Outside firm to look at water system

City to pay $5,750
to Harn Reverse
Osmosis Systems

By Edward Freundl
Special Writer

A Florida firm will conduct an engineering review of water treatment plant operations to determine how the city can improve the performance of its reverse osmosis water-softening system.

The City Council approved the $5,750 proposal from Harn Reverse Osmosis Systems Oct. 10.

"Harn has been in the industry for a long time, and it was thought it would be good to have them look at converting ours from a three-stage to two-stage system," City Manager Mike Steklac said. "There might be newer, better technology with membranes now that Harn may be aware of."

Steklac said the firm is a leader in reverse osmosis systems because of its expertise using the process to remove salt from sea water for community drinking-water systems.

It will work closely with Tetra Tech, the engineering firm charged with the overall design of the Chelsea water plant system, Steklac said.

"Harn is subcontracting with them because Tetra Tech did not get down to the level of specifying details of performance," he said.

James Harn and Julia Nemeth-Harn of Harn Reverse Osmosis Systems visited the reverse osmosis plants in Chelsea, Saline, Davison and Grand Blanc in August to gather initial impressions concerning the operations of the plants.

Steklac said Harn intends to present information to the City Council on design recommendations, cost estimates and a schedule.

"The city will benefit from having an independent expert do an analysis of the plant and system and talk about improvements," Steklac said.

Also at its Oct. 10 meeting, the council put to rest an issue that had been discussed for several years by voting to add Coliseum Drive to the city's local streets.

Built in 2000, Coliseum Drive serves not only the Arctic Coliseum ice rink, but also the Crystal Springs subdivision off Old Manchester Road. The area is covered under a special assessment district.

"The village, at the time, had a falling out with the contractor and the council had refused to accept the dedication of that street without certain improvements," Steklac said.

Dedication of a street simply means that the city assumes responsibility for its upkeep and maintenance, and often occurs after a private street is built up to local engineering specifications.

Before the city takes possession, Crystal Springs owner Rene Papo will pay for the necessary improvements to the street and its intersection at Old Manchester. Those changes include repaving, installing curbs and catch basins for better drainage and pavement striping for traffic safety.

The city also received updated engineering drawings for the street and underground infrastructure that it had requested.

"I want to acknowledge the work of (city planning and zoning administrator) Jim Drolett and (city engineer) Christine Linfield in resolving this issue, which has been pending for many years," Steklac said.

"I think everybody got what they needed — Mr. Papo got another access to his development, and Arctic Coliseum no longer has to pay for maintenance of the road."

— CHELSEA NIGHTLIFE —

Board won't split legal costs

Developer disputes
bill for legal opinions
for his development

By Edward Freundl
Special Writer

A property developer unhappy about a bill for legal opinions regarding his development was unsuccessful in persuading the Dexter Township Board of Trustees to share that cost.

Hanover Glen developer Jack Campbell appealed to the board at its Sept. 19 meeting seeking relief from a $3,300 fee charged by the Ann Arbor law firm of Hooper Hathaway for a legal opinion on the use of utility easements on the Island Lake Road property.

"The maximum amount of time spent on this was maybe three hours, but I have a bill for 33.8 hours," Campbell told the board. "It's going into a lot of issues that don't involve my question."

Helping hands Library thrives on volunteer support

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Whether providing computer help to library patrons, sorting used books, entering genealogy data or assisting at story time, volunteers are the backbone of the Chelsea District Library.

When Marie Brooks, the library's volunteer services coordinator, came on board in 2001, there were a couple dozen people helping at the library and with Friends of Chelsea District Library projects.

In five years, the group has grown to include about 150 registered volunteers with an average of 50 helping out and contributing more than 300 hours of work each month.

"The Friends grant membership to any and all registered volunteers and welcome all to their events and festivities, so our library family has really grown," Brooks said.

"Without our amazing Friends and volunteers, projects such as our Checkpoint ID tagging and Family History Index data entry would not easily be accomplished. Both of these projects are supported solely by volunteers with staff supervision and training."

Bench in memory of Tuttle

Bench located in front of the Chelsea Fire Station

By Rita Fischer
Special Writer

In memory of a fallen local hero, the Chelsea Firefighters Auxiliary has purchased a bench and fire equipment that will benefit the community.

The Chelsea Firefighters Auxiliary, a nonprofit organization formed in 1996 with ties to the Chelsea Area Fire Authority, consists of wives, widows, girlfriends, daughters and friends of Chelsea firefighters.

With the April 13 helicopter crash that resulted in the death of Chelsea Fire Capt. Matt Tuttle, the auxiliary had received many donations in his memory. Members of the group discussed how the money could be best used, keeping in mind that whatever was purchased needed to honor his memory.

They decided to buy a bench from Doty and Sons Concrete Products in Sycamore, Ill., with the inscription, "In Memory Of Captain Matthew J. Tuttle." The bench has been placed in front of the Chelsea Fire Station on West Middle Street, where Tuttle worked full time.

Their hope is that the bench will serve as a place that "the community can go and remember Matt and all the good he did for us all," said Chris Harrison, who helped order the bench.

The remainder of the money was used to purchase equipment that, in the past, Tuttle had mentioned he wanted for the Chelsea firefighters.

In the past, the auxiliary has purchased pediatric equipment, such as blood pressure cuffs, a backboard and a car seat to transport an infant in the ambulance, for the fire department. The group also has purchased a stretcher for the all-terrain vehicle firefighters use in some rescues and uniform patches for the Chelsea Fire Explorer post.

The auxiliary was able to purchase the items through fund-raising efforts such as selling address signs, bottled water, safety kits and holding bake sales, as well as collecting donations from local residents.

In other efforts, members of the group are available when the firefighters are on a fire scene to provide them with cold water and drinks to replenish lost fluids. They also provide a meal to the firefighters when they return to the fire station.

Members of the group believe in supporting local firefighters and their families, as well as firefighters across the nation.

"I'm not a computer whiz, but I have some skills, and have been happy to be able to help a number of people — young and old — with computer problems," he said. "That has given me a lot of satisfaction."

"I'm a member of the Chelsea Seniors Computer Club and got encouragement there to volunteer. I'm glad I did."

Sleep has found a large range of skills in participants.

"Some people come in and say something like, 'My grandson has given me a computer. Now what do I do?' I show such people some basic word processing and whisk them to the Internet briefly to give them a taste of its power," he said.

"Some people have trouble with such simple skills as opening or highlighting a file. Others may want a Yahoo e-mail account."

"Of course, most people who use the library's computers need no help at all. They have considerable skill. Some just want the library's high-speed service."

Sleep has had his share of unusual requests, including one for a man who wanted help finding a job in Alaska.

"He wanted to settle in a coastal town, but had no idea where. I found an atlas and helped him pick out a half-dozen coastal towns to consider. Then I took him on the Internet to Monster.com and looked up several jobs in his field in some of those coastal towns."

"He made a lot of notes about companies and potential jobs. He seemed happy with the results. I wished him luck. I have no idea how it all turned out."

Sleep is on hand to help library patrons from 10 a.m. to noon every Monday and Tuesday at the library's public computers.

"I invite anyone who needs basic help with a computer to come in and see me," he said. "Along with everyone else connected with the library, I'm looking forward to the opening of the new library, which will have more computers and perhaps more help."

Ron Andrews, the library's head of technology services, said the computer and public user support volunteers are extremely helpful to staff in providing day-to-day operational help, troubleshooting problems at the public computers and assisting patrons with computer questions.

"They have also been very helpful as trainers for our Senior Computing One-to-access system. There will be enough differences that having their skills will make the transition for staff and public much smoother. With the addition of a teen and children's computing area, we will now be able to utilize local students as CPUs."

Genealogy buff Nancy Van Blaricum, who also is a volunteer genealogist at the Dexter Area Museum, said volunteering at the library is an opportunity to give back to the community.

She and other volunteers continue the work of the late Harold Jones, who toured local cemeteries to write down information and started the library's obituary files.

Charity event introduces new twist

Arbor Hospice & Home Care will host a day of friends, fun, food and football.

Its annual Chairity Affair has an added tailgate twist. The event still features silent and live auctions, but this year introduces a new sporty theme, with a tailgate party set Nov. 4 as part of the Michigan versus Ball State football game.

"We are inviting everyone to join us for a day of good food and good cheer," Jim Hood, event co-chairman, said in a news release. "We wanted to do something fun and out of the ordinary and give everyone a chance to get out and support Arbor Hospice & Home Care."

Tailgating festivities will kick off 10:30 a.m. at the Ann Arbor Golf and Outing Clubhouse, 400 East Stadium Blvd.

Participants will enjoy special guest appearances, live entertainment refreshments before, after and during the game. Tailgaters without tickets to the game may get in on the football frenzy and watch the game on a big screen TV.

Everyone will receive free parking and a complimentary shuttle to and from the tailgate party.

Tickets are $50 per person and will include parking.

Four battle for U.S. House seat

Seat to be vacated by Joe Schwarz, who was defeated in the primary

By Brian Gougherty
Heritage Newspapers

Four candidates will vie for a seat being vacated by Republican Joe Schwarz in Michigan's 7th District.

The district includes Branch, Eaton, Hillsdale, Jackson and Lenawee Counties, and parts of Calhoun and Washtenaw counties.

Schwarz was defeated in the August primary by Tim Walberg. Joining Walberg on the November ballot are Democrat Sharon Marie Renier, Libertarian Robert Hutchinson and David Horn of the U.S. Tax Payers Party.

Following are each candidate's response to a questionnaire sent by the newspaper.

Q: With increasing gas costs and burgeoning concerns about global warming, do you think the federal government needs to further subsidize alternative energy industries?

HORN: "No. Government interference has hindered the development of alternative energy sources and additional subsidies would only benefit politically connected interests at the expense of the general public. Instead, the government should repeal counterproductive regulations that limit the development of energy sources such as wind, nuclear power, and biodiesel, as well as domestic sources of fossil fuels."

HUTCHINSON: "The government should lessen the energy crisis by stop being the policemen of the world. The fact is, there's a tremendous amount of energies wasted during war. If they'd quit doing that, it would ease our energy problem tremendously."

RENIER: "Absolutely! There are many alternatives and many still waiting to be discovered. This is also a great way to take Michigan to the next step, the high-tech belt and a great way to improve our economy."

WALBERG: "America is far too dependent on foreign sources of oil. We need to encourage the development of alternative sources of energy, particularly in the area of biofuels. I also support expanding energy exploration, in areas such as drilling for oil in Alaska, to move toward energy independence. Moving toward energy independence is of particular importance as many rich oil nations despise our freedoms and properties."

Q: Should affirmative action programs be allowed in public institutions? Why or why not?

HORN: "No. Affirmative action programs inevitably result in different standards for 'protected' classes and for everyone else. If two applicants for a position are equal in all respects, except that one is a member of a protected class and the other is not, and the member of the protected class is selected because of affirmative action, then the member of the unprotected class must be more qualified to attain the same position."

When practiced by public institutions, this splits in the face of the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment, Supreme Court rulings notwithstanding."

HUTCHINSON: "Equal should mean equal to all. The University of Michigan and others have been giving priority to African Americans and Asians, and that's supposed to be unconstitutional, according to the Supreme Court."

RENIER: "Yes, too many of our future leaders will be left behind and our communities will fail to thrive if everyone is not afforded an equal opportunity to a higher education. Maybe we just need to build a few more good schools to handle our growing population."

WALBERG: "Our public institutions should be colorblind. Government should not discriminate based on race, color, gender, or national origin."

Q: Do you support withdrawal of U.S. troops from Iraq? If yes, why, and on what time basis? If not, why not, and how long do you anticipate our troops will need to remain there?

HORN: "I support withdrawal of troops from Iraq, but based on results, not some arbitrary schedule. We need to set up clear standards for success and failure and specific milestones, which will allow our troops to come home as they are met."

"There is no indication that such standards and objectives exist now. In the long run, a timetable for withdrawal will have the same results as an immediate withdrawal, while subjecting Americans to harm in the interim."

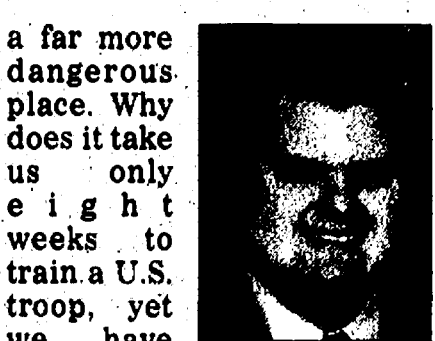

"In short, it's just more of the same pandering that only benefits politicians. While I opposed the war on constitutional grounds, I oppose an immediate withdrawal because I believe we have a responsibility to help clean up the mess that we helped create in Iraq."

HUTCHINSON: "Yes, as soon as it's practical. You can't just turn your backs on the enemy. You have to make preparations and make a withdrawal."

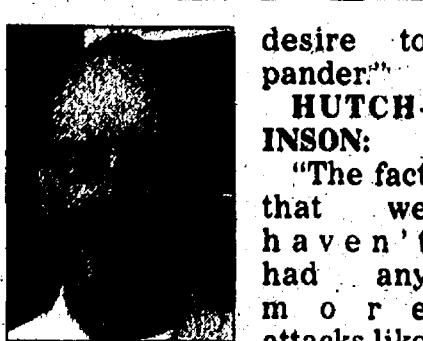

RENIER: "I do support the withdrawal of our troops from Iraq and I have a plan. It's time to take Iraq off American welfare so that they will start to stand up for themselves. We must secure the city of Baghdad with an International Peacekeeping Force so that the Iraqi citizens can get about the business of taking care of their own government."

WALBERG: "President Bush was correct to remove a terrorist-sponsoring, America-hating, WMD-possessing, oil-rich murderous dictator from power. The United States must take the fight to the terrorists to thwart their efforts to attack us here. We must continue down the path to victory, and while war is awful, our troops are fighting a necessary battle and they and the mission need our support."

"A date certain will only encourage the enemy and cripple the mission."

Q: What have been the greatest successes and failures of the "War on Terror"?

HORN: "The biggest successes have been the invasions of Iraq and Afghanistan, at least from a military standpoint, and not being attacked in five years, although that may be due as much to divine providence as it is our actions since Sept. 11, 2001."

"The biggest failures would be the ensuing occupations of Iraq and Afghanistan, and the inability of our elected officials to put border security ahead of their desire to pander."

HUTCHINSON: "The fact that we haven't had any more attacks like that has been a success. The weakness in the War on Terror is that it has made us enemies to all the world, instead of just part of it. The War on Terror includes the war in Iraq."

RENIER: "I haven't seen any real successes. I can't call death success. The failure is the inability of our president to admit that he has made us, and the world, less safe. It's time to send a loud message to Washington and we need to do it with our vote."

WALBERG: "In the more than five years since the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, we have been successful in removing the Taliban from power in Afghanistan, removing Saddam Hussein from power in Iraq, establishing constitutional republics in both of those countries' and, most importantly, preventing further attacks on our soil."

"I look forward to the day we either catch, kill, or confirm the death of Osama bin Laden, but it's more important that he is rendered ineffective than dead, and we have been successful in that end."

Q: Do you support civil unions between same-sex partners? Why or why not?

HORN: "No. Civil unions already exist in the form of contracts. Any tax issues would be rendered irrelevant by repealing the income tax."

HUTCHINSON: "That's ridiculous. I realize that everybody's supposed to be equal, but that's equal opportunity, it doesn't mean the same. Males and females are different; I didn't make that decision and the Supreme Court didn't. God made it."

RENIER: "Truthfully, I think we need to get the government out of the marriage business and leave it to the church, where it belongs."

WALBERG: "I believe marriage is between one man and one woman, and any attempt to redefine marriage is inappropriate."

Q: What responsibility does the federal government have in assuring adequate health care for all Americans? Has the government lived up to that responsibility? How can we do better, if needed?

HORN: "The Constitution grants the federal government no authority to assure any level of health care to anyone, much less adequate health care for all Americans. If anything, government interference has made health

The Township Planning Commission had awarded Campbell bonuses for open space based on the area taken up by the easement across his property, which allowed him a few more housing lots. But the interpretation of the ordinance on whether structures of any kind could be built on those easements came into question.

The Planning Commission asked township attorney Peter Flintoft of Chelsea for a legal opinion, but because of a conflict of interest, he referred the case to Hooper Hathaway.

When contacted at his office, Flintoft would not elaborate.

A Hooper Hathaway lawyer had researched the question, but when she went on maternity leave, the case was handed off to a second attorney from the firm.

Campbell objected to being billed for that second attorney's time because it appeared from his invoice it was not only a duplication of effort, but strayed into the more general area of researching ordinances.

"Part of this bill is mine, but part of it was work to amend the ordinance on computation of open space," Campbell said. "He worked way too long on things he didn't need to."

Township Supervisor Pat Kelly, while sympathetic, disputed Campbell's point.

"I'm not saying I agree with these charges, but I don't think your conclusion is a good one," she said. "I don't think he strayed necessarily from his charge."

"The first question was whether or not private utility easements could be used in calculating open-space density bonuses, and the answer was yes," Kelly added. "The other question was, 'Does the language of the easement address issues not permitted in open space set-asides?'"

Township Clerk Harley

Rider was a member of the Planning Commission when the Hanover Glen site plan was being reviewed, and said the second attorney was trying to explore every avenue and not create any loopholes.

"I think any attorney would be remiss if he didn't look at other things that might trump the ordinance language — statutes, attorney general decisions and so on," Rider said. "I have to presume he knew what he was doing. It appears he was very thorough in having absolutely every base covered."

Trustees Carl Lesser and Michael Howard came to Campbell's defense.

"A lot of this (invoice) is for revisions and a review of the ordinance," Lesser said. "That was the Planning Commission's request, so he shouldn't have to pay for that."

Added Howard, "I think a lot of this was for the Planning Commission to get an easement decision."

In discussing Lesser's motion to charge half the bill against the Planning Commission's budget, Trustee Marcia Ottomano said township residents should not have to bear the cost of a legal opinion, and Treasurer Julie Knight reminded the board that these kinds of decisions set legal precedent.

Rider expressed his belief that the board did not have the responsibility to ante up for a decision on Campbell's property.

"I don't believe a majority of the bill is general," Rider said. "Without some more information, I'm not comfortable passing on $3,300 to residents that wouldn't have come up if it wasn't for this developer."

Lesser's motion failed on a vote of 2-5, and Kelly suggested that Campbell contact Hooper Hathaway to try to negotiate the bill and ask specific questions about the charges.

"I don't think the township is out anything here," Campbell said, and left the meeting after requesting that he be involved for any future discussions between Hooper Hathaway, Kelly and Rider.

In a related matter, the board considered Flintoft's offer of a monthly flat fee of $750 for one-hour weekly sessions at the township office to go over legal matters.

"I'm finding that we need more and more legal opinions, and Peter said phone calls are getting cumbersome," Kelly said. "I think we would save money in the long run."

Kelly told the board that Flintoft made the suggestion because he is not feeling as "connected" to the township as he used to be. Many of the items he would come in to discuss were related to various zoning and ordinance issues.

"I have a long list of things I need to speak with him about," said Township Zoning Administrator Patrick Sloan. "I call him every week, whether it's for five minutes or 15 minutes, and I need letters from him."

The $750 is a substantial discount from Flintoft's regularly hourly rate, and he would not charge mileage for the weekly sessions, Kelly added.

"I'd like to try it for a couple of months, and it's money we would spend anyway," she said. "I can foresee we will take advantage of this regularly."

The board unanimously approved Ottomano's motion to try the flat-fee arrangement for October, November and December, review it in January, and decide whether to continue it prior to annual budget discussions in March.

Flintoft declined comment on the arrangement when contacted at his office.

"I think it would absolutely be worthwhile," Kelly said. "It'll be more efficient."

Scio Township Marijuana Confiscated

Police were dispatched to the 6000 block of Jackson Road Sept. 28 to investigate a report of someone growing marijuana plants in their backyard. Two 16-inch tall marijuana plants were found on two separate planters in the yard.

Police knocked on the front door of the home and received no answer. The plants were confiscated and the police left a business card.

Property Damage

A 49-year-old Scio Township woman contacted police Oct. 10 to report scratches on the driver's side of her 2001 Dodge truck. She had parked the truck at her home in the 2700 block of Sagebrush Road and discovered the marks the next morning.

Breaking and Entering

Police were dispatched to Honig's Whistle Stop, 7136 Jackson Road, Sept. 25 to investigate a breaking and entering. About $700 was stolen from a cash box at the business.

Identity Theft

A 50-year-old Scio Township woman contacted police Oct. 10 to report a possible identity theft. According to a police report, the woman received a bill from a collection agency regarding a past due bill from Verizon Wireless. She said she never had a phone with the company and she believes somebody used her information to obtain phone services.

Retail Fraud

Police were dispatched to Meijer's, 5645 Jackson Road, Oct. 11 to investigate retail fraud. Police questioned a 56-year-old Scio Township man who was held in custody for drinking a bottle of vodka valued at $12.99 and putting it back on the shelf. He told police that he believes he has a drinking problem. The man was released and the case is pending review by a prosecutor.

A 21-year-old Ann Arbor woman was taken into custody at Meijer's loss prevention office Oct. 2 after she admitted to stealing $98.82 worth of makeup.

A witness confronted the woman about the makeup, and her purse was then confiscated and searched. According to a police report, the woman apologized. The case is pending review by a prosecutor.

Felonious Assault

Police were dispatched to Zeeb Road near Polo Fields Drive Sept. 16 for an altercation between a bicyclist and a driver of a red BMW. The bicyclist, a 31-year-old Scio Township man, told police that the driver, a 55-year-old Manchester man, pulled a pocketknife on him.

The bicyclist said the driver nearly collided with him, so he made an obscene gesture at him. The driver pulled over and walked toward the bicyclist, holding a knife, according to a police report. The bicyclist said he then ran off screaming for help, and the driver returned to his car and drove off.

The driver told police that the bicyclist shouted obscenities at him and that he was approaching him in a threatening manner when he pulled the knife out in self-defense. He said he never opened it.

care less accessible by shifting costs to those with the greatest ability to pay (insurers and employers), which, in turn, has encouraged fraud and excessive use of services and damaged our economy, making fewer people able to afford health care without the government assistance that caused the problem in the first place.

"The government can do better by just getting out of the way, particularly when it comes to alternative medicine and drug research."

HUTCHINSON:

"Where does the U.S. Constitution give us that duty?"

RENIER:

"We are supposed to have life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, but it's kind of hard to be happy all of the time or have any quality of life, when you don't feel well. Technically, the U.S. Constitution doesn't say that the government has to provide you with health care. We, as a civilized society, understand that everyone needs health care to pursue their dreams and have equal opportunity. We can pay for universal health care by taking the cap off Social Security."

"Currently, if you make more than $87,900, you no longer pay into Social Security. It's just not right that everyone doesn't pay in 100 percent of their wages, like most hardworking Americans do. Government has not lived up to the responsibility."

WALBERG:

"The federal government's responsibility regarding health care is to delete the needless regulations that make it difficult to receive quality health care in a reasonable length of time, to crack down on frivolous lawsuits that discourage doctors, insurance companies and scientists who are attempting to find cures from doing business and helping us overcome disease and sickness."

Q: Do you support legislation such as Michigan's Proposal 5, which would require the state to provide schools with annual funding increases? Why or why not?

HORN:

"No. Legislation such as Michigan's Proposal 5 amounts to a mandatory annual tax increase (written in the state Constitution in the case of Proposal 5), since politicians have long proven themselves unable to hold the line on spending in other areas of the budget."

"Increased taxes result in revenue loss as productive businesses and individuals leave the state for friendlier economic climates, and schools end up with less money than they would have had, had they just left well enough alone."

HUTCHINSON:

"Good education should earn funding increases."

RENIER:

"Yes! I've been around for 50 years and I have yet to see anything go down in price."

WALBERG:

"Education is very important to the future of our nation. Proposal 5 is not a prudent way to direct money toward education. Regulating annual funding increases puts other priorities at risk."

Clocktower complex a jewel in Chelsea

When I first came to Chelsea 15 years ago driving up Dexter-Chelsea Road, the first image of the town was the Chelsea Clocktower. I was excited to see something so old and so beautiful.

As I got closer, my joy was reduced to shock at the state of disrepair the complex was in. I couldn't believe that the focal point of town was a mess.

Today, I look around the clocktower complex and the difference is phenomenal. What a stunning addition to town.

We have the current owner, Ron Weiser of McKinley Properties, to thank for this. His vision has transformed not only the complex, but also the downtown. The tourists that come to my cafe are always wide-eyed and curious about the clocktower complex, and are amazed with the history and the beauty.

So, I'd like to recognize Ron Weiser for this one-of-a-kind gift to Chelsea.

Vote 'yes' on millage renewal

I would like to bring to your attention and highlight the very last proposal on the Nov. 7 ballot that has a tremendous impact on our children in the Chelsea schools. This is not a tax increase.

The Chelsea School District is asking to renew a sinking fund that Chelsea voters have supported for nearly 30 years. This millage is dedicated to the renovation and repair of our schools, and I urge you to approve this proposal.

Through great support from our community and the bond fund passed in 2004, the district was afforded the ability to renovate and improve most of the district's buildings at some level. For this, our children are blessed and I thank everyone for it.

We now, however, need to be diligent in maintaining the district's assets by keeping the sinking fund to help cover anticipated needs and expenses that typically occur with day-to-day use of the facilities.

If the sinking fund is not renewed, the dollars required for building repair and renovations will need to come from the funds that are currently used for day-to-day operations. I would really hate to see any money currently used in the classroom be diverted away to help cover the cost of items like resurfacing a parking lot or replacing a roof.

The entire Chelsea School District has done an excellent job handling the dis-

HOME FRONT

Time to say goodbye

It's with mixed emotion that I write this column. After 14 1/2 years with The Chelsea Standard and The Dexter Leader, I am taking on a new challenge as editor of The Saline Reporter and Milan News-Leader.

The move is a promotion for me, as I also will be coordinating increased editorial sharing and planning for Heritage Newspapers' western Washtenaw County publications.

I am excited about this new challenge and have lots of ideas about how we can expand our coverage with limited resources as the newspaper industry continues to battle for readers in a more technologically advanced and competitive marketplace.

While I look forward to learning all about Saline and Milan and what makes those communities unique, I am sad to leave the Chelsea-Dexter area, where I came of age and grew from a cub reporter to associate editor and then editor in 2000.

Looking back, I can't believe how fast the time has passed as I spent my early 20s to late 30s documenting the important events that have helped shape these two communities. From the murder of Chelsea's beloved superintendent of schools in 1992 to the tragic loss of the town's police chief and fire captain in 2006 and everything in between, I've learned a lot about people, the way they handle adversity and change, and how life continues on.

The same holds true for my personal life as I have suffered much loss during the time I've been here, with the passing of my father, a World War II hero, in 1999, my sister's suicide in 2002 and my husband's death in 2004 after a yearlong battle with cancer.

But along with the heartache has come joy, as I have seen the opening of five state-of-the-art schools, Chelsea's conversion from village to city and the Dexter Area Historical Society and Museum's purchase of the town founder's home, Gordon Hall.

And in my own life, such career highlights as guiding The Chelsea Standard to Newspaper of the Year in 2004 and The Dexter Leader in 2005, along with 86 awards in the Michigan Press Association's Better Newspaper Contest since I became editor. Some personal highlights include finding a new love and sharing life with him and his three children.

Yes, life continues on, bringing us new challenges, joys and heartache. I have seen the retirement of two fire chiefs and hiring of their successors, and the political fall of numerous leaders and rise to power of their opponents. I've helped document the naming of two superintendents in each district, renovation of the Chelsea Clocktower Complex, creation of the Chelsea Area Fire Authority and construction of the Chelsea Health and Wellness Center.

During this time, I've served under three editors and one interim editor, and worked with countless reporters, who have come and gone while I have stayed, developing and sharing the institutional knowledge that, I hope, has provided the perspective needed to help people understand the issues these communities face today.

I've also seen the newspapers change, from 24 pages, made up on a light table and printed in black and white, to 48 pages created electronically with full-color section fronts and a Web site.

I got my start in May 1992 under former owners Helen and Walter Leonard. At the time, I was a year out of college at Eastern Michigan University, where I studied journalism and political science. I had returned to my Washtenaw County roots after a year in Florida ready to find a full-time job. The Leonards gave it to me, with no interview and a wage of $6 per hour. I accepted, supplementing my pay and getting health insurance through a job as a waitress for three years.

Heritage Newspapers purchased the publications from the Leonards in 1995 and I was able to give up the waitressing gig when I was given a living wage, health insurance and a 401(k).

Shortly after, I was promoted to associate editor. I worked under editors Brian Hamilton and Dirk Fischbach until I was promoted in 2000. A year later, the papers were purchased by 21st Century Newspapers and in 2004 by the Journal Register Co.

While I will no longer have a direct role in documenting the events that will continue to shape the future and direction of these two communities, I will not be far away. I will continue to keep abreast of the news and I look forward to seeing what the new editor, Terry Jacoby, has in store for

Vote 'no' on Proposal 5

Despite what you might hear in these last weeks leading up to the Nov. 7 election, Proposal 5 is not "for the kids."

Proposal 5 is nothing more than an outright attempt to grab taxpayers' money — at any cost — to maintain a consistent cash flow to school districts. Nothing in the proposal talks about the money making its way into classrooms for education purposes. Neither does it speak to increasing the quality of education in our schools.

A vote against Proposal 5 is not a vote against education or a vote against teachers. It's a vote against an outrageous attempt to take your tax dollars with no questions asked.

Backed by the powerful Michigan Education Association teachers' union, the proposal will not lead to better teachers, improved education or smaller class sizes. It asks for everything, but promises nothing in return.

The proposal calls for an immediate tax increase. The language requires an "increase in current funding by approximately" $565 million. There is no definition of "approximately," and no direction on where the tax increase will come from.

The MEA cares only that the money keeps flowing, and the state act as the body opening the spigot. If that state had additional money to direct to education, it would be doing so. This language alone passes the smell test of a general tax increase.

Other warning signs of tax increases include language that requires the state to fund any deficiencies from the general fund; reduce and cap retirement fund contributions paid by public schools, community colleges and state universities, and shift the remaining portion to the state; and reduce the funding gap between school districts receiving the state's basic per-pupil allowance and districts receiving the maximum allowance.

Of course, there is no language included about how these demands are to be met. The MEA's only recourse is to shift the costs to the state, which, in turn, will further tax residents and businesses to meet the demand.

Those harbingers of tax increases are just the appetizer of Proposal 5. The meat

I applaud all members in the district for their diligent efforts in making cuts and changing the way they do business, yet maintaining a high-quality education program for our children.

So on Nov. 7, please do not forget to flip the ballot over and show your continued support for our Chelsea schools by marking "yes" on the Chelsea School District's sinking fund renewal proposal.

Renier deserves 7th District seat

Running the nation into debt is something all conservatives used to hate, but now that President George W. Bush is doing it, quite a few of them think it's OK after all.

But now these, let's call them "changeable conservatives," use a little different reasoning. You see, if Congress has too much money, it will spend it foolishly, like fixing Social Security or on other kinds of social giveaways. If you run up the debt, there won't be money to give away.

Republicans used to say it differently about Social Security. "We can solve this impossibly expensive program by privatizing it." That did not sell at all, and fixing Social Security has disappeared from the Republican agenda.

But there are still two rock-solid ways a government can avoid spending on health care and old-age security for common people. They can cut taxes, and they can take the country to war. "Nonsense," all right-thinking people say.

No responsible person in government would ever vote to take the country to war, and then vote to cut taxes so current voters won't have to pay for it.

I still think this is true. It's just that we don't have enough responsible people left in Congress. Do your bit, and replace Joe Schwarz with Sharon Renier.

Joe was good, but he is no longer a choice. A vote for Renier will be a vote against mudslingers, as well as a vote to put a responsible person in government to represent us in the 7th District.

Byrnes has earned voters' support

I am a 21-year resident of Manchester and proud to have helped elect state Rep. Pam Byrnes to office in 2004 and to be working to re-elect her this year.

The literature and letters from opponent Shannon Brown's campaign attempt to mislead voters, discredit Pam's conduct and question her integrity. Ironically, Brown's materials have served to reinforce my opinion that Shannon is unprepared to hold elected office.

For the record: Rep. Byrnes has agreed to a debate 7 p.m. Tuesday sponsored by the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce. This date was confirmed before Brown's campaign staff asked Pam to debate and before he wrote his recent letter to the editor last week.

Rep. Byrnes voted in both of Washtenaw County's public safety elections. Shannon Brown did not vote on either occasion. (2005 public safety and justice millage and 2006 800 MHz emergency radio millage).

Rep. Byrnes is endorsed by 14 law enforcement and first-responder organizations. Shannon Brown has no such endorsements.

Rep. Byrnes has voted in every election and has a perfect attendance record as a legislator. Shannon Brown votes less than 50 percent of the time and has never held public office.

The Shannon Brown campaign tactics of distortion and misrepresentation are toxic to a participatory democracy. They discourage good people from running for office and they contribute to voter cynicism.

Shame on Shannon Brown. She could learn a lot from Pam's example.

Vote for Proposal 3 on Nov. 7 ballot

I am writing to urge voters to vote "yes" on Proposal 3 Nov. 7.

Michigan has been targeted by a fanatical animal rights organization to push its agenda. This out-of-state group doesn't have a special affinity for mourning doves; it's just one step in their multi-step effort to end all hunting, fishing and even pet ownership. This extreme group also wants to ban all life-saving animal medical research.

Mourning doves are federally regulated, migratory game birds, hunted in 40 other states. Professional wildlife management has produced steady population growth of 400 million birds across the country.

By voting "yes" on Proposal 3, you keep the decisions on hunting and wildlife management in the hands of wildlife professionals and out of politics.

Voting "yes" stops the animal rights extremists groups in their tracks. This group has said that dogs should not be called dogs, but referred to as canine Americans. Does this tell you something?

WHAT ARE BITE PROBLEMS AND WHY ARE THEY IMPORTANT TO CORRECT?

I RECOMMEND BRACES FOR PATIENTS WITH EXCESSIVE VERTICAL OVERLAP OF THE UPPER AND LOWER FRONT TEETH. THIS CONDITION IS CHARACTERIZED BY THE LOWER FRONT TEETH BITING THE SKIN OF THE ROOF OF THE MOUTH BEHIND THE UPPER FRONT TEETH. IF LEFT UNTREATED, IT CAN LEAD TO EXCESSIVE WEAR ON THE TEETH, AND EVEN CAUSE THEM TO FRACTURE. THEY ARE ALSO MORE SUSCEPTIBLE TO LOCALIZED TRAUMA, RECEDING GUMS, AND BONE LOSS. I ALSO RECOMMEND TREATMENT FOR PATIENTS WITH PROTRUDING UPPER FRONT TEETH BECAUSE THESE TEETH ARE AT RISK OF INJURY. IN CASES OF SIGNIFICANT PROTRUSION, PATIENTS MAY HAVE DIFFICULTY BITING INTO FOOD AND CHEWING.

and potatoes of the proposal would require the state to fund annual increases equal to the rate of inflation for public schools, intermediate school districts, community colleges, higher education, and financial aid and grant programs.

Again, nowhere does the proposal say where that money is to come from, other than the state.

If this becomes law, the state would be required to cut other services to meet the proposal's requirements. And if the state did not cut those services, it would have to levy additional taxes to maintain state services and meet the requirements of Proposal 5.

Either way, Michigan taxpayers can expect to pay more, with no promises of a return on the investment.

Proposal 5 is nothing more than an attempt to put school funding on autopilot, with guaranteed increases, but no promises about the quality of education. The continued cash flow would guarantee only business as usual, with no incentive to investigate alternatives such as consolidation for cost savings.

Vote "no" on Proposal 5 on Nov. 7.

"It's not About the Score"

By: Sandy Wagner
Head Women's Golf Coach
Eastern Michigan University

My name is Sandy Wagner and I am the head women's golf coach at Eastern Michigan University. Before I took the job at Eastern, I was the assistant coach at the University of Michigan for five years. In addition to coaching for the past six years, I have been teaching the game of golf since 1991. Most golfers feel that a successful round of golf is based on the score they shoot. With all my experience in teaching and coaching the game of golf, I have come to realize that "It's not about the score!"

When I first started coaching the Eagles, I had to determine how I could make the team better. It wasn't soon after I started watching them play that I realized that most of the players were too focused on what they were going to shoot. I could tell how they were playing because I watched their body language and saw them lose control of their emotions. They were putting too much emphasis on the score. The worst part of the round would come on the last three holes, when they would start adding up what they were going to shoot. In the end, most of the shots they would lose were on the last three holes because the focus on the score won the battle.

I started telling the players that I didn't care what they shot because it wasn't about what the score card said. My emphasis during practices and play quickly turned to focusing on things they could control and managing those things at all times. Some of the things I try to get the players to concentrate on are: staying positive with their emotions and body language, nutrition and hydration, decisions and commitment to their shots, and their preparations to play. Once the kids started paying attention to the things they could control, their scores took care of themselves. Now the kids go to tournaments thinking how they can compete against the golf course and don't worry about whom they are playing against. They know they can't control what other players are doing so they don't worry about them.

During practice the kids have to do a lot of drills that center around pressure. Consequential drills are done during most of the practice. If you can learn how to handle pressure during practice, then you can handle it during competition, when it matters the most. The most successful players I have coached are the players that have been able to manage the pressure they feel. Now, I watch my players on the course and I can't tell what they are shooting because they are now prepared to handle pressure. They know what to focus on when they play the game of golf!

I tell my players all the time we will be a great team when we remember this statement: "When it's good, it's good, but when it's bad, it still needs to be good!"

Kopinski battles Brater for Senate

Dexter man takes on seasoned politician for 18th District seat

By Brian Gougherty
Heritage Newspapers

Michigan's 18th District Democratic incumbent Liz Brater will be challenged Nov. 7 for her seat in the Senate by Republican candidate John Kopinski.

The two are vying for representation of a district that includes the cities of Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti and Chelsea, as well as Dexter Village and 14 townships throughout Washtenaw County.

Brater worked in the past as a professor at the University of Michigan and served one term as Ann Arbor's first woman mayor from 1991 to 1993. Following her defeat for re-election in Ann Arbor, she successfully ran for the Michigan House of Representatives in 1994. Brater also served as representative to the 53rd District from 1995 to 2000, when she was terminated.

Brater was elected to the Senate in 2002 when she defeated both a Republican and Green Party candidate. She currently serves as the vice chairwoman of Natural Resources and Environmental Affairs and the agriculture, forestry and tourism committees.

Brater's challenger, John Kopinski of Dexter, is a self-proclaimed political "novice." A recent graduate of Michigan Technological University, he's celebrating his 25th birthday this month. He is currently employed as an electrical engineer, and is also the co-founder and president Blue Marble Security, a student-led company working with the U.S. Department of Homeland Security.

Following are the written responses of each candidate to a questionnaire solicited by the newspaper.

Q: Now that the Single Business Tax has been repealed effective Jan. 1, 2008, will the state need something else to replace the lost revenue?

BRATER:
"We must completely replace the $2 billion a year lost through the repeal of the Single Business Tax. The state is already running a deficit of more than $1 billion a year, resulting in severe cuts to education, health care, public safety, social services, infrastructure, environmental protection and revenue sharing with local government. To attract and retain businesses in Michigan, we need to be able to fund education and training to provide a skilled workforce and provide for infrastructure, public safety and other business needs."

KOPINSKI:
"Yes. The state needs a replacement for the lost revenue and I believe this should be in the form of a broad-based industry tax that would lure investment into Michigan and make Michigan competitive again. I do not believe in a service industry tax that would, most notably, hurt the health care industry, raising the cost of health insurance and making it less accessible."

Q: Do you support future tax cuts for Michigan? If no, please explain why. If yes, what further spending cuts would you propose?

BRATER:
"No, I do not support more tax cuts at this time. The tax cuts of the 1990s resulted in severe reductions in vital state functions, such as funding public and higher education, funding State Police and domestic security, providing access to health care, and protecting our air and water."

"We need to reinvest in our education system to train the work force of the 21st century in high technology and other skills needed in the 21st century economy."

KOPINSKI:

"No. Tax cuts are not an option given our current fiscal situation. I believe we need to trim costs, limit government spending and streamline state operations. Aside from finding a replacement for the disappearing Single Business Tax, we should keep the taxes level to help encourage new growth."

Q: Do you support Proposal 5, which would guarantee annual increases in school funding?

BRATER:
"I support the objective of Proposal 5 of providing annual increases to public and higher education. If we are going to do this successfully, we need to identify a revenue source. Since the state general fund is already running a deficit of over $1 billion a year, money cannot be transferred from that fund without further, deeper cuts in essential state functions, including health care, public safety, social services, infrastructure, environmental protection and revenue sharing with local governments."

KOPINSKI:
"No. While I firmly believe that improving education is a high priority for this state, I believe that the methods put forth in this proposal are actually detrimental to the educational system."

"Proposal 5 suggests that school funding be directly tied to the yearly rate of inflation. School funding should be based on analyzing the needs of the schools, not by following economic trends. In addition, the funds to be used in Proposal 5 would be taken from the health care and higher education budgets."

Q: Should dove hunting be allowed in Michigan?

BRATER:
"I do not support dove hunting. The mourning dove has been a protected songbird in Michigan since 1905. The birds are very small and difficult to shoot without filling them with lead shot. The lead shot is an environmental hazard and renders the birds inedible, unless the hunter is very skillful. There is great risk that a bird can be wounded, un-retrieved and left to die slowly."

"Furthermore, mourning doves are easily confused with certain protected species, such as the American kestrel, a federally protected falcon."

KOPINSKI:
"Yes. The process of hunting helps control populations of wild species and keeps Michigan tourist dollars in Michigan to help strengthen the economy."

Q: Do you support the use of affirmative action programs in public institutions?

BRATER:
"I support affirmative action."

October is 'Michigan Car-Deer Crash Safety Awareness Month'
IF A CRASH WITH A DEER IS UNAVOIDABLE:
• DON'T SWERVE
• Brake firmly.
• Hold onto the steering wheel with both hands.
• Come to a controlled stop.
• Steer your vehicle well off the roadway.

"DON'T VEER FOR DEER!"
To help avoid a dangerous encounter with deer heed by the following tips:
1. Watch for deer especially at dawn and dusk. They are most active then, especially during the fall mating season.
2. Deer often travel single file, so if you see one cross a road, chances are more are nearby waiting to cross. When startled by an approaching vehicle, they can panic and dart out from any direction without warning.
3. Be alert all year long, especially on two-lane roads. Watch for deer warning signs. They are placed at known deer-crossing areas and serve as a first alert that deer may be near.
4. Slow down when traveling through deer-populated areas.
5. If all else fails, visit ROBERTS PAINT & BODY, INC. and enter their Deer Hit Contest.

Number of young drivers in crashes declining

Drivers between the ages of 16 and 24 make up about 16 percent of the driving population, but were involved in about 26 percent of all traffic crashes in 2005, according to a recent study by the Insurance Institute of Michigan.

By comparison, 55- to 64-year-olds represent 14 percent of all drivers and were involved in 10 percent of all roadway crashes last year.

Crashes involving young people also tend to be more deadly. Among licensed drivers, young people between the ages of 15 and 24 years old have the highest rate of fatal crashes relative to other age groups. In fact, the risk of being involved in a fatal crash for young drivers in Michigan is two times greater than drivers age 55 to 64.

Immaturity and inexperience are the two main factors leading to the high crash rate among young drivers. Michigan's graduated licensing law, which includes a phase-in program for teen driver licensing, has been successful in reducing teen motor vehicle accidents, according to a news release from the state.

The number of young drivers in all crashes has declined from 163,239 in 1999 to 138,533 last year. However, more crashes and more serious injuries result in increased insurance premiums for young drivers, said Pete Kuhnmueller, executive director of Insurance Institute of Michigan.

"A younger person who is the principal driver of a motor vehicle typically pays 40 to 200 percent more for insurance coverage than older drivers," he said. "This surcharge is reduced as the driver grows older and is generally discontinued by insurance companies at or before age 25."

Premium surcharges are generally much lower for young drivers who use the family car only on an occasional basis. These typically range from 20 percent for 24-year-olds to 80 percent for 16-year-olds, but vary from one insurance company to another.

There are ways for young drivers to save on their auto insurance:

YDrive carefully. Most traffic tickets and at-fault accidents will automatically increase rates.

• Select a car carefully. Cost, repairability and performance characteristics are determining factors in the cost of insurance.

• If you have an older car, consider dropping both collision and comprehensive coverage.

• Ask about special discounts. Some companies offer discounts for good grades, safety features and for insuring two or more cars with the same company.

The Insurance Institute of Michigan is a government affairs and public information association representing 41 property/casualty insurance companies and another 50 related organizations operating in Michigan.

Member companies provide insurance to 74 percent of the automobile and 65 percent of the homeowners markets in Michigan.

For more information about insurance, call 1-800-777-8005.

action because it's necessary to provide a diverse educational and work setting. Before affirmative action, women and minorities did not have equal access to higher education and employment. We need to continue to have tools in place to level the playing field to address inequities in our society."

KOPINSKI:

"Yes, I do believe that opportunities need to be given to those who would otherwise not have opportunities; however, I do not feel that because of a person's ethnicity, gender, or race they should be given preferential treatment. Socioeconomic affirmative action seeks to heal the heart of the problem by helping all citizens, no matter what race, ethnicity or gender, to have an equal playing field."

"Whether or not the current ballot proposal is implemented, which I believe that it should be, the state should institute an affirmative action plan that takes into account economic standing, in order to help those in our society with great potential but no means to realize that potential."

Q: Should Michigan lift its current ban on embryonic stem cell research?

BRATER:

"We should lift the ban on embryonic stem cell research. This research would be conducted on embryos that are now being discarded. It offers great potential for developing treatment of spinal injuries and of terrible diseases such as Alzheimer's, diabetes and Parkinson's."

"We are making huge investments in life sciences, yet deterring scientists from locating in Michigan because of obstacles to stem cell research."

KOPINSKI:

"No. As a society, we should take care of our most vulnerable members and protect the dignity of human life throughout all stages of development. The moment we value one life above another, we jeopardize our basis for the value of human life in society."

"Research into both adult and cord stem cell research has been proven successful in helping patients and I believe we need to invest in these high-tech areas to realize the currently attainable benefits from non-destructive stem cell research."

Q: Should the state be allowed to take private property by eminent domain if a considerable economic benefit is at stake?

BRATER:

"It's already illegal under Michigan case law for government to take property solely for economic development. Proposal 4 makes it harder for governments to convert blighted areas for socially useful purposes, such as affordable housing."

KOPINSKI:

"No. Money is not a substitute for people. Eminent domain should only be used for the purpose for which it was intended, that being to provide for the good of all the citizens."

Local farmer brings creativity to operation

By Brian Gougherty
Heritage Newspapers

It's an image engrained in our culture: A farmer, perhaps in overalls or a John Deere hat, rolling across those amber waves of grain on his giant green tractor, combine or some other mechanical behemoth.

That's the American farmer.

So what do you make of a man wearing a fedora, crouched on all fours, picking Hungarian peppers from a plant he grew in a claw-foot bathtub?

That's the new age farmer. And that's what William Dorr is as founder, proprietor and head strategist of "New Age Farms," located just south of the Washtenaw County line on US-12 in Lenawee County's Franklin Township.

It takes only a quick tour of Dorr's property to realize that his farm is a far cry from those surrounding him. In one area, a patch of sunflowers are growing from inside a blue toy car. Just down the row, some tomato plants are supported by an antique bed stand. And across the property is Dorr's pride and joy, a greenhouse built of recycled window frames.

Sure, it's a surreal scene. But it's also one that addresses the very real problem of small-farm survival.

Since the 1930s, the number of farms in America has dropped from near seven million to close to two million. Farms are now bigger and the industry has become immensely competitive, putting extreme economic pressure on the small-farm operator.

Increasingly, more of these farmers have to find extra income to stay afloat. It's an ugly economic picture, one that's discouraged many in the younger generation from continuing in their parents' footsteps, leaving many farms dormant or bought out by their larger counterparts.

Such would have been the story at Dorr's farm.

The 120-acre parcel has been in the Dorr family for five generations. William's father, grandfather and great-grandfather all made a living farming the same land. But when William's father suffered a stroke at an early age and his boys were too young to take over, farming on the land stopped.

Dorr, who left home at a young age, saw firsthand the hardship his father endured to keep the farm going and had no intention of doing the same. Instead, he found work in construction, a career he's kept for 15 years now.

But Dorr recently turned his attention back to the 20 acres he owns on his family's property, and he's apparently had a change of heart.

"It's been dormant for 20-plus years now," Dorr said. "I told myself I was never going to get into it, but here I am."

This year, Dorr left his job in construction and cleared just under an acre of land to grow on. It's a petite plot, but it's nonetheless forced Dorr to figure out how to make a profit, the same dilemma thousands of other small farmers face each season.

Dorr, who has little farming experience, says it has been his work in construction that has been most valuable on the farm. His trick in balancing the budget is not so much pushing a lot of product — though he hopes to in the future — but more so keeping his costs down.

Simply put, he recycles, and it shows.

Dorr built a starter greenhouse off the back of his house with used lumber and old window frames from houses. He keeps it warm through the winter with a wood-burning stove powered by fuel from his own property. The whole structure, which warmed his 2,000-plus seedlings last winter, cost him a mere $20 to build.

Because most of his land is clay-based and Dorr has no tractor or plow, tilling also required a creative solution. So, rather than buying some indubitably expensive equipment, Dorr decided to not plow at all. Instead, he tiered out the land into flat parcels, collected about 1,000 used tractor tires and filled them with manure and compost. Now, they're some very large planters for some very large crops.

"Tires are the nicest thing," Dorr said. "I found I just fill 'em up, throw in a plant and you're done."

For smaller crops, he's found smaller containers — anything from chimney flue liners, old toolboxes and even toilets. They're all recycled, and all free of charge.

And that's just the beginning of Dorr's money-savers. There are pole beans climbing a recycled bunk bed frame, an entire shed built of reused barn lumber, and stacked tires in which he stews his own compost.

Dorr spent no more than $300 on seeds for this season, and since the spring he's single handedly grown more than 2,000 plants. His harvest included five different kinds of tomatoes, a variety of peppers, two types of eggplant, potatoes, yams, flowers and more — all of which he's enthusiastically peddled at local farmers' markets and his roadside stand throughout the summer.

With the season winding down, his figures show that over the past months he's made back all his expenses this year, and even has a bit left over. It may seem a small feat for the average business man, but for the farmer who relies on weekly markets and traffic driving by his house for all his income, it's quite an achievement.

His message is simple.

"I'm trying to show that farming doesn't have to be totally expensive," Dorr said.

While he's successfully kept his cost to a minimum, Dorr found selling his product is still a challenge. It's, of course, hard to compete with the much larger suppliers that contract with grocery stores and restaurants, yet there's still a local market that's willing to support small farms like his own.

Dubbed "the Gentleman Farmer" on account of his cordial manners and ever-present fedora, William Dorr has taken his own approach to self-sustained small farming. Above, he's pictured in his new full-size greenhouse. Its sides are constructed of recycled window frames and a wood-burning stove will keep it warm throughout the winter.

Because Dorr's not using any expensive chemical fertilizers or pesticides, he's able to market as being organic — an increasingly sought-after label.

While New Age Farms haven't been certified "organic" by any national organization, as a small farm it fulfills a common role, giving an alternative to the distant and overwhelmingly large factory farms, where most produce comes from.

Suzanne Smucker is a member of the Michigan Organic Food and Farm Alliance. She also raises certified organic ewes at her farm on Lamb Road in Manchester. Organic food, she says, is becoming more competitive with conventionally grown produce each year.

"It's growing," Smucker said. "People are becoming smarter, and they really do believe that food impacts health."

While the cost and paperwork to become organically certified often exceeds the means of the small farmer, Smucker says smaller operations following organic principles have their own advantage, which is their proximity to the consumer.

"All these farms fit into a local scheme. It represents an alternative to large-scale organic farming," she said. "Instead of shopping for a certification, the customer can shop for what they want based on what they see going on at that farm."

This is exactly how Dorr hopes to expand his operation in the future. As he sees it, the more people he can get to visit his farm, the more successful his operation will be. But he's not just going to rely on a simple roadside stand to draw in the traffic off US-12.

Dorr actually has some rather ambitious plans for his farm. Next year, he has plans to begin building three houses on the property that will eventually be the center of a housing and farming cooperative.

He also has hopes to develop a bed and breakfast, hunting lodge and outdoor cafe, all of which will be self-sustained with well water, solar power, corn furnaces and, of course, homegrown food.

His plans are surely unorthodox and farming purists would find more than one thing to scoff at. But the farming purists also seem to be washing away with the tide.

Dorr, however, is ready to move forward. "I'm a very determined individual," he said, "I just want to make this work."

"I've got a lot of big ideas. If it works it works. If it doesn't, I'll go try it somewhere else."

New Age Farms is located on the south side of US-12 about one mile west of M-52. Lamb Farm is located west of Manchester at 6734 Lamb Road in Manchester Township.

Mammography Screening

What is a mammogram?

A mammogram is an x-ray of the breast and surrounding tissues which can effectively detect cancers long before you might feel a change during your monthly breast self-exam. Mammography can detect breast changes which could signify very early breast cancer.

Is mammography safe?

A very small dose of radiation is used in mammography, an amount equal to about two hours in the sun which places mammography in the safe range.

In the United States, mammography clinics are certified to assure quality and safety. The American Cancer Society can provide a list of certified clinics in your area by calling your local office or 1-800-ACS-2345. It is important to remember where your mammograms are performed so that results in future years can be compared.

I have no symptoms, do I still need a mammogram?

Every woman needs yearly mammograms beginning at the age of 40 or as recommended by her physician. A mammogram can detect cancer as much as a year or two before you or your physician could feel it. Breast cancer found in its earliest stages offers the greatest chance of remission and survival.

What kind of breast changes should be reported to your physician?

- Any lump or thickening of the breast or surrounding tissue
- A dimpling or puckering of your breast
- Scaling of the skin surrounding the nipple
- Nipple discharge which is not associated with breast feeding
- Any other breast change which is different for you.

It's important to remember that most breast lumps are not cancerous and the most common reasons for breast lumps is fibrocystic breast disease which is a benign condition.

Although annual mammography offers your best chance for early detection of breast cancer, no test is 100% accurate. And it's vital for you to maintain a schedule of yearly mammograms and perform monthly breast self-exam (BSE) to check for changes. Remember, the earlier breast cancer is detected, the better your chance of beating this insidious disease.

Gallery to open tearoom

Shop to feature green, black, oolong and flavored teas

By Chris Wright
Special Writer

A spot of tea, anyone? Elaine Barber hopes the answer to that question is "yes" as she plans to open the Mad Hatter Tea Room Nov. 11 inside Elaine's Gallery of Fine Art & Framing, 8063 Main St., in Dexter.

The room, which is located in the front of the gallery, will feature a variety of green, black, oolong and flavored teas, as well as finger sandwiches, cookies, chocolates and other items.

Barber, having been in the art and framing business for the 11 years in Dexter, will continue with her current business along with the tea service.

Barber said her shop will serve fresh tea, as opposed to bagged tea, to patrons who will be offered hats and boas to wear while having their drinks.

"We're just looking to have a lot of fun with this," said Barber, a 47-year-old Hamburg Township resident.

Teas will be brewed in ornate teapots and served in a variety of cups, she added.

Barber held an informal opening Oct. 10 to work out the kinks before she plans to officially open next month.

"We've been working really hard to put this together," she said.

Barber's tearoom joins a growing number of such places statewide. According to TeaGuide, a Web site that allows ratings of tearooms worldwide, there are locally no fewer than five in Ann Arbor and one in Tecumseh. The Web site is located at www.teaguide.net.

California, Barber and her daughter went to 10 different tearooms ranging from informal rooms in the front of flower shops to grandly themed rooms.

Barber said she doesn't want her shop to be too stuffy or dainty. She also hopes her new business venture will bring more foot traffic through Dexter.

"The response from the locals has been wonderful," she said.

The tearoom idea came at a good time, Barber said. The lease on her downtown building was set to expire in August, and she was considering getting out of business for herself and going back into the field of nursing.

Then came the notion of a tearoom.

"This tea room idea has given me new life," she said.

Investing in Our Children's Futures

Chelsea Community Foundation Supports Program to Help Kids Grow Up Healthy

Today's kids are faced with many choices, not all of them good. It takes the entire community to ensure that our young people grow up with every opportunity to be healthy, happy and able to achieve their dreams.

That's why, in 2005, the Chelsea Community Foundation supported a partnership between the Chelsea Community Hospital and the Chelsea School District to launch Move Forward! Healthy Choices for Kids and Families, a comprehensive program to promote good nutrition and physical activity among Chelsea students.

The goal of Move Forward! is to set our community's children on a healthy path for the future. The program engages third- and fourth-grade students at Pierce Lake Elementary School in intensive and wide-ranging activities focusing on personal health. Kids, their families and teachers learn about the importance of physical activity and healthy food choices, and work together to create home and classroom environments that are conducive to being active and eating well.

Students at Pierce Lake Elementary School have responded enthusiastically to the healthy food choices available in the cafeteria's new salad and fresh fruit bar. The bar was installed as part of a partnership between Chelsea Community Hospital and the Chelsea School District to encourage young people to eat well and be physically active.

This is one example of many investments the Chelsea Community Foundation has made in the current and future health of our community. Since our founding in 1994, the Chelsea Community Foundation has distributed $610,000 to support projects that seek to benefit the quality of life for people of all ages in Chelsea.

Guided by an advisory board of local leaders, grants are awarded to projects that seek to identify creative solutions to community problems, focus on long-term community betterment and address emerging needs not yet being addressed by others.

We are proud to support the important work of charitable organizations that contribute to our community's well being.

If your organization is interested in applying for a grant, please contact us. We are always seeking promising programs and ideas for making great things happen for our community.

Origins and Facts About Sweetest Day

Observed the 3rd Saturday in the month of October, Sweetest Day observance originated in Cleveland in 1922. Herbert Birch Kingston, a philanthropist and candy company employee wanted to bring happiness into the lives of orphans, shut-ins and others who were forgotten. With the help of friends, he began to distribute candy and small gifts to the underprivileged. On the first Sweetest Day, movie star Ann Pennington presented 2,200 Cleveland newspaper boys with boxes of candy to express gratitude for their service to the public.

Another popular movie star, Theda Bara, distributed 10,000 boxes of candy to people in Cleveland hospitals and also gave candy to all who came to watch her film in a local theater.

Primarily a regional observance celebrated in the Great Lakes region and the Northeast, Sweetest Day is gradually spreading to other areas of the country. People tend to take the Sweetest Day tradition with them when they move. Ohio is the top state for Sweetest Day sales, followed by Michigan and Illinois. Texas, California and Florida are among the top 10 states in sales.

Over the years, Sweetest Day has evolved into a time to express romantic love and also to show appreciation to friends.

Not bad for a converted wide receiver.

Last Friday night, Chelsea senior Nate Schwarze, pressed into emergency duty as Bulldog quarterback after starter Jon Seelbach and back-up Jeff Adams both went down with injuries in the past two weeks, led Chelsea to a 20-14 victory over visiting Ann Arbor Pioneer at Jerry Niehaus Field.

"The last time I played quarterback was in the eighth grade," said Schwarze, who finished the night 12-of-20 passing for 137 yards with two touchdowns and one interception. "I really wasn't a passing quarterback, I just ran the ball."

Schwarze did both against the Pioneers, frustrating their defenders all game long with his scrambling ability and with his accurate throws. Pioneer coach Chuck White was impressed with Schwarze's performance.

"We knew he was athletic, but he made some of our guys look pretty un-athletic," he said. "We knew he was going to play, but there's no substitute for the fact that we still had to tackle the kid."

And that was something that eluded the Pioneers all night.

Chelsea coach Brad Bush said Schwarze played well, but that there was room for improvement.

"As a quarterback coach, I cringe sometimes because he doesn't know what he's doing yet," he said. "But as a fan and a coach, just watching him play, he's a winner. He is a flat-out winner."

Chelsea (7-1), ranked No. 3 in Division III, began the game scoring on its first possession as Schwarze hooked up with junior Jason Kolokithas, his replacement at receiver, for a 28-yard touchdown pass. Senior Dan Rhodes' point-after touchdown kick was good, giving the Bulldogs a 7-0 lead with 8:55 left in the first quarter.

Pioneer (5-3) answered on their first drive as Will Helinger scored on a 10-yard pass from quarterback Dan Dresselhouse. A.J. Fogle's PAT split the uprights tying the contest at 7-7 with 4:59 remaining in the first quarter.

Early in the second quarter, freshman Nick Hill scored on a 1-yard run for the Bulldogs. Rhodes' PAT was successful putting Chelsea back on top 14-7 with 9:34 left in the second quarter.

In the third quarter, Ann Arbor's Mike Dameron scored on a 1-yard run. With Fogle's PAT, Pioneer tied the game at 14-14 with 4:03 left in the frame.

In the fourth quarter, after Rhodes' second interception of the night, senior Adam Connell scored on an 18-yard pass from Schwarze with 4:03 remaining for the game's final margin.

"We just played our game," said Rhodes, who finished with a team-high eight tackles from his defensive back position. "The defense stepped up and made plays. We shut them (Pioneer) down."

Chelsea ended up with 246 total yards of offense. Pioneer had 316 total yards.

Dresselhouse finished 13-of-31 for 197 yards passing.

On the ground, Hill led the Bulldogs with 62 yards on 19 attempts. Schwarze had 23 yards on 16 tries, while Antwan McClendon had 18 yards on five carriers.

Sweetest Day

October 21st

Origins and Facts About Sweetest Day

Observed the 3rd Saturday in the month of October, Sweetest Day observance originated in Cleveland in 1922. Herbert Birch Kingston, a philanthropist and candy company employee wanted to bring happiness into the lives of orphans, shut-ins and others who were forgotten. With the help of friends, he began to distribute candy and small gifts to the underprivileged. On the first Sweetest Day, movie star Ann Pennington presented 2,200 Cleveland newspaper boys with boxes of candy to express gratitude for their service to the public.

Another popular movie star, Theda Bara, distributed 10,000 boxes of candy to people in Cleveland hospitals and also gave candy to all who came to watch her film in a local theater.

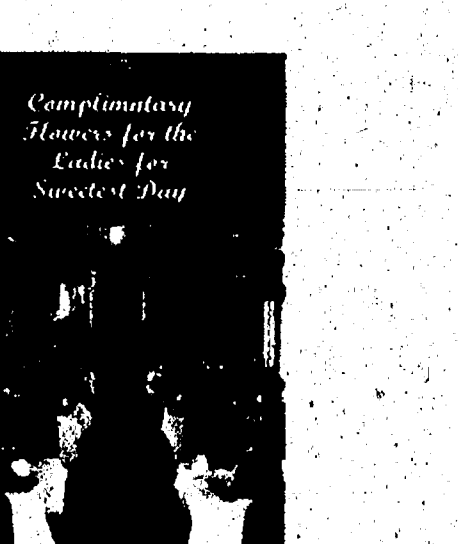

Primarily a regional observance celebrated in the Great Lakes region and the Northeast, Sweetest Day is gradually spreading to other areas of the country. People tend to take the Sweetest Day tradition with them when they move. Ohio is the top state for Sweetest Day sales, followed by Michigan and Illinois. Texas, California and Florida are among the top 10 states in sales.

Over the years, Sweetest Day has evolved into a time to express romantic love and also to show appreciation to friends.

Dameron led Ann Arbor with 128 yards on 16 attempts.

Connell ended up with five receptions for 36 yards. Kolokithas had two catches for 43 yards, Dan Augustine two receptions for 39 yards and McClendon two catches for 10 yards.

Patrick Collins had four receptions for 61 yards, while Helinger had four catches with 58 yards.

Defensively, Chris Hopkins had six tackles, while Todd Elliott, Jesse Stewart and Taylor Hopkins each had four tackles, and Zach Leszczynski three stops for Chelsea. Dean Roberts and Elliott each recovered fumbles.

"We didn't make plays when we needed to," White said. "We had opportunities. We had dropped balls. We got a little dumb down the stretch with personal fouls. There were all kinds of opportunities for us to take advantage of, but we just didn't."

"You can't turn the ball over four times against a team like Chelsea. We didn't play well enough to win."

Bush said his Chelsea squad has incurred its fair share of injuries as of late.

"We're a little snake bit," he said. "We lost our center on the first series and now we're scrambling on the offensive line.

"We might have a chance to get Jeff (Adams) back next week. Seelbach is out for the year with a torn ACL (anterior cruciate ligament)."

Despite the injuries, Bush said he expects his team to perform.

"I think that good teams and good programs, when everything's against you, you find a way to win," he said. "And tonight we found a way to get it done. I'm proud of the guys for that."

Chelsea concludes its regular season traveling to Milan Friday for a game at 7 p.m.

JV Football

Chelsea's JV football team lost to host Ann Arbor Pioneer 27-20 last Thursday.

"We had too many mistakes in the first half that we just couldn't overcome," said Chelsea coach Chris Orlandi.

The Bulldogs next host Milan 7 p.m. Thursday.

Freshman Football

Chelsea's freshman football team lost to host Ann Arbor Pioneer 19-12 last Thursday.

"The kids played hard," said Chelsea coach Dennis Strzyzewski. "I am happy with the effort, but they just couldn't finish the game. We have had three really close losses this year. That is frustrating for everyone."

The Bulldogs next host Milan 4 p.m. Thursday.

VILLAGE OF DEXTER PLANNING COMMISSION NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to Michigan Public Act 110 of 2006, as amended, notice is hereby given that the Dexter Village Planning Commission will hold a public hearing on Monday, November 6, 2006 at 7:30 p.m. at the Dexter Senior Center, 7720 Dexter Ann Arbor Road, Dexter, Michigan, for the purpose of hearing public comment regarding the following Planned Unit Development (PUD) Area Plan petition/application:

United Methodist Retirement Communities (UMRC) and the Dexter Area Historical Society have submitted an area plan for development of approximately 61 attached senior housing condominiums on the northwest corner of the property commonly known as Gordon Hall, 8341 Island Lake Road, C-03-31-300-004. The proposed condominiums will occupy approximately 15 acres in the northwest corner of the property. The proposed development also includes a community center for use by the occupants of the project. The property is located in Webster Township and is part of an existing PA 425 Conditional Transfer agreement. The applicant is proposing to request that the 15 acres of property be annexed into the Village of Dexter following approval of the site plan.

PUD requirements permit flexibility in the regulation of land development, encourage innovation in land use and variety in design, layout and type of structures constructed, achieve economy and efficiency in the use of land, natural resources, energy, and the provision of public services and utilities, encourage useful open space, and provide better housing, employment, and shopping opportunities. PUD projects have regulations relating to the use of land, including, but not limited to, permitted uses, lot sizes, setbacks, height limits, required facilities, buffers open space areas, and land use density, which will all be determined as part of the Planning Unit Development process per Article 19 of the Village of Dexter Zoning Ordinance.

Information regarding the special land use application is available for public inspection at the Village Offices, 6123 Main Street, Dexter, weekdays between 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. or by phone at (734) 426-8303 Ext. 15. Written comments regarding the proposed special land use permit should be submitted to the Village Offices, and must be received no later than 5:00 p.m., Tuesday, October 31, 2006. Sign language interpreter, or other assistance, is provided upon request to the Clerk, at least 72 hours in advance of the meeting. Minutes of all meetings are available at Village Offices and on the Village website.

Chelsea High School students celebrated Homecoming Spirit Week Oct. 10 through 13 with themed clothing days, including Pajama Day, Class Color Day, Camouflage Day, and Blue and Gold Day. Tuesday through Friday students also participated in contests between the classes with the Orange Pass, Marshmallow Drop, Tricycle Race and the Pyramid throughout the lunch periods.

A pep rally held Friday included a macaroni-and-cheese eating contest, balancing contest and dodge ball. The final activity involved the Homecoming queen and princess nominees throwing Cheetos at their escorts, who were covered with whipped cream.

Friday evening the traditional parade wound through town, ending at the newly renovated football stadium, while the Homecoming dance was held Saturday night at the high school.

The freshman class won overall for total points during Homecoming Spirit Week.

Bulldog Homecoming SPIRIT

With both a DJ and a live band, students at Chelsea's Homecoming dance Saturday had plenty of opportunities to dance. Emily Bougher (left) and Christina Coffman, both freshmen, join Junior Sara Myers on the dance floor. Myers and Coffman, part of a crew of about 20 people who decorated the commons area, started the process last week. This year's theme was "nightlife" and included neon colors against a black background.

Brogan Darwin, a junior at Chelsea High School, dressed in a camouflage Detroit Tigers cap and camouflage outfit, waits in line for her turn in the tricycle race as part of Homecoming Week activities. During lunch Oct. 12, Chelsea High School students competed against each other in the cafeteria to see which grade had the fastest time in the tricycle race.

Chelsea High School senior Josh Koch, lead guitar and vocals for the band Five O'Clock Shadow, started the Homecoming dance with their covers of songs by Led Zeppelin and Jimi Hendrix.

Massey earns prestigious scholarship

Sixteen freshmen, including Erik Massey of Chelsea, have won coveted Medallion Scholarships to begin their studies at Western Michigan University this fall.

Medallion Scholarships are among the highest honors WMU can bestow to an incoming freshman.

Massey received the Merze Tate Endowed Medallion and plans to major in psychology. He graduated from Chelsea High School, and is the son of Andrew Massey and Janet Sevde.

Valued at $40,000 over four years, the medallions constitute one of the largest merit-based awards in American higher education.

Each medallion bears the name of its donor or the person for whom the prize was established. The 2006 recipients were announced in July after competing in the 22nd annual Medallion Scholarship Program Competition at WMU in January.

The daylong competition included essay writing and group problem-solving activities, as well as an informational session for the participant's parents. A total of 177 seniors participated from 133 high schools in six states, including Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Wisconsin and New York.

dents had to apply to WMU by Dec. 31 and be among the top recipients of a WMU Dean's Scholarship.

The award for incoming students is based on cumulative high school grade point average and ACT scores. Those selected as Medallion Scholars for 2006-07 have an average ACT score of 30 and average GPA of 4.01. They will begin their studies at WMU in the fall and are scheduled to graduate during the 2009-10 academic year.

Participating in the 2006 competition were 93 students who scored 30 or higher on the ACT and 107 students with 4.00 or higher high school GPAs. Participants who did not win a Medallion Scholarship still retained their Dean's Scholarships of $4,000 per year for four years.

Place of Residence: Chelsea.

Family: Wife Katie; three-year-old son Michael.

Nominator: Nancy Lobdell.

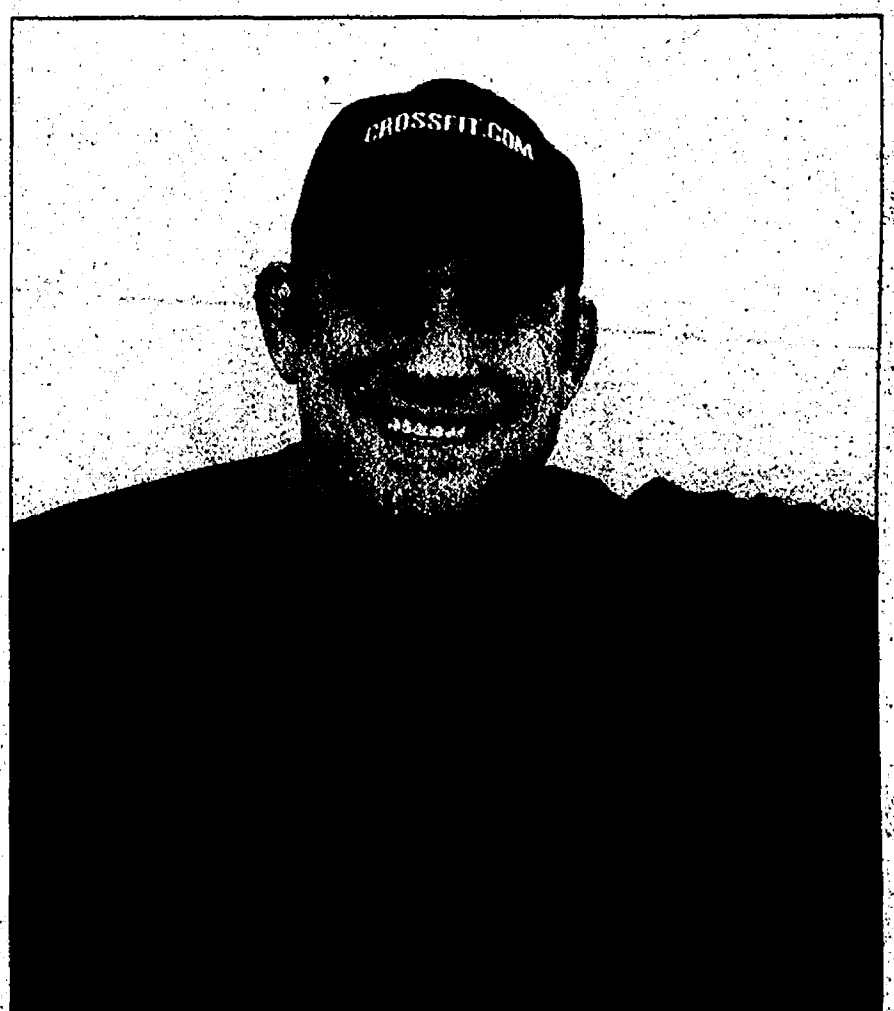

Reasons for Nomination: After working in the residential contracting business for 10 years, John started his own business three years ago, building it without help from friends or family. John characterizes his business style as "very personal."

"I don't take a job then send in subs," he said. "I'm there and I don't leave the job until the customer is 100 percent satisfied."

Last May, as a member of the National Bone Marrow Registry, John was called to donate bone marrow to a stranger — a 35-year-old man suffering from leukemia. The transplant took but with the recurrence of some leukemia cells he was recently called on to donate again. And he did, believing that if he was sick, he would want someone else to step forward and help.

John's mother recalls that as a little boy, she would give him money to buy Christmas gifts and he would put half of it in the Salvation Army bucket.

This giving spirit is why John Young was nominated among the 20 Under 40.

Superintendent's Corner

David K. Killips, Superintendent

The Chelsea School District has an important issue before the voters on Tuesday, November 7, 2006, General Election ballot. The issue is in regards to the renewal of our Sinking Fund.

The Sinking Fund is an odd name for an account. It is basically a capital improvement account that is used for the major repairs of our facilities, the construction of new facilities and the acquisition of land. It cannot, by law, be used for the day-to-day expenses such as salaries, benefits, school supplies or materials. This fund has been strictly monitored by the Department of Treasury.

The renewal of the Sinking Fund is not a tax increase for our residents. Currently, residents pay .9283 mills for our Sinking Fund. This renewal asks residents for permission to maintain this fund for another 10 years. Chelsea School District has had some form of capital improvement fund, via a tax assessment, for at least 30 years.

The renewal of the Sinking Fund will allow the school district to maintain the quality facilities that our community has generously supplied us. It will also help us maintain our General Fund for the education of our children. Without the renewal of the Sinking Fund, we will have decreased funds for major repairs or we will have to take money out of our General Fund for these major repairs, which will have a negative effect on programming for our children.

I encourage all voters to become informed on this issue and to cast a YES vote to help maintain our quality school district.

A Legislative Initiative to Establish Mandatory School Funding Levels:

The Chelsea School District Board of Education has supported this initiative since its inception. Proposal 06-5 would give school districts an annual increase in funding equal to the cost of living and would cap the retirement rates school districts pay to the state at 14.87%. Currently, school districts pay 17.74% to the state for retirement costs.

The cost of living increase would adjust our foundation grant per student based on our current funding while taking into consideration our enrollment, as it does now.

The retirement rate is set annually by the state and then passed on to local school districts to pay. Local school districts have no influence on the rate. Retirement costs have risen 65% since 1998. This year alone, the capping of the retirement rate would have saved the Chelsea School District approximately $400,000.

We urge voters to become informed on all issues, but we certainly would appreciate your support on Proposal 06-5.

The state-of-the-art AutoCad software used in the classroom is the same software engineers, designers, architects and trades people use on a daily basis worldwide. Diane Moss, technology teacher, is the instructor for the class. Exposure to the CADD class will give our students a tremendous advantage in colleges, universities, and in the work place. Classes are open to tenth through twelfth grade students. In the future, we hope to expand the program to include fire architecture, mechanical engineering, and electrical and mechanical systems.

Instructional Improvement Initiatives

There are many exciting instructional improvement initiatives underway in the Chelsea School District. These initiatives include the following:

Literacy Intervention and Support: This program provides a highly qualified literacy intervention staff person to work with our youngest students at North Creek Elementary School.

Instructional Consultation Teams: The goal of Instructional Consultation Teams is to improve student and staff performance in schools. This is done by building collaborative teams in buildings, whereby general, special education, and pupil service personnel share the responsibility for the education of ALL students. This capacity-building initiative is in its second year at Pierce Lake and South Meadows, Beach Middle School is in year one of training and implementation for this program.

New Middle School Instructional Model: The new instructional model now in place at Beach Middle School provides students in grades seven and eight increased time for core academic classes and an increased variety of elective courses (40+ new elective options).

NORTHWEST EVALUATION ASSOCIATION MEASURES OF ACADEMIC PROGRESS: This assessment program, being implemented in grades 3-8 over the course of this year, will provide school staff and families with periodic data in the areas of reading, language usage, and mathematics. The data from this assessment program, which includes norm-referenced scoring, will complement classroom assessments and state testing program (MEAP) data, providing us a fuller picture of student achievement.

CHS School Improvement Activities: As part of the North Central Accreditation process, all high school staff members serve on one of three school improvement teams: Reading, Career Awareness, or Critical Thinking. Staff training for high school teachers, this year, is focused on adolescent literacy strategies and improving the ability of teachers to differentiate instruction to meet the needs of all students.

Curriculum Review and Modifications: As a district, we have a curriculum review process that looks at all curriculum areas over a six-year cycle. In this school year, new instructional strategies and resources are being implemented in the areas of Social Studies, Computer Education, Business Education, Technology Education (a new CADD class at CHS), and Art. The major focus for curriculum study this school year will be on responses to the new Michigan high school graduation requirements.

Several other initiatives are underway in our district, related to district goals in the areas of finance, communication, and safety. All district improvement activities are designed to help us live fully into our vision as a school district: "Achieving Educational Goals, One Student at a Time."

For more information about instructional programs or improvement initiatives in the Chelsea School District, contact Shawn Lewis-Lakin, Executive Director for Student Performance, slakin@gmail.com, chelsea.k12.mi.us

Safety in our Schools

One of the Chelsea School District Board of Education's goals continues to be "maintain a safe environment." Last year, the Chelsea School District implemented several strategies to assure a safe learning environment for our children. These initiatives, along with additional safety measures, will be in place this year.

During the 2005-06 school year, the District started the mandatory use of nametags and video surveillance cameras. Each school building has only one door open while school is in session; limited entrance allows staff to monitor who comes in the buildings during the day. Nametags are required by all staff and visitors during the school day. These tags are good tools to help any staff member identify adults who belong in the building and question those who are not wearing identification.

This year, our school district will be introducing lockdown drills and card keys. During a lockdown drill, staff will secure students and themselves in their rooms. This new state requirement will be practiced similar to a fire drill.

As part of the bond issue, the District will be installing card key access to all buildings. Card keys will improve our ability to monitor individuals entering the buildings before, during, and after normal school hours.

To prepare for emergencies, many staff members have been trained in First Aid and CPR. Hopefully, staff will never have to make use of this training but, if necessary, they will be prepared to respond.

All of these measures are important, but the most effective tools we have to keep our kids safe are the staff, students, parents, and community members. Anytime anyone sees or hears something that may interfere with the safety of our students, they should report it to school personnel. We need to work together to provide a safe environment for our students.

Sinking Fund Info-

QUESTIONS	ANSWERS
1. What is a sinking fund?	A sinking fund is a school revenue account designated for school building renovation and repair. This sinking fund renewal proposal requests authorization to levy up to 0.9283 mill ($0.9283 on each $1,000 of taxable valuation) for 10 years, 2007 to 2016, for "the construction or repair of school buildings, acquisition of sites and all other purposes authorized by law." In 2007, this will generate approximately $787,428. For nearly thirty years, Chelsea voters have supported schools with a millage dedicated to the renovation and repair of our schools.
2. Is this an increase in taxes?	No. This is not a tax increase. This is not a new tax. This is a request to renew our existing sinking fund millage, which expires this year.
3. What types of projects can a sinking fund support?	Past uses of sinking fund revenues have included roof replacements, fencing and sidewalks, accessibility renovations, fire-safety upgrades, parking lot resurfacing, and restroom renovations. Rather than using general fund dollars for such items, a sinking fund provides a designated source for these needs. Without a sinking fund, general fund dollars must be used for building repair and renovation needs, negatively impacting the funds available for the day-to-day operations of our schools.
4. Why can't we just vote on a proposal for general funds?	State school funding laws do not allow local districts to levy funds for day-to-day operational expenses such as salaries, benefits, classroom materials, and instructional resources. A sinking fund allows us to protect general fund dollars for day-to-day operational expenses, for which no other funding is available. We can do this by paying for those items that can be paid for with sinking funds - roof repairs, parking lot resurfacing, etc. - with the designated sinking fund, rather than with general fund dollars.
5. Is this needed? Didn't the bond take care of all of the school's building needs?	This proposal will "protect" over $750,000 per year of general fund dollars so they can be used for day to day operational and instructional needs.
6. When and where do I vote on the sinking fund?	This proposal will be on the Tuesday, November 7, 2006, general election ballot. Voters will vote at their regular polling places. Absentee ballots may be obtained from your city or township clerk. The November ballot will be long; the sinking fund proposal will be at the bottom of the ballot, on the second page.
7. How do I get more information about the sinking fund?	You may speak with any school administrator or Superintendent of Schools, David Killips, for additional information regarding the sinking fund levy proposal. Members of the Board of Education would also be pleased to discuss this with you. You may call the main district number, 734-433-2200, to be directed to any of these persons. You may also get information from the Chelsea School District website: www.chelsea.k12.mi.us.

The Tuesday, November 7, 2006, SINKING FUND RENEWAL:

- Will not increase taxes.
- It will:
- Continue funds for major repairs and renovations
- Help maintain a quality education for kids by keeping education dollars in the classroom.
- Help maintain quality facilities for students and the community

At the next general election, on Tuesday, November 7, 2006 the Chelsea School District is requesting a renewal of the current sinking fund. Here are questions and answers regarding the proposal:

1. What is a sinking fund?

5. Is this needed? Didn't the bond take care of all of the school's building needs?
In 2004, our community approved twenty-eight million dollars worth of bond expenditures. The projects completed with bond funds have exceeded expectations. However, the community group that met to formulate the bond proposal originally identified nearly forty-one million dollars worth of needs around our district. Many needs continue to exist. A renewal of the sinking fund will allow us to meet community expectations regarding school facilities. This proposal will extend our current sinking fund for 10 years. By the end of this time, we will have two buildings in our district that will be over 60 years old (North Creek and South Meadows), one building that will be almost 50 years old (Beach Middle School), and our newest buildings (Chelsea High School and Pierce Lake School) will be approaching 20 years of age. In the life of this sinking fund, we can anticipate additional significant needs in all of our school buildings.
6. When and where do I vote on the sinking fund?
This proposal will be on the Tuesday, November 7, 2006, general election ballot. Voters will vote at their regular polling places. Absentee ballots may be obtained from your city or township clerk. Saturn of Southgate

Downriver dealership is riding excitement of new products

BY MIKE SCHAFER

THE NEWS-HERALD
SOUTHGATE — Talk about your extreme makeovers.

With an entirely new lineup of vehicles filling its showroom floor, Saturn of Southgate is primed for one of its biggest years ever.

"It's like always, like never before' is our new tagline at Saturn," said Jeremy Dixon, retail operations manager at the dealership. "It's like always' refers to the great service we've always been known for and the warm and friendly folks here at Saturn.

"Like never before' is referring to our new products, such as the Aura, the Sky, the new Saturn Vue hybrid and the new Outlook, which is coming out soon.
It's our midsize SUV and something to sell. We've never had the opportunity to participate in that market segment. It's kind of exciting to see all this new stuff and now we can give that same Saturn experience to people that we always have and like never before offer them new and exciting products."

Saturn of Southgate sits on 3.5 acres at 16600 Fort St.,
site of the former Walt Oben Ford. The dealership is part of the Suburban Collection, the Midwest's largest privately owned automotive

The 2007 Saturn Sky is the big star at Saturn of Southgate, 16600 Fort St., however there's plenty of other new stars in the Saturn galaxy, including the Aura, Vue Greenline Hybrid and the soon-to-be-available Outlook midsize SUV.

group, with more than 30 locations.

Still, despite 12 years of being Downriver, Saturn of Southgate still seems like the new kid on the block, according to Dixon.

"Some people mistakenly think Saturn is an import," Dixon said. "Just the other day, a guy at a gas station asked me about that. I have to remind them that we are part of General Motors and are American-made. It's more important than ever to buy American if we are ever going to get this economy turned around."

Aside from new and used cars, Saturn of Southgate also offers financing and a complete service department that works on all makes and models.

"A lot of people don't know that, but that's something we're very proud of,

"We have good people," Dixon said. "The average tenure of employees is over five years, which, for a car dealership, is kind of rare. In sales, I have a couple of guys that have been here for about 12 years, and the average tenure in sales is only three to five years. The continuity is kind of nice, because it's almost like a family here at Saturn of Southgate. I spend more time here with these guys than I do with my own family, so it's a good thing to work with people you like."

Dixon himself has been with Saturn for 12 years and has been part of the Saturn of Southgate family for the past 11 years after joining the dealership in 1995 as finance manager. Later, he served as used car manager for two years and has been retail general manager for the last six years.

As his career has grown, so has Saturn of Southgate. The dealership now has eight salesmen in new cars and four used car sales representatives.

"Out of the eight new car salesmen, five have been with me for over five years, so that tells you a lot," Dixon said. "We're all like a family. You want to hire good people like that because you are with them more than you are with your own family."

The new products have had a positive effect on the enthusiasm of the staff at Saturn of Southgate, according to Dixon.

"But just because we have something new to sell doesn't mean we're going to sacrifice our services or our quality," he added.

Dixon can't help but rave about the new product line.

"Saturn Sky is innovative and stylish and fun to drive," he said. "Saturn Aura is very European. I think the Aura is like getting a $40,000 car for under $30,000. The new Outlook is another European inspired vehicle with eight-passenger seating and is something that will be able to tow up to 4,500 pounds, again for under $30,000, which is outstanding. We also have the Ion, which is great on gas, very economical and people friendly."

"Our new hybrid, the Vue, allows you to go green without going broke, which makes a lot of sense. The hybrid starts at under $23,000 and the first people that buy the hybrid can qualify for a $650 tax credit. The Aura will be coming out with a hybrid next year. The Vue and Ion are going to be produced to March of next year and there already are two new Saturn vehicles that will be produced to replace those models. So we're talking about an entire new product line for Saturn by next summer. That's exciting."

Dixon said the new product line is attracting a lot of first-time buyers to the Saturn brand. But equally satisfying is seeing some of the loyal Saturn buyers be able to step up to a larger sedan or SUV.

"The thing I like the most is that a lot of people may have started out with a Saturn Ion and then they have kids and are looking for something bigger, and up until now we haven't had anything to offer them," he said. "Now, they can move up to the Aura, or the Vue or the Outlook."

Saturn of Southgate is part of territory 1, which encompasses Michigan and Ohio, the highest volume territory in the country for Saturn sales.

Saturn of Southgate annually ranks in the top 30 in the nation out of 435 dealerships in terms of sales, according to Dixon, and sells between 800 and 1,200 vehicles a year. The dealership's sister store, Saturn of Troy, is the No. 2 overall dealership in the country.

"The group of Saturn retailers in this part of the country really get it when it comes to customer satisfaction," Dixon said.

Saturn's goal is a 25 percent sales increase next year over 2006, and with the influx of new products in the showroom, Dixon expects Saturn of Southgate to have a record year.

"We haven't been a player in the midsize SUV market," Dixon said. "But now with the Outlook, we're going to be offering an eight-passenger vehicle. And with Chevrolet going to stop production of the extended Trailblazer, if you want an American-made vehicle with that capability, the Outlook is going to be worth a test drive."

The dealership sponsors a wide variety of community events, including the Taste of Trenton and the Wyandotte Street Fair and was a major sponsor of last Saturday's breast cancer walk on Belle Isle. The dealership also has taken advantage of its Fort Street location to serve as host for displays and programs for Saturn owners during the annual Cruisin' Downriver.

"Last year, we had a cook-out for Saturn owners during the Cruise and I think we had 300 people R.S.V.P. and about 500 show up," Dixon said with a laugh. "We made sure no one left hungry, and it was a good feeling. That's one of the advantages we have over the other Saturn dealers in southeast Michigan. This is a tight-knit community Downriver, and they've been good to us and we want to give something back and be a part of the community. I think that is important."

Dixon said Saturn is "proud" to be part of the Downriver community.

"We've been here for 12 years and we want to continue the great service that Saturn has always been known for," he said.

Aura is the most sophisticated Saturn ever

You wouldn't expect to hear the words "elegance" and "refinement" being the key to Saturn's future, but when it introduced the Aura midsize sedan, those were the words bandied about quite a bit.

And, with good reason: This is the most sophisticated, elegant Saturn to date. And it's pretty darned refined for a car priced in the mid-$20,000s.

Why is this important? Take a look at the last two cars Saturn's introduced. First was the Sky, a two-seat roadster that James Bond would be comfortable to be seen in.

"The Sky is our halo car," said Jill Lajdziak, Saturn general manager. "The idea is to both attract new people to Saturn, and for them to think the company that makes this roadster is cool."

She and I rode together during the Aura launch in Santa Barbara, Calif. As we drove along some of the more pleasant countryside around, she stayed on message: Saturn will succeed at creating and selling desirable cars. If there were concerns at General Motors about Saturn's future at one time, they seem to have passed.

Lajdziak was quick to say that Saturn's product line has suffered in the past couple of years, but now that's being fixed.

"Product is the key to the future of Saturn," she said. "Our customers want Saturn to be a full-line brand."

The Aura is the latest model in GM's "mid-sized car architecture," which was developed from Saab's 9-3. But there's little similarity in them. The Aura is a full sedan that's roomy and comfortable.

One of the more noticeable things is how quiet it is inside, due to GM using "quiet" glass in the windshield and front side windows. This glass has a layer of plastic between two layers of glass. Pardon me for not being an engineer here, but however they do it, it works.

It's also a pretty car, with a strong appearance. It has good lines and crisp detailing. It's definitely not a "metoo" car. It's based on General Motors' concept car of the same name, which hit the auto show circuit in 2005.

I like the clean, modern interior, particularly the dashboard. The top of it is matte black, so reflections in the windshield are reduced and often eliminated. The front seats were surprisingly comfortable, even though we were in them for four hours with minimal stops.

They were soft and supple, but when necessary, you noticed they supported you quite well. Interior surfaces are low-gloss, and the instrument panel can claim a simple and clean layout.

Even the entry-level Aura XE gets large 17-inch wheels; with the XR, you get even snazzier polished aluminum 18-inchers wrapped in higher performance tires. In front, modern, jewel-like halogen headlamps let you know this car's "with it."

In the rear, there are light-emitting diode, or LED, taillights, the current winner, offering lighting that degrades instead of failing completely and immediately. They also make designers happy, because they're fun to play with.

There are two V6 engines available for the Aura's two trim levels, the XE and up-level XR. One's an older 3.5-liter push-rod V-6 engine, although it now has a form of variable-valve timing. But the intake and exhaust valves can't be varied independently. It generates 224 horsepower and 200 lbs.-ft. of torque.

The upper model of the Aura has both a new engine and a new — and very good — six-speed automatic transmission. It's a 3.6-liter V-6 engine, an overhead cam with four valves per cylinder, and they can be adjusted separately. It produces 252 horsepower and 252 lbs.-ft. of torque.

This is a big step for GM. After driving both cars back to back, the difference between it and the old four-speed makes the advantages of a modern gearbox extremely clear.

The six-speed does a good job of keeping the engine's power available. Driving through the twisty bits, just a slight modulation of the accelerator would bring about a smooth download. In the four-speed, you had to really step on it, and the downshift was much more dynamic.

We'll see this transmission through General Motors' cars in the coming years, and Saturn ought to be proud to be the first one out of the chute with it.

One of the best features of this car is that you can take the high-end model and add every option, and the price is still under $28,000. Another good thing is the way it drives. A day wandering the Sonoma, and even up and back on the freeway, was pleasant driving.

One reason is the suspension is comfortable, but not sloppy. You can control the car well without paying a bit in comfort. The steering is reasonably crisp, more than necessary in this segment of the market. The brakes are fine, although they hearken back to the days of "real" power brakes. When you touch them, the car stops. I'd like a little more play in them.
