Talk to the staff at LaFontaine Chrysler Dodge Jeep

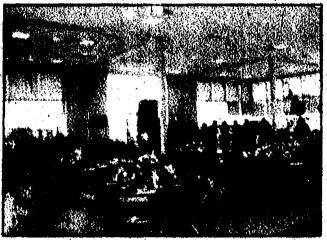

In Saline you will find out what "The Family Deal" is all about. In this economy; we all seem to be looking for ways to save money and the $9.95 oil change that LaFontaine offers on most makes and models is reason enough for most of us to stop in and check it out. The surprising part is that once you arrive for your oil change, you find an atmosphere that is friendly comfortable. The showroom is clean and open with about ten cars to check out while you wait for your oil change. There is always coffee or tea available and they offer breakfast snacks on Saturday mornings to help make it easier for customers with busy schedules. They also offer a courtesy shuttle for service and sales customers.

LaFontaine has seen continuous growth since they put their name on the Chrysler Dodge Jeep building on Michigan Avenue in Saline. They jumped into this community with both feet and it shows in the loyalty that their customers show the dealership. When you ask the team at LaFontaine about business; they will tell you across the board that they owe their success to all of their valued customers who trust them to assist them with their automotive needs. If you look at the sales and service team you will find quite a "melting pot" of employees.

4-H members meet, show off kids

By Lisa Allmendinger teritage Newspapers

The Chelsea Community Fairgrounds was recently alive with the sounds of goats. Yes, goats, as 4-H members practiced their handing skills and specie knowledge during a morning workshop.

Nearby, other 4-H'ers were working with poultry and rabbits during the annual small animal workshop Stephen Brandell, 12, of Ann Arbor was one of the Renegade 4-H Club members working with his goat, Nutmeg. Cleo Ku, 13, a classmate of Brandell's at Ann Arbor Open at Mack School, was working with her goat named Cinnamon.

Both are Nigerian Dwarf goats. In fact, the two goats are half-sisters. Ku says.

Andrea Taepke, 15, of Manchester was working with Samson, a 3-month-old Nigerian-Nubian goat. She says she also has llamas and sheep.

"I like animals, but I like goats because they aren't very big," she says.
For Grant and Shannon Bater of Lima

Township, working with goats is a family affair. The Baters have 16 of them and their mother, Elaine, is the goat superintendent at the 4-H Youth Show.

Grant Bater says goats will eat hay, sweet feed and grape vines.

"They're browsers," he says, and will also eat tree bark, Fig Newtons and they "love dried leaves." Aaron Johnson, 16 of Chelsea, was holding a baby goat named "Aussie."

He says he has pigs, a steer, a feeder calf and poultry as well as a goat.

"Goats have great personalities," says Melanie Pitts, assistant goat superintendent for the 4-H Youth Show:

Her son, Hayden Pitts, plans to show Angora goat, Jessica.

The Slauson Elementary School student wasn't able to attend the clinic, but his goat did.

His mother brought the goat to the fairgrounds in case another 4-H'er wanted to practice with a different goat during the special handling clinic before the 4-H Youth Show, set June 25 through 30 at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds. 'We'll work on conformation, showmanship.

Conservation district holds Fish Day

Area residents buy fish to stock ponds and lakes

By Lisa Allmendinger Hestage Newspapers

 About 270 rainbow trout, 1,140 hybrid sunfish and 886 largemouth bass found themselves in new ponds and lakes throughout southeast Michigan last week.

In fact, about 4,300 game fish and two koi made a trip from Harrietta to the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds during the second Fish Day May 8.

The event was coordinated by the Washtenaw County Conservation District as part of the local agency's mission to help landowners "with the conservation and management of the natural resources of Washtenaw County," said Dennis Rice, executive director.

Rice says stocking ponds and lakes adds to the lifecycle of plants, bugs, fish and amphiblans that make up a good pond

Harrietta Hills Trout Farm contacted the conservation district last year about selling its farm-raised fish. This year, the response was even bigger, Rice says. About 47 people ordered the fish, which ranged in size from 5 to 7 inches for trout, sunfish and bass to 4 to 6 inches for catfish and koi, and 3 to 5 inches for yellow perch.

The fish were sold from $1.37 per fish for the rainbow trout to $12.50 for kol.

Also available were fathead minnows at $46 per gallon.

Employees from the fish farm provided oxygen bags and oxygen to transport the fish home, and suggested that customers bring a 5-gallon bucket for every 25 fish ordered.

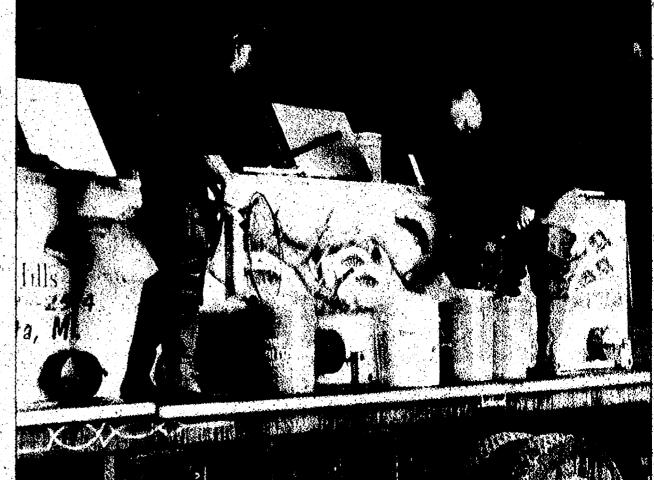

The fish arrived in tanks by species on a truck, Rice says, and were dipped out individually with a fish net.

Wes Blankenship of Saline was one of the people who purchased fish for his pond.

Other people who purchased fish were pleased with the quality of the fish and some were repeat customers. Rice said.

The conservation district got involved in the project because it had previously assisted people in building ponds and "it goes along with people" managing resources like fish as wildlife.'

"From my perspective, it's kind of a neat event and people networked about pond manage-

How to create an easy butterfly garden

By Rosemary Quigley

"A garden is as static as a painting until butterflies bring it to life." - Jo Brewer

Without a doubt, butterflies are nature's most beautiful and graceful insects. I get great pleasure out of watching them in my garden in the bright sunshine, flutter from flower to flower gathering nectar.

At this time of year, when you are deciding what to put in your beds, it is nice to know that with just a little bit of planning you can attract butterflies to your garden too.

Before you start, knowing a little bit about butterflies is very helpful.

Life cycle of a butterfly

Butterflies begin their life as an egg. From this egg a very small caterpillar emerges and begins feeding.

The plants they feed on are called host plants. The caterpillar changes into a form called a pupa. After a period of time, the adult butterfly emerges from the pupa, and flies away.

The adult feeds on nectar plants. So this is a four step process which takes between four and six weeks.

Ever present predators like birds, spiders and other insects take great interest in this process, and often the process is interrupted or stopped completely by one of these predators. Humans are also a danger if they spray with insecticides.

Typically, insecticides are not discriminatory and kill any insect they come in contact with. In the case of the butterfly, this could include any step in the process. It is no surprise that there has been a general decrease in the butterfly population.

Anatomy of a butterfly

Adult butterflies have mouthparts shaped into a long coiled tube.

Forcing food into this tube causes it to straighten out, allowing them to feed on liquids, which limits them to standing water and nectar.

They also have large rounded compound eyes that allow them to see in all directions without turning their heads.

Like most insects, they are very near-sighted, and large groups of colorful flowers are most appealing to them. Butterflies do not grow in size as they age.

Characteristics of a butterfly

Butterflies, like all insects, are cold-blooded, so they are unable-to internally regulate their body temperatures. They love being in the warm sun, but are rarely seen on cloudy, cool days.

When planning your garden, it is a good idea to leave open areas for a butterfly to sun themselves, as well as partly shady or weedy areas like trees or shrubs, so they can hide when it is cloudy, or even cool off when it is very warm. They also prefer gardens that are sheltered from prevailing winds.

Butterflies like puddles.
They like mud or manure in the puddles. This provides them with the salt they need in their diet. Some garden centers sell butterfly baths, which are fairly expensive.

You can create a butterfly bath by burying a small plastic container to the rim, filling it with sand or gravel, and then pouring in liquids like stale beer, sweet drinks or water.

Overripe fruit in the water is also attractive to butterflies.

Is it a moth or a butterfly?

Four things distinguish a butterfly from a moth:

Butterflies are active during the day. Moths fly at dusk and during the night.

·Butterflies fold their wings straight up over their bodies while moths wings curve over their body

•Butterflies antennae are straight without clubs or knobs at the end while moths have plumy hair-like ends and knobs at the end of their antennae.

Butterflies have thin bodies.

Moths have plump bodies.

Kinds of butterflies

The Midwest is home to about 20 different butter-flies. Some common ones in the Michigan area include. Cabbage White, Eastern Tiger Swallowtail and Eastern Black Swallowtail, Monarch, Question Mark, American Lady and Great Spangled Fritillary.

The colors vary and include white, orange, black and yellow. They are nature's most beautiful and colorful insects.

Plants for butterflies

I have not been as concerned with host plants, as with nectar plants. With the exception of the Monarch butterfly, which depends on milkweed pods, the butterflies in my garden seem to get enough host food from the nearby woods. My focus has been on providing nectar plants.

The six top nectar plants are: the bufterfly bush, cone flower, zinnia, lantana or iron-weed, butterfly milkweed and verbena. Of these plants, the butterfly bush is the queen. However, butterfly bushes can become invasive.

They will get very large. In the spring they need to be severely cut back, and in spite of that mine have grown to over six feet tall. However, at times they are completely covered with hungry butterflies, so that is a bonus.

If you choose to plant a butterfly bush, be sure to put it at the back of your bed. You will find that butterflies ignore your beautiful fragrant roses.

They also like goldenrod, hibiscus, daylilies, lavender, marigolds and bee balm or monarda.

All of these plants are easily found at local nurseries, and many of them are perennials, meaning they will come up every year.

Butterfiles have mouthparts shaped into a long colled tube, which limits them to standing water and nector for nourishment.

In some nurseries, a butterfly will be on the description marker of high nectar plants. Remember to plants groups, not individual plants, so the butterflies can easily spot them.

Eight guidelines for butterfly gardens

Your butterfly garden should be in a sunny (five to six hours) location in a fairly sheltered area.

You should have some shrubs, weedy areas, trees or flat stones nearby for warming and hiding during cloudy cool weather.

Most people remember the famous quote from the movie

"Field of Dreams": "If you build it, they will come." Well. I suggest you "build" your butterfly garden, and hopefully the butterflies will come. You will find they are fascinating to watch and provide many pleasant Kodak moments.

Angerer's support of measure raises questions

Democrat Kathy Angerer. House Majority Floor Leader, 55th House District, wrote recently in this newspaper. "Senate Republicans holding up election reform." This particular reform is dreadfully wrong.

She is referring to HB 4367, 5456, 4261 and 4337. This proposed legislation allows noreason absentee ballot voting and to allow 16- and 17 year-olds to register to vote when they apply for a driver's license.

I have absolutely no desire to encourage someone who today finds it too difficult to drive or walk to a voting precinct. The "safeguards inherent in today's voting technology." which Ms. Angerer cites is a fantasy. The very best of computer systems are hacked into and compromised. I might add that it is always Democrats and their allies, like ACORN, who commit voter fraud:

Haying 16- and 17 year-olds register to "encourage young people to educate themselves about issues facing Michigan and the nation" is laughable. Certain groups will always vote a predictable way. The young vote Democratic because they are emotion driven and don'tt know better. Winston Churchill said it best. "Anyone who is not a liberal in his youth has no heart. Anyone who remains so as he matures has no brain."

It is better that the young learn by working, going to school, paying taxes and providing for themselves. In fact, people who pay no taxes should have no right to vote. They will always vote themselves a free lunch.

Ms. Angerer says these bills are "commonsense reform that saves time and money."

That goal will best be accomplished by a part-time Legislature.

Article puts light on Lyme disease

Thank you for sharing the Schryvers' experience with Lyme disease. Sadly, there are many in Michigan who simply refuse to believe that Lyme exists in the state.

Several years ago, my now-

13-year-old son was bitten by a tick while hiking in the Pinckney Recreational Area. After a week of headaches and general unwellness, a bull's eye rash prominently appeared on his leg. Our family pediatrician insisted on an immediate and strict course of high-dosage antibiotics in what thankfully turned out to be a successful eradication of the Lyme before it became established for the entirety of my son's life.

Despite this, non-believers still refused to believe my son was ever at risk. I heard everything from "the pediatrician I checked with says there is no Lyme in the Lower Peninsula" and "all ticks leave a bull's eye rash" to a blatant refusal to believe unless the body of the tick that bit my son tested positive for Lyme.

This article, and the statistics it presents, will hopefully convince readers that Lyme bearing ticks are indeed in the area and will teach people what precautions to take and how to recognize when they have been infected, and hopefully before it is too late.

Help local schools win grants in Pepsi Refresh contest

I'd like Gov. Jennifer Granholm to have every single state employee spend less than one minute a day voting for Michigan projects in the Pepsi Refresh competition. It's like
"American Idol," but for charities.

A little background: Pepsi is giving $1.3 million a month to projects that "refresh their communities." Instead of spending money on Superbowl advertising, Pepsi decided to run a unique contest. Every month in 2010, more than 1,300 charities compete for online

The ideas are coming in from all over the country. You can imagine how intense the competition is since it's a chance for community groups, schools, even individuals to earn anywhere from $250,000 to $5,000 for their ideas.

Here in Michigan several community groups are vying for online votes. Essentially, we're trying to get Pepsi to invest hundreds of thousands of dollars into our state. I can't think of a state that deserves it more. We're like the Mohave Desert around here when it comes to cash.

These Michigan community groups are trying to lift their towns up by being creative and working together to get this corporate investment.

So here's the thing:
Because we pay the governor's salary and the salary of every single employee in the state and we bought the computers they're using, we need the governor to send an e-mail that strongly requests they vote for Michigan projects currently competing for the Pepsi Refresh Grants.

In the interest of full disclosure, I'm spearheading a campaign for my nonprofit called Mule Muscle Inc. We're competing for $250,000 to build a weight room at our school for use by every single physical education student and athlete in our district.

And because people can vote for 10 different projects a day, we're teamed up with other Michigan communities to bring this corporate investment back to our state. For example, Saline Area Schools is trying to earn $25,000 for a science, Cadillac schools wants to win $25,000 for a Challenge Day, Eaton Rapids schools needs $50,000 to buy musical instruments for the school band.

Notice a pattern here? Yes, we're all trying to earn money for our kids. So, if you could just have the approximately 50,000 state employees spend less than one minute a day giving their free vote to these causes every day in May we could bring $350,000 into our school districts.

Seriously, every single Michigan employee spends 30 seconds a day and these Michigan projects win. Imagine these schools with something new in an era of nothing but budget cuts?

Below are the websites for the Michigan projects I mentioned. We'd appreciate your vote and any vote we can get. Actually, we're begging for it.

Schauer is doing a fine job in U.S. House

I read the snarky letter from Doug Wright criticizing Rep. Mark Schauer that was in the "Your Voice" section April 29. Mr. Wright contends that, because Representative Schauer voted for the health-care bill, that he "hasn't quite grasped the idea of representative government.

representative government
...". I would suggest that Mr.
Wright is wrong.

Mr. Schauer was elected by a majority of voters in the 7th District and Mr. Schauer ran on a platform of health-care reform. I believe that he is representing the will of the voters when he was elected. Elections have consequences.

Mr. Wright also slams the healthcare reform bill. I would ask Mr. Wright, where was the GOP when it had control of the presidency. Senate, and House on health care? No interest was shown by his majority party. Where were the Tea Partiers when the Bush Administration pushed through huge tax cuts, two wars and Medicare Part B, without paying for a single thing.

You want to discuss corruption, which I hear thrown at the Democrats regarding their handling of this bill? Ask former Rep. Nick Smith about what the GOP did to "get" his vote for Medicare Modernization in 2004.

Rep. Candice Miller and Tom DeLay were admonished by the House Ethics. Committee for their actions.

Ask John Boehner why he passed out campaign contributions from tobaccolobbyists on the floor of "The People's House" in 1995. I don't think the GOP has any claim to ethical standards.

Now, the HCR bill gives us immediate benefits—no pre-existing conditions for kids under 19, adult children on parents' insurance until 26, no lifetime caps on benefits, small business tax credit for 2009-2010 (up to 50 percent)," doughnut hole" gets closed, no more recessions. Which of these would you trust the GOP to put back in after they repeal HCR?

I look forward to supporting Representative Schauer in November.

Proposal puts attention on legit media

tate Sen. Bruce Patterson, R-Canton Township, won't be running for re-election this year. He's term-limited.

But he says he's got a major concern as his time in office winds down. He's worried about the "legitimate" media going opt of business because of financial problems and eventually maybe in a generation or two, leaving the state in the hands of people and news organizations that manipulate the system for their own gain.

The senator says people need accurate information so that they can make intelligent decisions in the voting booth. But there's too much misinformation from numerous sources that purposely twist the facts. These sources are not only on the internet, but also in the print and electronic media.

"This state is in real trouble," Patterson says. "There's no risk-reward system in place for people to take the risk of serving in an elected office and really moving the state forward.

"Elected leaders are doing things to get re-elected and not taking risks to get things done for the state. We need people to take strong stands and think out of the box."

To get these risk takers elected, he says the state needs "legitimate" news media reporting "legitimate" information.
To help publicize his concerns, Patterson introduced Senate Bill 1285, which would require newspaper customers to pay a deposit on each newspaper they purchase equal to one half the retail price of the newspaper.

Patterson admits this was a ruse to get the media's attention and he doesn't plan to proceed with the bill.

Well, he did get our attention. Newspaper editors have been awakened by his proposal and now are more than willing to listen to him and his message, which most "legitimate" news organizations share.

The message is not just for the media, but to all citizens who value the free flow of accurate information.

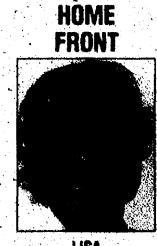

There always have been elements in society that have tried a to confuse and mislead the people to get their own way. The "legitimate media," as Patterson calls them, need to remember their basic, traditional goals in society. They are to provide accurate information through impartially written news stories. Opinions need to be relegated to the opinion page of a newspaper or category on the website.

newspaper or category on the website.

But the general public has an obligation, too individuals should resist being seduced by groups that seem to espouse their views. People need to remain open minded, to remember that there are always at least two sides to every story and to at least respect the views of others, even if they don't agree with

This is nothing new in America, but these seem to be traits that aren't valued as much as they used to the That's too bad.

Michigan should consider toll roads

LISA ALLMENDINGER

ichigan has to find a way to fix its roads and bridges, and I have the way to do it:
Waiting in line with our collective hands outstretched for federal dollars isn't working very well.

Now, I'm not a road expert, but there sure seems to be a lot of over complicated rules and regulations to get this money. I guess I should consider the source—a government that finds new ways to creatively waste money on stupid stuff on a daily basis.

I'll tell you upfront my idea won't be a popular one, but it will create jobs along the way, which is a better idea than imposing more taxes on gasoline, especially since we already have these silly winter and summer flavors of gas. I often wonder if my van knows the difference.

So, what I'm proposing is making some of the roads across Michigan toll roads. Now, don't shoot the messenger. Tell me what you think. Which ones would make the most sense?

For anyone who has traveled through neighboring states, you can't help but find yourself on a toll road at some point.

It's not like you have to bring change, either. Departments of transportation have made it easy for you to pay tolls by using a credit card, and people who frequently travel these toll roads have a Go Pass to speed up their

I always thought it was ironic that Michigan, a state that prides itself on building cars, has such crappy roads. Maybe a toll road plan appeals to me because I grew up in New Jersey and realized one day that there was no way to leave the Garden State without paying a toll to get into another one.

And to get to The Shore, which is New Jersey's equivalent of going Up North, you had to have a boatload of quarters with you — it's even more now — to toss into little baskets at the toll booths on the Garden State Parkway

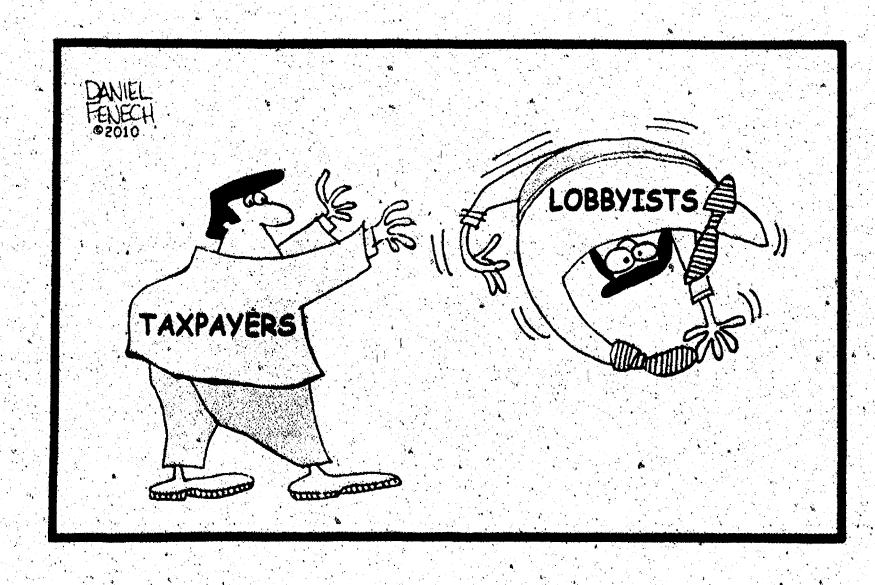

I haven't been back there in a while, but I think they may have replaced those baskets to speed the trip, too.

You had the option of taking the NJ Turnpike and grab a ticket and pay at the end of you trip. Although the turnpike didn't take you as directly to the shore as you wanted to go, I didn't use it very often, opting to sit in lines of traffic to toss my quarters on The Parkway.

It was just part of the experience. Everyone did it. You whined a little and you got used to it. As will everyone in this state when they wise up and add toll booths to some of its roads and cash in on not just this state's motorists, but also ones from other states.

For someone who grew up with toll roads, it's just something you get used to, while driving slowly to get through them and admiring roads that are in better shape than what we have in Michigan.

lot and Amanda is nowhere to be found. Four years later, as Samantha is helping to sort out Amanda's room, she finds the jacket she's sure Amanda was wearing the night she disappeared.

When she discovers a matchbook hidden deep in the lining of the pocket, Samanthia knows she might be holding the one clue to what really happened that night.

Stebelton said she enjoys writing fiction and is currently working on her fourth book.

"Once I get started writing, it's hard to put it down," she said. "I have so many ideas that pop into my head."

She said most of her inspiration comes randomly.

"I will see or hear about something and write it down," she said. "Once you have the idea and you start writing, the characters and plot can usually get fleshed out as you progress."

Stebelton said she writes every day, very rarely stopping for breaks.

Stebelton said her husband is her biggest fan.

"I read my stories to my husband, who says he enjoys them. He has carried many a manuscript to the post office for me," she said. "There have been many nights where his wife is lost in her laptop; he is very good to me."

Stebelton said her next two books are a two-part series and the book she is currently writing will be finished in a few months.

"I'm about halfway finished with it," she said. "I've got 200 pages already written."

Stebelton said she would like to partner with the Chelsea District Library or other businesses for author signings featuring "The Sleeping Matchbook."

"Right now you can find the book online," she said. "But any book store can order it and have it delivered for a customer."

Garden project feeds hungry

By Lisa Allmendinger

here once there was grass behind St. Paul United Christ of Christ in Saline, soon there will be squash, peas, tomatoes, peppers cucumbers and greens.

Led by the efforts of Bonnie Winkelman, Rose Carol Toth and Nancy Cronenwelt, a small area near the corner of Lewis and McKay streets soon willhold five raised vegetable beds.

The new project, which was scheduled to get under way May 12, is called Faith and Food 2010 and is a collaborative effort between a number of local churches. The Interfaith Council for Peace and Justice, Growing Hope and Food 🔒 🙀

Although each garden takes on the personality of the organization that plants, waters and grows it, the startup group at St. Paul is thinking of calling it "Feeding the: Flock.

Winkelman, a Master, Gardener, and Toth, a parish nurse, say they attended a course to learn the best ways to start, maintain and sustain a congregational garden.

Rose Carol presented it to the church board." Winkelman says, and it got a. green light.

In addition, the church applied for a grant from the Master Gardener Alumni Association of Washtenaw County and was awarded $150 to get started. They planned to build the raised beds and another work day was planned to fill them with topsoil.

Last year, about 15 congregations from across Washtenaw County got involved and more than 3,500 pounds of fresh produce was donated, according to the Food Gatherers' website. Cronenwelt, a registered nurse with St. Joseph Mercy Health Systems, is a liaison for parish nurses.

After seeing the hoop houses go up at the main hospital. she says she is excited to get involved in the program.

We want to reach out to the community both inside and outside of the church." she said.

Planned are four 4-foot-by-4-foot raised beds and one 4-foot-by-8-foot bed, as a starting-point.

The cost of fresh fruit and vegetables is the single biggest barrier to healthy eating, according to information put out by Food Gatherers.

It's just too expensive when compared to the price of other less nutritious foods. according to survey results gathered from households using the agency's pantries.

"Seven of eight pantry customers do not eat the five recommended daily servings of fruits and vegetables,' according to Food Gatherers. So the Faith and Food 2010 effort hopes to change that by making as much healthy produce available as possible for people who can't afford it.

The core group says there are about a-dozen people in the church who have expressed interest in participating.

In addition, Rosemary's Garden, a small memorial garden on one side of the church, will be dug up and : turned into an herb garden. The hope is to get the youth group involved in painting the boxes once they are built. Once the garden is established, we hope a family unit will sign up to take one week to water and weed the garden," Toth said.

Another parish nurse, Dawn Welt, is working on donations of plants, seeds and topsoil, as well as other supplies that might be needed.

But as part of Faith and Food 2010, the church's affiliation allows them to borrow tools and other resources.

The vegetables will first feed the church's congregation, and any excess will be donated to Food Gatherers and Growing Hope.

The group also plans a lettuce party and a harvest party for church members.

They plan to use "Easy Edibles: A Beginner's Guide to Growing Organic" as their vegetable bible.

Included in the most requested items are collards, cauliflower, cabbage, cantaloupe, broccoli, carrots, potatoes, beans, green beans, tomatoes, peppers and winter squash, according to a press release from Missy Orge, director of outreach and training at Food Gatherers. Individual gardeners can also pledge to plant a row in their gardens for the hungry. Congregations are asked to donate at least 50 percent of their yield to Food Gatherers. Lisa Allmendinger can be reached at 1-877-995-NEWS (6397) or at lallmendinger@heritage.com. Check out her daily blog 'inside the Newsroom" at www.42Journal.com

Artists' contributions sought

The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair is calling young artists ages 6 through 14 from Washtenaw County to submit their artwork to be juried for the 2010 Kids' Art Fair held at the Townie Street Party, the kick-off event for the Ann Arbor Art Fairs.

The Kids' Art Fair is an opportunity for young artists to sell their original artwork and interact with the community at the Townie Street Party.

In addition, this is a chance for young artists to see the jury process at work and to interact with nationally recognized art jurors. The young artists receive individual attention by each juror, and organizers say the positive feedback is often very empowering.

Jurying will take place from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday and from 5 to 8 p.m. May 27 at the Ann Arbor District Library's Pittsfield branch, 2359 Oak Valley Drive in Ann Arbor. Artists ages 6 through 14 should arrive with samples of their original artwork and be prepared to talk to the jurors.

Young artists need to attend only one of these two sessions.

Artists will have ample opportunity to show and discuss their artwork with each juror.

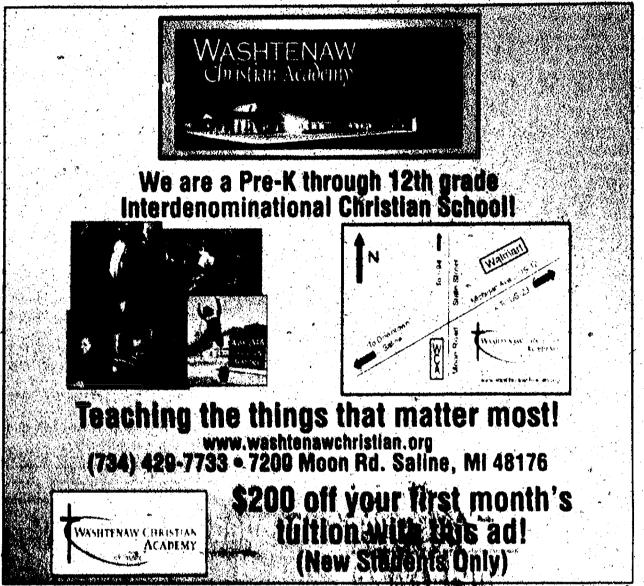

Young artists invited to exhibit at the Kids' Art Fair will be notified by e-mail or phone the week following the cond jury session.

These artists will be able to sell their work under a large tent at the Townie. Street Party, from 5 to 9:30 p.m. July 19.

The party will be held on North University Avenue, around the fountain on: Ingails Mail.

JRC names executives to new leadership posts

The Journal Register Co., a leading local news and information company, announced May 11 the appointment of executives in newly created sales and content positions. The company named Daniel Sarko as senior vice president of integrated sales, Adam Burnham as vice president of local sales and Jon Cooper as vice president of content.

Sarko, who joined the company in 2009 and was, until recently the chief digital officer, has both extensive digital and newspaper sales experience. He is charged with ensuring the company's advertising sales initiatives are integrated across all platforms with a "digital first" approach.

Previously, he was vice president and interim general manager of Philly.com. the online division of the Philadelphia Inquirer and the Philadelphia Daily News. Prior to that, he was vice president of Interactive for The Morning Call.

Burnham, who joined the company in 2007 as corporate advertising director and until recently was the vice president of sales and marketing, is an experienced sales executive known for his creative and innovative sales programs.

In his new position, Burnham will coordinate corporate-wide local sales initiatives with a focus on local digital advertising sales.

Cooper, who joined JRC in 1997, has held numerous editorial positions across the company and until recently was director of digital content. He is currently leading the com-pany's Ben Franklin Project (http://jrcbenfranklinproject. wordpress.com/), during which two newsrooms will produce a Web site and newspaper using only free. Web-based tools.

In his new position, Cooper will be responsible for all content on all platforms with the mandate to improve the company's content offerings. His particular task will be to ensure JRC's editorial teams embrace the new news ecology in harnessing the power of open-source journalism, digital content partnerships and multiple-platform publishing.

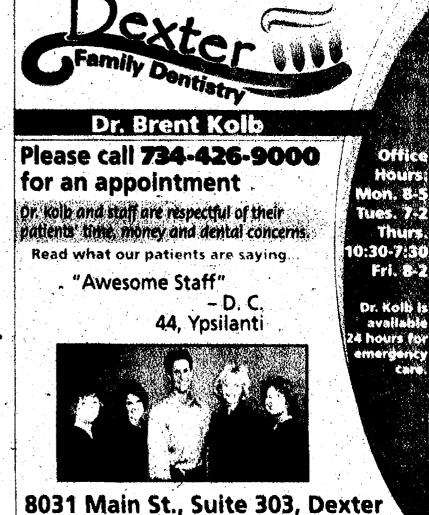

The Journal Register Co. has adopted a strategy of 'digital first'. The appointments of Dan, Adam and Jon to these important roles with a focus on digital rather than print are indicative of our commitment to that strategy," said John Paton, chief executive officer, in a news release. "All three are exactly the kind of leaders we need to transform this company from its past as a newspaper company to its future as a news and information company."

JRC serves 992 communities in 10 states and is parent company of Heritage Newspapers, publishers locally of A2 Journal, The Saline Reporter, The Milan News-Leader, The Ypsilanti Courier, The View in Belleville, The Manchester Enterprise, The Chelsea Standard and The Dexter Leader. The company's 324 multi-platform products reach an audience of nearly 14 million each month.

Garden project feeds hungry

here once there was grass behind St. Paul United Christ of Christ in Saline, soon there will be squash, peas, tomafoes, peppers cucumbers and greens.

Led by the efforts of Bonnie-Winkelman, Rose Carol Toth and Nancy Cronenwelt, a small area near the corner of Lewis and McKay streets soon will hold five raised vegetable beds.

The new project, which was scheduled to get under way May 12, is called Faith and Food 2010 and is a collaborative effort between a number of local churches. The Interfaith Council for Peace and Justice, Growing Hope and Food

Although each garden takes on the personality of the organization that plants, waters and grows it, the start up group at St. Paul is thinking of calling it "Feeding the Flock"

Winkelman, a Master Gardener, and Toth, a parish nurse, say they attended a course to learn the best ways to start, maintain and sustain a congregational garden

"Rose Carol presented it to the church board," Winkelman says, and it got a green light.

In addition, the church applied for a grant from the Master Gardener Alumni Association of Washtenaw County and was awarded $150 to get started.

They planned to build the raised beds and another work day was planned to fill them with topsoil.

Last year, about 15 congregations from across Washtenaw County got involved and more than 3,500 pounds of fresh produce was donated, according to the Food Gatherers' website.

Cronenwelt, a registered nurse with St. Joseph Mercy Health Systems, is a liaison for parish nurses.

After seeing the hoop houses go up at the main hospital, she says she is excited to get involved in the program.

"We want to reach out to the community both inside and outside of the church," she said.

she said.
Planned are four 4-foot-by4-foot raised beds and one 4-foot-by-8-foot bed, as a starting point.

The cost of fresh fruit and vegetables is the single biggest barrier to healthy eating, according to information put out by Food Gatherers.

It's just too expensive when compared to the price of other less nutritious foods, according to survey results wathered from households.

using the agency's pantries.
"Seven of eight pantry customers do not eat the five recommended daily servings of fruits and vegetables," according to Food Gatherers.

So the Faith and Food 2010 effort hopes to change that by making as much healthy pro-making as much healthy produce available as possible for people who can't afford it.

The core group says there

The core group says there are about a dozen people in the church who have expressed interest in participating.

In addition, Rosemary's Garden, a small memorial garden on one side of the church, will be dug up and turned into an herb garden. The hope is to get the youth group involved in painting the boxes once they are built.

ne boxes once they are built "Once the garden is estabtished, we hope a family unit will sign up to take one week to water and weed the gardens" Toth said.

Another parish nurse, Dawn Welt, is working on donations of plants, seeds and topsoil, as well as other supplies that might be needed.

But as part of Faith and Food 2010, the church's affiliation allows them to borrow tools and other resources.

The vegetables will first feed the church's congregation, and any excess will be donated to Food Gatherers and Growing Hope.

The group also plans a lettuce party and a harvest party for church members.

They plan to use "Easy "Edibles: A Beginner's Guide to Growing Organic" as their vegetable bible.

Included in the most requested items are collards, cauliflower, cabbage, cantaloupe, broccoli, carrots, potatoes, beans, green beans, tomatoes, peppers and winter squash, according to a press release from Missy Orge, director of outreach and training at Food Gatherers.

Individual gardeners can also pledge to plant a row in their gardens for the hungry

Congregations are asked to donate at least 50 percent of their yield to Food Gatherers.

Former University of Michigan head football coach Lloyd Carr was received as a special guest at the Belleville Rotary Club's annual Scholarship Awards May 11.

Coach offers scholarship recipients food for thought

There was a Wolverine sighting in Belleville last week!

Wait, don't call animal control just yet, this Wolverine was pretty tame especially compared to some of his more flery outbursts over his 13 years of patrolling the sidelines as University of Michigan headfootball coach.

That's right, Lloyd Carr was received as a special guest for the Belleville Rotary Club's annual Scholarship Awards May 11, and he certainly didn't disappoint the group of wide-eyed youngsters hoping to receive valuable words of wisdom, as well as a proverbial swift kick in the rear thinly-disguised as motivational rhetoric.

During his speech, Carr was gracious-caring and did well to acknowledge the gravity of the immediate life decisions these 10 young men and women will be facing in the coming months and years. Belleville Rotary members, funded through the Charles B. Cozadd Foundation. were able to award scholarships to five Belleville High School seniors and, in addition, award five "renewal" scholarships for students whom have completed -their freshman year at a higher education institute.

But don't get me wrong, Lloyd Carr, who actually coached Belleville football for several years in the early 1970s, is old school through and through. He didn't offer easy answers to the large, gathered crowd of students and parents hanging on the longtime coach's words as if he were drawing up a critical play for fourth and long.

His message was simple work hard and do your best. And the details making up the framework of that directive are left up to you and you alone. Of course, it's in the details where life gets fricky.

At times you won't know what to do, Carr told the kids, to which he offered a football-related anecdote, which is what everybody was waiting to hear of course, about U of M right guard Steve Hutchinson. In. 1997 when the Wolverines won the national title featuring a star-studded team of Charles Woodson, Brian Griese, Ian Gold and Tai Streets, just to name a few. Carr related a story about a game they played where Hutchinson was a freshman starter and his first, second and third job responsibilities were to protect the quarterback, protect the quarterback and protect the quarterback.

Carr said during the first passing play they had, a linebacker flew in from the right side to which Hutchinson then prepared himself, but then another guy appeared out of nowhere, causing Hutchinson to basically abandon his job assignment altogether. The scene afterward was not pretty, as Griese went down and Carr said, "He was looking out the ear hole of the helmet.

When Hutchinson-came over to the sideline nervously antici pating his head coach's wrath, he told Carr that he simply didn't know what to do.

Carr's response to that was simple and complete: "Just do something!"

And that, essentially, was his message to those 10 eager faces. Nobody in this world is going to hold your hand through major life decisions and at times it will be so confusing you won't know where to start. But it is in that process where character is built and resolve is hardened.

And what would a Lloyd Carr-led speech held in Belleville be without a story about hometown hero Ian Gold? Carr talked fondly of Gold and said he personally recruited him to U of M because, even as a youngster. he displayed a deep passion and enthusiasm for the game. He told the students that Gold played the game in an unbridled manner that could be applied to the rest of their lives. He said Gold, "did everything he could to get that ball carrier ... and (he played) with an attitude that nothing is going to stand in the way of me accomplishing my

And that, just like Carr said, is "what it's all about."

In all, Carr's visit to the sleepy town of Belleville was a refreshing reminder that people still value hard work in a society continually de-valuing self-reliance.

And, in an ironic twist, Rotary's Deb Juchartz, a Michigan State University graduate who says she "bleeds green," completed the leg work to get Carr to come and speak. Juchartz's father, Don, who is beloved in Belleville for his more than 40 years of work with Rotary and also a diehard Spartan, couldn't help himself given the opportunity to stir up the rivalry by wearing a green

As Carr approached him with a wide smile to heartily shake the Believille icon's hand, he casually looked at his tie and asked, 'Don, is that the best you can do?"

Fort building takes on new meaning three decades later

The best fort I ever built was underground. It was fine work and might, for all I know, still be there undetected like a longabandoned bomb shelter.

It took my brothers and I many hot summer days to exeavate the dirt, which we initially undertook as an alternative to boredom, determining simply to dig the biggest hole ever. At some point, despite our youthful optimism and indefatigable energy we realized that while we had dug a substantially large and deep hole, it was unlikely given the hardening clay that we would be able to dig the deepest hole ever without upgrading to some serious earth-moving equipment.

With dirt-stained, sweaty faces, we stood around the edge of the hole looking into it. wondering, I'm sure, what to do with a really big hole once you've finished digging it.

One of us (I like to think it was me) suggested turning it into a fort. We immediately recognized the idea as sheer genius and dashed home to bring back scrap plywood and two-by-fours. We covered the hole with sheets of plywood and covered the plywood with dirt, leaving a small, cleverly disguised entrance that required us to crawl through on our bellies. Once inside, though, you could stand up.

We stocked the fort with survival equipment such as candles, canteens, a couple ... pocketknives and peanut butter. We held an initiation ceremony I remember, that involved passing your hand through a candle's flickering flame, and I remember arguing over whether somebody's hand had passed through the flame or over the flame (I think we made them do it again to be sure). We took a vow of secrecy, a vow I am only now breaking more than 30 years later.

i recalled that remarkable fort of my youth recently when wanted something bigger, more I spent several hours on a Sunday afternoon constructing a simpler and, admittedly, safer fort for my 8 year-old daughter and her friends. They were looking for something to do and I said, "I don't know, go build a fort or something."

"Will you help us?" asked my daughter.

It was not how I had planned to spend my Sunday, but I stood up and said, "Why not!" and outside we went. I marched them over to the woodpile. We would build a log fort, I had decided.

What I had not thought through was that most of the logs were too heavy for my daughter and her friends to move. So I hauled them into position, stacking them to create three walls, while the girls watched and squealed at every sighting of a potato bug or cen-

When I finished stacking the logs, the plan was to bridge the walls with long sticks to form a roof, but the walls were too high for the girls to reach, and so I took on the responsibility of laying branches and strips of bark across the top while the girls gradually wandered off to play school on the back porch.

I next scrounged up a pair of tarps that I draped over the stick roof to keep the rain out and over the front to create a flap entrance. I stood back to admire my handiwork. It wasn't great, but it wasn't bad. I lifted the flap and stepped inside. It was shadowed, the way a fort should be. I felt hidden and protected. I imagined no one knew I was there. I could have my lunch out here, I thought.

I called the girls to show them the finished fort. "Cool!" they cried as they ducked under the tarp and looked around.

"This could be the school." one said.

I almost objected. I had built a fort, not a school. "It's pretty small," said another. Small? There were four of us inside, and only one of us was slightly hunched with his head brushing the roof. And if they said my daughter. Whoa, whoa, whoa there. I had not built an outhouse. It was a fort. We were supposed to be taking a blood oath, not discussing plumbing possibilities.

My daughter and her friends rushed off back to the porch, the fort forgotten for now.

I went inside and made a sandwich and a cup of coffee. Then I took my fare to the fort, sat on a log and ate my lunch in secret. It wasn't the same as when my brothers and I had apples and slices of bread with peanut butter underground - but it wasn't bad. Not bad at

Students participate in ACES

On May 5, students at Mill Creek Middle School in Dexter participated in Project ACES (All Children Exercise Simultaneously).

biking and aerobics. Now in its 22nd year, Project ACES aims to educate children about the importance of lifelong fitness, and to end the negative stereotype that children are physically unfit. "Our goal as a school was to have 100 percent participation as we exercised simultaneously in a symbolic gesture of fitness and unity to show our community that we do not fit into that negative stereotype of being 'physically unfit,' which is huge epidemic in our current national state," teacher Kathryn Jazwinski said. "We had approximately 99 percent participation. Hopefully next year we could strive to reach the goal of 100 percent.

"Although simple, the hour truly was educational, motivational, and fun. Without the help of parents and staff, this definitely could not have happened. It was very cool to look across the field and track that was overflowing with walkers and runners."

Volunteers at Mill Creek helped peel stickers, hand out snacks, pick up garbage, and supervise the track.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (EMUEagles.com) - In dramatic comefrom-behind fashion, the Eastern Michigan University men's track and field team did what it had done 20 times previous, as it captured another Mid-American Conference Outdoor Track and Field Championship Saturday, May 15, here at the University at Buffalo Track.

The title, Eastern's 21st in the 36 years in which the MAC has awarded it, also gives the Eagles the first Indoor-Outdoor title sweep in the MAC since 2007 when it was again the Green and White taking home both crowns.

Eastern entered Saturday's final day of competition in fifth place, trailing first-place Akron by 40 points. The Eagles wasted no time in making up ground, however. In the first men's event of the day, the 4x100-meter dash, the Eagles' quartet of Vanier Joseph, Ackeem Forde, Kolean Prescott and Clint Allen raced to victory in a time of Allen backed that relay win up with a championship run in the 100-meter dash in10.50, while Prescott took third (10.70).

Forde continued his brilliance as the senior won the 400-meter dash in a time of 47.27.

The Eagle's thrived in the distance races, making up the most ground with a 1-2-3 finish in the 1,500 meter run by Cole Sanseverino, David Brent and Austin Hendrix, and a 1-2 finish in the 5,000-meter run by Terefe Eligu and Curtis Vollmar, Eligu was named the Most Valuable Performer of the championships after earning his second title. He won the 10,000-meter run on Thursday, the first day of competition.

At that point, the Eagles still trailed Akron by a slight margin, as the Zips were placing well in the events also. But Eastern was able to catch up with UA when freshman standout Joseph earned another MAC title by winning the 110-meter hurdles.

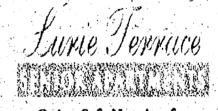

Going into the 4x400-meter relay, the final event of the day, EMU had made up a 40-point disadvantage and needed to finish one spot ahead of UA if they finished third or better in order to lay claims to the unprecedented 21st MAC title.

After an intense first leg of the race as the Eagles and the Zips were fighting neck and neck for the advantage, UA's Phil Ferguson was called for a violation for going outside of his designated lane, thus disqualifying Akron from the race after the Zips had won the relay. With the Akron DQ, EMU would move into second in that race, giving the Eagles the championship.

In addition to winning the MAC title, the Eagles also placed eight performers on the All-MAC squad with Elgigu, Brent, Forde, Oliver Walther, Joseph, Sanseverino and Allen all named to the first-team. Curtis Vollmar was a second-team selection. Eligu was named the meet's Most Valuable Performer, and Interim Head Coach John Goodridge was named the Coach of the Year, an award he also garnered at the finish of the indoor MAC Championship season.

County sees surplus in budget, drop in equalized value

By Austen Smith

Despite a more than 7 percent drop in the equalized value of Washtenaw County from last year, officials are keeping positive about the county's overall budget because of a $590,000 surplus from 2009.

Washtenaw County saw a decrease in property values in every category, according to the 2010 Equalization Report, but none so much as compared to a nearly 38 percent drop in industrial equalized value resulting from the closing of Ypsilanti Township's General Motors Powertrain Plant, a loss of $110 million, and the sale of Pfizer to the University of Michigan, which represents more than $194 million in state equalized value from real and personal property that have now been removed from county tax rolls.

Raman Patel, equalization director for the county said he was expecting the hit from the GM plant and Pfizer to happen next year, but they saw the decrease coming for 2010.

"Not only did we lose those industrial facilities, but the school districts and townships lost that base, as well such as Lincoln and Willow Run," Patel said at a recent Board of Commissioners meeting.

In addition, new state guidelines that shifted $96 million from the industrial classification to "commercial" properties contributed to the drastic decrease in industrial value.

Other hard hit areas in the county tax rolls are "developmental" property, which lost a recommended 18 percent of county equalized value, and personal property, which saw more than 10 percent drop. The total county equalized value for 2010 is approximately $16.2 billion, a $1.26 billion drop from last year.

The majority of real estate value taxed by the county remains residential, with more than 64 percent. Commissioner

Ken Schwartz, D-2nd District, commented on the fact that while county officials are struggling to cut costs and grapple with yearly declining property values, they should remember the residents and the troubles those taxpayers are currently facing.

"(Homeowners) have suffered a real loss of equity and the citizens have taken quite a hit," he said. "Two thirds of that (property) is residential spread across this county. That's a lot of money." The $580,000 was budgeted out of fund balance from last year, but was anticipated to be just more than $250,000. Commissioner Leah Gunn, D9th District, cited this as good news for the county and said the board needs to set that surplus aside and "hang onto it."

"This is really good news.
even though it's bad news it's good news," Gunn said. "We have been through a very brutal year in terms of the budget. At least we will have a balanced budget."

Ways and Means Chairman Conan Smith, D-10th District, also remained upbeat, saying the county may realize some additional revenue as it gets further along in the budget review process for 2010-2011. But he also cautioned fellow commissioners about the future as equalization staff expect to see continued declines, a trend that has been ongoing in the county since 2003, for at least the next several years.

"The (budget) year for 2012-

2013 is going to be seriously challenging," Smith said. "I urge everybody to approach this slight windfall with caution."

Patel also addressed the county's taxable value which, of course, is sliding right along with the SEV value of real estate across the county. He said most residents should be used to seeing their SEV and their assessed value as the same number.

"We are going back to 1993 and 1994, when we started Headlee. We are going back to that era because the taxable value and the SEV were the same. All of the counties in the state are running into this problem."

Southeastern Michigan's largest charity motorcycle ride is revving up for a spot in the Guinness World Records book.

Penrickton Center for Blind
Children is hosting its 10th annual Ride for a Reason

The event is being sponsored by Famous Dave's Bar B-Que.

Ride for a Reason is trying to break the Guinness record for largest charity parade of Harley-Davidson motorcycles, said Kurt Sebaly. Penrickton executive director.

A Guinness representative will be present to verify the attempt.

The charity attracts riders from all over Michigan and Ohio, and involves a number of Downriver businesses such as Biker Bob's Motown, PNC Bank and Famous Dave's.

More than 3,000 people are expected to participate. The current record is 2,118, set in 2002.

The event begins at Cabela's in Dundee, where riders can register between 10 a.m. and noon for $25 per rider. Any brand of motorcycle is wel-

The 100-mile ride ends at Biker Bob's in Taylor, where riders will have meals provided by Famous Dave's with entertainment by Karen Newman, Steve Acho and Slight Return.

Two Harley Davidson motorcycles, a 2010 Street Glide and a 2010 Sportsfer 883, will be raffled.

All proceeds benefit the Penrickton Center. Organizers are hoping to raise more than $85,000

Penrickton has five-day residential, day care and consultation evaluation services for blind children ages 1 to 12 with

Event to connect innovators, families

The Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum will host its second Local Tech Event from 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday.

The Local Tech Event connects entrepreneurs, innovators and families for an evening of fun and inspiration.

"The Local Tech Event extends the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum's mission to connect families with science and learning," said Mel Drumm, executive director, in a news release.

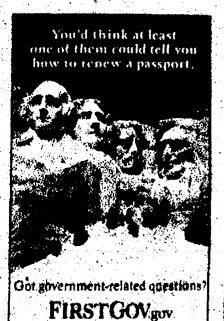

"By connecting local innovators with families, the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum's Tech Event inspires creativity and imagination. The Local Tech Event is geek fun for the whole family and the whole community."

The Local Tech Event features dozens of innovative companies from throughout the greater Ann Arbor region who will display fuel cells, video games and other interactive technologies. Entrepreneurs will be on hand to talk with families about what it takes to turn an innovative idea into a thriving business.

Family fun offered during the Local Tech Event includes live music from HiDef and The Chief Blues Officers and a museum-wide scavenger hunt. Refreshments will be served including a special kids-only dining area. Additional kids-only activities will be offered through supervised hands-on workshops.

Tickets for the Local Tech: Event at the Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum are $25 for adults and $10 for children. Family ticket packages for two adults and two children are $50.

Group preps for summer show

This week is a fook at the preproduction for the show.

By Abbie Stahlin Gentry

Last week, Dexter Community Players held auditions for their summer production, "Curtains," which will take place in July. But even before auditions, a lot of work goes into making a musical possible.

Usually, a person who wants to direct a specific show will decide on the show. They submit a proposal to the DCP executive board, who will then consider and discuss it, and usually interview candidates who have a strong enough proposal. In the past, DCP has performed family shows such as "The Wizard of Oz" (2001) or 'Oklahoma!" (1981, 1991, and 2006), musical comedies such as "Urinetown, the Musical" (2007), "straight" (non-musical) plays such as "The Crucible" (2008), and everything in between.

The group may put on one to four shows in a given year, and tries to present a balance of all types of shows. These factors help the board decide between the shows proposed.

"Curtains" was chosen partially because it is a musical comedy that recently became available. Other points in favor of performing "Curtains" included the fact that the artistic director, Jason Smith, already had secured the beginnings of a production staff with plenty of experience. The production staff for this show includes Brian E. Buckner of Ann Arbor as music director, Stacey Smith of Brighton as choreographer, Marilyn Gouin of Ann Arbor, Tim Bryant of Pinckney as graphic designer, and Abbie Stahlin Gentry of Dexter and Elizabeth Meurer of Dexter as co-producers.

About half of the production staff was in place when DCP

Now, the real work begins.

Each show's rights belong to a publishing company, who controls where, when and who can perform a show. Shows usually become available for community theaters to perform after they have closed on Broadway. DCP found that "Curtains" rights belong to a relatively new publishing company that they had never worked with

Negotiations began, and DCP soon secured the rights to perform the show for four performances in late July. Now that the show becomes more "real," the production staff begins to seek out other members to help with all of the tasks involved in preparing to produce a musical, sets a budget for the show, and announces auditions. Before auditions happen. the set, choreography, costumes and graphics are mostly planned. Jason Smith meets early on with the entire production staff to communicate his vision for the show, as he is the artistic director. Each individual person then takes Smith's ideas and works with them, fleshing out the details in their field of expertise. They may each meet with Smith many times to make sure all the details are accounted for.

Smith, for his part, puts in countless hours beyond meeting with the other creative people. In addition to the overall vision for the show, he is in charge of planning the characterizations of each role, and the stage blocking for the show "Blocking" is the term for planning the orientation and movement of all of the actors during each scene. He draws maps and has written lengthy text instructions to help in his planning, even though he doesn't yet know who will fill the roles. In community theater, anyone could show up for the auditions, and the show must be cast using the people available. So it's important for the director to remain flexible with his vision of the show, leaving plenty of options open while still having a clear vision of how all of the pieces (and actors) will need to fit together.

Similarly, the choreography must also remain flexible, to a degree. Stacey Smith has worked hard to create dances that the average community theater actor will be able to learn and perform well, but also leaving space to showcase certain talented dancers, if capable dancers end up auditioning and being cast in the show

Once auditions take place, the rehearsals begin, so it's best to have as much organizational and creative work done beforehand as possible. This way, DCP can welcome the cast and begin to teach and rehearse the lines, songs and dances, so that the cast can put on the best show for the community.

Resident helps people collect forgotten cash

Online state database helps track down abandoned property

By Daniel Lai

Chelsea resident Kathy Hay is on a quest to help local residents collect on financial property that they may not even know they have.

Hay conducts workshops to help residents navigate through Michigan's online "unclaimed property" database.

"There are literally thousands of people who could be entitled to money but will never know about it," she said.

Hay said the Michigan Department of Treasury has millions of dollars in lost or forgotten assets from dormant bank accounts, uncashed checks, valuables left in safe deposit boxes and stock certificates. Because the bank considers the properties abandoned and unclaimed, they are turned over to the state, as required by law. There the money remains until the rightful owner or heir collects it.

To search through the online database, Michigan residents can log onto www.michigan.gov. On the left side of the homepage is a list titled "featured links." Users can click on the "unclaimed property" tab and the "Michigan's Money Quest" link. From there, first and last names of relatives both living and deceased can be entered into the search field. If a search returns a successful match, an inquiry can be sent to the Department of Treasury.

"The process can be time consuming, but it is definitely worth it," Hay said. "I have found a lot of Chelsea residents have unclaimed property, but when I try to call them and let them know, they think it's a scam."

Hay herself has also benefited from the state's Website.

"My mother's house burned down in the 1940s and with it, all of her savings bonds," Hay said. "I began searching for a way online to find records of the bonds and stumbled across the unclaimed property Website."

Hay said she began entering names of her relatives and discovered unclaimed income tax checks and life insurance policies.

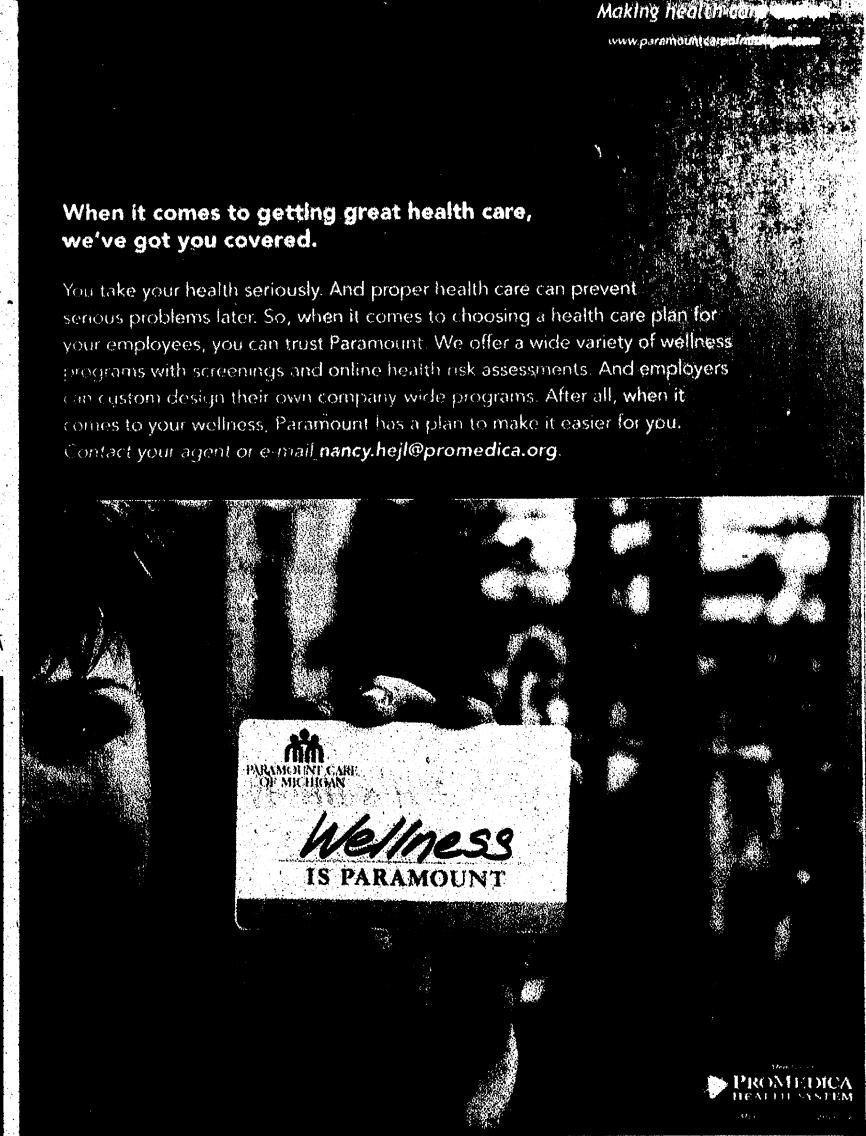

"After awhile, it just became a hobby," she said.

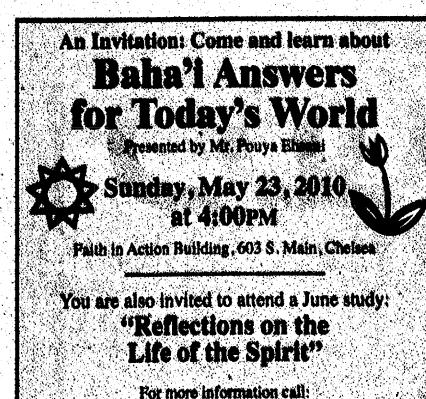

Hay said she began holding periodic workshops at the Chelsea Senior Center for free to help seniors navigate the Website.

"I'm not in it for any financial gain," she said. "I'm glad to help anyone who has any interest."

Because the Website is updated constantly. Hay said

Music program welcomes new student teachers

By Kitty Golding

Several student music teachers at Chelsea Schools have helped guide students this year.

Alyce Barnes is back in Chelsea. After graduating from Chelsea High School in 2001, she went on to Central Michigan University, graduating with a Bachelor of Science legree in music. Barnes assists Mr. Otto and Mr. Catherman with the fifth grade aute players, and coaches high school band students when reeded for various festivals and competitions.

She is currently employed with Lane. Animal Hospital and gives private flute lessons. She would like eventually to leach music to students in Guatemala. She enjoys working with young children. She is currently deciding what her next venture will be.

Matt Eldred was involved in choir, drama and the Michigan Youth Chamber Choir, under the direction of Dr. Blackstone at the University of Michigan during his middle and high school years. After graduating from Williamston High School.

This was the best year the Chelsea High School orchestras have ever had for nominations to the Michigan Youth Arts Festival. Recommendations are derived from scores from state solo and ensemble festival. Individuals can be recommended as members of the MYAF orchestra or as soloists for the solo competition.

This year six students were asked to join the MYAF orchestra. Students included seniors Graham Emberton (violin), he completed his management degree from Western Michigan University with a focus on human resources.

Working in management for three years made him realize that he missed music. Eldred currently attends Michigan State University, and will graduate with his degree in music education in May. He is currently student teaching the CHS choir under the leadership of Steve Hinz.

Eldred said he loves working with children of all ages. He enjoys working with students in fifth and sixth grade through high school. He plans on teaching music and working with children after graduation.

Kathy Fredette, a 2005 CHS graduate, is back and student teaching under the direction of Mr. Catherman and Mr. Otto. Kathy started with flute and trombone in her early band vears, and then moved to the bassoon. In the CHS Marching Band she played piccolo and trombone. She then studied under Mary Beth Minnis at Central Michigan University and will graduate in May with a degree in music education. Aside from student teaching.

Tristan Weber (cello), and Viktor Rozsa (cello). Other students in the orchestra included juniors Joe Haroney (violin), Brandi Alexander (viola), and sophomore James Alexander (cello).

Over the years, CHS has had one soloist recommended to compete — Kiana Weber.

This recommendation allows' students the opportunity to compete for a spot to perform with the MYAF orchestra. To compete the student performs she gives private lessons for bassoon. She has directed each band, has coached groups to prepare for solo and ensemble, and helps plan and do work behind the scenes.

Her plans are to work as a band director, and this summer she plans to look for a job.

Paul Trapkus comes to Chelsea to student teach the orchestra from the University of Michigan. His roots are in Bettendorf, Iowa, where he graduated from high school.
He was highly involved in musical activities there, playing violin, and in an orchestra located in Iowa City. He is enjoying learning from Mr.
Fritzemeier and Mr. Peters. He equated student teaching to playing his violin.

"It is a learning experience, something that I will grow and become better at," he said.

He commented that he was not used to seeing such high quality teaching in a grade school setting.

After graduating with a double major in violin performance and music education, his plans are to either attend graduate school or start working.

for a set of judges. This year students Graham Emberton, Tristan Weber and James Alexander competed.

Chamber ensembles are also eligible for competition. With this recommendation, chamber ensembles can submit a recording that will be used to determine the winner and a chance to perform at the festival. This year the string quartet of Graham Emberton, Martin Harris, Kate Lewis-Lakin and Tristan Weber competed.

Meet Suzy Bogguss as the singer takes over The Ark

By Terry Jacoby

uzy Bogguss arrived in Nashville in 1985, traveling a road so many aspiring musicians have taken over the years. She carried with her two homemade tapes, five years of experience on the road and a suitcase of hopes and dreams.

She was "discovered" by talent scouts from Capitol Nashville while singing at Dollywood, country singer Dolly Parton's theme park in East Tennessee's Smokey Mountains. A tape of her music that she sold at the park got into the hands of a label executive and three weeks later she was signed.

"You can't deal me the aces and think I wouldn't play," says Bogguss, stealing a line of her own from her latest studio album "Sweet Danger."

is amazing. How could I not make music with the friends I've made over the years?"

One of those friends is legendary jazz producer and keyboardist Jason Miles with whom Bogguss co-produced "Sweet Danger." Miles has worked with the biggest names in jazz and popular music, including Miles Davis, Luther Vandross, Chakka Kahn and Sting. He became friends with Bogguss over a decade ago when he was producing a children's album of Elvis Presley covers and asked her to contribute a track. What Miles and Bogguss came up with stand with her best, she says.

"I feel like I'm still learning about my voice and what makes it appealing," she said.
"I,like to swoop and swell, and even soar, but I just don't want to yell anymore. That's not my gift. I never wanted to be a picking music for her albums. She said she is guided by a desire to be true to herself while communicating with her audience.

'What I'm really trying to do is make music that people like," she said. "That's why I started playing in bars in the first place. That's why I listened to people when they told me I should sing another person's songs. I believed them. We were talking to each other."

Connecting with her audience has been a fundamental part of her career since she graduated from Illinois State University with an art degree and began touring the coffeehouse and club circuit.

After five years crisscrossing the country in a camper truck, Bogguss landed in Nashville.

One project inevitably led to the next, which is one of the reasons she's excited about "Sweet Danger."

"The whole process was so natural," she say, "from my friendship with Jason through the whole writing and recording process. It was challenging at first because this was new territory for me. But when I let go and surrendered to the experience, it happened so easily. I left New York sort of mesmerized with the whole process.

season with Neil Simon's musical comedy "Little Me."
Directed by Ken Stevens with musical direction by R. MacKenzie Lewis, "Little Me" will play in the Sponberg

Theatre 7 p.m. June 4, 5, 10, 11 and 12, and at 3 p.m. June 6.

EMU Theatre is housed in the Quirk Dramatic Arts Building at the intersection of East Circle Drive and Best Hall on EMU's Ypsilanti

Campus. Based on Patrick Dennis's 1961 novel, "Little Me" is a comedy that pokes fun at love, life and the American upper

The production features music by Cy Coleman and lyr-ics by Carolyn Leigh in a fast-paced parody that takes a trip through time via the memoirs of Belle Poitrine.

It all begins when Belle, who starts life as a poor girl from Venezuela, Ill., meets Noble Eggleston, an all-American boy from the right side of the tracks.

Noble's mother doesn't approve of Belie who lacks wealth, culture and social position, so Belle sets out in the world to gain all three.

In her quest for success, Belle goes through husbands like water through a sieve.

The accidents that dispatch each husband grow increasingly more ridiculous while simultaneously boosting Belle up the laider toward her dream. This play contains some adult language and sexual innuendo and may not be suitable for all audiences. In the tradition of the spring show, EMU Theatre will again provide audiences with pre-show treats and fun, including picnic games and goodies. The fun begins 30 minutes before show time, so audience members should arrive early to partake in the festivities.

EMU Theatre will also provide audiences with the opportunity to see the show at a discount. EMU Theatre will reduce the $15 regular admission and $12 student tickets to offer $10 tickets for "Little Me."

MAINSTAGE patrons can purchase tickets for $7. Tickets will be available when the Quirk Box Office. "Little Me" tickets are available by phone at 487-2282 or online at www.emu-

Talent show brings lots of laughs

On April 16, the Chelsea High School Bleu Print hosted their annual "Puttin' on the Hits" event. The event is a traditional talent competition fundraiser for the graduating class' senior magazine.

Competing for titles in three categories: dance, music and comedy, eight groups of students performed various types of acts. Over 100 guests attended the event and the Bleu Print was able to surpass their original goal.

The night was more spectacular with the hilarious antics of emcee David Martin, a CHS senior, and the four judges, English teacher Ms. Kochan, former CHS teacher Mr. Salamin, CHS alumnus and CHELSEA Juilliard graduate Rob Knopper, and student judge Cameron Beatty.

While each judge had something good (and often constructive) to say about all of the performers, only a few took home a prize. Winning the dance category was a group entitled "B.A.$" consisting of seniors Kelly Kovacs, Marissa Elwart, Alyssa Prokos, Jake Hash, Paul Ulisse, and Ricky Douglas.

CHS junior Matt Malone won the comedy category with his witty introduction to his musical act; and

senior Jake Prince and

The "Delwebers," a musical group made up of junior Henry Rutherford and seniors Tristan Weber and David Adrian. were the grand prizewinners, impressing the judges with their version of "Robots" by

Flight of the Conchords. The night was a big success for the Bleu Print staff. The-2009-2010 staff consists of 11 sophomores and six seniors. The group meets each Tuesday and Thursday afternoon for two hours.

With the outcome of "Puttin' on the Hits" and the generous support of Jet's Pizza of Chelsea, the Bleu Print has been able to reach their goal this year. On May 28, the Bleu. Print will host "Battle of the Bands," in order to raise money to support the paper next year.

Chelsea Community Hospital is taking part in a statewide effort to add one million new names to the Michigan Organ Donor Registry this year.

Representatives from Gift of Life Michigan were on site on April 14 to encourage employees to register. In four hours, 38 new people were added as donors. In addition, CCH collaborated with Gift of Life Michigan to encourage new donors at the local

Secretary of State office. Fifty-four people registered at that location for a total of 92 new names at the two events.

"Adding these donors to the registry is a great achievement," said Pat Parr, director of staff development. "We hope it encourages more people to consider the life-saving gift of organ donation." Nancy Fielder, director of emergency services, said there can never be enough organ

'We appreciate the opportunity to team up with Gift of Life and other organizations to meet the important goal of adding one million new donors," she said.

Once the goal is met,

Michigan will be in line with, the national average of 39 percent of drivers registered. Only 24 percent of drivers have signed the registry. • Most residents aren't aware that signing the back of a Michigan driver's license or state ID isn't enough to be a donor anymore, Since 2007, residents must join the Michigan Organ Donor Registry online or by calling 1-800-482-4881 or by visiting a Secretary of State branch office. Gift of Life

Police seek suspect in home robbery

The Chelsea Police Department is seeking any information that leads to the arrest of a suspect in the alleged burglary of a home in the 500 block of West Middle Street on May 13.

According to Police Chief Ed Toth, the resident woke shortly before 5 a.m. to get ready for work and downstairs. The resident went downstairs to investigate and saw the front door was open. Toth said a computer and some coins were taken from the property.

It appears the suspect entered through an unlocked bathroom window and left through the front door," he said.

U of M conductor pens book

By Ellie Falaris Ganelin

Considered one of the world's greatest conductors. Gustav Meier is leaving his legacy in a detailed book about conducting. And he happens to live in Ann

On May 8, Meier celebrated the release of "The Score, the Orchestra and the Conductor" at a book signing at Barnes and Noble in Ann Arbor.

Meler's conducting students are considered some of the best in their craft. They include Marin Alsop of the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra, Yakov Kreizberg of the Netherlands Philharmonic and Jun Markle of Mannheim National Theater. He has taught at Yale University Eastman School of Music, Tanglewood Music Center and the University of Michigan.

A native of Switzerland, Meier learned the trumpet and piano from an early age. But rather than pursue a music career in performing or teaching, he chose to learn the art of conducting. These days, he conducts the Greater Bridgeport Symphony in Connecticut, and heads the directing program at Peabody Institute in Baltimore, all while living in Kerrytown with his wife, Emy

Meier finished the first draft of his book about 20 years ago. but couldn't find a publisher. Five years ago, he revisited the book when one of his students offered to send it to his girlfriend, a literary agent. Within a month, he had publishing offers from university presses at Yale and

Oxford, and he went with Oxford. "It's good to have students," he said with a laugh.

Meier pointed out that there is a great deal of literature on conducting already, with a new book coming out every several years.

"It has to do mainly with academia because the people who teach at the university or school of music, they eventually want to ... pass on their teaching knowledge," he said. "It's good for their tenure, for their future job to have a printed book."

So how does "The Score, the Orchestra and the Conductor" stand out?

"This is very different," he said. "It's much more detailed, much more specific.

"There are several chapters that are not covered in other books at all. So, I hope very much that they will eventually be recognized."

The book covers some unique. techniques such as the "zigzag" way" in which the conductor travels from one function to another, as well as a chapter on the common denominator, a method to connect different tempos or speeds within the same piece that have the same rhythmic components.

"I think, as a craft, conducting is not that complicated. It's much more complicated to know how to play the flute, or the violin or piano," Meier said. "There are motions, a few signals here, and the orchestra plays."

"What is complicated is, of. course, is to learn the scores because it's not just one line.

"That's where the craft really comes in — how well do you know the score, how you can oversee all these instruments playing."

U of M announces 2010-11 dramatic season

The University of Michigan School of Music, Theatre and Dance has announced its 2010

2011 dramatic season. Featuring 10 productions from the departments of theater, musical theater, opera and dance, the season runs Oct. 7 through April 17, 2011.

The season begins with "Pentecost," written in 1994 by English political dramatist David Edgar, who is known for the stage adaptation of "Nicholas Nickleby.'

The discovery of a potentially history-changing fresco in an old church begins a heated debate between art historians. When the church is seized by a group of refugees demanding asylum, events spiral toward an explosive climax.

"Pentecost" runs Oct. 7 unrough 17 at the Arthur Millei Theatre and is directed by Assistant Professor of Theatre Malcolm Tulip, who last directed "Trafford Tanzi."

Next is Stephen Sondheim's fairy tale for grown-ups, "Into the Woods." The musical features various characters from Grimm's Fairy Tales seeking "happily ever after" -- only to realize there are consequences when their wishes are fulfilled.

"Into the Woods" plays Oct. 14 through 24 at the Mendelssohn Theatre, directed by Assistant Professor of Musical Theatre Mark Madama, with music direction by Cynthia Kortman

Westphal. One of the most popular works of the opera repertoire, "The Elixir of Love," was composed by Gaetano Donizetti (Lucia di Lammermoor) in just two weeks in 1832. The opera balances comedy with poignancy simplicity with detailed invention, in an example of bel canto. The score is filled with arias, duets and ensembles, including two tenor arias for Nemorino: "Una furtiva lagrima" and "Quanto è bella." Sung in Italian with projected English translations, the opera is directed by Assistant Professor of Opera Joshua Major with the University Symphony Orchestra under the baton of Professor Martin Katz.

"The Elixir of Love," presented by the University Opera Theatre, runs Nov. 11 through 14 at the Power Center.

Still to be announced is the second offering from the Department of Musical Theatre. Previous productions at this time have included first runs of new works and contemporary musicals.

Musical Theatre II plays at the Arthur Miller Theatre from Nov.

18 through 21. Written in 1598, "Much Ado About Nothing" immediately became one of Shakespeare's most popular works. A romantic comedy that nearly becomes a tragedy, the play is filled with wooing, misunderstandings, eavesdropping and clever word-

"Much Ado" depicts the absurd behavior of men and women in love and takes two couples along different paths to the same end-

Presented by the Department of Theatre and Drama and directed by Professor John Neville Andrews (Uncommon Women and Others), "Much Ado" runs Dec. 9 through 12 in the Power

Center The University Dance Company's 2011 concert, "Dancing Americas," celebrates the intertwining of music and culture throughout the Americas. Acclaimed dance artist Dianne McIntyre creates a new work. entitled "Diddley Daze," based on the music of Bo Diddley

McIntyre's career has stretched from performing to choreographing for modern dance, theater, television and film. PBS declared her "one of the most important black woman dance artists to emerge during the 1970s."

kounding out the program are new works by faculty choreographers Melissa Beck-Matjias and Sandra Torijano, along with a piece by Merce Cunningham to be announced later. "Dancing Americas" runs Feb. 3 through 6, 2011, at the Power Center.

The Department of Theatre and Drama will present "Arms and the Man" by George Bernard Shaw Shaw's first commercial success, the play revolves around Raina, a young woman who must choose between the war hero she idolizes and a quiet young soldier who unexpectedly drops into her life.

"Arms and the Man" is directed by Professor of Theatre Philip Kerr and plays at the Mendelssohn Theatre, Feb. 17 through 20, 2011.

Composer-librettist Mark Adamo attracted national attention with his successful debut opera, "Little Women," based on the novel by Louisa May Alcott. Commissioned by the Houston Grand Opera in 1998, "Little Women" is the poignant com-ing-of-age chronicle of the four March sisters — Jo, Beth, Meg and Amy — in 19th century New England.

The Los Angeles Times described the work as "beautifully wrought, tightly executed and consistently entertaining." Presented by the University Opera Theatre under the direction of Assistant Professor of Opera Robert Swedberg, "Little Women." plays at the Mendelssohn Theatre, March 24 through 27, 2011. Arthur Miller's 1953 Tony Award-winning tale of individual conscience and social tyranny "The Crucible," plays at the Arthur Miller Theatre, March 31

April 10, 2011. Set in the 1600s during the Salem witch trials, Miller's drama is an indictment of censorship. "The Crucible" is presented by the Department of Theatre and Drama, with direction by Assistant Professor of Theatre Jerry Schwiebert.

The season concludes with "Brigadoon," presented by the Department of Musical Theatre. Premiering in 1947, "Brigadoon" established the team of Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe as a Lerner and Loewe's musical fantasy is filled with memorable songs such as "The Heather on the Hill," "Come to Me, Bend to Me," and "Almost Like Being in Love.

Brigadoon plays at the Power Center April 14 through 17, 2011. Associate Professor of Musical Theatre Linda Goodrich directs, with music direction by Catherine Walker Adams, assistant professor of musical theatre. Tickets are on sale now for the 2010-2011 Power Series, a subscription package for all shows presented in the Power Center: "The Elixir of Love." "Much Ado About Nothing," "Dancing Americas" and "Brigadoon."

Tickets for the four show series are $80 (center orchestra/balcony) and $60 (side orchestra/balcony).

For more information on the Power Series, call the League Ticket Office at 764-2538.

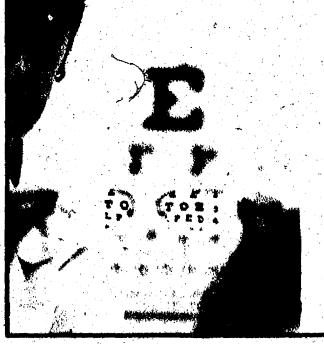

Internet sales for single tickets will begin Aug. 30 at www.music. umich.edu/performances. Inperson and phone sales for all performances at the SMTD start on Sept. 7.

Performances are held at 7:30 p.m. on Thursdays, at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and at 2 p.m. Sundays.

Tickets are available at the League Ticket Office, located within the Michigan League on U of M's Central Campus. The ticket office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, and from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Township board not doing good job

A top priority of the Lima Township Board of Trustees is to maintain roads and bridges in the township.

The board is doing a dismal job of both. The Liberty Road Bridge between Steinbach and Dancer roads was closed for an extended period before finally being replaced. The Klinger Road Bridge is closed and slated to be permanently removed. The Dancer Road Bridge between Jerusalem and Liberty roads is closed with the bridge deck removed with no plans for repair or replacement.

Upcoming bridge inspections may result in further closings.

It's time for the township board to step up and change its priorities. The board seems. to have plenty of money to buy a house and demolish a house, cause a lawsuit to defend, appeal that judgment, appeal again, rent new township digs ... you get the idea.

Working with the Washtenaw County Road Commission (which the township seems reluctant to do), this money spent could have gone a long way toward fixing our bridges and improving our roads.

If the township board can't get on track, it is time for the. township citizens to rise up and recall and replace them.

Heart and Sole race benefits Grace Clinic

On behalf of the board and physicians of the Grace Clinic, I would like to thank Chelsea Community Hospital and everyone from the community who participated in making this year's Heart and Sole race such a resounding success. This will allow us to continue serving those in medical and financial need in our community.

Students compete in Alma festival

Chelsea residents Amanda Craig, Jessica Craig, and Jennifer Craig of Daichiel Thistle Highland Dance School will participate in the Scottish Arts Festival in Alma May 22.

The festival is an action packed weekend for highlanders all over the state. Members of the Daichiel Thistle Highland Dance School have worked diligently to perfect. their dance skills and look forward to the opportunity to dance on stage and compete.

The trio will perform on May 22 with their own choreographed ensemble. On May 23, Amanda and Jessica Craig will compete in the Midwest Regional Championships. Top placement in the championship advances the dancer to the U.S. Inter Regional Championships in August in Traverse City. The USIR Championship includes all of the top competitors from each region throughout the United States, Madalyn Allen of Daichiel Thistle Highland Dance will be competing at Alma in the beginner category on May 23. The competition includes registered highland dancers from all over the world.

Citizen group puts bid proposal for Longworth facility

By Sean Daiton

Preservation Chelsea, a group of private residents and professionals, joined Lansing based Kincaid Henry in responding to the Chelsea Downtown Development Authority's request for proposals regarding the Longworth buildings.

Originally slated to be torn down for parking lots or space for the Chelsea Farmer's Market, the Longworth buildings could now be repurposed for residential and/or commercial use.

Preservation Chelsea has proposed turning the three historic downtown buildings into mixed use housing and retail

The Longworth buildings were built in 1905 and housed horses for 10 cents per visit, as well as automobile manufacturing space and a show room retail space for some of the earliest motor vehicles sold in the area.

The DDA purchased the properties in 2008 with the intention of redeveloping them into something useful, but the first request for proposals sent out that year were met with silence, according to DDA President Mike Jackson.

Having spent $400,000 on the properties already, the reasoning at the time was that the DDA couldn't and shouldn't shoulder the cost of redevelopment compared to the much cheaper price of demolishing the buildings.

Jackson said he remains hopeful that a proposal will be agreed upon and implemented in the future.

Previously a proposed zoo and historical structure was proposed but was ultimately pulled from consideration.

Preservation Chelsea members have stated publicly that their only goal is to see the properties ultimately saved and redeveloped.

Silver Maples to host Robinson's art

Silver Maples of Chelsea will host the art of Jane Robinson in the Maples Gallery on May 6 through June 27.

Robinson, a Michigan native, works in acrylic paint and mixed. media and is known for her use of vibrant colors. Robinson will often use mixed media, including tiles and metal work that brings an interesting depth and range of emotion. These complex textures often encourage curiosity about "the rest of the story."

Maples Gallery resident coordinator Lois del con notes that Robinson's work, unlike some abstract art, doesn't "assault" the viewer, a viewpoint that deleon said may be a result of Robinson's social work background.

"She invites you to contemplate and have a dialogue with the work," del.eon said.

Robinson's work has been purchased by many private collectors and businesses, including the University of Michigan, exhibited throughout the Midwest, and won numerous awards.

Silver Maples of Chelsea is a non-profit retirement community. located at 100 Silver Maples Drive. For more information about Robinson's exhibit, visit www.silvermaples.org or call 475-4111.

HIGH-FIVING: THE CHELSEA SOFTBALL TEAM HAS WON 13 IN A ROW: PAGE 5C

BY TERRY JACOBY

Parents, fans, community need to show their support have debated even bringing this up, but I lost the argument so here it is.

Where are all the fans at these spring sporting events? I don't expect the bleachers to be packed, but I would think more people would turn out to cheer on these young athletes. These kids, your kids. or my kids or our kids, work extremely hard and deserve more community support.

People turn out in droves to see a school play or a musical or a concert. Why not a girls' soccer game on a nice and sunny Saturday afternoon. That's where I was this weekend and I enjoyed every minute of the action.

It was Saline at Dexter. Two very good soccer teams going head-to-head. It was early Saturday afternoon. It was warm and sunny and for fans of the Hornets it was a short drive and for supporters of the Dreadnaughts, it was right around the corner.

But there was more silver in the stands than people. Even if both parents of every player on each team showed up the bleachers would have looked a little less bare.

No one knows more than me what parents have to do on the weekends. I understand many families have more than one child that has to be driven here or there. I know many parents have to work on the weekends. I know the grass has to be cut and the errands have to be run.

I get that. But you don't get these events back. As soon as the whistle blows or the last out is made, they are gone forever.

And you folks in your community who don't have kids in the schools should also be out there root, root, rooting for the home team. Saturday's game was physical, hard fought, well played and exciting from start to finish. A great way to spend a couple hours on a Saturday.

Many of you will sit in front of the TV and watch the Tigers or go down to Comerica Park and drop $100 to park, eat and watch a professional game. Yet, you won't walk down the street to see young and talented baseball. or softball players learning how to play these beautiful games.

And you would be shocked at just how good these players truly are at these sports.

There are still plenty of baseball, softball, soccer, lacrosse and other games to go see. If you don't want to. do it for your community or these young athletes, do it for yourself. It's a great and inexpensive way to spend a few hours.

Chelsea's Bingel recovering from 'traumatic' experience

Standout soccer player suffers broken jaw after collision with Huron player

By Terry Jacoby

Hantage Newspapers Carol Bingel was sitting there watching a soccer game - something she has done countless times since her daughter Sarah started playing the sport all those years ago. inside This was just another game.

And then in a second everything changed. It went from just another game to one that she will never forget.

"It was very traumatic," Carol said. "It's something no parent ever wants to go through.'

While playing against Ann Arbor Huron on April 22, Sarah jumped up to head the ball. An Ann Arbor player challenged her for the ball.

Sarah's jaw collided with the Huron players' head and Sarah fell hard to the ground.

At that moment, everything changed.

Blood was gushing out of Sarah's mouth. This wasn't a bloody nose or a knocked out tooth.

"She didn't get up and then we saw the blood," Carol said. "The trainers did a really good job of getting right out there and helping her. We took her right to Chelsea Hospital. We were very fortunate the hospital was so While it's only a few minute ride from Chelsea falls to the Chelsea soccer field to the emergency room at Chelsea Community Hospital, it must have seemed like a lifetime to Carol - and Sarah.

"It was pretty scary going to the hospital," Carol said. "There was so much bleeding I was afraid she might choke on her blood."

CORININE CARPENTER, CHELSEA

Corinne Carpenter had a tremendous day to help lead the Chelsea girls' track team to a 91-46 victory last Wednesday over host Dexter. The junior won the 200 meters in 26.8 seconds and the 400 in 63.5. She also ran on two winning relay teams as the Bulldogs finished the dual-meet season at 6-0. On Friday, Carpenter took first place in the 200 meters (26.5) at the Bath Invitational and ran on two first-place relay teams.

Dexter's Nicole Minzey had four goals in the Dreadnaughts' 13-10 overtime loss to Skyline in the District Championships at Birmingham Groves. The junior finished with a season total of 78 goals to break the Dexter High School's women's record of 75 set by Kaitlin McMurray in 2006. "It was nice to get the record, but I wish we had won the game" Minzey said.

KASSIA ZALEWSKI, SALINE

Saline senior captain Kassia Zalewski scored eight goals leading the Hornets' girls' water polo team to three straight wins and their first ever state district championship last weekend.

ALEX MUTCHLER, MANCHESTER

Manchester's Alex Mutchler recorded a season-best jump in the pole vault competition May 14 during the Manchester Metric Relays. Mutchler cleared 120 for the first time this season to place first in the event and help the Flying Dutchmen place third as a team. His previous season-high tump was 11-8.

This & That from Heritage's 'Starting Five'

I recently attended the Golden Triangle Meet of Champions at Saline High School. The event, hosted by the Hornets, attracted 13 schools. Despite rainy, windy, stormy weaffier, the athletes were out in force for the competition; which included both a boys' meet and a

As I walked among all the athletes and covered the meet last week, I kept thinking to myself what a chore it must be to organize such an event. I can barely organize a small family get together at my house, yet alone take on a huge. multi-team track and field meet. Kudos to whoever takes the time to handle all of the details and arranges the meet so that it moves along like clockwork. And while we're at it, what a nice complex Saline has for track and field 1... remember when I ran track back in the 1980s, some of the schools I competed at actually had weeds growing up through the asphalt. Prior to coming to Heritage Newspapers, I covered a small, rural high school in mid-Michigan that didn't even have a track. I'll never forget writing the story about the school's team and watching a few of the athletes practice hurdles in the carpeted hallways. Very strange, indeed. Oddly-enough, a few years later, that high school would win a state championship in track and field.

Sports and politics. Should they ever mix? No. And the Phoenix Suns are going to learn that the hard way after making a statement about Arizona's new immigration law currently being proposed. Just watch the decreasing number of seasonticket holders next year for the Suns after the organization cast their vote against the proposal by wearing "Los Suns" jerseys in a playoff game.

I wanted to share with you the perfect reason why the Suns should stick to basketball and not politics. The following is taken by the great Phil Mushnick's column in the New York Post. Enjoy.

"What if the owners of the Suns discovered that hordes of people were sneaking into Suns' games without paying? What if the owners had a good idea as to who the gate-crashers are, but the ushers and security personnel were not allowed to ask these folks to produce their ticket stubs, thus non-paying attendees couldn't be ejected.

"Furthermore, what if Suns' ownership was expected to provide those who sneaked in with complimentary eats and drink? And what if, on those days when a gate-crasher became ill or injured, the

Suns had to provide free medical care and shelter?

why not at home games?

'And what if one of those 'fans' gave birth? Not only couldn't you eject them, you'd have to provide another free seat. "If charity in Arizona begins at home,

Newspapers used to be just about getting information out to the masses. You'd pay your quarter, get your paper and read about all the recent happenings.

My how things have changed, especially in the sports section. Sure, newspapers can still be used to convey information, like sports stories and scores and even features and standings

And those things are great. But with the advent of the technological age we now find ourselves in, it seems wasteful to limit the information we can gather and distribute just to the newspaper pages.

Our Web sites, www.A2journal.com and www.heritage.com, have all the stories we have in the paper, only in an online format, which is convenient for many web-savvy

However, the social networking site Facebook also offers a unique way to get an even more in depth experience when it comes to checking out local sports. Come and check out both the A2 Journal and the Heritage facebook Web sites.

Honoring 'The Dirty D'

Milan hosts Detroit Dragway Reunion on May 23

Milan Dragway will host the Detroit Dragway Reunion, presented by Outlaw Photo on Sunday, May 23.

There will be plenty of action on the track, with exhibition runs from several notable Detroit Dragway's racers, two Detroit Dragway trophy classes, and many local racers who come out for the regular Sunday program at Milan

There also will be four nostalgia funny cars, 12-15 gassers, along with several local car clubs bringing out their best rides for a spectacular Show-n-Shine car show.

Among the notable race cars that will be on hand is the Hollish Brothers competition coupe, a runner up in the 1969 NHRA Nationals, the year Detroit Dragway opened. Al Bergler will be there with his famous Motown Shaker Funny Car, along with Denny Hummel's Booth & Arons sponsored Top Alcohol Dragster. Both cars will make exhibition passes. Mike Burkhart's '69 Camaro, the Doran Chevrolet, driven by Steve Timoszyk and Detroit Thunder, a '55 Thunderbird, driven by second generation racer, Bill Hallett also are part of the show. Combine this with other local standouts such as Kenny Langlois, Bill Rowe and John Powers for an action packed day at the races.

Spectators can wander the pits, take pictures, collect autographs, pick up a Detroit Dragway T-shirt and other memorabilia, while listening to the playback of some of those legendary radio commercials that made the dragstrip famous across the country.

The Detroit Dragway known as the "The Dirty D" was operated from 1959 until 1998. During the early years the strip hosted Michigan's first NHRA Nationals (1959 and 1960), was a test bed for Detroit's Big 3 muscle cars, and hosted some of the biggest names in drag racing.

Funny cars and top fuel dragsters entertained huge crowds with fiery burnouts and thundering horsepower. Locals such as Della Woods in the "Funny Honey" and Roger Lindamood in his "Color Me Gone" were regular attractions. Some of the biggest names in drag racing were hometown hero's - like Connie "The Bounty Hunter" Kalitta and Shirley "Cha Cha"

Gates open at 8 a.m., cars start running at 9 a.m. with eliminations at 1 p.m. Exhibition runs will take place throughout the day. Tickets are $10, which includes parking, full access to the pits and car show. Kids 12 and under are free.

Milan Dragway is located at 10860 Plank Road in Milan.

For more information, go to milandragway.com.

Detroit Dragway was home to so many Motor City racers and thousands of spectators, who were thrilled by the sights, sounds, and smells of the drags.

Siena Heights kicks off football

After completing a thorough five-month exploration process, Siena Heights University announced it is starting intercollegiate football that will . begin play in fall 2011.

This is a historic and significant day in the history of Siena Heights University," said SHU President Sister Peg Albert, OP, PhD, who made the announcement at an on-campus press conference May 3. 2010. "The decision to explore football was a very comprehensive and collaborative effort. We first asked if football fit the mission of Siena Heights University, because this is not just about athletics, but expanding the mission of this institution. We believe that football will not only give opportunities to a new group of students at Siena Heights, but will help build community, which is what we are all about."

President Albert said the decision was made to move forward with football based on the recommendation of the Football Task Force she established in January.

The task force was led by SHU Athletic Director Fred Smith and included SHU faculty, staff and students as well as board members and members of the community This task force gathered extensive information, including how football would impact the athletic, academic, financial and student life areas of SHU. After this information was compiled. and presented, the SHU Board of Trustees met May 1, 2010, and approved the plan to begin football, which was the final step in the approval process.

'Adding football at Siena Heights has been talked about for years, but this was the right time for us," Smith said. "I was impressed by the way our community came together and looked at all the factors involved in this decision, which were many I would especially like to thank all those who were involved in the process. I am thrilled to have helped lead this exploration process and believe football will enhance the university as well as our athletic program."

Siena Heights also introduced the coach who will begin Siena Heights' football tradition. Veteran coach Jim Lyall was introduced as Siena Heights' first head coach. With more than 20 years as a college head coach as well as being a former player at the University of Michigan under the late legendary coach Bo Schembechler, Lyall will bring his combination of leadership, experience and character to Siena Heights. according to Smith.

"We couldn't have asked for a better person to lead our ... football program," he said: "We wanted someone who understood not only how to . run a college football program, but could build it the right way. We want success both on and off the field, and Jim will accomplish that for us at Siena Heights."

Lvall said he and new offensive/recruiting coordinator Jeff Hancock will begin recruiting student athletes immediately. The Saints, who will become the only Catholic college or university in Michigan to offer football scholarships, will play a junior varsity schedule beginning in fall 2011. SHU has applied for membership in the Mid-States Football Conference, one of the top NAIA conferences in the country. If accepted, Siena Heights will begin conference play in 2012,

We need to have kids who understand the whole meaning of character and integrity." Lyall said: "Because we don't have any senior leadership right now, it's going to be important for us to recruit a certain type of kid. We're going to target captains. We're going to going to target kids from programs that have been successful." The Saints will also compete on a new, on campus. artificial grass outdoor performance stadium that is expected to be completed by the start of the 2011 season. The program will also have state-of-the-art training and locker room facilities.

Girls' track Perfect ending for Bulldogs

The Chelsea girls' track team ended their dualmeet season with a perfect 6-0 record following an impressive 91-46 victory over host Dexter on Wednesday It was the third consecutive season the Bulldogs have gone undefeated in dual meets.

The Bulldogs also took first at the Bath Invitational on Friday

"Dexter is an outstanding distance team that is always tough," Chelsea coach Pat Clarke said. We told the girls that we had to have top efforts if we were to compete with Dexter in the distance.

Danielle Dahl obviously was listening. The sophomore won the 800 meter run (2 minutes, 33.2 seconds) and ran on two winning relays for the Bulldogs.

Entering the 3200 relay Dexter was a heavy favorite having run more than 30 seconds faster than Chelsea. "Our girls went right out and hung around the powerful Dreadnaught team, "Clarke said. "It all came down to the anchor and Danielle was up to the challenge running a blistering 2:24.2 anchor leg to win the event in a season best time of

The Bulldogs' time was 41 seconds faster than the team's previous best.

Other members of the 3200 relay team were Jessi Battaglia, Julie Beaumont and Courtney Maher.

This was an outstanding performance by our entire team to earn this hard fought victory. Clarke said. "We must continue our improvement and our fine efforts if we want to end up the season where we want to be."

Corinne Carpenter had a tremendous day for the Bulldogs. The junior won the 200 meters in 26.8 seconds and the 400 in 63.5. Grace Sauers was second in the 200 (27.0) and Megan Lowe third (30.1) to complete the sweep. Megan Hall was third in the Carpenter also ran on two winning relays. Senior hurdler Jenna McGrath won the 110 hurdles in her best time (17.1 seconds) of the season in an event the Bulldogs swept. Emily Cottrell was second (17.25) and Katrina Williams was third (17.3). Cottrell won the 300 hurdles in 49.9 while Williams took second.

Chelsea swept the 100 meters with Olivia De Troyer taking first (12.7), Christina Coffman second (13.2) and Lauren Dark third (13.6).

Battaglia was third in the 1600 run (5:39.2) and Samantha Newbound was third in the 3200 run

In the field events, the Bulldogs swept the shot but with Zoe Sing first (27 feet). Laura Heany second (25-9.5) and Aimee Mesko third (25-2). Coffman won the long jump (15-10) and Marissa Elwart won the discus (92-10). Dark was second in the high

Bath champions

The Bulldogs ran away with the title at the Jonathon Nugent Invitational at Bath High School on Friday Chelsea finished with 135 points with DeWitt taking second with 81 points. The meet featured six ranked girls' teams including the top three teams from last year's Division 2 state meet.

'We had a great meet," Clarke said. "All the girls performed very well. All three sprint relays won with real good times."

DeTroyer won the 100 meters in 12.26 and the 400 meters in 57.75. Both of these were new meet records. Her time in the 100 meters tied the Chelsea school record and she also ran on two winning relay teams.

Carpenter took first place in the 200 meters (26.5) with Sauers taking fourth (27.3).

Coffman took second in the long jump (15-8) with Sauers finishing third (15-5.25).

Battaglia and Newbound both ran personal best times in the 3200 and finished fifth and seventh, respectively. Williams was fourth (16.4) and McGrath eighth (17.5) in the 110 hurdles. Coffman was sixth in the 100 meters (13.28). Dahl ran seventh in the 1600 run (5:47) with Maher eighth (5:55) and Cottrell was second in the 300 hurdles (48.88) with Williams third (63.3). Dark was fourth in the high jump (4-8) and Sing was fifth in the shot put (29-7).

Chelsea dominated the relay events. The 400 relay team of Carpenter, Coffman, McGrath and Sauers ran first in 51.3 and the 800 relay team of DeTroyer, Carpenter, Coffman and Sauers won in 1:46.6. The 1600 relay team of Carpenter, Hall, DeTrover and Cottrell won in 4:10.27.

'We continue to improve, and that is all I can ask as a coach," Clarke said. "We must continue to work hard at our season goals if we want to be successful later in the season. This meet was a big step in the right direction.

Sometimes the way a team plays just doesn't show up on the scoreboard. And that's exactly what happened on Thursday to the Chelsea girls' soccer team.

"We played one of the best games we've played all season." said Chelsea coach Kirsten Smart.

Unfortunately, the Bulldogs lost 2-1 to Ann Arbor Pioneer. Chelsea falls to 3-2-0 in the Southeastern Conference and

"We played an outstanding game, especially in the first half," Smart said, "We controlled the ball and had a lot of possession. But we made a couple of mistakes that led to scoring opportunities and they took advantage of them.

Both Pioneer goals came late in the first half. They scored with 3:51 left in the half and then again with just 28 seconds to play to take a 2-0 lead into halftime.

Kelly Fournier, with an assist from Cara Johnson, scored at the 23:17 mark of the second half for Chelsea.

Michelle Wellman had a strong game in goal for the Bulldogs.

"They said the surgery went well," Carol said. "In fact. it was the best case scenario. Everything went perfect."

Sarah's jaw has been wired shut and the wires won't come off until June 4. That's when the first set of wires can come off. A week after that, the second set can come off.

"She's doing better," Carol said. "That first week she was in a lot of pain. She tried every day to go to school but could only stay for a few hours. Her attitude all through this has been surprisingly good.

With a wired jaw, Sarah's meal choices are limited.

"She eats through a tube or straw," Carol said. "Mostly protein shakes or smoothies. We even have to put soup through a blender:"

The Chelsea varsity softball team ran its winning streak to 13 and improved to 20-5 on the season after winning three games on Saturday at the Chelsea Quad Tournament. The Bulldogs won the three games by a combined score of 28-6 over pretty good competition.

We are making some good teams look bad with the way we are hitting the ball," Chelsea coach Bob Moffett said. "We are playing the best softball of the season at the right time.

One of the keys for the Bulldogs has been strong starts.

"We are scoring early on teams and getting leads in ballgames and with the way we are pitching, that makes it very difficult on our opponents," Moffett said.

The Buildogs opened Saturday's triple-header with Grass Lake, a team that came in with a 17-3 record and undefeated in their league. Cheisea proved that they aren't in the Bulldogs' league.

Chelsea jumped out with four runs in the first inning and added two more in the second and. cruised to a 12-1 victory Taylor Hansen allowed just four hits and struck out 11 to earn the win.

Allie Smith had two hits and two RBI, Ellie Stoffer had two hits, a triple and three RBI, Marie Zill scored two runs and had two RBI; and Paige Erickson had two

The Bulldogs then knocked off a talented, but young Farmington team 7-4. Chelsea trailed 3-0 before scoring six runs in the fourth, including five with two Kayley Dixon went the distance to earn the win. The senior scattered 11 hits and struck out five over six innings.

Zill was 3-for-4 with two RBI and two steals; Stoffer had two hits and two RBI: Kayley Dixon had two RBI: Amanda Gates had a double and run scored; and Taylor VanRiper had a hit and scored a run.

Chelsea completed the day with a 9-1 win over South Lyon East, a team that also had defeated Farmington and Grass Lake earlier in the day Hansen had six strikeouts and scattered five hits to earn the win as the Bulldogs scored two in the first, two in the second and five in the fifth.

Smith, Zill and Shelby Platt all had two hits and Stoffer had a triple for the Bulldogs.

JV soccer team continues to play hard

The Chelsea junior varsity soccer team lost 50 to Ann Arbor Pioneer last Thursday.

"The girls left everything on the field and I was proud of the way they competed," said coach Kristen Hendricks. "Despite the acore, we looked sharp and hung with them. They were a very good team and we have nothing to hang our heads about.

"Leia Longworth had her best game for us, making some great passes and turns against a tough Pioneer defense. Maddle Perry and Autumn Johnson both played a strong game at center mid and stopper. Rachel Marks did a great job of shutting down their best offensive player. Katle Kingaley played aggressive and had a solid performance for us in goal.

We are starting to play better team soccer and we are looking. for our players instead of just sending the ball down the field, which is what we have been focusing on in practices. Overall, this was a great team effort."

Rollercoaster ride continues for CHS

By Terry Jacoby

Within 24 hours, Chelsea baseball coach Wayne Welton saw as bad as it gets in high school baseball to as good as it gets. Welton has been coaching the great game of baseball for some 30-plus years and he's never seen a team play so bad and then turn around the next day and play so well.

"It's our youth and inexperience still showing and it shouldn't be at this point of the season," Welton said. "But we're still coming to work every day and trying to get better. We will accept the challenge.

There is no doubt the talent is there for the Bulldogs - they have proven that several times during the season. But they also have shown they can be downright awful at times. And it doesn't get any worse than last Friday's loss to Monroe.

The numbers tell the whole story: the Bulldogs allowed 21 hits, eight walks, threw nine wild pitches and committed seven errors. And this was a game they led 3-2 after two innings.

"It was a three-inning disaster," Welton said.

When the dust finally cleared, the Bulldogs had lost 23-8 to Monroe.

"While we obviously didn't pitch well or field well, we did hit the ball," Welton said,

The Bulldogs racked up 11 hits including two each from Nate Udell, Brian Paulsen, Nigel Schuh and Jake Fox. Also getting hits were Patrick Roberts, Tyler Geiger and Tanner Starkey.

Baseball

The next day, the Bulldogs hosted Muskegon Mona Shore -and split the double-header, playing much better baseball.

They are a really good team. and threw their No. 1 pitcher against us and it was just a very well played high school baseball

Brett Caid's double in the fifth was the only Chelsea hit as the Buildogs fell 3-1. Alex Maloney pitched a solid game for the home team, striking out three and allowing only two walks. The Bulldogs had the tying runs on base in the seventh inning.

Chelsea battled back and won the second game, 11-9, as they exploded for eight runs in the third inning. Bradley Hepler started. Schuh got the win and Charlie Hess finisi ed up as each pitcher went three innings.

Roberts (two RBI), Udeli (three RBI) and Hess all had two hits. Hepler, Schuh and Caid all had singles.

On Monday, the Bulldogs lost 17-6 to Lincoln as the defensive woes returned. Chelsea committed 13 errors in seven innings. Lincoln scored eight runs in the second thanks to seven Chelsea

"We didn't give up an earned run and we had eight hits and six walks so we had a lot of base runners." Welton said. "The number of errors is disappoint-

Chelsea led the second game 3-2. The teams will finish that game and play another one on Saturday.

Bulldogs teeing up a real shot at the next round

The Chelsea boys' golf team appears to swinging the sticks the best at just the right time. The Bulldogs twice last week proved that they could surprise some teams at districts with how they are playing late in the season

Last Monday the Bulldogs shot a team-best score over nine holes, finishing with a 162 during a quad meet at Green Valley in Monroe.

"I was very pleased with our results," said Chelsea coach Joe Ewald. "We were six shots behind Dexter's 156 and Dexter also had its best round of the year. And we were only three shots off Bedford's 169. Bedford may very well be the best team in either division of the SEC this year.

'Three teams are very strong and should easily advance," Ewald said. "Four teams are not very strong and I think would be very unlikely to move on. That leaves six teams of which Chelsea is one, that I would consider dead even. We have to find a way to beat three of those teams."

On the tee: Wagner, Laidlaw, Lodewyk

Age: 16 / Grade: 10th / Other sports: None When did you first become interested in golf: I was introduced to the game of golf by my father, Robin Wagner, at 8 years old. How often do you play: I play golf 35 times week. I take lessons from Paul Haase at Kendall Academy in Ann Arbor.

What is the best score you ever shot: My best 18 hole score is 73 in June 2009 at True North Golf Chub in Harbor Springs. What is the best part of your game: Accuracy off the tee and

What part needs the most work: Long irons and putting need the most work.

How has your season gone this year. This year's team has shown wonderful improvement from last year. I'm proud to have my average as 39.2 going into the SEC Championships.

What are your goals for the rest of the season: My goals are for the team to make it to the regionals as a team and for me to make the state tournament as an individual.

Dylan Laidlaw

Age: 17 Grade: 11th Other sports: Chelsea varsity hockey When did you first become interested in golf: My grandpa has been my biggest influence. He got me my first set of clubs when I was 1 or 2.

How often do you play: During the season I play every day with the team. Outside of the team I try to play at least two to three times a week. more if possible. I have taken lessons for most of my summers since I was. about 7, but not currently.

What is the best score you ever shot: For the team my lowest was a 39. Outside of the team my lowest round was par.

What is the best part of your game: Hitting the long ball What part needs the most work: Putting - like they say "drive for show, putt for dough." How has your season gone this year: It was going good up until the last few matches where I just couldn't concentrate mentally.

What are your goals for the rest of the season: My goals are to put up good numbers to get myself into a spot to move on and stay mentally focused on the course.

Bourke Ladewy

Age: 16 / Grade: 10th 'Other sports: Soccer

How did you first become interested in golf: My dad got me interested in playing golf when I was around 6 years old. It was mostly just chipping around the yard and heading over to the golf course to practice on the putting green. I really started getting serious around 13 years old.

How often do you play: In the summer I usually play 3 or 4 times a week. I take private lessons from Jeff Goble at Miles of Golf.

What's the best score you've ever shot: 39 for nine, 83 for 18 What's the best part of your game: I hit the ball straight and keep it in play I don't get into trouble very often. What part of your game needs the most work: My putting is no doubt the worst part of my game. But it has improved this year. How has your season gone this year: My season's gone well. I've consistently been shooting in the low 40's the entire season.

What are your goals for the rest of the season: I'm hoping our team can put four solid scores together and give us a good chance at mak-

Giving it all their Heart and Sole

Crystal Hayduk helps her daughter, Katie Rea, before

Local writer officially becomes a 'runner'

By Crystal Hayduk Special Writer

There was a friendly, happy atmosphere Saturday morning on the Chelsea Hospital grounds as runners warmed up for the Heart and Sole. Although there seemed to be many experienced racers, there were pienty of beginners to keep me company. In the minutes before the race began, I was suddenly filled with nervous energy at the thought of parading myself and my family in public for this challenge, and worried that someone would get hurt (which had not crossed my mind at all until my dear editor Terry Jacoby said the day before, "Don't get hurt.").

But something amazing happened. Instead of my usual downward spiral of imagining the worst (a thought pattern relatively common to mouns and nurses), I began to think positively. Here were hundreds of people gathered to support a great cause, encourage each other, and have a good time doing it.

As for getting hurt, that could happen anywhere.

With one final directive to my daughter Katie Rae about not getting lost, the race began. We started at the rear of the pack, where all slower runners should begin. As I turned the first corner, I tripped on an orange cone. All I could do was laugh – at least I didn't get hurt! I thought of Terry; then paid more attention to where I was going. where I was going.

Several things surprised me about my first race. The presence of other runners and encouraging spectators pushed me beyond my expectation. My race day time beat my training sessions.

During the race, I concentrated primarily on performing my best. But when training alone, my mind wandered quite a bit. The lack of focus meant I was easily tempted to smell the lilacs or pet someone's dog.

Participating with my family was a fun bonding experience (unlike camping, which is bonding, but not necessarily fun - at least in my comfort-loving opinion). At each turn in the course, Katle Rae jogged in place, waiting for me to catch up. Sometimes she ran backwards to slow her pace. Finally at the second mile marker, I told her to go ahead and we would see her at the finish line. My husband Don did stroller duty, bless his heart - so he was the one who lost time as Megan took turns riding and running. The final surprise was how invigorated I felt when the race was over, knowing that I had overcome the physical and mental obstacles to participate in the 6K, and in the process contributed to a worthy cause.

to a worthy cause.

A couple of weeks ago, my friend Julie asked if running has become a regular part of my life that I really look forward to. Yes, I have committed to making exercise a regular part of my life; but need to consciously and creatively schedule it as it becomes a habit.

I can't quite say that I look forward to running for the sake of running, but I definitely love the benefits. Since beginning training, I sleep more soundly and have more energy it's been easier to haul groceries and carry my little monkey girls on my back. Running up the steps no longer makes me breathless.

In the last few months, I've lost seven pounds and an inch each off my waist and hips as a result of the combination of healthier food choices and everying. I'm beginning to poster a decrease in food choices and exercise. I'm beginning to notice a decrease in my stress level and an increase in my problem solving ability.

Henry Ford once said, "Whether you think you can or can't, you're right." The Heart and Sole Race sealed the deal. I might even officially call myself a runner.

Crystal Hayduk serned her stripes as a runner.

"The tournament fee is $650 and then we have hotels and things like that for 13 girls,' Schlaff said. "There are two days of pool play and then if you do well there, you compete for a national championship. We will take any help we could get. It certainly would be a spe-cial time for the girls that they would never forget. Anyone interested in sponsoring the Swarm should contact Schlaff at 734/216-3810 or dschlaff@yahoo.com.

Manchester's 57th Chicken Broil to feed thousands

Manchester might be small, but it packs a hore funch every year with its annual Chicken Broil. The village plays host to thousands of people who flock to Alumni Athletic Field for the feast. This year's 57th annual broil takes place July 15 from 4 to 8 p.m.

"We purchase 12,500 chicken halves from a company in Georgia," event spokesman Karl Racenis said. "They slaughter them the night before the broil and ship them up to us. It's all fresh. Nothing is fro-

Those 12,500 chicken halves add up to 19,000 pounds of chicken. The broil also requires 3200 cement blocks for four pits roughly 100 feet long, as well as 9,600 pounds of charcoal. The pits are built from the blocks, filled with charcoal and topped with metal grids on which the chicken is slowly cooked.

Chicken isn't the only thing for sale, however. A chicken dinner includes a half charbroiled chicken, homemade cole slaw from old German hand saw cutters, radishes, chips, a roll and butter, and a drink.

To satisfy the need to feed roughly 12,000 people each year, the event organizers need 200 tables, 12,000 dinner rolls, 104 gallons of dressing, 2.5 tons of cabbage and 56 pounds of butter.

"We get people from all over." Racenis said. "Some have relatives that live here, and others who have lived here but have moved away come back for the broil."

This year's event will be run by approximately 600 volunteers from the Manchester area. It is an important event for local residents since the event helps sponsor many community improvement projects.

In fact, so far the event has donated over $450,000 to community groups throughout the years. Some of the money has gone towards improving park and school athletic grounds while other donations have gone toward purchasing new marching band uniforms or building new play structures.

For more information on the Manchester Chicken Broil, visit www.manchesterchickenbroil.org.

Chelsea Sights and Sounds extends schedule

Chelsea's ultra popular summer music series, Sounds and Sights on Thursday Nights is expanding for 2010 with more music, more food choices and a new partner. The weekly event runs every Thursday night from June 17 through August 26, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. with eight music stages, children's entertainers, and other attractions performing simultaneously in the downtown area.

The series is the combined effort of the Sounds and Sights Committee, the Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce, the Chelsea Center for the Arts, and downtown merchants.

The event is generously sponsored by the Chelsea Downtown Development

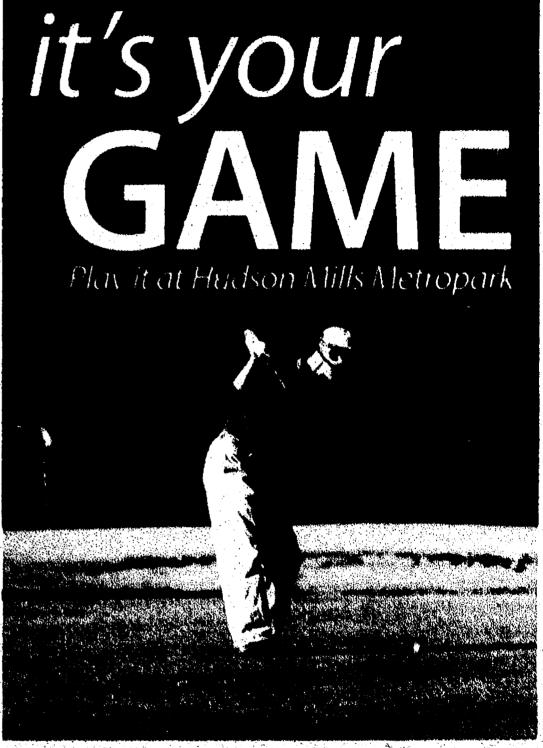

Authority

In addition to musical performances, there are a variety of children's attractions and activities including face painters, jugglers and magicians. Returning for 2010 is the "Chelsea Sculpture Walk," a self-guided walking tour of 10 art pieces from a year-long community arts project sponsored by the Chelsea DDA. The River Gallery in Chelsea is the project manager with support from the CCA and the City of Chelsea.

Also returning in 2010 is the SRSLY Cinema free outdoor movies at dusk. After Sounds & Sights, films are

Celtic Festival has knights, food and fun

Drawing people to the area for food, fun and fine fare, 2010 marks the 15th annual Celtic Festival taking place July 16 and 17 at Mill Pond Park.

The Saline festival began as a result of the sister-city relationship between Saline and Brecon, Wales. The festival is an entirely volunteer organization.

The group meets monthly 7:30 p.m. on the third Thursday at City Hall.

Although the festival began as a oneday event, it has grown to include many days and evenings.

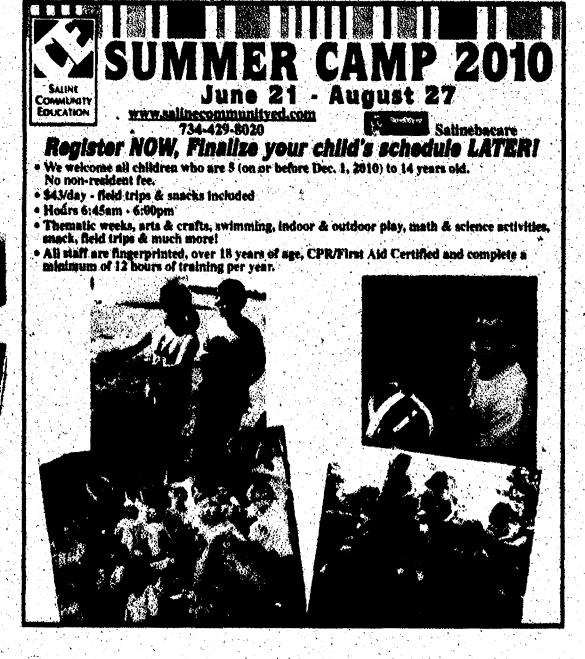

The 2010 Celtic Festival is focusing on the family. Special $5 pricing for children 13 to 17 years and $10 for seniors, as well as lower $10 advance ticket prices, will make attending the festival feasible for the entire family.

The festival officially opens Friday evening with Pub in the Park, an evening is full of music, food, drink and entertainment. This year, the group brings hard-driving Celtic music. Other events will be going on at the festival grounds, such as highland athletics demonstrations, historic entertainers and much more. Workshops in a variety of Celtic musical instruments taught by professionals who will be performing at the Saturday festival are popular. Workshop fees and details will be announced later.

Riverfolk Festival celebrates 9th year

From the pub jams of Ireland to the bluegrass of Virginia to the jumping dance halls of southwest Louisiana—that's where the 2010 Riverfolk Festival will take you this August

With reasonable ticket prices and the peaceful atmosphere of Carr Park, the nationally acclaimed acts at this ninth annual Riverfolk Festival should make this year's event one of the best.

The Riverfolk Festival begins on Friday, August 6 at Carr Park in Manchester with the Friday evening "Party in the Park." It will feature Joe Hall and the Louisiana Cane Cutters along with the youthful bluegrass band, Trent Wagler and the Steel Wheels.

On Saturday, August 7, the festival continues at 10 a.m. with fiddle and song writing contests. Main stage music begins at noon and continues until midnight with Woody Pines, the Galactic Cowboy Orchestra, Rant Maggie Rant, Joe Hall and the Louisiana Cane Cutters, Dick Siegel, George Bedard and the Kingpins, Trent Wagler and the Steel Wheels, Natalie Mae, the Raisin Pickers.

Single day tickets will be sold in advance for $12, and weekend passes will be sold for $20. Tickets are available online and at select outlets.

The official festival website is www.riverfolkfestival.org. It contains artist booth applications, fiddle contest entry forms, song writing contest entry forms, and details on this year's new jam camp.

This year, in an effort to promote healthy children's activities on Saturday, the festival will hand out free pedometers and award T-shirts to children and adults who walk 1,000 steps at the event. Wholesome prepared foods will be available in a new food tent area operated by Broussards Cajun Cooking, along with the addition of a beer tent on Saturday.

"This year we decided to buy local and hire a quality chef to prepare the festival food. Cabbage rells, barbecued shrimp, fresh steamed corn, and the addition of a beer tent on Saturday should be a popular draw," said director Mark Palms.

The Celtic Parade begins 10 a.m. Saturday at Saline Middle School and proceeds to Mill Pond Park, where opening ceremonies will be held at 11 a.m.

The festival will be held from 10 a.m. to midnight Saturday.

The athletic event has changed this year. The festival will have a rugby tournament hosted by the Detroit Rugby Club, a four-team tournament, plus a local amateur game and a women's match hosted by the Detroit Rugby women's team. Heavy Highland Athletics will be demonstrated and will have audience participation.

The festival will also see the return of the popular knights jousting event.

As always, the festival will feature all-day musical entertainment, cultural demonstrations, dancers, pipe bands, highland dance competitions sheep-herding dogs, as well as special entertainment for the children.

New this year will be a demonstration of spinning the wool and making of the tartan for the great kilt. There also will be a variety of Celtic goods for sale.

Area residents are invited to become part of the festival organization. Many opportunities are available from helping set up and take down the event to working on venues. Come to a meeting or contact Mary Nehls-Frumkin at 669-8845.

Belleville's National Strawberry Festival returns

For the 34th annual year, Belleville's National Strawberry Festival will return for berries, music and fun. This year's festival will take place June 18, 19 and 20 on Main Street.

Every year it features various venders, every type of strawberry concoction imaginable, plenty of music, a parade, and some special entertainment. For interested singers, there will also be a Strawberry Idol contest. Registration forms are on the festival website at www. nationalstrawberryfest.com.

What takes place over the three days is a special atmosphere that brings all generations together for the benefit of local businesses and sponsors. The Belleville National Strawberry Festival Board has been committed to area businesses and service organizations. In fact, the festival has raised money for dozens of local organizations throughout the years.

It all started with a local farmer in 1976 who approached the community's leaders about an event to promote the strawberry crops. With the assistance of the Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce, local strawberry growers, and Saint Anthony's Catholic Church, the first Belleville National Strawberry Festival took place. Thirty-four years later, it attracts over 200,000 people from all over Southeastern Michigan:

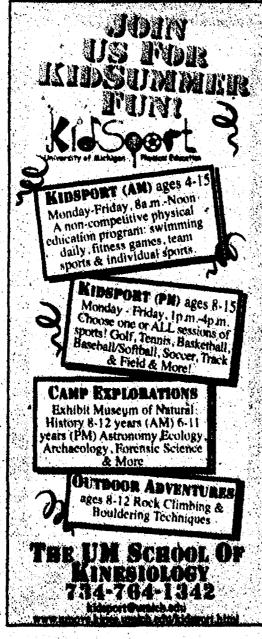

Catered to the strawberry theme, countless berry desserts and creations will be available at the festival. There will be other food as well and plenty of entertainment and attractions to keep thousands of people engaged.

The festival also has face painting, rock and roll groups, competitions, shopping and more.

For more information on the Belleville National Strawberry Festival visit www.nationalstrawberryfest.

Milan Fair keeps early dates

Carnival rides and games will come to Milan in early June once again for the annual Milan Community Fair. This year's event is set to take place June 2 through 5.

Last year's fair was held earlier in the month than usual. Planners had hoped it would attract more families and help restore the fair tradition in the area.

'We just thought it was the best time for everybody, not only the carnival itself but the community of Milan," said Susan Lynn of the Milan Fair Board.

This year's fair will take on the same schedule for the first weekend in June. It will once again feature carnival rides and games from the Skerbeck Brothers Shows. It will still be located at the midway in Wilson Memorial Park on Wabash Street next to Ford Lake.

The fair kicks off with the opening parade on Wednesday. It begins at Paddock Elementary School June 2.

The fireworks will take place Saturday night over Ford Lake next to Wilson Memorial Park and are scheduled to begin lighting the sky at just after 10 p.m. New to this year's fair will be a beer tent at the fireworks show, as well as music from local popular group Torn.

The Backstreet Cruizers Car Club will be back for another fair weekend, bringing classic cars to Wilson Park on Thursday evening. That day there will also be a sock hop, pig roast and music.

The final day of the fair is Saturday, June 5, which will be a special Kids Day. Children will be able to purchase armbands at a discounted rate between noon and 5 p.m. The armbands give children access to all rides.

For more information on the Milan Community Fair, call 439-2007.

KidSport provides summer activities

KidSport offers children the opportunity to participate in a variety of games, sports, fitness, and swimming activities. The activities are age and developmentally appropriate and are developed by experts in children's physical education.

KidSport is staffed by certified teachers as well as physical education and education majors focused on providing a first-rate experience for kids. It strives to maintain a staff-to-camper ratio of 1:6 for optimal instruction and supervision.

KidSport Morning is for children ages 4 through 15 and allows them an opportunity to learn sport skills in small group settings free from a competitive atmosphere. They are indoors, outdoors, and in the pool every day at the University of Michigan's Central Campus Recreation Building.

KidSport Afternoon is for children ges 8 through 15 and allows them to develop sport-specific skills in tennis, golf, baseball, basketball, soccer, and track and field. All KidSport participants receive a free T-shirt.

KidSport discounts are available for UM faculty, staff, and students; for registering a sibling in the same session; and for registering your child in both morning and afternoon sessions in the same week. Scholarships may also be KidSport partners with UM Outdoor Adventures for rock climbing and bouldering, and with Camp Explorations of the UM Exhibit Museum of Natural History for science-related fun like archaeology and zoology. shown on a 48-foot wide screen at the Clocktower Complex with lawn seating and refreshments available. A different film will be shown each week.

New for this year is an expanded variety of food choices including selections from Cleary's Pub, Jet's Pizza, Mike's Deli, Las Fuentes, and Zou Zou's Cafe. East Middle Street will be closed to accommodate a stage and food vendors.

"We once again have an amazing line up of talent this year," said co-organizer Craig Common. "It's always difficult to select acts from our auditions. We try to bring back some favorites from the year before and still add some new talent."

One of the new things Common spoke of is the adoption of the Chelsea Summer Fest by Sounds and Sights. With a third night added, it now runs from July 29 to 31 as the Sounds and Sights Festival.

"it made sense from so many perspectives to do this," said Common. "Sponsors are asked once; we can market under one umbrella and tap into each other's volunteer base. This will eventually grow the weekend event."

The 2010 music line up for Sounds & Sights features a broad spectrum of music

There are also a number of new Chelsea based groups and individuals giving the series a local flavor. Some popular performers include local Folk favorite Matt Watroba; the Blue Grass sounds of Bill Bynum, Annie and Rod Capp; and Kitty Donohoe. Popular local acts include Bull Haisey, Dorkestra, and Clean Beats, among others.

The "open mic" stage will return to a new stage at the Clocktower lot.

"We added this last year to give local musicians that were not booked a chance to be able to be a part of the event and perform in front of an audience," said Common. "A few of those that performed last year were actually booked this year as part of our lineup."

Stage locations will be placed throughout the downtown area from the Clocktower Complex to the library. Covered stage areas will be located at key spots on both Main Street and side streets. South and now East Middle Streets will be blocked off to accommodate covered stages and food stations. Children's activities will fill in between the entertainers.

There will also be a large classic car show, KidZone, pet parade and much more

"We're all proud to be a part of this collaboration for the community, the local businesses, and the Chelsea Center for the Arts (CCA)," said Common.

"This community continues to embrace and support the arts, even as we recover from the recent tough economic times. Our generous sponsors have made it possible for our group to continue to bring first class entertainment to Chelsea."

Most downtown retail businesses have committed to stay open late through the extent of the summer series. The final schedule for the Sounds and Sights Festival will be released soon.

Additional information is available by calling CCA at 734-433-2787, or visit www. chelseafestivals.com. Event sponsors for Sounds and Sights include Chelsea Milling, Cleary's Pub, McKinley Inc., and The Common Grill.
