Networking events planned in Chelsea

McMahon to address importance of new gateway initiative

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

A speed networking event will take place today from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Chelsea Comfort Inn. The event caters to entrepreneurs, professionals and specialists in the community.

Business owners from Jackson, Chelsea, Pinckney and other areas will converge on Chelsea to meet and learn about each other and the various businesses that operate in the region.

The event will involve face time with up to 17 businesses with four minutes devoted to each fast-paced interaction, during which participants will pitch their own businesses but also spread the word about businesses they have learned about.

"The speed networking project is very similar to an event that we held a couple of years ago," Chelsea Area Chamber of Commerce Director Bob Pierce said. "It's a great way to get to learn about the variety of businesses in the area, and in this case it's a very strong regional event."

Pierce said the intent is to focus on bolstering the region from a business and tourism standpoint in a bid to shift thinking from competing with other Michigan communities to competing with major metropolitan areas like Chicago.

"I've often thought that our competition is not our local communities - we're actually competing against places like Chicago, Cleveland, Indianapolis and Cincinnati," Pierce said. "Working with regional partnerships and collaborations is a way to promote our entire area."

"It is a great way

The speed networking event will be followed up on Sept. 15 by "The Dollars and Sense of Protecting Community Character," a gateway community event where participants will have an opportunity to share information and resources with each other before

Ed McMahon of the Urban Land Institute discusses the importance of gateway communities.

McMahon is an expert on creating and sustaining livable and prosperous communities, Pierce said.

Pierce said the event is another opportunity centered in Chelsea that is intended to draw interest from business owners and professionals from both inside and outside of Washtenaw County.

"This is a unique opportunity for people to tap into a great deal of experience and expertise," Pierce said. "McMahon is experienced in economic development, tourism promotion, and historic preservation."

The event will be held at 500 Washington St. and will begin

Students entering the sixth grade at Beach Middle School may have an easier transition with the help of the school's new mentoring program.

Beach Middle School, located at 445 Mayer Drive, held a sixth grade orientation for its students Aug. 31.

The orientation introduced the students to the middle school and gave the children the opportunity to meet their eighth grade mentor that they will work with during the school year.

Principal Patrick Little said the new mentoring program, which is called "Where Everybody Belongs," is new this year at the middle school. The idea behind the program is to help elementary school students make an easier transition to middle school with help from a mentor. Each sixth grade student will receive a WEB mentor that they will be able to go to for help and support throughout the school year.

"We're just trying to tackle the problem head on," Little said.

This is the first year that Beach Middle School will now teach sixth grade through eighth grade. The change has occurred due to the closing of Pierce Lake Elementary School last year. Little said in order for an eighth grade student to become a mentor they had to apply by filling out an application and writing an essay on themselves that provided details on the school activities they are involved in and what extracurricular activities they do outside of school.

From the group of students that applied, eighth grade math teacher Brian Boos, eighth grade English teacher Kathryn McCalla and Little determined which students would be mentors for the school year.

"We were looking for a diverse group," Little said. "We wanted them to all be able to relate to the students."

"They all have good people skills and that's what we wanted." There were 44 students picked as mentors who were trained for two days prior to orientation. Two mentors, a boy and a girl, will have eight students to work with for the school year.

Planning Commission revises master plan

By Daniel Lai
Heritage Newspapers

The Lyndon Township Planning Commission will host a public hearing to address any questions about its proposed township master plan at 7 p.m. Sept. 16 at the township hall.

The master plan provides recommendations for protection of rural character, farmland, and natural resources; residential, commercial, and industrial development; roads; and public facilities and services.

"We're excited about it. We've been working on the master plan for almost two years," chairman Leon Moore said.

Moore said unlike previous years, where the master plan was simply revised with new amendments, the commission rewrote several sections.

"This is our first major rewrite in probably 15 years," he said.

Moore said the goal of the commission was to preserve the "rural recreation" aspect of the township.

"We noticed how important recreation is to Lyndon Township, especially when 52 percent of the land is owned by the state," he said.

Some of the changes in the master plan include preserving the current lake residential zone and creating two more zones -- traditional and lake conservation.

"The traditional lake residential zone applies to existing communities or plotted subdivisions around the lakes," Moore said.

Under the old master plan, land plots under 1.2 acres were considered "non-conforming."

"The new plan basically takes care of that," he said.

The commission also revised its sewer use policy.

"Under the old plan, municipal sewers were only to be used for existing homes or homes with existing problems," Moore said.

The new language allows for sewers to protect lake quality in communities around the lakes as long as it does not create dense population around the lakes.

A third change in the master plan addresses private roads.

"The old plan did not allow for the creation of new private roads," Moore said. "The new plan allows for new private"

Area's Jewish community gets an early start on the New Year

By Art Aisner
Special Writer

In Judaism, the beginning of the New Year is a moving target, usually never on the same day because of a schedule dictated by the lunar calendar.

So it's not uncommon to celebrate Rosh Hashanah, which is Hebrew for Jewish New Year, anywhere from early September to late October, from year to year.

With the High Holiday falling Sept. 9 this year, members of Washtenaw County's Jewish community had to celebrate early.

And many broke away from last-minute back-to-school preparation and braved the summer heat to participate in the annual Apples and Honey event at the Jewish Community Center of Greater Ann Arbor last week.

The event is named for the longstanding Jewish tradition of combining apples and honey to mark the sweet beginnings of a new year, organizers said. In Ann Arbor, it also signifies the kick-off of the JCC's programming year and busy schedule of family-oriented events.

"No matter what time of year the holidays are, it's always a good time to open your heart and start fresh. And that's what Rosh Hashanah provides," said Elaine Margolis, a past president of the JCC's board of directors.

Organizers said roughly 500 residents from Ann Arbor and surrounding communities joined the celebration. Children played on large, inflatable play sets, participated in arts and crafts, and snacked on pizza and Sno-cones.

Each was greeted by a long table full of plates with freshly sliced apples and honey provided by Hiller's Market in Ann Arbor.

Representatives from Stoneyfield Farms handed out free yogurt, and staff from the Douglas J. Aveda Salon in Ann Arbor provided face painting for children and free chair massages for the adults.

Many appreciated the opportunity to sit down amid the fun and partake as a respite from the 90-degree heat.

"We come every year because it's a big party with a lot of fun activities for everyone," said Orna Angus of Dexter. "And just to be among other Jewish people in a festive environment is really special."

The Ann Arbor native said she once walked through the halls of the building as a student when it was an elementary school. Now, she's thrilled to be able to bring her 5-year-old daughter, Sara, to the same building and enjoy a unique community experience.

"I'm happy that she gets to see this," Angus said. "It's been a long time but it's easy to feel nostalgic."

While shaded spots were at a premium in the outdoor play areas, it was space that people clamored for in the crowded bazaar of gift-shop tables filled with kosher baked goods and Judaica for sale under a large tent.

Nearly two dozen Jewish community organizations, including local synagogues that serve Washtenaw County residents, had representatives available to inform participants about their groups and their roles in the community.

"It's exciting to see all the different organizations come together under one tent, literally, and to meet old friends while making new ones too," Margolis said.

at 6 p.m. McMahon's presentation will begin at 7 p.m. following the kick-off reception and share fair.

Attendees will learn about the economic, social and environmental benefits of protecting community character, and the value of open space and historic resources, as well as learn about major tools that can be used to protect community character.

In addition to exploring alternatives to conventional, residential, and commercial development, the presentation will address the challenges in preserving community character and ways to generate public support.

"The truth is that development is inevitable, but the destruction of community character and natural resources that too often accompany growth is not," McMahon said in a press release. "Progress does not demand degraded surroundings."

Pierce said that he hopes that both events will equip Chelsea businesses with more information and tools to leverage what the community has already built up in the Purple Rose Theatre, restaurants and diverse downtown business district.

"We're not only competing with these other regional hubs for tourism dollars, residents, and businesses, but we're also trying to further diversify our local economy," he said. "We don't only want expanded market reach, but if you look at what has happened to Michigan on a state level focusing on the auto industry, we want to follow the state's current effort to diversify as well."

He said it is worth the community's time to work with its municipal neighbors.

"Chelsea standing alone can make quite a statement, but what a statement we can make talking from a regional perspective. This region is fabulous, and we have something here particularly in Chelsea that all we have to do is market to better utilize," Pierce said.

The cost networking event will cost $15 for chamber members and $25 for non-chamber members, and will include food, prizes and cash bar. Only two attendees are allowed per company.

Those who pre-register will be included in a follow-up e-mail with the names and companies of all participants.

The McMahon lecture is free of charge but registration is required by calling Kris Hohnke at 1-734-433-2200, Ext. 6001, or e-mail khohnke@chelsea.k12.mi.us.

boys and girls relate to girls," Little said.

Eighth grade student Shivani Rana was one of the students chosen to be a mentor.

"I wanted to meet new people and I thought it would be fun," she said. "I wanted to become a better leader."

Rana said when she first entered sixth grade she wished someone would have told her about the importance of being organized. More homework and projects are some of the key differences Rana said she realized automatically when she moved from elementary school to middle school.

"I want to show them how important staying organized can be, because if you are not organized you get off track," she said. "I wasn't as organized at first so I had to work on it." Rana said she is also interested in helping students find where they will sit at lunch and what to wear at the school dances.

Another WEB mentor, Nolan Peterson, said he looks forward to leading the students in his group. He plans on preparing them on how to switch classes and showing them where their classrooms will be.

"I thought it would be a good experience being a mentor, and I like to help out," he said. "Plus, I get to know new people. I don't know anyone in my group."

Peterson said he will also remind students to always be themselves and not to be scared. "If you're not being yourself and pretending to be someone else that is never a good thing," he said.

For the orientation, eighth grade mentors created a list of strategies and ideas for the sixth grade students they are mentoring to help them prepare for the start of middle school and activities were set up to introduce the students to each other. Following the activities the students went on a building tour.

Elsa Ford, who is entering sixth grade this year, enjoyed her time at the orientation and admitted she is a little nervous to start middle school.

"I think it's going to be a little scary, but exciting to be at a new school," she said. Ford's classmate, Cody Friday said he agreed with her. "There are a lot of big kids here," Friday said.

Students Brady Friss, Joshua Wilkerson and Samantha Gillman said they were excited about getting to change classes, having more than one teacher, being able to work on laptops in the classroom and seeing their friends again.

The WEB program and its orientation are funded by the Chelsea Area Wellness Foundation through Chelsea Community Hospital and the Chelsea school district.

roads as well as providing the mechanism to see that existing private roads are maintained so emergency vehicles can continue to have access."

Copies of the proposed master plan are available for public review during regular office hours on Tuesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to noon. Copies are available for purchase, based on the cost of duplication, by contacting the township at 1-734-475-2401. The plan can also be sent via e-mail in PDF format by contacting the township.

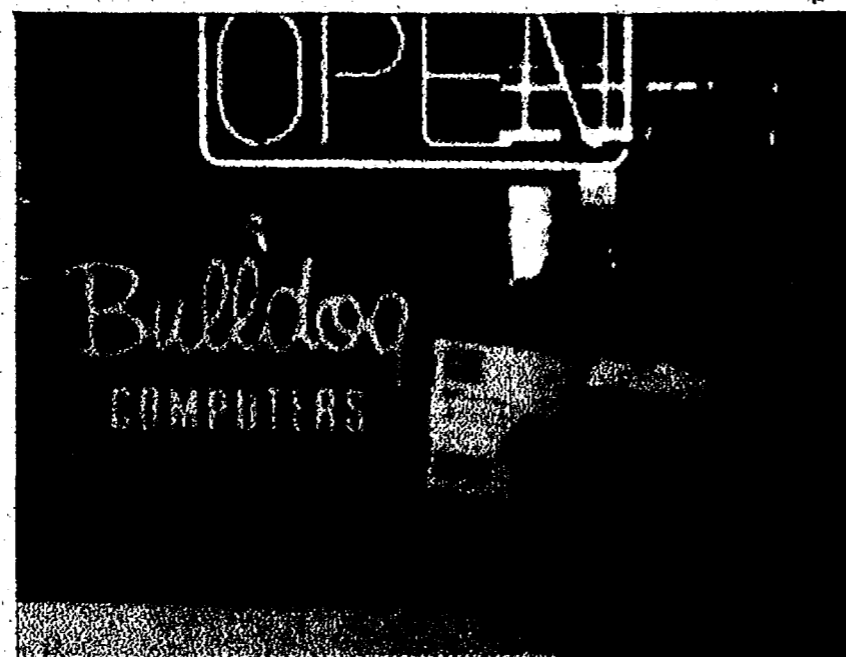

During the public hearing, participants will be granted five minutes to state their comments. Additional time may be allowed based on the number of residents in attendance. All comments will be directed to the chairman and will be limited to the master plan only.

The Lyndon Township Board will provide, if time allows, necessary and reasonable auxiliary aids or services to individuals with disabilities at the public hearing.

Individuals with disabilities requiring auxiliary aids or services can contact the Lyndon Township Board by writing to 17751 N. Territorial Road, Chelsea, MI, 48118, or calling Linda Reilly at 1-734-475-2401.

Moore said the planning commission would review comments from the public and make any necessary revisions before presenting the master plan to the township board for final approval.

Yard sale to help pay medical bills

By Sheila Pursglove

Special Writer

Carol Marie Keeler has spent most of her children's formative years in bed, confined to the sidelines with complications from spina bifida, a birth defect that resulted in many surgeries as a child and confined her to a wheelchair by her late teens.

Ten years ago, Keeler, who grew up in Saline and now calls Ann Arbor home, started treatment for a chronic pressure sore that developed from an ill-fitting wheelchair. The wound was so bad that she got a cross-infection, and developed gangrene in parts of her body.

It was supposed to be a six-month treatment. A decade later, she still suffers.

And her medical bills are mounting, especially after surgery in December for repairing the wound with a "flap" procedure. The family relies on state medical insurance for low-income families, with limitations that left her unable to get medical care that might have helped the wound heal completely, or to recuperate in a rehabilitation unit.

A group of from St. Andrew Church in Saline teamed up with Keeler's husband, Larry, and children, Steven and Virginia, in February to start raising money so Keeler could receive a key piece of equipment, a "wound vac," that her insurance would not cover.

The hope was that Keeler could finally get out of bed and into a wheelchair.

"Although that has not yet come to pass, we're hopeful it's not too far off in the future," said Keeler's long-time friend, Mary Jo Davis of Saline.

No one thought that when Keeler developed a sore 10 years ago, she still would be confined to bed a decade later, Davis said. "Sadly, the medical care Carol has received, although it has been excellent in some cases, also has been very shortsighted. And a reluctance by the insurance to spend money up front has caused much more money to be spent for the years to come and resulted in her still being immobile," she said.

Davis is helping to organize a second fundraising yard sale, following a successful effort in the spring.

The sale is set from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sept. 16 through 18, at the home of Vicki Moser, 7198 Noble Road, in Saline. Item donations will be accepted starting Sept. 13.

"Drive up to the barn anytime and sort your items onto the appropriate tables or areas," David said. "Volunteers are needed to help price and organize starting Sept. 13."

The sale will raise funds to pay off the last part of a bill for treatment of her wound. Any additional funds raised will go toward care that is not covered by Keeler's insurance.

Throughout this whole ordeal, Keeler has remained a joyful person, Davis said.

"Carol has her moments, as we all do, but it's amazing how she is able to continue living without constant regret for the things she cannot do," she said.

Both her husband and son were recently confirmed at St. Andrew and she desperately wanted to attend. And yet she accepted her doctor's orders that going would be detrimental for the wound that had just made so much progress with the wound vac treatment.

"Her strong faith in God and the hope she will be able to be out of that bed someday soon keep her going. And it inspires all of us that help her."

Keeler came home from hospital Aug. 21.

"Her wound seems unchanged, which is good news in that we expected it might deteriorate with all the movement back and forth," Davis wrote in the journal on Keeler's Caringbridge.com website.

"Please continue to pray for total wound healing so she can be back in her wheelchair soon. We also need to pray that there will be no infection associated with the new shunt."

To volunteer or for more information, call Vicki Moser at 429-7186 or e-mail vironicamoser@gmail.com.

To follow Keeler's progress, visit her carolmariekeeler website at caringbridge.com.

WASHTENAW COUNTY COURT BRIEFS

Convicted murderer sentenced to life in prison for crime

An Ypsilanti Township man was ordered to serve life in prison last week for killing another man during a fight outside a Superior Township apartment complex.

Court records show Larry Hunter Jr., 27, was denied a last-minute motion for a new trial and was given the mandatory prison sentence for first-degree murder.

He was convicted in June of shooting Jamar Gardner outside the Sycamore Meadows apartments off of MacArthur Boulevard during a fight involving several people in January. Gardner, 30, died at the scene. Trial testimony showed that he tried to intervene in the fight, which involved his younger brother, but was stopped by Hunter. Hunter then pulled a gun during their confrontation and shot him multiple times.

However, defense attorney Robert Killewald argued that multiple people could provide an alibi for Hunter at the time of the shooting and that eyewitnesses misidentified him.

One of the witnesses, Derrick Campbell, testified last week in a rare post-trial evidentiary hearing that he was with Hunter at the time of the Jan. 23 melee. Campbell was not called as a witness during Hunter's trial, but sent Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Archie Brown a letter insisting Hunter was innocent on the trial's last day.

Brown heard his testimony, and swiftly denied Killewald's motion for a new trial. Killewald did not return messages seeking comment but has previously vowed to appeal the conviction.

Hearing postponed in Ypsilanti arson case

The preliminary hearing for a man who allegedly set fire to the abandoned Thompson Block building in Ypsilanti's Depot Town was postponed last week so attorneys could have more time to review evidence.

Jacob Robert Andrew Popiolek, 21, is charged with arson of real property in the Sept. 23 blaze that gutted the interior of the historic building and left the exterior crumbling onto portions of River and Cross streets.

He is expected back in Washtenaw County District Court for a preliminary hearing Sept. 21.

No one was injured in the early-morning blaze. Fire investigators quickly determined the cause was suspicious and the Ypsilanti Police launched an investigation.

Officials said that investigators believe several people were in and out of the building trespassing before the fire and were likely smoking.

Popiolek is the only person charged in the case and police have declined to discuss specific details while the case is pending.

He was identified as a suspect shortly after detectives interviewed several potential witnesses, but was not charged until April, according to court records. He turned himself in to court officials in August and was released on a $5,000 personal bond.

He was also ordered to refrain from using drugs or alcohol.

Meanwhile, the city and property owner, Stewart Beal, have been embroiled in a legal battle on how to redevelop the site and keep it from becoming a public safety hazard. Beal was recently granted a building permit for the site, which was already under renovation at the time of the fire, and both sides remain in court-ordered facilitation, records show.

Man jailed after a hit-and-run crash that injures a child

A man who struck a toddler with his vehicle and then left the scene of the crash despite incurring serious injuries is heading to jail.

Freddell Anderson, 19, was sentenced to seven months in the Washtenaw County Jail for backing over a 3-year-old girl on a scooter and fleeing the 9000 block of MacArthur Boulevard in a hurry June 13.

Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputies responding to the scene arrested Anderson without incident nearby after he led them on a brief vehicle chase, authorities said.

The girl was treated at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital for non-life-threatening injuries.

Anderson, who was driving without a license, pleaded guilty to one count of fleeing and eluding police, and one count of failing to stop at an injury accident at a pre-trial hearing last month.

Prosecutors agreed not to charge him as a habitual offender. Washtenaw County Circuit Judge Archie Brown also imposed $1,746 in fines and credited Anderson with two months of time already served prior to sentencing, records show.

Parolee ordered back to prison for sex acts with a minor

A man who had multiple sexual encounters with a Pittsfield Township minor and videotaped them is heading back to prison.

David Sears, 29, was ordered to serve between 10 and 15 years in prison for three counts of first-degree criminal sexual conduct, court records show.

He pleaded guilty to the charges at his scheduled preliminary hearing in July and prosecutors dropped charges of possessing child sexual abusive material and child sexually abusive activity.

Police began investigating Sears earlier that month when the 14-year-old victim's parents discovered the improper sexual relationship, according to reports.

During a property search, investigators found video evidence of the sexual relationship that apparently had been going on for several months.

The legal age of sexual consent in Michigan is 16 and court records indicate the offenses date back to January of 2008.

Prison records show Sears was paroled in 2007 after serving the minimum six years of a 20-year sentence for home invasion, unlawful use of a motor vehicle and fraud.

He was scheduled to be released from probation Jan. 23, 2011.

County commissioner candidate learns fate on reduced charges

A candidate for a seat on the Washtenaw County Board of Commissioners representing a portion of Ann Arbor was recently sentenced to probation for his actions after a crash that injured a pedestrian.

Joseph Andrew Baublis, who is running for the 11th District, was ordered to serve six months probation, court records show.

Last month, he pleaded guilty to misdemeanor count of leaving the scene of a personal-injury accident in April, and prosecutors agreed to drop felony charges stemming from the incident.

Joe Simon, Baublis' attorney, said his client didn't really leave the scene, but took responsibility for not doing everything he should have after the crash.

Simon said Baublis was attempting to turn onto East

Stadium Boulevard from Packard Road when the victim ran out and struck his car with what he believes was an elbow.

The window on the passenger side of Baublis' vehicle shattered and he turned in to the nearby gas station.

Simon said that from there, his client "froze up" and just watched as police and paramedics tended to the 17-year-old boy. He was taken by Huron Valley Ambulance to the University of Michigan Medical Center, but has recovered, police said.

Police reports indicate that officers spoke with Baublis near the scene after witnesses pointed him out.

"He did not represent himself to officers who were there, and that's what he's taking responsibility for," Simon said. "Did he fulfill all of his duties as a driver to report himself to police? No. But he didn't just run off."

Washtenaw County District Judge Elizabeth Pollard Hines also ordered Baublis, 50, to perform six days of community service. A hearing whether she should order any restitution to the victim is scheduled for Sept. 14, court records show.

Baublis, who did not return messages seeking comment, describes himself as a Tea Party Republican. He faces Democrat and fellow first-time candidate Yusef Rabhi in the November general election. A recent recount confirmed Rabhi defeated Mike Fried by just two votes in the Aug. 3 party primary.

Both Rabhi and Baublis are competing to replace Commissioner Jeff Irwin, D-Ann Arbor, who outlasted Ned Staebler in the race for the Democratic Party's nomination in the 53rd District seat in the Michigan State House of Representatives.

OUR TAKE: Editorial

Cannabis convention should be canceled

Much to the chagrin of Pontiac officials, plans have been set for a cannabis convention in the Silverdome on Oct. 29 through 31.

Bruce Perlowin, the CEO of Medical Marijuana Inc., is behind the event and bristles at referring to it as a "pot party." He calls it the International Holistic Health Cannabis Convention Halloween Harmony & Harvest Festival and says it's a trade show.

No matter how it's termed, city officials are justified in being concerned.

Medical marijuana may be legal in Michigan, but the controversial drug shouldn't and isn't something that can be purchased over the counter at your local pharmacy.

Municipalities throughout the state have been struggling with just how to regulate the distribution of the drug to those who can legally use it.

Many communities have placed moratoriums on ordinances addressing the distribution to make sure the process is appropriately covered and that the drug doesn't fall into the wrong hands.

In fact, local officials would be shirking their duties if they did not scrutinize the law and establish sound regulatory laws.

Voters approved the proposition with their hearts, but local community leaders need to control it with their heads.

Medical marijuana is not the panacea that its supporters say it is and there are numerous peripheral or collateral problems associated with its legal distribution and use. Most doctors are reluctant to say it won't help a suffering patient, but likewise, only a few are strong proponents.

Also, making sure the drug doesn't find its way into the hands of those not authorized to use it will cost communities money because of the law enforcement requirements.

Medical Marijuana Inc. advertises itself as providing tools to manage a medical marijuana business in full compliance of laws and regulations regarding cannabis.

This is one very good reason why the Silverdome festival should not be conducted.

Too many communities are still not certain about how to regulate marijuana, which is the reason for the moratoriums. Consequently, if all of the laws are not in place, how can festival organizers provide accurate guidance on complying with the regulations?

In addition, Pontiac Police Chief Val Gross has expressed concern about public safety and illegal drug use in connection with the festival.

We're not going to second-guess Perlowin as to why he wants to conduct the dome festival.

It certainly seems premature at the very least, considering how new the law is.

Some people will undoubtedly make thousands, if not hundreds of thousands of dollars, thanks to the new law. It's not unreasonable to give local communities time to institute regulations that will make sure all of the transactions are legal.

Complicating the situation is the fact that marijuana use may be allowable for some people under state law, but it's still illegal on the federal level.

Medical Marijuana Inc. is a California-based company. That state was one of the first in the nation to legalize medical marijuana and since then, it still is struggling with regulations over how the drug should be distributed.

While Michigan would like to become the new "Hollywood" through increased filmmaking here, we don't need to bring in the California drug culture.

So caution is obviously called for and common sense says that the festival should be canceled.

Celebrate locally made food and drink at the HomeGrown Festival

Michiganders know that this state offers a variety of amazing people, places, things to do and food.

Lots of locally grown food. To celebrate this area's amazing array of bounty, check out the HomeGrown Festival on Sept. 11. It's one of the newest, but coolest and yummiest, events in the area.

The festival is a time when the area celebrates local food, farms and businesses.

Did I mention the fast-growing local food movement?

This festival combines it all under one roof from 6 to 11 p.m. Sept. 11 at the Ann Arbor Farmers' Market, 315 Detroit St. in Ann Arbor.

Last year, 5,000 people attended. I'm hoping this year's event will smash that record.

If you haven't met the area's local farmers, chefs and libation-makers, you're missing out on a group of amazing people.

HOME FRONT

LISA ALLMENDINGER

And admission to the event is free, but the food and drink will cost you between $1 and $6 for small portions.

The beer and wine are Michigan made, too.

In fact, a dozen local chefs will be preparing "small plate" portions, and there will be more than two dozen beer, wine, mead and hard cider drinks for sale.

If you like tomatoes, there will be more than 50 varieties from Project Grow Community Gardens.

And the music will be all local, too.

Add in chef demonstrations, a silent auction, artisans, dancing, educational and kids' activities and what more could you want?

Eco-friendliness?

Yup, got that, too, with an effort to make the festival as "zero waste" as possible.

Feel free to ride your bike. The Washtenaw Biking and Walking Coalition will be offering its bike valet parking and security service to make it easy to arrive by non-motorized transport.

Plus, the city has gone all out and, by mayoral proclamation, September is Local Food Month in Ann Arbor.

So, considering how many of your neighbors are farmers, it's time to join the movement to stimulate the local economy, which, in turn, supports community food security.

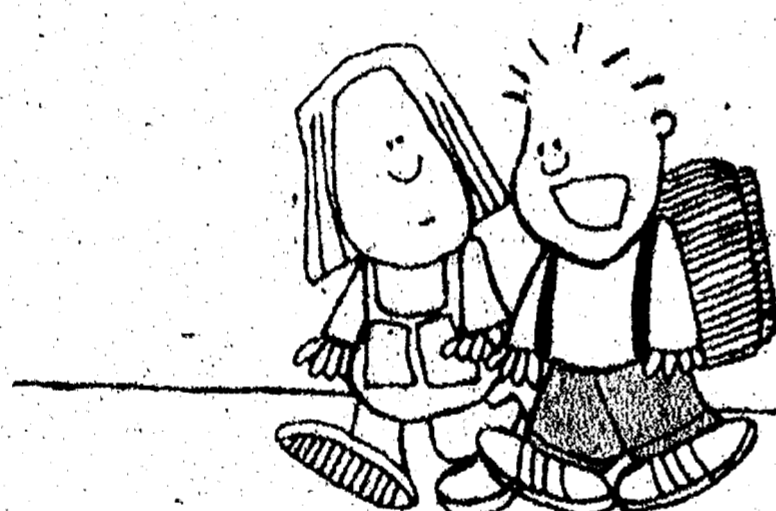

Although I always have been an advocate of celebrating all things local, here's a chance to celebrate good food, diverse cuisine, local heritage and community.

If you ever wondered where your food comes from, there's no doubt at this event.

So please, eat, drink, dance and be merry at the HomeGrown Festival.

Other Voices: Paul Ramsey

An alternative to the challenges surrounding public education

Last December, I wrote an opinion piece that critiqued the current state of public education in America ("Holding Policy-Makers, Not Teachers, Accountable").

I was particularly critical of the standards and accountability movement, a movement that had been building since the 1980s and that was codified by the No Child Left Behind Act in 2002.

No Child Left Behind facilitates a narrowing of the curriculum to those subjects that are tested (reading and mathematics) and straight-jackets teachers by forcing them to teach to the state standardized test, thus leaving them with little autonomy to work for the best interests of their students.

The tenants of the current educational reform movement have become so antithetical to learning that even Diane Ravitch, former U.S. Department of Education official and one of the chief champions of standards and accountability, denounced the movement's extreme focus on testing in her recent book, "The Death and Life of the Great American School System."

Of course, many teachers resist the "drill and kill," pedagogy that the standardized testing of NCLB encourages and, thus, try to find innovative ways to incorporate real learning, as opposed to test preparation, into their classrooms.

Yet, teachers rightfully fear the consequences of not fully being on board with the current mandates — consider the firing of all the teachers at a Rhode Island school in February, a decision President Obama praised.

Within the atmosphere of No Child Left Behind, teachers, parents, students, and concerned citizens are looking for alternatives to the deadening practices that pass for "education" in many schools.

Some are even looking outside the public sector. The Little Lake Free School (littlelakefreeschool.org) is one such alternative that stands in stark contrast to current educational practices.

The Little Lake Free School, which will officially open its doors this fall in Ann Arbor, is a private institution founded by a group of progressive educators and parents.

Partially based on the "Summerhill" model that introduced free schooling to England in the 1920s, Little Lake is a democratic school that fosters student freedom, thought and creativity. Decisions regarding learning and school governance are made by the entire school community — teachers, parents and, most importantly, students.

Although the cultivation of autonomous, democratic citizens has long been a central justification for state-supported education, this essential function is often put on the back burner in traditional schooling, frequently confined to a single "civics" or "government" course in high school.

This marginalization of the democratic aim of education is particularly pronounced with No Child Left Behind's narrow focus on testing mathematics and literacy skills.

By contrast, students at Little Lake don't merely learn about democracy and the principles on which a democratic society must rest, such as caring for others and a devotion to the common good, they live it. Little Lake students make decisions as a community and, from that tight-knit group, learn to respect others and their traditions.

There are numerous other alternatives to the NCLB-driven reforms in education, both in the public and private sectors.

Many public schools and publicly supported charters refuse to accept the narrow focus on only reading and mathematics, and emphasize a broader, more holistic curriculum.

In the private realm, Waldorf and Montessori schools also have a more extensive and creative curriculum than that dictated by No Child Left Behind.

As innovative as many of these schools are, most have a teacher-centered view of knowledge and curriculum.

That is, what youngsters will learn emanates from adults, not from the children themselves. This, of course, is what sets democratic schooling apart from other approaches to education. At the Little Lake Free School, students are largely "free" to pursue their own interests and have teachers there to facilitate those educational endeavors.

The underlying reason why the Little Lake Free School fosters students' decision-making abilities is because its founders, along with other educators within the democratic school movement, have an entirely positive view of human nature.

Like the 18th century philosopher Jean-Jacques Rousseau, democratic educators believe that children are good and curious by nature and that, when given a choice, want to learn and expand their horizons.

Because of their coercive structure, many traditional schools stamp out the natural curiosity of children at a young age, but at the Little Lake Free School, that inquisitiveness, the foundation for learning, is fostered and allowed to bloom and nourish.

Personally, I am an advocate for public schooling, but I share educators, parents and students' malaise regarding the current trends in education.

I also am a champion of democratic schooling, but given today's rigid policy mandates it would seem that the public sector is not conducive to democratic approaches to education.

In his book on alternative forms of schooling, "Sixties Legacy," Richard Neumann insightfully notes: "In a society supposedly committed to freedom and democracy it is ironic and telling that the most 'radical' idea to come out of an educational reform movement (in the 1960s) would be the organization and operation of school as a democratic community."

Given the current state of public education, I certainly understand why progressive and civic-minded individuals came together to form the Little Lake Free School, a school based on the "radical" concept of democracy.

Paul Ramsey is an assistant professor of education at Eastern Michigan University and serves on the board of directors for the Little Lake Free School.

Chelsea to post employee salaries online

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

Chelsea city staff has begun posting their financial information for all employees and officials on the city website.

Council Trustee Rod Anderson pushed for the measure in response to the Bell, Calif. city employee controversy, in which city officials were receiving hundreds of thousands of dollars in active wages and promised pensions for being the stewards of a relatively small community.

Anderson said that he knows that Chelsea has no such problem, but wanted to be proactive during a time when people are skeptical of government officials.

"I was reading in the Wall Street Journal about not just Bell or California but other places that have these problems with salaries for city officials and staff," Anderson said. "It seemed like I was reading about it everyday."

The numbers were posted at the end of August, according to City Manager John Hanifan. Anderson said Chelsea residents don't have anything to worry about.

"I think our salaries are very reasonable... I have a lot of respect for city staff," Anderson said, adding that each council member gets $100 per month ($50 per meeting) and the mayor gets $400 ($200 per meeting) whereas officials in the Bell case were receiving livable wages for similarly part-time commitments.

"Some people around town can tend to be conspiratorial and sometimes it's justified and sometimes it's not, and this is one of those cases where it's not," Anderson said.

He said that many counties across the country are beginning to talk about publishing employee compensation on their websites, which is where he got the idea for his proposal.

He thinks that the numbers will show that Chelsea employees are paid a good, livable wage but not excessively and not above their level of responsibility or beyond the scale of their duties in relation to Chelsea's small population.

Council trustee Ann Feeney said that the transparency is already available as any resident can contact the city for the remuneration information.

Anderson replied that he wanted it instantly visible and accessible because "people have the right to get that information right away."

Another concern Feeney had was putting the numbers in context by also including where employees were at in terms of seniority.

"There's a schedule that everybody follows depending on what step you're on in your salary schedule," she said. "I suggested that they publish that (too)."

"A lot of our long-term employees have reached the top of their pay scale."

That scale only changes as a result of negotiations with the city's Teamster's union employees, police union employees and non-union employees, the latter of which typically receive increases and wage and benefits commensurate with those won by union negotiators.

Contract negotiations are expected to begin next January as the city is in the third year of the three-year contract cycle. That contract expires at the end of the current fiscal year on July 1, 2011, with budget talks beginning next February.

Anderson said that the information will be available to residents on an ongoing basis until a future city council makes a motion to stop posting the information online, at which time he said residents would have cause to be alarmed.

"There are people watching the council and if they vote down the road to take this stuff off of the web, that's a big red flag. How could you do that without looking like you're trying to hide something?" he said.

The city's general fund budget is $4 million and the total budget with enterprise funds is $10 million.

Garden club offers perennial lecture

Need some ideas and suggestions for difficult places to plant? The Chelsea Area Garden Club will host a lecture titled "Tough perennials for tough places" at 7 p.m. Oct. 14 at First United Methodist Church. Art Cameron, professor of horticulture at Michigan State University and recently appointed director of the MSU horticulture gardens will speak at the event.

"Tough sites call for tough plants - be it dry, wet, windy, sunny or shady. The good news is that perennials are remarkably diverse and there really is a perennial plant for every tough spot you can imagine," the club said in a press release.

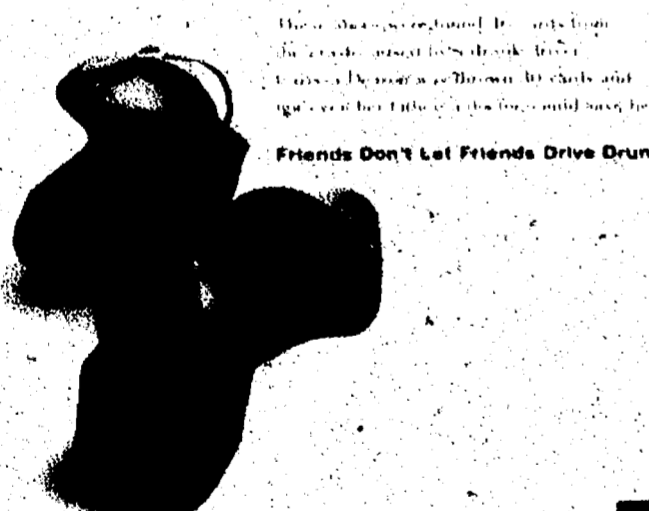

Cameron will cover some of his favorite tough plants - including a wide assortment of herbaceous perennials and ornamental grasses suitable for sun, shade, wet and dry. He will also give ideas on how to use this unique group of plants in residential and commercial designs. Participants will learn how to create a new look in their garden using some of these great plants.

"Art is an avid botanist and perennial gardener, and is renowned for his exuberant personality, beautiful slide shows, and passion for plants," Charlene Harris, CAGC program committee chairwoman said.

A world traveler, Cameron and his wife, Marlene have explored and lectured in Australia, Indonesia, South Africa, Europe, Thailand, China, New Zealand and the United States. Cameron has designed several demonstration gardens specifically dedicated to vegetables and ornamental grasses, and herbaceous perennials.

The program is free and open to the public as part of the CAGC's mission to encourage and stimulate love of gardening through education and demonstrations. The program will be held at 128 Park St. in Chelsea. Parking is available at the Park Street Lot and behind the Purple Rose Theatre. Refreshments will be served and donations will be accepted at the door. Also, master gardener educational credits will be available for attending this program.

The CAGC, founded in 1997, now claims over 50 members. Proceeds from the plant sale, the garden walk, and member dues, support civic beautification and educational programs in the community. The club also provides scholarships for master gardener and junior master gardener applicants, as well as small grants to fund small, local gardening projects. For information about the CAGC, visit www.chelseagardenclub.com.

Dexter-Pinckney Road Bridge re-opens

95 percent of funding came from the state

By Lisa Ailmendinger
Heritage Newspapers

Michelle Downer and her son, Joey, visited the Dexter-Pinckney Road Bridge in Dexter Township almost every week to check on the progress of the bridge replacement project.

Willie Patterson, who has lived next to the bridge for 31 years, said, "It's beautiful."

On Sept. 3, they were excited to see the structure had opened not just for motorists, but also for boaters.

"Everyone is delighted that it's done — the motorists, the boaters and most of all, the people who live on the unofficial detours," said Dexter Township Supervisor Pat Kelly.

Motorists, neighbors and boaters were able to enjoy the new Dexter-Pinckney Road Bridge over the Portage Lake Canal for the first time during Labor Day weekend.

The 73-foot span officially opened to traffic 11 a.m. Sept. 3, said Jason Knight, a bridge inspector for the Washtenaw County Road Commission.

Located north of McGregor Road, the bridge opened to motorists following five months of construction.

In addition, boaters traveling under the bridge to and from Little Portage Lake to Big Portage Lake were given two additional feet of clearance.

Mike Head, who was boating with his co-pilot, a collie named Kipper, called the bridge "beautiful." "I don't even have to duck," he said after traveling under the bridge on his pontoon boat.

Included in the construction project was the relocation of an existing sanitary sewer force main, new concrete approaches and removal of the weight-restricted bridge that was built in 1920.

"We've been coming all summer," Michelle Downer said, adding that her son loves all the construction equipment.

The new bridge includes an increased roadway width, including two 11-foot-wide lanes and two 6-foot shoulders.

"The Washtenaw County Road Commission offers our sincere thanks to area residents, businesses, motorists and boating enthusiasts who displayed a great deal of patience during the closure of Dexter-Pinckney Road and the Portage Lake Canal," road commission officials said in a press release.

According to a fact sheet about the work, Dan's Excavating Inc. of Shelby Township was awarded the contract for $1.38 million and 95 percent of the cost was paid by the Michigan Department of Transportation Local Bridge Program and 5 percent came from a local match from the Road Commission.

"Wow," said Washtenaw County Commissioner Mark Ouimet, "I'm impressed. I think it turned out extremely nice and it fits well with the lake community."

Event to benefit Ozone House

Area residents are invited to join Ozone House for "An Evening at the Farmers' Market," a late summer dinner at the Ann Arbor Farmers' Market celebrating local chefs, local businesses and Ozone House's shelter and support for youth in the greater Ann Arbor community.

The third annual event takes place at 6 p.m. Friday. The event features a four-course meal, wine, beer, live musical entertainment, a bike raffle and an online and silent auction. The theme for this year's menu is "Updated Southern Classics."

The tough economy adds additional challenges to Ozone House's work with young people in Ann Arbor. Ozone House youth are seeking ways to support themselves and their families at a young age.

"This summer we ran an internship pilot program that paid seven youth a stipend in a field of potential future employment — all were major breadwinners for their families," said Executive Director Katie Doyle in a news release.

Additionally, traditional grant funding has declined with some support retroactively reduced this year.

"Even our most trusted sources of funds are in doubt during these difficult times," Doyle said.

For this reason, Ozone House's annual fundraising event provides essential funds, he said.

Last year, the 250 guests and 50 volunteers raised nearly $40,000 that helped fill a temporary void in Ozone House funding for basic services and shelter.

Featured local chefs at this year's event will include Eve Aronoff from eve the restaurant, Bob Sparrow from Sparrow Meats, Mike Monahan of Monahan's Seafood, T.R. Durham of Durham's Tricklements & Smokery, Zingerman's Roadhouse, and Miyoko Honma of Café Japon.

Drink selections will be available from Mary Campbell of Everyday Wines, Rene and Matt Greff of Arbor Brewing Co., Chris Hutton of Sweetwaters Café and Fustini's Oils & Vinegars. Reserved seating is $100 per guest (tables of 10). Register for the event at www.ozonehouse.org.

Contact Susan Kirtz at skirtz@ozonehouse.org or 662-2265, ext. 25, for questions about tickets and volunteer opportunities.

Internet task force changes name

Speaker named for Oct. 6 kick-off event at WCC campus

By Art Aisner
Special Writer

A collaborative task force designed to help make Washtenaw County residents more informed and pro-active about Internet safety has changed its name.

The Washtenaw County Cyber Citizenship Coalition will now be the name associated with ongoing efforts to make the county more Internet savvy when it comes to staying safe.

The coalition, formerly known as the Washtenaw Internet Safety Task Force, is comprised of more than two dozen leaders in law enforcement, education, media, commerce and youth outreach. Members approved the change by a close Internet-based vote last month, chairwoman Kristin Judge said.

The margin of approval was so narrow and involved only slight variations of the name. Ultimately, the group agreed to use a more inclusive name that better explains their scope and mission, said Judge, a Washtenaw County Commissioner from Pittsfield Township.

The group began meeting in February to share information and develop strategies to improve Internet safety awareness locally. The planning stages are nearly complete for the group's first event, starting 8 a.m. and going to 10 a.m. Oct. 6 at the Morris Lawrence Building at Washtenaw Community College.

Judge recently announced that Jon Steiger, director of the Federal Trade Commission's East Central Region, based in Cleveland, will be the keynote speaker.

Steiger oversees consumer protection and education issues for Washington, D.C., and seven states, including Michigan.

He is an Ohio native that graduated from the University of Michigan before attending Columbia University Law School. He clerked for U.S. District Judge Avern Cohn in Detroit before joining the trade commission as a litigator.

Scheduling the event itself is a sign that Washtenaw County is at the forefront of what experts hope becomes a national trend for communities.

believed to be the only other places where similar initiatives are under way.

"The Washtenaw County Cyber

Citizenship Coalition is one of only two local grassroots cyber security programs in the country," said Michael Kaiser, executive director of the National Cybersecurity Alliance.

"At the national Cybersecurity Alliance, we view Washtenaw County's efforts as groundbreaking and a model that should be adopted by communities nationwide. Cybersecurity is a shared responsibility and having local public private partnerships emerge to engage in education and awareness efforts is critical."

Judge also recently attended conferences in Washington, D.C., that included seminars by the National Initiative for Cybersecurity Education. She said she learned a lot about an entire industry just now taking shape to keep the Internet safe for people to use in their homes and at work.

"We're really creating a whole new concept with how to manage this incredible innovation in technology and it's happening right now," Judge said. "The world will look a lot different in five to 10 years, and it's exciting that we in Washtenaw County are in the conversation at the ground level."

Judge said she has big visions for the coalition to become a leader for other Michigan communities to get started on similar initiatives. Over the summer, she and three other coalition members attended the Michigan Association of Counties Annual Conference in Grand Rapids, where she led a presentation outlining the group's progress.

She said she believes the coalition could grow and present the county with federal grant opportunities. Following October, the kick-off, members will split into five different work groups focused on how to raise awareness and education in the community.

County reports high participation in U.S. Census

By Austen Smith
Heritage Newspapers

U.S. Census representatives reported during Wednesday's Washtenaw County Board meeting that the county came in with a 77 percent participation rate putting the area in the top 5 percent nationwide.

The 2010 Census count will act as a barometer for federal and state funding that trickles down into the county and local levels for the next 10 years. It also will determine future districting for the State House of Representatives based on population.

The participation rate is the earliest report from the census. A final count will not be available until April of next year after the information is reviewed at the federal and state levels, said Toine Murphy of the 2010 Census Detroit regional office.

"What is going to take place now is that the numbers are being compiled for the president to review by Dec. 31," Murphy said. "Preliminary numbers are going to start coming out before but full numbers will be coming out in April 2011. Those numbers will indicate whether we still have the population to support the same state representatives and if not, how do those areas get redistricted?"

"That is where the tough information really comes out and we start to move forward not only in this county but in the whole state."

Starting in mid-2009, county employees and area elected officials began a massive public information and education effort to encourage residents to fill out their census forms. There were concerns in Washtenaw County about transitory population, college students, homeless and illegal residents. Census workers faced a challenge in educating the public that information provided in the census is protected by the federal government.

Despite concerns, Murphy said the high participation rate — the national average was 70 percent — is a strong indicator that those efforts worked.

"We are very, very happy about the effort that was put forth," Murphy said. "For the past 18 months, we have gone out to the highest elected official to the grassroots, and there are numerous activities that we have done from walking up to porches during St. Patrick's Day parties and talking about the effort and how it touches them to going to different churches, picnics and community events. We want to think all that had some impact along with the advertising campaign."

So, what does this all mean for Washtenaw County?

"When you get the high participation rate back, we are able to save dollars in going from door to door because we don't have as much work to do with the people out there banging on doors," Murphy said. "We have had great success in the area and now that is going to turn back into dollars coming back for the Washtenaw community.

"There are so many different aspects that we use in our daily lives that will now be impacted in the next 10 years from the effort in this census." Contact Heritage Newspapers' Austen Smith at asmith@heritage.com.

Experts say downsizing not all about stuff

As people move into their 50s and 60s, priorities change. The hours spent on home improvements and the sheer time necessary to maintain a full-sized home seem to be a little more of a burden. As kids move on, there's all that unneeded space.

FINANCIAL MATTERS

Men and women tend to turn on the gas in the last 15 to 20 years of their working lives to make sure their retirement savings will be adequate to their needs. That's why the idea of downsizing is a good one to start early. It's also a good time for a financial check-up.

A financial planning professional may not be able to help you sort out what dishes and furniture to sell or give away, but he or she would make a good first stop in developing a complete downsizing strategy involving assets, investments, career and overall financial lifestyle planning. With life expectancies lengthening, many people 50 to 55 years of age could conceivably be at only the midpoint of their lives.

What is the chief advantage to downsizing? Handled correctly, it can save a lot of money. Selling a larger home — possibly one that still has a mortgage — in favor of a smaller house or condo that's completely paid off can save potentially tens of thousands of dollars in interest payments over time while still building equity. The earlier the process starts, the better.

Here's a checklist of considerations in downsizing your life:

- Get advice first: As mentioned, downsizing should be a holistic process, a chance for a check-up of your overall finances while identifying things, expenses and habits in your life that you can jettison. A financial planning professional can give you a push by asking important questions that will get you to a better place financially. It's helpful to set up a plan to extinguish debt in all of its forms and move on to a check-up of savings, investments and estate matters.

- Downsize potential health issues: No matter what the final effect of health reform on pocketbook issues, your out-of-pocket and premium-based health costs over time will be cheaper if you take steps to better maintain your health. Make weight and other personal health maintenance issues a new priority as you move into your pre-retirement years.

- Plan for a retire-career: You might be working for a company or organization that has a mandatory retirement age or you have a year in mind when it might finally be time to pack up and go. And there's nothing wrong with a retirement devoted to travel and leisure activities. But if you think you won't be able to afford to quit working completely or if doing nothing will eventually drive you nuts, consider getting some career counseling, personality testing and do some research now that will help you train for a new full- or part-time career for after you retire from your present job.

Start thinking about real estate and new places to live: Today's retirees don't necessarily have to move to predictable retirement destinations. Telecommuting allows many people to continue working lives and education from anywhere. For many people, the magic combination might involve cheaper real estate, desired weather and activities, travel options and access to good doctors and quality healthcare facilities. Decide what kind of home you could see yourself living comfortably in at age 70 or 80.

This combination of factors might happen in a surprisingly large number of places based on individual preference.

To get you thinking and hone your expectations, start with resources like U.S. News & World Report's online "Best Places to Retire" selection tools.

Talk to your family: It's really important to discuss not only your expectations for later in life with your family members, but it's important to get their feedback on what they consider good ideas for you. There may come a day when you need to rely on others for help, and it would be a good idea to identify how realistic that is. Also, if you're talking about downsizing certain assets or property that might have been in your family a long time, it's important to discuss that with others who might be affected by that decision.

Start weeding: Physical downsizing isn't something that's done in a month. Give yourself a year to go through each room in your home and prioritize what you're really going to need if you move to a smaller place. Make a list of what you hope to give to friends and family members and what you'll donate or trash. Time will give you more opportunities to put good, usable items in the hands of people who could really use them.

Develop a recordkeeping system that fits you so you won't forget any decisions you've made along the way. Also, you might want to set up a separate area for family photos and other keepsakes that have high emotional value and set up a hopefully egalitarian system for who will get what either when you move or when you die.

Don't start upsizing later: When you do move, chances are you will need to invest in some new household items or possibly furniture to match new surroundings. Try to avoid going overboard with this — that's why thoughtful downsizing should prevent a lot of spending for stuff you've already chucked. Oh, and make a permanent life decision, if possible, not to start re-using credit cards or mortgage debt if you can possibly avoid it in your later years.

Scholarship pageant accepting applications

Applications are being accepted for the 2010 Miss Washtenaw County Scholarship Pageant and the Miss Washtenaw County Outstanding Teen Pageant to be held Oct. 16 at Chelsea High School Performing Arts Center.

The program is open to young women between the ages of 17 and 24 who reside, are full-time students or are employed full time in Washtenaw and Livingston counties.

Teens must be between the ages of 13 and 16 to compete in the Miss Washtenaw County Outstanding Teen Pageant the same day. There are no residency requirements.

The Miss America experience provides many opportunities, including being involved in the largest scholarship program available to young women in America. Winners will represent the Washtenaw County area at the 2011 Miss Michigan and Miss Michigan's Outstanding Teen Pageant.

The second annual Princess Program, open to girls 4 to 12 years old, will also take place at the Miss Washtenaw County Scholarship Pageant.

Girls will be mentored by Miss Washtenaw County contestants, and all will receive crowns, T-shirts, a princess party luncheon and a chance to participate in an on-stage production number.

For applications and entry information on the Miss, Teen or Princess Program, visit MissWashtenawcounty.com.

In the 1980s, University of Michigan professor William "Buzz" Alexander introduced a powerful theater exercise to Peruvian shanty-town peasants. In 1990, he and two of his U of M guerilla theater students conducted that same exercise with two women prisoners at Florence Crane Correctional Facility in Coldwater.

Alexander identifies this exercise as a pivotal point in the start of "PCAP," the Prison Creative Arts Project, having since performed 528 plays, 200 readings, and countless workshops in Michigan prisons, juvenile facilities and urban high schools.

The professor and two undergraduates directed the two women, who had been sentenced to life terms, to go in the corner and write questions for them during that moment in 1990 at Florence Crane. The power dynamic then transformed. The two women were given a space to challenge these U of M folks' very intentions.

"Why are you here?"

"Are you interested in prisoners?"

Based on such experiences, the prisoners decided to open the program to the entire prison population. After approval from the warden, the women formed their own "Sisters Within Theatre Troupe." A specific group within PCAP, Sisters is presenting its 29th play this fall.

"We've stayed together for 21 years and there is nothing like that in the world where a woman's prison theater group have been together for over 20 years," Alexander said.

Prisoners, Juveniles and Urban High School Students

The Prison Creative Arts Project more generally is a U of M-based organization of students, faculty and community members who collaborate with Michigan prisoners, juveniles and urban high school students to create original artistic expressions. This fall, PCAP is expected to work in nine prisons, five juvenile facilities and four Detroit high schools.

Since 1990, PCAP has worked in 24 prisons across Michigan. The farthest cities the group has traveled to are Saginaw, Coldwater and Ionia.

But Alexander said he has occasionally received criticism for including urban high schools under the umbrella name Prison Creative Arts Project.

"We don't think of the schools as prisons," he said. "We do know that many of the youth in the schools have relatives in urban high schools who are incarcerated."

Detroit, considered by many calculations to be the poorest U.S. city, graduates fewer than 25 percent of its public high school students. Alexander's upcoming book, "Is William Martinez Not Our Brother?"

Twenty Years of the Prison Creative Arts Project," to be released Oct. 1, suggests that many of Detroit's students face the harrowing threat of ending up in the prison system. Fifty percent of Detroit youth will go to jail and prison.

So, the real motivating factor for Alexander to continue to travel with U of M students to places most might not choose to visit is to give often under-represented groups a chance to express themselves.

"The main reason that we're coming to prisons, youth facilities and high schools, and especially urban high schools, is that they are all places that do not have creative spaces," Alexander said.

Alexander said that many urban high schools don't have any after-school programs, performance spaces, decent auditoriums and are often also deprived of special creative classes such as poetry and art.

"So we go because everybody needs access to the arts. Everybody deserves it," Alexander said.

Fighting Stereotypes

Students, as well as the general public, often have stereotypes of those in PCAP. For instance, Alexander said that he used to do exercises with his U of M students to imagine what an incarcerated person was like.

"They would picture them in a cell, seldom out in the prison yard or anywhere else — picture them alone," Alexander said. "They would see them as scruffy, bedraggled, unkempt, dirty. They would see them as either depressed or violent."

And it wasn't just the way people imagined prisoners, it was what positive associations they never made with prisoners.

"They would never think of them (prisoners) as people who had loved ones in their lives who they missed," Alexander said. "Nor would they think of them as people with talent or creativity or education or intellectual interest or excitement."

People also have stereotypes of youth in juvenile facilities. "They (people) think less about incarcerated youth than prisoners," Alexander said. "If they were to think about them, they would probably have some of the same stereotypes (as prisoners): violent, out-of-control kids, uneducated, untalented; kids detached who betrayed their communities, who have stolen something from their communities or killed someone in their communities, and therefore deserved to be locked up — all of which is opposite to what we learn that they are full human beings, complicated, damaged, hurt, sometimes violent human beings, but creative human beings capable of working collaboratively with others."

As far as stereotypes about urban youth are concerned, Alexander says that U of M students predominately come from white suburbs and are often told "don't go into Detroit" by their parents. So stereotypes about the urban youth largely depend on whether people have had any encounters with people from Detroit, Alexander said.

Respect and

Dignity for All

Whether Alexander and his U of M students are traveling to prisons, juvenile facilities or urban high schools, he insists that everyone be treated with dignity and respect.

"We bring trust and we bring belief in the people that we are working with," he said. "What that means is that when we are in a space with people, they get that. They feel us trusting them, respecting them, believing in them."

Alexander and PCAP show no signs of slowing down any time soon. He said he is often asked whether he will retire, but does not have an answer.

"It may be that I retire or need to retire — there's a lot of ways that can come about," Alexander said. "At the moment, I am very happy with the work that I am doing in the prisons and love teaching, and I get paid for it."

"Since I work extremely hard, it makes a lot of sense for me to be recompensed for it."

In addition to teaching classes to train U of M students to creatively work in PCAP, Alexander and his partner Janie Paul, a U of M professor in the School of Art and Design, have been curating the annual Exhibition of Art by Michigan Prisoners since 1995. Paul, who also works with U of M students in an art workshop through PCAP, expanded the Prison Theatre Project to the Prison Creative Arts Project in 1995.

Lyle Dahlberg joins Bank of America in management position

Lyle Dahlberg has joined Bank of Ann Arbor as first vice president, trust and investment group manager.

He assumes full management responsibility for all activities of the trust and investment group.

Thomas Kallewaard, the former group head for the past seven years, is not leaving the bank but will begin, at his request, the transition to a business development and account administration position.

"It is with great pleasure that we welcome Lyle to this strategic growth area of the bank," said Tim Marshall, president and CEO, in a news release.

"Under Tom's leadership, we grew to nearly $650 million in assets under management and we anticipate that Lyle will continue this growth pattern in the years to come. It is truly exciting to attract Lyle to our team as he brings an abundance of technical knowledge and many years of leadership experience and has established a proven record of exceptional client satisfaction in the trust and investment area."

Dahlberg's 28-year trust and investment career started with NBD, and he eventually ended up working for JPMorgan after numerous acquisitions and name changes.

He started his career in the trust administration area, gained multi-state management experience in the estate settlement unit, and his most recent position with JPMorgan was managing director of the Grosse Pointe private client service office.

In this position, he was responsible for investment management, private banking, lending, fiduciary/trust administration, insurance, and financial planning.

Dahlberg is a graduate of the Northwestern University National Trust School and the National Graduate Trust School. He received his law degree from Detroit College of Law and his undergraduate degree from the University of Denver.

"I am thrilled to be joining Bank of Ann Arbor, a first-rate organization dedicated to the success of our community," Dahlberg said.

"I look forward to working with the talented, experienced team of trust and investment professionals at Bank of Ann Arbor. We will maintain our disciplined approach to long-term investing, always providing the exceptional level of service that our clients expect and deserve."

Not pictured is Judy (Welch) Johns. Fred Patterson, John Klink and Wilson Morley were only able to attend the Friday night party.

SRSLY kicks off third year

Following another successful season of outdoor movies at SRSLY Cinema, and positive evaluation results showing decreases in youth substance abuse in Chelsea, SRSLY members are excited to start their third year as a coalition.

The third annual SRSLY kick-off rally at the Chelsea High School varsity football game Sept. 10, will feature glow bracelets, temporary tattoos, and SRSLY volunteers on hand to tell people about the coalition.

A special half-time event will include a speech by health and physical education teacher Corey Knight. Following the speech, the SRSLY Youth Steering Committee will throw SRSLY T-shirts into the crowd.

"My favorite fall SRSLY event would have to be the kick-off rally because there's so much fun and positive energy going towards the cause," said Allie Reynolds, freshman and member of the SRSLY Youth Steering Committee.

SRSLY Director Reiley Curran said the goal of the rally is to get the community excited about the upcoming year.

Going into the coalition's third year, leaders feel confident that SRSLY is well established and well recognized in the community.

"For me personally, I feel like this is the first year that we don't have to worry as much about building support," said Ellen Christie, a junior and president of the YSC. "As our volunteer appreciation party showed, we have tons of support already. I'm most looking forward to really developing the activities that we have already put in place."

Andrew Ingall, SRSLY chairman and director of instruction for Chelsea School District, said the focus for this year will be sustainability.

"We need to make sure that we can keep the momentum going for years to come," Ingall said. "It's been a terrific start, but we've got to ensure that we can maintain all the good that SRSLY has brought for our kids, families, and community."

Chelsea School District staff will continue to help spread the word and get kids excited about the coalition by wearing their bright green coalition T-shirts to school on "SRSLY Fridays," on the second Friday of every month.

The coalition is hoping to build on the popularity of SRSLY T-shirts this year, with a new line of SRSLY merchandise including polo shirts, fleece pullovers, hooded sweatshirts, and bags. All proceeds from sales directly support SRSLY activities.

"Youth and adult coalition members helped design the new merchandise last year, along with Edgar Norman Creative," Curran said. "We'll be selling the new SRSLY gear at meetings and events."

Cindy Rhodes, CHS psychologist, said she likes the new merchandise. "I love the new hoodies," she said. "It has a place for my iPod in the pocket, and these holes are for the ear buds."

This fall will be the fifth time SRSLY

Henes to help with fire facility

By Sean Dalton

Dexter Village Manager Donna Dettling will begin working with architect consultant Rich Henes on a draft plan for the proposed Dexter Fire Station.

Village staff have already gathered facility costs for other comparable fire stations in the area with the assistance of Dexter Area Fire Department Chief Loren Yates.

Dettling said she will also release information on fire stations built in the past five to 10 years, such as the facilities in Superior Township and Plymouth.

Henes will analyze building types, Dettling said.

"(He will help) identify all the different construction types that could apply for a fire department building and determine the average cost per square foot for each of these construction types," she said.

In 2006 the village had Steve Brower of A.R. Brower create a floor plan layout that included both the village offices and fire department under one roof. The plan involved a 15,000 square foot facility that would cost between $150 and $175 per square foot, but doesn't include property purchase, furnishings, or electronics systems. The total cost outlay in that plan was between $1 million and $1.2 million.

The village purchased a parcel of land on Dan Hoey Road for either village offices or a fire facility space earlier this year, but Yates spoke critically of its suitability.

"The current tentative location selected by the village creates some concerns due to its location adjacent to schools," he said. "This will affect the movement of emergency vehicles due to the additional caution required because children, buses and parents accessing the schools."

He added that the best location for a new station is a piece of property near Westridge and the railroad tracks, which would afford DAFFD "quick exit to (the) entire DAFFD service area, and maintains local visibility."

Yates said the fire department wouldn't need more than half of the square footage in the Brower design, so Dettling figured that a 5,000 to 7,000 square foot facility based on the that design would cost between $550,000 to $770,000 on the low end and $875,000 to $1.2 million based on the full 7,000 square feet.

Dettling said the previously discussed general obligation bond sale of $2 million - $700,000 to pay off the 1996 bond and $1.3 million for a new fire facility - is still on the table.

Council trustee James Smith said that he would like to see more data gathered on the 5- to 10-year-old station buildings before paying Henes' $2,000 fee.

"I think you might want to gather more information from other sister departments that were recently constructed," he said.

Council trustee Jim Carson said he felt like there was enough information available to bring Henes on board.

"I think we have a really good handle on the square footage cost," he said. "If we're going to spend our time, I think we ought to spend our time discussing what size building we need and what we're looking at."

Smith said he was interested in seeing different size configurations.

Carson said he didn't think the village was looking for unique designs, as Yates indicated a simpler design.

Both Dettling and Yates acknowledged the numerous uncertainties around firming up plans for a new fire station right now.

Yates specifically pointed to the possibility of Scio Fire Department merging with DAFFD in the future.

"There's just so much in flux right now... whether Dexter Township is going to stay and other things that could change," Dettling said. "We can't have that discussion until we know."

Smith said he would like to see a minimum number of truck and tanker space discussed at least, in light of potential expansions to DAFFD's coverage area.

Village President Shawn Keough said that 2012 is the earliest that a fire facility project could begin, adding that he too thought that the design should be a "very basic building" or a "very nice looking fire station."

Dettling said that cost differences between basic and decorated designs are what Henes would help her determine.

She was given the nod to work with Henes by a 6 to 1 vote with Smith dissenting.

Chelsea grad to compete in pageant

Williams

Katrina Williams, a 2010 Chelsea High School alumna, will compete for the title of Miss Michigan Teen USA on Sept. 10 and 11 in Ann Arbor.

Williams, daughter of Marti and Tim Williams, is currently a freshman at the University of Louisville. While at CHS she was a member of the CHS varsity cheerleading and girls track team and is currently a member of the University of Louisville cheerleading team and Gym Tyme All Stars.

Williams will be representing the Chelsea area for the upcoming pageant. Ann Arbor will welcome nearly 110 young women representing every corner and major city in Michigan.

"We are overwhelmed by the response and caliber of all the participants from Michigan," Melissa Pitchford, executive director of the Miss Universe Organization said. "There is not a better opportunity for ambitious young woman out there today. The Miss Michigan Teen USA competition offers young women in the state of Michigan a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to advance their personal and professional goals."

The Miss Michigan Teen USA pageant will be offering over $1 million in college scholarships to the winners, finalists, and semi-finalists. The competition, which will be held at the Power Center for the Performing Arts on the campus of The University of Michigan at 2 p.m. Sept. 11, consists of three proportional segments: evening gown, fitness/swimsuit, and the final question. The winner of the pageant will be announced at 3:45 p.m.

The winner will represent the state of Michigan in the Miss Teen USA pageant, which is scheduled to take place in 2011.

Golf outing helps local autistic boy

Fundraiser helps child obtain additional therapy

By Crystal Hayduk
Special Writer

For Michael and Andrea Bareis and their children, Aug. 7 was the perfect day.

Hundreds of people gathered at Reddeman Farms on Dancer Road, enjoying a singularly beautiful day to golf, eat lunch, and peruse the silent auction items - all in support of Grant Bareis and the Autism Collaborative Center.

And because Grant's autism has made it nearly impossible for the entire family to go out together, spending the day together at the golf club was a rare and special event for the family.

"We were very pleased with how well Grant tolerated the day, with some break time," Andrea Bareis said. "We took him out on two rides on the golf cart while people were golfing.

And during the auction, he just ran back and forth. He really needs to do that - and we appreciated that there was no judgment or expectation placed on him or on us. It was nice to feel understood."

The golf outing, luncheon, and auction titled, "Take a Swing at Autism," was planned by a committee that included Priscilla and Carl Schwarze, Patty McCarthy, Robin Raymond, Sandy Lantis, Laura Zahn, Karen Lawrence, Jane Shroobree, Shauna Mote, and Meredith Nelson. Bareis reported that staff from the ACC and at least 350 other people also made donations to the fundraiser.

"They said there were over 600 volunteer hours contributed, but I'm betting that's a very conservative estimate," she said.

Michael Bareis said that the community support was not surprising to him.

"That's the way Chelsea is taking care of its own. The people behind the scenes did a tremendous amount of work, and it all clicked," he said.

Andrea and Michael said the fundraiser was so successful that the staff at the ACC wants to use it as a model for other families who need financial assistance.

"But that will only work if people live in a place as caring and generous as Chelsea," Michael said. "Words cannot express our appreciation enough."

Andrea said that the support from the community was heartwarming and emotionally overwhelming.

Grant has only been receiving two hours a week of private therapy at the ACC, far below the amount recommended by his specialist. For the next 12 months, Grant will be able to get five times more therapy thanks to the funds raised.

"We want everyone to know how truly grateful we are," Andrea said. "We feel like Grant really has a chance now."

The fundraising committee will continue to accept donations care of "Take a Swing at Autism," 6550 Conway Road, Michael, Grant, Natalie, Meghan, Rachel and Andrea Bareis and Patty McCarthy address golfers at the "Take a Swing at Autism" at Reddeman Farms in Chelsea on Aug. 7.

OTHER VOICES

Each citizen has own remembrance as Sept. 11 anniversary approaches

By Sean Dalton
Staff Writer

With another anniversary of the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001 upon us this week, I'm again left to my memories of where I was on that tragic day.

I like to think that my personal circumstances that day and how I conducted myself have set the tone for how I personally honor the significance of Sept. 11, 2001.

Some people stayed home, cancelled their appointments and sat on the couch in shock. Perhaps in high functioning shock. I didn't cancel my appointments and showed up at Madonna University to discuss the Madonna Herald's website launch.

After showing up and finding my instructor absent, I wasn't surprised or disappointed. He chose the couch.

We all make different choices and handle extreme stress differently. My choice was to continue functioning, and so I think about my emotions that day as I learned more and more about the attack on our country.

Once more light was shed on the who's and why's, I'm glad I did what I did, because now I recognize Sept. 11, 2001, honor its victims and defy its perpetrators by working harder in observance of the World Trade Center's fall and the death of more than 3,000 people, many of which I'm sure worked just as hard as I do every day in pursuit of their own dreams and aspirations.

This is the first time I've thought about this, and the reason is that a Dexter Community Schools parent recently brought to my attention that the district did not recognize the anniversary of the World Trade Center attack last year with a moment of silence and inquired with the Board of Education if the district would continue to do so.

"My personal opinion is that there are many events that could qualify for a moment of silence... as a veteran I'm keenly aware of the heroism that has been shown by our men and women in uniform, not only in the military, but also in our public service," board president Larry Cobler said. "In some respects, I think singling out one event diminishes the importance of all the others."

"When I think about what is most important to me, I think back to Martin Luther King, Jr., the Kennedy family, and what happened at Kent State. Should we have a moment of silence for all of those events too?"

I've heard people say that

Sept. 11, 2001 was their JFK assassination, but I disagree with that thinking very strongly.

President John F. Kennedy's assassination and the words of Martin Luther King Jr. are just as emotional and thought provoking for me as the terrorist attacks of Sept. 11, 2001 or perhaps any of these events are for Mr. Cobler.

This is so because educators enriched my mind by taking me to these moments in time in the classroom through lecture and discussion, and not because of where the flag was flown on a particular date or through moments of silence.

It's understandable why someone would want the school to engage in such remembrance, but I believe that it shouldn't be mandatory.

Sept. 11, 2001 should not be remembered in a homogenous, forced way. Regardless of the global politics at play in the background of the attack, we can all agree that attacking the World Trade Center towers amounted to attacking American freedom.

What better way to remember those who died on Sept. 11, 2001 than to individually reflect on the significance of the event, or better yet spend time talking about it in an educational setting.

"I also think about what may be most meaningful to our children, or, at least I'll talk about my children," Cobler said. "I feel it was the personal opportunities I had with them, in the

DDA vote takes away historic Livery

I am writing in response to the issue of saving the Livery and associated buildings in Chelsea.

The Downtown Development Authority's mission is to make the downtown area vibrant and economically productive for the community. Over the years, its members have diligently worked to make this happen, i.e. the streetscape project, which adds gentle lines to the otherwise stark streetscape, the renewal of our businesses' original facades, and the development of a business climate that has attracted shops that benefit from the significant walk-in trade that comes due to a combination of factors that make the city's core an effective place to set up business. Kudos are due to these efforts, and the merchants and their predecessors who have made them happen since the DDA's founding a quarter century ago.

Now, however, the DDA has made what I consider to be a significant misstep, in deciding to demolish the several buildings that include the old Livery. As has been noted elsewhere, the set of buildings are significant icons of the nature of Chelsea's business district during several historical eras.

Though currently in disrepair, they are salvageable for a cost not significantly different than building anew, and the relatively few parking spaces that would be gained for the interim are, frankly, not a compelling reason to irrevocably destroy this heritage.

Were these better economic times, I have little doubt that the group that has organized to save these buildings would have readily been able to secure grants and other funding, and to find shops and businesses to occupy the spaces.

I am writing this letter from San Francisco, where I am vacationing, and have just returned from a wonderful tour of China Town. Though the scale and specifics of the history are very different, taking that tour has greatly raised my awareness of the importance of saving everyday historic structures, which tell their own tale in a way no other format can.

Without such structures, we become just another dot on the map, indistinguishable from many other places and from no place in particular. Destroying these buildings abandons a unique way to tell the story of an era of trains, horses and an automobile culture that are no longer part of our world today.

The decision the DDA is making is shortsighted in several regards. It dismisses one of our greatest assets, a communal ambience not easily recreated, in favor of a dubious short-term advantage of more parking.

It ignores the values of a significant portion of the local citizens and customers. More than 700 persons signed a support petition. Lastly, it eliminates the possibility of future business uses for these buildings that would only add to the unique viability of the core business district.

The DDA is not accountable in the same way as a government entity, where voters influence decisions. However, the DDA members live and do business in our community, and should be responsive to the sentiment of their customers and friends.

I urge each person who reads this to express his or her opinion to these merchants about the fate of the Livery and associated buildings, over the next few days while the buildings are still standing. Perhaps then those merchants will alter their decision to satisfy their constituency, the customers who trade in their businesses and value the total experience of a vital, unique community.

Transportation Department deserves kudos for listening

A couple of weeks ago I wrote a letter to the Chelsea Standard expressing the concerns over the school bus system in Chelsea and the apprehension the residents of the Chelsea Fairways neighborhood have over changes for the upcoming school year.

Central to my letter was the issue of whether local public officials in the Chelsea School District transportation office were listening to the needs of students, residents, and parents on bus stop locations and children safety issues.

I am happy to report that credit is due to the Transportation Department and to Ms. Chris Frayer. She reached out to me directly to speak at length about our neighborhood, our children, and our bus stops. The unique situation that the Chelsea Fairways neighborhood is in as an unfinished neighborhood as well as our location south of the busy and dangerous Old US-12 drove much of the discussion, but her ability to express to me that our children will still receive quality bus service even in times of great cutbacks was greatly appreciated.

Although we will see a number of changes and consolidation in bus services this year, our neighborhood is still appreciative of the transportation department being able to assure us that safety and quality service are important factors for busing in the upcoming year.

Thank you again to Ms. Frayer and her staff for listening to our needs and reaching out to our community. We look forward to a safe school year on the buses.

Sports team left out

It was nice reading about all the fall sports for the Chelsea Schools, but you forgot one, or maybe you just ran out of room. Please remember the Chelsea High School girls swim and dive team is a fall sport.

This group of girls just spent a full week of training at swim camp in Holland. They worked extremely hard, swam many miles, and dove for hours two times per day at camp. They are back training at Beach Middle School now, two times per day. When school starts they train at 5:45 a.m. and again at 3:15 p.m., about two hours each. How many sports train at 5:45 a.m.?

Applicants sought for Sharon Twp.

Jones to vacate supervisor position in coming months

By Jana Miller, Heritage Newspapers

Near the conclusion of the regular Sharon Township Board of Trustees meeting on Sept. 2, Township Supervisor Rich Jones announced that he will be moving into the Village of Manchester. Once he is no longer a resident of Sharon Township, he cannot act as its supervisor.

"After much talk and consideration, my wife and I have decided to move into the village for health reasons," Jones said. "When that happens I can no longer serve as supervisor since I won't be a township resident."

This is the third time in the past six months when, in the greater Manchester area, a board member has resigned or can no longer perform his or her duties. Bridgewater Township Clerk Cynthia Carver also resigned and has since been replaced, and village council trustee Kari Newman recently announced her resignation.

Jones said he was not resigning but that there were several legal processes the township now needed to sort through. He also said he was not sure when the move would take place, but that he wanted the township to have plenty of time to make a smooth transition.

"I'm not sure when we're moving. I just wanted to let everyone know well in advance. I'm not just going to disappear and leave nothing more than a cardboard box and a computer for whoever takes my place," Jones said. "I care about the future of this township and I want there to be a smooth transition."

Jones also said there is the possibility that he could serve as deputy supervisor if that was necessary, which would mean the township would pay salary for both a supervisor and deputy supervisor. He said that the Pittsford Township supervisor is currently a resident of Sharon Township.

Board trustee Tom Lavender made a motion following Jones' announcement that the board actively seek replacements, so applications are submitted and available for review in one month at the next regular board meeting on Oct. 7.

"I think we should get going on this and make sure there is plenty of time," he said. "I'd be interested in seeing a resume (from applicants), their vision for the future of the township, and their goals."

Jones said he would prepare a description of the position to be distributed for all potential applicants, including the official and unofficial duties of the township supervisor.

"It's a very time-consuming job and it's important to me that office hours be observed," he said. "There are many unofficial duties that are required of this position as well as the official duties."

When and if an applicant is chosen to take the place of Jones as township supervisor, that person will serve out the remainder of Jones' term.

home, around the dinner table, talking about these events that had a much more meaningful impact on their appreciation for what took place than any special event that may have been planned.

Cobler agreed with me in part by saying that a "personal discussion in a class between teacher and students might have more meaning than a planned event."

The parent who brought this to my attention also speculated that Gov. Jennifer Granholm compels remembrance of the terrorist attacks, which I was relieved to learn was not the case.

Granholm's executive order is only a guideline, much of which deals with how to handle the American flag on various days of remembrance and in general.

If I'm allowed to honor the day through hard work in the pursuit of my dreams and aspirations, then the Dexter school district should be allowed to honor the day through instruction or any special way that district officials see fit.

why we put dog poop in plastic baggies

- Our neighbors like us to.
- It makes our dogs feel important.
- It keeps the poop from being washed into the storm drains.

Select them all, and it's "two paws up" for you! Truth is, most of us pick up after our dogs as a courtesy to our neighbors. Plus it makes that backyard barbecue all the more enjoyable.

But there's another important reason to pick up after your pet water. When pet waste is left behind, it washes into storm drains and ditches. From there, it heads straight to your local river. No filters, no cleansing. Swimming, anyone?

Help protect water quality. Scoop, scoop, and drop those little baggies in the trash. Then give yourself a nice pat... You deserve it.

MARKET CORNER

Farmer finds peace in the field

By Krystle Dunham
Special Writer

For Glenn Heim, being able to spend his whole day in his garden is where he feels the most content.

"I've always enjoyed the farmer's lifestyle," he said. Heim of Chelsea is one of the many vendors lined up in downtown Dexter and Chelsea on Saturday mornings, selling his produce at both the Dexter and Chelsea farmers' markets.

He has been coming to the Dexter market since May, which is found on Alpine Street and is held from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays and from 3 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Tuesdays.

Heim, along with his wife, Mary, his son, Kevin, daughter, Tammy, and sister-in-law, Stephanie, run their family business called Heim Gardens in Chelsea. The family store is located at 1445 S. Main St. in front of Chelsea Lumber.

Heim Gardens grows flowers, tomatoes, green beans, asparagus, squash, radishes, onions, leek, cabbage, peppers, pumpkins, strawberries, raspberries and more. The shop has been in business for 28 years.

Heim said his business also has a floral store, which Mary operates. Customers will find perennials, annuals, hanging baskets and a wide selection of planters to choose from. The business will also custom fill planters for their customers.

Tending to the garden is what Heim enjoys most, but he does help with flower deliveries.

He does the majority of the gardening with his four grandsons.

Heim grew up on the farm he owns and lives on now and considers himself a natural born farmer.

"I enjoy being out in the field by myself," he said. "I enjoy the peace and quiet outside."

Heim said he will have plenty of vegetables for his customers during the month of September.

For more information, call Heim Gardens at 1-734-475-2655 or contact Mary at myheim@aol.com.

Exercise safety with buses

The first day of school marks a significant milestone in the life of a child. It's an exciting time for making new friends, learning new things, and for some, riding the school bus.

Every day more than 20 million students use school buses as transportation to and from school. Although school buses represent the safest form of highway transportation, there are a number of safety factors both students and drivers should be aware of.

Hoping to ensure that the school year gets off to a safe and happy start, the Washtenaw County Sheriff's Office encourages caution whenever school buses are present.

"Children are often excited to tell their parents about all of the fun they had at school that day and many times rush off the bus," said Sheriff Jerry Clayton. "It is important that parents re-enforce the school bus safety rules children learn at school."

Clayton also suggests that parents drive their child's bus route with them and practice the proper safety precautions.

Although school buses represent the safest form of highway transportation, there are a number of safety factors both students and drivers should be aware of.

"Throughout a child's life, there are a number of situations where parents will be unable to exercise control. However, there are numerous precautions they can take to help ensure their child enjoys a safe ride to and from school," Clayton said.

The Washtenaw County

Sheriff's Office has some safety measures they encourage all parents to discuss with their children.

Students

■ Always arrive at the bus stop early.

■ Prior to boarding, wait until the bus has come to a complete stop, the door opens, and the bus driver says that it's OK to board.

■ Always walk on the sidewalk when preparing to cross the street near a bus.

■ Make eye contact with the driver so that you are sure he or she sees you.

■ Never walk behind the bus. If you are walking beside the bus, walk at least three giant steps away.

■ Take extra precaution to make sure that clothing with drawstrings and book bags do not get caught in the handrail or door.

■ Never stop to pick something up that you have dropped when a bus is stopped. Wait until the bus has driven off to avoid not being seen by the driver.

Motorists

■ Remember that children are unpredictable in their actions. Take extreme caution when traveling in a school zone.

■ If there are no sidewalks, drive cautiously. Be more alert to the possibility of children walking in the road.

■ Be more aware of children playing near school bus stops.

■ Slow down and prepare to stop whenever you see yellow school bus lights flashing.

■ Never pass a school bus when there are flashing red lights. This is a sign that children are getting off the bus.

Faith in action fundraiser set

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

Area food pantries like Faith in Action are looking to bolster their stock in anticipation of holiday demand for food for needy families this year.

Pastor Ron Gelaude of Dexter's Connexion's Church said he hopes to help the FIA volunteers in their effort to bolster themselves sufficiently to meet the needs of everyone in the area.

"It's hard to believe, but in the Dexter and Chelsea areas there is a real, pressing and continued need for food and winter clothing," Gelaude said.

On Oct. 3 Gelaude and his congregation will work on behalf of FIA to collect non-perishable food items, new and slightly used winter coats, sweaters, hats and gloves.

Individuals can drop the food and clothing off at the church, which meets at Mill Creek Middle School in Dexter 9 a.m. and noon Oct. 3.

"All folks have to do is simply drive to the entrance of the school through the student drop-off and set their donations near the curb," Gelaude said. "Connexions people will be there to help unload food and clothing, pack them up into boxes by food item and clothing size, and will deliver the goods to Faith in Action the following Monday to both the Chelsea and Dexter locations."

Gelaude encourages those who can't make it out for the Sunday collection to drop the items off directly to the FIA food bank in Dexter, which is open on Wednesdays between 11 a.m. and 5 p.m., or to drop off clothing items in Chelsea.

Another event is planned for Nov. 7, during which Connexions will partner with Samaritan's Purse to collect school supplies, hygiene items, toys and other items for children around the world.

On Nov. 21 the church will gather volunteers to help with yard work for elderly residents in Chelsea and Dexter.

"After our church service, we're going to have a light lunch and then hit the streets with our rakes and smiling faces - it will be a great time of serving the needs of those who need a little help," Gelaude said.

Webb named champion homemaker

Chelsea resident takes love of gardening to whole new level

By Sheila Pursglove
Special Writer

Chelsea resident Andrea Webb was named champion homemaker at the 2010 Chelsea Community Fair.

After entering 62 items in agriculture, 13 baking items, 22 flower entries and two needlework embroidery pieces, Webb almost needed a wheelbarrow to carry home all her ribbons, including 30 first place ribbons.

She will enter vegetables, flowers and needlework in the Saline Community Fair. However, she will not be able to enter the homemaker competition, as she and her husband do not live in Washtenaw County.

Webb has been employed at Saline Flowerland for more than eight years.

"I love working there. I can't see myself doing anything else," she said. "Owners Sue Wisniewski and Peg and John Long have been wonderful to me, and I've learned so much from them. My own love of gardening is a plus as I'm able to help my customers."

Competing in community fairs is something Webb has enjoyed since she was a child growing up in Grass Lake. She belonged to 4-H clubs and entered animals at the Jackson County Fair each year. She also won the champion homemaker crown at the Chelsea Community Fair in 2006.

Webb embroidered pillowcases, aprons and towels for the Chelsea fair, and credits her needlework skills to her maternal grandmother.

"When I was young, we'd go over to her home, and one time I was bored, and she thought I might like embroidery," Webb said. "She started me on a simple pattern, and I really enjoyed it."

Gardening is her big passion. "I love gardening. I do it as much as I can, and really look forward to summer each year," she said. "I start my flowers and pepper plants from seeds under grow lights in March. I order seeds from catalogs and love to grow unique flowers you can't find in greenhouses - things like unique varieties of marigolds and xenias."

Webb gardens at her parents' home in Grass Lake.

"They have the right soil and lots of space, so I run over there all of the time," she said.

This summer's rain presented a challenge, she said.

"My pepper plants sat around in water and didn't look very good, but I kept busy weeding and fertilizing, and they ended up doing well," she said.

So well, in fact, that her purple peppers took a blue ribbon, while her green peppers and jalapeno peppers took second place ribbons.

Webb encourages women to learn how to garden, bake and embroider.

"In this day and age, in such a fast-paced world, people tend to look for the easy way to do things," she said. "Homemaking skills may take time, and a lot of work, but I think people would find them very rewarding."

Burglary suspect sought

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

Washtenaw County Sheriff's deputies are seeking information leading to the arrest of a suspect or suspects involved in a burglary and a home invasion Friday in Scio Township.

One instance occurred within the 5000 block of Jackson Avenue, where the unknown suspect(s) used a tool to remove a front window from a business to gain entry.

Deputies believe the business was broken into sometime between midnight and 8 a.m. Two Dell flat panel computer monitors, two Dell computer monitors, an unknown number of T-shirts, unknown number of purses, and miscellaneous bottles of tanning lotion were taken.

The home invasion happened at 6 p.m. in the 300 block of Edison Street, where deputies found that the individual(s) responsible had parked a vehicle in the driveway of the residence and attempted to force open the side garage door.

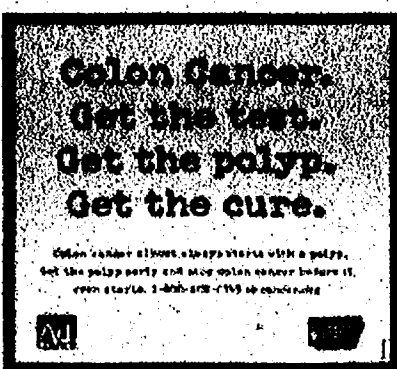

After the attempt was unsuccessful, deputies said it appears the suspects walked to the rear of the residence and cut a screen on a window to gain entry.

A neighbor watched a man, who is described as a black male in his late teens about 5 feet 8 inches to 5 feet 10 inches with a medium build wearing a white T-shirt and red sweat pants, enter the home.

The neighbor ran into the residence and yelled at the man, who fled through the residence and out the front door. While the neighbor was calling the authorities, the man drove away in his vehicle, a small white Buick sedan with a Tammaroff plate frame.

Deputies have a number of ongoing investigations into home invasions and burglaries right now, although there was no indication from deputies that these occurrences were related to each other or any other similar incidents that have happened in the area recently.

BULLETIN BOARD

Around Town with Linda

"Around Town with Linda" will feature Courtney Aldrich, director of Chelsea Children's Cooperative Preschool. "Around Town with Linda" features interviews conducted by the local host Linda Meloche. The show airs daily on Channel 18 at 7:30 a.m., noon, 7:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. A new interview begins every Thursday evening and runs for a week. The guests all live or work in Chelsea, and everyone connected with the show is a volunteer. Previous shows are available to view at McKune Memorial Library.

Ministerial Message

The Chelsea Standard and Dexter Leader are soliciting columns from all religious leaders of any denomination in our communities for the "Ministerial Message" section. The column should be limited to 500 words or less and include your name, contact information and a headshot photo in jpg format. The deadline for the column is Friday for the following week's edition. E-mail dlat@heritage.com for more information.

Cub Scouts Registration

Chelsea Area Cub Scouts will be registering boys in grades 1 through 5 at their Fall Round Up at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 16 at the North Creek Elementary cafeteria. Come find out more about Cub Scouts in the Chelsea area. Boys may attend and enjoy supervised activities while parents meet with leaders for a short presentation.

Library hosts teen week

By Sean Dalton
Heritage Newspapers

Dexter District Library Director Paul McCann announced Dexter's participation in "Read for the Fun of It" week in October. More than 5,000 librarians and educators celebrate the weeklong event, the theme of which this year is "Books with Beat @ your library." Teens are encouraged to read poetry, audiobooks, books about music and more during the special event aimed at encouraging teens to read for pleasure and to visit their libraries. McCann encourages children and parents to check out the American Library Association's website where visitors can vote on the top 10 books each year, chosen from 15 book groups across the country. The winners will be announced online at www.ala.org/teenstopten during Teen Read Week.

For more information, call Deb Hubbard at 475-3494.

History presentation

Local historians Kathy Clark and Cary Church will present a comprehensive perspective on the impact the Glazier family has had on Chelsea, especially the charismatic and influential Frank P. Glazier. The event will take place at 7 p.m. Sept. 13 at the Chelsea Depot. It is free and open to the public.

Ignite Chelsea, an evening of fun, fast-paced enlightenment about the history of Chelsea, will occur at 6 p.m. today at the clock tower courtyard. The event includes presentations, karaoke, cash bar, food, music, games and a raffle. For more information, e-mail ignitechelsea@gmail.com.

Dollars and Cents of Protecting Community Character

This free event will take place from 7 to 9 p.m. Sept. 15 at the Washington Street Education Center in Chelsea. A reception will take place from 6 to 7 p.m. Come hear Ed McMahon, noted author, attorney, lecturer and expert on creating and sustaining livable and prosperous communities speak on gateway communities. The program is free of charge, but participants can register with Kris Hohnke at 1-734-433-2200, Ext. 6001.

Nominees sought for Chelsea Recreation Council

Chelsea Recreation Council is now accepting letters of interest from individuals interested in becoming a member of the Chelsea Recreation Council. Letters of interest should introduce yourself to the board, outline your interaction with Chelsea Recreation, explain why you would like to be part of the board, and touch upon your professional or personal attributes that will enhance the council.

Applicants should be able to attend monthly meetings (usually the first Monday of the month), assist with programs (help run a skills days, help run drafts, tournaments, etc.) and actively participate on subcommittees (budget committee, soccer committee, policy committee, revamping committee, liaison to other organizations or boards, etc.). On average this volunteer position requires three to five hours per month.

All letters of interest should be e-mailed to chelsearec@chelsearec.com. All letters will be forwarded to the board for review. The deadline is Sept. 13.

Farmers' market

Join us at the Chelsea Farmers' Market on Saturdays and keep it local. The market is located on the south side of Park Street and is open from 8 a.m. until noon. We offer produce, plants, flowers, baked goods, and handcrafted items from jewelry to furniture. There will be live entertainment every Saturday through the summer.

Call 1-734-475-1145 with any questions, or visit the market's website at www.chelseafarmer-smkt.org.

Golf outing

The Washtenaw County Hazmat Team will host its annual golf fundraiser Sept. 27 at Barton Hills Country Club in Ann Arbor. For more information, contact Donald Dettling at 1-734-216-4002.

Artist exhibit

"Dream Games" by Susan Aaron-Taylor will be featured at the River Gallery in Chelsea on Sept. 18 through Oct. 30. A reception will take place Sept. 18 from 5 to 8 p.m. at the River Gallery.

Monthly Dinner

A monthly dinner will take place at 5 p.m. at St. Andrew's United Church of Christ in Dexter beginning Sept. 9. The dinner this week includes spaghetti and meat sauce with all the trimmings, including dessert. The cost for the dinner is $8 for adults, $5 for children 5 to 13, and free for children 4 and under. Tickets are available at the door. The church is located at 7610 Ann Arbor St.

Self Defense Seminar

Commando Krav Maga in Chelsea will hold a free self-defense seminar for women at 10 a.m. Sept. 19. The course will demonstrate situational awareness, pre-contact cues, ground survival and breaking of chokes. Commando Krav Maga is located at 14495 N. Territorial Road.

To reserve a spot, e-mail ckmchelsea@gmail.com or call Mike Trester at 1-734-903-5003.

There are still 2010 Dexter Daze T-shirts available at the Dexter Card and Gift Shop in adult sizes of medium, large, extra large and 2X, and children's sizes of small and medium for a cost of $5 per shirt.

Cookbook sale

The Dexter American Legion Auxiliary 557 has collected the best recipes from group members, family, and friends and compiled them into a keepsake cookbook.

Cookbooks can be purchased from any member of the American Legion for $10. The cookbook contains 350 recipes. Proceeds benefit military care packages and community service projects.

For more information call Christine Gatward at 426-2062. Cookbooks are also available at the Dexter Card and Gift Shop and the Dexter Pharmacy.

Donations sought for FIA

Did you know Faith in Action stays open until 7 p.m. on Wednesday evenings to accept donations and provide service? They now need clothing for colder weather months and can especially use children's items. Also always useful are household items such as bedding, dishes and other housewares.

Faith in Action has served the emergency needs of Chelsea and Dexter for 30 years, focusing on food, utility shut off prevention, eviction prevention, and clothing needs. Call 475-3305 with questions. Faith in Action is open Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Veterans meeting

The area chapter of Veterans For Peace will hold a regional meeting at 10 a.m. Sept. 18 at Bear Claw Coffee, 12855 East Old US-12, just east of Chelsea and near I-94, Exit 162. The meeting is open to anyone interested in peace and justice issues, with a special invitation to military veterans. For more information, call 1-734-487-9058 or visit www.vfp93.org.

Car Wash

The Chelsea U-12 travel softball team, Michigan Classics, will be holding a car wash on Sept. 11 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Palmer Auto Service's downtown lot. Proceeds from the event help reduce the cost of play and help cover the costs of equipment.

Spanish classes

Continuing with the "Art on the Lake Series," Peace Lutheran Church at 8250 Jackson Road in Ann Arbor will offer a conversational Spanish course. The classes will center on learning conversational Spanish and will also cover some history, cultural and geographical aspects of the Spanish speaking countries. Call Peace Lutheran Church at 1-734-424-0899 for additional information.

Recover in time

By Terry Jacoby

Heritage Newspapers

More often than not, winning high school football games comes down to making big plays. And the Chelsea Bulldogs made enough big plays Friday night to knock off an exciting Monroe team 31-20 before an almost packed house in Chelsea.

The Bulldogs improve to 2-0 and face visiting Ypsilanti tomorrow. Monroe falls to 0-2.

Big plays came early and late for Chelsea. They came on offense and defense. And they came when they needed them most.

Joey Newland was a big-play Bulldog on Friday. Leading 19-13 late in the third quarter, the senior tailback all but carried Chelsea down the field. He had six carries in the drive for 37 yards to help the Bulldogs retake momentum and finished with 121 rushing yards.

Mason Borders was a big-play guy. The senior made some outstanding catches, including a huge catch on a third-and-13 play to score a touchdown in third quarter.

Ray Zielinski was a big-play guy on defense. All the senior defensive tackle did was recover two fumbles and provide plenty of toughness inside.

Cal Bauer was a big-play guy. He kept Monroe out of the end zone at the end of the game with a big stick on fourth-and-goal.

Chelsea's defense did give up some big plays, including a 77-yard run with 5:45 to play that sputtered at times and then looked unstoppable other times.

"We can be a lot better," said Borders, who finished with five catches for 122 yards and a touchdown. "There are times we can be really good and other times not so good because of penalties. We still have plenty to show."

Did someone mention penalties? You can be sure Chelsea coach Brad Bush brings up the subject during practice this week. The Bulldogs were called for nine penalties for 63 yards—at least a few though were questionable.

With former Michigan standout Braylon Edwards standing on the sidelines (along with Jets teammate Santonio Holmes) to watch his brother Berkley play for the first time on varsity, the Bulldogs came out fired up. Oh yeah, it also was the first home game of the season—a pretty big deal in Chelsea.

The Bulldogs stopped Monroe on three plays to start the game and then marched 10 plays covering 49 yards in just 2:55 to take a 7-0 lead on a two-yard run by Truman Hadley. The drive included a two-yard run by quarterback Brian Paulsen on fourth-and-one from the 4-yard line.

The Chelsea defense again did its part thanks to tackles for losses from both Tyler Frank and Hadley, who sacked Monroe quarterback Mitchell Kuehnlein for a seven-yard loss.

Athletes of the Week

Joey Newland, Chelsea

Joey Newland finished with 121 rushing yards vs. Monroe last week. The senior had six carries for 37 yards to help the Bulldogs retake momentum with a crucial TD drive in the third quarter.

Jenny Kempher, Manchester

The senior ran her personal best time for the Manchester varsity girls cross country team Sept. 1 during the Albion Invitational, finishing the race in 24:42. She beat her previous best by 15 seconds. Kempher is a senior who will try and help the Flying Dutch return to the Division 3 state championship meet in November.

DeAndre Mitchell, Milan

Milan senior tailback/linebacker DeAndre Mitchell scored two touchdowns on runs of 42 and 38 yards helping lead the Big Reds to a 21-0 victory over Huron League rival Riverview last Friday.

Lamont Howard, Belleville

Belleville senior running back Lamont Howard rushed for four touchdowns (5, 10, 1 and 3 yards) in a 54-14 blowout win over Redford Union last Thursday night.

Equestrian For DUMMIES

An inside look at the state's Horsemanship Association and the competition season for schools

By Robert Pineau
Guest Writer

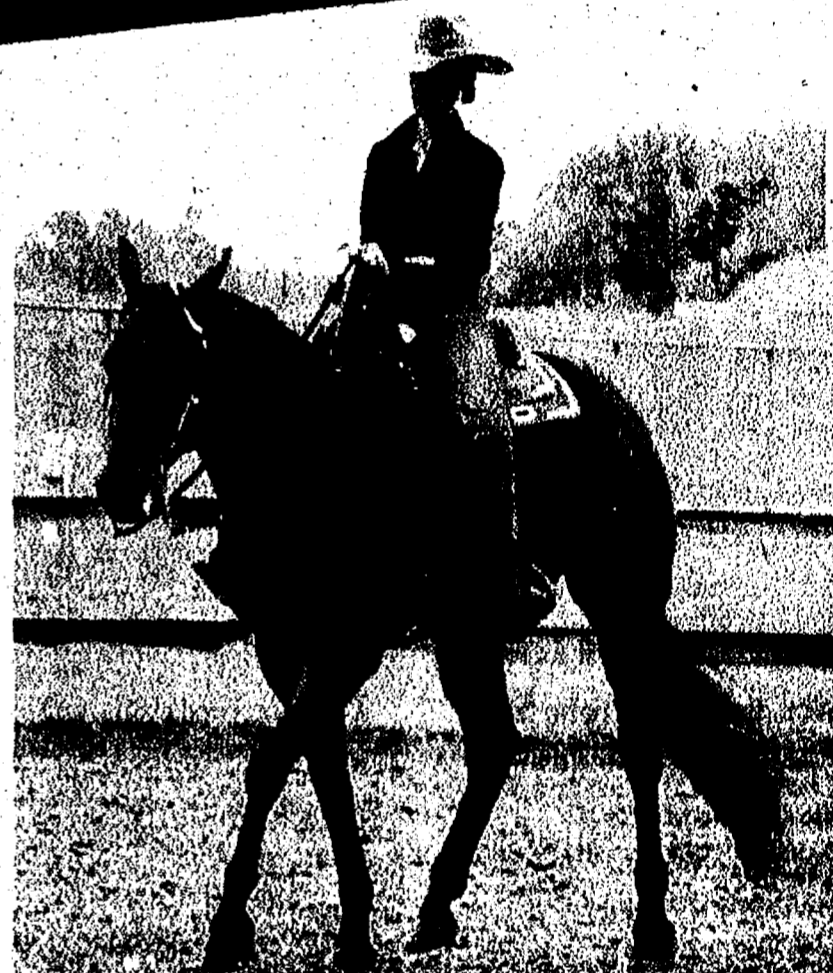

The 2010 Michigan Interscholastic Horsemanship Association high school competition season begins this coming week for schools all over the state. Few folks outside the stables of local equestrian programs know about the MIHA or a high school horsemanship competition. The MIHA was started in the early 1970s to organize Michigan's equestrian athletes under one umbrella. MIHA now includes more than 350 high school equestrian teams with more than 2,200 riders. Saline, Ann Arbor, Dexter, Chelsea, and many other school districts in Washtenaw County all field equestrian teams. The horses and riders are dedicated athletes, often training and competing year round in a variety of different circuits and local competitions as well as 4H.

The MIHA high school season has three regular district wide meets at which students from multiple schools all compete. Successful teams go on to the regional and state competitions. Many riders earn their high school varsity letters and then continue their riding competitions at the college level.

MIHA meets start with showmanship for all three seats. These are the only classes where the rider does not ride. Instead, the rider, or handler, "shows" the horse to the judge tacked just in a halter. The handler walks, trots, spins and presents the horse in a predetermined pattern. The judge looks for precision moves from the handler and horse. Showmanship is a bit like a dog show class. Presentation is very important. Horse and handler must be precise, shiny and clean.

There are three basic "seats" or styles of riding, in an MIHA competition. Each seat has its own horse tack - the type of saddle and bridle, and a different outfit is worn for each seat. The three seats are hunt seat, saddle seat and western.

A hunt seat rider sits on an English saddle and wears tall riding boots, breeches, usually a white shirt and tie, dress jacket and a helmet.

A saddle seat rider uses a slightly different English saddle, wears short patent leather boots, dress pants that go 6 inches past the heel, usually a white shirt and tie, a long dress jacket that goes to the knees, a color coordinating vest and a derby hat.

Western riders are the cowboys and cowgirls we are familiar with. They ride in a western saddle, cowboy boots, chaps, shirt and a cowboy hat. Where hunt seat and saddle seat riders have only little differences in dress from rider to rider, the western competitors can, and do, get expressive in their choice of chaps, shirt and hat.

It is very common for riders to show in more than one, or maybe all three, seats. This requires quick uniform and tack changes for both rider and horse as the time allotted for tack and uniform changes is only five minutes.

When the riding begins, each seat shows in three riding or "rail" classes. Each seat has an "equitation" class in which the skill of the rider, not the horse, is evaluated as they walk, trot and canter their horses in the arena with the other riders. Each seat also has a specialty or pattern class.

For hunt seat riders, the specialty class is jumping or equitation over fences. In this class the hunt seat rider is judged on her riding skill while clearing up to eight jumps set at 2'6". For saddle seat and western riders, the specialty class requires the rider to

Glossary of terms

Bits: The bit is the most important part of the bridle; the chief use of the other parts of the bridle is to hold the bit in place in the horse's mouth. The bit provides communication between the rider or driver and the horse.

Canter: The canter consists of a series of bounds. In the correct canter three hoof beats should be heard.

Cast: When a horse lies down or rolls to close to a wall, so it is impossible or difficult for it to get up without assistance.

Conformation: The build of a horse - the structure, form and symmetrical arrangements of physical parts.

Direct rein: Using one hand on each rein with a snaffle bit or bosal, teaching the horse to turn and give to the pressure caused by the pull of the rein.

Drassage: Exercise and training that develops the physique and ability of the horse.

Equitation: The art of horseback riding.

Full-pass: The horse in half-pass is bent into the direction of movement but does not move forwards at all, it moves sideways only.

Gait: Describes a specific foot fall pattern or beat, i.e., walk, trot, canter.

Half-pass: The horse is moving equally forwards and sideways. The horse's length is bent in the direction of movement. The movement can be ridden in walk, trot or canter.

Martingales: Two types: standing and running. The martingale prevents the elevation of the horse's head beyond a certain level without cramping the horse.

Menage: An arena for training horses.

On the bit: When the horse has rounded his back, has accepted your weight, has engaged his hindquarters, has accepted the contact in the mouth and has arched his neck. He has given himself up to the rider's aids. A nearly vertical line can be drawn down the front of the horse's face.

Piaffe: A movement in trot (alternate diagonals). A proud and rhythmic movement performed nearly on the spot.

Reins: The reins afford direct contact between the hands and horse's mouth. They regulate impulsion: slowing, stopping or backing the horse. The reins, acting through the mouth and the neck, are also used to change direction of travel or to turn the horse right or left.

Seat and hands: A term that refers to the ability of a rider to sit in the saddle with grace and control the mount.

Self carriage: When the horse is able to carry itself in balance through the various school movements without any support from the rein.

Trot: In the trot the diagonal legs must be raised from the ground simultaneously and be replaced on the ground together, making two hoof beats. A jump from one diagonal pair of legs to the other. A two beat tempo.

Walk: In the walk the horse moves his legs one after the other so that four hoof beats may be heard. For example: (1st) left forefoot, (2nd) right hind foot, (3rd) right forefoot and (4th) left hind foot. Two or three feet are always on the ground at the same time; the horse steps from one leg to the other and there is no moment of suspension.

Whalers tie in preseason game at Arctic Coliseum

More than 600 turn out in Chelsea to see pro hockey

Professional hockey hit the ice in Chelsea on Saturday night as Stefan Noesen's goal with 51 seconds remaining brought the Plymouth Whalers back from a 2-1 deficit as the Whalers and Windsor Spitfires battled to a 2-2 tie in the Ontario Hockey League preseason opener for both teams.

The game was played in front of approximately 650 fans at the Arctic Coliseum in Chelsea. "It was great to see the a full house at the Arctic Coliseum," said Pete Krupsky, director of communications for the Plymouth Whalers. "The fans saw a typical Plymouth-Windsor game that went down to the final minute."

"It was a pleasure working with the staff of the Arctic Coliseum and everyone associated with the Chelsea Hockey Association - in particular, Lisa Beam and Don Wright. We appreciate everyone's hard work to make the game a success." Noesen's goal came with the Whalers holding a 6-on-4 manpower advantage. Plymouth coach Mike Vellucci pulled goal-tender Matt Mahalak for an extra attacker and the Whalers already had a one-man advantage when Windsor's Nick Ebert was sent off for roughing at 18:52 of the third period.

Noesen deflected Austin Levi's point shot past Windsor goaltender Michael Nishi. Rickard Rakel drew the other assist on the play.

Earlier, Plymouth rookie defenseman Max Iafate - the son of former NHL defenseman Al Iafate - gave Plymouth a 1-0 lead at 4:47 of the first period when he accepted Sean Myers' pass in the slot in the Windsor zone and beat starting Spitfires goaltender Josh Malecki with a quick shot from the hash marks.

Stefan Noesen celebrates his game-tying goal in Chelsea.

Whalers Hockey

The Whalers open the 2010-11 season on Thursday, Sept. 23 in Windsor against the OHL champion Spitfires and play in their home opener on Saturday, Sept. 25 at 7 p.m. against Barrie at Compuware Arena.

Plymouth enjoyed a 25 percent increase in attendance last season and is holding ticket prices this season at $18 and $11, respectively. Season tickets, group tickets and single-game tickets can be purchased by calling the Compuware Arena box office at (734) 453-8400. More information can be found online at www.plymouthwhalers.com.

The game stayed that way until late in the third period when Windsor struck for a pair of goals to take their only lead of the game. Defenseman Steven Trojanovic tied the game for the Spitfires at 14:37 with a low wrist shot from the high slot that beat Mahalak, who appeared to be screened on the play. Windsor took their first lead of the game with 1:20 remaining, capping off good pressure in the Plymouth zone when Eric Locke scored on a scramble at the side of the Plymouth goal.

That set the stage for Noesen's equalizer. OHL teams do not play overtime or participate in shootouts during the preseason.

Scott Wedgewood started in goal for the Whalers and pitched a shutout through 29:07 of work. Mahalak went the rest of the way for Plymouth and allowed both Windsor goals.

Sports Briefs

WCC dedicates athletic fields

Officials from Washtenaw Community College will celebrate the opening of its new outdoor athletic fields from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 28. A ribbon-cutting ceremony will begin at 3:30 p.m.

Festivities are free and open to the public. Demonstrations, giveaways and a kickball game are part of the activities planned. Food also will be provided.

The new athletic fields at Washtenaw Community College include: a soccer field, baseball and softball diamonds, two basketball courts with lights, a sand volleyball court, two pavilions and a grounds/maintenance building with men's and women's restrooms.

WCC sponsored events will have priority use of the sports facilities. The community may reserve them for a fee.

Play golf like a pro

For the fourth straight year, Nature Valley is giving aspiring golfers the opportunity to play like a PGA TOUR player - competing on TPC and other great courses with fast greens, high rough and Sunday pin placements. The 2010 Nature Valley Amateur, a June-September series, includes qualifying events in 18 coast-to-coast markets, including the Detroit area.

The event will roll into Michigan on Sept. 13 at the TPC Michigan course in Dearborn.

Men and women with an established USGA handicap index between 0 and 24 are eligible. Each qualifying event will play host to four flights, with each flight winner earning the chance to compete in the Championship Weekend at TPC Sawgrass, home of THE PLAYERS Championship.

Golfers interested in reserving a spot or learning more about the Nature Valley Amateur can visit naturevalleygolf.com.

EQUESTRIAN

follow a predetermined pattern that includes a mixture of turns, circles, stops and back-ups all performed at the walk, trot and canter. The patterns and riding requirements for each seat are quite different.

The final class for each seat is the bareback class. This is what it sounds like. The saddles come off and the competitors ride together in the arena demonstrating their skills at the walk, trot and canter while bareback.

Each MIHA competition also has a trail class. This is a riding class in which a rider can choose to ride in any of the three seats. A predetermined riding pattern and set of obstacles must be navigated, all from in the saddle and all within a set time limit. The obstacles may include zig-zagging through cones, walking over a wooden bridge, opening, going through and closing a gate, picking up a noisy bag of tin cans and carrying them away, opening a mailbox and getting the mail, or maybe dismounting the horse and walking away while the horse waits patiently - and without moving - until the rider returns and remounts.

Horse shows can be long, tiring days. But the speed events, that are saved for the end of the day are the icing on the cake. This is when the rules regarding uniforms and riding decorum are relaxed. These are the events where the riders bring out their hunter orange or pink, or fluorescent green tack. These are the events where riders may paint a "brand" on their horses hind end or wear that flashy shirt with the flames that they can't wear anywhere else. These are the events where the crowd and team members yell and cheer for their riders.

These fun classes are known as speed events. There are four of them: clover leaf or "barrel racing", key hole, flag and the two-man relay. The speed events are the only classes that are not subjectively judged. An electronic timer that starts and stops when an electronic beam is crossed removes all of the guess work. The fastest rider to complete the course wins. And these riders are fast.

At the end of the day, the points earned by each team are added up. The scores from each of the three District meets are totaled and the top teams then go to a Regional Championship competition. The Champion and Reserve Champion for the Regional show then go on to the MIHA State Championship Show. The District meets are held in September. The Regional Championships will be Oct. 2-3 and the MIHA State Championship Show is Oct. 14-17. All of the meets are spectator-friendly and there is no charge for admission.

Chelsea soccer team falls to AA Huron

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea soccer team dropped a 3-0 game to Ann Arbor Huron last Monday, but unlike last season when Chelsea was merced by a strong Huron team with 30 minutes remaining in the game, the Bulldogs put up a good fight.

Chelsea came out a different team this year, a younger, more intense and hungry team.

The Bulldogs were playing well against Huron and looked to be the stronger team in the last 15 minutes of the first half with the game scoreless.

"That's when our goalkeeper was, in my opinion, wrongfully called for a penalty on a 50-60 ball inside our box," said Chelsea coach Shawn Hayes.

Huron scored on the penalty kick with 30 seconds remaining in the half to take a 1-0 lead into halftime.

"The second half was back and forth as both sides had their chances at goal but as Chelsea began to push players up the field in the remaining five minutes of the game, it created openings in our defense," Hayes said. "This allowed Huron to play long balls which allowed them a couple opportunities to take advantage of our low numbers in defense."

Huron scored their last two goals in the remaining 5 minutes of the game to win 3-0.

"All our players deserve credit for an outstanding performance," Hayes said. "Coming into games against the Ann Arbor schools, Saline and Dexter, we know we are the underdog and sometimes that can lead to ugly performances. But I felt our varsity team played the best game of soccer I've seen in our program in years and I give all that credit to the boys as well as some of our younger JV players that practice with us each day."

"This performance is a testament to their efforts as a team in their training environment and on the field during the games as well as their desire to be competitive, especially when the odds are stacked against them."

Golf Bulldogs drop pair in Chelsea quad meet

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

The Chelsea girls' golf team hosted a quad meet on Monday at Reddeman Farms Golf Course with Dexter, Saline and Ann Arbor Pioneer.

Dexter shot a team score of 198, falling to both Pioneer (190) and Saline (170) in head-to-head matches. The Dreads are 1-2 on the year.

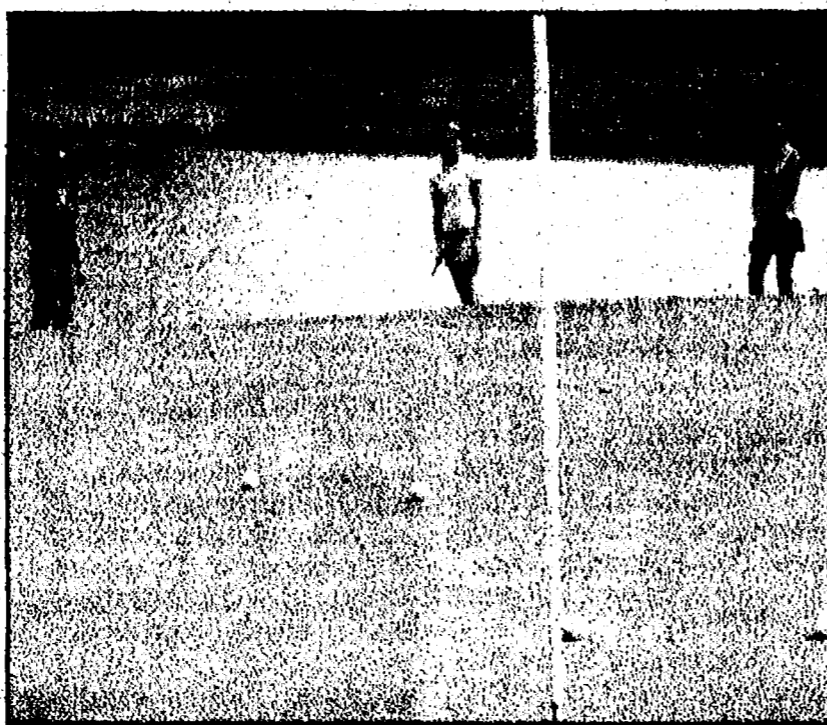

Chelsea shot 193 for the tournament and also lost to Pioneer and Saline.

Individual scoring leaders for Chelsea were Gabby Triveline (41), Judy Kim (49), Emily Shrobbree (51), Taylor Hansen (52), Mackenzie Cole (54) and Sarah Schultz (55).

Individual scoring leaders for Dexter were Jessie Schlanderer (43), Liz So (43), Danielle Schlaff (56), Morgan Campbell (56), Mary So (57) and Emily Stone (64).

"We are moving along in the right direction, but we need to become a more consistent team," Dexter coach Fred Ligrow said. "I look forward to seeing each of the girls play solid on the same day because I think they will be surprised at how well we can score when that happens."

Chelsea hosted Tecumseh yesterday and will play tomorrow at the Marshall Invitational.

Members of the Chelsea golf team work on their chipping.

Are Dreads 'same old Dexter'?

Forget about it. Say it out loud with me, Dexter.
Forget about it. Choose whatever accent you want when you say it. Just say it.

The Dexter football team needs to forget about the Ann Arbor Pioneer game on Thursday night. And just move on. They need to forget about it.

The Pioneer game was a test. It wasn't a final exam. Nothing is final in September when it comes to football. School hasn't even started so how could this be anything more than a quiz to find out where you stand and what you need to improve on.

Yes, it was an important game. It was a moment where the Dreads could have made a statement for everyone in the area to see. Dexter has been talking since last year that this year was going to be different and this was an opportunity - the first of several - where they could prove that.

While I was walking along the sideline at Chelsea the following night, a Bulldogs "supporter" started talking to me about the Dexter-Pioneer game. He shook his head and said, "same old Dexter."

And he was right because it was "same old Dexter." A strong Pioneer team came into town and steamrolled them. It was over at halftime. It got ugly as the number under "guest" on the scoreboard continued to rise.

But it was just one game. Let the good folks in Chelsea and Saline and Ann Arbor and Adrian believe that it's "same old Dexter." Let them believe what they want. But at some point these Dreads are going to change people's minds about this football team and this program.

And it starts Friday in Adrian. The Maples are good. They just knocked off Saline in their stadium in front of a huge crowd. They came from behind and won in overtime to improve to 2-0. They have some swagger in their step and confidence on their side.

It's not going to be easy. But Dexter has some quality football players and it's time for them to show people what they can do. And more importantly, there is a lot of football left to be played.

Tom Barbieri and the Dexter coaching staff needs to refocus this team and get that confidence back. They need to hammer home the point that two games is not a season. Other tests await and the best way to pass them is by preparing, believing and executing.

Against Pioneer, they may have prepared and believed. But they certainly didn't execute. And when they fell behind, the whispers began. "Same old Dexter."

How the Dreads come out and play against Adrian will dictate the rest of their season. If they come out and play up to their ability and with the fire they seem to all possess, the Maples will be in trouble. But if they come out flat, fall behind and get pummeled then all the preparation for this year will have been for naught.

A victory and the "same old Dexter" will have a brand new meaning.

ON THE SIDELINE

BY TERRY JACOBY

CHELSEA 31, MONROE 20

GAME NOTES

Turnovers: You hear about it every week during football season: Turnovers cost teams ballgames. Monroe must be feeling that way this week. The Trojans turned the ball over three times while the Bulldogs had no turnovers. Of course, some big hits by Chelsea helped cause a few of those turnovers.

By the numbers: The one that sticks out is a zero. As in zero penalties. The Bulldogs had nine penalties for 76 yards in the opener against Huron. Chelsea had great balance on Friday, rushing for 222 yards while throwing for 175. Chelsea was 6 of 12 on third-down conversions, compared to 2 of 11 for Monroe.

Cool evening: Kickoff for Dexter's game on Thursday against Pioneer was 77 degrees. Kickoff for Chelsea's game on Friday evening was 65. Jackets and sweat shirts were brought out of the closet for this one.

Both sides of the ball: After Truman Hadley scored on a two-yard run to put Chelsea on the scoreboard, the junior had a big sack on Monroe's next possession. Hadley nailed Monroe's Mitchell Kuehnlein for a seven-yard loss on a second-and-eight play at the 22-yard line.

Big hitters: Several Chelsea defenders made nice plays during Friday's win including Spencer Mykala, Logan Yordanich, Andrew Koch, Cal Bauer, Tyler Frank and Conner Townsend.

Big loss: Chelsea's Matt Mills, a senior guard, was playing a solid game for the Bulldogs when he injured his knee. He was on crutches along the sideline cheering on his team late in the game.

Scoring Summary:

1st 7:31 CHELSEA - T. Hadley 2 yd run (C. Hess kick) 10 plays, 49 yards, Chelsea 7-0
1st 3:35 CHELSEA - B. Edwards 9 yd run (C. Hess kick failed) 4 plays, 52 yards, Chelsea 13-0
1st 4:00 MONROE - M. Kuehnlein 3 yd run (A. Bender kick) 7 plays, 42 yards, Chelsea 13-7
2nd 6:23 CHELSEA - C. Ballow 9 yd pass from B. Paulsen (kick failed) 7 plays, 99 yards, Chelsea 19-7
3rd 8:47 MONROE - S. Quinn 3 yd run (kick failed) 4 plays, 33 yards, Chelsea 19-13
4th 9:45 CHELSEA - M. Borders 17 yd pass from Paulsen (kick failed) 13 plays, 83 yards, Chelsea 25-13
4th 8:07 CHELSEA - B. Paulsen 1 yd run (Paulsen pass failed) 8 plays, 45 yards, Chelsea 31-13
4th 5:45 MONROE - A. Swindeman 77 yd run (A. Bender kick) 1 play, 77 yards, Chelsea 31-20

One on One: With Mason Borders

On how the Bulldogs played against Monroe: "We came out strong in the first half and scored two touchdowns early. I think then we thought it was going to be an easy win, but we let them back into the game. In the second half we did a good job of getting after them."

On his relationship with QB Brian Paulsen: "We have been throwing back and forth to one another for a long time. It goes way back."

On the Chelsea offense: "We can be a lot better. There are times we can be really good and other times not so good because of penalties. We still have plenty to show."

FOOTBALL

The offense marched right back down the field and scored on Edwards' nine-yard run. His brother got there just in time to see the sophomore score his second varsity TD of the season. The big play was a reverse to Nate Udell who pulled up and threw a 36-yard pass to Borders.

Leading 13-0, it looked like Chelsea was going to run away with this - but looks can be deceiving and Monroe looked to get right back in the game on its next drive. They covered 42 yards and scored in seven plays to make 13-7.

With 6:23 to play until halftime, the Bulldogs returned to the end zone on a nine-yard pass from Paulsen to Chris Ballow, who also played a solid game for Chelsea. The Bulldogs took a 19-7 lead into halftime.

After the Chelsea offense came out slow in the third quarter, Monroe cut the lead to 19-13 on a three-yard run by Samuel Quinn.

It stayed that way until the fourth quarter when Paulsen hit Borders to make it 25-13. After Zielinski recovered his second fumble of the game, the Bulldogs went 45 yards in eight plays and scored on Paulsen's quarterback-keeper from the 1-yard line to make it 31-13 with 3:18 to play in the game.

Paulsen finished 11 for 15 passing for 139 yards, two touchdowns and one interception.

Edwards rushed for 62 yards on 14 carries and Ballow had a hard-earned 27 yards on only four carries.

Bulldogs split in SEC action

The Chelsea varsity volleyball team defeated Ann Arbor Huron 16-25 27-25 25-18 25-22 and lost to Ann Arbor Skyline 25-21 16-25 12-25 23-25 in Southeastern Conference action last week.

Megan Brockett had 19 kills and Michelle Wellman had 16. Briana Carden led the Bulldogs with 79 assists and Wellman led the way with 10 aces.

Chelsea is 1-1 in the SEC. The Bulldogs play today at Gabriel Richard and on Saturday at the Jackson Community College Invitational.

VOLLEY

"Even though we are playing a whole game and getting that experience, we also are looking at specific things that we want to improve on," she said. "We also increase the intensity of the drill by keeping score. I want that intensity there during practice."

And the intensity certainly is there. The sounds and sights of this practice include the squeak from not only the sneakers but players diving on the floor. The players are quite vocal, cheering each other on and celebrating each point. It's just like a game - except that both teams are wearing Chelsea blue.

The chatter is all about support and encouragement: "Good save." "Great job." "Let's be ready." "Let's go, let's win this point."

While Cleveland may be focused on footwork, the girls are focused on getting that point. And it's always about getting that point in volleyball because the point is to beat the other team.

While the freshman team practices to one side and the JV team on the other, the varsity team is centered on what they are trying to accomplish on this day.

"I like to do all our training with the net involved," Cleveland said. "We try to make all the drills as much like game-type situations as we can. I think they learn faster and better playing within a game instead of just doing drills."

Cleveland is in her 11th season as coach of the Bulldogs. And she's having a blast. Her enthusiasm is noticeable as soon as you walk in the gym. A graduate of Dexter High School in 1989, Cleveland is all Chelsea now.

"I'm a Bulldog now," she says with a smile. "I remember one of my first games as coach was against Dexter and the other coach was my former middle school physical education teacher. That was a lot of fun."

And watching Cleveland coach today, it's easy to see that it's still a lot of fun.

Michigan records a happy tune in opening-game victory - so let's enjoy it

When you mention records, some young people might look at you funny. They weren't around when records were spinning on the turntable or playing in the juke box.

But on Saturday at the Biggest House, a young man who probably couldn't tell you what an LP is dropped the needle on a new hit song, "Shoelaces Don't Need To Be Tied But Records Are Made To Be Broken," that had Michigan Stadium rocking and rolling and dancing in the aisles and out into the streets of Ann Arbor.

And don't tell me to calm down. Don't explain to me that the Wolverines started off 2009 the same way. I don't want to hear that it's just one game.

Because it's one game I would like to enjoy before all the nitpicking begins. Before all the doubters start shaking their heads. Before many true blue Michigan fans start singing the blues because it's the only type of music they know.

Denard Robinson certainly wasn't playing the blues on Saturday. He was playing a style of Michigan football that kept the record-setting 113,090 fans on the edge of their brand new seats. Every time he touched the ball you felt like something big was going to happen. It was Springsteen ripping into the third verse of "Born to Run." It was Al Michaels asking if you believe in miracles. It was Jack at Augusta in 1984 and Desmond in the end zone in 1991.

Magic Electrifying. Top of the roller-coaster. Why can't we just enjoy the ride for a day or two?

Just a few minutes after Michigan finished off the University of Connecticut 30-10 on Saturday in Ann Arbor, I called my die-hard Wolverine friend. He picked up the phone and before even saying hello, he said: "If they keep running Robinson like that, he's not going to make it to the third game."

While walking through the concourse after the game I heard this little nugget: "I don't trust that defense."

I heard another guy wearing a Michigan hat say, "(Tate) Forcier threw three touchdowns in the first game last year and look how that turned out."

Enough, already. No one is making bowl plans. No one is offering coach Rich Rodriguez a contract extension. I'm not screaming bring on Ohio State or Michigan State or Moorhead State.

But the Wolverines road back to relevance has to begin somewhere and maybe Rodriguez's GPS is finally taking us in the right direction. Wasn't getting off to a good start important? Wasn't beating a pretty good and experienced team from the Big East a sign of hope? Wasn't the way the Wolverines played both exciting and effective and encouraging?

It was an almost perfect start to the season - what more could you really ask for in an opening game.

The Wolverines certainly have found their quarterback. Robinson set a school record - he broke it in the third quarter - for most rushing yards in a game by a U-M quarterback with 206 yards on 29 carries. What was equally as impressive was his passing (19 of 22 for 186 yards) and his ability to deliver on big third-down plays.

The jury is still out on the defense. It's pretty clear that Michigan is going to have to score some points to win on a consistent basis once the Big Ten begins. Hopefully, the young defense improves as the season moves along and into the rough stretch in October.

But the defense showed some promise. UConn came into the game with an experienced offense and a few weapons. The Wolverines didn't back down, making some big plays when they had to and clearly killing the Huskies' momentum when they forced a fumble on a fourth-and-one play at the Michigan 7-yard line.

Is there some concern about the running game? Neither Vincent Smith (14 carries, 51 yards) or Michael Shaw (15 carries, 59 yards) separated himself as the go-to runner. It's just something that will have to play out over the course of a few weeks or even the whole season.

Of course, there will still be varying opinions on how Michigan played and what it means. So let's deal in some facts that even the biggest nay-sayers can't argue with: The Wolverines had no turnovers, were 14 of 19 on third-down conversions, had only one penalty and were four for four in the red zone.

That's pretty impressive, no matter who is lining up on the other side of the ball.

So I'm turning off the talk radio for a few days. I'm not going to read about how bad UConn is and how shaky the defense may have looked at times or how the Wolverines started out 4-0 last year or what's going to happen if Robinson gets hurt.

I'm going to smoke my maize and blue pipe and put on my new favorite record. It's got a great beat and you can dance to it. For one week at least, Michigan is at the top of the charts in my countdown. Two records in one day. Kids, they call that a double album.

Braylon shows up in Chelsea

NFL star watches his kid brother play for Bulldogs

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

Braylon Edwards stood on the sideline watching intently as his younger brother was trying to make a name for himself on the football field Friday night in Chelsea. After one play where Berkley Edwards was grabbed and thrown for a loss, Braylon shook his head and said, "some-one's gotta block."

The former Michigan standout made a surprise visit to Chelsea High School during a short break from the New York Jets, who open the season on Monday Night Football Sept. 13 against the Baltimore Ravens. Braylon got there just in time to see his kid brother score on a nine-yard touchdown run in the first quarter.

"I saw him play when he was younger, but not since he's been in high school," Braylon said during halftime of the Bulldogs' 31-20 victory over Monroe. "He didn't know I was coming. I told my dad not to tell him. So this was all last-minute and hopefully when he saw me he lit up a bit."

Braylon's visit certainly sent electricity through the crowded bleachers as whispers and finger pointing made the trip up and down the stands in the first quarter. It created a little buzz to an already electric evening. After all, the first home football game of the year is always an event in Chelsea.

Berkley Edwards, only a sophomore, was happy to see his older brother.

"I had no idea he was coming," Berkley said. "When I saw him over there, I thought 'wow,' what a great surprise."

But having the big NFL star in the house was no different for Berkley than having his big brother in his own house.

"No, it really wasn't any extra incentive (having Braylon at the game)," Berkley said. "I just wanted to play my game and help the team win. I thought we played OK, but we still have a lot of work to do."

Berkley played JV as a freshman, and with Nick Hill in the backfield, there wasn't much room on varsity last year for a ninth-grader. This year, Berkley is one of several running backs sharing the load for Chelsea.

"They've been great," Berkley said of seniors Joey Newland and Chris Ballow. "They've helped me a lot with the plays, what to do in certain situations and how to run."

The Chelsea running backs certainly found a new fan in Braylon, who described them as the "three-headed monster."

"They have a real nice group of running backs," he said. "That No. 20 (Newland) is a real good running back. They definitely have some good backs to choose from."

Braylon said Berkley reminds him of their father.

"He definitely has my father's build," said Braylon, who describes Berkley as "quiet."

"He's really into dogs," he says. "He loves dogs. And he loves cars. That's pretty much it with him. Dogs, cars and of course football."

With Braylon now living in the New York City area a good part of the year, he doesn't get one opportunity to see his brother very often, but he certainly cherishes the time they do get together.

"Berkley is probably more busy than I am," he said. "When he's not playing football, he's playing basketball. When he's not playing basketball, he's running track. So he's always busy. And football in the NFL now is a year-round deal. But when I get home in the off-season we get together and he comes up to a few games during the season."

"But most of the time, he's busy and I'm busy and we both understand that."

Braylon, who was watching the game with some friends and teammates, including Santonio Holmes, looked to be enjoying his time on the sidelines - watching football in its purest form.

"Yeah, this really does bring me back," he said. "Me and my teammates and friends were just talking about that, what it was like when we were in high school. We were talking about playing in front of the high school crowds and who was the most popular cheerleaders and finding your mom in the stands and things like that."

"It takes me back to when football was just football. No politics. No money. Just football."

Braylon, now 27, did notice some differences compared to his prep playing days.

"Yeah, I like this complex they have here (in Chelsea)," he said. "We didn't have anything like this when I played at Bishop Gallagher. We didn't have the field turf, this nice track and the big stands. I'm just happy that Berkley gets to play in a place like Chelsea. I'm really happy for him."

Edwards was the big man on campus in Ann Arbor from 2001 to 2004 when he played for the Wolverines. During his senior year, Edwards set school season records for receptions (97) and yards (1,330). He also set career records with 252 receptions, 3,541 yards and 39 touchdowns.

And like most "True Blue" Michigan fans, he hopes the Wolverines can turn things around in 2010.

"I don't know a lot about them this year, but I have heard the young quarterback is looking really good," said Edwards, the only wide receiver in Big Ten history and the third in NCAA Division I to gain 1,000 or more receiving yards in three consecutive years. "It's (Rodriguez) third year and I hope they can put it all together. I have heard they look better now than they have the past few years so we'll see."

"But no matter what happens, I've always been and forever will be a diehard Michigan fan. And that started with my dad."

Edwards' father, Stan, was a running back at Michigan (1977-81) before playing six seasons in the NFL. He was a third-round draft pick in 1982 by the Houston Oilers. Football, obviously, runs - and catches - in the family.

There are big expectations for Braylon and the Jets this season. Part of it is because they came within a game of the Super Bowl last year after barely squeaking into the playoffs. And another reason is the national exposure the team has gotten from the popular HBO show "Hard Knocks." The exceptionally well-done documentary-style show takes viewers into training camp and oftentimes behind locked doors.

While Jets coach Rex Ryan has been the so-called "star" of the show, Braylon and other Jets have taken their snaps in front of the camera, both on and off the field.

"It's not really a distraction because after the first couple of days you get used to it," he said. "Sometimes you forget they're there and that can be a bad thing," he said laughing.

"I think it's been good for exposure and it's good for the fans to see what really goes on at an NFL training camp. It's been a lot of fun."

After watching Chelsea coach Brad Bush get on the officials and a few players a little bit during the first half, Braylon stopped short of comparing him to Ryan, the sometimes fiery Jets coach.

(Bush) has a little more of a RichRod (Rodriguez) feel," Braylon said. "Coach Ryan is really laid back as it relates to game day. He's more talking to coaches than yelling at players or referees. Whereas RichRod is really vocal on the sidelines and he's not afraid to chew out a player."

Braylon was the third overall pick in 2005 by the Cleveland Browns. He made the Pro Bowl in 2007 but along with the team, struggled in 2008. He was traded to the Jets in 2009 where he had a solid, but not spectacular season during his first year in green and white.

Braylon Edwards has always been an electric player and bigger-than-life personality off the field. And he feels right at home on the biggest stage in New York City.

"No, I wouldn't say there is added pressure," he said. "You have the Yankees and so much going on there that people pay attention to. But they do have a great fan base, especially when you are doing well. They really love their teams. And I love it there. I'm just glad to have the opportunity to play there."

Michigan vs. Notre Dame

When: Saturday 3:30 p.m.
Where: South Bend, Ind.
TV: NBC

Records: Michigan 1-0; Notre Dame 1-0

Michigan last week: Sophomore QB Denard Robinson rushed for 197 yards - a school record for a quarterback - and one touchdown to go along with 186 yards passing and a score to lead the Wolverines to a 30-10 victory over Connecticut at the rededication of Michigan Stadium. The Wolverines rushed for 287 yards and three touchdowns on 61 carries.

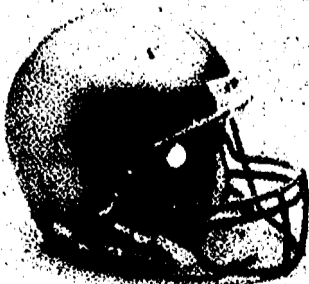

U-M Player to watch: The Michigan offense will revolve around Robinson, an electrifying player every time he touches the ball.

Notre Dame last week: Dayne Crist threw for 206 yards and a touchdown in his first start and Notre Dame's defense was solid last Saturday in a 23-12 win over Purdue that gave coach Brian Kelly a victory in his Fighting Irish debut. Kelly came to South Bend after a successful run at Cincinnati where he led the Bearcats to 12-0 regular season a year ago.

ND Player to watch: Running back Armando Allen carried the ball 18 times for 98 yards and a touchdown in the win over Purdue.

Outlook: Expect this game to be won or lost on big plays. Both teams have skilled players capable of creating memorable moments in a stadium that has seen its share of highlights over the years. While both coaches are more known for throwing the ball, the ground game will be a big factor on Saturday. The Wolverines and Irish both found great success on the ground in their opening games. The Irish only had two penalties in their opener while Michigan was penalized only once against UConn. No doubt the winner of this game will claim "we're back" afterwards. It's U-M's only real test before the Big Ten starts.

Record opening: The expanded Big House set the single game record on the opening week of a season with as many question marks as there were new seats. The announced crowd of 113,090 shattered the old record, also set at Michigan Stadium, of 112,118 set in 2003 against Ohio State. The attendance was announced in the fourth quarter and created a roar throughout the "Biggest House."

Shane Battier visits CHS volleyball team

By Terry Jacoby
Heritage Newspapers

Former Duke basketball standout and NBA player Shane Battier spoke to the Chelsea varsity volleyball team after practice last week.

Battier's main point to the team was about the "power of the next play." He spoke about the importance of not getting too high after a great play either you or a teammate made and not getting too low after a bad play.

Battier also talked about how goal setting is a key to his success as a high school, college and NBA player. He challenged each player to write their goals down on an index card, place them where you can see them every day and in the morning look at the goals. At the end of the day when you are brushing your teeth, take a look again and ask yourself in the mirror if you did all you could to achieve your goals.

Another important point was that your goals won't be achieved in a week or so, but you need to put in the work over a long period of time.

"The team really enjoyed his speech that used his personal life story as an example of how you too can be successful," said Chelsea volleyball coach Laura Cleveland.

Battier was born in Birmingham and graduated from Detroit Country Day where he earned Mr. Basketball honors as the top high school player in the state. He also graduated with a 3.96 grade-point average.

At Duke, he helped lead the Blue Devils to two Final Fours and an NCAA title in 2001. He currently plays for the Houston Rockets.

Former Duke basketball star Shane Battier talks to members of the Chelsea volleyball team.

JV volleyball team wins pair

The Chelsea junior varsity girls' volleyball team hosted their first home contest by hosting a quad with Dexter, Skyline and Huron. Chelsea beat Skyline 26-24, 22-25, 25-15 and Huron 25-16, 25-15. They did not play against Dexter.

"The team is improving every time they play," said coach Sue Jacobs. "They are learning smart decision making depending on the situation and getting better with their efficiency."

They play today at Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard (freshman and JV at 5 p.m. followed by the varsity at 7 p.m.).

State fisheries decimated by invasion of the Sea Lamprey

A few weeks ago I wrote a column on the dedicated scientists with the United States Geological Survey (USGS), in which we discussed the elusive Northern Mad Tom.

Russell Strach, the director of the center, informed me of their Sea Lamprey Biological Center on the shores of Lake Huron, just south of the Mackinaw Bridge. Dr. Roger Bergstedt is the director of this research facility.

Well, it just so happened that our family was vacationing at Camp Michigan last week a few miles from Petoskey. I had discussed the idea of making the hour-long drive to visit the Sea Lamprey research facility and the kids loved the idea. So, after a week of sailing, trap shooting, sand castles, archery and polishing Petoskey stones our time at Camp Michigan was over. We packed up the car and headed to Hammond Bay on Lake Huron.

Dr. Nick Johnson, a veteran scientist who has spent 10 years at the Hammond Bay Biological Center, was waiting for us when we arrived on Saturday morning.

Nick met us outside his sprawling facility and we were taken back by the sheer beauty of this magnificent 64-acre research facility located on the shores of Lake Huron. This facility used to be a lighthouse with the US Coast Guard almost a century ago. Nick explained that the waters here are difficult to navigate and the lighthouse was essential to keeping sailors safe from the treacherous rocky shores.

Thankfully, better maps became available of the lakes making it safer for the sailors to navigate themselves away from the beautiful yet dangerous shores.

So, what is a Sea Lamprey and where do they come from?

Dr. Nick Johnson, a veteran scientist, has spent 10 years at the Hammond Bay Biological Center on Hammond Bay.

A Sea Lamprey is a parasitic fish that looks a lot like an eel but has the circular mouth with dozens of razor sharp teeth. They grow to about 2 feet in length and feed off of other fish like Lake Trout, Whitefish and Salmon.

They literally swim up to one of these fish and anchor themselves on by suction. Then they'll begin to sink their teeth into the flesh and suck on the blood until the fish dies or somehow gets away. Even the one's who get away can die from infection or being too weak to feed or swim.

Sea Lampreys come from the Atlantic Ocean and came in from the ballasts of freighter ships. Nick said it best in describing the problem with Sea Lampreys here in the Great Lakes "a shark or other large ocean fish can survive a sea lamprey attack but a small fish like the Lake Trout simply can't."

Nick's sentiment is correct.

The Great Lakes fisheries have been decimated by the invasion of the Sea Lamprey. They were first spotted in Lake Huron in 1936 and large numbers of them abounded in the 1940's according to Nick. The Great Lakes commercial fishing numbers plummeted so bad that the Hammond Bay Coast Guard facility was turned into the first Sea Lamprey research facility. It's gone through a few name changes but this facility is now run by the USGS.

Nick is literally on the front lines of fighting off the Sea Lamprey within the Great Lakes. He and others like him have dedicated their lives to saving our fish of the Great Lakes.

But, it's their research that has paid off in so many ways. I always thought experiments were kind of boring in high school. But these guys make science look sexy.

There's a lot of truth in my comments.

Nick and scientists like him have used sex as a weapon against the Sea Lamprey. And, with enough luck we may be able to manage, if not eliminate them in the Great Lakes altogether.

We need to understand the life cycle of the Sea Lamprey in order to exploit their weaknesses. I was shocked to learn that Sea Lampreys live a very long life; but not as an adult like we would think. The adult female lays her eggs in a stream, river or creek and is immediately fertilized by the male.

They live in the larval stage for 3 to 13 years as an eyeless creature about the size of a night crawler worm. They live in the sand just as worms do for years and years until they finally get big enough to go out into the Great Lakes.

I was surprised to learn that the adult Sea Lamprey only lives for one year in the Great Lakes before returning to the spawning beds then dying right after. Just imagine how devastating they'd be if they lived for more than one year in the open waters.

Scientists were stumped at how the adult lampreys came back to where the larval lampreys were. It took years but they figured it out and this is truly amazing. The eyeless and worm like baby lampreys were continually sending out pheromones downstream. The adult lampreys could smell the

This sea lamprey didn't take long to start sucking on the forearm of outdoors columnist Rick Taylor.

"sexy" call and headed upstream to their exact location and spawned.

The scientists knew that they could raise baby lampreys in their research facility and "catch" the pheromones they produce. They could store and freeze the captured pheromones and use it at will to trick the Lampreys into going somewhere else; perhaps a trap.

Scientists also worked on a Sea Lamprey repellent for years. They found the best repellent to be a dead lamprey itself. The scientists emulsified a lamprey (they would put a Sea Lamprey in a blender) and turn it into a puree for lack of a better term. They found that live lamprey would scatter for cover at the slightest hint of that smell.

Now scientists had a repellent and an attractant. The scientists can use the repellent to keep Sea Lampreys from going upstream to a popular spawning bed. They could then use the attractant to lure them to a trap or infertile grounds.

This is science at its finest and I'm humbled at their successes.

This work is still in the experimental stage and scientists are currently using other methods to combat the growth of Sea Lampreys. Two methods are currently being used. The first method is catching adult males in the spring and chemically sterilizing them (similar to chemotherapy) but not killing them. The scientists would then release them into the St. Mary's River and mate with the female. She has no idea that he can't produce active sperm.

Another method involves the use of a poison that I can't even pronounce which kills off the lampreys in the larval stage.

Right now Dr. Nick Johnson with the USGS, US Fish and Wildlife and the Canadian Department of Fisheries and Oceans (DFO) are working together. 20 streams have been selected; 10 in Canada and 10 in the US. These streams will be treated with the pheromones and repellent. I'm excited to read about their successes in the near future in battling this invasive species.

2010 DNRE fall hunting preview

Prospects for the fall big-game hunting seasons are excellent as seasons remain long and bag limits and/or hunting opportunities have, in several cases, been increased. Department of Natural Resources and Environment officials say.

Hunters need look no further than Michigan's favorite game animal, the white-tailed deer, to see the changes.

As hunters will recall, last year saw liberalization of crossbow regulations. As hunting activity increased dramatically during the early archery season, the Natural Resources Commission voted to further liberalize crossbow rules. This year, the minimum age was dropped from 12 to 10 and all hunters statewide can use crossbows during any season except for post-Nov. 30 hunting in the Upper Peninsula. Hunters are reminded, however, that if they do pursue game with a crossbow, they must obtain a (free) crossbow stamp from any license dealer or on-line.

In addition, there is no limit on the number of antlerless deer licenses hunters may buy in most of southern Michigan (Deer Management Units 041 and 486) or in the tuberculosis area (DMU 487). Also new this year, hunters in DMU 487 may tag an antlerless deer with a buck tag during firearms seasons.

As usual, there are a variety of limited-access deer seasons. For youths and disabled veterans, Sept. 25-26 is open season. Youths may hunt antlerless deer Sept. 21-24 in DMUs 041 and 486. And a firearms hunt for disabled hunters is scheduled for Oct. 14-17.

Here are others:

Wild turkey

Season: Sept. 15 - Nov. 14 in the Upper Peninsula and southern Lower Peninsula. Although licenses were available through a lottery, there are plenty of leftovers that went on sale Aug. 30. Hunters need not have applied for the lottery to purchase a license. New this year, is a much earlier starting date (by three weeks) and the opportunity for hunters to purchase one license a day until the quota is met. The combination of a longer season and numerous licenses allows for significantly more opportunity to participate.

JV football team falls Monroe

It was a rough outing for the JV Chelsea football team, but a closer game than the 27-7 score indicates in the Bulldogs' loss to Monroe on Thursday.

Monroe opened the game with the first possession and Evan Kelly made the game's first big play by stripping a Monroe ball carrier of the ball. Zach Rabbitt recovered the fumble but Chelsea was unable to capitalize after missing a field-goal attempt. On Monroe's second possession, Logan Brown intercepted an errant throw and set the Bulldog offense up again. Chelsea drove to the Trojan 3-yard line, but had its field-goal attempt blocked.

Late in the second quarter, Monroe returned a punt deep into Chelsea territory and scored a touchdown on a pass with 8 seconds left. The PAT was missed and the teams went to half with Monroe leading 6-0. Chelsea took the opening kick in the second half and drove the ball inside the Monroe 1-yard line. Again, Chelsea was turned away after a false start penalty, a sack and a third missed field-goal attempt.

Chelsea's defense again held strong forcing a Monroe punt, but the ball hit a Chelsea returner in the leg and Monroe was able to recover. That was the turning point in the game. Monroe scored on its ensuing drive running the score to 14-0. Chelsea fumbled the ball on its next offensive play and the Trojans capitalized minutes later to make the score 20-0.

With 10 minutes left in the fourth quarter, QB Alex Maloney led Chelsea down the field in its hurry-up offense. Passes of 32 yards to Alex Bielecki, 18 yards to Kyle Koseck, and 21 yards to Craig Centofanti got the ball inside the Monroe 1-yard line. This time, Maloney punched it in on a sneak and the lead was cut to 20-7. The game was soon put out of reach as Monroe ripped off an 80-yard run to seal its win. "The bottom line is that the better team won, but we shot ourselves in the foot too many times," coach Chris Orlandi said. "We had four red-zone trips and only came away with seven points. We had a fumbled snap and a punt hit us in the leg. In the fourth quarter, our defense surrendered two touchdown runs of more than 60 yards."

"Against good competition, you won't win games with those kinds of mistakes. On the positive side, our defense fought hard for three quarters and kept us close. We competed well and moved the ball decently for most of the night. This game was a great learning experience for us and hopefully, we'll be better for having been through it."

Freshman

The Chelsea freshmen lost 53-6 in Monroe. Ethan Whitaker had the one score for the Bulldogs. Chelsea had five turnovers in the game. "Monroe is a very well coached, physical freshman team," said Chelsea coach Dennis Strzyzewski. "We did not compete very hard in the game, and that was disappointing. We will improve and we will learn to play hard. We all just need to keep working and it will click."

Bulldogs run to second place at invitational

The Chelsea girls' cross country team broke out of the blocks in fine fashion Wednesday night, despite some brutal weather.

The Bulldogs finished second at the eighth-team Corunna Earlybird Invitational on a rainy, muggy and soggy afternoon. Chelsea finished with 64 points, behind only first-place finisher Linden (37 points).

Host Corunna was a distant third with 94 points.

"This was a good start for us," said Chelsea coach Pat Clarke. "We used our pack running to pull out a second-place finish in this fine opener."

Junior Jessi Battaglia led the way with a great race, placing fifth with a fine time of 21 minutes, 29 seconds. Junior Danielle Dahl placed seventh with one of her best races ever. Sophomore Ella Fritzemeier had her best race to place 14th at 22:40. And junior Elaine Johnson, freshman Madison Nelson and senior Corinne Carpenter placed 16th, 22, and 24 to win medals.

"We showed a lot more speed this year than last year," Clarke said. "We learned a lot about where we are and what we need to do. We will improve as the season progresses, and hopefully get to where we want to be."

Also competing for Chelsea were Gwen Hubbard, Kennedy Aldrich and Lauren O'Toole.

OUTDOORS

Outlook: Most of the opportunity will be on private land and although turkeys are by no means evenly distributed, there are areas where landowners consider their populations to be problematic, especially in agricultural areas. Fall hunting differs somewhat from spring season, though birds will still come to a call and archery deer hunters who have a turkey permit can add an additional dimension to their hunts.

Bear

Season: Bear seasons run from Sept. 10 to Oct. 26, with a variety of permutations depending on the area of the state. Licenses are issued by lottery with an application period that ends June 1, though there are sometimes a few leftover licenses available.

Outlook: Bear populations are fairly stable, though some subtle adjustments have been made to quotas, especially in the northern Lower Peninsula's Red Oak Management Unit. Preliminary indications are that the mast crop was very good to excellent across much of bear range; traditionally, bear harvests have been lower when good acorn and wild berry/fruit crops are plentiful. Still, DNRE biologists expect a typical harvest of about 2,000 bear this fall.

Elk

Season: Aug. 31 - Sept. 3 and Sept. 24-27; Oct. 16-20; Dec. 4-12; and Jan. 12-16 (if deemed necessary). A total of 230 licenses were issued to those who participated in a drawing with a June 1 application deadline, though additional licenses will be issued to those in that same pool for the January season if it is needed.

Outlook: Michigan elk hunters traditionally enjoy high success rates, especially in the December season, though the early season offers hunters an opportunity to bugle (call) elk. The number of licenses was reduced from 380 last year as aerial surveys indicate the herd is close to the state's management goal of 800 to 900 animals going into winter.

Deer

Season: An early antlerless-only hunt is scheduled for selected DMUs on private land Sept. 16-20. See the 2010 Antlerless Deer Hunting Digest. Archery season is Oct. 1 - Nov. 14 and Dec. 1 - Jan. 1. Firearms season is Nov. 15-30. Muzzleloading season is Dec. 3-12 in the Upper Peninsula, Dec. 10-19 in the northern Lower Peninsula and Dec. 3-19 in the southern Lower Peninsula. A late antlerless-only season is slated for Dec. 21 - Jan. 1. The limit is two antlered bucks, at least one of which must have at least four antler points on one side. Hunters in the Upper Peninsula and DMU 487 must choose to hunt for any legal buck or purchase a combination license. Hunters who do not purchase a combination license are restricted to one buck. Those who purchase a combo license are restricted to a buck with at least three points on one side and a buck with at least four points on one side. Hunters may take as many antlerless deer as they have licenses for, though they may buy no more than two for the northern two-thirds of the state, except in the tuberculosis zone (DMU 486), where they may also tag an antlerless deer with a buck tag.

Hunters are reminded that baiting is illegal in the Lower Peninsula because of disease concerns.

Outlook: Overall, deer hunting should be good. A somewhat slow season last year - due in great part to an unseasonably warm first few days of firearms season and a later-than-usual corn harvest - reduced the kill and a large number of deer went into what turned out to be a mild winter. Hunters killed roughly 447,000 deer last year, a 9 percent decrease from 2008. Still, 43 percent of hunters were successful. There is some concern, however, that there may be a shortage of 1 1/2-year-old bucks in the northern regions. Deer populations in most areas of the southern Lower Peninsula, however, remain well above goal.

Bobcat

Season: March 1 - Feb. 1, in Unit A (Upper Peninsula except Drummond Island), Unit B (Drummond Island) and Unit C (Alcona, Alpena, Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmett, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego and Presque Isle counties), Jan. 1 - Feb. 1 in Unit D (Clare, Crawford, Gladwin, Iosco, Kalkaska, Missaukee, Ogemaw, Osceola, Roscommon and Wexford counties and Arenac County north of M-61 and west of I-75). The limit is two, but only one may be taken from Units C and D combined and only one may be taken from Unit B.

Outlook: Found primarily in the northern two-thirds of Michigan, bobcats appear to be in a slow decline in the Upper Peninsula where harvests vary widely because of snow conditions. Populations appear to be stable in the Lower Peninsula. Hunters are reminded that in addition to a fur harvester's license, they must acquire free bobcat tags in advance of hunting. Hunters must immediately apply the tag to an animal as soon as it is taken and the carcass must be presented to a DNRE office within 10 days of the close of the season. DNRE personnel will collect data that may include the skull or a tooth sample. The bobcat will be sealed by the DNRE.

Coyote

Season: July 15 - April 15; coyotes may be taken on private property any time they are doing damage or about to do damage. There is no bag limit. Coyotes may be taken by a hunter in possession of a small game license or a fur harvester license.

Outlook: Coyotes are numerous statewide and have been increasing dramatically in southern Michigan in recent years. Largely nocturnal, coyotes may be present in significant numbers without being especially visible. Hunters in the Upper Peninsula are advised to be cautious not to mistake wolves for coyotes. Coyotes may be hunted at night, but hunters may not use center-fire rifles or shotgun shells loaded with buckshot or slugs.

Raccoon

Season: Oct. 1 - Jan. 31 statewide, though they may be taken on private land anytime they are doing damage or about to do damage. There is no bag limit.

Outlook: Raccoons are abundant and widespread in many habitats, but are especially prevalent in hardwood stands, especially along waterways or near agriculture. Raccoons are often hunted at night with packs of hounds - about 75,000 are taken annually - but there are restrictions on what sort of firearms may be used.

Fox

Season: Oct. 15 - March 1. There is no bag limit.

Outlook: Both red fox and gray fox are found across Michigan. The more numerous red fox are found in largely agricultural areas with mixed habitat including fence rows, fallow field, shrub lands and woodlots or water courses. Gray fox are typically found in wood lots. Although they can be found statewide, fox populations vary widely from abundant to uncommon. In areas with large coyote populations, fox numbers are often low. Although they are often hunted with hounds - sometimes in conjunction with coyotes - fox hunting with predator calls has become increasingly popular in recent years. Hunters must have a fur harvester license to take fox.

VILLAGE OF DEXTER VILLAGE COUNCIL NOTICE OF ZONING ORDINANCE AMENDMENT

Pursuant to Michigan Public Act 110 of 2006, as amended, notice is hereby given that the Village of Dexter Village Council has adopted amendments to the following section of Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Dexter: Zoning Ordinance.

Section 707.5K Sandwich Board, A-Frame and other portable signs was amended and reads as follows:

Sandwich board, A-frame, and other portable signs, hereinafter referred to as portable signs, in accordance with the following:

a. Size. Maximum height shall be four (4) feet. Maximum width shall be two (2) feet.

b. Location. 1. Portable signs shall be placed on the sidewalk in front of the property in which the business is located. A minimum of 3 feet (36 inches) from the curb and no more than 10 feet from the building in which the sign is intended to serve. A portable sign shall not be placed on the sidewalk, on a sidewalk area and/or public right of way and are only permitted when a five (5) foot wide path can be maintained on the sidewalk. Portable signs are not permitted to conceal landscape features in or adjacent to the streets, including grass, trees, shrubs, signs, etc., or obstruct access to fire hydrants, fire department connections, bicycle racks or curb ramps or interfere with the opening of vehicle doors or access to the sidewalk.

2. Portable signs shall be moved indoors after accumulation of snow or ice or more than 12 inches of snow and shall not be placed back on the sidewalk until the snow or ice has melted and extension on the side of the street where the business is located is clear of snow.

c. Number of Portable Signs. One (1) portable sign is allowed for each business, in a building up to a maximum of two (2) signs per property. A sign may contain advertising for more than one business on the property.

2. More than two (2) portable signs are permitted on private property or the public common areas in shopping malls only when the businesses have frontage along the sidewalk.

d. Hours. Portable signs may be utilized during hours of operation only. Portable signs left on the sidewalk outside overnight shall result in revocation of permit or fines. Fines must be paid prior to continuation of use of sandwich board signs.

Materials/Design. 1. Portable signs are encouraged to be visually consistent with the historic village and are intended to promote the pedestrian scale. Hand painted, carved, and unique signage on a flat surface is preferred.

2. Portable signs shall be properly designed and heavy enough to withstand typical winds without tipping over, rocking or sliding. It is the responsibility of the sign owner to remove the sign during inclement weather.

3. Illumination. Illumination is prohibited.

Insurance. The Village accepts no liability for any injury or damage caused by a Sandwich sign.

1. $100,000 of general liability insurance, naming the Village as an additionally insured, must be submitted along with the portable sign permit for signs proposed for placement in the right of way and on public property.

2. Permitting/Review Process. All sandwich boards require annual submission of an application, fee, and issuance of a permit. Permits are valid from April 1 to March 31.

From March 1 to March 31 of each year, the owner or manager of a business shall apply for a permit to begin April 1 under this section. Between March 1 and March 31, permit applications should be submitted to the Village of Dexter for the following permit year. Signs requiring insurance require proof of valid and current insurance for the time of the permit.

Application. April 1 to March 31, unless otherwise noted on the permit application. Permit application fees to be established by the Village Council.

All approved amendments are effective on September 28, 2010.

Information regarding the approved ordinance amendment is available for public inspection at the Village Offices, 8123 Main Street, Dexter, weekdays between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. or by phone at (734) 428-8302 Ext. 15. Minutes of all meetings are available at Village Offices and on the Village website. All ordinances are available on the Village website.

Dennis Pearlman created "Cinema Nightly."

Area resident starts 'Cinema Nightly' program

By Adrienne Ziegler
Guest Writer

During World War II, it was tough to get good entertainment on the front lines.

During their down time, soldiers converted abandoned buildings into movie theaters and showed films for other GIs. They painted the words "Cinema Nightly" at the top of the building so that other soldiers would know to join them there for the show.

When Ann Arbor resident Dennis Pearlman heard about this in an international film class, he thought there may be a good way to use the same idea right here at home and simultaneously give film enthusiasts a way to experience the arts for free.

Thus, "Cinema Nightly" was born in Washtenaw County.

The first "Cinema Nightly" made its debut Aug. 29 at Washtenaw Community College, with a "Back to School Double Feature." It showcased two full-length films, including "Shut" directed by Sascha Zimmermann, and "Coasting" directed by Michael P. Noens, who also will be a special guest at the screening.

"I think it would be a good idea for people to have their films shown without being judged or winning prizes or anything of that nature. We could just do screenings," Pearlman said. "There's no deadlines like film festivals. There's no admission fees like film festivals. It's totally free for everybody."

Although there was no musical guest for this first showing, Pearlman plans to have bands and musicians play at the monthly event to give them exposure and allow more people to see live music for free.

Since he began posting requests for submissions on film-lover websites around the world, Pearlman has received numerous entries. Short films, music videos, full-length features and more have arrived from Chicago, California, Atlanta, and even Germany.

"They started rolling in from everywhere," he said. "It's an eclectic mix of films. You never know what you're going to get next."

The only real rule at "Cinema Nightly" is the age constraint for patrons.

"The films are kind of adult oriented, so nobody younger than 18 without a parent," Pearlman said.

Other "Cinema Nightly" events scheduled included a series of short films at the Ann Arbor District Library. Pearlman has also scheduled a Halloween event called "The Night from Helsinki" Oct. 28 at the Ypsilanti Public Library from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m. featuring movies from Director Michael Frost.

To learn more about the event, visit the "Cinema Nightly" website at http://www.wix.com/cinema\_nightly/Cinema-Nightly-Project.

If you would like to submit a film of your own, mail your DVD to Dennis Pearlman, P.O. Box 3609, Ann Arbor, MI 48106.

"The Great American Songbook from Tin Pan Alley and Beyond" is a show for audiences of all ages directed by Roy Sexton, with musical direction and accompaniment by Rebecca Biber and choreography and additional direction by Lauren London.

Cabaret night will feature eight vocalists performing songs from Ellington to Loesser, Berlin to Sondheim, with familiar favorites and some surprises along the way.

"We don't want to tell you everything we'll be performing, because we want you to be surprised by some of the songs we present," said director Sexton in a news release.

More than 20 favorites will be part of the program, including songs like "Nice Work if You Can Get It" and "Til There Was You." The production will also include numbers from such shows as "The King & I" and "Pal Joey."

Performers include Plymouth and Canton residents Cathy Skutch, Rebecca Winder and Christine Kapusky Moore; Brooklyn's Bruce Hardcastle; Farmington Hills' Matt Cameron; Ann Arbor's Rebecca Biber and Lauren London; and Saline's Roy Sexton.

"The Great American Songbook from Tin Pan Alley and Beyond" will take place 8 p.m. Oct. 16. A cash bar and food concessions will be available.

The Village Theater at Cherry Hill is located 50400 Cherry Hill Road in Canton. The Village Theater has free parking is handicap accessible.

Tickets are $15 and may be purchased by phone at the Village Theater Box Office at 394-5300 or 394-5460 or online at www.canton-mi.org/village-theater.

Tickets may also be purchased in person at The Summit on the Park or at the door. The box office opens one hour before show time.

For more information about Spotlight Players productions, call at 480-4945 or visit: www.spotlightplayersmi.org.

The Spotlight Players will perform cabaret-style music Oct. 16.

Hey, I'm Ryan Michaels,
a 13-year-old writing movie reviews for Heritage Newspapers. I've been doing it for two years, and enjoy it a lot. Here are my picks for the summer's best and worst.

the worst, most sickening, soulless films I've ever seen. I've already explained the concept, and rest assured that no matter what flops you see this year, none are as bad as "The Human Centipede"

AN MAELS

It sports the worst direction of the year, with scenes, characters, sets and effects all thrown in together that never come close to a cohesive whole.

And finally, Ridley Scott's "Robin Hood" wasn't particularly awful, but because there was nothing whatsoever distinctive or interesting about it, one could argue it was even more agonizing than an awful film. It wouldn't have hurt to have cohesive story, either.

Now onto the goodies. The fifth best film of the year was Pixar's "Toy Story 3." Although repeat viewings have somewhat diminished its initial emotional punch, it still stands as a really entertaining, hilarious and, yes, heart-breaking film about trying to hold on to one's childhood.

"The Kids Are All Right" was a brilliant ensemble piece about a family attempting to hold itself together. Bolstered by great performances (Julianne Moore and Annette Bening stand out in particular) and a killer script, the film is heartfelt, emotional and yet still feels realistic, which makes all the difference.

I tend to disagree with Oscar voters' picks, which surprises me to say that their recent pick for Best Foreign Language Film, "The Secret in Their Eyes," was dead-on. Basically a murder-mystery, yet at its core a resonant love story, this film sports strong performances and a five-minute long tracking shot that ranks with the best

It's a toss-up for my second and first favorite films, but for now Edgar Wright's energetic retro-action comedy "Scott Pilgrim vs. the World" takes second. Although the financial disappointment of this movie pretty much crushed me, I have no doubt that on DVD it will find a following. This movie is a fantastic piece of entertainment, with literally hundreds of gags, a couple knock-out action sequences, and yet at its core is a great romance.

My favorite release of the summer was Christopher Nolan's "Inception." Brilliant on pretty much every level that a film can be judged on, after four viewings the magic of this movie still wows me. By the year's end, this and "Pilgrim's ranking may shift. But, for now, "Inception" ranks supreme above all others this summer.
