Residents to form crime watch group

Residents around Portage Lake may form a Neighborhood Watch in light of recent incidents in the area that required police assistance. Holly Taylor and Kelly Redwell, both Second Street residents, approached the Dexter Township Board May 18 seeking help.

Taylor reported several instances of reckless driving and public disturbances.

"We want to make it known to everyone here that it's a real problem and it's ongoing," Bedwell told the Township Board.

Washtenaw County Sheriff's Sgt. Ed Toth was in the audience and talked to the women. He suggested that they form a Neighborhood Watch with the sheriff's department's help.

Dexter Twp. to pay for plan update

Dexter Township could pay up to $1,500 for changes to a floor plan developed by architects Bowers & Rein Associates in Ann Arbor a year ago. The Township Board voted May 18 to spend up to $1,500 to update drawings to renovate and expand the township hall.

The Township Board decided several months ago to renovate and expand the building after discovering the township could not sell the property and build new because the site is owned by the Metroparks.

Township enters consent judgment

Dexter Township Board approved a consent judgment that paves the way for 32 homes in a new subdivision on Dexter-Pinckney Road north of Huron Creek subdivision.

The judgment was entered into because the township initially doubted property owner Marion Semplici could divide 84 acres into nine separate parcels, transfer ownership of some and create 36 lots. As part of the agreement, the township approved 32 of the 36 splits.

Graduation success despite glitches

To say Chelsea High School graduation went off without a hitch Sunday would be a bit of a misnomer.

But despite the principal's misplaced speech, a fire alarm, technical difficulties with the class video and the stifling heat, the first commencement in the new high school will take its place as the "first chapter of a new book," in the words of Principal Ron Mead.

"Each class writes a chapter of a book," Mead said in his speech, which he gave without notes after his text turned up missing. "What matters is what kind of chapter did this class write and was it a good chapter when we read it in the future."

Mead recounted his impressions of the senior class through the experiences of his daughter, whom he later gave a diploma when she walked across the stage. He recalled his trip to Washington, D.C., in her eight-grade year, and his travels to New York for music ensembles.

Mead also congratulated the class for the leadership of its members. He said they looked for ways to improve Chelsea High School, and had made a positive difference at the school.

"In the 10 years I've been principal, I can say this is the best class I've worked with," Mead said. "We've had better athletes and academics, but the character and posi-

Board of Education election set Monday

By Eric Bowen

Staff Writer

The Chelsea Board of Education election will be held from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday, June 14, at the Washington Street Education Center board room (old high school cafeteria). This year's contest features two local residents running for a single open seat.

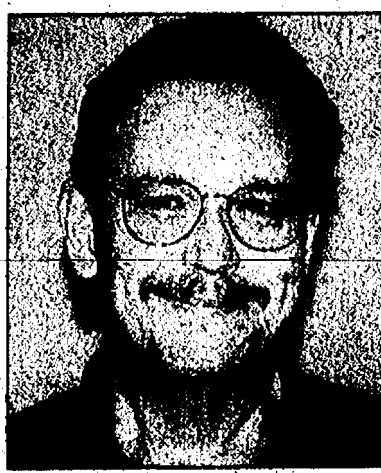

Conrad Knutsen, an eight-year incumbent, is running for a third term, but newcomer Rod Branham hopes to unseat him.

Knutsen, 59, has been a resident of the Chelsea area since 1980 and a board member since 1991. Knutsen worked at the Upjohn Center for Clinical Pharmacology at the University of Michigan Medical Center in Ann Arbor until 1995, and now works as a substitute teacher and charter motor coach operator for Blue Lakes Charters and Tours.

Branham, 44, is a lifelong Chelsea resident. He is a graduate of Chelsea High School and studied at Washtenaw Community College for 2½ years.

Branham has worked as an engineering technician for the federal Environmental Protection Agency in Ann Arbor for 25 years, working his way up from a vehicle preparation crew worker to a supervisor to a computer technician. He traveled across the United States for two years doing public relations work for inspection and maintenance awareness.

Maryland firm buys book printer

By Eric Bowen

Staff Writer

BookCrafters' parent company, American Business Products, announced June 1 that it has sold the Chelsea-based book manufacturer to the Sheridan Group, a publishing company headquartered in Hunt Valley, Md.

In addition to the former BookCrafters' staff and facilities, the new company, now called Sheridan Books, will encompass Ann Arbor publisher Braun-Brumfield, which is also owned by Sheridan.

According to a press release from Sheridan Books, BookCrafters' president Marc Fors, who started at BookCrafters in March, will stay on as president of Sheridan Books. Fors said in a statement that the combination of the two companies will benefit both, while still maintaining the dedication of its employees and customers.

"Combining these firms as part of the Sheridan Group, with its financial and technical resources, allows us more access and opportunity for investment in our people and facilities and will enable us to provide our customers with an even broader range of book manufacturing services," Fors said. "This solidifies our position as one of the top book manufacturers in the segments we serve."

The Sheridan Group owns several publishing-related companies throughout the Midwest and East Coast. The company's products include short-run printing of university-type journals, magazines, books and catalogues.

The purchase of BookCrafters will push Sheridan's employee total to above 2,000, spread over nine locations. The company provides publication services globally.

Fors said Tuesday that the compatibility of Braun-Brumfield and BookCrafters was much of the reason the sale went through. He said the two companies had little overlap in customers, so they can both retain their sales while reducing costs of management and increasing economies of scale.

Fors also said that Sheridan Books has good technical resources and knowledgeable employees. The two combined companies are also close in proximity, which makes the changeover easier.

Fors wouldn't say, however, whether BookCrafters will move its operations out of Chelsea. He said the sale is only a week old, and any move would have to undergo extensive study.

Fors also didn't say whether Sheridan will lay off employees. BookCrafters cut several management jobs before the sale went through, Fors said, and Sheridan will consolidate some management positions between the two arms of the

Sylvan board accepts artifacts, fire authority

By Michael Rybka

Staff Writer

Signs of transition were still evident as the Sylvan Township Board of Trustees met for its first regularly scheduled meeting at its new township hall June 1.

There being more clutter in the meeting room than action items on the agenda, the board had an opportunity to host a presentation on Sylvan's past by representatives of the Chelsea Area Historical Society.

Items of new business primarily consisted of two matters relating to the Chelsea Area Fire Authority, both of which were passed unanimously with little discussion, before the board adjourned for a closed session to discuss litigation regarding a disputed land split involving Gary Montagne.

Reacting to Chelsea Village Council's May 25 decision to cooperate in establishing an area-wide fire authority, the township signed on to the coalition's contract after Supervisor Gerald Dresselhouse assured his fellow board members that the final amendments, insisted upon by the village were minor. Dresselhouse's offer to continue as the township's representative on the fire authority board was welcomed.

Tom Caplis, who serves on the zoning board of appeals, was chosen as the alternate.

A discussion ensued to allow the basement of the new township hall to be used as a fire authority training facility.

Dresselhouse suggested that the authority would pay for the completion of the downstairs bathrooms as well as cleaning the area.

A vote was withheld until Dresselhouse could meet with Fire Chief Dan Ellenwood but the idea won unofficial support from the other board members.

The meeting was preceded by a formal bestowal to the township from Marge and Max Hepburn and Kathy Clark, on behalf of the Chelsea Area Historical Society, of a quadrant, three commencement programs, and a ballot box.

The quadrant was said to be the first used in establishing property boundaries within Sylvan.

The quadrant had been in the possession of Doris Glazier, nee Whitaker, a former Sylvan resident who now lives in Laguna Hills, Calif., before she placed it in Hepburn's care.

Hepburn said the instrument belonged to Whitaker's great-great grandfather, Edmund Conklin, who was born in Orange County, N.Y. in 1797.

He resettled in this area in the early 1830s just prior to the time Sylvan was designated a township.

Conklin was selected as moderator of the first township meeting that was held at the house of Samuel Dunham, the first Monday of the month, April 7, 1834.

It was noted that this date conflicts with the township hall's outside plaque from 1880 which states that the establishment of the township was in 1835.

The commencement programs all pre-date 1900 when Sylvan had its own schoolhouse immediately west of where the new township hall now stands.

The programs were protected in sealed plastic although Hepburn said anyone wanting to know of their contents could contact the society.

Clark said she would make a special display mount that would shield them from sunlight.

The ballot box was said to be the first used in the township. It was donated to the society by Otto Hinderer in the early 1990s and had been on display at the society's museum at the Chelsea Depot.

The box was made out of walnut and was crafted with dovetailed joints.

It had a hasp and lock that had once been sawed open because, Hepburn said, the key had been lost.

Its narrow slot and shallow receptacle made Dresselhouse observe that it could not have held many ballots.

Trustee Earl Heller contributed to the exhibition by producing a more modern, single-levered, multi-level voting machine that he found in the old township hall's attic during the move.

The device had a bell on top that was thought to ring after a ballot was completed to deter duplicitous voting.

Of the candidates' names still attached to the machine, one Clarence Mahoney was active in Sylvan public service from the early 1900s through the early 1920s, Hepburn said.

Farmers Market returns to downtown parking lot area

By Eric Bowen
Staff Writer

Chelsea Farmers Market re-opened last month at its traditional location downtown in the parking lot behind the police department. Organizers said they moved the market back downtown to spur more walk-in traffic.

Robin Staelgraeve of Michigan Hydro Farms is the director of this year's farmers market. She said the change has boosted sales somewhat, but she thinks many people have not returned since the market was moved south of Old US-12.

"This year people are learning that it's back downtown," Staelgraeve said. "It's slowed off now and we need to get people downtown again."

Sue Rodgers of Rodgers Corner Produce used to organize the farmers market. She said the vendors decided to move to the south part of the village two years ago because they weren't getting enough visibility in downtown.

But Rodgers, who sells lettuce, spinach and peas among other items, said local farmers noticed a dip in sales from people walking to the market after they were no longer in the center of the village. So the organizers returned the market to the downtown parking lot.

"It wasn't really a better move," Rodgers said of the south location. "The vendors said they weren't going to come back unless they went some place more visible."

Staelgraeve said that the market has averaged about 13 vendors this year, but she expects that number to rise once the produce starts ripening. She has been open since the start of the market, selling tomatoes grown in her hydroponic garden.

The farmers market is open from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. every Saturday through October.

What should be done with the more than 265 million tires discarded each year? Recycling would be the ideal solution, and Agricultural Research Service scientists have found a way to do it. They extract the pulverized rubber and polyester/nylon mixture from tires and divide it into two separate materials. Companies recover over 50 percent of the rubber from this process, but the remainder is still sent to landfills. The rubber that is recovered is valued at about $500 per ton. Products such as new tires, truck bed liners, running tracks, shoes, carpet backing, brake pads and shoes, asphalt, water hoses and floor mats can be made from the recycled rubber.

THE BEST DEFENSE...

When the defendant in a civil case receives notice that a lawsuit has been filed against him or her, he or she has the option of filing a counterclaim. Based on the principle that the best defense is a good offense, filing a counterclaim against the plaintiff (or even a crossclaim against a third party) serves to make the plaintiff a defendant, as long as the subject matter of the lawsuit remains the same. Although a counterclaim has no legal effect on the original claim, it may strongly influence how much is collected. For instance, if a contractor sues for an amount owed on a job, the homeowner may file a counterclaim for the amount it cost to have the job done correctly. There are few experiences more unpleasant than being unjustly accused. Don't make the mistake of attempting to defend your actions, reputation, and assets without the benefit of experienced legal counsel. In practice for over 27 years, the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, J.D., offers individuals a free initial consultation so that they can be apprised of their rights and legal options before committing themselves to a specific course of action. For an appointment, call 426-4695. You'll find our offices conveniently located in Dexter, at 3249 Broad Street.

HINT: Once the written documents setting forth the various parties' positions, defenses, and allegations are made, the parties are deemed "at issue."

Botsford dispenses wisdom to graduates

By Amelia Botsford
Commencement Speaker

Congratulations graduates! Take a look around at all the people in this gym who've come to see us graduate. All of these people are here to support us. So thank you teachers, thank you family, and thank you friends. This is a day for all of us to celebrate.

Someone said to me that graduating from high school is easy. That's just not true. Regardless of what others may say, it wasn't easy to get here. We have worked incredibly hard. Not just externally by achieving our grades, but internally by dealing with our changing feelings, and developing our thoughts, our goals, desires, hopes, and dreams.

And each of us has taken his or her own particular, individual path to get here — together.

We're all feeling different emotions right now. Some of us are very scared. Chelsea is the only world that most of us know. In the outside world, there are all kinds of uncertainties. From, "Can I find a place to fit in? Can I make a living?" To, "Is my college roommate going to steal my stuff?"

Others, however, are very excited to move on. I, like many, am feeling a combination of excitement and sadness. I'm really sad to be finished with high school. In a sense, it's an end to childhood. But of course it's also a beginning — and that's how I like to think of it. We're all excited to go to new places, meet new people, and experience new things.

And take that symbolic step into adulthood.

To help you take that step from high school to wherever you may be going, I want to share with you a few points of advice that I try to live by. Maybe these seem like "deep thoughts." But I really do believe them.

Let your loved ones know how you feel about them. There's no good reason not to share your true feelings. Let them know that they mean the world to you. Make time for them.

Keep a positive, trusting, hopeful outlook on the world. It's easy to get callous and hostile when bad things happen. But it's really good to try to remain open, and share yourself with others, even when things get hard.

Take a chance and initiate. It can be great to be the one to solve a problem or create something new.

Helping others should be everyone's responsibility. Everyone deserves compassion. And it feels great to help people! One time when I worked at a camp, we led a group of women who'd had a hard time in life, and who'd never been out of the city. We helped them climb a huge steep sand dune and it was such a thrill to see their faces and the sense of accomplishment that they had when they reached the top.

People make mistakes. Forgive and accept others and yourself. Get up if you fall and move on.

Working hard is great, but it's vital to balance work with play, so always enjoy yourself, and enjoy life! I know that when I'm an old lady I'll still want to do stuff like trick-or-treating on Halloween! Or be some kind of extreme athlete like Mr. Brumfiel.

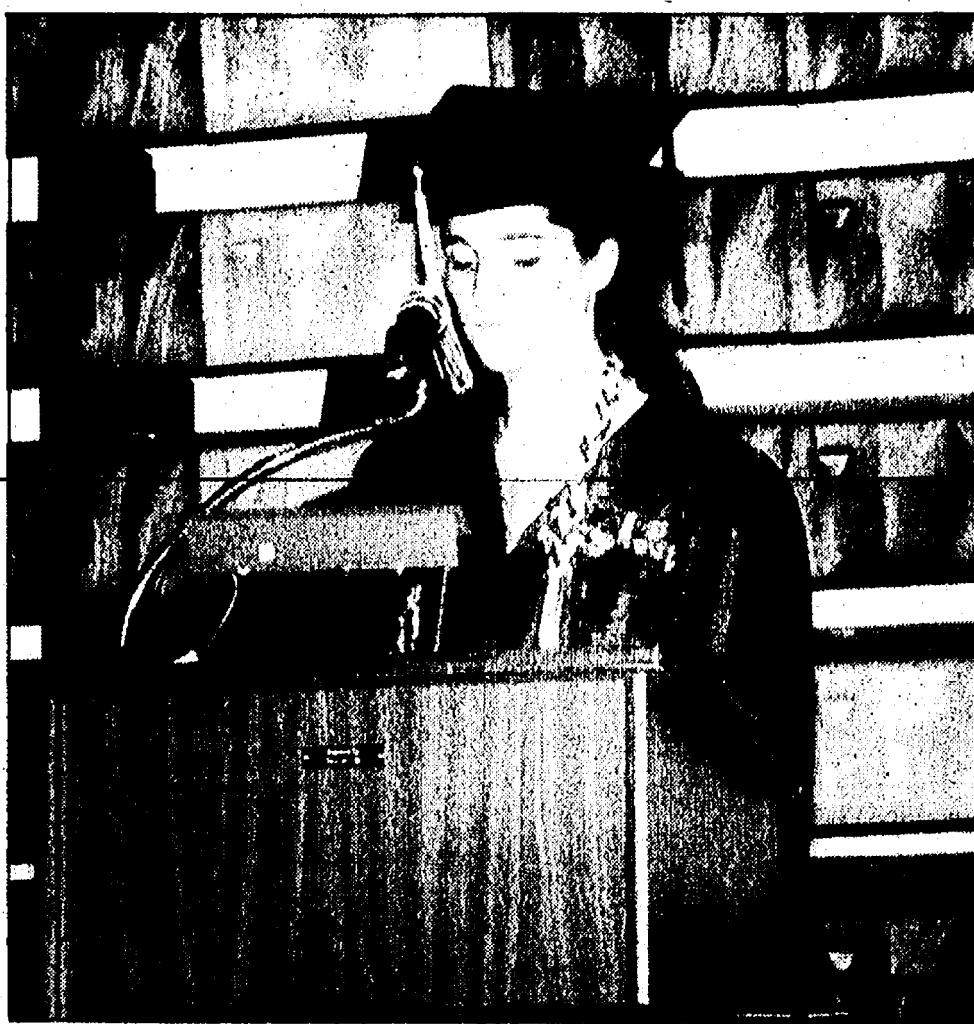

As well as all this, (saying "I love you," being positive, taking risks, helping others, accepting mistakes, and enjoying life), remember to keep learning ... about life — and about yourself.

A good graduation speech often includes a quote from a great leader, philosopher or writer from the past and mine is no exception. This classic piece of literature which I am going to read you was written by the great American poet Theodor Geisel — better known as Dr. Seuss.

It's called "Oh, the Places You'll Go!" (text omitted).

It really has been a true honor being part of the class of 1999. Hold on to all the memories.

And to all of us: Congratulations!

Amelia Botsford reminded her fellow students to trust other people and forgive mistakes in her address to the graduating class.

Parent books at library

Chelsea District Library has added to a growing collection of materials that can assist parents and families.

In the Parenting Resource Center (PRC), located in the children's room, new books include "Questions Children Ask and How to Answer Them," by Dr. Miriam Stoppard; "How to Talk So Kids Will Learn," by Adele Faber and Elaine Mazlish; "The Michigan Self-Help Group Directory"; "Chelsea Community Organizations and Resources" (recently updated); "Get CyberSavvy: A Family Guide — The Direct Marketing Association Guide to Parenting Skills for the Digital Age"; and "Online Basics, Behavior and Privacy."

Also new in the resource center is the public television series videotape, "The Parenting Puzzle—The Middle Years."

New non-fiction in the general collection includes "Real Boys—Rescuing Our Sons from the Myths of Boyhood," by William Pollack, Ph.D.; "Living Away Dads — Staying A Part of Your Children's Lives When They Aren't a Part of Your Home," by William C. Klatka; and "The Step-Parent's Survival Guide — Positive Advice for Achieving a Successful Step-Family," by Hilary Boyd.

For inspiration and fun, the newest Up With People! Show titled "Roads," from the international music group, is located in the CD collection.

tive attitude that they (displayed in their) approach their experience in Chelsea High School was unbeaten."

Graduating senior Amelia Botsford gave the first student address, reciting six lessons for her classmates. Her wisdom ranged from forgiving people to enjoying life. Botsford finished her speech with the words of Dr. Seuss, telling her fellow graduates that the simple words carried an important message of trying hard but accepting that mistakes are inevitable.

Botsford also said she shared her classmates' anxious anticipation of the future. But she said she is looking forward to the next stage of her life.

"I, like many, am feeling a combination of excitement and sadness," she said. "I'm really sad to be finished with high school. In a sense, it's an end to childhood."

"But of course it's also a beginning — and that's how I like to think of it. We're all excited to go to new places, meet new people, and experience new things."

Senior Isaac Robinovitz also told his classmates to go easy on themselves. He said success is too often pushed by parents and society, but individuals should do what makes them

Robinovitz challenged the seniors to take risks and expand their knowledge even if it meant failing. Quoting various philosophers and religious texts, he said helping others was better than cut-throat competition.

"I ask all of you as you go out into your lives next year, be it to college, an apprenticeship or directly into the work force, to not always do all that it takes to be the best," he said. "Moreover, as you have children of your own, remember that there are valuable lessons taught in a pickup game of baseball, as well as in playing house, so let the children play."

"The reductions at BookCrafters have been primarily limited to changeover in management and corporate staff instead of shop floor employees," Fors said.

"Our plans right now are to consolidate the management teams and operations. Because of the limited duplication there is a lot of growth possibility. We're focused primarily on a growth model."

A special compost, a plastic mulch and beneficial microorganisms may be ingredients for the perfect recipe to protect tomorrow's strawberry fields from weeds and soil-borne disease. U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists are testing the strategy's potential as a replacement for some uses of methyl bromide, a chemical used by strawberry growers to fumigate their fields before planting. This chemical fumigant is being phased out in the U.S. because it is thought to deplete Earth's protective ozone layer. Scientists are testing the compost, which is enhanced with enzymes, organic acids and beneficial fungi, which may stimulate the plants' defenses against pathogens and help plants take up water and phosphorus from the soil.

Palmer Ford Wins Award

Palmer Family Ford received a 1998 President's Award from the Ford Motor Company recently. The award is based on sales and service satisfaction as reported by the dealership's customers. The President's Award is Ford's most distinguished honor, awarded to less than 1 percent of dealers nationwide. Pictured are (from left) Scott Cremeans, sales manager; Marty Kopera, Ford Motor Company representative; Biff Weber, president Palmer Family Ford; Matt Villemure, service manager; and Randy Ellis, parts manager.

Woman's Club of Chelsea installed new officers at its annual luncheon held May 11.

Woman's Club names new officers

The Woman's Club of Chelsea closed this year's activities with its annual luncheon on May 11 at Reddeman Farms restaurant. There were 20 members present.

Officers for the 1999-2000 season were installed. Rosemary DeGroot conducted the ceremony. The officers are President Margaret Boehm, Vice President Myra Colvin, Treasurer Dorothy Greer and Parliamentarian Cheryl Schoenberg.

The 1999-2000 season will be the 69th year for the Woman's Club of Chelsea. McKune Library was started by the club in 1932 and has been the recipient of annual donations since then. The club has also donated to Faith In Action, United Way, St. Louis School, Ann Arbor Hospice, Warm the Children and others.

Boehm gave gifts of appreciation to the officers and received a personal gift from the club for her leadership. Each member also received a potted plant.

The annual marathon bridge awards dinner hosted by the club was held May 20 at Our Savior Lutheran Church.

The new activities and meetings will resume in September.

Bookstore to open Thursday

The Chelsea Little Professor Book Center and Nature's Expressions opened June 10 on south M-52. It offers thousands of book titles and a variety of minerals, fossils, shells, bugs, butterflies, and wood carvings from exotic places.

The owners are longtime Chelsea and Ann Arbor residents. They say they are eager to offer the greater Chelsea area a neighborhood book store that is welcoming and provides friendly service, while rivaling the big chains with a diverse in-store inventory and quick access to additional titles from their warehouse. Customers will also be able to order titles from the store's Web site.

In addition to the store's selection of books, customers will see a display that includes a 150,000-year-old Russian cave bear skeleton, 20-400 million-year-old fossils and gems.

As a Little Professor Book Center, the greater Chelsea area will have active, local owners who are backed by the strength of a national franchise.

"To have a successful business, you must have a good quality product," says co-owner Larry Woolams.

"And what is more important for education or enjoyment than books and natural treasures from the earth?"

"I have always loved books," says co-owner Doug Smith.

"Our book center will be responsive to our community's needs and interests. I feel that a bookstore is an excellent way to make a difference in a local community."

The Chelsea Little Professor Book Center is dedicated to working with the schools, local library, and arts community, to be a host for an array of programming that strengthens and builds upon this community's commitment to the humanities and the arts, according to the owners.

The book center will offer free gift-wrapping, telephone orders, special orders, mailing service, gift certificates and a Bonus Book Club card. With the computer system the store will use, customers will have access to over a million books in print. Any book not stocked can be obtained quickly -- usually within a few days of the customer's order. The children's section, decorated in a dinosaur theme, will be large, and stocked with new award winners and older classic titles.

Little Professor, the nation's fourth largest book seller, has been franchising stores since 1969.

Robinovitz tells class helping others better than greed

By Isaac Robinovitz
Commencement Speaker

Ladies and gentlemen of the class of '99. If I could offer you only one tip for the future, sunscreen would be it. The long term benefits of...

Ladies and Gentlemen of the class of nineteen-hundred and ninety-nine, we are the last class to graduate from the second millennia of the Common Era. We are also the first class to graduate from the new and improved Chelsea High School. Therefore, in one day alone, we are both a first and a last. This is unusual. This is incredibly unusual. This means that on one afternoon, in one graduation ceremony, we have finished at both ends of the spectrum. Most often in our lives we do not finish at one of the extremes, for there is only one class, one team, one duo, or one individual that can finish first. The same goes for last place. Therefore throughout our lives, we will not always be the best, but we will not always be the worst, either.

The Talmud calls it Cal-de-varim B'mite-nut, or "All things in moderation." Socrates called it his "Golden Mean." The Chinese call it Yin and Yang. It was central to the Navajo beliefs of order in the universe. What ever your beliefs, whatever your philosophies, whatever you want to call it, I'll say it's the middle ground.

This is a life philosophy, and throughout my speech today, I intend to look at these words to live by, and tell you all what I think of them.

There has unfortunately been a push in recent years for our children to take very aggressive, "win-at-all-costs" attitudes towards their activities. Chelsea is, in all seriousness, a very upper-middle-class, white Protestant town. There is very little to set its inhabitants apart, except "excellence."

Every one will know the best pitcher in their grade, the best singer, and the best student. Therefore, for a little notice, the child's parent will push them on to bigger and better things. Why play with your friends this summer, Jimmy, when you can be attending a summer camp for the spelling gifted in up-state Arkansas for seven weeks?

Why play a pickup game of football with your friends, when you can go to Texas A&M's FIRST string quarterback camp. Then on to math at MSU so you can make it into AP Calc your senior year of high school. What do you mean you are only in first grade? We have to stop letting our cut-throat views of life interfere with a child's development. Ever heard of letting kids just be kids?

Ergo, I ask all of you as you go out into your lives next year, be it to college, an apprenticeship or directly into the workforce, to not always do all that it takes to be the best. For there are many that are trampled along the way. Moreover, as you have children of your own, remember that there are valuable lessons taught in a pickup game of baseball, as well as in playing house, so let the children play.

Now, let us take this cut throat view of life into the classroom, where parents are more concerned with their kids' grades, than what they are learning. I am by no means saying that I believe that grades are unimportant, far from it. I believe that until there is a method of making kids read Gelding's "Lord of the Flies" for the intellectual challenge and fun of it, there is no better way to reinforce the learning process. Yet Albert Einstein had it down cold when he said, "All things are relative." Be him talking about Newtonian mechanics, or freshman lit test scores, he was right.

An unfortunate consequence of this drive to get better grades may be that it drives kids away from challenging classes with challenging teachers. (Psychology cough). This disrupts the notion of Yin and Yang, and of balance that I have mentioned earlier in this speech. The student that is afraid to take a class for it might upset their perfect 4.0 is one that will never enjoy the benefits of expanding their horizons and learning more than he/she ever wanted to know about Ericson's eight developmental conflicts or the difference between a fugue and a chorale, (that's music, not biology).

Two of the friends that I respect the most, took one year of physics, and one semester of AP physics, merely because they wanted to, for they were going into fields not related to physics. Their grades were not the highest in the class, but by no means the lowest either, and they have corrected me on the homework, or in Saline, on several occasions. I have nothing but the utmost respect for these two, and no one on Broadway or the White House will have as good an understanding of kinematic equations.

The other effect being that students will not take the lit class with the teacher that gives out T-shirts for getting A's, because of its rarity. And will instead take a class where their grade may be better, but they may learn a little less about life in general, not to mention Tom Sawyer.

So I challenge you to take the ballet class next year — I will be (you can picture me in a tutu, no?) — and sign up for intramural rugby, theater, and/or student government. Take a risk and see an opera, a football game, or go bird watching. These may all be acquired tastes, but they will make you a better person for it.

There is a habit in our society to always give 110 percent to every little thing we do, and if we are not doing this, all the time, then we are doing something wrong. There is the feeling that we must strive toward excellence in everything that we do and that we must always be the best.

And that's right. But as I have previously mentioned, there can only be one on top. Does this present a paradox? To answer this question we must consider what it is to be the best. The Webster's Unabridged Universal Dictionary defines it as: the superlative of good or well; surpassing of all others. Can we always aim to be the best at all we do? Yes we can. I can decide today that I will be the best male fashion model in all of Milan and Paris. But it ain't gonna happen. Try as I might, those dudes on the billboards in Times Square got me beat. Therefore, if we always aim to be "surpassing of all others" in all that we do, we will often be disappointed.

However, if we skim down to definition five, we find that the dictionary tells us, "the most one can do; his/her utmost." This I define as giving your best, not being the best. When you give your best, you will often be surprised at how well you can do. Additionally, the bar can always be set a little higher for your personal best. You should always give your personal best on things that are important to you or others, and you should always try to beat yourself by beating your personal best. So, do your best in all that you do.

Now best may also be interpreted in other ways. For example, the "best" car company may be the company that builds the safest, most durable, and best-crafted car on the market, or it may be the car company that makes the most profit per car sold. The difference is that the first company is bettering its situation and the situation of others by providing them with a quality product. Whereas the second is benefiting itself at the expense of others. The second is a very selfish and me-first attitude, unfortunately the view that it is the "best for me, forget you." It is a result of the cutthroat attitude that too many have today.

An excellent example of the "good" company is Ben and Jerry's Ice Creams. This company sends a portion of its profits to various causes and buys its ingredients from sources such as a welfare-to-work bakery in Boston. Jiffy Mixes in Chelsea also sells a quality product for a small amount of money, and treats its workers well, so I hear. Yet they are still in business, and keeping the bills paid, with a positive and helpful attitude and they shun the national advertising of many of their competitors.

Therefore, the best, or more often better, person will be the one who helps others while helping him/herself, or helping himself by helping others. It is this notion of balance between deeds and wisdom and knowledge that led the Talmudic scholar Rabbi Hanina ben Dosa to say: "Of him whose deeds are greater than his wisdom, the wisdom endures; but to what shall we liken he whose wisdom is more abundant than his deeds? He is like a tree with many leaves and few roots, and the wind comes and uproots it."

Knowledge is good, but helping others is better. Go out from this ceremony and help someone. Teach them something you know. Explain a perplexing mystery of life, or just be a good listener to someone who needs it.

Finally, to bring all of this speech together, intertwined with in this Golden Mean is not the message of mediocrity, but the message of balance. Balance between personal gain and helping others. Between wisdom and deeds, and between your goals and reality. Some of us have restrictions placed upon us. Be them physical, mental, or social. We must accept what we are today, and be happy with what we find, or at the very least do something to make us happy with ourselves, before we can make ourselves better.

Mathew Green, in "The Sacred Sky of the Navajo And Pueblo" notes the emphasis on maintaining harmony that dominates Navajo cosmology. The Navajo perceive the universe as an all-inclusive body in which everything has its own beneficial purpose and contributes to the overall harmony of the whole. Maintenance of order is critical if the cosmos and nature are to remain in a healthy state, and it is each individual's responsibility to contribute to the order of the universe by living his or her life correctly.

Therefore I urge all of you to in the near future, today, tomorrow, or this week, to look at your life, and see what is missing from it and see if you are happy with it, and then go out and strive to create a balance in your life, and make yourself happy with yourself.

In closing, to quote the great Buz Lurhman:

"Sometimes you're ahead, sometimes you're behind, but in the end, the race is only with yourself."

So make your race, your journey, your life the best that it can be for you and for others, and enjoy the ride.

I salute you, the class of '99.

Local man attends academy

Justin P. Nadolny of Chelsea, has been selected to attend the weeklong Michigan Freedom Academy held at the Alpena Combat Readiness Training Center, Air National Guard Base near Alpena, July 4-10.

Nadolny, 17, the son of Andrew and Joyce Nadolny, will be a senior this fall at Chelsea High School.

The Michigan Freedom Academy is an annual gathering of nearly 150 future leaders discussing and learning more about freedom. The Freedom Academy is sponsored by the Michigan Freedom Foundation, a group of business and military leaders interested in exposing high-school-age students to the obligation and responsibilities inherent in a free and democratic society.

The academy's objectives are to promote a sense of patriotism; further the desire to lead; enhance one's appreciation for freedom; and, provide a better understanding of a citizen's civic responsibility.

Speakers for the academy this year are expected to include high-ranking political, business and religious leaders, a college president, and members of an anti-drug activities program. During the week these speakers, staff and counselors will give delegates new ideas on how they can work to maintain and protect the freedoms they inherited as citizens of the United States.

The Michigan Freedom Academy has been used as a model for similar freedom academies in other states. Attendance is limited to approximately 150 high school students who will have just completed their junior year, have at least a 3.0 grade point average and are active in student leadership and extracurricular activities. Many attendees are students seeking nominations to one of the five military service academies.

A Hair-Raising Education

The sales staff of The Chelsea Standard and The Dexter Leader volunteered to be models for master hair stylist Antoine Greige of Canada. He was in town to teach stylists Dianna Kause and David Lange of In Chelsea Hair Design last week. The women agreed to allow Greige a certain amount of freedom to express his creativity, and the results are above.

Pedestrian safety topic of walking tour

By Michael Rybka
Staff Writer

While much attention has been given to traffic concerns in the villages of Chelsea and Dexter over the years, there are those in each community who believe that efforts to make the towns more compatible for walkers has been overlooked.

Chelsea Village Council Trustee Carol Rauschenberger and Dexter Zoning Officer Janet Keller both decided independently that it was time for pedestrian friendliness in their respective municipalities to be assessed.

Last month, each was given the opportunity to initiate a "Walkable Communities" program through an arrangement with the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

The council offered free expertise on the subject in exchange for Rauschenberger and Keller having attended an out-of-town seminar on the subject earlier in the year.

Chelsea's walking tour took place Thursday, May 13, while Dexter's took place on Wednesday, May 26.

On hand at both tours were

Charles Gandy from Austin, Texas and Peter Lagerwey from Seattle who had improved the walkability of each of their respective communities.

Gandy was a member of the Texas House of Representatives and has worked as a bicycling and walking consultant in all 50 states.

Lagerwey, who earned a master's degree from the University of Michigan in urban planning, has been Seattle's pedestrian and bicycle coordinator for 15 years after having worked directly for SEMCOG.

Days before each walkability seminar, Gandy and Lagerwey contacted each host and asked them to list what they thought were the three greatest pedestrian problems in their respective communities as well as take slides of the undesirable areas.

Gandy and Lagerwey arrived in each community a day before the seminar to go view the perceived problem areas on a one-to-one basis with their host.

This initial work was incorporated into four one-hour presentations in each community that included slides showing the good and the bad in Seattle, Austin and other select locations around the country.

Pedestrian problems seen in Chelsea by Rauschenberger were the difficulty in crossing Main Street between Park Street and Old US-12, the discontinuity of sidewalks at the intersection of Main Street and Old US-12, and the atypical intersection created by one-way Washington Street merging into the two-way Madison Street.

Pedestrian problems seen in Dexter by Keller were the sporadic sidewalk placement on the Dexter-Ann Arbor Road corridor, the continued safety of walking the Third Street and Kingswood Court area should the now dead-end Third Street be extended to permit through-traffic, and the lack of sidewalks on Hudson Street.

Gandy and Lagerwey did not offer definitive solutions to the communities' problems on the days of the seminars, promising instead to compile a comprehensive audit of workable solutions via SEMCOG in the next couple months.

However, they did offer some comments.

In Chelsea, Gandy and Lagerwey suggested sharpening the Madison end of Washington Street to slow traffic, and painting dramatic pedestrian walkway graphics where Lincoln Street meets Main to put pedestrians more clearly on the minds of drivers.

In Dexter, Gandy and Lagerwey suggested a traffic circle at Third and Inverness streets and a traffic signal between Mill Creek Middle School and Huron Farms during school hours.

Bits of general advice given to both communities included painting-in-changes, such as a traffic circle, to determine its effectiveness before engaging in actual structural changes.

Another suggestion was to find out early who has the say to authorize changes. Gandy and Lagerwey said this could range from a council or board, a department of transportation, or the local law enforcement depending upon the projects scope and location.

One goal of the walkability seminar was for each community to form a seven-member pedestrian subcommittee that would refer its insights and concerns to the community's respective councils.

Gandy and Lagerwey said that the make-up of such a forum should exclude those with "backyard issues" and those who do not drive cars.

Besides Rauschenberger, participants in the Chelsea seminar included Trustee Jim Myles, Planning Commission Vice Chairman Kathy Carter, Senior Center Director Pat Kaminsky and Chelsea Historic District Commission Secretary John Frank.

Besides Keller, participants in the Dexter seminar included Village Manager Jim Graham, Council Trustee Mary Kimmel, Planning Commissioner Gary Robinson and Sgt. Ed Toth of the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department.

Dexter Village Zoning and Ordinance Officer Janet Keller led a group of people interested in pedestrian safety and accessibility through Dexter May 26 as part of the Walkable Communities Program. Pictured with Keller are Charles Gandy and Rebecca Daenzer, an intern from the University of Michigan.

Prevention best tool to deal with poison ivy

JOHN C. WOLF, D.O.

OSTEOPATHIC MEDICINE

FAMILY MEDICINE

Question: I got poison ivy several times last summer and I've gotten a few spots of it already this year. I'm not even sure where I get it. Is there anything I can do to prevent getting this annoying rash again?

Answer: Poison ivy and its close relatives, poison oak and poison sumac, have the potential to cause itchy blisters in about 95 percent of those who are exposed to it. Obviously, you are included in this large but unlucky group. The poison ivy rash is known medically as allergic contact dermatitis, but the fancy name doesn't make it itch any less.

The body's reaction to a chemical in the plant called urushiol — found within the leaves, stems and roots — is what actually produces the rash. In order for this chemical to get on your skin and produce a rash, the poison ivy plant must be broken. This is the reason that an allergic person can sometimes brush up against a healthy poison ivy plant and not break out.

Unfortunately, very small breaks caused by insects or other minor damage to the plant will let the urushiol onto the plant's surface. You can sometimes see the evidence of this as small black spots on the leaves of a poison ivy plant. In other words, these spots are actually urushiol that has oozed through a damaged area of the leaf.

Besides directly touching a poison ivy plant, it is possible to indirectly come in contact with urushiol. It is sticky, so it can be carried on the fur of animals, garden tools, golf balls or anything else that touches a broken plant. Handling these objects will transfer the offending chemical to your skin. Perhaps this is how you've gotten poison ivy.

Once the chemical comes in contact with the skin, it begins to penetrate within minutes, but it takes from 12 hours to several days for the "poison ivy" to appear. First there is itching, redness and swelling, followed by blisters.

Contrary to myth, poison ivy can't be spread by touching the oozing liquid in the blisters. This liquid is not urushiol, but your body's own fluid produced as part of its reaction to urushiol. But as you know, poison ivy can be spread. If the victim gets urushiol on his or her hands, touching another part of the body — or another person's body — can transfer the chemical to that area. That's the reason poison ivy tends to turn up all over the body, even though the plants generally only come in contact with the hands or other exposed areas of skin.

The area that has the greatest exposure to the urushiol will usually break out first. Areas which have thick skin or less urushiol on them will then break out later — up to two weeks later — giving the impression that the poison ivy was spread from the first group of blisters.

The best way to prevent poison ivy is to avoid it and its cousins in the first place. Learn what they look like in your area because the appearance of poison ivy, oak and sumac vary depending upon their local growing conditions. It helps to wear long sleeves, long pants and gloves to limit the amount of exposed skin when you are working in areas where you are likely to encounter this obnoxious weed.

Using non-prescription products such as Ivy Block and Stoko Gard (available at most garden centers) can also reduce the risk of developing a rash.

If you suspect that you have been in contact with poison ivy or one of its cousins, the first thing to do is to thoroughly wash with soap and water. Any clothing that has come in contact with the sticky sap should also be washed promptly.

Handle the clothes carefully, preferably with gloves, to prevent any more skin contact with the sap. If more than 20 minutes have elapsed since exposure, washing may not prevent the initial rash, but it can prevent you from spreading it further.

Sunday 10 A.M. or Wednesday, 7:30 P.M.?

Dear Friends and Neighbors,
For almost 26 years Faith Lutheran Church has offered an extra worship service during the summer, on Wednesday evenings at 7:30 p.m. This service contains the same sermon and hymns as the service for the following Sunday. Our goal is to provide a worship opportunity for people who will be out of town the next weekend.

The Old Testament commanded that Saturday be recognized as the "Sabbath," meaning "rest." The New Testament gives no such commands, but allows us the freedom to worship when we want. Though the early Christians chose to meet in a special way on Sunday, calling it "the Lord's day" because that's when Jesus rose from the dead, Sunday was not regarded as a New Testament Sabbath. Our true Sabbath is spiritual, and is found in Jesus Christ, who says, "Come to Me, all you who are weary and burdened, and I will give you rest" (Matthew 11:28).

It might seem unrealistic to cram a worship service into your weekly schedule. If you're going to be out of town Sunday, why even worry about making it to church on Wednesday?

Millions of Christians know the answer; they worship week after week, not out of guilt or because they think they have to, but because they sense stability, peace, and rest in regular worship. More importantly, they know Jesus comes to them in His Word and Sacraments.

Please join us any Wednesday evening this summer, starting this coming week (June 16), through September 1. Wear comfortable clothing; the setting is a little less formal than Sunday mornings. And have a great summer!

P.S. We still continue our Sunday morning worship each week at 10 a.m.

FARM FACTS

What's a good way to stop hungry diamondback moths from nibbling on your cabbage, broccoli or kale? Give the pests a heaping serving of collard greens. Giving the pest collards spoils its appetite for cabbage, scientists say. The moths can't resist the all-you-can-eat collards when they're planted completely around cabbage field edges, a strategy called trap cropping that could also work to protect other Cole crops. Invading diamondbacks stop and deposit their eggs on the collards. Berry interesting! The average American eats about five pounds of strawberries per year. Strawberries are fat-free, low in calories and a rather than on adjacent cabbage plants. Diamondback populations continue to recycle in collards as long as plants remain green and continue to grow. source of vitamin C, folic acid, potassium and fiber. The fruit is also high in antioxidants that may protect cells from damage. The nation's 1998 strawberry crop of 889,350 tons was worth more than $1 billion to growers!

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations will conduct an accreditation survey of Chelsea Community Hospital's home care programs (ChelseaCare Home Health and ChelseaCare Home Medical Equipment) on July 13, 14, 15 and 16, 1999; Chelsea Community Hospital on July 14, 15 and 16, 1999; Alcohol and Drug Dependency (Chelsea Arbor Treatment Center and Older Adult Recovery Center) July 16, 1999. The purpose of the survey will be to evaluate the organization's compliance with nationally established Joint Commission standards. The survey results will be used to determine whether, and the conditions under which, accreditation should be awarded the organization.

Joint Commission standards deal with organizational quality of care issues and the safety of the environment in which care is provided. Anyone believing that he or she has pertinent and valid information about such matters may request a public information interview with the Joint Commission's field representatives at the time of the survey. Information presented at the interview will be carefully evaluated for relevance to the accreditation process. Requests for a public information interview must be made in writing and should be sent to the Joint Commission no later than five working days before the survey begins. The request must also indicate the nature of the information to be provided at the interview. Such requests should be addressed to:

Division of Accreditation Operations
Organization Liaison

Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations
One Renaissance Boulevard
Oakbrook Terrace, IL 60181

The Joint Commission will acknowledge such requests in writing or by telephone and will inform Chelsea Community Hospital of the request for any interview. Chelsea Community Hospital will, in turn, notify the interviewee of the date, time and place of the meeting.

POLICE BLOTTER

Chelsea Village

Minor in Possession

A 16-year-old Chelsea boy was stopped by police after entering a convenience store in the 1600 block of S. Main Street at 7:45 p.m. June 3. Police noticed cigarettes and a plastic bag in his pockets. The bag contained suspected marijuana. The boy was released to his father, a 48-year-old Chelsea man.

Larceny

A television set was reported stolen from a classroom at Chelsea High School, 740 N. Freer Road, the night of May 24. A 56-year-old Ypsilanti man told police that the TV was in the classroom when he left, and a maintenance worker said he believed the door was secure.

A ferret was stolen from Chelsea Pets & Plants, 901 S. Main St., at 9:43 a.m. June 5. A 56-year-old Chelsea woman told police that two Napoleon, Ohio, teen-agers, ages 17 and 15, told her they had lost the ferret in the store. She called the police, and it was discovered one of the teens had taken the ferret to a business across the street and put it in a trash can. Three teens, ages 15, 17 and 19, acted as lookouts and drivers for the other two. The ferret was returned to the woman, who said she did not want to press charges as long as the teens did not return to her store.

Property Damage

A shrub was reported damaged at a grave site in Oak Grove Cemetery. A Chelsea woman told police she found the damage at 8:12 p.m. May 31 and believed another family member had cut back the hedge and had removed some urns from the grave. The urns were replaced with new ones. Police contacted the other family member, a Chelsea woman, and recovered the urns. He returned the missing items to the woman.

Harassment

A 51-year-old Chelsea man told police that some kids had vandalized his house six times. In the latest prank, discovered on May 29, kids threw eggs at a vehicle parked next to the house. The man said the pranks appeared to be done after midnight.

Dexter Village

Drunken Driving

A 31-year-old Dexter man was arrested at 10:42 p.m. May 26 after police caught him speeding on Forest and Broad streets. The man pulled into a driveway on Baker Road, and police asked him to perform sobriety tests. The man then was arrested for drunken driving.

Breaking and Entering

A 39-year-old Chelsea man told police that someone broke into his property on Ann Arbor Street between May 28 and June 1. Someone took an antique window and three antique glass door knobs. The man is trying to sell the house, and his real estate agent was at the property May 28 but didn't notice anything missing.

A 28-year-old Dexter man told police that he parked his convertible Jeep at 7 p.m. June 4 on Broad Street. He returned 10 minutes later and discovered his duffel bag had been stolen from the open vehicle. The bag contained Marine uniforms.

Harassing Telephone Calls

A 39-year-old Dexter man told police that his former wife's boyfriend, a 39-year-old Ypsilanti man, called him at his home on Second Street and threatened him at 8 p.m. May 31. While police were talking to the man, he received a phone call from the suspect. The suspect appeared intoxicated, and threatened both the man and the officer. He then hung up. Police spoke to the man in person and arrested him, but could not confirm he was the caller because there were several people at the house.

Dexter Township

Domestic Assault

A 46-year-old township man told police that he had been celebrating the holiday weekend when, at 2:30 a.m. May 30, he went to talk with his son, 23. The two argued, and the son punched the man in the face then bit him on the arm. The suspect said his father began taunting him, and the son then hit his father and fled. Police found the son hiding under a couch in the yard. Both had been drinking.

Larceny

A 42-year-old township man told police that some house siding was stolen from his property on Hay Rake Hollow Road. The man said the siding had been delivered near the end of last year, but he didn't notice the theft until June 1 when he tried to install the siding. Total taken was 1,100 feet of siding for a total loss of $2,000.

Breaking and Entering

A 38-year-old township man told police that a computer, a shotgun and cash were stolen from his residence on Thumm Road between 9:15 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. June 4. He said he locked the door when he left in the morning, and his roommate, a 30-year-old township man, discovered the theft at 3:30 p.m.

Free Hardwood Chips

Dexter Community Schools and Granger Construction Company invites the community to make use of a big pile of hardwood chips at the New High School project site. The wood chips will be available on a one time only basis, free of charge to the Dexter Schools community on Saturday, June 19, 1999 from 8:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. Bring a pick up truck, lawn bags or whatever you'd like to carry them home in.

Limited assistance with loading the wood chips will be available. These wood chips are a "natural" product from the small tree cleaning at the New Dexter High School site. They are available "as is" and have not been treated with fungicides or insecticides and therefore should not be used in planting beds that touch residential structures. They are being offered to the public as a goodwill gesture from Dexter Community Schools and Granger Construction Company who both thank the community for your support.

Thank you.

Lyndon Township

Drunken Driving

An 18-year-old Westland man was contacted by police at 10:21 p.m. May 29 on Hadley Road near Goodband Road. The man had been in an accident and had obvious injuries, including a broken arm and blood on his clothes. He smelled of alcohol. The man was taken to the hospital, and agreed to a blood test for alcohol. He said he had been drinking, but not immediately before the accident.

Sylvan Township

Domestic Assault

A 35-year-old township woman told police that she returned home at approximately 3 a.m. May 28. When she arrived, her husband, 46, was waiting for her in the garage. He shoved her and she fell, breaking her glasses, which then cut her eye.

The man said the woman returned home and he met her in the kitchen. The two fought and the man grabbed her. When he let go, she fell. It was that fall, the man said, that caused her injuries.

Both the man and the woman had been drinking.

Warrant Arrest

Keri Lyn Fuqua, 21, of Manchester was arrested at 12:44 p.m. June 1 on I-94 and Notten Road. Fuqua was wanted on a bench warrant in connection with a driving while license suspended charge out of Washtenaw County Sheriff's Department. Jackson County Sheriff's deputies turned her over to Washtenaw County.

Webster Township

Larceny

A 16-year-old township boy told police that he parked his car, leaving it unlocked, at 9 p.m. May 31 at his home on Hawthorn Place. The boy said he returned to the car the next morning and found his compact disc player missing along with several CDs. Total loss was $1,200.

A 54-year-old township man told police that he parked his car, leaving it unlocked, at 6 p.m. May 31 at his home on Gifford Court. The man said he returned to his car the next morning and discovered that his cellular phone had been stolen. Total value of the phone is $450.

A 17-year-old township girl told police that she parked her car at 11 p.m. May 31 at her home on St. Andrew's Highway. The next morning, at 7 a.m., she found that someone had broken out the back window and damaged the windshield. A compact disc player was also stolen. Total loss was $700.

Property Damage

A 17-year-old township girl told police that she parked her car in the driveway of her home on N. Whitman Road at 1 a.m. May 30. She returned to the car the next morning and found someone had scratched an obscenity on the hood and punctured the radiator hose of her car. She said she does not have any suspects. Total damage is $500.

Lima Township

Property Damage

A 21-year-old township man told police that at 12 p.m. June 2 he and another man, an 18-year-old Chelsea man, had an altercation. Later that day, the first man returned to his home on Scio Church Road at approximately 5 p.m. and found the door had been kicked in. Police talked to the younger man, who said he and a friend had driven to the older man's house. They knocked on the door, but when no one answered, he became angry and kicked in the door. He did not enter the house, and nothing was missing.

Scio Township

Domestic Assault

A 30-year-old township woman told police that she and her husband, 36, have been having marital difficulties. She rented an apartment and moved out, but allowed her husband to stay there temporarily. At 2 p.m. May 27, the woman said she and her husband were in an argument. He began yelling obscenities at her, then pushed her into a bathtub. The man picked up a child seat and threw it at her, then smashed holes in the wall with a roller skate. He then took the kids and left. Police were unable to locate the husband.

Warrant Arrest

Charles Daniel Badics, 19, of Ann Arbor was arrested at 11:38 p.m. May 29 on Jackson Road near Wagner Road. Badics was wanted on a warrant in connection with failing to appear on a charge of minor in possession of tobacco out of Washtenaw County, and in connection with failing to appear on a charge of minor in possession of alcohol out of Central Michigan University Campus Police.

Assault and Battery

A 25-year-old Ann Arbor man told police he was running a 10k run on Huron River Drive at 5:30 p.m. May 29. A car drove up and the driver, who the man said was in his 20s, yelled at him. The man did not respond, and the car started to drive away, but then backed up. The passenger, a woman in her mid-20s, then spit on the man's face. The man told police he thought he got the license plate number.

Neighbor Trouble

A 56-year-old township man told police that at 3 p.m. May 30 he had some friends over to his house. His neighbor turned on her sprinkler system and got the inside of his friends' cars wet. The man said he has had problems with his neighbor in the past over property rights. None of the cars were blocking any driveways.

NEW ANESTHESIA TECHNIQUES

If you haven't had any dental work recently that requires the use of local anesthesia to keep you comfortable, you may recall the experience as one that brought numbness to a large area of your mouth. However, with new dental techniques a much smaller area of your mouth will be affected.

Formerly, when major tooth repair was needed to restore a tooth to health, the anesthetic was injected into the main nerve center at the rear of the jaw. This tended to numb the lower portion of the mouth, sometimes extending to the lips and tongue, until the anesthetic wore off. The development of extremely fine injection needles, however, now makes it possible for your dentist to reach the individual nerve in a tooth and use smaller amounts of anesthetic.

This technique is known as intraligmental anesthesia. It is a welcome improvement in patient comfort during tooth restoration procedures.

I am proud to be a part of the Dexter community and the Dexter Schools. I am pleased to have had the opportunity to serve as a member of the Dexter School Board for the past twenty years. I think that supporting candidates with experience and a demonstrated ability to work effectively within the school community is particularly important at this time since we have a new superintendent and are in the beginning phase of a $75 Million building program. If I am privileged to work with enthusiasm and dedication to provide the best possible learning opportunities for every student in our community. Thank you for your support.

GOALS

- Continue to work hard to be part of a TEAM of board members, administrators, teachers, support staff, and community to provide the best possible teaching/learning experiences for EVERY student in our schools.
- Continue to strive for broad community support—by highlighting student and teacher accomplishments and by maximizing the use of school facilities by the entire community as well as students.
- Continue to facilitate and encourage research proven "best practices" innovation in the classroom for the benefit of every student.
- Continue to generate four to six year plans for programming and then to match budgets with program goals. This approach to planning and budgeting has moved the district from a position of financial instability and virtually no fund balance many years ago to the present position of financial strength. The school district must continue to maintain and improve financial viability in this rapidly changing world.
- Continue to support the major improvements which have been achieved during the past 15-20 years in the care and maintenance of the many fine facilities which the community has provided. Students and community are now rightfully proud of our buildings and other facilities. This stewardship of community facilities must continue—especially as the district expands.
- Increase support for the effective use of district technology for the benefit of all students. Dexter has been a leader in providing excellent, state of the art technology resources and needs to continually build on this solid base.

Exchange students loved the experience

I am Jan Nauck. I am from Germany, and for the past school year I have been an exchange student at Chelsea High School.

Overall, I had an awesome and wonderful year with lots of experiences and fun. This all would not have been possible without the great people I met and without their help and the support they gave me.

My friends, classmates, and teachers made this time so joyful for me. It was always nice to come to school because I knew I would meet friendly people and have an interesting and fun day.

Besides the normal school day, I had a lot of fun acting in stage and drama class and working with the super spring play crew. YFU (Youth For Understanding), my exchange organization, gave me the wonderful opportunity to spend one year in the United States and prepared me well for this experience.

I have found a new family and a second home here in Chelsea. You did so much for me, it is just unbelievable. Thank you.

Pretty soon now, I will be going back to Germany and I will have to leave. It is very sad to leave, but I am also very thankful for this tremendous year in Chelsea. I am thankful for the great time I am having right now and because I have had an experience that will influence the rest of my life. I will never forget my friends, school, families, or experiences.

Jan Nauck
German exchange student

I'm so glad that I came to Chelsea. I'm so proud of being a member of the Bulldogs. I enjoyed myself and became so crazy at football and basketball games with other Dawgs. I (now) have a great school spirit.

I also had a really good time at each and every dance party. We have no dance parties in Japanese schools. Homecoming, the first dance in my life, and Winter Carnival, my first date, were wonderful. Choir members and my classmates in Mrs. Martin's classes always made me laugh with their great sense of humor. The Indiana trip and the New York tour with my music friends were memorable.

Whenever I felt lonely and embarrassed, my friends and family helped out and encouraged me a lot. Some of the friends say, "You have an awesome smile, Minoru!" But please remember, you were the reason I was smiling. You always made me happy to see you. I'll miss hearing "Hi, Minoru. How are you?" in the hallway. The smiles and laughs, high-fives, and hugs (meant) so much. I'll never forget all of my buddies!

I appreciate my American family, the Martins, for their everyday help, warmth, and affection, Chelsea High School and Youth For Understanding (my sponsoring organization), for giving me this priceless opportunity!

I wish the best of luck to all of you. Don't say good-bye. I want to say, "See you someday. Keep in touch."

Minoru Kowaki
Japanese exchange student

Support Knutsen in school election

I would like to urge all eligible voters in the Chelsea School District to vote for Conrad Knutsen in the school board election on June 14.

He is completely qualified to serve all segments of our population — school children, parents, and administration. Chelsea schools need leadership, and Conrad Knutsen can continue to provide that. Please give him your vote.

Mill Creek not well studied

Recently, I had the opportunity to be involved with the River Round-Up through the Huron River Watershed Council. The Watershed Council works to protect, rehabilitate and sustain the river system.

The purpose of the round-up is to track the health of the streams that flow into the Huron River. This is done by volunteers working in teams measuring the water flow, mapping the stream area, collecting water samples, and finding and identifying the creatures living on the bottom of the stream. Some volunteers get into the water, while others do the recording on the bank.

In our area, Mill Creek has not been well studied although it is the largest tributary of the Huron River. My team helped at the site where Mill Creek crosses M-52, south of Scio Church Road. There are many areas of this creek to study as it runs through several townships around Manchester, Chelsea and Dexter.

Adopt-A-Stream Program is a way for volunteers to focus their efforts on one site versus many. They become familiar with a specific site, report unusual occurrences and respond to the needs of the stream, such as informing the community about the importance of the health of a creek and its maintenance. The basic stream adoption: Five half days on a stretch of a creek — measuring characteristics of the creek, searching for tiny creatures, and helping to identify them.

You can just do one volunteer activity through the Huron Valley Watershed Council or get a group of people together and adopt. Activities are designed for adults but interested kids are able to participate, and the Watershed Council welcomes them when accompanied by and supervised by adults.

If you or a group is interested, please call Joan Martin at the Huron River Watershed Council at (734) 789-5971 and state you are interested in Mill Creek or any other area where you would like to help.

This is a great way to help your community protect its resources and to help with planning for future land use in response to development pressures in the Mill Creek area.

Vandalism leads to bigger things

The kiddies were out Saturday night. I hope they enjoyed themselves.

Two stop signs were knocked down and one painted over. Paint can never be removed from a stop sign. Two right arrows were painted over. In my estimation, over $1,000 in new signs, new posts, paint removal, etc.

I know it does not equal Littleton, but little things lead to big ones.

This is not a deed that happens once in a blue moon, but on occasion twice a week. The pain and suffering are not taken into consideration or someone killed by the lack of a stop sign.

I suggest that parents look at front bumpers. There is green paint on the vehicle.

Widening M-52 first stage in Chelsea takeover

I just don't get it. What's MDOT trying to do, widening M-52? Is this the beginning of their march north to downtown Chelsea?

We'd better get busy putting up the gateway to keep them out. Then we'll have to hire a person who can stick to their guns when the bulldozers show up.

Watch out for Trojan bulldozers! Don't be fooled! Once you let them in, they'll wipe out the town! They're already in cahoots with the Farmer Jack guys. What if they start cutting deals with drug stores and funeral parlors and mobile home developers, too?

This whole town will look like an MDOT service center.

Now I'm not trying to cause a general panic or anything, but the more habitat you build for cars, the more they multiply. Think about it. You ever see a car convention out in the middle of a cornfield? I think not. But pave that sucker over and it will be like the opening night of the demolition derby. And once that happens, everybody shows up and wants elephant ears and cotton candy, so you gotta have vendors and rides and tents for people to sleep in.

Problem is, everybody likes pavement. It gives their pet autos someplace to graze while they are riding the rides and eating the caramel apples. And roads are the best kind of pavement, because we all know that autos like nothing better than standing in line. That's when they begin to socialize in the distinctive honking voice that helps you recognize them.

I can think of nothing more soothing on a hot summer afternoon than rounding a bend in the road and encountering a huge line of unmoving pet autos, honking, shaking their fists, and frolicking in the sunshine.

And if we add a new lane onto M-52, they get a whole new line to stand in. Problem is, of course, that if we add this lane, there may very well be more road than there are cars and all the lines will disappear. What we'll have to do then, of course, is build some more cotton candy stands so more people will show up with their pets cars and we can get them into lines where they can socialize.

And this will go on, of course, until people get sick from eating too much cotton candy. Either that, or we run out of room for more lanes in the road because they run into the buildings downtown, which isn't too likely on M-52 given the amount of room between the roads and the businesses.

But then again, if we really start needing more play areas for our pet autos, we can always take down the buildings. And if that's not enough, we could start plowing through residential neighborhoods like they do in big cities, taking out homes, yards, and gardens to make way for our little pets. And, verily, we could decimate our parks and playgrounds and living spaces, eating up our most cherished spaces to accommodate our little tin buddies.

And when darkness smites the land, we can know the work we have done is good, and we can sleep in peace. If the traffic noise isn't too loud, that is.

Lions Club wants to send kids to camp

Chelsea Lions Club is seeking boy and girl candidates, age 5-14, to attend the Lions Visually Impaired Youth Camp at Camp Oakland in Oxford. The camp runs from July 25 to Aug. 7.

Prospective campers must be legally blind to participate. All costs for the two-week session are paid through the financial support of Lions and Lioness throughout the state.

The two-week session includes a host of activities specifically planned for visually impaired campers, boys and girls ages 5-14, under the watchful supervision of trained professionals.

Parents who have children who could benefit from this program should contact Chelsea Lions Club President Charles Armstrong at 475-8224 or Secretary Don Kvarnberg at 475-7324, no later than June 25.

Steve Hinz grew up in a family of musicians and teachers. Today he is sharing his background and talent with students in Chelsea schools.

Hinz combines music, teaching background into fulfilling career

By Michelle Rogers

Associate Editor

Steven Hinz grew up surrounded by music and academics. Everyone in his family played an instrument and both his parents were teachers. So it's only fitting that he would take those influences and blend them into a career as a music teacher.

This past fall, Hinz marked nine years with Chelsea schools. He started his career directing school musicals and teaching music at every school in the district. As the district has grown, however, Hinz's responsibilities have changed. Now his time is strictly devoted to Chelsea High School and North Creek Elementary School, and he no longer directs the musicals.

"It was too much," he says. "I wanted to stop it before I got burned out."

At Chelsea High, Hinz teaches concert choir and women's chorus. In the fall, he directs the chamber singers and in the spring, show choir. At North Creek, Hinz is responsible for general music education for grades kindergarten through fifth.

It was 1989 when Hinz earned a bachelor's degree in voice performance, choral music education and general music education from Viterbo College in LaCrosse, Wis. Last year, he added a master's degree in the art of teaching from Marygrove College in Detroit.

Hinz put his wife through graduate school as a waiter at the Gandy Dancer in Ann Arbor. It was his wife's affiliation with Harry Blackstone, director of the University of Michigan Men's Glee Club, that helped Hinz land the job with Chelsea schools.

TEACHER FEATURE

Although they hadn't met, Blackstone recommended Hinz for an interview with the district after the music teacher quit. It was a temporary assignment expected to last three months. But Hinz says, "We liked it enough and it seemed to fit our schedule, so I decided to take the job."

Hinz grew up in Wisconsin with fond memories of learning how to play a host of instruments and helping his parents grade papers. His father taught at a high school and his mother was an elementary school teacher.

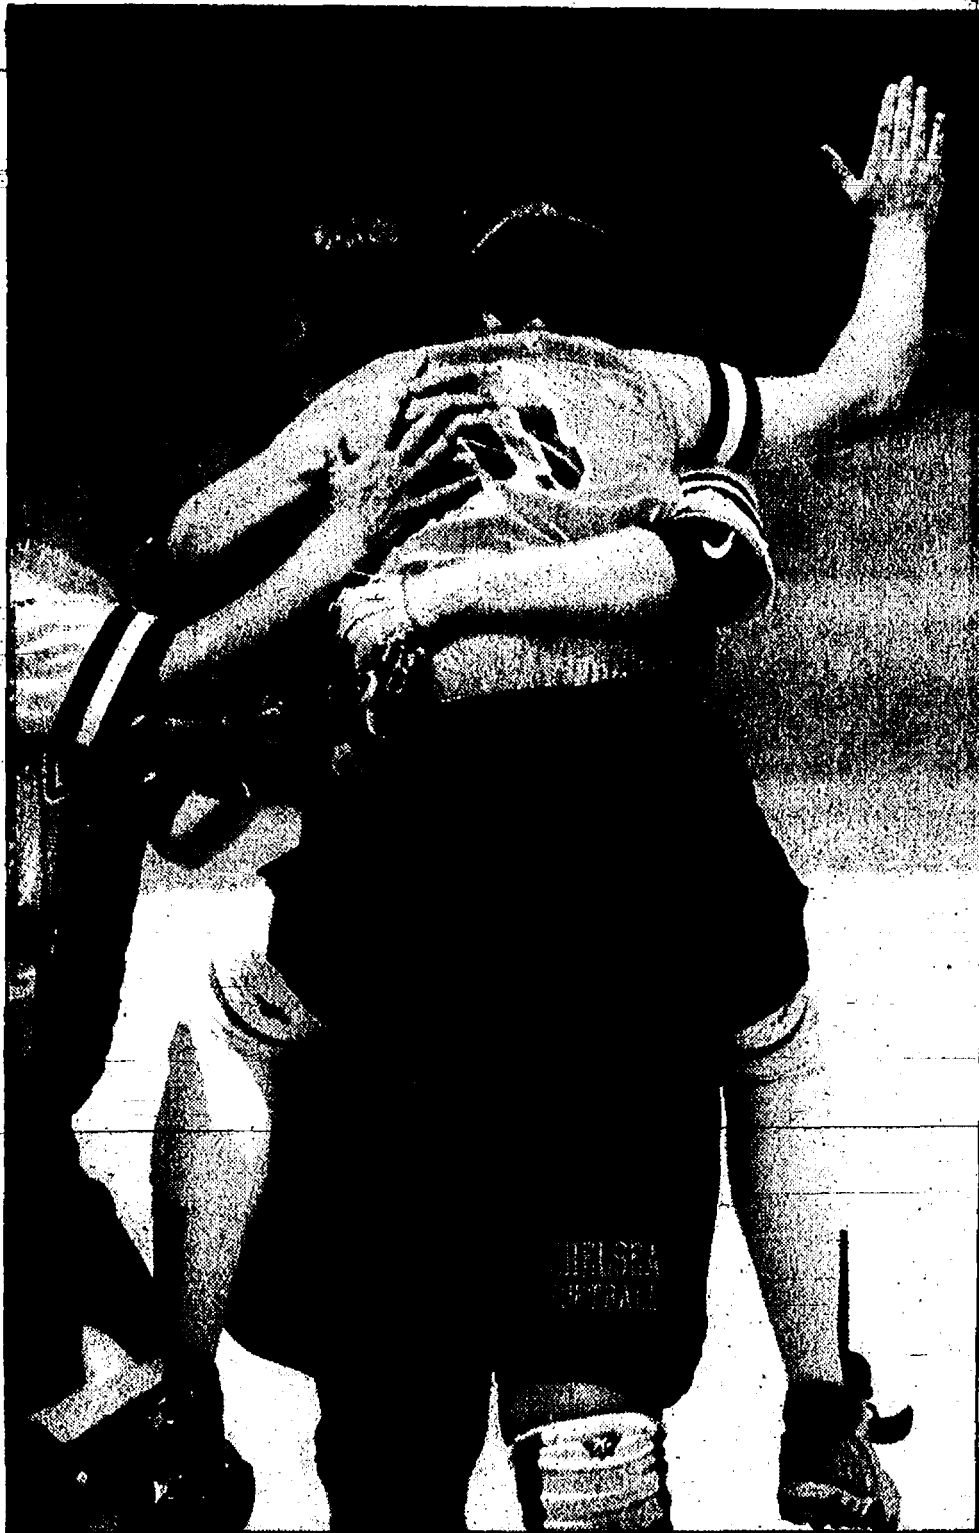

Hinz began taking piano lessons at age 5. In second grade, he picked up the saxophone and in high school he started playing the organ. He also

Tough pitching, clutch hitting give Dogs title

Lindsay Powers catches pitcher McKenna Houle in a hug after the final out in Chelsea's district tournament championship game last Saturday.

By Frank Dimich

Special Writer

Give Chelsea softball coach Rony O'Brien credit, she knew what her team would need to do to win its fourth consecutive district championship.

Last week, she said it may only take a couple of runs in each game and that getting past Jackson Northwest would be the biggest roadblock in the Bulldogs' quest for the championship.

Sure enough, both situations played out as Chelsea beat Northwest 2-1 on a run-scoring single by Margaret Schick in the bottom of the seventh June 1 in the pre-district at Chelsea. The Bulldogs (28-12) also won the district final Saturday at Chelsea, against Brooklyn Columbia Central by the same score en route to the title, their eighth in the last nine years.

The semifinal earlier Saturday was a little easier as they shut out Eaton Rapids 8-0.

O'Brien's logic was based on the steadily rising performances of ace McKenna Houle who, as a senior, is pitching some of the best games of her career just at the right time. Not only is she getting it done on the mound, but at the plate as well as she was 5-for-7 Saturday.

"McKenna's playing amazing right now," O'Brien said.

Houle is clearly pitching the best she has all season, as she allowed no earned runs in any of these games. She also threw two shutouts, including a one-hitter, at the SEC tournament a couple of weeks ago.

"I think I've improved a lot," Houle said. "I'm getting in the groove."

Part of that improvement is from gaining the stamina to pitch effectively 14 innings for two games in a day, which she said has been helped by the fact that she's throwing less pitches per game than she was earlier in the season.

the season.

"It helps me to get on top of the count more," she said.

Against Northwest, Houle struck out nine, walked one and allowed four hits and no earned runs.

Besides the run in the seventh, Houle scored the other run on a throwing error by the catcher as she attempted to steal second.

Northwest scored its only run in the third on a throwing error.

Although the score was the same against Columbia Central, Chelsea was in control the whole way, taking a 2-0 lead in the third on a run-scoring single by Houle that scored Schick, who also singled. Augustine drove in Houle with a single for the second run.

Columbia Central attempted to come back in the seventh, scoring one on a bloop single and an outfield error.

Schick went 2-for-4, Houle 2-for-2 and Augustine 2-for-3 to lead the Bulldogs.

Houle struck out nine, walked one, allowed three hits and the run was not earned.

The Bulldogs' best offensive production came in the Eaton Rapids game, as Houle was 3-for-4 with three RBIs and a triple. Lindsay Powers, Augustine and Ingrid Biedron were all 2-for-4 with two RBIs each, with Powers hitting a solo home run and Augustine a triple. Jessica Herman also hit a double.

The scoring was distributed as the Bulldogs scored one each in the second and third, four in the fourth and two in the sixth.

Houle struck out 14, walked one and allowed just two hits.

Besides Houle, O'Brien said the hitting of No. 6 and 7 batters Augustine and Biedron were a big difference.

"They have done damage in districts," O'Brien said. "It helps having production in the lower part of the order."

Chelsea advances to the Division II regional at Jackson Lumen Christi to take on Tecumseh. Tecumseh is the only team to hand Chelsea a South-eastern Conference loss this season.

"I'm excited about seeing them again," O'Brien said. "When we lost, it was really mental errors that did it to us."

Houle understands that the pitchers will get better as Chelsea advances further in the tournament, thus making it more difficult to score runs.

"That puts pressure on me that I can't let them score either," she said.

Chelsea also played its final regular season game at Ann Arbor Huron June 2 and lost 5-0, but it was a game O'Brien used to give some of her younger players a chance to see some action and give her starters a rest.

Soccer team drops region heartbreaker

The Chelsea soccer team's tournament run came to an end last week as the Fenton Tigers defeated the Bulldogs 1-0 in a Division II regional semifinal.

"It's a frustrating loss because we definitely had our chances to win the game," said head coach Chris Orlandi.

"We put tons of pressure on them at the ends of both halves, but our shots were never on the goal. Fenton's defense played well, and they never gave us a lot of time to shoot. It was a great game on both sides."

Fenton supplied most of the pressure in the game's early minutes, and the pressure led to a Tiger goal in the seventh minute.

"Their center-forward made a great play hustling to a ball that our defense thought was heading over the end line," Orlandi said.

"The Fenton attacker got to it, made a great pass in front of the net, and all of a sudden we're down by a goal. The defense was upset with them."

Dogs let lead slip away in district

By Frank Dimich
Special Writer

Although the end result was certainly not what anyone had hoped for, Chelsea's pre-district baseball loss to Jackson Northwest was a fitting way to end the season.

Fitting in that the way they lost typified their season. They held a 3-0 lead in the second inning and a 6-4 lead midway through the sixth, only to lose it in the bottom half with two errors and a two-run home run by Northwest en route to a 7-6 loss June 1 at Chelsea.

In fact, this scenario, or something that resembles it, had been played out an incredible number of times this season, as Chelsea had held the lead in 36 of its 37 games. But the Bulldogs lost 16 of those games to finish 20-16-1 and 9-6 in the Southeastern Conference, where they were third.

"That's as astonishing of a statistic as I've ever had," said Chelsea coach Wayne Welton, who in 22 years of coaching has seen plenty of opportunities for astonishing stats.

In fact, he said the only stat that compares is the 13 come-from-behind wins the Bulldogs had in 1991, when they won the state championship.

But despite the tough losses this season, the Bulldogs still managed to keep their streak of consecutive 20-win seasons intact, with this year being the 11th straight to reach the barrier.

Chelsea also dropped its final game of the season 6-5 to Ann Arbor Huron after holding a 3-0 lead midway through the second.

And although holding a lead is something Chelsea has struggled to do the whole season, the Bulldogs did show signs two weeks ago they were ready for a run in the state tournament after winning the St. Joseph Invitational, which featured five state-ranked teams.

"To come back and lose two of these, that kind of described our season," Welton said. "We couldn't make the next move."

In the Northwest game, Chelsea got its 3-0 lead with a two-run homer by Vince Scheffler in the second inning that scored Chris Cooper, who doubled. Ben Meyers scored the other run in the inning as he singled, stole second and scored on an error.

Chelsea was down 4-3 after Northwest scored two in the fifth. But two home runs in the sixth—a solo by Cooper and a two-run job by Tony Scheffler that scored Henson—gave the Bulldogs a 6-4 lead.

Northwest came back with three in its half of the sixth, helped by a two-run homer and two errors.

Against Huron, Drew Henson hit a two-run single in the first that scored Nick McVay and Cooper, who both walked. Dan Seward singled home Scott Johnson in the second for a 3-0 lead.

Huron came back with three in the bottom of the second on several wild pitches and an error.

Chelsea took back the lead 4-3, as Henson singled and scored on a wild pitch.

Huron tied it back up, but Chelsea went ahead one more time on a solo home run by McVay.

Huron finished it off with one in the sixth and one in the seventh on a bases-loaded walk.

Chelsea loses a talented group of seniors—McVay, Henson, Johnson, Seward, Ken Weiner and Vince Scheffler—which Welton said will be greatly missed.

But there is still a good core group of underclassmen who were big contributors this year and can carry that to next year, including leadoff hitter Phil Fishburn, Cooper and Tony Scheffler.

Arnold takes state 200 title

Chelsea junior Mora Arnold won the 200 at the state class B track championships at Bay City Western on Saturday. She is the third Chelsea girl to win an individual state track championship. Lisa Monti won the 3,200 in 1991 and Charity Allen the 300 hurdles in 1992.

Arnold was clocked in 25.93 with runner-up Erin Anderson of Detroit Renaissance running 26.17. Renaissance also had the third- and fourth-place runners.

Arnold was third in the 200 last year and went into the meet as the top seed in the 200. Earlier in the day, she won all-state honors in the 400 with a third-place finish. Defending champion Janaule Bennett of Niles won in 56.40, a new class B state record, with Sara Jane Baker of Mat-tawan second in 57.00. Arnold's time was 57.25, a new school record.

"Winning the 200 was Mora's goal this year," said coach Bill Bainton. "She was very focused on that as we went through the championship part of the season the last two weeks. We are really proud of what she accomplished." Arnold was unbeaten in 200 meters this season.

Two other Chelsea girls competed in the meet and both made good showings but weren't able to place.

Amy McCalla threw the discus 111-1, and the shot 34-5, and Kari Taylor threw 35-1 in the shot. "Amy went in as a middle seed in both events, and Kari is a freshman," Bainton said. "In either situation, state competition is difficult. Both girls performed well."

Chelsea's 16 points just missed a top-10 finish. Flint-Powers was 10th with 16.5, followed by the Bulldogs in 11th and Wyoming Rogers, 12th, with 15. Detroit Renaissance won with 75, followed by Corunna with 57.5, and Battle Creek Lakeview, which won Chelsea's regional, finishing third with 42.

Four Chelsea track girls participated last Tuesday in the Selby Classic, the Jackson honor roll meet for the top nine Jackson-area performers in each event. All won medals, and three won their events. No team scores are kept.

McCalla won the discus with a throw of 115-4, two inches better than runner-up Jamie Reynolds of Concord.

Sophomore Tabitha Gale earned the fourth-place medal with a career best of 109-5. McCalla also took the fifth-place medal in the shot put with a throw of 33-4. Freshman Kari Taylor won the shot with a throw of 35-7, and was seventh in the discus.

"Amy has been throwing consistently well at the end of the season. This was a nice award for her," Bainton said.

"Tabitha has made a big improvement in the discus throughout the season. This was a nice way for her to finish the year. Kari's performances in the throws have been outstanding for a freshman."

Arnold added to her records from the season as she won the 200 in a meet record of 24.9, and lowered the school record in the 100 to 12.1 as she finished second to Jamila Mo-head of Albion.

"Mora focused on the sprints in this meet and turned in two great races," Bainton said.

themselves for allowing that play to happen, but they did a great job the rest of the way."

Chelsea picked up the intensity of its attack late in the first half as it seemed the Fenton side grew tired from the day's heat. At halftime, Fenton had outshot Chelsea only 9-8 in spite of their early dominance.

The second half had the intensity and pressure that a regional soccer game was supposed to have. End-to-end action kept pressure on both goalkeepers. Fenton missed the net on two golden opportunities when Chelsea goalkeeper Laura Baird (10 saves) was out of position to make saves. At the other end, Chelsea forwards Kim Touroo, Kate Huehl, and Lara Gourlay had numerous shots sail harmlessly wide or over the goal.

Shots were 9-8 in favor of Chelsea in the second half and were even at 17 for the game, but the Bulldogs only put four shots on goal while Fenton had 11.

"Both teams had some great opportunities to score, but we never finished any of our's off," Orlandi said.

"That happens in sports. Sometimes you do everything right, but you still can't score. That's what it felt like today."

"Fenton is a quality team though, and they deserve to move on. They had the better chances and executed on defense better than we did. This game was a great experience for us because our girls should now realize that we belong playing games at this level. We return all 11 starters for next year and 14 of the 15 members of this team should be back. I'm extremely proud of what we've accomplished this year, and I've got even bigger plans for the future."

The loss ends Chelsea's season with a final record of 11-6-3.

Someone to watch over mom

I told my mom she didn't need to look any further than The Meadows at Silver Maples—I could live here! Several months ago, I got a call from my mom's neighbor, saying an ambulance had taken her to the hospital, when she woke up one day on the floor. That's when my brothers and I decided that mom needed more attention and better nutrition. "My first impression of The Meadows was first class. But I told my mom that if it wasn't a match, she didn't need to stay here. Well, it is a match! She's made lots of new friends, and the well-balanced meals and special care helped her health improve. Most of all, she is relieved that her sons know there is someone else to watch over her."

Passenger bill of rights good idea

By Gary Gosselin

Staff Writer

Airline officials are wondering why, after 15 years of deregulation, Congress is talking about a "passenger bill of rights," or in practice, a little bit of re-regulation.

Well, after taking a trip to Tucson, Ariz., recently, and after talking to Woodhaven resident Phil Bonnett, I'm becoming more and more convinced that something needs to be done.

Our stories are both about experiences with Northwest Airlines, but that's because it is the dominant carrier at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

These tales could be repeated at other airports using other carriers' names, because the way the system works now is that most airports have a single dominant carrier, thus each airport has its own little monopoly.

Let me tell you our stories, and you can be the judge.

Bonnett took a flight to Florida for a cruise over the New Year's holiday and was set to return the day of the big snowstorm in January.

His flight was canceled, but he and his wife managed to get on another flight on standby pretty quickly. Well, the flight made it to Detroit but sat on the runway for 6½ hours.

And that's just the beginning of the story.

Another couple, friends, got compensation tickets about two weeks later and suggested that Bonnett should be compensated as well. So, he wrote a letter to Northwest asking for compensation and hoping for an apology.

Well, what followed was a nearly two-month marathon of phone calls and letters, mainly because Northwest said he was not on that flight, he was on the previous, canceled flight.

Rather than check the physical manifest of the flight he was on, a Northwest "customer service" representative in Minneapolis, spent a lot of energy stonewalling him.

Well, the good news is that Bonnett persisted, got some help from a representative in Southfield, and it was finally acknowledged that he was on the flight.

Northwest has promised him two tickets to fly anywhere in the United States.

"This just got to be a crusade for me," Bonnett said. "I could have just given up, and maybe they were hoping I would. But I didn't. It got down to the principle of the thing. I was on that flight."

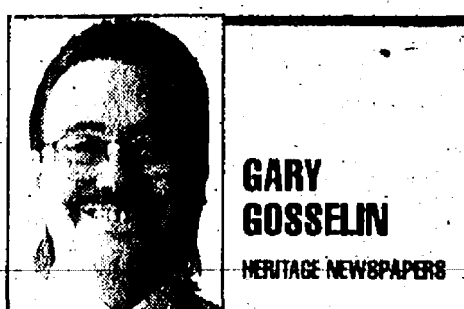

An interesting aside is that his baggage, which was tagged for the canceled flight, followed him on the standby flight, proving there was some internal tracking of these particular passengers.

My tale of woe started when my 7:05 a.m. flight to Tucson via Minneapolis was delayed for about 1½ hours. We were told our plane was in a hangar, but they just couldn't get it out, across the runways and to the gate.

When we finally began boarding, the airline representatives were not apologetic. They were actually quite surly.

Needless to say, I missed my connection. After 45 minutes in line in Minneapolis, I was told I'd have to either wait 10 hours for a direct flight or I could get a flight to Phoenix then to Tucson in about 45 minutes.

So, when the flight to Phoenix was delayed, I thought,

GARY GOSSELIN
HERITAGE NEWSPAPERS

TRANSPORTATION

"Here we go again." On the plane, I told an attendant that I had a connector and she said I might make it.

"Just sprint across the terminal to Gate 9," she said.

And sprint I did — to an empty Gate 9. The problem was that the Gate 9 she was referring to was in another terminal, and I had missed the plane anyway. Again, no apology — just another hour wait for another flight to Tucson.

All the plans my brother in Tucson had made for my 11:30 a.m. arrival were shot when I arrived after 6 p.m.

So, sure I'm leaning toward re-regulation, and I can tell you that Bonnett had an emphatic yes when we talked about a passenger bill of rights.

Many of us travel by air so infrequently that we are ignorant of the ways of the "airline world" and are generally at their monopolistic mercy.

All I wanted was an apology.

Republicans to host meeting with senator

The Western Washtenaw Republicans will hold its monthly breakfast meeting 9 a.m., Saturday, June 12, at Wolverine Food & Spirits, located at the corner of Old US-12 and M-52.

This month's guest will be State Sen. Mike Rogers of Livingston County. He represents the 26th Senate District.

Rogers is currently the senate majority floor leader and serves as chairman of the Senate Committee on Human Resources, Labor, and Veterans Affairs. He is vice chairman of the Reapportionment Committee and a member of the Senate Judiciary and Gaming and Casino Oversight committees.

Rogers was formerly a special agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and recently received the Legislator of the Year award from the Police Officers Association of Michigan.

This summer, Rogers is expected to announce his candidacy for the 8th Congressional District seat for the U.S. House of Representatives. Most of western Washtenaw County is located in the 8th Congressional District.

Sharon Township adopts budget

By Shawn Lawrence,
Staff Writer

The Sharon Township Board adopted its annual budget for fiscal year 1999-2000, and voted to lower its millage rate slightly at its meeting Thursday.

The township voted 4-1 to approve the $195,000 budget, with Supervisor Gary Blades being the sole no vote.

The township raises about $52,000 annually from its millage levy. The remainder of the budget revenues come largely from the state revenue sharing formula.

The major expenses the township incurs are fire protection ($32,000), highway and road maintenance ($28,000), and officials' salaries (combined $65,060).

The board needed to cut about $7,000 from the proposed budget and asked for public input to help decide the matter.

In the end, the board agreed to add $5,000 in expected revenues for contractual fees which it expects to collect over the next fiscal year, and to eliminate the $2,150 library contribution which used to go to the Manchester Township Library.

Blades said that since the library has assessed a user fee of $80 per Sharon Township resident, the township would be paying twice for the same service if it made the library payment.

The board also added a stray $150 to the miscellaneous building and grounds fund.

The board also voted 3-2 to lower its millage levy by a fraction (.0087), for a total levy of .9700, with Blades, Clerk Terry Auito and Trustee Willard Blumenauer voting in favor, and Treasurer Lorraine Dunny and Trustee Reno Feldkamp voting against.

Dunny said that with all of the potential expenses facing the township over the next year, she didn't think it was a good idea to lower taxes.

But Blades said that in order to maintain the same millage rate, it would have involved setting another public hearing, advertising the meeting and in effect, would only have netted the township a small sum.

The reduction will result in a net loss of approximately $400 to the township.

In other township news:

The board scheduled its regular July meeting to take place at 8 p.m. June 30. It also scheduled its regular August board meeting to take place at 8 p.m. Aug. 12.

All the rest of the 1999 - 2000 board meetings will be held on the first Thursday of the month at 8 p.m.

The board made appointments for the 1999-2000 year. Peter Flintoft was retained as the township attorney, and Midwest Consulting was retained as the township engineer.

The board did not take up a proposal to reappoint planners Carlisle-Wortman Associates Inc. of Ann Arbor.

Some of the board members and planning commission members who were in the audience expressed concerns that the firm is not providing the township with the support it needs while facing important development questions. At the same time, some board members said they believed the services of the Carlisle-Wortman firm were very expensive, costing the township about $3,700 last month alone. Blades said the board would take up the question of appointing a planner at a future board meeting.

FOR LAWRENCE TRAMMELL who became an Angel on June 11, 1999. I saw you last night, a star bright and clear, shining down from the heavens to let me know you were near.

I felt you this morning, a soft gentle wind, telling me not to worry that we'd meet again.

I heard you today in the coo of a dove, I knew you were here and I knew I was loved.

These miracles are all around within my sight and touch and sound. At true and wonderful today as it was before, you went away.

So until the day we're together again and we walk through the Heavens above,
I'll look with my heart, I'll listen with my heart and I'll feel my Daddy close.

Love you and miss you
Daddy.

Love, Missy #6

LOST STREAM MAP FOUND AND RESTORED

The recently published STREAM MAP OF MICHIGAN is just like another map - known to Pennsylvania anglers as the "Lost Stream Map."

The "Stream Map of Pennsylvania" was completed in 1965 after a thirty-year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee succeeded in creating a map of the highest detail possible...a map that shows every stream and lake. He painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto a 3 x 5 foot map.

The map sold extremely well - until it was lost several years later. Incredibly, the printer entrusted with the original drawing and printing plates, declared bankruptcy, then carelessly hauled Higbee's 30 years of work to the landfill.

The few remaining dog-eared copies became a prized fisherman's possession. Professor Higbee was offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key. The experts had always told Professor Higbee that reprints were impossible, because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue. Then, in 1991, at the age of 91, Howard Higbee's dream came true. Computers made it possible to reprint the map. Holding an updated map, Howard said, "I never thought I'd live to see this day."

Then, by combining Professor Higbee's knowledge with computer technology - the STREAM MAP OF MICHIGAN was created.

Generous Donation

Vern Campbell (right), owner of Village Mobil, received a grant from the Mobil Company to support the Parents As Teachers program in Chelsea School District. Campbell donated $500 to start, and will give 1 cent for every gallon pumped on Wednesdays for the next year. Campbell estimated the gas station's customers use approximately 4,000 gallons on Wednesdays, making the total weekly donation $40. Pictured with Campbell are (from left) Jeff Rohrer, Marylou Severin, Sara Houle, Kathy Kenney and Kris Miller.

took voice lessons and was a member of the high school choir. Both his mother and father played the piano and his three brothers also played instruments, so their home was filled with music.

As a high school student, Hinz captured many awards at state music festivals. He also participated in piano guild competitions and other musical events.

Hinz credits his high school choral director, Dave Adickes, for influencing his career decision. He says Adickes inspired and motivated him to get passionate about music.

"He was very inspirational in how he worked with students and how passionate he could be," Hinz recalls. "I always hoped I could be that way with my students."

Hinz has since brought his own love for music and performance to Chelsea High, where it's spreading like wildfire. When he started, Hinz says there were about two dozen students in the choir program. This fall, he expects 54 students to enroll in concert choir and 34 in the women's chorus.

Hinz has been successful in generating even more interest in music with such ensembles as the Washington Street Show Choir, which he introduced at the high school.

The only steadfast rule in his classroom is that Hinz demands punctuality. He says it's important when working with a group that everyone arrive on time because it can impact the performance. There are consequences, he says, for tardiness or skipping a show.

Hinz says he has high expectations for students and he encourages them along the way. "I would say I am encouraging. I believe all students can achieve amazing things," he says.

"I hold high expectations for them. I always tell students it's my job to open doors and lower hurdles so they're successful."

Hinz says he strikes a balance in his classroom — students know when it's time to work and time to play — and he hopes students see him as fair and caring. "I would like them to believe I am compassionate toward them," Hinz says. "I'll drive them to meet my expectations, but sometimes I can be just off the wall."

Teaching both elementary and high school seems to be where Hinz has found his niche. No matter what age he is teaching, Hinz says his students are always enthusiastic and eager to learn.

At North Creek, Hinz only sees each class 40 minutes a week. He says it's barely enough time to explore music. But he manages to introduce many different styles, from folk tunes to opera, orchestra, jazz and African American spiritual music, exposing children to different cultures along the way.

"I think they tend to love what they hear and what they experience," Hinz says about his younger students.

In the future, Hinz would like to see Chelsea schools meet state standards by increasing music instruction to 40 minutes twice a week. He also would like to help students improve their music reading skills. Hinz says he will push for both when the curriculum comes up for review.

What he finds unusual about Chelsea schools is the community's high level of support for the arts.

"Chelsea schools is obviously, by the testament of this music facility, very supportive of the arts and has a vision for the future for music education in our schools."

"The community is also unique when you see what opportunities for the arts are available in Chelsea," Hinz says, citing Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts, Chelsea Painters art group and the Purple Rose Theatre.

In addition, Hinz says Chelsea students are special because of their commitment to education and vision of the future.

"I think they're uniquely committed and have a vision of what they can achieve through hard work," he says.

It's exciting for Hinz to work in Chelsea because, he says, the students motivate him to do better as a teacher. As they meet expectations, Hinz is able to raise the bar and take students to a higher level.

"There seems to be a lot of energy and vitality that goes toward their learning and how they learn," he says. "They don't just learn from a teacher. They learn from watching each other."

Although he enjoys all of his students, Hinz concedes that teaching at the high school is where his passion lies.

"I enjoy teaching high school kids because they amaze me at what they can achieve with someone pushing them," he says. "They have that same kind of eagerness the elementary (school) kids have."

"I enjoy their love of life and the life they bring to their music."

A highlight of his career came about six years ago when he accompanied the concert choir to Montreal. They sang 16th century Latin church music in a cathedral. Hinz says when students sang the first few notes it was an emotional experience because they were able to hear themselves sing the music in the setting it was written for.

What Hinz looks forward to is a long career with Chelsea schools. He says the job is a dream come true for him as an artist and music teacher. Hinz enjoys teaching in state-of-the-art facilities and has found an artistic outlet in the community with the Chelsea Center for the Development of the Arts, where he serves as executive director. His wife, Lisa, is director of music activities and is a private teacher. She has a master's degree from U-M in opera and voice performance.

When he is not in the classroom, directing a musical performance or working for the center, Hinz can be found at his home which he and his wife built in Dexter Township. Hinz enjoys tending to his flower garden, making quilts, wood working and playing tennis.

DEXTER COMMUNITY SCHOOLS NOTICE OF REGULAR ELECTION JUNE 14, 1999 COUNTIES OF WASHTENAW AND LIVINGSTON, MICHIGAN

TO THE QUALIFIED ELECTORS OF THE SCHOOL DISTRICT:

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the regular election will be held in the Dexter Community Schools, Counties of Washtenaw and Livingston, Michigan, on Monday, June 14, 1999, between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 8:00 p.m. Eastern Time, for the purpose of electing two members to the Board of Education for two four-year terms ending June 30, 2003 and for the purpose of submitting the following proposal to a vote of the qualified electors of the School District:

NONHOMESTEAD MILLAGE RESTORATION

This authorization will allow the Dexter Community Schools to continue to levy mills previously authorized and levied for general operating purposes on non-homestead property (industrial and commercial property, rental and seasonal homes) which have been reduced by application of the Headlee Amendment and allow the School District to levy not more than the statutory rate of 18 mills against nonhomestead property required for the School District to receive revenues at the full foundation allowance permitted by the State.

Shall the limitation on the amount of taxes which may be imposed on taxable nonhomestead property in the Dexter Community Schools, Counties of Washtenaw and Livingston, Michigan, be increased by three (3.00) mills ($3.00 per $1,000 of taxable value) for fifteen (15) years, the years 1999 to 2013, inclusive, to provide funds for operating expenses? This millage would raise an estimated $120,000 for the School District in the first year that it is levied.

The following persons have been nominated as candidates for two four-year terms ending June 30, 2003:

SHARON CRAWFORD
LANNY DUNIGAN
RICHARD LUNDY

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the following statements have been received from the County Treasurer of the Counties of Washtenaw and Livingston as to previously voted increases in the constitutional tax rate limitation affecting property in the School District, to wit:

"I Catherine McClary, County Treasurer of Washtenaw County, Michigan, do hereby certify that, as of May 7th, 1999, the total of all voted increases in excess of the constitutional fifteen mill tax rate limitation and the years such increases are effective are as follows affecting the taxable property of Dexter Community Schools located in Washtenaw County."

"I Catherine McClary, Treasurer of Washtenaw County, Michigan, hereby certify that as of May 7, 1999, the records of this office indicate that the total of all voted increases over and above the tax limitation established by the Constitution of Michigan, in any local units of government affecting the taxable property located in Dexter Community Schools, Washtenaw County, Michigan, is as follows:

Some awareness days needed more than others

DON LINDMAN
 AMY FOUNDATION

REAL ANSWERS

I walked into my helpful local hospital recently and came face to face with a huge display laid out on a long line of long tables. It was entitled "National Pain Awareness Week."

There were more pictures and graphs than I could possibly peruse. Literature was available in abundance. And of course, hovering around were very kind-but-serious-looking people, ready to tell me how and why I needed to be aware of my pain.

That I wasn't aware of my pain had never occurred to me. I was under the impression that pain was one of those things that forced its awareness on you, whether you liked it or not. I guess I must be wrong.

Later that day, as I flipped through my favorite news-magazine, I found a promotion for "National Headache Awareness Week," June 6-12. Imagine that! Apparently I also need to be alerted to the fact that my head aches. What would I do without these kind-but-serious medical people who give of their time to alert me to these things? I thought that pain and headaches were two conditions of which I wanted not to be aware. How stupid of me!

Frankly, I would much rather that they sponsored a "National Gluttony Awareness Week." Far too many Americans, including me, are overweight. We live to eat, instead of eating to live. In a world filled with frustration and disappointment, fat and sugar provide a constant and reliable source of physical pleasure.

We don't like to call it "gluttony," we prefer "pleasingly plump." But the early Christians listed it right up there with the others in the list of "Seven Deadly Sins." I need to be reminded of that.

I believe we also need a "National Envy Awareness Week." It, too, is one of the classic Seven Deadly Sins, but if no one calls it to our attention we tend to forget it exists. When I am not content with what I have, as the Bible tells me I should be, I tend to call it "ambition." The truth is that most of the time I'm just jealous of someone else.

Or how about a "National Pride Awareness Week?" In our culture "pride" has become a positive word, as in "ethnic pride" or in "self-esteem," but in biblical usage it's negative, another one of the "Seven Deadlies," as in "pride goes before destruction, a haughty spirit before a fall."

While there are times when my self-esteem needs a boost, there are many other times when I need to be reminded of the biblical injunction "not to think more highly of yourself than you ought to think."

I doubt that my kind-but-serious hospital people would ever sponsor such a week; few of us like being reminded of those sins of which we are guilty.

Perhaps what we really need is a "National Greed Awareness Week." The old-fashioned word was "covetousness," but whatever term you use it is referring to our propensity to want things because someone else has them; not because we need them. The Bible once called it "idolatry."

We don't like being that blunt about it; we prefer to think of it as keeping up with our community. But the Bible insists on calling it "idolatry," and as "avarice" it's also a part of the deadly septet.

These and a host of other character traits are subtle sins, the kind we don't make much commotion over. They don't seem nearly as bad to us as do adultery, murder, and stealing. Since many of us well-mannered citizens don't do those blatant sins, it's much easier to condemn them.

In contrast, we keep very quiet about the subtle sins, because those are the ones we practice. Yet they can do irreparable damage to those we love as well as those we don't particularly like. Being made aware of them is much more important for our overall health than is being made aware of pain and headaches.

DEATHS

MARY CRAIG
DAVISON KENNEY
 Ann Arbor

Age 52, died peacefully in her sleep at her home in Ann Arbor on May 28, 1999, following a long and valiant fight against breast cancer. Mary Craig was a dedicated and beloved teacher in the Ann Arbor Public Schools and will be remembered fondly by her students and colleagues alike. Currently a fifth grade teacher at Pittsfield Elementary School, she also taught in the Whitmore Lake Public Schools and at Children's Psychiatric Hospital at the University of Michigan pursuant to her master's degree in special education. She was especially gifted in the teaching of children with emotion problems, but always managed to bring out the best in each student. A native of Flint, she attended Kingswood School, Cranbrook and graduated from the University of Michigan School of Education. She also had a career in business and real estate and was very active in her community. She was particularly active in the Republican Party, which came naturally to her as the granddaughter of Arthur E. Sumerfield, postmaster general under President Dwight Eisenhower.

She is survived by a son, Charles G. Lippincott of Flint; her husband, Donald H. Kenney of Ann Arbor; her mother, Mrs. John E. MacArthur of Flint; a sister, Cynthia Abbot of Westin, Mass.; and four step children, James H. Kenney of Houston, Texas, Paul M. Kenney of Portland, Or., Laura Kenney Schang of Appleton, Wis., and Matthew M. Kenney of San Francisco, and three step grandchildren.

At 4 p.m. Friday, May 28, 1999, a memorial service took place at First Presbyterian Church, 1432 Washtenaw Ave., Ann Arbor, where she was a member and ordained deacon. A funeral service also took place at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Saginaw Street, Flint at 11 a.m. Saturday, May 29, 1999, followed by interment at Sunset Hills Cemetery in Flint. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be sent to the University of Michigan Cancer Center-Breast Cancer Research Program, Ann Arbor, in her name.

ELIZABETH A. CHISOLM
 Ann Arbor
 Age 46 died Sunday, June 6, 1999, at her home. She was born Feb. 21, 1953, in Flint, the daughter of John and Florence (Vance) Reed. Elizabeth was united in marriage to Gary Chisolm on Aug. 19, 1972, in Ann Arbor. She ran day care in her home, and all her kids called her "Lizzy."

Elizabeth was a wonderful wife, mother, homemaker, and was a caregiver to everyone. She was a very special person who gave her heart to everyone. Elizabeth also loved to bowl.

She is survived by her husband Gary of Ann Arbor; children Matthew (Amy) of Ann Arbor and Annette (Avery) of Ann Arbor; grandsons Anthony and Alec Chisolm of Ann Arbor; father John Reed of Hale; sisters Loretta, Judy, Katherine, and Susan; brothers Grant and Kip; mother-in-law Marie, father-in-law Raymond; brothers-in-law Danny and Mark; sister-in-law Debbie; many nieces and nephews, and all the children she raised in day care.

Funeral services will be held Thursday, June 10, 1999, at 11 a.m. at Hosmer-Muehlberg Funeral Chapel, Dexter, MI. Entombment will follow at Washtenaw Memorial park. The family received visitors at the funeral home on Wednesday from 2 p.m.-4 p.m. and 6 p.m.-9 p.m. Those wishing may make memorial contributions in her name to From The Heart Foundation.

FRED WILLARD LEWIS, SR.
 Dundee
 Formerly of Chelsea

Age 81, died Thursday, May 13, 1999, in Dundee, Fla. He was born on April 28, 1918, in Kennett, Mo., the son of Andrew J. Lewis, Jr. and Lucy (Barks) Lewis. Mr. Lewis moved to Chelsea in 1957. He worked at Dana in Chelsea.

On Sept. 20, 1939, he married Lucille E. Johnson in Kennewett, Mo., and she survives. Other survivors include three sons, Troy (Lola) Lewis of Fort Mills, S.C., Fred (Olga) Lewis Jr. of Naples, Fla., Gene (Jeanne) Lewis of Chelsea; two daughters, Stella (LeRoy) Simmons of Shelby Township and Martha (Bill) Benhke of Ann Arbor.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, June 12, at 1 p.m. at the Chelsea Free Methodist Church, with the Rev. Mearl Bradley officiating. Memorial contributions may be made to Chelsea Free Methodist Church. Local arrangements by Cole Funeral Chapel.

LAWRENCE H. RUHLEN

Chelsea
 Formerly of Jackson
 Age 91, died Saturday evening, June 5, 1999, at the Chelsea Retirement Community. He was born Feb. 11, 1908, in Kenton, Ohio, the son of Clarence E. and Nellie (Miller) Ruhlen. Mr. Ruhlen had resided in Jackson for 50 years and moved to Chelsea in September of 1991. Mr. Ruhlen was a professional electrical engineer and was retired from Gilbert/Commonwealth Associates. He was a member of I.E.E.E., a former member of Civilian Club of Jackson and a former member of the Jackson and Detroit Yacht Clubs. Larry enjoyed sailboat racing and golf. He was a member of the First United Methodist Church of Jackson. Prior to serving in the U.S. Navy during World War II, he spent five years working on the Panama Canal.

On Sept. 9, 1933, he married Margaret J. Parks and she survives. Their only son, Bruce L. Ruhlen, preceded him in death in 1968. Also surviving are three grandchildren, Timothy L. Ruhlen, Matthew S. Ruhlen and Susan E. Clark; his former daughter-in-law, Sally Reigle, of Grand Blanc; and four great grandchildren.

Memorial service will be held at a later date. Expressions of sympathy may be made to the Chelsea Retirement Community. Interment will be in the Rose Memorial Garden at the Chelsea Retirement Community. Arrangements by Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home, Chelsea.

EDNA MAY LAWLER
 Phoenix, Ariz.

Age, 87, died May 11, 1999, at her home in Phoenix. She was born on Sept. 28, 1911, in Skewen, Wales, Great Britain. She married Irvin D. Lawler in Detroit, on March 23, 1935. He preceded her in death January, 1991. Survivors include her daughter, Barbara (Bill) Frame of Chelsea; son, Douglas (Lee) Lawler of California; six grandchildren, Robert of Traverse City, David of Chelsea, Phillip of Mason, Sandra of Kalamazoo, Paul of Chelsea and Sadie Lawler of Barcelona, Spain; and seven great-grandchildren.

A memorial service was held May 15, 1999, at University Presbyterian Church, Tempe, Ariz. Private family burial was held in Chelsea. Memorial contributions may be made to the hospice of one's choice. Arrangements by Staffan-Mitchell Funeral Home.

A lot of people don't. Some of them fail to yield at highway-rail crossings. Others ignore the flashing lights or gates. Still others trespass on t'n property. And last year alone, 3,500 people were killed or maimed for life because they just didn't expect a train.
