The deceased was the second white child born in Livingston county. She has been a life long member of the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor moved from Unadilla and settled on the present family homestead in 1861. She was esteemed and loved by all who knew her, and the sympathy of the friends and neighbors are extended to her family.

Press Club Outing.

The Eastern Michigan Press Club spent Friday and Saturday of last week in Detroit. An invitation had been extended by Fred Postal of the Griswold House to be his guest on an automobile ride and at dinner, and the way he used his guests made them his friends for life. There were more than 100 members of the Club present, and the long procession of automobiles attracted considerable attention. The ride consumed about two and one-half hours, and the route covered about forty miles. After the return to the hotel the guests were taken to the new convention hall where the dinner was served. After dinner the evening was passed in dancing, until about 11 o'clock, when the party separated. Saturday morning some of the members accepted the invitation of the White Star steamship line and went to Port Huron. In the afternoon those who remained in the city were the guests of the Detroit Baseball Club and witnessed that aggregation wallop Chicago. The outing was a pleasant one, and those who attended extend their thanks to their entertainers.

Sun Brothers' Big Show.

Despite the continuous rain on last Sunday, the Sun Brothers' Big Railroad Shows, unloaded their outfit and camped on the show grounds on the Beasley lot. The circus special arrived in Chelsea about 4 a. m., over the Michigan Central lines, coming from Rochester, where they had appeared the day previous.

The whole of the aggregation is a good looking one from every standpoint. The horses all look sleek and fat and the wild animal section contains a bunch of healthy cat animals, lions, elephants, camels and sacred cattle—in fact a great and interesting zoologic collection.

Very little work was done on Sunday, only the tents necessary to shelter the animals and horses and the mess tents being erected.

The regular work of building this miniature city of white tents, was started early Monday morning, and everything was in position by 9 a. m.

No street parade was announced by the management, they claiming that they had entirely cut out the giving of the so called "gorgeous, glittering, golden street pageantry." In fact, many of the larger tented shows are doing the same thing for the past few seasons.

Buffalo Bill—Pawnee Bill Big Wild West Shows are the leaders in this innovation. The theory of these managers is, that the parades are a nuisance and an extra burden of expense to the shows, besides the sending of their men, women, children, horses and animals through the hot, dusty and sometimes heavy, muddy streets for one and two hours each morning, practically unfits them to give a first class afternoon performance.

A large crowd attended the afternoon performance in the Big Top and the programme offered was a good one. It was exploited in one ring and this met with the approval of nearly everyone present. Many saying, that they much preferred seeing a one ring circus, to a "three ringer," because this way they were enabled to see everything with comfort and satisfaction.

There were many celebrated acts shown, especially the fine, big tight wire display by the Ceyne Troupe. This quartette of artists are probably the greatest in their class ever before seen in Chelsea. The act is very gorgeously costumed and two young women members of the troupe are "peach" of good lookers.

The trained elephants also scored a big hit; they done innumerable new "stunts," and gave a thoroughly first class exhibit.

The act styled "the human butterflies," proved to be sensational and was an original number, it was presented by the famous Barnetts and the De Macos. Funny clowns, acrobats, jugglers, contortionists and general circus specialists rounded out the two hour programme. The attendance at the night show, was good and a complete performance was presented. The side-shows were also liberally patronized and gave satisfaction with the attractions shown. Everything about the show was clean, no fakirs or graft games being allowed and there was also a noticeable absence of the rowdy element. From here the show went to Reading.

WATER NECESSARY FOR LIFE

Proof That Wine Will Not Serve the Purpose Where Frenchmen Are Concerned.

The French schooner Argus, struggling against headwinds to get from Dieppe to Marseilles, according to the dispatches, ran out of water and for three days the crew had nothing but champagne and claret to drink. Nearly every man was disabled by fever and acute gastritis. It was with the greatest gratitude that the captain of the Argus swapped several cases of champagne for a few barrels of water from the Oceana, a Bombay liner.

Pathologists will say correctly that there is nothing new in this experience. That wine will not take the place of water and keep men in good condition, has been known as long as wine has been known. Three elements, however, in the story of the Argus make it a striking lesson, emphasizing an old truth. First, the men were Frenchmen, with the Frenchman's habit of taking wine daily; second, the wines they drank as a substitute for water were presumably pure, and the claret at least was relatively light; third, the three days is a very short period for the disabling of a whole crew.

It is mighty lucky for the human race that a water trust is conceded impracticable.
