amount of water we needed, there wouldn't be any reason to renew the moratorium. I would think we would just let it expire at that point if we were confident the place could meet our needs." In other business March 23, the council accepted a figure of 220 gallons per day for how much water usage equals the average daily flow from a residence. The "Residential Equivalency Unit" affects how much businesses will pay in tap fees to hook in to the village's water and sewer lines. The REU amount became an issue with Farmer Jack's development and other new businesses. Many businesses said the village's fees were too high because the village had no accurate measure of how much water is used in a typical home. The REU also has been used by AARMAX in its bid to develop a Rite Aid drug store in Chelsea. The company has said the store will use less water than current businesses by citing the reduced number of REUs of the new store. The council set a public hearing for April 13 to consider a tax abatement request from Hatch Stamping. The company requested the 50 percent tax break on $115,031 of machinery. Hatch said the expansion will bring two extra jobs to Chelsea. The council tabled a proposal for new rules of order until comments were received from council members and former Village Clerk Suzanne Morrison. The rules outline procedures for the council and public input at council meetings.

Special Olympics coach dies at 31

Darrell Thompson of Ann Arbor was a fair-minded coach. When working with special education students on his Special Olympics softball and basketball teams, he made sure every kid got the chance to play.

So when Thompson died recently of a heart attack at age 31, it was his generosity that many students will miss.

"He was one of those coaches that made every kid a total member of that team," said Nancy Cooper, special education teacher in Chelsea. "Even when it was really close, he would still find ways to put the kids in to make sure everyone feel like they were part of the effort. He was a wonderful role model for my students."

Cooper said Thompson gave his time to prepare Chelsea High School teens for the games because he enjoyed working with the students. She said he appreciated the family atmosphere of the group and got to know class members as a chaperone and coach, but also as a friend.

Thompson's death was difficult for the students to accept because many of them had never known anyone who had died. Cooper said the school counselor had worked with the students extensively to help them understand Thompson's death.

To honor his memory, Cooper said the students he coached were considering whether to place their gold medals or their arm bands in Thompson's coffin at his funeral last week.

"We're a really close group," Cooper said. "A lot of kids were real upset because it just didn't seem possible he could have died. It was very

Dexter Twp. planners reject building proposal

Proposal included a gas station, car wash, mini-mart and fast-food restaurant.

By Michael Rybka
Staff Writer

The Dexter Township Planning Commission rejected by a 6-1 vote, March 23, a development plan to put a gas station, car wash, mini-mart and fast-food restaurant complex on the southwest corner of North Territorial and Dexter-Pinckney roads.

The majority of the commissioners said their denial was based on environmental and aesthetic concerns that could not be remedied by any modifications to the site plan. Petitioners Billy and Fady Salamy submitted the second of two site plans, which drew criticism from township planner Mark Eidelson and township engineer Bruce Pindzia, at a public hearing Jan. 26.

Afterward, the commission discouraged the Salamys from submitting another site plan.

"A third site plan would have addressed those concerns if I had had the chance," Salamy said at the meeting.

"We were treated unfairly," he said outside of the township hall.

Before the vote, Commissioner Libby Brushaber said she believed the Salamys deserved another shot at a site plan.

Commissioners responded to Brushaber's statement by recalling why a revised site plan was dissuaded.

"We thought if the site plan was changed it still might not be appropriate," Commissioner Coy Vaughn said.

"We didn't want to go record saying, 'do this,'" Vice-Chairman John Gillespie said.

"I felt that findings of fact could not be met even with fine tunings," Commissioner

Ralph Rumsey said. "It would have been unfair to the applicants to ask them to pour more money into another site plan."

"There were too many unknowns. The plan showed usage for only five of the 12 acres. There were environmental questions and public concern over rural characteristics," Secretary David Millar said.

Dexter Township Planning Commission Chairman William Milam said that night that it was the worst site plan he had seen in his 11 years as a township official.

Brushaber ended up as the sole dissenter to the outright rejection of the proposal.

"They were not given enough time to react to either the engineer's or the public's criticisms," Brushaber said on Tuesday. "The engineering report wasn't mailed to the Salamys until the 19th."

Brushaber also said on Tuesday that she resented not knowing the motion's contents until it was read aloud.

The motion was drafted and read by Commissioner Sheridan Springer.

Brushaber, however, was not the only township official who believed the Salamy proposal deserved more consideration.

After a post-vote, five minute recess that cleared the township hall of all but a dozen residents, Zoning Officer Harley Rider criticized the commission during a second public participation segment.

"I speak, not as a zoning officer, but as an elected official," Rider said. "I'm concerned that this commission has deferred responsibility of this matter to a circuit court or the ZBA (zoning board of appeals)."

"My distinct impression is, no matter what an applicant does, that property will be found unsuitable. I'm disappointed in the commission's contradictory actions, especially those of Mr. Vaughn's."

Unless significant changes in the site plan warrant a reconsideration, the Salamys are not allowed to reapply for the same use of the site for a year.

Billy Salamy said after the meeting that he would consider a development that eliminated the car wash from the complex.

Fady Salamy said on Tuesday that he and his brother were also considering going before the ZBA.

If they did, Vaughn, who serves as its chairman, would have to excuse himself and be replaced by an alternate.

The vote on the controversial issue overshadowed an unanimous vote approving a comprehensive development plan that the commission has labored on for seven years. It will now be forwarded to the board for approval.

the committee will include members of council, the planning commission and the chiefs of the fire and police departments. He said he hopes the committee will figure out if the fire department building could be used for the police, or if another building would have to be built.

Myles said he made his decision to go ahead with the contract partially based on a survey taken outside polling booths on election day. Members of Preservation Chelsea distributed the survey for the council, which approved the information packet and survey question in February.

Approximately 84 percent of respondents said the village should renovate the current office building, Myles said. The survey reflected the opinions of about 25 percent of voters on election day.

"We did everything we could to get the feedback from people," Myles said. "It helped provide us to get us off center."

The survey results apparently didn't convince Steele, who was the lone dissenter in the contract vote. Steele said Friday that he thought the village could do better than the Middle Street building, but he hopes the village can get past the deliberations and make a decision.

"I've never been against the village offices being downtown, it's just that I don't think they should be in that building," Steele said. "But the decision has been made. For all intents and purposes it will be that building. That's OK and we need to get it done and get it behind us."

Local residents receive awards from Eastern

Eastern Michigan University faculty members Motoko Tabuse of Dexter and Kenneth Stevens of Grass Lake were granted sabbatical leaves, March 16, by the EMU Board of Regents for the 1999-2000 school year.

Also, Chelsea resident Peggy Liggit was a recipient of a research award from the Provost and the Office of Graduate Studies and Research.

Tabuse, a professor in the Department of Foreign Languages and Bilingual Studies, will examine behavioral differences among different levels of students who listen to Japanese passages created by computer-assisted language learning.

Stevens, a professor in the Department of Communication and Theatre Arts, will expand EMU's arts administration program to the Traverse City area by developing adjunct faculty and arranging co-op and intern positions for EMU students in northwestern Michigan.

The sabbaticals were granted for two semesters at half pay.

Sabbatical leaves are granted for special study, research and/or writing.

Liggit, an assistant professor of biology, was given the Provost's Research Support Award for New Faculty for her impending work, "Integrating Wetland Research into Michigan K-12 Classrooms."

Liggit will receive between $2,500 to $5,000 to cover her expenses.

Understanding The Law

with Leonard K. Kitchen, J.D. and Thomas L. Stringer, J.D.

ATTORNEYS' DUTY TO THEIR CLIENTS

Attorneys owe a fiduciary duty to their clients, meaning they must put the client's interest above their own. The client is also owed the duty of confidentiality, which means no information that passes from the client to the attorney will be passed to a third party without the client's express consent - even if the information is damaging. The same holds true for any other attorneys or employees with whom the attorney works. It is also the attorney's duty to protect his or her client's legal rights to the best of his or her ability. Initially, this involves an analysis of all the available facts pertaining to the situation and doing whatever is necessary to gather such facts.

Not sure if the letter of the law puts you in the right...or the wrong? Set your mind at ease by calling the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, J.D. at 426-4695 and scheduling a consultation, free of charge. We'll be glad to discuss your rights and legal options in cases involving personal injury, family law, real estate, probate, business matters, and criminal defense. You'll find our offices conveniently located at 3249 Broad Street in Dexter.

HINT: As for the duty that clients owe to their attorneys, they must be honest in relating the facts concerning their problems.

Book Donation

Two local families will benefit from a book donation made by a local resident in February. Kathy Jackson donated $200 worth of books from Dorling Kindersley Books. Cornerstone Elementary School Principal Pam Quitiquit accepted the books on behalf of the families. Students Wendy Vontom and Sarah and Matthew Dorebrei are pictured representing the school with Quitiquit. The donation was coordinated by book distributor Eunice Dobbs, a Dexter resident.

POLICE BLOTTER

Chelsea Village

Harassing Telephone Calls

A 40-year-old Chelsea woman told police that someone had called her house in the 200 block Wilkinson at 4 a.m. March 24. She said the voices on the phone sounded like a teen-ager she knew and his mother. The woman had a copy of the answering machine tape that she offered to play for police.

Property Damage

A 47-year-old Chelsea woman told police that a 32-year-old Chelsea man came to her home several times the night of March 24 and banged on the door. She said she does not want the man at her residence because he has been abusive in the past. The banging damaged the door so it will not open and close properly.

Impound

Police observed a car traveling south on S. Main Street near Orchard Street at 6:18 p.m. March 24 and recognized it as a suspect car in an earlier case of eluding police. The officer located the car at a convenience store, and approached the vehicle. Police asked the driver, a 21-year-old Stockbridge woman, for her license and registration. She did not have the registration. Police ran the license plate through a computer check, and found it had no title information. A check of the vehicle identification number found it was improperly registered. Police seized the vehicle for improper registration.

Minor in Possession

A 19-year-old Dexter man was cited as a minor in possession of alcohol at 3:10 a.m. March 27. The man was a passenger in the front seat of a car traveling on W. Middle Street near Grant Street. SWEETENING YOUR BREATH

If you're conscious of offensive mouth odor or someone close to you has mentioned it, the odor won't go away by taking "breath sweeteners" to mask it. You should let your dentist help you find out what is causing it and how the problem can be solved.

Some foods can cause strong mouth odors, but this is only temporary. When bad breath persists, however, it is usually because a health problem is involved. Decayed or infected teeth can cause bad breath, and so can infected gums. But more than bad breath is involved. Halitosis is a tell-tale symptom that something may be seriously wrong.

Halitosis or bad breath may be caused by medical conditions, such as infected tonsils or problems with the digestive system or diabetes. Your dentist is not only trained to discover and treat dental problems, he is also trained to be on the alert for other medical problems that may need treatment by physicians.

Whatever the cause of your bad breath, don't succumb to the lure of breath fresheners. Seek the help you need from your dentist.

Beach students take bronze medal in Science Olympiad

Beach Middle School students placed third overall in the regional Science Olympiad competition, held March 20. The students competed in a wide range of scientific events, from creating and firing bottle rockets to solving crimes using forensics skills.

Science teacher Dave Polley said the students competed against 12 other schools netting three gold medals, one silver and three bronze.

"The idea of the competition is that students need to cooperate together in demonstrating science skills or knowledge," he said.

Eighth-grader Virginia Bailey received two gold medals and a bronze medal in the Olympiad, competing in Nature Quest, Science Crime Busters and Reach for the Stars.

Bailey said she enjoyed the events that required a test of her knowledge. She prepared for the competition by studying every Tuesday since January and coming in after school to work on her skills.

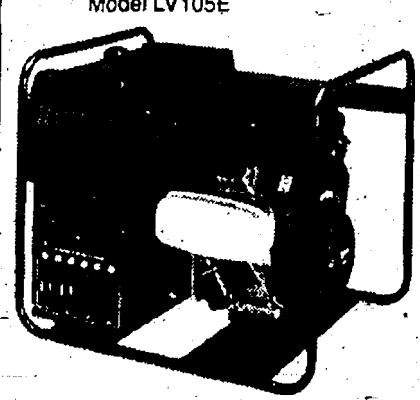

Bailey said she liked the Science Crime Busters event the best because it involved using chemistry to determine who had perpetrated a fictitious crime. Bailey said chemistry is her favorite science.

"I like to see how different things react when you put them together, and when you're given an unknown chemical and you have to find out what it is," she said.

Other winners in the competition were Max Booth, gold.

silver and bronze; Katie Hardcastle, gold; Rachel Misenheimer, two gold, one bronze; Pieter Boshoven, silver and bronze; Chris French, bronze; and David Bell, bronze. Will Sparrow, Chris Moyle, Kyle Bear, Nate Hinderer, Chris Bauer, Sarah Rapai, Anna Drow, Rachel Bazydlo, Jason Hawley, Cheryl Spencer and Kathy Drew also competed.

Dig it!

grow it...

Don't guess! Over-application of fertilizers wastes money, ruins plants and pollutes water.

Soil test! Determine what your plants need for optimum health and growth.

It's easy! Just follow these directions.

1. Select one area of your yard that you would like to test — for example: lawn or vegetable garden or flower garden. (You can test more than one area, but the samples must be collected separately.)
2. Using a clean trowel and a pail, collect ten representative soil samples from the area you're testing. (Remember, the ten samples must be from one type of landscape area in your yard, i.e. your lawn.)
3. For each sample, remove a trowel-full of soil which extends seven inches below the surface. Do not include roots, thatch, plant materials, rocks or gravel in the sample. Mix the ten soil samples together in the pail.
4. Place 1 cup of the well-mixed soil in a clean plastic bag or container. Dry or damp soil is okay, but soggy soil should be allowed to air dry.
5. If you wish to test more than one area of your yard, use a clean pail and trowel to repeat steps #1 - #4 for each area. Label each bag carefully.
6. Bring your soil sample to a participating retailer starting March 27 through April 11, along with $10 per sample. For a list of participating retailers in Livingston, Macomb, Oakland, Washtenaw or Wayne counties call 248-858-0880 or check out the website at <http://www.msue.msu.edu/oakland> (SE Oakland County residents can also call SOCRRA at 248-288-5150).
7. Your soil will be tested for pH, essential nutrients for the plants you intend to grow, and organic matter. Note: this is not a test for contamination of soils.
8. The Soil & Plant Nutrient Laboratory at MSU will be testing samples. The results will be forwarded to your local Extension Office, where agents will provide individual recommendations.

Results will be mailed directly to you in time for spring planting.

A partnership of the MSU Extension offices of Livingston, Macomb, Oakland, Washtenaw and Wayne Counties, City of Ann Arbor, Michigan Groundwater Stewardship Program, MSU Soil & Plant Nutrient Laboratory, SOCRRA, MDEQ, USEPA and the Huron River Watershed Council. More cooperative times ahead for government

JOHN HANSEN
STATE REPRESENTATIVE

AS THE DOME TURNS

As the dome turns — that's the term that is used in Lansing to describe the daily flow of events in the Legislature. Sometimes the dome seems to just sit there but lately it seems to be spinning like a top. My personal learning curve feels like a rocket trajectory.

The first big lesson has been understanding the concept of majority rule — or domination — as is the case these days. You are surely aware that the Republicans control the House, the Senate, the governor's office and "enjoy a philosophical advantage" on the non-partisan Supreme Court. This means they hold a majority of seats on all committees and they chair the committees as well.

A committee chair has total discretion as to which bills will be discussed in committee and which ones will be reported out for debate on the floor of the House or Senate. So far, no bill sponsored by a Democrat has seen the light of day. Consequently, I have not introduced any legislation — let's at least save the trees.

During my years as a school administrator I have often been in the minority at the beginning of a discussion. As talks continued the minority learned from the majority and vice versa until consensus was reached. We actually listened to each other and expected to learn and grow through the process. So far, that's not the case in Lansing. We talk, mostly to the TV cameras and the press and then we vote 58-52.

There are some optimists who predict that we will deal with some less partisan issues, perhaps next fall. But until then it's the Republican agenda all the way.

Each House member usually serves on about three committees. I was fortunate to get all of my choices. (I say fortunate because the appointments need to be approved by the Republican Speaker of the House who might not want Democrats to serve in their area of greatest expertise.)

As a member of the Education Committee, I have been involved in two big issues, so far. The first dealt with permanent expulsion from school for students involved in violent acts. This, like most bills, was tricky since it only deals with half of the problem. Violent students are removed from the classroom — as they should be — but are specifically not provided with any alternative program. We could end up with the safest classrooms but not be able to get to them because of unsafe streets. I voted no.

The second issue has dealt with the "takeover" of the Detroit schools. Here it is the process that I disagree with, not the proposed outcome. I believe that the citizens of Detroit want better opportunities for their children and I believe they would vote to replace their elected school board with a reform board if they were given the chance. But there will be no chance to vote. The reform board, whether headed by Mayor Dennis Archer or Gov. John Engler, will be imposed on the citizens of Detroit thereby presenting a challenge to all of our voting rights.

I chose to be on the agriculture and Natural Resources Committee because I hoped that would be the place where I could have the most impact on the issue of urban sprawl — a hot issue in the 52nd District. We are beginning discussion on a rewrite of the Drain Code. The Drain Code is nearly 300 pages of technical mumbo-jumbo that was conceived nearly 100 years ago to aid in the transformation of wetlands into productive farmland.

Currently, it appears that the code is more often used to aid in advancing commercial and residential development. This issue looks like a lot of hard, boring work but it appears to have the potential to make the difference in how we use our land for the next 100 years.

My third committee deals with technology and energy. We are faced with writing the rules for the deregulation of the electric power generating industry and with the re-writing of the rules for the telecommunications industry. This is a good time to mention that we have lots of technical help in all aspects of job. We seek testimony from the industry that we are regulating and we have non-partisan experts as well as partisan staff available to help in drafting these bills.

I feel privileged to be your representative in Lansing. The hours are long and the work is challenging. I understand that for now it is my role to walk in the path of the elephants. But I will keep my shoes clean, and I look forward to the more cooperative times that are most surely ahead.

Do you think that restaurants should still have smoking sections?

"Yes, I think that they should, because of the large number of people that still smoke, but I think that those sections will be eliminated eventually."

Sean Crupper

"Absolutely, I think they should. To each his own, but I think that they should separate the smokers and non-smokers."

Bill Pierce

Poetic signs could inform residents of village dangers

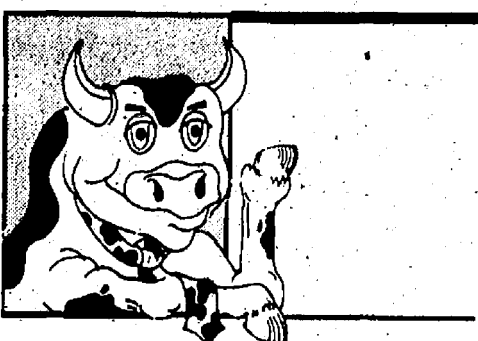

Dear Uncle Apollo,

As you probably know, when we're having electrical problems and the power drops causing our TVs to crunch up and our lights to dim, we call it a brownout.

When we address water problems, it's just the opposite. Let me explain. In recent days, we've had some really serious water problems. One day I flushed my toilet and the usual brownout occurred.

Remember now, we're talking about water, so being the opposite of electricity, that's good. However, when the bowl refilled, what I thought left seemed to return. I was having a brownin. Many of us were having brownins that day and I'm sure the village manager will testify to that.

So, I began to wonder how we could gently advise the public of our demise and I remembered an old marketing technique that was common when I was a youth.

I don't know if you're old enough to remember the Burma Shave signs that once graced our highways. They were humorous rhymes and jingles on road signs that entertained us as we traveled. I thought we could revive the idea and post some on the north and south ends of town. They could be both informative and entertaining. For starters, how about this:

*I once loved this little town,
but now I wear a steady frown,
'cause the water turned brown coming up and going down.*

*The water was swell as it came from the well, and was never known to have a smell.
It always seemed fit and we all drank of it
'til the danged fools decided to poison it.*

Well, UNK, what do you think?

—RGL

Dear RGL,

Thanks for the poem, Mom. Your idea fits in with all this artsy stuff that goes on around here. But it seems to me we ought to have a poem for new residents also to tell them what they're getting into. How about something like this:

*Welcome to our happy village,
You can stay as long as you pay the millage.
We're friendly here — we don't rape and pillage,
but don't drink the water
'cause it tastes like tillage.*

Work-at-home employees may qualify for deductions

PREPARED BY THE
MICHIGAN ASSOCIATION

MONEY MANAGEMENT

Thanks to technology, more and more people go to work without ever leaving their homes. And, thanks to The Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, an increasing number of those work-at-home employees may qualify for the home-office deduction in 1999, reports the Michigan Association of CPAs.

If you use a portion of your home for business and your home office meets the IRS's requirements for claiming the home-office deduction, you may be able to deduct certain expenses, including rent or depreciation, mortgage interest, real estate taxes, maintenance and utilities.

Background

A few years ago, the U.S. Supreme Court effectively eliminated the home-office deduction for many people when it ruled that an anesthesiologist who used a home office for business did not qualify for the home-office deduction. The court concluded that the doctor's home office was not his principal place of business since he actually performed his services in hospital operating rooms.

As a result of that decision, which, in effect, concluded that your principal place of business is where you spend most of your time or where you earn income, it has been difficult for many home-office workers to meet the principal place of business test.

New Rules Make It Easier to Qualify

The new home-office deduction rules that went into effect earlier this year contains a more liberal definition of your principal place of business. Under The Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, starting on Jan. 1, a home office qualifies as a principal place of business if both: (1) the office is used by the taxpayer to conduct administrative or management activities of a trade or business and (2) there is no other fixed location of the trade or business where the taxpayer conducts substantial administrative or management activities of the trade or business. Administrative and management activities might include scheduling appointments, billing, ordering supplies and bookkeeping.

This change is likely to be a great help for workers, such as plumbers, musicians, outside sales representatives and others who perform their services outside their office but do their billing and carry out other business-related tasks from a home office.

The fact that you may conduct management activities in a non-fixed location, such as your car or hotel room, will not cause you to forfeit the deduction. Similarly, conducting some management activities in another fixed location of the business does not mean you lose the deduction, as long as those activities are not substantial.

The other requirements for qualifying as a home office remain in effect. The space you designate as your home office must be used regularly and exclusively for business. (In the case of an employee, that use must be used regularly and exclusively for business. In the case of an employee, that use must be for the convenience of your employer.)

Bear in mind that occasional or incidental use of a home office will not satisfy the regular use requirement even if the space is used exclusively for business.

Exclusive use means that the space you designate as your home office may not be used for any personal or family activities that don't meet the home office requirements. There is an exception to the exclusive use requirement if your home space is used for storing inventory or produce samples of a business selling retail or wholesale products.

Selling Your Home

Unfortunately, the news is not all good for home-office owners who sell their homes. When a portion of your principal residence is used as a home office and you have taken a home-office deduction on your tax return, you may lose part of another tax benefit.

For homes sold at a gain on or after May 7, 1997, that portion of the home on which you claimed depreciation does not qualify for the home-sale exclusion of $500,000 ($250,000 for single filers). Instead, the depreciation you have taken is recaptured at the rate of 25 percent.

Many people fear that deducting a home office is akin to waving a red flag at the IRS. Although taking the home-office deduction may somewhat increase your chances of an audit, most CPAs would agree that you should not let that dissuade you from taking the deduction if you qualify.

Farm Bureau president speaks against estate tax

Michigan Farm Bureau President Jack Laurie joined a host of other officials and legislators on Capitol Hill recently to speak out in support of a new study calling the estate tax one of the most arcane and obscure elements of the federal tax code.

Farm Bureau has been a long-standing supporter of repealing the estate tax, as it often puts families in great financial strain following the death of a family member, Laurie said.

"A Case for Burying the Estate Tax," presented by the independent, Texas-based Institute for Policy Innovation (IPI), indicates that no section of the tax code does as much societal damage, while generating little revenue, than the estate tax.

The estate tax, often referred to as the death tax, puts multiple-generation farms and other family businesses in jeopardy, as many are faced with selling the farm simply to pay Uncle Sam as much as 55 percent.

Laurie, who spoke on behalf of the American Farm Bureau Federation, underlined the organization's support for repealing the estate tax.

"Farmers work long hours over a lifetime to build their businesses," Laurie said. "Along the way they pay income taxes on everything they earn. It's just plain wrong for the government to tax their earnings again when they die — especially when estate taxes can mean the difference between life or death of a multi-generation family farm."

The study shows the historical origins of the egregious section of the current tax code defies the fundamental reasons for its continuation, citing that only 1 percent of the federal revenue is generated by the tax, and compliance costs are almost as high as the revenue raised. In addition, high marginal rates often force heirs to sell family farms or businesses to pay the tax.

About 99 percent of farms are family-owned. "All too often, sons and daughters are forced to sell parts of their farms to pay estate taxes," Laurie said. "When they have to sell too much, the economic viability of the farm is destroyed and the farm dies with the farmer."

Jim Martin, of the 60 Plus Association, called the tax cruel, and Brian Reardon, of the National Federation of Independent Business, said the tax gives heirs fewer resources to grow or hire new people.

The estate tax has a high marginal rate, which discourages savings and investing, thus reducing capital formation and economic growth.

Laurie accompanied more than 150 Michigan farmers to Washington, D.C., who visited with their legislators and discussed key agricultural issues, March 16-18, during the annual Washington Legislative Seminar.

Gone Hollywood

Chelsea High School grad sees rapid rise to stardom

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

In eighth grade Jessica Cauffiel had the starring role in "Robin Hood and her Merry Hoods," delighting audiences at Beach Middle School in the take off on the benevolent bandit's escapades. Not 10 years later, the love for theater she gained from the play has carried Cauffiel to another starring role on a new TV show on NBC, "Stark Raving Mad."

Cauffiel, 23, plays Meg, the head waitress at a New York City restaurant located under the apartment of a reclusive crime writer. Meg delivers food to the writer, then acts out the fantasies from his novels.

Cauffiel graduated just last year from the University of Michigan musical theater program, but she already has had substantial success. She has acted in 10 national commercials, an off-Broadway musical and a supporting role in the remake of the "Out of Towners," which stars Goldie Hawn, Steve Martin and John Cleese, and opens in theaters in April.

"I'm very lucky," Cauffiel says of her rapid rise. "I've been able to do things in the last seven months that some people don't get to do in years."

Cauffiel's most recent role, a part in the May 27 season finale of the TV show "Frazier," also has been her most exciting. Cauffiel plays the girlfriend of Frazier's brother, Niles, who goes out with Cauffiel, the "Gen-X nymphet," to help alleviate his mid-life crisis.

Cauffiel says at first she was awed by working with Kelsey Grammer (Frazier) and David Hyde Pierce (Niles). She says she remembers growing up watching them and it was a big shift to place herself among them.

After a few minutes, however, she got over her uneasiness and got down to work. Both actors were welcoming and inspired her to bring her work up to their level.

"It's a learning experience. You're constantly challenging yourself up another level," she says. "I have to go up to the caliber of the people I'm working with. It's always keeping me on my toes to do better and better work."

Cauffiel grew up in Detroit, but moved to Chelsea during middle school. Describing herself as a "city girl," Cauffiel says she had a tough time adjusting to the country life Chelsea offered. But she grew to love its family atmosphere and the closeness to nature.

After tasting fame in her eighth-grade play, she went on to perform at Chelsea High School, where her interest was nourished by drama teacher Bill Coelius and choir director Steve Hinz. She says the two teachers, and particularly Coelius, gave her personal attention and challenged her to do her best work.

"In high school Bill Coelius came along, and I worked with him every day after school," she says. "It was a real inspiration and furthered that passion I had created in eighth grade."

"He was always encouraging me to be as insane as I want with my acting. He said it was OK to be unafraid."

Coelius says Cauffiel was just being kind in her praise of him. He says Cauffiel was at such a high level in her abilities in high school that he mostly just let her work, giving suggestions where he could.

Coelius says he learned as much from Cauffiel as she did from him. Her abilities pushed him beyond his normal teaching capabilities and he was forced to look for new ways to bring out her talent.

"Her abilities would push me to attempt to find ways to make her performance better," Coelius says. "I had to skip ahead to find new approaches because she had already dealt with everything."

"Anyone who works with her is challenged by her. With some students the best thing you can do is get out of their way."

Coelius says Cauffiel was a natural promoter of the forensics program. She had such enthusiasm that it rubbed off on everyone else who competed.

Coelius says Cauffiel quickly became a stand-out outperforming seniors during her first year of competition as a sophomore. She performed in drama, storytelling and humorous performances.

Cauffiel's greatest strength, Coelius says, was her intensity and energy level. She is able to bring that energy to her characters that will be hard to match by other professionals.

Coelius remembers that in forensics competitions, Cauffiel would shock judges with her intensity. He says that at the beginning of the performance judges would invariably mark on their ratings sheets that she should start at a lower level to leave herself room to build to a higher pitch. When she would then build even further, they could only write "never mind" on the ballot.

"Jessica was just outstanding," Coelius says. "There was no one who could approach her in intensity. When she interjects that energy in the character, it stands out."

After high school, Cauffiel entered the musical theater program at the University of Michigan. The rigorous training — 18 hours of class time every week followed by auditions and rehearsals — taught her the discipline she has needed to succeed in television.

After she graduated last spring, she was quickly picked up by one of the top agencies and began her work in commercials and theater. Though her college training was in musicals, she says she branched out into TV because she wanted a new challenge, and because she was worn out from her intensive study.

Her career got a boost early on from a bit of deception, when she auditioned for a Midol commercial that called for a bowling master. When asked if she could handle the tenpins, she merely answered, "Hey, I'm from the Midwest," which apparently convinced the casting directors she was a pro.

Cauffiel's ruse became apparent on her first toss. The heavy ball bounced across the lane into the next before riding down the gutter. After nine hours of taping, Cauffiel finally bowled a strike, which ended up as the scene that made the cut.

Though luck and prevarication may have helped start her career, Cauffiel credits her rapid rise to hard work and dedication. She says she has been relentless in seeking new opportunities to do what she loves.

"It's thrilling but you have to pinch yourself every five minutes and be grateful for the people who helped you get here — the people who have instilled in you the craft and art of performing," she says. "I think when it happens this fast, because you're so stunned, you're 10 times more grateful because it's coming into your lap."

Coelius, for one, is not surprised by Cauffiel's success. He says her skills come from an inner

Jan Stevens leaves music education, finds her niche

By Michelle Rogers
Associate Editor

Jan Stevens started her career in education as a music teacher and considered working as a school administrator. But a switch to the elementary school classroom is where she eventually found her niche.

"Teaching elementary education you really get to know the students," Stevens says. "You can tell if they're having a good or bad day, how they're feeling and what they're thinking sometimes."

"To me, working in the elementary school has been a highlight because it has made teaching more meaningful to me because I've gotten to know the kids."

Stevens, a fifth-grade teacher at Pierce Lake Elementary School, started her career as a vocal music teacher in Madison Heights. There she taught music at three elementary schools from 1963 to 1965.

Stevens left Madison Heights for Troy schools, where she taught instrumental music at five elementary schools from 1965 to 1970.

In 1970, she took time off to start a family. Stevens and her husband, Douglas, a retired toolmaker, have a daughter, Dena, a 1988 graduate of Chelsea High School.

When the family moved to Chelsea, Stevens returned to her career as a substitute teacher. She also spent two and a half years as a receptionist in the district's administrative offices.

"I got tired of subbing after 10 years and decided to take the office job," Stevens says.

At the same time she took education classes and returned to the field in 1986 as a fifth-grade teacher at South Meadows Elementary School.

"I always wanted to go back into teaching but I didn't want to go back into music," Stevens says. "So while I was doing all these things, I went back to school and went into elementary education."

"I just knew (music education) wasn't where I wanted to end up because it took so much time."

As a music teacher, Stevens spent many after-school hours at festivals, rehearsals and special events.

"It was just taking up too much time," she says.

TEACHER FEATURE

With a bachelor's degree in instrumental and vocal music earned in 1963 at Bowling State University, Stevens went back to school, adding her elementary certification. She took classes at Oakland University, the University of Michigan, the State University of Iowa and Eastern Michigan University. Later she added a master's degree in educational leadership from EMU.

For a while Stevens thought she may have liked to go into school administration but changed her mind because she says she realized she had the most influence on children as a teacher.

"I am the last chance these kids have before they're sent out," she says. "We work really hard on their writing, math and reading skills, so they're ready," she says. "To me, they should get the basics in elementary school."

It was while she was in high school that Stevens decided on her eventual career.

"I first decided to be a music teacher," she says. "I loved music and I thought maybe I could get people to enjoy and appreciate music as much as I did."

Nowadays Stevens finds her favorite subjects to teach are math and science, although she admits she didn't take an interest in either as a child growing up in Ohio, where she attended a small school. There were 19 students in her graduating class and most she had attended school

Aquatic Club takes 4th at championship

Chelsea Aquatic Club finished the winter 1999 swim season strong, with a fourth-place finish at championships behind Dexter, Plymouth and Ypsilanti.

Most of the swimmers achieved personal best times. In addition, four CAC top 10 records were broken during the season. Katrina Moffett set a new 100-yard freestyle record with a time of 1:01.96, a new 50-yard backstroke record with a 32.56, and she was part of the 200-yard medley relay with Kim Vachon, Alise Augustine and Kara Stiles, posting a time of 2:07.57 for a new record.

The other record broken this swim season was the 50-yard backstroke by Alise Augustine, who swam a 33.08 at the USS state meet.

The 8 and-under age group of Erin Alber, Emily Sparrow, Lauren Modafferi, Kelly Whitley, Trevor Hughes, Ian Hughes and Nick Dyerly placed in the top 16 in at least one event.

Trevor and Ian Hughes made top 10 cuts in the 25 breaststroke and 25 backstroke, respectively.

The girls relay placed seventh to cap off the Saturday morning meet. All seven were named "Swimmers of the Meet."

The 9-10 age group swam well, with Christine Kelley and Robbie Pagliarini dropping five seconds and 6.5 seconds in the 100-yard individual medley.

Brett Grabarkiewicz dropped time in each event he swam, while Ben Kellogg dropped nine seconds in the 50-yard backstroke. Nick Armstrong and Hannah Meyers each dropped two seconds in the 50-yard backstroke. April Adams finished with two fourth-place finishes and eighth place in the 100-yard individual medley, 50-yard backstroke, and 50-yard backstroke, respectively.

Kellyn Pagliarini took two seventh-place finishes and 10th in the 50-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle, and 50-yard backstroke, respectively.

"Swimmers of the Meet" were Jessie Lodewyk and Robbie Moffett. Lodewyk placed second, fourth and fifth in the 200-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle, and 50-yard butterfly, respectively. Moffett took two second-place finishes and a third in the 200-yard freestyle, 100-yard freestyle, and 50-yard freestyle, respectively.

Overall, the 9- to 10-year-old swimmers performed well, with the boys finishing second overall. The girls placed third.

The 11- to 12-year-old girls swept their age group by almost 200 points, in addition to their record-breaking swims by Moffett, Augustine, Vachon and Stiles.

Almost all of the 11- to 12-year-olds dropped time. Andy

Kellogg, Vachon, Katie Grabarkiewicz, Nathaniel Christman and Ryan Kelley dropped times in everything they swam. The coach named the whole group "Swimmers of the Meet."

The 13- to 14-year-olds also had a great meet, with top 10 times by Rebecca Armstrong, Laura Adams, Sarah Manville, David Grabarkiewicz and Matt Holmes. Matt Kellogg, Mike Policht, Katie Minnick, Zach Christman, Aaron Connell and Tim Wacker had solid swims, turning in some personal best times. Adams and Grabarkiewicz were named "Swimmers of the Meet."

The boys medley relay of Wacker, Holmes, Christman and Grabarkiewicz took fourth, while the free-style relay of Connell, Policht, Kellogg and Holmes captured sixth. The four girls combined for a fourth-place finish in the 200-yard freestyle relay.

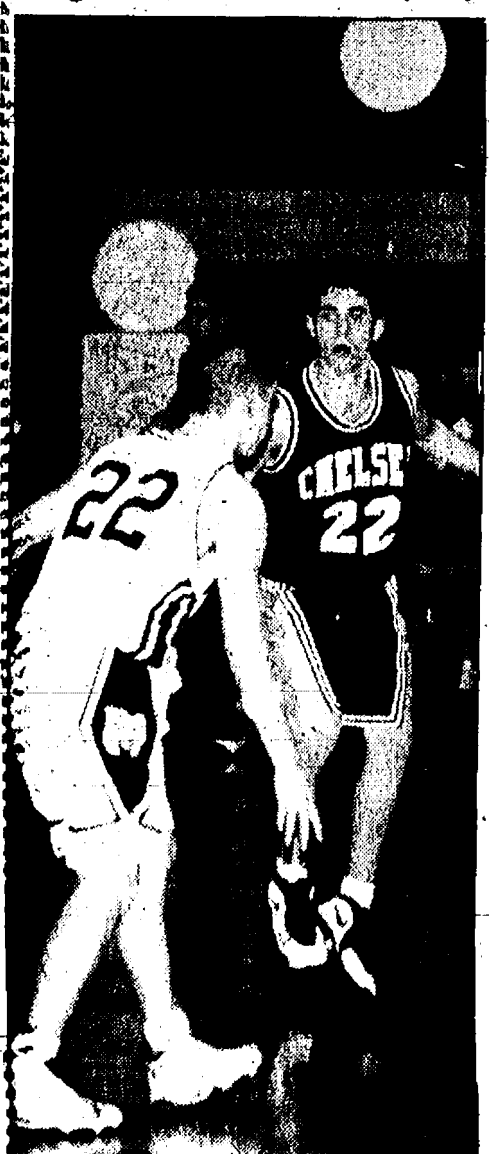

Medley Relay

AUTO TALK

Bert's Auto Service
Steve Lawrence Bert Root

TREAD WEAR INDICATIONS

Not only should car owners keep their tires properly inflated, but they should take note of irregular tread-wear patterns when doing so. These may provide clues to front-end problems. For instance, feather-edge wear occurs when toe-in is incorrectly set, resulting in the tire being dragged sideways. Toe-in is the difference in distance between the front and rear edges of the two front tires, as measured at hub height. If the inner third of the tire is worn smooth and the outer third still has sufficient tread, it is an indication of camber misadjustment. Camber is the inward or outward tilt of the wheel. Negative camber results in excessive inner-tire wear. Irregular wear patterns could indicate the need for either tire rotation and balancing or for an alignment. At BERT'S AUTO SERVICE, you're going to quickly discover how much easier it is to deal with automotive experts who give you confidence in a job well done. When we promise delivery to you, our word can be relied upon, and if we run into any unexpected problems, we let you know immediately. We're at 5984 Jackson Road in Ann Arbor (734) 769-3232. We're open to serve you five days a week.

Water Polo club plays in tournament

Chelsea Women's Water Polo Club played in a tournament for new teams March 27 at Pioneer High School.

The goal of the weekend was for new teams to learn the rules of water polo in game situations.

The Chelsea team played three games against some well-seasoned teams and finished off the day with a game to decide seventh place against Pioneer JV.

The team had to play its first three games against Mason, Huron and the Wolverine Swim Club.

Chelsea played its best game against Huron JV and then ended the day with a victory over Pioneer JV 15-10.

Through most of these games the Chelsea squad was outnumbered upwards of 23 players to nine because of spring break.

Players who participated were Deb Adams, Lauren Daley, Liz Kaminsky, Dana Meza, Jen Minnick, Jenni Martin, Laura Nilsen, Crissy Tracey, Sarah Skyles and Nicole Williams.

"I'm very happy with the team's performance Saturday said first-year coach Brian Thomas. "The Huron game and the win over Pioneer really molded this team and the play improved all day."

The team's next game is against Mason High School 5:30 p.m. April 23 in Mason.

The Greatest Event in History

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

If you had to select the most significant event in the history of the world, what would it be? World War II? The founding of the United States in the late 1700's? Or would it be television, or computers, or antibiotics?

All these things have had lasting impact on the world, but they all share one common shortcoming: Each has significance for only a limited time. Ultimately each of us dies, and all these things lose their significance for us.

We Christians recognize other events as having far more lasting significance, namely, the events we commemorate this week, "Holy Week." Particularly the events of Good Friday and Easter Sunday.

Good Friday, when we recall how Jesus, God's Son, was convicted and executed on a cross. Jesus' was executed, the bible tells us, not for anything He had done, but for the wrongs each of us has done, and for the good we've failed to do.

And Easter, when we celebrate the fact that God's Son Jesus came alive again on the third day. He came alive, the Bible tells us, to show His death had been accepted as payment for our sins.

But more: He came alive to show that death's power over us is now broken, and that in Him we too can outlive the grave, not only spiritually, but in the literal physical sense.

Please join us for our Good Friday worship at 7:30 p.m. this Friday evening, and also for Easter Sunday, when we have two entirely different services, at 7:30 a.m. and 10:00 a.m. Choose either one or both; you're also invited to a free breakfast in between, starting at 8:30 a.m.

A blessed Easter to you!

Faith in Action banquet held

More than 120 people attended the 16th annual Faith in Action banquet March 20 at Chelsea Community Hospital.

Entertainment was provided by the Wasabi Piano Trio comprising Liana Austin of Chelsea High School, Jon Ophon of Gabriel Richard High School and Anna Steinhoff of Ann Arbor Community High School.

In addition, a soloist, Melissa Clairmont, a graduate of Chelsea High School, sang five selections.

The high point of the evening was the presentation of the Faith in Action Humanitarian of the Year Award, which was presented to the students of North Creek Elementary School for their many years of food collections for Faith in Action's distribution.

Representing all of the students, past and present, and receiving the award in their names were fifth-grader Katherine Lixey, seventh-grader Neil Sterling and senior John Carter, all of whom have participated in the Food Collection Program.

Also attending from the faculty of North Creek Elementary School were Becky Morris and Barbara Brown. These students and all of those who have participated in the program over the years have collected approximately 29,000 food items, or about 4,000 each year.

The banquet would not be a success without the support of the Chelsea Community Hospital, Ron Yonkoski and his staff, the Chelsea Greenhouse and the Chelsea Market, all of whom, together with various local businesses contribute in many ways.

Without its friends and supporters, Faith in Action could not exist.

Faith in Action is community-based and supported. It provides human services to Chelsea and Dexter school district residents, with 25 different programs.

Faith in Action will celebrate its 20th anniversary in 2000.

Many factors cause headaches

Question: I have headaches every day. I've tried everything for them, but none of the medicines seem to help very much. What is a good medicine for migraines?

Answer: Almost everyone has a headache from time to time. Most of us have ones that are brief and comparatively mild. A change of activity or a non-prescription pain medicine is usually all that is necessary to bring relief.

Unfortunately, not all of us have infrequent, brief and mild headaches. About 45 million Americans have severe, disabling ones. There are several conditions that can cause this type of serious headache, including the specific condition you cite.

About 6 percent of men and 18 percent of women have migraine headaches. Typically, the pain starts on one side, but the entire head may become involved as the condition progresses. The pain is usually throbbing and intense, and physical activity, bright lights or noise frequently makes it worse. Nausea is also a very common complaint with migraine headache.

For many migraine sufferers there are additional warning signals originating from the nervous system. Flashing lights, unusual smells, numbness or tingling, or even the inability to move a body part occurs before and/or during the headache. These additional symptoms usually go away when the headache abates. Unfortunately, this may take hours or even days.

Your headaches may or may not actually be migraines since most people use the label to describe any headache that is sufficiently severe to interfere with normal activities. To doctors, the term "migraine" has a very specific meaning and refers to headaches caused by spasm and then dilation of the arteries inside the head. Other causes of daily headaches can include arthritis in the neck, anxiety and depression, rebound from frequent use of pain medicine, and withdrawal from caffeine.

Because there are so many possible causes of recurring headaches, it is really important to see your doctor for an accurate diagnosis. If your headaches are due to one of these other factors, the treatment will be different than if you are discovered to suffer from migraine headaches.

For migraine sufferers, as strange as it may sound, we live in a wonderful time. There are currently a large number of drugs available to treat migraine. Some of these are used to reduce the frequency of headaches while others are taken to stop the pain once a migraine has started. In the last few years there have been six new products approved by the Food and Drug Administration for the treatment of migraines, and there are at least 10 more than are currently under investigation. These products complement the list of previously approved prescription and non-prescription products.

Each migraine medicine is effective at giving relief for some migraine sufferers. Unfortunately, no drug has been discovered that is always effective for all people with migraine. Therefore, under the guidance of your doctor, you may need to try several different medicines before finding the single one or combination that works for you.

Pet first aid class set

Beau and Max—a 15 pound feisty pug and a sedate 10-year-old golden retriever, respectively—will help teach pet first-aid skills in a new course launched by the American Red Cross.

The course, Pet First Aid, will be held 1 p.m. to 2:30 p.m. April 3 at the American Red Cross Chapter.

Erin Lemma, Red Cross instructor and First Aid Station Team coordinator, will use Beau and Max to demonstrate hand positioning for CPR compressions, holding snouts to give breaths for resuscitation and placing partial splints.

The students also will use the dogs to practice taking pulse and heart rates.

"Participants benefit from having the procedures demonstrated on live animals, especially how to perform CPR on different snouts," Lemma said. "Learning with live animals makes participants confident in handling emergency situations with their pet."

Techniques used in responding to pet emergencies are similar to those used on small children. With animals, one must observe the situation, gain the animal's trust and gingerly approach the pet.

"You have to anticipate what is happening to animals, because they cannot tell you," Lemma said.

During the course, however, participants will learn body language, warning signs and how to approach an injured or sick animal.

Along with first aid and CPR, such topics as caring for burns and bruises, how to administer medication and even how to respond to a birthing emergency are covered in the 115-page booklet included in the course.

The course will be held at the American Red Cross, 2729 Packard Road in Ann Arbor. Call (734) 971-5300 to register.

Farm fact

Why do potatoes grow stems? Potatoes are tubers, which means they grow as the fleshy part of an underground stem. The tubers store food that the plant above the ground uses as a source of energy. Stems are buds that grow from the small, brown spots, called eyes, on the potato's skin. Eyes are arranged in a pattern, with the same number on each kind of potato. The white potato, for instance, has a spiral eye pattern. Farmers and gardeners who raise their own potato crop don't plant grocery store potatoes, because they are usually treated so they won't grow into new plants. Instead, they buy "seed potatoes." These are actually pieces of potato with several eyes that new potato plants grow from.

Trustees Absent: Hammer

Others Present: J. Drolett, S. Smith, J. Capes, S. McElrath, J. Frank, R. DeTroyer, J. Boyless, J. Boyless, S. Starkey, A. Feeney, K. Myles, L. Lantis, R. Shepherd, D. Parkanzky, C. Rode, F. Lane, T. Reynhart, F. Kendrick, A. Valle, G. Adams, J. Hardcastle, S. Morrison

The meeting was called to order at 7:30 p.m. by President Steele.

The first order of business was the Administration of the Oath of Office. Deputy Clerk Beeman administered the Oath of Office to Clerk Zatorski and to Trustees Cashman, MacLeod, Myles and Ortrberg.

President Steele opened the floor for nominations for Mayor Pro-Tem. Trustee Myles nominated Trustee Cashman, seconded by Trustee Rauschenberger. No further nominations were submitted. Ayes: 5 Absent: Hammer. Abstention: Cashman. Cashman elected as Mayor Pro-Tem.

President Steele opened the meeting for Public Participation. R. DeTroyer of Middle Street, asked for an update on the water supply and the new well. J. Myers said that a well had been drilled at Pierce and Garvey Roads, producing 90 gallons of water per minute. Asked if this would be sufficient or if more new wells would be needed, he responded that none were planned at this time.

S. McElrath of Main Street, presented a drawing of his "vision" for the corner of Old US-12 and Main Street. He stated that he hoped the character of the Chelsea downtown could be carried south, making it a vibrant extension of the community.

Trustee Rauschenberger asked for a show of hands from the members of the public who were in favor of the current moratorium.

P. Morrel-Samuels of Park Street, said that he had four major concerns regarding the Rite Aid/AARMAX development on the corner of Old US12 and Main Street. He said he did not think that not enough Village residents were sick enough to support an additional drug store, that he would hate to see historical buildings lost, that the proposed drug store was not esthetically pleasing and that he resented being "pushed around" by a large corporation.

C. Pappas of Madison Street, said she supported the moratorium because she valued the history of the area and she supported the businesses in that location.

There being no further comments from the public the Public Participation portion of the meeting was closed.

Motion by Myles, seconded by Rauschenberger that the Consent Agenda be accepted. All Ayes. Absent: Hammer. Motion carried.

J. Frank reported that there were eight properties under study by the Chelsea Historic District Commission that have been deemed to have historic significance but are outside the pending downtown Chelsea Commercial Historic District. He requested that all applications for permits pertaining to the listed properties be referred to the Historic District Commission for review.

D. Ellenwood reported 52 responses for a total of 763.5 firefighter hours. Myles asked if there was a dollar figure available for the first quarter of 1999. Ellenwood responded that it was not yet ready.

J. Drolett submitted the monthly Zoning Report.

Feeney presented the DDA update and emphasized the ongoing and intense commitment of Marje and Bob Daniels in the expansion of the District Library. C. Rauschenberger asked if there were representatives from the Council who could sit down with the DDA to work on a plan for the library. President Steele stated that there was already a committee in place and they were just waiting for the Mitchells to return so a meeting could be planned.

S. Smith of Smith Equities representing Sylvan Pines presented a request for an extension of Pilot Ordinance No. 122 from 13 months to 28 months to submit the affidavit required by the State of Michigan. Motion by Myles, seconded by Cashman to extend the Pilot Ordinance No. 122 from 13 months to 24 months. All Ayes. Absent: Hammer. Motion carried.

The Council next heard the request from AARMAX for relief from Ordinance No. 127 (Building Moratorium).

S. Walker, a member of the Pierce family who owned the property at the corner of Old US-12 and Main Street gave a history of the property and the 14 years it had taken them to have the property declared clean and saleable. A sales agreement between the Pierce family and AARMAX had been signed on May 21, 1998. Ms. Walker also stated that she had read the editorial written in the Chelsea Standard by J. Frank about how her father had built the building on the property "literally single-handed", alluding to the fact that he had only one arm. She said it had caused pain to her and her sisters.

D. Gannon, President of AARMAX said that they had bent over backward to work with the community. They wanted to be good neighbors and requested that their request for relief from Ordinance 127 be accepted. He stated that they had been meeting with D. Denison of the Village Planning Commission and B. Strader of the Strader Group.

Rauschenberger queried as to whether the village could support five pharmacies. Myles questioned the fact that an 11,000 sq. ft. building could use only 150 gallons of water per day as submitted in the report submitted by AARMAX, which constituted only 1/3 of the water usage of a smaller pharmacy. He also stated that he took exception to AARMAX saying that they might need to take legal action if the relief from Ordinance 127 were not granted. AARMAX apologized.

Cashman pointed out that the moratorium was temporary. He also stated that it would be discriminatory for the Council to deny AARMAX the use of that corner since it was zoned commercial. That it was a business decision regarding the number of pharmacies in the village and not a government one.

Motion by Ortrberg, seconded by Rauschenberger that the request from AARMAX for relief from Ordinance 127 be tabled until the next regular meeting of the Village Council on March 23, 1999. All Ayes. Absent: Hammer. Motion carried.

President Steele left at 8:30 p.m. and Mayor Pro-Tem Cashman chaired the meeting until President Steele's return at 8:37 p.m.

J. Frank requested that he speak directly to S. Walker rather than address the Council Members. He apologized for any pain or embarrassment he may have caused the members of the Pierce family by alluding to the fact that her father had built the current building single-handedly. He had meant it as a compliment. Ms. Walker accepted his apology.

Jankowski of Pierce Lake Drive asked what vehicle community members could use to voice their objection to the AARMAX/Rite Aid building. Cashman said that the objection was not defensible and Rauschenberger stated that he should attend the Planning Commission meetings to voice any objections he might have.

The next item on the agenda was to set a date for a Public Hearing for the Water Project Plan. Motion by Cashman, seconded by Myles that the Public Hearing for the Water Project be set for the April 13, 1999 meeting of the Village Council. All Ayes. Absent: Hammer. Motion carried.

J. Myers reported that during an audit by the DEQ some minor discrepancies were noted.

Motion by Rauschenberger, seconded by Myles that President Steele be authorized to sign the Landfill Perpetual Care Fund Escrow Agreement, contingent on feedback to the Village Manager by Trustee MacLeod. All Ayes. Absent: Hammer. Motion carried. (Attached as Appendix A).

The first order to new business was a request for permission by the Farmers' Market to relocate to the municipal parking lot off Park and Middle Streets. Farmer's Market Manager, R. Staelgraeve said that the patrons and vendors had expressed an interest in bringing the market back into the downtown area.

Motion by Myles, seconded by Ortrberg that the Farmers' Market be allowed to use the municipal parking lot from 7:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Saturdays from May to October. All Ayes. Absent: Hammer. Motion carried.

Motion by Cashman, seconded by Myles that the proposed Ordinance and Notice of Adoption and Right of Petition for the Appointment of the Village Clerk and Village Treasurer be tabled until the next regular meeting of the Village Council on March 23, 1999 in order to give the new members of the Council an opportunity to review it. All Ayes. Absent: Hammer. Motion carried.

Proposed Telecommunication Ordinance No. 129 was presented by P. Miles, Jr. of Varnum, Riddering, Schmidt & Howlett. He said that fees could be established on a fixed and variable cost basis with fees not to exceed a given amount. He suggested an engineering and accounting study be authorized to establish costs. He also stated that amendments could be made to the agreement as required.

Cashman asked what other communities in this area have telecommunication ordinances. Mr. Miles said that Milan, Plymouth, Canton and Grand Rapids all have telecommunication ordinances.

Discussion by Council members centered on arial vs. underground installations, tree trimming requirements, and the possibility of litigation by telecommunications companies because of the ordinance. The question was posed regarding

Easter Sunday reminds some of God's new day

DON LINDMAN
AMY FOUNDATION

REAL ANSWERS

The sun rose like a great orange ball over the eastern horizon the first Easter Sunday. People stretched in their beds, yawned, and rose sleepily to greet another working day. It was back to the old grind again — back to the hammer and saw, shuttle and loom, canvas and needle, pottery wheel, fields, flocks, schools, and the household tasks of laundering, baking, and cleaning.

For only a few people would that day be any different. They were the guards at the tomb where Jesus had been buried. They would remember that Easter Sunday morning for the sudden light that almost blinded them, and the earthquake that seared them out of their wits. There would also be the memory of the massive stone being rolled away from the entrance to the tomb, and of the emptiness inside.

The chief priests would remember that day, too, as the day when they had been awakened early out of a sound sleep to deal with this strange and totally unexpected development. Despite all the precautions they had taken, the tomb of Jesus would evidently be empty, and that would pose a serious problem.

Some women would also remember that day. They would come to the tomb early to anoint the dead body of Jesus, only to find instead an empty tomb and a friend who was no longer dead but alive.

Then there were the disciples, huddling in fear in the secret anonymity of a second-story room. After hearing the story of the women, a couple of them would run to the tomb to see its emptiness for themselves. But what to make of it all? That question would puzzle them throughout the day.

For most of the people of Jerusalem, however, that day would be like any other day. When night would begin to fall that first Easter Sunday hardly anyone would be aware that he or she had been a part of one of the most momentous days ever to dawn in human history.

And so will it be nearly 2000 years later, on Easter Sunday 1999. Millions upon millions of people will go about business as usual. They will sleep and eat and work and play and argue and love and buy and sell and worry and be happy just as they have done until now and will continue to do in the future.

For millions upon millions of others it will be a festive day, but filled with thoughts about little more than the beauty of nature, the coming of spring, new clothes, special dinners, and family fun. The empty tomb and the risen Christ will be largely ignored. And when Monday dawns, and with it the work of another day — there will be nothing in their lives to indicate that things are any different because of Easter.

For reasons that are unknown to us, God often chooses to work in quiet and inconspicuous ways to do mighty and wonderful things. For that reason, many people miss them. But to people with eyes to see and ears to hear what God is doing, the days when they see God at work are unlike any others. The sun shines brighter, the air is clearer, the flowers prettier, and the birds' songs more melodious.

And for those with eyes to see and ears to hear today, the sun that rises on Easter morning will have a little different quality from the sun that rose the day before or will rise the day after.

For that sun will remind us of the dawning of God's new day, a day that he proclaimed when he raised Jesus from the dead, a day different from any that have gone before, marking a whole new beginning in our lives.

That's what Easter is all about — the promise of great and wonderful things to come, new life in Jesus, begun when he arose from the dead, begun also in us who believe by his grace. And "he who has begun a new work in you," the Bible promises, "will continue it until the day of Christ."

"This is the day that the Lord has made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it!"

with since first grade.

"No one ever explained (math and science) to me; therefore, I didn't understand it. But once I learned about it, I saw it was fun," she says.

"Math has a close relationship to music. I think that's why I like math, and I like problem-solving. Both math and science require that."

Now that she is at the head of the classroom, Stevens ensures students are learning and having fun while doing it.

"I want them to remember fifth grade as being a fun year, but I also want them to remember they learned a lot," she says. "I don't want it to be fun with no learning or learning with no fun."

Teen earns Eagle Scout

Chelsea High School sophomore Jonathan H. Spooner was made an Eagle Scout at a Court of Honor on Sunday, March 14, at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 1330 N. Freer Rd.

The honor was bestowed by scouts, leaders and members of the Committee Boy Scout Troop 454 after qualifications were certified by the Eagle Scout Board of Review.

Spooner, 15, chose working with the American Red Cross in sponsoring a blood drive at the church for his community service project requirement.

talent and strength that he wouldn't mind having in his classes again.

As a performer himself, Coelius says he knows the difficulty of the business Cauffiel is entering. But if anyone were going to gain recognition it would be Cauffiel.

Despite her newfound stardom, Cauffiel says she has remained true to her Chelsea roots. She says she appreciates the "small-town vibe," and hopes to live up to the expectations of the teachers who have become her friends.

"I'm doing my best to make Chelsea proud," she says. "All I ask is for an endless supply of rolls from the Common Grill."

"Chelsea is where I really decided I wanted to do what I like to do. If I hadn't moved to Chelsea I wouldn't have developed a passion for (acting)."

Stevens says if she found out during a parent conference that a student didn't consider education interesting and fun, she would have to change that student's perception.

"That would be upsetting to me to have a student who didn't want to come to school," she says. "It has got to be fun or I can't reach their minds."

The first day of school for Stevens is always exciting. She says every year there is a different energy in the classroom.

"Each year is different. No two are the same, even though I am teaching the same curriculum. It comes out different," she says.

"I love meeting a new group of students. It's like a fresh start. I look at it as an opportunity to change or approach things differently."

Stevens describes her teaching style as structured.

"I have a lot of structure. I think fifth grade kids need it and like it," she says. "Once you get them in a routine and pattern, they know what you expect of them and they don't fight you. If you give them too much freedom, they get lost."

In part, Stevens attributes her teaching style to her favorite high school teacher. "I admired him so much. I think that's why I went to college and majored in music," she says. "He was very demanding and that may have affected my style."

Growing up, Stevens played the saxophone and she was a woodwind major in college, marking the first in the university's history. What Stevens enjoys most about teaching fifth grade is that students have a good sense of humor.

"The kids are fun at this grade level," she says. "They can be serious but they can also joke."

"I think they'd all say they like being in here. We have fun. We have fun every day," she says.

For instance, Stevens has students deliver character presentations where they dress up as their favorite person in history and speak as if they're that person, telling about their lives.

The only hard rule in her classroom, Stevens says, is that students must realize she is the authority figure.

"There can only be one person in charge of the classroom. There can be only one authority and that's me," she says. "I have the final say."

Stevens also expects that her students treat others with respect.

"If they're just respectful and realize there is one authority in the room, we seem to get along," she says.

With experience in two other school districts, Stevens says she finds Chelsea to be a special place.

"I think (the students) are special, maybe because I live here," she says. "I think they're basically nice kids. You occasionally have a problem, but you can usually work it out. I like them a lot or I wouldn't be doing this."

What Stevens looks forward to in her career is keeping up with her former students and continuing in the fifth-grade classroom.

"I like to keep track of the kids I've had in the past and see how successful they're in middle school, high school and college," she says.

Some students she had her first year in Chelsea schools are now juniors in college. Stevens keeps tabs on them when she runs into their parents around town or by reading the local newspaper.

When Stevens is not in the classroom, she can be found spending time with her family. Stevens and her husband have lived in Sylvan Township for the past 23 years.

Stevens enjoys reading non-fiction and walking. She tries to walk three to four miles a day.

Young Artists' Work Displayed

These students from Pierce Lake Elementary School had their artwork displayed at the Michigan Art Education Association Region 3 Show. The work was on display at the University of Michigan North Campus Commons. Some of the work will continue on to another juried show and, if chosen, will be on display at the state capitol with other children's art from throughout the state. In front, from left, are Eva Morrel-Samuels, Sophia Pappas, Kelly Fournier and Kaustubh Prabhu. In back are Sam Langwith, Lindsey Kindt, Sarah Schauder and Allison White. Art specialists not pictured are Patti Rogers and student teacher Tom Gore.

Hugh Downs

ABC's 20/20

By Carrie Young and Joe Prigun

Ask anybody who knows anything. They'll tell you...this man is loaded with solid information. And he is always respectful and has a sensitive style.

Who is this person? But of course: ABC News' 20/20 co-anchor Hugh Downs. Just give Downs a few moments of your time and he swiftly demolishes many of the stereotypes and misinformation about advancing age, and older persons.

In a matter of minutes this Emmy award winner will tell you the vital importance of letting older persons take charge of their own lives.

America is growing older, the silver-haired Downs told CONQUEST. "Thirteen percent of our population is now over 65. The oldest Baby Boomers are now 53 and beginning to experience the issues affecting their parents and grandparents."

The 77-year-old Downs explained that in less than two decades these Baby Boomers will themselves be in "old age," and some 20-percent — one out of every five Americans will be 65 and older.

"People must revise their images of old age. This will play a vital part in securing a decent later life for themselves."

Downs, one of the most familiar American television figures in the history of the medium, is the co-anchor of ABC News' 20/20.

For this prime-time weekly newsmagazine, Downs has been able to indulge himself by doing stories on science and medicine.

"It's great," says Downs, "because medicine is my first love, even over journalism."

It works out nicely, he says, because in addition to his role as co-anchor, Downs does go into the field to report news features for 20/20 and to profile important personalities.

"I prefer to concentrate on issues of science, medicine, aging, adventure, the fine arts and family," Downs noted.

Downs' most recent stories have included a report on a breakthrough treatment for patients suffering from chronic pain; an investigation into efforts by our judicial system to acknowledge the rights of crime victims' families; and a profile of the Rev. Billy Graham, whose amazing career has spanned more than five decades and 10 U.S. presidents.

On a personal front, Downs has nothing but praise and gratitude towards his wife of 55 years, Ruth Downs.

"My wife has kept me in line and has been my core inspiration for all these years," Downs admitted.

Being an older adult himself, Downs has a vested interest in setting the record straight about the myths of aging.

"Lies are rampant," he noted. "Some years ago, I wrote a little book called Thirty Dirty Lies About Old." I did this in reaction to deplorable untruths thoughtlessly circulated

Chronicles of Courage

At CONQUEST, we focus on: CAPABILITIES.

Over the years CONQUEST has been fortunate enough to have collaborated on a collection of stories about those we respectfully refer to as challenged citizens.

Always emotionally charged, and invariably spiritually uplifting, these special pieces have centered on persons from all walks of life. From business, sports, entertainment to the next door neighbor, these stories have been about people who have suffered tragedy and traumatic losses, often resulting in out-of-the-ordinary physical challenges.

And they bring a wealth of skills and experiences to share with CONQUEST readers.

That is why CONQUEST has a fresh, new look to its pages, "Chronicles of Courage."

'Hopeful Side of Breast Cancer'

By Carrie Young
Executive Editor

"Have you ever been at sea in a dense fog, when it seemed as if a tangible white darkness shut you in, and the great ship, tense and anxious, groped her way toward the shore with plummet and sounding-line, and you waited with beating heart for something to happen?"

"I was like that ship before my education began, only I was without compass or sounding-line, and had no way of knowing how near the harbour was..."

— Helen Keller

Helen Keller's darkness and all alone, shut-in feeling was not much different from Ann Jillian and Betty Ford's trapped-in fears when they discovered they had breast cancer.

Nor were they any different from 58-year-old Sharon Morris of Westland, MI or 59-year-old Margaret Rea of Warren, MI.

All are survivors of breast cancer, and all are here to tell you their story of the "Hopeful Side of Breast Cancer."

"Education is the beginning," says Annette Newman, owner of Annette's Unique Boutique in Sterling Heights, MI. "Knowing you are not alone, and that there are support groups for education, exercise, emotional support and friendship are critical for women of all ages to know there are answers, options...and most of all HOPE."

"Working together, it is optimistic that coming out of the dark and into the light of hope is within every woman's grasp," Annette told CONQUEST.

Support groups abound. And, according to Annette and others interviewed by CONQUEST during this series, "We all work cooperatively for one common, and worthwhile cause."

Annette, whose boutique specializes in professional fittings of mastectomy silicone prostheses and bras and pre-surgical consultations, is also the facilitator of a support group, "UP FRONT."

Considering that 180,000 women will develop breast cancer this year and 46,000 will die from it, according to The National Cancer Institute, Annette's UP FRONT seems invaluable for women seeking answers.

Also consider that despite moves in recent years to step up early detection of breast cancer (when treatment is most effective and less costly), the incidence of the deadly disease in the United States is among the highest in the world.

Still consider that almost half of all breast cancer occurs in women aged 65 or older, according to a study by Dr. Rosemary Yancik of the National Institute on Aging.

"The need for women to women networking is certainly clear," says Annette, a board certified mastectomy fitter.

"UP FRONT," says Annette, offers a wide variety of activities from exercise sessions to line dancing and featured guest speakers. The group meets the second Wednesday of each month from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., with "enlightening news and updates."

Meetings are held at the American Rehab Network, 15420 19 Mile Rd., 2 blocks east of Hayes. For more information, persons should call: (810) 795-5020, and ask for Annette.

Other support groups:

Meet Sharon Morris, organizer of the 160-member support group in Western Wayne County called: "ENCORE," this year celebrating its 16th anniversary.

Sharon, who has won numerous awards for her leadership and ongoing training and certification, started sharing her knowledge and experience 16 years ago, after having survived breast cancer.

"ENCORE is an acronym for encouragement, normalcy, concerns, opportunity, reaching out, and energies revived," says Sharon, noting that ENCORE is a national organization with 200 chapters that offers women who have had mastectomies physical rehabilitation and emotional support through a swimming exercise program and group discussions.

In Western Wayne County, and across the country, ENCORE is supported by the YMCA, and endorsed by the American Cancer Society. Western Wayne's is also coordinated with the Ann Arbor chapter. Interested women should call for more information at: (313) 561-4110 for Western Wayne. For Ann Arbor, persons should call: (313) 994-2313.

One can almost hear the hugs and comfort Sharon brings to her interview with CONQUEST. "One phone call can make all the difference for a woman who needs hope, knowledge and answers," says Sharon.

In May of 1993, Sharon helped lead a Washington D.C. rally where women nationally converged on the White House lawn to declare breast cancer as a national epidemic, with each woman carrying a red flower signifying they were a breast cancer survivor.

"Some women have voiced frustration that even their family members don't seem to understand what they are dealing with...we do. And that's what we are here for," comforted Sharon.

(NEXT ISSUE: In our second of a series, CONQUEST will explore more support groups, reader response, and little known information on medical insurance reimbursement for breast cancer, prescription drugs used for chemotherapy and radiation treatments and reconstructive surgeries.)

What do Betty Ford and actress Ann Jillian have in common with Margaret Rea, and Sharon Morris? Each wear a red flower symbolizing they survived breast cancer.

Hugh Downs: A Role Model

about a simple little word — 'old.'

"Those lies do a terrible injustice to a valuable segment of our society which deserves, in my opinion, more respect and is more in need of justice than any other segment," he argued.

For decades we defined middle age as falling between 35 and 50. Downs further explains. Since 1933, we have echoed Walter Pitkins' sentiment exhibited in the title of his book "Life Begins at Forty."

"Today, however, because of medical advances, coupled with an increased awareness of nutrition, general health, and fitness, some biomedical scientists are actually defining 'middle age' as falling somewhere between 50 and 70," Downs observed.

Based on that premise, Downs at 77 is just a few years outside of being "middle age." Yet his accomplishments are notably like that of three 77-year-old men. Downs has achieved an impressive bio, cramming a noted list of goals completed.

A selection of Downs' widely acclaimed adventure stories and travels around the globe — trademarks of his 17 years with the broadcast — was a special segment included in a two-hour retrospective program in 1988 marking the tenth anniversary of 20/20.

And in remembering Downs' "love" of medicine, he is quite proud of reporting medical breakthroughs, such as Vitamin 'A' therapy.

"I reported on this breakthrough of using Vitamin A therapy, used to reverse nutritional blindness in children," he said.

He also anchored a one-hour ABC News Special, "Depression: Beyond the Darkness," which focused on the devastating illness that afflicts as many as 20 million Americans each year.

The Emmy award-winning broadcast examined how the illness can be treated and how individual sufferers and their loved ones cope with the trouble it brings.

Downs has enjoyed a distinguished career in radio and TV as a reporter, newscaster, interviewer, narrator and host.

In 1985 he was certified by the Guinness Book of World Records as holding the record for the greatest number of hours on network commercial television.

In May of this year, Downs will be celebrating his 60th anniversary in broadcasting (radio and television).

Among a number of Emmy awards Downs has received was one for his work as host of the PBS program, "Over Easy"; a daytime Emmy award for "Live From Lincoln Center: Yo Yo Ma in Concert." Downs hosted PBS' "Live From Lincoln Center" since 1990, and for a 1989 in-depth interview with Patty Duke about her struggle with manic depression.

In September, 1962, Downs began a nine-year career as host of NBC News' "Today" program where, each morning, he reported to the nation on the news of the day and interviewed statesmen and leaders from around the world.

He left the "Today" show in October, 1971, in order "to move on to other things and additional interests," including writing books, teaching, lecturing, private consulting in communications, and other opportunities in television. He is the author of seven books.

Downs was born in Akron, Ohio. He began his broadcasting career as a radio announcer in Lima, Ohio at the age of 18. After serving in the U.S.

Cutline

Army, he joined NBC in Chicago as a staff announcer, and joined the "Home" show on that network in New York in 1954.

From 1956-57, Downs was the announcer for NBC's "Caesar Hour."

In July, 1957, he helped launch "The Tonight Show" with Jack Paar and stayed with the late-night series for five years. In August, 1958, Downs became host of the daytime game series "Concentration," a role he continued when he began his "Today" show appearances.

In addition to his activities in the communications field, Downs is Chairman of the Board of Governors of the National Space Society, Chairman of the Board of the United States Committee for UNICEF, Trustee of the Menninger Foundation, and has served as a member of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Advisory Council.

Downs chairs the Research and Education Committee of the Geriatrics Advisory Council of the Mount Sinai Medical Center.

And in June of 1992, he received a Certificate in Geriatric Medicine for Continuing Medical Education (CME) Geriatrics Review Course at Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York. Downs also serves as a member of the Board of Overseers of the Brookdale Center on Aging of Hunter College, a post he has held since 1982.

He and his wife, Ruth, have a home in Arizona, in addition to maintaining a residence in New York. They have two grown children, Hugh Raymond and Dierdre Lynn.

Ann Morgan:

"Here are the 15 fat-burning foods that cause you to lose weight..."

Everyone who will try them can lose five to six pounds during the first week. Get results!

Nutritionists have discovered that certain foods cause you to lose weight. These are foods with fat-burning calories. The more you eat, the more weight you lose.

In a report that you can receive without obligation, you will discover what these foods are, why they cause you to lose weight, and how.

QUESTION: How can certain foods cause you to lose weight?

ANSWER: Experiments have shown that 15 particularly healthful and nutritious foods (some of which are vegetables and fruits) burn more calories than they contribute. So the more you eat, the more you burn off your excess weight. These foods (with fat-burning calories) are transformed into energy, not fat.

Q: How is this possible?

A: The power of fat-burning foods to dissolve excess fat will seem obvious to you when you understand how your body accumulates fat.

You are born with a certain number of "adipose" cells. These adipose cells swell up and multiply when you take on too much weight. As soon as your metabolism slows down, this allows carbohydrate-based foods to be changed into fat. This fat is stored.

Therefore, you cannot lose weight by draining the fat from the cells.

You can only do this in three ways: omit foods that are rich in fat (dieting); intensive exercising; or eating foods with fat-burning calories that burn off the fat and drain it from you cells.

Obviously, it is the last method that is far and away the easiest because it requires no effort, no deprivation.

Q: How many pounds can you lose per week?

A: If you are more than 20 pounds overweight, you lose an average of five to six pounds in the first week, and three to four pounds in subsequent weeks.

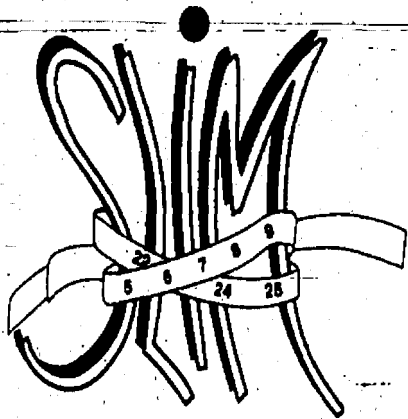

If you are more than 20 pounds overweight, you will lose weight even more quickly. Some people with more than 40 pounds to lose have lost up to 7 pounds in the first week.

Q: Do you have to follow some kind of special diet? Or is it just a question of adding fat-burning calorie foods to your normal diet?

A: You don't have to follow any diet, or change anything in your lifestyle. You can eat pastries, sauces, butter, cake, anything you want.

The only thing you have to do is add fat-burning calorie foods to your normal diet... and watch your pounds and rolls of fat disappear.

Q: How many fat-burning calorie foods do I have to add to my normal diet?

LOSE WEIGHT! An Amazing Discovery: Fat-burning foods

Now you can lose weight easily, even if you eat a little too much

A: Just add 25% of your normal diet. But you can exceed that amount because the more fat-burning calorie foods you eat, the more quickly you lose weight.

Q: Instead of adding these fat-burning calorie foods, can I just replace 25% of my normal diet with them?

A: Yes, because that is not really important. The only thing that is important is to absorb at least 25% fat-burning calorie foods because these are the ones that burn off the excess fat and cause you to lose weight.

Q: Will it be easy for me to maintain my ideal weight after losing my excess pounds?

A: Most people who lose weight with diets of pills or other methods quickly gain back the weight they have lost.

But with fat-burning calorie foods, it is different. The only thing you have to do to keep slim is to add fat-burning calorie foods to your normal diet.

Q: What are these fat-burning calorie foods? Where can you get them?

A: All these fat-burning calorie foods are natural foods. There are 15 of them. Among them are fruits, vegetables and other natural foods that you will find in any supermarket or at your grocer.

Q: Is there any proof that people have tried fat-burning calorie foods and have really lost weight?

A: Everyone who has added fat-burning calorie foods to their normal diet has lost weight. Here are some good things that could happen to you:

"I had tried everything..."

I have lost 35 pounds. All my life I have suffered from being fat and I had tried everything to lose weight. The fat-burning calorie foods are the only thing that have ever worked for me. I feel like a new woman. My husband also lost 23 pounds. We are delighted to have rediscovered the joy of life that we had long since lost.

"My excess weight melted away..."

In three weeks, I lost 19 pounds of excess weight. Since then I have not regained that fat. Because I had already tried so many methods and medications to lose weight, I no longer believed in any of them. But I tried this anyway. Thank heaven! Maybe my experience can be of help to other people.

"I thought I would be fat all my life..."

I often dreamed of becoming slim, but nothing I ever tried ever helped me lose weight. Now I have discovered fat-burning calories. I lost 23 pounds in two short weeks and a total of 38 pounds more quickly than I would have dared to hope. My husband told me last night that I am prettier than I ever have been.

Q: I have read in a magazine that fat-burning calorie foods not only help lose weight, but also improve your health. Is that true?

A: Yes. Fat-burning calorie foods were discovered by nutritionist physicians during their search for healthier foods. When you add fat-burning calorie foods to your normal diet, you lose weight but you also lower and normalize your cholesterol rate. This always contributes to your health.

Q: I have already tried bean pod capsules, pineapple capsules, other methods, other diets, and nothing helped me lose weight. Why would it be different this time?

A: Because the process of fat-burning calories is natural: you burn off more calories than you absorb. Because everyone who has tried them has lost weight, there is no reason that it would work for everyone else and not for you. The results are so certain that you can try this at our risk, and with no obligation.

Try these foods that help you lose weight, with no obligation and completely at our risk. Decide only AFTER having lost your excess pounds if you want to keep the Report.

HERE IS MY PROPOSAL:

If you do not lose at least five pounds per week, within 90 days return the Report on "Fat-Burning Foods That Cause Weight Loss" and I will send you your money-back no later than nine days after receipt of your returned package.

Therefore, either you lose at least five pounds per week until you reach your ideal weight, or I will refund the price of the report.

This is unconditional, no questions asked. This is a written, formal obligation on my part.

No Risk for You

You can, therefore, accept this trial offer simply out of curiosity, because you are not risking a single cent.

Why Would I Dare Make This Offer?

Because I am convinced that when you have lost your excess pounds, you will be so happy that you will want to keep the Report on foods that make you lose weight.

Because everyone, absolutely everyone, who has adopted these foods that cause you to lose weight have lost their excess pounds.

Because there is no reason why it would work for others and not work for you.

Read this Only If You Have Decided Not To Take This Trial Offer

1. This trial offer is entirely at my risk. If you do not lose at least five pounds per week, all you have to do is return the Report on foods that cause weight loss within 90 days. I will then send you your money back no later than 9 days after receiving your package. This is an unconditional, no-questions-asked guarantee.

2. You eat as much as you want, and anything you want. All you have to do is add one-fourth fat-burning calorie foods to your normal diet.

3. You are the one to decide if you want to keep the Report or if you prefer to return it for a refund.

You may even return the Report after having lost your excess weight, but I don't believe you would do it.

"... They possess certain special properties that add zip to your system and help it melt away unhealthy pounds. You have to try them to see the results".

— Ann Morgan

4. Now you have the opportunity of changing your appearance and your life without going on a diet. Even if you have been overweight for years, it's not important.

Everyone who has tried fat-burning calorie foods has lost weight. These foods must make you lose weight too, or it won't cost you a single cent.

If you don't want to lose weight for yourself, do it for your husband, your children — and for your health!

Last Minute!

Copies of this edition of the Report on "Fat-burning Foods That Cause Weight Loss" may soon be depleted. The next edition may not be able to go to press for two months.

If you want quick service and want to take advantage of the price of this edition, send in the attached coupon now. The only thing you risk is forgetting it.

NOTE:

This Report is not sold in book shops. You may obtain it only with the coupon below.

Barbara Walters, Downs's "20/20" co-anchor, acknowledges the debt she owes to Downs: "I have had the pleasure — and believe me, it is that — of working alongside Hugh Downs for a great part of my own career. Indeed, were it not for Hugh's encouragement and support, I would never have been on television."

Hugh Downs: 20/20

By Carrie Young
Executive Editor

Hugh Downs has done more for older Americans than just about anyone. The following are just a few examples of his many contributions:

Downs was among the first to research and broadcast a special on the subject of aging as far back as 1952, when the topic was considered taboo. Television executives argued that Americans did not want to see or hear about the vicissitudes of old age; they were embarrassed by thinking about their own mortality.

He shattered the taboos and proved network executives wrong. Three of Downs's seven books are devoted to the subject of aging and maturity. One offers practical help to those planning for retirement, another seeks to shatter the myths about aging, and the third points the way to effective aging — to greater maturity for both individuals and society.

Downs, at age 77, provides an excellent role model for seniors, having demonstrated in his own life that growth and emotional maturity continues with age and that age is no barrier to achievement.

He has been a one-man army, helping to dissolve problems and thereby ensuring a better life not only for the nation's 30 million seniors but for generations of seniors to come. For this alone, quite apart from his other Herculean achievements, Downs deserves the commendation of the nation, according to his peers.

Downs was born in Akron, Ohio on February 14, 1921. When he was two, the family had moved to Lima, Ohio, where he spent his formative years. His father, Raymond, was a machinist with the Lima Locomotive Assembly Company until he was almost killed in an accident; this event caused him to leave the job and take employment as a distributor of automobile batteries.

Young Downs helped around the house and began his education in a one room schoolhouse. When he was nine, the family moved to a small farm so that they could supplement their income. Downs helped raise chickens and sold eggs to bring in a few more dollars.

After graduating from high school, Downs won a one-year scholarship to Bluffton College in Lima by taking first prize in a public-speaking contest. He had to drop out of college after his first year in order to help out at home.

One afternoon in July of 1939, Hugh, then 19, was passing by the local radio station and on impulse he walked in and asked for a job. Jobs were impossible to find in Lima during the depression but to his surprise he was hired as staff announcer at the full-time rate of $12.50 a week.

In short order he became the program director; he was given the authority to hire three more announcers and his salary shot up to $25 a week.

In 1940, he made his move accepting a post with WWJ in Detroit, Michigan, as one of six full-time announcers. Pearl Harbor interrupted his career. Downs tried to enlist but was turned down because he is color blind only to be drafted by the Army. He was released from the service in May of 1943 and returned to his old job in Detroit. A year later he landed a job with NBC in Chicago. At the age of 22, he became the youngest network announcer in America.

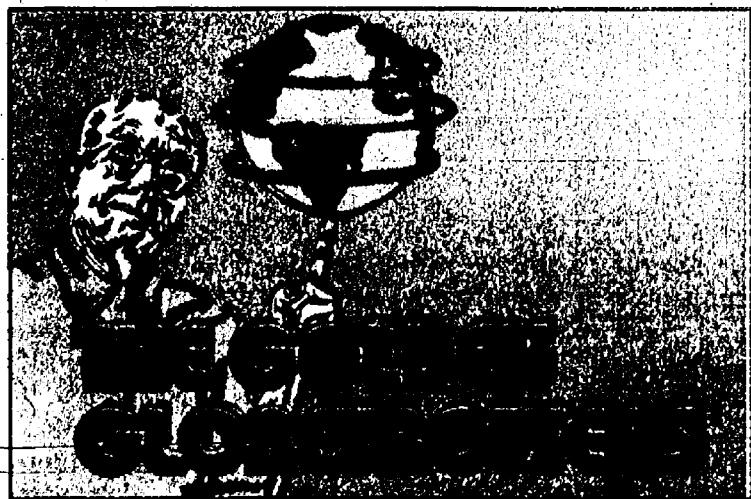

It was at NBC that he met Ruth Shaheen. They were married on February 20, 1944, and in short order had a son, Hugh Raymond (HR), and a daughter, Diedre Lynn. Downs stayed at NBC for 11 years, reading the news, announcing music and drama, conducting interviews, and narrating programs. His next major move was to television.

"Radio was kind to me," says Downs. "It gave me a life's work and my life's love."

And the rest is history.

John Glenn and Hugh Downs

"No Gofers or Charlies"

By Betty Swartz, MCC

Our first snowfall of this season brought back memories of where I was a year ago. Thoughts of sunny Florida warmed my chilled bones as I recalled my attendance at the annual Winter NACOA (National Association Cruise Only Agencies) Conference. I was invited to work at the conference as a "Meeter and Greeter" of the attendees arriving at the airport. For two days I was meeting flights at the Orlando airport and directing my arrivals to the limos which took them to the hotel. Now this is an easy and fun job which does not require too much intelligence. I had a roster indicating who was arriving and when; the only real challenge I faced was when two flights were scheduled for arrival at approximately the same time. I met the challenge successfully and all was going well until I had to meet a flight in which I had only one name on my roster. The name was Frances, whomever.

Suddenly a tall handsome male approached me and indicated how delighted he was to have someone meeting him. At that point he introduced himself (he was not Frances) and jokingly I stated that since he was not on my roster I could not get a limo for him. Of course, he did not take me seriously and when "Frances" arrived I sent the two of them on their way to the hotel. Later that evening I found out that the man that was not on my roster just happened to be the "President" of NACOA! From now on I will clearly note who is president of any organization that I join.

The highlight of the conference was a "cruise to nowhere" on board Holland America's beautiful new Maasdam. The cruise was a black-tie affair for the NACOA attendees along with several Holland America executives.

We were bussed from Orlando to Port Canaveral in the early afternoon, toting our carry-on and evening clothes. Everyone was assigned a cabin for the duration of this event (approximately 10 hours) and yours truly, along with other conference workers, had a beautiful suite. When I opened the door of the suite I didn't know whether to cry with delight or cry with despair. My immediate reaction was now will I ever adjust to a "real" cabin on future cruises.

I had the entire suite to myself — living area, veranda, sleeping area, dressing room, bathroom with a jacuzzi, a fully stocked mini-bar and fresh flowers everywhere. I wanted this to last forever. However, I pulled myself away and began exploring the ship. It was magnificent! As with all Holland America ships, the ambiance is serene and exquisite. Every crew member I encountered was impeccable in his appearance and gave the same in service — no Gofers or Charlies as in TV sitcoms.

My intention, of course, was to luxuriate in the jacuzzi and take plenty of time to relax and get ready for a wonderful evening. Well, it did not happen that way. I met some interesting people while exploring the ship and time got away from me. Hurriedly I showered, shampooed and dressed. So much or relaxing! Off to cocktails and dinner. The two-story dining room sparkled like a wonderland. As I descended the staircase, the impression I had was that of entering a dining room in a grand European hotel and not a dining room on board a ship cruising the Atlantic. After dinner the disco was jumping and everyone was being royally entertained. Our curfew was fast approaching and we all had to be off of the ship at 11:00 p.m., sharp. Having rushed to get dressed earlier in the evening, I had not left my accommodations in the neatest of order; consequently, when I opened the door to my suite I stood there in disbelief and wondered if I could change clothes, pack up and get off of the ship on time. While dashing around and pulling myself together, I suddenly heard my name being announced throughout the ship. Fortunately my sense of direction remained with me and I found my way to the gangplank, proceeded to check out and disembark.

LIFE'S EMBARRASSING MOMENTS — I had to be the one that was paged and the last one off of the ship. Maybe that's why I wasn't invited to be on the inaugural of the Ryndam!

We stayed at Coco Beach that night and the next morning were bussed to Ft. Lauderdale where the conference meetings took place. Meetings, ship inspections and friendly encounters continued for three days. Much to my surprise, I had dinner aboard the Maasdam, again, in Ft. Lauderdale. The pre-inaugural event was for agents from all over and a colleague had an invitation for herself and guest; she was most kind to invite me to be her guest. This time we boarded the ship in our evening attire, had cocktails and then a beautiful dinner — I can assure you that I was not the last one to disembark the second time around.

Yes, it's all in a day's work or pleasure that I have a wealth of memories such as the above. Every cruise experience brings with it good times, good friendship and good memories. May you, too, enjoy as I have enjoyed.

Learn To Grow Young

The octogenarian comedian George Burns often said, "We can't help getting older, but we don't have to get old." Jo Peddicord, syndicated columnist and author of the award-winning book, Look Like A Winner After 50 with Care, Color & Style, agrees. In her new book, FEEL NIFTY AFTER 50! Top Tips to Help Women Grow Young! (© 1999, $12.95 paperback, Golden Aspen Publishing, 1-800-639-9664, Peddicord shares more of her secrets for getting the most out of life.

Key Elements Needed to Grow Young

- Positive Attitude — Thinking, planning and chuckles make good things happen
- Healthy Eating — Eat right and enjoy the sunshine of life
- Stay Fit — To get joy out of every day keep the body primed with regular exercise and a variety of stimulating activities
- Pay Attention to the Outside — Look like the vital person you are with color and style
- It's Up to You — Create a life you are happy living adapted from Feel Nifty After 50! Top tips to Help Women Grow Young! by Jo Peddicord ©1999

As our population continues to age (currently 1 out of every 8 Americans is 65 or older and that will soon increase to 1 out of every 5!), everyone needs to learn how to make the most out of the second half of life.

"Stereotypes of the past no longer fit the over-50 crowd of today," observes Peddicord. "Many of us feel 15 to 20 years younger than our age. Many are doing the same things they were doing in younger years and trying exciting new things. Many look better now than they ever did. After working hard at growing up," Peddicord continues, "we can now enjoy the benefits of those years and build upon them."

Most people understand the importance of the big three — eating healthy, staying fit, and updating appearance. Although these are necessary components to growing young, there is another key element that is often ignored or deemed unimportant. Attitude.

If we think old, we act old. "I'm too old to go back to school." "Try rollerblading? I don't think so." "I've always worn my hair this way." This kind of negativity needs to be replaced by "I can't wait to take that computer class." "They say you never forget how to ride a bike." "I love being able to wash my hair and style it myself."

When we can get past a fixation on the age number, it is possible to rejuvenate our life. Peddicord quotes a woman who said, "Find an age you like and stay with it." This opens up all sorts of interesting new possibilities. It has also been said that when you pass 50, you have to make a critical decision: Do you want to be the statue or the pigeon?

If you choose to spread your wings and strive to grow young, Peddicord's helpful advice lays out a good flight plan.

Global Aging

By Carrie Young
Executive Editor

What does Michigan Governor John Engler have in common with co-anchor of ABC News' 20/20, Hugh Downs?

Well, plenty!

Both are vibrant mature Americans. And both are active participants in commemorating the United Nations International Year of Older Persons 1999.

"I take great pride in announcing our state's participating in this global event," Governor Engler told CONQUEST.

Michigan joins states across the nation and countries throughout the world in honoring older citizens everywhere.

According to Gov. Engler, "Our state shares the hopeful vision of the United Nations that a society for all ages is one that recognizes the rights and responsibilities of all age groups. When all generations work hand in hand, the overall health of society improves."

The celebration's noteworthy theme "Towards a Society for All Ages," recognizes the many faces and dimensions of aging in all its rich diversity.

As importantly, it speaks to the value of multi-generational relationships to societies all over the globe.

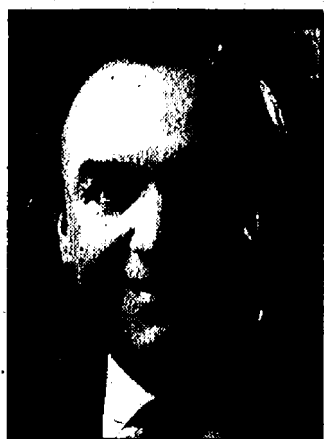

At the national level, Hugh Downs, co-anchor of ABC's "20/20" and Elinor Guggenheimer, noted arts philanthropist, were recently named honorary chairpersons of this landmark event.

The personal records of achievement of these two role models speak to the value of living up to one's potential at every and any age.

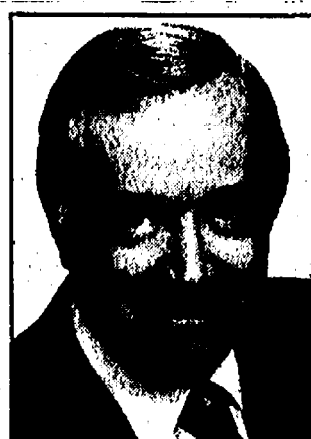

A large scale, opening event is planned at the national level.

Here at home, the Michigan Office of Services to the Aging has been designated as the focal point for state activities.

In this role, the Office encourages all Michigan citizens to take part in this world-wide celebration by hosting and/or participating in recognition activities at the local level.

Governor John Engler

Hugh Downs

"It is a unique opportunity to involve all age groups in expressing the true meaning of independence, participation, caring, self-fulfillment and dignity for all," noted Gov. Engler.

Downs, at the national/international level echoes Gov. Engler's sentiment.

CONQ: What will be some of your responsibilities as Honorary Chairperson at the national level for the International Year of Older Persons 1999?

DOWN: "I'll be staying in touch with media venues and national and international projects and events. I'll stay active with the National Longevity Center headed up by Dr. Robert Butler, a friend, and I think it is fair to say he is the foremost doctor in the world in terms of geriatric medicine. I'd like to give media attention to Doctor Butler's Center and work."

The doctor Downs speaks so highly of is Robert N. Butler, M.D., Brookdale Professor and Chairman of the Department of Geriatrics and Adult Development, Mount Sinai School of Medicine.

"It's an impressive outfit. It's even more impressive because our nation's life expectancy is going up. The Longevity Center is worldwide with centers in Manhattan, Tokyo, and Paris. Through the Center and other activities, I'd like to strengthen ties internationally as well as nationally."

CONQ: What do you hope to bring to the year-long event?

DOWN: I hope in some small way, and to some degree, to help our own nation to give more attention to our older persons' talents, experiences, and wisdom. Some countries already are further advanced and aware of their elderly peoples' wisdom, like China where their seniors are revered. We should be imitating them instead of us butting into their lives.

I want to be involved in seeing to it that our country has a more compassionate attitude towards geriatric medicine. You know geriatric medicine is equal to where pediatrics medicine was in the 1920s. That is not at all to be considered as good.

Actually, I must tell you my first love is medicine, particularly geriatric medicine. Dr. Butler was kind enough to indulge me by letting me sit in on one of his conferences and geriatric studies program. I even played hooky from 20/20 to do this. Well, I surprised Dr. Butler by passing the medical exam, which is the same exam as what a student needs to pass to become a doctor. Dr. Butler didn't know what to do with me, because after all, I am not a doctor. So I received a Certificate in Geriatric Medicine for Continuing Medical Education (CME) Geriatrics Review Course at Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York.

CONQ: Do you think this event will help the general media to recognize the 50-plus adult as part of the fastest-growing segment of the population?

DOWN: Yes. I should put down one word. But I will elaborate. I think the general media is getting better about recognizing the over-50 segment of our population. And there is no doubt that they (general media) are seeing the 50-plus adult as a force to be reckoned with, politically, socially and as a consumer force.

It should be noted that an even faster growth is the 80-plus segment. Partly this is due to better health habits.

People like the Baby Boomers and people over 50 are now recognizing that smoking is bad, bad, bad. It's become common knowledge that people can increase their lifespan by eating more nutritionally and not smoking. My own last cigarette was in 1958.

CONQ: Just how young are you?

DOWN: (Laughingly) I feel 34, but my actual age is 77. I know a psychiatrist would have a field day with what I'm about to say...but when I look in the mirror I fully expect to see myself at age 34. But then I'm still always surprised to see a 77-year-old. I see gray hair. Yet, I'm a healthy 77-year-old. I avoid red meats, my cholesterol is an ideal rate.

Yet there are always exceptions to the rule...like the 105-year-old woman I interviewed recently for TV. She ate fatty foods regularly. She smoked and drank alcohol.

CONQ: Go figure.

Look Like A Winner After 50

Beauty Beyond 50

Q. I'm so sad and cry every night since I was diagnosed with breast cancer. What helps?

A. Read Sue Buchanan's book Love, Laughter and a High Disregard for Statistics, surviving breast cancer with your sense of humor and your sexuality intact (Thomas Nelson Publishers, Nashville, TN). Buchanan went through what you are. Her experience and fortitude are an inspiration. Call Y-ME (Hotline) (800) 221-2141 and talk to someone who understands and has answers. Do not isolate yourself. Stay busy and involved. Working is a lifesaver. Keep as physically active as possible such as walking around a park. Some kind of gentle exercise helps to erase the blues. Wear makeup — a little goes a long way — and cheerful colors in clothing. This self-care lifts spirits and is important.

Q. It's predicted my hair will fall out because of the chemotherapy treatments. What can I do to get through this until my hair grows back?

A. Get one or two wigs and have them styled. For wig-free time you can wear a scarf, turban or chic cap. Some women have eyes lined and brows tattooed for lasting color — cosmetic tattooing, that is, not what you see in the yellow pages of your phone book. Plastic surgeons who do breast reconstruction use cosmetic tattooists and can recommend one. The procedure saves time, energy and worry. You can also use eye liner and brow pencil or brow powder.

Q. After chemo, my skin is dry, dry. Is there something easy I can do?

A. Cleanse your face, throat and hands with olive oil. Rinse well. Exfoliate with a mask or apply a pea-size amount of alpha hydroxy acid creme (if your doctor approves) to your face according to directions. This process makes moisturizing more effective. Complex 15, Moisturel, and Replenaderm are dermatologist-recommended moisturizers. Apply to moist skin. Soaking in a warm bath hydrates your skin and is relaxing. Eat lots of fresh fruits and drink lots of water and healthy liquids — sports drinks, fruit juices. Don't wait until you're thirsty because then you may already be dehydrated.

National Older Workers Week

National Older Worker Week is celebrated March 14-20, 1999. This year marks the 40th anniversary of this commemoration, established by the American Legion to create awareness of age discrimination and other barriers to participation by older adults in the workplace.

In Michigan there are Senior Community Services Employment Programs (SCSEP) operating under contract with the Office of Services to the Aging through 13 Area Agencies on Aging (AAAs). A federally-funded program under the U.S. Department of Labor, SCSEP is designed to provide and promote useful part-time opportunities in community employment for low-income persons aged 55 and older. The program also assists participants in receiving experience and training necessary for employment in the private sector.

In addition to the AAAs, which administer SCSEP, there are seven other national contracting agencies for the Program in Michigan, including Green Thumb, the American Association of Retired Persons Foundation, the National Senior Citizens Education and Research Center, the National Urban League, Asociacion Nacional Por Personas Mayores, the National Indian Council on Aging and the U.S. Forest Service.

Employers as well as job seekers are encouraged to dial a toll free Older Worker Hotline, 1-800-922-HIRE, that is administered by the southeast Michigan-based Operation ABLE organization. Older persons using this number will be referred to an appropriate resource in their own area for job opportunities. By dialing this same number, employers can also seek information about hiring older adults.

Coming in May:

National Older Americans Month

May is Older Americans Month. This annual celebration, designated by the President of the United States, sets the month of May as a time to acknowledge, as a nation, the extraordinary contributions of 34 million older Americans. At the time of this writing, the U.S. Administration on Aging (AoA) was making progress on selecting a theme for this year's celebration. Under consideration, said an AoA spokesperson, was "Honor the Past — Imagine the Future: Towards a Society for all Ages."

When Older Americans Month was established in 1963, only 17 million Americans had reached their 65th birthday. There are now more than 34 million individuals that age living in the U.S. By the year 2030, it is expected this age population will exceed 70 million.

In the coming months, Governor John Engler will be declaring May as Older Americans Month. Please look for details on how Michigan plans to recognize this momentous occasion in the next issue of CONQUEST. (Don't miss this special issue with CONQUEST's own reporting on this annual celebration.)

Meet the "dawn-of-the-millennium" seniors — those who are estimated to be spending as grandparents for grandkid gifts at over $25.6 billion by the year 2000, according to Market Place Media, in California.

Add this fact to the good news that virtually every study of child development shows that youngsters lucky enough to have loving grandparents are destined to be winners, according to "The Grandparents Guide."

TAKE NOTE: There is a "goldmine" in "Silver Publications." Senior print continues to be a goldmine for advertisers targeting a broad mature audience in the 50+ age range.

The American Association of Retired Persons recently selected Active Seniors

Media (ASM) to place its advertising in more than 25 local senior papers across the country, including CONQUEST, with 250,000 circulation in southeastern Michigan.

Many other companies are also finding their niche in senior publications through ASM. Banks, insurance companies, drug stores, travel bureaus, and pharmaceutical and senior-target product manufacturers have used senior newspapers to reach large senior population areas such as Michigan, California, Florida, and Arizona.

One out of every five Americans, 52 million people, are now age 55 or older. Senior Americans control over 70% of the Nation's net worth. They are living longer, earning more, and enjoying far more active and rewarding lifestyles. To reach them, Active Seniors Media offers targeted vehicles that break through the numbing clutter of mass media. "We represent nearly every senior community publication in the U.S. and Canada, and offer full-service radio and senior community promotions to bring your product face to face with this active, growing market," said an ASM spokesperson.

Plastic surgery is one way that image-conscious Americans are improving their mental outlook on life.

"We're very much caught up in our appearance in this country," says Richard Beil, M.D., of the Center for Plastic and Reconstructive Surgery. "I think people choose cosmetic surgery because it can make them feel better about themselves. We do all kinds of things to help us feel better about ourselves, whether it be diet, exercise, spiritual pursuits, or cosmetic surgery."

Among the most popular plastic surgery options are: breast augmentation, cosmetic laser surgery, liposuction, brow lifts, and rhinoplasty or "nose job."

Many of the options are more common to specific age groups. For example, Beil says, "most people really don't need a face lift before age 50."

"Laser surgery to remove wrinkles around the eyes and mouth or spider veins seem more common when people reach a decade birthday," he observes. "But there are a lot of factors that contribute to whether a person decides to have cosmetic surgery."

THE AGING process has a great deal to do with genetics, and as Beil points out, "whether a person smokes

Technology has had an impact on cosmetic surgery.

or sunbathes" also affects the outward appearance.

"Most people will choose cosmetic surgery because they don't like the way they are aging," he says. "It's become a lot more acceptable than in the past. I think people are recognizing the benefits and consequently, it's more common. It just doesn't have the same negative stigma that it once had."

About 40 percent of Beil's surgical procedures involve breast augmentation, whether it is to increase or decrease the size of the breast. He also does reconstructive surgery for breast cancer patients, commonly at the same time the patient is having a mastectomy.

Plastic surgery isn't always the answer, either. Beil carefully screens his patients before agreeing to any procedure. He explains that it is very important for a patient to have "a realistic expectation" of the outcome of a specific procedure.

"Patients don't always understand what is involved in a procedure, and what to expect once it is finished," says Beil.

He also prefers that patients have a stable relationship, and that their desire to have a procedure "be reasonable and rational."

"It's important that a patient have the support at home of his or her spouse, and that they aren't having a procedure done because someone else wants them to have it," he explains.

As with any surgical procedure, there are risks, and Beil is careful to spell out the possible dangers.

"Some patients can't get past that hurdle," he says.

But risks are reduced if a patient is in good physical condition and doesn't smoke.

"A patient's overall general health should be good, and ideally, they should be within 20 pounds of their ideal weight," he says.

TECHNOLOGY has left its mark on the field as well, according to Beil.

"We use the endoscope for brow lifts, for example, and no longer have to make an ear-to-ear incision across the scalp," he explains. "Ultrasound technology is being used in liposuction, and of course, laser surgery has been very successful for many facial procedures."

Among the newer options is the "total lower body lift," a six-hour surgical procedure that can completely reshape the abdomen, hips, and thighs. Beil says that the procedure at first was a common option for people who had experienced "large, rapid weight loss," in which the skin had lost its elasticity.

"It's really a tremendous procedure, and we commonly would use liposuction in conjunction with it," says Beil. "We are starting to see a lot of people who already are on some kind of exercise program but who cannot seem to get ride of those 'love handles' or saggy thighs. In some cases, these people might not be candidates for liposuction because genetics is the primary cause of their problem."

A lower body lift, he explains, involves making an incision around the hips, across the back and abdomen, and then pulling up the muscle of the buttocks and thighs and attaching it to the fascia or outer membrane of the abdomen.

"It takes some time to recover, probably about six weeks, and there is some scarring," Beil says. "But the results are really tremendous."

Typically, Beil says, patients are asked to bring in an item of clothing they hope to wear after the surgery so that the incisions can be "designed" to meet those clothing needs or personal desires.

Chiropractic releases nerve interference

BY DR. BARBARA STURM
MILAN CHIROPRACTOR

If you could create the most satisfying healing system imaginable, what would you recommend?

Most of us would want a natural method—one that utilizes the body's own abilities to promote internal healing and wellness. Dangerous drugs would not be used and frightening surgeries would not be necessary.

If it sounds too good to be true, you're in for a pleasant and life-changing surprise. There already exists such a system of healing. The best news is that this system is completely unique to you. You already possess all of the necessary tools to be healthy once the communication between your brain and the rest of your body is free from disturbance.

This disturbance is caused by vertebral subluxation. The chiropractor locates and removes vertebral subluxation, which causes nerve interference, through specific chiropractic adjustments. Contrary to popular misinformation, the Doctor of Chiropractic (DC) does not force misaligned vertebrae back into place. Instead, during the adjustment, the subluxated vertebrae are unlocked and released from their misaligned positions. The body's inborn intelligence is called upon to shape the spine. When this happens, the vertebrae return to their proper alignment and the normal nerve supply is restored. This allows one to achieve maximum healing potential with a complete nerve supply.

WISDOM DICTATES that you begin the healing process with conservative care that does not cause any side effects. The only side effect of a chiropractic adjustment is improved health! Chiropractic is all about wellness and prevention. In our clinic we utilize a computer scan whereby we are able to determine the areas in your spine that have nerve interference. If this interference is not removed, then dis-ease continues.

Let's assume the area of interference is at the thoracic 2 and 3, just below the base of the neck. The nerve roots that emerge from that area go to the lungs, bronchial tubes, and pleura. If a subluxation existed where the message could not be transmitted properly or in its entirety from the brain to the lungs, a litany of problems could result. Asthma could be one of those possibilities. Once the interference is removed and the lungs have the appropriate time to heal, normal function will resume.

In light of this, by locating and removing the nerve interference, the body would be able to function to its potential. This may mean that the asthma would never manifest itself if a scan was performed at an early enough stage. Parents insist their children's eyes, ears, and teeth are checked, but what about the spine. The spine supports and houses the nerve system. According to Gray's Anatomy, "Every function of the human body is under the direct control of the nerve system." Consequently, consider having your child's spine checked for subluxation.

Chiropractic does not cure anything, just as drugs and surgery don't cure disease. Rather, it is only the body's own healing ability that dictates health or dis-ease. In a study comparing people who followed chiropractic care with those who did not, Dr. Ronald Pero, Ph.D., he found that "the chiropractic group had a 200 percent greater immune-competence than people who had not received chiropractic care and a 400 percent greater immune competence than people with cancer or other serious health disease."

If you're searching for health, it is not in the bottom of a pill bottle or a spoonful of an elixir, but rather inside you. Chiropractic can turn on your innate healing power.

Chiropractors promote prevention, wellness

BY KYM BOELTER MUCKLER
HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS

A branch of the healing arts, Chiropractic treatment is concerned with holistic health and the prevention of disease. Many consider this area of medicine to be an art and science philosophy.

Doctors of Chiropractic consider the human body a completely connected entity and offer assistance in aligning of skeletal, neurological, vascular, nutritional, emotional and environmental relationships.

"When there is nerve interference the body is unable to communicate with itself," explains local chiropractor Dr. Barbara Sturm. "If the body cannot communicate with itself then it cannot heal itself properly. What we do is locate and remove subluxations, or nerve blockages through specific adjustments so that the body is able to communicate with itself and heal."

The practice of Chiropractic is based on academic and clinical training received through accredited chiropractic colleges. Procedures include adjustment of fluent and adjacent tissues in the body, particularly in the area of the spinal column.

The basic theme of chiropractic treatment is that the body has within itself the potential of health and healing, and the chiropractor's role is to implement the body's capacity for healing through specific adjustments.

Chiropractic is a drug-free, non-surgical science and does not include prescription drugs or surgery.

"We are at the very forefront of prevention. Doctors of chiropractic get rid of nerve interference and promote wellness. We are not crisis care, we are preventative care," said Sturm.

Variety of programs for healthy 'step' families

BY CHRIS WHITE AND BRADY MIKUSKO
ANN ARBOR THERAPISTS

Remember watching the Brady Bunch twenty years ago, or re-runs years later, and thinking how nice it was: two adults, each with children of their own, merging together to live in one big, happy household?

Little did many Americans know that by the year 1999, there would be 35 million adult step parents and approximately 18 million children under the age of 18 living in stepfamilies. Some 1,300 new stepfamilies are forming each day. Further, if remarriage rates continue as they are now, 35 percent of all children born will live in a stepfamily household by the time they reach 18.

The numbers are staggering and what these statistics essentially mean is that the stepfamily is becoming increasingly common in our communities and may even surpass so-called nuclear families at some point in the future.

The rise in stepfamilies in and of itself is not a problem. The problem is that our society assumes that the roles, rules, and relationships within the step family do or should resemble those of a nuclear family.

THE MOST important and obvious difference is that it is a family borne of loss—the loss of a spouse through death or divorce, the loss of the fantasy of what marriage would be like for adults not previously married, and the loss or partial-loss of a parental relationship.

The complex web of relationships, the differing value systems, and the old loyalties or ties add to the pressures facing such a family. It is not surprising that members of a stepfamily often feel confused, overwhelmed, and angry. Their needs are great.

Increasingly, stepfamilies are asking for and getting the help they need and deserve. The Stepfamily Association of America, Inc. provides information to stepfamilies, and can be reached at (800) 735-0329 or at www.stepfam.org.

More and more communities are developing support groups, including Washtenaw County. Call 996-5946 or 769-6594 for information on local groups.

Workshops and classes also are available, including the initiation of a series of four-week educational workshops on stepfamilies beginning March 1 in Ann Arbor. Call Brady Mikusko at 747-8240 or Chris White of Stepfamily Solutions at 995-5181 to register.

Therapists are providing specialized service to individuals and families who face the challenges of stepfamily life day-to-day.

All of these services are designed to help educate, support, and strengthen stepfamilies so that over time, they can create a rich and nurturing tapestry upon which all family members can grow and thrive.

Glacier Hills offers 'continuum' of care

BY HELEN POLASKI
STAFF WRITER

When dreaming of the future, it's only natural to imagine days immersed in pleasantries, which probably would not include work, bills, or stress. But for the average person, retirement is just a date on the calendar.

Not so, says Mary Cooperwasser of Glacier Hills, a nonprofit retirement home in Washtenaw County. According to Cooperwasser, retirement is all about enjoying quality of life in a worry-free atmosphere.

Beginning at age 62, retirees may become residents at Glacier Hills' 34-acre site and enjoy life to its fullest, either in an independent living apartment, and assisted living apartment, or in the nursing center.

"We provide apartments where residents live with full responsibilities and receive service which includes one to three meals per day, housekeeping, and other services," Cooperwasser explained. "Or, assisted living where the residents receive a higher level of service so personal care needs are met. They also receive three meals per day,

Health Expo, Races set at Domino's Farms

Health Expo and Run/Walk Races on April 10 and 11 are just another way the U-M Health System strives toward health excellence.

Three-time Olympic gold medalist Peter Snell and former 10-mile and 20-km world record holder runner Herb Lindsay will participate in the weekend races at Domino's Farms in Ann Arbor.

The event is the first annual U-M Heart Care Health Assessment and Alternative Medicine Expo and will feature Snell, Lindsay, and 12 other nationally known speakers and 50 exhibitors in such areas as nutrition, sports medicine, heart care, acupuncture, massage and homeopathy. The event is being held in cooperation with Domino's Pizza.

RACE EVENTS include Domino's Distance Classic 20-km run, the Heart Care Program 5-km run and walk, and the U-M Heart Mitral Mile run, walk, and racewalk. The races, which replace the recently defunct Briarwood runs, benefit Easter Seals of Southern Michigan and the clinical care, research, and educational activities of the U-M Mitral Valve Clinic.

Admission is free. The expo hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday and 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Sunday.

medication administration, with nurses and nurse aides available throughout the day and night. Each is geared toward the residents' needs and is individually tailored."

THE NURSING center provides long-term nursing care and short-term or sub-acute care, including transition from hospital to home when an older adult has suffered injury or has a "disease episode."

"Clearly our goal is to return residents to the highest level of function," said Cooperwasser. "There may be hospitalization for a period of time and then they may not be ready to be at home. So, they could choose to come to Glacier Hills, where a full complement of rehab therapists, including physical, occupational, speech, and recreational therapists are available."

A cognitive impairment program is offered with the same goal in mind.

"Our bottom line is the residents and our staff," Cooperwasser explained. "Glacier Hills is run by a volunteer board of community leaders. We're very unique—the people who work here are very dedicated and caring individuals, and the care we offer truly comes from the heart."

All programs are designed for the individual resident on the basis of his or her abilities. Funding is covered by the monthly fees received for the services provided for retirement and nursing center residents. Community members who chose to use the nursing facilities, as well as donations from individual resources provide additional sources of funding. Recreational activities include exercise classes, concerts, various lectures and presentations, movie schedules and trips, and various events which are open to the public.

Once a resident chooses Glacier Hills as his or her retirement home, he or she never has to leave home again.

"Glacier Hills is regulated by the state," Cooperwasser pointed out. "Residents—either independent or assisted—pay a life-care fee in addition to the monthly service fees and we guarantee their place in the nursing center when needed at a substantial discounted rate. It's like purchasing a long-term nursing policy."

She said that a life-care resident at Glacier Hills is guaranteed an active and vibrant lifestyle depending on each resident's interests and abilities for the remainder of his or her life.

"We will take care of them for the remainder of their lives," she said. "That's why I say we are a continuing care community for the Washtenaw area."

FOUNDED IN 1973 by a group of Lutheran citizens, Glacier Hills quickly became non-sectarian and now offers upward of 160 apartments for eligible retirees. The entire nursing staff is on site.

"It's all one large campus," said Cooperwasser. "The advantage to that is when a resident is in the nursing center for an injury, friends and neighbors can walk down to visit. It makes everything easier and convenient for residents, and yet there is a strong sense that the nursing center and the residential apartments are separate."

Adds Cooperwasser:

"Glacier Hills is very much committed to the older adult—we do the very best to tailor to the needs of the individual and as they change over time, and they do, we pay close attention so we can work with the individual, family and friends to help the resident to achieve the highest level of function possible. We bend over backwards to accommodate the residents because we have a responsibility to them, and I think that distinguishes us."

Computers provide tools for tooth technology

By SHEILA PURSGLOVE
HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS

Teeth are going high tech at the dental offices of Dr. Michael Singleton, where natural-looking ceramic fillings and crowns can be prepared and placed for patients in a single office visit, using a camera, a computer and a milling machine.

"The new dental components belong to a CAD/CAM (Computer Aided Design/Computer Aided Manufacturing) instrument called CEREC 2, which we've had here in our offices for about six months," explains Dr. Singleton, a 1985 graduate of the U of M School of Dentistry, who has had his dental practice in Saline for 14 years. "It allows us to repair damaged teeth in about an hour, using tooth-colored restorations, or 'fillings.' We no longer need to take impressions or create temporaries, and we can do it all in one visit."

A long-lasting and esthetic alternative to silver or plastic fillings, the system can be used for veneers, partial to full crowns, and all other single-tooth restorations.

TO MAKE the restoration, a reflective powder is painted over the prepared tooth, then an accurate picture taken with a special camera. This optical impression is transferred and displayed on a color computer screen, and CAD technology used to design the restoration. Then CAM takes over and automatically creates the restoration while the patient watches. Finally, the new restoration is bonded to the surface of the old tooth.

A second innovation at the state-of-the-art dental office opposite Saline Middle School, is the KCP (kinetic cavity preparation) system, a precise miniature "sandblaster" that literally "sprays away decay" without heat, vibration or the whining of the drill, and lessens the need for local anesthetic.

"KCP makes the whole procedure so much more comfortable for the patient, that we often can do a filling without anesthetic, which is especially helpful for pregnant patients or those with medical conditions. It's easier to create fillings that leave more of the healthy tooth structure intact; the filling remains small and the tooth remains strong throughout the patient's lifetime."

THESE ARE just two of the modern techniques Dr. Singleton and his staff use to improve his patients' oral health, along with preventative care, teeth cleaning, straightening, whitening, and breath freshening.

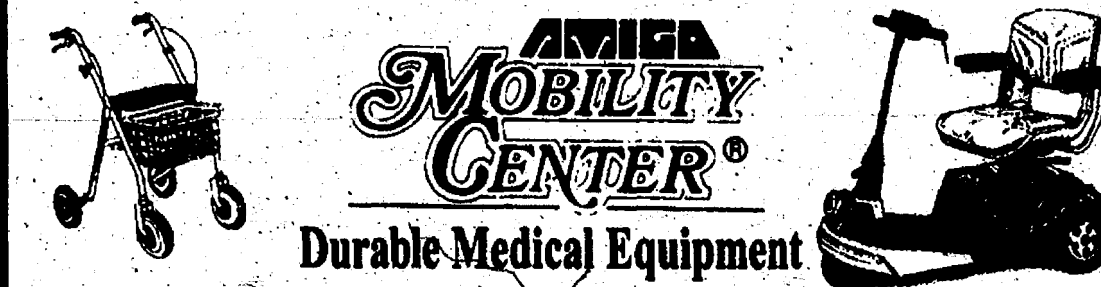

Infants are introduced to oral health between the eruption of their first baby tooth and their first birthday, with a complimentary examination and consultation by a dental hygienist.

"A baby's developing teeth are affected by many factors, including feeding habits, pacifiers, gum cleansing, and fluoride levels," says Singleton. "Our hygienists will discuss oral health, development, and preventative measures, the importance of baby teeth, stages of tooth development, prevention of baby bottle tooth decay, role of diet and tooth decay, rules of thumb-sucking, and how to help your child brush his teeth."

The examination will look for potential problems and check overall oral growth and development; the baby's teeth, jaw and oral tissues will be examined and cleansing procedures demonstrated, and fluoride needs will be evaluated.

Teething tykes even get their first dental starter kit, with an infant toothbrush, gum cleanser, infant-care toothpaste, product coupons and activity books.

"My staff and I will be happy to show you the difference dental innovations can make to one of your greatest personal assets, your smile. If you have any questions, or would like to schedule an introductory visit, please call our office at 429-7415."

DENTAL HEALTH

People & Pets

(NAPSA)-Gum disease! That's right. More people have gum disease than any other disease...by a wide margin, and it stinks!

It's insidious...creeps upon us for decades...we don't know it until maybe it's too late. Then painful surgery at best, or tooth loss and heart disease at worst. That's right. Gum disease can contribute to heart disease.

How do you know if you are a victim? Bad breath and bleeding gums (when and if you do ever floss!).

What's it like when you encounter someone with bad breath? Imagine the social and business consequences for people with bad breath. They become isolated from opportunities for love and profit, often even from their own spouses!

So what's the solution? Prevention, Prevention, Prevention.

Prevention comes in the form of excellent oral hygiene. Historically, this included brushing and flossing. But therein lies the problem. Most people brush ineffectively and how many of you floss daily?

Oxyfresh, based in Spokane, Washington, has been offering dentists and veterinarians (dogs and cats need it more than we do), and their patients

Excellent oral hygiene for people and pets can help prevent gum disease and other problems.

breakthrough support in the fight against gum disease with a unique line of home hygiene products. Products with the company's patented secret weapon, Oxygene. Oxygene vaporizes (really oxidizes) these things called volatile sulfur compounds. That's the stink in bad breath.

The product line consists of a special toothbrush (get a separate one for your pets), whitening and freshening toothpaste (yes, pets like it), alcohol-free mouthrinse, a tongue scraper (incredibly effective), and an Aloe Vera/Oxygene gel that you massage into your gum line. There is also a device for those of you who wear braces or refuse to floss to keep plaque from building up between the teeth and below the gum line.

Oxyfresh products are available direct through thousands of independent distributors.

To find out more about the products or about becoming a distributor, contact Oxyfresh Worldwide, Inc. at (800) 223-7374 or www.OxyfreshWorldwide.com.

Technology enhances plastic surgery options

Frequently, other surgical procedures can be performed at the same time to enhance the result, depending on the patient.

The options available in plastic surgery are vast, and with new technology, improvements continue to be made.

U-M researchers study eye disease

University of Michigan scientists are turning to genetic research in hopes of unlocking the mysteries of macular degeneration, an eye disease that is the leading cause of blindness in older people.

As the nation's baby boomers move into middle age and retirement, macular degeneration threatens to become a wider problem with crippling effects.

Typically striking people older than 60, macular degeneration is a breakdown of macula, an area of the retina that provides sharpness and detail to vision. As the macula disintegrates, a person's vision becomes blurred and spotty, hampering everyday activities such as reading, driving, and watching television. It can lead to blindness.

"The search is on for the gene or the gene defects that may cause macular degeneration," said Mark Johnson, M.D., associate professor of ophthalmology at the U-M Health System.

"The more we learn about it, the more we're coming to believe that it is in large part determined by certain genetic defects."

The National Eye Institute estimates that 1.7 million of the 34 million Americans over age 65 suffer impaired vision because of macular degeneration. About 10.5 million people are in the early stages of the disease.

Johnson said genetic research is underway at the U-M and several other medical centers around the country.

"We've gathered a large number of patients and families with macular degeneration and our genetic scientists are studying that genetic material," Johnson said.

"We're very hopeful that those genes will be found."

There are two stages of macular degeneration. The first is the "dry" form. Blood vessels in the eye become hard, cutting off necessary flow to the macula and causing it to wear away. There is no known treatment for this form.

The second stage is "wet" with new, thin blood vessels growing under the macula and leaking blood and fluid. Laser surgery can be used in some cases to slow the wet form of the disease.

While the majority of people with macular degeneration have the dry form, the 10 percent with the wet form are at the greater risk for blindness. About 90 percent of people with wet macular degeneration will become blind.

Symptoms of macular degeneration are blurred vision, straight lines that become crooked, and small blind spots.

Potential risk factors are smoking, high cholesterol, hypertension, and a family history of the disease.

"It certainly makes sense to follow all the general guidelines for good health, such as controlling blood pressure, controlling cholesterol levels, and using a good pair of sunglasses," said Johnson.

"But beyond general guidelines that apply to our general healthier, there is as yet no specific guideline we can give for macular degeneration."
