Incumbent, newcomer win race

■ Third contender comes forward as a write-in candidate.

By Sheila Pursglove
Associate Editor

A two-horse leisurely canter in a race for two uncontested spots on the Chelsea school board unexpectedly turned into a three-way gallop Monday when Dawn Dault threw her hat into the ring as a write-in candidate at the 11th hour.

Since Dault made the decision to run last Friday, the deadline day for write-in candidates, many people were unaware the shoo-in had become more of a contest.

This was reflected in the low voter turnout. Jan Pratt, secretary to Superintendent Ed Richardson, said Tuesday that 288 votes had been cast out of 12,000 registered voters.

Newcomer Jon Bentley was the top vote-getter with 217, while incumbent Dayle Wright grabbed 195. Dault garnered 78 votes.

Although she was unsuccessful in her bid, Dault said Tuesday that she would be interested in a future run.

Dault is a member of the Chelsea Community Family Network, a volunteer committee working toward creating a community atmosphere that encourages youth to steer clear of risky behavior.

Dault said committee members encouraged her to run during a committee meeting Friday. She and her husband, Scott, both Chelsea High School graduates, have three children who attend South Meadows Elementary School.

"I thought I'd give it a shot, but I only had two days to campaign," she said Tuesday. "However, I'll be working closely with the board to get the family network program up and running."

Board President Scott Broshar said Tuesday that the election got "a little more interesting" at the end.

"I appreciate Dawn's interest in the schools and

Library to follow state Internet law

■ Federal court ruling doesn't affect Chelsea.

By Michael Rybka
Special Writer

It appears that libraries have been too busy complying with the state's Internet guidelines to waste time and money arguing about more expansive federal legislation recently overturned by a three-judge panel in the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Dexter District Library Director Paul McCann said the ruling probably wouldn't be the last on the issue of Internet filtering at public libraries.

Libraries in Michigan still have to abide by state law that requires parental supervision or filtering software for minors using public library computers.

The Children's Internet Protection Act was signed into law by President Bill Clinton in 2000 and was supposed to go into effect July 1 of that year. The act would have required public libraries to install Internet filtering programs on computers to protect minors from sexually explicit Web sites or risk losing federal technology funds.

Chelsea Library Director

Metta Lansdale said the Chelsea library has not applied for federal funding since a year prior to her accepting the director's position in November 1997. At that time, the library used the funds to acquire a public computer station.

"What we could have received from the federal government this year would have been minuscule," she said. "We have better ways to garner funding, but smaller libraries really need federal funds. Michigan libraries are in terrible shape compared to other states."

McCann said the Dexter District Library Board has not sought federal funding since 1998.

Despite not being tangibly put out by the law prior to it being rejected, area library directors still have a lot to say about what they see as censorship.

"The government should not be making these type of decisions or forcing libraries to make promises that they are unable to fulfill," Lansdale said.

She said the federal law was faulty because it assumed it was technologically possible to filter images.

Sylvan OKs training burn

■ Township Board also postpones road agreement.

By Michael Rybka
Special Writer

The Sylvan Township Board voted June 4 to burn down a house it purchased next to the township hall and postponed approval of an agreement with the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

The board discussed how to go about demolishing the house before agreeing to have the Chelsea Area Fire Authority burn it down as part of a training exercise. The township took physical possession of the house earlier this month.

Firefighters set fire to all the structures on the property the morning of June 9.

The township bought the parcel, approximately two acres at 17935 Old US-12, from Dottie Skodak more than year ago but gave her until June 1 to vacate.

Special Projects Coordinator Gerald Dresselhouse said the property was purchased for unspecified future use.

In other news, the board decided to hold off signing an agreement with the county for road improvements until a problem with site distance in the northwest quadrant of Witness Tree Lane and Conway Road is addressed.

Dresselhouse said after the meeting that site distance — the ability of a driver to see to the right or left — is compromised at the location by vegetation, an embankment and a hill.

Because Conway Road is designated as a local road, Dresselhouse said improvements only can be made by the township with funding matched by the county.

Dresselhouse said the county allots a given amount of money to each township for road improvements based on various demographics.

Gas leaks create week of chaos

■ Gas line breaks cause evacuations.

By Sheila Pursglove
Associate Editor

An old gas line dating from the 1920s has caused huge problems for Chelsea residents and drivers on M-52 for the past week.

On June 4, TCI, the construction company installing new water lines on Main Street, hit a gas line at Van Buren and Main streets. The snafu happened at evening rush hour on M-52.

Chelsea Fire Inspector Matt Tuttle said Tuesday that the fire department was called at 5:21 p.m. June 4.

"It was a 4-inch gas line, with 10 psi (pounds per square inch), that could have caused a huge problem," Tuttle said. "There were high levels of explosive limits."

Chelsea Water Department Superintendent Dan Rösentrater said Tuesday that the problem was a stub with a cap on it, jutting out from the old gas line. The stub was not on any blueprints.

Michigan Consolidated Gas Co. was called, and Tuttle said staff from Federal Screw Works and the Perky Pantry were evacuated. Residents at six homes on Van Buren and Main Street were also asked to leave. In all, Tuttle said 200 people were evacuated.

In addition, M-52 was shut down from Orchard Street to Old US-12, and Van Buren Street was closed off.

Residents were allowed to return at 8:30 p.m. and the roads re-opened, Tuttle said.

The fire department was back on the scene about 24 hours later at 11:45 p.m. Wednesday.

"The crews would fix one part of the old gas line and another portion would crack," Tuttle said.

No evacuations were necessary the second time around, he said.

The saga continued at 8:51 p.m. Thursday, with another gas leak forcing the closure of the Perky Pantry once more. Fire crews also shut all doors and windows at Federal Screw Works. This time, M-52 was closed from Summit to Lincoln Street.

While Friday passed without a hitch, another gas leak occurred at 9:57 p.m. Saturday and had to be fixed, Tuttle said.

Again on Monday, the fire department was called at 5:22 a.m. for another gas leak. Later that morning, MichCon crews placed a new gas line at the intersection of Van Buren and Main, running down Van Buren to tap into an existing line, Tuttle said.

"Part of the problem is that the line was half steel, half metal and crews had to come from two different areas to fix it," Tuttle said.

He said fire crews stayed on the scene until 1:30 p.m. Monday.

Main Street was closed from Summit to Old US-12, with a fire truck standing guard at Old US-12 and M-52. Van Buren Street was also closed.

Tuttle said the Perky Pantry was allowed to stay open for walk-in traffic, but no one was permitted to pump gasoline.

Tuttle said everything was back to normal once the meter readings for explosive limits read zero.

lege and then transfer to a four-year university.

"Watching his growth was remarkable," said teacher Barb Fisher. "He was a model for all the other students."

In his speech, Campbell discussed the diversity of the group and talked about their futures.

"A thank you for all who have supported us to help us graduate this year," he said. "Unforgettable memories were shared that made this year different from the rest. Dirt bikes, horses, computers, music to wood-working — all lead the class of 2002 to where it is at now."

Calling the graduation ceremony a "momentous occasion," he said all the students were happy to have survived the last grades to move on to the working world and make their contributions to society and the world.

"We are all procrastinators," Campbell said. "We give teachers gray hairs. But if you are going to do something, you have to stick with it."

"Determination and discovering the value of the world and school-to-work programs is a team effort. The students do follow directions."

Each graduating senior was recognized by a friend or family member who shared a graduation memory of that student, and handed out diploma and plaques that the students had made for each other in a leadership group. Students planned and put together the entire graduation ceremony with help from the parents advisory group.

School-to-Work program adviser Annette Bragalone said each student worked to meet such goals as learning how to get a job. She said goals would not have been reached without the cooperation of local businesses that employ the students.

The Alternative High School, which started six years ago with 17 students, uses a different learning style and small class sizes to help students succeed and reach their goal of graduating. Many who participated in the program felt out of place in the larger high school and found it difficult to learn in that environment.

Student Audrey Luck was "the queen of procrastination," taking the slow steady approach to earning a diploma, Fisher said. Luck, who attended the Alternative High School for two years, never gave up and exceeded teacher expectations. Fisher said the teen went out of her way to help others.

Luck will attend Washtenaw Community College part time while working at a preschool.

Fisher recalled the struggle that student Shawna Loe had. "She did not show up until the middle of her 10th-grade year,"

Fisher said. "She earned 9.5 credits in one year by taking extra extension courses. She also worked and took night school to catch up with the rest."

Student Pete Merkel said attending the Alternative High School made it easier for him to learn.

"The teachers encouraged me to get my work done," Merkel said. "I do better here and I have help if I need it. I went to Chelsea High School for 17 years and had no friends. I wasn't doing well and I couldn't pay attention. I wasn't interested in school."

Merkel raised his grades from D's to mostly A's and plans to attend the American Motorcycle Institute or Motorcycle Mechanics Institute.

Student Craig Taylor attended Chelsea High School for six months.

"My worst classes were science and math," Taylor said. "I came here and science and math are taught together; it helped me out a lot."

"Here teachers know that I learn differently. I am more accepted here."

"I understand that I'm different. I can't stand just sitting in a chair for eight hours. Here we work at our own pace somewhat."

Student Zac Hawker, an honor-roll student at the Alternative High School, arrived after failing his classes at the Chelsea High School. For Hawker, being able to use a laptop computer made all the difference.

"Laptops were a big hit for me. I hate to write on paper," he said. "Using a computer makes learning more interesting."

Hawker hopes to work in the paint department at the University of Michigan. With two books in the beginning stages, he also hopes to further a writing career.

Fisher said that in the small classes offered by the school, she and other staff members have a rewarding relationship with her students.

"They feel that they can trust us here," she said. "They feel safer here."

RESPONDING IN KIND
People who are sued can go beyond facts developed in the litigation may be merely defending themselves against the action by filing a countersuit against anyone who is thought to be responsible for the suit or related problems. The defendant, who files the countersuit, remains a defendant in the original complaint and also becomes a type of plaintiff known as a cross-plaintiff (or cross-complainant). Whoever is sued in the countersuit, including the original plaintiff, becomes a cross-defendant (counter-defendant). While the countersuit is treated, legally, as a completely new complaint, it becomes connected to the original complaint. From then on, all proceedings (trial included) will include both the original suit and the countersuit. All facts developed in the litigation may be used to prove or disprove either case. If you feel that you are the "wronged party" in a particular situation, and yet have had charges brought against you by the person or entity that you feel is responsible for a loss or injury, then filing a countersuit may be a viable option. Filing a motion to dismiss may also be an option should the facts uphold your claim that the plaintiff has no legal basis for bringing suit. To discuss your specific situation, call the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, J.D., located in Dexter at 3249 Broad Street at 426-4695 to schedule a free consultation. HINT: A countersuit is usually filed at the same time the defendant files an answer.

Council postpones millage hearing

County uses outdated figures for Lima Township.

By Kent Ashton Walton

Special Writer

Chelsea Village Council postponed a public hearing on the millage rate, which will support general operations.

Village Manager Jack Myers said Tuesday that the County Equalization Department used tax valuation figures from 2001 on Lima Township property located within the village in its recalculation of the levy.

In accordance with the Truth-

in-Taxation Act, Myers said the council needs to establish the rate. He said there will be no tax increase, but the village will collect more money as the result of an increase in local home values. Last year's millage rate was 13.4. This year's proposed rate is 12.8.

Village Clerk Jill Branson said

yesterday that all tax items originally slated for Tuesday's agenda will be postponed to the next council meeting. The meeting will be held 7:30 p.m. June 25 at the Washington Street Education Center, 500 Washington St.

lege and then transfer to a four-year university.

"Watching his growth was remarkable," said teacher Barb Fisher. "He was a model for all the other students."

In his speech, Campbell discussed the diversity of the group and talked about their futures.

"A thank you for all who have supported us to help us graduate this year," he said. "Unforgettable memories were shared this year."

Calling the graduation ceremony a "momentous occasion," he said all the students were happy to have survived the last grades to move on to the working world and make their contributions to society and the world.

"We are all procrastinators," Campbell said. "We give teachers gray hairs. But if you are going to do something, you have to stick with it."

"Determination and discovering the value of the world and school-to-work programs is a team effort. The students do follow directions."

Each graduating senior was recognized by a friend or family member who shared a graduation memory of that student, and

handed out diploma and plaques that the students had made for each other in a leadership group. Students planned and put together the entire graduation ceremony with help from the parents advisory group.

School-to-Work program adviser Annette Bragalone said each student worked to meet such goals as learning how to get a job. She said goals would not have been reached without the cooperation of local businesses that employ the students.

The Alternative High School, which started six years ago with 17 students, uses a different learning style and small class sizes to help students succeed and reach their goal of graduating. Many who participated in the program felt out of place in the larger high school and found it difficult to learn in that environment.

Student Audrey Luck was "the queen of procrastination," taking the slow steady approach to earning a diploma, Fisher said. Luck, who attended the Alternative High School for two years, never gave up and exceeded teacher expectations. Fisher said the teen went out of her way to help others.

Luck will attend Washtenaw Community College part time while working at a preschool.

Fisher recalled the struggle that student Shawna Loe had. "She did not show up until the middle of her 10th-grade year,"

Fisher said. "She earned 9.5 credits in one year by taking extra extension courses. She also worked and took night school to catch up with the rest."

Student Pete Merkel said attending the Alternative High School made it easier for him to learn.

"The teachers encouraged me to get my work done," Merkel said. "I do better here and I have help if I need it. I went to Chelsea High School for 17 years and had no friends. I wasn't doing well and I couldn't pay attention. I wasn't interested in school."

Merkel raised his grades from D's to mostly A's and plans to attend the American Motorcycle Institute or Motorcycle Mechanics Institute.

Student Craig Taylor attended Chelsea High School for six months.

"My worst classes were science and math," Taylor said. "I came here and science and math are taught together; it helped me out a lot."

"Here teachers know that I learn differently. I am more accepted here."

"I understand that I'm different. I can't stand just sitting in a chair for eight hours. Here we work at our own pace somewhat."

Student Zac Hawker, an honor-roll student at the Alternative High School, arrived after failing his classes at the Chelsea High School. For Hawker, being able to use a laptop computer made all the difference.

"Laptops were a big hit for me. I hate to write on paper," he said. "Using a computer makes learning more interesting."

Hawker hopes to work in the paint department at the

Council postpones millage hearing

County uses outdated figures for Lima Township.

By Kent Ashton Walton

Special Writer

Chelsea Village Council postponed a public hearing on the millage rate, which will support general operations.

Village Manager Jack Myers said Tuesday that the County Equalization Department used tax valuation figures from 2001 on Lima Township property located within the village in its recalculation of the levy.

In accordance with the Truth-

in-Taxation Act, Myers said the council needs to establish the rate. He said there will be no tax increase, but the village will collect more money as the result of an increase in local home values. Last year's millage rate was 13.4. This year's proposed rate is 12.8.

Village Clerk Jill Branson said

yesterday that all tax items originally slated for Tuesday's agenda will be postponed to the next council meeting. The meeting will be held 7:30 p.m. June 25 at the Washington Street Education Center, 500 Washington St.

RESPONDING IN KIND
People who are sued can go beyond facts developed in the litigation may be merely defending themselves against the action by filing a countersuit against anyone. If you feel that you are the "wronged party" in a particular situation, and yet have had charges brought against you by the person or entity that you feel is responsible for a loss or injury, then filing a motion to dismiss may also be an option. Filing a motion to dismiss may also be an option should the facts uphold your claim that the plaintiff has no legal basis for bringing suit. To discuss your specific situation, call the LAW OFFICES OF KITCHEN & STRINGER, J.D., located in Dexter at 3249 Broad Street at 426-4695 to schedule a free consultation. HINT: A countersuit is usually filed at the same time the defendant files an answer.

Chelsea School District recognizes retiring employees

By Sheila Pursglove
Associate Editor

Last year, Chelsea Superintendent Ed Richardson spoke at the district luncheon honoring retirees.

This year, he was one of them. Richardson was among the 10 retirees honored with a luncheon May 23 at Reddeman Farms in Chelsea.

Richardson, who has served as superintendent in Chelsea for the past eight years, announced his retirement in January.

The Morenci native is taking his 25 years of experience in education to a new position. He has been hired as special assistant to the president for charter schools at Grand Valley State University.

"Ed is a man of integrity, focus and the desire to make a difference," Assistant Principal Iva Corbett said. "His leadership has brought Chelsea to the forefront in facilities and technology. Grand Valley is lucky to have him."

Bill Wescott, who is retiring as principal at Beach Middle School, has spent 28 years in the school district as a teacher, coach and administrator. He has led Beach Middle School for the past five years and has also served as principal at North Creek Elementary School.

Wescott has also coached in many areas, including varsity softball, middle school football and wrestling, and junior varsity football.

"Bill has never met a student he didn't love unconditionally," Corbett said. "His warm smile and commitment to Chelsea will be missed. He is the heart of the administrative staff."

Beach Assistant Principal Andrew Ingall, who will succeed Wescott, said that his predecessor has been a teammate in the truest sense of the word.

"I will really miss working with him every day. It has been one of the top experiences in my professional career," Ingall said.

"He has brought so much in the way of caring and compassion to the students he has worked with in both the elementary buildings and Beach."

Suzanne DeVries has spent 30 years teaching in the Chelsea School District, most recently at Pierce Lake Elementary School, where she teaches fourth grade.

She previously taught first-through fourth grades at South

Meadows Elementary School, and taught fourth grade at North Creek Elementary School.

"Suzanne was responsible for starting the Pierce Lake Wetlands Project," Corbett said. "She has high expectations for her students who thrive in her classroom."

Pierce Lake Principal Lucy Stieber said that DeVries is an innovative educator.

"Suzanne has been active on district curriculum committees and shares her expertise with peers through in-service presentations," Stieber said. "Her dedication, ingenuity and wit will be greatly missed."

Jim Bechtelheimer has taught at Chelsea High School for 37 years and was hired to teach U.S. government. He also has taught U.S. history, economics, sociology and Michigan history.

He has served the Chelsea Education Association as a building representative and a member of contract negotiating teams. He has also served as social studies department chairman for several years and has been active in developing the curriculum for the department.

Bechtelheimer also advised "mock trial" teams to argue cases against teams from other schools.

"Everyone should have the opportunity to be taught by this consummate master teacher," Corbett said. "Jim is loved, respected and held in the highest esteem by staff and students alike."

Jim Winter came to Chelsea in 1974 and has taught U.S. history, anthropology, government, sociology, economics and current problems.

Corbett said that Winter is known as "the mentor" at the high school.

"Jim has not only mentored students but developed a mentor program for all new teachers, as well," she said.

Winter has been coordinator of the School-to-Career transition program, co-chair of the high school improvement team and served on several other committees.

He has also coached middle school volleyball, boys' freshman basketball, girls' JV basketball and girls' varsity basketball.

Winter has been a Chelsea Education Association building representative and served as vice president and negotiator. In the mid-1970s, he served as the summer recreation director for the Chelsea Recreation Department.

Lillie Worden is retiring after 26 years in the transportation department, first as a bus driver and later as a special education monitor.

In addition to her regular run, she drove the swim and kindergarten runs for years, and also drove on sports trips and the vocational run. Her future plans include delivering meals for the Chelsea "Meals on Wheels" program.

"Lillie was always concerned about the kids and enjoys it when a former student says hello to her on the street," Transportation Director Sam Vogel said.

Corbett said that Worden greeted her students nearly every day for 26 years with a smile and a hello, starting the day on a positive note.

Ron Laczko is stepping down from teaching fifth grade at South Meadows Elementary School.

Laczko, who started teaching in September 1973, was instrumental in implementing the DARE program in Chelsea.

"As a reserve police officer on weekends, Ron had a special interest in creating a police-student liaison program," Corbett said.

South Meadows Elementary School Principal Lisa Nickel said that Laczko had been a tremendous leader with the fifth-grade Safety Patrol Squad.

"He does a great job problem-solving with the students so they are part of the solution," Nickel said. "He is also a strong believer that students should know all their math facts."

Teacher Sally Schluppe is retiring from her position at Pierce Lake Elementary School. Schluppe has taught in Chelsea since 1974 and previously was on staff at North Creek Elementary School.

Pierce Lake Elementary School Principal Lucy Stieber said Schluppe was involved with the initial planning of the Chelsea History Program and the tours at Chelsea Milling Co.'s Jiffy Mix plant.

"She has actively sought the involvement of families in the daily curriculum," Stieber said. "Her parent-run centers are a fun way to convey knowledge and create a family learning atmosphere. She has always sought to provide a rich, fun learning environment."

"She has also sought to work with her peers to form a professional family of educators."

Corbett said that Schluppe is known for her creativity, use of literature in all projects, and special work in the development of the Chelsea history curriculum.

Nancy Cooper has been a fixture in the district since 1969. She followed a year of student teaching with 32 years of teaching special education at the high school.

She also is involved in the Special Olympics, coaching all sports involved and started an apartment-living project for mentally impaired young adults.

Special Education Director Mary Koert said that where others might see disabilities, Cooper found abilities.

"Nancy helped students develop individual skills to their own personal best, in academics, sports, work skills and in independent living," Koert said.

"Her endless energy and enthusiasm for students has touched many lives over her years at Chelsea."

Corbett described Cooper as "a dynamo with a passion for young adults" who forges bonds with her students through academics, work projects and Special Olympics.

Sandra Wilson, a special education paraprofessional at Beach Middle School, is among those retiring after working for the school district since 1988.

"Sandi has been an excellent employee," Beach Middle School Principal Bill Wescott said. "She has served many of our students who have special needs. In addition, she has organized and implemented our eighth-grade Washington D.C. trip in April. I appreciate her hard work on behalf of Beach Middle School students."

Diesing retires after 12 years on Chelsea school board

By Sheila Pursglove
Associate Editor

After 12 years on the school board, Chelsea Board of Education Vice President Jane Diesing decided not to run for re-election this year.

A 1965 Chelsea High School graduate, Diesing earned a bachelor's degree in medical technology from Michigan State University in 1989 and spent eight years as a medical technologist at Sparrow Hospital in Lansing.

She has been involved with her children's schools for 25 years and started out as a volunteer in their preschools.

Diesing served as president of Murphy Elementary School PTO in Haslett, where she and her husband lived for 12 years. After moving to Chelsea, she served as president of North Creek Elementary School's PTO.

"Running for the board was a natural extension of my interest in helping to provide a good school environment for children," she said. "Having graduated from Chelsea, I was interested in giving back to a community that had provided me with a good education."

Diesing was elected to the school board in 1990. She served as president for six years, secretary for a year, treasurer for two years and was most recently vice president.

She also served as president of the Washtenaw Association of School Boards for three years. She received certification with the Michigan Association of School Boards, and earned the Award of Merit and Award of Distinction for her participation with statewide programs.

In 12 years, Diesing has served with 15 different board members and two superintendents, Ed Richardson and the late Joseph Piasecki.

"I've found every one of them to be good, caring people who wanted to create great opportunities for students and high-quality schools for Chelsea," Diesing said. "When everyone has that as their goal, then the results have to be good."

"I leave the board proud that our academic performance is high, our facilities are updated, clean and neat, our transportation record is excellent, our food service provides good, healthy meals and our finances are sound."

"This doesn't just happen," she said. "It takes the hard work and dedication of hundreds of people doing their jobs well, along with strong community support."

One of Diesing's favorite board activities is handing out diplomas at high school graduation.

"We learn about our students being accepted to some of the best universities in the country," she said. "We hear amazing musical performances and speeches delivered with poise and confidence. We see students graduating through our Alternative Education program who years ago might have been drop out statistics."

"It's the culmination of all the hard work our students, administrators, teachers and parents have done. It's a wonderful celebration."

Among the highlights of Diesing's years on the board were the building of the new high school and Pierce Elementary School, and renovations to existing buildings.

"The building process was long, with a lot of compromise necessary to spread the dollars to do the most for the kids," she said. "I'm pleased with the results."

Diesing said the most difficult part of her tenure was dealing with the murder of Piasecki and the aftermath effects on the school district's personnel and the community.

"I had been president of the board for six months," she said. "One minute I was helping my daughter and her friends bake Christmas cookies, and the next I was dealing with overwhelming shock and grief while every news media in the country descended on this town."

"Our school district and community came together then as they've had to do much too often in recent years. I'm not sure it's right to feel pride at such a tragic time, but I felt so proud and grateful for the support and help that this community gave."

Diesing said that with her children done with school it feels like the right time to focus more energy on the family businesses.

She co-owns The Village Shoppe of Chelsea and The Village Shoppe Too with her mother. Her husband, Dave, is president and dealer of Faist-Diesing Chevrolet, Buick and Oldsmobile Inc. in Chelsea. Her father, Ted Faist, was the former dealer and had been with the dealership for 50 years.

The Diesings' two sons, Jeff and James, work in sales at the dealership, while their daughter, Jennifer, is studying business at Michigan State University.

Diesing, who is looking forward to spending time traveling, reading, golfing and relaxing at the family's cottage, said that it has been an honor to be selected by the community to serve on the board for the past 12 years.

"I've worked with wonderful people all wanting to educate, and help kids," she said. "We argue over philosophies, money, policies, legislation; and, at times, it gets pretty intense. But the results are always worth the trip getting there."

"I have every confidence that our Board of Education will continue down a strong path. I thank Ed Richardson for a job well done and wish David Killips the best as he leads our schools into the future."

Associate Editor Sheila Pursglove can be reached at 475-1371 or via e-mail at spursglove@heritage.com.

Trio named exemplary employees at Chelsea schools

Three members of the Chelsea school district were honored as exemplary employees at the May 23 luncheon at Reddeman Farms. They were also recognized Friday at a staff luncheon. They are Beach Middle School teacher Kathryn Shirmohammad (left), retiring Pierce Lake Elementary School teacher Suzanne DeVries, and transportation secretary and dispatcher Chris Frayer.

By Sheila Pursglove
Associate Editor

Chelsea schools transportation secretary Chris Frayer, Beach Middle School teacher Kathryn Shirmohammad and Pierce Lake Elementary School teacher Suzanne DeVries have been named tops in their fields.

They were selected as exemplary employees by the school district and were honored at luncheons May 23 and June 7.

Transportation Director Sam Vogel said Frayer is the "do-it-all lady" of the department.

"Her official job title is dispatcher and secretary, but she handles numerous duties every day," Vogel said.

"It's amazing how she can recognize almost every student's name and identify which bus he or she is on and where that student is supposed to be on a given day."

"Over the years, the drivers are always amazed at how calm Chris stays on the radio and phone and how she handles all situations calmly."

Frayer, a 13-year Chelsea resident, started working for the Chelsea School District 10 years ago as a paraprofessional in the Community Education preschool program. After 18 months, she moved to the transportation department in July, 1994 as a part-time employee.

Frayer became a full-time employee in December 1997 after working for the transportation and operations departments. In April 1998, she went full time in transportation.

Fire board, council hash out issues

■ Village costs increase because of retirement homes.

By Michael Rybka
Special Writer

The Chelsea Area Fire Authority met in a work session with the Chelsea Village Council May 24 to explain to new council members the history, purpose and future of the authority. They also sought to allay fears that costs were not justifying village participation.

Trustee Jim Myles, a founding participant of the authority process, said later that he believed a case was made well enough to place any thought of a village pullout on hold.

Of great concern to the village was an earlier report from its liaison, Trustee Charles Ritter, that a millage increase would be asked for in the fall.

"We discussed it," said Andrew Adrian, chairman of the Chelsea Area Fire Authority said. "We discuss a lot of things just like I'm sure you do at council meetings."

"We wouldn't ask for one until we had a 15-20-year long-term plan. That won't happen soon. We're still working on the short-term right now."

Myles said that answer satisfied him.

"That's exactly what a responsible board would do," Myles said. "We were looking for an assurance that controls would be in place."

Nevertheless, many on the council, particularly trustees

Dale Schumann and Janice Orbring, expressed concern over rising costs.

Schumann said the cost to the village has risen 8.2 percent since the authority's inception.

Former Lima Township Supervisor Gary Adams, another founding participant of the authority process, said this was due to the opening of The Pines and Silver Maples.

Adams said that medical responses make up 80 percent of fire department calls and that these two residential sites are responsible for many of them.

Each participating unit of the authority pays a pro-rated amount of money based on the number of calls in their respective municipality.

Myles said that while that may be true, far too many working hours were expended in responding.

Myles said it was not unusual for 10 to 12 firefighters to show up at a situation when only two were needed.

Fire Chief Dan Ellenwood said he hoped to see that problem alleviated by the recent initiation of two part-time, on-duty firefighters.

Ellenwood said the new system has already proven to be cost cutting on medical runs. He admitted, however, that the authority's hands were tied in other ways.

"Because of insurance ratings, everyone must respond to a fire call," Ellenwood said.

He also explained that Huron Valley Ambulance automatically calls for the fire department when it responds.

"They get our services for free," Ellenwood said. "It's our choice whether to respond or not. However, if you judge wrong, you could be made liable."

Council members asked for an appraisal of the authority's past and a vision for its future.

Lyndon Township Supervisor Maryann Noah said that the authority has expanded the fire department's scope and heightened its standards.

Ellenwood said that firefighters are upgrading their certifications from medical first response to emergency medical treatment. This exceeds minimum standards and could possibly make their medical runs more self-reliant.

Noah said that the council needed to be apprised of where the authority is headed.

"The feedback we hear from the council has been demoralizing and fills us with uncertainty," Noah said. "For the village to become comfortable with the authority it will need more and better information."

She said that the authority knows where it's been and knows where it's at now.

"I feel as responsible for the residents of the village as much as I do for the residents of Lyndon Township," Noah said.

"It would be counterproductive not to look at the larger picture."

The co-chair of the Chelsea Shimizu Exchange Program and a member of the Chelsea Music Boosters, Prater is also a member of Modern Mothers Club, and last month chaired the Cum Laude Banquet at the high school.

She and her husband, Bob, have twin sons at Grand Valley State University and a daughter at Beach Middle School.

Prater, whose hobbies are reading, cross-stitch and sewing, is also a member of St. Mary Catholic Church and the Ladies of St. Mary.

"Chris is the heart of the transportation department," Assistant Superintendent Iva Corbett said. "She knows everyone, loves everyone and takes care of everyone."

"Student safety is her main concern."

Beach Middle School Principal Bill Wescott called Shirmohammad an "outstanding educator."

"She makes learning English enjoyable for her eighth-graders," he said. "Her recent writing project with the Chelsea Retirement Community is an example of how she teaches writing to our kids. Students feel more connected to our community and enjoy learning about others during different generational times."

"We in Chelsea are very lucky to have Kathryn teaching our children."

Shirmohammad, who has been teaching in Chelsea for five years, met her husband, Craig McCalla, at the school district's new teacher orientation in August 1997. McCalla teaches at Pierce Lake Elementary School. The couple makes their home in Whitmore Lake.

Shirmohammad teaches eighth-grade language arts and seventh- and eighth-grade swimming.

"I like middle school students because they get excited about doing special projects and they have a lot of energy," she said.

Corbett said that Shirmohammad brings passion, dedication and enthusiasm to her teaching position.

"Kathryn is a tireless advocate for learning and student achievement," Corbett said. "She is a leader and role model among staff."

Corbett said that when asked to select a teacher to represent the best-of-the-best, DeVries comes to mind. DeVries is retiring after 30 years of teaching, during which she has taught at all three Chelsea elementary schools.

She previously taught first through fourth grades at South Meadows Elementary School, including an open classroom combining second, third and fourth grades. She also taught fourth grade at North Creek Elementary School and was also responsible for starting the Pierce Lake Wetlands Project.

"Suzanne consistently brings out the best in her students," Corbett said. "She looks for their strengths and provides avenues for each student to succeed."

Pierce Lake Elementary School Principal Lucy Stieber has enjoyed the benefit of DeVries' teaching expertise in recent years and said the teacher is a good representative of the professional staff.

"Suzanne creates an enriching learning environment for students," Stieber said. "She is an eager learner, shares her expertise with peers and is an innovator in the development of curriculum."

encourage her to stay involved," he said.

Broshar said that Wright's continued leadership and experience will certainly be a benefit to the board as it "faces new issues and difficult financial times."

"I also look forward to getting to know Jon better and spending some time with him in orientation to board activities," Broshar said. "I'm confident he will bring a thoughtful, reasoned approach to board activities."

Wright said Tuesday that she is looking forward to getting ready for the new school year.

"During the summer, we still have to negotiate a contract with the teachers and bring the new superintendent on board," she said. "It's possible we'll also vote on the recreation millage and, if so, we'll be busy communicating with the public and getting plans made."

Bentley said Tuesday that he is happy for the opportunity to serve on the board.

"It's really all about helping our kids and making sure they have the opportunity and environment to succeed," he said. "I'm glad that I'm going to be able to contribute to that cause."

Nature's best Community farms provide organic food

By Kent Ashton Walton
Special Writer

Community-supported agriculture farms supply fresh produce directly to the local community. Members usually buy annual shares of farm produce, which they receive weekly.

One of these unusual ventures is located at 2510 Hayes Road in Sylvan Township; the other in Lima Township.

The 40-acre Tantre Farm is an organic farm owned and operated by Richard Andres and Deb Lentz. The Community Farm of Ann Arbor, 1525 Fletcher Road in Lima Township, is a similar operation owned and run by Paul Bantle and Anne Elder.

The Community Farm has been in operation for 15 years, and is in its 11th year at its current location. The farm specializes in a mix of biodynamic and organic farming. Biodynamic farming employs herbal preparations to restore the soil and was introduced by Austrian Rudolf Steiner in the 1920s.

produce, herbs and plants at the Chelsea Farmers' Market. This is Tantre Farm's second season at the local market, which attracts farmers from Dexter and Chelsea.

Lentz said her farm grows everything from certified organic seed. There are about nine acres of vegetables, flowers, herbs and fruit, including strawberries and raspberries.

Tantre Farm community members receive about 10 to 15 pounds of organic produce weekly from early June to the end of October. The cost of the annual shares is $350. Tantre also sells to local stores, restaurants and at the Ann Arbor Farmers' Market.

Bantle and Elder are proud of the acres of compost-cultivated beds, orchard and rotational grazing crops, as well as their farm animals.

"We have four cows, two goats, 30 chickens, two bee hives and two cats," Elder said.

The animals supply manure and pollinate plants. They also provide milk, yogurt, eggs and honey, which are sold separately.

Bantle is also in charge of baking the farm's bread in a hand-built brick oven. The bread is naturally leavened, and made from a mix of biodynamic and organic flours, ground in a stone mill. The oven produces three kinds of heat, convection, conduction and radiation, and the bread takes about 25 minutes to bake.

Karen Chalmer works as an assistant at the Community Farm. She said the children love to come to the farm, visit the animals and see where food actually comes from.

Both farms encourage members to pick strawberries, tomatoes, peas and green beans. This year is the first that the farm has grown flowers to sell at the farmers' market.

The Community Farm has monthly membership meetings, a spring party and a harvest festival. It also has a few shares available for anyone wanting to join.

The farm hires a number of apprentices each year. Recent college graduate Ashley Miller spends seven or more hours outside tending to the land, which she said is a change from being in front of a computer.

Both Tantre and Community Farm owners refuse to use synthetic chemicals, pesticides and herbicides on the land. They are concerned about health problems and pollution that they think results from some commercial farming practices.

Fire chief wants to expand duties

■ Board refuses to waive fees for accident victims.

By Michael Rybka
Special Writer

Chelsea Fire Chief Dan Ellenwood asked the Chelsea Area Fire Authority's board May 24 to grant him the right to enforce fire code infractions found during building inspections.

Ellenwood, who also serves as the fire marshal, said he only has the authority to inspect buildings and has to rely on the state to enforce fire codes.

Ellenwood's power of enforcement would need to be adopted as a code by the fire authority and by each participating municipality as an ordinance under Public Act 207.

Ellenwood said he is looking at fee schedules in Detroit and Kalamazoo as models. The schedule would list the monetary penalties for each respective violation of the fire code.

Ellenwood estimated it would take him less than two months to put together a fee schedule for the board to consider.

In other matters, the fire board rejected two appeals by crash victims who said that the $215 they were each billed from the fire authority was unwarranted and unjustified.

Jane Dulworth of Grass Lake wrote that she was idling at the intersection of M-52 and Brown Drive March 6 when her vehicle was rear-ended. She said she was not hurt and her car was not damaged, yet she was billed for the fire department's response.

When rescue personnel arrived on the scene, she said she stayed long enough to assure them that she was OK and make sure the person who caused the crash was not injured.

Dulworth said in a letter to the board that communities should not adopt the same no-fault policy as the state because they contribute to higher insurance rates.

Reba Hartley of Farmington Hills protested her April 29 interaction with the fire authority. Hartley said she was traveling westbound on Interstate 94 near the Kalmbach Road exit in the far right lane.

A driver to her left was tailgating another driver who was then caught unaware when the driver in front of her had to slow down. To avoid a rear-end collision, she said the tailgater recklessly veered in front of her, causing her to slam on her brakes.

She said the pavement was wet and her car fishtailed to the left side of the freeway and bumped against a guardrail.

After regaining control of her car, she said she pulled over to the right-hand shoulder. She said neither her nor her passenger were injured and that there was no damage to her car.

A firefighter arrived on the scene and she said she was under the impression that the officer was volunteering to be a witness. Hartley said the officer showed persistent concern over a blood blister she had on her finger.

Hartley said that because she was waiting to speak to a police officer and because the firefighter was trying to be helpful, she allowed him to gauge and tape her finger.

She noted that the fire authority responded because firefighters were nearby at another accident, not because of a call for help.

The authority voted in both cases that the victims should pay for services.

Of the $215 fee, $165 is for services rendered at the accident scene and $50 is to cover administrative costs, board members said.

Bulldogs regional champs

By Don Richter

Staff Writer

Two more wins.

Two more victories and Chelsea can capture a softball state championship.

The Bulldogs last reached the state finals in 1989, losing 3-1 to Wyoming Rogers.

In the early 1980s, Chelsea was a dominant softball power. The Bulldogs won state championships in 1982 and 1985 with victories over Ogemaw Heights (3-2) and Richmond (7-4), respectively. In 1984, Chelsea reached the finals, falling to Mt. Morris 2-0.

Two more wins and this season's Bulldog squad can join those previous teams in Chelsea softball lore.

Last Saturday, the Division II No. 3-ranked Bulldogs (33-3-1) defeated Trenton 3-0, earning a regional crown. The event was hosted by Carleton Airport.

To win the title, Chelsea had to beat the Trojans' ace Erin Lesko. According to many observers, Lesko is on an even par with Dexter's Jennie Ritter as Michigan's best softball pitcher.

The Bulldogs have defeated Ritter and the Dreadnaughts more than once this season, including the district opener, so facing Lesko wasn't as eye-popping as it might have been for other squads.

"We weren't intimidated," said Chelsea coach Kim Reichard.

The Bulldogs proved that fact by taking a 1-0 lead in the first inning.

With two outs, Chelsea senior Stephanie Crews ripped a triple. The Bulldogs' next batter, senior Jenelle Vlcek, promptly laced a RBI single, bringing Crews home and giving Chelsea a 1-0 advantage early.

The run would turn out to be the game winner, as Bulldog sophomore hurler Jenna Connelly matched Lesko pitch for pitch, allowing three hits, no walks and striking out 10 for the victory.

Reichard said she was impressed with Connelly's performance.

"She pitched her heart out," Reichard said. "She's worked so hard. This shows hard work really pays off."

Chelsea added two insurance runs in the sixth inning.

Junior Julia Arnold led off the inning with a delayed bunt. Sophomore Missy Morcom followed with another bunt, using her speed to beat the throw to first base. Up next was sophomore Alise Augustine, who was hit by a pitch.

With the bases loaded, senior

Connie Kolokithas strode to the plate. In her previous three at-bats against Lesko, Kolokithas had struck out each time. The fourth time, however, was a charm as she belted a two-run RBI single, putting the game away.

Lesko ended the contest with 13 strikeouts.

"She has a great curve and rise ball," Reichard said. "We told the girls to watch out for that."

Apparently the message got through.

"We wanted to score first, and we did," Reichard said. "That set the momentum."

Though Lesko grabs a lot of the headlines, Connelly was just as successful, finishing the regional with two wins, allowing seven hits, fanning 21 and giving up no walks.

Reichard said Connelly's control was key.

"That was huge," she said. "You never want to let them (opponents) on base."

In the regional opener last Saturday morning, Chelsea bested New Boston Huron 5-1.

Connelly chalked up the victory from the circle, surrendering four hits, striking out 11 and walking none.

The Bulldogs scored a run in the second inning and two runs in both the third and fourth innings to secure the "W."

Leading the Chelsea offense was Crews, who had a triple, double and two RBI.

Sophomore Katrina Moffett, Kolokithas and Morcom added two hits each. Augustine chipped in with a double.

"We hit the ball well,"

Reichard said. "We left 11 on base, however. We can't do that against tougher competition."

Last Tuesday, the Bulldogs defeated Pontiac Notre Dame Prep 1-0 in a state quarterfinal game at Saline. With the victory, Chelsea advances to the state semifinals against Alma (27-13) 3:30 p.m. tomorrow at Battle Creek's Bailey Park.

The Division II state championship game is 4 p.m. Saturday.

Two more wins.

Late hit ousts Chelsea from regional tourney

By Don Richter

Staff Writer

Sports, they say, are games of inches. One inch here, one inch there, and outcomes could be different.

So it was last Saturday at Carleton Airport as Chelsea (29-11-1) lost to Monroe Jefferson in the regional championship game 6-5 on a two-out, two-strike, bloop RBI base hit just inside the left-field line.

"It was a game that could have gone either way," said Chelsea coach Wayne Welton. "It was a good ballgame between two really good teams."

On the regional title-clinching hit, Welton said the ball was a high fly down the line.

"The batter was lefthanded and he swung late, and with the sun and the wind, the ball was able to drop in," he said.

The contest started out looking like another Bulldog victory.

With runs in the first and third innings and junior pitcher David Grabarkiewicz cruising along on the mound, Chelsea appeared headed for the win.

In the bottom of the third,

however, the situation quickly changed.

Grabarkiewicz suddenly lost control, walking three and hitting a batter, as the Bears (29-8) tied the game, bringing two runs home without recording a base hit.

With junior Joe Myers replacing Grabarkiewicz on the hill, Jefferson added three more runs in the ensuing innings before the Bulldogs stopped the bleeding with a run of their own. After the dust had settled, Chelsea found itself trailing 5-3 heading into the top of the seventh inning.

After a walk to senior Matt Moffett to lead off the frame, the Bears changed pitchers, bringing in their top reliever.

It didn't matter.

The Bulldogs' next batter, junior Jimmy Baker, blasted a two-run home run over the centerfield wall, 350-feet away, tying the game at 5-5. The round tripper was Baker's sixth of the season.

Despite having momentum, Chelsea was unable to take the lead and headed into the bottom of the seventh tied.

A hat, sunscreen and a part in Willy Wonka

The day started out innocently enough.

After awaking from a fitful slumber, I showered, shaved and scarfed down my traditional state finals pre-event breakfast of Cocoa Puffs and a banana. (It's not really my pre-event breakfast, but it sounded good.)

Anyhow, June 1 was a glorious day. The sun was shining and there was nary a cloud in the sky.

After inhaling my power breakfast, I was ready to seize the day.

Mind you, this wasn't any ordinary day. No, no. It was state finals day for track and field. Both Chelsea and Dexter had numerous athletes competing in the Division II state championship at Houseman Field in Grand Rapids, and I was going to have a front-row seat to the entire affair.

I bounded out the front door, my trusty tape recorder, notepad, press credentials and map of downtown Grand Rapids in tow. I jumped into my car and headed for the freeway.

"Go west, young man," I yelled, as my Van Halen tape blared in the background. (Yes, I'm cool like that.) After close to two hours, I reached my destination: Houseman Field.

By the time I arrived, the all-day meet was about an hour old, and the track was abuzz.

In one corner of the complex, pole vaulters battled for state supremacy, while in another area of the track, the grunts of shot putters and discus throwers pierced the high noon air.

Long jumpers kicked up sand on one side of the field, while high jumpers thumped over the bar on another. In the distance, the cackle of a starting gun and the roaring of the crowd could be heard, signifying a race had begun.

Throughout the sun-drenched day, I crisscrossed the field while attempting to see firsthand each final. My head was on a swivel as I strained to see which event was coming up next. I was in my element.

I was in my glory.

I was baking like a rotisserie chicken over an open flame. Unbeknownst to me, my previously milky white face had become a brightly burnt orange mess.

After spending six hours in continuous sunshine out in the middle of Houseman's Astroturf field with no shade, I was officially an Oompa Loompa.

Spaulding drills second hole-in-one

That's two for Dan Spaulding. Spaulding, a Chelsea resident, recorded a hole-in-one last week at Waterloo Golf Course.

Spaulding, who's been playing golf for 40 years, aced the 130-yard, par three Hole No. 12. He used a 9-iron to achieve his links perfection. It was his second hole-in-one of his golfing career. For the day, Spaulding shot a 31.

Witness to the event was Ed Howlett of Chelsea.

ON THE SIDELINE

For those of you not hip to the Oompa Loompas, they were the orange-faced workers in the movie Willy Wonka.

As the meet came to a close, I walked back to my car and upon entering glanced in the mirror. It was at that moment I saw for the first time my poor face.

They say sidewalks can get so hot you can fry an egg on them. Well, you could have opened a restaurant on my forehead.

My face was emitting so much heat, it was fogging up the windows.

On the way home, I decided to stop for a quick bite to eat at a fast-food joint just off the highway.

"Dude, you got some sun," said the young man behind the counter grinning. It was the first of many comments throughout the week about my sunburned face.

Here in the newspaper office, I was affectionately (I think) known as "Lobster Boy" for the past week.

If I had a dollar for every person who came into the office or greeted me on the street with a "Boy, somebody was in the sun" statement, I'd be a gazillionaire.

For the umpteenth time, no I didn't take a hat, and no I didn't use sunscreen. I know, I'm a moron.

I think I understand a little how the Elephant Man must have felt. Everyone who saw me would stare with a quizzical, almost horrified look. "Wow, is he really that sun burned?" I suffered through numerous wide-eyed, double takes.

As the week progressed, my face started to ooze, the area around my eyes began to swell and, of course, my skin was peeling everywhere. Besides my forehead, my nose was burned to a crisp.

I had lunch with my sister last Friday. Upon entering the restaurant, I greeted her in all my sun burned glory.

A mother by trade, she instantly put her hand up to her mouth and asked in an oh-my-gosh tone, "What happened to your face?"

Uh, take a guess.

At that point in the week, I was tired of answering that question and explaining to everyone I regretfully forgot to take a hat and wear sunscreen.

My answer to her: "I'm a guy; I'll get over it."

Wrong answer.

As we sat down at our table, she said in a hushed voice, "I'm telling Mom."

I had to laugh.

My 40-something, mother of two, big-house living sister was threatening, as she did growing up, to tell Mom.

Whatever.

Of course, a couple days later, you know who calls.

"Do you know your uncle had skin cancer on the tips of his ears?" the Richter matriarch asked. "And Herman (my brother-in-law's dad) is having surgery to remove spots under his eyes. What were you thinking?"

I was thinking the day had started so wonderfully.

I had my power breakfast and my Van Halen tunes. What more could a man want?

I know. I know.

A hat and some sunscreen.

Consider the lesson learned.

Lobster Boy - please.

Tripodi named Bulldog track MVP

By Don Richter

Staff Writer

Chelsea senior Joe Tripodi was named Bulldog track and field MVP at the team's end of the season banquet last week.

Tripodi captured a state championship in the shot put at this year's Division II track and field finals at Houseman Field in Grand Rapids. His first-place throw of 57 feet, 8 1/2 inches set a new Division II state record.

A two-time All-Area and All-Southeastern Conference champion in both the shot put and discus, Tripodi also won a state title in shot put last season as a junior. Besides his first-place finish in the shot put, Tripodi also ended up fourth in the discus at this season's finals.

Sharing the squad's Most Improved Award were sophomores Hugh White and Ian Galvin.

Earning academic All-State recognition were seniors Adam Montero and Andy Montero.

Winning SEC championships for Chelsea this season were Adam Montero in the 100 meters, junior Dari Bauer in the 200 meters and senior Kevin Riddle in the 800-meter run.

The 400-meter relay four some of Eddie McClendon, Adam Montero, Andy Montero and Bauer, along with Tripodi in the shot put and discus, earned regional titles.

For the year, the Bulldogs finished with 31 All-League performers, including four SEC championship relay teams.

Chelsea ended the season as SEC White Division champions with a perfect 3-0 record. The Bulldogs also finished first in the SEC meet.

Overall, Chelsea concluded the year with a 4-2 dual meet mark.

The Bulldogs finished fifth at regional competition and ended up 11th at the Division II state finals.

"I am pleased with the way numerous athletes improved in so many ways," said Chelsea coach Eric Swager. "I wish to give credit to my assistant coaches and volunteers, Lonnie Mitchell, Nathan Green, Bert Kruse, Luman Strong and Julie Wagner for their help."

Swager said the future looks bright for the Bulldogs.

"We have instilled some good routines, attitudes and practice habits in our runners," he said. "I believe that the young athletes will improve and maintain the success that is Chelsea track."

Taylor, Hyssong, Shanks earn awards

By Don Richter

Staff Writer

Chelsea senior Kari Taylor was named Bulldog track and field MVP at the team's end of the season banquet last week.

Taylor, who'll compete for Central Michigan University next year, finished her Chelsea career as a two-time state champion in both the shot put and the discus.

"(She) concluded a great career as one of Chelsea's best track athletes ever," said Chelsea coach Bill Bainton.

This season, Taylor was the Bulldogs' leading scorer, accumulating 178 2/3 points while competing in just two events. She holds the Division II state record in both the shot put and discus. She set 11 meet and school records this year.

Since her sophomore year at the state meet, Taylor has gone unbeaten in the shot put and discus. She is a three-time All-State selection in both events.

To top off her remarkable prep career, Taylor, a four-year letter winner, will compete for Team Michigan at the prestigious Midwest Meet of Champions Saturday at Wittenburg University in Springfield, Ohio. Taylor's classmate, Bulldog senior Joe Tripodi will also participate in the high-level national meet. Tripodi is a two-time Division II shot put state champion.

Chelsea junior Savannah Hyssong was presented with the Coaches Award. Hyssong was one of the Dawgs' most versatile athletes this season.

During the year, Hyssong competed in the 100 meters, the 200 meters, the 400-meter run, the long jump and as a member of the 400-, 800- and the 1,600-meter relays. She qualified for the Division II state meet in the 200 meters, the 400-meter run and in the 1,600-meter relay. She placed eighth in the 400-meter run at the state finals.

Hyssong, an academic All-State selection, trailed only Taylor in points scored for the team. She finished the season with 164 points.

Receiving Chelsea's Most Improved Award was senior Caroline Shanks.

In only her second year of track and field, Shanks finished second in the Southeastern Conference in the long jump.

"She added over a foot to her long jumps this season," Bainton said.

Shanks was also a talented sprinter, cutting almost a full second off her 100-meter time this year. She ended up sixth on the team in total points.

Earning Gatorade Will to Win awards for leadership, commitment, perseverance, performance and desire were seniors Danielle Montpetit, Shanks and Taylor, and juniors Kari Moyle, Nina Kramer and Hyssong. Moyle also received the SEC Sportsmanship Award.

Finishing the season as All-SEC were seniors Montpetit, Shanks and Taylor; juniors

Sarah Brigham, Jessica Percha, Moyle and Hyssong; sophomores Alice Gauvin and Kim Gasieski; and freshmen Shannon Kinner and Megan Korc.

Receiving their third-year letters were seniors Liz Faeth and Montpetit, and juniors Nina Kramer, Julie Mida, Alison Sacks, Moyle and Brigham.

Two-year letter winners for the Bulldogs were sophomore Lauren Williams, Shanks, Faeth, Hyssong, Percha and Gasieski.

First-year letter winners for Chelsea were seniors Meghan Tandy and Jennifer Hafner; sophomores Emily Bradburn, Melissa Koch, Kayla Pepper, Ashli Welshans and Gauvin; and freshmen Danielle Houle, Danielle Johnston, Kati Kelly, Liz Skjdmore, Kara Stiles, Kinner and Korc.

Earning JV awards were juniors Caitlin Paul and Jessi Katz; sophomores Lucy Abernathy, Amanda Becker, Kali Burnette, Theresa Guysky, Winn Mahoney, Jamie Ottoman, Morgan Seitz and Emily Wrathall; and freshmen Samantha Bogdanski, Marissa Guysky, Jessica Risner, Ashley Simpson, Flo Varner and Chelsea Verardi.

It was a memorable season for the Bulldog track and field team. Chelsea finished sixth in the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association Division II state meet, ninth at the Michigan High School Athletic Association Division II finals, second at regionals and first in the SEC White Division.

Quiet allows us to recapture our sanity

JUST A THOUGHT

Noise is sound you don't want to hear because it's too loud, too annoying or too pervasive.

Amongst the most annoying outside noises, I would single out the noises of lawnmowers and leaf blowers, and semi-tractor trailers screaming down roads on a sunny afternoon.

Very annoying indoor noises are the loud clatter of waiters clearing plates in a restaurant during an evening dinner or the sound of someone else's stereo coming through your walls.

There is a wealth of statistics about the health effects noise has at various decibel levels. It is generally agreed that any sound at or above 75 decibels will over time impair hearing. Indoor noise of 45 or outdoor of 55 decibels tends to cause adverse physiological and psychological effects, including sleep loss, stress, and high blood pressure.

The issue for me is one of quality of life. Any noise is a problem if what you seek is peace and quiet. Like second-hand smoke, secondhand noise (noise produced by others) is an environmental pollution of the public commons. The air should be a common domain owned by no one.

It's a matter of civil rights. We have no right to impose our noise on others without permission. My right to create noise ends at your ears.

To me the sounds of nature — birds singing, rain falling, the sound of the wind in trees — are soothing and healing. This is one reason I think people are streaming into rural areas. They want to escape noise and have some peace. Of course, it becomes self-defeating and ceases to be rural as people move in, filling the air with the suburban noise of lawn mowers, leaf blowers and traffic.

Some animal sounds are, I admit, borderline. The calls of crows and blue jays don't thrill me for long. It seems that the closer animals are to human existence, the worse they sound. The barking of dogs (at least, other people's) and crowing of roosters are much less desirable than the sounds of chirping chickadees or howling wolves. Domestication seems to spoil creature ambience.

I think people have learned to tolerate too much noise. We have tried to compensate by keeping our triple-glazed windows shut and our car windows up. We also have the radio, stereo, television, etc., as our noise and distraction of choice. If we can't have peace, we'll choose our own forms of auditory and visual stimulation.

Even little noises can be very annoying. Who hasn't experienced the idiotic jingles emanating from cellphones when they are in a theater, lecture or restaurant, not to mention the insane sounding one-sided conversation of someone making a call that you can't help listening to but don't want to hear.

One problem is that our industrialized culture has forced us to live with machines, and machines make noise. If someone came out with a whispering quiet vacuum cleaner, I would buy it in a flash. If you don't have a well-insulated furnace in the basement, it can ruin a good winter. A silent lawn mower would kill the competition.

Outdoors, there are also the sounds of trains. Some like train horns. If, however, there are ten or fifteen of those mile-and-a-half long freighters rumbling by the house each day sounding their horns, they soon become very tiresome.

Even if you manage to escape traffic, there are always planes overhead, and living near airports can be a severe problem. I remember those few days after the Sept. 11, 2001, 11 terrorist attacks when all planes were grounded. It was like going back in time to when I was a child and aircraft were still a rarity. It was very sad and eerie, but there was a perceptible silence, and the sky was not crossed by vapor trails.

To me, outdoors, trucks are the worst of noises. Building-rattling semis or gravel haulers with hissing air brakes that screech and tires that scream as they roar by are like the sounds of hell.

Small towns have noisy vehicles. Come to North Tarrant.

Road some sunny Saturday and hear a thousand motorcycles roar back and forth. God bless, Harley Davidson.

If you think you don't mind traffic noise (not to mention exhaust fumes), come and walk down Chelsea's Main Street when semis and gravel trucks roar by. Something needs to be done to restore the peace of Chelsea's downtown environment, if for no other reason than to encourage more people to visit downtown businesses.

Traffic noise can be difficult to escape totally. A walk in the country to escape noise ameliorates the problem, but I have yet to find a trail or woods where traffic can't be heard. The problem is made worse with off-road vehicles, cross-country motor-bikes and motorized watercraft.

That is why we need to preserve parks, open space and rural landscapes instead of developing every bit of land. Wooded areas provide the best natural buffer against noise. Even a "pocket park," like that proposed for near Chelsea's Purple Rose Theatre, would be a place where noise is muted and birds could be heard. It also would be a place for community to take place, where people can meet.

We also need places where people can be alone to reflect and appreciate nature.

Peace and quiet is a resource that we have virtually run out of. It is something that diminishes by degrees and its absence is not easily noticed until it's gone. The mind notices what is present, not what is absent. Like speech that needs the silence between the words to make sense, we need some peace to remain sane.

Sometimes we need just to hear the wind in trees, frogs singing in the swamp, a bunch of coyote howling at night. We need the muting qualities of rural areas and parks to provide at least a partial escape from the sounds of civilization.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Prank showed lack of respect

The May 30 edition of The Standard carried an ad placed by the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals commenting on the release of parakeets in the high school by students and the lack of appropriate action taken by the administration of the school.

How disheartening. I agree that the administration gave the wrong message to the students, but by the time someone reaches adolescence, they already have a respect or lack of it in their hearts for animals, and, subsequently, people.

The way that people regard and treat animals is absolutely a reflection of their attitude toward their fellow man. I keep wondering if anyone sat down with the children who released those parakeets and flew those rebel flags and asked them what their actions were really all about.

All too often, I have seen actions by children of all ages not addressed by those who are supposed to be responsible for their upbringing, whether it be teachers or parents, glossing over the situation because "they were just being kids."

Today's kids are tomorrow's adults, running the world and passing on values to their kids. If someone didn't learn respect for a parakeet, how will they treat their neighbor, co-worker, spouse and child?

Chelsea baseball was knocked out of the state playoffs last Saturday, falling to Monroe Jefferson in the regional final 8-5.

son on the line, Baker, the ace of the Bulldog staff, walked over to Welton in the dugout.

"He wanted the ball," Welton said of Baker, who in his previous four outings — all victories — had pitched two no-hitters, a one-hitter and a four-hitter. "He wanted to take the mound. He's a competitor. You have to take your hat off to him. When the game was on the line, he wanted the ball."

After a lead-off bunt single, Baker mowed down the next two Jefferson batters before allowing the game-winning bloop, RBI base hit down the leftfield line on a 1-2 count.

"It was a seesaw type of game," Welton said. A game of inches.

To advance to the regional final, Chelsea defeated Milan 6-1 last Saturday morning. Making the victory even more impressive was the fact it came against the Big Reds' towering, 6-foot-4 lefty, Aaron Tennyson.

Tennyson is one of the state's best pitchers. He signed a letter-of-intent with Kentucky, and was also picked in the 23rd round by the Cleveland Indians in this year's Major League Baseball draft.

"We had a week to prepare for him," Welton said. "We used two lefties a lot in practice last week. We did a lot of mental work to get ready for him. We reminded the guys that we beat him 3-0 last year. During the game, we executed very well."

The preparation evidently worked, as the Bulldogs jumped all over Tennyson in the first inning, scoring four runs and taking command of the ballgame.

"With the way Baker (Chelsea's starter) had been throwing, we were pretty confident at that point," Welton said.

The Bulldogs scored their runs on a two-run RBI single by junior Ben Daniels, and RBI doubles by Moffett and Baker.

The Big Reds countered with their only run of the day in the bottom of the first.

Chelsea added two runs later in the game for the final margin.

Baker chalked up the win, finishing the season with a 9-2 record. He went the distance, scattering four hits and striking out eight.

Despite ending the season on a sour note, Welton said this year's team could hold its head high.

"We can play with anybody," he said. "We started the season, 3-5 and turned it around. We gained experience, got (senior) Derek Horvath back into the line-up and our pitching improved. Baker put on a show. (Matt) Cunningham was outstanding behind the plate. We received great contributions from many different players."

The Bulldogs were ranked as high as No. 10 in Division II this season.

Chelsea's Manville, Stankevich MVPs

By Don Richter

Staff Writer

Juniors Sarah Manville and Beth Stankevich were named co-MVP of the Chelsea girls' soccer team last week.

Manville, the Bulldogs' goalkeeper, was named to the All-District first team and earned All-Southeastern Conference honorable mention.

Stankevich, a center midfielder, was named to the All-District and All-SEC first teams.

Manville and Stankevich were tri-captains this season, along with senior central midfielder Lara Zajic.

Zajic was named All-SEC honorable mention. Also earning All-SEC honorable mention was senior wide defender Alicia Edgeworth.

Edgeworth and junior defender Jenna Satterthwaite were presented the squad's Most Improved Player Award.

Besides Stankevich, sophomore central defender Sharon Dault was Chelsea's other first-team All-SEC performer. Dault was further honored as the Bulldogs' Defensive Player-of-the-Year.

Named the team's Offensive Player-of-the-Year was junior midfielder Krystal Space. Space recorded five goals and two assists for seven points.

Earning the Goals-of-the-Year Award for Chelsea was sophomore midfielder Brittany Denison. Denison notched two goals on a volley and a header in one minute in a come-from-behind victory over Bedford.

The Bulldogs, who finished third in the SEC, ended the season with an overall record of 7-8-3. Last year, Chelsea had an overall mark of 5-12-1.

Revolutionary Soldier

Frederik vanReesema, a fifth-grader in teacher Janet Stevens' class at Pierce Lake Elementary School, enjoyed trying on a Revolutionary War uniform during a recent school activity. Pupils met a uniformed Revolutionary War soldier, handled real artifacts from the time period and tried on hats and equipment. The program was provided by the Chelsea elementary schools' Talent Development Program, which is run by Rebecca Chamberlain.

Each township can carry over any left over funding into the following year but cannot in two successive years.

If the money is not spent in a two-year period, Dresselhouse said it is taken away and apportioned to other townships.

He said that last year the township used a portion of the money for minor projects such as laying down brine for dust control.

The move left the township with funding that was carried over into this year for a more extensive project, but not enough to make the desired improvements on Conway Road.

Sylvan Township, now in its second and last year of the allowable revenue-sharing time span, will attempt to ask the County Road Commission for a year's extension on the carry-over system to accrue enough money to solve the Conway Road problem, Dresselhouse said.

He said the road commission is pushing for Conway Road to be improved with a layer of limestone, but that would deplete Sylvan's road improvement fund while making the situation worse.

"Improving the road would increase traffic speed," Dresselhouse said. "The faster the traffic, the greater the site distance has to be. The township is saying, 'Fix the intersection first.'"

He said that the matter is further complicated by questions as to who has jurisdiction over encroaching vegetation on a private road such as Witness Tree Lane.

Dresselhouse said that court decisions have varied concerning what the county can do without permission from a private property owner. He said the county is now wary to trim tree limbs, for example.

LIBRARY

Libraries still are required to comply with Michigan Public Act 212 of 2000. The Chelsea District Library will install Library Guardian to filter out pre-selected Web sites and key words. It will be ready for use in the fall.

The Dexter District Library has one computer, equipped with Cyber Patrol, which can be used by a minor unaccompanied by an adult. The system costs $50 a year. Other Internet terminals at the Dexter library require adult supervision.

The Cyber Patrol system, for example, allows access to information on breast cancer, but not on breast reduction.

Lansdale is not happy with the state exerting control over library Internet service.

"It bothers me that a minor has to be accompanied by a parent in order to use the Internet," she said. "Our job is to provide information, not to restrict it."

McCann said that applying some sort of interstate commerce code to the Internet would be a better way to monitor it.

Lansdale said that Public Act 212 is so ambiguously worded that it is unclear whether simple monitoring by a library employee would be in compliance with the law.

McCann described the wording as "nebulous" and said it worked only in the context of being able to say there was something on the books.

While Lansdale said she disagrees with the law mandating

Local residents to participate in Relay for Life

By Lisa Carolin
Special Writer

Starting 6 p.m. June 28 and lasting 24 hours, the track at Chelsea High School will be a very busy place.

Teams of co-workers, friends and families from across the area will take part in the seventh annual Relay for Life.

The event benefits the American Cancer Society's research, local education programs and support services. Team members take turns walking around the track throughout a 24-hour period. Others are free to participate in activities, including games and dancing.

Relay for Life supports cancer survivors, those currently battling cancer and people who have lost a loved one to the disease.

A close friend of Melinda Penhallegon's family lost her life to cancer. Now Penhallegon, who is a technician at Dexter Pharmacy on Dexter-Ann Arbor Road, is the captain of a Relay for Life team. She's trying to recruit volunteers from the store in the Dexter Crossing shopping center and the downtown Dexter location.

"I first participated in the Relay for Life in 1998," she said. "I had a friend who was a captain. The experience of staying awake for 24 hours was different but fun."

Last year, Penhallegon and her husband, Duane, participated. They walked for the Chelsea Lions Club and Fran Coy's Hair Salon in Scio Township.

Penhallegon's husband will join his wife's team this year and their 21-month-old daughter, Elizabeth, will be there part of the time, too.

"We pushed her around the track in her stroller last year, and we'll do it again this year," Penhallegon said.

The local resident says that she isn't doing any particular exercise to prepare for the race, but she does advise teammates to bring a change of shoes. There will be a tent set up for the team.

"When it's a team effort, you can have a lot of fun," said Penhallegon. "Everybody wants to find a cure for cancer."

Penhallegon has a sister-in-law who works for the American Cancer Society. The organization is the largest private source of cancer research funds in the United States. Its mission is to eliminate cancer as a major health problem by preventing the disease, saving lives and diminishing suffering from cancer through research, education, advocacy and service.

Lori Minnick of Chelsea is the captain of Thomson-Shore's Relay for Life team, called The Bookworms. This is their second year participating in the event. Minnick has worked as the human resource supervisor at the book manufacturer for the last few years. Prior, she worked at the Chelsea Retirement Community.

"We live right next to the old Chelsea High School track and can hear the music and the emcee all night," she said.

Minnick has participated in the Relay for Life in previous years as a member of Chelsea Area Players' team.

"Everybody is united for this effort. We all feel like we're part of a larger team."

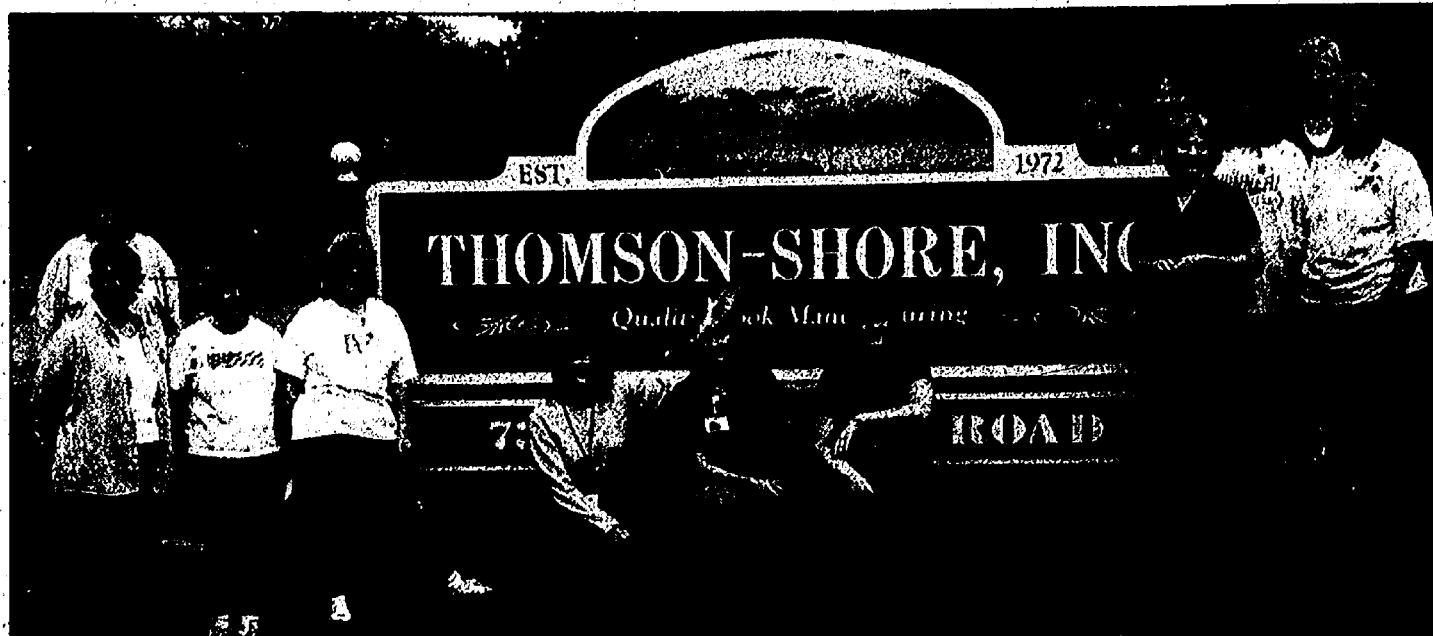

— Lori Minnick
Relay participant

Life, you see all of these people walking with the same purpose."

Minnick says that many on The Bookworms team have talked about what an amazing experience they had participating in past relays. She hopes to double the number of participants this year to between 100 and 150 people.

Many of the Thomson-Shore participants live throughout the Dexter and Chelsea area. Minnick is hoping that those who usually work the midnight shift will be eager to walk during the late-night hours.

"Everybody is united for this effort," she said. "We all feel like we're part of a larger team."

Thomson-Shore Inc., a book manufacturer in Dexter, will be represented at the Relay for Life in Chelsea June 28 through 29. Participants include, in front, Sheri Circele (left), Kathy Cavender, Carol Fox, Terri Barlow, Lori Minnick, Tammy Pepper, Sue Lidner, Kathy Colliau and Sylvia Hartman; in back, Lauri Kilma (left), Kelley Jones, Rebecca Dawson and Tina Wilhelmsen.

Public speaks to smoking issue

More meetings to discuss the issue

Carolyn

of Washtenaw
and a chance to express views about public places meeting in the county.

County is considering a Clean Indoor Air Act to protect the public from the harmful effects of secondhand smoke.

Meetings are being held throughout the county to gather public opinion on the issue. A total of 18 people attended the public meeting at the Community Hospital's Health and Wellness Center.

The meeting began with a discussion about the dangers of secondhand smoke, a carcinogen known to cause cancer in humans.
Dr. Page said there is evidence of exposure to it.
Secondhand smoke can cause lung cancer, heart disease, and other serious illnesses.

bronchitis, and is a major threat to people with asthma.
Nonsmokers who are regularly exposed to secondhand smoke have double the risk of heart disease.

A countywide regulation is under consideration that would make almost all indoor public places smoke-free.
Those places would include
retail stores, banks, theaters, sports facilities, educational facilities, community centers,
health clubs open to the public, bowling alleys, indoor public swimming pools, common areas of hotels, apartments, malls and office buildings, as well as all county and municipal buildings and vehicles.

Restaurants and bars would be required to have at least 80 percent of the seating to be smoke-free and for that smoke-
free area to be completely free
of secondhand smoke.

Dr. Steve Yarows, who has been on the staff at Chelsea Community Hospital for the last 21 years, complained about taking a group of 10
year-olds to a bowling place where there was a lot of smoke.

"Smokers have a right to smoke," he said. "It's good for my business, but they need not to expose kids to it."

Mildred Parker of Scio Township said, "Our children are going to be paying for our abuse."

Pat Albright of Ann Arbor said, "As a non-smoker, I have no choice."

County Commissioner Joseph Yekulis, R-District 1, attended the meeting and asked how many smokers were there. Nobody raised their hand. Yekulis said that he wants to represent his constituents when it comes time for a vote and that includes members of the small business community.

The county will hold two more public meetings on the Smoke Free Regulation Initiative. The next meeting is 6 p.m. Wednesday at the Ann Arbor Public Library and a second meeting 9 p.m. June 21
at the Saline Recreation Center.

Farmers' Market launches chef series

The Chelsea Farmers' Market launches its first "Chef at the Market" series 10:30 a.m. Saturday with chef Bill Sizer of Durham's Tracklements in Ann Arbor.

Sizer will feature a smoked salmon created for use on the grill by T.R. Durham, owner of the specialty food business, the Smokery located in Ann Arbor's Kerrytown.

The series, which will run most Saturdays through Sept. 14, features an area chef demonstrating a favorite recipe using seasonal fresh produce and other items from the Chelsea Farmers' Market.

Sponsored by Chelsea Village Hardware and the Common Grill, demonstrations are free and will take place at the Farmers' Market on Park Street in Chelsea.

Featured chefs include Craig Common of The Common Grill in Chelsea and Marie Ann Fody of Zou Zou's in Chelsea, as well as John Fischer of Gratzl Restaurant, Bill Collins of Katherine's Catering, Bill Sizer with Durham's Tracklements, Maggie Long of Grizzly Peak, and Mary Van Esbeck of Conor O'Neill's Traditional Irish Pub in Ann Arbor.

Market coordinators hope the Chef at the Market series will serve the local community and draw new patrons.

"One of the goals of the market is to serve as a community meeting place on Saturday mornings," said Elaine Economou, volunteer coordinator. "We hope the chef series will bring people out to watch this incredible line-up of chefs use produce and other products to create nutritious, delicious dishes.

"Every chef involved has talked about how excited they are to use simple, fresh ingredients and demonstrate how easy it is to incorporate them into meals. We're very excited to share these ideas with the community."

Common will demonstrate twice during the season on July 13 and Aug. 10.

"I'm glad to be supporting this event," Common said. "I'm excited to help the Farmers' Market become more connected to the community and am personally interested in building relationships with local farmers for the restaurant. It's a great first step."

The Chelsea Farmers' Market runs 8 a.m. to noon Saturdays, May through October, and features organic and locally grown produce, handmade crafts, baked goods, annuals, perennials and jams, among other things.

Sustainability movement hits area

■ Chelsea group shares similar goals.

By Lisa Carolin
Special Writer

The dictionary defines "sustainability" as the ability to keep up, prolong and give support to something.

According to Rebecca Head, director of Environment and Infrastructure Services for Washtenaw County: "Sustainability is when economic development, environmental protection and social needs are all working together."

What does this mean to the residents of Washtenaw County? Head said that sustainability is a big part of how the county is working to plan ahead.

"We are trying to meet the needs of the present without compromising the needs of the future," she said. "This is a philosophy we share with the United Nations."

According to the Centers for Disease Control, the diseases of the 21st century will be chronic illnesses that steal vitality and productivity, while consuming time and money.

"These diseases — heart disease, diabetes, obesity, asthma, and depression — are diseases that can be moderated by how we design and build our human environment," according to the CDC.

Land-use decisions are public-health decisions, Head said. When people live and work in accessible, safe, well-designed structures and landscapes, there are health benefits, such as less stress, lower blood pressure and improved physical and mental health. The idea behind the sustainability movement is to form coalitions between doctors, nurses and public health professionals, as well as architects, builders, planners and transportation officials, so that everybody participates in making environmental decisions.

Those decisions can range from installing a sidewalk in a subdivision to deciding what constitutes safe and affordable housing, providing green space for people to enjoy where they live and work; and rethinking how we travel from one place to another.

In Chelsea, Lynn Meadows helps run a group called Voluntary Simplicity, which shares some similar goals with the sustainability program.

"We make an effort to live with less impact on the environment and to reconnect with the more important things in life," Meadows said.

Some of Voluntary Simplicity's efforts include making careful energy choices, selective food choices and, for example, hanging clothing outside to dry instead of in a dryer.

"Simplicity is not simple and often more work," Meadows said. "But we feel that it's worth it and gets more people to take the time to stop and smell the roses."

A number of Washtenaw County businesses now belong to the Southeast Michigan Sustainable Business Forum. The purpose of the group is to provide a learning network to member companies aimed at raising awareness, developing programs and sharing "best management practices."

The forum offers workshops about sustainable business topics. DTE Energy recently hosted a session on renewable energy technology. In addition, there have been workshops on agricultural fertilizing practices that use less energy and toxic chemicals.

Comerica Bank will host a session June 20 about sustainable land use such as brownfield redevelopment, open space preservation, and "green" buildings, sustainable architecture and design.

For information about the Southeast Michigan Sustainable Business Forum, e-mail richard.jplewa@comerica.com.

Washtenaw County offers arsenic tests for wells

■ High levels detected in northwest areas.

By Lisa Carolin
Special Writer

Residents living in northwest Washtenaw County may want to test their wells for arsenic.

Washtenaw County Environmental Health Director Dick Fleece says the western part of the county is predicted to have higher levels than the rest of the county. He estimates that at least 20 percent of wells that get tested will exceed the acceptable 10 parts per billion level of arsenic.

The Washtenaw County Health Department is offering a free testing kit to people who want to test their water for arsenic. To qualify, one must be a resident of the county and live in a single-family residence served by its own well.

The state Department of Environmental Quality will conduct the tests for free. Officials will notify residents of the arsenic levels in their wells and provide educational materials about groundwater contamination and ways to reduce it.

Arsenic occurs naturally in drinking water as well as in rocks, soil, air and plants. Long-term exposure has been linked to cancer, heart disease, diabetes, fatigue, memory loss and stomach problems, as well as other health problems. Seniors, children, and people with chronic illness are particularly at risk.

FELICIA HERMOSILLO

TALES FROM THE TRAIL

You may have seen me around town these past few days. You may have even spotted the big yellow shoes that earned me my trail name, "Boats."

I was indeed in Chelsea for a few days, just long enough to go to my brother's wedding and to plan for the next 1,000-plus miles of my trip.

It has been nice to be back in Chelsea, to see my family and to hang out with my most devoted fan — Gimpy, my dog.

As I strolled down Main Street last week, enjoying a raspberry smoothie, I realized that in two days I would be back on the trail. I told a friend I was going "home" in two days. Back on the trail.

I'll be sweating it in the miserable Virginia heat and humidity. Don't forget the bugs. Sounds great, huh? But those things are only a small part of the trail.

Coming home for a few days and having to live by a schedule with plans and lists has given me an even greater appreciation for life on the trail. A more simple life. No lists. No schedules. No cars. No construction. Just Mother Nature and those who choose to enjoy her. No doubt, with all the heat, even more flowers will be blooming and competing for my attention.

I was looking over some of my pictures today. I came across the photo of me on McAfee's Knob. I remember sitting there on that incredible rock outcropping. My feet were dangling over the edge and the beautiful valley and ridges were laid out before me.

"Lost and Found" showed up shortly after I claimed that magnificent throne and he said, "Boats, what's going on?"

I considered his question for a fraction of a second and then responded, "I'm hanging out in the sky."

A wave of emotions flooded me as I said those words. Mostly I felt freedom, and so content to be in such a beautiful place.

I carried those feelings with me as I traveled another eight miles that day. That evening, I arrived at Tinker Cliffs and again was able to sit on the mountainside to enjoy the beautiful view before my eyes. I sat there for two hours as the sun set and felt such a wonderful peace.

In a few days, I will be back on the trail. I will be climbing Old Orchard Mountain that has beautiful views from the top. When I get there, I will climb out on the huge rocks and sit and take in the view.

In a few days, I'll be hanging out in the sky.
